

Schools' purchasing agent uses bond money

How do you spend $13M? 'Very carefully'

BY ED FITZGERALD

After area voters passed a $13 million bond issue last June, then school board president Roland Thomas was approached for comment.

He was understandably enthused, but expressed concern for a school employe.

"All I know is that Tom Rose has got the hard part now."

Rose is the purchasing agent for the district. It's up to him to spend, and spend correctly, the $13 million.

Large chunks of it are easy. A couple of million go to construction and renovation jobs. But then there's the case of things like hair dryers and sewing machines.

So what does Rose say when asked how the spending is going?

"Very carefully," he answers.

At a recent school board meeting, Rose presented a few of the first expenditures he had made. The board went over the proposals as if they were rewriting the country's Constitution.

Rose said the board has been very careful, too.

"They've been extra-specific," he said. "But that's their job. That level of exactitude, I guess it was unexpected. Usually there is more latitude to operate with."

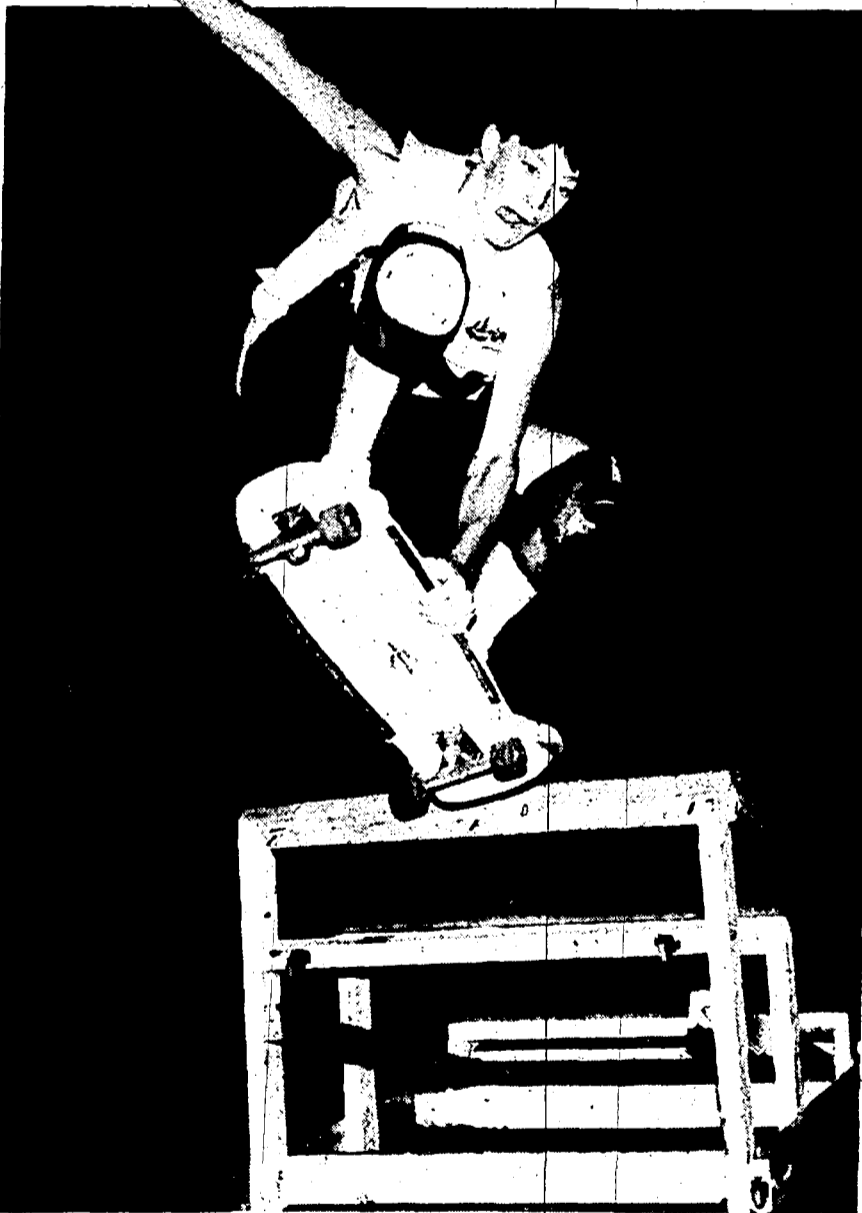

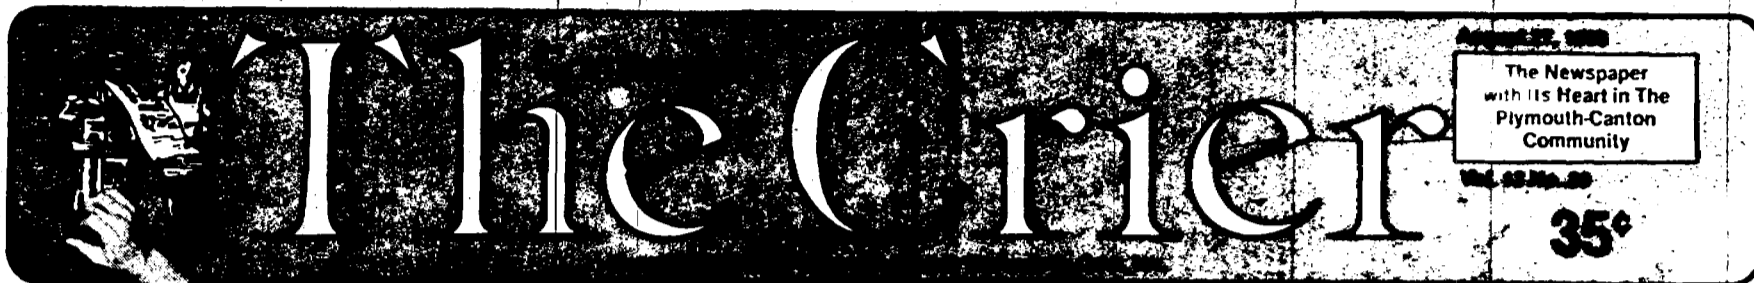

On one proposal, Rose had tacked on additional items, including a ping pong table, which had been requested by a teacher. The board did not question the need for table tennis, but said it could not be purchased along with bond items. Rose, of course, had lumped them together to get a better deal.

"We're going to do it their way from now on," Rose said. "We had a philosophical difference. There really is no set routine for this. It's been almost 10 years since the last bond issue was passed -- there is some confusion."

But Rose knows, the more things change the more they stay the same.

Extra $$ glosses over Festival inconveniences

BY T.M. SMITH

For many groups in Plymouth, Fall Festival means big business.

Before the festival kicks into gear next Thursday, hundreds of volunteer hours go into planning the festival.

But there is at least one group in Plymouth that is left to fend for itself for the most part.

Plymouth's business owners -- especially the ones around the downtown area.

These are the owners who make their living in Plymouth all year round, instead of just four days in September. The owners who have to deal with closed off streets, a disruption in regular business hours and all the headaches that can accompany Fall Festival.

And these are the owners, who for the most part, look forward to the four-day, city-wide party.

