

It's a go! Townships finally approve Supersewer

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN
AND BRIAN LYSAGHT

The Plymouth and Canton township boards of trustees separately approved the controversial North Huron Valley-Rouge Valley Waste Water Control System service agreement Tuesday night.

The approval granted the go ahead for the $110 million dollar system which will increase sewer capacity for Plymouth and Canton townships and other municipalities involved.

Plymouth and Canton townships were holdouts in the agreement and their approval qualifies the project for 75 per cent federal funding. The deadline for the federal funding was yesterday.

The Plymouth Township Board of Trustees unanimously approved a resolution to enter into the agreement. although Supervisor Maurice Breen and Township Attorney C. Brian James expressed a number of reservations about the project.

The Canton Board of Trustees passed the resolution four to two. Supervisor James Poole and Treasurer Maria Sterlini voted against signing the contract. Trustee Carol Bodenmiller was absent from the session.

Breen said The board must consider more than the plan's possible legal problems. "We have to make a political decision while understanding the legal implications," he said.

Poole said he was tired of talking about the issue. "But whatever we do, it's bad," he continued. "Maybe I've been too close to the issue but after being lied to and misrepresented I find it hard to do business with someone on this level."

Parking deck hearing set

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Show up and speak up.

Plymouth city officials hope downtown property owners, and merchants do just that at Monday evening's public hearing to evaluate a plan to fund the Central Lot Parking Deck's annual $40,000 maintenance costs.

The city's parking commission came up with a special assessment plan which would levy based on nearness to the deck and the number of parking spaces currently provided by businesses.

City commissioners said last week input is needed from merchants and property owners to properly evaluate the plan.

"It's extremely important that the people who will be affected by this plan come to the public hearing because they're going to have to live with this a long time," said City Commissioner William Robinson.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m.

Aug. 20 in the city commission's chambers on the second floor of Plymouth City Hall. The public hearing is part of the regular city commission meeting.

Assistant to the City Manager Paul Sincock has been hand delivering and mailing notices of the public hearing, the first of two on the deck assessment, to merchants and property owners.

City officials say merchants want free parking on the deck so they can remain competitive with area malls.

The parking commission supports the latest plan which consists of five 100-foot rings radiating outward from the Central Lot. The properties nearest the deck will be assessed 36 per cent of the annual deck costs or $14,400. The second ring will be assessed 27 per cent or $10,800, and the other three rings 19 per cent, 12 per cent, and six per cent of the costs, respectively.

Woodland Meadows charged with EPA violations

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has slapped Michigan Waste Systems, Inc., operators of Canton's Woodland Meadows Landfill, with a $35,300 fine for what Agency representatives say are violations of federal storage and disposal standards for hazardous wastes.

Company representatives at the landfill, however, deny they are in violation of the law and say, instead, that EPA test methods are invalid and inaccurate. Michigan Waste representatives plan to contest the fine at a settle conference to be held in September.

Both the EPA and Waste Management, Inc. agree that there is no public health threat due to groundwater contamination at the landfill at this time.

Virginia Donohue, public relations representative for the EPA, said the environmental agency has charged Michigan Waste Systems with a civil administration complaint. Donohue said the complaint centered on three agency concerns:

- The Woodland Meadows north facility has only two instead of three monitoring wells in place.

- The program of programs used to test for groundwater contamination at the landfill site is inadequate.

- Specific EPA requirements for monitoring are not being met by company officials.

"We contend they are not meeting federal requirements," Donohue said. "We want to make sure they are because once groundwater is contaminated, it is very difficult to clean."

Michigan Waste Systems, Inc. is a subsidiary of Waste Management, Inc., a national waste disposal company. The Woodland Meadows Landfill, located on Van Born and Hannan roads, is divided into two sites. The north site, which was licensed to accept hazardous waste into the township, is the site under ERA investigation. The 97 acre north site was closed in 1983 after reaching maximum capacity.

The south site, 105 acres south of the railroad tracks on Hannan Road, has not been given EPA approval to accept hazardous wastes. The south site is still in operation.

Ray Kellas, district manager for Michigan Waste Systems, said the EPA and Waste Management are in disagreement over a specific test the agency uses to monitor hazardous waste sites.

"They use something called a student t-test," Kellas said. "We're in total disagreement with this test and so is the rest of the waste industry."

Kellas said the parameters used in the student t-test are so finely tuned, the slightest variation could throw monitoring off "and one way or another the site would flunk the test."

Kellas said Woodland Meadows has

$1 million jewel heist fails

A foiled robbery attempt yesterday of the Jer' Richard Jewelry Store at 40400 Ann Arbor Rd. left two Warren men in custody and approximately $1 million in jewels and cash recovered in the incident, Plymouth Police reported.

The same store, formerly located in Forest Place Mall in downtown Plymouth, has been robbed several times before.

Plymouth Police Chief Ralph White said the strong-arm robbery attempt occurred at approximately 11:30 a.m. A courier for the company was delivering a large sum of money and gems to the store when he was jumped and beaten by the suspects. White said the two men, Lek Gjakaj, 19, and Billy Spence, 24, beat the guard on the head and face and fled with the money and jewels in a red Mustang.

White said the pair were apprehended by Northville Township Police Officer Clyde Anderson at Beck and 5-Mile Road. All of the gems and cash were recovered and the pair are in custody in the Plymouth Police Station. White said they will be arraigned tomorrow on charges of robbery unarmed.

White said it is unclear whether the courier was threatened with a weapon. If a weapon was involved in the robbery, White said police will seek an additional charge of armed robbery against the pair. The courier was hospitalized with head injuries and later released.

School list's release violates federal privacy act

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

A school administrator's release of names and addresses of special education students to a political candidate may have violated the federal family education information and privacy act and the state special education rules.

Paul Zimmer, of the state attorney general's office, said Special Education Director Dr. Edwin Page's release of the confidential mailing list to Bruce Patterson "would appear to be a violation of the federal act and the state rules." Patterson was an unsuccessful candidate for 35th district court judge.

Zimmer said information such as the names and addresses of handicapped students could only be released if the district had established a policy to release "directory information" on students, had set up that category of students (special ed) for public release, and had notified all parents that the school intended to release that information, and had given the parents the opportunity to opt not to have the information released.

"In all probability they have not done this," Zimmer said. "Very, very few districts have established public directory information for their general student body even, mostly colleges use this aspect of the act."

School Community Relations Director Richard Egli said to his knowledge the school had not established a "directory" of student information for public use.

Page said Tuesday that at the time he released the information he thought it was not a violation of the law. Since then he said, he has discovered that it was.

"If they have not established this as directory information," Zimmer said, "Than the release of it by a school agent would violate the federal family education and privacy act."

Also, state special education rule 171, Zimmer said, requires that parental consent be obtained before any information on special education students is released, except to a parent or legal guardian, a school employe or another district's employe involved with the case, or to meet the requirements of the state special education rules.

"Not to excuse or justify it, but realistically probably nothing will be done about it," Zimmer said. "There's really no recourse, once it is done (the information released), it's done, and you can't take it back."

"An affected parent or student could file a complaint with the U.S. Department of Education alleging a violation of the federal act. If they investigated it and found it to be true, they would perhaps reprimand the district or demand that step be taken to insure the same offense was not perpetuated."

"The only real action they could take would be to withdraw federal funds, that would be pretty drastic," Zimmer said.

