Berry: new department is busy, established

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two articles looking at Plymouth's police departments since the city-township police contract expired last July. This week, the Plymouth Township Police Department.

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Plymouth Township Chief Carl Berry says his is an established -- and very busy -- police department.

Eight months after township police first hit the streets, Berry says the department is meeting the needs of township residents. In the first six months, township police handled just over 3,000 calls, a figure Berry said was unexpectedly high. He says the young force of 11 full- and five part-time officers -- with an average age of 24-25 -- responded well to the many calls. The township installed two additional phone lines.

The department's 1986 budget totals $680,000 -- $102,439 including fringe benefits -- and costs will likely increase in coming years. Startup and operation costs last year totaled $1.17 million. That included renovation of the former DPW building, which now also houses police, and $140,000 for computer and dispatch equipment.

Also on the rise are revenues returned by 35th District Court: $45,000 for July-December 1985 and $100,000 projected for 1986, compared to $43,000 in 1984, said Supervisor Maurice Breen.

Township voters agreed to fund the department in November when they approved two additional mills for police, fire and rescue service.

Breen and the Board of Trustees decided in 1984, after a consultant's

$13M bond issue June 9

Citizens will "sell" millage

BY ED FITZGERALD

Citizens will have a say in Plymouth-Canton Schools' effort to "sell" the $13 million bond issue June 9. The district has announced plans for a steering committee to take part in a campaign for approval of the bond sale.

Stephen Harper, a former school board member, has volunteered to co-chair the committee. The other co-chair is yet to be named.

Harper was head of the Citizens Bond Review Committee which met over the past year to make recommendations for the bond issue. The school board and the district's administrators decided on a plan that differed slightly from the committee's.

Harper is ready to work for the election, but said the schools' package did contain "a couple of potential time bombs."

Harper differed with the schools' decision to spend nearly $1 million on renovation and enlargement of the administration building on Harvey St. in Plymouth.

"The committee threw that out in 10 minutes and wanted to buy a new building -- they wanted to buy the old AT&T plant on Sheldon (which is now being sold for around $8 million) now out of the schools' budget. They didn't propose an alternative to that."

Superintendent of Business Ray Hoedel said the renovation plan would increase administration floor space by 70 per cent.

Trustee Dean Swartzwelter, though saying he disagreed on some of the bond issue's points, supported it in hopes of a unanimous board. He said the enlargement of the administration building's board room was needed because "it was unacceptable to have visitors standing in the halls and down the stairs."

Harper said his committee had also voted against the expenditure of $600,000 for new computers. He said they felt the district did not have the "program to go with it. They felt the district needed the curriculum...now there has been in-house studies and I think we can tell there is (the

Tax vote Monday

This coming Monday, voters in The Plymouth-Canton School District will decide on a one-half mill increase for Schoolcraft Community College. Votes can be cast at your school precinct. Polls are open 7 a.m. - 8 p.m. No other issue is on the ballot.

Schoolcraft is asking for the increase in perpetuity. It's estimated that approval would cost a homeowner, with a house valued at $70,000, an extra $1.46 a month. The college says the money will be used to purchase instructional equipment, including: robotics, laser technology, computer aided design, computer aided manufacturing and

Brookside homeowners vs. association

Residents say they paid for empty playground

BY DAN NESS

Several residents of Brookside Village subdivision in Canton are upset by their homeowner's association's handling of money earmarked for play equipment in two subdivision parks.

Brookside residents were assessed $25 in December 1984 for park equipment, but the equipment has not yet been purchased, provoking charges from residents of a disorganized association leadership and mishandling of funds.

Linda Johnson, who lives on Buckingham in Brookside Village, said she paid her $25 to the association in December 1984 for the park equipment. "They (the homeowner's association) had promised the park equipment would be in the park by August 1985," Johnson said.

When Johnson found out through neighbors that the equipment had not even been ordered in October 1985, she withheld $25 of her homeowner's association dues and snow removal fee, which totaled $25.81. She sent a check for $1.81 and wrote the association to use the money she had sent in December 1984 for payment.

The association responded by sending a lien notice to Johnson.

While a lien is held on Johnson's property, she cannot sell the house without clearing the lien -- in effect, a debt against her property. Johnson said she wrote to the association board of directors four times before getting a response regarding the matter.

"The only response I got from them

LINDA JOHNSON thinks it was unfair for her homeowner's association to place a lien on her house after she withheld dues in protest. (Crier photo by Chris Boyd) was after they put a lien on my property," Johnson said.

But, according to a member of the Brookside Village Homes Association, Johnson, and other residents withholding payment are in violation of the association's bylaws. The association collected the required signatures representing two-thirds of the homes in Brookside Village to approve a $25 assessment for park equipment, according to association treasurer Ken Linden.

After the association had the two-thirds approval, it had to collect money from 90 per cent of the homes in the subdivision before it could go ahead with the equipment purchase. There are 525 homes in Brookside Village subdivision, according to Linden.

To date, the association has not collected 90 per cent of the homeowner's money, which is holding up the purchase of the park equipment, Linden said. Residents who have withheld payment of dues because of the park equipment assessment have had liens placed on their property, Linden said.

The park equipment will be ordered and delivered late this spring or early summer, Linden said. Those residents who have not paid the park equipment assessment will have lien notices sent to them also, possibly within the next 30 days, Linden said.

The association could have placed liens on homes that did not pay for park equipment as early as February 1985, but "liens don't solve problems, that's why we've gone gentle on them," Linden said.

A former member of the association's board of directors said the association isn't being run according to the bylaws and is inaccessible. "Quite a few people are up in arms, but they can't get anyone to respond," said Peter Chick, a Brookside resident who served for four years on the association's board until 1983.

Chick said he asked to see a list of signatures to prove that the association had gained approval of two-thirds of the homeowners to assess $25 for park equipment. Chick was told he could not see the signatures because it would violate the signers' privacy. "They

Tax DeHoCo land Detroit to pay $?

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Over 800 acres of City of Detroit-owned property will be added to Plymouth Township's 1986 tax rolls, said Supervisor Maurice Breen.

Originally part of the old Detroit House of Corrections grounds, the property lay vacant since DeHoCo's closing last year.

Western Plymouth Township property is a hot item lately, and Breen and other township officials want the land sold and developed privately. Breen said he didn't think that would happen "as long as Coleman Young is mayor."

"The City of Detroit certainly has no business being here," Breen said.

Wayne County Appraisal Company will reassess the Detroit property for the township before it is added to the rolls, Breen said.

The state purchased 180 acres of DeHoCo property last summer and converted it into Western Wayne Correctional Facility (WWCF), a medium security prison. The WWCF property can't be placed on tax rolls.

WWCF Warden Emmett Baylor said Detroit still owns 875 acres in Plymouth Township. Breen said the state paid $2,000 per acre this summer. That would make Detroit's tax bill $48,000 annually.

