

Will City get famed art fair spin-off?

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

A spin-off of the successful Ann Arbor Art Fair may be headed for downtown Plymouth on May 7 and 8, 1983.

Discussions between the University Artists & Craftsmen Guild and the City of Plymouth have reached the point where city department heads are making preparations for the two-day affair that could attract as many as 40,000 persons.

Initiating the idea was local shopowner Mike Ball, of Hands On Leather, who has exhibited at the Guild's Ann Arbor Art Fair for six or seven years. He suggested the idea of a downtown art fair some years ago, but this year succeeded when he matched up Helen F. Welford, director of the Guild, and City Manager Henry Graper.

"An art fair is good culturally for a community," Ball said, "and as a merchant, I know it's the type of excitement we need.

"I like this town, and I know an art fair is a very positive public relations event," Ball added. "Everybody's a winner -- the people who come to town, local people because of the entertainment and culture, and the Guild itself."

Ball said he hopes to see local artisans involved as well. "We're not trying to eliminate the local artists. We hope to involve the Plymouth Community Arts Council too."

Graper said the event, which would be based in Kellogg Park, could host more than 160 exhibitors.

Areas still under study are: food, entertainment, city services and signage. Graper said the city hopes to work with local businesses and service group representatives on hosting the project -- for example, getting local restaurants to staff the food booths and getting Fall Festival representatives involved on aspects similar to that event.

The city manager said some $5,000 -- partly cash and partly city services -- of the total $10,000 budget for the Art Fair might be supplied by the city.

City commissioners will get the art fair as a discussion item at their Monday meeting. Among the questions being investigated by Graper and city department heads are traffic and crowd control, insurance, equipment and services needed from the city and how promotion will be handled.

A meeting between affected department heads, community representatives and Guild representatives will be held next Thursday to discuss other details.

The Guild is a non-profit group of more than 1,000 artists which coordinates much of the summer art fair in Ann Arbor.

On school attendance issue Board slams principal, reverses earlier vote

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Reversing a stand it had taken regarding the switching of a student from one school to another, the board of education changed its mind Monday.

And, in the process, board members made it clear they felt forced into the move by the decision of an administrator who put the board in an uncomfortable position.

A majority of the board was miffed at Starkweather Elementary School Principal John Howe for his handling of an overcrowding situation that existed in one of his school's kindergarten classes.

He'd decided 36 students in one section were too many pupils, so he attempted to contact all the parents to set up a meeting to determine which youngsters were candidates for busing to Bird Elementary.

However, not all the parents received word of the meeting, they said. And one in particular, Patricia McDonald, told the board she was upset when notified her son, Andrew, would be bused to Bird.

Among the arguments raised at the board's meeting two weeks was the fact her son, Andrew, along with the five other children, lived in a contiguous busing area which made it easier for the schools to transport the youngsters to Bird.

McDonald implored the board to allow

Can joining hands help Omnicom communities?

Should the five communities served by Omnicom Cablevision band together to deal with the local utility?

At least two local officials feel the idea is worth considering and Omnicom has also said it would look at the idea.

Currently, the cities of Plymouth and Northville, and the townships of Plymouth, Canton and Northville comprise Omnicom's local service area. They have, in recent months, been squabbling with the cable company over the quality of cable TV available and the level of services which will eventually be offered.

Each of the five communities has a different local ordinance governing cable television, having granted the Omnicom franchises separately.

But in some areas in southeastern Michigan, several local communities have joined together to form cable consortia which represent their member cities and townships in dealing with the cable companies.

Canton Supervisor Jim Poole, who met with Omnicom's president, Peter Newell (who is also vice president of Omnicom's parent Capital Cities cable television

Canton eyes relaxing zoning plan

BY LINDA M. ROSS

Plans for directions in urban growth dominated the special meeting between The Canton Township Board, and The Planning Commission on Tuesday evening, Sept. 21st.

The board agreed to consider loosening regulations which limit the location of "fast food" restaurants. Such eateries are currently restricted to portions of those areas zoned "community commercial" and "highway commercial" located at expressway interchanges. The council is interested in redefining the term 'fast food', separating soft serve ice cream store fronts and allowing them to locate in areas zoned "neighborhood commercial".

The board gave the go-ahead to Director of Planning, Jim Kosteva, to investigate and plan for future development of mid-rise and high-rise structures in the township, and "innovative development techniques". Examples of such techniques are "cluster housing", similar to condominium layout, and "zero lot line development", where homes in a neighborhood are consistently offset to one side of their lots to provide larger usable yard areas.

Kosteva claims that these "development techniques of the near future" offer "affordable housing with open space . . . and utility savings." The Board, in effect, has given the nod to "negotiative" planning that allows him to bend zoning regulations to permit novel designs with individual developers, Kosteva said.

The Board also moved to have the planning commission design less stringent billboard restrictions. Current regulations are regarded as strict, and possibly unconstitutional.

The Planning Commission will investigate alternate regulations which place emphasis on "gradation" when setting minimum square footage requirements for new home construction. Kosteva acknowledges that in an effort to prohibit developers from creating areas of small, closely spaced housing, the 1800 square foot minimum provides a hardship for some individuals wishing to build their own homes.

Would communities gain cable clout through consortium?

division) and general manager, Elizabeth Seeley, on Monday afternoon to discuss the township's displeasure with the cable service, said a consortium might be a good idea.

"It doesn't sound like a bad idea," Poole said. "You'd have a concerted effort."

Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper said his relations with Omnicom have not been bad and joining together might not help the city as much as the townships, but said, "There is strength in numbers."

"I don't know if Plymouth would be served. I personally have had a relatively easy time in working with Omnicom to solve problems," Graper. "So muscle isn't as important to us as it might be for the townships."

women's 5-mile race. YMCA director Janet Luce (bottom middle) also served as the Y Fun Run director, and she grabbed the microphone following the race to hand out the awards. (Crier photos by Rick Smith)

Purse snatched, drug store burglarized

A Canton woman was robbed early Saturday afternoon when a man opened the passenger door of the car she was in, grabbed her purse and ran.

According to police reports, she was parked in front of the K-Mart on Ford Road shortly after noon when the snatching occurred. As she left the car and began to run after him, she was joined by two other shoppers, and the three gave chase. The purse snatcher was last seen getting into a black Dodge Charger with the license plate number MGX182.

Plymouth Police Chief Carl Berry commented, "It's that time of year, near the holidays. I can't say it enough, keep your valuables and packages out of sight, it's a temptation to thieves."

In an unrelated incident, a neighborhood pharmacy was burglarized early last Wednesday morning when the thieves entered through a hole they had cut in the roof.

According to police, the Heritage Pharmacy on Ann Arbor Road was robbed of an unknown amount of narcotics. The telephone lines had been cut, police say, although that ordinarily would have set the burglar alarm off, the bells were silent.

"But it's not that we wouldn't join (a consortium)," he said, adding that a consortium would only help the city "if the five communities could sift out the common objectives and work toward them."

Newell has also discussed the consortium idea with Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen, another Omnicom critic.

The Omnicom president said a consortium "is a worthwhile idea."

"It could bring the five communities together and unify them with a common direction. I'm in favor of exploring the idea."

But, Newell cautioned, "it will only fly if it can be demonstrated that it's in the best interest of each of the communities."

He also said a consortium approach

"must be carefully thought out."

Ironically, a former Plymouth city official has gained notoriety for heading up one of the more successful cable television consortia in the country.

Mark Wollenweber, the former Plymouth assistant city manager who is now city manager of Huntington Woods, has just been re-elected to the presidency of Oakland County's 11-community cable TV group.

"We got a substantially better deal with the consortium. We think there are a lot of advantages and, basically, we found out there were no disadvantages," he said.

Wollenweber cautioned that since the local communities in the Plymouth-Canton-Northville area have already acted independently in granting their cable franchises, the same advantages might not be found in forming a consortium now.

But he did not rule out its possible effectiveness.

In his group, the 11 communities passed similar model ordinances - sometimes voting up to four times to include revisions sought by another community - and are now collectively handling inspections, rate questions, funding and public access needs, he said.

The Oakland cable group awarded the franchise to a joint venture between United Cable and the Chicago Tribune Co. and is reaping many more services and fees than Omnicom is providing.

"If the cable companies had their druthers, they'd deal individually with the communities."

Former student, Melin, to head WSDP radio

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Andy Melin has come home, and he couldn't be happier.

Melin, 22, took over the reins at WSDP-FM, 88.1 on the dial, last Monday replacing Jeff Cardinal as the station manager.

The 1978 Plymouth Salem graduate officially was given the non-administrative job Monday night when the Board of Education approved his hiring.

He is no stranger to WSDP. He worked for three years at the station as a student, covering primarily sports, and he feels it's that experience that helped him get where he is now.

"I went on to college and had a successful career in broadcasting because of the base I acquired at WSDP," Melin noted. "And now to come back to Plymouth and actually be working as the station manager is an honor I didn't think I'd get this quickly."

Melin has his work cut out for him. Like many of the programs currently underway in the school district, funding for the coming years is not certain.

