County reneges on Twp. police pact

BY CHAS CHILD

Plymouth Township will lose its police protection from the Wayne County Sheriff's Department Jan. 31, 1981.

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners voted yesterday to cut all county road patrols from its new budget. The new fiscal year starts Dec. 1, but the board agreed to extend the end of the patrols until the end of January to give proper notice to both the deputies' union and the communities with which it holds contracts police services.

Plymouth Township's contract with the sheriff's department, which started patrols into township subdivisions in May, requires either side to give 60 days' notice before it pulls out.

With the cuts, township residents will be left with the State Police's Northville post for police protection. But even there, manpower cuts are expected Jan. 4.

Lt. William Tomczyk, commander of the Northville post said he expects a substantial decrease in his staff beyond what he's already endured. A year ago, he said, about 90 officers were stationed in Northville. Now, that number stands at about 50.

County Commissioner R. William Joyner, who represents the Plymouth-Canton Community, said the police cuts were backed by the City of Detroit commissioners. "It's definitely a city-suburban thing," he said. The sheriff's road patrol only operates in the out-county or suburban areas of Wayne County.

The commissioners are also unhappy that the City of Romulus is about $1 million behind in its payments for contracted protection, said Joyner. Moreover, some commissioners are displeased with Sheriff William Lucas' administration of the department, said Joyner.

Maurice Breen, supervisor-elect of Plymouth Township, said the cuts leave the township with a number of choices for police protection. First, the township can contract with another municipality, it can start its own force, or it can work out some combination of these two, he said.

Before the township hired the sheriff's department, Breen proposed that the township should start its own force and beef it up gradually.

The cuts in the sheriff's department were recommended last Monday by the board of commissioners sitting as the Ways and Means Committee.

With 10 commissioners absent, including Plymouth-Canton's R. William Joyner, the committee voted 10-7 to eliminate the road patrol and contracts. Joyner was in University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor undergoing surgery.

The ways and means committee recommended that the sheriff's department's entire patrol and investigation unit be cut, which would save about $5 million and eliminate 249 jobs. This includes the dismissal of the 45-member county security force patrolling outside areas at Metro Airport, and the officers providing police protection for the City of Romulus as well as Plymouth and Brownstown townships.

Lt. Russ Gregory, in charge of the sheriff's Traffic Bureau, said these budget cuts would eliminate these services: secondary road patrols, county park and hospital patrol, expressway patrols; marine and detective services; and county-wide radio communication networks between local police departments.

After the ways and means vote, Sheriff William Lucas threatened to file suit against the board. Under the state constitution and statutes, he said, the sheriff is required to provide law enforcement services to the citizens of Wayne County. And the board of commissioners is required to provide him with the minimum staff needed to fulfill these requirements, he added.

Joyner called the cuts "absurd," ridiculous, and a travesty. Rather than cutting a huge chunk from the sheriff's department, Joyner said the board should skim a moderate amount from many parts of the budget.

Construction of unified courthouse starts Monday

BY CHAS CHILD

Bonds to fund construction of the unified 35th District Courthouse were sold last Wednesday.

The purchase clears the way for groundbreaking of the courthouse on Monday, Nov. 24. It will be located at the southwest corner of Plymouth and Haggerty roads in the City of Plymouth.

The First National Bank of Plymouth submitted the only bid for the bonds, which totaled $1,385,000.

The new building, designed by Plymouth architect Erick Carne, will house the district-court activities of four municipalities: Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville Township, and the City of Northville. It will replace the present courthouses in Plymouth and Northville city halls.

The fifth community in the 35th District, Canton Township, has thus far elected not to join the unified courthouse. Canton Supervisor-elect James Poole said, however, that he is interested in reconsidering. "I'm open-minded about it," he said. "And we'll be investigating the matter."

Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper, Jr. said he was particularly pleased that

First National was able to submit a bid, in view of rising interest rates.

Construction bids for the courthouse came in below estimates, said Graper. Delays in selling bonds, then, might have prevented the city from taking advantage of the lower costs, he said.

"It was a difficult situation to bid on," said First National's President, Ken Currie. "But we thought it very important for the community. As taxpayers, we knew delays would mean higher costs. We felt it had to get done."

Because First National purchased the bonds, issued by the city's Municipal Building Authority, Graper said he plans to shift some city funds to the bank. This money will be taken primarily from National Bank of Detroit, which did not bid on the bonds, said Graper.

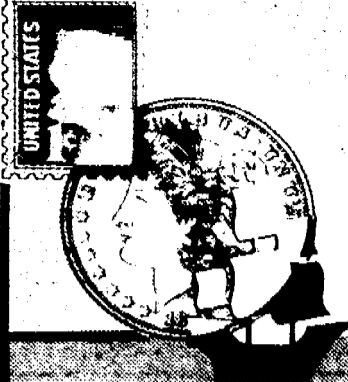

Currently, the city keeps about 70 per cent of its some $2.5 million worth of annual deposits at NBD and about 30 per cent at First National, he said. "I'd like to shift that percentage so it favors First National," Graper added.

"Without the sale of the bonds, there'd be no courthouse," he said.

A UNIFIED 35th District Court will be housed in this building, as drawn by Carne and Associates, architects of the project. The new court facility will be located at the southwest corner of Plymouth and Sheldon roads, in the City of Plymouth. Groundbreaking ceremonies will be held Monday, Nov. 24 at 11:30 a.m.

Strikers fight bosses with embarrassing letters

BY CHAS CHILD

Striking workers at the Plymouth Stamping Division are trying to shame their bosses into a new contract.

Frustrated by more than two months of picket lines, the workers have blanketed the neighborhoods of company managers with leaflets which call them "scabs and other non-unionized substitutes."

After the 35 UAW workers at the plant went on strike Sept. 9, managers and their relatives and friends manned the machines which stamp parts for the auto industry.

In fact, production is up to about 75 per cent of its pre-strike level, said Richard Taylor, vice president of Plymouth Stamping, located at 315 W. Ann Arbor Rd.

"Dear Neighbor: Please take one minute of your time to read this letter; it is important to the livelihood and survival of my family," says the leaflet distributed near the homes of company managers.

"Plymouth Stamping forced the union to strike on Sept. 9, when they informed the bargaining committee that effective Sept. 9, all employees would receive a $3 an hour cut in wages and benefits.

"Since the strike, the company has continued to operate with 'scab and other non-unionized substitutes' working the equipment. One person happens to be your neighbor (blank left to fill in name).

"... we are making an appeal to the community to support us in this workers' fight," adds the letter. "Perhaps you are a union member or maybe someone in your family is a union member, or maybe you are not affiliated with any organization.

"In any event, I am sure you would not like someone doing your job while you were trying to secure a just and equitable agreement."

Although the letter lists the names of the managers, it is unsigned. It ends with these words: "Sincerely, Striking Workers of Plymouth Stamping."

"I put no stock in a letter that's not signed," said a

City of Plymouth resident who received one of the leaflets. "If they (the strikers) want people to take them seriously, they should sign it."

The Burroughs Street resident, who did not want to be identified because she feared reprisals, lives near Dick Moore, the production control supervisor at Plymouth Stamping. His father, Clarence Moore, helped found the company.

Describing herself as a "non-union" person, Moore's neighbor said the workers should be more willing to accept pay cuts requested by management. "It's tough all over," she said. "Where I work (a dental office) we're giving everyone 10 per cent discounts.

"Union people and non-union people don't think alike," she added. "We're just not union oriented."

Another neighbor who received a letter, Helen Corrado, of Richland Street in Livonia, said she didn't know the Plymouth Stamping managers targeted in the leaflet. "It didn't impress me one way or the other," she said. "I suppose they're trying to embarrass the people. But everybody has to eat. Their own consciences should tell them what to do."

Taylor, who said his neighborhood has not been distributed with the "scab" letters, agreed that the union is trying to embarrass the workers crossing the picket line.

"It has upset the people it's happened to," he said. "I don't approve of it, but there's not too much our people can do about it. In the big picture I don't think it will have much effect."

Asked what the union hopes to achieve with the letters, UAW representative Miriam Elston said, "The Workers need community support. We don't expect the neighbors to do anything, either physically or vocally. We just want them to be aware.

"Maybe the neighbor would be a union member," she added. "They wouldn't want anybody crossing their picket lines. Union members usually stick together." As for the picket-crossing managers named in the letters, Elston said, "We hope that they would feel bad."

Company management has asked regular production workers to accept a $2-per-hour pay cut on top of a reduction in fringe benefits of $1.36 per hour. Maintenance workers are being asked to take a $1-per-hour reduction, plus the same cut in fringe benefits.

These demands are too high, Elston said, adding that the union should not have to pay for mismanagement at the company. Both management and labor agree that the company is in bad financial shape. Elston said the workers are willing to take some pay cuts, but smaller than offered by company officials.

She said she believes the firm is not bargaining in good faith and that the UAW's legal department is considering filing a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board.

Schools ready boundary, grade changes for next year

BY PATRICIA BARTOLD

A preliminary plan for drawing up new boundary lines for Plymouth-Canton schools was unveiled to the Board of Education Monday night.

Done by a computer, the plan represents the first step towards mapping new boundary lines for students in 1981-82.

Next fall, school officials plan to: realign the grades by shifting sixth graders back to elementary schools and ninth graders back to middle schools; put more elementary schools on the year-round school calendar and Pioneer School on a traditional calendar; rent Lowell Junior High School from Livonia; and, draw up new attendance areas for schools throughout the district.

After school officials review the first computer run, they'll bring back their recommendations to the school board for review. More computer runs will be made, based on recommendations from the school board and administrators, to hone the redistricting plan down further.

The school board will discuss the first computer run at its meeting on Monday, Nov. 24 at 7:30 p.m. and during an all-day workshop Wednesday, Dec. 3.

"This is only the first run of the program," said Supt. John M. Hoben. "It hasn't been analyzed in great detail yet."

The board is aiming to finalize the redistricting plan by Feb. 1. A public forum will be held before its final adoption.

Alleged robber arrested

A Canton Township man was arrested Saturday and charged in connection with armed robbery of a bank branch in Dearborn Heights earlier this year.

Arrested by Canton and Livonia police, with an assist from the FBI, was Thomas James Ezerkis, 33, of 8626 Honeycomb Circle, Canton.

