Bd. rejects 5 appeals; teaching materials stay

BY KEN VOYLES

Dean Swartzwelter put the past five months in perspective Monday.

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education secretary was explaining his basis for supporting denial of five appeals made by a local resident over teaching resources in the district.

Swartzwelter used the example of God, who sent his "only son, Jesus Christ, down here" to draw a comparison with students learning about controversial subjects in school.

But God did not spare his only son from the temptations and tribulations of life on Earth.

"And he turned out perfect," said Swartzwelter, just like students who may be affected by films or books such as "The Breakfast Club" and "Rules for Radicals," but who still come through the experience a better person.

Swartzwelter's colleagues on the board were also emphatic in explaining their reasons for denying the appeals in five separate motions Monday.

Some read from prepared statements which had obviously been well considered, and while some reserved their comments for each appeal motion, others gave their justifications in one passionate soliloquy.

The seven member board denied all five of the appeals requested by Diane Daskalakis on unanimous 7-0 votes, except for "The Breakfast Club," which was decided 5-2.

Not only did the board reject Daskalakis' appeals, but it also accepted the five review committee's original recommendations and approved "continued use" of the materials in the district.

Board members Marilyn Schwinn and Lester Walker voted against the majority on "The Breakfast Club" appeal. Schwinn said she was against the movie's continued use, while Walker differed with the review committee's suggestion the film be limited to psychology classes at the two high schools.

The other appeals involved the film

"Excalibur," the use of a Ouija board and a pamphlet and a "show and tell" demonstration of palmistry.

"I reviewed the materials and it is my belief they are being used in a competent and professional manner," said board member Roland Thomas, who like Swartzwelter is up for reelection in June.

"Witchcraft and the occult are not being taught in our schools," he added. "If anything the moral integrity of our students is being reinforced by our schools."

"The board must deny the five appeals."

"I will not accept in any form religious intolerance," Board Vice-President David Artley said. "I'm not sure I'm 100 per cent right on this issue, but I'm 51 per cent sure."

Artley said he was impressed by what the issue has done to raise the level of consciousness among residents in the district.

"I think its appropriate people get involved in what goes on in our schools," he said. "It's critical."

"There's been as many opinions as people I've talked to," said Schwinn about "The Breakfast Club."

"There's no real agreement on the movie," she added. "I know tonight it's up to me. I won't be able to rely on what other people say."

Board member Jeanette Wines said the debate had shown her that there is a distinction between what is taught and teaching a about a subject.

Board President E.J. McClendon agreed. "There is an inability to differentiate between teaching someone something and telling them

Did you hear the one about the unification of the city and township?

BY T.M. SMITH

When the question was asked about a possible unification between Plymouth Township and the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen had to wait for the laughter to die down in the audience of Plymouth's Chamber caucus luncheon before he could answer.

Once he was able to respond, both Breen and City Manager Henry Graper said the possibility of the township and the city joining forces in the future was almost non-existent.

"I would say on a scale from 1 to 10, that one is about a 1½" Breen said.

Graper shared those feelings, saying: "I don't think there is any movement at hand, and it does not appear there will be any."

The question was posed to both governmental leaders during a question and answer period at the chamber's luncheon attended by 65-75 members of Plymouth's Chamber.

The question, when read by moderator Tom Bolander drew a chuckle from the audience and Breen.

"Mechanically it is not a big problem, but the taxes would be," Breen said. "It will probably cost about 30 per cent more for those in the township

A three-year-old roller speed skater, E. J. Bates, was the top fundraiser at the sixth annual Easter Seals Skate-a-thon last weekend.

Of the $40,100 raised by some 350 skaters at the Skatin' Station in Canton Saturday night to Sunday afternoon, the young member of the Livonia Riverside Striders speed team brought in $800.

"He did a fantastic job," said Skatin' Station owner Austin Lynch, who also serves on the Wayne County Board of Directors for Easter Seals. The skate-a-thon was the largest single-event fund-raiser in the $1.2 million telethon seen on Channel 4 over the weekend.

Bates won a trip for four to Phoenix, AR, and other prizes.

Band seeks support

Over the past 27 years the Plymouth Community Band has enriched The Plymouth-Canton Community with its musical performances, from concerts in the park to shows at St. John's Seminary.

The Community Band is totally funded by contributions from businesses and individuals in the community. One of the major needs of the band is the continued funding for the scholarship awards given each year to young musicians in Plymouth-Canton.

Originally established as the Kenneth Weage Memorial Fund, the scholarships encourage young people to continue their musical training after high school.

Contributions can be sent to Plymouth Community Band, P.O. Box 745, Plymouth, MI 48170.

Admission is free to all Community Band shows.

The next five featured shows are March 20, March 31, May 1 and June 26 and July 30.

John Mohler, clarinet soloist, is featured on Friday, March 20, while on the 31st young musicians will compete for the Weage scholarships. Both events are at the Canton High Little Theatre.

Then on May 1 Carl Grapentine will be featured in a show also at the Little Theatre. The June 26 and July 30 shows will be "Concerts in the Park" at Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

YMCA auctions

The Plymouth YMCA has plans to give away a trip to West Virginia for white water rafting and dinner for two at Genitis's in Northville, among other items March 28.

The 'Y' has announced plans for an auction at The Mayflower Meeting House from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. on March 28. The cost will be $8 per person and will include wine and cheese.