"The same with the state, if the events are as you describe them they would find a violation, but they probably wouldn't take action to stop state funding," he said.

Last week, Superintendent Dr. John Hoben said Page's release of the school mailing labels "wasn't condoned by the schools." Hoben said it was poor judgement on Page's part and said appropriate action would be taken.

Patterson used the list to send a campaign letter to parents of special education students telling them he was endorsed by Page and that he shared their concerns about the rights of handicapped persons.

"I don't believe it was a breach of anything," Patterson said. He said he mailed "a couple hundred of the letters" and said he considered the mailing list to be of "Dr. Page's friends."

Page said at the time he released the information to Patterson he believed it was directory information.

"I had checked the statutes and I felt it amounted to directory information,"

Page said. "I found out since that it is not, that you have to go through the process of creating the directory information ... that it shouldn't have been given out."

Page said he met Patterson, talked about the election, and Patterson expressed concerns about the rights of the handicapped. "I indicated to him that I would help him get this message out, that he shared our concerns and had a positive approach. We tried to contact parents who had kids in institutional programs."

Page said he was not sure about the number of names and addresses he gave to Patterson. "It was only a certain number of students, not all (the students) involved in the program."

site parking spaces a business has are also factors in the assessment. On-site parking spaces count one unit and credits one-quarter toward the spaces for which businesses will be assessed.

"We spent a lot of time looking at two or three different plans and this is the that evolved," said parking commission member Jim Jabara. "We spent a lot of hours trying to come up with something that is fair to the merchants and fair to the city."

Jabara said the parking commission had discussed a proposal with six 100-foot rings instead of five. The commission reduced the plan to five rings after deciding those businesses in the outer ring would not benefit enough from the deck to be assessed.

Fifth bike path attack reported

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

A 27-year-old Canton woman was sexually assaulted on the I-275 bike path Aug. 7, Canton police reported. The assault is the fifth such attack on a female victim in the past two months.

Sergeant Alex Wilson of the Canton police said the victim was jogging south on the bike path at approximately 4:45 p.m. when the attack occurred. Wilson said the subject ran up behind the woman, grabbed her by the arm and pulled into a nearby wooded area where he sexually assaulted her.

Wilson said the description of the subject matched the descriptions of the attacker in three of the four other bike path assaults. A second subject was described in one of the assaults and Wilson was unsure whether the attack was related to the others.

Police said the subject in the latest attack was described as a white male, approximately 35-years-old, weighing about 150 pounds with short brown hair. A composite sketch made of the subject by police closely matched the sketch drawn of the suspect responsible for the first three attacks on the bike path.

The other subject described to police is a white male in his mid-20's, with light brown fuzzy hair, brown eyes and wire rim glasses.

"We don't have any clues in the case at this point," Wilson said. "We have been receiving information from the citizens and we're following up on every lead given to us. That's all we can do."

Wilson said the bike path would remain open but had earlier indicated it would be under close police surveillance. Wilson said police were unsure whether the subject was a resident of the area.

"We originally thought he might live close to the bike path, but now we're not sure," Wilson said. "A few years back Dearborn Heights had a series of rapes, then Livonia, then Westland and now it's us." Wilson was unsure whether Canton's attacks were related to the other communities' earlier attacks, but said he did not think a suspect had ever been caught in those earlier cases.

 been under local monitoring by the firm Black and Beech for over a year. "They have not found anything wrong - and we have submitted ongoing monitor test results to the EPA. We feel this charge is totally unwarranted."

Donohue said Waste Management will have an opportunity at the settle conference to show why EPA requirements are invalid. "If they can prove their methods are better, then there will be some give and take at the conference. We have proposed the fine and the settle conference. They can appeal it if they want through a public hearing, too," Donohue said.

Donohue added there is no present danger of groundwater contamination at the landfill facility. "We are concerned about the future, however," she said.

Kellas said the north site of Woodland Meadows has several monitoring wells in place at the present time. But he said trying to test chemical activity in the clay-lined facility "is like trying to squeeze blood from a rock."

"They're trying to test a few drops of moisture trapped in the clay liner that has been there for decades," Kellas said. "If a few monitor parameters are up or down, it's explainable. The results we've had and do have are consistent and good. There is nothing to indicate there is any pollution here at all."

Kellas said the EPA "hit us with this out of the blue - and then a week later approved the closure plan for that site."

"We're confident all will go well in September because we're in the right and we know we're in the right," Kellas added.

Woodland Meadows came under local, county, state and federal investigation in 1983 when charges about illegal toxic waste dumping at the landfill were brought against the firm by two former waste haulers.

The truck drivers told The Crier, and subsequent investigative units, that they had dumped liquid chemicals at the facility between 1974 and 1976. The north site was not licensed to handle liquid hazardous wastes.

A subsequent investigation of the charges by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the EPA verified that liquid wastes had been disposed of at the site during that time. The EPA and DNR did not fine the company, and said monitor tests would be closely watched in the future with the verification that the chemicals were dumped at the facility.

4 field offices to move DNR to relocate in Twp.

BY CHERYLEBERWEIN

Residents of The Plymouth-Canton Community may find reporting environmental concerns to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) easier than in the past thanks to a recent decision by that department to relocate some of its offices to Plymouth Township.

The DNR will relocate four different regional branch offices to the former Plymouth Center for Human Development on Sheldon Road. Roger Rasmussen, regional director for DNR region three, which includes The Plymouth-Canton Community, said some offices have already been moved to the new location.

Rasmussen said the Air Quality Division, the Surface Water Quality Division, the Groundwater Quality Division and the Hazardous Waste Division of the DNR will be relocated to Howe Hall on the Plymouth Center grounds. Formerly these branches of the DNR had been located in Pontiac, Grosse Isle, Lansing and the Michigan State Fairgrounds in Detroit.

"We needed to move the district office from Pontiac," Rasmussen said. "We needed to move to get more people in one building." Rasmussen said the move would help coordinate DNR efforts between departments and the communities served.

Rasmussen said the DNR received a directive from the Department of Management and Budget to look at vacant office space the state already owns when it began to seek a new home for its offices over a year ago. Although the Department of Mental Health owns the Plymouth Center facility, it will rent Howe Hall to the DNR on a monthly basis.

"We'd like to stay there as long as they don't sell the place," Rasmussen said. "We don't plan on moving into any more buildings though - right now with the move we only take up one wing of that hall alone."

Rasmussen said easy access to the area's highways and close proximity to the communities the divisions serve made the Plymouth Township site logical. The new location will provide the public with easy access to the DNR offices, he added.

McCauley wins primary with narrow race margin

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

If it was a horse race, the photo finish would have shown Mike McCauley by a nose!

But it was the Democratic primary for the Second Congressional seat and the official word from the state election division 48 hours after the Aug. 8 polls closed was McCauley by a 'nose' of 181 votes.

An elections division spokesman said Plymouth resident McCauley took 4,670 to Ann Arborite Don Grimes' 4,489. Incumbent Republican Carl Pursell, unopposed in the primary, received 24,685 votes.

The McCauley camp said hard work was what gave their camp the edge over Grimes. "The victory was definitely a product of hard work on our part," said Scott Adler, treasurer for the McCauley campaign. "It's the little things that paid off in the end - visiting the small towns in the western part of the district.

"We knew we were going to lose Ann Arbor, we just didn't know the margin," Adler said.

"We are very pleased with the outcome. We are now in the process of regrouping. We have a lot of work to do if we want to beat Carl Pursell in November," Adler said.