He and an alleged accomplice were charged with a federal warrant for armed bank robbery on March 25 of a branch of Detroit Bank and Trust, 25851 Joy Rd., Dearborn Heights, said FBI Sp. Agent

John Anthony.

Police believe the pair may be responsible for seven bank robberies in Michigan and Ohio which netted a total of $60,000.

Ezerkis's alleged accomplice, Michael James Beckius, 34, of Hancock, was arrested last Wednesday in Detroit on charges of carrying a concealed weapon, police said. His arrest led police to Ezerkis, according to police.

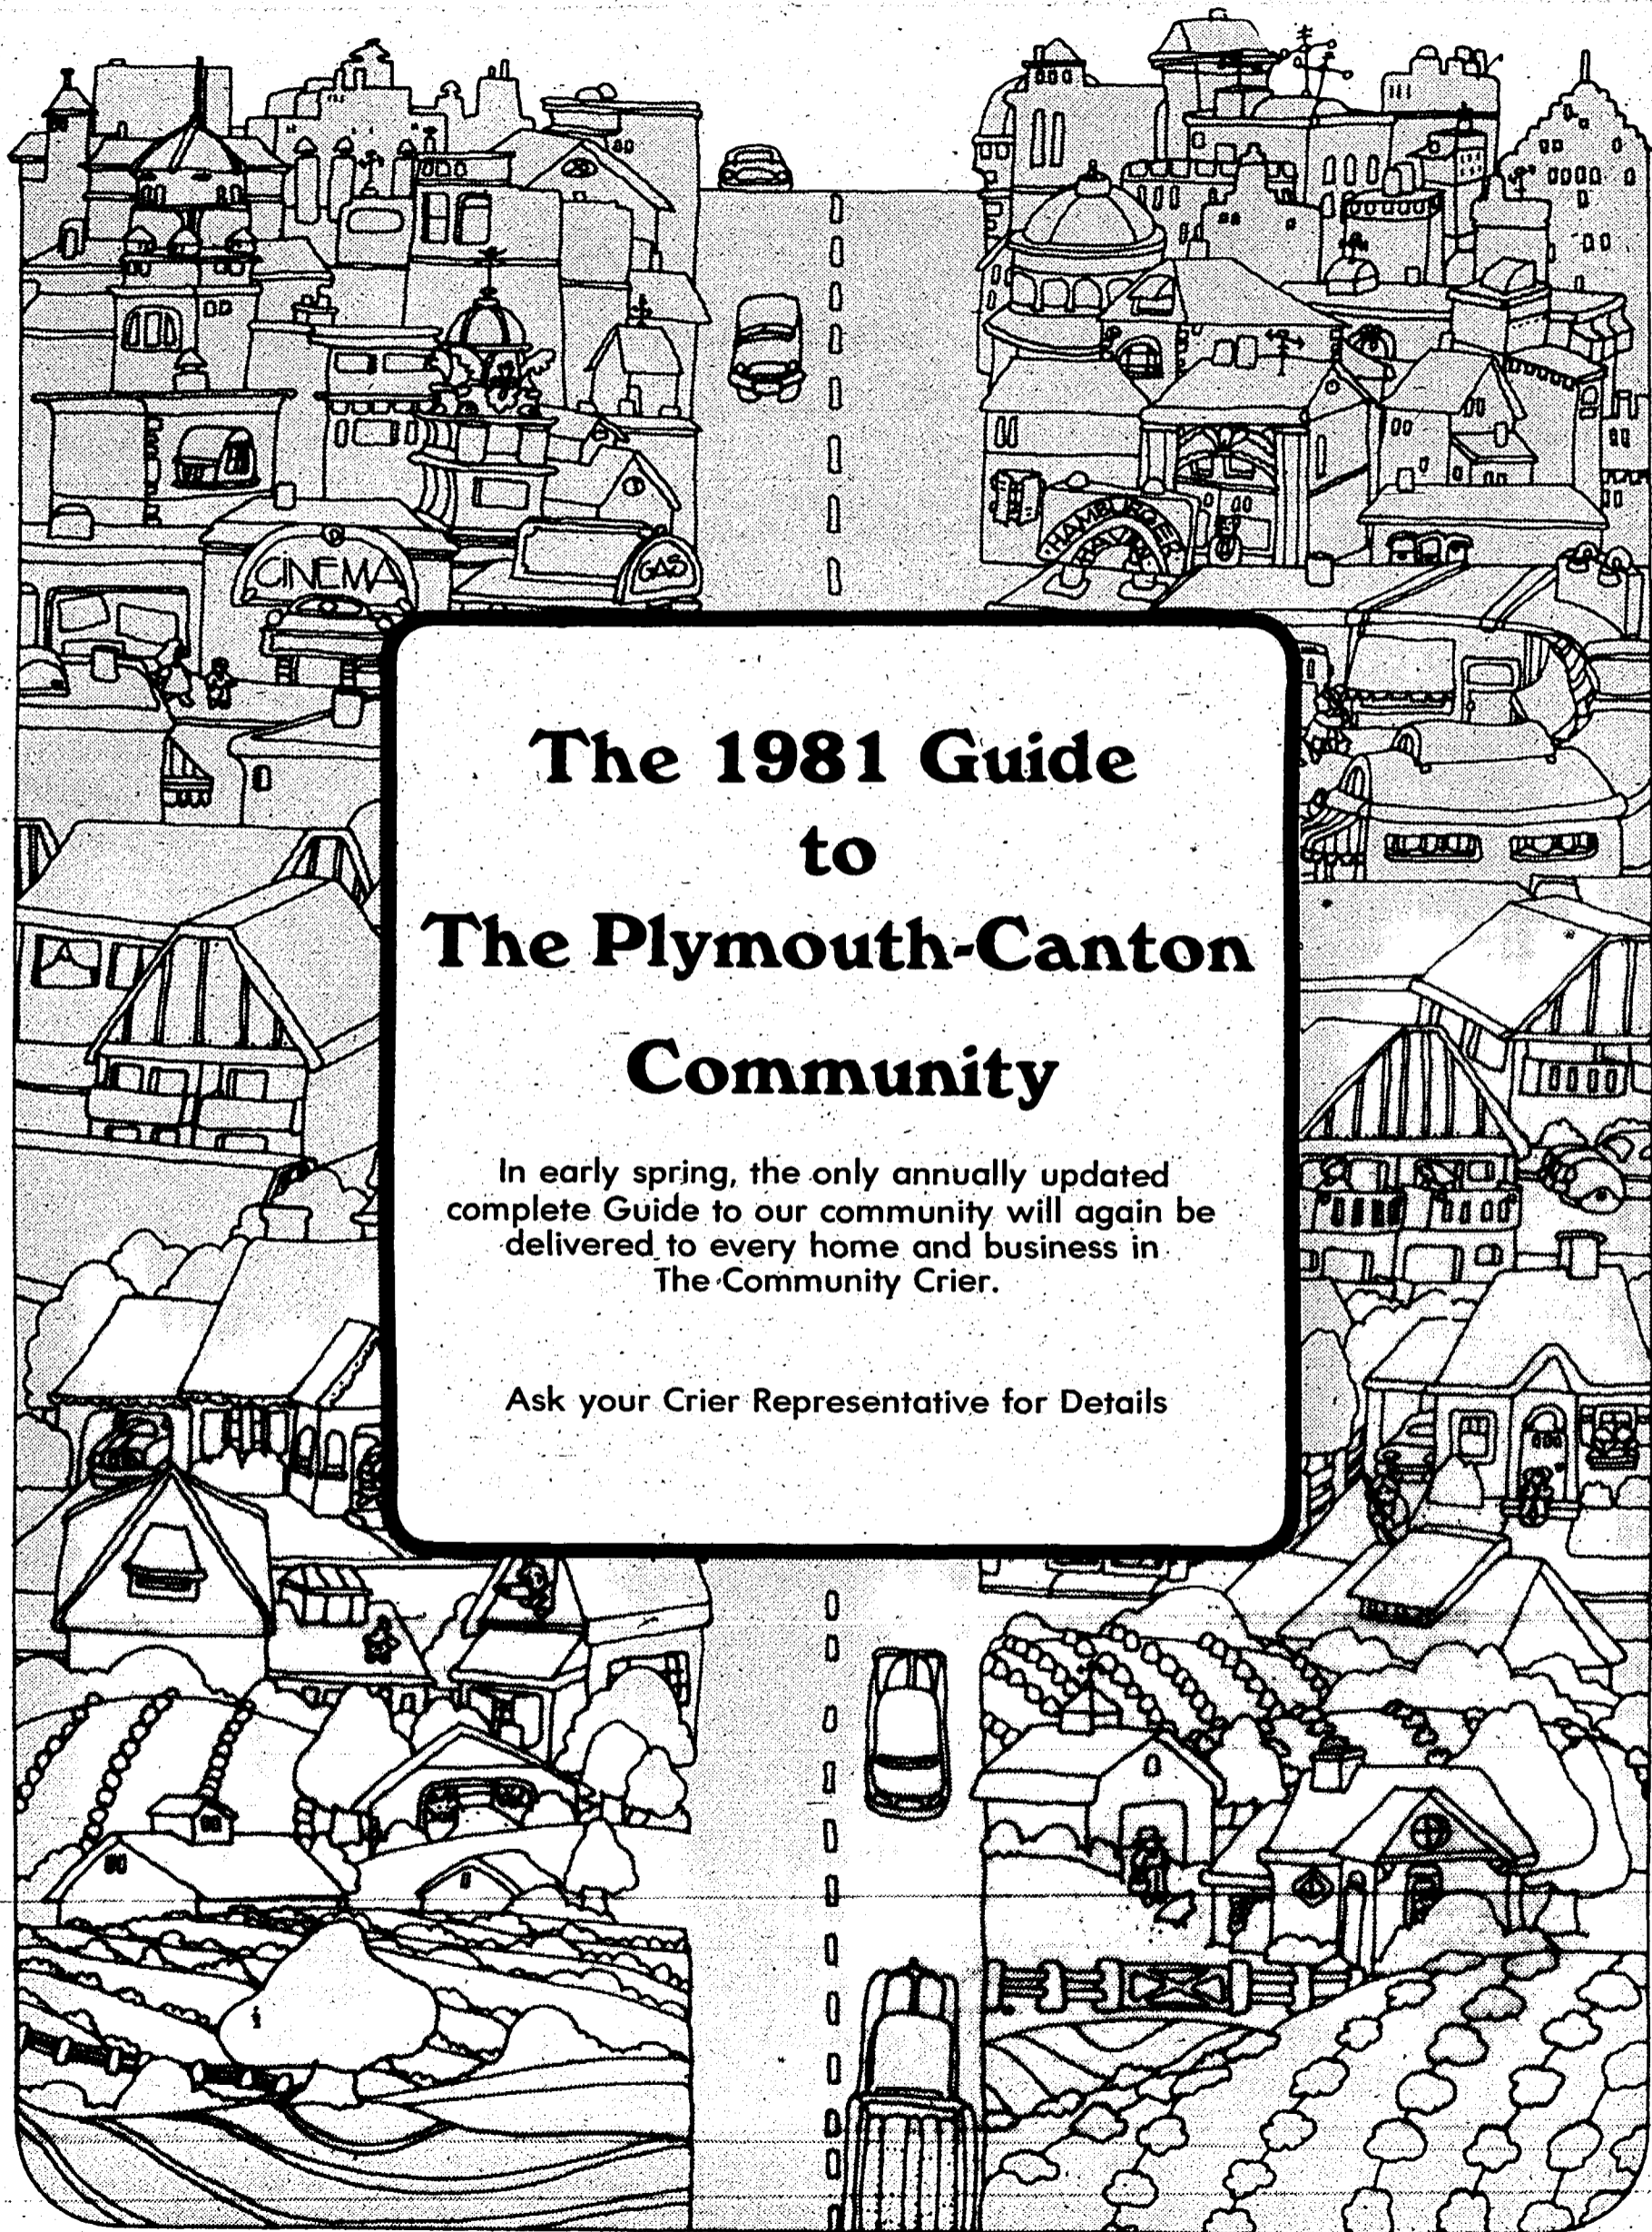

Federal complaints filed with U.S. District Court indicate that both men have confessed to the March 25 robbery.

Arson suspected

ARSON IS SUSPECTED in this fire, which was set between the doors at a home at 7115 Willow Creek in Canton, according to Canton Fire Chief Mel Paulun. The possible arson has been investigated by both the Police and Fire Departments, but no conclusions have been reached, said Paulun. According to Sgt. Grady, a firefighter on the scene, a passing truck driver saw the blaze and stopped, kicked the door open and put out the fire. (Crier photo by Phyllis Redfern).

Canton OKs policy for sign variances

BY DAN BODENE

Last Tuesday night Canton's Board of Trustees helped unravel a little of the mystery in the township's sign ordinance.

Frequently criticized by the local business community, the present sign ordinance has been called vague in regard to its definition of special events. During the past few months, several local merchants have requested special event sign approval, but no firm criteria existed for considering the promotions.

At the direction of the board, Bruce Phillips, director of ordinance enforcement, worked with Canton Chamber of Commerce President Frank McMurray to propose a community special event sign request procedure. Included in the procedure was a definition of a special event.

Tuesday night, the board adopted the procedure as policy. Although no changes have been made to the sign ordinance, the procedure will be used by the board as a guideline for awarding special event sign approval.

Within the policy, a special event is defined as that which is "organized and sponsored by an established non-profit civic Canton community group, organization, club or society."

The definition also specifies the proposed event "shall offer a particular public use or service to the community which is distinctive, uncommon or out of the ordinary . . ."

The new policy was reviewed and approved by the township's Planning Commission prior to board consideration. Bob Padgett, head of the Planning Commission, said his group will petition the board for inclusion of the special event definition within the sign ordinance, a procedure which will include public hearings on the matter.

Padgett said he would also investigate the possibility of a provision allowing merchants to display banners and streamers which are presently non-conforming, for promotions will be limited to one per six-month period, and would not have to meet special event criteria.

For the time being, however, the board will use the present sign ordinance, with the special event criteria policy as a supplement. "It's easier to change a policy than it is to change an ordinance," explained Phillips.

Environmental issues aired

Preservation of the environment and the issues surrounding resource management will be discussed at the Thursday, Nov. 20 meeting of the American Association of University Women (AAUW).

The meeting will begin at 8:30 p.m. at West Middle School. It is co-sponsored by the local League of Women Voters.

Participants will be able to hear two of the five mini-sessions offered that evening.

They include discussions on the following topics: the ramifications of solid waste disposal and the selection of appropriate sites, led by Frank Belobraidich, a geologist from Resource Recovery Division of the Department of Natural Resources; water quality, chaired by John Beckman, district sales manager for Nalco Chemical Co.; shoreland preservation in Michigan, led by Martin Jannereth of the Great Lakes Shoreland Section of the DNR; farmland preservation, led by James Kosteva, chairman of Canton Township's Planning Department; and, Michigan's energy supplies and prospects for the future, led by Peter Walters, director of Energy Administration, Michigan Department of Commerce.

The meeting is open to the public.

Nagel performs Sunday

Johan van der Merwe, the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's conductor, will step up to the podium Sunday, Nov. 23 for a second concert. It will begin at 4 p.m. at Salem High School's auditorium.

The audience attendance was outstanding at October's concert. It is likely that the November program will prove as popular. Following the Sibelius "Finlandia" will be one of the most popular concertos ever written for piano, the Tchaikovsky Piano Concerto No. 1. After a stormy initial reception in Russia, the work was re-introduced in the United States and became an instant success. Not one but two popular tunes have been extracted from its many themes.

The soloist for this well-known work will be Louis Nagel from the faculty of the University of Michigan. Nagel has concertized in the United States as a recitalist, soloist with orchestra, and two-piano collaborator with his wife, Julie. While earning his bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degrees at the Julliard School, he was a piano student of Rosina Lhevinne and Josef Raieff. Following his doctoral studies he studied with the famed Russian pianist Vladimir Ashkenazy.

