

Plymouth Police 'recognize' money shortage; nix contract talks

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The Plymouth police officers union voted against renegotiating their wages with the city this year but a city official said he may ask that the contract be re-opened.

The Plymouth Police Officer's Association's current contract with the city contains a wage re-opener which allows either side the option of negotiating new pay scales July 1.

Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper said he may ask for a meeting with union officials to discuss wages and perhaps other items in the contract.

Talks to reopen?

Graper said he will meet next week to talk about the contract with the city's labor attorney Ron Acho of Livonia.

"We're in the process of looking at a number of things in the contract which we may want to discuss with the union," Graper said.

Graper said he wouldn't rule out the possibility of asking the PPOA to take wage concessions. He said the city may also want to discuss the contract's health insurance plan.

The PPOA's current contract with the city expires June 30, 1985.

Gardner said the PPOA's decision not to re-open the wage clause was based on an awareness of the city's money shortage which spurred a tax increase earlier this year.

"What we're doing is forgoing any wage increase that we might have had," Gardner said.

The Plymouth Police were one of the higher paid forces in the county at one time but Gardner said that other departments will probably pass them up as the Plymouth wages will not increase this year.

Schoolcraft targets new Canton site

BY SONDR A. COVINGTON

Schoolcraft College, facing a space crunch, plans to expand to a new facility in the Canton area by the end of the year, according to Michael W. Burley, college board chairman.

The college is looking for an existing building with 44,000 to 100,000 square feet of space that will be more accessible to students in Canton and Plymouth than the current site, he said.

The college's main campus is located at the intersection of Haggerty and Seven-Mile roads near Livonia. There is also a campus in Garden City.

"We are looking for facilities that would be more accessible to people in the south end of the district," Burley said. "From my standpoint, I think that accessibility is very important. If you get the programs as close as possible, more people will use them."

Because of an increase in demand for the college's computer program, the current facility is running out of space, he said.

The new facility should provide space for a laboratory and more room for computers, he said.

"We are still right now in the planning stages, with hopefully the idea of getting something going by the end of the year," he said.

The school plans to locate in an existing building rather than build a new one, since state-appropriated funds allow only for renovations, not new buildings.

The board has looked at three or four sites and is now considering two of them, he said.

Possible sources of funds for the expansion project are being considered by the board, he said.

"There is a lot of discussion on the board about whether we will need new money as far as millage," he said.

The last increase in millage (taxes levied on private property) was in 1961. Voters have turned down increases in millage at least seven times since then, Burley said.

"The community college isn't quite as visible as your local school district, and there is an attitude 'Well, if you need more money, raise tuition.' But there is a limit to which you can raise tuition."

Still, the college plans to raise tuition 5 to 10 percent over the next five years, he said.

"State aid is declining. The property value is staying the same. We are not really getting the same kind of increases we were getting before. We are at a point where we have to take a look at some alternatives."

He said "there is only so much money out there" for grants and foundations, which can provide a maximum of 10 percent of the total funding for the school.

He said while the additional facility might not be within the corporate limits of Canton, it would be within 15 minutes of most students in Plymouth and Canton.

Canton Police search for 275 assailant

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Canton Police are intensifying their search for a bike path assailant who may be responsible for three assaults on three single women riding or jogging along the I-275 bike path over the past month.

Sergeant Alex Wilson of the Canton Police Department said a 26-year-old female was assaulted by an unknown suspect Thursday, July 5 at 3:30 p.m. on the bike path south of Koppernick Road. Police said the victim was knocked off of her bike and dragged into a grassy ditch near the freeway. The victim fought off her attacker and managed to escape. She described him to police as being a white male about 5'8", weighing 160 pounds with short brown hair and no facial hair. He was dressed in a white shirt with blue and red stripes and light blue jogging pants or blue jeans.

Wilson said the description of the suspect and his method of attack matched another assault report filed with the police June 11. Wilson said the female victim in the June 11 attack was also on the I-275 bike path near Koppernick when she was knocked from her bike and sexually assaulted by a suspect whose description matches the most recent suspect description.

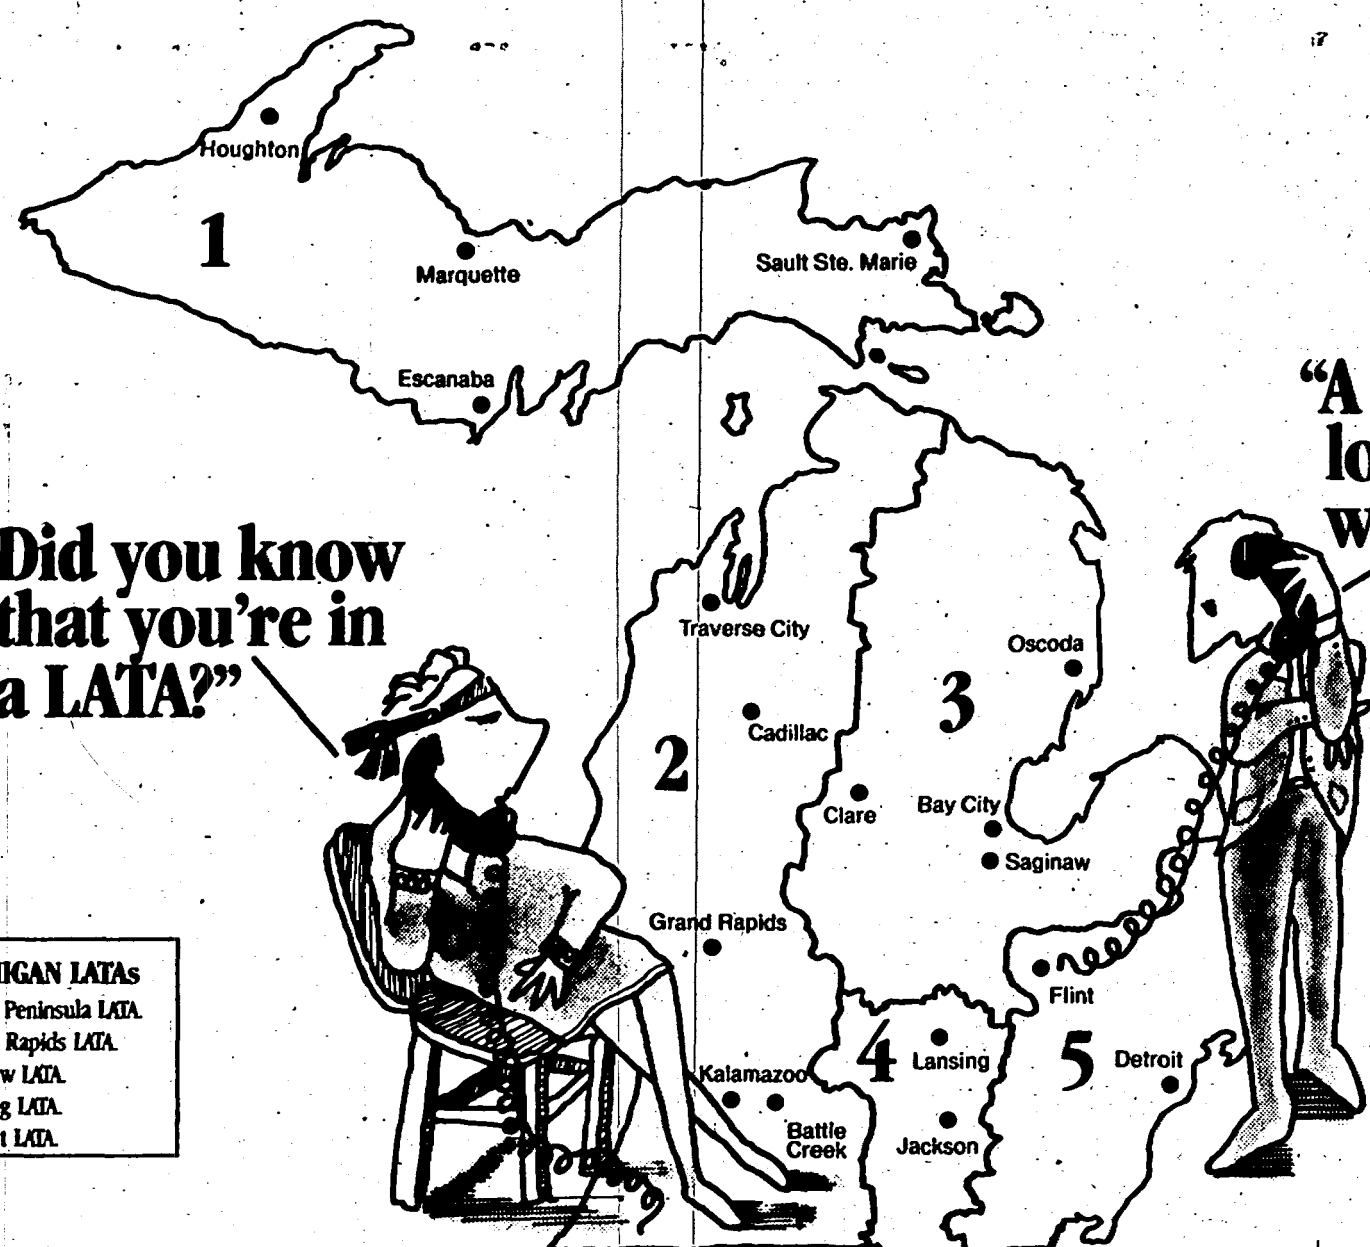

Wilson also said a third report was taken by the Canton Police Department July 7. A female jogging on the I-275 bike path near the Honeytree Apartment Complex was attacked by a suspect matching the same description as reported in the other two attacks. The victim fought off her attacker.