Horton convicted in federal court

A former Canton resident was convicted on nine counts of mail fraud by a jury in federal court Feb. 13.

Larry Horton, 43, who now lives in Palm Harbor, FL, was convicted of receiving kickbacks from Steven Bandawat, of Sandusky, while Horton was a purchasing agent for Chrysler Corporation. In late 1980, Horton enlisted a company Banawat owned as a supplier for K-car door hinges in return for a five per cent kickback on the hinge sales.

Between December, 1980 and May, 1983, Bandawat paid Horton approximately $250,000 in kickbacks.

Horton and Bandawat face up to five years imprisonment and a $1,000 fine on each of the nine counts. The case arose out of a joint investigation by the FBI and Defense Criminal Investigative Service. Chrysler Corporation security assisted in the investigation.

Group offers Main St. suggestions

BY T.M. SMITH

Plymouth's "Main Street Committee," formed in November to study last summer's cruising and loitering problems, has turned in a final report to the city manager.

In a weird twist, the completion of that report might have been timed perfectly, as last weekend a flyer circulated through the area announcing a planned "cruise" for later this month in Plymouth.

The organizers of this latest effort are unknown, but the leaders of a group called the Plymouth Cruisers say they have nothing to do with this planned event, and are denouncing the cruise.

Members of the Plymouth Cruisers, a group which was formed last fall, were active last summer and organized the cruise in July.

One member, however, says this effort is ill advised.

Val Johnson, a member of the Plymouth Cruisers said: "This is really going to start the summer off bad, I'm just hoping it will snow that day," she said.

If the Mega Cruise, as the flyer labels the event, happens as planned March 28 then the recommendations of the 12-member committee will be tested.

Paul Sincock, who served as the city administration advisor on the committee, said the group spent several months of research and study before a consensus was reached.

"I believe the report we have outlined is a compromise between what two sides wanted," Sincock said.

He said the committee consisted of business people, students, police and residents who worked through four meetings and, "went through some interesting discussions." Sincock and the committee in its report stressed that the recommendations were suggestions to look at, and were not offered as City Manager Henry Graper said he thought the report was well put together, and a great deal of it would probably be implemented.

"I haven't gone over it with all the department heads, but on the whole it looks very good, and I think it will probably be followed very closely," he said.

"We have to have some kind of a plan, and this is definitely a step in the right direction."

Others, however, do not look at the report as a positive move.

Johnson, who sat in on the last meeting of the committee, said she thought the recommendations were one-sided.

"I was disappointed. They call it a mutual agreement, but from what I witnessed, everything that was done, was done to prevent people from going up town," Johnson said.

"I got the impression that they (the committee) thought we wanted to take over downtown, we don't want that at all," she said.

Many of the "preventatives" Johnson spoke of include a recom-

Experts' testimony will decide Holbrook's fate

BY KEN VOYLES

Darol Wayne Holbrook, convicted murderer of Janet Reynolds, will go free in June if Wayne County Assistant Prosecutor Robert Agacinski is unable to cross a "scientific threshold" and force a new trial.

That was 35th District Court Judge James Garber's ruling Friday after hearing oral arguments from both Agacinski and Holbrook's attorney Craig Daly.

Holbrook, who is serving his sentence at Kinross Correctional Facility, was not at the hearing due to "missing paperwork," said Daly. Following his hearing before the State Court of Appeals, Holbrook was sent back to Kinross.

Daly said he should have remained at the Wayne County Jail.

"I want him brought back down here in June," said Garber. "We can't do anything without him here."

Garber set June 1 and 2 aside to hear further arguments from Agacinski and Daly. The prosecutor said he would bring in expert witnesses in an attempt to prove that a blood typing test, serological electrophoresis, is indeed admissible in the Holbrook case.

Daly will also be provided with expert witnesses, said Garber.

"This could turn into a battle of experts," said Daly.

If Agacinski is able to cross the scientific threshold, as Garber called it, Holbrook will be remanded for a new trial. If not the Wyandotte man will be set free.

"I'm arguing the court should reaffirm its decision to bond over the defendant for a new trial," Agacinski said. "I'd argue there is enough evidence to show probable cause he's involved in the death of Janet Reynolds."

"I'd submit," said Daly, "that without the electrophoresis evidence there is insufficient evidence to bring him back to trial."

"I was satisfied the elements for a trial were there originally," Garber said. "I see no reason to decide any differently today."

Much of Friday's hearing centered on blood and sperm evidence used during the original trial as well as links which placed Holbrook and Reynolds together sometime shortly before she was murdered.

Among Agacinski's witnesses in June will be Dr. Charles Barna, a Michigan State Police lab specialist who testified at the original trial.

Chuhran protests meeting

BY DAN NESS

Canton Clerk Linda Chuhran has formally requested the Wayne County Prosecuting Attorney's office to investigate a closed meeting the board of trustees held which she believes was held illegally.

Chuhran filed for an action for injunction relief against Supervisor James Poole, and trustees Robert Padget, Stephen Larson, Loren Bennett and John Preniczky, for holding a closed meeting March 3.

In her complaint, Chuhran charged the board members with "knowingly and intentionally breaking the law with total disrespect by holding, scheduling, participating in, and attending an illegal closed meeting, which places the Township Board and residents of the community in an unreasonable, unnecessary and reckless position toward potential litigation."

According to Chuhran, the reasons for the closed meeting were not posted in advance and Poole distributed meeting materials to the board members regarding the closed session.

