Schools ask voters to renew 6¹/₂ mills

BY PATRICIA BARTOLD

Voters in the Plymouth-Canton school district will be asked to renew 6.5 mills for operating expenses on Thursday, Jan. 18.

The resolution, passed by the Board of Education at its meeting Monday night will ask for a six-year renewal starting in 1979.

"We wanted to go before the voters as soon as possible in order to facilitate planning for the 1979-80 school budget," said Assistant Superintendent for Business Ray Hoedel.

Hoedel emphasized this request does not mean a millage increase. "It's a-continuation of present funds," he said. He added this request represents 26.1 per cent of the total millage for schools and 14 per cent of the total operating revenue.

Board member Steve Harper asked why the word "increase" appears on the ballot proposal. Furthermore he said the word "increase" would confuse voters making them think it was an increase in taxes rather than a request for a continuation of funds.

Supt. Mike Hoben said "increase" appears on the ballot because at the time of assessment the present millage has expired.

Hoben said school officials would contact the bonding attorneys who write the proposal to ask about a change in its wording to eliminate "increase."

The resolution passed by a ote of 7-0.

Canton chief officially resigns

BY CHAS CHILD Canton Police Chief Walter MacGregor confirmed Monday what had been in doubt last week: he has resigned. "L resigned for personal reasons," he said although he wrote his resignation letter to the Board of Trustees shortly after an argument with former Supervisor Harold Stein, who was in his last full day of office.

Stein reportedly requested MacGregor on Nov. 17 to block Robert Greenstein from being sworn into office as trustee, which MacGregor refused to do.

Asked about this conversation with Stein, MacGregor "I'm not bitter," he said. "I'm very pleased that I was able to use some of my talents to help get them started. And I thank the board forgiving a man once-retired a second chance."

MacGregor was chief of the City of Wayne Police Department until he retired in 1975. The chance to lead Canton's force brought him out of retirement in Aug., 1977. MacGregor is 59.

Stein said Greenstein, since he was a part-time employe of the township, cannot hold a trustee job by state law. Greenstein said, however, that the Attorney General had ruled that he is not tech-

In his resignation letter to the board, dated Nov. 17, MacGregor said that he could not afford to move to Canton from Wayne where he lives now. The board required that the chief move to Canton when he was hired in August, 1977.

County delays city tax bills

The City of Plymouth's tax bills will be late this year, due to a printing delay by the Wayne County government.

Usually in the mail around Dec. 1, the bills will probably be a week or 10 days late, said City Assessor Ken Way.

Way, who picked the printed bills up from the county on Monday, said he did not know why there were delays. the City of Plymouth, City Manager Fred Yockey said Monday.

Yockey met two C&O officials on Oct. 11, who promised solutions to the delays within a month, he said.

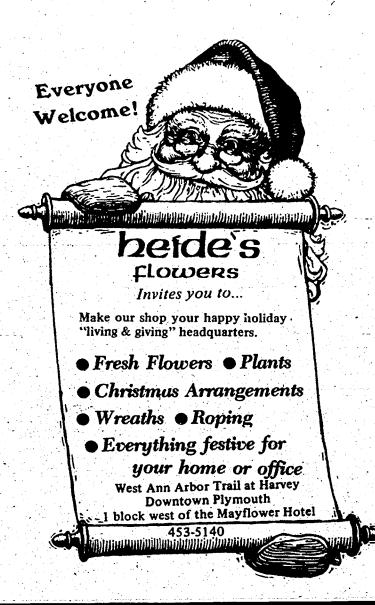

The meeting was prompted by two derailments within city limits which caused traffic back-ups of up to one hour. "At the meeting, they mentioned things like shorter trains and train speed-ups," said Yockey. "But so far we have not heard a word."

Traffic delays weren't the only problem Yockey complained about: "The crossings are also in bad shape," he said. "We want them to repair them, too." According to train officials, Yockey said, 44 trains pass through the city every 24hours, which is about one train per one-half hour. Plymouth is an east-west, northsouth crossroads of the Chessie system.