Although there is every opportunity to raise a fuss, Plymouth's business owners don't seem to mind the inconveniences and they see the Festival as a positive attraction for the city and for business.

Some store owners see an immediate increase in business, others offer special offers to attract some of the people, and still others say it is the added exposure that will ultimately attract customers later in the year.

But in one form or another, store owners seem to agree that the extra 200,000 people who entangle the streets during the weekend -- are good for business and the City of Plymouth.

Russ Webster, owner of The Penniman Deli on Penniman Avenue, is one of the store owners who believe the Fall Fest is good for business -- and he also sees the difference right away.

"When we had the kiddie rides on Penniman, we saw a lot of business. There were lots of people buying pop and quick-sell items," he said. "I'd say it was about twice our normal business."

This year the rides are scheduled to return to Penniman, and Webster is confident of large sales again. But his customers will have new faces.

"I won't get any of my regular customers in here, and my meat business goes dead, but we'll sell out the rest of the store," Webster said. "I have extra stock ordered and more people ready to work."

Down the street, at Willow Tree, this different kind of business requires a different approach.

Debbie Exe, manager of the woman's clothing store on the corner of Penniman and Main, said that she tries to take advantage of the tremendous foot traffic during the weekend.

"We try to do something special every year. One year we ran mystery discounts, another time we had drawings, anything to get them interested," Exe said.

But Exe also believes that the people who don't make it into the store, might come back later if they see the store.

And sitting in the heart of the Festival helps.

But being so close to the action can also have its drawbacks.

"We used to be right next to the shish-ka-bob booth, and all that good food and those smells drove us crazy," she said. "It drives the employees wild."

Theatre Guild announces season opener

The Plymouth Theater Guild announced the selection of three directors for its season opener, Neil Simon's "Plaza Suite."

The directors will each stage one of the three acts in the play, to give the production a new twist, according to Alvin LaCroix of the Guild. The first segment, "Visitor from Mamaroneck," will be directed by Gerald L'Heureux of Westland. L'Heureux has appeared in many productions with the Plymouth Theatre Guild, Greenfield Village Players, Dearborn Civic Theatre, Livonia Redford Players, Schoolcraft College and Henry Ford Community College productions and the Michigan Opera Theatre.

His most recent Plymouth Theatre Guild appearance was as Dawson the butler in "For Her CHE-I-LD's Sake."

Joan Washburn, of Canton, will direct the second segment of the play, "Visitor from Hollywood." Washburn has been active in PTG productions working behind the scenes. Washburn is currently on the Guild's Board of Directors.

Patricia Gresock, of Canton, will direct the third act of the play, "Visitor from Forest Hills." Gresock "brings a variety of stage and public appearances to the production," according to LaCroix, including a long association with the Toastmasters. Gresock is a past president of Toastmasters, and has placed first in the District 28 Humorous Speech contest. Gresock has produced and directed children's shows with the Romulus school district and has appeared in the showcase production of "The Graduate," for Studio on Washington Avenue in Royal Oak. Recent roles for PTG include Janet MacKenzie in "Witness for the Prosecution," and Flo Owens in "Picnic." She is also on the Board of Directors for PTG.

The directors will be holding auditions for "Plaza Suite" Sept. 10 and 11 at 7:30 p.m. at Central Middle School. Seven men and five women are needed for the cast.

Production dates are Nov. 7, 8, 14 and 15. For more information, call Alvin LaCroix at 451-0037.

Parade for '87? Not likely

Bd. seeks to revive Country Fest

BY DAN NESS

Even as Canton officials are discussing the future of the Mayflower Balloon Festival in Canton, the Canton Country Festival Board is meeting to plan for 1987's Country Fest.

The Country Festival Board of Directors lost six of the 15 members after the most recent Country Festival, but is actively soliciting new board members, according to Bill Simmerer, the ranking board member.

"We are short board members," he said. "We can use all the volunteers we can get."

The Country Fest Board will meet tonight to elect officers, Simmerer said.

After this summer's festival, board members Dan Pope, Gail Sarrault, John Schwartz, James Brady and Peggy Esper resigned, as did board president Larry Bowerman. Remaining board members include Russ Courville, Sue Fannin, Jack Hurley, Arlene Woods, Gina Metzler, Tina Medallis, Ray Schultz, Veronica Attima and Simmerer.

The board's bylaws allow up to 15 board members, Simmerer said.

Even this far in advance, a parade for next summer's Country Festival looks very unlikely, Simmerer said. "Right now I would say no," Simmerer said. "You just can't do it with the number of people we have."

Simmerer said the parade, besides requiring many volunteers, cost more money than the board could afford to spend. "Financially, we came out in the black (this year). I guess the main reason was that we didn't have a parade," Simmerer said.

The festival board meets "essentially all year," Simmerer said, meeting once each month until Country Fest time nears. Volunteers for committee assignments are needed, he said.

Committee assignments include publicity, entertainment, music, concessions, parking, signs and grounds crew, Simmerer said. "We're also looking for people willing to volunteer their time to work during the actual Country Festival," he said.

The 1987 Canton Country Festival will be held June 19 - 21. Volunteers for the Country Festival should call Simmerer at 397-3463.

Tenants, company squabble over cockroaches

BY ED FITZGERALD

Some residents at Plymouth Heritage Apartments are bugged. So are the people who run the complex, Certified Management Company (CMC) of Southfield.

The residents of the 16 apartments in building 12883-12981 are bugged by what they call an infestation of cockroaches. They say management has failed to put together an efficient extermination plan.

A member of CMC management, who spoke on the condition his name not be used, said he "did not want to name any names, but we can't keep letting some people bring the cockroaches in."

"The other buildings didn't have the problem. We take advice from Eradico and the problem will be solved."

Kay Lee, who just two months ago took the job as in-house manager at Heritage (located on Territorial Road in Plymouth Township), said she was instructed by CMC not to talk about the situation.

There have been six managers at Heritage within the last year.

Kris Brown, who has lived at Heritage since last November, says the problem is really twofold. She says manager Lee is "trying" to help, but lays the blame with CMC and Eradico.

Brown says they've had problems with roaches before in her building, but this time it's the worst. She also complains that they were only given two days notice before this spraying.

"These are okay apartments but they're deteriorating. They are not doing anything to them. A former manager told me they had gone 12 years without any (major repair). If they would just make an effort."

Brown said she had tried to give CMC a list of complaints, but was told she would have to go through the in-house manager.

One of the tenants said she had learned how to make her apartment "Texas proof" against roaches. That involves placing boric acid around the floor and wall cracks.

Another resident of the building, who wished to remain anonymous, has lived at Heritage for over four years, making her her building's longest inhabitant. Last week CMC served her with an eviction notice. She says management told her that her apartment is not clean which has brought on the cockroaches.

"My husband is a certified sanitation engineer," the woman said. "This is embarrassing and could cost him his job if anyone found out."

"I'm not Nancy Housekeeper, but I keep my place clean. If we have to move out, those bugs won't be coming with us, if it means throwing out every knife and spoon."

She said she did not know if CMC would follow through with the eviction.

