Survey may show residents' desires

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth city officials are exploring help from the University of Michigan to balance future general-fund budgets, which are expected to result in red ink and possible cutbacks in services

Mayor Pro Tem Dan Dwyer and City Manager Paul Sincock have been meeting with professor John Chamberlin from U-M's Gerald Ford School of Public Policy about using graduate students to help conduct a survey to determine if residents are willing to raise property taxes to improve the city's outlook, or which services they would rather see curtailed

"All indicators are unless the state changes the financial model, we'll be hundreds of thousands of dollars in the red within five years," said Dwyer Something has to give, and it's going to be something big, or we're going to have to raise taxes

"I want to know if the people of Plymouth would support a regional fire department, or would they support the merger of the police department with another municipality," he said 'I would like to know if the voters would support a tax increase, and if so, for what And, if not, what services would they be willing to give up"

Dave Nadeau, 55, has lived in Plymouth for 17 years He'd like a chance to voice his input before the city commission makes decisions

"They should ask before they go into your pockets," said Nadeau, "so I can decide what services can be cut"

Nadeau said if it comes to another vote on raising taxes "I'd rather cut services," he said

If approved by commissioners, Chamberlin plans to use a handful of students to conduct a survey on how the city commission should view its future financial status

'This is a problem that isn't going away by saving a little bit of money here and there," said Chamberlin "Everybody is suffering from decreases in revenue sharing from the state And, what's happening at the state level is coming to roost at the local level"

If the plan moves forward, Chamberlin said the one-semester project could get started next month, with a half dozen students first taking time to understand Plymouth's financial problems and decide how to go about the survey, whether it be public forums, focus groups or a mail campaign

"This is a chance for students, who will be taking jobs in the public or nonprofit sector, to apply what they've learned in the rest of the curriculum," he said

The work will be free

Chester Mazzoni pours out a Blue Raspberry frozen fruit drink in the company's Plymouth Township office Mazzoni said he hopes to add 100 accounts by year's end, and another 300-400 next year

Frozen drink gets red hot

Breeze Freeze rides healthy wave of success

BY BRAD KADRICH
STAFF WRITER

When Chester Mazzoni's son wanted to start a frozen drink company a few years ago, Mazzoni staked him to enough money to get him started

But when Dad saw how the company – Breeze Freeze – was doing selling the same kind of frozen drinks everyone else has and did some research into other ways of doing it, he jumped in knowing the company could do better

Results since then certainly bear him out Starting from scratch in Canton Township five years ago, Breeze Freeze now has more than a dozen franchisees and some 400 accounts, enough growth to force Mazzoni to move into a new facility in Plymouth Township

'The first six months, we were doing sugar water the same thing everyone's got," said Mazzoni, a Canton resident who owns a medical software company and is semi-retired "I told them we're going to do it right"

Doing it right meant shifting to a drink that's 100 percent fruit juice, has 100 percent Vitamin C and contains no added sugars

PCCS eyes bond

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

While the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education has yet to officially announce it will be asking voters to approve a second bond issue in less than two years, trustees have scheduled a special meeting next month to discuss issues that could lead to such a vote in May or November 2006

Voters approved a $109 million bond issue in September 2004 to construct a $15 million elementary school in southwest Canton, and spend $94 million for improvements at most of the district's other school buildings

Supt Jim Ryan said a bond issue next year could be in the range of $85-$100 million

Ryan expects the Saturday, Sept 10, meeting to address whether to renovate Central Middle School or build a new middle school in Canton Township, as well as elementary school equity

"How do we handle the growth to make sure schools have separate gyms and cafeterias, and how do we come out of this with dedicated music and art rooms in our build-

Steep gas prices hit home at Plymouth pumps

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Paying higher gas prices has western Wayne County residents singing the blues

"I think they're awfully high," said Ron Denomme, who was gassing up his SUV at the BP at Five Mile and Northville roads in Plymouth Township "Fortunately, I have one car that's a Focus that gets pretty good mileage"

Denomme, a Plymouth Township resident, was filling up Thursday morning even though he didn't need to immediately "I know the prices are going up today," he said

John Higgins of Livonia, at that BP Thursday morning, is also unhappy about prices for fuel Higgins drives a Taurus and a work van, the latter requiring some $120-$150 a week in gas The BP was charging $2 45 a gallon for regular Thursday

"It's had a real effect on me," said Higgins, who has a furniture installation business "They should cut the fuel tax until they get a handle on prices"

Down the road at Five Mile and Newburgh in Livonia, the price for regular was four cents higher at the Shell By Thursday evening, it was $2 59 at the Speedway at Wayne and Cherry Hill in Westland

AAA Michigan was reporting prices for Aug 8 of $2 368 per gallon regular in Detroit, $2 392 statewide

Individual motorists aren't the only ones feeling the pinch School districts and others who operate a number of vehicles are watching fuel prices closely In the Garden City school district, gas prices were $16,000 higher this past school year than in the year before

"Pretty significant, when you don't have $16,000 laying around," said Sheryl Quinn, executive director for business services for the district "It's just another cost we have to factor in" The district pays less than customers do at the pump, she said, but gas costs are still a major concern

Buses don't get good mileage, she said, only four-five miles a gallon despite the best efforts of district mechanics Diesel buses mean savings on maintenance, but not necessarily on fuel

"Especially this last year, it has not been any less expensive," Quinn said The district will need to increase what it charges buildings for field trips, although the specifics are still being worked out

"We know we're going to have to increase it," she said "It's always a concern" Quinn, who drives an SUV, has also noted gas prices for her personal driving, seeing them climb daily

So far, customers aren't giving up their larger vehicles in droves, said Tom North, vice president of North Brothers Ford in Westland. "We haven't seen a huge swing in the mix of product we're selling,' he said. New products, including cars, are doing well ings?" Ryan said 'We still need to deal with alternative education (Starkweather Education Center), they deserve a good building with a library, cafeteria and physical education opportunities

"We want to talk about high school expansion, career and tech education," he said 'And additions at the Park that would free up some classroom space for the growing population"

School board President Mark Slavens said the board will use twice-monthly meetings throughout the school year to determine parameters for a bond issue, which will be derived from a master plan presented by Ryan

"I'm certainly in favor of a bond, and I m moving forward with the process to get input from other board members," Slavens said

"I'm inclined to look at the need for a new middle school in Canton," he said "We have the land, the geographic population dictates we need another middle school in that area, and it would help us with busing costs Continuing renovations to the other schools is another interest'

Katie Kwiatkowski, 29, is a middle school teacher in Melvindale The Plymouth Township resident said a modest increase in taxes for schools is good for education

"Money toward schools is generally a good thing,' Kwiatkowski said If it's for bigger buildings, or things to accommodate students to handle the population growth, I d be supportive of it"

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

The U S Environmental Protection Agency has good news for residents of Wayne and Romulus whose homes and property were peppered with the debris following a series of explosions and massive fire at EQ Resource Recovery Inc Tuesday night

Results of tests done on the debris showed no signs of toxins that might be found following such a fire

'We feel confident that nothing left the site," said Jon Gulch, on scene coordinator for the EPA ' We tested for the worse-case scenario and found the fallout to be normal ash

The announcement was what EQ representatives expected According to Dan Gilbert, EQ director of communications, the firm "was confident that was going to be the case"

"It s a positive thing to be able to get the data and share it with residents, but it s a lot better hearing it from a regulatory agency, he said

Gulch praised Romulus firefighters for allowing the fire to burn The high temperatures generated prevented toxins from being released into the air he said

"We still can't tell you what it is, but we can tell you it's not toxic,' added Steve Tackitt, Wayne County's Director of Environmental Health "We sampled and tested for the most toxic chemicals and it came back not detected '

The results were from tests conducted on Wednesday Results of a second round of tests for lesser toxins are expected Monday

But even the good news came with a cautionary message for weary residents as Tackitt urged them to "wash their hands frequently, and encourage children to do the same"

I can't stress this enough when you're dealing with particulate matter, he said

The announcement came at a time when Romulus firefighters were bringing in equipment to lift a roof where a fire still burned According to Gilbert, they will not leave until they deem it safe and only then will officials be able to look for a cause of the inferno And once they are done, EQ's emergency response division will go in and do its own investigation

EQ has picked up the tab for 150-200 hotel rooms used by displaced residents and also has set up a 24 hour hotline – (877) 278-7630 – for residents to call

'We realize they re anxious and concerned and we want to make them as comfortable as possible Gilbert said But I think there's still some people who are waiting for the EPA to say that it has done all the tests and there s nothing there

Rich and Kathy Huffman were among residents who were waiting to hear the bottom line on what the fire and explosions spewed into the air Tuesday evening They live on Currier west of Howe within a mile of the plant and while they were spared the falling debris that rained from the sky after the initial blasts, they're worried about what they can t see that might have hit the ground

Oh, God, yes, I was concerned, Rich had put fertilizer on the lawn Tuesday afternoon, and with the chemicals falling and mixing with what s on the grass said Kathy I'm still being careful with the dogs They go out and come right back in '

The Huffmans were ordered out of their home just after 11 p m Tuesday They grabbed their two dogs, daughter Stephanie and son Zach and went to Kathy's mother s home in Dearborn Heights

Attorney Liz Thompson is asking residents who have suffered health problems or property damage to call her at (248) 351-2200

Thompson of the Southfield law firm Weiner & Cox filed a class action Wednesday in Wayne County Circuit Court on behalf of the residents affected by the explosions

Jeffrey Carter and Douglas Warden of Wayne are co-class representatives in the suit They are seeking damages in excess of $25 000 each plus expenses and legal fees It also seeks a permanent injunction against EQ Resource Recovery

BREEZE FREEZE

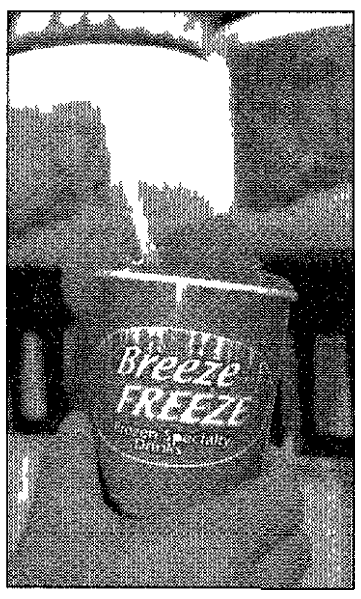
Doing it right also meant building up not only the list of franchisees and accounts, but also adding school districts as places to get Breeze Freeze out The company now has drinks in Plymouth-Canton, Livonia and Hartland, and some 300 other districts in Michigan and as far away as Florida and Connecticut

'Parents and administrators want to teach kids to be a little healthier, and (Breeze Freeze) is a healthy drink," Mazzoni said 'There's also talk about taking carbonated drinks out of schools, and someone has to fill that void

Part of what has helped Breeze Freeze grow the way it has is what Mazzoni calls a unique arrangement with its accounts Rather than leasing the necessary machinery and then paying for service, Breeze Freeze actually sells the machinery – including arrangements for service – to store owners

The price of the machinery is



TOM HOFFMEYER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Breeze Freeze frozen fruit drinks like this Blue Raspberry have become very popular allowing the company to start franchising across the country this year a little higher, Mazzoni explained, but the store owners aren t paying for service

'Store owners like that because it's saving them hundreds of dollars in service, down time and lost revenue, Mazzoni said They don t mind paying a little more for the product if they get that kind of service"

How much has the business grown? Mazzoni expects another 100 franchises by year's end, and is aiming at 300 400 more next year

The quality of the drink is its own selling point, and Breeze Freeze took advantage of an untapped market, according to the firm s national sales director

'There was nobody doing 100-percent fruit juice, said Pat Janssen, who has been selling frozen drinks for more than 10 years 'Everything was sugar water The industry needed some better products'

From its humble beginnings in a small Canton building, Breeze Freeze moved into a 15,000-square-foot headquarters on Concept Drive The company manufactures its own product, and another 261 locations want Breeze Freeze prod ucts