Yockey, City Engineer Ken West and Police Chief Tim Ford met Trainmaster Lawrence Judd and Terminal Superintendent Sam Allison, Jr., of the C&O on Oct. 11.

Twp. to eye police, refuse services with charter status

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER Police protection and garbage collection must be offered to Plymouth Township before it can take advantage of becoming a charter township to avoid further annexation threats.

That word came from Township Attorney Donald Morgan in a letter which Township Supervisor Tom Notebaert revealed to the township board at last night's meeting.

Morgan also cautioned the township board that even charter township status (which under a new state law provides some protection against annexation) may not block annexation attempts by the City of Plymouth to straighten its boundaries. That rationalization was used by the city in its recent petitions to annex both the Burroughs Parking Lot and the Hillside Inn.

Notebaert said that, with the new law, charter status, (which was rejected by township voters last year), may be desireable to township residents now and that such a move should be studied again.

Canton cops crack safe heist

A juvenile who stole a safe from the Roman Forum Restaurant in Canton and rolled it on a dolly for onehalf mile to a house was arrested by the Canton police. A second juvenile and two adults were charged with the Nov. 7 robbery, police said. According to Det. Sgt. Larry Stewart, the juvenile, whose name was not released, hid in the restaurant on Ford Road until after closing time. He then removed the safe and slid it on a dolly early in the morning to an accomplice's house.

"If a car went by, he left the safe on the roadside and hid in the bushes," said Stewart. The adults arrested are Danny and Machelle Grainger of 1161 Canterbury in Canton, said Stewart,

"An excess of spending by one of the juveniles helped us solve the case," said Stewart. "Patrolman Robert van Lith deserves a citation for his work on it."

Canton still pondering business sign sizes

Billboards along I-275 and the size of business signs in Canton will be among the points discussed at a special meeting on the township's proposed sign ordinance on Dec. 4 at 8 p.m.

Both the Planning Commission and the Board of Trustees are scheduled to go over any changes in the law, which eases restrictions on business signs.

As proposed, the law permits free-standing ground signs and billboards along I-275. However, some newly elected board members have stated their opposition to the ordinance and changes may be made before it is enacted. For example, Supervisor Noel Culbert said that he opposes erecting billboards on I-275. "I want to review the 50-square foot limit on free-standing signs and the size of (shopping) plaza signs, also," he said.

The proposed ordinance was written during the administration of former Supervisor Harold Stein, who Culbert defeated in the recent election.

In a related issue, the board was expected last ' night to ratify the present sign ordinance, which bans freestanding ground signs. The strange action was necessary. said Culbert, because research has shown that the law was never passed by the board three years ago when it was written.

The township has been enforcing the law despite the procedure lapse three years ago. The present law will be replaced, however, when the proposed sign ordinance the subject of Dec. 4's meeting, is approved by the board.

"I guess I get sentimental during Christmas time," said Myers, a former township trustee. "I want every kid or senior to get a meal on Christmas. And there are a number of people in Canton who can't afford it.'

Myers said that the Goodfellows plans to publish its traditional newspaper this year to sell to the public to raise money for the charity drive. "Jerry Bodenmiller has helped a' lot to get the Goodfellows organized," he added. The paper will be on sale in mid-December.

Last night, the township Board of Trustees was scheduled to pass a resolution supporting the Goodfellows' effort.

School bd. members to get paid

Should members of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education be paid? They think SO.

By a vote of six to one, the board passed a resolution allowing members to be paid up to $30 per meeting for not more than 52 meetings per year.

The total could add up to about $10,000 per year or, as member Joe Gray said, "The good part of a salary for one teacher."

Member Gray voted "no" on the proposal saying he couldn't support a proposal to pay himself when the school district was being forced to cut back some programs and teachers.

The other six members of the board cast assenting votes, but each member gave a different reason. "It's justi -fiable in terms of babysitters; and other economic consid erations we must take into account," said Richard Arlen.

· Board member Carol Davis said, "I don't see a lot of persons coming up to serve on the board, and, in some small way, this money is a. reimbursement for the time we spend here."