Chuhran also said that neither a roll call vote nor a motion for a closed meeting was made at the prior meeting.

The meeting was held to discuss a legal opinion from the state attorney general's office regarding the taking of official minutes at board meetings, according to Poole.

Residents question DDA's effect on schools

BY KEN VOYLES

Three concerned residents spoke before the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education Monday requesting the board and the district administration take a serious look at possible tax revenue loss if the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) is expanded in the City of Plymouth.

Stella Green, of Plymouth, asked, "How will this impact on the district financially?"

John Moehle, a former board member, said any additional revenues from the DDA would go right back into that area and could be considered "diverted" taxes.

"The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools have always excelled in large part due to sound fiscal planning," said Moehle. "Failure to act against these tax diversions may encourage further expansion of the development area."

Bill McAninch said the new DDA move is the third such amendment to the original plan and that a fourth one was in the works.

"It's an additional 34 lots and that means a substantial diversion," he said. "And the DDA is unending, there is no end date on the plan."

Superintendent John M. Hoben said the district had no legal basis to fight the DDA.

"We have made our position clear" to city officials, he said. "We do not support their issue."

"We've been silent on this because we have no legal right to restrain such actions," said Board President E.J. McClendon.

Hoben said any "ballpark figure" on how much the district might lose in tax revenue would be "speculative at best."

Fest parade set for June

The Canton Country Festival parade is back.

The festival committee has invited Gov. James Blanchard to be the grand marshal for the parade, which was not held last year.

The theme of the parade is "150 Years of Michigan Statehood." It is scheduled for Saturday, June 13 at 11 a.m.

Those interested in joining the parade should call Jan Hoffman at 455-9424 for more information.

about it," he said.

Daskalakis said afterwards, "Apparently the board is unanimously against us."

The local store owner said her group, Citizens For Better Education, would "lay low for a while," but that the district could expect further appeals and requests for resource materials review in the future.

"We'll continue to appeal and hopefully open their eyes," she said.

Daskalakis said she would be talking to her legislative representatives as well as consider a court challenge.

Before the meeting an American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) representative said the ACLU would challenge the district in court if the film "The Breakfast Club" was not released for use.

Local residents also had a final chance to speak to the issue Monday before the board entertained motions on whether or not to deny the appeals.

"If you can't teach Christ you shouldn't be able to teach Satan in school," said Carolyn Goodwin.

Thomas Shipley said, "What is being presented to them (the students) behind those four walls? Will it help them? I don't think it will. We need to put a stop to the out of control situation we have and our moral standards."

Salem student Gary Vercruyse said, "We are taught when we watch things like 'The Breakfast Club' to look for both the good points and the bad points. We need a mixture of all views, not just certain views."

"I don't have to go into a pornographic bookstore to know its bad. You don't have to teach evil to know it's not right," said Mary Dodd.

Kathryn Thompson, a teacher at CEP, said, "The curriculum in our district is one of the most open. It's always been open to public scrutiny and these public challenges are important."

"We really need to learn and be complete people," said another Salem student, Kim Marley.

Soccer action returns at pumped up dome

Things are back to normal at the Canton Soccerdome.

The dome collapsed Feb. 8 after high winds caused a power outage in Canton, but just over a week later it was reinflated and games were in full swing again.

"The bulk of our problem repairing it was internal," said Bob Hope, manager of the dome. "We lost most of our lighting. We had to re-anchor the light bases and replace 75 per cent of the bulbs. That was the most expensive part."

Hope said the owner of the dome went ahead with repairs at his own expense while waiting for insurance assessments.

"We still haven't determined the exact cause for its deflation," said Hope.

According to Michael Gouin, superintendent of Canton's Parks and Recreation Department, about 30 soccer contests had to be postponed while repairs proceeded. Most of the games played at the dome are part of Canton's indoor leagues sponsored by the parks and recreation.

But the schedule is again in full swing with games slated every day, said Gouin.

The indoor season ends the last week of March. Outdoor soccer leagues will begin action the second week of April.

Hope said the entire dome would be shipped to New York City after the indoor season ends so that complete repairs can be made to both the interior and exterior.

"Most of the damage to the material came where it was in contact with the lighting or the boards," said Hope. "The material itself is very, very strong."

"We been pleased with our use of the dome," said Gouin. "And most of the people I've talked to are happy with it."

Atty. General: Names of reviewers not public if not written

The state attorney general's office recently ruled that the names of committee members serving on panels to review teaching materials in the Plymouth-Canton Schools are not public information if no documents exist with the names on them.

The Community Crier filed a Freedom of Information Act request with the attorney general's office on Nov. 14, after being refused names of review committee members by the P-C Schools administration. Supervisor John Hoben said the committees were formed over the phone, and that there was no paper document with the names on them before the committee report was finished.

In the opinion of the attorney general's office, the Freedom of Information Act "may be used to compel a public body to disclose information only if that information has been reduced to recorded form. Thus, if in fact the School District has not reduced the names of the members of its committee to recorded form, it would appear that the School District may not be compelled to provide such a document under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act."

Isbister Awards

Students in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools can enter the 1987 Isbister Awards Competition.

The art competition is sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council with funds from the Plymouth Rotary Club. The awards are named in honor of the late Russell Isbister, former superintendent of the school district.

A representative from the PCAC will pick up entries from each school in the district on March 18-19.