That's why Melin said he plans to begin a program which will eventually make WSDP self-sufficient somewhere done the line.

"That's the long range goal," he explained. "I don't think it is all that unrealistic."

Melin signed a contract which will run through August 1983 and pay him $17,000. And he's confident he can help turn around the student-run station, and keep his job in the process.

"One of the main things I'm working on is changing the format," he said. "We're going to a unified sound throughout the day, an easy listening top 40 kind of sound line you'd hear on WNIC."

"I think it's important for the community to be able to identify what we're doing. To be able to tune in and know what to expect."

"I'll be adding some specials, as well, and emphasizing local news and sports. The main thing I have to do is promote the station to prove to the board we're a viable program."

Melin graduated from Michigan State University last March. While in college, he worked for WKAR-AM-FM-TV, the top station in the market.

He handled play-by-play of MSU hockey, did color commentary for Spartan football, basketball and baseball and produced and did voice-overs for an MSU gridiron pregame show.

He has also been employed by small radio stations in Charlotte and East Lansing. Most recently he worked for the Detroit Pistons as an account representative.

Postfolks to monitor sr. citizens

Area seniors and the mailman's union may get together in a new service for Plymouth-Canton seniors.

The Plymouth Community Council on Aging, together with the National Association of Letter Carriers would supply a new community security service by having letter carriers keep an eye on seniors' mailboxes.

Special stickers would be affixed to mailboxes of participating residents. Should mail remain in the box for more than a day, the carrier would contact an authority who can find out if the resident is experiencing difficulty.

The Council is attempting to determine the need and interest for such a program, it is expected to be free of charge and only those requesting it would be reported when their mail is uncollected.

Interested persons are asked to call the Council's office in City Hall 55-4907 to express interest or comments.

School lab shows students Computers more than 'Pac-Man'

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

A sleek, snazy automobile on the new NBC-TV program "Knight Rider" is equipped with an on-board computer that talks back to the hero.

Some of the larger dailies in the country have VDT (Video Display Terminal) systems where an editor can lay out a page on a screen in front of him, press a button and that page is made up in the composing room.

And millions of Americans idle away countless hours and spend literally millions of dollars on video games such as 'Pac Man' in both arcades and at home.

In other words, a computer tidal wave has engulfed the nation, and the school districts who let the wave pass them by are doing no favor to their students.

The Plymouth-Canton School District, however, is not standing still and drowning when it comes to computers.

In recent years a computer lab has been established at Canton. And the purchase of around 30 addition Apple II's late in August opens up the world of computers to many more students, according to Ron Carlson, one of two teachers in the district who direct the computer courses.

"Right now we've got 200-plus students taking the computer course," Carlson noted. "We have the capability now to offer the class to many more students with the addition of the new Apple II's."

"We would have given the class to more students this fall, but we didn't get the go-ahead from the board to get the computers until late in August."

Another cloud looming on the horizon is the lack of qualified instructors, according to Carlson.

"Eventually the district is either going to have to hire some more teachers or some of the teachers in the system will have to take some addition college courses to be able to teach," he said.

Right now Carlson and Tom Cottner direct the lab at Canton. And, although some refer to the sections as computer math classes, they are not strictly math classes.

"Acually it's an 'Introduction to Computer Programing' class," Carlson admitted. "But the requirements before almost made it impossible for students without advanced math courses to get the class. And they were almost always seniors."

"That will change now that we've got more computers. Because, really, you can teach computer programing at the middle school level," he added.

But for the students taking the classes right now, the addition of the 30-odd computers means more time on the machine, more assignments and, hopefully, more learning, according to Carlson.

Canton gives Mich Con gas for break

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

Following last Tuesday night's gas main break at I-275 and Michigan Ave., Canton officials have two things for Michigan Consolidated Gas Co.:

-A few unkind words.

-A large bill for the emergency services supplied by the Canton firemen, police and DPW workers.

The gas main break occurred about 6 p.m. Sept. 21 when a crew from Morrison Construction poked an auger into a six-inch gas main while excavating for the I-275 sound barriers, said Canton Fire Chief Mel Paulun.

For the next 15 hours, Canton evacuated residents of the nearby West Pointe Manor Mobile Home Park and closed off I-275 until the gas company crew sealed off the gas leak about 8:45 a.m. Wednesday.

"They (gas company crew) were so confused, they didn't know which end was up," said Paulun.

Canton DPW Director Jake Dingeldey has written a letter to the gas company and the Michigan Public Service Commission, which regulates state utilities, about the incident. He estimated the gas main break cost his department more than $5,000 in man hours and equipment.

A total billing for the incident will not be ready until later today, said Canton Finance Director Mike Gorman. But Supervisor Jim Poole said that when it is completed, it will be sent jointly to Michigan Consolidated, Morrison Construction, and Missdig (a utility location service which had staked out the pipes).

Paulun said one report indicated the Missdig crew had improperly staked out the location of the gas pipe.

But Mike Neiswonger, a Michigan Consolidated spokesman, disputed that report, saying that his inspection of the scene showed the stakes were properly located.

Neiswonger said the repair crew's job was hampered by the paving over of shut off valves and the desire to continue gas service to as many residents as possible.

Eventually, he said, the crew installed a temporary shut-off.

Communities should study uniting cable TV efforts

In the rush to obtain cable television service, the five local communities which granted franchise to Omnicom of Michigan adopted varying ordinances and attitudes relating to cable TV.

Now, those differences are showing to be cumbersome for Omnicom's service efficiency and even contributory to pitting the communities against each other.

For example, Plymouth Township wants a cable television studio located there even though one is available a stone's throw from its southern boundary. The City of Plymouth wants an office for the cable company (this was supposedly once promised by the hopeful Omnicom during the bidding process). And Canton has been promised other "goodies" which it is reaping because it has the most active cable advisory group. Plymouth Township hasn't even formed such a group and Supervisor Maurie Breen questions its necessity while at the same time he attacks Omnicom's level of service.

There is a solution.

The five communities could form a cable television consortium with legal clout at regulating the common utility.

Obviously, for it to have any benefit, Omnicom might have to be dragged in kicking and screaming to such a stronger control.

But there is a benefit for the cable company too - elimination of the petty rivalries between the franchise communities and the convenience of dealing with one regulatory group instead of five. If Omnicom is serious in saying that it will grant anything to one of its franchisors that it grants to another, then it should not object to a consortium approach.

Forming a consortium wouldn't be easy - mostly because of the same reasons of petty jealousies that make one desirable. A similar arrangement for the 35th District Court between the same five local governmental units (Plymouth, Northville and Canton, Plymouth and Northville townships) had a very difficult conception and birth. And in that case, there was some clout from the court to hammer it through.

But a reasonable, aggressive approach could begin if the local politicians can put aside the petty rivalries and the imagined Omnicom grudges (for which they have only themselves to blame since the franchise ordinances were so poorly written). It's been done successfully elsewhere.

Omnicom says it's willing to consider it.

So the ball sits squarely in the court shared by the five local governmental units.

Let's see which local pols are big enough and strong enough to take first serve and begin by issuing a call to study the matter.

With Malice Toward None

Have you noticed what a hopping place downtown Plymouth is lately?

Take last weekend for example.

The Saturday morning Chamber of Commerce Farmer's Market drew its usual crowd. That weekly event, by the way, will continue through Oct. 30 - and the pumpkins are already in.

Then, on Sunday, the Plymouth-Canton-Northville YMCA held its third annual Family Fun Run and attracted hundreds of runners, well-wishers and spectators.

Each of the activities contribute to the others in a snowballing effect that is making the downtown, more than ever, a true bustling hub of The Plymouth-Canton Community. And now, discussions are underway to kick off a major art fair - an offshoot of the successful Ann Arbor affair - this spring. Additionally, there may be free ice skating in Kellogg Park this winter.

All of this is great for Plymouth-Canton folks, because there're more and more cultural opportunities right here in town, and for local businesses because of the potential customers attracted by the events.

thought...

A seasonal warning

With the cool weather come the reminders that the holidays can't be far behind, sweaters, nippy mornings and purse snatchers.

A woman was robbed in "broad daylight" in Canton last week, she was sitting in her car in front of K-Mart with her purse on the seat beside her when a guy reached in, grabbed it and took off.

That's scary.

Plymouth Police Chief Carl Berry was quoted as saying, "It's that time of year, you have to keep valuables out of sight."

It's just too bad that at a time when fellowship is at an all-time low, we have to be wary of the person walking next to us.

The holidays. For so many this is a time

According to the trends, there is such a thing as healthy suspicion. The woman who was robbed at K-Mart told police she had watched the guy walk back and forth several times alongside her car, but I'd bet she had no idea he was going to open her car door.

Most of us tend to go through our whole day without coming closer than a few feet from anyone outside our own families, doubling the upset of having a stranger steal from you. He was SO close.

Don't let it happen to you. Sure, it gives me a twinge to know that if I don't hide my packages in the trunk, someone just may take them. But it's a lot easier to take a few minutes to tuck the money down a little further, hold my bag a little tighter, than to have to run after it in someone else's hand.