All three attacks occurred on women who were traveling on the bike path alone. Wilson cautioned all single women who are forced to use the path or who live in the area to travel along it with a friend. Anyone with information on suspects matching the police description should contact the Canton Police Department at 397-3000.

"Did you know that you're in a LATA?"

"A lotta what?"

- MICHIGAN LATAs
1. Upper Peninsula LATA.
 2. Grand Rapids LATA.
 3. Saginaw LATA.
 4. Lansing LATA.
 5. Detroit LATA.

All about LATAs, long distance calling, and Michigan Bell discounts.

LATA is a telephone term that's new to all of us.

Explaining that LATA stands for Local Access Transport Area doesn't help much, but LATAs are really very simple. They're telephone service areas. There are five LATAs in which Michigan Bell provides telephone service.

LATAs and long distance calling.

If you look at the map, you will see the five Michigan LATAs, including the LATA you are in. Now here's how LATAs work: When you place a long distance call from one LATA to another telephone number within the same LATA, Michigan Bell can carry the call for you over its own network. When you place a call from one LATA to another LATA, either in Michigan or another state, it will be handled by the long distance company that provides that service to you (not Michigan Bell).

For example, if you call from Detroit to Flint (two cities within the same LATA), Michigan Bell will still be able to handle the call as in the past. But if you call from Detroit to Traverse City (from a city in one LATA to a city in a different LATA), a long distance company other than Michigan Bell will carry the call. As you may know, there are now a number of different companies you may choose from to provide your long distance service.

Your long distance bill(s).

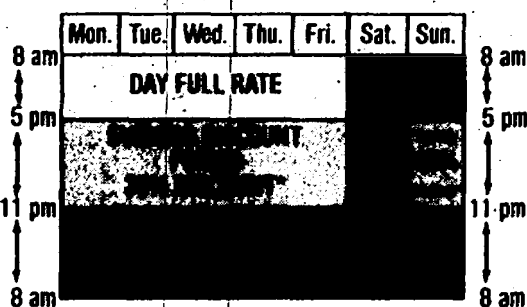

When you receive your Michigan Bell telephone bill, you'll find a page that lists your long distance calls handled by Michigan Bell. You may also find another page that lists long distance calls handled by other companies. This is because Michigan Bell may provide billing services for other long distance companies. Or you may receive a separate long distance bill directly from the company you've selected to handle your long distance calls.

Long distance discount periods.

Michigan Bell continues to offer discounts on direct-dialed long distance calls within each of the five LATAs. We suggest you save the chart below as a reminder of the times when you save 30% to 50% off the Day Full Rate.

NOTE: When you begin a call during one rate period, your call will be charged at that rate; however, should that call pass into a different rate period, your charges will change to the rate of the new period. For example, a weekday call that begins 10 minutes before 5 p.m. and ends 10 minutes after 5 p.m. will be billed at the full rate for the first 10 minutes and will be billed at the 30% discount rate for the last 10 minutes.

Save up to 50% on direct-dialed long distance calls. Schedule for direct-dialed long distance calls within Michigan LATAs.

- *During the Evening Discount Period, you pay 30% less than the Day Full Rate Charge for direct-dialed calls within each of the Michigan LATAs.
- During the Night and Weekend Discount Periods, you pay 50% less than the Day Full Rate Charge for direct-dialed calls within each of the Michigan LATAs.

CLIP AND SAVE

More long distance discounts.

If you make a lot of direct-dialed long distance calls within 30 miles of your calling center and within your LATA, you may be interested in Circle Calling Service. By subscribing to this service, you get additional discount calling periods during which you can save 30% over the long distance rates in effect at the time of your call. The discount applies even when regular long distance discounts are in effect. No installer visit is necessary for Circle Calling.

We suggest you take a close look at the various Michigan Bell services available to you. At Michigan Bell, we're always ready to help in the selection of the service that's right for you.

Facts down the line. We suggest that you watch for further informational messages in your newspapers and in your monthly telephone bills. Because your telephone business office is busily engaged in normal day-to-day telephone service matters, we are providing this toll-free number as a source for answers to the questions you may have about your changing telephone company.

Canton board approves Ford Road DDA concept

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

It may not be a downtown in the traditional sense of the word.

But even though there may not be narrow, tree-lined streets, quaint old buildings and cozy little shops, the recent approval of the Canton Downtown Development Authority (DDA) may provide this community with the first real opportunity its had to cultivate the likes of a central business district.

In a five to zero vote, the Canton Township Board of Trustees approved the creation of a Canton DDA at its July 3 meeting. Canton Treasurer Maria Sterlini and Trustee Stephen Larson were absent from the session.

Canton's DDA district will be established along Ford Road between Morton-Taylor and Sheldon roads. It will involve properties which front along Ford Road. Most of these properties extend at least a quarter mile back from Ford Road in length.

David Nicholson, director of Economic Growth for the township said a primary function of the DDA would be to help develop the back portions of these properties. The DDA plan will provide property owners in this area with a variety of financial and legislative mechanisms to do this.

Nicholson said one of the primary financial mechanisms to be employed in Canton's DDA district will be tax increment financing. Under tax increment financing, property in the DDA district will be assessed a base tax value the first year the DDA is established. As the value of the property increases yearly, the property owner pays the government this base tax value rather than the increased value.

The extra tax money not paid to the government by the property owner must

M-14 crash kills six

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Six people died Sunday night in Superior Township when a car, which witnesses say was driving the wrong way on M-14, crashed head-on into another car carrying five people.

Police said four of the six victims were dead at the scene while two were dead on arrival at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Superior Township. Police said none of the victims were local residents.

Police are still investigating the cause of the accident.

Police identified the dead as Joseph P. McGuire, 42, of Paw Paw, MI.; Rev. Brian Roworth, 25, and his wife Amber Roworth, 27 of Toledo, OH.; Harriet Keyes, of Terre Haute, IN., Amber Roworth's mother; Kurt Keyes, 4, also of Terre Haute, Amber Roworth's nephew; and James Blackwell, 19, of Irvington, NJ., a friend of the Roworths.

Sgt. Mark Ptaszek of the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department said a sheriff's department officer was travelling westbound on M-14 about 9:20 p.m. when he saw a car, whose driver was later identified as McGuire, travelling eastbound in the westbound lane. The officer pulled off the road as McGuire's car passed. The officer began chasing McGuire's car, which was still travelling the wrong way, from the eastbound side of M-14, Ptaszek said.

McGuire's car then collided head-on with a car driven by Brian Roworth, one-quarter mile west of Curtis Road, Ptaszek said.

Harriet Keyes and Kurt Blackwell were dead on arrival at the hospital while the others were dead at the scene, he said.

"We don't know why he (McGuire) was driving the wrong way," Ptaszek said. "There was no overt evidence that alcohol was involved - no bottles or cans in the car or anything like that - but we haven't ruled it out yet."

Police believe McGuire was a salesman for a paper company, on a business trip, while the Roworths were heading home after attending a religious concert and perhaps visiting friends in the Detroit area.

The accident had M-14 near Curtis Road tied up between 9:30 p.m. and 2 a.m., Ptaszek said.

World peace promoted in Kellogg Park

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

'Awareness' seemed to be the key work as a group of nuclear weapons freeze supporters gathered Friday afternoon in Plymouth's Kellogg Park.

"We wanted to get people thinking about the issue of nuclear weapons," said Joan Rence of Plymouth Township, coordinator of the Peace Resource Center (PRC) at Schoolcraft College.

Organizers called the event "Peace Day in the Park" and it marked a "Freeze Friday", a day of protest as designated by freeze advocates.

"Peace Day" took place amid musicians, balloons and clowns. Organizers said they sought a more upbeat atmosphere for their Plymouth presentation.

"We wanted to have something a little lighthearted, where we could educate people," said Gloria Pappas a freeze activist from Plymouth. Pappas' husband Greg, is a former naval officer and was scheduled to speak at the rally.

"It doesn't have to be in a negative framework," Rence said. "We want to show people that peace is patriotic."

A spokesman for the Detroit Area Nuclear Freeze movement was also scheduled to address the audience, which Rence said about an hour into the rally was smaller than she had expected.

"I think more people will be coming," Rence said. "We had a woman from Vancouver, Canada call us to say she was coming. But she said she was in the area anyway."

The United States is paranoid and the proliferation of nuclear weapons is creating a tense atmosphere in the world, Rence added.

"We're making the Russians very nervous and they're the ones we should be keeping calm," Rence said.

Mike McCauley, running for Congress from the second district against Carl Pursell, said he expected more people to show up for the rally.

"I don't think people are aware of the seriousness of the nuclear threat," McCauley said. "If they were, this whole park would be filled."

Community Fund starts

There wasn't alot of pomp and fanfare involved, but on July 9 one of Plymouth's busiest groups officially launched its new season of hard work and dedication.

Members of the Plymouth Community Fund/United Way organization held their kick-off fund raiser and announced this year's goal for the Community Fund is $365,000.

Judge James Garber of the 35th District Court is chairman of the 1985 campaign. Garber said money collected from residents and businesses for the Community Fund remains in Plymouth and supports local agencies which benefit all Plymouth residents.