"Nobody's going to get rich off this," Breen said.

Eighty-two per cent of the collection goes to Plymouth-Canton schools.

Young spokesman Bob Berg said he had no immediate comment Monday.

Breen said he didn't think Detroit would object to paying township taxes on its property though it "may be jumping up and down" over the re-appraisal.

Public property is exempt from property tax rolls if it is used for public purpose, according to state law.

George McEchran, director of the county bureau of taxation, said the township would likely have to get permission from the state Tax Commission to put the City of Detroit on the tax rolls.

Twp. waits on ballot vote

The Plymouth Township Trustees -- those who were there -- decided to delay until next week a decision on whether to purchase new voting equipment.

Representatives from Doubleday Bros. of Kalamazoo demonstrated its punch card voting stations and computerized tabulators for the board at its meeting March 11. The board will reconsider the matter March 25.

Seventy-eight punch card voting machines and support equipment costing $43,500 or $60,000 was the Doubleday offer. Another firm, Computer Elections Systems of Southfield, offered equipment for $31,775.

The punch card machines and counter would replace the township's antiquated lever voting machines, if Clerk Esther Hulsing has her way.

Supervisor Maurice Breen, Treasurer Mary Brooks and Trustee Jim Irvine were absent from the meeting last week.

Contaminated groundwater near Napier Rd.

Remedial cleanup begins at Holloway Landfill

BY DAN NESS

Residents of Salem and Northville townships living near the Holloway Landfill at Six Mile and Napier roads listened to state and county officials explain a plan Monday night designed to clean up groundwater contamination near their homes.

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and Holloway Sand and Gravel Company signed a consent agreement in January that will provide for the paving of Napier Road between Five and Six Mile roads, and construction of a diversion ditch and a treated, lined pond on the east side of Napier Road to prevent contaminated water from spreading.

Holloway Landfill is located in Salem Township, but the contaminated area is in a pasture east of Napier Road in Northville Township.

The DNR detected contamination of groundwater just east of the Holloway Landfill in the summer and fall of 1984. An analysis of the contamination, performed by firms hired by Holloway Sand and Gravel, showed three potential sources for the contamination: the landfill; a former cattle feedlot east of the landfill (owned by Holloway); or the brining of Napier Road from 1970 to 1983.

The consent agreement, which was signed as a condition for Holloway Landfill to get its operating license renewed, directs Holloway to determine the source of the contamination by hiring an independent firm to study the area. If the landfill is found to be the source of contamination, Holloway must contain the contamination by making whatever repairs necessary and setting up a groundwater monitoring system.

Regardless of the source, Holloway is required to take remedial action under the consent agreement. The paving of Napier Road

Check your vote card

Canton Township residents who have received a letter requesting them to re-sign a new voter's registration card may do so on Sat., March 22, from 8:30 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. at the township administration building.

Years ago, cards were completed on carbon and through handling of the cards, signatures have become faded and unreadable. Residents who have received a letter stating that their individual card is one of these should visit the clerk's office to re-sign a new voter card.

Voters should also be aware that if you do not re-sign a card your voting rights will not be affected in any way for the next election.

Any questions can be handled on the elections line, 397-8151.

must be completed by June 30, and construction of six monitoring wells to be placed in a semi-circle around the contaminated area east of Napier Road must be completed by April 30.

The company will also have to excavate all sand in the contaminated area down to the clay level. The DNR determined that the contamination was contained to the upper water level.

The excavation and construction of a diversion ditch and treated pond must be completed within a year, according to the terms of the consent agreement.

Most of the residents at the hearing were concerned about immediate effects of the contamination. "At this point in time, we have no reason to believe anyone is affected by the contamination," said Bob Ratz, from the Wayne County Health Department.

Tests performed in two households near the landfill showed no contamination of drinking water, Ratz said. The groundwater in the area of the landfill flows from the northwest to the southeast, Ratz said.

The amount of contamination found in the pasture east of Napier could be compared to one pint of engine de-greaser spilled in a 10-acre land area, according to Dave Plueddemann, assistant public health engineer for Washtenaw County.

Although Holloway Sand and Gravel will be performing the remedial work, the landfill has not been determined to be the source of contamination, according to Synthia Noble of the DNR. "We can't definitely say it's the landfill," she said.

The DNR and Washtenaw and Wayne county health officials will have access to the contamination site for inspection during the cleanup, under the consent agreement.

What's a bond issue without a theme?

Included in the proposed $13 million Plymouth-Canton Schools bond issue is, well, almost everything - from a new building to a new dishwasher. District officials know part of the problem in convincing voters to vote 'yes' is narrowing the focus of the issue. That's why they're looking for a theme for the election.

Suggested at a school board workshop Monday night were the following:

1. A Future of Excellence
2. Vote for Continuing Quality Education
3. Keeping Education Updated for a Changing World
4. Continuing Educational Excellence in Plymouth-Canton
5. Good Schools for a Good Community.

As soon as the above list was heard, the ideas started to fly. Trustee Dean Swartzwelter suggested changing the last one to: Better Schools for a Better Community. Administrative assistant Dick Egli gave the nod to No. 3. Then, Superintendent John Hoben showed off a button he was wearing, which read: I can't afford to compromise educational quality.

It was decided that one of the first jobs of a soon to be formed bond election steering committee would be to pick the proper slogan.

City-status input sought

The Canton "city-status study committee" is providing another public input forum tonight at 7:30 at the Canton Administration Building, 1150 S. Canton Center Rd.

Citizens can air their opinions on the matter and have questions answered by Michigan State University Prof. Kenneth VerBurg, an expert on municipal issues.

The city-status committee was formed last fall by the Board of Trustees to look at the possibility of Canton becoming a city.

don't have the signatures," Chick said. Chick said the association was violating its own bylaws because it had not held a meeting for over a year. The last meeting held by the association was in January 1985.

"I don't object to any organization if it's run properly," said William Moore, a Brookside resident. "I'm a little teed off" at the way the park equipment assessment was handled, Moore said.

Moore said he was also prevented from getting more information on the list of signatures approving a park equipment assessment. "They don't have the information available," Moore said. "There's a lot of dissatisfied people."

Moore said the threat of a lien scared people into paying for the park equipment without having access to more information about the process used to get the approval of the homeowners. "I think there was a little bit of coercion used on their part," he said.

Linden said the association sent mail ballots on the issue, and when it received too little a response, went door-to-door to get homeowners' votes. "There was a minimum of six attempts at each house" to get residents' votes on the matter, Linden said.

"My main concern is paying this $25 and not getting anything," said former Brookside resident Betty Hill. Hill has not received a lien notice, but did withhold $25 from her last association bill and sent a check for $.81 like some of her former neighbors.

"They took money under false pretenses," Hill said. "I'll pay when it comes."

Brookside resident Charmaine Rowe said the issue, "pitted homeowners against the homeowner's association."

