Pursell survives Blanchard landslide

BY T.M. SMITH

At 3 a.m. this morning when Plymouth Township's results finally were announced it appeared that Republican Congressman Carl Pursell has staved off a charge by Democrat Dean Baker.

Baker, a liberal challenger from Ann Arbor, gave Pursell an aggressive charge during the election Tuesday which saw Gov. James Blanchard roll up tremendous votes in areas not usually Democratic. The Democratic challenger led Ann Arbor by a 2-1 margin and was holding close in several other districts.

But Pursell's overall strength seemed to keep the Plymouth Township resident a step ahead of the Baker surge. It was Plymouth Township's results, a near 5 to 1 margin for Pursell, that finally seemed to seal the win for Pursell.

"We were a little concerned about the dropoff rate of people who would not vote Republican because of how Blanchard was doing," Pursell said.

But Pursell also pointed out that he was able to run ahead of Reagan during the last election, and that he has a pretty loyal following.

And while it was impressive that Baker swept through Ann Arbor, it was equally impressive that Pursell was able to make a strong showing in out districts such as Lenawee County with a 6,257 to 4,232 lead over Baker.

"Officially I think we are in good shape about now," Pursell said. "We led the ticket in Wayne County and in Livonia we took 66 per cent of the vote."

Pursell gave credit to Baker for gathering support, but said that the turnout of the election was "no real surprise to him" even though many did not expect the race to be as close as it was at the end.

Voter turnout down

BY T.M. SMITH

Voters in The Plymouth-Canton Community came out to the polls Tuesday, but the numbers were down considerably from four years ago.

During the 1982 elections involving Michigan's governor race, between 65 and 75 per cent of the registered voters in all three communities cast ballots.

Tuesday just 37 per cent of the voters in The Plymouth-Canton Community came to the polls. Plymouth Township had the highest turnout of the three communities with 49 per cent, while the City of Plymouth had 45 per cent of the voters participate, and Canton had just 30 per cent of the voters cast votes in the election.

DNR flip-flops on Canton sewer construction ban

BY DAN NESS

If you blinked, you may have missed it.

The state's Department of Natural Resources' sewer ban on Canton came and went within a week, ending last Friday in Wayne County Circuit Court when the attorney general's office ruled that, effectively, Canton was never under a sewer construction ban.

According to Canton Supervisor James Poole, the DNR is now processing sewer construction permits "as usual," and the situation is "almost back to normal" in Canton.

Things were not normal late last week when Poole was briefing homeowners and developers about possible implications of the sewer ban, which the DNR had indicated began on

Oct. 24. In a letter to Poole, the DNR's director, Gordon Guyer, had written that "as of Oct. 24, 1986, no further permits for new applications for the construction of a sewerage system or portions thereof will be issued by this department unless and until the township undertakes an approved program to correct the deficiencies in its present sewerage system, implements said program on a schedule satisfactory to the department, and assures adequate capacity for any further proposed development."

As it now stands, Canton must still develop a plan for a sewer system to be submitted to the DNR, but without a deadline, according to Poole. "We have been asked to submit a plan to the DNR that shows how we're going to get extra sewer capacity," Poole said.

After bringing such a proposal to the DNR, the DNR will have 28 days to reject or approve the plan, but any rejection must be based on "sound engineering principles," Poole said. If Canton officials think a DNR rejection is arbitrary, or meant to force Canton into the North Huron Valley Area/Rouge Valley project (Son of Super Sewer), Canton can bring the matter back to Wayne County Circuit Court, Poole said.

Also, if the DNR rejects individual sewer construction permits now, it must hold a hearing within seven days of the rejection, Poole said.

Circuit Court Judge Sharon Tevis Finch, who heard the case Friday, did

Law breezes in 36th

BY T.M. SMITH

By midnight Tuesday, 36th State Rep. Gerald Law was so well reassured of this re-election, he had already forgotten his opponent's name.

Law beat his challenger Kathy Reilly, a Plymouth Township Democrat, by a margin of almost 4,000 votes at press time.

When accepting victory, Law struggled, and finally had to ask Reilly's name.

At 2 a.m. this morning, Law was holding a comfortable lead with 6,553 votes to Reilly's 2,751. Law admitted victory was at hand.

"We are doing very well, you never really know with these campaigns, but I thought I did very well this time,"

Geake beats Healy

BY KEN VOYLES

Republican incumbent Robert Geake, of Northville, appears to have held on to his Michigan Senatorial seat in the 6th District despite a fairly strong showing by challenger Thomas Healy, of Plymouth.

Unofficial vote counts put Geake, battling for his third full term in office, ahead by nearly a two-to-one margin.

With most voting precincts already in from Plymouth, Northville and Livonia, Geake remained in front by 12,359 votes compared to Healy's 6,671. Those are not the final figures but represent the count at press time early this morning.

Some Livonia precincts and all of Redford were yet to be counted.

According to Geake, he carried every community in the district with about 64 per cent of the vote going in his favor.

Geake will enter his third full term in the senate as the most senior Republican.

"I'm very pleased with the victory," he said from a Republican gathering at the Holidome in Livonia. "I think people responded to my years of service to the district.

"I plan to continue my quiet diplomacy and quiet leadership, working for the district," he continued.

Healy declined to concede defeat late last night but did phone Geake. "I told Law said from the Republican party at the Livonia Holidome.

Law led well from the beginning, taking big leads in Plymouth, Northville and Livonia and even showed fairly strong in Canton where he has traditionally done poorly.

"Canton was a little closer, but I have always been weak there," he said.

Reilly, however, was not totally unhappy with the results.

"We really never expected to win, we wanted to get 35 per cent of the vote, and I think that is where we will end up," Reilly said.

him it's too close to call and I'm going to bed."

He added, "I'm still confident and pleased I was able to get my message across to the people."

Kosteva in 2nd term

BY DAN NESS

37th District State Rep. James Kosteva appeared headed for victory early this morning with approximately 70 per cent of the vote compared to his opponent, Theodore Jacques, with 30 per cent of the vote.

As of press time, Kosteva had, unofficially, 10,082 votes and Jacques had 3,800, with precincts reporting from Romulus, Van Buren Township, the City of Belleville, Canton, and Wayne.

Kosteva, a Democrat, will be returning for his second term in Lansing after defeating Jacques Tuesday.

"I'm obviously pleased," Kosteva said. "I'm anxiously looking forward to going back to work."

Kosteva said the vote reflected citizen satisfaction with his performance in the state legislature. "It's like bringing home a report card with good grades," he said of his victory.

Drain office abolished

BY DAN NESS

As of press time early this morning, it appeared that the voters of Wayne County overwhelmingly wanted to abolish the office of the county drain commissioner.

Proposition D 'YES' votes were running at between 70 and 75 per cent early this morning, with the biggest surprise coming from Detroit precincts. According to Milton Mack, the 11th District county commissioner who spearheaded the move to eliminate the drain commissioner office, Detroit voters had approved Proposition D by a nearly 2-to-1 margin.

"The Detroit vote is very surprising," Mack said. "We did not expect to win in Detroit."

Mack said some suburban-Detroit communities had passed Proposition D with an 80 per cent 'YES' to 20 per cent 'NO' margin. "The vote has been overwhelming in communities that had to deal with the drain commissioner."

Mack said. "This vote is going to be a welcome relief to residents of Wayne County.

The approval of Proposition D means the Wayne County Charter will be amended to divide the duties and responsibilities of the drain commissioner's office between the county Department of Public Works and the Office of Public Services. The County Board of Commissioners will have to approve bids on drain work, also, as a result of passage of Proposition D.

Mack said approval of the charter amendment sent a clear message to county officials. "It's the clearest possible statement the people could make on this issue."

Heintz wins county post

BY T.M. SMITH

Early this morning it seemed more than likely that Northville Township Supervisor Susan Heintz would be the lone Republican on the 15-member Wayne County Commission.

Heintz seemed to have her 10th District seat in Wayne County's commission race neatly wrapped up by midnight Tuesday with a sizable 8,000 vote cushion over Democratic opponent John Kopka of Livonia.

Heintz was ahead in the vote count 22,269 to 14,091 as of early this morning.

The predicted election of Heintz to the commission sets the partisan scale lopsided with 14 Democratic commissioners to one Republican commissioner.

But Heintz is not worried -- much.

"It is a difficult time to go into the county, especially being the lone Republican. But it'll be a challenge, and one I'm looking forward to," she said.

Wayne County will have many new additions come Jan. 1, with a new County Executive and several new members to try and repair the damage left by the previous administration, but Heintz is excited.

"This is really excellent, I am very excited to get going," she said.

Part of Heintz' wide margin of victory can be attributed to her strong showing in Livonia, where she is not well known and the community her challenger calls home.

"I took 57 per cent of the vote in Livonia, and that was a real key area for me. I was a little worried, but I am very glad the people there voted for me," she said.

County land sale 'dead in the water'

BY T.M. SMITH

The proposed sale of nearly 1000 acres of county-owned land in Northville Township is currently "dead in the water" after bids totalling $15 million were opened several weeks ago.

The biggest bidder for the land located at Five Mile and Sheldon roads, was Plymouth Township developer R.A. DeMattia Company.

That developer, which currently owns and operates Metro-West Industrial and Technological Parks in Plymouth Township, bid more than $13 million on four parcels of the land put up for sale. Six parcels made up the entire 1000 acre property.

But according to Northville and County officials, the sale of the land is up in the air, and uncertain because of political reasons.

Northville Township supervisor Susan Heintz, who was a candidate for Wayne County Commission in last night's election, said "the entire issue has become a political hot potato that nobody wants to touch until after the election."

Heintz refers to several allegations made during the governor's election that Wayne County Commissioner Bill Lucas was selling the land for less than its value to avoid payless paydays. Lucas ran for governor on the Republican ticket.

Heintz said those allegations, the land was undersold were untrue.

"People who say that the bids were low, just do not know what they are talking about. For the land which was sold we were offered $15 million, which is a very good price," Heintz said.

She said that talk of $25 million was tossed around before the bids when another, big piece of property was to have been included. It was taken out, Heintz said, because of technical problems at the last minute.

Wayne County's Purchasing agent Doug Gniewick, said that the bids now sit on the Wayne County Executive's desk, and movement is not likely soon.

"Right now the issue is dead in the water. To go any further it has to have a recommendation from the County Executive," Gniewick said.