In support of the Community Fund kick-off, "Yer Grampa's Moustache", a local barbershop in Old Village will donate half of the proceeds of all haircuts he gives new customers to the Community Fund between July 11 and 25. Appointments are preferred for customers planning on helping the Community Fund via the offer.

Greg Huddas, owner of the shop, said the barbershop has been in business since 1927 and offers discounts to senior citizens before noon. The shop is located at 137 W. Liberty in Old Village.

All residents are invited to come and get their hair cut and help out the Community Fund with the same snipe of the scissors!

P-C Krogers will close

The Kroger Company of Cincinnati, OH, will close both its Plymouth and Canton Kroger grocery stores July 21.

News that the Canton SuperKroger Store would close was received by local company officials last week. The store is located in the Harvard Square Shopping Center on Sheldon Road. A week earlier, employees of the Plymouth store, located on N. Main Street, had been told their jobs with the company would be terminated July 21.

"I have no idea what's going on, I have nothing to say," Bob Snyder, the manager of the Canton facility said. Snyder said he has been with the Kroger Company for 15 years. Local company representatives were referring all inquires about the decision to close the facilities to the company's main office in Cincinnati.

Company representatives in Cincinnati were unavailable for comment.

Local store managers would not comment on the number of local employees affected by the decision. The stores are already announcing close-out sales on their stock.

Last week the Kroger Company announced to several news sources that union contract disputes with the company had forced top officials to make the decision. The company had reportedly asked employees of 82 southeast Michigan stores to accept lower wage and benefit concessions in their contracts and were unable to reach a bargaining position with the unions. Company officials said it was unprofitable for the Kroger Company to maintain its southeast Michigan chain of stores due to costs.

be used by the property owner for further improvements in the district. Businesses on a tax increment financing plan would eventually return to a regular tax system.

Nicholson said approximately 80 parcels of land are included in Canton's DDA district. All property owners were notified of the public hearing held at the July 3 meeting to establish the district, he added.

The approval of the DDA concept dictates that a nine to 12 member DDA board of directors be established to oversee the interests of property owners in the DDA district. Nicholson said the supervisor of the township is required to serve on the board and the other DDA board members will be selected from the community by the supervisor with trustee approval.

The DDA board will be considered a public body which possesses the powers necessary to carry out business district improvements in the area. The board can be sued and can sue as a public body and must submit an annual budget to the Canton Board of Trustees every year before the township budgets are given final approval in October. The DDA will be audited annually by the same company which does the audits for the rest of the township.

Robert Padget, a trustee for Canton, said properties in the DDA district would be subject to the same building regulations and codes as other buildings in the community. But Padget also said the DDA will provide Canton with mechanisms to capture tax money and pour it back into the community.

Among the businesses which will be included in the new DDA district are the Harvard Square Shopping Center businesses, Frank's Nursery, Arby's Inc., the Rusty Nail Saloon, Forcan Inv. Co., Security Bank and Trust Co., and JRJ Enterprises. Several new businesses currently under construction or in the process of site plan approval will also be located in the DDA. Among these businesses are a six screen movie theater scheduled to open in December of this year, and a food emporium which will be called Grand Central Station when complete.

The DDA concept was established in 1975 though Michigan's Public Act 197. The act provides for the enhancement, preservation and development of central business districts through a variety of legislative and financial mechanisms.

Officer shot, home burned

Canton police and fire officials are investigating a shooting-arson incident involving an Inkster police officer which occurred Sunday at the officer's home.

According to police Detective Gregory May of the Inkster Police Department pulled into the attached garage of his home at approximately 4 a.m. and upon entering his residence was shot in the right side with a small caliber handgun.

Police said May left the house and drove himself to a nearby hospital. At approximately 4:30 a.m. the same day, Canton firefighters were called to a fire at May's residence.

Captain Art Winkel of the Canton Fire

Department said May's colonial home was completely engulfed in flames and the fire had already gone through the roof when firefighters arrived at the scene.

Winkel said the fire has been classified as an arson although samples from the scene have not come back from the Michigan State Police Crime Laboratory yet. Winkel said he suspected gasoline had been poured extensively throughout the residence before it was burned.

No one was in the home at the time of the fire and firefighters reported no injuries.

Police are currently working on the case and have no suspects at this time.

The superintendent's report card...

5 = Outstanding
 4 = Above Average
 3 = Average
 2 = Needs Improvement
 1 = Unsatisfactory

THIS GRAPH, included in the evaluation committee's official report, shows the superintendent's average score on each area of the evaluation. Each segment represents a different item which the board rated Hoben on.

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

Dr. John M. Hoben, superintendent of Plymouth-Canton Schools, received average and above average "grades" from the board of education on his annual "report card."

Hoben's strong points, according to the evaluation, were areas of finance and management skills. The superintendent's weak area - his attitude toward criticism and opposition, - is improving, the report said.

A subcommittee of three of the seven board members prepared a written evaluation of Hoben which was approved by the whole board last month when Hoben's six per cent wage increase and contract extension was approved.

Using questionnaires, the board members individually rated Hoben's performance in five spheres: relationship with board; professional and leadership qualities, educational programs and philosophy, community and public relations, business and finance, management skills and intergovernmental relations.

Board members were asked to rate Hoben as unsatisfactory, needs improvement, average, above average or outstanding on specific issues in each area.

The subcommittee tallied the board's responses and then issued a graph showing the average score in each area. The subcommittee of Roland Thomas, David Artley, and E.J. McClendon also prepared a narrative evaluation.

•Relationship with board: "The superintendent has an excellent rating on his relationship with the board. He has successfully executed board policy and implemented district goals," the evaluation said. The new agenda format of board meetings was praised also.

•Professional leadership qualities: Hoben received average and above average ratings in all areas of this category except one. "That one area that needs work is his willingness to accept suggestions or constructive criticism." The evaluation praised Hoben's new 'staff coffees' and said he "maintains the highest standards of ethics, honesty and integrity in all personal and professional matters" and that his "genuine concern for the general operation of the district is clearly very high."

•Educational programs and philosophy: The superintendent received his lowest rating in this area, but he was still deemed better than average by the board. "Often the board and superintendent are viewed as reactive rather than proactive. An area seen as needing improvement is MEAP test results, where no plan of action has been identified to bring about improvement.

"A higher degree of involvement of all staff and citizenry could be a real asset. Periodic reviews of all programs and establishment of long-range goals are crucial to this end," the evaluation said. On the positive side, the board said the Instructional Skills Program is a plus for the district.

•Community relations: Hoben received high marks for dealing openly and effectively with community groups and for seeking to create a positive image of the schools.

"The superintendent has made very noticeable progress in working away from his tendency to view all opposition as 'obstructionist,'" the board said.

Ann Arbor Roadhouse history goes back to his local career beginnings

In that special corner of Valhalla reserved for feisty attorneys who have gone to the Great Beyond, the late Earl Demel may soon have the last laugh on those who were his earthly contemporaries. The tale goes back a long way.

The Grey Fox of Ann Arbor Trail was one of the first of his profession to gain my attention when I came to this area as a newspaperman 17 years ago. He wanted to be sure I understood what he considered to be the facts in a Plymouth Township zoning debate over property at 47669 W. Ann Arbor Road, so he gave me copies of the documents he had filed in Wayne County Circuit Court.

You now know that location as the Ann Arbor Road House, which recently reopened as one of our classier dining and drinking spas. But 'twas not always thus.

Earl's role as the appointed attorney for Plymouth Township was only part-time. Among other clients was Frank Mango, who owned a shot and a beer with spaghetti on the side restaurant at the above address.

I was such a neophyte in the area that when its zoning first came up at a township board meeting I wrote that the site was on the Livonia side of town, not knowing that Ann Arbor Road and Ann Arbor Trail have two confluences.

My editors never noticed the error, but a politician who knew better, Bob Dwyer, hosted an afternoon at Mango's demonstrating that those thoroughfares meet on the west as well as east, and that's where the battle was being fought.

Mango had built his pub before the township had enacted its zoning ordinance. When the latter was adopted, he couldn't be chased out, but neither could he expand as he wanted to do, with Demel's legal assistance. That status is called "non-conforming use."

Time passeth, and early in the '70s Frank sold out to an experienced Greek restaurant conglomerate that included John and Peter Ginopolis, Jimmy Capanika and Jim Tillis. The latter pair owned Mr. Mike's and in 1984 the group is still intertwined in too many restaurants for me to recite.

The Ginopolis family later re-sold to Adam Stoya and Paul Rosu on a land contract and the resulting Liquor Control Commission license read, "Romanian Restaurants, Inc." Adam and Paul remodeled the interior, within zoning restraints, and gave the outside a new look, but still were restricted from enlarging their physical space.

Business slumped despite Adam's brilliance as a chef. A hole in the ground intended for northward expansion remained exactly that—a hole in the ground—and pretty soon Adam and Paul fell behind on payments. Foreclosure followed, the Ginopolis clan taking over again.

Meanwhile, the Michigan Legislature modified "non-conforming use" restrictions. Also, and quite without public attention, the Township Board of Appeals, granted a permit for Ann Arbor Road House expansion. The only hitch was owner ability to finance it.

Updating it all, despite being closed most of June because of a technicality in license renewal negotiations with the LCC, the restaurant now is back in full and legal operation. Pete Peponis, a cousin of the Ginopolis brothers, operates it as receiver.