Justice Dept. continues Canton fire investigation

BY DAN NESS

The United States Justice Department is now considering a report brought to it by the Detroit office of the FBI regarding a Canton arson, which may have been started to intimidate a black family.

John Anthony, FBI special agent in Detroit, said the bureau had completed its preliminary investigation into the June 8 fire at Honeytree Apartments and Townhouses, on Joy Road between Haggerty and Hicks. The fire, which was determined to be an arson, started from gasoline which had been ignited near an apartment door where the family lived.

The family has since moved from the apartment complex, according to the Honeytree manager.

Anthony said the FBI had forwarded its report to the Civil Rights Unit of the Justice Dept. for them to determine if the family's civil rights had been violated and to continue the arson investigation.

The FBI made no recommendation in the report, Anthony said, but it gave the Justice Dept. information in which federal officials could base a final decision. Justice Dept. officials did not give a time frame for their report to be completed, Anthony said.

The Justice Dept. prioritizes investigations into civil rights violations, working on cases where deaths were involved ahead of property damage cases, Anthony said.

A fire at Honeytree Apartments Saturday night was ruled to be unrelated to the June 8 arson, according to Canton Fire Chief Mel Paulun.

Mr. Michigan?

Scott Bozyk, of Canton, hopes to be Mr. USA/Michigan after tonight's pageant in Sterling Heights. (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

Locals shoot for top in Mr. USA/Michigan

BY DAVID PIERINI

Dentist Peter Maly does not want his patients to know that he's in the Mr. USA/Michigan pageant.

"It's kind of a tricky situation," the 26-year-old Plymouth dentist said. "Nobody knows. I'm trying to keep it quiet."

Maly's a little bashful, but he has already made the semi-finals in tonight's pageant at the Premier Center in Sterling Heights, making it difficult to keep the news hush-hush.

Canton resident Scott Bozyk, who is also in the semi-finals, isn't as shy. He sees the pageant, for single men, as a career move.

"I hope to get into some modeling down the road," the 18-year-old Northwoods Institute student said. "There'll be over 300 different producers and modeling agents there."

Bozyk said that the show is sold out and that the only time he's ever performed before a large crowd was when he played hockey for Redford Catholic Central High School.

"I'm a little nervous," he said. Over $25,000 in prizes will be awarded to the winner, including a "day player" film contract, a trip for two to the Caribbean, a $10,000 scholarship to Stautzenberger College in Toledo, OH, a windsurfer, television commercial appearances and a billboard.

"Mr. USA/Michigan exemplifies the All-American boy next door," Executive Director Diana Hunt said. "Contestants will be judged on appearance, personality and modeling potential through a personal interview, and evening wear and swimsuit competitions, much like a female beauty pageant."

Seniors' bldg. not done

The Canton Recreation Building is still undergoing construction. Some senior citizen programs have been affected by the construction.

Seniors with questions regarding location of upcoming programs should call 397-1000 and ask for Diane Neihengen.

Heritage

Continued from page 3 week ago. When the problem did not lessen (she says the usual nocturnal roaches are apparent even in the daylight) another spraying for last Saturday was okayed. Eradico arrived in the afternoon, but tenants said they had expected the exterminating company earlier in the day.

Dan Lyden, of the Plymouth Eradico office, said it was not true that his office had been late for any sprayings at Heritage.

"We are an agent for the management company. We are performing a service for (CMC) and any further information would have to come from them," he said.

The woman says the contact spraying being done is not enough, and complete fumigation may be the answer.

"Right now you'd almost have to spray it right on the cockroaches," she said. "I'm becoming an expert on them (roaches). A while ago I didn't even know what they were. Suddenly we're overrun with them."

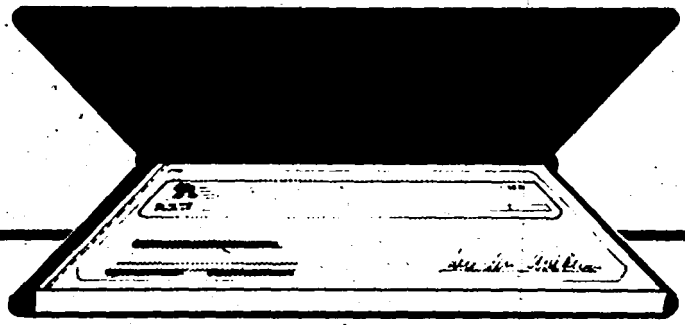

Brown said she thought a major problem was the building's lack of a tenant union.

"We thought we might try and do some bombing (spraying) ourselves, but we're caught between a rock and a hard place."

Other buildings at Heritage have been sprayed for cockroaches in the past, not uncommon for older apartment complexes.

Residents of Plymouth Heritage Apartments say they're sharing the units with cockroaches. Eradico exterminators are caught in the middle of the tenant-management dispute. (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

DISCUSSION OF MASTER LAND USE PLAN — JOINT MEETING WITH PLANNING COMMISSION:

The planning commission adopts the Master Land Use Plan, and the township board adopts the ordinance.

The planning commission is expecting to adopt the Master Land Use Plan soon. An overview of the plan was provided by commissioner Prince. Farmland and preservation not being a reality, future needs were then considered as well as reviewing past problems and avoiding them in the future.

Chairman of the planning commission Kirchgatter arrived at 8:09 p.m.

(All members of the board were present: Bennett, Brown, Chuhuran, Larson, Padget, Poole, Preniczky)

(All members of the planning commission present: (Bennett, Prince, Shefferly, Portschell, LaForte and late arrival by Kirchgatter)

Chairman Kirchgatter stated that the basic zoning has not been changed in the new plan, but for the future and present availability of development in the west side of the township. The agricultural breakdown is largely different from the 1980 plan. There is graduation from one dwelling unit per acre to increased density traveling east.

Attorney David Berry stated that minutes of the discussions on the Master Plan must be retained indefinitely, plus any other pertinent information on the plan.

There was group discussion of the west side of the township with development from agricultural to one home per acre.

There was discussion of Ford Road between Beck and Canton Center Roads.

Palmer and I-275 area at one home per acre development may not be feasible. Dr. Kirchgatter stated that the planner did not necessarily see this happening due to lack of sewer capacity.

Poole left the meeting at 8:55 p.m.

There was discussion about consent judgements. The planner felt properties should be so designated on the map.

Moved by Chuhuran, supported by Brown and unanimously carried to adjourn at 9:52 p.m.

Drive fast for Michigan's sake

All right. I've lived in Michigan for just over a year now, and I think it's fair for me to reveal a psychological theory I have regarding driving and the Michigan economy.

Mind you, this theory comes after years of pop psychological training, and not as many years of driving. And, the just-over-one-year of living in this state, which I've already mentioned.

My theory is very simple: Michiganders drive fast because it's good for the economy, even though they won't admit it.

First of all, I realize that not all Michiganders drive fast. Only True Michiganders drive fast. Those who don't are only thinking of themselves and should not be regarded as True Michiganders.

