

Brown retires as Salem principal

BY ED FITZGERALD

Bill Brown, principal of Salem High School, will retire at the end of this school year. He has been a principal in the district for 17 years.

"It was a difficult decision," Brown said. "There was no one single item. I think it's just a matter of being 55 years old with 32 years of service (including a stint in the U.S. Navy)."

Brown was hired in 1956 to teach sociology, history and coach athletics at Plymouth High. In 1962 he took a job as principal in Comstock, near Kalamazoo.

He returned as principal at Plymouth in 1969. Two years later he was instrumental in the high schools' move to Centennial Educational Park.

School board president Roland Thomas, a pupil of Brown's, called him the "most influential teacher I had in high school. I was hoping my children would get to see him in action."

Fred Meier, area coordinator at Salem, announced his own retirement several months ago. He's worked with Brown as an administrator since 1977.

"You always knew what he wanted. He was fair and it was comfortable to work for and with him," Meier said.

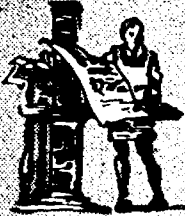

"I always said I'd leave when he did, but I guess I don't have to worry about that."

Brown said the P-C School District has been "exceptionally good to Bill Brown and his family. We've had our ups and downs, but it's been a privilege."

Brown and his wife plan to travel throughout the country.

City fine-tunes budget

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

City Commissioners on Monday got their first complete look at the 1986-87 city budget proposed by the administration.

The commission has scheduled a series of work sessions, April 15-17, to evaluate the 66-page document before approving its final form later this month. The city's fiscal year begins July 1.

City residents are invited to comment on city finances at a budget public hearing at 7:30 p.m. April 28. The proposed budget is available at the Dunning Hough Library.

The proposed budget is based in part on revenues generated from a property tax of 18.17 mills, equal to last year's.

General fund spending, the largest chunk of the proposed budget, is up

1.71 per cent over last year, totaling $4,498 million.

The administration has projected the city will earn about $2 million more than last year in property taxes. The additional revenue will allow the city to recover the rising costs from inflation, said City Manager Henry Graper. The city manager said he was pleased "we were able to keep a stable tax rate and still raise the amount of money necessary to fund expenditures."

Administration is the largest chunk of general fund spending -- $1,087 million -- but is down four per cent from last year. Projected spending for the Cultural Center rose five per cent from last year to $710,000, while the center's revenues are expected to rise 3.16 per cent next year.

Foodless Fest?

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

Will there be food booths at Fall Festival this year?

At its meeting April 23, the Fall Festival Board will wrestle with a question that could change the complexion of the premier event of The Plymouth-Canton Community.

A constantly growing goal, as more food booths sprang up over the Festival's 30 years, has been having "not so much competition for major meals," said Sue McElroy, immediate past Fall Festival president.

"We'll encourage groups to sell other things," said Diane Glass, wife of Fall Festival manager Carl Glass and veteran Festival volunteer.

McElroy said it might be possible to find one or two food-related sponsors -- such as a pizza company or a hot dog company -- and to restrict non-major meals to them. The organizations which have sponsored food related booths could then raise their money by working in the booths, she said.

"In other words, incorporate them (major food sponsors and the volunteer groups) in the Festival," McElroy said.

Desert and snack booths would not be affected.

Glass said that recent complaints to the Festival board centered on, "too much food, too much food, pretty consistently."

"We're trying to look into the guidelines the complaints have given us," McElroy said.

She emphasized that no decision had yet been made and that she expected the board would schedule a meeting with the groups involved.

Top fund-raising food booths according to the 1983 net earning figures were: Polish National Alliance Centennial Dancers kielbasa and sauerkraut ($4,706); the YMCA Italian sausages ($4,695); Nativity of Virgin Mary Greek shiskebobs ($1,967).

Those three top food booths were also joined at the 1985 Festival by: Canton Senior Class hot dogs; Salem Senior Class pizza; Plymouth Christian Academy taco salads; Steppingstone sub sandwiches; Plymouth Family Services pita burgers; Salem Junior Class nachos; Plymouth Community

Chorus tacos; and a number of desert and snack-oriented food booths.

Some of the service clubs which sponsor the Festival's main meals have complained that the growth of the smaller food booths have hurt main meal sales.

They cite for example, the Grange lunches, the Thursday night dinners and the Jaycees Saturday dinners which have all seen precarious times. Only the Rotary chicken barbecue on Sunday and the Lions' fish fry on Friday seem to have withstood the food booth competition although they have said the smaller booths hurt their sales too. The Kiwanis pancake breakfast on Saturday morning has little competition from small booths.

The Festival board is also hoping to

"I do believe I'm a druggie" Gone Straight

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Most wear sneakers, some are new, some battered.

They stand up, say their names and follow with the phrase "I do believe I'm a druggie." They tell their age, the number of years they've been doing drugs, and recite the list of drugs they've taken during their young lives: marijuana, alcohol, cocaine, mescaline, acid, and prescriptions are frequently mentioned.

It is Friday night at Straight Inc., a recently opened substance abuse center in Plymouth Township for young people.

New arrivals to Straight, those working on phase one of the five phase program, tell of their own drug problem to their peers and to parents gathered for the open meeting in the Straight building on Ann Arbor Road.

On a recent Friday, the large room in which parents, siblings, and Straight officials have gathered with the young drug abusers is very hot.

Some of the sneakers fidget, some are still as tales of addiction are told. Some of the new Straight enrollees say they are 17-years-old and have been taking drugs for seven years. Some tell harrowing tales of stealing money to buy drugs, of the disappointment and shame their drug taking caused them and others. All state the two goals they have set for themselves as they become drug free.

All the girls who speak begin to cry. None of the boys cry.

About 60 young people from all over the state are working their Straight programs in Plymouth Township. Straight opened in Michigan, its eighth branch nationwide in January, in a former machine shop on Ann Arbor Road that Straight kids and parents renovated. Straight parents say they raised $150,000 to open the building.

Straight officials say the treatment approach is based on that of Alcoholics Anonymous and family systems theory. The program's goal is to guide young people through the five phase program, at their own pace, so that graduates of the program will know how to live without drugs.

Parents of the kids are required to participate. Parents and kids' groups meet separately and jointly. Siblings also have meetings.

"Right from the beginning, kids get support from kids and parents get support from parents," said Joanne Weber, community services director at Straight.

In phase one, kids live in one of Straight's state-licensed foster care homes. After that they live at home but attend intensive therapeutic sessions at Straight six days a week. Peer counseling plays an import part of treatment. The Straight staff includes a psychiatrist, a physician, a

CEP staffers resign after schools' investigation

BY ED FITZGERALD

Two employes of Plymouth-Canton Schools have resigned after admitting to supplying under-age students with alcohol, according to school officials.

Guy Jerry Vettese, head of CEP security, and Mark Even, a media specialist, were given a choice of resigning or being fired, said a school district attorney.

Both employes chose to resign. Vettese's resignation said he would be on leave of absence until June 30, and then his resignation would take effect. He will receive full pay until then. Even said he would be taking another job.

John Hoben, superintendent of Plymouth-Canton Schools, said an investigation was launched after a former student came to school officials. Hoben declined to elaborate.

Edward Draugelis, attorney for the schools, said the resignations were a result of "a complaint filed by a former student. The administration conducted an investigation, discovered wrongdoing and they (the two employes) admitted it. As a consequence they were given a choice of resigning or being discharged."