Through inter-marriage, this clan owns two of the celebrity meccas of the mid-west: Uncle Ted Gregory's Montgomery Inn north of Cincinnati, one of the nation's most famous rib houses, and the Ginopolis restaurant in Farmington Hills. Peponis thinks the establishment here can build the same appeal.

When it does, and when ultimate renovation takes place, Demel's chuckle will shake the heavens.

Lysaght longs for his sewer days

Balloon fest was good family fun

Down The Road

By Brian Lysaght

I took in my first hot air balloon festival this weekend and I wrote my first ballooning story last week. The first thing I learned is that 'balloon' is spelled with two 'l's.

The second thing I learned is that you have to get out of bed awful early to watch hot air balloons. Those floating machines like to leave the ground around sunrise. That means the alarm rings at 5 a.m. or so.

I was a balloon watcher Sunday morning but couldn't bring myself to rise before 6 a.m. I saw a few hardcore spectators out there Sunday morn - more than I expected - but parking spaces sure weren't hard to find.

Sunday evening was a different story. The crowd filled the park's hill and then some. It was certainly a family affair with hundreds of moms and pops bringing the kids along.

And there were thousands of kids.

The playground at McClumpha park was loaded with kids. Those knee-highs swarmed across that property like ants on crumbs.

The swings were swinging. I saw two little girls place their dolls on the seats and begin pushing so the dolls got a nice smooth ride. Kids were climbing and crowding all over each other on the monkey bars.

I saw some puny boys hanging out by a sewer pipe. I wished I was their age. As a little punk, I too preferred playing in earthy places like sewers and creeks to those sedate, backyard sandboxes.

A few kids were separated from their parents (or vice-versa) but with the help of a Master of Ceremonies and a watchful crowd, I think they were found.

Poor Tom Dean. He did a masterful job as MC but it took a while to get the radio station changed. Before Dean took the stage the P.A. system's dial was tuned to WJOI or something like that. Dean, you see, works for another station (WCLS, I think, making the choice Class versus Joy).

Plymouth Township officials estimated attendance during the weekend at 150,000. That's a lot of moms and dads and sisters and brothers and lovers. That's a lot of cars to park and direct too. Hats off to Police Chief Carl Berry and the Community Service Officers (despite my column last week) each of whom worked many hours this weekend.

Hats off also to all the balloonists and balloon chasers and hangers on.

Quote of the week: Plymouth Police Chief Ralph White expressing his displeasure with a recently clean-shaven reporter: "You wrote better when you had your beard."

Jaycees thank community for July 4th support

OPEN LETTER TO THE EDITOR, TO THE PLYMOUTH COMMUNITY:

I would like to take this opportunity, on behalf of the entire membership of the Plymouth Jaycees, to express our appreciation to each and every one of you for your support of our Annual Fourth of July activities. This project is especially enjoyable to us because of the response of everyone involved.

Whether it is the Five-Mile-Run, parade, or the fireworks, there is always the feeling that everyone genuinely supports us and is having a good time. It is this feeling of support and acceptance that has always made the Plymouth community a very special place and the residents very, very special people.

Trying to thank everyone for their support of our Fourth of July activities seems impossible. With all the individuals and businesses who help, both monetarily and in spirit, the only list that would be truly complete would be to recopy the Plymouth-area phone book.

There are some individuals, however, without whom our Independence Day activities would not have been possible.

To these I would like to direct special thanks:

The Community Crier and Plymouth Observer for their tremendous press coverage, not only on the Fourth itself, but also coverage of activities and progress leading up to the Fourth.

Both the City of Plymouth and Township of Plymouth for their outstanding cooperation and support.

The various community departments (Police, Fire and DPW) who saw to it that items like traffic rerouting and control, street closing and other precautions were available and completed as needed. Special thanks to the Fire and Police Departments who made special sacrifices so the events could be conducted as they were.

Mayor David Pugh, City Manager Henry Graper and Township Supervisor Maurice Breen for their unfaltering support and enthusiasm for our project. It is these individuals and their attitude which make Plymouth an "All American Community".

Denny Campbell for sharing his enthusiasm as Master of Ceremonies for the parade.

The following businesses for co-sponsoring the Five Mile Run: First of America Bank, Budweiser, Krogers, McDonalds and Vic Tanny's. This assistance allowed us to more effectively focus our attentions elsewhere.

Special thanks to Livonia Community Radio Watch, Plymouth Area React and our civilian volunteers who handled the traffic control for the Five-Mile-Run.

Special Thanks to Eldon "Bud" Martin who served as Parade Grand Marshal.

To the following Car Dealers for providing the finest transportation for the parade: Dick Scott Buick, Bob Jeanotte Pontiac and Fox Hills Chrysler-Plymouth.

Budweiser and Central Distributors, Paul's Concessions, Mayflower Hotel, J.B. Gibbons and Assoc., Dr. Clifton McLellan, Dr. Greg Gingell, Coiffures buy Joseph and Rex Umney's Auto Repair. This is the kind of community involvement which shows a belief on the part of their management that Plymouth is more than just a place to distribute and sell their products. It is a community of individuals with needs and interests and they, as a business, wish to try and address those needs and interests.

Special thanks to the judges: Bill Ventola, Katherine Perry, Rev. Francis Byrne.

Special thanks to Burroughs Corporation for the use of their parking lots and to Plymouth Parks and Recreation for the use of Massey Field for the fireworks display.

Special thanks to Suzanne Skubick and the Omnicom Cable T.V. crew for an excellent job on filming the parade.

And last, but never least, the ever-growing list of contributors to this project. Whether it was a five dollar check or the sponsorship of an entire band, without YOU the parade would not have been and Plymouth would not be Plymouth.

In closing, I would like to add two things:

1) I wish to apologize to the individuals who were inconvenienced due to our activities or errors we may have made. The magnitude of the entire day's activities almost ensures that some arrangement, sometimes big/ sometimes small, will be overlooked causing someone not to be able to enjoy some part of the day's activities as much as anticipated.

To these people, I ask indulgence. Knowing we learn by our mistakes, I can assure you this year's problem areas will not be next year's.

2) I hope our activities for the remainder of this year and, for that matter, as long as the Plymouth Jaycees exist, will receive the same enthusiastic support and will be acceptable to the community as the Fourth of July.

Thank you again, residents of Plymouth, you are what will make this country great again.

FRED EAGLE AND STEVE COX
CO-CHAIRMEN 1984 FOURTH OF JULY PARADE —
PLYMOUTH JAYCEES

From the Inside Looking Out By Cheryl Eberwein

It's been a long time since I've seen a group of self-motivators take off and run flat out like the Canton Sesquicentennial Committee has done this year. Somewhere behind, in the whirlwind trail of activity that Sesquicentennial Committee members have left behind them, books have been published, formal balls hosted, time capsules put together and china plates painted.

What's astounding about the list of activities and accomplishments the group has undertaken is not, however, its length (which is surprisingly long). There are a number of active community groups who can legitimately and proudly claim they too publish books, host dances and promote their community through a number of special activities.

What actually makes the Sesquicentennial Committee so unique is that it is less than a year old, has brought together people from every segment of the Canton community, and will become defunct again at the end of the year.

Committee chairman Mary Dingeldey has been instrumental in encouraging her army of committee individuals to think of what they are doing in a historical rather than immediate sense. Had not this attitude of honoring the past for the sake of the future prevailed throughout every Sesquicentennial project undertaken, the whole celebration might have been mired down by its the temporary nature.

Before the Sesquicentennial Committee and the Sesquicentennial logo began popping up all around Canton, I didn't know many people who would willingly sacrifice their time, energy and sanity for the sake of a one year birthday party. Now I know an entire committee and entire community of people who have worked to make Canton's past a proud part of the township.

Dingeldey recently told me the Sesquicentennial Committee is going through a bit of a slump right now. "There just isn't that much going on and we're getting ready to gear up," she said.

Dingeldey's idea of a slump includes, among other things, the recent completion of a commemorative book, plans for another ball in October, an upcoming community auction, burial of the time capsule and a historic home tour, the sale of cookbooks, t-shirts, jerseys and plates, and the manning of a Sesquicentennial booth throughout the Canton Country Festival.

Before, it included, along with the dance and production of the books, shirts and plates, a fashion show, writing every other Canton in the country, and the production of a special edition newspaper.

Slump?! Dingeldey and her mighty band of volunteers haven't learned the meaning of the word yet. And that, for all fortunate Canton residents, is a very good thing.

Canton Country Fest volunteers thanked

EDITOR:

We wish to compliment you on the fine coverage of the Canton Country Festival. After months of planning and weeks of concentrated effort, a job-well-done and a "thank you" are heartily appreciated.

While we can never list the names of each individual who gives of his free time for the good of the entire community, we can only hope they all know how much their efforts are appreciated.

We at the Canton Chamber of Commerce wish to add our thanks and congratulations to all festival volunteers who take from their free time - away from families - to make Canton proud of a fine family event.

We look forward to, and have already begun planning for, participating in the 1984 Canton Country Festival.

Canton's

Don Baker honors

The King

BY CHERYLEBERWEIN

Don Baker says he can croon out the lyrics to "Suspicious Minds," "Burning Love," "Trilogy," and "Jailhouse Rock" with all feeling and sincerity the late Elvis Presley once used in performing them. When he performs his "Elvis Story" on stage, his jumpsuits are copies of the clothes Presley wore. When he moves with the music, his hips gyrate and wiggle as fast as Presley's once did.