He also said it was possible to reject all the bids and start the process again.

Heintz believes the bids are on target, and if sold will help the county and Northville Township a great deal.

"There are so many advantages. The County makes money from the sale, gets all the land back on tax roles, and the school district out here will realize almost $10 million in new money from the land in taxes," Heintz said.

She also said that developer, Bob DeMattia, is a proven developer who lives in the area and would make a positive contribution to the land.

"He puts up quality developments where ever he is, and he always is committed to better the community as a whole," Heintz said.

Although DeMattia was the most notable, serious bidder there were others who put in bids on some of the six parcels put on the selling block.

One of those bidders was Meijer Thrifty Acres developers, but that was a bid of just $10,000 to keep them in the running.

Riverwood Association bid 1.2 million for 51 acres which they said would be used for the construction of townhouse apartments.

The most popular parcel of land was a 10.5 acre triangle of land which has been used as a campground in the past.

Three bids were received on that land, the highest being $217,000 from Gene Hirs, which is planned for apartment buildings.

City man arraigned on pot charge

A Plymouth man was arraigned Tuesday in 35th District court on charges stemming from his arrest Oct. 31 in Northville with 80 pounds of marijuana, Northville police said.

Police said Craig A. Hann, 27, of Plymouth was arrested Oct. 17 at a private residence at Six Mile between Beck and Sheldon roads, along with a man from Westland.

Both men were not charged until Oct. 31, and Northville police said the men pled not guilty and released on bond for possession of an illegal drug. They were released on bond with a pre trial set for Dec. 12.

A spokesperson at the Northville police said that it was not uncommon for a two-week delay between the actual arrest and formal charges, and that "other investigations sometimes slow things down," along with having the crime labs test the drugs and confirm them.

Names withheld

Movie committee selected

BY KEN VOYLES

A review committee to evaluate the film "The Breakfast Club," Club," was formed last week, according to Kent Buikema, director for secondary education for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The committee will begin meeting this week and should have a recommendation for the administration within 10 days.

Buikema would not, however, release the names of the committee members for fear they may be harrassed while studying the controversial movie.

Diane Daskalakis filed the original complaint objecting to the showing of the film in psychology and English classes at Centennial Education Park (CEP).

After the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools administration refused to reveal the identities of the five members appointed to "The Breakfast Club" committee, The Community Crier filed officially under the Michigan Freedom of Information Act to compel disclosure.

A school spokesman said they would check with sources in Lansing for a legal ruling before responding to The Crier's request.

Details were not available at press time Tuesday. The law gives the schools five days to either turn over the requested information or provide a reason for withholding it.

Arbitrator rules for firefighter

BY DAN NESS

An arbitrator has ruled that Canton Township must reimburse a firefighter's wages for 10 days of work he missed due to an "improper" disciplinary suspension.

Arbitrator Robert McCormick ruled Oct. 9 that the township should pay firefighter Frank Chakrabarty for time he missed after Canton Fire Chief Mel Paulun suspended him for filing allegedly false accusations against a superior officer, in this case being Lt. Don Adams.

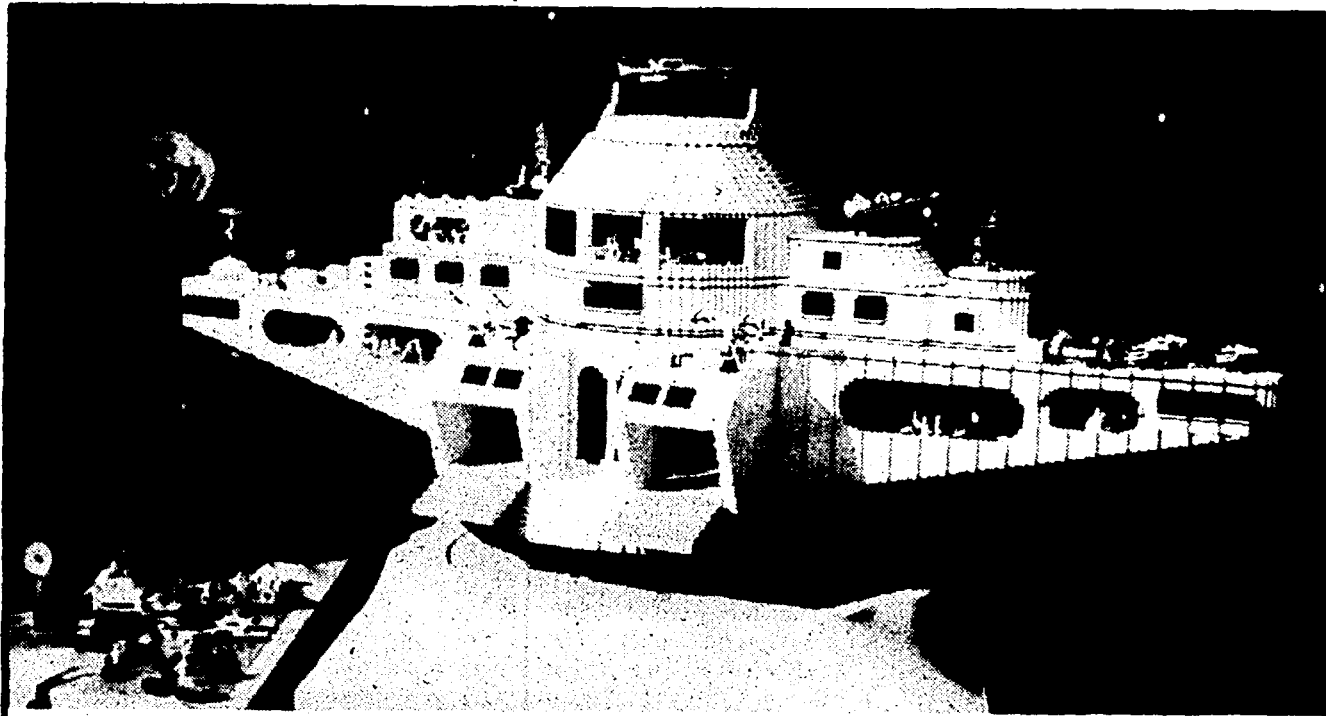

The ruling did not grant payment of interest on the wages for time missed.

The issue came about when Chakrabarty wrote a letter of grievance after a Jan. 9 fire in which he questioned the judgment of Adams. During the fire, Adams had apparently ordered Chakrabarty to ventilate the roof of the building on fire (chopping holes in the roof to allow smoke, heat and gas to escape) and Chakrabarty felt it would be unsafe for him to do so.

Chakrabarty convinced Adams that it would not be safe for him to climb onto the roof, and the next day, wrote a letter complaining of the incident and sent copies to Paulun, firefighter Jim Davison, who is the president of the firefighter's union, and Supervisor James Poole.

After Paulun investigated the complaint, he felt that parts of the complaint were unfounded and suspended Chakrabarty on Feb. 19, according to McCormick.

McCormick ruled that the firefighters' contract with the township allowed for protection of "views," "complaints" and "opinions" of the firefighters, if they were related to condition of employment. "The expression of those differences are protected from restraint and may not, except under circumstances not present here, give rise to discipline under the terms of this agreement," McCormick ruled.

McNamara is exec

BY KEN VOYLES

As expected, Edward McNamara easily won the Wayne County Executive's seat in Tuesday's election.

Unofficial vote tallies put the 60-year-old mayor of Livonia well out in front of challenger Robert Murphy, of Detroit.

McNamara, who campaigned strongly on a "reform the county" platform, is already preparing himself for his next challenge -- harnessing the wild stallion that is county government.

Last night's vote count -- as of midnight -- had the Democratic McNamara out in front by an almost two to one margin, 12,313 to 6,612. That total includes precincts in Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Livonia, Northville and Canton.

Early counts gave McNamara nearly 67 per cent of the vote total, with Murphy hovering around 33 per cent.

The darling of voters in the county's western suburbs, McNamara didn't really surprise anyone as he swamped the virtually unknown Republican.

"It's sort of like suddenly being appointed captain of the Titanic," McNamara said at his victory celebration in Livonia.

Earlier in the campaign, McNamara said he would hate to go down into the history books as the first Democrat to lose in Wayne County. It's been 40 years since a Republican held office in the county.

Murphy was unavailable for comment.

Ford returns

BY DAN NESS

U.S. Rep. William Ford, of Taylor, has held office since 1964, and after Tuesday night, he will stay in office in the 15th Congressional District.

Ford beat challengers Glen Kassel, a Republican from Westland, and James Stamps, an Independent from Sumpter Township, handily in the election.

"We ran a good campaign the whole time," said Ford's administrative assistant, David Geiss.

Ford beat Kassel in every community in the district where results were available as of press time, with the closest margin being 1,078 for Ford and 608 for Kassel in Saline Township. In comparison, Ford received, unofficially, 6,376 votes in Canton compared to Kassel's 3,371.

Ford beat Kassel by the largest margins in Westland, Taylor, Romulus and Southgate.

Geiss said that the landslide victory of Gov. James Blanchard was a plus for Ford and other Democrats in this election. "Gov. Blanchard helped the whole campaign," he said.

Mack wins big in 11th

BY DAN NESS

11th District Wayne County Commissioner Milton Mack was returned to office by the voters Tuesday by almost a 2-to-1 margin.

The district, which includes Canton, had voted approximately 16,500 for Mack and 8,400 for Republican challenger Scott Press as of press time this morning.

"Well, it's very gratifying to win by that margin," Mack said.

Mack said some of his actions in the county commission did not conform to the views of the "old establishment" in Wayne County government, and that was one reason he was re-elected. "I think it's a signal by the people that they're supportive of the efforts I've stood for," Mack said.

Mack was instrumental in getting Proposition D -- a county charter amendment to eliminate the office of the drain commissioner -- on the ballot for this election.

"I am quite grateful to the people of the 11th District for their support," Mack said.

Press could not be reached for comment.

Repeat apologies make for disarming robbery

BY DAN NESS

Canton police have no suspects in an attempted -- or more accurately, half-hearted -- robbery at a gas station Oct. 27.

According to police records, a man bought a container of juice at the Clark gas station at 44404 Ford Rd., then walked around the counter and ordered the cashier, a 19-year-old woman, to open the cash register.

The cashier said, "What are you going to do, hurt me if I don't?"