No criminal charges have been filed in connection with the cases, Hoben said.

Ray McVeigh, attorney for Vettese, said he did not plan a hearing before the school board.

Vettese and Even declined to comment.

Hoben and Draugelis would not release additional information regarding an incident or incidents where alcohol was shared by students and Vettese or Even.

Pigeons gone?

The city has been using a pigeon repellent -- and claims much success -- in keeping the birds away from downtown.

"We think we've come up with a cure," said City Manager Henry Graper. "We're not sure. We've been using it about a month and a half now."

He added that city officials don't see many pigeons downtown these days.

"(The pigeons) are gone but we didn't poison them," said DPW

Director Ken Vogras.

The chemical, according to Graper, is called Hubstate Bird Repellent. The city purchased it from a Livonia chemical dealer and it's manufactured in Indiana, Graper said.

The city is using the repellent on downtown city property only to keep pigeons from roosting, Graper said.

The city cut short its plans to poison the birds earlier this year with strychnine.

City approves sales

The City Commission on Monday approved two purchase offers from private firms hoping to buy two separate parcels of city-owned property.

The parcels are the 2.6-acre site adjacent the DPW yard and a 48-acre section of an old city water well off Beck Road in Northville Township.

Carrollton Arms, a Livonia-based developer, offered $101,220 for the DPW property and signed a purchase agreement with the city March 20. City Manager Henry Graper said the firm plans to construct a 50,000 square foot industrial building, to be subdivided.

According to the purchase agreement, the city must meet five conditions for sale by Aug. 1. These include the granting of a 12-year, 50 per cent tax abatement, the largest abatement available, and the installation of storm and sanitary sewers and an eight inch water main.

Money from the planned sale will go to pay off renovations at the DPW yard.

The city received a purchase offer for the Beck Road property, which holds about six capped water wells, last month from Singh Associates, a residential home developer. The firm offered $393,500 with an $80,000 down payment on a three-year land contract with nine per cent interest.

A similar offer for the property made in 1979 fell through in 1982.

Graper said money from this agreement, if it holds, would go to pay off bonded water and sewer debt.

Fisher given new trial

BY ED FITZGERALD

Dr. Charles Fisher, of Canton, convicted of first degree murder February 21, will be given a new trial. Prosecuting attorney Doug Baker says it's "absurd."

Fisher was found guilty of the July 1984 murder of his wife, Ella Maria, after just two days of deliberation by a jury.

Baker was outraged when Wayne County Circuit Judge Claudia Morcom kept Fisher free on bond after conviction. He said, Fisher has "nothing to lose by running. Unless he has a lot of faith in the appellate system."

But Baker, too, must give it a second try. When Judge Morcom awarded Fisher a new trial on the sentencing date, March 21, Baker announced he would appeal. He says he is now back to "square one." No court dates have been set concerning the appeal. Fisher remains free, having posted 10 per cent of a $250,000 bond.

In setting aside the conviction, Morcom agreed with defense attorney Daniel Burress who argued that Baker had, among other things, improperly referred to inapplicable evidence during his closing arguments. In question are two letters sent by Canton Police Officer Bill Keppen to Baker. The letters had, as Baker says, "no evidential value." One referred to possible extradition proceedings, prior to Fisher's original arrest on St. Thomas Island Feb. 19, 1985. The other was a cover letter that accompanied an autopsy report of Fisher's wife.

Baker said, "I flat out disagree with it (the reversal) and so does the office (Wayne County Prosecutor's Office). That's why we're pursuing it."

Baker said it wasn't as though he had done anything "outlandish" in the trial. He said he had not referred to Fisher's guilt being proved just because he did not testify during the trial.

Baker said he had been notified that Burress would make a motion for retrial before the sentencing date. He said the appeal would probably take months.

A statement in a story appearing in last week's Crier -- "Chuhran said she had, on some charges, been mistaken over Poole's involvement," -- should have been attributed to Canton Trustee Stephen Larson.

To clarify a statement by Canton Supervisor James Poole, Terry Chuhran has not filed a lawsuit against any Canton board members.

In another story, the amount of money set aside for the Canton tree giveaway program was incorrectly reported. The actual amount is $1,300.

Armed robber hits Papa Tony's in Canton

Police have made no arrests after an armed robbery at a Canton pizza restaurant last Tuesday night.

According to police reports, a man with a gun escaped with about $300 in cash from Papa Tony's restaurant, at 8473 Lilley.

The man pointed a small handgun at a girl working that night and demanded all the money in the cash register. After grabbing money from the cash register, the man forced the girl to an office in the rear of the building and looked for more money in a desk, according to police.

The man then ran out of the store and drove north on Lilley and east on Joy roads in a gold car, according to police.

The suspect was described as being in his late 20's, 5' 10" tall, weighing from 175 to 180 lbs, wearing a red ski mask, faded jeans, a tan suede jacket and a gold ID bracelet on his right hand.

penditures are: $750,420 for police -- up nine per cent from last year; $710,350 for public services (DPW), up six per cent from last year; and $390,210, a .9 per cent increase, for fire service.

Attorney costs are projected to drop 19 per cent next year, and 35th District Court subsidies 50 per cent.

The city will be negotiating police and firefighter contracts this year. The proposed budget takes that into consideration, Graper said.

Graper also said in notes included with the budget that the city is keeping purchases of new equipment "to an absolute minimum."

The city's property tax rate breaks down like this: 13.7 mills operating levy; 2.47 mills garbage collection; and 1.98 mills various debt levies.

Prosecutor: Bd. did not violate Act

The Wayne County Prosecuting Attorney's office has ruled that the Canton Board of Trustees did not violate the state Open Meeting Act when it closed a board meeting Jan. 7 before addressing all agenda items.

Terry Chuhuran, of Canton, had filed a complaint with the prosecutor's office writing that his rights to free speech had been violated because he was not allowed to speak when the meeting was adjourned.

At that meeting, Chuhuran and two other citizens had their hands raised to speak on the issue of a deputy clerk for Clerk Linda Chuhuran when the meeting was adjourned.

In his complaint, Chuhuran wrote, "My wife is the elected clerk, but I do not feel that as a citizen of this community I relinquished my rights of freedom of speech because of her position."

Youth Straighten up

psychologist and a special education teacher.

Straight's program tries to get kids to open up, to talk about their problems and feelings, Weber said. It is okay to cry, she said.

"The only way to get them to change is to get them to open up," she said.

A father whose son began using drugs in the seventh grade and later spent 21 months in Straight, said the program gave him peace of mind.

"The only way to get them to change is to get them to open up."

"When I got away from the program, I realized I had changed," he said, for the better. He said he had felt guilty about his son's drug use but learned "it's not the parents that decided to do the drugs."

Straight is non-profit and privately funded and began in 1976 in St. Petersburg, FL. Treatment costs $17.80 per day.

Straight takes kids between 12 and 22. The average age is 15. Sixty per cent of Straight's clients are boys, 40 per cent are girls. Weber said 75 per cent of the kids who complete the program are off drugs a year later.

Some don't complete the program though. They are free to leave whenever they choose, Weber said. Township police recorded two reports of Straight runaways in the last two weeks. Police Chief Carl Berry, who said he supports the program, said the runaways are detained by police and parents called to pick up their kids.

Straight kids are taught how to deal with relapses, Weber said. Graduates, she said, "are always welcomed back when they need it," she said.

But there is no mention of relapse at the end of the open meeting last week. Four young men who completed their treatment are given small pins to mark the accomplishment. Their families join them in the front of the hot room. There are smiles, and hugs and tears. They say it has been a long road to recovery and that it won't be easy staying straight. But they say they will try.