But there is one thing Baker, a Canton Township resident, private detective, former Southgate police officer and father of three teenaged children, says he can't do as well as "the King" once did. "I can't be Elvis Presley and I don't try to be," he says.

Baker is one of several performing artists in the Detroit area who has chosen to focus on Presley's career for his own stage performances. But he remains adamant he is not a typical "Elvis impersonator" he said many of the other artists choose to be.

"I perform a three-part show on Elvis featuring his music from the 50s, 60s and 70s, but I don't impersonate him. I pay tribute to his music because I love it so much. I talk about Elvis and about his life story. No one leaves my show thinking they've just seen Elvis again," Baker said.

In his own right, Baker is an experienced musician who has performed in bands and on stage since his teenage years in Detroit. He became interested in "the King's" music at that time and began to pick up on the facial expressions, body motions and voice intonations Presley used when performing.

Although music was a strong interest, however, Baker was also harbored another love - law enforcement. It was this interest in law which eventually pushed him to enter the Detroit Police Academy and receive state certification as a police officer.

Baker joined the Southgate Police Department in 1972. In 1976, he performed an Elvis tribute on stage for the first time since joining the force. The performance not only renewed his interest in his music, but also brought him the instant nickname the "singing, swinging Southgate cop."

"One guy once came up to me and said he saw me on stage at 2 a.m. and back in a squad car at 6 a.m. I guess I needed a phone booth to change in back in those days," Baker said.

Although Baker said his police chief never questioned a possible conflict of interests between his two careers, he began to feel a need to develop his musical talents more fully. "I loved police work, but after nine years with the department I felt like I was at a standstill in my career," Baker said. "I retired from the department to start my own detective agency and to devote more time to my music."

Baker has operated his detective agency Baker Baker for the past three years. At the same time that he has developed his agency, he has also worked at developing his musical career.

"It's difficult to get started when no one knows who you are," Baker said. "I've started to get a small following of my own for my music and I plan on recording a record in the near future. I've done several of my own original songs which are good. But exposure is the main thing with my performances."

Although Baker is well-known in the Downriver area for his Presley show, he also performs jazz, country and western, popular rock, and rock and roll. He has performed music tributes to artists like Neil Diamond Tom Jones, and Engelbert Humperdink, and performs a variety show of artists after a single artist tribute to familiarize his audience with his own diverse talents.

"I have my own performance style," Baker said. "When people come to see me, they come to hear my tribute to the artist. I'm not Don Presley or Elvis Baker - I don't try to lift Elvis and be an impersonator. I've had people tell me they like my interpretation of a song better than the original."

Baker said he has even signed autographs after performances. "And I've signed some pretty unusual objects," he said with a chuckle.

"I want to bring Las Vegas type music to this area without making people go out to Las Vegas to hear it," Baker said. "Eventually I'd like to start a promotional studio where I can help local artists get started and gain recognition. I have a goal to help promote others."

Baker and his Presley back-up band Nightwatch (named after his former police days) will perform at the Plymouth Cultural Center this Friday, July 13 at 8 p.m. Admission to the two-hour long tribute to "the King" are $5 and may be purchased in advance from B2B Productions, 14024 Eureka Road, Southgate, MI. 48195. Tickets for the performance will also be available at the door.

tell it to Phyllis

The only thing bad about vacations is that they come to an end, and before you know it you're back at the office trying to figure out what's going on.

As I look at the piles of work that have to be done, my mind is still out in California. I can still see the waves rolling up on the beach and feel the warm sun beating down on me. Maybe the warm feeling has something to do with the fact that half of me is still sunburned and the other half is a mass of dry, dead skin.

Swimming in the ocean is supposed to be fun. How can anything that cold be fun? I froze the instant the first wave washed over my toes, but I promised myself and the kids that I would get wet, at least once. As I took a couple more steps, the next wave hit and my knees were wet. By that time I was numb so it didn't matter how wet I got. It didn't take long before a big wave rolled in and knocked me over.

You have to really watch some of those big waves, or they sneak up behind you and toss you all over the place. They even have the nerve to pull at the straps on your bathing suit. I just wish someone had reminded me to close my big mouth. A mouth full of salt water is an instant reminder of how much fun you think you're having.

A day at Universal Studios was interesting. I think I'll view movies and television shows from a different perspective from now on. Did you know that Superman doesn't really know how to fly? That was almost as bad as someone trying to tell me that there wasn't a Santa Claus.

Disneyland is always fun for kids of all ages. Thank heavens some of us will never grow up. But then why should we, Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck haven't changed over the years.

I guess it's time to bring my mind back to some serious work. Wait a minute, if it's 9 a.m. here, that means it's only 6 a.m. California time. I think I'd better have another cup of tea to wake up.

WORKMEN at the new Canton Police Department site caught a lift on a beam at the work site last Thursday. The facility is rising quietly and quickly next to Canton Township Hall on Canton Center Road. The new two-story facility, which will adjoin the administration building and match its architectural style, will cost approximately $2 million. Canton officials say construction of the new facility will be complete by December of this year and ready for use by December of 1986 when the inside is furnished, wired and completed. Omnicom to raise rates?

Are Omnicom subscribers soon to get a rate increase?

It would seem so, according to a letter from Omnicom of Michigan general manager Rick Collman to Henry Graper, city manager of Plymouth.

"This letter is to inform you and the city council that we will be formally asking for a rate increase in the coming month," Collman's June 28 letter said.

Collman is on vacation for the week and could not be reached for details of the proposed hike.

"We are preparing our data and putting together our new rate schedules," the letter said.

"Omnicom has been operating in the City of Plymouth since 1980. Per our agreement with the City of Plymouth we gave charter subscribers a discounted rate for two years on our initial offering of services.

"Omnicom needs this rate increase to reduce losses and to get closer to a position where we can make a fair return on our investment.

"Omnicom has built and operates an excellent cable television system. We have added several channels to our lineup, and we continue to explore new entertainment opportunities. We've also provided much in the way of community service along the way," Collman said.

Municipalities have some control over the rate charged for the basic cable television service, in most cases the courts have permitted cable companies to set their own rates for premium services such as movie and sports channels.

Guns stolen from van

Thieves broke into a parked van in Plymouth last Thursday and stole over $1500 worth of guns that were packed in the vehicle.

Police say sometime between 3-8 p.m. July 5, a thief pried open a window to the 1975 Ford van which its owner had packed with belongings and parked in the street. A toolbox loaded with the guns was stored in the van. The owner was moving to a new residence, police say.

The thieves made off with three rifles, three shotguns, two revolvers and a pellet gun. Also stolen was a compound bow, a box of arrows and a muzzle loading gun kit.

Police pegged the total value of the firearms at $1550.

Foreign student given ok to start school in fall

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

A 16-year-old boy from India who is living with his uncle in Canton will be allowed to attend Plymouth Canton Schools next fall.

The school board members voted 5-0 to admit Bharatbhai B. Butariya based on an opinion rendered by their attorney that Butariya's father had established a domicile in Canton, despite his father's return to India.

A second admission request, to enroll an unofficial exchange student from England, was tabled. The board first heard the cases last month, but had deferred a decision until the attorney's opinion could be sought.

Canton resident Nagji Sutariya told the board that his brother and his brother's three sons had moved in with him in his Canton home on permanent residence visas. "Because of family problems he (the father) had to leave this country for at least six months," Sutariya said.

The two older nephews will attend Wayne Community College, Sutariya said, but 16-year-old Bharatbhai needed to be enrolled in eleventh grade.

Superintendent Dr. John Hoben said in June that the administration and board had always stuck by the policy the students must be living with someone in the district who has full guardianship of them, or be part of a recognized exchange student program.

Attorney Ed Tregelis advised that board that when Bharatbhai's father moved in with Sutariya in Canton on a permanent visa he established legal domicile and residence in the district and his return to India for six months did not affect that.

"The opinion in effect makes it quite clear that we could be acting illegally if we did not admit him," board member E.J. McClendon said. "It is a very well drafted and informative opinion. I'm glad we asked for it."

The second case -- of Englander Melanie Taylor, 15, who would like to live with the Judith Batzloff family and attend school here for a year -- the attorney recommended denial.

"From the opinion it is quite clear that she could not be admitted legally in Plymouth Canton under board policy and state law," McClendon said.

However, Batzloff spoke at the meeting and said that she is in the process of obtaining full guardianship of Melanie, a pen pal of her son's.

With full guardianship Melanie could be admitted under the existing policy, Hoben said, with no exception needed from the board.

The board voted to table the request. If Batzloff obtains full guardianship, Melanie will be admitted by the administration.

Wanted: Yuppies! Plymouth will take all kinds

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

If you're a Yuppie, the city of Plymouth is looking for you.

City officials are discussing the idea of attracting younger residents to Plymouth. The term Yuppie refers to young, urban professionals.

"We're not trying to get rid of our older citizens of course," said Paul Sincock, who studied the issue for the city commission. "There could be a co-existence between younger and older residents. You could have a balance." Sincock is assistant to the Plymouth city manager

"Everyone was in the 20s to mid-30s. Ralph was the oldest."

-Paul Sincock

Sincock said the issue is one of demographics. The average age of city residents is in the 50s, he said.

The city commission, at a goal-setting session earlier this year sought to "promote the city's quality of life to attain younger residents."

Sincock was put in charge of studying the proposal. A dinner was set up to discuss the issue with Sincock, Police Chief Ralph White and City Attorney Ron. Lowe representing the city and four young, white collar workers who lived in the area. The four were college-graduates or college students. Their employers varied from brokerage firms to large corporations.