Adler said the McCauley group is not discouraged by the number of votes Pursell received in the primary. "He's strong, but he's not a two-to-one favorite as those numbers would seem to indicate.

"Many people were drawn to the Republican ticket to vote in the Dunning-Lousma (U.S. Senate) race, the biggest primary race in the state, those people voted Republican right on down," Adler said.

Grimes, a research economist for U of M, said he was disappointed in the results, but proud of the hard race waged by both candidates.

"It looks like McCauley won by 181 votes, unless something interesting turns up in the next week, it was close and he won," Grimes said.

"Ann Arbor was a big disappointment for me. I had projected that at least twice as many voters would turnout (than actually did).

Grimes took the city of Ann Arbor by two-to-one and three-to-one margins in municipal precincts.

McCauley made up ground, however, with victories in his hometown stomping ground of The Plymouth-Canton Community, Livonia and in some outlying areas of the diverse district which runs west to Hillsdale County.

McCauley said he would have liked to have done better in Jackson, but other than that he was pleased with the race. "We just plain worked harder - even in Ann Arbor we had 20 people at the polls to his three or four," McCauley said.

P-C primary turnout hits new low

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Plymouth-Canton voters didn't turnout in droves to vote during last Tuesday's primary. In fact, the opposite may have been true.

Only 10 per cent of all registered voters made the effort to vote in Canton Township, a figure clerk John Flodin says is lowest in Canton's electoral history.

"I've been clerk for 28 years and I don't recall an election where the turnout was lower than that," Flodin said of last week's figure. Of Canton's 29,043 registered voters, only 2,968 - just over 10 per cent - cast ballots last Tuesday.

The contests for supervisor on Canton's Democratic ballot and treasurer's race on the Republican side, along with state legislature, county and Congressional races weren't enough to lure the voters.

Flodin said he expected as high as 70 per cent turnout for the November general election which includes the big one - the presidential race.

Plymouth Township Clerk Esther Hulsing said she was surprised by the low turnout at precincts there. She said 3,285 of Plymouth Township's 14,690 registered voters cast ballots in the primary. That works out to about 22 per cent turnout, a drop from the 33 per cent mark seen in Plymouth Township during the 1982 primary.

"I really thought the turnout would be larger this time because we had more local content on the ballot," said Hulsing who herself defeated a Republican challenger for the township clerk's office.

"I think possible people still get more excited about voting for governor or president. We're pretty low on the totem pole," she said.

The Plymouth Township primary was called all-important because the Republican ticket carried every candidate. Since no Democrats ran, primary voters chose Plymouth Township's officeholders.

Voting patterns were similar in the City of Plymouth precincts. City figures show 788 voters entered the polls Tuesday while 182 cast absentee ballots. That's 14 per cent of Plymouth's 6,685 registered voters. In the 1982 primary, 31.9 per cent voted.

Plymouth library robbed

Plymouth's Dunning-Hough Library was the scene of a break-in two weekends ago and thieves got away with between $200-300, police say.

Library workers entering the building Monday, Aug. 6 said they found an open employe door and the cash missing, police reports say. Nothing else was reported missing and about $50 worth of coins were not taken.

Police found no signs of forced entry and are continuing their investigation.

Supersewer: a history of unanswered questions

Under the proposed plan, Plymouth Township's wastewater disposal capacity will increase from its current 9.6 cubic feet per second (cfs) to 15.95 cfs at a cost of $1.9 million. Canton's cfs will increase from its current 14.4 to 60 at a minimum township cost of $9.5 million.

Federal, state and county officials named yesterday as the final deadline by which municipalities involved must sign the agreement in order to receive 75 per cent federal funding for the project.

Officials warned the entire project would be dropped if all the communities did not sign the contract.

Plymouth and Canton township officials said the townships would receive only 55 per cent federal funding toward any alternative sewer plan they pursued if the North Huron Valley system is dropped.

Canton Finance Director Mike Gorman also said a "no" vote on the contract could mean that other communities which have already signed the contract will sue Plymouth and Canton townships for delaying or eliminating the project.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) was strongly urging Plymouth Township and the 16 other municipalities to sign the agreement.

The DNR threatened to enact a sewer construction ban against any city or township that refused to sign the agreement. The ban would effectively prohibit any construction projects that would increase sewer capacity.

Plymouth Township engineer Mike Bailey estimated the the agreement, with 75 per cent federal funding, would increase the average home water bill by 19 per cent annually. With 55 per cent federal funding, Bailey estimated the increase at 25 per cent annually per home.

Bailey estimated the average home water bill would nearly double without any federal funding. Canton Township officials predicted similar increases for Canton's water rates.

Plymouth and Canton township officials looked for assurances from the City of Detroit, Wayne County and the DNR that Huron Valley system would meet all federal environmental standards. They also sought assurance that the Detroit system could handle the increased flows from the expanded North Huron Valley system.

Attorneys from the City of Detroit, Wayne County and the DNR workers Monday to come up with those assurances, a county official said.

"We are hoping for some kind of agreement that would satisfy the two townships," said Wayne County Chief Engineer Jim Hamilton, Monday.

But Canton Township Attorney C. Gerald Hemming said the townships had not received those assurances. "There's still a question whether the DNR and EPA will even certify the project," Hemming said.

It has been reported the Detroit treatment system does not have sufficient capacity and is discharging sewage waste at unacceptable levels during wet weather.

Plymouth and Canton township also sought word on the necessity of building a $50 million interceptor in Detroit as part of the new system.

"The problems with the proposed service agreement are severe and basic," Plymouth Township attorney C. Brian James wrote in an opinion letter to the Board of Trustees. James recommended the Board vote "no" on the agreement.

"It is our position that even if 55 per cent federal funding results, the potential disadvantages of signing this proposed service agreement far outweigh the disadvantage of reduction in federal grants money," James wrote.

Hemming did not say whether he recommended that Canton sign the agreement or not. He did say trustees faced two resolutions -- to vote in favor or against the plan.

Hamilton said the whole agreement would have to be dropped if either Plymouth Township or Canton Township refused to sign.

"If they don't sign, the project would fail for this year and what happens after that is unclear," Hamilton said. "There would be too many ifs."

Hamilton estimates the $110 million project, if approved by all municipalities, would be completed around 1990. Construction on the first of three segments of the system will begin next April, Hamilton said. The selling of bonds to finance the project could begin in October.

Events leading to the split

Twenty years in the making and Supersewer is still waiting in the Wayne County wings for the big day when it will make a community-wide debut. By now, however, most project participants agree - its golden image has tarnished. Once praised as the only answer to solve an ever-increasing waste disposal problem for western Wayne County, Supersewer, and its more recent offspring Son of Supersewer, are maligned by some communities today and are treated with all of the favor of the prodigal son who has returned home at last.

Below is a brief overview of the project's 20 year existence, as furnished by Canton Finance Director Mike Gorman. Gorman said the history below represents only some of the more important events in the Supersewer history up through 1983.

- 1977-1978: Canton performs sewer studies to look at existing sewer capacity in the township. Total cost: $200,000 to $300,000. This was the start of this township's spending in the Supersewer project. Local communities throughout western Wayne County became active with the Supersewer project at this time.

- Feb. 1979: DNR Director Howard Tanner says an environmental impact statement shows that the Supersewer project is the only one the communities should go with.

- Aug. 1982: A DNR letter reaches the townships which demands they stay with the Supersewer project or face a sewer ban.