Art works will be judged the following week.

Interested students should contact their art teachers for contest details.

Extra milers

In a first for the district, the East Middle School principal and assistant principal were named "extra milers" at the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education meeting Monday.

Tom Workman, principal at East, began his career as a physical education teacher in 1960. By 1966 he had become principal at Smith Elementary School. He held that post until last year when he moved to East.

William Pearson, assistant principal at East, began his career in the district as a teacher at Pioneer Middle School in 1975. He taught at Eriksson Elementary as well before moving to East last fall.

Artrain is coming to Plymouth April 1-5. Join in the fun and excitement by entering the coloring contest. The official picture to be colored is printed above. The original drawing was done by Sue Konovaliv and her son Christopher. A $15 first prize will be awarded in all three age groups -- 3-5 years, 6-8 years, and 9-11 years. All entries are due by Friday, March 27 and will become the property of the Plymouth Community Arts Council. Entries may be submitted to: Plymouth Community Arts Council, 332 S. Main, Plymouth, Michigan 48170. Be sure to include a paper with your name, age, telephone number and address with your entry.

Schools: it's time to cool it

Two reasons for an editorial:

One, to loudly proclaim the community's pride in its school board of education for denying five appeals over teaching resources on Monday.

Two, we'd suggest all sides in the controversial teaching materials debate "lay low" for a while and let the issue cool off.

First the board.

The leaders of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools saw fit to back its review committees 100 per cent. It made the kind of statement needed to keep the district an open place of learning.

One could tell the board had a lot to get off its chest Monday night.

No doubt the seven member group was ready to come to grips with the issue long ago while month after month of debate ensued among community parents, students, teachers, and leaders.

We can only be proud the board took the kind of stand it did, fairly reviewing the five appeals and listening to all views on the issue.

The board also put the community on notice that it tolerates dissent among parents but that it objects to residents suggesting witchcraft and the occult are taught in the district.

As for cooling off what has been a hotly debated topic in this community for the past five months -- it won't be easy, but then again nothing ever is.

Still all sides should try to show restraint lest the issue creates a major rift in this community. But with an election coming up, it will be hard not to touch on the subject. It might even become the number one issue during the coming election.

Now's the time to get back to teaching our children and worrying about their day-to-day needs instead of being bogged down in the mire of illusionary discrimination and educational intolerance.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

With 2 school seats open, who's running?

The June school board election could be a very interesting one.

Now that's not hyperbole.

Just think about it.

There are two seats open -- both of which are being eyed by cohorts of that local woman fighting so-called Satanism is the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

To complicate matters the two incumbents -- Roland Thomas Jr. and Dean Swartzwelter -- have every intention of running again and retaining their seats.

It's still too early -- the filing deadline is April 6 -- but we could be in for quite a battle, especially since one of the major issues just might be what type of teaching resources we want to allow district instructors to use on a day-to-day basis at the high schools, middle schools and elementaries.

So who has filed so far?

Only incumbent Thomas, of Plymouth, has turned in petition signatures to officially put him on the ballot. Thomas, a former board president, has voted in 16 local elections since 1978.

In the margin

By Ken Voyles

Incumbent Swartzwelter, of Plymouth, said he would be taking out petitions very soon. He had not done so by press time.

"I should be in a position to turn in my petitions by the end of the month," said the board secretary at Monday's regular board meeting.

Two newcomers to the community -- their records do not show them having voted in the district -- have also taken out petitions.

They are Patricia Haggerty, of Plymouth, and Oda Katherine Birkett, of Plymouth.

Both are also recently registered voters having done so just last year.

And then there's the Citizens for Better Education group which is actively searching for two individuals to run for the board, according to Diane Daskalakis.

"We're trying to locate two individuals who will give us some representation on the board," she said Monday. "It's pretty apparent the current board is unanimously against us."

Daskalakis said she would run only in a "pinch." The local business owner vied for a school board spot in 1986 but lost.

And then there's always Joan Kotcher, Jerry Raymor, John Voymas, Richard Sumpter, Patricia Zagorski and Judith Lore. All have run for the board in the past and can be expected to consider doing so again.

And we can't forget scrappy Carol Levitte, who might run for anything at any time.

So expect a real dogfight for those two seats, but isn't that what America is all about?

Count on even more candidates coming out of the woodwork in the next couple of weeks.

Start watching the walls.

We are global even here

EDITOR:

Many thanks for your interest in Plymouth-Canton Community Education's bilingual and English as a Second Language Program at Starkweather.

We are proud that Plymouth-Canton Schools has initiated so many new and innovative programs to assist children and adults from over 28 different countries to become proficient in English. Because we are a global society interacting and sharing with others from so many countries, these kinds of programs are becoming increasingly important to our school district and to our community.

Your fine news article and Ken Voyle's touching feature column definitely helped inform the community of our unique classes and our unique students.

Although this topic of second language acquisition can be technical and laden with its own special jargon, you managed to grasp the basic elements of many complex programs, as well as to capture the spirit of our work with these young and adult students.

For your intelligent reporting and sensitivity to our multi-cultural students, we all thank you.

Community opinions

To the point

By Dan Ness

Opinions are to be shared.

Differing opinions can bring up points of argument not examined initially and shed light on neglected concerns. But, people can go about sharing their opinions in different ways, and not all of them are beneficial.

Anthony Stofa has an opinion he'd like to share regarding the state of today's American industry.