President Tom Yack said income levels of board members were not very representative of the community, and he felt this money was some recognition of the time invested by board members. On the other hand, Joe Gray said "In good conscience, I can't support a proposal like this." Furthermore, he said members could donate fire after a heavy snowstorm, could firemen quench the blaze?

Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert isn't sure. "Some mobile home parks and apartment buildings don't provide for snow removal. If there was a fire, our firefighters might not be able to get close enough to put it out," he said.

To guard against the possi-

"Also, many seniors live in these places, and some have died of heart attacks shoveling out their cars in the winter," said Culbert.

Fine police chief lost

In a last vindictive act in office, former Canton Supervisor Harold Stein egged the township's hardworking police chief to quit. Although Chief Walter MacGregor had some solid personal reasons for leaving, the political mess in which Stein embroiled the chief became too much for him to bear.

Stein demanded last Friday that MacGregor prevent the former supervisor's political enemy, Robert Greenstein, from being sworn into office, which thoroughly upset and frustrated the chief from all accounts of the incident.

Stein claimed that since Greenstein was a Canton employe-(volunteer reserve) of the police force, state law prohibits him from holding township office. However, the Attorney General has ruled that Greenstein, since he was a volunteer was not technically a township employe, thus not subject to the law.

The last thing MacGregor wanted was a department mixed up in politics. So when Stein asked him to block the installment of a newly elected trustee, MacGregor reportedly foresaw two more years of a department caught between the township's bitter and often petty political factions.

It's no wonder he threw up his arms and decided to quit.

We're sorry to see the chief go.

Samaritan rescues Yule tradition in Canton

A fine Christmas tradition was rescued this week - just in time.

The Canton Goodfellows, which faced extinction since no one volunteered to organize the effort to raise money for needy children, found a good Samaritan.

Former Trustee Bob Myers stepped forward to lead this year's drive to provide Christmas meals for disadvantaged youngsters in the township.

Thanks, Bob. Year after year, commercial clutter seems to bury Christmas a bit more, so it's good to see the Christmas spirit alive.

Plymouth Goodfellows are continuing to uphold the tradition they began 40 years ago.

We ask that everyone who sees in a couple of weeks the Goodfellows selling their annual newspaper to give generously. It's a good cause."

Tis the season to be jolly, but the teachers and administrators of the Plymouth Canton schools are still unable to reach an agreement about the starting-times dispute.

That fact is dismal and unfortunate.

As you recall, teachers filed suit against administrators for failing to negotiate changed starting and closing times when the school year started in September.

After round one of that dispute, administrators were forced to talk about the differences within the context of the teachers' contract. Then the two parties were sent back to the bargaining table to reach an agreement.

However, after 20 days, both sides simply admitted they couldn't reach an agreement. It was, and is, an impasse.

Both sides are hurting themselves and disputes like this give the schools a bad name. Different factions in the schools are hurting the public's impression of the whole district.

An inability to come to grips with this problem can only shed light on the parties involved. Who can say who is at fault? I don't know, but defensiveness and uncooperative attitudes are "out" these davs.

Both teachers and administrators need to renew their commitment to solving immediate problems. Your own image is really at stake.

Helpers spiff up Santa's house

EDITOR:

Thanks to the interest and enthusiasm of many "Santa Helpers" in our Plymouth community, Santa's house in

Kellogg Park has had "tender loving care and attention" during the past weeks to get it in tip-top shape for Santa and the Christmas season,

Hazel Gibson of Plymouth Book World reported to the Plymouth Community Chamber of. Commerce that the following "helpers" have been busy painting, repairing, and installing new carpeting:

A committee of the Pilgrim Garden Club, chaired by less direction. With his years of experience as Wayne's police chief, MacGregor was the right person at the right time to lead the force when it became full-time. He'll be difficult to replace.

I received a telling phone call last week. An anonymous man said, "I'm just calling to say I'm tired of reading about (Harold) Stein and (Robert) Greenstein."

I couldn't agree with him more, even though The Crier prints story after story about the pair's political charges, countercharges, punches, counterpunches, antics and games.

