The Plymouth Community Fund - United Way 1985-6 campaign is off and running towards the goal of $385,000 with $13,736 in pledges and donations collected so far, announced Duke Morrow, vice chairperson for the campaign.

The amount of donations and pledges collected is "about right for this early in the campaign," Morrow said.

The Plymouth Community Fund - United Way helps fund local agencies that need donations to continue successfully. Some programs aided by the Community Fund include: the American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boy Scouts of America, Growth Works, First Step, Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, United Way of Michigan, Plymouth Community Council on Aging, Plymouth Salvation Army, Senior Citizens Club of Plymouth, Visiting Nurses Association, Plymouth Community Family YMCA, Michigan Cancer Foundation, Plymouth Dental Fund, Plymouth Family Service and the Plymouth Opportunity House.

Dist. Library Bd. to meet Monday

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The Dunning Hough Library is a busy place these days.

It is the center of much political activity as the newly-elected Plymouth District Library Board of Trustees prepares to hold its first ever meeting Monday. Voters approved the establishment of a district library authority last week.

The board must formulate a millage proposal that would raise operating revenue for the library if approved by city and township voters Nov. 5.

The library is popular among book borrowers, too. The library lent 19,446 books in the month of July, the most ever in its 55-year history. That record is "really something when you consider we only have 46,000 books," said library director Pat Thomas.

Meanwhile, the 1986 Plymouth Township budget proposed by Supervisor Maurice Breen eliminated funding for library operations. The township and city have, in recent years, each funded 50 per cent of the library's operations. But Breen says a township millage proposal which failed in July has left the township strapped financially. He says there is no money to fund the library in 1986.

"That frightens me," Thomas said of the proposed funding cut.

"I won't be satisfied until (the township board members) get up there and and really vote that they're not going to fund the library," she said.

The township board were to consider the proposed budget last night.

The possible loss of township funding puts more pressure on the library district to get its millage approved November 5.

Supporters say the district levy, if passed, will grant greater autonomy to the library district since it will control

Millage caps approved

Canton millages to increase

BY DAN NESS

The Canton Board of Trustees approved millage caps for police and fire protection and the general fund totalling 9.89 mills at its Sept. 10 meeting.

The maximums for each assessment includes: 3.33 mills for police protection, 1.56 mills for fire protection and 5 mills for the general fund.

The Board approved the millage maximums after deciding that the proposed millage assessment of 11.14 was too much of an increase from last year, when the total millage was 9.13.

"What we're talking about here is a 20-per cent increase in millage, and that's unacceptable," said Trustee Robert Padgett of the proposed millage hike.

Several Canton residents spoke at the public hearing before the vote on

Twp. Bd. considers frugal 1986 budget

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The Plymouth Township Board of Trustees was scheduled to consider last night a frugal 1986 budget proposed by Supervisor Maurice Breen.

Board members queried Monday had mixed reactions to the budget and the possibility of putting a second millage proposal before voters this year. It was unclear from their responses there was enough board support for such a proposal this year.

Breen's proposed budget included manpower cuts through attrition to the police and fire departments, elimination of funding for operations of the Dunning Hough Library and cutbacks at Plymouth Township Park.

Breen said the township needed to cut more than $600,000 from the 1986 budget since voters rejected an up-to-five mill tax proposition in July. The proposed general fund budget totals $3.045 million.

Clerk Esther Hulsing and Treasurer Mary Brooks each said they supported putting a township millage proposal on the ballot this year if it was earmarked for specific use.

"You're going to have to tell (voters) how much and how its going to be used," Brooks said.

Hulsing said she supported a mill or mill-and-one-half proposal to keep the township on firm financial footing. She said she didn't want the township to have to borrow money next year.

Trustee Abe Munfakh said he opposed a township millage proposal this year and would prefer a proposal next year to avoid jeopardizing the library district millage proposal expected to be offered city and township voters Nov. 5.

"My feeling is that we have to wait until early 1986," Munfakh said.

Trustee Smith Horton said he was undecided.

On the township millage question, Trustee Jim Irvine said: "I think we don't need it. I think we can get through 1986 with sharp pencils, or pretty near it anyway."

Breen has said he opposes asking the voters to consider a second millage proposal this year.

Board members said the passage of the library millage in November would solve the question of township library funding. The township appropriated $120,000 for operations of the library

Supervisor questions legality of Trustees' gov't. proposal

BY DAN NESS

Canton Supervisor James Poole said the Township Board's move toward a manager/superintendent form of government may not be in accordance with state law, at a press conference Monday.

Poole questioned the four trustees authority to initiate and approve the manager/superintendent form of government without the supervisor's approval, and said the matter would "probably have to be determined in court.

"Any citizen could challenge it and take it to court," Poole said. "I do not believe that . . . the trustees have that authority."

Poole said he would recommend that the Board let Canton voters decide if they want a different form of government. The Board is not required to hold a public vote on he matter, but Poole expressed regret that they did not.

"I wish they'd reconsider," he said.

"The real tragedy of this whole situation is that four people, four trustees, have decided what type of government 60,000 people will have," Poole said in a press release. "It is presumptuous and arrogant for four people to decide what form of government we should have without asking the voters."

Poole said he does not oppose the manager/superintendent form of government so much as he opposes the change without a citizen vote on the matter.

The Board voted 4-3 at their Sept. 3 meeting to adopt a manager/superintendent form of government for Canton in conjunction with the 1988 elections. The change would make the Supervisor, Clerk and Treasurer's positions part-time, according to the resolution.

"I do not take (the resolution) personally in any way, shape or form," Poole said. Poole called the four trustees, Robert Padget, Stephen Larson, Loren Bennett and John Prenzky, "four of the best qualified elected officials I have ever met."

Poole said he would not file suit himself over the matter, but said the resolution adopting a change in government may not be within the intent of the law.

Dan Durack, Canton Personnel Director and a member of the Board's implementation committee for the change in government, said questions about the legality would be covered with the Michigan Township Association.

Durack also added that the implementation committee may have a report completed by next spring.

Commission to respond to Central study group

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The City Commission is forwarding its opinions on potential uses for Central Middle School to a committee appointed to study the subject for the Plymouth-Canton School District.

Harold Fischer, chairman of the Middle School Committee, wrote a letter to the commission Sept. 5 asking commissioners submit their opinions on the "highest and best use of the Central Middle School site and the present buildings on the site."

Mayor David Pugh, who is careful to point out that the future of Central will be decided by the school district not the City Commission, said the city has a vested interest in the 23-acre site because of its recreational use and its nearness to the Plymouth Cultural Center.

"I don't want to give it more importance than it's worth," Pugh said. "I don't want the City Commission to get involved in a school board issue."

He said the city would oppose some possible development of the land, like a business strip for example. He said he hopes should the school board choose to sell the land, that the city would help ensure it is developed suitably.

The Middle School Committee is studying alternatives for middle school housing which include continuing to operate Central, or selling the Central property and building a middle school in Canton where the district has seen its student population increase.

Some city residents are opposed to the sale of Central, a large and old structure which was once Plymouth High School.

The future of the school has become a political issue, a fact City Manager Henry Graper is aware of.

"If I thought the chance existed for the city to go in and buy it without creating havoc with voters, I'd do it," Graper said. "But why should I go in and become the guy known for tearing down Central?"

Graper said the property, should the school board choose to sell, could help solve the city's shortage of softball and soccer fields.

"If I could find five to 10 acres of land that was relatively flat, I'd buy it today. I'd go to the City Commission and show them how they could pay for it."

He said he would buy land for city recreational use in Plymouth Township if it were available.

Graper said he would be interested in seeing some of the property developed commercial or residential to help improve the city's tax base.

If the property were sold and developed, traffic patterns would have to be considered to avoid disrupting surrounding neighborhoods.

Trouble areas targeted

Twp. police write flurry of tickets

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The Plymouth Township Police Department has been writing a lot of traffic tickets lately—1,161 in July and August.