Stofa, a Plymouth resident, had visited several times with a lengthy letter outlining his position on world trade and how the United States had fallen behind in that competition.

We didn't run his letter in these opinions pages because the topic wasn't local enough. Yes, foreign trade affects people in The Plymouth-Canton Community just as other world and national issues also have an impact on us, but our policy is to run strictly-local content letters.

Stofa, who feels very strongly that foreign trade has undercut American industry, was disappointed, and still is.

Flag is ad

EDITOR:

Have you noticed the oversized flag on the high flagstaff on Ann Arbor Road just east of Sheldon? Plymouth Township had a good ordinance limiting the height and setback of such structures. This ordinance was intended to keep the township free of objectionable signs etc. This is one of the ways used to keep township as a model for the others to follow as signs, billboards, etc. do not add anything good to the environment.

Well, the owner took the township to court and the township was forced to capitulate to a certain degree. This cost both sides a lot of money for lawyers' fees.

As I recall the owner claimed it was his way of proclaiming his intense patriotism. Well, if this was his feeling, one does not need one this size. A standard size as shown by other merchants should suffice. Also, if he feels overly patriotic, why does he leave it up 24 hours a day, including nighttime? This is not protocol on public buildings and in our armed forces.

This flag can be seen a quarter-mile away. It distracts drivers' attention from their driving especially at Ann Arbor Road and Sheldon, a deadly intersection.

In my opinion, this is strictly an advertisement aimed at producing more dollars.

For the benefit of one person, the entire community must suffer the effects. It boils down to a matter of ethics.

FRANK MILLINGTON

Stofa's main concern is the competition from overseas. The Japanese have "invaded" the U.S. automobile industry, he says. In his opinion, what this country needs to do is to "put its shoulder to the grindstone," and produce quality goods.

Stofa has turned the sharing of his opinions into a small crusade. Whether or not you agree with every claim in his detailed argument, you can't question his sincerity.

He's also confident enough in his own character to stand behind his opinions, which isn't true for everyone.

Take last week's issue of The Crier, for an example. A letter writer, who requested that his or her name be withheld and was wrongly granted the request, stated that Diane Daskalakis should "stay home and clean her oven." The meek commentator also opined that The Crier was "playing into her hands" by putting her name in the paper too often.

First of all, the letter should have never appeared, in this paper or any newspaper. It was a cheap shot that had no redeeming value in raising the level of discussion regarding the issue of teaching materials in our schools. This newspaper, better known for not "playing into the hands" of anyone, was blatantly used by this person.

It's too bad the person is ashamed to hold such an opinion as was printed last week. He or she could learn something from Anthony Stofa in that area.

Which brings me to the last example of an opinion shared. This caller wanted to know if we'd run a weekly question-and-answer column, covering topics of general interest.

No, she was told, but was there a specific question we could help answer? Yes, she replied, she wanted to know at what altitude Plymouth was from sea level. (It's 730 feet above sea level, if you're measuring at the center line of Main Street in front of the Plymouth Landing, according to Bob Roskelly, the surveyor.

But the lady was adamant. The Crier should have a question-and-answer column each week, she said.

She said she'd give us a couple of weeks to think about it. But, she warned, if we decided not to run the column, she'd take matters into her own hands using the best method she knew -- a letter to The Crier.

"If you don't, I'll write you a letter telling everyone what a good idea it is and that you're not going to do it," she warned.

She sounded very serious. And no, I didn't get her name.

DDA expansion wrong

EDITOR:

This is a letter to the editor and to thank Dennis Bila for keeping us in touch with the "going-ons" in Plymouth by sending us occasional copies of The Crier. Our hiatus has taken us from small town Plymouth of 10,000 to Sao Paulo, Brazil of 17 million. What a change and differences in the kinds of problems that confront cities.

I read with interest your Feb. 11 issue of The Crier relative to the expansion of the Downtown Development Authority particularly the area proposed to include Bob Bake's real estate office on Ann Arbor Trail and a few other properties west of Harvey. The city administration proposed the same thing while I was mayor and it was rejected. I understand the proposal was rejected this time as it should be. I was and still am a proponent of the DDA we established, which originally had a boundary roughly the same as proposed for the loop road or as Mary Childs would say, "The Surrey Trail." In any case, I believe that a development takes place adjacent to the DDA, then it is wise to take it into the DDA because as Hank Graper knows and rightly so, it becomes a tax bonanza for the city -- business and residents alike.

But to expand the DDA without the development sends wrong signals. It says the city wants expansion of commercial development and endangers residential neighborhoods and the stability to the city that is necessary to maintain the desirability of Plymouth as a great place to live.

So you see, perceptions are more important than facts. To the extent Bob Bake wants to put in an office building, he needs no DDA to do so, and the normal Planning Commission process with the appropriate zoning conditions, etc. will dictate whether such a development should and will take place. A DDA expansion offers no real justification for or against it other than creating expectations that such a development should occur. If it does occur and the proper procedures are followed, then the city should expand the DDA to include the development, but after not before.

My vision of what should happen around the CBD is high density housing, which seems to be occurring. This would not only enhance the business within the CBD, but would provide an appropriate buffer to single family residential. Mayor Robinson and the City Commissioners that made the decision were correct.

Well it's hardly appropriate for a former Mayor to get this involved being nearly 5,000 miles away, but Plymouth is still our home and we'll be back.

Pssst!