Canton man charged with criminal sexual conduct

BY DAN NESS

A Canton man was arraigned Thursday in 35th District Court on a charge of criminal sexual conduct -- first degree involving an eight-year-old girl.

Richard Joseph Rozmus, 33, of 2469 Berwick, was released after posting a $10,000 cash bond Thursday in front of Magistrate George Wiland. Canton police arrested Rozmus earlier Thursday after receiving a complaint from the girl's mother that he had allegedly made sexual contact with the girl according to police reports.

Rozmus will face preliminary examination in 35th District Court on Monday.

The girl's mother told police that she sent her daughter to Rozmus' house in their neighborhood to borrow some Bisquick. When the girl arrived at the house, Rozmus allegedly led her into a bathroom where physical contact was made, according to police reports.

Vote 'yes' on schools' June 9 bond issue

The Plymouth-Canton Schools' June 9 bond issue for $13 million is two months away. That may sound like a long time, but soon election volunteers will be phoning asking for your support.

As always, you should vote one way or the other. This time, you should vote "yes."

Here are some of the issues to be decided:

•The largest expense is $4.5 million for a new elementary school in Canton. There is no question here. Build it. The sooner the better.

•$925,000 for renovations to the Administration Building on Harvey. The Citizens Bond Committee made no recommendation for this, but school officials thought otherwise. Board president Roland Thomas called the first-floor conditions "deplorable." The board meeting room is far too small and cannot accommodate large (though rare) crowds of visitors. Objectors say this is just a temporary solution. Associate Superintendent Ray Hoedel says future administrator personnel additions will be minimal and parking should be no problem. He also says a new face to the building will help the value of downtown property. The location is undoubtedly prime.

•$600,000 for computers. The district got as good a price as it could through a purchasing pact with Wayne County Intermediate Schools. Nowadays people hand over money for computers readily, acknowledging it as the wave of the future. But is the district's program preparing its students for the real world? Computer businesses such as EDS have been known to help set up schools' programs. Leasing of computers should also be considered, since equipment turnover is high.

•$1.6 million for renovation to Central Middle School. This has been called a sentimental issue by many school officials. No one wants to see the grand ol' building demolished. But this is another temporary fix-up. A master plan is needed. Hoedel says the building's foundation is sound and could last for a long time with proper upkeep. Again, the location is excellent and shouldn't be lost.

•$700,000 will be spent to add six classrooms to Gallimore Elementary. It's needed. So are the proposed portable rooms for slightly over $100,000. The citizens' committee did not recommend the Gallimore addition.

•Over $1 million for a new heating system at Pioneer Middle School. The existing roof-top system has been called a "mistake" by school board treasurer Dr. E.J. McClendon.

Hoedel calls the package "bare bones." The district has also set up a hotline where homeowners can call in to see how much it will cost them. It's estimated that a home worth $70,000 will cost its homeowner another $40 a year in taxes.

Board vice president Elaine Kirchgatter has been correct in repeatedly asking "what if..." Confidence has kept the schools from preparing a comprehensive plan for failure of the issue. Hoedel says an executive cabinet meeting would be called and a second attempt, with certain changes, would be discussed.

Some of you might think a new school is needed but you don't go along with other issues. The different requests could have been separated on the ballot, but Hoedel says attorneys have recommended against splitting the issues.

The state still has to ratify the package before it goes before local voters. There are many items in the package not listed here. Such as over $4 million for many, some small, equipment and technological improvements. Superintendent John Hoben says it's good to have some smaller requests in the package, so as to give the state something to trim.

A comprehensive report on the bond issue is being prepared by the schools. If you have questions stop by their offices or attend the board meetings - the second and fourth Mondays of the month.

That way when your phone rings, you'll already have the schools' number.

Let your Canton country pride show

What have you done lately to promote your home community -- the Township of Canton?

Many residents, while enjoying the low tax rates and semi-rural surroundings Canton can offer, won't give half a thought to volunteering for their community as they drive to their daytime lives outside of Canton's borders.

However, Cantonites who realize how unique their township is can do their part by working for this summer's Country Festival, which will be celebrated from June 20-22.

According to Larry Bowerman, who is organizing the Festival this year, volunteers are needed to sell raffle tickets, staff the information booth, work on the grounds crew and help set up and tear down the Festival works.

In what must surely be the Festival-organizer's motto, Bowerman said, "We always need people, there's never too many people to help."

As it now stands, the parade is definitely out for this year, the rodeo and fireworks are possibilities, (keep your fingers crossed), and the carnival rides and Cow Chip Fling (I'll believe it when I see it) are already scheduled.

In addition, Bowerman has lined up a disc jockey for the Festival's Friday night, with plenty of space for dancing;

To The Point By Dan Ness

Don Korte and his Big Band sound to play favorites from the '30s and '40s on Saturday night; and the Canton Wheels to show everyone what square dancing is all about on Sunday.

Bowerman is still looking for local amateur talent to fill out the entertainment schedule for the weekend.

Festival food will again be served each day of the Country Fest -- the Jaycees shishkabobbing on Friday night, the Business and Professional Women serving hamburgers on Saturday night and the Canton Chamber of Commerce frying up chicken for Sunday, Bowerman said.

Local groups looking for a fun, efficient fundraiser can reserve a concessions space at the Festival. There are several spaces yet available for groups wanting to participate in the Fest.

The Canton business community can help by buying a "sponsor board" at the Country Festival. For a $100 donation, the name of your business will be displayed on a four-inch by 24-inch board along with other sponsors at the Festival throughout the weekend. The business name will be written in bold, block lettering unless the business provides its own lettering/logo that will fit within the borders of the sponsor board, Bowerman said.

So far, only eight businesses have committed to buy sponsor boards. By next week, Bowerman will have contacted about 500 businesses to let them know about the boards.

The sponsor boards are an excellent way to show the Canton community that your business supports community events. In turn, Festival goers will have the opportunity to see which businesses they should support within the community.

It's time to let your Canton country pride show. The Canton Country Festival stands as one of the most visible examples of why Canton is more than just a bedroom community.

To volunteer to be a Festival worker, to buy a sponsor board, or for more information about the concessions, entertainment and other Festival activities, call Larry Bowerman at 453-6610.

THIS SIGN in front of Canton Township Hall still advertises what was once called "the biggest parade in Michigan." But there'll be no parade this year. (Crier photo by Dan Ness)

What Crier has to let 70-year-old columnists write:

There still were wall to wall people throughout the home of hostess Phyllis Redfern as a recent soiree approached the hour of midnight, and during a momentary lull in the hubbub Bob Kleinsmith asked Mother Goose, "How many columns do you think Fred will get out of this?"

Some of you guys refer to your wife as your mate, spouse, bride, "the missus," "the war department," or even as "my old lady." Why and when it started I don't know, but for years I've used the term Mother Goose, perhaps on the pretense that life is but a fairy tale.

Occasion for this gathering was a surprise party to celebrate my entering mankind's septuagenarian ranks, and, WOW, what a surprise it was! My feelings were a mixture of amazement and gratitude, knowing full well that such an expression of kindness was uncalled for.

Mother Goose sensed this, but she's a realist. So, in answering Kleinsmith, she said, "Well, he doesn't enjoy writing thank-you notes, so he'll put the names of all these friends in one Bifocals and then send that copy of The Crier to those from out of town.