Firemen have more to say

EDITOR'S NOTE:

The following sentence and the last paragraph of a letter from the City Firefighter's union were inadvertently omitted from last week's editorial pages.

You should, however, keep in mind that those communities do not have full time EMT fire personnel to provide the same ambulance service that the City of Plymouth or Plymouth Township already have.

At this time, the City of Plymouth Firefighters Local 1811, would like to state that we are totally against having a commercial ambulance company operating in the City of Plymouth and will abstain from any further comments until the direction and position of the City Commission is confirmed or made clear. We also ask the citizens of Plymouth the make their views known to the Commission.

Interment will be at Riverside Mausoleum. Memorial contributions may be made to the Salvation Army.

Newborn loss support starts

The Lamaze Childbirth Preparation Association of Ann Arbor has formed a Miscarriage and Newborn Loss Support Group. The group is intended for those who have experienced a miscarriage, tubal pregnancy, stillbirth or early death of an infant.

Group meetings will begin Tuesday, October 5 and continue on the first Tuesday of every month from 7 to 9 p.m. at the office of Hospice of Washtenaw, 2530 South Main Street (near the Briarwood Shopping Mall) in Ann Arbor. Attendance is open to couples, singles, relatives and friends and is free of charge. Trained facilitators will be present at every meeting.

Mary Schuman, project coordinator for the group, explains, "Our purpose is to provide a setting where those suffering a loss can share their experiences, give and receive support and learn to cope with their feelings. Confidentiality will be maintained."

In addition to monthly meetings, the group is offering a telephone service in conjunction with the Hospice 24-hour phone line. For more information, or for assistance from a volunteer, phone 995-1995 and ask to be put in touch with the Miscarriage and Newborn Loss Support Group.

Women's support group meets

The fall schedule is underway for the Phoenix Support Group for Women, sponsored by the YWCA of western Wayne County.

A session is scheduled to meet Thursday, Oct. 7, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Geneva Presbyterian Church, on Sheldon Road in Canton.

The support group serves as a support system for women who are separated, divorced, or contemplating divorce. By sharing feelings and problems, women help each other through the realities of divorce.

New members are welcome any time and may remain as long as they like.

Group discussions are led by Susan Caldwell of the Y.

For further information, contact YWCA Area Director Pamela Cronenwett at 561-4110.

Barb Carpenter named Woman of the Year

BY PHYLLIS REDFERN

Barb Carpenter, the woman you yell at for putting a parking ticket on your car, was named Woman of The Year by the Plymouth Business and Professional Woman's Club. Carpenter who zips around town in the little three wheel vehicle, was notified of the honor last week.

The Parking Enforcement Officer for the City of Plymouth for the past three years, Carpenter is also involved in many community activities. She has spent many hours doing volunteer work with the schools, local sports teams, Girl Scouts, March of Dimes and her church.

As a volunteer probation officer, she was credited as being one of the most successful in the rehabilitation of several young people.

Carpenter started the "Donut Lady" program in Plymouth. She along with members of the group pick up leftover baked goods from local bakeries and distribute them to senior citizens and nursing homes. "They really look forward to seeing us with our arms full of goodies and they are always at the door to greet us," she said.

Another project she started was picking up leftover flowers from Schraders Funeral Home, re-arranging them and distributing them to nursing homes and shut-ins. As the project grew, Carpenter turned it over to the Garden Club who now handles it.

Organizations she has been active in include the Plymouth Community Arts Council, the Community Chorus and the notorious Has-Beens.

As one of the original Has-Beens, Carpenter organized the group's involvement in the recent waterball competition during Fall Festival. She has also arranged the Has-Beens participation in the WSDP annual auction.

Her great sense of humor shows in everything she does. She has an ability to deal with people even when they are objecting to the parking ticket she is placing on their car.

"I treat everyone equal when it comes to tickets," she said. "It doesn't matter whether it's the city manager or my best friend. They usually accept it."

The only female in uniform in Plymouth, Carpenter enjoys her work. "It makes you feel good when people toot and wave when they see you."

While keeping up with all her activities, Carpenter puts her family first. Her husband, Jack, and her children Gayle 24, Jack 20 and Janine 17 all lead busy lives.

"They know the busier I am the better I am," she admitted.

A statement from the Women's Club said, "Barb witnesses to others the traits and values that we espouse in the Plymouth and National Business and Professional Women; her compassion and strength, combined with her gentleness and humor reflect what women can do to build a community."

"There is much more that could be added to Barb's list of accomplishments; she truly exemplifies 'woman' and comes highly recommended as 'Woman of the Year.'"

Denise Willard, Michael Kitchen

Denise Lynn Willard and Michael Anthony Kitchen were married Sept. 4 at the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints of Plymouth. The bride's uncle, Howard Lalone officiated.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Willard of Romulus, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kitchen of Plymouth.

The bride is a 1980 graduate of Romulus High, she works at Apple Tree Convalescent Home in Romulus. The groom graduated in 1980 from Salem High School. He is a student at Eastern Michigan University and works in Ypsilanti.

The couple have settled in Ypsilanti.

CYNTHIA KAY

Cynthia Kay, Raymond Davis

Cynthia A. Kay, of Leighwood Dr. in Plymouth, will marry Raymond A. Davis, Jr. of Brighton. An early October wedding is planned. The bride-elect is a 1977 graduate of Salem High and is presently with the Michigan National Bank of West Oakland as a head teller. The prospective groom is a 1974 graduate of Stevenson High School and is in partnership with his father in R.A. Davis, Inc.

City driving is a little hairy

Driving through Plymouth lately is like trying to drive through an obstacle course. Everywhere you go is under construction.

If you don't run into the City DPW workers trying to patch up roads, you have to deal with Detroit Edison doing its thing to block traffic. We all realize the streets have to be repaired and street lights installed, but why is the construction mess always in the way when you're late for an appointment?

There is nothing like a rude awakening first thing in the morning when you come face to face with a flashing arrow telling you to get in the other lane. My car operates on automatic pilot in the morning. It knows how to get to work, but it hasn't learned how to get around those obstacles.

What do you do when a big truck is starting to go around you just as the lane narrows and a construction tractor is starting to back into the one and only lane? I did what any experienced driver would do. I closed my eyes, said a prayer and hoped for the best. Somehow we all managed to squeeze through without a scratch.

Some of the construction workers have been very nice. One day while trying to pull out of the parking lot and not being able to see around all the equipment, they told me when the traffic cleared so I could go. Maybe they were afraid I would run them over or hit another car and land on top of them.

Waiting in a traffic jam three blocks long is not what you call an ideal situation. I keep trying to tell myself it is only a temporary situation and the work is something that has to be done.

Just think, by the time the construction workers are finished, there will be a foot of snow and driving will be even more fun.

Jack and Dorothy Grant of Plymouth recently had as houseguests the co-authors of a best selling book, "REAGAN'S RULING CLASS". Nina Easton, one of the co-authors lives in Washington D.C. and is the niece of the Grants. The authors were entertained in Plymouth between speaking engagements at the University of Michigan and Eastern Michigan University.

Students from Plymouth and Canton who were accepted at Interlochen Music Camp this summer are: Kristen Soderholm, first chair saxophone; Larry Massey, first chair trumpet; Pat Dugin, saxophone; Carrie Bake, violin; and Ann Hurtebese, first chair saxophone.

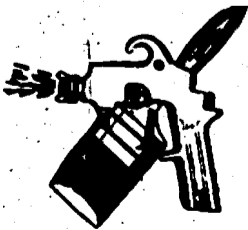

Thomas Hayes of Sutherland in Plymouth has enrolled as a freshman at Northwestern University. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Hayes of Plymouth. He is a student in the college of Arts and Sciences.

'Stress' at Canton CofC

"How to cope with stress" will be the topic at the Oct. 18 Canton Chamber of Commerce quarterly membership meeting.

Dr. Paul Benson will speak on the stress management during the program at 8:30 p.m. at the Roman Forum restaurant. His talk will be preceded by cocktails at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30 p.m.

For reservations, call the Canton
Chamber at 453-4040.

Movie premiers here

A movie premier in Plymouth? Chicago cinematographer and former Plymouth resident Peter Hartel will be showing his film, "Green By Walter" on Sunday, Oct.
3 at 8 p.m. at Atelier de Photographie,
281 Union Street, next to the Grange Hall.

The movie was produced, directed and filmed by Peter under a grant from the Illinois Council for the Arts and private funds. It was adapted from a screenplay written by his brother, John Hartel.

The brothers both graduated from Plymouth High School; John, class of 1973 and Peter, class of 1976.

All interested friends, relatives and movie aficionados are invited to attend.
Admission is free.

Visit Canton fire stations

In honor of Fire Prevention Week, the Canton Fire Department will hold open houses at both fire stations starting this Sunday through Saturday, each day from 2 to 8 p.m.

Included in the tours will be a film on fire safety and prevention.

Theater holds classes

Will-O-Way Apprentice Theatre invites all persons interested in acting, dancing and singing to attend open classes next week, October 2 through 5.