The trouble is, the two are the political leaders of the township. What they do is news. In this sense, a newspaper is a captive of the community. What the leaders of a town think important is reported in the newspaper simply because they hold those positions.

Fortunately, there's always the editorial page, where reporters and editors are free to express their own views.

We believe in Plymouth what we're doing!

We believe in Plymouth, especially the Old Village. Currently we operate two retail shops within the village.

Three years ago we made a commitment to the area with Lorraine's Dolls, a specialty doll and toy store. The magic of the village captured our enthusiasm and recently we opened The Men's Room, a gift store for men.

Both efforts have been family projects. As a family our children, Billy and Michelle play a vital role in both shops.

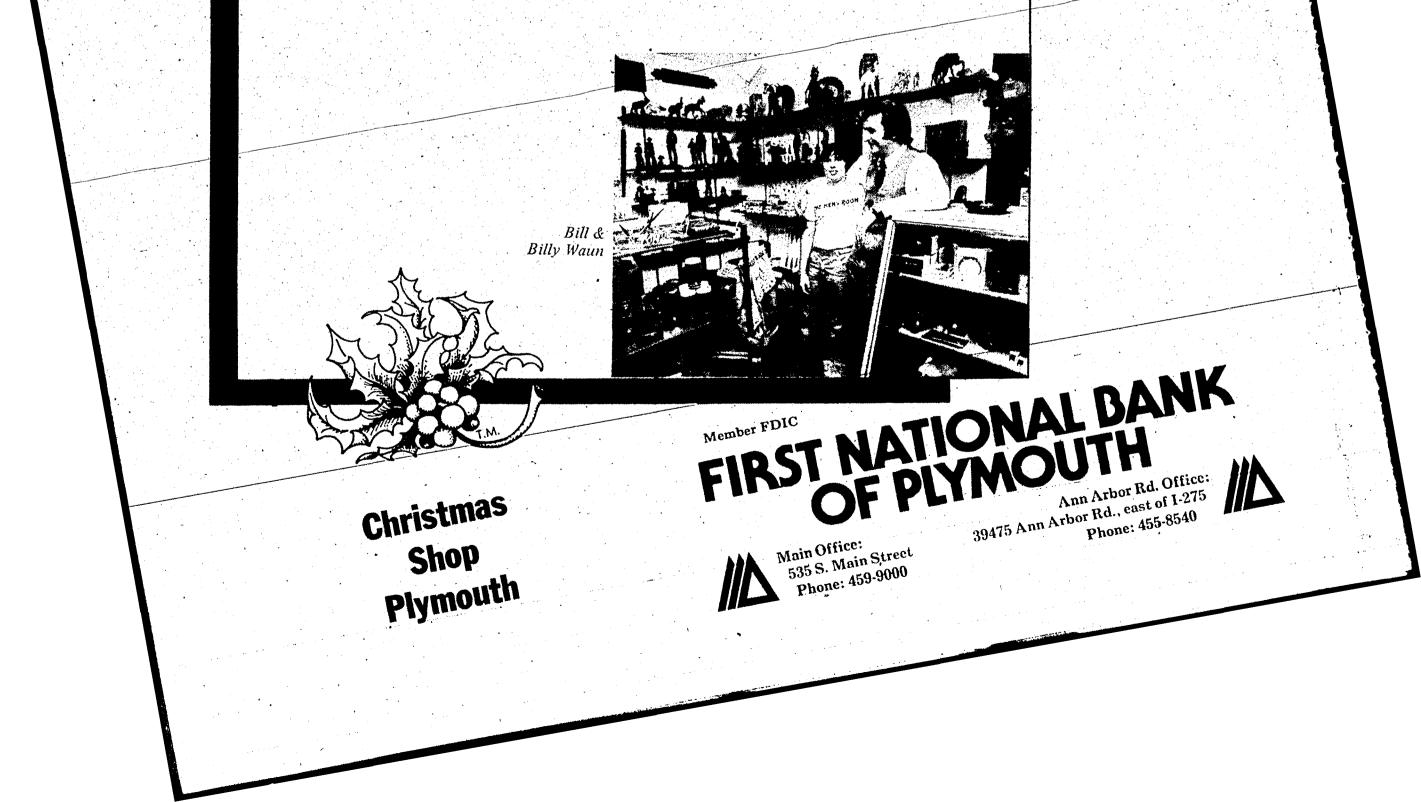

Yes, we believe in Plymouth, we've grown with it!