Here's a synopsis of how the "driving fast for Michigan" theory goes: Michiganders drive fast because they know the faster they drive, the faster their cars will require repairs, and the faster their cars will require selling or junking, and the faster they will have to buy a new car.

Simple. You drive fast, you help the local economy. And when you help the local economy, you help yourself. Time to paint the house? Time to start driving 68 m.p.h. to work.

And everyone along the auto-economy chain realizes that. Pet store owners realize the faster they drive, and the faster others drive... the more business they will get as an end result of the healthy economy.

By the way, this industrial-psychological relationship is not unique. The same theory helps, in part, to explain why Californians insist wine goes good with every meal, and why an unusually high percentage of teenagers in Hershey, PA have acne.

True Michiganders have developed a couple of techniques to spur the economy. A True Michigander knows that, when passing on the expressway, to do it as close to the driver you're passing as possible. This accomplishes two goals: 1) it increases the chance of an accident, thus providing more business for auto shops, auto dealers, pet store owners, etc. and 2) it reminds the slower, less patriotic driver that they should not be so self-centered and should pick up the pace, for the sake of Michigan.

Honk, if you have to. Next, True Michiganders know to pull out right in front of oncoming cars at the last minute -- ideally in front of fellow True Michiganders who are driving fast. This causes the driver to slam on their brakes, which in the long haul will bolster the brake repair business, and in the even longer haul, help pet store owners.

Unfortunately, not everyone on the freeways is pitching in. Unfortunately, I am one of those people. In a rare moment of self-discovery, I realized that buried deep within the darkest recesses of my mind is the secret desire to not only drive slow, but worse yet, to keep myself out of my car completely.

To The Point By Dan Ness

I came to that decision after I locked myself out of my car for the fourth time in six months a while back.

I can think of no other plausible explanation for an act so blatantly aimed to keep myself from driving. Four times. Six months. Hmmm.

Two of those instances merit special analysis. One time, I locked the keys in the car while it was still running, parked on Pennington Avenue. Does this mean I harbor a fantasy of the car driving away from me, or did I secretly want to run out of gas, but not go through all the trouble of being stranded on an expressway? I haven't decided yet.

Another time, I locked myself out while interviewing a Canton police officer at the police station. I left the interview, with Community Service Officer Eddie Tanner, and discovered that now I was the one who needed a community service performed. Did I secretly want to embarrass myself so badly that I would never drive again, or did I just want my lockout more convenient, this being the fourth time in six months? Another tough one.

But, I'm not alone. There are other secret enemies of Motown's industrial comeback. For instance, the Secretary of State office in Canton. Not only does this office discourage people from getting legal changes in their licenses (which they need to drive), but they physically keep potential drivers off the roads by making them wait incredibly long periods of time in line to get their licenses changed. If there were more Secretary of State offices in town, between 9 and 5 p.m., I-275 would look like a stretch of I-90 through Buffalo, Wyoming.

Michigan has nothing to worry about though, as long as there are teenagers and pizza deliverers around. Those stalwart supporters of the local economy should overcome any attempts -- subconsciously or not -- by those who would stall Michigan's business motors by driving defensively, or even less offensively.

It's no coincidence the state is enjoying an economic upswing now. Make a mental note (hopefully while driving) of the age of the next pizza deliverer you see. That will also help to explain the recent migration of dermatologists to Hershey, PA.

A+ for two local youths

Plymouth can indeed be proud of its young people. An A+ to the two young men, Ron Andruciak and Andy Hively who returned my wallet to me an hour after I had dropped it outside the backdoor of the Frameworks last Wednesday.

Superior Twp. wins land battle with Salem Twp.

Apparently Superior Township has won in its territorial dispute with Salem Township. The new "Welcome to Superior" sign on Ann Arbor Road west of Napier is located in Salem instead of across the road or down by the bend at the driving range where a west-bound car actually enters Superior. Watch out! Will Canton and Plymouth townships be invaded next?

Precinct workers need training

EDITOR:

I would like to alert you and the people of Plymouth to a situation which is totally unacceptable in a democracy.

On August 5, I went to vote in the 5th precinct for the primary election. For the position of precinct delegate, I chose to write in a candidate's name who was not on the ballot. The poll judges were not capable of explaining the procedures of casting a write-in vote; I had one enter the booth to explain the process to me, but he never figured it out. One of my neighbors indicated that she had a similar problem and just gave up. She was not afforded the opportunity to cast the vote of her choice.

While this situation was bad enough, it was not the most disturbing occurrence. Another voter went to the polls at 7 p.m., a full hour before the polls closed. Upon asking for instructions regarding the write-in process, she was told that she was too late; if she wanted to cast a write-in vote, she had to vote earlier in the day. This (different) poll judge's explanation was that it would take more time for them to complete their duties.

Evidently, getting home a little earlier was more important to this person that was the assurance that every voter got to vote according to his or her preference. The fact that they were paid to insure against such abuses makes one wonder about the criteria used to select these individuals. The abuses make you wonder about the training these individuals face.

Regardless, something needs to be done to insure that instances such as these never again occur in the City of Plymouth.

I'm proud to be a blurb writer from the 'burbs

Taped to the bulletin board in the newsroom is a memo from the Michigan Press Association. It's right next to a Detroit Tiger schedule and a picture of Merle Haggard. There is no connection.

The memo is headed: What suburban readers want in a newspaper. That would be you.

A research company named Clark, Martrie and Bartolomeo, names as familiar as your spouse's cousins, did research on what kind of newspaper those winged creatures of white flight want to read.

Let's run down the list and see how this paper stacks up.

Local news handled importantly That's us. Nothing but local news. Maybe some non-local ads, but that's it.

Serious material, but neighborliness and a social quality It's hard to blend all of that. In a small town, serious news inevitably involves, not the governor, but your neighbor.

Listings on where to go We have a 'Places to be' page which handles that. We are lax in telling you about the local movies, but here's a simple rule to follow: At the Canton Cinema Six, there will be three movies about teenagers, two movies about vigilantes and one fairly good movie. At the Penn Theatre there is that one fairly good movie, but two months later.

People news such as weddings and engagements We probably receive more phone calls about this department than any other. I chalk that up to

This is a test?

EDITOR:

We live close to Western Wayne Correctional Facility. About every week the siren blasts for fifteen minutes. It can be heard two miles away. We are told it is a test. Being so close, the blast is disconcerting, to say the least. Comments:

- A. We do not know if it is a real uprising or just a test.
- B. It can be confused with the siren

- for tornado warnings.
 - C. Why 15 minutes?
 - D. If it is a test, set a day of the week and the hour so we will recognize it.
 - E. Suggestion — Space the blasts further apart such as every 10 seconds if it is a test.
 - Let us see who will pick up the ball.
- FRANK MILLINGTON

how high emotions run when walking down the aisle. We try to get the wedding notices in before the birth announcements. Then there's some people like Ray Hoedel, a superintendent for Plymouth-Canton Schools, who married off two kids this year. Ray is so organized.

Police and fire blotters are carefully watched I'd rather run Rorschach ink blots, but people do like to read dirt on others. At another paper I worked at we ran a list of all drunk drivers each week. Here, our policy is to only print the names of drunk public officials. The trade-off is that if the reporters get caught, then their name will appear one more time than usual. That's happened, too.