"He'll thank Phyllis, Joan Ford and me for all the work we did, as well as the Redfern kids who did the decorating--Ron and Debbie. He'll shake his head in disbelief at how we kept it a secret for a month.

"He will express pleasure in seeing the "Command Post" gang of Jack (Scotty) Johnstone, Frank and Joan Leary, Steve Redfern, Jim Lynn with

Through Bifocals

By Fred Delano

Linda West, John and Barbara Hayes and golf buddy Len Widman, plus the added charm of Gladys Szatkowski and Judy Fifer.

"Then there's the legal and political bunch of Tom and Mary Kay Foley, Dunbar and Martha Davis, Carol and Bob Dwyer, who came from Lansing; Bob and Joanne Delaney, Maurice and Mary Breen, Smith and Jeanne Horton, Orville and Peggy Tungate, Dave and Sharon Pugh and Dennis and Sally Bila.

"He'll be teary-eyed because daughter Betty and her husband, John Smith, are here as well as his sister, Martha, with husband Phil Davis, from Ann Arbor. Then, to see Mike Hoben, Kenn and Linda Christopher, Dolly Ettenhofer, Dick and Flo Anderson plus Fred Hill with Donna Gallagher, will be another source of gratification.

"That gratitude will border on shock in seeing that Tony and Angie Stica from Southfield, Charles and Betsy Corkum of Bloomfield Hills, Bill Moy of South Lyon and Ron and Gloria Harkness from Westland all saw fit to be here.

"Then there'll be the warmth of appreciation to those of his own profession who could make it, Crier, COMMA., Observer, Eccentric and Free Press folks alike: Emory and Beverly Daniels, Kathy Moran Gerdes with husband Wylie, Marie McGee, Gail and Doc O'Connor, Brian Lysaght, Dave Pierini, Chris and Pam Boyd, Sallie and Ted Roby, Michelle Wilson, Claudia Hendries, Brian Watkins, Karen Sattler accompanied by her brother, George Brushingham from Texas, and far from least, Bob and Phyllis Cameron.

"He'll joke about being given oversized glasses to replace his bifocals, a putter to improve his golf game, and a walking stick with a built-in compass to find the 19th hole. But it will be over the true feeling of appreciation for all those, as well as the books and even the Notre Dame T-shirt and Ohio State pennant. And just look at all the greetings from those Eastering in Florida or who couldn't be here for other reasons.

"Like, for instance, the two-page, handwritten letter from Frank Millington, the nice notes from sisters Florence in Miami and Mary at Kalamazoo, and double cards from son Bob and Debb and Jason at Lake Tahoe.

"Then there are the messages from his dear friends Ellie Graham, Fred and Betty Buesser, Pat Bartold, Don Lund, the entire John Van Wagoner clan, Chuck and Loretta Mackenroth, Ken Vogras, Bob and Marilyn Barrick, Keith and Eleanor Burton, Nancy and Tim Richard and Kirstern the elkhound.

"If that's not enough, how about Mary and Eric Childs, John and Dorothy Smith, Jolan Smith, Creon Smith, Scott and Randy Lorenz, Tom and Joan Healy, and Fred Samsin?

"You also can include Paul and Margaret Pentecost, Helene and Tom Wayde, Bob and Karyl Waters ("Coach" and "Peaches" to many of you), Mel and Nancy Bobcean, Tom and Sally Schlotz, Elaine Kouba, John and Helen Gipprich, Don Ingram, Ben Creech, Doug and Arlene Funke, Steve Barnaby, Marilyn Fitchett, Eddie Edgar, Leonard Poger, Sue Rosick, Bill Bresler, Marty Budner, Jeanne Whittaker, Bridget Moran, Shirlee Iden, M.B. Dillon and Teri Banan."

I filled Kleinsmith's glass and told him that whatever Mother Goose said was absolutely right, but I'd add one more line.

One particular message, "Let's do this again in 10 years," was written by Emory Daniels, dittoed by Tim Richard and echoed in a marvelous personal tribute from Ed Wendover, who happened to be in New York City that day multiplying the national status of The Crier.

Those three close friends and comrades through two journalistic decades knew this was only a milestone, not a tombstone.

Down The Road

By Brian Lysaght

Sculpture adds to park

Sculptors Peter Rockwell and Gilham Erickson, who spend their days carving travertine stone at Plymouth Township Park, have found an admirer in a groundskeeper at the park. I didn't catch his name. It doesn't matter really.

I stopped at the park late Monday afternoon, knowing well I should be rummaging around City Hall or camping outside Maurie Breen's office begging for an audience.

The park man approached as I stood watching Erickson chiseling at one end of the shelter-workspace and Rockwell carving at the other. "Isn't it something?" he asked. It is.

He led me past the rope surrounding the shelter where the artists' were working.

"Look at that," he said pointing at a gargoye planned to top one of the pieces. "And he's not even done with it."

He begins to chatter with Rockwell and Erickson as they start cleaning up at day's end. He kids Erickson that he may be enlisted to help cut the park's 86 acres of grass which, like the rest of us has been enjoying this warm spring, and is beginning to grow.

He tells Rockwell he fears that kids will deface the the gargoye with spray paint. Rockwell says that's unlikely because the gargoye will stand 14-feet high.

Height means nothing to these kids, the park man says. "We've got monkeys around here," he says.

I envy the unnamed park man. He has a nice job these days. He can watch Rockwell and Erickson steadily chip away at the stone. They are progressing; their work is beginning to take shape. Strange faces and forms are beginning to appear. The shelter is littered with stone chip rubble.

I was at the park Friday too. That time it was strictly business. It wasn't bad for my business or Rockwell's that the sun was shining. He was chipping with a power tool and decided to take a break to stand in the sun. Breaks were made for that very reason.

Erickson, who comes from Washington DC and learned his art from Rockwell, was, working steadily at the other end of the shelter, using a hydraulic jack to lift upright a large piece of stone, which like Rockwell made its way from Italy.

There was more activity surrounding the artists Friday. Kids were on swings. A report surfaced from the creek nearby that somebody had just caught one of the largest crayfishes ever seen.

A mother made her way across the park with two young kids hanging on either arm. Mother and two wobbly sons paused on a park bench near the shelter to watch the artists work. Then they moved on to the swings.

Two more kids, riding bikes too big, pedaled up and stopped. They looked at the work in progress for a short time then continued on their way, clearly getting their money's worth out of their Easter vacation.

A third biker approached then stood for a long time looking on quietly. I had him pegged as a sculpture fan. He said he lived nearby and comes to the park often to watch the carving.

I asked him why. "Because I have nothing better to do," he said. There is no better reason.

Thanks !!

EDITOR:

The Plymouth Jaycees applaud those merchants whose generosity provided the Plymouth community youngsters with this year's Easter Egg Hunt.

In particular, we wish to thank McDonald's, McCully Egg, Danny's Foods, House of Fudge, K-Mart, Great Scott, Beyer-Rexall Drugs, Bulk Food Warehouse, Kemnitz Candies, and The Rainbow Shop.

We also extend a sincere and special thanks to those senior citizen's who meet and/or reside at Tonquish Creek Manor. They unselfishly donated their time to help the "Easter Rabbit" prepare 500 colored eggs!

Thanks to all who attended. Hope to see you, same time, same place, next year!

Running accident photos encourages safe driving

EDITOR:

Let me compliment Chris Boyd on his photo that appeared in a recent Detroit Free Press which displayed a van and a semi trailer accident.