After experiencing the classes offered, prospective students of all ages may sign up for a single course or a full schedule of classes.

Areas of study range from classic and contemporary scene studies to speech, dialects, mime, stagecraft and beginning vocal training. Independent studies for directors and playwrights now lead to senior and master certificates.

Fall courses include: Dance For The Actor, Television Techniques, and How To Audition.

Will-O-Way is located at 775 West Long Lake Road in Bloomfield Hills.

Plymouth farm market continues

The Farmer's Market in downtown Plymouth is alive and well according to officials of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce who sponsor the project.

With the new covering over the market now in place and working well, the Chamber expects to conduct Saturday morning sales well into the fall season with the last session scheduled for Oct. 30th, the day The Plymouth-Canton Community celebrates Halloween.

Vendors and customers alike have expressed satisfaction with the new roof and large crowds, even on rainy days, indicate that it is fun to meet and greet friends while shopping. The bargains are excellent and, of course, the produce is the freshest.

The Market is open from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Board slams principal

Andrew to stay at Starkweather because he had an older brother attending the school, and she felt it was important for them both to go to the same building.

That night two weeks ago, the board voted, 4-3, not to take any action on McDonald's request to transfer Andrew back to Starkweather and that was thought to be the end of the problem.

But such was not the case.

In the last two weeks a new kindergarten student moved into the Starkweather area, and the child was allowed to enter the "closed" class, the schools admit.

Howe's reasoning, according to Assistant Superintendent for Instruction Michael Homes, was the new youngster was a walker and therefore should be allowed into the class.

The addition of the new student to the Starkweather class did not sit well with McDonald and prompted her to come before the board again.

Several of the board members were a little hot under the collar when the new situation was explained to them.

"I thought we had made a decision to close the class," Vice President Elaine Kirchgatter said tersely. "And I feel the board has now been put in an uncomfortable position because of the action of an administrator."

Trustee Sylvia Stetz also said she thought the board had closed the class with its actions. And, if it had done so, how could Howe disregard the decision of the board?

President Tom Yack questioned the entire procedure, starting with the meeting with "all" the parents.

"I can't believe, knowing the Starkweather area, there weren't some children some distance from the school who are only children (in the family) who couldn't have been bused to Bird," he said, shaking his head.

The board's handling of the problem in the first place bothered Treasurer Glenn Schroeder.

"I feel we handled this matter poorly from the start," he said. "But now we've got to consider the other two families with older siblings who have kindergarteners bused to Bird."

"Are they going to come before the board and try to have their children moved back to Starkweather? The 31st child should not have been allowed to go to Starkweather, period."

"And the only one who doesn't see that is John (Howe). No matter what you do, at this point, you're going to make someone unhappy."

After a lengthy discussion on the matter, a motion put before the board by Stetz to allow McDonald's child to return to Starkweather was passed, 5-2.

Joining Stetz in voting "yes" were Yack, Kirchgatter, Secretary Flossie Tonda and Trustee Roland Thomas. Schroeder and Trustee E.J. McClendon voted against the resolution.

The other items taken into consideration by the board Monday didn't generate nearly as much discussion as the McDonald situation.

Included in the items passed unanimously by the board were the approval of 1982-83 tuition rates, the granting of a maternity leave, and the recalling of four pink-slipped teachers.

Also, the board voted, 7-0, to offer a one-year contract to Andy Melin as the new station manager at WSDP-FM.

The board opened the meeting by approving the audit report and management letter for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1982 submitted by the certified public accounting firm of Plante and Moran.

The first posting of a basic procedure acknowledging cable television as a medium in the schools which can be used by the schools and, therefore, some means should be established by the board for its reasonable use, was also accepted by the school board.

Don't wait 'til it's too late, winterize

BY REBECCA BEACH

Here it is, almost October and that means winter is just around the corner. These last warm days of autumn are the best time to get your car into shape for winter driving, before you find yourself stuck on a cold and lonely parking lot with a dead car in the middle of the night.

Like many people in small communities throughout the state, most Plymouth-Canton residents don't have ready access to public transportation. We can't just take the bus when the car won't start.

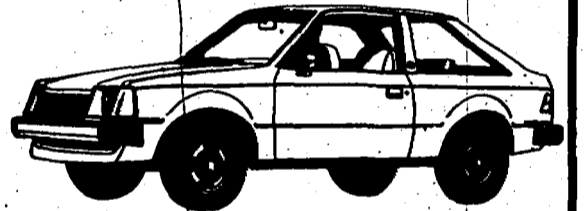

But we can stay one jump ahead by preparing now for the coming Michigan winter.

Check the cooling system. Unless you have an air-cooled automobile (they don't make 'em anymore), the cooling system is a radiator and lots of tubes and hoses. Squeeze the hoses to make sure they don't feel like they'll fall apart. Replace them if they do, even in cold weather, a car engine gets hot enough to overheat and needs proper cooling circulation. Wiggle them to be sure they're tight.

The radiator is where the antifreeze-alcohol coolant is cooled off, by the fan and by the car moving rapidly along the road. Most automobile manufacturers recommend a solution of antifreeze coolant in the radiator rather than water, year-round, because the antifreeze has a higher boiling point and fewer corrosive properties. Radiators get rusty inside, too, at least once a year have it flushed out and fresh anti-freeze installed.

Make sure the heat works. If you haven't tried it yet, better try it now, nothing could be worse than getting into a cold car in the morning and not having it get any better. Especially if the part must be shipped from Stuttgart. More upsetting is when the dealer tells you the part is sitting on a train in Cincinnati.

Check the fan belts. If your car has air conditioning, there are two, if it has power steering there are three. Examine them for cracking, fraying or deterioration, check the tension using the graph in the owner's manual.

Check the oil. The engine oil should be checked when the car is parked on a level surface and shut off. Remove the dipstick, wipe it off, re-insert and examine the oil level. It should be right near the top mark. Change it when the owner's manual suggests, usually between every 2,500 or 5,000 miles. Check it once a month, even a new car can leak or burn oil.

Check the transmission fluid. On a level surface, with the car running, in PARK, please. The fluid on the dipstick should be somewhat transparent, smell ly, and the level should fall right near the top mark at the end of the dipstick. If the fluid is black, sticky or smells burned, have the transmission checked by an expert.

Check the water level in the battery. It should cover the metal plates inside. A sealed battery doesn't need to be checked, lucky you. Make sure the battery cables are tight and clean, free of that whitish stuff that can prevent a good electrical contact and eat a hole in your fender to boot.

Check your washer fluid. Most of us use more washer fluid in one January rush hour than we use the entire month of July. It is embarrassing to have to get out of the car and throw snow on the windshield so you can see to get home. Don't be too proud to carry a gallon of fluid in the back seat, that way you know where it is.

Check the tire pressure. This can be tricky if you've never done it, if you're practicing, be sure there's an air hose around. Use the pressure recommended on the tire itself, it'll say 32 PSI if the suggested pressure is 32 pounds per square inch (get it? PSI?). Tires vary, be careful, the owner's manual will tell you about the tires that were standard equipment when the car was new, that may have been several sets of tires ago.

Check tire wear. Slick tires may make you more cautious in the summer, they may make you more stuck in the winter.

Check brakes. The brake pedal usually shouldn't go any further than halfway to the floor. Same with the emergency brake, it should move only a few inches out of a released position before engaging.

Check the air filter. It sits right on top of the engine inside its own little box. It keeps dust and road dirt from getting in the carburetor where it could clog the gas jets and keep the car from running. The air filter should be fairly clean, if it isn't, get a new one, they're cheap. Carburetors aren't.

If maintenance is a mystery, or if you're not quite sure how to go about it, have your car examined by a professional. Treat your car well this fall and you will be rewarded this winter.

HE'S LEARNING to do it the right way. Chip Jacobs, of Northville Township, is apprenticing for a mechanic's license. Many mechanics believe that those who care enough to take the time to fulfill the licensing requirements will care enough to take good care of your car. Chip's instructor, David Brown of Precision Gulf on Main at Stakweather, cites self-service stations and not checking the oil as the big cause of winter break-downs. "Have someone check out the car," He said, "it's cheap enough. Even just an oil change gives a service guy the opportunity to get it up (on the hoist) and take a look at it."

Plus
A few words
for wisdom ...

This glossary is intended to help fill a void that spans the genders, generations and geographies. The residents of southeastern Michigan live in an automobile oriented society and yet many hearts sink at the thought of taking the car to the shop and getting the usual run-around. Perhaps it is because automotive engineering has become such a science that many car owners don't know an alternator from a turbocharger.

- Air cleaner, air filter - Practically the first thing you see when you open the hood is a round or oblong container. That's the air cleaner, inside is the air filter. The filter keeps dirt out of the carburetor underneath, otherwise the right amount of air won't get in and the engine's fuel efficiency will drop.

- Alternator - Sort of a built-in battery charger. When the engine is running, the alternator generates electricity that powers the car's needs and keeps the battery charged. The battery stores enough energy to start the car.

- Ball joint - Part of the front suspension, based on the ball-and-joint principle. Permits the wheels to both turn and move up and down at the same time.