Want to buy a pig in a poke?

This is a special deal open to Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce members only.

Yes, that's right. The chamber -- where one would expect to turn for aid with less-than-forthright business practices -- is offering its members a less-than-forthright deal.

Recently the chamber received a windfall. The benefactors who had owned the former chamber "house" on Main Street forgave the note, leaving the business organization with a valuable piece of property.

Then the chamber sold the house. Offices were moved into a rented location.

But, for some reason, the chamber officials are reluctant to tell the members how much money was made on the sale. (Sam Florek, chamber prez, says they don't want to reveal what the buyer paid.)

Who are the chamber officers working for?

To add insult to the injury, the chamber has sent out ballots to its members asking them to vote to tie up the money for future housing costs of the chamber. That's a well-intended idea, but the amount of money netted might have some impact on how a chamber member might feel on the matter.

So the chamber wants its members to vote on tying up $XXX,XXX.XX without knowing the amount. Besides wanting that question answered, another question is raised:

Has a chamber of commerce ever been turned in to the Better Business Bureau?

At facevalue

Check your emotions at door

As a general rule, reporters and government officials have an adversarial relationship. It's not that we don't get along, it's just that the system is set up so that we clash.

What newspapers generally like to write about, the government suitcoats don't generally like to see on newsprint.

For that reason, it isn't too often the grassroots reporter sides with the men and women at city hall. (It's just so embarrassing to admit they can actually be right about things.)

Now is one of those times when I'll stand behind city hall.

Even more uncommon than standing behind city hall, is when a reporter decides to pick on the general public. I figure life is hard enough without the press hounding John Q. Citizen.

But, there is a lesson to be learned from all this explanatory rhetoric.

It concerns people who bring complaints to government bodies.

Recently the city fielded several long meetings in reference to the proposed expansion of the Downtown Development Authority. Many residents were concerned about the expansion of the DDA, and brought that concern to the meeting.

Many stood, and addressed the commission with these concerns and made a great deal of sense. These people had sound, valid arguments that raised several interesting questions.

Unfortunately, there were some people who stood and hurt their cause more than they helped it.

Everyone who showed up at the meeting was concerned, and I don't mean to pick on people for saying what they believe -- but the fact of the matter is many took one step back for every step forward.

The people who helped the cause against the expansion were the ones who addressed their concerns in a concise straightforward manner.

The people who did not help the cause were the ones who restated what was already said, and went further in an attempt to publically embarrass and criticize the commission and administration.

While I'll never shy away from criticizing those who are wrong, (especially in big bad government) I know enough about human nature not to do it while I'm asking for something.

Standing and wagging a finger at the commission table, threatening recall and name calling does little to change minds.

From an insider's standpoint, I honestly believe if the people had been organized, and approached the commission as a group with a well designed plan -- there were enough commissioners who had questions of their own who could have been convinced to vote against the DDA.

But the people did not do that, and the DDA passed.

I might suggest people leave their emotions in check when issues like this come up. Outline a speech, and elect a spokesperson to speak for the group. Someone who can calmly state the reasons and rebuff excuses.

People should go in a group to show support, have some kind of packet or outline to show the commission and then say what needs to be said.

It looks like the DDA has passed, and there might not be much that can be done about that now.

There will be issues in the future, however, where citizens will want to voice an opinion. I suggest when that happens that the people organize.

City hall can beat folks, you just gotta know how to do it.

Am I unknowing?

EDITOR:

I am a junior at Salem High School. I attended a private Catholic school for five years. It was there that I first learned of Darwinism. I find it odd that an insitution solely based on upholding my religion would fill my education with an undermining message that would in anyway corrupt my faith. I am insulted by the whole concept of Dianysim.

I am not trying to degrade Daskalakis. I understand her views, I am open to exposure to her ideas, and I can accept what she interprets as her truth and ideals. My education taught me that. But I do not believe in her cause, because my own opinion of the education process is too strongly opposed to it.

The same holds true with my religion. If, as she stated, the majority of our school population is Christian, then that same majority involved in classroom discussion can be strong enough to hold true to the beliefs they have been committed to without having to shut out all other possibilities.

In making their recently-distributed fund-raising brochure, did the Citizens for Better Education consider this in their fight for my rights at school if I am an atheist, do I therefore have the power to ban all Christian materials? There is obviously the question of the American hope for freedom at stake. We are guaranteed liberty and justice for all, not just the majority. Aside from the "objectionable" materials, students are also exposed, in classes such as humanities, to the Christian Bible and Jewish rituals.

So what is Daskalakis' true cause? Whose name is she uplifting -- mine in helping me to become ignorant to existing realities, or her own in being what she sees as a savior to the poor unknowing children of our community (while earning a suggested donation of $10)?

Am I one of these unknowing children who does not have enough sense to be educated by a teacher who will guide my knowledge? Rather, should I go out and discover foul language and other such evils on my own with no understanding of right and wrong?

The son of my Christian God, Jesus Christ, tells me that if I ignore everything else He teaches, above all I should love my neighbor as myself. In His example, my God loves me because of what I stand for and believe in. If I am only exposed to Christianity, how can I love my neighbor without the understanding of what he stands for and believes in as his truth?

There is a time and a place for everything. I go to church to share in my God. In school, I do not forget or abandon my God. I am learning to use my education to expand my personal meaning of life. Who is to say that God did not create man through the evolution process? This is for me to decide on my own. And I consider myself (for some insane reason) to be wise enough to judge the rights, wrongs, and reasons in my life without being spoon-fed it by someone who has already had her chance to decide.

