

Running away from P-C

BY DAN NESS

Chris M. last saw her 17-year-old son at 9:45 a.m. on Jan. 13.

Jeff, a Salem High School junior, was withdrawing money at a Canton bank from two accounts with his mother's passbooks. When he saw his mother, he ran out of the building, leaving about $200 in cash and the passbooks on the teller's counter. He succeeded in withdrawing most of the money in the accounts — more than $1,000.

Jeff is one of approximately 200 teenagers who ran away from home within the past year in The Plymouth-Canton Community.

"We look for him every day," said Jeff's father, Richard. "We're scared for him." There is also anger.

"I feel hurt that he's done what he's done," Richard said. "But, if he wanted to come home, there'd be no problem. We'd have to figure out what went wrong and try to correct it."

Debbie Hulbert had reported her 13-year-old daughter, Mary Anne, as missing on Dec. 30 to the Canton Police Department. Mary Anne was found shot to death in Superior Township on Jan. 8. Her mother is hurt, but wants to do something about runaways. "I'd like to help other families," she said.

The seriousness of each runaway situation varies widely from family to family. Charlotte T. found her 12-year-old daughter, Tracey, the same night she was reported missing in September. Tracey hasn't run away since that time.

"I can't say that maybe that won't happen later on again," Charlotte said. "I remember those times when I was 12. They're hard times. It's a major transition."

Richard and Chris M. say Jeff has been under a lot of pressure at school, which may have caused him to run away last week. Jeff had been expelled last spring after being caught using marijuana at school. He went back to school on a trial basis during

Yagiela: Families victimized

BY T.M. SMITH

The portrayal of the typical runaway is often a misunderstood and misrepresented one — according to one local expert close to the problem.

Dale Yagiela maintains that many runaways are seen by the general public as the victims, when actually the families of those runaways are the true victims.

Yagiela, Executive Director of Growth Works in Plymouth, says that more times than not the juvenile runaway is not the victim, but is trying to punish the family.

"The family is usually the real victim," Yagiela said. "They run away as a means of gaining control, and in essence say to the parents 'I'll deprive you the opportunity to love me.'"

This is most often the center of runaway cases that Yagiela sees.

But, those that attract the attention are the cases where the child is the victim, he said.

"Certainly there are those cases where the child is abused and is forced to runaway as a means of self preservation, but most of the time the family is the victim. This just tends to become an issue that gets blown out of proportion, and misrepresented in the media," he said.

Yagiela went on to say that he sees two major reasons kids leave home.

The first reason he gave was the runaway making a rational decision "to somehow punish the parents for controls," by running away from the home.

He said the first example is much more common.

"The runaway believes this is a good way to put the parents in a difficult situation. They live with the illusion of what will happen to the parents and that they will get them in trouble with the law," Yagiela said.

Yagiela even said that much of the surveys that have been done on the subject have been misleading.

"The data that has been collected is really all screwed up. They only question the kid involved, but I deal with this daily and I think it is a real red herring."

He said many of the cases that he sees stem from a substance abuse problem. When the kids find that Truancy case decision set for Fri.

BY KEN VOYLES

A decision in the truancy trial of John and Sandra Bennett, of Canton, will be announced by 35th District Court Judge John MacDonald on Friday at 9 a.m.

MacDonald heard the case last week and took it under advisement. He will present his ruling in a written opinion at the court.

The Bennetts were sued by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools last year for violating the state's compulsory education law by failing to send their children to an accredited school.

Three of the four Bennett children were taught at home by Sandra Bennett using materials from the Home Based Education program through Clonlara School in Ann Arbor.

The school district contends the program does not meet state regulations.

Man allegedly assaults young hockey player

BY KEN VOYLES

A Novi man may be charged with assault and battery following an incident after a hockey game at the Plymouth Cultural Center on Jan. 8.

According to Lt. Robert Commire of the City of Plymouth Police Department, charges against the man are currently being investigated. A warrant may be issued after the city attorney studies the incident, he said.

The complaint was filed by a Farmington Hills youth after he was allegedly "grabbed by the throat" in front of the locker room at the Cultural Center by the father of another player, who told police he was unhappy that his son had been hit in the back with a stick during the game.

According to police, the suspect grabbed the youth by the throat and verbally abused him before one of the game referees stepped in and separated the pair.

The report also said police found a small bruise on the player's throat.

Geer renovation studied

A committee to look into renovating Geer School was officially appointed by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education last week.

The committee's job will be to look into raising funds to fix the school, according to the administration.

Board President E.J. McClendon said the board's action "implied" district support to renovate the school.

The committee members include Doris Balconi, Richard Egli, Ray Hoedel, Donna Keough, Ritz McClumpha, Carol Nichols, Shirley Spaniel, George Dodson, John Hoben, Michael Homes, Elaine Kirchgatter, Marge Mitchell, Kate Otto (chairperson) and Kay Williams.

Schools extend contracts

Contract extensions were approved Monday for both the Plymouth-Canton Custodial/Maintenance Local 1 and the Plymouth-Canton Licensed Technicians Local 547 by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education.

Both extensions are for two years, through the 1987-88 school year.

Tentative terms for the Custodial local include five per cent wage increases over two years, additional retirement allowance, additional life insurance, additional longevity costs, and a uniform allowance.

Tentative terms for the Licensed Technicians local include five per cent wage increases over the next two years, additional retirement money, additional longevity money, additional life insurance and a uniform allowance.

City DDA boundaries slated for expansion

BY DAN NESS

Downtown Plymouth is too small. That's the determination of the City Commission -- almost.

The commission will soon vote on two amendments that would expand the boundaries of the Downtown Development Authority in the City of Plymouth.

The boundaries would be expanded down Main Street to include the Farmer Jack property and the old Moore Farm property, just east of Main Street in Plymouth. The new boundary would also include four lots on the south side of Ann Arbor Trail immediately west of Harvey Street.

A public hearing was held Monday to get input from the residents on the proposed expansion of the downtown area. Two residents voiced concern over the expansion.