Nagel has appeared as soloist and lecturer on numerous American college campuses. He has performed a program of Russian Romantic music in the National Gallery, Washington, D.C. and has given five recitals in Town Hall, New York City. During the summer, he and his wife are on the faculty of the National Music Camp, Interlochen. He has been on the piano faculty of the University of Michigan since 1969.

Following an intermission, the program will conclude with Dvorak's Eighth Symphony -- not to be confused with his "From the New World" (which is his ninth). In any event, its lyricism and generally cheerful mood has caused it to be one of the most popular of all Dvorak's symphonies.

Tickets for the concert will be available at the door. Advance sale tickets may be purchased in Plymouth at Beitner Jewelry on Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth Book World on Forest Street and Heide's Flowers, Ann Arbor Trail at Harvey.

In Canton, tickets are available at Harvard Book in Harvard Square shopping center and at Arnoldt Williams Music on Canton Center near Ford. Cost of tickets is $4 for adults and $2 for senior citizens and full-time college students. Students, kindergarten through 12th grade, are admitted free.

A Girl Scout troop will provide baby-sitting for pre-schoolers during the concert. Free transportation for senior citizens is provided from Tonquish Creek Manor at 3:15 on the afternoon of the concert. This concert is made possible with the support of the State of Michigan through a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts and by a grant from the Ford Motor Company.

Suit against Twp. to be aired Dec. 5

A hearing date of Friday, Dec. 5 has been set for the suit which charges the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees with violating the state Open Meetings Act.

The hearing will be held at the City-County Building starting at 9 a.m. before Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Robert Colombo.

Carol and James Levitte filed suit against the board and six of its seven individual members more than a month ago. Donald Morgan and Nels Carlson, township attorneys, were also charged in the suit. Trustee Lee Fidge was not charged.

The Levittes, both of whom are township residents, say the act was violated on at least four occasions. They charge that the public was not allowed to speak to the board at a May meeting; improper additions were made to the board's agenda at several meetings; and a closed session was held improperly in regards to the settlement of a law suit with a developer.

The defendants have said that the Levittes allegations are "groundless," and are asking the court to dismiss the complaint.

Twp. should look to city for police alternative

The recent move by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to end the police contract in Plymouth Township should have the township board poised to move IMMEDIATELY to another form of police protection.

We hate to tell the board we told them so, but when the board was considering contracting with the county for police, we warned of the uncertainties stemming from the county's woeful financial shape and political shenanigans.

Now, the proof is there.

It's one thing for the county to say it must end its road patrols due to financial problems, but it's yet another to flaunt the contract for additional police services. Considering how all the various county officials had to get their two cents in on the contract (the commissioners, the auditors, the corporation counsel, etc.), why is the county now saying it can't afford to offer the service it contracted for?

The Wayne County Sheriff deputies and administrators themselves are unfairly hurt by the ridiculous politicians' downtown. Their police service here has been credible while the political ramifications are incredible.

If the Plymouth Township board members have any question on the matter, they will probably cry that the township breaking the county contract is illegal. Yet, they will allow the county to run legal roughshod over the safety of their constituents.

We cannot make such a major slide backwards on protection. The State Police "backup" theory is largely a figment of the imagination of an overzealous troopers' leafletting campaign. State budgetary problems have hamstrung capabilities of the State Police; relying on that is, unfortunately, also folly.

It should be acutely aware to the township board -- one course lies ahead. Since funding a township police department is an expensive proposition, joint police service with another community ought to be considered.

If the City of Plymouth cannot offer a fair share of its police department, then every police agency in Northville Township, Canton, Livonia, Westland or Washtenaw County should be approached.

But above all else -- regardless of the charter township defense of "police protection" -- the Wayne County sheriff contract games demonstrate the county cannot be trusted to produce anything it says it can or will.

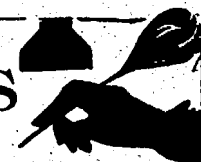

Let's cut the county contract until it can be properly-reorganized.

Local sports league sought

Off and on for the past 10-to-12 years there has been serious discussion at Salem about leaving the school's long-standing athletic league, the Suburban Eight, and forming with other schools to make a new league.

According to CEP Athletic Director John Sandmann, the school has come close to doing that several times but on every occasion the discussions broke down and nothing came of them.

Once again Salem and maybe Canton, are in that stage of trying to cut costs, ease administrative hassle and find new competition for the schools.

"This is nothing new. For the past 10 or 12 years, we've been looking at one time or another for anything that would benefit our program here," said Sandmann. "Once we even had a sort of congress of some 20 schools and we only needed four more teams to form four divisions of one conference and it fell through.