Wow Chris, it must be awful having to go to the actual scene of a terrible situation such as you did. I bet you have stories you could tell that would curl our hair.

Thanks to you Chris, my Driver Education students have an opportunity to report on the causes and effects of these mishaps. Maybe through efforts such as yours our highways can be helped. Keep displaying your photos because they do make a difference.

I also hope you will continue placing your photos in your local paper as well as one of the major papers so as to help my Driver Education students.

Also under consideration is the addition of "big name" entertainment to the Festival, McElroy said.

All received award certificates for their achievement. As the school's first place winner, Lisa Phillip's name will also be engraved on a plaque for permanent display in the school.

Phillips' essay advances to the state level competition, from which the top ten essays in Michigan will be selected. The top ten statewide winners, who will be announced in May, will receive plaques and U.S. savings bonds ranging in value from $200-1,000. In addition, the top ten essayists will be honored at a banquet in Lansing and at a meeting with Michigan's top politicians.

A team of finalist judges that includes Gov. James Blanchard and Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths will determine the top statewide winners.

Several thousand eighth grade students from 500 Michigan schools participated in this year's contest. The contest, which started in 1968 and is open to all Michigan eighth grade students, intends to encourage Michigan youngsters to explore their roles in America's future.

20 years of quality pies

He makes a pizza worth waiting for

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The secret is in the sauce, says George Martucci, who has been making and selling his pizzas for 26 years.

"They could never duplicate my sauce. I make it myself and I'm the only one who knows how," he says.

Last month marked the 20th year Martucci, 55, has been making, baking and selling pizzas at "Gino's" on Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth Township.

When he opened, I-275 didn't exist, nor did the subdivision across the street. He could look out the store window, across the field, and see Mettetal Airport.

When he opened the store, pizza wasn't as popular as it is today. Making pizza back then wasn't even a glitter in the eye of Tom Monaghan and Mike Illitch, two pizza kingmakers, who have earned enough dough to buy the Detroit Tigers and Detroit Red Wings, respectively.

But Martucci, a baseball fan who had the television tuned to the Tiger-Red Sox' opener Monday, speaks without reverence about those mega-pizza makers, Dominos and Little Caesars. They stress quantity not quality and that's no way to make a hot pie, he says. (The pros call pizza simply 'pie,' a word that means pizza in Italian, he said).

The talkative and affable Martucci says Dominos' pizza "is no good." He does it differently. "I can't afford to sell (customers) junk. If I sell them junk, I put myself on the level with the rest of them."

On the wall of his store hangs a creed which Martucci wrote. It reads in part: "Good things are not cheap as cheap things are not good...Never sacrifice price for quality."

He interprets his longevity in the business to mean his customers agree with the creed.

Martucci grew up on Detroit's northwest side and opened his first pizza shop at Wyoming and Schoolcraft in 1960. He opened his second on Ann Arbor Trail and Francis on March 20, 1966. He sold the Detroit store in 1968, and expanded the Plymouth Township store in 1973.

Only Martucci and store general manager Jerry Hill make the pies. It's not kid stuff, they say. Hill started working with Martucci at the Detroit store when he was 16. When asked why he has stayed so long in the pie business, Hill likened making pie to art.

"When I get done I know it's good," Hills said. "And besides, George is good to work with. He has to be, I've been here 20 years."

Martucci says he never forgets a name. He knows some customers so well, that they don't even have to describe their order over the phone. The familiar voices just order the usual, Martucci and Hill said.

"If 10 people come through that front door, I know nine of their names," Martucci said.

"If I don't know them and Jerry doesn't know them, they're a new customer."

"If 10 people come through that front door, I know nine of their names."

--George Martucci

Martucci and Hill are proud of their pie. They use slate ovens -- and two of the three ovens are 20 years old. They use corn starch to keep dough from sticking to pan, use mozzarella and muenster cheese for the right mix, and Italian plum tomatoes, which Martucci calls the "best cooking tomato."

The store runs through 300-400 pounds of flour, 50-100 pounds of pepperoni, and 40 pounds of mushrooms per week, Martucci said. Pepperoni and mushrooms are the most popular items among pizza eaters, he said.

Martucci said he brings home pizza after work twice a week -- Tuesday and Thursday -- and said Hill eats pizza every day of the week.

Many independent pizza shops are shutting down under competition from the speedy pizza chains. Martucci doesn't sound worried though.

"Nobody can run you out of business, people run themselves out. "You get good days and bad days but for me to be in business for 20 years, I must have had a lot of good days."

How many pizzas has he made in his 20 years in Plymouth? Martucci thinks for a minute. "The number is astronomical. I couldn't even guess."

But he estimated he makes 300-400 per week.

She does windows

The spring fever epidemic hit early this year. Not only have we had beautiful weather during the week, but we've been fortunate to have some sunshine on weekends also.

Sunshine is like an energy booster for most of us. It's amazing how much more I can accomplish on a sunny day than I can when it's raining. Believe it or not, I can actually enjoy washing windows or cleaning the car on a beautiful day (well sometimes).

I'm still waiting for that big surge of energy to hit me so I can dig out the guest room and clean out the other half of the basement. One side of the basement looks just fine but that's only because all the junk has been shoved behind closed doors on the other side. Maybe one of these days I'll even sort through drawers and closets, and if I'm real energetic I might even get a coat of paint of a few walls this spring.

Let's see, I think there are a few other projects I planned for spring. As yes, the trim on the house needs to be painted, and we need to sand and paint around the windows by the front door, and I'm sure there was something else I was thinking about.

Since the kids will be out of school in a couple of months, I'm sure I can count on them to help. Sorry darling, but the homework excuse doesn't work during the summer when you aren't taking classes. Of course I realize you have a job, but that's only eight hours a day. I'm sure you can fit a few projects in during the other 16 hours of the day.

Ge, it won't be long before I can start thinking about planting a garden. On second thought it is only the beginning of April and we do live in Michigan, so I guess I'd better put thoughts of gardening off until next month. I think it's time to go back to window washing.

KENYA, AFRICA

Kenya is the land of safari and wildlife, of the proud Masai tribe, and of the dramatic stories of Hemingway. It is a land of vast game reserves where you hunt animals with a camera. You'll be able to stand on the equator with one foot in each hemisphere.

Visitors to Nairobi are always surprised at how large it is and how modern. At Treetops, one can watch the wild animals as they come to drink at the waterhole. You will marvel at the Masai Mara Reserve, one of the world's best sanctuaries. Some 450 species of birds live in its 1,800 square miles and about 95 species of mammals. Elephants and rhinos are predominant in Amboseli Park with the spectacular snow-capped Mt. Kilimanjaro in the background. In Samburu, Kenya's most exotic game reserve, there is an abundance of wildlife and you will also meet the handsome Samburu tribespeople.

Seeing and experiencing life in another part of the world is an adventure you'll treasure the rest of your life.

Brothers come to aid of duffers

BY DAN NESS

The next time you're golfing at Hilltop Golf Course in Plymouth Township and you need a little help with your short game, go into the golf club and ask for Mr. Jawor.

Chances are, you'll get three times as much help as you expected.

You may be served by John Jawor, the director of the golf course, or by his brother, Frank, one of the associate golf pros, or by his nephew, John, the other associate pro.

The Jawors have been the resident experts at Hilltop since 1979, when John took over as director of the township-leased golf course. Younger John (also Frank's son) became a pro at Hilltop in 1981. The fact that three members of one family are all golf pros at one club amazes many visitors, the Jawors say.

That's when they tell them about the three other Jawors who are golf pros in the Detroit area.