Local columnists Ahem. Editorials are not popular in your kind of newspaper....interview local people to find out their views But what if the locals we interview don't agree with us? Then what do we do. It's like the playground when it's your ball. If you don't let us play then we're taking our printing presses and going home. In fact, I'm going home now.

Machine or erector set?

The political machine.

There is no other animal around like this two-headed serpent that makes decisions for each and every one of us day in and day out.

In Chicago, there was Daly and The Boss. A machine run by iron fist, fear and muscle.

Here in Plymouth there isn't a machine -- it is more like a erector set. But there is some very interesting movements to this suedo-machine, that everyone should know about.

Covering the City Commission and the Township Board for the last 90 days has been interesting from the 'on lookers' point of view. After a time you get a sense of how decisions come about -- and conversely how other decisions never come about.

People who need something from this political snafu call it 'red tape.' People who watch this process (like reporters) write and laugh about it.

Today we laugh. Maybe.

Both the city and township are interesting and unique in their own way. Each have different personalities, and without the use of names we'll dissect some of their gavels.

Each board has it's own heavy. This is the guy that runs the board. And I do mean run. This is the guy who opens the mail, answers the phone and generally points with an authoratative finger here and there.

Lauds to local bank

EDITOR:

The parents of New Morning School, a pre K-8 parent cooperative, would like to publicly thank First of America, Plymouth for their support in financing the new addition at the school. We'd like to thank Bob Butler, Vice-President-Loans, and his Board for continuing their commitment to local projects by providing New Morning School with this loan. Without their investment in the Plymouth community, our project would not have been possible.

ELAINE YAGIELA, DIRECTOR AND THE NEW MORNING
BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Both the city and the township have their own forms of 'the heavy', and both have different styles.

Styles, I'm sure they have spent hours in front of the mirror honing.

The township heavy is a smiler. This one sits back and smiles and 'suggests' a way the board might want to vote. Questions are usually answered by a chuckle, and a 'what-kind-of-stupid-question-is-that' look.

The City 'heavy' has a separate style. This involves more of a direct intimidating approach.

The aim here is to assume, and explain to the commission that after it "passes this ordinance", of course assuming all the while that it will be passed, that something else will be free to happen.

But commissions and boards are made up of many differnt kinds of people.

- There are the people who don't want to make any waves, and will sit back and pass resolutions if directed to do so.

- There are stooges of the heavy, who support and speak when spoken to.

- There are the "resume fillers" -- people who sit on the board, as a prelude to something else.

- And there are the people who sit on the boards who really care about the community. The person next door, who has some good ideas, and wants to get involved.

These are the people you see at the Little League games, the ones who volunteer time without being asked and the people who are the first to praise others for a job well done.

These are the people who make the commissions and the boards work.

EDITOR:

I have recently become aware that certain Canton Township Officials are re-evaluating their granting of permission for the "Balloon Festival" to be held in their community.

I live in Canton. My office is in Plymouth, I am a two-towner. In my opinion, the Balloon Festival is the most class event now being held on Canton turf. It is somewhat more glamorous than the Cow Chip Fling.

The long-range benefits to Canton being blessed as the locale for the Balloon Festival are immeasurable. Minus this event, most Michiganders are of the opinion that Canton is either in Ohio or China.

The $3,000 cost to help bring Canton out of oblivion is a pittance, regardless who else might get some lateral benefits.

Plymouth, I'm sure, would not look askance at being selected as the site for the 1988 Olympics out of concern for the lateral benefits to NBC.

Canton should do it! Canton needs it!

GREGORY DONOVAN

Yes, Virginia -- Thanks

EDITOR:

I would like to welcome all of you to stop in at the Plymouth-Canton Schools Clothing Bank and meet our new director, Virginia Kocik.

She and her husband, Matthew and their three children reside in Canton. Virginia has been a volunteer with the Clothing Bank for three years and did a wonderful job of filling in for me last winter.

Last winter Virginia and the volunteers were very fortunate in receiving many donations that made it possible to purchase new shoes, socks, underwear, hats and mittens for each member of our families. If our funds hold out we may be able to start the children to school with new items.

Virginia, Helen Decker, Margaret Schroeder, Pam Lyle, Jeanne Dumas and myself wish to thank all of you for supporting the Clothing Bank. If it had not been for your support we would not have been able to help at least 300 children and adults this year.

Volunteers are also needed to help staff the Clothing Bank. It's a rewarding experience to help people! Please call 453-2534 or 455-6122.

We are open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30-noon, or call 451-6673 for an appointment.

Purchasing agent

"Purchasing policies don't change," he said. "First thing, if the schools say they need something -- a new laminator, or something, then I check if it falls under capital outlay or a bond item."

"I look at the wording of the bond (issue). It's the Bible."

Rose said the toughest thing about spending the money is deciding which wheel is the squeakiest.

"The natural tendency is when a bond is passed everyone wants something and they think they're the ones (with top priority)."

"I've done a lot of legwork that had to get done before school starts. I was really hoppin'. It'd be nice to freeze the universe for awhile. I went around to the schools and looked at each of the (bond items) they want."

Rose said the purchasing procedure was slowed because there was nothing he could do until the bond was officially passed.

"We couldn't assume it would pass. If it did, then fine. But if it didn't, items that were needed would have to come from the 1986-87 proposed budget. Then we would have to ask people what they absolutely had to have?"

"When the bond did pass, it just sat there for awhile."

Rose said he doesn't mind the close scrutiny paid his job.

"The first thing you learn when working for the schools, is that's it's public. It's a fish bowl. We have a good school board and they're taxpayers, too."

Taking a look back at his look-out

BY DAVID PIERINI

With 10 years experience as a lighthouse keeper, Plymouth Township resident John Tregembo has this to say about the business:

"A lighthouse is nice to visit, but they're rough to stay at," said Tregembo, a father of three. "It's one tedious job."

It has been 27 years since he last served as a keeper at the Grand Traverse Lighthouse in Northport and today, he's having more fun visiting them.

Tregembo is a member of the Great Lakes Lighthouse Keepers Association, a group that tours various lighthouses throughout the Great Lakes states and Canada.

He was recently a special guest at a conference dedicating the Grand Traverse Lighthouse as a new lighthouse museum.

"They were very good years, a very enjoyable thing to do," said Tregembo who'll admit that his lighthouse keeping years were challenging. "We didn't have modern conveniences, so we wrote and read to keep ourselves amused. I even did Indian bead work to pass the time.

"We had a radio but the radio beacon would go on 10 minutes before the half hour so you never knew how a program ended."

Those spare times, though, weren't often, Tregembo said. Time was spent keeping the generators going, the clocks accurate to Mean time and making sure that the fog horn and radio beacon was working properly.

"You've got to keep the place clean enough to eat your next meal off the floor."

Times are changing, Tregembo said, making the lighthouse keeper obsolete.