"Everyone was in the 20s to mid-30s. Ralph was the oldest," Sincock said, laughing.

He said it took a bit of persuading on the part of Sincock, White and Lowe to convince their guests they were serious about discussing the subject.

"At first they said: 'How serious are you?' but we did convince them."

The group evaluated the city's housing, business and industry, and recreational activities in relation to younger people.

Sincock said the young representatives labeled Plymouth's housing market as too limited. They wanted more condominiums or apartments.

"Housing, for the most part in Plymouth, is unaffordable for college-educated, young people," he said.

The city also lacks the high technology or other kinds of business and industry which employ younger people, Sincock said. The four suggested more retail stores and restaurant-bars which would appeal to the younger crowd, Sincock said.

Sincock said the four yuppie representatives said events like the ice sculpture and balloon festival are popular among their peers.

"There are a lot of problems," Sincock said, referring to the suggestions. "We're not talking about an overnight solution here. This is a long term concept."

Sincock relayed his information on the subject to the city commission and he said they must study and determine further policy on the subject.

JEAN LAMBERT, academic dean at St. John's Seminary will leave her post Aug. 1

First woman dean leaves St. John's

BY SONDRA J. COVINGTON

Jean M. Lambert of Plymouth, the first woman appointed academic dean of a Roman Catholic theologate in the United States, has left the post to become a consultant for the Sisters of Mercy Health System in Farmington.

Lambert, upon leaving the post of academic dean of St. John's Seminary in Plymouth, said the attitude of the church has become "reactionary" and placed the blame on Pope John Paul II's conservative policies.

Replacing Lambert at the seminary on Aug. 1 will be Father William (Bill) Meyers of St. James Parish in Mason.

Lambert, 40, said she believes women should be allowed to become priests and that one day women priests will probably be accepted by the church.

"...the church has become reactionary ..."

-Jean M. Lambert

"I think that eventually it will change, because I believe there are always changes from the inside out and that since there is no real theological reason for women not to be priests, it eventually will happen."

She said a wave of conservatism is sweeping the church because the pope "does not understand the American church."

"The church is right now somewhat reactionary, and because of that, things will fall back for a while, and then they will come back again," she said.

"The American church is a very different animal than the Roman church, and I just think he doesn't understand that in a communist country under persecution. He does understand the freedom allowed to American people."

She said the conservatism will diminish as people are educated about the role of the church.

"One of the understandings that the Vatican taught us is that the church is the people."

Ms. Lambert emphasized training for people other than priests, saying it is important for lay people to have important roles in the church.

"I guess my regret for leaving the seminary at this point is that there would be fewer people who are going to stand up and insist that the priest is not the only one who has influence, power and authority, but that there are other people who have influence, power and authority."

She said women will continue to have a role in the church, "but always the opportunities are in a lesser role and not in a role of power."

She defended Dr. Agnes Mansour, former president of Mercy College for the Sisters of Mercy, who was told by the Vatican she had to leave the order of nuns after she took the job as director of the Department of Social Services for the State of Michigan. The Vatican shut her out because Social Services receives funds for abortions.

Lambert said Mansour had to look at the issue "from a global perspective."

"I think she personally stood against abortion, but it was misinterpreted that she was pro abortion," she said.

Lambert said she is leaving the post of academic dean after six years because "I think that every person has a time to go when you feel you have accomplished what you came to accomplish, and I think I have done what I can do for an institution."

Besides serving as a consultant for the Mercy Health System, she will continue teaching homiletics at St. John's during the 1984 and 1985 winter and spring terms.

Meyers is pastor of St. James Parish in Mason and also directs the Office of Priestly Life and Ministry for the Diocese of Lansing. He directs the Emmaus program, a continuing education program for priests.

Kosteva receives endorsement

State Rep. Edward Mahalak, a Democrat representing Canton, is supporting the candidacy of Jim Kosteva to be his replacement in the 37th district. Mahalak's retiring after 20 years service in Lansing following a heart attack in April.

In a letter to voters, Mahalak said,

"Jim (Kosteva) has the abilities and the skills to get things accomplished. He is involved in the community and he cares about the people and their problems. Jim is the kind of person we should have to represent us in Lansing."

Kosteva is a Democrat.

Unions endorse McCauley

Mike McCauley, Democratic candidate for U.S. Congress in the 2nd district which includes Plymouth, has been endorsed by five major unions including the United Auto Workers in the last week.

Other unions endorsing McCauley were: Steelworkers, Ironworkers, Detroit

Area Building and Construction Trade and the Southeastern Michigan Building Trades Council.

McCauley faces Democrat Don Grimes in the primary. Incumbent Rep. Carl Pursell running on the Republican ticket.

A Canton campus?

The Plymouth-Canton-area is a large provider of students to the college, since its school population in grades K-12 is increasing, while the number of students in other school districts is decreasing, he said.

Most of the schools in the other four districts the college draws from are experiencing a 30-40 percent drop in students, he said.

Burley, 44, is the only member of the seven-member college board of trustees who lives in Canton. He teaches business and math at Meads Mill Junior High School in Northville.

Board member Mary Breen lives in Plymouth. The other board members live in Livonia. The members are elected by popular vote to six- and two-year terms.

The college draws students from the school districts of Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville and Plymouth.

Her connection at Schoolcraft brings in the funds

BY SONDRA J. COVINGTON

If Sandra P. Florek has visions of dollar signs dancing in her head these days, it's no wonder, since Florek is in charge of raising funds for Schoolcraft College.

Florek, 43, of Canton, has worked as a counselor for the college since 1967 and last week filled a newly created position as assistant to the president for institutional advancement.

Her main job is to coordinate fundraising events. She also remains in constant contact with legislators to make sure the school's best interests are served at the state level.

During the past year she interned for the new position, coordinating membership drives and such fundraisings as a Hawaiian dinner dance, a sale of oil paintings, a golf outing and a bocce tournament (an Italian game). She also knocked on doors to raise money.

The school's fundraising goal for the fiscal year ending June 30 was $40,000, but the school outdid itself by raising $50,000. The goal for this year has not been set.

Florek said she gets ideas for fundraisings by "listening to people. People are so fantastic."

She has a positive outlook on life, never taking defeat seriously, she said.

"There's never been anything I've done that I've disliked," she said. "If you have a positive attitude, more things turn out for you."

She believes in the viability of Schoolcraft College, where she has spent most of her career.

"It's a good school. It's a stable institution. We provide a quality education. Employers are very pleased with our students.

"It's nice to work for an institution you totally respect. And it's nice to come to work and enjoy what you do every day."

She said fundraising events will be more organized in the future than they were in the past when "legislative contact work was done by whomever happened to do it. Now it's going to be more concentrated than it was recently."

She said the school's plans for the future include obtaining more space for classes, expanding the computer program, and streamlining courses to meet the demands of business and industry.

"Schoolcraft College's largest problem at this particular time is space," she said.

"We have not had space and right now we are facing a real crunch."

She said students choose Schoolcraft because it's cheaper to go there than to a large university; because of the quality of education, made possible by a low student-teacher ratio; and because classes are geared toward helping the student find a job.

The only thing the two-year college doesn't offer that four-year colleges do is dormitory life.

"You don't have that residential life, that comraderie that sometimes comes from living in the dorm."

She said the school, founded in 1964, has earned the respect of the surrounding communities by establishing an outstanding track record.

Enrollment of students from the five surrounding communities has jumped from 7,893 in 1979 to 9,008 in 1983. It is expected to continue this upward trend in 1984.

The school has a total budget of $17.8 million. About $6 million comes from local taxes, with Plymouth-Canton providing about 10 percent, or $1.7 million of the local funds.

State appropriations and student tuitions and fees provide the rest of the budget.

Of 504 Plymouth-Canton High School graduates in 1982, 105 attended Schoolcraft. Of 632 Plymouth-Salem High School graduates that same year, 87 attended Schoolcraft. As many as 50 percent of the local high school graduates have ended up at Schoolcraft within five years after graduating.

Florek said Schoolcraft tries to cooperate with other community colleges instead of competing with them.

"If we don't work together in higher education, we will not succeed," she said.

Sesquicentennial Committee plans more fall events

BY CHERYLEBERWEIN

It may nearly be the middle of July, but the Canton Sesquicentennial Committee is still perking along in high gear with plans to celebrate the township's 150th birthday through the rest of the year.

Sesquicentennial chairman Mary Dingeldey said the group is planning a historic home tour in September in conjunction with the burial of the Sesquicentennial time capsule. A grand finale harvest ball is being planned for October.

Members of the Sesquicentennial Committee have been busy throughout the year hosting events and producing Canton memorabilia in honor of the township. An invocation ceremony and Sesquicentennial Ball were held in March to kick off events for the rest of the year.

The group has published a commemorative newspaper edition, commemorative plates, a book detailing Canton's historic past, and a cookbook loaded with local recipes and tidbits on how to cook anything to perfection.

The committee has also produced buttons, t-shirts, jerseys, balloons and bumper stickers with the Sesquicentennial logo printed on them.

The Sesquicentennial Committee has raised a total of $38,687 through fund raisers and donations for celebration expenses thus far. Expenditures for the group have totaled $31,057, leaving a balance of $7,630 in the group's coffers.