Rowe, who has paid for the park equipment, said the association used the lien threats selectively. "The

THIS PARK will have play equipment this spring or summer, which should end any controversy over the assessments charged for the equipment, according to Ken Linden. (Crier photo by Chris Boyd) association has to play by the rules, and it's not. We can't get copies of our bylaws," Rowe said.

Linden said the controversy will be over when the equipment comes this spring/summer. The association had built two baseball diamonds last year in the parks, and the money for the park equipment will reach 90 per cent soon, although Linden would not reveal how many homeowners had paid to date.

study, to put money into their own police department rather than continue contracting with the City of Plymouth Police Department.

Citing the study, Breen said city police service, which cost $467,000 in 1984-85, was not meeting township needs and would rise to $800,000.

The township study pointed out the city's violation of its police services contract with the city, political differences and communications problems between the two municipalities, and lack of traffic enforcement and neighborhood patrol.

But Berry, who was a City of Plymouth Police officer and chief for 22 years, tries to avoid analogies with the city department.

"There is no need for comparisons," Berry said.

Traffic enforcement, neighborhood patrol and emergency response are the priorities, Berry said. Officers are driving 150-180 miles during eight hour shifts and issued 6,018 tickets the first six months. Both figures indicate, he said, that officers are doing their job.

County sheriff's deputies still provide coverage on secondary streets like Ann Arbor Road and State Police patrol highways in the township.

Township officers voted two weeks ago to unionize, choosing Police Officers Association of Michigan as their bargaining agent. Though the vote has not yet been certified by the state, Breen and Berry said a union was expected.

"The only thing (a union) could ever do is raise costs," Breen said. Those costs, he said, will probably begin to rise next year.

That the officers are young means the department is in "a training mode," Berry said.

The department is continuing to organize neighborhood watch groups to help curb property crimes -- burglaries and larcenies, for example -- which are consistent problems in the township.

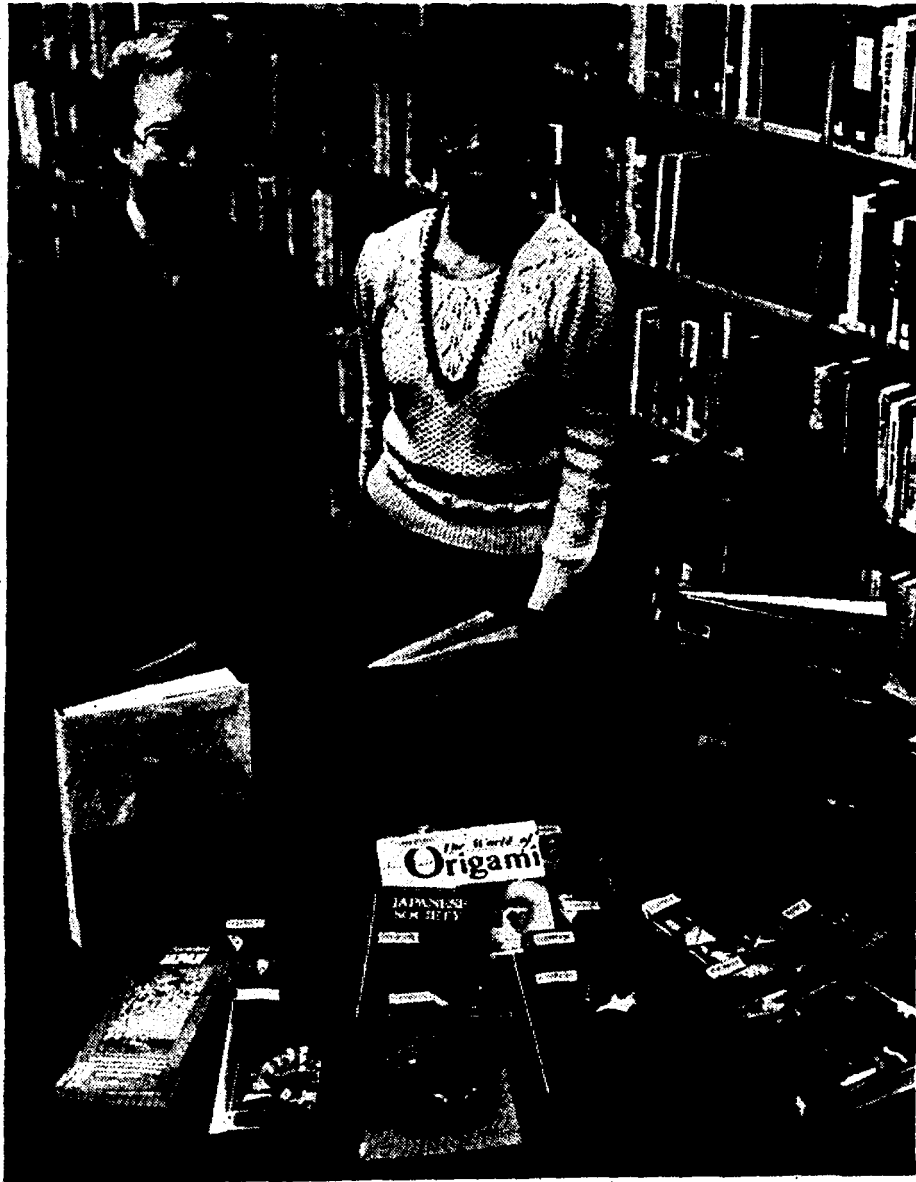

The township last year wasn't plagued with serious crime. Three criminal sexual assaults and two armed robberies were reported, Berry said.

While Breen said liability shouldn't be a problem, its hazards increased with the police department's startup. The township is self-insured, covered to $10 million, with a deductible-like clause of $50,000. Its premiums are set by risk managers.

Jack Prater, a township resident arrested and charged with assault and battery earlier this year, claims he was beaten by township police and has said he plans to sue the department.

Berry said the department would eventually issue weapons to some Community Service Officer volunteers, though he wouldn't say when.

Dedication of sculpture at 4:00 p.m.

At other times, when not involved in teaching at Plymouth-Canton Schools, he will be at the site on a "sculpt and smile" basis.

Community residents are invited to watch the sculptors at work and there may even be opportunities to pitch in. When not busy at the park, Rockwell will also be teaching in Plymouth-Canton Schools and preaching art at various lectures.

This community-supported project is a unique opportunity to see art in progress and is especially attractive for children. When completed, the sculptures will provide a hands-on, feet-on experience for youngsters.

See the sculpting this week and as it progresses. Rarely is such a chance given to the public.

And, oh yes, it's one more example of the style of life and community consciousness that makes The Plymouth-Canton Community unlike anywhere else.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

Times Like These

By Ed Fitzgerald

I walked into work last week and there on my desk was a small bag of marshmallows. I looked around. There were the usual campy guys I work with, but no campfire. Only one alternative was left. Gimmicky promotion.