Frank and John have three brothers toiling as consultants to golfers starting with Cass, the pro at Hampton Golf Course in Rochester; Chet, the pro at Gratiot Golf Range in Roseville; and Stan, the pro at Southland Driving Range in Southgate.

The five golfing Jawors surely must have stories of how their father tore up local courses and passed on his fervent love of the game to his sons, five of whom chose to make a living out of golfing, right?

"Dad never golfed," admits Frank, the first of the brothers to take up the game. The Jawors' father was working as a tree surgeon in a WPA program in the '30s when Frank first became hooked. His father was working on trees at River Rouge Golf Course, and young Frank saw the game being played around his father.

Frank learned the game through caddying, and then playing. Now, besides his duties at Hilltop, Frank is coach of the Wayne State University golf team and secretary of the Michigan Section of the Professional Golfer's Association (PGA).

Young golfers today don't learn the game through caddying, Frank says, but through junior golf programs like the ones offered at Hilltop. Under brother John's management, Hilltop Golf Course has hosted more tournaments and started to make money for the township, according to John.

"I've got a lot of pride in it," John says. "It gets better and better each year."

John explains that Hilltop went from 9 holes to 18 holes in 1981, and with obvious pride, says the landscape condition of his course has improved every year. "People are amazed and impressed with Hilltop, being a public course," John says. "This is fast becoming one of the best-conditioned golf courses in the area."

This year promises to be another busy year for the course -- the Jawors say they have never seen so many golfers playing before April at Hilltop. "And this is the earliest we've ever had to turn the irrigation system on," John adds.

Along with local tournaments, Hilltop will host the Motor City Invitational, the state high school class A regional tourney in the fall, the Golf Digest Long Drive Contest for the state, the Michigan Open qualifier tourney, and a Junior Golf tournament, co-sponsored by Hilltop and the Plymouth Elks, scheduled for July 18. Hilltop will also host the Detroit News Golf School for juniors and adults May 6, 8, 13 and 15.

Having observed the springtime migration of golfers to the links, the Jawors concur: "They're all rusty."

Their advice to the golfers just awakening from the winter's hibernation is to loosen up at a driving range before playing the courses. And the biggest problem they see in golfers?

"Ninety per cent of the people slice the golf ball," John says. Golfers should pay more attention to technique rather than power on their swing, he adds. "They all think they're long-ball hitters."

But the goal of every golf pro in the nation is to get golfers to speed their play so others can enjoy the courses, John says. "That's our biggest bugaboo at any golf course."

And with enough practice, local golfers can make a run at the Hilltop course record of 69, set by a man with what should be a familiar name in these parts -- Frank Jawor.

But, Frank modestly admits with a smile, that it is not he that set the record, but just one more member of the golfing Jawors, his son.

Missing links, already

W.C. Fields once said, supposedly, that golf was a game for fools, and slow ones at that.

Just the same, golfers, while taking a little longer to get the job done, take their birdies and eagles seriously. Area courses are already overflowing with players.

Golf is exercise for some folk. They eschew the electric carts and proudly traipse the course, lugging their clubs on a two-wheel pull-cart. Some purists, and maybe cheapskates, still carry their clubs.

But golf is unique in that it allows players to be outdoors, with no running involved. And, hopefully, in nice weather. As famous local photographer Chris Boyd said, "It never rains on a golf course."

Golf has also become synonymous with "taking it easy" or playing hooky. But last week on a summery spring day, the Mission Hills golf course on Sheldon Road was full of fit, energetic people (sickeningly so), who were not skipping work.

Golfers have a reputation for being fussy about where they play, like fishermen are about their favorite places to drop a line. But the Mission Hills folks were just happy to be outside. It didn't seem to matter where.

Renee Millar works as an RN. She was walking her way around the course, steadily honing her game for a summer on the links.

Millar is fit as a fiddle. But golf cannot take all of the credit. She's also a slalom ski racer. She, too, is a local golf junkie.

"Oh, I golf at all of the courses around," she said. "Fox Hills, Faulkwood (in Howell), up north. We go up north about every other weekend."

She said she had been out the preceding Sunday and shot a 108 for 18 holes. I never did find out her score that day, because along with most of the other golfers, I allowed her to pass me by as I sliced and hooked my way around, trying to keep down the wear and tear on the fairways.

Millar was optimistic. She wasn't overwhelmed with the way she was swinging, but said "we're just starting out."

I took her "we" to be a wee bit sympathetic, as she surely noticed the mud on my shoes. Mud, in case you didn't know, is usually not found near the fairways on the golf course. You have to look a little harder to find the mud.

When I reached the 19th hole, I cornered four employees of Plymouth-Canton Schools, all enjoying the week off following Easter. When I got their attention they were discussing something trivial, like world affairs. I quickly got them to change the topic.

Bill Pearson said he was the best golfer. Jeff Fordell called himself, Jeff "The Hack" Fordell.

I asked them if they had all of the trappings of golf. Personally, I wore tennis shoes and nary a glove on my hand (golf is the perfect place to brush up impersonations of rock stars, because you only need to wear one glove).

The other two, Bill Hudson and George Belvitch, said they golfed a lot, too. But Pearson modestly admitted to being the best golfer of the lot.

The manager of course is Bill Farwell. He says this may be the biggest year for area golf. He says if the weather continues to pick up, last year's upswing will continue.

"If Mother Nature becomes a golfer, we're all set," he said. "Last year was good. We only had two days of real, hot humid weather. Some people can take that but golfers don't like it."

He also said that at this time last year area courses were knee deep in water. This year it had been just right and he had already cut the

Down The Road

By Brian Lysaght

It seems to be that way with golf. Just when you're feeling real good about a shot, the game, and life in general, you land in the sand trap.

My first drive off the 10th hole felt very good, very solid. I knew that ball was travelling. But as I looked up and caught sight of the thing, I remembered that nasty slice I had forgotten in the two years since I had graced the greens.

Or was it a hook resurrected as a slice? Anyway that ball veered sharply to the right into a stand of trees. On a second try, I salvaged my score with a wood shot that swallowed up the fairway.

Foolish me felt good again. I became depressed after seemingly dozens of chip shots and putts preceded the ball's drop into hole number 10.

It had been two years since I hit the links and it showed. A Crier foursome -- including me -- decided to take advantage of a glorious Wednesday with a round of golf. My dear mother, at whose house my dusty clubs were stored, and an equally dear aunt got quite a chuckle from my explanation as I dragged out my golf bag.

"I have to write a story about golfing," I explained. "I'll be working." They laughed. "It's true," I persisted.

How many other golfers have offered similar, equally lame excuses to family or friends as they walked out of the house, clubs in hand? There are many stories, I'm sure.

We played a very picturesque par-3 water hole, which was designed to tempt, an obvious dare. One-hundred twenty-five yards from tee to pin with a water hazard sitting pretty in between just waiting to swallow that misguided drive. I pulled a scrap ball from my bag and cleared the water, though it landed a chip away from the green.

One fool fore golf

My golfing partner (who requested anonymity) dumped one in the drink. He showed impressive retrieval skills so he didn't lose a ball on the hole.

The second water hole we played, number 18, was a more deceiving temptress: Dogleg right and the second shot required was over water. Twice in one day, I should have known, was asking too much.

Another solid wood shot. It felt so good. But my ball, again with a nice slice, landed square in the middle of the pond. That was my second lost ball of the day.

The first was lost in the woods, as was I briefly during The Search.