"All the teams were local and it was a large conference. By doing that, it would simplify things for the administration and also simplify transportation for the schools and the fans themselves," Sandmann continued.

There is no doubt that high costs might be cut from a multi-team organization, but this time several other decent ideas are being tossed about by a few schools.

"What started this thing was the break up of the Inter-Lakes League when several teams (Pontiac Northern, Milford Lakeland and Waterford) quit that league," said Sandmann. "Both Salem and (Livonia) Bentley have considered joining with those schools or with the Western Six teams."

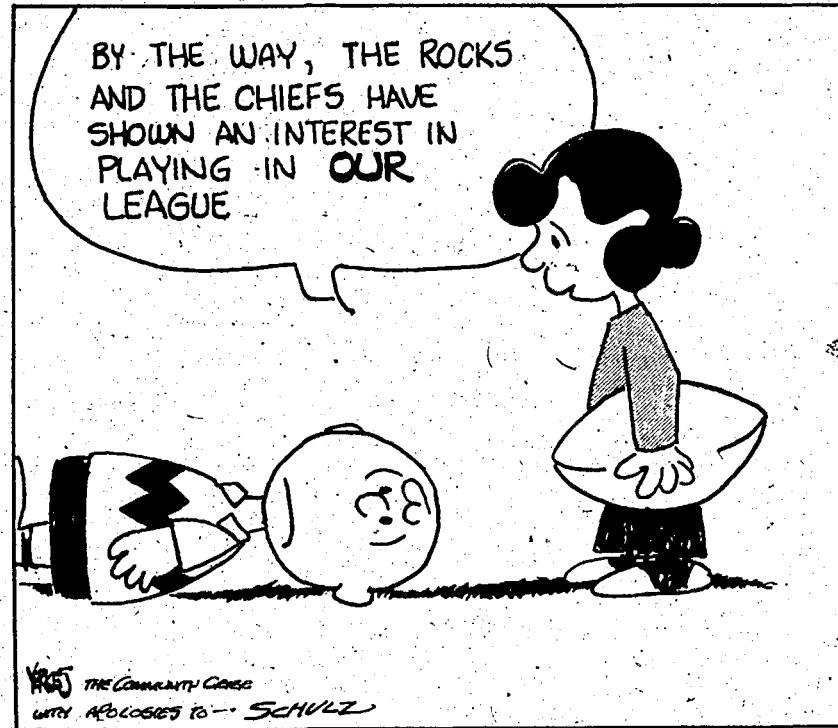

Salem and Bentley are in the Suburban Eight. They are not the only teams in that league which might move on. Trenton and Allen Park have also put out feelers looking for a new conference.

The target date for forming this ghost league is no earlier than 1983. Until then a forum with other interested schools must continue since a large-scale change would involve many teams and many leagues.

The issue as now brought forth is still up in the air and no amount of discussion can open it up more until the schools come out with a concrete plan.

That plan, with the end result of a new league, would be beneficial to both CEP schools even if they face each other in varsity competition on a regular basis.

"Yes we've been talking," said Sandmann. "Both of our schools are in fairly sound competition and conferences right now, but if we can help our own situation with this idea we should. That would be my endorsement."

Outgoing board served conscientiously

Last Tuesday night was the scene of a swan song -- at least for the next four years -- of some of Canton's most familiar government figures.

Outgoing trustees Eugene Daley and Robert Greenstein, treasurer Jim Donahue and supervisor Noel Culbert will all have to participate in board meetings from the other side of the rostrum after tomorrow -- a situation some of them seemed to relish.

I hate to plead ignorance, but I have only known these gentlemen for slightly more than six months. I can hardly qualify as a critical judge of their overall performances on the township board.

My basic impression, though, is that they all served Canton with the best interests of the township at heart. Although some of the ways they accomplished this aim weren't always to my liking, or apparently to the voters' liking, I never once detected a careless attitude toward their jobs.

As Culbert said, "Although we all don't agree on much, that's good for democracy."

I couldn't agree more. The record of the past few years may seem chaotic at best to some, but there were some important accomplishments made and some badly-needed lessons learned.

Let's hope the new board will, from time to time, rely on the lessons learned by the outgoing members. I suspect that some former board members, as Greenstein admitted, will be "lurking in the shadows."

Crier to the rescue

EDITOR:

I cannot pass up this opportunity to express our concerns for an obvious misjudgment. The Crier again comes to the rescue.

It seems that whenever there is a chance to give out special approvals for signs announcing events in Canton Township, it becomes a slap in the face of the business community.

I know most of these indecisions were reached under an old Board of Trustees. I only hope that the newly-elected officials take a hard look at how the small business person has been hurt by the attitudes toward signs, their size and their height.

We support the Canton Library, the Rotary Club and any other organization that needs special approvals. But, we would like support of our business, so that we can continue to leave our doors open and hire employees to pay taxes.

Breen's changes at Twp. Hall may bring flak

The transition of power will take place tomorrow afternoon when Maurice Breen is sworn in as Plymouth Township supervisor, replacing Thomas Notebaert, who was defeated in the Aug. 5 Republican primary.

Currently a member of the Board of Trustees, Breen will be charged with leading Plymouth Township through the next four years. Undoubtedly, one of his biggest challenges will be keeping spending down while providing the same services to township residents.

The shift in political power was already in evidence last week at township hall. Subtle signs that a change was in the offing could be sensed; more tangible signs could also be seen. Except for his nameplate (which I'm sure will be taken with him), the telephone, and a pen, Notebaert's desk was bare. The bookshelves were cleaned off, although the radio, blaring musak, was still plugged in.

Notebaert seems to be weathering the change well and is optimistic about the future. After his last day as township supervisor Thursday, he'll start working for a local realtor Friday, concentrating primarily on selling commercial and industrial properties.

He laughed jovially when asked if it was "proper" for a former township supervisor to return to private business. "It's proper for a township supervisor," he replied, in reference to President Jimmy Carter's stance: "After all, I don't get the same pension as a president."

There are other tangible changes in the political shift, too. Breen will not occupy Notebaert's office; instead, he's chosen to move into Fire Chief Larry Groth's office, which is tucked off a corridor towards the front of Plymouth Township Hall.

Groth will be moved to the conference room temporarily. When the new Water and Sewer Building is finished, Groth will move to the office currently occupied by the Water and Sewer Department.

Breen's secretary will be Barbara Pray, who now works in the Treasurer's Office under Joseph West. Mary Brooks, Notebaert's secretary, will move into Pray's position. Pray was Breen's secretary when he was township supervisor from 1970-72.

Other than the shift in supervisor, only one newcomer has been elected to the Board of Trustees. Andrew Pruner, a Wayne County Sheriff's deputy, is not a new face at township meetings since he has frequently attended board meetings in the past. Now, though, he will occupy a trustee's chair, rather than sitting in the audience.

What will the next four years bring under this all-Republican administration? Speculation, although a hazardous business, contributes to ripe table conversation. Helps pass the time, so to speak, and it's often interesting to compare visions.

I'll make a safe wager that Plymouth Township politics will become more and more controversial over the next four years as the township develops.

Breen will be a stronger leader than Notebaert has been over the past four years. He'll try to implement more business-like procedures and policies at township hall -- a much-needed reform that has become more crucial as the township grows.

However, I expect that Breen, although he'll stress an improvement in the working relationship between township administrators and trustees, will have to take some flak for his suggestions on reforms, particularly if they effect township employees.

Breen, I surmise, will be a mover and shaker at township hall. Plymouth Township is fertile for such direction, provided that its best interests are kept first and foremost in the minds of its leaders.

Whither the weather play it safe this winter

Canada recently blessed the state with a blast of ice-cold weather, which brings to mind the approach of another Michigan winter.

So, with the snowy season almost upon us, it behooves everyone to remember the lessons of the past. Cold weather brings hazardous conditions, both on the road and at home.

Ice and snow demand a lot of extra attention to driving and consideration for other motorists. Roads are frequently slick and dangerous, and every intersection is a potential accident site. Speeds should be moderated, and autos themselves should be outfitted for winter driving with snow tires and other emergency equipment.

A frequent sight on snowbound roads is the stranded motorist. Be considerate and stop to help. The person you help may eventually help you.