It's not easy to promote an event. First off, you have to deal with reporters, who are, to a fault, suspicious and sarcastic. And when we get hit with marshmallows, our guard is up. "The Great Marshmallow Drop" is the brainchild of Wayne County. Billed as an "alternative for your child's Easter," a helicopter will fly over the Nankin Mills Picnic Area March 28. Some 15,000 marshmallows will become airborne.

I suppose it could be worse. They could drop Easter eggs on the kids. But ol' Bill Lucas isn't that hard-boiled.

There are countless groups in The Plymouth-Canton Community all in need of publicity at any given time. And we like to give it to them. That's what a community newspaper is partially, somewhat, at times, all about. We're also known for taking firm stands.

This town has every service club that ever raised a gavel. The Kiwanis and Elks clubs both choose a local 'student of the month.' Both provide us with photographs of the kids. Space rarely permits us to run the picture. When it comes to excuses, space is certainly the final frontier.

It's nice when groups have just one person in charge of publicity. Then it's easier to keep track of a Canton Craft Show in the Northville Recreation Center, or the other way around.

Most groups have at least one big fundraiser a year. For these, we try to run a photograph to grab the readers' eye. We recently did just that with the New Morning co-operative school. Soon, we will do it to promote the Plymouth Newcomers Club, whose art auction is April 12. My only problem with that club is a fear of Ruth Emerick living in town long enough to no longer qualify as a newcomer. Then she and her cute daughter won't come in and visit anymore.

Paul Sincock promotes the City of Homes (Plymouth). Doris Chatterley keeps us abreast of the Plymouth Arts Council. K.C. Mueller is a real workhorse. She handles promotion for the Plymouth Symphony and also the doings of the Women's Club. She recently invited me to the club's Scholarship Ball. I had to beg off. It wasn't until the next day that she told me they dined on Chateaubriand.

Another tip for obtaining publicity. If it's a good menu, tell your reporter up front.

Clothing Bank needs donors

EDITOR:

All of us working with The Plymouth-Canton Community School District Clothing Bank would like to take this opportunity to express our gratitude to The Plymouth-Canton Community for their support this past year.

Your generosity has made a great difference to many and reminded us once again of the caring and supportive type of community this is.

We hope you will continue to remember us with your donations as the seasons change.

We are located in the parking lot of Central Middle School and are open Tuesday and Thursday mornings, 9:30-12 noon. Our phone number is 451-6673.

"THE VOLUNTEERS"

Can P-C help SID'S cause?

EDITOR:

We want you to know what a small town can do.

As grandparents, along with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Puckett, who have lost two grandchildren from SID'S (Crib Death), we know how important it is to raise money and educate people on SID'S.

We moved to Englewood four years ago, a much smaller town than Plymouth, but with the help of the business people, radio, T.V., newspapers, going from door to door, and standing in little shopping centers, we raised this money.

Now my daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Christensen, tell me Michigan is hurting in this area. SID'S only help is through donations and organizations. So come on Plymouth, lets get going, so Michigan, especially Plymouth, is in there helping. We're doing our best in Florida. Just remember--

Fiegel Camp was great

EDITOR:

I was fortunate enough to be able to go, as a cabin leader, with the fifth graders at Fiegel Elementary School, for a weekend of Outdoor Education at The YMCA Storer Camp near Jackson, MI. In the past I have been on many of my son's school field trips, but nothing like a three day outing. Originally the camp was planned for a week, as in the previous year, but the school administrators would not allow that much time out of the class room. What the school administrators don't know, and what I found out was those children learned many things which aren't taught just in the class rooms.

The activities and learning experiences that the children were involved in were so interesting, challenging, and well organized that the whole educational experience was fun for the children. I never heard one complaint from any child about what we were doing. The children were exposed to many varied experiences. Some of the activities were, learning about and then watching winter birds, learning about and then tracking small animals, learning about the life cycle of a lake and then looking at microscopic animals brought in from the lake.

There was an activity learning about Indian Life and then actually re-enacting an Indian Treaty. One of the more challenging activities was called the "Incredible Journey." This activity involved the children in a team problem solving task. They were on an outer space mission and had to overcome different obstacles in order to complete their mission. This activity gave the children an opportunity to work together to solve a problem.

To sum up the point I am trying to make, I feel that the outdoor education program is a very worthwhile experience for the students. Not only do they learn about the things I have mentioned, but they learn some things about themselves and each other. They also gain a better appreciation for the things around them.

The staff of the Storer Camp is excellent with the children and has them captivated the whole time. The fifth grade teachers at Fiegel School should really be commended for their hard work in organizing the outing. They never gave up, even after many efforts to convince the administration that they should be able to go to camp.

We are very fortunate to have such dedicated and hard working teachers working for us. I should mention that the children raised money for the camp, so it was not a matter of financial concern.

My hope is that the school administration will realize the value of the Outdoor Education Camp and let future classes go for the full week.

Down The Road

By Brian Lysaght

It is the nature of our beast that everyone wants to run his own army. I mean if the choice is private or general, what choice is there?

Writing lately about police departments after last year's split set me to wondering about the kings' separate armies. In Plymouth, there was one police department and now there's two. City and township officials are satisfied with that. Most I talked to had only good things to say about their particular brand of police force. In Plymouth and Plymouth Township, the police departments are good, though not because the politician says so.

Carl Berry, chief of township police, is over-protective of his force. He's been burned too many times by the town tabloid, he says. Do anything but don't compare his department to the city's.

Both city and township police departments are developing their own separate but equal identities. Things are still a bit sensitive since the police studies, accusations and turmoil that preceded the city-township police split.

It costs money to duplicate services, sometimes a ridiculous amount. The city bought a new dispatch center recently and a computer a year or two ago. The township set up a "communications center" with seemingly unlimited capacity. But nobody wants to buy into the township's communications center. Everybody wants his own.

There was once 21 police on city and township streets, now there are 31.