- Block - Short for cylinder block. The main part, or lower two thirds of the engine. Contains the cylinders, pistons and other major moving parts.

•Camshaft - A rod-like part near the top of the engine. Pear-shaped cams open and close the valves that let the fuel-air mixture into each cylinder (to be burned) and the exhaust gases out (after ignition). Not to be confused with the crankshaft.

•Carburetor - Mixes gasoline with with air to produce the vapor which will ignite in each cylinder.

•Catalytic converter - An emission control device that sits under the car and looks like a muffler. Expensive platinum or only slightly less expensive palladium does the converting.

•Choke - Sort of like a fireplace damper, it cuts off the flow of air to the carburetor temporarily during engine warm-up. A mixture that's mostly gasoline ignites quicker when the engine is cold.

•Corrosion - Rust.

•Crankshaft - An irregularly-shaped shaft at the bottom of the engine. It changes the up and down motion of the pistons into rotary motion and carries this power to the transmission.

•Cylinder - A round, deep hole in the block in which the piston moves up and down. Most small cars have four cylinders, some have six. Few cars built presently have eight. Generally speaking, the more cylinders a car has, the more power it can produce.

•Diesel engine - Operates on kerosene-like fuel rather than gasoline, is often harder to start, noisier, smellier and emits smoke from the tailpipe. Usually costs more to buy. Its strong points? 50 miles to the gallon in a full-size car.

•Disc brakes - A braking system using vertical metal discs that turn with the wheels. Pads, like a thumb and forefinger, squeeze each disc when pressure is applied.

•Distributor - The part of the engine's electrical system that directs electrical current to the spark plugs in the correct sequence. Sits on the side of the engine, all the spark plug wires and an ignition wire stick out of it.

•Drive shaft - Transmits engine power from the transmission to the rear axle in rear-wheel-drive cars, it's what's under "the hump."

•EPA ratings - The results of milage tests conducted under laboratory conditions by the Environmental Protection Agency. Most people do not drive in laboratories, milage is going to be different out on the road.

•Flooding - Too much gas being pumped into the engine to start the car. Turn off the ignition and sit for a minute, then try again. Usually, the owner's manual will tell you how to start it properly.

•Front-wheel drive - Powers a car through its front wheels rather than the rear ones. Handles well on snow and ice because the weight of the engine is over the wheels with the power.

•Fuel injection - A tricky and expensive system for injecting the air-fuel mixture into each combustion chamber for best fuel economy, emissions and performance. Replaces a standard carburetor.

•Head - Short for cylinder head. The top third of the engine, fits above the block, houses the combustion chambers for the cylinders.

•Hemi engine - An engine with the combustion chambers having a hemispherical shape.

•Idle - The engine speed when there's no pressure on the gas pedal.

•Lugging - The bumping or shaking that occurs in a manually shifted car when the transmission is in too high a gear for the car's speed. Downshift to a lower gear.

•Lug wrench - A socket wrench used on lug (wheel) nuts when a wheel has to be removed or replaced. Usually discovered near the jack the first time you have a flat tire.

MIKE HACKER, of Canton, checks the oil at Mel's Auto Clinic on Canton Center Road in Canton. According to the National Car Care Council, self-service gas stations have meant a decline in "checking under the hood" and a rise in car trouble. Mechanics throughout The Plymouth-Canton Community warn car owners not to neglect checking the fluid levels often.

- Odometer - Shows how many miles a vehicle has traveled, as in "How many miles has it got on it?"
- Overdrive - a gear added to a regular transmission to boost fuel economy at highway speeds, it lets the engine run at a slightly slower speed than the drive shaft.
- Piston - Moves up and down inside each cylinder, propelled by the firing of the fuel-air mixture in the cylinder's combustion chamber. Each piston is attached to the crankshaft by a connecting rod.
- Post-Ignition Firing - Sometimes called dieseling, the sputtering and coughing of an engine after it's been shut off. Usually, the engine just needs a minor adjustment.
- Power train - The collective name given to the components that carry an engine's power output to the propelling wheels, includes the clutch, transmission, drive shaft and axle.
- Radiator - Sits in the very front of the engine compartment, in front of the fan. Coolant is pumped through the engine, then through the radiator where the heat passes to the outside air. Don't mess with this when the car overheats, the coolant is under pressure. All you can do is wait.
- Rocker panel - The section of the car's body below the door, it runs from the front wheel opening to the rear wheel opening.
- Spark plugs - With the proper electrical impulse from the distributor, they ignite the fuel-air mixture in the engine's combustion chambers.
- Suspension system - The various springs, shock absorbers and linkages that suspend a car over its wheels, making for a comfortable ride and easier handling.
- Tachometer - Looks sort of like a speedometer, gauges how many revolutions per minute (RPMs) the engine's crankshaft is turning. When the tach shows 25 RPMs, that's 25 THOUSAND RPMs, each spark plug firing once for each revolution.
- Torque - The twisting power generated by a car's engine and eventually transmitted to the driving wheels. Also, any twisting force used to tighten nuts.

- Transaxle - The transmission and axle all in one.
- Transmission - A system of gears that transmits power from the engine to the wheels. Transmissions come in automatic or do-it-yourself (manual).
- Tune-up - This is your car's favorite thing. A tune-up means restoring an engine to top efficiency and performance. Done regularly, by you or an expert, can add years to your car's life.
- Turbocharger - Sort of a pump that recycles exhaust gases to boost power for passing other wide-open throttle conditions. Usually an option and not available on all cars.
- Unibody of Unitized Construction - Building an auto body and frame as a single, welded unit. Common in small cars.
- Voltage regulator - Just that, a regulator, keeps the generator from sending the battery too much charge.
- Wheel alignment - If the car consistently pulls to one side, or shimmies at a certain speed, or the tires are wearing unevenly, the wheels may need realigning. This is not to be confused with
- Wheel balancing - This is when little weights are added on each side of the wheel rim as needed, to offset any imbalance of the wheel itself.

Certainly, knowledge of these terms can be valuable in dealing more comfortably with automobile sales and service people.

But if anyone, a service person or a friend, uses a term that isn't in this list, don't hesitate to ask for a clear definition. In these times of rapidly developing automotive technology, it's the only way to keep up.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Rebecca Beach, The Crier's feature editor, is (among other things) known for her ability to tear apart a car engine. She can repair brakes, transmissions and even burned out tail-lights. Considering the usual state of the newspaper staffers' cars, she is much sought after for her advice.

Crier wins 2 top ad awards

Two top advertising awards have been won by The Community Crier for 1982. In competition open to all daily, twice-weekly and weekly newspapers in the state with circulations under 25,000, the Michigan Press Association awarded The Crier:

- First place in best use of multi-color advertising for a Forest Place Mall section.
  - First place for best advertising idea for a Box Bar and Grill ad.
- Those two first prizes - out of five possible categories - were the only dual first place awards given to a Michigan newspaper.
- This is the fourth time in six years The Crier won the top full color award among Michigan newspapers under 25,000 circulation.
- In awards at the annual MPA advertising conference held Sept. 17-19, The Crier also received:
- Second and third place for best use of art services in Merrill Lynch and Stan's Market advertisements.
  - Third place for best use of spot color in a Colonial Heating and Cooling advertisement.
  - Third place for special sections for the annual Crier Women's section.

The six awards were granted on The Crier's 10 entries. "The Crier's standing in the state-wide advertising field has again been recognized with these awards," said Crier Publisher W. Edward Wendover. "Our top-notch staff remains on the cutting edge to help our local businesses develop more effective advertising."

Drs. Kaczander, Kerman plant feet squarely here

The Plymouth-Canton Community welcomes podiatrists Kaczander and Kerman as they set up practice at 7276 Sheldon Road in Canton.

Dr. Brian Kerman is a 1966 graduate of the Illinois College of Podiatric Medicine in Chicago and spent his residency at Woodward General and Warren Memorial Hospitals. He has been in private practice since 1969 and is on the staff at Straith Memorial in Southfield and McNamara Hospital in Warren. Dr. Kerman is a member of the American Colleges of Foot Surgeons, Podiatric Medicine and Ambulatory Foot Surgery.