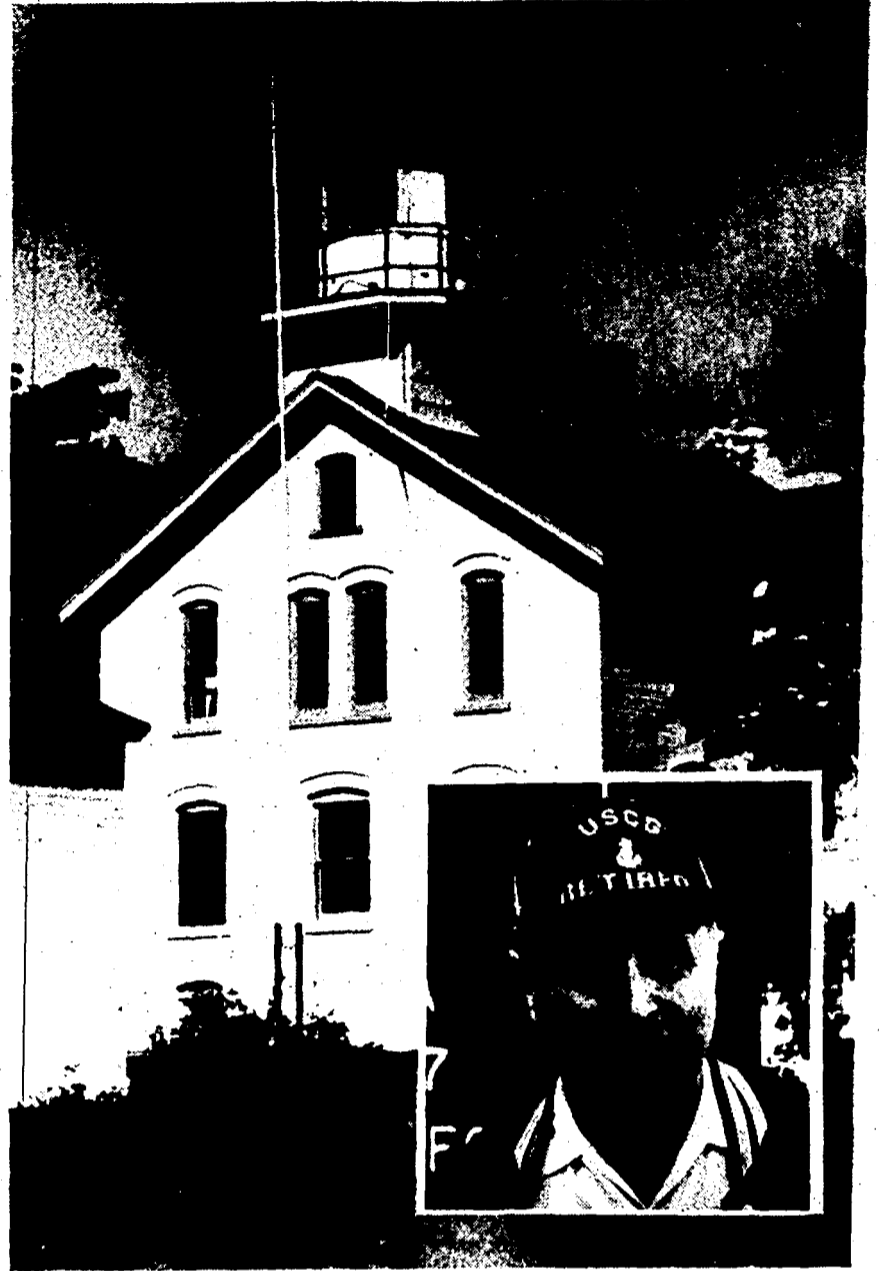

"Modern technology is making us a useless breed of people," the 58-year-old Tregembo said. "That new equipment doesn't care if someone is drowning out there. It's just programed to turn the light on and off. That human element is not there to protect the other human.

"I remember when the Carl Brandy (a Great Lakes freighter) went down," he said. "The search planes lit the lake up like a big city, looking for survivors. I'll never forget that one for as long as I live."

Serving the United States Coast Guard during the 40's and 50's, Tregembo kept house at Rock of Ages and White Fish Point, both on Lake Superior and at Sea Point lighthouse in Alaska.

"Alaska was beautiful; good hunting and good fishing. Didn't like walking two and a half miles in the woods to fix the wooden water pipes, though."