The man replied, "Yes, with my fists."

The cashier said, "I'm not going to do it," according to police.

Then, the man said, "I need money really bad, but I'm not the type of person to rob. I'm sorry."

The man was last seen fleeing on foot on Sheldon Road going north, wearing a blue baseball cap, a white sweatshirt, grey sweatpants and tennis shoes.

The man was "very apologetic," according to the cashier, who said he apologized several times before fleeing.

New City parade

The City of Plymouth will add a bit of extra excitement to its annual Tree Lighting Ceremony and Santa's arrival this year.

Plymouth will have a Thanksgiving-Christmas parade for the first year. It will kick off the annual festivities Nov. 25 put on by Plymouth's Chamber of Commerce.

The parade will begin at 6 p.m., Nov. 28 at the Chamber offices at 188 N. Main and continue to Kellogg Park. Included in the parade will be several floats, homecoming queens and many government officials.

In past years the Tree Lighting Ceremony and Santa's Arrival have been the main focus of the evening, but this year the parade will re-focus some of the emphasis.

The theme for the parade has been announced as "A Giving Thanks Parade" and it will be the culmination of a four-week city drive to collect canned goods and new toys for the Salvation Army to give to the needy.

Following the parade there will be the traditional ceremony to light Plymouth's tree in the park.

And, yes, what parade would be complete without the arrival of Santa. The Jolly elf will hitch his sleigh up near the bandstand for a small speech and to kick off the Santa Bag Mystery.

P-C parent conferences on Nov. 6

Parent conferences for both Salem and Canton high schools will be held on Thursday, Nov. 6 from 6:30 p.m. until 10 p.m. They will be held in the Canton gymnasium and all teachers, counselors and administrators will be present.

They will be seated in alphabetical order. Parents are encouraged to limit their conference to 5-7 minutes if other parents are waiting to see a particular teacher.

If additional time is needed, schedule a conference for a mutually agreeable time or check back with that teacher later in the evening.

In order to avoid parking and traffic problems, parents whose last names begin with M-Z are encouraged to come between 6:30 and 8:15 p.m., and parents whose last names begin with A-L are asked to come between 8:15 and 10 p.m., however, you may feel free to attend when it is most convenient.

Sex assault involves 3 5-year-olds

Canton police are investigating an alleged criminal sexual conduct complaint involving two five-year-old boys and a five-year-old girl.

According to police, the boys allegedly pulled the girl into some bushes near a bus stop at noon on Oct. 24, during the incident.

The mother of the girl told school officials, who advised her to call the police, according to Canton police.

Canton won't play dead

Let the record show that the Canton Board of Trustees stood up to the state DNR last week and won. Canton residents can be thankful that their elected officials are not bowing to the pressure of state and county bureaucracy to submit to an expensive, uncertain sewer project that has been bungled so far by those who would build it.

When the attorney general's office ruled Friday that a sewer ban, placed on the township by the DNR on Oct. 24, was in fact void, the DNR's thinly-veiled attempt to force Canton into the Son of Super Sewer project was thwarted.

As one Canton trustee put it, the Canton board was not going to roll over and play dead when the DNR got tough and threatened, and then imposed, a sewer construction ban on the community.

In fact, it is now the DNR that is jumping through hoops for Canton Township.

It is hard to argue with Supervisor James Poole's assertion that the DNR had singled out Canton as an example to those communities which would stand up to the DNR on the Super Sewer issue. The DNR pointed to five pumps Canton uses in times of heavy rain, which pump out excess sewage and rainwater to keep basements from flooding, and cried foul. The pumps, the DNR said, were polluting the Rouge River, and therefore, Canton would have no more sewer construction until it came up with a feasible (to DNR's standards) plan to increase sewer capacity.

Poole pointed to the approximately 186 other points of sewage discharge along the Rouge River/Huron River system, most of which pump even more sewage than the five Canton pumps.

Why would the DNR pick on five of those discharge sites in Canton, even when they were pumping less sewage than 186 other sites? Because, regardless of the actual amount of pollution they were causing, those sites were in a township that refused to join the Son of Super Sewer project.

The DNR wants Canton to implement a plan to expand its sewer capacity -- as does everyone. That should be a priority for the Canton board. However, the DNR says the plan must meet its approval, and so far, the only plan the DNR is interested in is Son of Super Sewer.

The Canton board rightfully stopped and thought about what it was doing before blindly jumping into the DNR's pet sewer project and committing taxpayers' money to a project that has already cost millions of dollars without ground being broken yet.

The DNR, in this case, bears the burden of proof to show why communities should devote money to its project. With the sorry record the DNR has compiled on various Super Sewer projects, however, it will have to do better than impose sewer bans on communities that know a bad deal when they see one.

Canton's elected officials, for their part, could have solicited the assistance of other elected officials in Lansing and Washington earlier than they did. The Son of Super Sewer project is, after all, part of a political game, and you had better have the players to help you win.

Canton residents, for their part, would have been ill-served at best by the Canton board if it had committed money to this sewer project in its present form. Not only was the board right in voting not to join Son of Super Sewer, but individual board members should have expected a reasonable citizenry to call for recall of those officials who would commit taxpayer money to this bottomless pit called Son of Super Sewer.

Chalk one up for the Canton board, and let's hope the DNR will concentrate on the real sources of Rouge River pollution instead of trying to make its sewer project look good on paper.

Schools knuckled under to those of small minds

EDITOR:

To those who would listen to the word of Reason:

I must begin by giving you my state of mind: I am angry.

I am angry that a few individuals would dare to speak for my Christianity. I am angry that so many

EDITOR:

I am writing to you on the issue of Dianne Daskalakis censoring materials from school.

I am a junior at Canton High School and feel that she has no right to come in and say what should be banned from school. For one thing she does not have any children in the Plymouth-Canton Schools, therefore it's none of her business what other students are taught.

That is the students' and parents' problem, not hers. Yes, she pays taxes, and most of it goes to the school, but so do thousands and thousands of other people in the Plymouth-Canton district.

Just because certain things are taught at school does not mean that students are going to turn into bad people. We all have our own views on matters. We have our freedom of belief, religion, speech, etc., just like she does.

I respect her opinions and views on matters, but she has to realize that we students and everyone else have our own opinions on matters.

If we all believed one way and did everything the same way, things would be in shambles on this earth.

KATHY MURPHY

EDITOR:

Many people came to America for freedom of speech and religion. Dianne Daskalakis has been trying to take away both. We don't need someone to put us through life blindfolded.

My opinion is that school prepares you for "real life," and if you can't take a small test of the bad along with the good, then you are not ready for life at all.

MIKE HAMMERBERG

EDITOR:

I'm writing about the ban on the movie "The Breakfast Club" from the Plymouth-Canton School District. The way I see it, it's up to the parents decision if they want their kids to see the movie or not.

The parents who don't want their kids to see the movie, won't sign the permission slip. It's not like the teachers making you see it -- you have an option to sign the slip or not.

have missed the lessons of history, especially that of our nation. And I am angry that some leaders in our community would knuckle under to the demagoguery of the haters and the simple of thought.

Our country is founded on an essential principle which permits the minority, the non-conformist, the outsider to speak his or her mind so long as there is no intent to harm others. The latest haters, book-burners do-it-my-way-or-you're-going-to-hell spokesman (or women) use the system in more subtle ways using their definitions of goodness and truth, appealing to us as Christians to support their unpatriotic, un-American attempts to control our society, our schools, our minds.

I contend that we are not a Christian country — perhaps we use many principles in common with the Judeo-Christian ethic but we are not a proper sense tied to Christianity. Virtually all of the world's religious and indeed most humans, whether religious, or agnostic or atheist espouse the principles of good, decent behavior which we who are Christian recognize in our beliefs. But let us not be so guilty of pride that we think we are the only group of humans who accept these ideas as good. Goodness is not a function of religion. Religion helps us to focus on the ways to be good, but does not assure it.

A special quality of America is the principle that education is intended not to mold minds, but to allow them to expand. The role of schools is first and foremost to show our children how to think, how to seek ideas, how to decide how to discover the truth of themselves. Parents are the primary providers of a child's sense of ethics, of right and wrong. I doubt that, any movie, any book, any teacher can change the direction of any student whose parents have set reasonable standards. Only the weak-of-heart and soul fear an open society.

We are a nation and a community of Christians, of Jews, of Muslims, of Buddhists (I know of many Christian Buddhists) of Hindus, of Krishnas, of agnostics, of atheists, of witches I suppose, of those who don't care. We are also a nation of people who believe that the other guy is entitled to his beliefs and who believe that education is for learning about the world and its ideas, not a system for controlling minds (perhaps these latest Know Nothings have us confused with Iran or some totalitarian state).

The fact that some of our educational administrators have knuckled under to those of small mind does not bode well for our principles of education, or of our American society. Appearances or substance abuse, or "dirty" words, or fantasy tales will not corrupt us, only fear of living up to our principles will bring us down.

DOUG KOCH

EDITOR:

I cannot resist registering my dismay at the recent statement by Ken Voyles, "Diane Daskalakis has won again." How about "Reason and common sense have won again," or how about "For once in his tenure, Dr. Hoben has illustrated that he really cares about our kids and what is going on in the classroom." Let's not turn this into a battleground.

I have not seen the movie in question. But it sounds as if it may be rather gamey, to put it mildly. The classroom is possibly not the appropriate theater in which to see "The Breakfast Club."

Incidentally, Mr. Barlow and Mrs. Sorries, as English teachers, ought to understand the difference between freedom and license.

MARY ARCHBOLD

EDITOR:

I think the movie "The Breakfast Club" is fine for school, because in my fourth hour class we saw the movie "The Thing," and that movie was very sick and disgusting.

"The Breakfast Club" is not near as bad as "The Thing," so I think it should be allowed to be seen in the Plymouth-Canton School district.

BRYAN WOOD

EDITOR:

I was interested in the article "No Breakfast." Mrs. Daskalakis doesn't know what she is talking about. She doesn't even have a kid in the school.

If she would ask the students of the school, they would say that they really learned something from the movie. Isn't that why we go to school?

I like the idea that the students have to have a permission slip to see the movie.

This is a public school and not only one religion should be enforced.

DAVE VAN HOOSE

EDITOR:

I am writing to you concerning the censorship at C.E.P.

I think what Mr. Hoben is doing about the showing of "The Breakfast Club" in school is very unfair.