"Our city has certain finite limits," said John Maly, who owns property on Ann Arbor Trail. "We think that a separate study should be made," regarding the "incremental expansion of the commercial district," along Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth, Maly said.

City Manager Henry Graper said that the lots along Ann Arbor Trail would eventually be developed by someone, and that it didn't matter whether it was in the Downtown Development Authority or not.

The DDA would also include a piece of property owned by Jack Wilcox, commonly known as the Wilcox House property, at Union and Penniman, according to the proposed DDA map.

Graper said the increased tax base to the city from the addition of the Farmer Jack and Moore Farm property in the DDA would be approximately $2,750,000. There was no estimate of the addition of the Wilcox House property to the city in terms of tax revenues, Graper said.

Beitner saves City store

An alert citizen is credited with catching a fire that had just started in a downtown Plymouth business last Wednesday night.

Bill Beitner, co-owner of Beitner's Jewelry, was driving by the shops along Ann Arbor Trail at 9:17 p.m. when he noticed the inside of The Clubhouse men's clothing store looked hazy, according to Plymouth Fire Chief Al Matthews. He then summoned firemen and the store's owner, Fred Hill.

Flames were already present in the ceiling area by the time firemen were on the scene, Matthews said. The chief blamed the blaze on an electrical short.

"It was a close call," said Matthews. "It was only a matter of time (before this would have become a major fire).

"I want to commend Beitner for his alertness and for taking the extra care," the chief concluded.

Hill also praised Beitner. "Thank goodness he was in the right place at the right time for the store's benefit. How many times has he glanced at his building in the past years -- this time it paid off.

2 killed in head-on collision on Lilley Rd.

BY DAN NESS

Two women were killed early Thursday morning when their cars collided head-on one-eighth of a mile north of Ford Road on Lilley Road.

Killed were, Kathleen Ryan, 26, of Canton, and Marcia Bastian, 31, of Redford, according to police.

Bastian was driving north on Lilley when her car struck Ryan's vehicle at approximately 2:24 a.m., according to Officer David Boljesic. Bastian's car was "almost completely in the other lane," when the accident occurred, according to Boljesic.

The two women were taken to Westland Medical Center where they were pronounced dead on arrival.

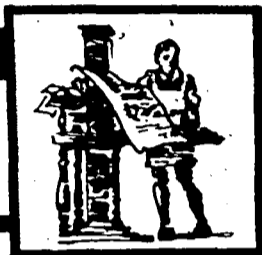

A blood test will be performed as part of an autopsy on Bastian to determine if alcohol was involved, Boljesic said.

Neither woman was wearing a seat belt, according to police.

Hand grenade parts found in Canton P.D. lobby

An explosives expert from the Northville post of the Michigan State Police was called Saturday night to dispose of a box of hand grenade detonating devices found in the lobby of the Canton Police Department.

According to police reports, the box of detonating devices was found in a grocery bag left at the station sometime before 5:45 p.m. A Canton police officer carried the bag away from the building before the explosives expert was called in.

Postmaster, send change of address notice to The Community Crier, 821 Penniman Ave., Plymouth, MI 48170.

Changes are being made in the way long distance users in your area place some operator-handled calls.

These changes affect Michigan Bell customers having phone numbers beginning with 420.

This is an informational message about your phone service from Marcia Buhl, your Michigan Bell Corporate Affairs Manager.

"These telephone service changes concern only operator-handled long distance calls outside your Michigan Bell long distance calling area. They apply to collect, credit card, person-to-person calls, calls billed to a third number, and requests for assistance. Some customers will need to contact their long distance companies for new instructions on how to place such calls. To find out if and how the service changes may affect your service, we ask you to read the following explanation."

An explanation of the changes in your operator-assistance service for calls outside your Michigan Bell long distance calling area (interLATA calls).

How operator-assisted calls were placed before. If you wanted operator assistance to place a long distance call, you dialed "0," or "O" plus the area code (if required), and the phone number you wanted and an operator put the call through for you.

How these calls are placed now. If the long distance service on the phone you are using is provided by a company that offers operator services and you want operator assistance to place a call, you dial "0," plus the area code (if required), and the phone number and an operator will assist you. To reach the long distance operator for additional assistance, you must dial "00." (Important: If you dial "0" without the phone number, you will get a Michigan Bell operator who can place calls within your Michigan Bell area only.)

If the long distance service on the phone you're using is provided by a long distance company that does not offer operator services, you must contact that long distance company to get instructions on how to place operator-assisted long distance calls.

Please note: If you dial "0," plus the area code, and the number, you may get a recording or no response. Further, if you dial "0" without the number, you will get a Michigan Bell operator who will refer you to your long distance company for further instructions.

If you are calling from a pay phone, continue to use the instructions posted on the phone.

Again, you should contact your long distance company for new instructions on how to place operator-handled long distance calls outside your Michigan Bell calling area. If you have any other questions about the changes, please call Michigan Bell's Let's Talk Center. The toll-free number is 1 800 555-5000.

Please watch your Michigan Bell bill inserts for further information.

the summer, and had been attending school since then. "We were really happy with the progress he's made in school," Richard said, but "he had to remember that all eyes were on him."

Richard and Chris also had drug tests performed periodically on Jeff, as part of a "contract" agreed to between Jeff, his parents and a counselor they were working with. When it was decided that another test should be performed to see if Jeff was keeping to his agreement to abstain from drug use, he objected, Richard said.

"I felt bad about it, but by the same token, society's a mean place out there and you have to stay ahead of it," Richard said. He didn't suspect Jeff of using drugs, but wanted the test to prove Jeff's commitment in case there was trouble at school, Richard said. The drug test was negative.

Richard speculated on why Jeff ran away. "Between the pressure of knowing he's being watched so closely, and the pressure of taking the drug test . . . there's always this thing of 'You don't trust me.'"

Richard had also filed a missing person report with the Canton Police Department earlier last week when Jeff did not return home after work (at a food store) until the next morning, on a school day.

Communication between Jeff and his parents was starting to break down, they recall. "When we talked to him, it looked like we were talking through a wall," Chris said. "He didn't show any emotion." That was not normal in this family, Richard said.