- Dec. 1982: The townships asked to commit Supersewer funds through the Final Interim Financing Agreement (FIFA). The communities told they would get their money back if they were not part of the final Supersewer project.

- May 1983: The DNR writes participating communities and says only signed contracts, not resolutions, will be accepted for the project. Many communities had passed resolutions saying they would participate in the Supersewer project provided various questions and conditions were answered and met by the county and the DNR.

- June 1983: The participating communities are informed at a rate review meeting that the DNR had no intention of funding the North-South Supersewer connection. This is the first indication that the DNR might force the north service communities to use the Detroit Wastewater Treatment facility instead of the originally planned Brownstown plant.

- July 1, 1983: DNR sends a letter rejecting the Supersewer project because of claims by Detroit over the former Rouge Valley communities. The DNR also said it was bypassing the Supersewer project funding for 1982.

- July 11, 1983: The split system is introduced by the DNR. Canton and Plymouth townships are no longer in the Supersewer system but in the son of Supersewer which will send wastes back to Detroit.

Since the split, neither Plymouth nor Canton township representatives say they have been able to get all the answers they are seeking about the son of supersewer system. Both communities consequently joined in a lawsuit to regain their original FIFA monies and to challenge whether their original contract revocation by the DNR was valid. The lawsuit is still pending in court.

Canton's 'primary' results

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Early indications of what may be in store for candidates seeking November trustee seats in Canton Township turned up in last week's primary election although all eight candidates will still appear on the general ballot.

Four Republicans and four Democrats will seek November election. The Republicans include incumbent trustees Loren Bennett, Steve Larson, and Robert Padget and newcomer John Preniczky. Democratic candidates include James Bridenthal, Paul Denki, Frank Mc Murray and Edwin Rasmussen.

The Republican party took in the most votes in the primary. Highest vote getter in that party and the trustee contest was Padget with 959 votes. Following Padget were: Larson with 916 votes; Bennett with 914 votes; and Preniczky with 860 votes.

McMurray lead the Democrats as the top vote getter with 778 votes. He was followed by Bridenthal with 722 votes; Rasmussen with 654 votes; and Denki with 626.

In the Canton clerk's race, incumbent Democrat Clerk John Flodin captured 949 votes to Republican challenger Linda Churan's 888.

Canton amends budget to reflect new increases

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

The Canton Township board approved budget amendments for its 1984 general fund budgets at a July 31 special township meeting. The amendments, sought by Finance Director Mike Gorman, were necessary to balance budget predictions for the rest of the year.

Gorman said the 1984 budgets were amended slightly because revenues brought in to the township for the first six months of 1984 exceeded revenue projections at the beginning of the year.

To date, approximately $5.3 million in township revenues were projected for the 1984 budget. The revenue will come into the township from several different sources. Among those revenue sources are tax revenues, licenses and permits, intergovernmental revenues and charges for services.

Gorman said the the 1984 budget was amended because the township expects to take in more revenues than originally anticipated. Gorman said factors like increases building activity in the township, higher intergovernmental revenues than predicted and cleared deposit funds which were recorded as revenues accounted for the difference.

Expenditures in the township were also expected to be higher than originally predicted. Expenditures in the township had also been predicted at approximately $5.3 million. Gorman said increased attorney fees, expenses for old court cases, a full-time secretary in the treasurer's department, recreational building construction and additional expenses for the Drain Commission were behind the expected expenditure increase.

Both the revenue and expenditure budgets amended were for the township's general fund. Among budgets which fall under the general fund are: the township board's; the judicial; the supervisor's; the clerk's; the assessor's; the tax board of review; elections; the personnel director's; the finance director's; the treasurer's; and building and grounds.

Other budgets placed in the general fund and recently amended by the board include: the public safety budget; the cemetery budget; the protective inspection; the public works; the drains; the sanitation; the social service; the recreation; the planning commission; the planning department; the grants department; the economic growth department; and the general insurance budget.

The board unanimously moved to amend both revenues and expenditures in the general fund to approximately $5.7 million. Gorman said revenues and expenditures in the general fund will be re-studied in another six months to assess where final year-end budget totals ended up.

City buys land, plans to build a parking lot

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The Plymouth City Commission approved the purchase of a parcel of land at Harvey and Wing streets last Monday and plans to convert the land into a parking lot.

The city will buy the parcel on land contract for $110,000 from the Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union. The city will make a $50,000 down payment and use parking revenues to pay the balance within 15 years.

Plans call for the development of 55-60 municipal parking spaces on the Wing and Harvey streets site at a cost of $108,000. Some 55 parking spaces are currently available on the municipal lot at Wing and Forest which adjoins the Wing and Harvey parcel.

Under the city's agreement with the credit union, the credit union will pay the city $130,000 for "parking rights" on the lots. City Manager Henry Graper said Wing and Harvey and Wing and Forest lots will be first come-first serve as are all city lots.

City Commissioner Ron Loiselle cast the loan vote against the resolution, saying he had questions about the measure's wording - including the words "parking rights - and the purchase and paving costs involved in the Wing and Harvey property.

"I think the city is coming up short $88,000," Loiselle said.

Graper said he been negotiating for the parcel with the credit union for four-and-a-half months.

As part of the same resolution, the city commission cancelled a parking special assessment against the failed Four Seasons Mall, 555 Forest.

Graper said developer Jay Ross of Hazel Park is negotiating the purchase of the 555 Forest property and may turn it into a shopping center.

The commission, passed a resolution granting Ross a 50 per cent, 12-year abatement on improvements of the 555 Forest property.

Victory fever affects some candidates

In the heat of the moment... People take actions that, in normal times with cooler heads, they wouldn't take.

Although the political primary campaigns in The Plymouth Canton Community for the most part were clean and well-run - there were still a few incidents of victory fever getting in the way of good judgment.

We can see that after long hours of campaigning for yourself or someone you believe in, maybe the final goal of winning blurs the blacks and whites of right and wrong.

This should not be allowed to happen. The local voters do not want elected officials who throw out the rules as soon as the going gets tough.

Incidents such as the release of special education students' names and address for use in a campaign mailing should not be repeated. Dr. Edwin Page, the school administrator who broke the confidentiality by giving out the list, is at fault and so is candidate Bruce Patterson. Although Patterson is not legally at fault, he certainly must bear some of the ethical blame - an experienced lawyer such as he did know, or should have known, the list was a confidential one.

And in Plymouth Township, there was the general bru-ha-ha over the political sign ordinance and reports of selective sign enforcement that continued to crop up throughout the campaign. This is the type of petty stuff that should have been left to junior high class elections.

We hope to see cooler heads in the November election - it is how you play the game, and not just winning, that is important.

Make your choice Sun. - or go for both?

It's a sweet corn and ice cream war!

I don't suppose this most recent Canton to-do will erupt in major civil war. But unsuspecting Cantonites might be wise to watch for flying cantalopes and sweet corn missiles along Canton Center Road Aug. 19.

Sweet corn, cantalopes and, typically, poor communication, have caused a stir between two of the township's most active groups. The repercussions threaten to rain fruit and vegetable salad down on the heads of all involved for a long time.

On Aug. 19 the Canton Historical Society will hold its annual Ice Cream Social and Craft Fair. There will be plenty of ice cream, fresh sweet corn, cantalopes and crafty items to delight the visitor for the entire afternoon.