Most of the students have already seen the movie. Why not ask our parents if we can see the movie, instead of asking outsiders?

Maybe our parents think we're mature enough to see the movie.

RENEE MAGAR

EDITOR:

In response to Diane Daskalakis' wanting to ban the movie "The Sword and the Sorcerer" because it promotes devil worship — yes, seeing it made me want to go lick slime off something that looks like one of Stephen King's creations.

Sound like fun to you?

I've also seen "The Breakfast Club" and though I am a Christian also, I enjoyed the movie very much. Besides, if she wants to ban "The Breakfast Club" because of drugs and the language, she might as well ban kids from school, because twice as much goes on there, with not half the effort to clean it up.

Where are fans?

SPORTS GRIPES:

Where are all the fans?

The Rocks have one of the finest girls basketball teams in the metro area, if not the state, and yet they're lucky to get 20 fans out to a home games.

And hardly any CEP students.

Why is that?

Maybe I should retract what I said last week about student apathy -- the last place they seem to be on a Thursday night is at their team's basketball outing.

I saw more fans at the Salem swimming meet that same night. While the cagers whipped North Farmington, watched by more Farmington fans than Salem followers, over at the pool the Rocks girls swim team (not having their best season) raced in front of nearly 50 spectators.

And swimming isn't exactly what you'd call a major spectator sport.

What is it about girls basketball? Are the fans apathetic because Salem wins all the time and everyone expects them to keep on winning? Are they just bored by a winning program?

How can that be?

Most schools would die for a winning basketball program the caliber of Fred Thomann's at Salem; most schools would be behind their girls 100 per cent; most schools would be embarrassed to see their best team shunned as if some contagious disease filtered through the gym rafters.

It's an old story really -- lack of fan support that is. One I'm sick of writing about. I'd rather sit here and tell you about the amazing crowds that fill every seat in the gym; about how the fans get so loud the referees have to stop play; about how the home court advantage really means something.

Instead I have to prod and preach. Get out and support your teams. Someday you might not have a winning program and you'll look back on these times as "glory days."

The fans at Salem (and probably Canton; I haven't been to Phase III since my return) remind me of those fans who ignore the Red Wings until the team suddenly starts winning. Then everyone acts like they've been diehard fans all along.

Maybe at Salem the situation is reversed. The supporters are out in full force for losing programs but when a team starts winning the fans jump ship like drowning rats.

It's almost too strange to contemplate.

You have just entered a realm where winning is held against a team; where fans are so apathetic that they let the other school's supporters invade their gym; where playing your heart out is social suicide.

You've just crossed over into The Twilight Zone.

SPORTS GRIPES TWO:

All season long we get calls from parents, fans and even athletes questioning which side we are on, Salem's or Canton's.

As usual the boosters always think their school is being short changed or even ignored.

That's just not true.

Our policy is to cover both schools equally. We have no favorites. Of course from week to week the coverage varies. One week we might lead with a Canton story but the next week we'll follow with a Salem story as our lead.

The coverage also heavily depends on help from the CEP coaches. It's impossible to write about a team without the scores. And we don't resort to picking up the information from that other so-called local newspaper.

It's not our job to promote the CEP teams as if they were God's gift to interscholastic competition. We report the facts as accurately as possible and on a regular basis.

Lastly, it must be noted that just because a team's score isn't in the paper doesn't mean we aren't doing our job. There are times when we have too much copy to fit in a small sports section.

Something has to go. And unfortunately that may be your team's result.

Bus more students

EDITOR:

I am writing to you about the column Ken Voyles wrote called "Which students should P-C Schools bus?"

My opinion is that it is not safe for students to be walking to schools, especially in the morning. Drivers may not see the kids and hit them. There may be strange people on the paths that kids take to school.

Last year I was a freshman at Lowell

Middle School and I had to walk even though I lived over a mile away. I walked on the new sidewalk they put in. One day it was snowing very bad and the roads were very slippery. I got a ride from my neighbor. As we were driving to school, there was a van that slid off the road and onto the sidewalk where the kids walk. Fortunately nobody was hurt.

I feel as many kids as possible should be bused.

JAMIE ROYSTON

Readers write:

Voyles should be shot

EDITOR:

Dear Mr. Wendover,

You and Ken Voyles owe a sincere apology to the people of the Plymouth-Canton Community for the absolutely insulting article written by Voyles in the Oct. 29 issue.

His holier-than-thou attitude in defending the rights of kids to be exposed to still more pornography is sickening enough, but then he has the temerity to voice is crude anti-God views and probably believes it to be good journalism.

Voyles as the columnist and you as the editor have insulted our community, and maybe, as he suggests he'd "rather be shot" might be just the ticket. Care to stand with him?

WILLIAM A. LEONARD

Voyles should apologize

EDITOR:

I've been following the articles on the controversial issue of the banning of the movie "The Breakfast Club" with much interest since I have two students at the high school.

I found Ken Voyles' column on Oct. 29 very interesting and on target. Although, his comment, "...greater than any of the other creations of that bearded old fart some call God," very offensive to me as a Christian. I've always felt that everyone should be able to present their opinions, but making them against Our Lord is one step too far.

He should apologize!!

As I said -- the rest of the article was good. No learning tool that the teacher has asked my permission to use -- and it was granted -- should be censored by any group except parents for our child on an individualized basis.

The movie in question depicts the cliques and stereotypes of our teenagers and what not only peer pressure but parental pressure can do to a teenager.

I agree that the language is offensive -- but isn't this the same language they hear in the schools and in everyday living? If the student is taught correctly at home, then he/she won't be affected by this language -- then they can overlook the language in the movie and get the true messages of dealing with different people in our environment.

Now -- how about that apology Mr. Voyles?

SALLY PHETZER

Offhand comment wasn't meant to offend

Calling God an "old fart" does little to clarify the arguments for or against allowing R-rated movies in Plymouth-Canton schools. The remark wasn't meant to offend anyone, least of all faithful Christians. It was used to point out the fact that we all have a different perception of things -- even the nature of what is divine -- and that these ideas clash daily. Let's not get away from the point by tossing about insults. It's better to respect someone else's opinions (no matter how insulting) than force them to change opinions to fit a so-called majority viewpoint.

Rockwell Sculpture raised for park improvement

EDITOR:

The Play Sculpture Foundation Committee wishes to present the attached financial report to all the people in our communities who so generously gave their support to the Rockwell sculpture for the Plymouth Township Park.

The project surpassed all the goals we set! It is a pleasure to see the fun and enjoyment the sculptures are providing to the children and adults who use the park.

After watching the children's use patterns over the summer, it has been determined that some modifications in the land formations and landscaping will be needed in the sculpture area. Our additional monies will be used to further enrich the play area.

As a part of the project, a documentary booklet titled, "Rock Monsters at Play" has been created by students of Centennial Educational park. It will be available at the local libraries, Plymouth Community Arts Council, Chamber of Commerce, bookstores, Plymouth Township Hall and The Community Crier.

Again, our thanks to all who helped bring life to the Monsters in the park.

Why these 4 ideas are good for P-C Community

Henry James once wrote, "Ideas are, in truth, forces. Infinite, too, is the power of personality. A union of the two always makes history."

A collection of personalities in The Plymouth-Canton Community are generating a wealth of good ideas that will, in its own small-town way, make history right here at home.

One example of a spectacular success is The Great Pumpkin Caper, thrown by the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce every Halloween. What started out as simply a good idea has turned into one of the most talked about events in town. Nearly 3,000 ghosts and goblins, witches and wizards, rangers and Rambo's (we saw a few) turned out to trick-or-treat at Plymouth businesses on Devil's Night (in other towns, as the Chamber likes to point out). Pumpkins are carved for prizes, costumes are devised, pumpkin recipes are concocted -- all for a good time.

The merchants, the Chamber, the parents and the kids can all be proud of such a successful program that has made Halloween a fun, and safe, time for kids once again.

Another good idea -- having businesses plant trees along Ford Road in Canton. Canton Supervisor James Poole got this one going, and so far, he has received tree donations from between $25 and $1,500 for the beautification effort. These businesses -- Robert Olson Realty World; Nora, Hemming, Essad and Polaczyk, P.C. attorneys; Security Bank and Trust; BJ's Bowery; FDR Investments, Inc.; and most recently Jack Demmer Ford -- have all pitched in to make Canton's main road more attractive.

With more community-minded businesses like these, Canton's Ford Road could be lined with maples, and worth the drive alone.

Also, in Canton, is a bright idea that will preserve the memory of Canton's pioneers. The Canton Historical Society is sponsoring a book about Canton's families, which is being written by Diane Wilson. Thursday, the Society will have a sneak preview of the book to raise more money for the project. To make a tax-deductible donation to this worthwhile project, write a check to "Canton Historical Society - Book Fund" and give it to any one of the committee members: Tillie Schultz, Joan Palmer, Bill Tesen, Jerry Brown or Frank McMurray.

And last, comes this unique incentive from First of America Bank - Plymouth for employees to donate money to the Plymouth Community Fund - United Way. The bank's employees were eligible for different levels of prizes depending on how much they donated to the Community Fund. The grand prize winner -- Antonette Talbot -- was in the $75 or more donation category, and she ended up winning an extra week's vacation in 1987. In all, eight First of America Bank - Plymouth employees won prizes, including extra personal days with pay, and gift certificates.

This is one good idea that can inspire other community businesses to get their employees to donate to the Fund in the spirit of friendly competition.

Good ideas, folks!

Old Village will miss Bill's Market's Milt

EDITOR:

With great sadness, I'd like to note the passing of Milton Orr who owned Bill's Market in Old Village for 28 years (until he sold it to me in 1981).

He started at the store when he was 14. His job in the old days included bottling bathtub gin in the back cooler and the police even knew about it.

Milton bought the market in 1953. He was known as a generous man to the families in what was then called Lower Town and later became Old Village.

Milton gave a lot of Old Village people credit at the store and kept food on their tables. If they wouldn't take money when they needed it, he found some way to give it to them.

All the Old Village people will miss Milton.

Helping others is a real treat for Trahey

BY KEN VOYLES

Helping others is a family trademark of the Traheys.

And the second youngest of the eight Trahey children -- Tim -- is following a path already marked by his five sisters and two brothers.