Police Chief Carl Berry stressed that ticket production was linked to the department's stress on neighborhood patrol. He said the department had targeted trouble areas in neighborhoods and was "working pretty heavy at the stop signs."

"Our goal is to get the police cars into the neighborhoods and deal with the problems as they arise," he said.

Berry said he didn't know if the number of moving violations cited was high. He said since the department was new, he didn't have figures to compare the July-August number.

"I'm not happy giving people tickets," he said. "We're doing our job like we're supposed to do."

Berry was also hesitant to compare the township's ticket output to that of the city police when they provided police protection in the township.

He told the Board of Trustees recently that the city issued about 200 moving violations per month in the township.

"The city police had a lot of other responsibilities at that time," Barry said.

He wanted to avoid a ticket output comparison with the city department.

The township police department has apparently been keeping 35th District Court busy; Berry said 37 per cent of all court cases came from the township. Plymouth Township is one of five communities in the 35th District Court.

Enrollment up at P-C Schools

FOR THE FIRST TIME since 1980-81, the enrollment of full-time students in the Plymouth-Canton School District has increased, according to preliminary figures. This reversal of the trend is credited to increased residential building permits in Canton and Plymouth townships. The total enrollment -- which includes an equivalent rating of community education part-time students -- is up slightly from last year even though the equivalent of 186 students was lost with the closing of the Detroit House of Corrections. The figures are important for their relation to state aid and student housing. The '85-'86 figures are preliminary, not official fourth-Friday counts as in the other columns. The figures are expected to increase slightly. (Crier graph by Steve Culver)

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

Preliminary Plymouth-Canton Schools enrollment figures for 1985-86 show a reversal of a five-year declining full-time student population.

Although the attendance count reached on Friday, Sept. 6, is not official and may decline slightly, according to school officials, the 15,409 full-time students reflects an increase of 243 from the 1985-86 official figure of 15,166 full-time students.

This increase -- even if it rolls back slightly -- will mark the first time since the 1980-81 school year when the full-time student enrollment was higher than the previous year's.

Its importance lies both in the way the district's state aid formula relies upon enrollment figures and also in the housing needs for full-time students. State aid is also provided for continuing education students on a partial basis, but the continuing education program is not as critical for housing, school administrators said.

The increase in full-time students is offset somewhat by the loss of an equivalent 186 continuing education students with the recent closing of the Detroit House of Corrections (DeHoCo) in Plymouth Township. That closing reduced the projected number of continuing education students to 400 from last school year's 586.

But full-time student enrollment has been declining from the 1980-81 figure of 16,913 until this year and the total state aid enrollment figure will be up this year if the head counts hold firm.

Building permits for residential construction are up in Canton and Plymouth townships and are credited with causing the full-time student influx, school officials said.

Housing the students this year caused some problems, school administrators said, because while elementary and high school enrollments rose, the middle school population declined.

Farmers: Bumper crop can't overcome low prices

BY DAN NESS

Good crop yield, bad crop prices.

That sums up the growing season of 1985, according to farmers in the area.

More specifically, it was too dry at the beginning of the season and too wet right about now, but the crop yield was better than last year.

Prices, however, are lower than last year, and the higher crop yield doesn't seem to make up the difference when it comes to cash flow.

"Overall, it's been a pretty good growing season," said Wayne and Monroe Co. extension agent Dave Pratt, but prices paid for the crops were "way down." And, farmers shouldn't expect prices to get any better, Pratt said.

"With the large crop yield like this, prices will continue to go down," Pratt said.

A spokesman for The Anderson's, a grain-buying business in Maumee, OH, where several local farmers sell their grain, echoed Pratt's observations.

"We're looking at prices going lower," said the spokesman. Bumper yields with less overseas demand for the grain mean prices would continue to be low, he said.

On the Bunyea farm in Plymouth Township, a good growing season and a good price year might coincide once "every ten years or so," according to Pat Bunyea.

For example, last year prices were higher than now, but the crops were too dry, Bunyea said.

soybeans, pumpkins, cattle, sheep and chickens on their 900-acre farm west of Plymouth. The Bunyea's plow roads and driveways in the winter to supplement their income, as many farmers do.

"There's very few people left anymore who are self sufficient in farming," Bunyea said.

Low prices paid for their crops combined with higher prices for consumer goods and machinery have been very hard on farmers, Bunyea said. "The next couple of years will be the teller, whether we'll still be here or if we'll sell out," Bunyea said.

Bunyea said farmers don't get the prices they want for their crops because commodities buyers set the prices.

"But, as soon as (the raw commodities) are processed, then a price tag goes on it," Bunyea said.

The Bunyea's started growing pumpkins to diversify - one way to avoid overproduction of a common crop, Bunyea said. They have a 165-acre pumpkin patch, and "if we had more pickers, we could grow more," Bunyea said.

Ron Hess, Jr., who farms on 900 acres near Warren and Napier Roads, said farmers produced too much for their own good.

"The American farmer better realize he's doing too good a job," Hess said.

"By trying to outdo our neighbor, we're running ourselves out of business."

Hess has harvested wheat and oats so far this year, and although satisfied with the crops, the prices paid for them have been disheartening. "I'll leave my oats in the bin and let them rot at those prices," Hess said.

Hess said prices for the crops he raises, wheat, corn, oats and soybeans, were "just about half what they should be."

Production is up at the DeForest dairy farm 10 miles west of Plymouth, but "our problem is the price of milk has gone steadily down," said Arlene DeForest.

The DeForest's raise 100 dairy cattle and grow crops to feed the herd on 134 acres of land they own, and 300 acres they rent. They're reducing their herd to save money next year, DeForest said.

"We've tried to cut down so we don't have so many animals to feed," she said. "It'll be down to 80 head through the winter."

DeForest said an abundance of milk produced in the area caused the low prices this year.

To cut down on costs, the DeForest's do many of their own repairs and maintenance on equipment around the farm. "Wayne can do electrical work and carpentry work, so that helps costs," DeForest said.

the millage caps, with nearly all of them wondering why their assessment for fire, police and general fund had to increase 20 per cent in one year.

"My pay doesn't go up 20 per cent a year," said one resident.

Supervisor James Poole said personnel additions, road-paving projects and a new $2-million police station would have to be paid eventually.

"You build new roads, you hire new people...it catches up to you," Poole said.

The biggest cost-cutting measure taken by the Board was to repay the capital-improvements fund over a 15-year period instead of the five-year period stated in the original millage proposals:

By paying back the funds used for the new police station over a longer period of time the Board would assess .33 mills every year for the capital-improvements fund payback instead of one mill annually.

The Board was to have met last night to go over the budget line-by-line and look for more possible reductions.

The Board would find "bits and pieces" to cut, Trustee Loren Bennett said, but the major reductions were included in the 9.89-mill maximums. "We didn't see any glaring problems" in the budget, Bennett said.

The Board approved tentative millage maximums totalling 11.14 mills at its Aug. 13 meeting, including a shift of mills from the police and fire funds to the general fund - a move designed to retrieve state monies lost because of changed state appropriation system.

Under the system, the state would grant shared-revenues based only on the general fund millage rate, excluding the fire and police protection assessments.

The Finance Department rearranged millage figures, taking mills from the police and fire funds and putting them in the general fund so the Township would get some state monies.

The move is expected to bring $290,000 from the state; out of the $450,000 Canton would have received under the old appropriation system.

Department report was given by Tom Casari regarding flooding on Haggerty Road.

Judge James E. Garber administered the oath of office to new Police Chief John Santomauro.

A report was given by Deborah O'Connor on the activities of the Country Festival Board.

She also gave a final report on Salvation Army activities in connection with the township. Supervisor Poole presented O'Connor with an award and a commendation for all of her contributions to the community. She is relocating in Cleveland, Ohio.

The public hearing for all budgets was declared open at 8:00 p.m.

Finance Director John Spencer gave a presentation and explanation of the proposals.