"We've always told him we love him. That's the type of family we are."

Richard describes his family as "traditional," that eats dinner together at the same time every night. Most of Jeff's friends aren't from "traditional" families, Richard said. "For the most part, the friends he runs around with have single parents. He feels he should have the same freedom that they do."

Jeff has not been at school or work since he ran away. Richard, Chris and Jeff's 13-year-old sister Jenny continue to call Jeff's friends and look for him. "Naturally, we want

No more black eyes

Keep sports in perspective

Sports have a place in the world.
But the emotions that go with them sometimes jeopardize the value of "recreation" for all concerned.

A recent incident is a case in point.

According to police reports, the father of one junior hockey player grabbed another player after the game because he thought his son had taken an unfair hit. The case is pending.

Without judging the particular incident, it's appears that feelings got out of hand.

This type of uncontrollable emotion gives sports

a black eye.

Not long ago, one Plymouth-Canton junior sports team received disciplinary action because coaches and parents had allegedly falsified birthdates and weights of the participants. Another case where the attitudes lost sight of what sports are all about.

Taken together, these two incidents could make parents wonder whether sports teach good sportsmanship as they're intended to do.

Sports do have a place in the world.

But only if all concerned are good sports.

Owners beware: clean your sidewalks

EDITOR:

Following the snowfall of Jan. 10, it was observed that several homeowners as well as business establishments failed to clean their sidewalks as required by City of Plymouth ordinance.

The ordinance states, "all sidewalks must be cleaned within 24 hours after a snowfall, failure to do so shall cause
the City of Plymouth-Public Works Department to do so at the expense of the landowner."

If it becomes necessary for the Public Works Department to clean an owner's sidewalk, the fee for this service will be $50 an hour, with a minimum charge of one hour.

KENNETH F. VOGRAS, Director
Department of Public Works

New look is impressive, keep up the good work

EDITOR:

Although I liked the previous Crier logo, the "new" logo is impressive and fits nicely with the overall "new look" of your publication.

Keep up the good work. It takes a lot of work on your part to keep everybody happy. I commend you particularly on some of your "fan" letters that don't agree with your editorial comment.

TED GUTOWSKI

In the margin

By Ken Voyles

Joe Louis Arena seems like such a small place when there are hardly any fans around to build the wall of sound which made Phil Spector such a wonder.

That was the reaction of sports reporter Marty Tungate and myself last week after we visited the home of the Detroit Red Wings.

Walking into the large facility we couldn't help but feel like this was the big leagues at last. We both wore smiles from ear to ear and had a cool walk and look.

But we didn't want to give away that we were as nervous as rookies trying out for the Wigs.

We were at the arena to interview local resident, Red Wing John Ogrodnick. But with just a few players skating on the ice and a couple fans watching from the seats Joe Louis lost its glamour, if not its modern charm.

Still it will never compare with the old Olympia, an imposing structure now gone.

When we arrived we were directed to the rink by Kathy Best, a Wings public relations person.

Naively, we walked up to the glass behind the goal and watched some players taking shots. When the first puck struck the glass at 80 or 90 mph with a loud whack we were floored.
Scramble -- these guys are testing our mettle.

Where did they think we were from,
The New York Times?

When we finally entered the lockerroom, after having watched some of the practice from behind the bench, I noticed Marty glowing even with a drip of perspiration on his forehead.

Ogrodnick, dressed only in shorts and a soaking t-shirt (he wasn't practicing thanks to a charley-horse), gave Marty an interesting interview. It was a rapid paced session with Marty firing questions like a real pro.

I got to play photographer, and fired a few shots of my own.

Later Marty even got the skater's autograph. He said afterwards he had been tempted to bring a large pad of paper with him and have Ogrodnick
"just start signing."

On our way out Marty retrieved a puck which came over the glass. For a moment he thought about keeping it as a souvenir, but tossed it back on the ice. He told me just being in Joe Louis was souvenir enough.

That sort of goes for me as well.

P.S. -- Two postscripts to this. One day later Ogrodnick was unexpectedly traded by the Wings to the Quebec Nordiques. Bitter, Ogrodnick refused to talk to the press last week.

But our interview was already in the can. It even helped out a local television channel seeking information after the sudden departure of a Detroit star.

Thanks to a special community

A sad goodbye

EDITOR:

With mixed emotions we share these thoughts in expressing our thanks and gratitude for 37 years of happy and joyous association with the people of The Plymouth-Canton Community. It is that association that will be missed as we move to Anderson, IN.

We feel compelled to express a warm and loving thanks to the many people who have touched our lives and made them full and complete.

Plymouth has been a fine environment for our family. The schools, the volunteers who assisted us in our respective positions, teachers and supportive friends who gave so much to make this a beautiful and respected community ... for this we are grateful.

The privilege of serving the students of Plymouth-Canton Schools has been rewarding beyond words.

Our participation in civic organizations such as the garden clubs, Plymouth Kiwanis, etc. has been fulfilling and made us better servants because of this association.

Plymouth will always be very special to us and we are proud of our leaders in the schools, city and township who have stayed current with the times to make it so special.

Council on Aging says thank you

EDITOR:

The Council on Aging wants to thank the United Way, City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township for their generous support.

Our dedicated directors joins me in expressing our appreciation for the help we received from Chuck Skene's Parks and Recreation Department, specifically Carol Donnelly and Deanna Vogras.

We will continue to strive to present programs beneficial to the Plymouth communities.

Keep track of those unfriendly businesses

Nothing peeves me off more than a rude business.

It strikes me as the most ridiculous thing in the world for somebody to take my money to do work for me -- and then act rude or obnoxious.

The worst of this, is the small family-owned business that acts this way.

For some reason it irks me more when a small place treats the customer with total disregard, than when a big business does.

There is no excuse for either one, but the small one stands to lose more -- and therefore by my rationale is being even less observant of the customer.

Based on phone calls from the past several weeks, this attitude seems to be shared by many residents in The Plymouth-Canton Community.

I've fielded a couple calls from people who felt slighted by the ownership of several small businesses.