'We wanted to design and build our own building," said Mazzoni, who grew up in Dearborn and moved to Canton in 1978 '(But) This place will be too small for us in 18 months"

It s all happening pretty quickly, and faster than the owners ever thought it would Breeze Freeze started out as a company owned by Mazzoni's son, Chet, and a friend

Chet Mazzoni, the company's national service director, said he never really considered the idea of growth when he was getting started, and he's surprised the company has taken off the way it has

'When we started, I never ever really thought about where we were going,' Chet Mazzoni said "I never gave it much thought, until we got into schools, and then it just exploded'

Chester Mazzoni said the product basically sells itself, and the company is basically along for the ride

'Give people a good product and they'll buy it, and they won't mind paying a few pennies more for it, Mazzoni said 'The public is creating the demand for us We've given them a good product, and they've rewarded us for it"

McCotter: Iraq and jobs are major issues for 11th District

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

Iraq and jobs are the two topics that residents of the 11th Congressional District want to discuss with their representative

U S Rep Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, is home for a summer break and spending time meeting with his constituents On Monday, he met with Observer editors

"Iraq is dominating They all want to know what's going on there," said McCotter 'They're still concerned about job loss and retention We're a practical state, very matter of fact They are worried about their future here'

The congressional recess follows a couple of weeks in which several major pieces of legislation were passed including a transportation bill, an energy bill, reauthorization of the Patriot Act and the Central America Free Trade Agreement

"I would think for our district the transportation bill was critical, given the job situation

and infrastructure problems we have,' McCotter said "We specifically targeted local communities, taking into account revenue sharing and other problems they have"

McCotter and other members of Congress were able to announce last week scores of local road projects for their communities The $286 4 billion package was signed Wednesday by President George W Bush, though it exceeded his budget recommendation by $30 billion Critics complain that the bill includes too many pork barrel projects

"The old joke is one man s pork is another man s progress," McCotter said

He said once the House and Senate produced a conference report, his concern was how the 11th District would benefit

ENERGY BILL

The $12 3 billion energy bill, signed by Bush on Monday, includes money for energy companies but requires them to comply with federal regulations for the electricity grid in an effort to prevent blackouts like the one in 2003 It also provides funding for development of alternative energy sources to reduce American dependence on foreign oil

'The energy bill is a long term strategic investment I don't think there'll be an immediate payoff at the pumps," McCotter said "I don't think people will respond to that one way or the other"

A proposal to extract oil from the Arctic National Wildlife Reserve in Alaska was pulled from the energy bill to avoid a filibuster by Democrats Senate and House Republican leaders are discussing introducing the proposal as part of a budget procedure that isn't subject to filibuster

"I support ANWR," McCotter said "I've been open about that I think if we want to decrease our energy reliance – the energy bill will help but you have to have a national source of exploration and extraction In terms of how it gets done, I think it was better to take it out of the energy bill to some extent I don't make these decisions, but I think it's better to have an energy bill without it than not have an energy bill with it"

In opposing the Bush Administration on CAFTA, McCotter argued that the treaty would take jobs away from Michigan and did not provide adequate protections for Central American workers

PATRIOT ACT

McCotter supported reauthorization of the Patriot Act but said he continues to have reservations about some portions of the bill, particularly Section 215 which authorizes government inspection of library, bookstore, medical and other records

He said he is interested in seeing what comes out of conference discussions with the Senate He said the House often takes a "hardball position on issues that are later "watered down in conference with the Senate Discussion has already moved to reducing a sunset on Section 215 from 10 years, as approved in the House, to four years

He said the bill may have helped prevent a repeat of 9/11

"We can look at London, we can look at Madrid We can look at other places and while you can't say the Patriot Act was the singular reason for it, you can't say it was counter productive, he said "But you have to have a sunset on this Most Americans look on this as a war measure"

McCotter said the first line of defense against another terrorist attack is the Arab American community

'They're the ones who know the people coming in, they've housed them and sheltered them The Arab American community has done a fine job of self policing their community There has to be an understanding of that, he said

IRAQ CRITIC

McCotter continues to be a critic of the administration's prosecution of the war in Iraq, which he supports

"The insurgency continues to become more resilient and technologically advanced as time goes on,' McCotter said "I've been watching the developments in the constitutional process and I don't know if the Shi a through the prime minister could have done more to alienate the Sunnis in the process than to ask Iran to potentially train some of the security forces"

McCotter said the United States hasn't been involved enough in the process of developing a constitution for Iraq The Shi'a are the majority Muslim population in Iraq The Sunni Muslims are the minority that held power under Saddam Hussein The Kurds in northern Iraq are the other major population group in the country

'The Sunni minority was not constrained in how they dealt with the Shi'a majority and the Shi a won't be constrained in how they deal with the Sunni,' McCotter said I hope the Shi a don t think we will fight the civil war for them"

McCotter said he is concerned about the future of the Great Lakes as Midwest states continue to lose population and representation in Congress He said the federal government needs to provide funding to protect water quality but that the funding should not come with 'strings" that might lead to taking lake water for other parts of the country

An Important Message for Medicare Beneficiaries

In 2003, Congress passed the Medicare Modernization Act—legislation that will take full effect in 2006. Many of you have expressed concern over how this act will affect your Medicare coverage.

The short answer is, it's up to you. The Medicare Modernization Act is not a mandate—it simply provides choices.

- It does not eliminate or reduce your Medicare benefits
- It is not a "privatization" of Medicare
- You have a choice of options, including your current coverage
- For the first time, prescription drug coverage is offered

In the coming months, you'll be hearing a lot about Medicare options from a number of sources, including private health care companies. Before making any decisions, we encourage you to get the facts through one of the following unbiased resources:

Job and family pull reporter in opposite directions after explosion

I had just stopped by to visit a friend at the south end of the city of Wayne on Tuesday evening when we both heard a tremendous boom That was shortly after 9 p m and just the beginning of what turned out to be one wild night

Immediately after the explosion that shook many homes, people in my buddy's neighborhood started spilling out onto the streets to find out what had happened Everywhere people were shouting and speculating what could have caused such a blast. A few of the people I spoke to swore they saw an airplane go down, and that seemed to be the general consensus on the streets

As a newspaper reporter, my first inclination was to grab my notepad and camera and try to get close to the fire, which was almost immediately visible in the sky just to the southwest of where we were My thoughts immediately went back to the crash of Flight 255 near Metro Airport in 1987, and I feared the worst

Kurt Kuban

My friend and I jumped in his truck and tried to get close to the scene, but police and fire personnel from Wayne, Romulus and a number of other communities were quickly out in droves and closed down Wayne and Van Born roads, making it impossible to get there by the easiest route So we got creative and decided to cut through a number of neighborhood streets, the same ones that police would soon be evacuating

As we navigated through the neighborhood, hundreds of people were on the streets, gathering around and wondering Even as darkness set in, everyone could see the dark, black smoke billowing up from the southwest side of town Depending on your vantage point, you could also see the orange glow of flames just below the smoke It was obvious to everyone that this was a huge fire And a big news story

Speculations about an airplane crash were soon quelled by news reports, however, and it was learned the explosion occurred at a chemical plant called EQ Resource Recovery, which is actually in Romulus on Van Born Road, just across the city limits of Wayne

A little after 10 p m , Wayne city officials, having no idea what exactly was burning, decided to declare a state of emergency and ordered the neighborhoods closest to the site evacuated — an area containing more than 1,000 homes Police officers went street by street, home by home, telling people to evacuate, by force if necessary Spotlights flashed around, bullhorns rang out and people were shepherded away It was an eerie scene It wasn't quite panic or bedlam Perhaps mass confusion sums it up best — although everyone left in an orderly way

At that point, the question immediately rose in my mind, and probably in the minds of most of the other people around the scene Was this something more than just a fire? Could it have been a terrorist attack?

With the bombings in London fresh in my mind, and the tragic incidents of Sept 11, 2001, seared into all our memories, the possibility of a terrorist attack didn't seem out of the realm of possibility Especially when it was learned that the plant stored all types of hazardous chemicals, including PCBs and formaldehyde

At that point, my fatherly instincts kicked in I, too, live in Wayne — north of Michigan Avenue and probably about a mile from EQ Resource Recovery And my wife and two young children were at home As much as I wanted to stick around to learn what was happening, I decided to return home, where I struggled with the notion of sending my family away from town, to stay the night with a relative I was especially worried because the slight wind was blowing the smoke directly over our home, though it seemed fairly high in the atmosphere

Ultimately my wife and I decided they would stay in the house with the doors and windows closed tightly, and I went back out to do my job, which was to talk to people and try to find out what was going on When I left the house, I kissed my 2-year-old daughter and hugged her tighter than I think I ever have

The rest of the night my family was never too far from my thoughts Suddenly the victims of past terrorist attacks seemed more real to me More than just names in a news story I began to understand the confusion they must have gone through

Unfortunately, this is the world we now live in The terrorists that struck the World Trade Center and Pentagon have forever changed our lives, at least for the foreseeable future Nobody knows this more than emergency officials Every time something like this happens — an explosion, a plane crash, etc — their first thought must turn to terrorism

We must face the fact that we are all targets to the likes of bin Laden and his followers Women, children, the infirm It doesn't matter Suicide bombers aren't picky about who they kill It's a chilling thought, really Although I suppose the bombs our jets drop are no more finicky

By the end of the night, it was learned that there had been no terrorist attack at EQ Resource Recovery, and the explosion was an industrial accident with the cause to still be determined It may be days or weeks before investigators figure it all out

Personally, I never thought I would be so relieved to learn it was merely a massive chemical fire burning in my hometown

Rising tuition should not be bar to college education

There are many scenarios that can keep a college president awake at night A student injured on campus An accident in a university laboratory New government regulations

Yet no situation concerns me more as president of the University of Michigan than knowing some parents across our state mistakenly believe our doors are closed to their children because of cost Nothing could be further from the truth

For generations of Michigan families, public higher education has been a gateway of opportunity That path, at U-M and Michigan's other universities, remains open to qualified students because of significant increases in financial aid packages that will help them achieve their goals

Mary Sue Coleman

Last week, the U-M took the difficult step of raising tuition to counter a significant shortfall in support from the state, our fellow public universities across the state have done the same Given the state's current economic climate, the pressures on tuition increases are unlikely to subside Our challenge is to ensure that college remains affordable for students of the most modest means, and U-M's commitment to providing strong financial aid packages makes that possible

We have always told our prospective students who live in Michigan that if they are admitted to U-M, we will find a way for them to pay the bills using grants, loans and campus jobs The basic cost of a U-M education will never force a Michigan resident from our campus, and that guarantee remains firmly in place – with more financial aid available to our students than ever before While our in-state tuition will rise 12 3 percent, our overall grant support for Michigan resident undergraduates is growing by more than 28 percent

Students whose families earn up to $45,000 will receive $2,400 more in grant aid this fall than they did a year ago At $60,000 family income, grant aid will rise by some $1,400 These increases in grant aid will more than exceed the increases students will see in tuition costs, and will equal or exceed the increase in the total costs of attendance, including room and board and books I am proud we are offering greater assistance to our most financially vulnerable students

Under our M-PACT program, the cost of attending U-M actually will fall next year for the 13 percent of our students with the lowest family incomes Overall, some 40 percent of our undergraduates receive need-based aid, and two-thirds of our students receive some form of financial aid

Public higher education has been a gateway of opportunity.