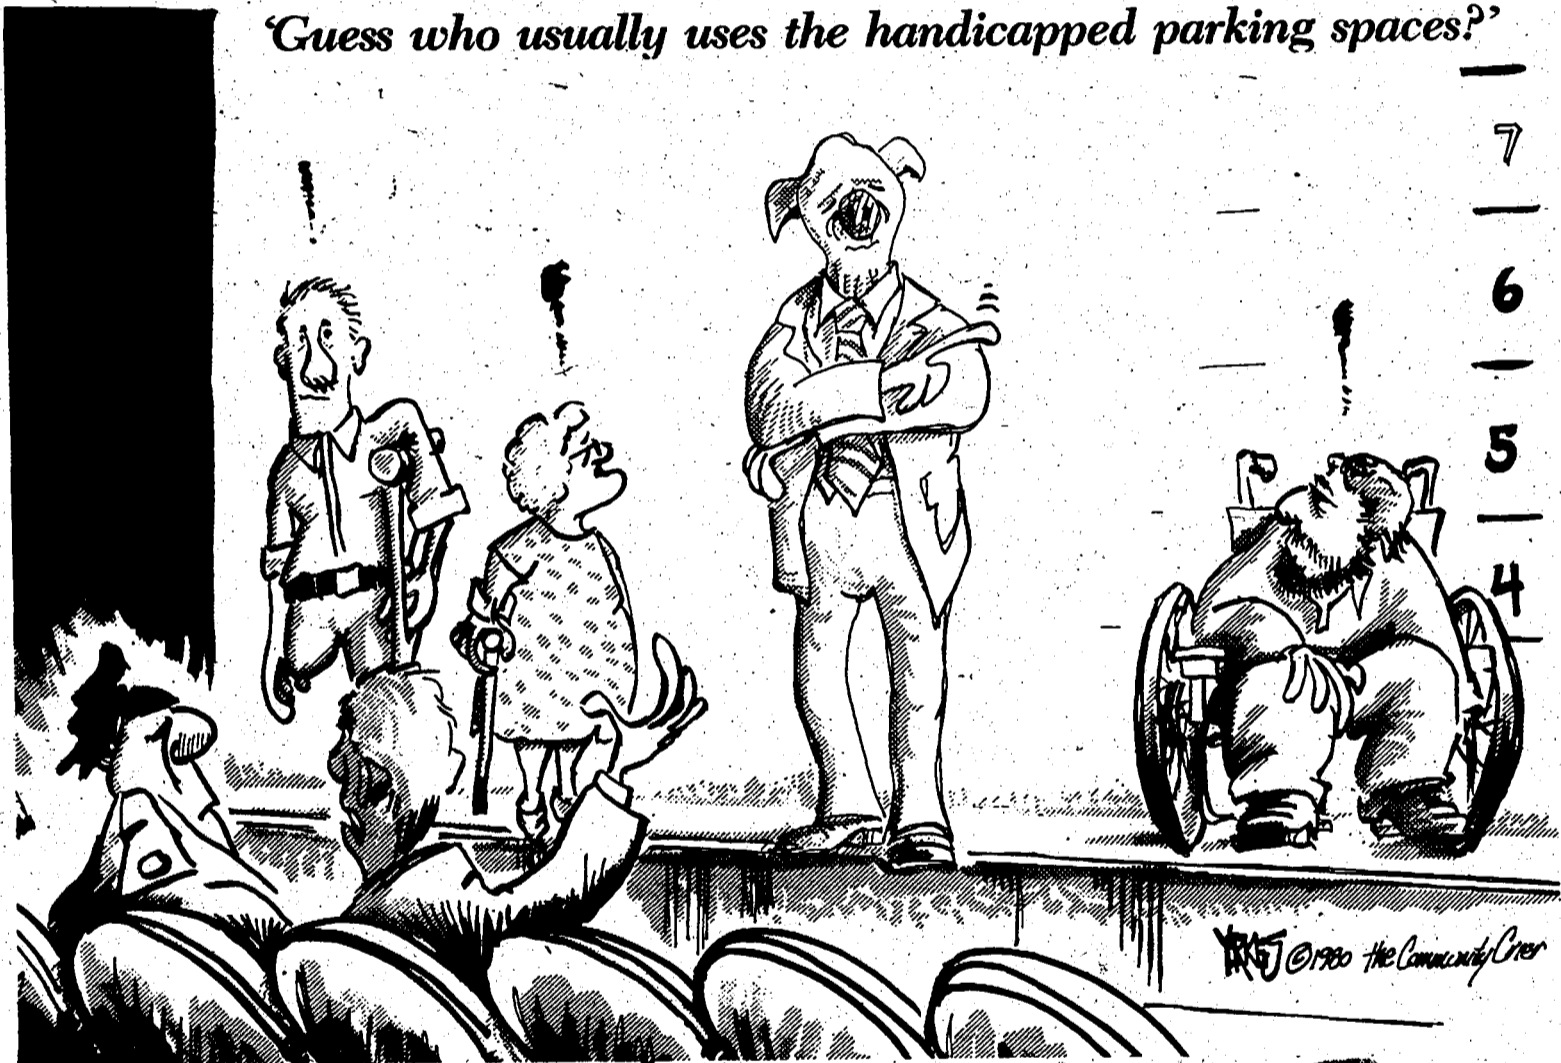

In the event of heavy snowfall, tight corners, such as driveways and intersections also become piled with snow. When clear vision is obstructed, take extra care before moving.

Residences are also affected by inclement weather. Clear driveways and sidewalks of snow and ice -- an accident, however unexpected, causes nothing but suffering for victim and homeowner alike.

Many of the things that make a harsh winter more bearable involve little more than common sense and consideration for others. Winter can be safe, as well as enjoyable.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

'Guess who usually uses the handicapped parking spaces?'

What's in a name? More than an 's'

Despite the similarity in our names, let there be no mistake: I am not Chuck Childs.

Every time Chuck, long active in local public affairs, either runs for office or gets entangled in some controversy, people get our identities confused. Chuck recently had a go-around with the CEP Marching Band, which prompted this clarification.

Now, I create enough problems with my own opinions, without Chuck's being attributed to me, too. And I'm sure he has no desire to be associated with my views on the various comings and goings of the Plymouth-Canton Community.

So, folks, please keep in mind that we are two different people. We're not related, nor is there even a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde relationship at work here. Chuck is Chuck and Chas is Chas and never the twain shall meet.

I suppose if you go back far enough we descend from the same clan somewhere in northern Europe. We may even be long (and I mean long) lost cousins. But somewhere along the line an "s" was added to Chuck's family name. (Heaven forbid if it were the other way around, and the "s" was dropped from my name, thereby making Child a corruption of Childs.)

That "s" is, in fact, the crux of our problem. For a reason I've never understood the average human being has an irresistible urge to tack an "s" on to the end of my name. Do people ever drop the "s" from your name, Chuck? Of course not. Only the Child of the clan is thus plagued. Even junk mail arrives at my home with that irresistible "s" on board.

While I receive Chuck's "s," he has received a number of my phone calls -- perhaps

Child's play

by Chas Child

an even-exchange, as you shall see. These calls are mostly from persons trying to find me in the phone book or from out-of-towners who get Chuck's number by mistake from information.

Such calls are usually nothing more than a bother, Chuck has told me. But one proved quite embarrassing, even for me, although I was happily oblivious of it at the time.

A couple of years back a University of Michigan college friend of mine was revisiting Ann Arbor. We were and still are good friends, but we had a peculiar way of greeting each other on the phone. It is his habit, after I answer, to greet me in good fun, of course, with such words as, "Hey, you crazy bladderbrain," or "Howzitgoin', you pencil-necked geek."

Well, Steve and I hadn't talked for a good two years when he arrived in Ann Arbor. So when he received what he thought was my phone number from information (it was Chuck's, of course), he had a particularly ripe greeting stored up. And he let it loose after Chuck answered with a cheery "hello."

I still chuckle today at poor Steve's embarrassment. But what's funnier was Chuck's immediate response to Steve's bizarre greeting: "Oh, you must mean Chas Child."

Life is a performance for Kids on the Block

BY DAN BODENE

Although Mark, Renaldo, Ellen Jane and Jennifer all have their own problems, they can literally be put on the shelf between explanations of how they cope.

You see, they and their friends Melody and Brenda are puppets. All are the brain-child of Barbara Aiello, a special education expert.

It is estimated from five to eight per cent of the country's total school population is classified as handicapped, yet most school children don't know how a blind student tells time or if cerebral palsy is contagious or how a wheelchair-bound person takes a bath.

Aiello devised the puppets as an innovative means of helping to "mainstream" handicapped children -- that is, integrate them into classrooms along with non-handicapped students. Mainstreaming has been required by law since 1975, and much of schools' federal funding depends on compliance with the law.

Enter Sue Davis, currently president of the Parent Advisory Council to the Infant Pre-school Special Education Program (IPSEP) of the Plymouth-Canton school system. Davis presented the idea of purchasing a set of Aiello's puppets after sitting in on a workshop of the Wayne-Westland group which purchased the first set of puppets in the area.

The Kids on the Block, as the puppets are collectively called, are now orchestrated by Lois Bass, a social worker with IPSEP at Farrand and Tanger Schools, Marilyn Best, Barbara Waters, Rhonda Estes, Barbara Gusfa and Pat Wise. All except Bass are parents of handicapped children.

Mark, Renaldo, Ellen Jane and company are presented in the classic Japanese method of puppeteering called "Bunraku," where the performers are dressed in black and are in full view of the audience.

"It's really amazing to see kids ask the puppets questions. They don't ask me -- the puppets become quite real to them," says Bass.

The troupe has been practicing once a week for three hours since August. "We've practiced a lot, but we really need to get comfortable in front of the kids," admits Bass. "The tricky part is that kids ask questions not covered in the written scripts." Currently, the Kids on the Block have performed

A friend of mine told me about chiropractic and the positive results she had received. My problems were headaches and dizziness and I needed relief.

I was surprised that after only 11 adjustments at Chase Chiropractic Office I noticed improvement. After continued adjustments my headaches and dizziness have disappeared, and I'm able to move much easier.

I only wish that someone had referred me to Chase Chiropractic Office sooner. My health problems also became smaller and smaller after each adjustment until soon I am sure they will all be gone.

I would like to recommend the Chase Chiropractic Office to anyone with a health problem. Life is too short to be anything but healthy and fit.

five times, with five more dates already scheduled.

Immediately after or a week subsequent to a performance, a follow-up is conducted including questions and answers and activities such as simulating blindness with blindfolds, for example.

Mark begins the show. A red-haired Irish kid, he explains to his friend Melody ("Mel" to her friends) the intricacies of life in a wheelchair.

Although he enjoys pulling "wheelies" in his "cruiser," activities such as taking a bath require special equipment like a hand-rail-equipped bathtub, he explains. Mark also reassures Mel that although cerebral palsy is the cause of his disability, she is in no danger of ever catching it.

After his talk with Mel, children in the audience are invited to ask questions. "You wouldn't believe how well these kids respond to the puppets," reports Waters. "They bring up personal experiences and stories -- they don't even know the puppeteers are there."

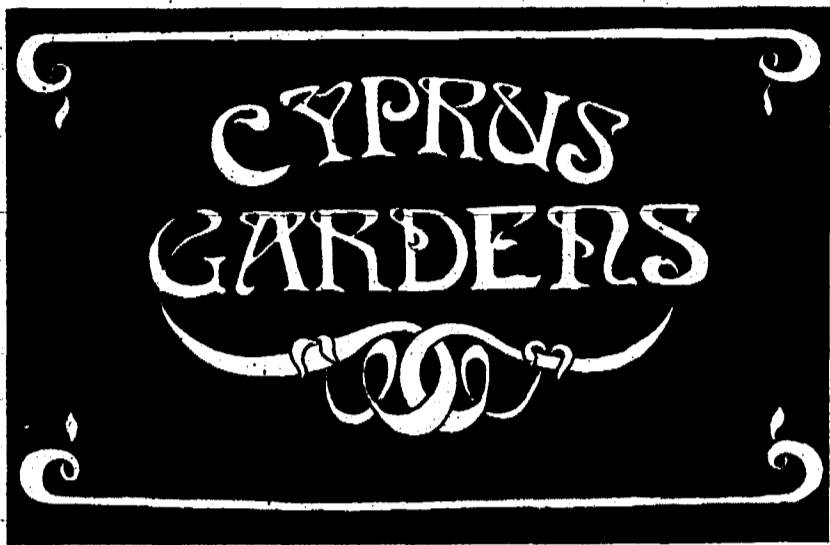

Following Mark and Mel are Renaldo, who is blind, and Brenda, who has a weight problem. Renaldo takes special delight in showing his Braille wristwatch, in response to the question that seems to be on everyone's mind. Renaldo also enjoys sports such as baseball with the help of a "beeper ball," which also seems to amaze kids in the audience.