The 1980 Canton graduate is a volunteer at the Focus Hope Food Center in Detroit where he works as a part of his training to become an elementary school teacher.

Trahey is nearing completion on a bachelor's degree in child development and elementary education at Madonna College in Livonia. As a part of his degree requirements he began work at Focus Hope in September.

Next fall the 24-year-old begins student teaching.

Trahey volunteers his services one day each week at the Food Center, taking care of the children (ages three to 12) of the underprivileged shoppers who visit the center to buy discount food.

"We entertain them, read to them, tell them stories and try to work with them on a one-to-one basis," Trahey said. "I learn from them as well.

"When the kids leave they skip away as only a kid can skip away," said the Plymouth Township resident. "To see that really makes me happy."

Trahey transferred to Madonna in 1982 after attending Henry Ford Community College. He calls the private institution a "fantastic school."

"The people are real special," he said. "The teachers are all good. They use their knowledge and background and pass it on to us."

The youngest Trahey, Tim's 21-year-old sister Lisa, is studying to be a veterinarian at Wayne State. Two other sisters are nurses and one brother is studying to be a fireman. A third sister has made a successful career in real estate after leaving the nursing profession.

The oldest Trahey, Bob, owns a pet store in Dearborn but lives in Plymouth.

And Tim's mom, Terese, is an English instructor at Washtenaw Community College. The father of the brood, Robert Trahey, is an executive with Kelly Services in Troy.

"It was always busy around home growing up," Tim Trahey said. "There was a lot of coming and going.

"We always helped each other," he continued. "Maybe we went out into the world with that desire. Helping runs in our family."

Trahey will work at the Food Center through December as he is required, but then plans to return in January to help out on his own.

"The positive feeling you get from the kids is one big incentive," said Trahey, who has also worked as a teacher's aid in the Detroit and Farmington School Districts.

The Trahey family is originally from Dearborn and keeps close ties to the community. They made Plymouth a second home in 1977.

Like most of his siblings Tim Trahey attended Divine Child before going to school at Canton as a sophomore. He has also worked as a volunteer for the elderly in the Dearborn community.

"Plymouth is a real nice community," he said. "It's old-fashioned, but full of surprises.

"I would consider living here."

Trahey remembers his first visit to the city, back in 1976 when the family attended a showing of "Gone With the Wind" at the Penn Theatre.

"I remember walking out and seeing the park," he said. "I thought, wow, what a community."

The personable young man, with a dynamite smile, carries a full load of five courses at Madonna and is also very active at his church.

"I'm pretty much on my own at Focus Hope," he said. "They don't tell you anything. They let you teach the kids how you want to teach them."

He called it like being thrown to the "wolves."

"But they really aren't wolves to me just kids," Trahey explains. "I want to teach them so they can have everything they deserve. That's the way it should be."

Dr. Diana DelCampo, a professor at Madonna said, "Focus Hope is the culmination of all of the theory that Tim has learned in the classroom -- understanding children and meeting their individual educational needs."

And helping those who need it.

Academically gifted program recognized

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' Academically Gifted program, under the direction of Cheryl K. Johnson, was recently recognized by the Michigan Association for Academically Talented with an award for its project "Intergrating the Arts: A Celebration of Gifted Child Week."

The winning program focused on written, visual and performing arts interwoven through the curriculum to enhance content learning in Math, English, Social Studies and Science.

Students were encouraged to create art in response to the concepts and ideas they were learning.

The culmination of the year-long project was a cooperative effort by the Department of Gifted and Talented and the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

Also an anthology of student writing -- Concepts -- was published and other works were displayed or performed in downtown Plymouth during Gifted Child Week last May.

The Plymouth Gifted program has also been recognized by the National Association for Gifted Children for its excellence.

Contact Johnson for more details about the local program. She is available at 451-6581.

WINNER OF THE WEEK

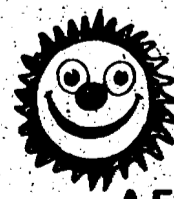

(Winner of the Week is selected by The Crier Editorial Staff without knowledge of the sponsor. Nominations for this honor may be submitted to The Crier Editorial Staff.)

Too many times people forget to do for themselves when things don't go the right way. There is a tendency to wait around and let someone, or something to do the job for them.

There is an eighth-grader in The Plymouth-Canton Community however, who should be congratulated for taking on a problem and solving it on her own.

Michelle Bartar, an eighth-grade student at Central Middle School, thought there wasn't anything much for kids her age to do on some nights. But instead of complaining about the problem, she went out and organized a dance for herself and her friends.

Michelle is our Winner of the Week for having the courage and dedication to change a problem and become part of the solution.

tell it to Phyllis

I've never pretended to be the perfect parent and both of my kids seem to have inherited my inabilities when it comes to perfection.

As a parent, I'm not always sure how to handle a situation and there are times when I have doubts about allowing the kids to do something.

Since I don't believe there is such thing as a perfect parent or perfect child, I'll take the close relationship I have with my kids. They usually know when I'm uncertain about a situation because we talk about it. I value their opinions, realizing they are both teenagers with a youthful approach to things.

Our ability to communicate has led to many conversations regarding the movie "The Breakfast Club." We started talking about the film last spring when my son watched it in a class at the high school. He thought it was a great film and his sister, who had also seen it, agreed.

When they noticed that the movie was going to be on TV, they insisted that I watch it with them. I'll admit it didn't rate high marks in the entertainment field compared with my favorites "Gone With The Wind" and "The Sound of Music." However, it certainly was interesting and thought provoking.

Everyone had to see a little bit of themselves or someone they know in that movie (probably both). My kid's high school class wrote papers about the different stereotypes and the fact that once we put people in a group, we tend to think of them in a certain way.

We discussed how the movie pointed out different views on things, views we had never thought about. Just because someone is different doesn't mean they are always right or always wrong. A jock, a squid, a nerd, a burnout, and a preppy may all look and dress different, but are they really that different?

I was surprised when my kids said that practically every student in high school, has seen, smelled or can figure out where to buy marijuana. Sure it's scary when you start to wonder if your kids know more about what's happening in the world than you do.

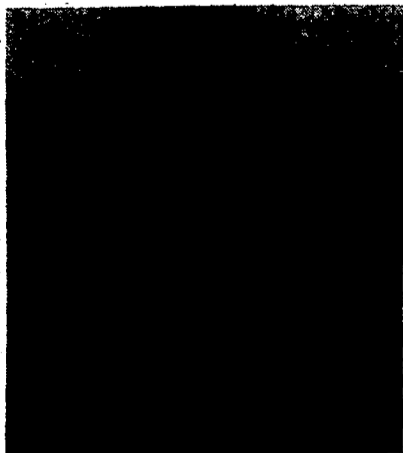

As the kid said, "It's a fact of life, you know who smokes dope and you hear many four-letter words, you simply have to make a choice and it's up to you to make that choice."

Since the film ban a couple of weeks ago, our discussions have continued. One of the points the kids feel strongly about is the reality of the film. Drugs are a reality, even if there's only a small percentage of the students using them. There are different cliques with different views, but maybe we could learn something from the films on how to cope with each other. People in all groups have problems and it is important to be able to express them.

Another point of importance on our list is that parents should see the movie. Not only would it help them to understand their child, but as one kid suggested, there are different cliques in the adult world too.

Although neither of my kids did any of the actual writing in this column, many of the ideas and thoughts are theirs.

BRAZIL

Okay, so you need a vacation. You want to go to a new place, but not off in some remote corner of the globe. You'd prefer a country of lively happenings, beautiful scenery, and different kinds of action ranging from leisurely through fast to breathtaking. There is a place like that to the south ... vibrant, jumping, exhilarating, and exciting. Brazil!

The word for Brazil is BIG ... a glance at a map clearly shows the size of the country. The area is slightly larger than continental U.S., and the population -- 105,000,000 -- is the seventh largest in the world. But one of the most amazing things about Brazil is the startling contrasts.

The mind-boggling fact is that while people are swimming in the pool of an ultra-modern hotel in Rio, primitive Indians are hunting with blowguns and darts in the tropical Amazon jungles to the northwest! That's Brazil ... a country often described as an emerging modern day phenomenon! Plan a visit there soon.

Chiming in memory

BY T.M. SMITH

Visitors to downtown Plymouth no longer have an excuse for being late. Today a 20-foot memorial clock proudly sits at the foot of Kellogg Park, towering over downtown Plymouth and Main Street's traffic.

And while the clock has only been marking Plymouth time for a week, it is already rich in history.

The Harold Geunther family, long-time residents of Plymouth, donated the clock as a memorial for their son Peter Guenther who died last year.

After weeks of waiting, the clock arrived from Russelville, AK last Tuesday night, and by Wednesday at dusk was standing in full glory from its pedestal on Main Street. The maker of the clock, Donald Wynn, drove the large clock to Plymouth to assist and oversee its installation.

He said it was his company's first attempt at a four-faced Victorian clock, and he was "very pleased with the way it turned out."

He said it took one man about six weeks to build the clock in the Herbig Lighting plant in Arkansas.

Harold Guenther, was also on hand all day Wednesday to watch the clock go together piece-by-piece. He said it was exciting to watch what he had waited for anxiously for so long.

Guenther said there would be a dedication ceremony in the near future, when a memorial plaque would be attached to the base of the clock. He said the plaque would read:

This clock donated to the City of Plymouth by Peter Guenther and his friends -- 1986

Guenther said he also plans to install chimes to the clock in the future which would chime on the hour, and will be heard throughout town.

The new clock assembled in Kellogg Park last Wednesday was the culmination of many hours of planning, working and hoping for people from Arkansas to Michigan. (Above) Donald Wynn, owner of Herbig Lighting directs the four-faced head of the clock, while (right l-r) men from Plymouth's DPW and Wynn guide the base on to the pedestal, Wynn and Harold Guenther watch the progress and the clock is unloaded from the van Wynn transported the clock in.

Poole: Canton is scapegoat

not issue an injunction against the sewer ban, because, technically, there was no sewer ban in place, Poole said.

The DNR also granted a temporary permit for Canton allowing pumping of storm drain water in emergency cases to prevent basement flooding in times of heavy rains, Poole said. The temporary permit will last until Nov. 20, he said.