I hope Daskalakis can appreciate my ideas without preparing a defense. I believe that the role of the family in our community has not lost its influence on education to the point where I, as a student, need an outsider of another denomination to teach me only what she wants me to learn.

NANCY REKUC

Will we sit idly by?

EDITOR:

Yes, children are not unlike monkeys in many areas. Monkeys are greatly affected by what their environment exposes them to.

In many primate species, monkeys spend much of their time in a play group consisting of other infants and juveniles. Within this group, young primates practice and imitate the behavior they will be exposed to.

Are experiments being undertaken in our Plymouth-Canton schools, with the exposure of R-rated movies of poor taste to children to prove the above theory?

Will we as parents and citizens stand idly by and twiddle our thumbs when this viewing of pornography and witchcraft excels in our children's classroom at school?

What form of material will be deemed acceptable by our children's overseers next? Hardcore pornography or demonstrations of various techniques of Russian Roulette?

We, The Citizens for Better Education aren't intending or expecting to turn the public schools into monasteries, or not even to burst into roaring flames with the outpouring of Holy Ghost revival. We are simply putting the pressure on because the situation has gotten out of balance.

We would like to see a few adjustments to further the improvement of a quality education at our schools.

Will showing witchcraft practices make our kids all turn to witchcraft? I doubt it.

Will these types of viewings insure a better, more responsible type of graduate in the years to come?

Let's be real, these movies are inappropriate. At least the movies I saw in school taught me to stay away from hungry bears in the wilderness.

Are we taking a chance that these viewings could harm any child who would watch them?

Jesus said that it would be better for a man if a millstone were tied to his neck and he was dropped into the depths of the sea, rather than offending one of his little ones.

Let's get it into balance.

Community opinions

Can you afford to remain ignorant?

EDITOR:

I am a newcomer to The Plymouth-Canton Community and have read with great interest many of the recent "community opinions" which deal with censorship and the educating of our youth. Working as an educator and counselor at the college level, I also am deeply concerned about the development of our young people.

There is no doubt that there is a diversity of opinions concerning the quality of films, books and the variety of religious beliefs represented in our school system. Although we can never come to perfect agreement on any given idea or issue it is imperative that we make the needs of our youth a priority. On this we must agree! We as adults have failed miserably in educating ourselves to the realities of the forces influencing our youth in today's society. We have become so caught up in our own careers, pursuits and goals that the most critical issues have gone unnoticed.

Do you think it is an accident that in many school systems great emphasis is placed on receiving written permission from the parents so a student may take a bus trip and these same school systems want to give the students contraceptives without parent permission? Do you ever question why our schools will tolerate the teaching of Eastern religions, promote the ideology of secular humanism and teach occult practices but will not mention the Christian religions?

Do you find it interesting that the schools want to push for more and more sex education but are not willing to even mention that some of believe that there should be a consideration of values in our sexual lives? Let me suggest to you that it is no accident that our education has become increasingly valueless. I wonder why the theme of the occult, witchcraft and sorcery is so prominent in the films shown in the Plymouth-Canton school system. I wonder why we call films educational that portray sexual immorality as the norm, drinking and drug use as standard, and are full of gutter-level language.

Take a close look at what is happening to our young people. There are more teenage unwed mothers than ever before in history, the suicides among young people continue to climb at an alarming rate and there is a definite increase in the alcohol and drug abuse in the community of youth. These are undisputed facts.

Censorship is treated like a dirty word but if we are honest with ourselves we find that we use censorship in our lives every day. Do you let your children read any book or magazine they want to or do you permit them to see any movie they wish to see? My contention is that through gradual exposure we now accept things readily which at one time would have shocked us. It is our right to determine what our children are taught, not the determination of a select few.

It is your job and responsibility to know and understand what your children are being exposed to. The greatest danger is ignorance. My challenge to you is to understand the "religion of secular humanism" and to know how this thinking has to influence today's teaching methods. The secular humanists have a clearly defined manifesto and goal in mind. Can you afford to remain in ignorance?

Snow White a success

EDITOR:

The Plymouth branch of AAUW wishes to express their appreciation for the help your staff gave to make our annual play, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," such a success. Each performance was sold out!

It involved much time and effort, but all seemed worthwhile when the one little guy, three or four years old, looked up with a smile and said, "This is the best play I've ever seen in my whole life!"

Thanks again to all the people who participated in so many different ways and to the community for supporting us.

Biberdorf wins bee

Bibliopege, pagoda spell for success

Lynn Biberdorf, a student at Plymouth Christian Academy, won the 1987 regional spelling bee at Lawrence Institute of Technology last week for students in grades six through eight.

Biberdorf, 13, won the competition when she corrected the spelling for the word bibliopege and then correctly spelled the word pagoda.

The student bested 27 other spellers from 27 schools in southeast Michigan. Five other local students competed including Jason Miller, Ericka Mac, Rachel Kraus, John Goodwin and Becki Bucchieri.

"I froze in surprise," Lynn said after winning the competition on March 4 and earning the right to participate in the state finals on April 7. If she wins there Biberdorf will get a chance to participate in the nationals in late May.

"I have a lot words to learn," said the PCA student, who said she likes to read a lot and find out what all the words mean. "So I look them up and learn how to spell them too."