Our commitment to access is fundamental No university in our state provides more financial aid to its students

For parents, a child s college education is second only to purchasing a home as the largest investment they will make And yet a college education will pay more returns than the most beautiful house on the block Census data tell us that college graduates will earn, on the average, $1 3 million more over a lifetime than their peers who only hold high school diplomas

As a state, Michigan is desperate for more college graduates to strengthen the economy and improve our quality of life As a state university, U-M is committed to making opportunity as broadly available as possible Financial aid is an essential component in our mission to open our doors wide, creating educated graduates who contribute to our communities with their ideas, their talents and their leadership

Higher education is a not simply a private good, the pursuit of knowledge is not the purview of the wealthy To fulfill our public purpose, we must lower the real financial barriers – and also the perceived financial barriers – to a college education I am adamant that necessary increases in tuition not create an insurmountable barrier to access for the students of our state

The U-M has established itself nationally as an institution that believes strongly in diversity, as best exemplified by our defense of our admissions practices before the U S Supreme Court Yet diversity means more than a student body rich in ethnicity and race Our students must come from all socioeconomic backgrounds, and strong financial aid packages allow us to achieve economic diversity on our campus

My message to students and their parents is direct a U-M education is more than possible. I encourage high school students to talk with their guidance counselors, who can assist them in obtaining information about aid Current U-M students concerned about costs should talk with our experts in the Office of Financial Aid

We want the state's brightest students in our classrooms, and tuition bills should never hinder them from walking through our doors

Mary Sue Coleman is president of the University of Michigan

Franklin chief named top cop at Metro

BY LARRY RUEHLEN
STAFF WRITER

Franklin-Bingham Farms Police Chief Edward Glomb is retiring, but he won't be out of work a single day

"I'm extremely proud of this department," said Glomb, who came to Franklin in 1982 'Our guys do an excellent job and they are well-respected in the community This department won't miss a beat without me"

On Monday, Glomb took over as chief of police for Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport — a department with 140 officers For Glomb, the new job is a homecoming to Wayne County He began his law enforcement career in 1971 with the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, spending most his time in the narcotics unit.

Glomb said he is looking forward to future challenges, but he also reflected on his days in Franklin.

"This is great place to work," he said 'And I'm going to miss the many, many friends I've made working in the great little towns of Franklin and Bingham Farms"

The bordering communities are known for being quiet and peaceful — perfect settings to raise a family The local department of 10 officers is charged with keeping it that way and, for the most part, serious crime rarely occurred during Glomb's tenure

In 1991, a Brinks truck was held up in Bingham and the robber shot and killed a security guard. It took two years, but the department eventually got its man.

"It was dogged detective work," Glomb said "They (officers) didn't give up and he's now serving life in prison."

'I'm going to miss the many, many friends I've made working in the great little towns of Franklin and Bingham Farms.'

Edward Glomb
airport police chief

The department had a suspect from the beginning, but couldn't get enough proof for a conviction The robber eventually confided in the wrong person, who later told Franklin police.

Franklin Village Council President Mark Jahnke said Glomb will be missed and that the council is taking steps to replace him

"We haven't had to do this in 23 years, so we are going to take enough time and do it right," Jahnke said on hiring a new chief. "We may hire a consultant or organize a hiring committee"

Jahnke said the process could take months and that a salary range hasn't yet been set In the meantime, Sgt William Castro will serve as interim chief

Franklin-Bingham Farms Police Chief Edward Glomb is leaving to take over chief of police for Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport

Roger Dyjak shows off the tools of his labor (running shoes) in his left hand and the fruits of his labor (a medal) in his right The Plymouth resident is currently training to compete in the Leadville 100, a 100-mile ultra-marathon that starts and ends in Leadville, Colo

Ultra-marathon man

Plymouth long-distance runner set for 100-mile event

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

The human body wasn't designed to endure what Roger Dyjak is prepared to put his 5-foot-9, 185-pound frame through later this month

Neither were some cars, for that matter

On Aug 20, Dyjak will compete in the 'Leadville 100," a 100-mile ultra-marathon that pushes competitors' physical and mental capabilities to the point of exhaustion and beyond

Last year, over 3,000 runners started the race, but only 100 finished in the allotted 30-hour time frame

And if running 100 miles without a break isn't grueling enough under normal circumstances, this ultra-marathon event originates in Leadville, Colo , which is situated approximately 10,000 lung-shrinking feet above sea level

What motivates the 33-year-old Plymouth resident to test the boundaries of human endurance?

"I would rather fall a little short at doing something that seems impossible than do extremely well at something that isn't nearly as difficult," said Dyjak, who has already completed four ultra-marathons, nine ironman triathlons (2 4-mile swim, 112-mile bike ride and 26 2-mile run) and countless standard marathons (26 2-mile run) "I have found that when my body is at its weakest, my mind is at its strongest

"There comes a point in the race when every neuron in my body wants me to quit, but I keep going because I believe in myself and I know I can get through it"

ANNUAL AGONY

The race takes a painful toll on Dyjak's body, but it's one he's more than

College baseball careers await two Salem grads

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

Recently graduated Salem baseball players Dave Cardenas and Mitch Hosch will be taking their skills to the next level next spring

Both will be playing collegiate baseball in 2006 — Cardenas signed with Madonna University in Livonia while Hosch will be playing for Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn

Cardenas, a shortstop, played a key role in the Rocks' Division 1 district title, providing solid defense and clutch hitting

Hosch was on his way to a spectacular senior season before a broken arm sidelined him 18 games into the season At the time of his injury, Hosch had a team-high four home runs and a 426 batting average

"The coach (Greg Haeger) said they're going to throw all the shortstops in a blender this season and whoever plays the best in the fall and the pre-season will start," said Cardenas, who earned two varsity baseball letters at Salem "He said they're looking for a bigger athlete to play shortstop, so I'll be fighting for a starting spot"

Cardenas will be joining an up-and-coming program that constructed a 44-16 record in 2005

"Coach Haeger has built the program up to where they expect to get to the NAIA championship tournament every year," Cardenas said "I'm excited about becoming a part of a successful program like that"

Hosch, a smooth-swinging outfielder, said playing for Henry Ford could be a springboard to an opportunity at a four-year school

"Five of Henry Ford's six outfielders from last year's team got recruited to play for Division 1 schools this year,' Hosch said "So I know if I go out and perform like I can, I could get a chance to play at a bigger school, too"

Both Hosch and Cardenas will be pursuing degrees in business administration

Let's play two: Doubleheaders on tap at PCEP football stadium

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

Prep football fans in the Plymouth/Canton community will have an opportunity to get a double-dose of their favorite sport this fall when Friday afternoon/evening double-headers are added to the three local teams' schedules

When Plymouth High School attained varsity status last year, the traditional Friday night dates for home games was expanded to Saturday afternoons, which wasn't a popular time to play for coaches, players or fans

This year, when two of the three teams are slotted to play at home on a given weekend, one team will play at 4 30 p m and the other at 7 30 p m Friday night games started at 7 p m last season The PCEP stadium will be cleared following the first game

"Playing on Saturdays last year really threw the teams' weekly schedules out of whack,' said Plymouth coach Jay Blaylock. "You get used to the routine of practicing Monday through Thursday, playing on Friday, then getting the team together on Saturday to watch the films of the Friday night game I think everyone involved – coaches, players and fans – will prefer playing on Friday afternoons compared to Saturday afternoons"

Each of the three teams will be assured of playing at least three games at the preferable 7 30 p m starting time on Fridays, Blaylock said

"All of the big rivalry games will be played at 7 30 p m ," Blaylock said

The 2005 season kicks off Friday Aug 26 All three teams' schedules will be published in next week's Observer along with detailed previews

Rams ousted in Johnstown

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Manager Rick Berryman couldn't complain even though the Michigan Rams, representing the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League, settled for a fifth-place finish in last week's All-American Amateur Baseball Association Tournament held in Johnstown, Pa

On Thursday, two-time defending AAABA champion Youse's of Baltimore (Md) got three hits and four RBI from Preston Pehrson to oust the Rams, 13-8, at Roxbury Park

The Rams finished 3-2 in the double-elimination draw of 16 teams after finishing third a year ago Baltimore, 4-1 in the 20-and-under tourney, suffered its only setback Tuesday against the Rams, 11-4

The remaining teams in the 16-team field included Baltimore, New Orleans and host Johnstown

"The kids from Michigan played well and we definitely can compete with the top teams," Berryman said "Our guys hit the ball well and I thought we pitched well except for the first two innings of our last game We just made some untimely errors and they (Baltimore) had some timely hitting"

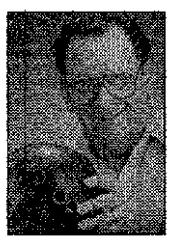
School's in: League officer sessions starting soon

The league officers schools are now in session Some have already been held at various bowling centers, others are coming soon to a house near you



Ten Pin Alley

Al Harrison

Ken Miller of Garden City is one of the Greater Detroit Bowling Association directors who has been doing a sterling job of conducting these schools

I collaborated with him earlier this week at Cherry Hill Lanes

As league officers came rolling in for the 7 p m class, we registered their league and gave out the vital league supplies for the coming season The new GDBA yearbooks were handed out to each league along with the registration cards to certify each and every bowler in all leagues The new US Bowling Congress rule books were included in the package As a practical move, the number of rule books was pared down from previous sessions As for the rules themselves, there were very few changes A new bowler can now have an established league average after only 12 games, when previously the minimum number was 21 The registration cards now have a space on the back to pay the annual fee by credit card, perhaps more convenient as one of the new USBC rules (101B) states that a bowler must submit his or her registration money on the first day or night of competition The fees are the same as last year, unlike the price of gas, they did not go up, still $16 for adult men and $15 for adult women The seniors bowling in an all-seniors league pay only $12 USBC rule 107c allows a captain to replace a player anytime during a game with another eligible player, unless otherwise specified by league rule USBC Rule 107d specifies that pacers who are members of USBC are eligible for USBC awards while bowling in a USBC certified league After the supplies were handed out, Dave Hamilton, General Manager of Cherry Hill Lanes greeted the group of officers, representing about thirty leagues and introduced Ken Miller and myself, as we expounded on the impact of the new system, the changes which have taken place and are about to in the near future The most significant change will take place over the next year os so as we transition from the GDBA and DWBA to the Detroit Metro USBC, with a completely different structure There will be somewhat fewer Association Directors, as there will be the placement of House Reps for each bowling center The house reps will be volunteers who are willing to devote themselves to the betterment of bowling They will be there to present some of the awards, to answer questions as they arise and to act as a liason between the leagues and headquarters Classes will be given to those who answer the call, It can be male of female, youth or senior, house employee, just about anyone who is a bowling enthusiast, ready and willing to help Some of us who are now GDBA directors will change hats and become house reps We also discudssed the many benefits of being a certified league, especially the bonding program, which is so important to protect your league funds in case of the ft or loss We concluded the evening program by announcing the times and dates of upcoming local tournaments Ken and I stayed around a while to answer questions and also enjoy an nice pizza and salad buffet served up by Steve Klein's All-Star Grill and Catering Once again, this year, the individual certification cards will be sent through the mail to each bowler in a USBA certified league

One of the league officers asked us about members who become in arrears on bowling fees, later dropping out entirely Ken suggested that they bring this topic up in the league meeting before the start of the season and make it clear to all that if they do not pay, they will not bowl Monies in arrears can also be deducted from prize money, if applicable Each league should have a rule in their by-laws that cover this subject clearly for all to understand

Al Harrison is a resident of Livonia a life member of the U S Bowling Congress and a director of the Greater Detroit Bowling Association He can be reached at (248) 477 1839

High Velocity hosts dodge ball

Buffalo Wild Wings will sponsor after-parties at its Ford Road location for the dodge-ball teams The parties will include 24 complimentary chicken wings for groups of six or more

Leagues will run in the fall (Aug 28-Oct 22), winter (Oct 23-Dec 23, Jan 2-March 2 and March 6-April 30)

Teams can choose to either play on Monday or Wednesday nights

The team fee is $400 and includes six games plus playoffs

HVS dodge-ball teams use gator-skin foam balls

Rosters may include males and females Each team starts off in the soccer goal of their end with 10 players on the field and two balls Two more balls are placed on the mid-field line Once the official blows the whistle, it's a mad dash to get the two "free balls"