The pumping of the sewers in heavy rains was one reason listed for the sewer ban by the DNR. To prevent flooding of basements, five pumps in Canton are activated during periods of heavy rainfall. The rainfall gets into the sanitary sewer system, rather than be contained in the storm sewer system, backing up the whole system and flooding basements unless the excess is pumped out. The pumped out sewage would then eventually drain into the Rouge River, according to the DNR.

But, last week, Poole charged that the DNR was using the pumping issue as a smokescreen for its real reason for issuing a sewer ban, saying that the pumped overflow was "90 per cent" rainwater and "10 per cent" sewage. Poole said he thought the DNR's motives for imposing the ban was to force Canton into the Son of Super Sewer project. "I think we're being used as a scapegoat, an example," Poole said last week, while the sewer ban was on. "I think it's totally unfounded, it's unjust."

The Canton Board of Trustees voted Sept. 9 to not join the Son of Super Sewer project, including among several reasons for not joining: an unfair proportion of the cost of the project, a lack of confidence in the project as a whole, and a lack of a system for redress of grievances if there were problems with the system in the future.

Poole said the township had several options at this point:

- 1) Join the Son of Super Sewer project;
- 2) Build its own sewer treatment plant;
- 3) Not allow any economic development to occur, so the present sewer system would not have to be expanded;
- 4) Join the Ypsilanti Utility Community Authority sewer project;
- 5) Build a storage tank, which would allow for a slow discharge of overflow into the sewer system;
- 6) The DNR and Wayne County could approve the extension of a sewer line either running down Haggerty Road or Morton-Taylor Road, which Poole has already requested. Poole said he has not received a reply from either agency regarding that proposal.

Poole said he was not overly optimistic about the DNR approving any of Canton's proposals for a sewer system with increased capacity. "If I solve my problems, they (DNR) wouldn't have a hammer to pound my thumb with," he said.

Events leading to the ban

The North Huron Valley Area/Rouge Valley Project, or Son of Super Sewer, was born (on paper, at least) in late 1984, the result of combining two previous plans for a comprehensive sewer system for suburban Detroit.

Planning for a "Super Sewer" has been going on for approximately 20 years.

The following chronology lists selected events that led up to the Oct. 23 sewer ban on Canton by the DNR.

August, 1982 - The DNR warns communities to stay in the Huron Valley sewer project, its first sewer proposal, or risk having a sewer ban placed on them.

April, 1983 - The Canton Board of Trustees passes resolution of intent to participate in the Super Sewer project.

May, 1983 - The DNR notifies Canton, and other communities, that it wants signed contracts to join the sewer project, not just resolutions of intent to join. The DNR also wants a commitment from participating communities to complete the project if federal funding is cut off at a future date.

June 8, 1983 - The DNR sets June 24 as the new deadline for communities to sign binding contracts.

June 21, 1983 - Canton Board of Trustees approves revised contract for Super Sewer participation. Canton passes on contract to Wayne County, which acts as the agent for all communities in dealing with the DNR on Super Sewer.

July 1, 1983 - DNR rejects application from the county because of claims by Detroit of jurisdiction over the Rouge Valley project communities. Canton is effectively kicked out of the Super Sewer project.

July, 1983 - Canton officials and the engineers representing the township -- Wade-Trim and Associates -- meet with representatives of the Wayne County Rate Review Committee, the Wayne County Department of Public Works, and the DNR several times in July to discuss funding for a sewer proposal that would meet the specifications of the DNR and Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and qualify for federal funding.

July, 1984 - The Canton board is given a presentation on the status of the second Super Sewer proposal.

August, 1984 - The Canton board signs a construction and service agreement for the North Huron Valley Area/Rouge Valley system.

September, 1984 - The DNR approves the sewer project application and contracts.

October, 1984 - The EPA rejects the application because of insufficient data. Federal funding for the project is reduced from 75 per cent of the total cost to 55 per cent of the cost, leaving local communities to pick up the difference.

November, 1984 - Planning begins for a third project -- Super Sewer III (Son of Super Sewer).

February, 1985 - Dick Hinshon, a former DNR official who now works under private contract to Wayne County on the Super Sewer project, holds a meeting to discuss what work he will be doing for Wayne County.

Sept. 9, 1986 - The Canton Board of Trustees votes to not participate in the Son of Super Sewer, citing an unfair burden of the project's cost and a lack of confidence in the project as main reasons.

September, 1986 - The DNR warns that Canton may be hit with a sewer ban (the DNR refusing to process permits to construct sewer work, thereby stopping nearly all development) unless it comes up with a sewer plan or joins the Son of Super Sewer project. It sets a Nov. 1 deadline.

Oct. 23, 1986 - Gordon Guyer, director of the DNR, issues a "Notice of Intent to Deny Sewer Construction Permits" to Canton Supervisor James Poole. He gives Canton until Nov. 30 to submit a municipal compliance plan for a sewer project.

Oct. 27, 1986 - Northville, Plymouth and Canton townships issue a joint nine-point proposal stating what would have to be done in order for those communities to join the Son of Super Sewer project.

Oct. 28, 1986 - David Vago, deputy director of the Wayne County DPW, issues a reply to the nine-point proposal. He concludes: "I believe your major concerns either have been resolved or are capable of resolution in a timely fashion," and asks the supervisors of each community to bring the matter to their respective boards to vote to join the project.

Oct. 31, 1986 - Canton files a lawsuit charging the DNR with selective enforcement, and asks for an administrative hearing from the DNR on the sewer ban. Poole holds separate meetings with area developers and Canton homeowners to explain the sewer ban and answer questions.

Oct. 31, 1986 In Wayne County Circuit Court, the attorney general's office testifies that the DNR's sewer is void. The DNR grants a temporary emergency pumping permit to Canton which will expire Nov. 20.

'We'd join Super Sewer if . . .'

BY DANNESS

Only Canton has voted to not join the North Huron Valley Area/Rouge Valley project -- Son of Super Sewer -- while 15 other municipalities have either voted to join or have not voted on the matter yet. Plymouth and Northville townships have not voted on the matter so far.

As a result of an Oct. 27 meeting between the Canton Board of Trustees, the supervisors of Northville and Plymouth townships, Gordon Guyer - director of the state DNR, and other DNR officials and Wayne County officials, the supervisors of Canton, Plymouth and Northville townships issued a nine-point joint proposal to the DNR, stating what would have to be done in order for them to join.

Briefly, the proposal states:

- 1) That the cost allocations of the project are inequitable. The townships state that the allocations should be based according to the additional cubic feet per second (CFS) of sewage flow generated for each community. The DNR was originally asking Canton to pay for $17 million of the project, which the Canton board objected to. Now, the DNR has lowered Canton's cost to about $14.5 million.

- 2) That there is "considerable uncertainty" as to whether Phase II and III of the project will receive federal funding. The three townships recommend that the project must be either funded entirely in one phase or the state should guarantee a level of support equal to the federal funding.

- 3) All costs for future combined sewer overflows (CSO) corrections, or other capital improvements projects, should be borne by municipalities other than these townships, the proposal states.

- 4) The proposed contract fails to provide for any meaningful method of resolving any disputes between the county and the Rate Review Committee concerning assessed rates, the townships state. The townships propose submitting rate disputes to the American Arbitration Association.

- 5) The contract fails to clearly specify the options available to the townships in the event it reaches its maximum amount of allocated discharge before the expiration of the 40-year term of the contract. Once any township reaches its capacity, it should be allowed to use independent systems, the townships proposed.

- 6) The DNR should provide written assurance that if the townships participate in the project, they will not be subjected to any DNR enforcement action unless the township exceeds its contractual limit.

- 7) Supplemental funding should be provided by the state or the Michigan Municipal Bond Authority in a sufficient amount to replace the loss of 20 per cent federal funding.

- 8) The Evergreen-Farmington segment of the project should be severed from the North Huron Valley Project, the townships state. According to the supervisors, Wayne County communities would be paying for two-thirds of this Oakland County sewer connection.

- 9) Before the townships are required to approve the project, written verification of the DNR's approval of the project and the terms of the Detroit/Wayne County Service Agreement must be agreed to by the townships.

In a reply the next day, David Vago, deputy director of the Wayne County Department of Public Works, responded to the specific points, some of which follow:

- 1) That the county considers the cost

Teachers file grievance

Members of the grievance committee of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association (PCEA), the teachers union for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, met with district Superintendent John M. Hoben last Thursday to discuss a grievance filed by the association over the banning of the film "The Breakfast Club."

According to Hoben, the administration has 10 days to reply to the grievance, which centers on article 15 of the teacher's contract, the academic freedom clause.

Marguerite Vollrath, chairman of the PCEA committee, said she preferred not to comment on the hearing at this time.

The article in question states that teachers are entitled to due process under the law whenever they face charges made by a group or individual against their freedom to teach.

CEP Band to Nat'ls.

It's on to the Grand Nationals. The Plymouth Centennial Education Park (CEP) Marching Band, under the direction of James R. Griffith, was runner-up band at the Western Michigan University Invitational Cavalcade of Bands on Saturday.

The 12-band invitational included two of the finest bands in the midwest - former Grand National Champion Trojan Guard from Chesterton, Ind., and one of last year's Grand National finalists, Lake Park Lancer Band from Roselle, Ill.

Lake Park Band won the cavalcade competition in Kalamazoo on Saturday.

The CEP Band took top honors for its Drum Line, scoring a record breaking 9.7 points out of a possible 10 points. The drum solo, Paradox, written by drum line instructors, Chris Johnson and Jerry Hotchkin, has received high praise from judges throughout the season.

The CEP band will next represent Michigan when it travels to Indianapolis, Ind., this Friday and Saturday for the Marching Bands of America Grand Nationals.

Fifty bands will perform in preliminary competition beginning at 1:30 p.m. on Friday and again at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday. The CEP band is slated to perform at 1:15 p.m. on Saturday.

CEP computer teams take first and second

One, two.

That's how Centennial Education Park (CEP) computer teams finished at the Computer Conference for Youth last weekend.

Salem's computer programming teams swept all three divisions at the competition winning the Logo, Pascal and Basic events. That gave them first place overall with 45 points, besting 20 other teams from across Wayne County.

The Salem programmers won trophies and t-shirts for their efforts.

"Plymouth's whole computer program showed up in that contest," said Tom Cotner, leader of the Salem contingent. "We beat everybody. It was real nice for the kids."

"I was shocked by our first," he added. "I figured we could win one of the events but not all three. The kids did just great."