In succession come Ellen Jane, a girl with Down's Syndrome, and Jennifer, who has a learning disability. Ellen Jane, an assistant Every household has a fix-it person. At our house, it happens to be the man in the family, because he's an expert at everything. He knows how to blow a fuse while changing a light bulb, and how to turn a leaky faucet into a flooded bathroom.

With the holidays coming up, I have a list three miles long for Mr. Fix-it. Many things are the same as those that were on the list a year ago. It's funny how his priorities aren't quite the same as mine. The fact that the color television has been black and white for almost a year doesn't bother me. I know he'll get around to checking that tube when he wants to watch something.

The kitchen ceiling is another story. I've been looking up at a crooked piece of plaster board (or what ever it is) for two months. I suppose if you don't look up, you could try to ignore it and get used to the glaring light bulb hanging by the wires.

With the beginning of winter and the furnace coming on, we've discovered another household defect. Instead of spreading moisture throughout the house, the humidifier dumps two inches of moisture all over the basement floor.

With all the little (and big) things to be done around the house, where is Mr. Fix-it when you want him? He's hiding under a piece of junk in the garage, his latest toy -- a '73 Corvair. It's not that I dislike hobbies, I think everyone should have at least one. However, the pile of junk that is taking up my car's place in the garage is a bit much.

That stupid old car takes time and energy that could be devoted to the kitchen ceiling. I don't mind parking outside in warm weather, but I don't have many nice things to say about the contraption sitting in the garage when I'm out scraping frost off my windshield. To me the ceiling and humidifier are much more important than that old rattle trap -- just one more case where our priorities differ.

Eric Flavin of Lakeland in Plymouth will enlist in the U.S. Air Force upon completion of school. His basic training will be at Lackland Air Force Base near San Antonio, Texas. He is attending Canton High School and will graduate in June.

The 1980 Michigan Wing Conference for Civil Air Patrol members was held recently. Plymouth resident Capt. Kenneth Reddington, commander of the Farmington Composite Squadron, had a number of members attending; Nanette Reddington, first lieutenant; John Broen, second lieutenant; Howard Disbrow as well as cadets Charlotte Disbrow, Marisa Brown, Deanne Brown, Carole Brown, Richard Fret Jr., and Jenniae Siminski. The annual conference offered workshops on various topics, awards and promotions.

The Apple Run Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association is holding its third annual Greens Market at the Canton Craft Fair on Saturday, Nov. 22. The fair will be held at Canton High School cafeteria from 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. Wreaths, roping, and white pine branches will be on sale.

 in a veterinarian's office, provides an insight to children that is rarely missed -- that the handicapped can function in, and are entitled to, a place in the world beside non-handicapped people.
 "Ideally, we'll show the program to every elementary school class in the school system," says Bass. "the show not only makes kids aware of the differences with the handicapped, but also of the similarities."

 The Kids on the Block kit, which can be purchased by schools, churches and community groups, comes with several scripts which provide a curriculum on disabilities; instructions on puppetry techniques; suggestions for discussion questions; and seven of the total of 11 puppets.

Anne Bell, secretary of the Parent Advisory Committee, adds, "It's really an innovative effort -- we hope it will change thinking in the schools to help mainstream these kids into public education."
 Another perspective is provided by Barbara Waters, who explains, "You have to be a little wacko to do this -- you've got to relate well to inanimate objects."

If you think jogging's the way to better health, read these Surprising Facts about BodiBouncer

This amazing and revolutionary new way to restore physical and mental energy is sweeping the country. Rigorous sports or exercises, like jogging, can be discouraging and even damaging to the joints or spine. Many typical exercises stress a particular group of muscles (actually muscle cells) and work in opposition to only one force: gravity.

The Naturalife BodiBouncer, using the principle of rebound exercise, adds to gravity the forces of acceleration and deceleration and stresses and strengthens every cell in the body!

No matter who or where you are, you can benefit from the BodiBouncer. Men, women, and children of all ages, the entire family.

Business people and homemakers have discovered quick and effective relief from physical and nervous tension; the sportsminded are improving stamina and endurance; the elderly and infirmed are enjoying revitalization -- in the privacy of their own offices and homes.

Imagine all these health benefits!

- Improved muscle tone
- Natural massage of the skin and vital organs
- Improved blood and lymph circulation
- More efficient oxygen utilization
- Improved digestion and elimination

- Cleansing of the arteries and cardiovascular system
- Relief from mental and physical tension
- Rehabilitation for heart and orthopedic patients
- Greater relaxation and more natural sleep

John Hopkins needed a way to publicize and advertise his new horse and carriage rental business -- something to catch the imagination, yet be consistent with the ambience of Plymouth, where he would be headquartered.

A friend suggested the old Banbury Cross nursery rhyme. "It fit the area where we would be working, and had the implication of what we were doing," explained Hopkins. "It was perfect."

A French teacher with the Plymouth-Canton Schools for 18 years before he retired in 1977, Hopkins remembered horse and carriage rigs from field trips with students to Quebec. "I thought, why not here?" he recalls.

After trying to negotiate for a carriage made in Canada, Hopkins found one in Michigan while searching not for a horse, but for a chicken.

"I was looking for a back-up rooster for the Chicken Flying Contest in September, out at the Earehart Morgan Horse Farm. While exploring the barns, I came across a beautiful carriage. The owner explained it was made by Herb Andler of the Maple Leaf Morgan Horse Farms. To make a long story short, I lost the chicken but found a carriage."

EDITOR'S NOTE: This new, regular feature in The Community Crier is aimed at improving news coverage of the business sector of The Plymouth-Canton Community. News items on personnel changes, new products, expansions and other business notes should be submitted to The Community Crier, 1226 S. Main St., Plymouth, 48170 by noon Friday for the following Wednesday's publication.

Hopkins ordered his first carriage from Andler, who works out of Nashville -- Michigan, not Tennessee.

"The underpinnings are oak, ash, steel and wood, in the style of carriages made in Indiana by the Amish," Hopkins says.

BANBURY CROSS will feature this logo designed by Amy Wilken of Plymouth. Glenda Haut, of Plymouth, also worked on the advertising program for the horse and carriage business.

"Instead of greased bearings, though, it has modern Timken roller bearings. The upper part of the carriage looks like pressed wood, but it's fiberglass. The whole thing is black, accented in red, with crushed red velvet upholstery." Brass sleigh bells will also be added later.

A horse has also been selected, according to Hopkins. "a Tennessee Walker, chestnut, with four white stockings and a blaze," he says proudly.

The carriage driver, Donna Hubenschmitz of Salem, will be outfitted in either an early American costume or a coachman's uniform "with a red coat, top hat and boots, ala Charles Dickens," adds Hopkins.

Now that the carriage is on its way to service in the Plymouth and Detroit metro area, Hopkins is trying to spread the word of the existence of his new business. "Amy Wilken of Plymouth did the logo. She deserves the credit -- the logo is more important than anything else to advertising," Hopkins also credits Glenda Haut of Graphic Communications in Plymouth for much of the advertising direction. "I had the basic idea, but she really masterminded the whole concept."

Hopkins wants to eventually become one of the symbols of Plymouth, and not just for commercial gain. "I want to do a lot of things for free -- rides for senior citizen and nursing homes, retarded children's homes and for other disenfranchised people who don't have much to look forward to."

Although the first duty of the Banbury Cross carriage will be to escort Santa into Plymouth, Hopkins hopes to branch out into the whole state.

Only one thing about his business might strike some people as a little odd, something Hopkins readily admits.

"All my life I've been allergic to horses," he says.

At a meeting of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce Directors tomorrow, a new committee structure will be discussed. The reorganization follows the recent change in officers and directors' election. The board meets at 8 a.m. at the Hillside Inn. Chamber members can attend.

"Survival and Growth in the Retail Marketplace," was the topic by Nick Nicholas at last week's Canton Chamber of Commerce luncheon. The president of Retail Market-group, which has organized promotions for Plymouth's Central Business District and Forest Place associations, Nicholas urged Canton businesses to constantly evaluate their positions in the changing marketplace. He also supplied participants with a "Business Situation Audit" to help them define their positions.

Cochran brings 20 years of experience to the new post, previously serving with Sperry and Hutchinson Co. and Beurmann-Marshall Corp. of Lansing.

Cochran also announced the appointment of Alan S. Angell as senior vice president, data processing; Jack A. Cooper, treasurer; Raymond M. Komar, senior vice president, West Coast sales; Stephen C. Redfern, vice president and general manager; Vene L. Whims, senior vice president, packaging division; and Wayne E. White, senior vice president, sales.

Schools OK new food-sale rules

Selling cupcakes, potato chips, and fruit to kids at school is "in" this year, but selling pop, gum, and chocolate candy is "out."

Under new guidelines established by the federal Department of Agriculture and which have passed a first reading by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education, certain foods cannot be sold at school before, during, and after class hours.

In addition, the policy requires that the money raised from food sales must be returned to the school where the sale is held, the food service, or to the student organization. This policy, says Lynn Hoehn of the Parent Food Advisory Committee, will have a greater impact on food sales than the restriction of some foods.

"In essence," she said, "it means that kids can't sell food for boy or girl scouts or other after-school groups, such as community baseball leagues."

"I don't believe that this new policy (restricting some foods) will have a major impact on fund-raisers for school projects," said Hoehn. Many school principals had already set down similar restrictions on food sales before the policy was enacted by the federal government, said Hoehn.

The following foods cannot be sold at school: gum drops, sour balls, lollipops, fruit balls, candy sticks, after-dinner mints, sugar wafers, rock candy, jaw breakers, candy corn, soft mints, licorice, candy-coated popcorn, nuts, peanut butter, carmel, coconut, nougat centers, chocolate candy and frozen sweetened "water ices which do not contain fruit or fruit juices."