Teams start throwing immediately, trying to get out opposing players by hitting them with a ball or by catching a ball thrown at them

The first team to eliminate all the players on the opposing side wins the round

The team that wins 10 rounds first, or nas the most wins at the end of the hour, wins the game

A single-elimination tournament will follow the regular season and the winner gets an impressive trophy and bragging rights for eight weeks

willing to pay once a year "There's a lot of blistering, chafing and I'll lose all 10 of my toenails during the race," he said "And even though I ll consume about 20,000 calories during the race, I'll lose as much as 15 pounds

"The organizers of the race are very safety conscious, though Every 15 miles, you have to go through a physical exam If you re dehydrated or aren't cognizant, they'll pull you out"

The mileage also takes a toll on his shoes

"I go through four pair of shoes for every ultra-marathon,' Dyjak said "I normally wear a size 12 I'll go through two pair of those over the first 50 miles From miles 50-75, I wear a size 13 with the toe box cut out Then over the final 25 miles I'll switch to another pair of size 13 with the toe box on '

Dyjak credits his success in previous ultra-marathons to a rigorous training regimen and a dependable support crew Dyjak manages to run up to 120 miles a week despite working two jobs – he's a Department of Natural Resources park ranger at Maybury State Park in Northville, and a personal trainer at Lifetime Fitness in Canton

'It's fair to say I'm addicted to running," Dyjak said 'I would have to be in a hospital bed to not run Over the past year, there are probably three days that I didn t run Three weeks ago I missed a day because the tip of my finger got cut off

WEATHER OR NOT

Blizzards, drenching rain nor suffocating heat could stop Dyjak from making his appointed training rounds last year One day he completed a seven-hour run in the 115-degree, oven-like heat of Phoenix On another, he trekked through driving snow and 20-below-zero temperatures

"I love being outdoors and I love running, so the weather has to be extremely bad for me to run inside," Dyjak said "Actually, I don't mind running in poor conditions because it prepares me better for the adversity I'll be facing in the ultra-marathons"

25 X 4 = A LONG RUN

Dyjak breaks the ultra-marathon down into four 25-mile sections

"The first 25 miles are a warm-up,' he explained 'During this time, you get your heart rate up and you get used to the climate

"The second 25 miles are what I call 'no-man's land' It's the most boring part of the race and it's easy to let down during this part It's important to keep re-focusing during this time

"Miles 50 to 75 are when the body starts breaking down Your muscles can get out of whack a little bit

'The final 25 miles are when the race really starts It's the part of the race that separates doing extremely well from not finishing at all I actually run faster during the final 25 miles than I do the first 75 miles"

Dyjak's goal is to finish in the top five in Leadville

That would mean covering the hilly, two-miles-above-sea-level course in around 18 hours.

The Rams lost despite outhitting Baltimore, 14-7, led by Sam Palace and Ryan Shay, each going 3-for-5 with a pair of runs scored Scott Martin added two hits and three RBI, while Sacha and Nate Recknagel each contributed two hits and one RBI apiece

Earlier in the day in a game played at Portage Stadium, the Rams collected 13 hits in a 10-7 win over Maryland State

Ryan Shay's two-run double down the third-base line scored pinch-runner Max Martin and Matt Nickels with the tying and game-winning runs Matt Nickels' RBI single scored Palace to pull the Rams to within a run, 5-4, after Fedorka laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt to move Palace and Scott Martin over to second and third

Scott Nimons collected two hits and batted in three runs for Schenectady

Powers was the winning pitcher in relief of starter John Fileccia Powers allowed one run on four hits in his 2 2 innings summer far from typical — or boring

"I think my experience this summer will help me in high school because the competition I played against was unbelievable," said Moran, who will be attending Canton High School in the fall Some of the teams we played were better than some of the high school teams I'll be playing against

A setter, Moran was the glue that held her summer team together on many occasions, according to OJVC coach Bryan Lindstrom

Kacy won a few games for us almost by herself with her great hustle, Lindstrom raved "She s a great leader, which is something you need out of your setter'

The Oakland Juniors, who finished the year with a 51-25 record, were seeded No 47 of 48 teams heading into the Junior Olympics tourney Paced by the solid play of Moran, they placed a respectable 25th

'She played awesome in Salt Lake City," Lindstrom said 'I think, without a doubt, Kacy's one of the top five setters at her age in the state of Michigan'

'I love setting," she said "I like knowing that I m the one who has the responsibility of getting the ball to the hitters in the right spots

The most memorable high light of the Junior Olympics for me came against a team from Texas During the second game, there was one point where we kept the ball alive for a long time There were a lot of people watching and they all got into it

The 5-foot-7 Moran is far from a one-sport star She plans on sandwiching her volleyball action in the winter by playing basketball in the fall at Canton and either soccer or golf in the spring

"I think she's capable of playing junior varsity — and possibly varsity — as a freshman," Lindstrom said "She's such a consistent and confident player that whenever she makes it to the varsity level, she will be very, very good"

Ocelots women's soccer team ready for shot at title

BY TIM SMITH
STAFF WRITER

The last two seasons, the Schoolcraft College women's soccer team climbed to the brink of the pinnacle before losing to the eventual national champion

This season, head coach Bill Tolstedt and a group of eight returnees – including sophomore All-American forward Nicole Saigh – are hopeful to take that last step to the top

"They want to win the national championship," Tolstedt said last week "They got a taste of it last year and so they're leading the charge with regards to getting everybody back in line We start the process over again"

The Lady Ocelots finished 24-1, including 22-0 in the regular season, but fell to Monroe Community College in the National Junior College Athletic Association tourney It was the second year in a row that the team went 24-1 and bowed out to the champ

This season could have a better ending, particularly if Saigh (5-6, 120) continues her outstanding play

A definite scoring threat for the Lady Ocelots, Saigh scored 30 goals last season and was named an All-American by both the NJCAA and National Soccer Coaches of America

"She's fast and smart and she can turn that ball on a dime," said Tolstedt, entering his sixth season as Schoolcraft's head coach "That (a national championship) is the only thing left for her, and us, to accomplish '

Other returnees who Tolstedt is looking for good things include midfielder LeighAnne Myers, forward Jessica Saba, midfielder Christina Stapleton, goalkeeper Meagan Farrell (Livonia), midfielder Kara Jean, outside defender Cortney Brady and outside midfielder Jennifer Dahl

Myers (6 goals, 8 assists) is "taking the reins, she's hungry for the return to nationals, the coach noted

Saba (6-10) also is a leader, who Tolstedt called "the smartest player on the field"

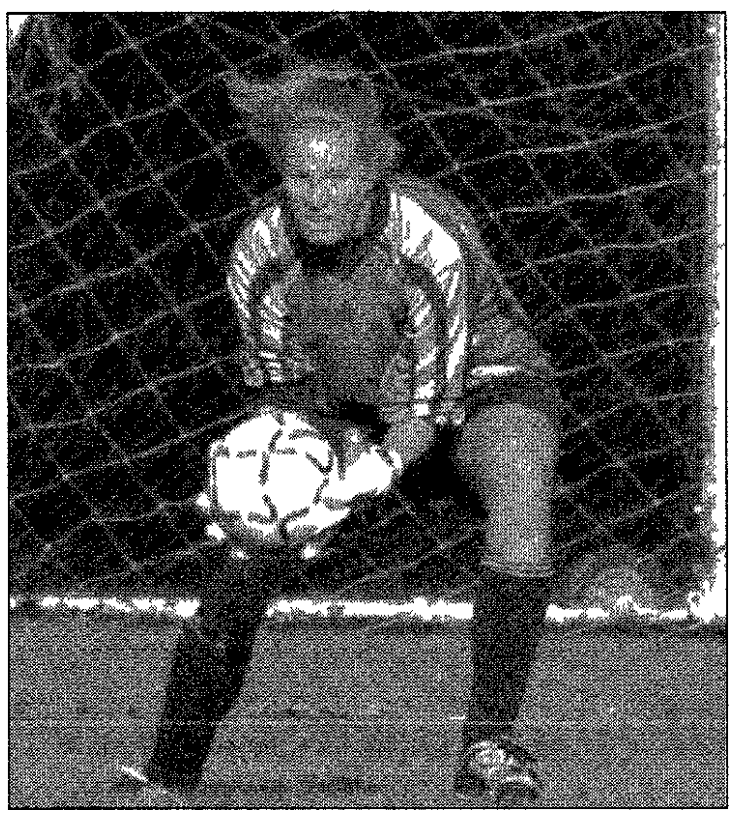
Meanwhile, Farrell is being counted on to take over goalkeeping duties from Andrea Dunn, the Garden City High School alum who earned a scholarship to play this year for State University of New York at Albany

Farrell's backup likely will be freshman Jenna Cataldi

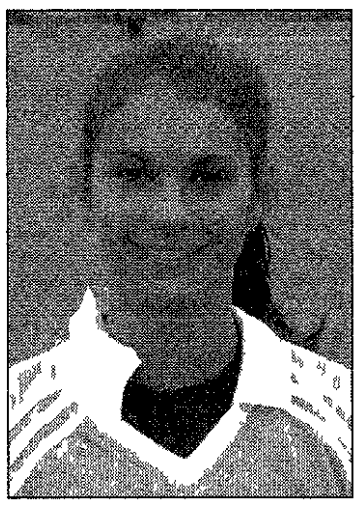
Schoolcraft's offense also will rely on solid play from freshman forwards Stephanie Squires (Rochester Hills) and Shari Trandell

Tolstedt said Squires is athletic, poised and versatile "There isn't a position I haven't found that she doesn t do well '

Meanwhile, he described Trandell as 'aggressive up top, smart up top If we can get her to shoot the ball on her first touch rather than pass it she will be marvelous"



Livonia Franklin High graduate Meagan Farrell will play goal this season for the Schoolcraft women's soccer team



Saigh

THEY'LL HELP

Expected to contribute at midfield will be sophomore Jennifer Dahl and freshmen Sarah Davies, Stacey Potrykus and Annie Gabriel – the latter two from Farmington Hills

Dahl didn't play much in 2004, but Tolstedt already sees a player with improved skills and confidence

"And that (confidence) is half the game," he said "I'm really counting on her to start and make a big contribution"

The coach said Potrykus has outstanding passing skills which can help transitional play

"She has the extraordinary ability to cross the ball diagonally, from midfield to a flag," Tolstedt explained "She can hit it and help turn the field"

Gabriel is 'faster than greased lightning Other teams will have a difficult time dealing with the pressure she brings," he said

On defense, someone to watch is freshman Lauren DeRoo

"She has excellent size (5-9) and speed, she has an aggressive attitude and she's really stepped up in terms of growth since we started practice,' Tolstedt said

The Lady Ocelots will open up with games Aug 26-27 in Baltimore (Md) against Community College of Baltimore County and Navarro (Texas) Community College

Tolstedt said the Lady Ocelots will "play the full width and depth of the field and use every player or we're going to struggle'

Terek finishes 13th at World meet

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Paul Terek's total was 7,921, well below his personal best 8,312 set in last year's U.S. Olympic Trials. (He was 21st in the Olympics.)