After a long internal debate I've decided not to mention them here. That would serve a purpose, but I'll wait on that until I get the consumer advocate beat.

But let's say that there are several businesses in the community who do not seem to find the satisfaction of customers high on the priority list.

One woman who called, told of the "Case of the missing VCR" This woman explained that her VCR was taken in for repairs to a local Plymouth TV repair shop, and after six agonizing weeks, was finally told it was unrepairable and that she should buy a new one.

That same woman took that same VCR to a place in Westland and had it back working like new in about ten days.

Before that call, there have been calls on several automobile repair shops.

These seem to be the prime targets for deceit because people know where the gas goes, and sometimes where all the right keys fit in the car -- but little else.

Almost everyone is easy prey for "the blinker gasket is broke" routine.

My solution for this problem is simple.

In fact I'll even help do it. If people have a problem with a business. Unfriendly, or just plain rude, or the service was under the table. Then write or call me, and we'll start a list.

This list could be published and posted for everyone to see.

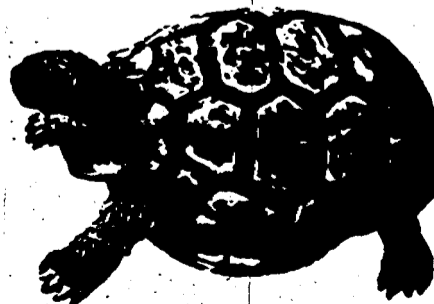

That way when your VCR, or TV or car goes on the blink find the list and you'll know where not to go.

Maybe this will put a little pressure on those businesses who do shoddy work, to shape up, or go to work on the assembly line in Detroit.

Stick your neck out!

Howard remains active in the community

Long life, love hold Walkers together

Edith Walker celebrated her 92nd birthday Thursday with her husband Howard Walker and the rest of her immediate family.

The Walkers have been married for 63 years; last August they celebrated that anniversary, also with family and friends at the local Bill Knapp's resutarant.

Edith was born on a farm at the county line between Wayne and Washtenaw Counties. She graduated from Ypsilanti High and later became a telephone operator in the Ypsilanti and Plymouth offices.

Howard, 85, was born on a farm at the crossroads of Gottfredson and M-14. He graduated from Geer Scool in 1916 and later from the old Plymouth High School. He also graduated from Ypsilanti Normal School (now Eastern Michigan University) in 1922.

After teaching in Plymouth for a few years, Howard moved his family to Lake Odessa. Later they lived in Redford and then spent nearly 35 years Detroit.

"Once I retired we did a lot of traveling together all over the country," said Walker, who lives in Plymouth and remains active in the community. Edith is now in the Nightingale Nursing Home in Westland.

Besides being a Master Mason of Plymouth Rock Lodge No. 47 F & A.M., Walker belongs to the High Twelves Club, the Redford Northwest Club and the Livonia Elk's Club.

As old as you feel

Long life, love keep Edith (left) and Howard Walker seemingly forever young. The Plymouth residents have spent 63 years together. Edith was 92 last Thursday. (Crier photo)

WINNER OF THE WEEK

As BILL BEITNER was driving by the stores where his jewelry store is on Ann Arbor Trail Wednesday night, he noticed that it looked hazy inside The Clubhouse.

He stopped, checked it out and found smoke, called the fire department and saved the day. (Flames had started by the time the fire department quickly arrived.) The other stores on Bill's block nominated him for this week's "winner" award. Atta' boy, Bill!

Tell it to Phyllis

By Phyllis Redfern

Have you ever had the feeling you were the only parent in the world who had to deal with a weird kid? Of course you have, and every kid, at one time or another, has thought his parents were the only people who couldn't understand anything.

It's amazing how smart we are as teenagers and how stupid we become as parents. We all know there isn't a teenager around who doesn't know all there is to know about almost any subject you try to discuss with them. Thank heavens as parents, we are able to remember those days when we once knew everything too.

Just before you reach the point of disinheriting the kid or stuffing a baseball in his mouth, try to put things in a perspective by talking to another parent. As totally different as some kids can be, they still have something in common -- the ability to drive any sane parent right over the edge.

Now we reach the realization that we are not the only parent with a weird kid to deal with. In fact if we were brave enough to think about it, I bet we would discover there are thousands of them roaming our community.

I recently had the pleasure of spending an evening with a 12 year old neighbor girl and her mom. I couldn't believe it. It was like reliving a scene in our house almost eight years ago when my kids was that age. It was a strange feeling to know how the kid was going to react to certain comments before she said a word.

I laughed when the neighbor kid said something about her mom's new slacks being old lady style, "you know the kind only moms wear." However, it wasn't nearly as funny when my kid said my new suit was too conservative.

I guess it's comforting to know that others have the same problems and the same joys that we have. We might as well admit it, we do have lots of fun with these kids sometimes. I've even heard a rumor that in time they outgrow being a teenager and become human.

Hey Ray Hoedel -- assistant school superintendent for Plymouth-Canton Schools -- wake up!

Ray got a phone call at 6 a.m. from a Lansing radio station disc jockey a couple weeks ago: "Ray, do you remember registering to win a 1965 Corvette Sting Ray convertible?" he asked.

Still asleep, with the lights out, "Yes," mumbled Ray.

"Well, you won it," announced the caller.

Ray's reaction: "Oh, my gosh." (When was the last time you really heard somebody say that publicly?)

Confesses the school business wiz, "We've never won anything before." Next time Ray has to kill time while his wife shops after the big football game -- that's when he filled out a contest entry card in a shopping mall -- he probably won't complain as much.

Call Ray for a ride.

him home," Richard said. "We still love him, we still care for him."

Charlotte T.'s daughter does not live in a "traditional" family, her mother says.

Tracey had been living with her mother after her parents divorced when she was very young. Last August, Charlotte said the situation with herself and Tracey became too much of a problem.

"I told her she was not following the rules, and that I was going to send her to live with her dad,"

Charlotte said. It was at the end of a weekend visit to her mother in September that Tracey chose to run away.