¹⁶ 17-year old Cantonite ⁵ joins Cleveland dancers

BY PATRICIA BARTOLD "Now strut. "And push. "Lean back. "And stretch. "And hold; two, three, four."

Ballet teacher Anne Mininberg teaches, prods, and inspires dance students with these instructions every day. "Give it some energy," she shouts across the studio.

Seventeen-year old Lisa Seppi of Canton is energized. She wants to be a professional ballet dancer.

On Sept. 16, Lisa successfully auditioned to join the dance school affiliated with the Cleveland Ballet Company. "I needed all the intensive lessons, hours of practice and personal attention I could get," said Lisa who came home last weekend to spend Thanksgiving with her family.

Lisa said she wants to become one of 20 professional dancers in the company and hopes to naturally progress and improve to that goal.

But she's also the first to admit there's no shortage of good dancers.

Professional dancers scarcely earn enough money to support themselves, she said, but nonetheless, there's fierce competition for openings.

Most of the dancers in the Cleveland company have supplementary incomes as waittresses, busboys or sales persons, but with irregular rehearsal hours, performance schedules, and practice times, it is difficult for the dancers to coordinate schedules, she said.

But studying dance in Cleveland also meant giving up a senior year at Salem High School. Lisa said an Ohio state residency requirement prevents her from enrolling in high school there, and unfortunately, the dance school doesn't attract enough boarders and out-of-state students to begin a tutorial program.

"We had a lot of heartto-heart talks with counselors at Salem last June about dropping out of school," said Lisa's mother Joan Seppi. She admitted that sometimes she wishes the school situation had worked out differently.

But Joan Seppi is pleased knowing the Cleveland Ballet Co. requires all dancers to be high-school graduates before joining. This prompted Lisa to say, "I'll just have to wait until I'm 18, to establish residency. Then I cansign up for my senior year in Cleveland."

The Richmond family Lisa boards with is a second thing that reassures Joan. They work things out and act like afamily, she said. That seems to comfort her maternal instincts.

Meanwhile in Plymouth and Canton, dance teacher Anne Mininberg, under the auspices of the Plymouth Community Arts Council, is working to establish a Plymouth-Canton dance theater, a company which will serve as a stepping stone for amateurs and provide more local options for area dancers. For audition information call Cheryl Tripp at 459-4929.

Since her arrival in Cleveland, Lisa is enrolled in six technique classes and two pointe classes.

"The students perfect skills they've already learned as well as condition themselves to build strength, endurance, grace and precision," said her mother.

Her eight classes add up to 13 hours of instruction each week in barre work, center floor combination steps, and dance in fast and slow paces.

"But it's funny, the first 20 years are spent building up your muscles. The next 10 are spent in maintaining that form and endurance. And after 30 years, a dancer's body goes downhill from there," said Lisa.

Watching Lisa limber up last Saturday morning, Joan admitted she's proud. And, she's pleased to have another daughter waiting in the wings.

Fourteen-year old Louise Seppi, a freshman at Salem High School, has been taking dance lessons since she was seven years old. She, too, wants to dance professionally. Although she is eyeing a Pennsylvania company, she knows it's still too early to decide. Meanwhile she waits and practices plié after plié. Out on the hardwood floor, Anne Mininberg chides her, "Come on, come on, tighten up those muscles. Work on the inner thigh muscles for the turn-out."

Anne turned back to face the rest of the class. "Now just don't strain anything,' she said. "You all know better than that."

Think jingle bells

Now that we're still stuffed from that huge Thanksgiving dinner, it's time to start waddling around with our gift list and get started on Christmas shopping.