Dr. Bruce Kaczander is a 1981 honors graduate of the Illinois College of Podiatric Medicine and is listed in the "Who's Who

Chiefs scalp Chargers

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

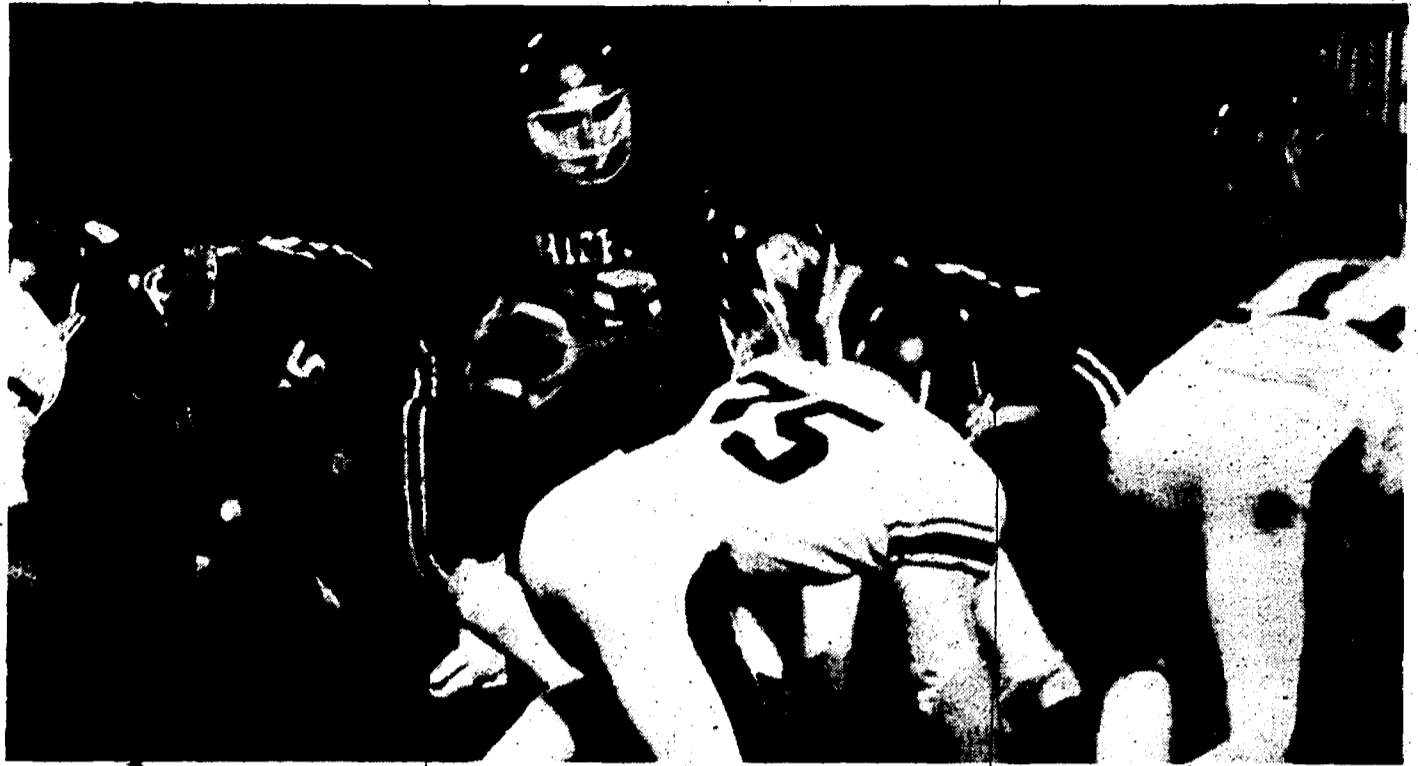

Let's get on with the party and then bring on Northville.

That was pretty much the feeling Friday night after the Canton football team celebrated Homecoming by walloping Livonia Churchill, 14-6, in a game that wasn't as close as the score indicates.

Chief coach Dick Barr, of course, beamed afterwards. And he feels his troops are ready to get after the rest of the squads left on Canton's schedule.

"This win really helped our confidence," he admitted. "The kids came out and played well. The kids are confident we can compete with everyone we play from here on out."

Barr throughout the early part of the season has touted the prowess of his receiving corps, led by quarterback Pat

Murphy and tight end Bob Wasczenski, but it was the Chief rushing attack that dominated the contest Friday night.

"We had a real good first half, especially the ground game," Barr noted. "And the defense didn't play too badly, either."

Halfback Chuck Davis paced the Chief rushing attack with 95 yards on 17 carries. On the other hand, Canton quarterbacks, Murphy and Jody Spitz, completed just two of 12 passes between them for 35 yards.

Barr's bangers set the tone for the remainder of the game when they marched 60 yards down the field on their first possession to score.

Mike Perrot capped the long drive by powering his way in from the one-yard-line.

Rerun looks fine

Second week in a row Salem uses the same ingredients to triumph

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Salem football coach Tom Moshimer can be excused if he enjoys reruns instead of watching first-run shows.

For the second week in a row, the Rocks parlayed a strong ground game and a tenacious defense into victory.

Last week Moshimer's troops employed almost the same ingredients to dispatch cross-campus rival Canton, 12-6. This time around it was Livonia Stevenson's turn to fall, 12-0.

"The fullbacks primarily carried most of the load again," Moshimer said. "Although we did get outside a little bit more, particularly (quarterback) Dave Haut. In particular, he made two excellent runs in the second quarter to help set up our second touchdown."

The Rock defense, meanwhile, limited the Spartans to just under 100 yards of total offense, including only 14 along the ground.

In fact, Stevenson reeled off 31 offensive plays, while Salem quarterbacks took 57 snaps from scrimmage. To Moshimer, that meant like last week the men in the trenches for the Rocks were doing the job.

"We played well as a team," he noted. "Just like last week, the offense line did a good job. The first half we hardly made any mistakes. We blocked well, executed well and I was happy with our play."

In a switch from Salem's previous triumphs, the leading Rock ground-gainer wasn't one of the fullbacks. Instead Haut led the way with 79 yards.

However, fullback Scott Jurek wasn't far behind Haut, accumulating 72 yards.

Salem jumped out to a 6-0 lead early in the first quarter, driving 40 yards for the score. Jurek got credit for the touchdown when he bulled his way into the Spartan end zone from four yards out.

The kick for the point after sailed wide, but the Rocks had drawn first blood and issued the Spartans a challenge they were never to answer.

That doesn't mean Stevenson rolled over and played dead for Moshimer's men.

The Spartans didn't let the Rocks back into their end zone until the final seconds of the first half. And then Stevenson didn't give up the points without a fight.

Jim Sinclair upped the Rocks' lead to 12-0 with :11 left on the clock when he fought his way across the Stevenson goal line on a fourth and one play.

"We had to fight for that score," Moshimer admitted. "We had a first and goal from inside the five, and we just

Games aren't same, but Rock cagers still win

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

The Salem girls' basketball team remained unbeaten by dumping a pair of opponents in two completely different games last week.

Coach Bob Blohm's troops jumped out to a big lead at home against Livonia Stevenson last Tuesday. That's the good news.

Now the bad news. Stevenson refused to quit and battled back to give the Rocks all they could handle and more. And when all the smoke had cleared, Salem had pocketed a 41-36 victory.

Salem hit the road to battle Farmington Thursday, and this time the Rocks held onto a big lead, despite a dismal second stanza, to come out on top, 37-23.

The Rocks took a perfect 6-0 record overall, 4-0 in Western-Lakes Activities Association action, to Northville last night.

Then Thursday Salem meets Livonia Bentley on the Rocks' floor in what Blohm called "the biggest game of the year thus far for us."

The most of exciting of the pair of Salem victories last week undoubtedly was the Rocks' hard-fought triumph over Stevenson.

"They battled us tooth and nail all the way," Blohm noted. "We jumped out to an early lead, got a lot of good scoring opportunities and converted them in the first quarter."

It was a different story in the second period. Salem led, 13-8, at the end of the first eight minutes of play, but by halftime the Spartans narrowed the gap to four, 23-19.

Stevenson continued to have the better of the play in the third quarter, closing to within two, 31-29. But some clutch free throw shooting down the stretch preserved the win for the Rocks.

Pam McBride, Dawn Johnson and Jacque Merrifield all went to the free throw line in the last minute and made pressure-packed free throws to keep the Rocks in front.

Merrifield led the Salem scoring parade with 11 points, while Johnson and Terry Lesniak chipped in with 10 and eight points, respectively.

Offsides

with Mark Constantine

When I was growing up, the kids in the area of Dearborn I lived either went to Dearborn High or Edsel Ford. We did, however, all go to the same junior high school, O.L. Smith.

And that was difficult to take, in some cases.

That's because some of the buddies you went to elementary and junior high school with, when the time came, went off to another school.

The fact half of the kids at Smith would be going to a different school in 10th grade could have caused many problems. But, as I recall, while we were at Smith, all that was important was Smith.

Dearborn High and Edsel Ford, they would come later.

But by the time we were in seventh grade, barring any unforeseen maneuvering by the Board of Education, we at least knew what high school we'd be going to in 10th grade.

Heck, for that matter, when I started third grade at Oxford Elementary, I knew seven years later I'd be attending Dearborn High.

Unfortunately that's not the case in the Plymouth-Canton School District. The random selection process doesn't take place until students enter eighth grade, and a year isn't a long to get adjusted to going to one high school or the other.

I haven't been in this community for too long, but already I've heard from various coaches they don't like the random selection process.

For one thing, some of them say, there is no continuity. And even though that's not as important now that middle school athletics have been cut, it still worries them.

Recently I sat down and chatted with Athletic Director John Sandmann about the random selection process. And he agreed he didn't think it was the best way to maintain a quality athletic program.

But what about one school fielding a better team than the other? Salem, for instance, has consistently been stronger than Canton in football. Why? And has that changed since the implementation of random selection?