School principals will be responsible for determining whether the group sponsoring a food sale meets the requirements. In addition, a group which wants to sponsor a food sale will have to fill out a form detailing the items to be sold and where the money will be deposited.

The federal guidelines were established in order to ensure that children eat nutritious foods during school hours. "There's a philosophical question behind this," says Dan White, who oversees the district's food program. "Do you feed kids food that's good to eat or food that you know they'll eat?"

Have questions about your child's school records?

Guidelines for releasing information about students were recently reiterated by Plymouth-Canton school officials.

Here is a brief description of the procedures followed for reviewing your child's records and the types of information they contain.

The revised Family Rights and Privacy Act became a federal law in November, 1974. The intent of this law is to protect the accuracy and privacy of student educational records.

Parents may make an appointment to inspect and review their child's records at their school. Upon review of the records, if parents have reason to believe that any information contained therein is inaccurate, misleading or inappropriate, they have the right to challenge that information. If there is agreement, the necessary steps to amend or correct the information contained in the record will be taken, say school officials.

If agreement is not reached, a hearing will be scheduled they add.

The rights pertaining to access and challenge are transferred to students upon the attainment of their 18th birthday or admission to an institution of postsecondary education.

If parents have any questions about student records, they should call their child's school or Ginnie Murdoch, pupil accountant, 453-0200.

Choral and Overture" by Tchaikovsky and "Highlights from My Fair Lady." The orchestra will be conducted by Linda Mapes Calzone, musical director.

In addition, a Mozart minuet for strings will be conducted by the new strings director, Alex Ross. A violin performance graduate of the University of Michigan, Ross plays principal violin with the Plymouth Symphony and is concert master of the Ann Arbor Chamber Orchestra.

Roberts stars

Plymouth actor John Roberts is currently appearing as Big Daddy in Tennessee William's powerful drama, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," which is being presented by the Actors Renaissance Theatre in the Renaissance Center in downtown Detroit.

Lawrence DeVine, a theater critic, describes his performance as "... wonderful... enormous... marvelous tour de force." Roberts has appeared in several productions with the Plymouth Theatre Guild and the Greenfield Village Players.

Regarding his role, Roberts commented that Big Daddy calls for a wide range of emotions from "super-high" to abject despair and finally resignation, mixed with love, hatred, anguish and an old man's sexual fantasies.

Performances are each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 8 p.m. through Nov. 29. For reservations and information on reduced parking fee arrangements, call the Actors Renaissance Theatre at the Ren Cen, 568-2525.

It's Salem and Canton in girls district opener

BY KEN VOYLES

Salem and Canton will square off in the first round of district Class A girls' basketball competition at Salem High. The game will start at 7:30 p.m. and pit the Rocks, sporting a 16-4 overall record, and the Chiefs, at 17-2.

Salem ended its regular season with a non-league contest against Redford Union on Monday. The Rocks used a good balanced attack to humble the Panthers, 53-48.

Jan Mackenzie scored 14 points to lead Salem. Eileen Moore had 12, Carol Ross had 10, Jacque-Merrifield had 9 and Cheryl Sobkow 8.

"Overall we played dynamite. We moved the ball against their zone, we shot the good ball, we rebounded and we got back on defense well," said Salem coach Bob Blohm. "The team looked fresh and relaxed tonight.

"I don't know how we will do in the districts but we finished a strong 16-4 season," continued the coach. "All the games we lost were by under eight points and I think that is essential for teams to have that winning, losing situation in so many games.

"If you can't play defense (in the districts) you can't be successful. Defense is the thing. You also can't turn the ball over. It should be a tremendous defensive test for us," said Blohm.

Canton ended its season with a non-league tussle against Farmington on Tuesday.

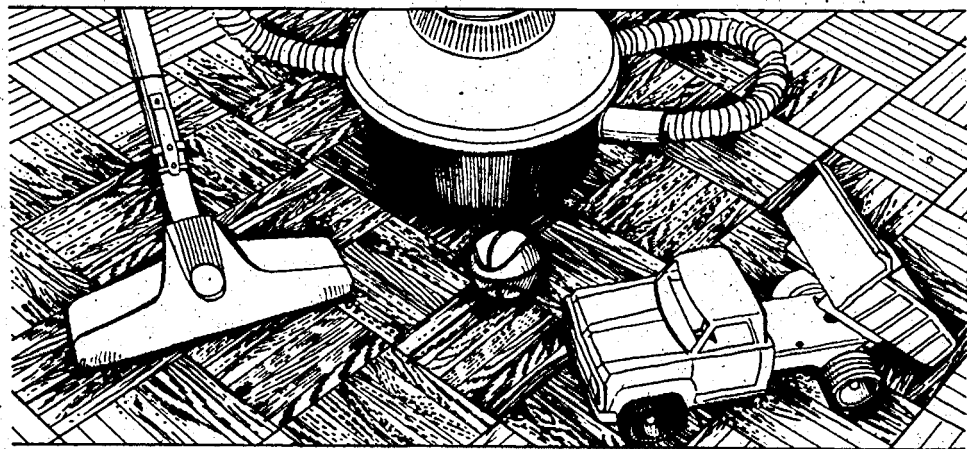

Round two of the districts will be Saturday. The first game will pit Garden City against Westland John Glenn at 6:15 p.m. with Livonia Churchill and the winner of the Salem, Canton game at 8 p.m.

The finals will be next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Cumberland II. The hardwood floor you don't have to baby to love.

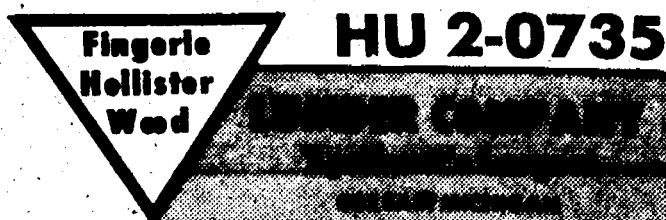

Gone are the days of hard-to-care-for hardwood floors. Prefinished Cumberland II oak parquet by Bruce is easy to maintain because the wax and stain are baked into the wood grain. Just vacuum it as you would a carpet. Or dustmop it. And wax it with a good solvent-based wax whenever you shampoo your carpet. It's that simple.

See Cumberland II, along with the entire family of Bruce floors, at a Bruce dealer near you. You'll be surprised how economical it is. And you'll love what it can do for virtually any room in your house. Without being babied. Hardwood floors on a budget? Of course. By Bruce. Naturally.

Rock cagers stung by Trenton

Thursday the Rocks suffered a 40-39 defeat at the hands of league-foe Trenton in a game that went into overtime.

"It was a good game and a bad game for us," said Salem Coach Bob Blohm. "We played in spurts and they got the last spurt in the overtime.

"We were unable to contain their big player (Kim Nash) and she scored 19 points," continued Blohm. "We were not as consistent on offense and defense and it showed."

The contest ended tied at 35-35. In overtime Trenton tallied five points and Salem four. Trenton got its final point when Nash sank a free throw. With 22 seconds remaining, Salem came down the court for one more effort but missed the shot.

CEP volleyball marathon

The Salem and Canton volleyball squads will be holding a 24-hour volleyball game starting at 4 p.m. Dec. 12 to raise money to purchase a spiking machine. A machine similar to a pitching machine in baseball. The machine will be used by both schools.

The marathon will be a continuous volleyball game between the two school's varsity and junior varsity team. Extra proceeds will go to send the girls to volleyball clinics.

Donations will be accepted. The event will be held in Salem's gym.

Rock all-leaguers

Salem football player John Penders was selected to the Suburban Eight All-League squad last week, making him the Rocks' lone member of the 1980 first team.

Penders was a center for the Rocks, who went 4-5 for the season. The senior played four seasons for Salem football.

Mark Kitz, defensive end, Brian Lewandowski, defensive back, and Greg Staron, offensive guard, were selected to the league's second team. All three players are seniors.

WSDP to cover districts

WSDP at 98.1 FM will have live coverage of all the district girls' basketball games hosted by Salem starting tomorrow night at Salem's gym.

Games will start with the first round tomorrow when Salem and Canton will clash at 7:30 p.m.

The station will then cover the second

Chiefs hold a basketball marathon

At 4:30 Saturday afternoon a group of guys were gathered around the television watching the Notre Dame-Alabama football game. So, what's so unusual about that? Well consider that at half-time they got up and played a game of basketball. Still not out of the ordinary? This particular group was not the only one watching television. There were several televisions on, and there were more young men playing basketball too.

From 8 p.m. Friday until 8 p.m. Saturday approximately 60 young men took part in a basketball marathon organized by the Canton coaching staff. Since games continued for 24 hours, participants relaxed on sleeping bags, watched TV, and played stereos to pass the time. Some parents were on hand to serve as supervisors, and the Canton cheerleaders rah-rah-rahed for 24 hours too.

The marathon was staged to help raise money to pay for new warm-ups for the varsity basketball team. In the past, money raised has been used for new weight equipment, a medicine kit, jump ropes and other supplemental materials that are over and above the athletic budget's allowance.

Oranges and grapefruits on sale

Oranges and grapefruits will be on sale by the Canton and Salem wrestling squads from now to Dec. 1 as the grapplers kick off their 4th annual sale to raise funds for their respective teams.

Florida Navels and Texas Ruby Reds can be purchased from any wrestler or by calling Dan Chrenko or Ron Krueger at 453-3100, ext. 398 or 247 from 7 a.m. to 2:15 p.m. any day of the week.

The oranges cost $8 for a small box (20 to 40) and $15 for a large box. The grapefruit will be $7 for a small box (18 to 36) and $11 for a large box.

The fruit will be available for pick up on Dec. 15.

"We were good in spots and bad in spots. Every time we got a spurt going we couldn't take advantage of it," said Blohm. His squad had lost to Livonia Bentley on Tuesday for their second league defeat.

Moore and Sobkow scored 10 points each for Salem.

Radzik join staff

Patty Radzik, The Crier's assistant sports editor two years ago, has rejoined the staff in her former position. Jay Keenan, a senior at Canton High, has resigned as the assistant sports editor.

A graduate of Canton High, Radzik is a student at Schoolcraft College. She also works at the Schoolcraft Globe, the campus newspaper, in the sports department and coaches the Salem High junior varsity volleyball squad which will start play the second week of January.