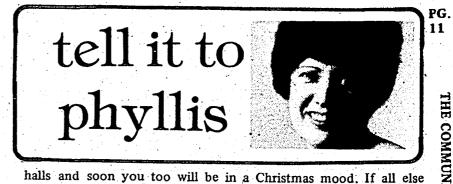

Once inside the stores with the decorations, holiday music and crowds, you know Christmas can't be far off. Then comes the decision time - "What can we give grandma that she doesn't already have 10 of, " or "I wonder what size little Kathy wears, she must be about five years old now."

Every year we say we're not going to buy as much this year, and every year we end up spending more than the previous year. It's supposed to be good for the economy, but I wish one of those economists would try to balance my checkbook.

Don't forget the Christmas card list that you keep cutting down on every year. Somehow as you keep crossing names off the top of the list, more names keep appearing at the bottom of the list. It's great to get cards and notes from all those friends and relatives you haven't seen in ages, but it sure is hard trying to write notes to all those friends.

If that isn't enough to boggle your mind with Christmas thoughts, what about all the craft projects and gift ideas you started making last July? Good luck!

Just keep thinking jingle bells, white Christmas and deck the halls and soon you too will be in a Christmas mood. If all else fails try a little Christmas spirits.

Members of the American Association of University Women are taking advantage of the season on Dec. 7 when they tour Greenfield Village. After 16 years, Jallad family unites

BY PHYLLIS REDFERN Holidays are fun times for family get-togethers, but the family gathering at Ahmad and Shirley Jallad's over the Thanksgiving weekend was a special family reunion.

It was the first time in 16 years that Ahmad, his five brothers and sister have all been together in the same country at the same time. The Jallads, a Palestinian family from Jerusalem, have grown from seven to 23 during those 16 years: '

Ahmad was the first of the family to come to this country. He came here in 1958 to go to school at Hillsdale College, where he met. Shirley. Since then six of the Jallads have graduated from Hillsdale.

Family members joining Ahmad and Shirley and their children Janeen and Erik were: Saud and Mona and their children Sa'sdeh and Nadia from Falls Church, Va.; Mustafa and Nadira, their children, Ramy, Raed, and Dahlia who are moving from Houston,

Texas to Abu Dhabi, Vae; Saleh and Leila from Chicago: Monier and Linda and children Aliya and Jihan from Ann Arbor; Sa'as and Mary

Canton fines to rise

To aid enforcement of Canton Township ordinances, the board was scheduled to consider raising the maximum fine from $100 to $500 last night at its board meeting.

"Many builders would rather pay the $100 than comply with the ordinance, for example," said Supervisor Noel Culbert. "We want the higher fines to act as a deterrent." The higher fines would apply to all township ordinances, such as marijuana laws, drunk driving, signs and messy subdivisions, said the supervisor.

"Most municipalities have the higher fines," he said. "We're five years behind."

Canton whips Chargers 50-35

BY ERIC OLSON

Canton had a tougher time than Salem did, but it still won. While Salem was breezing to a 75-38 bombing over the John Glenn Rockets, Canton was having some tight moments against Churchill before they outlasted it by a 50-35 score in district action Monday night.

The Chiefs played over numerous turnovers, missed layups, and the ejection of starting center Kelly Heaton to nail down the victory and set-up Thursday's district championship game against Salem.

Monday night's win lifted Canton's season mark to 19-2 on the season.

Both teams had trouble getting untracked and the score at the end of the first quarter was 8-6 in favor of Canton. Heaton hit the first basket of the contest two minutes into the period, but after that basket she hit a cold spell which saw her connect on just one of eight shots.

With 6:11 remaining in the third quarter, Heaton was ejected from the game for fighting. After Heaton had pulled down a defensive rebound, she was fouled by Gail Olijace of Churchill and

Heaton finished the game with six points and she made only two of 11 shots, unofficially.

In the second stanza Kathie Peck got the Chiefs going by making a steal and hitting a layup off of it. Canton went on to out-score the Chargers by a 14-8 margin in that quarter. They were helped by a three-point-play by Heaton and consecutive buckets by Vicky Cavallaro, Reggie Ruggerrio, and Diane Durocher near the end of the half.