The following testimony was received from the audience:

Gentleman resident from 39742 Michigan Avenue — Question — How much per $1,000 with a home assessed at $26,000? (Answer = about a $52.00 increase).

Dr. Prahlad Vachher of Bircklan Drive and various questions about the payoff for the police facility, road paving, cleaning of ditches.

Hugh Hoover, 1651 Rustic Ridge commended the board for their millage actions of the past 5 years. He thought that millage should be spread over the life expectancy of the new police facility.

Greg Donovan inquired about the percentage of the increase proposed.

Byron Royer, 42316 Proctor, stated that he would like to see percentages spent for fire, police in comparison with that of other communities.

(Supervisor Poole furnished him with a copy of his brochure regarding tax detail.)

Bruce Price, 430 Kingsley, had concern about the total millage, not just the general fund. He questioned how funding takes place for the public improvement fund, and he thought we should take longer to pay for the police facility.

Lynn Cramer of Warren Road spoke to the creation of special assessments for fire and police and the authority given to the board to levy unlimited amounts. She said that 2 mills levy would result in a lot of discontent.

Mrs. Price stated that they moved in 1 1/2 years ago and wondered if goals were set too high, and were new board members responsible for the raise.

Lee O'Berry, Hampton Court, asked about the addition of 5 civilian dispatchers, and if consolidation of fire and police dispatching was being considered.

(Response: Yes, it is a committed direction of this board.)

Wayne Baumgarner of Willow Creek Drive, stated that a minimum of 10 or 15 years would be reasonable to pay back the police facility. He also spoke of police and fire salaries and maintenance of the facilities. He said we should stay within our means and plan slowly.

Mrs. Royer inquired about a special referendum to repeal the special assessment levy. (Treasurer Brown suggested it should not be repealed — just put a cap on it. The Supervisor said that state law will now allow a cap for operations.) The clerk will check on the number of signatures needed for special referendum.

Gentleman: Stated that since there are 5 dispatchers in uniform now, they should be kept and use attrition rather than hire 5 new civilian dispatchers.

Mrs. Price stated that she agreed with the comments made by Trustee Larson regarding the community need for level of services. He had also stated that citizen pressure all year is spending, not saving.

Motion by Larson, supported by Brown and unanimously carried to close the public hearing at 9:20 p.m.

Motion by Padget, supported by Larson and unanimously carried to adopt the following millages:

GENERAL FUND	$ 5.00
POLICE FUND	3.33

Kenyon resigns to go to Library Bd.

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Ralph J. Kenyon, a city commissioner since 1979, resigned Monday night to take a seat on the recently elected Plymouth Library District Board of Trustees.

Mayor David Pugh said he will choose longtime resident Jack Wilcox to finish out the remaining three months of Kenyon's term. The commission will be asked and is expected to approve the Wilcox nomination at its meeting Oct. 7.

"I appreciate the opportunity to have been a part of this group.

It's been very fulfilling," Kenyon told the commission as he received a plaque from Pugh.

Kenyon had said earlier he would vacate his commission seat if elected to the nine-member library board Sept. 10. He remains on the city's Economic Development Corporation (EDC).

Wilcox is also a member of the EDC, and a member of the Cemetery Board of Trustees, Plymouth Tree Board and Citizens Advisory Council for Block Grant Programs.

Down The Road

By Brian Lysaght

I sat in the bleachers of Stevenson High School in Livonia Thursday night freezing as I watched Canton lose a soccer match to the Spartans. Shivering through a disappointing defeat for the Chiefs, my mind wandered to the subject of weather. I decided Mother Nature may have chosen to skip autumn and move right into winter.

Three days later, as I sat in the sunshine and listened to the rumble of lawn mowers, it seemed I may be mistaken. I got a bit of a sunburn on Sunday, in fact.

The season of changing leaves is here. I knew that Thursday as I watched two kids wearing sweatshirts tumble and cartwheel across their front lawn collecting fallen leaves in their hair and on their backs along the way.

I knew it when I saw local college football fans strutting their stuff Friday in preparation for home openers in East Lansing and Ann Arbor. Chuck Skene, the city's parks and recreation department director, was green and white all over. Rick Myers, the city's police chief, flashed a pair of tickets and said he'd be spending Saturday afternoon on the 50-yard line at Spartan Stadium. Fred DeLano, a columnist hereabouts whose allegiance is pledged to the maize and blue, wore a sweater declaring it.

Correspondents for the St. Ignace News, wrote in that paper two weeks passed that leaves on trees in their northern outposts had begun their annual color show.

Fall becomes official in three days. I don't mind a bit. It is just a nose behind spring in my favorite season sweepstakes.

I like the seasons of transition. They give us the climate of the seasons they precede and follow—a bit of the warm and the cold in unpredictable doses—while adding their own moderate temperatures. In both spring and fall, we aren't locked into any single climate.

When autumn showed up last week, I shut tight the windows of my apartment for the first time in months, and pulled from the closet my down sleeping bag-comforter. I also wore, in its season debut, a favorite wool sweater.

Still left on the season change preparation list is winterizing my light-headed yellow truck, buying a thick, down vest, and taking a much needed vacation to enjoy Mother Nature's color show.

DPW to plant trees

EDITOR:

The City of Plymouth Public Works Department will begin receiving requests for the planting of trees in residential, commercial and industrial zoned properties within the City of Plymouth. The cost for any residential tree is $25.00. The cost for commercial and industrial is $250.00 as in most cases in these areas the sidewalk must be removed and after the tree is planted the area will be bricked.

Anyone requesting a tree is to call the Public Works office at 453-7737. When the call is received we will determine if it is possible to plant a tree as per request.

All trees requested shall be planted on city property, the area between the sidewalk and the curb.

The deadline for all requests will be Nov. 1, 1985.

Use the wagon prudently

The City Commission approved the lease of one car and the purchase of a mini-van at its meeting Monday night.

No big deal, perhaps. The mini-van is for the Building and Engineering Department, the Buick station wagon for Assistant to the City Manager Paul Sincock.

City Manager Henry Graper said the station wagon will allow Sincock to haul audio visual equipment around town when the city puts on its infamous promotional slide show. Sincock, in fairness, said he hauls more equipment than that.

It is hoped that in these days of tight budget blues, such purchases and leases are not excessive. Does Sincock really need a station wagon to drive around town?

He currently drives a leased Buick sedan.

Hopefully the wagon won't be seen hauling a boat northbound on some state highway during sunny weekends. It is also hoped that neither the station wagon nor Graper's city-leased Buick luxury car will be seen filling up at the DPW gas pump prior to the weekends.

Gets reply from Law

EDITOR:

Since you published a copy of my letter to Representative Gerald Law on his questionnaire — "Would you favor or oppose," answer Yes or No — I have had a number of people stop me on the street and tell me that they were also "bewildered" by the wording and therefore tore it up and threw it into the waste basket.

I have since received a reply from Representative Law in which he take responsibility for compiling the questionnaire. Due to the great amount of interest, it seems only fair to Representative Law that his reply be published. Therefore I have attached a copy of the reply that you may want to publish after reviewing with the Representative.

RUSSELL C. KOEPKE

Will try to clear up ambiguities

DEAR MR. KOEPKE:

Thank you for participating in my latest legislative questionnaire. I particularly appreciate the fact that you took the time to offer additional comments. One major concern that you mentioned is that the "Yes" and "No" responses were inappropriate for the "Favor or Oppose" questions. I apologize for this.

At the time that I compiled the questionnaire, I did not anticipate that this would cause any confusion for questionnaire respondents. I was informed by our graphics staff that all responses must be either "Yes" or "No," or "Favor" or "Oppose" in order to fit the printing space available in a standard questionnaire format. However, I felt that some of the questions would have been biased if I had not included favor or oppose in the question's wording. However, after reading your comments, I will make every attempt in my next questionnaire to clear up my ambiguities in the questionnaire's wording and response answers.