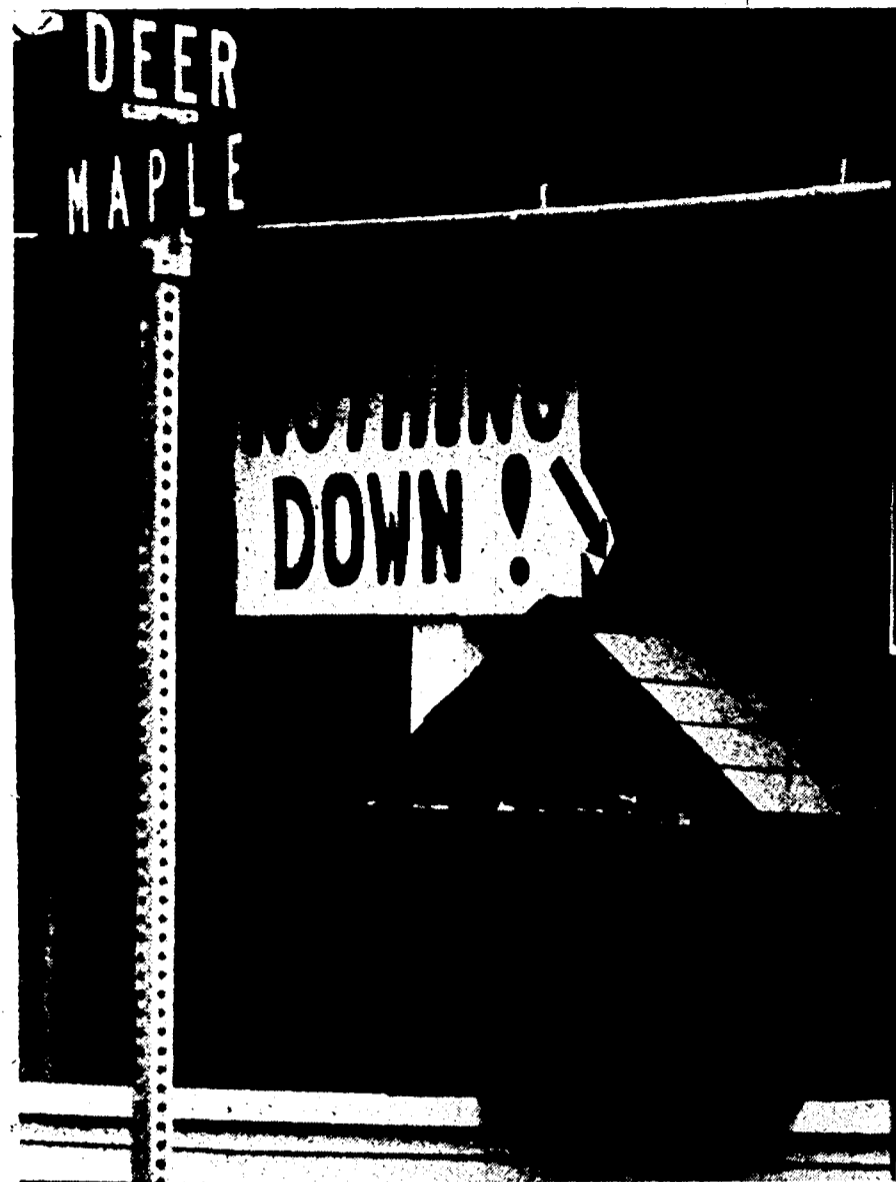

Both City Manager Henry Graper and Supervisor Maurice Breen, the armies' kings, have little desire to join forces. They say it won't and hasn't worked.

It is understandable but unfortunate that the city and township can't get together with Canton and the Northvilles to create a regional, independent police authority. But city and township relations seem usually strained.

Police consolidation is tied to the oh-so thorny issue of township-city consolidation. Though the two are forever tied by name, boundary and sense of community, trust is lacking.

We elect and hire politician- and administrator-kings to look after our interests. Short-sightedness is often the nature of that beast.

There's no place like mobile home

EDITOR:
RIGHT ON, JOE!

I am a resident of Plymouth Hills Mobile Court; have been for 11 years; and calling my mobile home a "trailer" has always been a thorn in my side.

A "trailer" (dictionary definition: a large vehicle fitted up as a dwelling designed to be attached to and drawn behind an automobile) can be hitched on to any vehicle and hauled from one place to another at any time.

A "mobile home" requires a special kind of truck for transporting; flashing lights on a vehicle following the home and then only during specified hours of the day.

We have many fine retired people in our park who choose mobile home living over condos, apartments and costly private homes. There are 424 coaches; some have fireplaces, some have sunken tubs and beautiful decor, and have more square footage living space than most apartments. Some mobile homes cost in the $30,000 range.

True, a mobile home is a "movable dwelling place of a man and his family" but there is a difference between "trailer" and "mobile home."

Single women barred?

EDITOR:

In regards to the recent article concerning the Plymouth Mobile Home Park, I feel compelled to write this letter.

Recently upon applying for an application into the park, I was told two single women could not rent. I was then rudely turned away by the park manager.

I feel the park is very discriminatory towards single women. When I buy a mobile home for $12,000 and pay $200 a month for a lot rental, I should not be told who I can or cannot live with.

I would like to save any single women the embarrassment of applying unless they can afford to live by themselves or with a man.

Through Bifocals

By Fred Delano

Here, there and everywhere across this great land, basketball fever has been at its peak this month, for it's just as Don Lund told a bunch of good ol' boys in the back room of the Box Bar one night last week, "Everyone gets cranked up at tournament time."

Lund is associate athletic director at the University of Michigan, where he won nine varsity letters in three sports back in the '40s, and he and U-M Ticket Manager Al Renfrew were in town as featured guests at the season-ending banquet of the "40 & Over" league run by Plymouth-Canton Schools.

It was a fun occasion for the 60 or more fellows in the league who still think of themselves as athletes, with Bill Emons, who learned his basketball in Illinois and Missouri, winning honors as the oldest of the bunch at age 62.

In deference to the toll the years take, these teams cavort half-court style and there are nine men besides Emons who were in the league when it was first formed in the winter of 1980-81. Still going at it hot and heavy this season, in addition to Bill, were Larry Masteller, Jan Chapski, Dave McBride, Ed Perpich, Don Massey, Jim McInyre, Tony Aquinno, Al Stokes and Joe Pasek.

"It's a pleasure just to be here and see fellows like you who keep the spark going," said Lund, who turns 63 himself this year.

Lund and Renfrew, who used to be Michigan's hockey coach, spun a few yarns and reminisced with the gang, admitting amazement when they were told by John Van Wagoner, who qualifies in many ways as our community's "Mr. Basketball," that 40 local cage fanatics would be at this past weekend's NCAA Midwest Regional tourney eliminations at the University of Dayton.

Lund's sports career has been more varied than Renfrew's, Al having stuck strictly to hockey as player and coach until being handed the enormous assignment in charge of ticket sales for all events from football on down.

In Don's case, 13 years of major league baseball, including a stint with the Detroit Tigers, and eight years as director of the Tigers' minor league farm system were sandwiched around three seasons as Michigan baseball coach.

One almost forgotten phase also saw Don serve as color man for the late Bob Ufer for a number of seasons when Bob was in Michigan's football broadcasting booth, living and dying with every Wolverine success or failure.

Ufer and Lund had been buddies in their student days and Don told the Box crowd, "Actually it wasn't so much that I was Bob's color announcer as his security blanket."

Then Lund brought the house down by adding, "Bob Ufer was the only sportscaster I ever knew who taped his ankles before a game. That's how intense he was about Michigan. But you could always tell when we were behind. That's when Bob would start talking about Bo Schembechler's coaching record."