"I try to be understanding, but it's hard sometimes."

— Charlotte T.

"She said she didn't want to live with her dad," at the time she ran away, Charlotte said. Tracey has lived with her mother since she ran away.

But, the problems continue. Much of the problem is that Tracey disagrees with her mother's lifestyle, Charlotte said. "She still has a problem that her mother is gay."

Charlotte and Tracey, like Richard,

Chris and Jeff M., have worked with a counselor to try to straighten out their family life. "In her eyes, she wants me to be normal," Charlotte said. "All she sees as normal is a mom and a dad. I guess I disagree -- I am normal."

Charlotte and Tracey, formerly of Canton, now live in another Detroit suburb. Among other problem areas, Tracey also thinks she should have more freedom, Charlotte said. "One of her threats is that she's going to move out when she's 16. That may be her little way of getting even."

"Tracey's basically a pretty good kid, but they get ideas in their head, and that's it."

Charlotte disagrees with some segments of Tracey's lifestyle, such as her smoking cigarettes. She throws away packs of cigarettes she finds in Tracey's purse, she said. "I don't know if she's doing drugs -- I don't think she's into anything like that," Charlotte said.

Charlotte feels the pressure of taking care of Tracey without help from her ex-husband, she said. He hasn't taken Tracey for a weekend since she moved back with Charlotte. "Tracey says, 'My dad doesn't care about me,'" Charlotte said. "I tell her, 'Why don't you tell your dad these things?"

"I think I've been a good parent, but I think I've given her too much independence. In my opinion, I think parents should know where their kids are going. I try to be understanding, but it's hard sometimes."

Charlotte summarizes her relationship with her daughter, saying, "she loves me, but she doesn't like me."

Tracey was one of about 130 Canton youths reported as runaways in 1986, according to police. In Plymouth, there were 14 reported runaways in 1986. In Plymouth Township, there were 79 reported runaways last year, 24 of which involved youths from the Straight, Inc. program for adolescent substance abusers, according to Police Chief Carl Berry.

Running away: Symptom of problems for youths stiffer controls are being placed on them in the home, they respond by "splitting" from the parents.

"There was a recent case I was working on where the girl was involved in a drug treatment program. After she got out and went back home, she decided she wanted to start to use again -- so she ended up running away again," Yagiela said.

The counselor also said that it is as difficult to describe a "runaway" as it is to describe "a football player."

There are little pockets of kids who fit into many areas. He did say the problem seems to escalate around 15 to 16 years old, but that all delinquent juvenile problems happen at that age.

He believes the problem has not increased over the past 10 years from what he has seen, and that actually people are understanding better and are able to stop many potential runaways.

"Kids running away is a symptom, not a problem. It is a symptom of many problems and the running away is just a manifestation of those problems," Yagiela said.

Getting down to business

Local business specializes in tape transfers

Hollywood touch to those home movies

BY KEN VOYLES

Bob Stutzman wants to give local residents the chance to be producer, director, and editor of their own video projects.

He calls it bringing a little bit of Hollywood to The Plymouth-Canton Community.

The 1980 Salem graduate opened a video editing business on Main Street, Video Taper, back in September which specializes in transferring old movies on video film as well as editing video projects for individuals, organizations and businesses.

"The glamour aspect of this business is the VHS editing salon," Stutzman said last week. "With it we can give customers a Hollywood feel to their home movies at an affordable price.