A treasurer's report on group activities showed that some of the activities and commemorative projects were more expensive to produce than originally anticipated. The Sesquicentennial Ball, which cost approximately $4,600 to host, brought the group a profit of $770. But the commemorative book, just recently released to the public, incurred cost overruns of nearly $3,000 Dingeldey said.

The Sesquicentennial Committee's time capsule edition newspaper brought the group an $11,400 profit to work with. The paper brought in a total of $22,200 in ads for the group and cost $10,790 to produce.

Dingeldey said cookbooks, commemorative books and Sesquicentennial plates are still available from the group. Both books are available in most Canton banks and other public stores and places.

The commemorative plates are still available from Art Winkel at the Canton Fire Department. There are three plates in the series; each is made of bone china rimmed in 24 karate gold. The plates depict three familiar and historical land-

Floating away...

Thousands of people flocked to Plymouth and Plymouth Township for last weekend's Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Festival. Opposite page photos show balloons being deflated at the Township Park site and a balloon floating over Township homes. On this page, three ladies examine mini-balloons at Art in the Park; the traffic was heavy near the landing site; and directly below is Gordon Boring of the Wicker Basket, a co-sponsor of the festival. Windy weather prevented liftoffs Friday night and the Balloon Ball was a near freeze-out -- but the rest of the weekend was sunny and warm -- bringing many visitors to town. Early Saturday morning shoppers at K-Mart in Plymouth may have seen a 'flashing balloon light special' -- as several balloons made unscheduled landing in the parking lot there.

"Through the community relations department, the superintendent is working on the development of sensitive, friendly, cooperative relationship."

Business and finance: Hoben is outstanding in this area, the board said, with "a superior command of knowledge in the field of school finance. Indeed, our school district is considered a leader across the state." The superintendent has kept the board and other school officials updated and informed.

Management skills: Hoben received an above average rating and was especially praised for his clear, understandable budgets.

The board deemed that more work was needed in the areas of identification of needs and staff participation in policy formation and interpretation.

Intergovernmental relations: Hoben was rated outstanding in this area. "(Hoben) is highly respected at all levels as an educational expert. Plymouth-Canton Schools are viewed as a leader due to his sincere personal involvement, high standards and deep commitment," the board said.

The board said Hoben should expand positive working relationships with some local units of government.

marks in Canton - the Historical Museum at the corner of Canton Center and Proctor roads, the Canton Township Hall on Canton Center Road and the Cherry Hill Methodist Church, on Ridge Road.

The plates sell for $10 apiece. A special series of number and signed plates are also still available and sell for $20 apiece.

Dingeldey said the next fundraiser the Sesquicentennial committee will undertake is a television auction. The auction will be run by Suzanne Skubick, programming director for Omnicom Cable Television.

Dingeldey said the auction will take place sometime in August and will be run in a manner similar to public television auctions. Local businesses in Canton will be asked to sponsor boards in the auction or to donate items for the sale.

Dingeldey said callers will have to post the highest bid for items on the boards and will own the item if their bid is still the highest posted when the calling is complete.

Skubick and Dingeldey estimate the auction sale will bring in approximately $20,000 to the group. Revenues left over at the end of the year's activities will be donated back to the township for educational, historical or recreational use, Dingeldey said.

getting down to business

Lindsay and Pavelich: half of company moved to Canton, half sold to GM and closed

BY JOHN M. BRODERICK

Has Canton gotten lucky again? Maybe...

Lindsay and Pavelich Co. is moving its plastic injection molding operation from 300 Dunn St. in Old Village, Plymouth, to Canton. The company has bought the building formerly owned by the Canton Machine Co.

L and P Manufacturing, formerly the zinc die cast division of Lindsay and Pavelich has been bought as a separate company by the General Motors Corporation.

According to Frank DiCeglie, plant manager of Lindsay and Pavelich, GM planned to expand the zinc die cast operation to encompass the entire Dunn Street plant, and the plastic division of Lindsay and Pavelich would move to another suitable location. Plant representatives chose Canton for this site.

"But after we closed the deal on the new building, they (GM) told us we might not have to move," said DiCeglie.

"There were a lot of maybes throughout this whole thing, so we just said 'Let's get out.'"

Lindsay and Pavelich should be fully operational in the new building by the end of this week.

However the expansion of L and P zinc die cast facility at the Dunn Street plant will not continue as planned.

"We found out two weeks ago (around June 15) that they decided to close this operation and no longer utilize this building," DiCeglie said. "They pushed us out, now they're getting out themselves."

"With them (the die cast division) out of the way, this building would have been adequate," said DiCeglie.

Workers at the plant were not formally notified about any of the changes taking place.

"All I know is that my last few paychecks said L and P instead of Lindsay and Pavelich," said Scott Krzyzanowski, a former employe of both companies.

Mark Gentry, a former L and P employe said, "I started hearing rumors on Wednesday (June 13) and just kept working. On Friday they told us not to show up on Monday."

The exact number of workers left unemployed by the GM decision to discontinue plant operations was not available from company representatives. Some employes layed off at the L and P plant were rehired by Lindsay and Pavelich to work in the newly located Canton facility, however.

Efforts to contact GM company representatives about the L and P decision were unsuccessful as of press time.

Lindsay and Pavelich is continuing to make every effort possible to rehire former L and P workers. "We offered some workers jobs in our die cast plant in South Carolina," said DiCeglie. "We paid their expenses to go down and look the operation over, and many of them accepted."

2nd best in tourney Age no barrier for Stingers

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Coach Don Smith said his soccer team, the Stingers, made up of under-13-year-old girls is used to playing bigger and older opponents. That's just what they did last weekend - and quite successfully.

The team beat teams from all over Michigan and Ohio to finish second among the under-14-year-olds in the Wolverine Soccer Tournament held at Schoolcraft College.

The Bonanza League team won four games at the tournament but lost the championship 5-2 Monday to another Bonanza team, the Troy Lightening.

"We were playing kids that are a year older than us," Smith said. "But we're not disappointed. We did real well."

Smith said the team got its start in a Plymouth recreation league four years ago. They held tryouts last year, picking up girls from neighboring communities and joined the Bonanza League of select teams.

The Stingers have been successful this year, winning a state championship for under 14-year-olds and will compete next weekend among champion teams from other states in the Midwest Regionals, also at Schoolcraft College. They compiled a 22-4-1 record this year.

In Wolverine play, Smith said he expected the competition to be tougher in the first few games. Instead, the Stingers won handily, beating an Ohio team, Sycamore Arsenal 3-1 Saturday. Sunday they beat Genesee Stars from Grand Blanc 7-0 and Strikers III from Midland 1-0. They beat the Livonia Panthers 2-0 in the semi-finals Monday before losing to Troy in the finals later in the day.

"You could tell the age and size difference between our team and theirs," Smith said. "We were really outsized."

Smith says, unlike most of the other teams they faced in the Wolverine Tournament, the Stingers will be playing in the same age division next year.

"When we do get as big as the other teams were, then we'll be tough," Smith said.

Canton continues their domination in league

BY MIKE MCKENNEY

The Canton Elks continued their rampage of the Connie Mack League last week, as they won three games in a row, and increased their season record to 12-0.

The Elks are now the number one team in the league, sitting on top of second place Redford Union by three full games.

To begin the week, Canton mercied a stymied Salem team in six innings, 20-9. John Nissen started the game and lasted until the fifth when Dan Michaels was brought in to hurl. Tim Collins had a beautiful day as he feasted on Salem pitching and collected four hits out of four at bats. Chris Parsons also did well at the plate, ripping two home runs in one game.

The next game turned out to be another rout, as the Elks beat Oakland 13-5.

Mark Bennett went the distance for Canton on the mound, while Parsons and Tim Michalik led the offensive attack. Parsons had another home run blast and Michalik went 2-2.

On Saturday, Canton got their moneys worth against second place challenger Redford Union.

Redford Union jumped out in front in the bottom of the first, scoring their first two batters on three hits.

Redford Union kept Canton under lock and key until the top of the fourth when the Elks got their first hits of the ballgame.

In the fifth, John Longridge started Canton off with a double, followed by a walk to Jeff Wittner, and a single from Parsons, which scored them both and knotted the score at two apiece.

The Elks went ahead in the top of the seventh when Longridge got on base on a throwing error and Wittner bunted him to second and was safe at first. After that, Longridge scored on another throwing error and Wittner moved to second. Parsons then singled in Wittner and was knocked in by Collins' line shot double.

Canton held on to win 5-2.

Elks play tough defense but fall to Oakland

BY JAY KEENAN

The Salem Elks of the Connie Mack Baseball League lost Oakland on Saturday, 3-1, but Salem coach John Gravlin was still happy with his teams performance.

Salem, which has been making a numerous amount of physical and mental errors in recent games, turned in a flawless defensive performance on Saturday according to Gravlin.

"It was perhaps our finest game of the summer," said the Elks coach. "We had been giving up a lot of unearned runs, but we didn't do that on Saturday. We made a lot of great defensive plays when we had to."

"If we keep playing the way we did on Saturday, I think we'll have a decent team next year. I think the kids learned that they need to win with good pitching and good defense."

Hurlers Chris Belhardt and Jason Scott made their first pitching performances this year and combined for just three runs. Belhardt pitched the first five innings before giving way to Scott.

The Elks got their only run in the bottom of the seventh. Darryl Brees doubled, moved to third on a bounce out, and scored on Scott's sacrifice fly.

Some shoddy fielding hindered Salem on Thursday, as the Elks lost to Ypsilanti, 9-5.