I won't go into tales of sandtraps, though I landed in them -- quite a few times. And worse, I was caught in the act by a zealous photographer.

On the second last hole, we rested. Sitting by the tee, enjoying the sunlight and the breeze and all the green.

It has been a fine spring for golf course keepers. It has been relatively dry and unseasonably warm so early. Golfing in March? I saw those dedicated duffers trekking across the courses two weeks ago. And I have heard the longings of a few people who say they would rather be carrying clubs in hand than performing menial tasks at hand.

Who can blame them?

I am not a golfer, more a dabbler in the game, but I was just daydreaming about how nice it would be to have my clubs in hand.

green six times, since opening.

He called Mission Hills the "best kept secret in southeast Michigan. It's going to be a showcase."

I have no reason to doubt him. One hole in particular, which he calls his "postcard hole" is number 14. You tee off an elevated surface, over water and up to the flag, a par three. My first shot made a mad dash for the water. I judged the hole a success because the water was clear enough to see my ball for removal. I can't remember if I took a penalty.

Memories tend to weaken after a few hour in the sun. Those six strokes seem like five. Or nine seems like eight. And who really cares anyway?

I asked Pearson if he had played the day's round according to winter rules. This takes into account the sometimes sloppy conditions of early-season courses. Golfers can roll the ball for a better lie. He said he did.

Of course, I would never do anything like that. Golf, like any game, has rules and they're not made for breaking.

And that's my better lie.

Frequency is Important

People have short memories. The more opportunities you give potential customers to see your name, the more likely they are to remember you.

Most businesses that say "advertising doesn't work for us," probably do not advertise with frequency, and are basing their opinion on single ads instead of an ad campaign.

Places to be

IF YOU'RE TRYING to avoid just hanging around this summer, try some of the classes or lessons offered by the Plymouth recreation department. (Crier photo)

City recreation offers plenty of lessons, classes

And you thought there'd be nothing to do this summer. The City of Plymouth Parks and Recreation has issued its upcoming program of activities. Included:

- Registration for "leisure time" classes is going on now. Most classes begin May 5. A special evening registration is 5-7 p.m. April 30 at the Cultural Center. Offered are: golf, ballet, tap dance, modern jazz dance (all dance classes will meet on Wednesday nights), judo and karate (starting April 17), magic workshops, horseback riding and therapeutic recreation. There's a 10 per cent administrative charge for non-Plymouth residents.

- "Ice Spectacular '86" is May 16-18. Showtimes are 7:30 p.m. Friday; 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday; 3 p.m. Sunday. Tickets available starting May 1.

- Ice skating lessons - Registration for summer group classes will be 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. June 21 at the Cultural Center. Each class is 25 minutes for eight consecutive weeks. Minimum age four years.

- Open skating, through May: Mondays 1-2:50 p.m.; Tuesdays 8:30-11:40 a.m., 12:50-2:50 p.m., 6-7 p.m.; Wednesdays 8 a.m. - 2:50 p.m.; Thursdays 8:30-10:40 a.m., 10:50 a.m.

- 12:50 p.m., 1-2:50 p.m., 5-6 p.m.; Fridays 9:30-10:40 a.m., 10:50 a.m. - 12:50 p.m., 1-2:50 p.m., 8-9:50 p.m.; Saturday 2:30-4 p.m.

And even though you may remember all that, hours are still subject to change.

- Arena rental is available by contacting the office during regular business hours (8:30 a.m. - 5 p.m. Monday-Friday) The cost is $60 an hour. You must be 18 years old.

- Wedding receptions, meetings or social events can be held at the Cultural Center. The banquet room holds 200 people. Room rental starts as low as $13 an hour.

- Soccer registration is June 2-27 during business hours. Boys and girls ages 4-18 are eligible. Fee is $25. Birth certificates are required. Play starts in September.

- Table tennis club meets every Wednesday at Central Middle School from 6:30-9 p.m.

- Discount tickets are available, starting in May, to several amusement parks, including Cedar Point, Sea World and Flint's exciting Crossroads Village. Cash only for tickets.

- Summer Arts and Crafts Show is June 6-8. Over 75 exhibitors will feature their handmade crafts. Admission is free.

For more information call 455-6620.

SAVING the Wilcox house is the subject of a meeting tomorrow in the Grange Hall. (Crier photo)

Meeting about Wilcox house

A meeting has been called for Thursday, April 10 at 7:30 for the purpose of organizing to raise funds to move and restore the "Wilcox House." The meeting will be held at the Grange Hall on Union Street in Plymouth.

Over the past several weeks a small group of residents have been meeting in hopes that the "Wilcox House" might be preserved. The house is scheduled for demolition in the near future to make way for a condominium complex.

At the meeting architects, movers, historians, and community leaders will sit to discuss plans for moving, restoring, and utilization of the house.

If you would like to voice your opinion and show your support for this restoration project, and be a part of preserving some of the past attend the meeting on Thursday. Public support is needed.

For more information call Cheryl Szyniszewski at 453-8026.

Burn films shown on TV

The National Institute for Burn Medicine (NIBM) and Plymouth fire fighters will present two educational films on burn prevention to the public via Omnicom Cable Channel 8.

The films, "A Fighting Chance," and "After the Pain," will be broadcast at 11:30 a.m. and 7 p.m.

from April 21 to 26. The films deal with burn awareness and burned patient rehabilitation.

In Michigan, 100,000 people are burned each year -- 400 die as a result, and 3,000 suffer in hospitals. The NIBM reports that 50 per cent of those cases could have been prevented.

City paving public hearing

The City Commission will hold a public hearing April 21 to consider special assessment rolls for this summer's planned street paving program.

Anyone interested is invited to comment on the assessments which will fund about 60 per cent of the project's $573,000 total cost

The city will pay 42 per cent of paving costs, affected homeowners will pay the rest. The rolls will likely be approved after the public hearing. The city will then begin selling municipal bonds and bidding out the project. City officials hope work will begin in June or July.

New landscape business isn't shy of success

BY CHRIS FARINA

Even though they've been at the same location for two years, Lakeland Landscaping, on Gotfredson at North Territorial, is a new business.

Owner Steven Shy has been in the landscape business for several years.

This will be the first year the company will be open to shoppers with his new plant and garden center.

Lakeland will be complete with items such as: interlocking patio bricks, plant and garden tools, top soil and wood mulches.

Something unique for Lakeland is the complete line of swingset and gymnasium units, which are made from pressure treated wood.

"As far as I know nobody else in the area has one like it; at least they're not advertising one," said Shy.

Shy will also be doing his regular landscaping business which includes custom deckwork and outdoor lighting.

Also in a day's work is the deliveries of top soil, and the maintenance of several apartment and condominium complexes. Lakeland takes care of the lawn and the sprinkling systems.

STEVEN SHY says his landscaping business is one of a kind. It's located next to Karl's Restaurant on Gotfredson Rd. in Plymouth Township. (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

Local store expands

Plymouth-based Land and Seas, retailer of casual wear and gifts for boaters and waterfowl enthusiasts, opened its sixth store within four years, located at Rainbow Centre in Niagara Falls, NY, announced president Mary Higgins. Plymouth resident Kelly Orr has been promoted to Operations Manager and will be working with the stores in New York, Florida, Ohio and Michigan.

Oncologist opens door

Philip Jeffery Stella, MD, has opened an office at the Arbor Health Building in Plymouth.