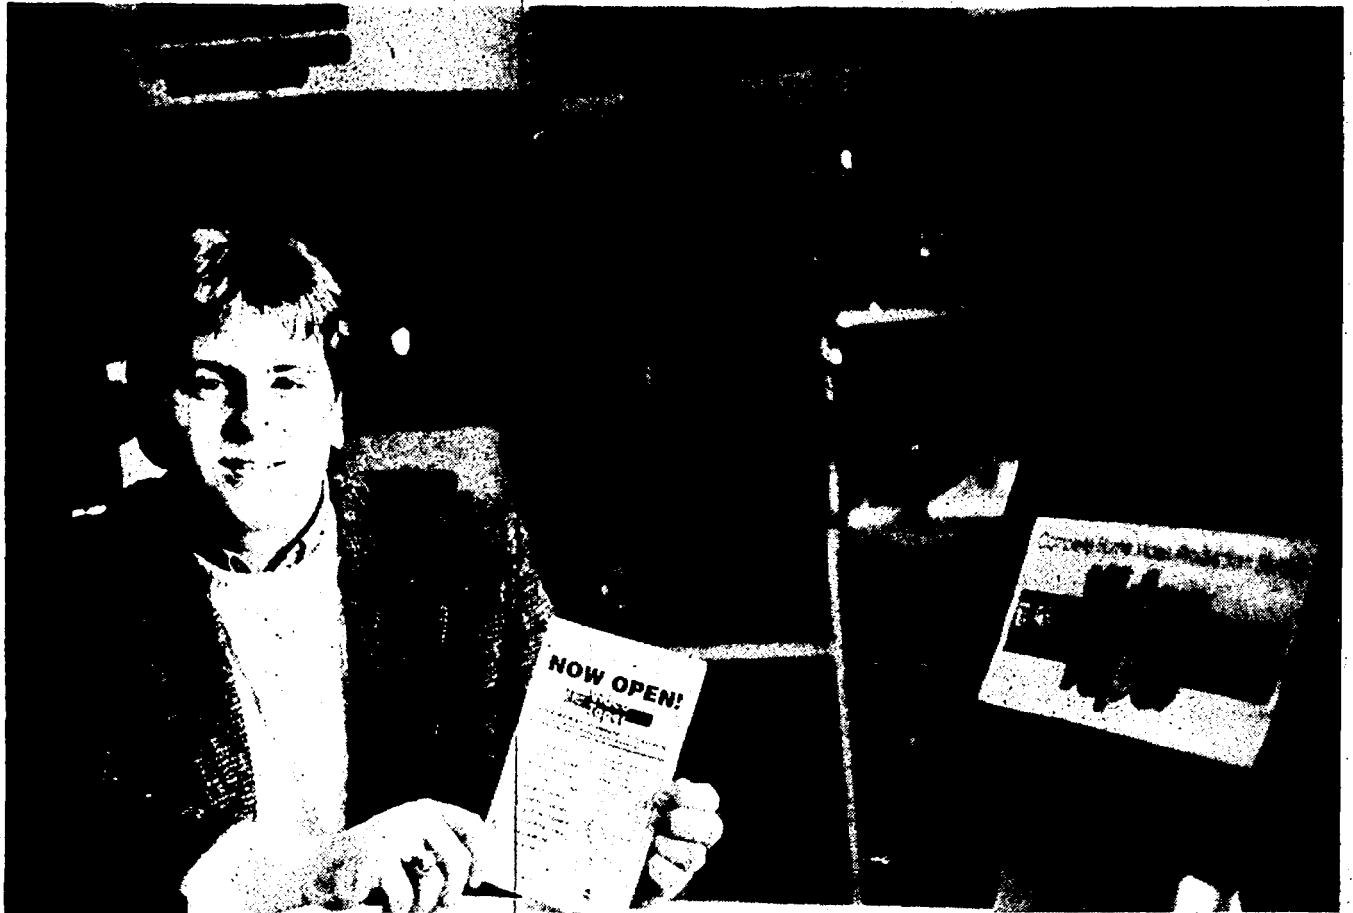

"We're still finishing the back room area to house the editing salon and a sound-over booth," he added. "We also hope to eventually put together a small library of video rentals and make equipment available as well."

Stutzman, general manager of Video Taper, went into business with his father Fred Stutzman and two other partners after working for CBS-Fox for six years. He earned a degree in broadcasting from Central Michigan University.

"We had a big rush at Christmas, which I expected, and it's been steady ever since," he said. "We're just trying to get our name and our services marketed."

Video Taper consists of a two-room office behind Pease Paint on S. Main. The front half of the set-up is a video transfer center to transfer 16 mm, 8 mm, super 8 mm, slides and even prints onto VHS or Beta video formats.

"That's most of our business at the moment," said Stutzman. "We do a lot of home movie transfers. We also can do titles, music and some special effects."

In the back half of the office is the editing salon, another enormous piece of technological wizardry which makes it possible for Stutzman, and his other technicians, to edit any type of video.

"We're still trying to get the system built into the wall and add a sound booth," he said. "This editing machine is especially great for camcorders (mini-portable video cameras).

This will be our big seller when it's fully ready."

Stutzman, who has his hands in a little of everything at Video Taper, recently completed several projects on the editor including a tape for a local girl seeking admission to Notre Dame University.

"She wanted a slide show to help her get in," said Stutzman. "We also helped her set up the narration in French."

Transferring film onto video is relatively cheap, according to Stutzman, who said the cost is roughly four to six cents per foot.

Stutzman said he also hopes to get more involved in community projects, like the Ice Sculpture Spectacular. He is planning to approach the Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association to film their games.

Kohn earns insurance license

Kirkland Kohn, of C.L. Finlan and Son, Inc., of Plymouth, completed the requirements set by the Bureau of Insurance and obtained the insurance counselors license (LIC).

The attainment of the license signifies the achievement of a high level of professional insurance education. Individuals who receive this license are required to possess the knowledge of the provisions, terms and conditions of property and casualty insurance policies and of the insurance laws of the state.

Lore appointed to presidency

John Lore, vice president for development at St. Clair Health corp., has been named president of the Michigan chapter of the National Society of Fund Raising Executives (NSFRE).

Lore, from Plymouth, will serve two years as president of the organization, which includes more than 160 professionals from the health and education fields, social agencies, arts agencies and other fund-raising charities.

He is also a member of the NSFRE's national board of directors and one of 10 members on its executive committee. There are 75 NSFRE chapters across the country with more than 6,500 fund-raising executives.

A vice-president for development since July, 1986, Lore previously served as president of the Michigan Colleges Foundation for six years, president of Nazareth College in Kalamazoo for four years, and director of alumni and development at Western Michigan University for six years.

He holds a doctor of education degree from Western as well as a masters of arts and a bachelor of science and is listed in Who's Who in the World for 1986.

Karen Burrill, of Northville, has been named Vice President of Marketing for the R.A. DeMattia Co., a construction firm in Plymouth. Burrill joined the firm in 1983.

Ice art delights 500,000

A little snow and plenty of cold weather could keep Mother Nature in the deep freeze and preserve the ice sculptures from the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular for weeks.

"We'll leave the sculptures up until Mother Nature says differently," said organizer Scott Lorenz after Sunday's final carving competition between professional chefs from around North America. "We're having wonderful weather."

Lorenz estimated that nearly 500,000 people jammed the two-week event in downtown Plymouth. "We're the biggest (ice sculpture) event in North America," he said. "And it's the best according to a lot of people I've talked to."

And there is still some carving going on.

Lorenz said carvers would be working on the Macomb Community College carousel today and through the rest of the week.

Three wins help turn season around

Hoop win puts Chiefs in division lead

"This team has played hard all year so far."
— Tom Niemi

BY KEN VOYLES

Three wins in a row have Canton's boys basketball coach Tom Niemi more than pleased with his hoopsters, especially the squad's defensive play.

The victories have pushed the Chiefs over .500 so far this season.

"Defensively we are a much better team," Niemi said after his team knocked off Farmington Harrison 58-43 on Friday.

The win was Canton's third straight and moved the squad into first place in the Western division of the Western Lakes Activities Association. The Chiefs are 5-4 overall and 4-2 in the division. Both Canton and Harrison had 3-2 records in the division before Friday's outing.

"Our bench has also been outstanding," said the second year coach at Canton. "But we have to play excellent defense because we're not too big."

"I would hope we play hard," he added. "This team has played hard all year so far. I feel we've got a pretty good basketball team."

Canton controlled most of Friday's outing, leading 14-8 at the end of the first quarter and then 28-18 at the intermission.

Besides a scrappy defense the Chiefs also worked a full court press with some degree of success.