Also on Aug. 19 the Canton Chamber of Commerce will host the first re-enactment of a sweet corn festival in Canton in several years. There will be hot, buttered sweet corn, games, cold drinks and a softball game with the Detroit Express Soccer Team - enough activity to keep the average resident busy all afternoon.

There lies the problem (I think). If a resident is busy at one event, so the popular theory has been running, he can't possibly take in the other event as well.

Historical Society members are miffed the Chamber had the nerve to plan the Corn Festival the same day as the Ice Cream Social. Chamber members steadfastly deny any knowledge of the Society's gala event and claim they had little choice in choosing a date for their affair (because of the Express team booking).

Accusations and counter accusations are being whispered back and forth in the respective enemy camps. Snide comments are surfacing like angry little bubbles all over the township.

Boo, hiss these two groups are saying to each other. Boo, hiss I say to both of them on how this whole affair has been handled.

The Chamber, for its part in the drama, was not particularly astute in choosing a date for its gig. Although Chamber officers have argued it's not their job to keep track of every social event being planned in the township, it's certainly the job of the Chamber to promote the major events Canton offers to its residents and visitors. If Chamber officers weren't aware of the Ice Cream Social, they should have been - there is no reason for this oversight.

From the Inside Looking Out

By Cheryl Eberwein

The Historical Society, however, has handled the whole festival affair with the grace and tolerance of a small spoiled child. While it can be argued the Corn Festival may boost Ice Cream Social attendance, Historical Society members seem intent on believing the half-mile of Canton Center Road which will separate the two events will run in only one direction - away from the Social.

While the Chamber has set up a shuttle bus to move people back and forth between the two events, Historical Society members have made it clear they feel this is just another ploy to carry possible ice cream eaters away.

Come on folks - if a truce isn't reached soon both events really will suffer from lack of cooperation. Rather than talking up one another's events Aug. 19 and making the whole township aware of the two great festivals taking place, Chamber and Society members are in danger of casting an angry atmosphere over the entire day.

The Chamber for its part should act with more tact and knowledge in the future. The Historical Society could learn a lot by opening its cloistered doors and including, once in a while, new faces, approaches and attitudes to regular activities.

Now, drop the anger, catch those melons and treat residents to the kind of variety and activity they deserve and will get on Aug. 19 - if you let them.

Monday's 'best show' is at City Hall

The hottest ticket in town Monday night may be a freebie.

The Plymouth City Commission's agenda is scheduled to include two somewhat controversial items.

The first is a public hearing on an assessment plan to raise the needed annual $40,000 parking deck costs.

The other is the City Manager Henry Graper's plan to combine the city's police and fire services under a public service organization.

Graper has released few details of the plan to the press so Monday should be the grand unveiling.

The City Commission meets at 8 p.m. in the commission chambers on the second floor of Plymouth City Hall.

How hard should city promote growth?

Considering the building boom, is there room for a 400-foot-square music studio in downtown Plymouth?

That's the question asked by friends of Jerry and Mae Hoelscher who, for the past 26 years, have occupied the northwest corner of Harvey Street and Ann Arbor Trail.

Their corner lot now stands in the way of a proposed office-residential condominium project because the Hoelschers have grown attached to their home-studio after raising seven kids there.

It's not that the project itself is bad -- even the Hoelschers don't think any ill of the idea.

But a major question here is just how far should City Hall go in fostering growth.

As usual, City Manager Hank Graper stands in the middle of the controversy.

In brief, the scenario is as follows:

Commercial Realty Specialties, Ltd. under the direction of ex-Plymouthite Craig Sincock (PHS class of 1970), approached Graper for assistance in assembling the parcel across from the under-construction hospital for a 30,000-square-foot project. The city manager gave advice and scheduled meetings with the four affected property owners.

Apparently, although no deals have been formally signed, the three property owners other than the Hoelschers agreed with the idea.

On Aug. 2 Sincock wrote a letter to Graper saying that he'd offered the musician either 15 per cent of his property's $120,000 appraisal or a residence or business location within the project, but that Hoelscher wanted $226,000. "At this time, we are asking if the City of Plymouth, Downtown Development Authority, or Economic Development Corporation would be able to assist us in assembling the property," wrote Sincock.

The same day Sincock's letter was received, Graper wrote the City Commission, the DDA and the EDC a VERY peculiar letter that may just demonstrate how the current city administration believes in growth regardless of the ethics involved. To quote two paragraphs from Graper:

The only way the City of Plymouth could enter into this type of a program would be for us to deem that piece of property for some public use, and go through condemnation proceedings. Obviously, I would want to retain the law firm of Mason, Steinhardt and Jacobs to handle this for us if we were to even consider condemnation.

I would like to discuss this with you at some future date so that we can appraise ourselves of the position the city would like to take. I'm not suggesting that we should look at the condemnation route. I'm just saying that if we were to take that position, we would certainly have to come up with some good, feasible public use and conception for the project.

With Malice Toward None

Read between those lines, and you'll see Hoelscher and his accordion out at the curb.

There are more than a couple mistakes in Graper having penned that letter.

First, it's interesting to note that should condemnation be the route, the city manager wants to hire the law firm which is representing the veterinarian clinic (across the street from the Hoelschers) AGAINST the city on those condemnation proceedings.

Next, that law firm, according to Walter Mason, partner, "hadn't heard about this at all."

And lastly, Graper's mention of who he'd hire to condemn and that he wanted to discuss the matter with the commission, only gives credibility to the condemnation route. Read "come up with some good, feasible public use and conception for the project" as "find an excuse."

The Hoelschers don't much appreciate the tone of the situation. "I'm not against moving over, but I'm against being pushed out," he said. It's also noteworthy that the Hoelschers didn't protest the city's plans to help the hospital across the street or its assistance to the developer trying to assemble their property.

"I understand City Hall wants a larger tax base and that certainly is beneficial. But don't go rooting people out to accomplish this," the musician added.

In a subsequent letter, Graper acknowledged that "based upon conversations with the City Attorney and City Commissioners" the proposal's property assembly was entirely within the hands of Commercial Realty Specialties.

And that's where it should be.

Sincock, the Hoelschers and the other property owners should see if they can work it out and create a feasible project for the good of the community. If the economics dictate an outcome, so be it.

It seems that small businesses are overlooked the most by the current City Hall crowd. Pete's Shoe Repair on Fleet Street by the new parking deck was in that category until the city got the great idea to install high-heel-catching stairways off the deck -- one of which trips potential clients right into Pete's front door.

It's hard to imagine what the city can do to help Hoelscher's business clientele though.

The city should have rejected condemnation out of hand and played a more positive public relations role in the project.

It should also be more sensitive to answering the question: is there room for a 400-foot-square music studio in downtown Plymouth?

Through Bifocals

By Fred DeLano

In case you wondered, all's well with the Silver Duffers, a coterie of your neighbors from the two Plymouths and Canton who assemble each Monday morning from early May until late August to do injustice to the game of golf.

Drawn from the ranks of retirees and senior citizens in general, their pattern is to play nine holes at the suitably short Brooklane Golf Club basically for fun, fellowship and exercise.

Last year, when Chuck Childs fathered the idea, about 50 men and women signed up. This summer more than 80 have participated off and on, with 67 playing more than half the time. Their season comes to a close Aug. 27.

There are no teams per se and thus no standings are kept. The attempt is made to set up foursome assignments in advance each week through a blind draw of names to get 'em all acquainted. It works well, and I can testify personally as to having met many new and interesting people through our mutual love for this silly game.