On Tuesday, Salem was shellacked by Canton, 20-9 thanks to the aid of 15 unearned Canton runs.

"I think both teams were tired from the tournament. But both teams swung the bats fairly well."

Ken Harmon, Scott Anderson and Belhardt had two hits apiece for Salem.

Salem will host Redford Union tomorrow at 6 p.m. On Saturday, the Elks will take on Redford Bishop Borgess Buddy's Pizza at Salem. Game time will be 10:30 a.m.

The Salem Mickey Mantle team, meanwhile, was trounced by South Farmington Thursday, 15-1.

Salem gave up 11 runs in the bottom of the third inning as pitcher Dan Knapp "lost his composure and control" according to coach Gravlin.

South Farmington scored its runs in that inning on the benefit of walks, errors and a grand slam. All this happened after South had the bases loaded with two outs.

Earlier in the week, Salem was downed by Westland, 13-2.

Salem's next game will be tomorrow evening against Waterford. The site of that contest is to be determined. On Saturday, Salem will host North Farmington at 4 p.m.

Local pro in memorial tourney

Knollwood Country Club Pro John Molenda is among the national and local golfers playing in this year's Van Patrick Memorial Invitational VIII at the Dearborn Country Club July 16.

PGA pro Chi Chi Rodriguez will play as will comedian Jack Carter and two-time long driving champion Evan Williams.

The tourney is named in memory of sportcaster Van Patrick who died of cancer in 1974. Proceeds from the tournament benefit the Michigan Cancer Foundation. Gallery tickets are $5 advance or $8 at the gate. Call 833-0960 for information.

'Touch of irony' among balloon competitions

BY MIKE MCKENNEY

There was sun, there were balloons, and there were plenty of smiling faces at last weekend's Balloon Festival. "It was a tremendous success," said festival organizer Gordon Boring, "The festival took a lot of work and it just turned out fantastic."

Boring, who is also a balloonist (his sponsor is the Detroit Free Press), said the festival drew over 180,000 people to Plymouth Township Park during the three days it ran, easily beating out last year's attendance figure of 160,000.

"We had an incredible draw this year," he said, "But what's more incredible is we only had one problem; the high winds on Friday night." That night's event, the American Airlines race, was rescheduled and ran the next day at 6:00 A.M.

There was what one might call 'a touch of irony' in the associations of those who won the different events to the prizes they were to receive.

Saturday morning, Ron McBurney, flying in an Eastern Airlines balloon, dropped his bean bag closest to the giant X at the park to beat out 42 other balloonists for the prize. Ironically, the prize was two tickets on an American Airlines airplane.

American Airlines, was not to be had however, as their pilot, DJ Ostrand, came back and won the Eastern Airlines race that very night.

The third ironic happening that took place was when Plymouth's Scott Lorenz won the British Airways race in his Mayflower Hotel balloon. The Mayflower Hotel sponsored the festival. Lorenz gave the two tickets he won to second place winner Robin Green, who flew in the Pugh-Canon Properties balloon.

Another coincidence was that once again, no one grabbed the car keys from the tops of either sailboat. Boring said Tom Gable, a pilot for Labatts Beer, came the closest.

"The whole thing was just a pleasure to run," said Boring, "I'm sure I'll be back next year."

Boys sought for soccer team

Jerry Gibbons of the Canton Soccer Club will be holding tryouts for a Bonanza League Division Two team for boys born in 1972. The tryouts will be held 9-11 a.m. July 14 and July 21 at the Canton Recreation Complex, behind Canton Township Hall, on Canton Center Road.

The team will play this fall and players do not have to be Canton residents. Call Gibbons 453-8616 or 455-4180 for more information.

Crew's work on ground keeps balloon aloft

BY MIKE MCKENNEY

Behind every event there are always those whose hard work continually goes unnoticed.

You normally won't read a story about the Detroit Tiger's groundskeepers in People magazine and it's doubtful you'll ever see a picture of one of Michael Jackson's roadies in the New York Times.

However, there is one group of unsung heroes that does deserve at least a little recognition. They jokingly refer to themselves as "The Crew".

"The Crew" is a group of friends and volunteer employees from Plymouth Travel Consultants, a travel agency in downtown Plymouth. Under the directions of pilot-owners Mary and Pat Conner, the Crew is responsible for making sure their balloon, the Plymouth Travel Voyager, is kept in tip-top condition 365 days a year.

If you went to last weekend's Balloon Festival at Plymouth Township Park, you probably saw the Crew, but didn't even know it. That's O.K. though, they had a good time anyway.

"I really enjoy crewing," said Judy Carkeek, who works at Plymouth Travel and has been a crew member for the last two years. "It's a wonderful way to spend your weekends."

The Crew helps the pilots (Mary and Pat) find launch spots and unload the balloon from the trailer. Then they lay the balloon out, and inflate it with cold air first and hot air second. After the balloon is upright and ready to fly, the Crew watches it rise and sail to its destination.

As the Voyager floats across the countryside, the Crew follows obediently in trucks and cars and meets the balloon at the landing spot, usually an open field or meadow where there are no trees or objects that could possibly tear a hole in the balloon's fragile lining.

"It's a lot of work but it's really fun," said Roy Carkeek, who has worked as Voyager's chief crewperson for two years. "We're in it mainly because we enjoy ballooning, but it can also be very competitive."

Carkeek said, (and Pat Conner agreed) one of the most exciting things that has ever happened to the Crew and pilots occurred at last year's Balloon Festival. The Voyager came within ten feet of grabbing the car keys to a brand new Firebird.

"That was really incredible," said Carkeek.

This year the Voyager didn't come that close, as they drifted off 40 feet to the left of the sailboat mast. However, they came within 30 feet of the target during the bean bag drop event.

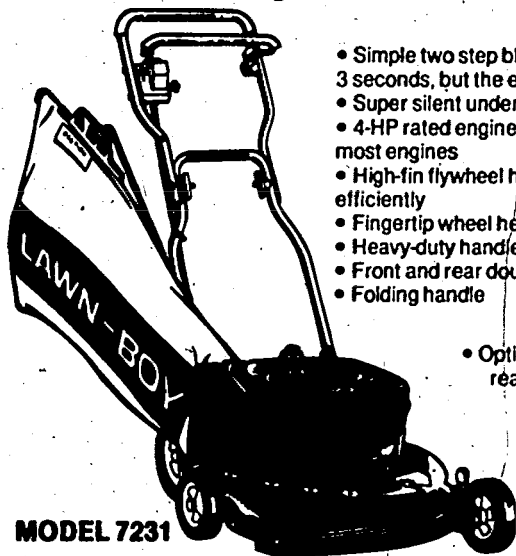

"We had a lot of fun," said Mary Conner. "The Crew really helped out a lot. It would have been very hard to fly without them. They are definitely an asset to us."

The Crew and pilots have unanimously agreed to come back next year and give the car keys another shot.

Sports schools in summer session

Summer is the off-season for the school careers of youngsters in the area. But for those who enjoy participating in sports, summer is the time to improve their games: to kick a bit farther, run a second faster, jump a an inch or two higher or throw a little straighter.

What follows is a roundup of summer sports schools for soccer, volleyball and hockey players.

The Plymouth YMCA is holding a four-day soccer camp August 20-24 for youngsters aged six to 12. The teachers are Schoolcraft College Soccer Coach Larry Christoff and U of M-Dearborn coach Van Dimitriou. Cost is $25 for Y members and $35 for non-Y members. For information call 453-2904.

The Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring two week-long soccer clinics at Lowell Field July 16 for players aged 9 and 10, and July 23 for those aged 11-14. The instructor is former professional player Jordan Mitkov. Cost is $46. For more information call 981-4350.

Detroit Express stars Andy Chapman, Billy Boljevic and Clyde Watson will be featured instructors in camps to be held in Northville July 30-3, Livonia August 13-17 and Canton August 20-24. Players will get 15 hours of group instruction and cost is $75. For information call 259-6414.

If you're a female Plymouth-Canton school district student and volleyball is your game, then Salem Volley ball coach Betty DeLano Smith has a camp for you.

Two are scheduled: July 6-19 and 23-25. The cost is $5 per day. Instructors include Delano Smith and former Salem coach Cathy Foust. For information call 668-9011 days.

A. J Baker and the Midwest Summer Hockey League is holding hockey school August 25-31 at the Plymouth Cultural Center. The cost is $130 and instructors will be area high school and college coaches and MSU player Mike Donnelly. Call 761-1001 for more information.

Schoolcraft College is the site of a basketball camp for girls in the fourth through ninth grades beginning July 23. The camp runs from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for one week and is under the direction of Ed Kavanaugh, a coach of championship teams at Schoolcraft College and Ladywood High School. Cost is $58. For more information call 591-6400 ext. 480 weekdays.

Blue Stars tops in state

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The state's best soccer team among girls under 10 recreation leagues, hails from Canton. The state's second best girls soccer team in that class comes from Plymouth.

That's quite an accomplishment according to local soccer buffs.

Canton's Blue Stars and Plymouth's Valkyries made it to the state finals and battled for the Tournament of Champions Crown July 1. Canton won, but just barely. One-to-nothing was the score and Blue Stars coach Mike Gulkewicz described the game as "hard fought."

"The fact that a Plymouth and Canton team made it to the finals shows the quality of the soccer teams in this area -- especially girls teams," Gulkewicz said.

The Blue Stars of the Canton Soccer Club, like all recreation league teams, are randomly selected. They've played together for three seasons.