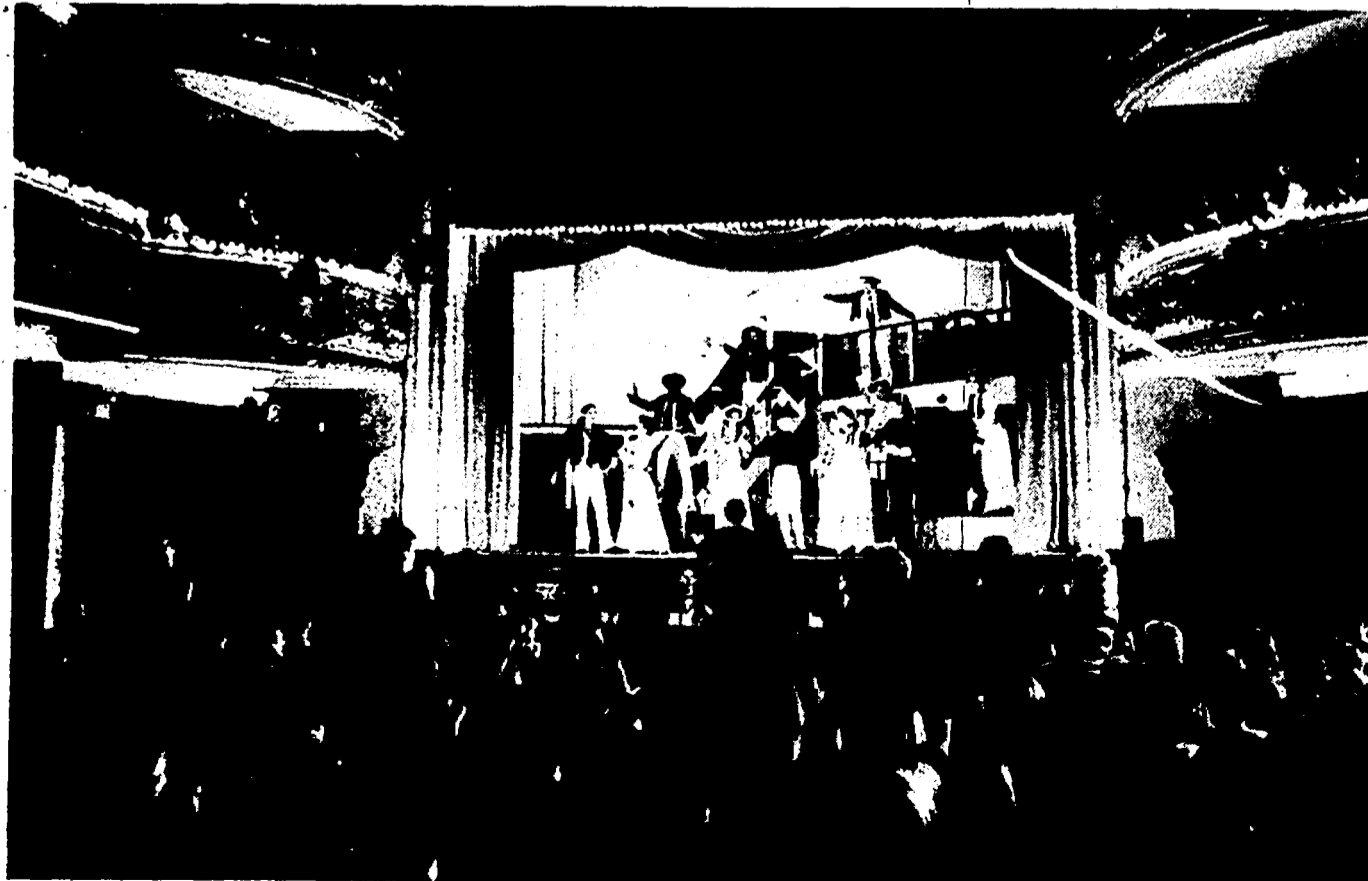

Tregembo now works the afternoon shift at Detroit Diesel Allison and says that working there is "like being at a lighthouse. You're left alone to do your work."

Keep it burning

Why We Played A Supporting Role In The Restoration Of A Community Opera House.

Near the turn of the century, two-bits and a little bit of luck put you near the front of the standing room only crowds that were the hallmark of this opera house.

Mary Pickford, at the time just a blossoming star, graced its stage.

As did Annie Oakley's traveling show of six-guns and other assorted shootin' irons.

In fact, over the years, what with all the stars of vaudeville and theatre who performed here, you would have thought it was Broadway in New York.

Not a small midwest town's main street opera house.

Even talking movies couldn't do to the grand old place what a major fire, many years of neglect and then a condemnation notice would finally do.

Close its doors. Seemingly for good.

But to the townspeople, the show just had to go on.

So when private citizens and business people got together to restore this priceless landmark, a lot of our people asked what part they could play.

You see, we're not just bankers. We're part of the community.

So we believe that sometimes it's just as important to lend a hand as it is to lend someone money.

At First of America Bank, we're proud we were part of the impressive community cast of characters that raised the money it took to bring the opera house back to life.

And we applaud the entire town's contribution to the performing arts.

According to my kids, standing around waiting for a mom to give you a ride home is no fun. "Especially when she forgets you half the time and you never know if this is going to be one of those times."

I admit that my kids have probably been forgotten more than most over the years. But just think how independent it made them, to know they had to think for themselves.

Thank heavens for co-workers, friends and neighbors who were available when they needed to be rescued. I remember driving over to the high school a couple years ago to pick up a kid (so I was a little late) and found two co-workers already there. Trying to tell her how popular she was by having three people there to give her a ride home didn't do much to appease her.

We've all laughed about the fact that I could never win a mother of the year award, but sometimes it was really embarrassing. I tried to explain to the kids how lucky they were that I had a job that I could leave to pick them up or drop them off at things, but it was also the kind of work where I had a lot on my mind and I was busy doing many things. "Ok mom, we know you love us, but tomorrow I have track practice, he has a soccer game and I have to be at work by 6 p.m."

Somehow we all managed to survive the years with one car and mom doing all the driving. Now that all three of us are driving and we have two cars, the transportation seems even more impossible. The worst part about the car situation this summer, is that I'm the one without the car most of the time.

Last week the kid managed to turn the tables around when she forgot mom. After a long day at work, the last thing I needed was to be stuck at work without a ride home. As I roared into the house ready to kill the kid, she looked at me with that sweet smile and said, "you know I love you, even when I have other things on my mind."

Ok chalk one up for paybacks, but just remember I'm the mom, it's my car and I make the car payments. I hope I can remember this next month when the kid goes back to school, and I'm lonesome with no one to fight with over the car.

BRITAIN'S COUNTRY HOUSE HOTELS

If you are planning a trip through the splendid English countryside, then you should know something about the Country House Hotels.

The last ten years in Britain has seen the mushrooming of a new breed of hotel; small deluxe hostleries converted from private dwellings. Usually they are imposing country mansions, transformed by dedicated owners, into elite inns where service and comfort are often unsurpassed.

Quite the opposite of large chain hotels, each Country House Hotel has a character completely its own, which is a reflection of the period and architectural style of the building, its gardens and landscape and its furnishing and decoration. The range includes Elizabethan timbered buildings, magnificent Georgian mansions and Baronial Victorian manor houses. All have been refurbished, however, adding modern conveniences to old world charm. We can make all the arrangements.

Our 30 years experience assures you of the finest travel service available. And, best of all, THERE IS NO CHARGE TO YOU FOR OUR SERVICES. We are reimbursed in commission fees by the airlines and hotels, ships and resorts that we book.

Engraving Connection joins Electronic Mall

BY DAN NESS

Has anyone noticed the new shopping mall that went in on Ann Arbor Trail in downtown Plymouth this summer?

No?

Well, better take another look.

Look very closely at Engraving Connection, at 930 W. Ann Arbor Trail, and you'll see one of the community's newest, and surely most unique, shopping malls. Owner Rex Tubbs enthusiastically explains some of the other stores in the mall.

"We're talkin' Sears, Nieman-Marcus, Bloomingdale's...."

The mall also includes such tenants as The Equitable financial planners, Air France and Alaska Teleshopper, Alaska Teleshopper?