Typical perhaps is Nicanor Lopez, a Cantonite in his 70s who grew up in the same mountainous area of northwest Spain that gave the golfing world British Open champion Seve Ballesteros. An artist who is active in our Three Cities Art Club, Nick took up golf just a year ago and already has a Silver Duffer scoring average in the low 40s.

We don't crown a champion or award any gold, silver or bronze medals in this organization, but if we did the leading contenders among the men would be Irv Milligan, Childs, Jerry Miller, Bill VonGlahn, Bob Arrington and Robert Bahn. They have the lowest overall averages. Milligan and Childs also are tied currently with best individual nine-hole scores of 31.

Sometimes the ladies look at things a bit differently, and if put to a vote they might rule that the biggest winner of the season was the colleague who caught herself a husband.

But if graded strictly by how the "girls" did on the golf course, Bobbie Dziekan would capture the laurels with an average that now stands at 40.6 and a best round of 36.

Ranking close behind are such charmers as Mary English, Ruth Kimble, Evelyn Miller, Betty Olstad, Bette Resch, Jeanne Jacox, Peg Spayth and Marge Voss.

Gold stars for perfect attendance to date go to Betty and Wally Austin, Chilas, Ray Kimble, Hilda Lister, Elisha Martin, Evelyn and Jerry Miller, Len Widman and that new-found star, Nicanor Lopez.

Changes are that, God willing, all of us will be back to have at it again next summer strictly for the camaraderie. That will give me a chance to go for a third straight brass ring as the one who most frequently talks a far better game than he shoots.

SCHOOL BUS

District plagued with breakdowns

Bus fleet deteriorates

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of news stories to be published this summer and fall on the possible need for a bond issue to renovate buildings and replace equipment in the Plymouth-Canton School District. The school board tentatively plans to bring the debt request to the voters in December or January.)

The Plymouth-Canton School board has committed to purchasing 34 new buses over the next two years to improve the deteriorating condition of the school bus fleet.

The buses will be paid for over a period of three years, with money now scheduled to come from the general operating fund.

However, new bus costs could come out of a bond issue, if the district's plan to ask the voters for a $4 to $6 million bond is successful. "If a bond issue were successful we would pay for the buses from that," Transportation Director Dale Goby said. "That would free up $1 million in the operating funds for other needs, such as curriculum, school supplies."

Tight school district finances have thrown the annual bus replacement schedule behind, Goby said.

"Bus purchases have been delayed for the last two years during which time the condition of the fleet has continued to deteriorate resulting in increased maintenance costs, greater difficulty with the annual State Police inspection, and increased inconvenience due to breakdowns," Goby said.

The extended school-year (ESY) has taken a toll on school buses too, Goby said. "Normally buses would be run everyday for only nine months of the year. With ESY we had some buses on the road day after day all year. We tried to rotate them, but some buses still accumulated a lot of mileage due to ESY, a lot of wear and tear over unpaved roads.

"When you look at the cost to build a new school, ESY was a good idea, but our buses are paying some of the price," Goby said.

He said 24 buses were on the road daily during the summer of 1980 when ESY was in effect.

The transportation director said the average bus has an expected life of about 100,000 miles. "We put about 10,000 to 12,000 miles on a bus each year. After about 10 years the body needs major work ... and by 10 years with 100,000 miles, well its time for major engine work.

Porterhouse gets a bakery, too!

Porterhouse meat market on Main Street in Plymouth has gone into the bakery business too!

Canton resident Toni Layton is the new baker at Porterhouse and she is creating fresh baked goods every day throughout the day, said Porterhouse owner Bob Rollinson.

The Porterhouse bakery now features bread, bagels, croissants - plain and filled, cookies, pies, pastries, sweet rolls, kaiser rolls, sub rolls, hot dog and hamburger buns, apple strudel, turnovers, and french, wheat, white and rye bread.

Soon Porterhouse will be adding other goodies such as pizza rolls and coffee cakes.

Rollinson said an added advantage of buying the fresh baked goods at Porterhouse is that the customer is not stuck with just packages of eight, "We are flexible in what we can sell."

County DDS woman to retire in Sept.

Plymouth resident M. Joan Rothfuss, of South Evergreen, is one of 45 Wayne County Department of Social Services employees taking advantage of a one-time, "early-out" retirement program for state employees.

Rothfuss, manager of the WCDSS office at 27407 Michigan Avenue, Inskler, will retire Sept. 30.

The early retirement plan was adopted by the legislature and signed into law by Blanchard Jan. 30. It is part of Michigan's effort to cut costs by reducing the state work force.

The department held their first retirement ball on Friday, July 20, at the Knights of Columbus Holy Cross Council Hall, 4831 Larkins, Detroit at 7 p.m.

The ball honored 18 retiring employees.

Large downtown project unveiled

AN OFFICE-RESIDENTIAL CONDOMINIUM complex has been proposed for the northwest corner of Harvey Street and Ann Arbor Trail in downtown Plymouth. Although the four property parcels have not been purchased, the developer, Craig Sincock of Commercial Realty Specialties Ltd., has formally approached the city with the idea. The 28,000-square-foot development would be an "upper end of market" approach containing up to 20 residential condominiums in a three or four story blend. The development company has undertaken similar projects, said Sincock, a 1970 Plymouth High School Graduate. Size of the complex may depend upon negotiations with the property owners.

Fastener came after the elephants

Many Plymouth businessmen had to go to great lengths to start their businesses - but few can top Wallace L. Smith who had to get rid of the elephants.

A little more than 20 years ago Smith went to survey the land he planned to start E & E Fastener Company on. The land had been purchased from the City of Plymouth for the start of the city's new industrial park.

Instead of new construction, Smith found a herd of elephants. The circus was in town and using the property.

But the circus left and that August E & E Fastener Co., Inc. (formerly E & E Manufacturing Co.) began producing small metal stampings.

Three additions, another building, and an increase of over 70 employees were added.

Last week, The Smith family and their employees celebrated 20 successful years in Plymouth and said they hope for many more to come.

The company is located at 300/400 Industrial Drive in Plymouth.

Westside Singles: food and frolic for $4

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Ed Stempien is opposed to the idea of a quiet evening in front of the television. At least on a Friday night, that is.

It was for this reason, and a few others, that Stempien, a Dearborn resident, started a western Wayne singles group known as the Westside Singles. Stempien said he wanted to end those quiet evenings at home alone "and get people out for a inexpensive and fun evening where they can meet other people."

The Westside Singles, a two-year-old organization, pulls its participants from throughout the Detroit-Ann Arbor area. Stempien said Plymouth-Canton residents are among the many who attend the twice monthly social dances he stages for prospective mate seekers to attend. "We have Plymouth police officers and firemen - all kinds of people in the group," Stempien said.

The Westside Singles is different from other singles clubs, Stempien said, in that the group does not have a membership fee. "We don't have member and non-member fees for everything," he said. "Nobody needs that kind expense."

But what the Westside Singles does offer, he added, is a huge dance floor, twice a month dancing, good parking, low drink prices and plenty of entertainment and good times for all who attend.

"My dances are always held at Roma's in Livonia because there is plenty of room there," Stempien said. "We usually get about 600 people attending the dances. We sometimes get a 45-year-old dancing with a 25-year-old but that's what it's all about."