I do want to assure you, too, that I do read and respect every additional written comment that people like you take the trouble to offer. They are extremely helpful in my efforts to have a better understanding of how the people that I am here to serve feel about the issues.

I hope you will continue to communicate with me regarding all matters before the Legislature which are of concern to you.

Politico monster threatens library

City and township voters sounded a resounding 'yea' last week when considering a proposal to establish a library district -- and with good reason.

The move to the district is a move toward greater independence for the Dunning Hough Library and a move away from the clutches of that multi-headed political monster threatening to swallow the library in one swift gulp.

Voters will be asked to put their money where their mouths are Nov. 5 when the district library authority seeks approval of a millage levy to support its operation. If voters approve the millage, the district will control its own purse strings, thus its own destiny.

It promises to be an interesting battle, though. There are many questions to be answered including: Will Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen (or the township board) back down on his threat to eliminate library funding in 1986? Will the township seek passage of its own millage proposal in November and what effect will it have on the library levy vote? How would the library deal with township residents should the millage fail and Breen make good on his funding threats? Would township residents be charged to use the library?

The most important question, of course, is what will become of the unratified inter-local agreement? That document includes a township-city library funding formula to be activated if the millage fails, and covers dispersal of assets should the district dissolve.

It must be signed by both the City Commission and township

Board of Trustees before Nov. 5.

Breen says he won't sign it. He says the agreement, which would require the township to pay -- just as it has in recent years -- half the library's operating budget, is too open ended. He says the township is short of cash since voters rejected a township millage proposal in July, and simply can't afford it.

Despite much merry-making on the district concept early this year, neither city nor township body has ratified it. The City Commission is waiting in hushed tones for the township board to consider the agreement.

But all the politicians say they support a district authority empowered to levy millage. It would remove a $120,000 expenditure from Breen's 1986 township budget, without making the supervisor appear like sour-faced library foe.

Still, these city and township politicians aren't setting the example for voters by ratifying the contract which provides for the well-being of the library district should the millage fail.

So who can save the library in its hour of need?

The recently elected Plymouth Library District Board of Trustees could prove to be the library's white knight. Trustees need to roll up their sleeves and begin some genuine politicking in the city and township, pushing for passage of the inter-local agreement. It would pave the way for passage of the library millage Nov. 5.

Only then will the library be safe from the clutches of that multi-headed, snarling political monster.

No goo-coos from this humble scribe

Grandparentalism has taken over the world. It was bad enough when only bartenders and room clerks insisted upon showing pictures of the grandkids. Then a daughter came home, bursting with the long-hoped-for news. Finally, as a ritualistic reader of Jim Fitzgerald's back page column in the Free Press, I am ready to stack my eventual grandchild against his devoted Emily, rompers to rompers, whenever the wind is right.

Columnist Fitzgerald is a stimulating, entertaining writer with a rural background who has become the Detroit area's all-time champion of grandfather egotism. Not only is the three-year-old Emily the jewel of his eye, she's a genius. She reads New Yorker Magazines of years ago, and I'll tell you how I know.

In the spring, when I match Fitzgerald's patriarchal status, it will be with a calm demeanor, devoid of fanfare, unprejudiced and with typical open-minded objectivity. However, I can't speak for Granny; she can get pretty emotional at times, and this may prove one of them.

Students of Fitzgerald's essays in the Free Press know already of his tongue-in-cheek references to Ferd and Nerd, whom he fathered, and of his "Much older sister," Terrible Jean. They know, too, of his throw-up pot, which he keeps at the ready when the TV set is working.

However, it is only by oblique reference that they know of his marital mate and her patience. I am luckier than that, for Nerd just happens to toil in Plymouth and it would have to be a woman of strength, courage, intelligence and stovetop confidence to send a son like that into the professional world.

But back to Emily.

With goo's and coo's dripping from his computer keys, columnist Fitzgerald forced upon his morning readership recently a tale of how Emily's imagination astounded her playground mates when she handed her doddering granddad a shoe-type telephone play toy with the remark, "Here, it's for you."

If you look up derivation of the name Fitzgerald, you'll find "Fitz" means "a son" and occurs now only as a prefix in certain surnames "as Fitzgerald (son of Gerald), some of which were first given to illegitimate royal children, as Henry Fitzroy (son of the king)."

In my book, that's rather fitting, for I consider Jim Fitzgerald "king" of Michigan newspaper columnists. It may be that he's also a collector of old copies of New Yorker magazines, known not only for their literary craftsmanship but for subtle and sophisticated cartoons as well.

One of the greatest cartoons ever published (and this was many years ago) showed a convertible automobile stopped for a traffic light on Fifth Avenue at Central Park. It was in the days when having a telephone in your car was expensive and unique, but here was this motorist handing the instrument toward a pedestrian on the curb.

His line was, "Here, it's for you." Emily, you'll simply have to live with it—as will ours.

IVA "GRANDMA" BORDINE, 84, right, has seen changes in the agricultural community during her 65 years in Canton. Above, a beetle has infested this ear of corn on Duane Bordine's farm on Ford and Ridge Roads.

Farmers diversify to keep farming

DeForest also teaches English and social studies at Central Middle School in Plymouth, she said.

"It's going to be a struggle for us next year," DeForest said. "But, we're still going to be (farming) until something drastic happens."

DeForest has been to Washington, D.C. several times to lobby for farmers, but, has not been happy with the results, she said. "It's very painful talking to people who don't understand our situation," she said.

One farmer, Duane Bordine, has raised produce and cut down on grain crops to get around low prices for grain.

"I think the money is in the produce business, not in cash crops," Bordine said.

Bordine's produce business has done "all right" this year, but he is not as happy with his cash crops. Bordine's farm and produce business is at the corner of Ford and Ridge Roads in Canton.

Along with low prices for his crops, Bordine had problems with a beetle in his field corn that will make a "drastic reduction" in his corn yield this year. The beetle destroys the corn silk, which is needed to pollinate the corn plant. "It's gonna hurt," he said.

Bordine said higher fertilizer and equipment costs have caused many farmers to steer away from cash crops. "And we're not getting four times as much for our corn nowadays," Bordine said.

Even the produce end of his farming has not been without problems this year, Bordine said. An early leaf blight on the tomatoes reduced the harvest of quality produce. "We don't sell garbage on our stands," said Bordine, of the reduced crop.

"We don't put a ceiling on their abilities. You just can't put limits on people."

BY DAN NESS

The Plymouth Community Fund works in two ways: it helps the community as a whole by financially assisting many worthwhile programs, and it benefits individuals who participate in those programs.

Teresa Smith is one of those individuals.

Smith, 31, is a developmentally-disabled adult who is working hard to become more and more independent every day. Her time spent at Plymouth Opportunity House, funded in part by the Plymouth Community Fund, was a big step in her advancement towards independence.

Plymouth Opportunity House, a non-profit organization, has provided a 16-apartment living center for mentally-impaired adults since 1975, according to social worker Scottie Martin-Dunn.

The Opportunity House helps those adults become more self-sufficient and a part of the community they live in, Martin-Dunn said. Full-time house managers provide supervision and guidance for the residents, while vocational counseling and social and recreational programs round out their experience at Plymouth Opportunity House.

For Smith, the Opportunity House program gave her confidence to live in a community without having a helper with her all the time.

"It helped me get more experience than I was able to get at my parents' home in Plymouth," Smith said.

Opportunity House residents are helped with personal hygiene and household chores, until they learn to do it for themselves. Smith progressed through the program quickly.

"Each person is capable of reaching a different potential," Martin-Dunn said. "We help them reach their potential."

Smith moved from Opportunity House in 1981, progressed through developmental training and onto vocational training, and has worked as a secretarial assistant for the last one-and-a-half years at A.R. Home, Inc., a center for five group homes in western Wayne County.

Living experience gained at Opportunity House

TERESA SMITH HAS WORKED AT A.R. HOME, INC., for one-and-a-half years as a secretarial assistant. Smith's experience at Plymouth Opportunity House has helped her become more independent. (Crier photo by Dan Ness)

"(Teresa) is someone who had a lot going against her and struggled against it," Martin-Dunn said. "It makes your job worthwhile when you can see a person grow like that and go on."