Paul Terek knows he can do better and there's room for improvement

The 2004 Olympic decathlete from Livonia Franklin High and Michigan State just returned from a 13th-place finish in the IAAF World Track and Field Championships in Helsinki, Finland frustrated and disappointed with his showing

Fellow American Bryan Clay, a silver medalist in last year's Summer Olympic Games in Athens, Greece, unseated gold medalist Roman S'ebrle of the Czech Republic for the title with 8,732 points S'ebrle was runner-up with 8,521 and Attila Szivoczky of Hungary was third with 8,385

"(Bryan) Clay did a great job," Terek said "(Clay) is probably one of the most hard-working guys He s definitely talented He s very focused He's very determined '

Terek's total was 7,921, well below his personal best 8,312 set in last year's U S Olympic Trials (He was 21st in the Olympics)

Terek's meet opened with promise Tuesday morning as he ran a 10 83 in the 100-meter dash and picked up 899 points

'I seemed to start out well, but my problem all year has been consistency in the technical events," Terek said 'My running shape and form have greatly improved since I have been back working with my old college coach (Darroll Gatson) But the field events, specifically the technical aspects of those events, have suffered since there has been nobody working with me '

Terek was on target for a top-10 finish after the first five events on Tuesday with a total of 4,142 points, but he slipped to 3,779 on Wednesday

"I think my 100 was the only real satisfying event for me at the Championships," he said " I mean, with the exception of the shot put, my first day was right where I had predicted it

'Then the huge headwinds in the (110) hurdles, the rain in the discus, and headwind and rain in the vault – completely ridiculous, I have never jumped in worse conditions – didn't even provide an opportunity for things to go better the second day"

Helsinki was plagued by plenty of rain, wind and cool temperatures

"Because of my inconsistencies, these outside factors just made it that much more difficult to compete in," Terek said "I think the most disappointing thing about this trip is that I'm tired of just making the teams and not performing at the big meets You know how I was in high school and college I pride myself on showing up and competing and succeeding when the big games or meets come And that hasn't been the case lately"

So what does the future hold for the former Big Ten Track and Field Athlete of the Year from MSU?

It s back to the drawing board

Terek is unsure where he's train in the future He moved back this season to train in East Lansing after spending the Olympic year training on the year-round, ideal climate of San Luis Obispo, Calif (under the guidance of jumps and throws coach Sheldon Blockburger, who is now at the University of Arizona)

"When I get back, my immediate plans are to take a month to six weeks off and just work at Home Depot," Terek said "After that, I m starting training again for next year and doing tons of work on the technical aspects of each event Since there are no worlds next year, the only thing I am changing is my competition schedule I'll maybe do one more meet in Europe instead of USA"

Although this decathlon season was injury-plagued early on, Terek refused to make excuses

'To be honest, this is the healthiest I've been since college," he said "My shoulder is coming back and I am feeling great in terms of flexibility and mobility Ironically, the year I am healthy is the year I can't get anyone to help me in my (technical) events"

Finding Elmore Leonard

For seven years, retired teacher Betty Smith has hosted Lemonade with B J on P-CEP's radio station, WSDP-FM (88 1), which features jazz and news of interest to senior citizens

Betty has interviewed many people over the years, including Bo Schembechler, Maynard Ferguson and Judith Guest But one person — author Elmore Leonard — had eluded her until June, when WSDP station manager Bill Keith found out Leonard was going to be signing his latest book, The Hot Kid, at Borders in Ann Arbor

Betty waited in line and listened to conversations Leonard had with fans As soon as she made it to the front of the line, she handed Leonard a book to sign and invited him to be a guest on her show He accepted her invitation and, on June 28 from Studio C at WSDP, Betty called Leonard at his home in Bloomfield Village and recorded their conversation (The interview aired July 27 and will air again in the fall, date TBA)

The July 27 show began with music by Art Tatum, Someone to Watch Over Me And for the next 30 minutes, Betty and Leonard had a great discussion about books, westerns, crime stories, screenwriting, Ernest Hemingway and Detroit

Betty "How did you know you liked to read?" Leonard "My sister read to me before I learned to read Once I learned, I read all the time In fifth grade, I was inspired by All Quiet on the Western Front"

Around age 11, after watching movies such as Captain Blood or Gunga Din, Leonard would re-tell the stories to friends "The best way to learn to write is to imitate a writer you like, then find your own voice," Leonard said

I hope P-CEP teachers will play the interview for the students in the English classes when the Betty Smith-Elmore Leonard show is rebroadcast Imagine what students and teachers could learn

His career began in 1935, writing more than 40 novels, many of which have been turned into movies Hombre, Get Shorty, 3 10 to Yuma

"I've always liked dialogue the rhythm of speech [Dialogue is] the best way to move the story . I'm invisible The characters tell the story from their point of view,' Leonard said

The best lesson young people may learn from Leonard is from the answer he gave Betty when she asked, "Do you write stories with a reader in mind?"

Said Leonard "I write to please myself I have no idea who is reading me That's the beauty of writing — I'm the only one that counts If I like it, that's good enough to me"

Now that Betty has found Elmore Leonard, she wants to interview David Letterman Here are my top five reasons why David Letterman should accept Betty Smith's invitation for an interview

No 5 Betty asks good questions "Where does Dave Letterman get his self-assurance?"

No 4 She listens and is interested in the answers to her questions

No 3 She's interesting

No 2 The kids at the high school would be very jealous

And No 1 Betty's agreed to let me be her assistant for the Letterman interview

Lemonade with B J airs 10 30-11 a.m Wednesdays on WSDP-FM (88 1), on air 24 hours, seven days a week Online http //www 881theescape com

Lu Autrey's gift to posterity are the murals on the wall at Farrand Elementary School She loves to point out the details, including the Plymouth Township water tower Most have relevance to both Farrand and the state

Painting her way to fulfillment

Artist finds murals help open doors within herself

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

When Laura "Lu" Autrey sits alone at night painting murals on the walls at Farrand Elementary, she is content with a quiet stimulation, of sorts

"It's as quiet as can be, and I feel that I'm tapping into some part of myself that you sometimes think you have to leave behind," said Autrey, 40, of Plymouth Township "I'm reminding myself that in the middle of my life, there are doors in me that I haven't yet opened"

After having been a chef and owning a restaurant for 20 years, her husband went into the paint business That's when Autrey found out about her talents as an artist

"I would do all the faux finishing and some murals in children's rooms for customers, and I found out that not only did God give me a great gift to cook, I was also a gifted illustrationist," Autrey said

Autrey decided to give back some of her talent at Farrand Elementary by painting a 40-foot mural on a hallway wall

"I liked to paint during the week so the children could see me,' Autrey said "They were so excited, they would come up to me with ideas and suggestions The children believed they had a say about what went on the wall"

Autrey's first project was the Michigan wall — a mural that started at about 40 feet and later stretched to about 70 feet — with Michigan wildflowers, bugs native to the state, ships at the Mackinac Straits all things A-Z that are Michigan, including the Jiffy Mix factory in Chelsea

"They are realistic pictures, and teachers use it for social studies classes,' Autrey said "The kids get a good look at it while waiting in line for lunch"

Autrey didn't stop with the one mural The following year, she painted the media center in a Mother Goose theme Around the entrance to the gym, she wanted a bit of color flash

"Exploding waves of color, confetti, baseballs, pizza, ice cream, swirling film strips and popcorn," Autrey said "The gym is the one room in the school where people come to have fun, so I just wanted it to be fun, fun, fun"

Autrey said she s now looking for ideas on a theme for the gym

"I want it to be something that's a beautiful piece of art," she said

Principal Ann Kuhn said the paintings throughout the building have had a great impact on students

"Lou has done such an extraordinary job for the building in beautifying it," Kuhn said "And what is so great is that she gets the kids involved by letting them help her mix the paint or put a dab on the wall

'It's been a real learning experience for all of the children," she added "It's certainly a great contribution to our school"

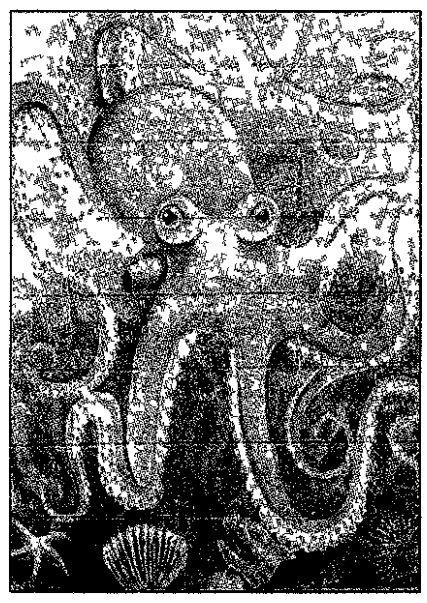
Autrey remembers the day when a small girl was crying and Kuhn took the student to see Autrey painting

The Michigan wall served as a way to calm the child

"I was painting the Detroit Zoo and I was putting balloons on the sky, and I asked her if she wanted to paint," Autrey said "And then I let her put her initials on it"

Autrey has contributed about 260 hours of time at the school over a three-year period to paint the murals, and has no plans on stopping

"I want to give time to help the community, and this is the best gift I have to give,' Autrey said "The murals are something that will last, as long as the school is standing"



Ollie the Octopus may end up being a teacher, arms full of all the things used by teachers

Michael Belanger works out every day with a trainer at Canton Life Time Fitness then goes for a massage at Ceragem in Westland The 24-year-old Schoolcraft College graduate is serious about playing wheelchair hockey He wants to be in the best shape ever when the season starts in September

Sponsored by the Southfield Hockey Club, the Wheelchair Hockey League holds tryouts 2-5 p m Saturday, Aug 20 and 27, at Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church in Northville Township Season games take place at the church and Beech Woods Recreational Center in Southfield

"I first thought of it as a bunch of guys getting together,' said Belanger, 1999 Team MVP Belanger proudly wears his Outlaws jersey even though the Hornets won the playoffs last season

"The first two teams for the league were the Seals and Cobras," said Belanger, who started playing hockey in 1995 "Later we added teams as it got bigger As time went on it became more competitive That's good and bad We sometimes forget it's a fun game meant to be inclusive for everyone no matter what your handicap"

FAMILY AFFAIR

Francis Belanger enjoys the game as much as her son, Michael

'He looks forward to this," said Francis Belanger of Wayne 'Playing this they feel normal"

Founded by the late Todd Pasant, the league is about to begin its sixth season of competition for players with muscular dystrophy, cerebral palsy, spina bifida, and spinal cord injury About 40 players are currently on the roster but the Hornets, Seals, Outlaws, Cobras, and Wolf Pack are always looking for new members as well as sponsors for the five league teams and the Mustangs who compete in national tournaments

The 15-week season offers players more than a chance to move their sticks around the floor In addition to season and All-Star games once a year the players have an opportunity to take to the ice with members of the Divine Child High School Falcons hockey team assisting them

"The battle on the ice at the University of Michigan-Dearborn arena gives them the feel of the ice and the chance to be playing on a normal ice hockey rink," said Terri Frank, a Redford resident Frank's 14-

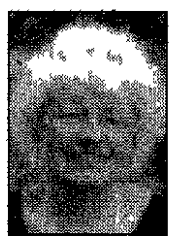
Teens often show signs of serious depression



Teens in 2005

Alice McCarthy

It has been a long, hot summer here in Michigan, hopefully for many families this month is one for a vacation in a cooler climate

Has your vacation been a chance for you to know your teen better and to be sure all is well emotionally?

Dr William Coleman, chair of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) Committee on Psychosocial Aspects of Child and Family Health, said recently about teens (AAP News, August 2005) "emotional concerns are exploding"

Nearly 21 percent of young people ages 9-17 have a diagnosable mental or addictive disorder, according to the U S Surgeon General's 1999 report on mental health

DEPRESSIVE ILLNESS

One of the most serious of these disorders is depressive illness Depression affects more than 1 5 million adult Americans each year, yet only about one-third of those affected get treatment. Ironically, among all psychiatric illnesses, which is what depression is, depression is among the most responsive to treatment. Given the huge rise in teen suicide rates over the last 25 years, families need to know about depressive illnesses just as they know about other illnesses and health factors that affect teens While depression has a genetic component, it is often triggered by situations and stresses that people perceive as hopeless

Serious depression, usually called clinical depression, is not something for adults or teens to treat alone At the very least, teens don't have the time to stop their lives, to suffer at home, to miss school and to endure the whole-body pain that comes with depression At the worst, untreated depression can lead to suicide

Seek professional help for your teen if you notice five or more of the following symptoms for two weeks or longer

- A change in school performance
- Inability to concentrate
- Irritability or anger
- Persistent unhappiness
- Change in eating and sleeping habits
- Withdrawal from people and activities
- Excessive guilt or anxiety
- Physical complaints
- Aggressive, impulsive or risk-taking behavior
- Thoughts or talk of death or suicide

BIPOLAR DISORDER

Bipolar disorder (formerly called manic-depression) is the most severe form of depression, and usually begins in adolescence or early adulthood One way to think about this illness is in terms of a cycle or wave of moods At the bottom of the wave is depression The middle of the wave is normal Higher up, there is mild mania, a period marked by rocketing energy, overflowing thoughts and emotions and often serious behavior problems and periods of marked poor judgment In adolescence, parents and caregivers need to be aware that the manic phase consists more commonly of periods of irritability

Early and accurate diagnosis of depressive illnesses is important because depression can lead to school failure or to suicide.