Stempien said he started the Westside Singles after participating in singles groups for over eight years on his own. An enthusiasm for all sports, coupled with the discovery that western Wayne had no place where singles could meet, spurred Stempien to take his own knowledge of singles groups and put it to work.

"You can't beat the deal. For $4 you get in, can dance, socialize, just sit at the bar and eat popcorn if you want to," Stempien said. "We have local DJ's from all the radio stations running the music for the evenings."

Stempien admitted getting people to attend his dances and take the group seriously was a bit trying in the beginning. "But if you wanted to meet people you could spend $10 and have a cheap night enjoying yourself."

"You can't beat the people who come to these dances," Stempien said. "The selection of people is really nice. Not everyone has a heart, but I do and I like to let people enjoy themselves."

Although Stempien's newly founded club might seem lucrative, the 30-year-old says it isn't. "I make maybe $200-$300 per dance by the time I pay for the hall, the food, the stage effects and all of the other things which go along with a dance. I give the first 200 ladies flowers at the door," he said.

Stempien said he keeps his dances dressy to attract the right kind of crowd. But he admits not all of those people who attend his bashes are social butterflies.

"You've got to try and help people relax," Stempien said. "The hardest thing is to get people here - you've got to convince them that it doesn't hurt to come out and socialize."

Although Stempien said the Westside Singles is just a hobby for him, his goal is to own his own hall by 1985. Would the club then become a full-time operation for Stempien? "Well, maybe, but this thing takes a lot of money to run right now and it's really hard to say what I'd do."

Information about upcoming dances with the Westside Singles may be obtained by calling 562-3129.

COMMISSION ORDER

(Under authority of Act 165, P.A. 1929 and Act 230 P.A. 1925, as amended)
STATEWIDE TROUT AND SALMON REGULATIONS

The Natural Resources Commission, at its meeting on July 13, 1984, under the authority of Act 165, P.A. 1929, as amended, and Act 230 P.A. 1925, as amended, ordered that for the period beginning September 1, 1984, and ending March 31, 1987, no person shall possess, take or attempt to take, any species of trout or salmon from any of the waters of this state except by hook and line during the open seasons prescribed, and within the minimum size limits and maximum possession limits indicated below.

Statewide open seasons on all trout streams and designated trout lakes shall be from the last Saturday in April through September 30 (longer on waters designated by the Director for extended fishing under Act 165) on all trout and salmon. Statewide open seasons on all other inland lakes and the Great Lakes shall be any time for all trout and salmon except on Lake Huron and its tributary streams and on Lake Michigan and its tributary streams the season on lake trout is from May 1 through August 15.

Size limits shall be 8 inches in Lower Peninsula streams, 7 inches on Upper Peninsula streams, and 10 inches on all lakes. The possession limit for trout and salmon shall be 5 fish singly or in combination but no more than 2 lake trout or splake from Lake Michigan and its tributary streams or 3 lake trout or splake from Lake Superior and Lake Huron and their tributary streams, except that an additional 5 brook or brown trout may be taken from streams from the last Saturday in April through September 30 only.

In addition to one day's possession limit of salmon and trout, a person may possess an additional two day's possession limit of processed salmon. For the purposes of this Commission Order the term processed means:

- (a) Canned in a sealed container
- (b) Cured by smoking or drying
- (c) Frozen in a solid state

Any processed salmon or trout aboard a vessel on the water or at dockside shall be included in the daily possession limit.

HUNDREDS OF SINGLES pay their $4 at the door twice a month (top) and enjoy the dancing to music spun by top D.J.'s. (Crier photos by Ryan Glass.)

Having the carpet cleaned is one of those things I've been putting off for a long time. When I called to check on prices to have the living room and dining room carpet cleaned, I also inquired about carpet for my bedroom and having the family room carpet stretched. I discovered that it's less expensive to have it all done at one time, which makes sense if you think about it.

What I didn't think about at the time is where I was going to put all the furniture. Moving the heavy furniture in my bedroom was no picnic, but my son managed to squeeze half of it in his room and the other half in the guest room. There's nothing like having to climb over a dresser to find a bed when you're dead tired at night.

Then I took a look at the living room, dining room and family room. There was no way all of that was going to fit in the kitchen, dining area and hall. Okay, so some of the big things could be moved as they cleaned. The next project was cleaning the garage so some things could be moved out there.

I never realized how many books we own. There are bookcases in three corners of the family room. Someday I'm going to have all built in bookcases that will never have to be moved.

The worst part of moving the furniture was over when I noticed the walls. Good grief, I never realized how badly they needed a coat of paint. When I glanced at the curtains and drapes I knew they would never make it to the cleaners without falling apart. Before I went into a total panic, I remembered Rome wasn't built in a day. I knew if I kept my cool and didn't tear the drapes down, they would survive a little longer, until I could replace them and the walls wouldn't fall down before I got around to painting them.

The idea of having the living room and dining room carpet cleaned sounded like a relatively small project when it started. Now I know why I procrastinate even the small projects around the house.

An uncluttered layout gets your message across quickly. In most layouts the reader's eye should start at the headline and follow through the illustration, copy and price to the store's name at the bottom.

Avoid the use of too many type styles in the same ad, and don't try to cram in too much copy. Remember, simple and direct ads get better reader attention.

Harvest those crops ...

Don't pick that zucchini. Let it grow bigger and bigger and enter it in the produce tent competitions at Fall Fest.

The produce tent, sponsored again this year by The Community Crier, will be displaying the best of the area's homegrown vegetables and flowers on Sunday, Sept. 9.

Running the show and handling the judging again this year is the Trailwood Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden.

"If you grew it - then bring it to the produce tent on Sunday," said Mary Olonnell of the garden club. "We are looking for full community wide participation in all growing categories and for all ages."

Plums, peaches, apples, corn, zucchini, fresh and dried flowers, canned goods are just some examples of the things you can show at the produce tent.

Ribbons will be given in junior and adult categories for full size flower

26 large buses, 8 vans to be purchased by schools

repairing your personal car that has high mileage. The question becomes should you replace the car or keep making expensive repairs.

"Concern is and would be with the general number of buses and the condition of our vehicles ... whether or not we could operate safely and efficiently.

Goby said bus renovation is an option to be considered, but "You have a bus with over 100,000 miles, probably worth not even $3,000 and you want to put $10,000 to $15,000 in renovations? It's a gamble." He said the district prefers to replace vehicles over 100,000 miles, rather than renovate, "but we continue to evaluate that position each year as the cost of new buses goes up."

Goby said the three-year plan to replace buses calls for 26 full size and eight smaller van-type vehicles for special education in the next two years. One million dollars, in round numbers, will cover the bus replacement costs.

He said the district will take delivery on 13 full size buses and four vans before the end of the year and 13 and four in early 1985. This will allow the district to spread the bus purchases on the amortization schedule.

The state aid formula returns a per cent of the bus purchase cost to the district, the cost is depreciated, or amortized over seven years for full size buses. Lighter-weight buses or vans used for special education are amortized over five years.

Because no full size buses have been purchased in two year, and many older buses are off the amortization schedule, the schools reimbursement from the state has gone down dramatically, Goby said.

"The buses are also a public relations tool. For many parents (a bus) is all they see of the school district. It has to look good, look well cared for, look safe, for them to have confidence in the district, confidence in the safety."

Pair of Canton teams end successful seasons

Traveling girls finish 2nd

BY MIKE MCKENNEY

Canton's first-ever travelling girls fastpitch team recently completed their short but relatively sweet summer season with a forfeit win over a team from Howell.