Tyrone Reeves led the Chiefs with nine points in the first half, while Brad Carey contributed seven first half points.

CEP spike squads battle each other in fierce clash

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Salem's spikers got their first win under their belt, as they were able to knockoff neighbor and rival Canton, 15-7 and 15-7, last week.

The Rocks were serving ace after ace as the Chiefs were unable to return the Salem serves.

"We served the best game of our season," said Salem coach Betty Smith.

Salem also appeared to be passing better than in previous dual meets. And the Rocks defense finally showed it's face on the court, something which has yet to be seen until now.

Denice Tackett played an outstanding match for the Rocks. She was all over the floor defensively, and on offense she produced eight kills.

Kara Cummings also had a good match for the Salem volleyball squad. Cummings, a setter for the Rocks, did a fine job of carrying out her duties against the Chiefs.

Another bright spot for the Rocks has been the play of the non-starters like Sarah Dupret, who has been doing a fine job coming off the bench to spark the team, according to Smith.

On the other side of the court, the Chiefs are starting to look better and better each time they take the court.

"The team is constantly improving," said head coach for the Chiefs Allie Suffety. Although the Rocks were very quick, the Chiefs hung tough with the more experienced Salem team. The score was somewhat misleading as the Chiefs were capable of winning either contest according to Suffety.

"Overall I'm pleased with our teams performance. They continue to work hard in practice and it's starting to show on the court," Suffety added.

Kelly Moller did a super job setting for the Chief spikers, as her sets were running about 90 per cent on returnable sets.

"Moller did a fine job for us," Suffety said.

Peggy Najarian, Heather Eudis, Stephani Knowlson, and Vicky Ferko, all played fine matches for the Chiefs in the losing cause.

"I think Canton played us real well, and it is nice to see the program coming along," said Smith.

"All I'm trying to do is establish a program," Suffety said.

The Rocks and Chiefs next meet will be this Saturday, Jan. 24 at the Salem Invitational. Sixteen teams from around the state will be coming to Salem for the tourney which begins at 10 A.M.

Wrestlers finish 8th at tourney

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Salem's grapplers continue to hang tough. The Rocks placed in eighth place Saturday out of 17 teams at the Redford Catholic Central (CC) Invitational.

The tournament included some of the top teams in the state, according to Salem head coach Ron Krueger.

"It was a tournament filled with the best talent in the state," he said.

Sean May came back this week to beat Jay Helm of CC 14-9 in overtime for fifth place. Last week Helm won the Salem tourney for his weight class, defeating Delbeke.

"Sean did a good job for us in the tourney," Krueger added.

At 126 pounds, Dennis Dameron placed third in the competition.

Tim Ott defeated Brandon Rock to capture second place in the 132 pound weight bracket. Ott pinned Rock in 1:29 of overtime.

Salem is now 8-0 overall in dual meet competition.

The Rocks beat Farmington 51-15 Thursday to keep their record perfect.

Ogrodnick leaves community he enjoys

BY MARTY TUNGATE

John Ogrodnick, 27, Red Wing of the year in 1985-86, ended his playing days in Detroit last week just one day after conducting his final interview with the local media.

During eight seasons with the Wings, he played in 239 games and produced 55 goals to top the team's scorers last season.

Ogrodnick is a resident of Plymouth Township. But the player who loves living and being a part of The Plymouth-Canton Community, bitterly packed his bags and moved to Quebec, to play for the Nordiques.

Ogrodnick, born in Ottawa, Canada, has always been a hockey fan.

"I love hockey," he said last Wednesday leaning back against his locker. "I started to play organized hockey at age six."

Mike Ogrodnick, his father, was a member of the Royal Canadian Air Force, and the athlete might have become a flyboy if he hadn't started playing hockey.

And he's got the look of someone with "the right stuff."

"I've always been interested in

Rock cagers roll to 8th

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Salem's boys cagers rolled past North Farmington, 61-46, Friday night to up their already impressive record to 8-1.

"We played a real fine game," said head coach Bob Brodie.