"I think a lot of it's attitude," Sandmann explained. "You go to a school that has had a history of being good in football and so you try that much harder to continue that tradition."

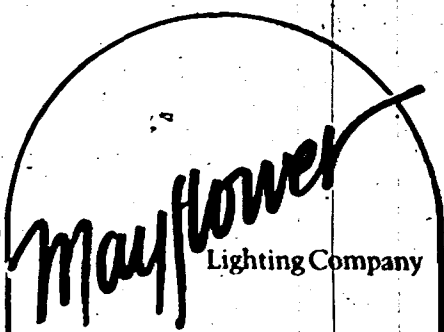

"And I think you'd have to say the program at Canton has gotten stronger in recent years. I think that's a combination of Dick Barr (Canton head football coach) coming in and putting together a solid program and the random selection."

I can buy Barr coming in and running a taunt ship. I've been impressed with the Chiefs. And believe me that's something I couldn't always say.

I'm used to watching the Chiefs of a few years ago come into Dearborn High and stinking up the joint. The only resemblance between those teams and Barr's troops are the red and white colors of the uniforms.

But I can't believe tradition is why the Rocks have been and continue to be a good football team. Since random selection came into being, I think luck has played a big part in the Rocks continued supremacy on the gridiron.

It was obvious after Salem's 12-6 victory over Canton; however, that the gap separating the Rocks and Chiefs, at least on the football field, is narrowing. And it should be interesting to see how random selection continues to affect athletics at CEP.

"People are just great. From the parents to the coaches and especially the kids, I like working with them."

"I try to keep things on an even keel as much as possible. But the kids are all friends, basically, and you don't run into too many problems."

"We treat the boy's and girl's programs exactly equal. And that has nothing to do with that Title IX baloney."

Sandmann will 'stay awhile'

Athletic director came to Plymouth 35 years ago

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

John Sandmann graduated from Colgate almost 40 years ago with a degree in petroleum geology. He'd decided working with rocks was for him.

The Plymouth-Canton School District Athletic Director did wind up working with rocks, only the Rocks he deals with attended the old Plymouth High School and now Salem.

And let's not forget he's the chief athletic man for the Chiefs of Canton as well.

The way the personable Sandmann tells it, he's been in Plymouth 35 years now, 33 as the AD, and he figures "if things work out pretty well, I'll stay for awhile."

Sandmann knows athletics inside and out having been both a coach and an administrator. About the only sports he hasn't coached during his long tenure in the district are swimming, track and wrestling.

And it's working with the kids and people in general that keeps his job from getting stale.

Salem soccer moving up

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

The Salem soccer team discovered last Tuesday just how far away they are from taking a spot among the upper echelon of the state's soccer powers.

And it's not that far at all.

Coach Ken Johnson's Rocks hosted one of last year's Class A finalists, Livonia Stevenson, and came out on the short end of a 3-0 score.

But the Salem booters made up for the loss two days later, Thursday, by blanking Farmington, 3-0, on the Falcon's field.

"Stevenson is a very fast, good passing team," Johnson admitted. "We stayed pretty much with them the first part of the game, but they had too much for us in the end."

The Rocks sport a 1-1 Western-Lakes Activities Association record and are 3-1 overall. Last night (Tuesday) Salem took on Northville under the lights on the Mustangs' pitch, and then Thursday Johnson's troops entertain Livonia Bentley.

"The Bentley game should be a good one," Johnson noted. "Stevenson beat them by a score of only 1-0, so you know they are a good team."

In the victory over Farmington, Dan Lingg opened the scoring for the Rocks in the 28th minute. He took a long pass from Jeff Neschich and booted it home.

The half ended, 1-0, but it didn't take Salem long to get back on the scoreboard in the second half.

Randy Johnson turned a shoot past the Falcon netminder in the 58th minute. He was set up by Dave Varana who made a long run with the ball before flipping it to Johnson who made no mistake with the shot.

The final Rock goal came off the foot off Tom Skrobecki in the 79th minute. Randy Johnson stationed himself in front of the net and back-headed a cross to the waiting Skrobecki who easily blasted it past the Farmington goalie.

The Falcons put on some pressure of their own as the first half drew to a close. But some solid defensive work from fullbacks Ashley Long and Bob Boling, and the acrobatic goaltending of Todd Chatman kept Farmington off the scoreboard.

Two days earlier, Johnson's troops stayed with Stevenson most of the first half. The only goal came midway through the opening 45 minutes of action, and Johnson said he was happy to trail only 1-0 at the half.

In fact, the Rocks put on some pressure in the first part of the second half. Randy Johnson even had a chance to knot the score at 1-1 when he took a pass from Matt Crooks and dribbled around the Spartan keeper, but his shot hit the post.

"From that point on," Johnson said, "they got stronger. They showed us why they are one of the top teams in the state."

Smiles in Chief net camp

BY JOE SLEZAK

There were smiles in the Canton girl's tennis ranks last week, while Salem's distaff netters were frowning.

That's because Wednesday Canton edged Farmington Harrison, 4-3, while on the same day Salem lost a tough match to Bloomfield Hills Kingswood, 5-2.

Canton's top two singles players, Kris Harrison and Julie Lloyd, had a rough time. They lost to Kelly Davidson and Joelle Lukasiewicz, both by a score of 6-0, 6-1.

Lisa Schlotz, however, engineered a major upset by beating Sharis Berk at third singles, 6-4, 7-6. Lisa Egan lost at fourth singles to Theresa Mochlan of Harrison, 3-6, 3-6.

Canton captured all three doubles matches. Victorious at first doubles was Amy Norton and Sheryl Smith.

20% OFF ALL MAJESTIC STOVES & PIPES

If you need to add heat to your home this winter without adding to your heat bill, you need a Majestic Fire Stove.

It's the high-efficiency woodburning stove that lets you enjoy the fire as much as the heat.

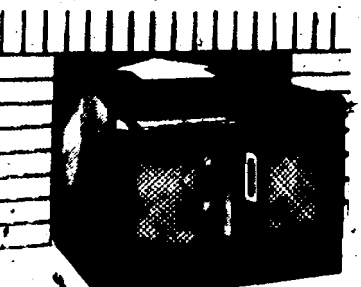

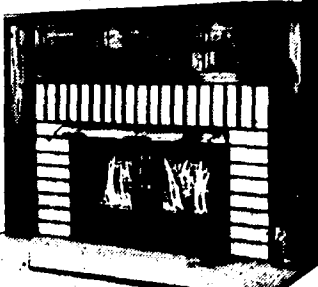

The patented combustion technology of Majestic's FireStove allows you a clear view of a beautiful wood fire through a heat-resistant, tempered-glass front—while delivering high-efficiency home heating.

And because of its unique rear heat shield, you can install it as close as 6" to the rear wall, safe and out of the traffic pattern of the room. It is safety listed by Underwriters' Laboratories. Come see the Majic FireStove by Majestic, before you buy anything else.

Majestic's Warm Majic lets you enjoy the warmth and charm you expect from a fireplace—without robbing your house of valuable heat.

In fact, according to industry association tests, it can deliver, with fan option, about the same heating capacity as the typical gas furnace for a 1,500 sq. ft. home. And it can be installed in any room in your home over the weekend. Come see Majestic's Warm Majic fireplace before you buy anything else.

There's nothing quite like the cozy feeling of a roaring log fire. Unfortunately, if it's roaring in an ordinary open-front fireplace, it'll drain your house of all its heated air several times an evening.

That makes your furnace turn on more and stay on longer. Majestic's In-Majic fireplace insert puts a stop to that energy waste, and still gives you a big, wide view of a beautiful log fire through stylish glass doors.

And In-Majic's built-in, two-speed blower turns an energy-wasting log fire into a forced-air circulator.

Come see the In-Majic fireplace insert by Majestic before you buy anything else.

Best ball event a big hit

Salem linksters finish in 4th place

Canton golfer Eric Popp

BY JOE SLEZAK

Brye Burn was the site of the 11th annual Plymouth Best Ball Tournament last Tuesday. And when all the shots stopped flying, Livonia Stevenson walked off with the first place hardware in the 24-team event.

Salem and Canton co-hosted the tourney, and the Rocks wound up in fourth place.

Stevenson linksters made it around the course with a score of 145 in capturing the title. Ann Arbor Pioneer was second with 146, while Walled Lake Western ended up in third with a total of 149.

Salem recorded a score of 150.

The Rock duo of Greg Trim and Nunzio Marino placed third with an 18-hole total of 71. Salem's other team of Jim Bennethum and Mike Laffey shot a 79.

One day after the Best Ball, The Rocks were upset by Livonia Churchill, 213-217.

Laffey led the Salem attack with a 39. Trim shot a 42, while Bennethum carded a 43 and Marino a 45. Todd Reidel rounded out Salem's scoring with a nine-hole total of 48.

The Rocks got back on the winning track on Thursday, beating Redford Union, 209-213.

Marino was Salem's medalist with a 40. Reidel and Laffey were right on Marino's tail with a 41 apiece. Mike Moon shot a 42, while Bennethum shot a 45.