Canton earned second places in both the Logo and Pascal events and finished third in the Basic competition. That was good enough for second place overall with 41 points.

The Salem team members included Marck Schang, Blaine Groves, Eric Krueger, Mark Peterson, Dan Mainz, Aaron Gleason, Andy Sharma, Jim Lamb and Matt Braun.

allocation between communities fair, and that to lower the cost to any one community, the cost of the total project would have to be lowered.

2) The county's position on federal funding was a "best guess" that there would be federal funding for the second and third phases of the sewer project.

4) The county, Vago wrote, considers that there are already adequate safeguards regarding the rate-making process.

8) The county's position on the Evergreen-Farmington segment of the sewer was that Wayne County communities would pay for two-thirds of the cost because two-thirds of the sewage flow in this proposed segment would be the result of alleviating sewage flow in Wayne County.

Concessions were made on a few points, Vago wrote, and he urged the communities to vote to join the Son of Super Sewer project.

Rocks take Halloween 'bowl'

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Friday night Salem met Canton in the biggest football rivalry west of I-275.

It was Halloween night and the Rocks came prepared with a few tricks for the Chiefs, resulting in a nice treat for Salem fans as their team won it 14-9.

It was the final game of the 1986 season for both squads.

The Rocks surprised everyone in the stands -- the squad warmed up in their white visiting jerseys, but came out at game time in their blue home jerseys.

The Chiefs played the contest in their red home jerseys.

The Rocks also surprised the Chiefs with a hurry up offense, or as it's more commonly known the two-minute offense.

"That surprised us a little bit," said Chiefs head coach Bob Khoenle. "But they failed to move the ball on us. Our kids were ready for the Rocks."

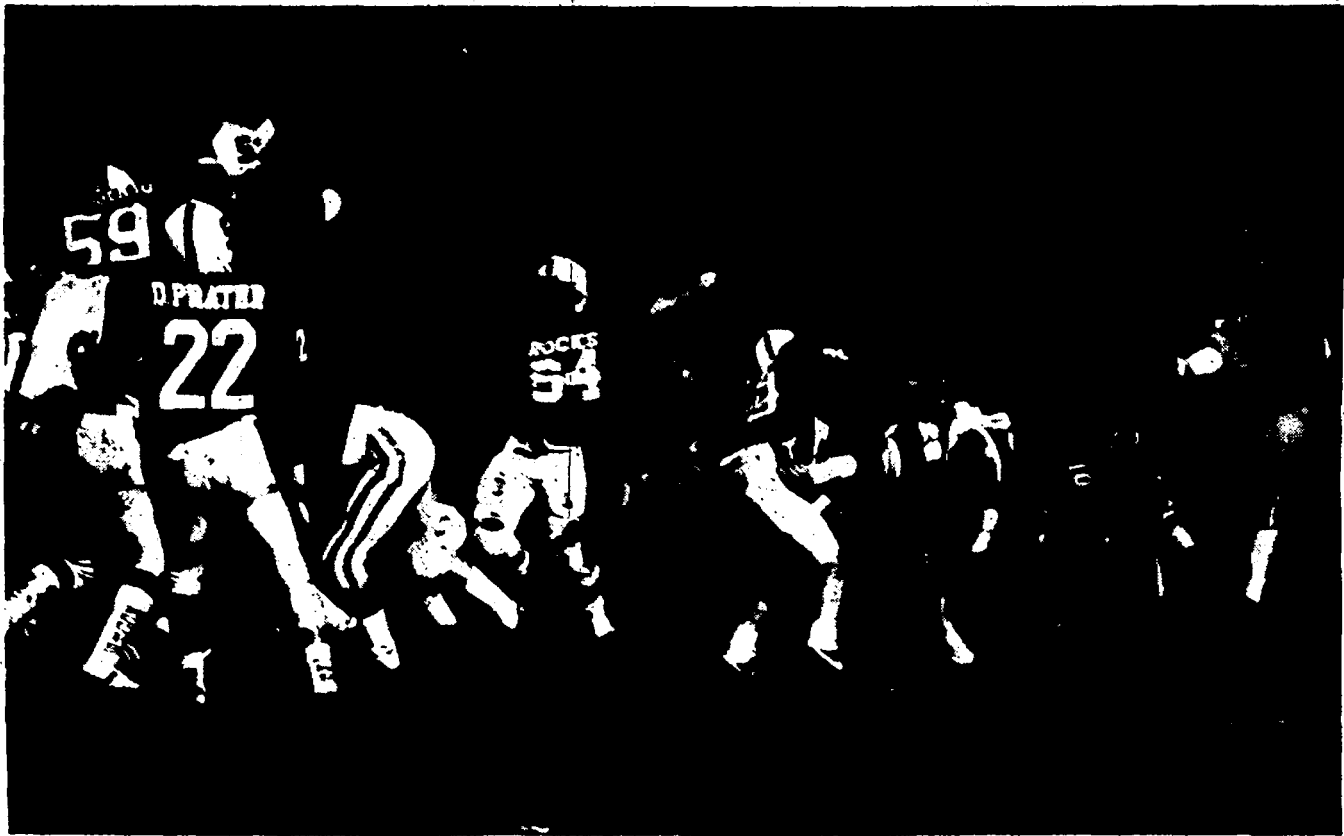

Neither team could move the ball early in the first quarter, as both teams displayed strong defenses.

Then late in the first quarter the Chiefs defensive line broke through and blocked a Rocks punt. That gave the Chiefs the pigskin on the Rocks own 15-yard line.

But Canton failed to push the ball into the endzone against Salem's defense, and had to settle for a field goal with only 43 seconds remaining in the quarter.

Then it was Salem's turn to block a punt, as Canton's frontline collapsed against a ten-man rush. That gave the Rocks the ball on the five-yard line.

After an illegal motion penalty against the Rocks, which pushed them back to the ten-yard line, they began to knock the Chiefs back.

Salem fullback Jerry Sumner eventually skirted off-tackle and powered into the endzone for the first touchdown of the game. The Rocks extra point kick was blocked but they led 6-3 going into the lockerroom at halftime.

"We came out fired up in the first half," said Khoenle, "but we just could not keep it going in the second half."

The Rocks started to get their offense going in the second half. On the first play of the half fullback Leonard Bowe broke open on a 64-yard romp and raced into the touchdown.

Bowe also slammed in the endzone on a two-point conversion try. That put the Rocks on top 14-3 and deflated the fired up Chiefs.

The game then went back and forth as neither team could put together any offense.

The Chiefs finally pulled a little trick of their own in the fourth quarter, as Tony Boucher threw a halfback pass to flanker John Migyanka for their lone touchdown of the game.

But it turned up a little too late for the Chiefs, and later the Rocks defense snuffed out a last chance effort by their rival to tie the score.

"It was a tough loss for us, but the kids played well, and I think we have things rolling here. Football is back at Canton," said Khoenle.

"We played a great game. Our defense played well against the Chiefs," said Salem head coach Tom Moshimer. "We shut down Roger Trice and Joel Goebel."

"Our defense was tough. But not to take anything away from Canton's defense, they were hitting us hard," said Salem senior co-captain Joe Jouppi.

The loss dropped the Chiefs to 3-6 on the year, while the win moved the Rocks up to 3-6.

The fans were treated to a fine game, as the action reflected, and there should be more tight games between the two rivals as it appears both squads will be a force to reckon with in the next few years.

Salem grad a hit at Dartmouth

Craig Morton, a 1985 Salem graduate, has been piling up honors in his first varsity season with the Ivy League football team at Dartmouth College.

The 170-pound sophomore was selected as Dartmouth's Offensive Receiver-of-the-week recently. He was also named Ivy League rookie-of-the-week earlier in the season.

The wide receiver had nine catches for 191 yards in the Big Green's loss to Navy recently. The speedster has 18 receptions for 431 yards and two touchdowns so far this season.

One of his catches was good for 75 yards and a touchdown against New Hampshire early in the season. In the fall opener against Pennsylvania, Morton snared three passes for 79 yards including a 10-yard touchdown reception.

A member of the 1985 Pea Green freshman football team, Morton was a leading scorer, punt returner and receiver. He averaged 34.2 yards per catch.

Morton is a biology major who plans to go into medicine. He is the son of Louis and Janet Morton of Plymouth.

"The coaches just talk about him all the time," said Janet Morton. "They say they haven't seen anything like him."

The 19-year-old was named the Ivy's rookie-of-the-week following his efforts against Pennsylvania. During that outing he scored once and made a spectacular 50-yard diving catch from teammate and quarterback David Gabianelli.

Swiecki 49th at states

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

It was a successful running season for the Canton boys cross country season. It was also a successful season for Chief runner Jay Swiecki.

Last Saturday Swiecki ran at the Class A state championship competition. It was his second trip to the state finals.

He placed 49th out of approximately 80 runners in the Class A race. He recorded his best time this year with an effort of 16:46.

Swiecki had a shaky start this year due to two hamstring injuries, but came back to be voted most valuable runner by his teammates. Along with Al Byrnes, Swiecki was voted co-captains for next year's cross country team.

Swiecki hopes to run in college after high school, and is possibly looking at attending the University of California at Los Angeles.

The state qualifier said he finds cross country enjoyable.

"I like the excitement of competing against others and always giving 100 per cent," the junior said.

Since he is a junior this year, Swiecki still has another chance to make states next year with the Chiefs.

His coach, Jim Hayes, hopes he makes the best of it.

"Hopefully Jay will come back and have another successful season," Hayes said.

Salem cagers beat Raiders by 40 points

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Salem's cagers once again dominated their foe in every way, shape and form last week. The latest victim was North Farmington which fell by 40 points to the Rocks, 62-22.

"The girls played a fine game," said Salem head coach Fred Thomann. "They're really starting to look good, but we're still not perfect."

Well, near perfect junior forward Dena Head scored 26 points and ripped down 12 rebounds for the Rocks, while senior co-captain Jessica Handley pumped in another 12 points.

The state's number one girls basketball team, according to the Michigan High School Girls Basketball Coaches Association, dominated the entire contest, both defenseivley and on the offense.

"They just couldn't control us," Thomann said. "The girls are working very hard and it will pay off for them if they continue to do so."

Salem is currently 14-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and 16-1 overall. The squad clinched the Lakes division title last week.

The Rocks have controlled almost every team on their schedule, and, like fine wine, seem to get better and better with age.