Depression must be distinguished from normal sadness, adjustment disorders, learning disabilities, anxiety deficit disorder and all the factors that may be present in your adolescent s life A physical examination may be needed to rule out the possibility of an infection, hormonal imbalance or gastrointestinal problems

If the depression has a biological basis, antidepressant medications may be helpful The delay in the use of medication has resulted in the waste of teen lives Too often medications are seen as a last resort. One wouldn't hold such a view if the illness were diabetes or high blood pressure

Beside medication, many types of psychotherapy can be used to treat depression

- In any case where you think your teen may be suffering from depression, seek a psychiatrist or psychologist who is experienced in working with depressed adolescents
- Seek professional help immediately, regardless of whether or not you think your teen is depressed, if your teen talks about wanting to die or wishing that he or she were dead

Hockey being her favorite sport, it just seemed natural for 16 year old Claire Abraham to take part in the wheelchair floor hockey league which she has played in for nine years

HOCKEY

year-old son Mike plays for the Seals "They have a whole lot of fun It's two players as one They also have fun at the annual banquet where they hand out awards and trophies for best player and goalie We do lots of different activities, picnics pizza parties"

Still it's the hockey that keeps Mike Frank playing nearly year round He's going into his fourth season playing defense

CHALLENGE AWAITS

'I like to play the sport It's a little bit of a challenge," said Mike Frank, a student at Pierce Middle School 'It's also the friendship of other players"

WCHL commissioner Chris Lemieux's played hockey since the early 1990s just for the fun of it At the time he was living in Calgary, Alberta, Canada

"We're now just having fun games for anyone who would like to try out, said Lemieux of Windsor "We have one player who just joined at age 60"

Deputy Commissioner Mo Gerhardt drives all the way from Okemos for the games Players come from as close as Livonia, Farmington and Garden City to as far away as Waterford, Ann Arbor and Emmett to participate

"It's a different form of competition As a power wheelchair user there's few outlets to per form athletically on a competi tive level, said the 27-year-old Gerhardt, who has been in a wheelchair since the summer before his senior year in high school 'When people first hear of it, they think it's a fun little thing and it is but we have playoffs at the end It's like a regular sports league except we have both manual and power chairs competing Players have to be at least age 10 but there is no cap on the limit Most are in their late teens or early 20s'

Many of those players look forward to the Muscular Dystrophy Association Camp every summer to get a little practice in before the season begins Several of the players, including Claire Abraham, learned about the league through MDA

Abraham was the first girl to join the league seven years ago so she faced considerable teasing about her hockey playing abilities Since then she's become one of the most valuable players of the league In 1999, she was named Best Defensive Player Abraham is now one of several female players including Sheryl Stumbaugh of Farmington Hills

'UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY'

Its such a unique opportunity to play hockey, said Abraham, a Novi High School student 'I'm like anyone else who loves hockey Every game is just fun Our whole family loves the Red Wings and goes to the games I started playing when I was 9 and I m now 16 When I was younger I was considered a little girl, but now I m part of the league

It's nice that everyone can play, added her mother, Stacy For kids that don't have strength the stick is attached to the foot rest Others have two sticks tied together in a V They all love the sport They don t have upper body strength to play basketball so teams are organized to abilities"

Ron Ulewicz likes the league because it's the only one for females and males His son Brian, a 21-year-old graphic design student at Macomb Community College, is a goalie for the Hornets

I play because it s fun, said Brian Ulewicz

Beth Lebowsky volunteers with the league just to see smiles on the faces of two of her special education students at Stevenson High School in Livonia. In fact, Lebowsky enjoys volunteering with the kids so much she followed them to MDA camp to help with activities such as horseback riding and tree climbing

'It's a different form of competition. As a power wheelchair user there's few outlets to perform athletically on a competitive level.'

Mo Gerhardt
Deputy commissioner

The kids enjoy the competition, getting together and playing They play for fun even when they don't have scheduled games," said Lebowsky, the Westland resident who keeps scores for the games "We're always looking for volunteers Right now we're especially looking for referees and just any body who can come and help When I began keeping score it was difficult at first I had to learn all the different rules and about switches to make sure every player gets to play a fair amount

Peter's Principles

Cut those restaurant meals in half

Darryl e-mails from Romeo asking how to avoid overindulging when entertaining clients at restaurants five nights a week.

Darryl, did you know that an average restaurant meal has a staggering 1,000 calories? (And that's without ever even looking at an appetizer or dessert!) One major reason for this is that the typical restaurant portion size contains six to eight ounces of protein Whether you're eating fish, chicken, or beef, a person shouldn't have more than six to seven ounces of protein per day, not per meal My suggestion, to avoid piling on the calories, is to always cut the portion size in half Another great tip is to share entrees, order two salads and double the vegetables! It's always better to take home a doggie bag than wear that food on your waist or hips!

Joey e-mails from Shelby Township wondering why eating foods high in protein are so important for building muscle

Joey, every cell in your body is made up of protein, it's the building block to muscle! When you use weights in your workout, you are utilizing your body's protein If you don't have an adequate daily supply of high protein, you are actually taking five steps forward but 10 steps backward Yes, you heard right! Your body will start to feed on itself and your muscles will end up tearing down instead of building up

Keeping that in mind, you definitely don't want to eat too much protein either The human body can only utilize about 40 grams of protein in a 2 1/2 hour time period and any excess will be stored as fat Some good sources of protein to remember are egg white omelets, fish, turkey, and chicken

Zoo shot party helps fight debilitating diseases

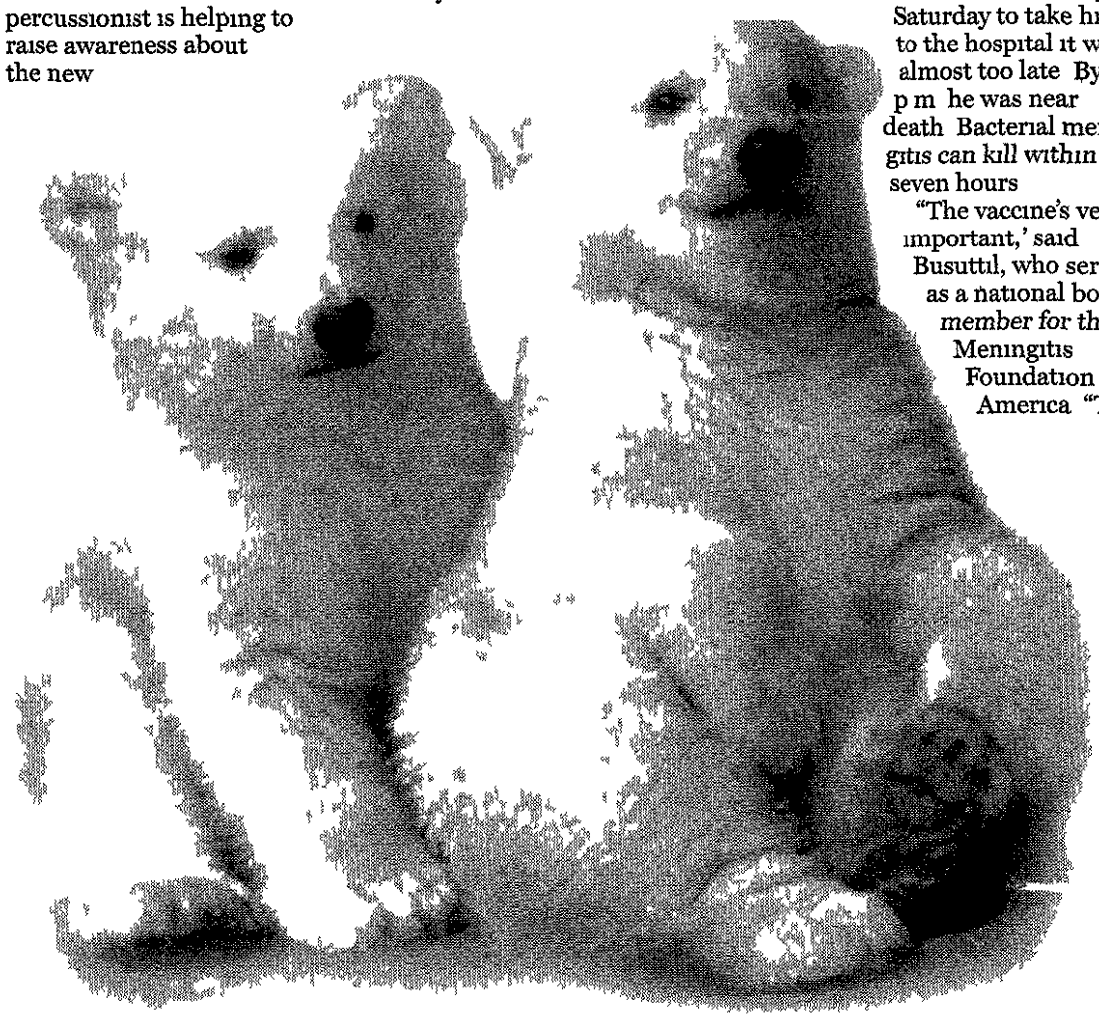
Adam Busuttil would give anything to have parts of his seven fingers and four toes back If only he had received a bacterial meningitis vaccination before heading off to Michigan State University but Busuttil didn t know immunizations were available

Busuttil doesn't want others to suffer from permanent disabilities as he has so the 25-year-old percussionist is helping to raise awareness about the new Menactra vaccine to prevent bacterial meningitis, an infection that attacks the lining around the brain and spinal cord Busuttil survived his bout with the disease and went on to student teach at Farmington Harrison High School last spring, but not all young people are as lucky

Busuttil was in the marching band at MSU when he developed flu symptoms before the Michigan-Michigan State game on a Friday night in 1999 By the time his parents arrived around 4 p m Saturday to take him to the hospital it was almost too late By 6 p m he was near death Bacterial meningitis can kill within seven hours



"The vaccine's very important,' said Busuttil, who serves as a national board member for the Meningitis Foundation of America "The vaccine costs a decent amount of money but when you're going to college you pay that much for wardrobe '

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention tracks disease and started to see a rise in meningitis around age 11 and 12.'