Teresa became more assertive and independent while working through the Whole Life program in Livonia for developmentally-disabled adults, according to assistant coordinator Debbie Richmond.

The residents begin to live in their own apartments and do their own errands around the community in the Whole Life program, Richmond said. "It can be scary," Richmond said of the residents living on their own, most for the first time. "I think they're all very brave."

"At first I was a little hesitant," said Smith, "but as time goes on, I like it better. Now, I'm able to do what I want to do."

As part of her responsibilities at A.R. Home, Smith makes Xerox copies of records, files receipts and has become a jack of all trades around the office, according to Linda Daly, office manager of A.R. Home, Inc. "She's quite versatile around here," Daly said.

And for Smith, working full-time as a secretarial assistant is quite a challenge. "I never thought I'd be able to do a job like this, but, I'm doing it," she said.

Other developmentally-disabled adults are on their way to becoming as independent as Teresa Smith at Plymouth Opportunity House. The program represents a different attitude about mentally-impaired adults than prevailed in the past, Martin-Dunn said.

"Thirty years ago, doctors would say 'They'll never do anything,' and put them in an institution," Martin-Dunn said. The Plymouth Opportunity House gets those adults out into the community as much as possible, Martin-Dunn said.

And by helping residents become more independent, the goals of the Plymouth Opportunity House and the individuals in that program, like Teresa Smith, can be reached.

"We don't put a ceiling on their abilities," Martin-Dunn said. "You just can't put limits on people."

Business trips aren't as much fun as many people perceive them to be. In fact, I think you work harder because you're trying to get more work completed in the shortest amount of time possible.

However, there are some advantages to getting out of town. When you begin feeling like you've been locked in your office for weeks, it's nice to see a different setting. The best part about being out of town is that you don't have to deal with being interrupted every five minutes.

Last week Sallie Roby, our advertising director, and I attended a Michigan Press Association conference in Kalamazoo. After spending six hours trying to break out of the office, we were finally on our way.

It wasn't a bad drive, but I somehow knew it was going to a crazy weekend when she read a sign, "Kalamazoo Keep Out." By the time we recovered from our hysterics and realized that the sign had read, keep left, it was too late. We either made a wrong turn or didn't turn when we were supposed to, in other words, we got lost and took the back roads into the city.

We felt pretty smart when we found the right parking area, but I felt pretty stupid when I dumped my purse upside down getting out of the car. By the time we checked into the hotel and met some other newspaper people, I regained my confidence.

The next morning, Sallie informed me that our shower didn't work. Being the know-it-all person that I am, I knew I could figure out how to fix it. Right! It worked just fine after we called the front desk and complained. They told us how to pull the knob to turn it on.

Saturday morning when Sallie came wandering out of the bathroom with the shower knob in her hand, I knew we were in trouble. Do you know how much courage it takes to call the front desk and tell them the people in room 401 who couldn't figure out how to turn the shower on the previous morning just broke the thing? I don't know either, ask Sallie.

Since we were in the meetings so much of the time, it amazes me to think we had time to do silly, stupid things. At least it gave us something to laugh about. If you're going to do stupid things, it's better to do them with a friend because that friend will never let you forget it and it sure beats laughing alone.

Mitchell Johnson of Canton was named to the Dean's Honor Roll for the summer evening term at Lawrence Institute of Technology.

Jet Services does it fast by 'copter

BY DAN NESS

What do Detroit automakers do when they have to get a shipment of parts to a factory in Sandusky before the assembly line runs out?

Many of them call Jet Services, Inc., at Mettetal Airport on Lilley Road in Canton - the largest commercial helicopter operation in the Michigan, Ohio and Indiana, tri-state region.

The company, which moved to Canton from its Metro Airport location last October, flies cargo and passengers to their destinations on short notice on a 24-hour basis.

"When they call us, they've exhausted all other means of transporting their cargo," said Dennis Beattie, chief pilot for Jet Services.

Jet Services has a fleet of five helicopters and six airplanes, flown by four helicopter pilots, one airplane pilot and three part-time airplane pilots.

The company is used by customers because of the short-notice availability and the short transportation time involved, Beattie said.

"Instead of going from airport to airport, we can go right to where the cargo is needed," Beattie said. It takes Jet Services about 15 minutes to fly parts to Pontiac, where it might take a truck 45 minutes on the highway, Beattie said.

Jet Services is often relied upon to get cargo to manufacturers in emergency situations, such as getting parts to a plant before an assembly line shuts down for lack of parts.

"We're talking minutes, here," Beattie said.

Director of Operations Bijan Moazami started Jet Services at Metro Airport in 1980, and moved to Mettetal Airport last year because they outgrew the old facility, according to marketing director Sue Ann Davis.

Canton was chosen because Mettetal Airport had the necessary facilities and it is centrally located between Detroit, Ann Arbor and Pontiac with access to major highways, Davis said.

The employees of Jet Services are proud of their perfect safety record, and a sign outside an office documents that record. In their first five years, Jet Services has logged 6,700 flight hours, made 23,000 landings and take-offs and flown 4,000 top executives and 1,608,000 lbs. of goods without an accident, because of the 2,680 hours of scheduled maintenance performed on the aircraft.

Both Davis and Beattie credit the military-based training of the pilots for the safety record at Jet Services.

"They've been in tougher situations in the military," Beattie noted about the pilots.

The Jet Services fleet of helicopters and airplanes is kept in top shape by the maintenance crew, headed by Jim Binion. Jet Services is a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) certified repair station for helicopters and small airplanes -- a certification many small airports don't have.

"We've taken it one step beyond a small airport here," Binion said.

Because of the FAA certification, Jet Services can perform certain maintenance procedures that others cannot, Binion said.

Jet Services is also used for: job site inspection, pipe and power line patrolling, real estate surveys, aerial photography and agricultural and geophysical surveys.

The company also is contracted by two Detroit television stations for use of helicopters for their news teams.

Jet Services is also conscientious about the neighborhood they work in, according to Davis and Beattie. The pilots change their landing patterns to avoid flying over the same houses all the time, Beattie said.

The company has more strict regulations than the FAA sets, Davis said. Jet Services does not handle hazardous waste, nor do they break local ordinances regarding flying when they make a delivery, Davis said.

The company also receives many inquiries about the helicopter activity at Mettetal Airport, and will let visitors look around the facilities if they call ahead, Davis said.

"We enjoy being a part of the community, and want to get to know the people better," Davis said.

YOUR CASTLE HOME

Modern hotels are fine. They add a great deal to the enjoyment of a trip. But how about something different for your next tour? A castle, for example! If this sounds tempting to you, we suggest Ireland.

Ireland's regional hotels have achieved a reputation for true Old World elegance and aristocratic grandeur. Some of these magnificent places were built over a hundred years ago and were formerly mansions owned by wealthy private individuals. They have been refurbished for modern day travelers so that now they combine the latest comforts and conveniences with the mystic charm and serenity of the past.

Many of them have spacious grounds with dreamy woods and grass-covered parklands. The peace and sylvan pleasure you'll experience at one of these hotels is almost beyond description. They are found in County Mayo, County Galway and other parts of the Emerald Isle. Check with us for more information on these lovely and quaint "hotels".

As Ireland enjoys a temperate climate, it's equally enjoyable as a winter destination.

Our 30 years experience assures you of the finest travel service available. And, best of all, THERE IS NO CHARGE TO YOU FOR OUR SERVICES. We are reimbursed in commission fees by the airlines and hotels, ships and resorts that we book.

A Canton K Mart employe was found dead in the trunk of her car in Romulus Thursday night after it had been set on fire, according to Romulus police.

Patricia Longpre, 34, of Westland, punched out at K Mart on Sheldon Road at 9:42 p.m. Thursday, according to Romulus Detective Sgt. Sam Chalton. Romulus police responded to a call about a burning car on Henry Ruff and Van Born Roads at about 10:30 p.m.