Incidentally, had Ufer lived he would be celebrating another birthday on April 1. If you didn't know it, that's also Bo's birthday. No jokes, please.

Peace for Easter

EDITOR:

Easter is just around the corner, and shopping malls and suburban stores are crowded with people looking for clothes to look their Easter best. Among the lilies and jelly beans, I hope we do not lose the message of Resurrection, renewal, change of heart.

And central to that message is peace. I ask The Plymouth-Canton Community to support opposition to the arms race. I ask that you protest Williams International's making of engines for cruise missiles. I ask that you oppose military aid to the contras in Nicaragua. And I ask that you support the work of the Peace Center at Newman House of Schoolcraft College.

We can know the joy of Easter, if we not only cry "No more war!" but also actively participate to assure peace.

'None of us want to be stagnant'

New symphony leader knows the score

BY CHERYL SYNISZEWSKI

When speaking of his recent appointment as conductor and music director for the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, Leon Gregorian's heavy accent and business-minded nature doesn't hide his excitement.

"I'm absolutely thrilled to have the opportunity," said Gregorian. "There is tremendous growth potential in Plymouth, they have a fine orchestra that is capable of playing quite an impressive repertoire."

Gregorian will finish his tenure with the Owensboro Symphony Orchestra, in Kentucky, this April. He has served there as music director and conductor since 1971.

Currently, Gregorian resides with his wife, Linda Strandness, a violinist; and their three children, Ara, Ani and Alicia in Lansing.

"Eight concerts is adequate until such time that the budget allows for other growth."

-- Leon Gregorian

According to Gregorian, a community symphony belongs to the people of the community. With musicians living in the area and coming from the surrounding areas, there is a certain pride involved that goes above the concept of a job. Unlike the professional musician who is paid a salary, the community musician's main objective is the enjoyment of music so they often give more to their performance even when the financial compensation is not that large.

Although Gregorian worked with 28 concerts per season and a budget between $100,000 and $500,000 in Owensboro, he is not disappointed with the number of concerts or the current budget size of the Plymouth Symphony.

"Eight concerts is adequate until such time that the budget allows for other growth," commented Gregorian.

"What is most important is quality, not quantity."

Gregorian felt he had a fair amount of activity going on now. As a Professor of Music at Michigan State University since September of 1983, he directs two orchestras, the opera theatre and a number of musicals throughout the year.

He has appeared with the Boston

Pops Orchestra at the invitation of Arthur Fiedler on nine different occasions. His performances with the Boston Pops at Symphony Hall were taped by Voice of America and broadcast in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

Gregorian received his Bachelor of Music degree from the New England Conservatory of Music. His Master of Music and Doctor of Philosophy degrees were earned at MSU.

Although Gregorian sees tremendous potential for Plymouth and the possible evolution from community to a larger symphony, he is practical about his plans and goals.

"None of us want to be stagnant and not grow but we must maintain quality and have prudent expansion plans. Growth for the sake of growth is not useful, planned expansion is more advisable," Gregorian stated.

He feels that no one should ever be satisfied with just what they have, they should always strive to improve and expand. As partners, the symphony and he will grow together with artistic growth taking place first, while the financial base is gradually enlarged allowing for more concerts and fair musician compensation.

When considering the current administrative staffing situation of the Plymouth Symphony, Gregorian was optimistic. Although he felt the ideal situation would be to have a general manager to handle the daily administrative details, he said regardless of a manager the music director should give his utmost, "110 per cent."

A major factor in Gregorian's acceptance of the conducting position with the Plymouth Symphony was the enthusiasm shown by the Plymouth Symphony Society Board. He expressed confidence that he and the society board members would do what was necessary until a manager's position could be filled.

Vacation alone!

My first vacation without my kids or my mom was wonderful. There I was, all by myself, on a plane heading for California. It seemed kind of strange only checking one piece of luggage and not having to worry about someone getting lost.

I didn't figure changing planes in Chicago would be any big deal. However, I didn't plan to spend half of my vacation there. Is there any such thing as a plane arriving or departing on time? According to those little TV screens at the airport, all the planes are always on time (maybe they don't know how to spell late or delay).

Going out we had 10 minute delays for almost two hours while they worked on the electricity. It was a good thing they decided to bring in another plane, because I wasn't the only passenger who was rapidly losing confidence in the aircraft.

Arriving in Oakland two hours late, I was glad to see my friend, Pat still waiting for me. Pat Bartold was managing editor for The Crier five years ago. We talked as we waited for my luggage to appear.

Finally when everything was unloaded off the plane I still couldn't find anything that resembled the luggage I started out with that morning. I remember thinking it was going to be so much easier just having one suitcase to bother with.

Filling out the missing report was a real riot. The man I had to deal with certainly wasn't Mr. Personality (which didn't do much to improve my mood at the moment). Describing the luggage was no problem.

Next question: "If I opened your luggage what would I find on top?" Good grief, how was I supposed to remember what I threw in the suitcase, let alone know what was on top. I was just hopeful I had everything I needed. However, I did remember grabbing the hair dryer at the last minute so I assumed it would be somewhere close to the top.

Next question: "What brand of hair dryer?" Give me a break. How in the heck am I supposed to know what brand of hair dryer I use. I take whatever the kid doesn't want or whatever is on sale at K-mart when I need one.

Luckily it only took about nine hours for them to find my luggage and deliver it to the house. Other than an extra hour delay in Chicago on the return trip, everything was great. My luggage even found its way home on the same plane with me.

I'm sure glad I'm grown up enough to be able to handle taking a trip all by myself.

Travel TALK

FROM Emily's World

TRAVEL, LTD.

TULIPS AND CANALS

If you look at a multicolored map of Amsterdam, you'll see concentric circles of blue. Those circles (blue denoting water) are canals -- miles and miles of them. The city is built around these canals, and they add a glistening waterway to the city's excellent transportation services. Buses, taxis, and street cars complete the system, and the latter are especially extensive ... you can go practically anywhere on one of them.

The reason why it's so easy to get around Amsterdam is apparent as soon as you enter the city. The "nederlanders" want you to see ALL of one of the most exciting cities in Europe! Shopping, eating, museum-hopping, nightclubbing, sightseeing -- name your pleasure and it's there.

Nightclub lovers, for example, can enjoy and have their fun on a "triple-treat" basis. Those who like a wide-open atmosphere will relish the "Zeedijk" area, otherwise known as the waterfront. Cabarets, cafes, and bars cluster -- literally speaking -- in the "Rembrandtplein," while discotheques and popmusic lovers will make a bee-line for the "Leidesplein." Amsterdam is everything visitors say it is -- and more!

Buses for P-C Schools

Twelve new buses are on the way for Plymouth-Canton Schools. At its last meeting, the district's school board approved the spending of $391,890 for the buses.

The money has been allocated in next year's budget, but will come out of June's bond issue if it's passed.