The win put Canton's overall record at 7-4, the second best mark in the five team Livingston County Travel League.

"The girls made alot of improvement this summer," said Tom Theeke, Canton head coach. "I think they gained alot of confidence, proficiency, and experience."

The main drive of Theeke's club came from Margaret Gilligan, who hit .480 with ten RBI's; Leslee Fidge, who hit .464 with 14 RBI's (the best on the squad); Kristina Wines, who hit .350, with 9 RBI's; and Monika Benedict, who led team in hitting (.483), home runs (one, a grand slam), and pitching (five wins, one save).

"She (Benedict) really got better and better," said Theeke.

Theeke was very happy with his team's performance this season and said he is thinking about creating a bigger, more organized girl's fastpitch softball league for next summer.

Elks drop 2 in Marshall

BY MIKE MCKENNEY

The Canton Elk's seminar entitled, "How to Win at Summer Baseball" ended abruptly last weekend in a tiny Michigan town called Marshall.

The Elks, who compiled a 29-6 overall summer record, went into the state tourney on cloud ten after their 14-1 embarrassment of Waterford in the district tournament finals a couple of weekends ago.

In the first game of what was to be a four day baseball extravaganza, Canton kept the feeling alive when they shutout Marshall, 5-0.

Against Marshall, Canton accumulated all five of their runs in the second and fourth innings.

In the second, Jeff Olson started things off with a walk, and eventually scored on Tim Michalik's double. Next, John Rodgers singled, John Longridge dittoed, and Michalik scored. Then, Tim Collins and Chris Parsons walked, pushing Longridge across the plate, making it 3-0 Canton.

Two frames later, the Elks added to their total when Parsons smashed a two run homer.

One of Canton's pickups, Chris Tubaro, threw the entire game and held the hometown team to five hits while striking out seven.

Unfortunately, that was the last daylight our hometown heroes were to see.

The next day, both Lincoln Park and Saginaw pulled the blinds on the Elks. Lincoln Park beat Canton by three, 7-4; and what head coach Dave Racer called "a tough Saginaw team" knocked the Elks out of the tourney with a 6-2 victory. The two losses sent Canton home with two days left in the tournament.

It wasn't a very fitting end to Canton's near perfect season.

"Overall, I think we played well. The kids never gave up or hung their heads," said a proud, but disappointed Racer.

"We just didn't seem to get the breaks."

This Open is for the Bob Jones'

Here's one for the keeping up with the Jones' file. A golf tournament with a twist. The big names may not be there but the big name will be.

It's the sixth annual Bobby Jones Open. And the organizers don't care what handicap you carry. They care about your name. If you're name is not Robert, Bob or Roberta Jones you'd better stay home.

Participation is limited to namesakes of the great golfer Bobby Jones (1902-1971).

Proceeds support research on syringomyelia, the spinal nerve disease which claimed the life of golfing great Bobby Jones. For information call 357-4200 and ask for -- you guessed it -- Robert Jones.

MSHL has high school, college players, and even a pro or two

Summer skaters end top notch season

BY DAVID PIERINI

It's pretty hard to imagine hockey with these summer days of 80 per cent plus humidity, but it was here ice and all. For the past six weeks, the Plymouth Cultural Center was home ice for the eight-team Midwest Summer Hockey League which finished its season last Thursday night.

The league, in its second year, is a showcase of local talent ranging from NCAA Division one and two college players to the ever budding prep and junior stars gaining the exposure of college paced play.

"Our major goal is to support college hockey by giving college varsity players a highly competitive fun league for staying in shape," said league commissioner A.J. Baker. "It also helps younger college prospects develop at a higher level of competition than is available at any other time or place."

Baker has bragging rights when it comes to the league's competition he and his staff rounded up. Among the college players represented are Dave Chiappelli, Mike Donnelly, Jeff Easley, Rick Fernandez and Tom Nowland of NCAA semifinalist Michigan State; Plymouth's Steve Norton, Tom Dolan, Greg Hudas, Paul Kobylarz, Jim McCauley and Mike Neff from the University of Michigan; Bowling Greens' Kerry Kennedy; and Frank Damico, Judd Green and Dennis Garbarz of Ferris State.

One player, Tony Nilsson has come from as far away as Sweden to participate in the program and another, Gordie MacDougall, played in Scotland.

One person who served as an impressive role model was Calgary Flame rookie Rich Kromm who served as a coach and later got the o.k. by NHL officials to play.

But the college and senior players only make up half the league. The other half comes from the junior ranks and the high schools, hoping to get a taste of a higher level of play and maybe attract the attention of college scouts. Some of the locals who survived the three hour 36-spot, tryout are Plymouth residents Paul Norton of Paddock Pools and Todd Beyer, Craig Easley and John Smith of the Plymouth Royals. Other rookies included prep stars Matt Wiljanen, Kieth Walk, Phil Bryant, Dan Phelps and Eric Socia.

Among the MSHL topscorers were Mike Donnelly of MSU with 21 goals and 11 assists, and Bowling Green's Kerry Kennedy with 10 goals and 20 assists. Plymouth's Rich Hutchinson, a player with Baltimore of the American Hockey League, scored 11 goals and added 15 assists and is said to be highly-touted by Swedish scouts for their programs.

The leagues success isn't just in the rosters full of talented icers, but also in the end result, what the less experienced players get out of the program. Ann Arbor

THE MSHL ACTION WAS, at times, rough and tumble. (Above) Laker Mike Russel's hip sends a Wildcat sprawling. Last week's MSHL championship game was won 9-3 by the Wildcats. The Lakers were coached by Plymouth's Tom Norton. (Crier photos by Chris Boyd.)

Pioneer, class A state champions, had 12 players on their team, all of which played last year in the MSHL.

High school senior Matt Wiljanen who played on the year's MSHL championship team said, "This is a lot taster than high school. I'm not one of the big guns but I learned a lot, gained a lot of experianced, and its helped me as a player." Wiljanen finished off with a respectable three goals and five assists.

Behind the scenes is yet another success story. Along with commissioner Baker is the rest of the staff: Dave McGuigan founder of the MSHL and consultant for "Sports Dynamics;" Lou Issel, director of the MSHL; and honorarv chairman and Red Wing legend, Ted Lindsay.

"My involvement is my interest in Michigan hockey players and American youngsters who will find a place in the hockey world," said Lindsay.

The league is divided into two divisions; the Bake's conference named after commissioner Baker and the Eagle conference. Rules are simple; no slapshots through the first half of the season in order to tune up goalies. Fighting spearing, and butt-ending results in an ejection from the program.

After 13 games, the season ended last Thursday with the championship game and it was the Lakers, winner of the Bake's conference taking on the Wildcats who made it to the final by beating the Eagle conference champions Wolverines.

It was pretty much a one sided affair with the Wildcats winning 9-3, lead by a pair of two goal performers Ken Stelmach of Ferris State and Tom Budnick of Air Force each tallied twice and Scott Barga of the Finley Warriors assisted on four of the Wildcats goals to help anchor the victory.

The Championship Wildcat team earned the right to travel to Chicago to play the winner of the "Windy City" league and then participate in an all-star game.

League officials say that the MSHL will return to Plymouth next summer.

Laker Sean Flynn couldn't quite put the puck past Wildcat goalie Mike Tardich.

The Spartans tallied a 47-9 record in their three years of league play.