Kathy Peck picked up the slack left by Heaton's departure as she canned seven of 11 shots and finished with a game high 14 markers. Ten of her points came in the second half.

Also sporting hot hands for the Chiefs were Cavallaro who sank four of five attempts to finish with eight points and Durocher who was perfect from the floor hitting all four of her shots to also have eight markers for the game.

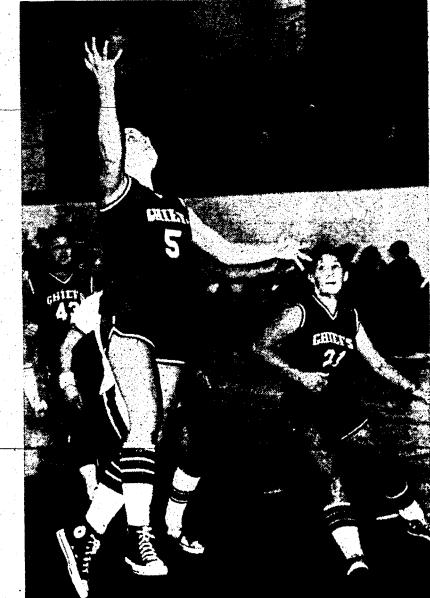

Canton lead at the half 21-14.

ROCKA

BY ERIC OLSON Salem was last, but not least Monday night.

Playing the second game of the night in district girls basketball action at Salem High, the Rocks blasted the John Glenn Rockets right off the floor by thirty-seven points, 75-38.

The win by the Rocks coupled by Canton's 50-35 victory over Churchill earlier pits Salem against Canton in the district championship game Thursday night starting at 7:30.

From the opening tap of the game it was all Salem as the Rocks tallied the first dozen points of the contest and did not allow even a shot by John Glenn for the first four minutes of the game.

Salem had the Rockets on ice after the first period as they held a 24-2 advantage. The Rocks connected on 11 of 20 shots in the first quarter, while they held John Glenn to one bucket on eight tries. John Glenn did not score until 2:47 was left in the period.

Doris Hoelscher and Patty Weidman paced the Rock attack in the opening quarter as Hoelscher netted eight points and Weidman added six.

Playing mostly substitutes in the second quarter Salem still outscored John Glenn by six points, 16-10, to take a 40-12 lead into the locker room at halftime.

Salem continued its hot shooting in the second stanza as they canned eight of 14 shots. At one point in the quarter the Rocks led 34-4.

The third quarter was more do f the same as they outpointed their opponent 20-16 to hold a 60-28 lead going in to the last quarter of play.

Weidman scored six of her game-high 12 points in the quarter as she took advantage of her superior size (6'-0") to post her Rocket defender down low and get an easy shot. Cheryl Sobkow shared

Salem upends Dearborn

The Rocks' basketball victory over Dearborn, 35-29, didn't come quite as easily as the first one in October. But it was the 20th victory for the Salem girls basketball team this season which left it with an unblemished season record. "We're a good, consistent ball club," said Coach Bob Blohm after the game.

Commenting on their performance in Dearborn territory, Blohm said, "Wé didn't have a good night. The players were tired and didn't shoot well.

"Dearborn played the exact same game they did in October but last Wednesday night we just couldn't pull ahead," said Blohm.

On Oct. 24, Salem squelched the Panthers 55-42.

In comparison, last Wednesday's game was tight and the Panthers grabbed the lead early in the game. They jumped to take a first quarter lead, 11-10, and by halftime had widened the lead to 19-14.

"We just couldn't penetrate their zone defense," said Blohm:

During the third quarter, the Rocks squeezed a onepoint lead from the Panthers, 26-25, and then they rallied during the fourth quarter to finish, 35-29.

Patti Weidman lead with 18 points followed by Nan Horwood and Cheryl Sobkow with six points. Diane Goodrich contributed three points and Doris Hoelscher shot two points.

Canton stops chiefs

Canton self-destructed last weekend – as Canton upended the Chiefs 2209 to 2193 in a 24-hour basketball marathon held by the Canton boys basketball teams to help raise funds for their program.