Longpre's body was discovered in the trunk of the 1977 Pontiac Catalina after the fire was out. A medical examiner called to the scene pronounced her dead because of smoke inhalation, Chalton said.

Police do not have any leads, or suspects in the case so far, Chalton said.

Canton police received a phone call from Longpre's husband shortly after midnight to report his wife had not come back from work, according to police reports. Ronald Longpre said he had already checked the Canton K Mart parking lot to look for his wife's car. Canton police found out the missing woman's body had been found in Romulus about 20 minutes later, according to police reports.

Longpre is survived by five children. Romulus police ask that anyone with information regarding the incident call 941-8400.

Commission clears way for farm rezoning

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The Plymouth City Commission gave final approval Monday to a rezoning request that paves the way for a condominium development on the old Clarence Moore sheep farm property.

The commission unanimously approved the second reading of an ordinance changing zoning on the 4.86-acre site from R-1 single family residential to RM-2 multi-family, two story residential.

Jim Jabara plans to develop 31 condominiums on the property. The property was the last remaining farm land in the city.

The commission approved the first reading of the ordinance change Sept. 10 despite complaints from residents on nearby Deer, Kellogg and Burroughs streets who said the project would be disruptive and may cause flooding to surrounding properties. None of the concerned residents attended the commission meeting Monday.

Jabara will still need to get final site plan approval for the project from the Planning Commission.

Library use increases after addition opened its own purse strings.

Thomas said 13,000-14,000 area residents have library cards, with two-thirds of those township residents.

The most popular book (not) in the library? Sydney Sheldon's "If Tomorrow Comes," is one of the most sought after in the rental collection, which holds most of the top sellers.

Originally a branch of the Wayne County Library system, the Plymouth Library was opened in 1923 on Fralick Street with help from the Women's Club. It was moved to City Hall shortly afterward, then housed in the Jolliffe Building 1929-1945.

Bessie and Margaret Dunning helped the library buy a building in 1947 and the library moved to its present location in 1953. It was expanded in 1957 and 1984.

It changed status to become the city rather than county branch library in 1981.

The library has seen an increase in use since its addition was opened earlier this year. The $625,000 addition was paid for by local and federal funds.

The library has four Apple 2E personal computers with assorted software which library users can serve. She said the computers are used mostly by high school aged children but increasingly by adults.

"I'm suprised how many adults are coming in," Thomas said.

The library also has over 80 video cassette movies which can be rented. The cassettes were purchased with monies from the Friends of the Library and Plymouth Newcomers. Thomas said the library's aim is to have the cassettes pay for themselves.

There are 400 large-print books on the library shelves with plans to buy more with city block grant funds. The Lions Club subsidizes the collection.

The library also plans to begin a books-on-tape collection with recently received block grant funds, Thomas said.

It has between 15,000-20,000 children's books whose circulation is about a third of the library total, Thomas said.

The library is hooked into Wayne-Oakland Library Federation computer, which help locate books among other member libraries.

Thomas said she hopes the computer will eventually replace the card catalogue system.

The library orders books weekly and added 3,500-4,000 books last year, she said. She said the collection grew by about 1,000 books last year.

"The collection hasn't grown that much the last few years because of budget constraints," she said.

Hanosh scores three for Salem

Rock kickers drop Canton 3-1

BY JEFF BENNETT

The song "We Will Rock You" sounded from the stands Monday night as time ran out for Canton.

The Rock's soccer team beat the Chiefs 3-1 under the lights at the CEP football stadium with Salem's Ted Hanosh scoring a hat trick.

"It's going to be a tight game," said Salem coach Ken Johnson before the game.

In the beginning, it was close with both teams struggling to put the first point on the board.

Salem won the struggle when a corner kick from Mike Tanner was headed in by Hanosh. The point came with 2:34 left in the first quarter.

But Canton did not want to leave the field without scoring. With 5:28 left in the half, Rob Opatrny kicked a penalty shot to Steve Morell who nailed it in to tie the score.

After the half, Rock Hanosh took a pass, kicked the ball which rebounded off the post for another Rock point.

Then to close the night, Hanosh received the ball, lobbed it over goalie Dan Douglas' head to put Salem ahead 3-1.

As coach Mike Morgan stood biting his thumbnail, Canton tried but could not score again.

"It was a tough one to lose," said Morgan. "We did not have ball control, we tended to back off the ball and did not get passes or shots off very well."

Both teams were emotionally high strung throughout the game, with one yellow card going to Salem and two to Canton.

"We had good conditioning and we kept the chemistry going," said Johnson. "Joe Knoerl (goalie) saved us by coming out and attacking the ball. Ebon Nash and Andy Orr played good defense. I am proud of the team."

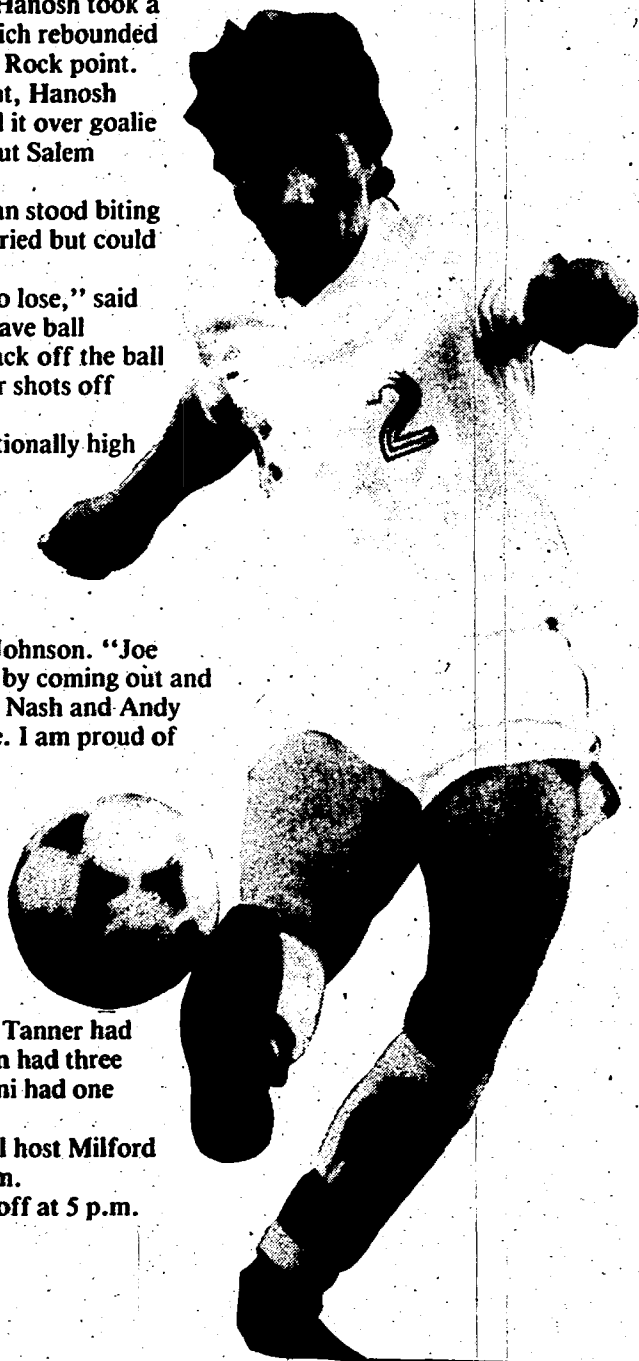

Canton came off a tough 2-0 loss to Stevenson Thursday and defeated North Farmington Tuesday.

Livonia Churchill 5-4 Thursday: Hanosh had two goals, Mike Zarrett, Ebon Nash and Tanner had one each. Dave Dameron had three assists and Randy Balconi had one assist.

Canton and Salem will host Milford and Kalamazoo at 11 a.m.