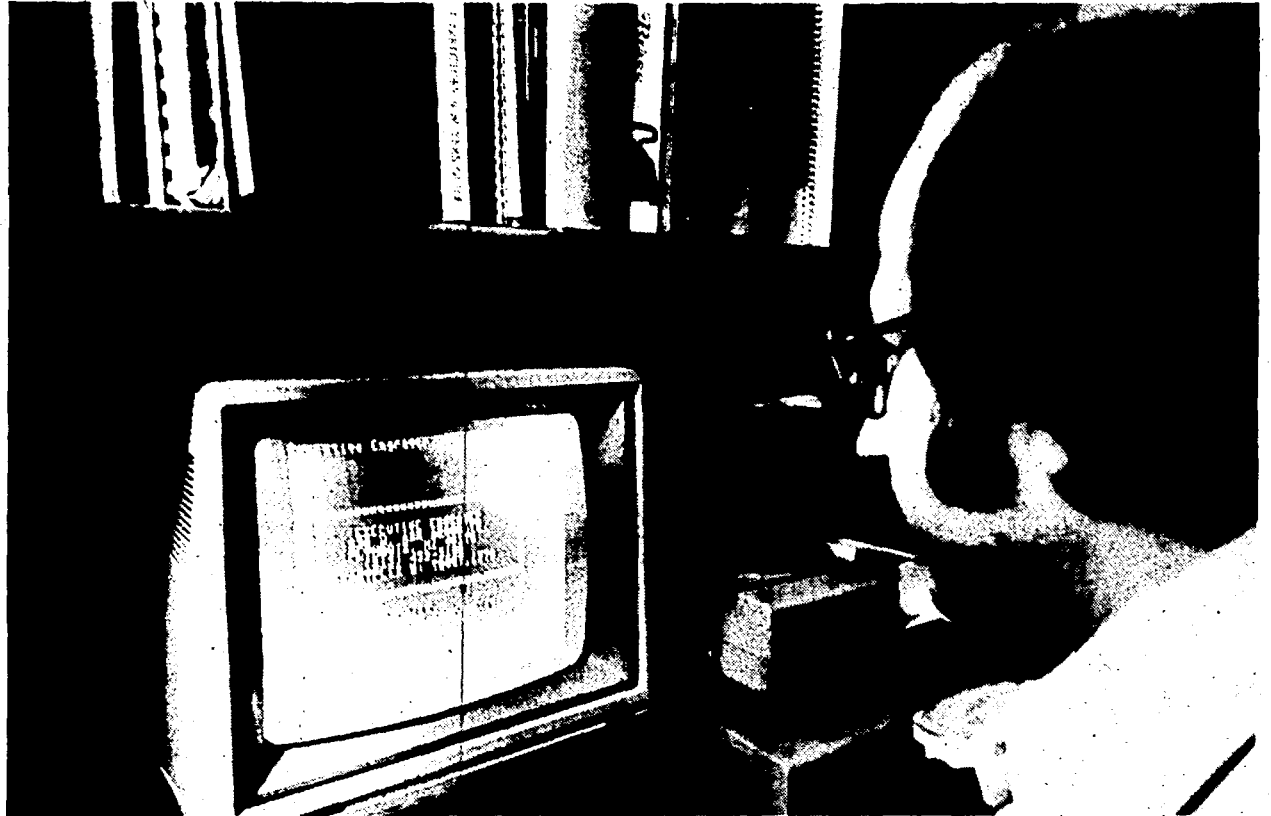

Yep. And much, much more, according to Tubbs. He's part of a worldwide, computer-connected collaboration of businesses in "The Electronic Mall," which he joined in July. Tubbs celebrated his "grand opening" of sorts, in The Electronic Mall in August, and orders from customers are coming from all over the country.

The Electronic Mall is a group of businesses participating in a part-catalogue, part-mail order business system run through the CompuService data base company, from Columbus, OH. In this computer mall, Tubbs' business is called Executive Engraver.

On a more local level, The Engraving Connection sells a variety of products, ranging from glassware to plaques to pewterware, or as Tubbs more aptly puts it, "I carry a full line of engravable merchandise."

And, if you can't find what you want in the store? "You name it, we can engrave on it," Tubbs says. His store has been open since 1978, and he sees similarities between his Plymouth customer-base and his worldwide data-customer base.

"It's just like my customers coming

in the door here, except they're doing it on their computer terminals in their homes," he says.

And "their" homes in this case happen to be in places like Bristol, Connecticut and Lauderhill, Florida, and wherever else computer users subscribe to The Electronic Mall through CompuService. Although business has been moderate for Executive Engraver so far, surveys for the computer shopping service show the Christmas season brings an incredibly disproportionate amount of business to the computer mall stores, like the one Tubbs has.

And, in the world of computers, where business transactions are made as fast as electronic impulses, Christmas season starts early. "We're working Christmas right now, actually," Tubbs says. In a few short months, his other store, The Engraving Connection, will start to see the annual rush of holiday shoppers.

For those who will shop by computer this year, however, the process is much easier and much faster, Tubbs says. He demonstrates by punching up a list of businesses in The Electronic Mall. He scans through the names of businesses, and punches up his own.

From there, he -- or computer customers, rather -- can choose between a summary of the store, a list of merchandise, a set of instructions for ordering merchandise, and anything a customer would need to make a decision regarding purchases.

And since the buying is so easy through the computer, even shoppers closer to home than Lauderhill, Florida rely on computers rather than cars.

"I had one response from Dearborn," Tubbs says. "He could've driven here, but it's just easier this way."

It's football at arms length

BY DAVID PIERINI

So Fall Festival isn't sporty enough for you. How about a little football with a two-time Heisman Trophy winner and a couple of national championship teams?

A booth showing films of the greatest plays in football history?

You won't find that at Fall Fest but if you go to Central Middle School on Saturday, Sept. 6, you'll get to see some good football teams and that former college and NFL great promised.

The Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring the 16-team Silverdome Classic, a tournament with some of the best touch football teams in the country.

Preliminary match ups will be going on all day next Saturday with the finals to be played on Sept. 7 at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Former Heisman trophy winner and Cincinnati Bengal Archie Griffin and his brother Ray Griffin, also a former professional, will be playing in the tournament for a team out of Columbus, OH.

Also vying for the Silverdome Classic title will be last year's national champions Detroit Standard Paper, along with the country's second, third and fifth best teams.

A top 10 Canadian team will also be participating in the tournament.

"We thought maybe there would be some passing interest in the tournament, that's why we're holding it during Fall Festival," said Canton resident Mike Yockey who helped organize the tournament with brother Kurt. "You'll see some very good caliber football."

"It was actually my brother's doing. We ran an abbreviated version last year."

Last year's tournament had fewer teams, with the final game played in the Silverdome at the conclusion of a Detroit Lions game.

"Basically, we tried to actively discourage public curiosity at that time because it was experimental," Yockey said. "We delayed activity for an hour and their was no public announcement."

The finals at the Silverdome last year were made up of two semi-final games and a championship game. This year, all 16 teams will play at least one game in the Dome before semi-finals and a championship game is played.

This year's tournament is open to the public. The finals will be played in the Dome on a day that it won't be in use by the Lions.

Softball slammers

Plymouth Rock I and Tamarack Greens were the big winners in the Canton Parks and Recreation's Annual Weekend Softball Playoff Tournament.

Plymouth Rock I won the Men's First Division Playoffs, defeating Rusty Nail 12-9 in the tourney final. Manager Marty Rapson's team used timely hitting from Ralph Martin (2 hits), Dean Alexander (3 hits), Tim Rapson (2 hits), and Mark Libke (2 hits), in the win over Rusty Nail. A big four-run fifth inning broke open a close game and sparked Plymouth Rock on to the victory. Plymouth Rock reached the finals with earlier wins over Stans Market and Canton Sports.

Tamarack Greens won the Men's Second Division Playoffs with an exciting 6-0 victory over runner-up Oakview Party Store. Tamarack received triples from Alan Reynolds and Mark Schultz and a key double from Michael Simonds in its victory. Tamarack Greens, had a 10-4 record in the regular season, advanced all the

Yockey, who plays for Detroit Bud-Light, the second ranked team in Michigan, said that two-hand touch football is played all over the nation and is popular with players of all abilities.

"Most every team has a significant amount of former pro and college players," he said. "The game of touch is different. It's more a game of speed and quickness. People who weren't big enough to participate in Division I football, are able to compete quite well at this format.

"A few years ago when Clemson was the national champion, Archie Griffin and the team from Columbus, which was also a national champion then, played them in a charity game. They (Columbus) won something like 35-7 because they played touch football. Don't get me wrong, Clemson had great talent, they just didn't understand the game."