The scary thing about the Salem cagers is that most of them will be back for another season under Thomann.

And the main weapon for the Rocks, and probably the best high school girls basketball player in the state, will be around for one more season.

That's junior sensation Dena Head. Head is always at the top of her game -- she appears to always be alert, and watchful, even when the Rocks are destroying their opponent.

But it's too early to talk about next season, or this year's districts for that matter. "We're taking it one game at a time," said Thomann.

The Rocks have one regular season game remaining with Westland John Glenn (at John Glenn) and then the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs.

Those playoffs will be held on the Rocks home court starting on Thursday, Nov. 13. Salem will face rival Canton for the WLAA title.

The state Class A finals are a little less than one month away.

Rock tankers win

BY MARTY TUNGATE

The Rocks girls tankers won a close swim match last Thursday against a strong Farmington team, 96-76.

The Falcons captured most of the events, but the Rocks were consistent in all of the events and scored a lot of seconds and thirds to take the victory.

"We may not have won all the events, but the girls hung in there and finished second, third, and fourth consistently," said head coach Chuck Olson. Salem is currently 5-5 in dual meets this fall.

Tracy Meszaros captured two of the Rock's three first place finishes. She won the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 2:08.6, and she also won the 100-yard freestyle with a time 59.6.

Shannon Murphy was the only other Rock to win an event. Murphy won the 200-yard individual medley, with a time of 2:28.6.

Girls sports participation above average in P-C

BY KEN VOYLES

The Plymouth-Canton Community was one of only 15 Wayne County communities which bettered the statewide average for girls participation in interscholastic sports, according to a recently released study.

The district received the third highest ranking overall in a survey put out by the Wayne County Project on Equal Education Rights (PEER). The rankings were based on the percentage of girls participating at the junior varsity and varsity level.

Hamtramck earned the only "excellent" ranking, followed by south Redford and then Plymouth-Canton. Taylor had the smallest girls participation, only 22.5 per cent.

Information in the survey was garnered from 29 districts using 1984-85 data.

Overall, girls make up 41.3 per cent of the participants in athletic programs in Wayne County, compared with the statewide average of 37 per cent.

In Plymouth-Canton, participation by girls reached 41.8 per cent. The number of girls in the varsity program totalled 494, with another 106 in the junior varsity program. There were 644 boys in varsity programs and another 190 in JV programs.

Only seven other communities bettered the 40 per cent mark in girls participation.

"The purpose of this study was to see if girls athletics have become more equitable since Title IX (the federal equal education act of 1972)," said Deborah Helton, one of the committee members involved in the research.

The PEER task force included local chapters of NOW (the National Organization of Women), the Women's Conference of Concerns and the American Association of University Women.

"This is the first survey of its kind in Wayne County," Helton added. "They have conducted a similar survey in Oakland County."

"There's been a lot of progress in Wayne," Helton continued. "But we still have a ways to go."

Lower participation by girls may be attributed to fewer and smaller girls JV programs, according to the report, and to fewer girls sports in the winter.

One of the areas of concern, as expressed in the report, is the lack of women coaches even for girls teams. Back in 1976, 76 per cent of the coaches of girls teams were women. In 1985-86 only 31 per cent were women.

Of 949 total coaches (varsity and JV) only 17 per cent were women.

Another area where progress still needs to be made, according to the report, is in the girls sports budget. Currently only 36.7 per cent of the total varsity and JV budgets for all communities is devoted to girls programs.

Football alone consumes 35 per cent of the boys sports budget and 22 per cent of the entire sports budget. Football players make up only 19.4 per cent of the boys sports participants.

The average difference between girls and boys budgets is $35,170 and in some districts expenditures for boys are nearly three times that for girls.

Another "inequity" for girls sports is the current Michigan High School Athletic Association scheduling practice which often slates girls programs for non-traditional seasons.

Paul Cummings, athletic director for both Salem and Canton, said he hasn't seen the report yet. He did contend that girls participation continues to increase at Centennial Education Park.

"I think we're up this year," he said. "Not just in the old stand-by sports (like girls basketball) but in other sports." He mentioned girls soccer, cross country track, tennis and swimming.

"Our girls athletics have been strong ever since we started," he continued. "Especially if you measure by winning and losing."

Cummings noted that nearly 1,300 students were involved in athletics during the year 1985-86. "I've got to believe nearly half were girls," he said. preliminaries are slated to be held on Nov. 19 with the finals Nov. 20-21.

The preliminaries will be raced at the Rocks pool.

Chief cagers win fifth; annihilate Harrison

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

Blowout would be the best word one could find to describe the girls basketball game between Canton and Farmington Harrison last Thursday.

The Chiefs annihilated the Hawks by the score of 81-11. Earlier this fall Canton held Harrison to just two points.

The squad has now won its last five games and clinched the Western division title in the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) with the win over Harrison.

Heather Miller led the Chiefs in the scoring department with 19 points. Karen Boluch contributed 12 points and Terry Barger added 11 points for the Chiefs.

Canton's record now stands at 11-6 overall with two regular season games to go. The Chiefs are 9-4 in league play.

Canton will have a chance to avenge a loss to rival Salem (43-35) earlier in the season; the two teams clash on Friday, Nov. 14 for the WLAA league title.

Salem won its Lakes division.

What does Canton need to do to be successful through the remainder of its season?

"To continue playing with consistency," said Canton coach Rob Neu. "We've been working hard and playing smart. We want to maintain our intensity that has carried us through our last five games."

Canton swim team rebounds from first loss

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

Domination is the best word to describe Canton's girls swim victory over Livonia Franklin last week. The Chiefs won it by a score of 111-61.

The Chiefs swim team was on the warpath after a tough defeat to Churchill two weeks ago. The tankers are currently 7-1 in dual meet races.

"We swam really well. We came back from a hard loss against Churchill," said Canton coach Hooker Wellman.

The Chiefs took first place in every event of the meet, holding the Patriots to seven second places and five third places.

Michelle Stackpoole, Julie Cox, Amy Schmitz, and Kristi Bruger swam to a first place finish in the 200-yard medley relay.

Kelly Rische finished in first place in both the 200-yard freestyle and the 100-yard butterfly events.

Rische also combined with Cox, Danielle Dickenson, and Cassie Cummins to take first in the 400-yard freestyle relay. The quartet set a new varsity record with the first place effort. Their time was 3:56.5, breaking the 1984 mark of 3:57.

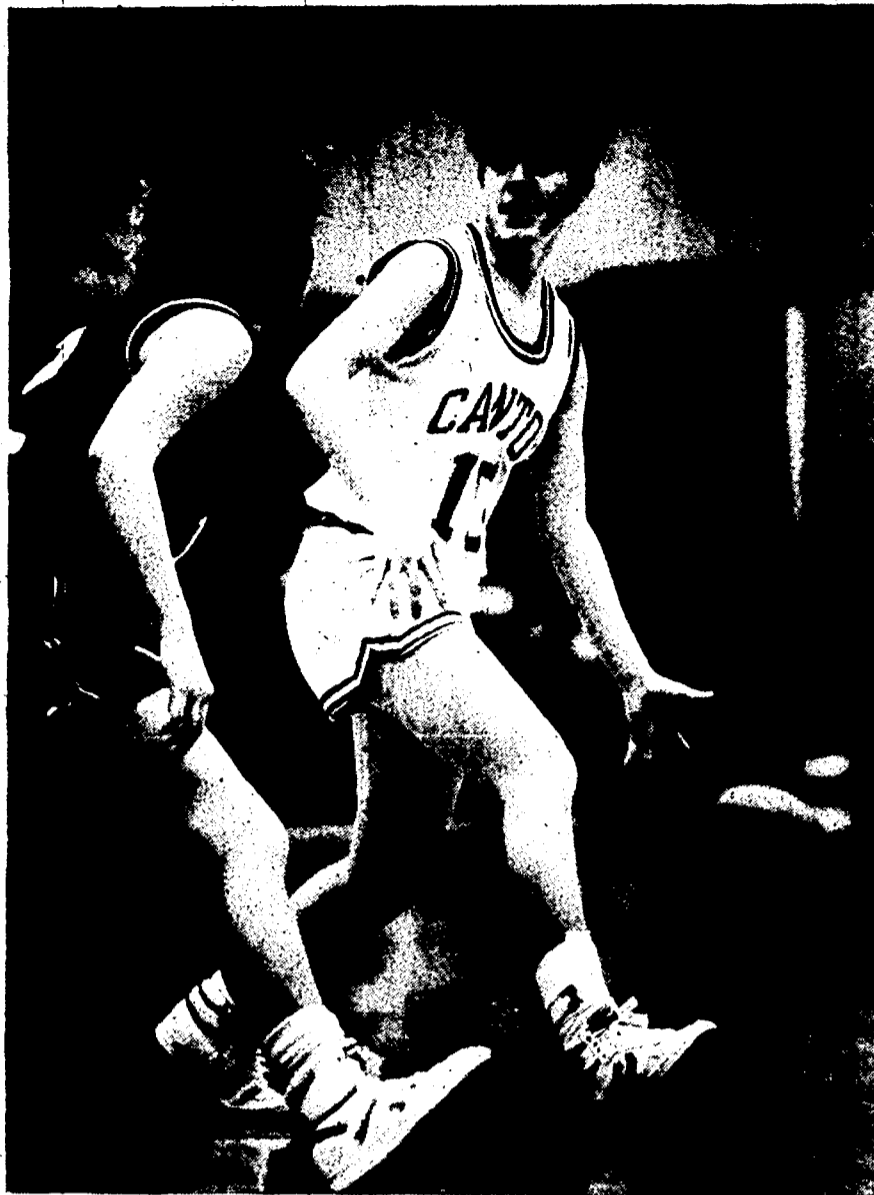

Cummins also captured a first places in the 50-yard freestyle and the 100-yard backstroke events.

Sue Schendel placed first in the 500-yard freestyle event.

Lisa Dejong came out on top in the diving competition.

Val Gildhaus finished first in the 100-yard breaststroke event, and Sarah Schmitz garnered a first place in the 200-yard individual medley. Cox rounded up the first place finishes with a first in the 100-yard butterfly.

Tomorrow the Chiefs will wrap up their home dual meet season against Farmington Harrison. They end their dual meet season next week against Northville at the Mustangs pool.