The winners will face off at 5 p.m.

CANTON AND SALEM played hard; they played to win. Salem persevered though to win 3-1 Monday night. It was the two teams' first official match in the CEP Football Stadium. Ted Hanosh had three goals for Salem. (Top left) Canton senior Kurt Ewing battles for the ball with Salem's David Dameron.

Blues outstride the reds in cross country matchup

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Salem edged out their red and white rivals 28-30 Thursday on the cross-country paths at Cass Benton Park.

The boys were led by Salem's brother combination Tony and Bill Atwell, who tied with a finish of 17:22. Canton's Jay Swiecki finished third with 17:32, Salem's Eric Pahl was fourth at 17:51 and Canton's Dean Juergens was fifth at 17:52.

Canton's girls, despite having one of its largest squad in recent years, forfeited the meet because five girls were missing.

But the Chief girls that did run ran well. Marie Jarocz led female finishers with a time of 21:26, Rachel Mann and Jenny Kincer, both Chiefs, followed with times of 21:34 and 21:44, respectively. All three recorded their best times of the young season.

Salem's Trish Donnelly took fourth among the girls with a time of 21:26, Rocks Chris Trapani and Shannon Donnelly, followed with times of 23:04 and 23:18, respectively.

For the boys, Chief Scott Moore finished sixth with a time of 17:57, Chief Al Byrnes was seventh at 18:04, Salem's Kevin Jones was eighth at 18:07, and Canton's Bill Boyd ninth with a time of 18:17.

Both coaches said the friendly rivalry between the two teams may have led to better times.....

"There's a nice improvement on everyone of those kids' times out there," said Canton coach Jim Hayes. "It's really exciting to see them working that hard."

Hayes said in addition to the girls times, his top four boys ran their best, three 17-minute and one 18-minute over the three mile course.

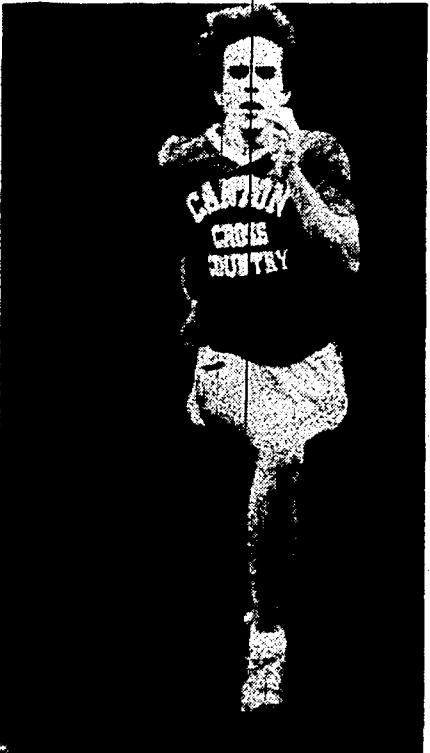

Salem coach Tom Trusedale said his team, in its second meet this season, is running well.

"The times are where we want them to be this early in the season," he said.

Salem lost to Ypsilanti Sept. 10 and will run against Stevenson tomorrow.

Canton faces Churchill tomorrow.

Both teams will run in the 16-team Schoolcraft Invitational Saturday. The girls begin at 9 a.m. and the boys at 10 a.m.

Steelers win two of three

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers went two for three in their opening games of the Western Suburban Junior Football League on Sunday.

The freshman Steelers, coached by Ron Krueger, downed the South Lyon Panthers 7-0. Patrick Vesnaugh topped a 41-yard drive on the Steeler's first possession of the game with a six-yard run. Vesnaugh then brought in the extra point to make the score 7-0.

The junior varsity Steelers, coached by Loren Brand, dominated their game against the Panthers. Steeler Liam Rentz tackled the Panther quarterback for a two-point safety.

Fullback Haman Cross scored the Steelers first touchdown on a six-yard run in the third quarter. Tackle Mitch McDonald recovered a fumble on the Panther's five-yard line and scored the second Steeler touchdown.

The varsity Steelers, coached David Bryant, were edged by the Panthers 8-7. Steeler quarterback Rob Kowalski handed off to halfback Chris Decker who threw a 20-yard pass to Dion Anton. Anton ran five yards for six points. A Kowalski run added the extra point.

But with two minutes left in the game, Panther Collin Kwolek recovered a Steeler fumble and scored. The Panthers then kicked a two-point conversion to win the game.

The Steelers play the Chargers at Garden City next Sunday.

Canton coach sees red after 28-7 loss

BY JEFF BENNETT
Canton football coach Rich Barr was mad Friday night after watching the Chiefs lose to Walled Lake Central 28-7.

"I'm not happy, not happy at all with this team," said an angry Barr.

The team had everything together in the middle of the first quarter, as Canton scored with seven. The Chiefs recovered a Viking fumble on the 44 yard line. Tony Boucher carried the ball to the 25, and a pass to Jeff Krolicki set the ball on the 15. A handoff to Joel Gobel produced the first score.

On another drive, Canton ran the ball from the Viking's 45 yard line to the 28. But the Vikings stopped the Chiefs and a field goal attempt came up short.

In the second quarter, the Vikings were looking for points, which they found.

Canton had the ball on their 18 on fourth down. A bad snap to Dave Liuzzo was fumbled and recovered by the Vikings. Without hesitation, the Vikings threw an 18-yard pass and tied the score 7-7 at the half.

"Did you see them drop that punt?" Barr said after the game.