The varisty and junior varsity teams were broken up into six different squads that alternated playing.

Churchill made a brief comeback as they closed to within five points with 3:51 left in the quarter with Cindy Bussart pacing the Charger attack in the quarter with seven points.

However, Canton ran off nine unanswered points at the end of the quarter to take a 35-23 advantage into the final quarter of play.

The Chiefs put the game out of reach at the beginning of the fourth quarter as they hit their first four baskets of the quarter to take a 43-23 lead.

With just over minutes to play the Chiefs went to their four corners offense to stall the game and preserve the victory.

Adding to the Canton offense were Cavallaro who had eight, Beth Myrtle six, and Varied program highlights symphony concert

BY PHILIP MORSE I enjoy attending the Plymouth Symphony concerts and last Sunday was no exception. The orchestra, which plays in the Salem High School auditorium, provided some fine entertainment with a varied program.

In commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the death of Franz Schubert, the orchestra presented Schubert's Symphony "No. 5 in B Flat Major." This is melodic music, and is the sort of music the orchestra plays well.

The second piece was "Garden of Fand" by Sir Arnold Bax. Composed around 1915, this piece musically describes the calm Atlantic Ocean and the voyage of a small ship to an enchanted island off the coast of Ireland. In contrast to Schubert's Symphony, this is music which deals with moods and emotions. The winds and strings created the sensation of ocean waves and it felt like I was indeed aboard a ship bound for a mythical destination.

The third piece featured cellist Ross Harbaugh as the soloist for Dorvak's "Concerto in B Minor." Harbaugh, who plays currently with the New World String Quartet, which performed here with the orchestra last year, gave a masterful performance. The audience gave him a welldeserved standing ovation and curtain call.

One of the strong attributes of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra is that is is able to attract excellent artists. In the two years that I have been attending its concerts, I have always been impressed by the quality of the outside talent that performs each season.

It is good to know that one does not have to travel far to hear the likes of Ross Harbaugh, William Warfield, who was featured in the previous concert, or the New York Savoyards. The Savoyards will be coming to Plymouth Dec. 10 to perform "H.M.S. Pinafore" by Gilbert and Sullivan.

They entertained Plymouth audiences last year with "The Mikado," another Gilbert and Sullivan operetta. They were certainly not above including some of Plymouth's betterknown citizens in their humor. Reserve Dec. 10 on your calendar and buy your tickets as soon as possible. Single tickets are $5 or $2.50 for students and senior citizens. Do bring your oil can and mittens, however. The auditorium was so cold that most of the audience wore their coats. The orchestra members were not so fortunate although I did see gloves on one of the hofn players. The oil can is for the squeaky seats.

On Dec. 24, Christmas Worship services will be held at the Salvation Army Building, 290 Fairground. GENE REAVES

CANTC

RISTMAS IN

Santa's elves aren't the only ones trying to make sure every good little boy and girl has a merry Christmas. The jolly old man himself, known as Santa Gene Reaves in the Plymouth and Canton area is working hard to make the holidays a little happier for the residents at the Plymouth State Home.

Reaves, who has donned the red and white suit and long white beard and visited the Plymouth home every year for the past ten years, said this is the hardest year. "Donations have slowed down a little this year," said the 76-year-old Reaves. "We really need all the help we can get," he added.

Santa Reaves said he lost a friend and his best helper when Clara Cleland died this year. "She was 96 last year on Christmas day and confined to a wheel chair," said Reaves, "but every year for the past 10 years she made 20 to 30 sweaters, mittens and afghans for the kids at the home."

In the past he has provided gift certificates for the foster grandparents as well as gifts for the mentally handicapped children at the home.

"We have 61 foster grandparents who sponsor a child," said Reaves. He added that the foster grandparents spend half of the gift certificate for mittens or something their child needs.

Anyone interested in helping Santa make Christmas a happy time for many children, may send their donations to Gene Santa Reaves, 37789 Hixford Place, Apt. F12, Westland, Mi. 48185.

On Dec. 22, Santa Reaves will take his bundles of presents and goodies to all the children at the Plymouth Home.