Eight full-size buses are needed to accommodate the transfer of ninth-graders to the high schools, beginning with the 1986-87 school year. These buses, along with two mini-buses, will be purchased from Valley Ford for $316,896.

Two wheelchair-access buses, at a cost of $74,994, will be bought from Great Lakes Coach of Portage.

The full-size buses hold 65 passengers. Varsity is allowing $13,450 on the trade-in of old buses. Delivery will be in November, 1986.

The wheelchair buses (seating 54) will be delivered in November also. The mini-buses (seating 20), will arrive this August.

The study was done by Thomas Rose, Director of Purchasing; Cal Heard, Fleet Service Manager; and Dale Goby, Director of Transportation and Safety. Their committee is also considering the purchase of two cargo vans, one stake truck, and one delivery truck. Bids have been taken on these, but the committee is going to re-bid the project.

The horse knows the way

The Kiwanis travelogue will guide viewers through the canals of Great Britain tonight at 8 p.m. in the Salem High School Auditorium.

Britain has over 5,000 miles of canals and the film will take you by narrow boat, vacation barge and horse drawn boat.

The 3rd Duke of Bridgewater built the first of Britain's canals in 1759 to move to moved coal from his mines to the mills of Manchester. By the 1800s, England had an extensive array of waterways.

Fran and Brooke Reidelberger will travel from Manchester to London, and along the way visit industrial centers, explain canal locks, and visit with canal artisans.

Fran and Brooke will also explore the Llangollen Canal in Wales, and the Caledonian Canal, which stretches 60 miles from Ft. William to Inverness, Scotland.

Sports

Spring hopes eternal for Salem kickers

BY JEFF BENNETT

The 20-some members of the Rock soccer team aren't waiting for the fields to dry. Instead, they are planning and conditioning for what lies ahead.

"They believe in me and I believe in them," said coach Ken Johnson. "I feel good at the beginning of every year. I always hope that this will be the year and if it is, it is and if it's not, it's not."

The Rocks had 41 girls try out for the 22 spots on the team.

Senior captains Suzie Balconi and Julie Tortora will provide leadership for their younger teammates.

"Julie is like another coach," said Johnson.

After two weeks of conditioning, which involved mile runs, drills in the gym and hard work, Johnson says he has a good idea of what the Rocks have.

The backbone of the team is comprised of six juniors and is supported by five sophomores and nine freshmen.

"They all are good," said Johnson.

The skill comes from the community's Bonaza soccer teams that provide soccer competition and practice throughout the winter. Fourteen of this year's Rocks played on Bonaza teams.

BETH RAFAIL had the highest score on beam -- 9.25 -- at the state meet Saturday. (Crier photo)

Meet has Rock Rafail beaming

BY CHRIS FARINA

She finished the year in style.

Senior Beth Rafail took second place in State gymnastics competition over the weekend, in Grand Rapids.

Rafail scored a 9.25, which was the highest beam score for the weekend.

"My routine went so smooth, there was not one thing I can complain about," said Rafail.

Friday's competition was a qualifying round, where Rafail scored 8.55.

The entire North Farmington team was on hand Friday but no one was able to qualify. The Raiders were conference champs this year.

During competition Saturday only two gymnasts were able to perform no-fault beam routines, Rafail was one of them.

"Beth got all her shakiness out on Friday, then on Saturday she knew what needed to be done and she did it," said coach Kathi Kinsella.

"It gave me goose bumps to watch her routine, even though I've seen it about a million times," said Kinsella.

Both Rafail and Kinsella knew she had done it when Rafail dismounted.

Prep athletes end seasons in style

Rocks beat Stevenson to swim championship, A good day in Grand Rapids, Happy Hooker, and Rocks vs. Romulus were headlines that have appeared throughout this month telling of Canton and Salem's success in sports.

The chain of victories started off when the Salem swim team beat Livonia Stevenson 255-211 at the league meet.

I remember that like it happened yesterday. Chuck Olson was forced to take a dip with his clothes on. Both teams had the ugliest haircuts and Salem came away with the trophy.

It was not only a big night for the swim team, but for the school as well.

Saturday following that event, I went up to Grand Rapids to watch the state wrestling championship.

Fantastic was the only word that you could use to describe it. The Dameron brothers and James Wochuck took home medals and Canton's Dave Dunford and Salem's Kirk Rentz was able to compete.

Canton and Salem were represented very well at the state meet.

Later, Canton's Andy Flower dove his best and was named state champion, while Hooker Wellman his coach, waited for Charles Reginald to be born.

Salem's basketball team made it to the first round in the regionals and won the conference, while Canton's basketball team did a 180 degree turn to finish 10-10 for the season.

Plymouth Christian's basketball team was a powerhouse in the class "D" division and was co-conference champion.

Salem's Beth Rafail was second in the state on the beam in gymnastics and Salem came close to beating North Farmington.

Through every single event, the people who took part, showed their talent and proved not only to themselves, but to others, that they could go the distance.

Rappin' J. B.

By Jeff Bennett

So far this year, Salem, Canton and PC have sipped from the victory cup and the taste was not only sweet for themselves but for the schools as well.

People left sporting events talking and happy, because their teams did something. It was not a year of complete losses or complete wins, nobody knew what was going to happen.

As it came down to the end, I for one could not wait to see how the teams would do. Sure, I was hesitant at first about going to Grand Rapids to cover wrestling, but when I got there, I was awarded with the best story.

You should know that the high school sporting events are worth something. They are worth checking out and watching.

The community can be proud of what these athletes are doing for their schools and Plymouth and Canton.

I challenge you to watch one high school sporting event before this school year ends. I can tell you from experience that you are in for a treat.

Whether it be basketball, baseball, softball, volleyball, football, soccer, track, swimming, wrestling, tennis, gymnastics or golf, The Plymouth-Canton Community high schools have proven they can win and will continue to do so as long as they keep doing their best, like they have done this month.

Mills' Eagles ground Rocks in regional play

BY CHRIS FARINA

Salem's basketball season ended abruptly last Wednesday.

The Romulus Eagles flew high over the Rocks beating them 70-48.

During the first half of the game Salem did a good job shutting down 6-foot-10 Eagle Terry Mills.

Defensively I was happy, we did what we wanted against Mills," said coach Bob Brodie.

At the half Salem still had hope, the scoreboard read 33-27.

But the Eagle defense continued a full court press and Salem couldn't handle it.

"We had trouble dealing with the pressure. A full court press for four quarters takes its toll," said Brodie.

Eagle Terry Mills lead the game scoring with 24. Rock lead scorer was Mike Hale with 18, while Paul Makara scored 11.

Salem turned the ball over 21 times, and hit only 18 of 57 from the floor.

"We put so much effort ingetting over the timeline that once we made it we didn't shoot well," Brodie said.

The Rocks end their season with a 12-11 record.