The Canton golf team had its troubles at the 11th annual Plymouth Best Ball Tournament, finishing tied for ninth with a total of 156.

The tandem of Paul Phillips and Dave Musch combined for a 77, while Eric Popp and Carl Mitroff shot a 79.

Canton then went on to drop dual meets Wednesday and Thursday.

First, Farmington got the better of Canton, totaling 199 to 208 for the Chiefs.

Popp and Phillips each shot 40s. Musch carded a 41. Bruce Ling shot a 42 and Pat Ruoff rounded out Canton's scoring with a total of 45.

The Chiefs then lost to Walled Lake Western, 207-233.

Phillips led Canton with a 42. Popp shot a 45, Musch carded a 47 and Mitroff shot a 49. Ruoff rounded out Canton's scoring with a 50.

In late golf action on Monday, Salem won their match and Canton lost theirs.

The Rocks not only beat Livonia Bentley 207-223, they also beat the rain which threatened to postpone the match.

Nunzio Marino led Salem with a score of 39. Mike Laffey shot a 40. Captain Greg Trim was in the middle of the pack with a 42. Right behind him was Todd Reidel and Jim Bennethum, they both shot 43.

The Chiefs were not as fortunate, losing to Livonia Stevenson 195-210.

3 school records not good enough

BY JOE SLEZAK

Thursday was a good news, bad news night for Canton girl's swim coach Art (Hooker) Wellmann.

Wellmann's Chiefs lost to Dearborn, 68-59, but set three school records in the process.

Ironically, all three record efforts were for second place.

Sophomore Margaret Gilligan shattered the mark in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 2:03.9, while Ginnie Johnson, a sophomore who transferred from Dearborn this year, broke Gilligan's week-old record in the 200-yard individual medley with a time of 2:19.7.

Also setting a record was the 400-yard freestyle tandem of Gilligan, Kathy Stern, Kelly Kirk, and Johnson.

Tough defeat fires up Chiefs

Canton cagers come out flying crush Churchill

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

About the worst thing that could have happened to the Churchill girl's basketball team was Canton losing a thriller to Redford Union, 58-57, two days before the Chiefs and Chargers played.

The Chiefs dropped the heartbreaking contest last Tuesday in the Panthers' gym. So coach Phyllis Cunningham's troops came out with fire in their eyes at home Thursday and crushed Churchill, 72-47.

"I was really proud of the way the girls came back from that tough loss to Redford Union," Cunningham admitted. "The girls came out ready to play and just took it to Churchill."

Canton sports a 3-3 record overall, but in Western-Lakes Activities Association play the Chiefs are 3-1. And they put that league ledger on the line last night at home against Livonia Stevenson.

On Thursday Cunningham charges travel to Farmington Harrison for another WLAA confrontation. Cunningham noted the Hawks are a good ballclub, and "anytime you go into their place you can expect a physical game."

Sue Gierke had the hot hand in the Chief's triumph over Churchill. She burned the nets for 23 points, while teammates Missy Aiken contributed 12 and LoAnn Hamlin finished with 10.

It was 26-10 in favor of Canton after one quarter, and by the intermission the Chiefs were solidly in control, 41-27.

The Chiefs were in control in the first quarter of the Redford Union clash, too. But foul trouble hurt Canton as the contest wore on.

The visitors from Plymouth led, 18-9, going into the second stanza. But the Panthers narrowed the gap to two, 30-28, as the two sides retired to their respective locker rooms at the half.

The game ebbed and flowed back and forth the final two quarters, but when Aiken fouled out with 5:00 left in the game, Cunningham knew her side was in trouble.

Gierke paced the losing Chief attack with 17 points. Hamlin found the range for 13 points and Aiken added nine before fouling out.

Sandmann likes his job

At one point, Sandmann was moved to the Board of Education offices on Harvey, but that arrangement didn't last too long.

"I found I was out here so much that it was foolish for me to be down on Harvey," he explained, sitting back in his chair in his office at Phase III.

So just exactly what does an athletic director do?

When asked that question, Sandmann simply reached in his desk drawer and pulled out a seven-page job description.

"Why don't you look through that and then ask me any questions about the parts you're not sure of," he said, smiling. "And maybe I shouldn't say this, but there really isn't anything very difficult about my job."

"You have to be organized and stay on top of things, but I enjoy what I'm doing and that makes a big difference."

All Sandmann has to do, to quote the job description, is "direct the department of athletics, physical education and health so that all programs therein are operated on the highest level."

"Keeping in mind the welfare of all students and continually maintaining a positive operational approach, with responsible fiscal management and cost effectiveness and adherence to all Federal, State, Plymouth-Canton School District and Conference, standards, regulations and policies."

And some of those policies have changed drastically in recent years. The addition of girl's athletic teams have created a few problems, but nothing Sandmann isn't more than willing to handle.

"We treat the boy's and girl's programs exactly equal," Sandmann said. "And that has nothing to do with that Title IX baloney."

"Just as we try to treat some of the other smaller sports, like cross country for instance, just like we treat the football team."

Sandmann was born and raised in Brooklyn, and after getting a degree from Colgate he spent some time in the Navy.

From the Navy he gravitated towards southeastern Michigan and the University of Michigan to begin graduate work in petroleum geology. But somewhere along the line he decided working with people was preferable to working with rocks.

He and his wife Barbara have enjoyed living in the Plymouth-Canton Community. And daughter Lynn is following in the footsteps of Dad, teaching physical education at Pioneer Middle School.

Some people may wonder how he keeps all the schedules from Canton and Salem straight. And what it's like trying to deal with the problems of two high school athletic departments so close, but he said it isn't as difficult as it sounds.

"I try to keep things on an even keel as much as possible," he noted. "But the kids are all friends, basically, and you don't run into too many problems."

Now, if he can only find a way to get petroleum from these Rocks like the rocks he studied at Colgate...

Homecoming party happy one for Canton

However, the Canton offense gave the fans a few anxious moments when it took four plays for the Chiefs to find the Charger end zone after securing a first and goal from the three-yard-line.

Matt Santilli's point after attempt went wide, making it Canton 6, Churchill 0, with nearly 10 minutes left in the first quarter.

The Chiefs continued to dominate the clash both offensively and defensively the rest of the first half, but it wasn't until late in the second stanza the home team was able to cross the Churchill goal line again.

Murphy and Wasczenski teamed up to put the Chiefs in front, 12-0. Murphy found his big tight end alone in the corner of the Charger end zone and lofted a perfect pass to Wasczenski who made the catch with a Churchill defender draped on his back.

Instead of kicking the ball through the uprights on the PAT attempt, Santilli took a pitch-out from his holder and tried to bull his way across the Churchill goal line in an attempt to pick up two points, but he was stopped cold by the Churchill defense.

Moments later the Chiefs picked up a safety when the snap back to the Charger punter, who was stationed near his own 10-yard-line, sailed over his head into the end zone.

It was more of the same in the second half. Canton consistently moved the ball, but in key situations the Chiefs couldn't manage to come up with a first down.

"We moved the ball well, and made some good blocks," Barr explained. "But on plays when we needed it, our backs ran wide several times, missing the hole and, as a result, they were stopped."

Churchill got back into the game midway through the fourth quarter when Erwin Anderson-Smith stepped in front of a Spitz pass and raced back all the way to the Chief 25-yard-line with the interception before he was knocked out of bounds.

At the 5:47 mark of the final period, the Chargers cashed in on the opportunity when Churchill quarterback John Fraser sneaked in from the one-yard-line.

The Chiefs themselves were handed a golden opportunity to put the game out of reach with 3:02 left on the clock.

Anderson-Smith bobbled a Marc Landini punt and Santilli was johnny-on-the-spot to recover the fumble on the Charger 22-yard-line.

But Murphy and company couldn't move the ball and were forced to turn it over to the Chargers on downs with 1:25 left in the game.

Churchill mounted a desperate final drive that ended in frustration as the Chief secondary was equal to the task to sew up the victory.

The Chiefs now are 2-1 on the season, and Barr had nothing but words of praise for almost the entire team.

Canton takes to the road this Friday to battle Northville. Barr noted the Mustangs are a good team despite their 1-2 mark, and "we'll have our hands full with them, no doubt about it."

Salem downs Stevenson

barely made it in."

Haut directed the Salem attack almost all the way. He and Pete Steyaert had shared the quarterbacking duties in the Rocks' first two victories, but an injury forced Steyaert to sit out most of the game.

Steyaert took a shot to the head attempting to launch a pass in the Rocks' second possession of the game, and that was all for the strong-armed senior.

The Rocks were their own worst enemy in the second half. Every time it appeared the visitors from Plymouth were about to mount an offensive threat, a penalty stopped them cold.

The victory was the Rocks first in the Lakes Division in the new Western-Lakes Activities Association. Overall, Salem sports a 3-0 mark, and a No.5 ranking in a poll conducted by one of the Detroit dailies.

Moshier and his troops come home this Friday to entertain Livonia Churchill in Churchill's second visit to Centennial Education Parin as many weeks.