SHOTS OFFERED

Realizing that bacterial meningitis isn t the only infectious disease that maims and kills, local health care providers have scheduled fun events to offer Menactra and childhood immunizations The Visiting Nurse Association of Southeast Michigan is hoping to attract parents and children from age 12 to college freshmen living in dorms to a bacterial meningitis shot party 5-8 p m Wednesday, Aug 17, at the Detroit Zoo in Royal Oak A Menactra shot is $105 For information, call (248) 967-8755

Menactra isn't only for college-age students who have a one in six chance of contracting the disease while living in dorms In January, the U S Food and Drug Administration licensed Menactra for adolescents as young as 11 The new vaccine provides immunity for eight years with one dose while the previous vaccine, Menomune, lasts only 3 to 5 years Menomune is still available for individuals over age 2

"The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention tracks disease and started to see a rise in meningitis around age 11 and 12 that then peaked at 19 and leveled off at 24 They wanted to get a handle on that so they made the recommendation," said Kay Renny, an registered nurse from Rochester Renny is VNA's manager of community programs "The shot party at the zoo is a central location with ample parking

A flu shot party drew hundreds of senior citizens to the zoo last year

"We want it to be a fun atmosphere, said Alexandra Hichel, VNA media relations person "We've typically done the shot parties in people's homes"

The zoo is a delightful place to visit so pack a picnic lunch and spend some time with Talini, the polar bear cub who was born last November Unfortunately the VNA couldn't find a funding partner to allow them to provide free admission to the zoo but maybe next year visitors won't have to pay to see the new white rhinos during the shot party

The Wayne County Health Department isn't waiting until next year to present fun activities such as karate demonstrations and face painting in addition to childhood immunizations and screenings for hearing, vision and lead at the Health & Safety Fun Fest 9 a m to 3 p m Friday, Aug 19, at the Westland Salvation Army, 2300 Venoy. NEW VACCINE

Dr Talat Danish, director of epidemiology for the health department, is recommending a new vaccine this year in addition to those given for measles, mumps, rubella, diphtheria, pertussis, varicella (chicken pox), polio, and hepatitis B Menactra will also be available at no charge to children who are uninsured, on Medicaid, an American Indian or Alaskan native Danish's daughter Hana has already received Menactra She'll be a freshman at the University of Michigan this fall

"Tdap was licensed on June 30," said Danish "It's for use in adolescents Age 7 or older usually receive only tetanus and diphtheria. The vaccine for under 7 includes pertussis (whooping cough) There is not an outbreak but some ongoing pertussis activity which is more than expected so older children need to receive a booster of Tdap"

Dr Gary Freed was on the immunization advisory committee which recommended that instead of the tetanus (Td) booster given to children before entering middle school, they receive Tdap with pertussis protection due to a nationwide increase in cases of whooping cough Freed is director of general pediatrics at the University of Michigan Health System and a member of the U S Department of Health and Human Service's National Vaccine Advisory Committee

"It's another new adolescent vaccine so it's kind of a whole new approach to vaccination in this country," said Freed 'Heretofore we haven't had a lot of adolescent vaccines Through these two newest we will be able to prevent not only the most common cause of meningitis, but a growing and important cause of respiratory disease The problem is adolescents don't go to doctors as often as children so we're trying to figure out what would be the best ways to get vaccines to adolescents I'm now chairing a task force on adolescent vaccinations to try to come up with strategies and financing mechanisms"

YOUNGER KIDS

In the meantime, Freed worries about younger children who aren't up to date on vaccinations He estimates 10 to 20 percent of children in Michigan are not receiving vaccines until they reach school age

"Most of these diseases affect children before they get to school," said Freed "The diseases are frequently more serious when younger children get them All three of my children were vaccinated on time The 16 and 13-year old have already received Menactra. None acquired any vaccine preventable diseases We're lucky to live in a world today where we can prevent childhood diseases"

'It's another new adolescent vaccine so it's kind of a whole new approach to vaccination in this country.'

JOINT INJECTIONS-HOW MANY AT ANY APPOINTMENT

Multiple studies in the medical literature confirm that joint injections work Taking excess fluid from a knee or shoulder and injecting a steroid preparation into the joint often provides a prolonged relief from pain and a chance to remain active

The medical literature give no guidance on the question of how many joints is it safe to inject at any one time In my practice the usual number is one there is no concern with that decision Where judgement is difficult is when two three or even four joints are in need of aspiration and could benefit from a steroid injection

When a physician feels that several joints need injections the need arises to make 2 judgements (1) on the side effects of the local anesthetic used to relieve the pain of the procedure and (2) on the amount of steroid he will inject In some instances local anesthesia can slow the heart or cause dizziness This reaction tends to occur in the elderly and in people who are very thin

Injection of steroid causes blood sugar elevations in diabetic patients However a doctor cannot predict before the injection if the sugar raising effect will be small or sustained or last either for a few hours or several days

The guidelines I use is not to undertake more than 2 joint injections at a single appointment in patients over age 65 and to limit my injection of steroid to one joint only if the patient is a diabetic Naturally this approach changes to fit the pain needs and circumstances of the patient

"Do I look like a 'nursing home' patient?" Today's skilled nursing centers aren't like you pictured.

In fact, I learned that they're not just for the elderly anymore. After my car accident, I needed major surgery and help to recover. Even when I was ready to leave the hospital, I wasn't prepared to go home. That's why the hospital suggested Heartland Health Care Center – Canton. With their skilled nurses and therapists following my doctor's treatment plan, I got the rehabilitation I needed to get back on my feet. It helped me understand what today's nursing homes can do. I got the nursing and therapy I needed so I could go home.

Designer dishes on Fash Bash

By Wensdy White Editor

If you re looking to add some flair to your wardrobe, take a cue from Carlos Miele The Brazilian designer's clothing will be featured on the runway at this year s Fash Bash, set for Saturday, Sept 27 at the GM Wintergarden Relatively new to the couture scene in America, Miele has made a splash with his flirty, sexy and sensual style PINK caught up with the 41-year old artist to find out what inspires him

Fash Bash
Tickets to Fash Bash range from $125-$350. Call (313) 833-6954. All proceeds benefit The DIA.

Are you excited about Fash Bash?
I am pleased and honored to be the featured designer at Fash Bash this year I haven t been to Detroit before but I am eager to be there and experience a new city, a new market and a new clientele for me in the U S

What is the driving inspiration behind your clothing?
When I am creating, what most interests me is the dialogue between apparently distant worlds, such as the elite and the excluded contemporary and tradition, high technology and archaic, real and virtual I enjoy experimenting with different materials and methods I like to take fuxicos (rosettes) and 'nozinhos, which are traditional Brazilian handcraft techniques, and combine them with haute couture techniques using high-tech fabrics I also like to work with indigenous craft work which other than being beautiful, is a way of preserving a culture that is being destroyed in Brazil

What will we see in your Fall 2005 line?
You will be seeing fluid evening dresses adorned with handmade details, such as macrame and fuxico applications, that highlight the value of handcraft and the luxurious beauty of Brazil This time around, besides the dresses, I have also created more separates and accessories

Where do you live?
I m kind of a nomad I live on an island called Florianopolis, in the South of Brazil, and I like to travel and visit large urban centers because they are multi-cultural cities and places where the scenery of art, music and design form a crossroad Although, for my inspirations and my leisure time, I prefer to be closer to the beach and the woods, where I mentally sculpt my ideas

Currently I divide my work time between São Paulo and New York, where I am building my studio and opened my first flagship store two years ago At this moment, my collections are being sold in 23 countries In America, they are carried in major cities throughout the United States, including Saks Fifth Avenue exclusive locations

We heard you also have a line called M Officer?
Carlos Miele is my signature collection M Officer is my casual line and its only sold in Brazil Both are greatly influenced by the Brazilian popular culture, but M Officer reaches a wide public of young people and is strong in jeans while Carlos Miele is more sophisticated and attends a select public due to its unique pieces

ASK THE LASER EYE INSTITUTE
Q Why do some Centers advertise Lasik at $295.00 per eye, while most procedures usually cost over $1000.00 per eye?
A Those discount" centers know what their service is worth! In fact there is no $295 00 Lasik! That is a "bait and switch technique that has been used by crafty salesmen for years The $295 00 fee is for minimal correction only (where you don t need Lasik) using obsolete lasers that no one would want used on their eyes Once these naive patients are in the door they are upgraded to the good laser' at $899 00 per eye Using ala carte pricing these Centers charge more for higher correction an additional $299 00 per eye for astigmatism add on $199 00 per eye and if you want one year insurance, free touch ups an additional fee of $199 00 required Once all the ala carte fees are added on to their bill and multiplied by 2 the unsuspecting patient ends up with 10 x $295 00 advertised price bringing their total cost to $2950 00 Why would anyone trust their sight to a Center that gets them in the door by misleading them? At the LaserEye Institute Dr Haddad believes in giving his patients over 15 years of experience and the best technology with personalized service at fair and honest fees

Q I'm getting married and I don't know what to get done with my hair. What do you recommend?
A Part of the difficulty lies in the fact that you will be looking at that hair style in photos and video for years to come You have spent so much time picking the perfect dress and the perfect husband make sure you pick the PERFECT hair style
Do you want your hair up or down? Straight or Curly?
Try to chose a hair style that you are most comfortable with Once you have decided to wear your hair either up or down the possibilities are almost endless
Try to reflect your personality in your bridal hair do although at the same time remember that you ll be looking at pictures and viewing your video in 20 years Look through some magazines to help you make your decision they always help
Make sure to have a trial hair and makeup session Take pictures so you can see yourself in photos you might love your hair and makeup you might not Now is the time to play around NOT on your wedding day You don t want to take any chances with your beauty on that special day Good Luck! Ask An Anti-Aging Specialist
Q Am I Losing It? Is my memory loss, focus & speed a normal part of aging?
A Absolutely not These are signs of a distressed brain on its way to more serious conditions that can leave you unable to care for yourself later in life
Do these sound familiar
• Difficulty concentrating at work?
• Can t remember names or appointments? • Lost your keys or glasses again?
• Walk into a room and forget what you were going to do?
• Having a conversation and suddenly can t remember what you were saying? • Dialing wrong telephone numbers?
• Feel you are not as sharp or on the ball as you once were?
Brain degeneration is not inevitable You can stop it reverse it and recover what you have lost by supplying your brain with the right raw materials
At the Center For Healthy Living & Longevity a brain questionnaire & specific lab tests are performed to identify the risk factors in your life that threaten the health of your brain Once these have been identified a Repair Recovery Prevention Program is implemented
Keri Topouzian D O is an Anti Aging & Bio-Identical Hormone Replacement Specialist who works in association with international speaker Dr Pamela Smith at The Center for Healthy Living and Longevity located in Bloomfield Hills and Grosse Pointe

Engineering professionals have new opportunities

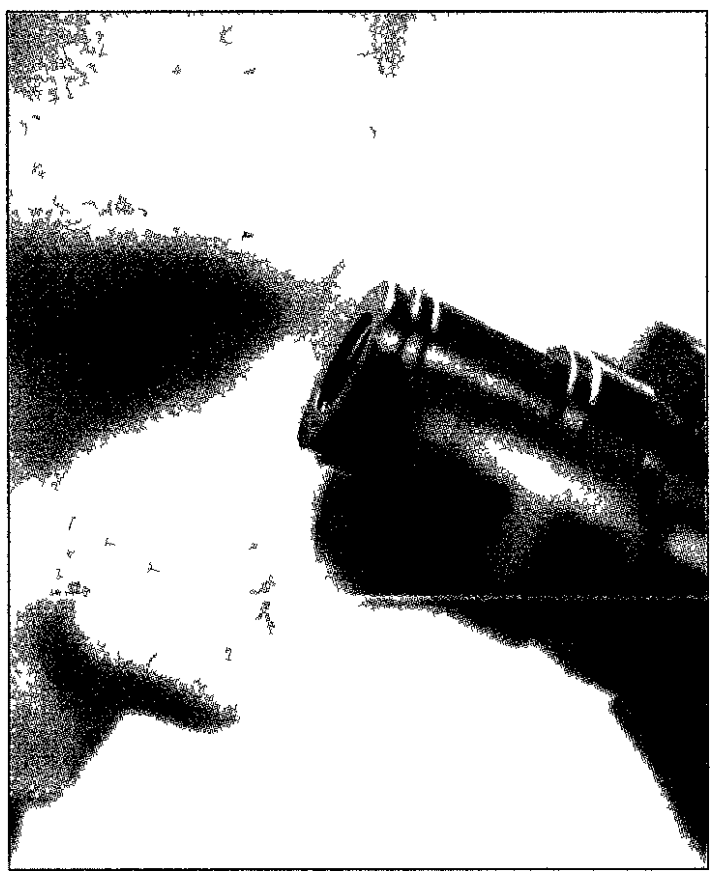
(NUI) — Mechanical engineering is no longer limited to aerospace, manufacturing and related fields It now reaches a broader scope life sciences