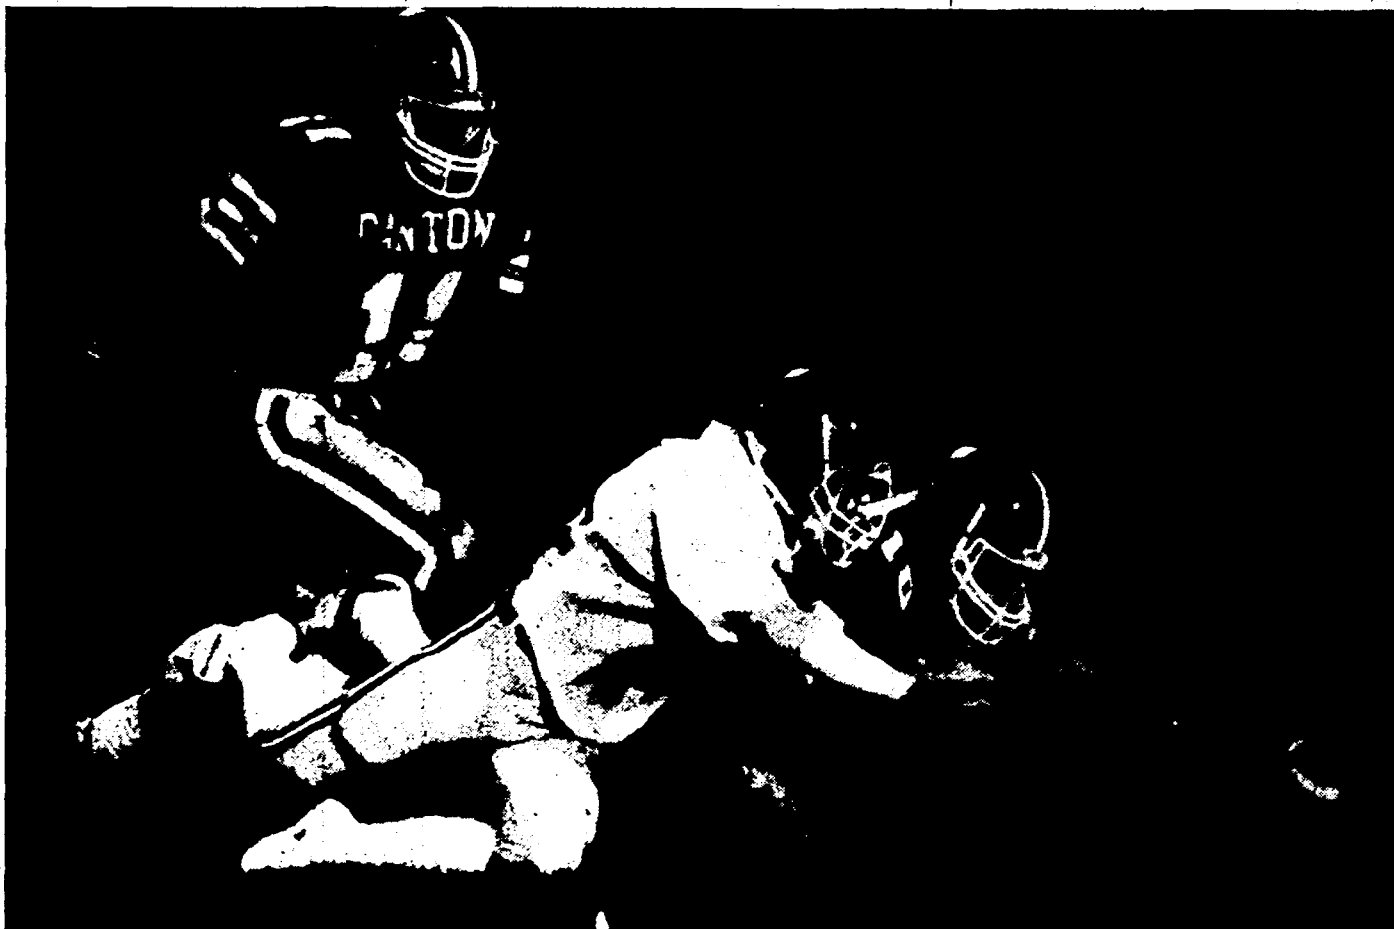

In the third quarter, the score remained tied and both teams never made it to scoring position.

Then in the final quarter, quarterback Tony Aiken looked for Boucher to receive a pass. The ball hit the fingertips of Boucher and fell into a Viking's hands, who ran 20 yards for a touchdown.

Then, with less than five minutes on the clock, the Vikings again scored, creating an 11 point deficit and winning 28-7.

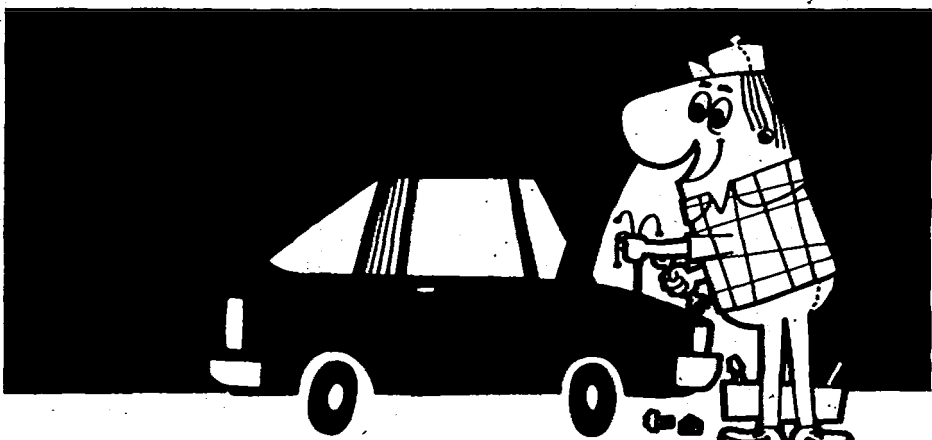

"I'm not proud of this team, not proud at all. They're a lousy football team," said Barr.

Canton is 0-2 and plays at home against Walled Lake Western on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

CANTON fumbled with just over two minutes left in the second quarter Friday against Walled Lake Central. The play led to a Central touchdown. The Vikings won the game 28-7. (Above) Tony Boucher (11) and Steve Genyk (10) scrambled unsuccessfully to recover the fumble. (Crier photo by Chris Boyd)

Salem third, Canton sixth in Stevenson dominated relay

BY JEFF BENNETT

Predictable? It depends on the way you look at swimming.

Before the Western-Lakes Relays began Saturday, Canton coach Hooker Wellman was asked how his girls team would finish. His answer of sixth place was right.

Stevenson took first with 95 points, followed by Churchill's 60 points. Salem and North Farmington tied for third. John Glenn took fifth followed by Canton.

"Stevenson is incredible. They are a better team and no one can catch them," said Wellman. "Stevenson has the division title locked up. Our team has to concentrate on times."

Salem coach Chuck Olson has a different opinion. "Stevenson is a yardstick on state swimming and we will have to do well against them. But if one of their swimmers doesn't do too good anything is possible."

The Rocks got off to a shaky start when the 400-yard medley relay was disqualified.

"The D.Q. put us in a hole, but we would have still been third," said Olson. "It threw a damper on things and shook them up. They know how they better take things seriously. It was a learning experience."

In the 400-yard freestyle, Salem took first with a 3:51.01 time from Kristal Taylor, Cindy Elliott, Laura Shaffer, and Tracy Meszaros.

Canton took second with a 2:04 time in the backstroke from Michelle Stackpole, Kelly Kirk and Julie Cox. Salem was fourth from the efforts of Lindsay Olson, Dawn Shiek, Heather Bunch, and Stacia Bannon with 2:14.63.

Rocks Jenny Barr, Erin Olson, Mary Snow, and Sue Bonnett were third in the breaststroke with 2:29.84. The Chiefs took sixth from Sara Schmitz, Sue Schendel, Danielle Dickinson, and Bev Gildhaus who swam 2:40.2.

Second place in the 400-yard individual went to Shaffer, Elliott, Shanon Murphy, and Meszaros with a 4:28.11 time.

A fourth place in the 200-yard freestyle and crescendo relay also gave Salem points.

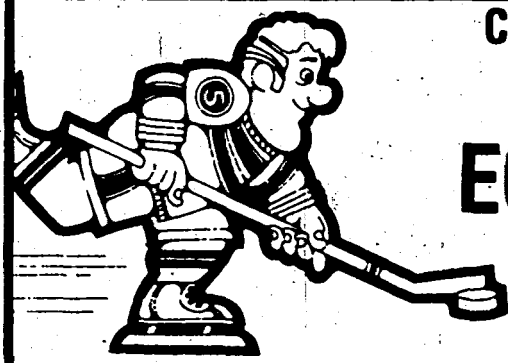

Canton took fifth in the 200-yard butterfly and a second in the 200-yard medley from Jean McLenaghan, Julie Fisher, Stackpole, and Lynn Massey. Their time was 1:59.5.

"If you had the chance to score you were doing a good job," said Wellman. "I would like to see some varsity records broken and a lot of hard work pay off by taking some girls to State."

Rock coach Olson knows he is taking some girls to State and has other plans. "I would like to be conference champs and do as well as we can."

Salem and Canton clash Thurs., Sept. 26 at 7 p.m. in the Salem pool.

The meet was sponsored by the Rotary Club.

Twp. Trustees differ on budget cuts this year.

But Hulsing said she didn't approve of the proposed budget's elimination of library funding.

"I think we're honor bound," she said.

Brooks said she thought the township had an obligation to fund the library if the district millage fails.

Horton said, "I don't like (not funding the library) but I realize something has to give."

Munfakh said he supported the proposed library funding cut given the township's limited finances.

Irvine said he didn't have strong feelings either way on funding of the library, although such a cut was not included in budget trimming proposals he offered the board last year.

Irvine said he would vote against township chloride spraying to control dust on dirt roads because "That's a ton of money for something that isn't the township's business." The proposed budget included $45,000 for chloride spraying.

He also questioned the purchase of voting machines totaling $55,000, which is included in the proposed 1986 budget.

Trustees Horton, Munfakh and Irvine all said the proposed reduction of two police officers and two firefighters through attrition was acceptable.

Also included in the proposed budget is a reduction in operation of Plymouth Township Park from its current year-round season to seven months.