TERRY MILLS and his travelling air show added 24 points for Romulus during their 70-48 victory over the Rocks last week. Still, Salem's defense kept pressure on Mills, who at 6'10", stands head and shoulders over Rock 6'6" center Dave Collins (43) and 6'1" guard Tony Moore (11). (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

Skaters end season

For Plymouth's junior C hockey team, just making it to the state playoffs was a battle.

But they lost in the early rounds of the playoffs Saturday, 4-2 to Livonia and 5-3 to the Detroit Warriors.

The team, coached by Mike Donnelly and managed by Doug Waack, began its season December 19, two months behind most teams in the league, but played 18 games before February 1.

The team lost the district title for the first time in six years to Livonia. They defeated the USA Jets and Trenton to qualify for a spot in the state playoffs.

They defeated Lansing Quaker High School 10-1 Thursday.

Livonia went on to win the state crown and the Detroit Warriors finished second.

The team is sponsored by S and H Fabricating.

Rock tracksters

Counting young and old

BY JEFF BENNETT

The Rock girls track team is laced with veteran leadership in key positions.

Salem has 11 returning athletes covering the field and track events, while 30 sophomores and 12 freshmen will be a strong support.

"We are counting on the 10th graders," said coach Fred Thomann. "They have a way to go, but those returning who are the nucleus of the team, have a long way to go for themselves. If we put the team together, we can be good."

Salem's Amy Johnson will run the hurdles for the last time in her high school career and junior Kristen Hostynski will also compete. These two athletes both scored in the conference meet last year.

Karen Marciniak who was conference champion last year with a discus toss of 104'12", has plans to compete in the shot put and discus again. Along with Marciniak will be senior Laura Clifford.

The main sprinters for Salem are sophomore Jenny Smith and junior Janet Homestead. They are also competing in the long jump.

Half-milers Heidi Dupret and Chris Trapani will run their last year and two-miler Trish Donnley, is planning to circle the track eight times for her senior year.

Juniors Cheryl Durrer and Mary Zorney will compete for the Rocks in the quarter-mile.

"The league meet is well balanced and we will have to compete everyday," said Thomann. "No one team is stronger than another. It's too early to tell.

Thomann says that he has enough strong runners and they are working for the conference meet.

The Rocks will get their first peek at league competition, when they lace up their shoes for the Eastern Michigan University track meet, which is held March 29th at 10 a.m.

Last year, graduate Dennise Durrer took 15th in the 1600 meter run with a 2:21 time. Her position is left open for the team to fill.

At the conference meet last year, the Rocks took fourth place, falling behind second place Canton. Another standard that Salem will have to live up to is the seventh place in the league meet.

"We finished in the money," was Thomann's remark last year and Salem will try to do it again.

Soccer Rocks begin April 7

Juniors Chris Casler, Michelle Cygan, and Nicki Stojeba will create the Rock strong defense.

Sophomore Rachel Thiet, who Johnson calls a spark, is a Salem key player in the mid-field. Balconi and sophomore Jennifer Bellhart will play wing.

In the forward positions, Tortora will keep the attacking line together. Johnson said that there will be a lot of fighting to fill the other wing positions. Pam Mayer, Jill Estey, Teri King, and Missy Smith are contenders.

Salem's goalie is sophomore Ellen Schnaskel. Freshmen Jenny Cebula is the back-up.

"They all like to work," said Johnson. "We have an excellent team spread."

Last year Salem finished with a 6-7-3 record and lost to Livonia Stevenson.

This year, Stevenson is the team that Salem wants to beat, Johnson said. Livonia Stevenson, that perennial powerhouse, lost five players from last year and Johnsons says that the Rocks have a good chance.

"If we can beat Stevenson twice, then we can have a long run in the state," said Johnson.

On April 9th at 7 p.m., Salem will start their season playing Northville and the Rock's first home game is April 12th at 2 p.m. against Farmington.

"We've got youth, spirit, and they're very coachable," said Johnson.

Rafail is 2nd at state

"We were so excited because we knew that one (performance) would do it," Rafail said.

Rafail's score at state was her highest beam score.

"The time to do my best routine was at state," said Rafail.

Rafail will be attending CMU in the fall and she is anxious to compete in college gymnastics.

Fund directors

Charges were never proven

David Falzetti, a teacher at Canton High School accused of sexually harassing a female student on Oct. 1, 1985, will not be investigated further by the school district, according to Norm Kee, Assistant Superintendent of Personnel.

Falzetti is currently back teaching at the school.

Kee said Protective Services had also completed its investigation. "As far as the schools are concerned it's a closed issue," Kee said Tuesday.

A complaint filed by the girl's father on October 2, 1985 has not been acted on by Canton Police. The complaint said Falzetti had "grabbed the girl's buttocks."

Falzetti was suspended without pay for seven weeks in October and November, 1985. Kee said at the time that Falzetti would return to school "when we are assured there is no danger of these allegations being made again."

Kee had also said: "There were no witnesses to the incident. They (charges) are still just alleged. Teachers, like anyone, are open for any allegations."

He also expressed regret that Falzetti's name had been released.

Twp. PD is busy

The department has state-of-the-art dispatch and information handling equipment. Berry said both dispatch and computer capacity could be provided for neighboring departments. But Breen said that is unlikely to happen.

"Nobody asked us and it doesn't seem to be a popular item with other departments," Breen said.

Trustee Jim Irvine, though voted to start the township department in 1984, was less enthused than other board members about the concept. He says he has heard little of the police department since.

"I did not regard our blue ribbon committee or a meeting of 25 people as an overwhelming demand for (township) police to patrol," Irvine said. "But we got it. And they voted the millage to support it. So I guess I was wrong."

ADVERTISING ADVICE #406

Q: Every media tells me I'd be better off advertising with them. Who will give me straight answers on where to advertise?

A: It's important to do your own research. If someone has fairly convinced you to advertise with them, ask for 7 or 8 back issues of the publication. Study them. See who advertises in them, and who the stories seem to be written for. Make an informed decision.

Birthday sale features local artists

THE ART RENTAL GALLERY is celebrating its 11th anniversary by throwing a Birthday Sale on Sat., March 26 from 10 to 8:30 p.m. on the second floor of the Dunning Hough Library.

The gallery is offering more than 70 framed works starting at $15 (and nearly 20 of those are priced less than $50).

The Gallery features many Michigan artists working in watercolors, oils, acrylics, collage and some reproductions. Volunteers, including Fran Nistal (left) and Nancy Rizzo, will provide the price list before the sale. A silent auction will also be held.

sometime.

Love, Phyllis

Happy Birthday Judy Prince. When are we going to celebrate?

Thanks Pat and Jim for a fantastic vacation.

Famous Joe is another year older. Happy Birthday!

I left my heart in San Francisco, Carmel and Monterey -- I'm sure the brain must be there too.

Jeff, dinner at the Rusty Pelican was great. Thanks.

Phyllis