Dr. Stella is an oncologist - one who specializes in the treatment of cancer - on the staff at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Dr. Stella, 34, completed his undergraduate studies at the University of Michigan and received his medical degree from Michigan State University. In 1983, he was appointed an instructor in Oncology at the Mayo Medical School in Rochester, MN. He worked in 1984 as a volunteer physician with Mother Teresa of Calcutta.

Dr. Stella and his wife, Marilyn, have two children, Sara and Jonathon.

Realtors up for Bahamas

Five Plymouth-Canton residents have been named to Real Estate One's President's Council of Excellence, and have qualified for a five day, all-expenses paid cruise in the Bahamas.

Real Estate One's President's Council of Excellence is comprised of the top selling agents in the company, all of whom achieved at least $1,060,000 in total listing volume, or $2,120,000 in total sales volume during 1985. Area residents named in the honor include: Marilyn Walker, of Plymouth, with $2.8 million in sales; Elizabeth Vance, of Plymouth, with $2.4 million in sales; Joe Melnik, Manager of the Plymouth office and a Canton resident, with $1.3 million in sales; Harry Unwin, of Canton, with $1.3 million in sales; and Kathleen Barker, of Plymouth, with $2.3 million in sales.

COACH FRED CRISSEY

Canton's seasoned lineup

BY CHRIS FARINA

Pitching is the question.

The Canton Chief baseball team have plenty of pitchers, but the question is who will fill the job.

Adam Kocik is an experienced left-hander. Jeff Lyle and Paul Swartzinski both have experience pitching.

Canton has 11 seniors returning this year, two are All Division. Tom Kenyon at second base and Chris Sisler who was designated hitter. This year Sisler will be playing first base. Also returning is All Conference senior outfielder Mark Stevens.

This year Canton decided to do something out of the ordinary. So on Good Friday they boarded a Greyhound bus and headed for Missouri and spring training.

"We decided not to practice in the gym; that was over," said coach Fred Crissy.

While in training Canton practiced 16 times in seven days.

The idea to go to spring training was mostly the kids', Crissy said.

This year the infield will consist of: Kenyon at second base, Dan Young at third and Sisler will take first. Steve Waite will cover shortstop.

In the outfield will be Tony Aiken, Mark Stevens, Jeff Lyle and Tony Boucher.

"With the exception of pitching and behind the plate we have all experienced starters," said Crissy.

At the last card marking, 19 out of 22 Chiefs made the honor roll. This is something Crissy is proud of.

"The type of people you deal with is very important," Crissy said.

Coach is Neu; team is ready

BY CHRIS FARINA

Senior leadership, and experience.

They key elements are there for the Canton boys track team.

"I've inherited a wealth of talent," said first year coach Rob Neu. "Mike Spitz had a very good program last year.

This year there are four captains of the team. Dan Houdek, a hurdler, sprinter Dave McCullem, Paul Trout who will be running distance and Greg Houston who will be pole vaulting.

"They're all good athletes and they are looking to have a good year," said Neu.

The juniors and the seniors will lead the Chiefs into battle. Their biggest goal is to "compete to finish in the top spots in the league," said Neu. "It's the juniors and seniors that will carry us over the top," Neu said.

Canton's strength comes from their distance team. They are also strong in hurdling and relays.

Keith Rousol and Bill Boyd are both distance runners while Chris Hayosh holds his own sprinting.

Brian Whitely is a hurdler, Steve Genyk competes in the high jump. Mike Luttrell throws shot and discuss.

"It looks like a pretty nice season," Neu said. We want to be competitive in duel meets and be able to qualify as many as we can for state."

Canton opens their season, at home, against Churchill, April 24.

'Y' will hold annual race

The YMCA will hold its seventh annual downtown Plymouth five and 10 kilometer runs on Sunday, June 22.

The City Commission approved the YMCA's permit request for the run Monday. The runs will begin and end near The Gathering.

According to information supplied to the city, the 'Y' has planned a one

Rock softball diamond has some familiar faces

BY CHRIS FARINA

Salem has experience.

The Rock softball team has six starters returning from last year.

Co-captain Leslie Plichta will cover centerfield. Plichta is a returning All League, All Area and All Region player.

Maggie Meissner, the other senior captain, will be pitching.

Meissner is doing well pitching in practice.

"I'm not as worried as I once was," said coach Rob Willette.

Salem lost pitcher Sue Carlson to graduation last year.

"Pitching is always hard to replace, unless you have somebody who is experienced. We have most of our people back this year," said Willette.

Jessica Handley will cover the shortstop position, while Marcie Walker plays third base.

Denice Tackett, who was All League last year, will be catching and Sandy Oberliesen will be in left field.

Rounding out the infield is freshman Ann Mundinger at second base.

"Ann really helped out at second while Maggie was pitching," said Willette. Meissner played second base last year.

Freshman, Darlene Gaglead will catch if Tackett doesn't.

Senior Kris Bronk will be in the outfield with Mary Jo Callan. Also in the outfield is Sheryll Gildo, who may see some action at third base.

Bonnie Waller and Liz Smithson, should occasionally play first base.

"We need a first baseman," said Willette. "Nobody has really stood out in practice."

Finishing off the team is Kristen Sobditch and Kim Berrie, both may have some time pitching this year.

Back from Show-Me

During the winter months most of the team showed up for winter weightlifting. They all came on a voluntary basis; it was not required that they be there.

"It's nice to see kids do things like that when they're not under duress," said Crissy.

The weightlifting sessions lasted seven weeks and Crissy said he was more impressed with the "hard work attitude" than with the team's accomplishments.

Canton's opener will be on the road against Farmington at 4. They will play their home opener against John Glenn Wednesday April 16.

Chief girl tracksters run for fun of it

Canton girls track coach George Przygodski said he was happy with his team's finish last week at Spring Break Invitational at Ann Arbor Huron High School.

Team totals were not recorded but Chief Rachel Mann took first in the two mile with a time of 12:22.1. Mann's 5:44.1 in the mile earned second. Karen Boluch was second in the 880 with 2:38.2.

Tori Barger was third in the two mile with a 13:33. Canton's two mile relay team of Marie Jarosz, Jennifer Gansler, Ann Marquard, and Karen Boluch was third.

The meet's eight teams were Detroit Central, Detroit Cooley, Huron, Ann Arbor Greenhills, Ypsilanti and Ypsilanti Lincoln, Canton and Salem.

Finishing fourth for the Chiefs were: high jumper Janet Armstrong at 4'9"; Tonya Walaskay in the 110 hurdles with a 17.9; Marie Jarosz with a 5:55.1 mile; and the 880 relay team of Ylonda Horton, Sherry Figurski, Tanya Walaskay, and Kim Davis with a 1:58.

The same relay team finished fifth in the 440 with a 57.9. Canton's mile relay team of Jarosz, Gansler, Davis and Boluch took sixth with 4:39.4.

Salem softball faces challenge

Last year Salem finished the season 19-5. They took second place behind Livonia Stevenson.

Livonia Franklin, though, joined the league this year and is rated first in the state.

"We have our work cut out for us this year," said Willette.

John Glenn also has and honorable mention to their names in the state.

The Rocks begin their season Monday, April 14 at Livonia Churchill. They have their home opener on April 16 against Farmington Harrison.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, You who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal, You who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and You who are in all the instances of my life with me, I in this short dialogue want to thank You for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with You and my loved ones in Your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank You for your love toward me and my loved ones. Person must pray this 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After the third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be, then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted. J.K.

Congratulations, Chris Roby, on your terrific summer job. We're going to miss you while you P.R. in D.C.