Radzik's duty will include coverage of Canton's varsity teams, feature writing, and helping with the lay out of the sports pages.

Swimmers set for league meets

Canton and Salem girls' teams will compete in their respective league meets today Wednesday and Friday.

Salem is hosting the Suburban Eight League event at the high school pool today and Friday. Swimming preliminaries will start at 2:30 p.m. with the diving preliminaries starting one hour after the final event is completed, close to 6:30 p.m.

On Friday all the finals will be held from 7 p.m. onward. Tickets are $1.50 for the finals, $1 for the preliminaries and 50 cents for diving preliminaries.

Canton is wrapping up its Western Six League meet hosted by Livonia Churchill. Tonight's finals will start at 7 p.m. at Churchill's pool.

round of games scheduled for Saturday. The first game, between Garden City West and Westland John Glenn, will start at 6:15 p.m. with the second at 8 p.m. That game will be Livonia Churchill against either the Rocks or the Chiefs.

The finals will be Tuesday, Nov. 25 at 7:30 p.m.

Salem wrestlers ready for season

BY KEN VOYLES

Ron Krueger's Salem wrestling squad is fairly young, but the Rocks have a good core of wrestlers back from last year's team, which won the Suburban Eight League title, seven tournament titles; the regionals and finished fourth in the state.

Salem graduated nine seniors from that outstanding example of a good high school wrestling team, but Krueger has the efforts of nine experienced grapplers for this season.

"We are young but have a good nucleus of kids back from last year. It's still too early to say what we'll be able to do," said Krueger. "We know we'll be young but we should get tougher as we go along."

"The strength of any team is its seniors. If they work hard, the rest of the kids will follow. We think by the end of the season this should be a very tough squad," continued the coach.

Seniors Rob Price, Steve Szilagyi, Kevin Sandter and Billy Ward, and Jim Bielak plus juniors Bruce Bachman, Marty Piper, Randy Beaudoin and sophomores Jeff Vojcek and John Beaudoin form most of this year's squad.

Krueger also said that several positions were definitely still up in the air.

Price saw action at 145 pounds last year.

and will wrestle that weight this winter. Szilagyi will wrestle at 167 pounds, while Ward will see action at 112 pounds. Sandter and Bielak are still battling for the 155-pound spot.

Piper is Salem's heavyweight, while Bachman and Randy Beaudoin are fighting to see who will wrestle at 138 pounds and who will be Salem's 132-pound grappler.

Vojeck will wrestle at 98 pounds and John Beaudoin will be at 112- or 119-pounds.

Senior Wayne Craig will probably not see action with Salem this winter due to a head injury. Craig wrestled at 198- or 200-pounds for the Rocks.

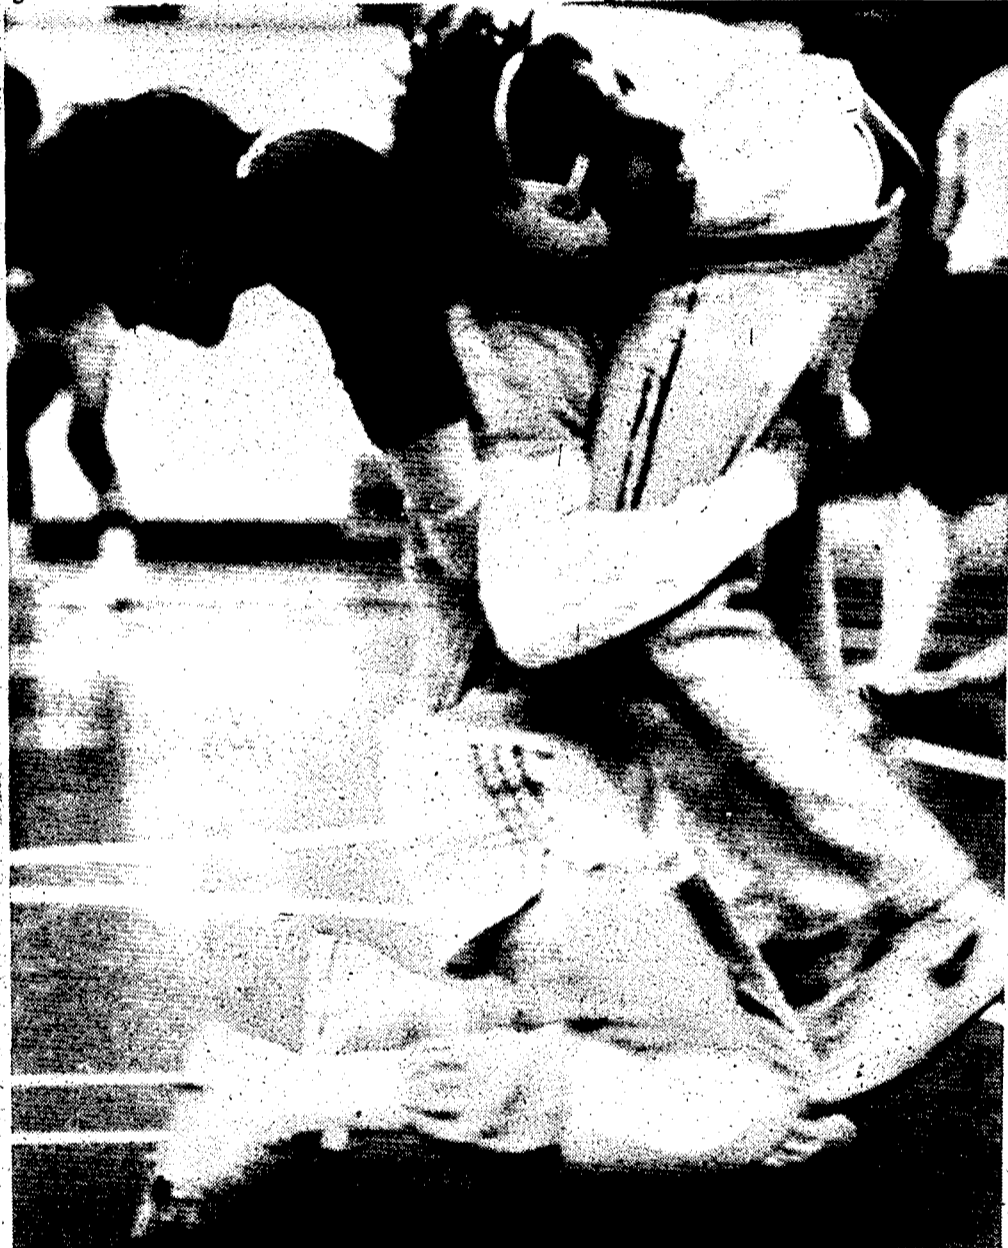

"We have a good group of kids off the JV team that will fill in the other positions," said Krueger. "We have a good group of kids, but we have to work harder this year because we've got more to do to get ready. By the end of the season, I say this will be a good team."

Salem will start its season with the Northville Quad and then compete in the Temperance Bedford Invitational before starting dual action with league-foe Trenton.

Among the teams at Northville will be Western Six champion Northville, Ann Arbor Pioneer and Milford, three strong teams from last winter. Bedford's meet will be even tougher with Davidson, Bedford and Hazel Park, the top three teams at the state finals, in front of Salem.

That Northville meet will be Dec. 4 at Northville. The Rocks will be home against Trenton at 6:30 p.m.

As for that Suburban Eight League race, Krueger said that both Trenton and Belleville have their entire teams back from last year. "We have a tough league. Our fourth-place team in the league was 10th in the state," said Krueger. "Right now we are still trying to get the discipline back in the team; there is a lot of work to be done."

Canton cagers look forward to the future

BY PATTY RADZIK

March 8, 1980 is a day Craig Bell will never forget. The score was 68-54, and the loser was Salem. It was not only Canton's first victory over the Rocks in boys' basketball, it was the first district crown in Canton High's history.

However pleasant the past may be, the future is the only place to look. Bell, returning for his third year as the Chiefs' head coach, is doing just that as the start of the 1980-81 season lies weeks ahead.

Canton tied for the Western Six League title last season with an 8-2 mark and had a 17-7 overall record. The season ended with a loss to Taylor-Center in the first game of the regionals.

"This year our goal is to win the Western Six and we still have the talent to repeat as champions," Bell said.

Although six seniors were lost to graduation, key players Dave Vissor and Scott Adler among them, this year's squad is an experienced one comprised of six seniors and seven juniors.

Sean Houle and Dave Malek are two returning lettermen who started every game last year for the Chiefs. Bell expects these two seniors to lead Canton's offensive attack this season.

"Sean will be one of our main scorers this year," Bell said. "He's worked hard to develop his game all-around."

"Dave has worked hard too," Bell continued. "He'll contribute to our outside shooting."

"Overall on offense we'll be a quick team," Bell added. "We'll work on putting pressure on the defense by getting the ball down the court orderly, and we'll work hard on recognizing who will get to the outside lanes and putting a constructive end onto our break."

Rounding out the Canton roster are seniors Ken VanKirk, Bill Childs, Jim Mills, John Bugloine and juniors Matt Thomas, Steve Tuttle, Tommie Harris, Ron King, Jerry Slatin, Claude Davis and Al Baluscek.

The No. 1 priority for Canton this season will be maintaining a good defense. "Most of my players are good competitors and will contribute to our defense," Bell said. "Defense is No. 1 with us. We will step out and play and not let our opponents have a chance to set up."

"How well my players handle this challenge is yet to be seen," Bell added.

Canton opens up the season at home against Livonia Franklin Dec. 5. The first league contest is Dec. 12 also at home, as the Chiefs square off against Livonia Churchill.

"Every league game will be important to us in order to repeat as champs," Bell stated. "Every game after that we will just take one at a time."

"The non-league contests," Bell continued, "will be against competitive teams, but the only ones that matter are the ones (games) in the league."

Despite the fact that they are not in the league, Franklin will be an important game for the Chiefs. "After our first game we'll be able to tell whether we can match up against other teams."

"Franklin traditionally plays hard," Bell added, "and after we play them we will find out what to work on and where our strengths are."

Dave VanWagoner and Dave Greenwood will be assisting in coaching duties; VanWagoner as the junior varsity coach and Greenwood as the freshman leader. "Both these men work very hard in the Canton boys' basketball program," Bell commented. "They have added to its success."