While traditional sectors will continue to beckon mechanical engineers, the burgeoning field of biotechnology is creating new and exciting opportunities for engineers

Today, mechanical engineers are working alongside biologists and medical professionals in the quest for breakthrough products enabling minimally invasive surgeries, the precise diagnosis of bodily disease and the creation of artificial tissue

In this interdisciplinary environment, mechanical engineers are expected to apply their knowledge and understanding of fluid dynamics, heat transfer and solid mechanics to cellular function, the structure and interaction of proteins and the many other complexities of the human biological system

Working together in recent years, engineers and life sciences professionals have developed, among other products, a miniature skin patch to treat diabetics and victims of Alzheimer s disease The device packs tiny batteries, a reservoir for a dry drug, a wet reservoir to carry fluid for diluting the drug, a mixing device and an array of tiny pumps, valves and needles Insulin patients wearing this device receive a slow, metered dose of medicine



Today, mechanical engineers are working alongside biologists and medical professionals in the quest for breakthrough products

Future biotechnologies could be far more dramatic The next stage of the biotechnology revolution will bring heart valves that can be deployed using a catheter, laboratory-generated tissues, "smart socks equipped with pressure sensors to monitor blood circulation and biomaterials that do not produce adverse biological reactions

A surge in public funding for life sciences research is creating a fertile ground for innovation and discovery Total U S federal funding for research and development reached nearly $100 billion in 2002 American firms have nearly doubled their research and development expenditures over eight years, from $7 9 billion in 1993 to $13 8 billion in 2001

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, which monitors issues and trends affecting its members and the profession at large, has published the study, "The Convergences of the Life Sciences and Engineering " This study asserts that the intersection of the two fields will broaden future job opportunities for mechanical engineers According to the report, younger engineers will be attracted by the fluid job prospects in the life sciences and the lure of developing products in a cutting-edge field

For more information on the study and the diverse programs and activities of ASME in the field of biotechnology, visit www asme org

Uncommon ways to grow your business

(NUI) — A company's success is a combination of the success of its individuals, according to Sunny Kobe Cook, author of Common Things Uncommon Ways

Cook began her career as a secretary, moved into sales and ultimately started her own mattress retail business As founder of Sleep Country USA, she was named Inc magazine's Northwest Entrepreneur of the Year She was featured on the cover of Washington CEO magazine when her company was the first retailer to ever be recognized as Best Place to Work

If you are looking for ways to build a successful business team, take these tips Cook offers in her book

■ Hire employees based on your weaknesses Do this each time you consider hiring a new person and you will hire not only the right person for the job, but also the right person to help your company grow to the next level If you continually hire to fill your weaknesses, you will find it easier to delegate You'll readily hand over the tasks and responsibilities you know can be handled more effectively by someone else

■ Understand what really motivates employees Recognition, a sense of contribution and a sense of belonging help create loyal employees who naturally deliver great customer service Find ways to catch employees doing things right, then recognize them for it

Local builders branch out to Clinton watershed

BY DEBRA PASCOE
CORRESPONDENT

Bloomfield Hills-based North River Homes is branching into Macomb County with an upscale development along the Clinton River

The proposed 180 custom homes ranging from $350,000-$700,000 offer seven floor plans from a 2,000 square foot, three bedroom ranch to a 3,120 square foot, four bedroom colonial located within the Brigantine Estates Subdivision along North River Road in Harrison Township, just off I-94

Most lot sizes are approximately half an acre

'The market is ripe for upscale, waterfront housing in Harrison Township," said Scott Kaufman, who partnered with uncle and builder Jay Kaufman and area businessman Lee Trepeck on the fledgling company's first venture into residential real estate

The partners chose quality craftsmanship, contemporary architectural designs, open floor plans and upscale features that come standard to highlight their development All homes are constructed of brick on four sides, have wide driveways multi-car garages, nine foot first-floor ceilings, a fireplace, kitchens with granite countertops, wood cabinets and breakfast nooks with bay windows, master baths with six-foot soaking tubs and a separate ceramic shower

Homeowners along the river s edge have the option of adding a floating dock system Boat slips are available in the immediate area for other residents

Kaufman said the land, located across Clinton River Road from the Selfridge Air National Guard Base, was farmland prior to its purchase by another developer who failed to make the project happen

While noise from the base isn't a big concern, Kaufman said he took extra precautions and is using high sound proof insulation that has the added benefit of higher energy conservation

"When we looked at the property, the proximity to the base was an issue, but the reality is they fly so few jets out there, noise isn't an issue and the base lends itself to less traffic in the area,' he said

"And when the air show comes, everybody and their brother wants to watch from the back yard"

The property's most advantageous amenity is its "up north" feel, Kaufman said, adding that inspired the company to name each model after an up north town

The homes are served by the L'Anse Creuse Public Schools

Kaufman said when North River Homes submitted its plans, four models were proposed After talking to people interested in the area, they found many were empty nesters or new families that wanted to be by the water but didn't need or want all the square footage

The Boyne, a 2,400 square foot four bedroom, two bath colonial, The Traverse, 2,836 split level colonial with two baths, a first floor master suite and three upstairs bedrooms, and The Bayview, a 1,980 square foot, three bedroom, two bath ranch have since been added

Kaufman said what is also appealing to young families is the reputation of the L'Anse Creuse Public Schools District and the proximity to South River Elementary

The premier model, called The Charlevoix, a 3,120-square-foot colonial is now open for viewing The home has four bedrooms and a two or three bath option, a great room, dining room, living room and library

Other models available are The Mackinaw, a 2,671 square foot, split-level colonial has main level master suite, two-and-a-half or three-and-a-half bath option, family room, kitchen with dining nook, dining room, living room and study

The AuSable is a 2,482-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms, two-and-a-half baths and a great room with a water view

The Northport, a 2,852 square foot four bedroom colonial has a two-and-a-half or three-and-a-half bath option, dining room, library, family room and first-floor laundry

Best foot forward: Selling yourself can be challenging

I am going to sell my house by owner. What tips could you share with me?

Ask the Realtor

Michael Aldouby

I think the biggest issue that a for sale by owner (FSBO) is faced with is security It's a dangerous world out there When you sell your house yourself, you're inviting total strangers into your house who may be a threat to you and your family

You have to screen as much as possible callers who you let into your house If someone calls you, get their number and call them back Make sure you have a cell phone on you when the person comes in so you can call for help quickly if you need it

Try and ascertain that you have qualified buyers before taking the process too far Often buyers who shop FSBOs know that you are not paying a real estate fee, and are expecting to get those savings Sometimes they are looking in price ranges that they can t afford because they are hoping to beat down the sellers to a price that they can afford Check that they are pre-approved for the price-range that your house is in

Don't overprice your house I have seen many for sale by owners price their houses well above the market value

There are a few problems that occur when this happens If your house is much more expensive than a similar house what you are doing is helping sell your neighbor's house Many buyers have a particular price range, and if your house is over that price range it won't even be shown

Price is determined by the recent sale of similar houses That should be the guide on how you price your house

You need to understand how the sale is actually made Learn about the purchase agreement and all the paper work involved in selling a house

Keep your house in good shape Neatness and being clean count when it comes to selling houses Your house needs to be immaculate and uncluttered

Make sure there is good "curb appeal" Grass should be mowed, hedges trimmed, and flowers planted

Michael Aldouby is a columnist and a Realtor with ERA He has a MBA with a concentration in marketing For a FREE report on how to raise your credit score to answer any real estate questions you may have or to offer any comments about the column please feel free to call him at (734) 748 9621 or e mail him at michael aldouby@era com

Habitat for Humanity 'blitzes' state fair

PRNewswire/— Habitat for Humanity Detroit (HFHD) is "Blitz Building" one, single-family, 3-bedroom ranch-style home on the grounds of the Michigan State Fair The house is sponsored by Masco Corporation and Centex Homes and is being built by volunteers on site at the fair This is the first time Habitat has constructed a home at the Michigan State Fair

Following the close of the 2005 fair, the house will be transported to its permanent location at 19171 Blake just off Seven Mile Road in the immediate vicinity of the fairgrounds in Detroit

Habitat for Humanity Detroit partnered with the Arab-American and Chaldean Council (ACC) to identify the house location and the homeowner family who will purchase the house In accordance with Habitat programs, the State Fair house will be purchased by a qualified low-income family at zero interest and at no profit to Habitat

Visitors to the Fair will have the opportunity to view a Habitat for Humanity home under construction Educational kiosks and recruitment booths staffed by volunteers will be positioned in the Habitat exhibit area adjacent to the build site to share information about Habitat for Humanity programs with the public

The location of the home is next to the World s Largest Stove and the circus An estimated 50,000 visitors will pass by the site during the Fair

Habitat Detroit Executive Director Rob Dewaelsche said, This is a great opportunity for people from all ove the Detroit area and from around the state to witness first-hand the constructior of a Habitat home We re pleased to be part of the Michigan State Fair in this 100th year on Woodward Avenue in Detroit

Since 1986, Habitat for Humanity Detroit has provided simple, decent housing to Detroit families in need Habitat Detroit has partnered with thousands of volunteers and contributors to revitalize three communities and provide 180 homes for purchase by low-income hardworking families through long-term, zero interest" mortgages at no profit to Habitat

Foreclosure inventory levels on the rise

PRNewswire/ — A total of 90,590 foreclosed residential properties were available for sale in the United States during July, according to data released by online foreclosure listing service, Foreclosure com,

A baseline comparison of foreclosure inventory in July compared to June shows a 4 6 percent increase in the total number of foreclosed residential properties for sale in July, and an 8 percent increase in new foreclosure listings during the month

Of the foreclosed properties, 12,009 properties were added to Foreclosure com s comprehensive database of listings in July through an opportunity to access newly available data sources These properties are not included in the June comparison percentages detailed above

The new foreclosure data augmented the property listings in several states including Michigan

The addition of new data sources is part of Foreclosure com s commitment to deliver to its subscribers and business partners the most comprehensive, up-to-date database of Foreclosure listings in the U S to its subscribers and business partners

"Foreclosure inventory is up nearly 10 percent compared to July 2004, an uncharacteristic upward trend throughout the summer months,' said Brad Geisen, president and CEO, Foreclosure com 'More significantly, we are seeing an increase in foreclosures in a majority of states These blanket increases may indicate that factors such as weakening sustainable home ownership and the volatility of the housing market are beginning to add to the geographic economic fac tors that contribute to foreclosures

Ranch-style home suits young families, empty nesters

The 1,444 square foot Decidedly (335-170) is a small ranch-styled home with an attractive lap siding exterior This floor design will fit the needs of young families purchasing their first home, and want the most value for their building dollar, or for empty nesters wishing to down-size their current living accommodations

Easy to maintain and economical to build, the Decidedly could be the home plan for which you have been searching

The modest entry, with a convenient coat closet, leads into a very generous vaulted living room With a built-in plant shelf adding a nice touch, this space functions as the main gathering area in the home Here friends and family can get together to discuss the events of the day, or relax while enjoying a favorite television show

Directly facing the living room, in an open design that maximizes the available square footage, are the kitchen and dining room A skylight brightens the walk-through kitchen that features a pantry and handy eating bar in addition to all the built-in appliances

Having the vaulted dining room adjacent to the kitchen allows the cook in the house to prepare and serve meals without missing any of the lively conversation A good-sized covered patio is the perfect place to set up the barbecue and invite the whole gang over, no matter what the weather

The large, vaulted master suite is isolated for complete privacy Amenities here include a wall length closet and private bathroom with twin basins and linen storage

The two bedrooms at the opposite side of the house can serve as guest quarters for those with no children still at home, or one can be used as a home office, exercise room or den Each has ample closet space and share a skylit bathroom that is in the adjoining hallway

Completing the floor plan is a big utility room with lots of extra storage space As an added convenience, the utility room opens into the garage This arrangement provides a dry path for bring groceries directly into the house