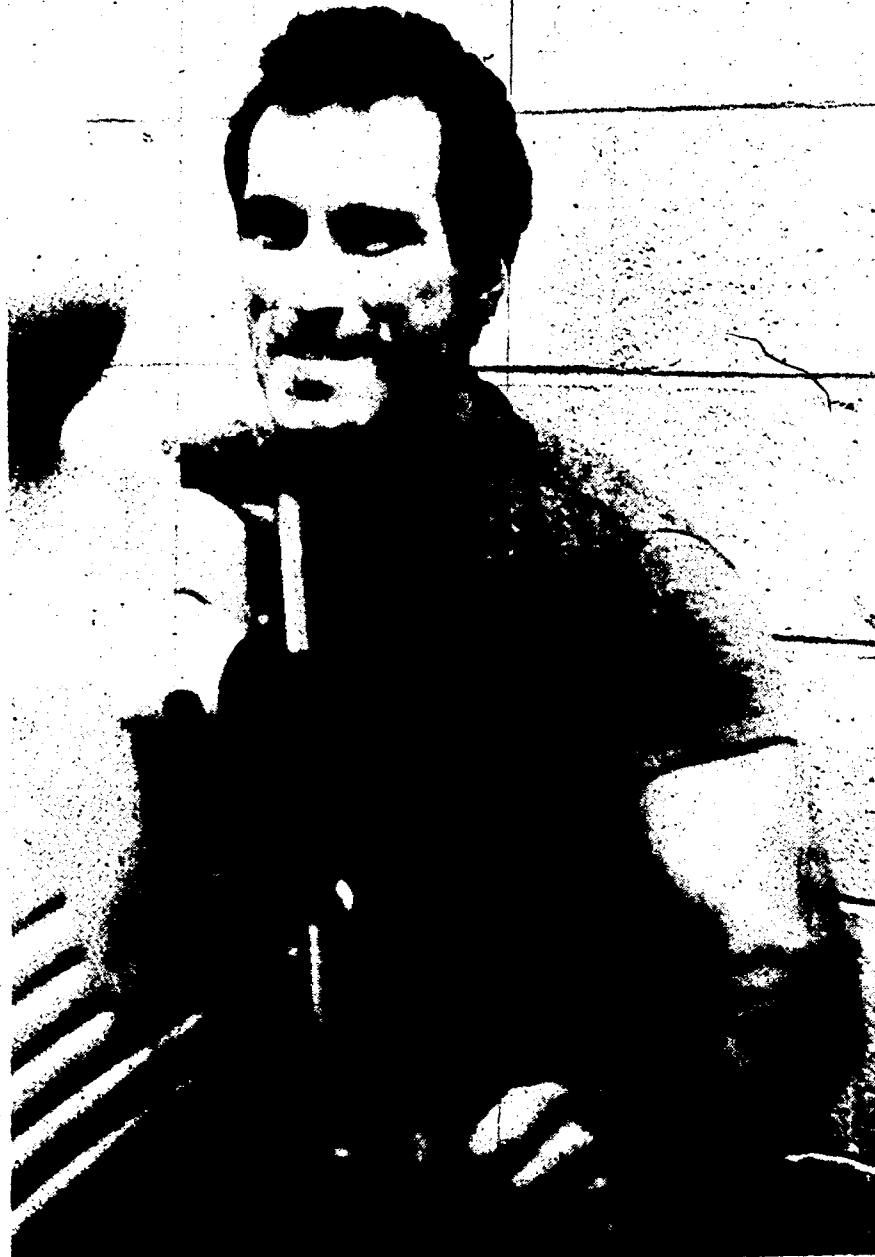

North Farmington shot well early, making it difficult for Salem to pull head.

Mike Hale came alive in the second half offensively, and defensively. Hale scored 21 points to lead the Rock cagers, while grabbing nine rebounds on the night.

Bryan Kearis added 15 points, while senior Rick Taylor had 14 points in the winning effort.

flying, ever since I can remember," he said. "I loved to watch the jets fly overhead."

Although he loves the game of hockey, Ogrodnick feels professional hockey isn't for everyone.

Working out

John Ogrodnick shows the strain as he works out in the Wings locker room last week. (Crier photo by Ken Voyles)

"It's not all fun and glory," Ogrodnick said. One could plainly see the stitches holding part of his chin together. He wasn't practicing with the Wings Wednesday thanks to a charley horse in his leg.

Ogrodnick finds life pleasurable in the township (four years now) and he enjoys the community a great deal.

"It's a great town. A good location," he said. "It's near I-96 to Detroit, and I-275 to the airport."

He is married, also four years, to his wife BettyAnne Ogrodnick. They have one child, a two-year-old daughter, KelseyAnne Ogrodnick.

"My family life is great. I love my wife and daughter very much and they are very supportive of me in my business," Ogrodnick added. "BettyAnne never misses a home game, and it's always nice to know your wife is up in the stands rooting for you."

Ogrodnick, who likes to consider himself a family man, still enjoys going out and being with the guys.

"We (team mates) go out after practice for lunch, or have a drink after a game once in a while. I like that, it lets me become more familiar with the guys," Ogrodnick said as he adjusted his jersey hanging on his locker.

Although Ogrodnick enjoys his family and going out with the guys, he also said that during the season there is not a lot of time for him to spend time with his family or even in the community.

And now may have to find a new home.

The former left-winger was so upset with this sudden trade he would not speak to any reporters, thus his plans are unknown.

A fine athlete and pleasant man, who liked Michigan, Detroit, and Plymouth is now gone to play in Quebec. And bitter feelings probably remain over the sudden trade.

Canton grapplers 4th at Civitan invite Saturday

BY KEN VOYLES

Canton's young wrestling squad finished fourth at the Civitan Wrestling Invitational hosted by the Chiefs at Phase III on Saturday.

The Chiefs finished behind Stevensville Lakeshore, which won it for the third straight year, Livonia Stevenson and Belleville. Also at the competition were Southgate Anderson, Birmingham Seaholm, Oxford, and Livonia Franklin.

Canton produced three invitational champions in Tom Flores, Dan Dwyer and Jim Crews. Flores, a junior, won the 98-pound division, while Dwyer, a senior, captured the 155-pound class. Crews, also a junior, pinned all three of his opponents on his way to winning the 198-pound competition.

All three wrestlers went 3-0 during the day long event.

Canton heavyweight Tony Callaway finished second at the invitational, while Matt Keeler, at 105 pounds, was third overall. Craig Rinke, at 132 pounds, was fourth overall.

"We only have two seniors," said Canton coach Rich Menoch. "I'm pretty satisfied. I'd love for us to do better but I'm being realistic. This is a young team and we're doing pretty good with our line-up."

The Chiefs are currently 5-2 overall in the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) and unbeaten in the Lakes division of the WLAA with three wins.

"We just need one more win to take the division," Menoch said.

The Chiefs will go for that title when they host Farmington Harrison Thursday (Jan. 22) at 6:30 p.m.

Chief hoop team gets on track with wins

Harrison fought to close the gap early in the third quarter after Canton went up 32-18. Through the final five minutes of the quarter, the Hawks moved closer and closer before getting to within five points of the Chiefs 36-31.

Harrison closed to 38-35 two minutes into the fourth quarter before a couple of decisive fastbreaks by Chiefs put the momentum back into their hands.

Canton, in fact, scored the next five baskets and led 46-35 before Harrison could regroup. But by then it was too late.

Even with Reeves, Trice and Jim Anulewicz fouling out, the Chiefs were able to hold on to their margin and gain the victory.

Trice and Littleton led the Chiefs offensively in the second half. Trice produced eight points, while Littleton, coming off the bench, sank 11, all in the second half.

Earlier in the week, Canton defeated Dearborn, 64-59, behind 17 points from Reeves and 15 from Trice. Littleton notched seven and Anulewicz hit for eight points.

Coach sought

Canton High is searching for a cheerleading coach for the rest of the 1986-87 school year. Any persons in the community with cheerleading background may apply by writing a letter of application to Mr. Thomas J. Tattan, c/o Plymouth Canton High School, 8415 Canton Center, Canton, MI 48187.