The young Biberdorf works with her mother practicing for spelling competitions. "She reads the words to me and I spell them," Lynn said.

Last week's spelling bee was one of the longest on record, according to a contest spokesperson Bud Stapleton. It lasted nearly two hours, he said.

The eyes have it

The Plymouth Lions Club recently donated a state-of-the-art photokeratoscope for the Michigan Eye Bank Research Center. The Research Center has turned the instrument over to the Corneal Section of the W.K. Kellogg Center. The photokeratoscope is an instrument which inspects the curvature of a recently transplanted cornea and enables the surgeon to adjust the stitches to eliminate astigmatism. Only a very few of the very best corneal transplant centers in the country have such a device. Long-time member Noble Stormont wanted to help by donating this machine to the MEB. The Plymouth Lions Club is matching his generous doantion by purchasing a computer program to enhance the photokeratoscope. Pictured above, L-R, is Richard Fuller, Director of MEB; Philip Himebaugh, President of Plymouth Lions Club; William Baxter, Immediate Past President; Noble Stormont, and Dr. Roger F. Meyer, M.D.

Main St. suggestions issued by committee

mentation for a residents only parking ban on some side streets, with resident approval; a parking plan for businesses that close in the early evening; a 'no left turn' on Byron Street; a revised 'trespassing' ordinance in place of 'loitering' and also recommended the removal of some benches along Main Street.

One of the recommendations the committee sent, was the use of "firm, fair consistent 24-hour enforcement of traffic laws" by the Plymouth Police.

The report stated that this input was gained directly from presentations at the high school, where students presented concerns on this issue.

Another major change suggested in the report, was for a change in the 'loitering' ordinance used last summer to a more enforceable 'trespassing' ordinance.

This suggestion would effectively eliminate the warning used by police last summer before a citation was issued. This summer the police will issue citations for trespassing, which Sincock says will require less police time and allow for easier prosecution.

The committee also recommended that a study of 'leisure time needs' of young people should be looked into in a cooperative effort with Plymouth City, and the townships of Canton and Plymouth.

The members of the Main Street Committee support the following approaches to working with the gathering/cruising situation in Plymouth:

- Increase traffic enforcement as much as possible, but enforcement should stress the theme of firm, fair, consistent enforcement for persons of all ages.
- Continue the use of a semi-marked police unit (56) to assist in traffic enforcement.
- Install trash cans along the Main Streets of Plymouth, be sure that these cans are installed along Main Street between Ann Arbor Trail and Ann Arbor Road.
- Have work detail from 35th District Court assist in keeping the Main Street area free of litter.
- Local News Media should be encouraged to research and publish a "young persons activity list" on a regular basis.
- The Notice of Warning issued to first time suspects of loitering/trespassing program be discontinued.
- Adopt a residential only parking program between the hours of 7:00 or 8:00 PM and 3:00 AM. Provided that at least 60% of the properties on a block sign requesting the ban.
- A further study of the leisure time needs of persons between the ages of 15 - 21 be conducted by a community wide agency. (This is not just a City of Plymouth problem)
- Install a No Left Turn 7:00 PM to 1:00 AM sign on southbound Main at Byron.
- Change the timing of the traffic light at Main/Wing.
- Remove any public benches from the main streets of the City.
- Develop some type of loitering program from the sidewalk areas.
- Do NOT adopt an anti-cruising type of ordinance at this time.
- Maximize the limited resources of the Police Department though the scheduling process.

Victory makes it Salem 3, Canton 0

BY MARTY TUNGATE

The third time wasn't the charm for the Canton Chiefs, as the Salem Rocks dumped their rival, 71-63, in the opening round of district basketball action Monday night.

As the game began it appeared the fans were going to see a carbon copy of the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) championship game. Both teams started a little sluggish and neither team could get into the game.

The Chiefs were playing the highly rated Rocks tough, as they applied full court pressure the entire game.

"Our kids gave a heck of an effort," Canton's head coach Tom Niemi said.

Both teams were in foul trouble early on in the contest, as the officials called a tight game. The Rocks and the Chiefs were in the bonus with the score only 4-2 in favor of Canton in the first quarter.

Canton's full court pressure began to lift the Chiefs to a marginal lead as Brad Carey launched some bombs from the outside which hit the mark. But a late first quarter spurt by the Rocks tied the game at 12.

With Salem down 18-16 midway through the second quarter senior co-captain Mike Hale caught fire and scored six straight points, to aid the Rocks to a four point margin.

The rival schools traded blows throughout the second quarter, while the starters from both squads got into foul trouble. Rick Taylor of Salem collected his third personal foul with 2:15 left before the intermission, while Tyrone Reeves, and Mike LaSota, from Canton also picked up their second personal fouls in the second quarter.

The teams continued to battle until half time, as Salem took a slim 30-26 lead into the lockerroom.

Only one minute and thirty seconds into the second half Taylor was called for his fourth foul, and one minute and seven seconds after that Hale picked up his fourth.

That left Salem head coach Bob Brodie in bind, as his top scorers were sitting next to him on the bench for the remainder of the third quarter and most of the fourth quarter.

But Canton did not take advantage of the two Salem players' absence and stretch out a lead. The Chiefs did come up with an eight point swing in the third quarter as they took a four point lead going into the final quarter 50-46.

Salem slowly regained the lead as the Chiefs ran out of gas.

With 3:07 remaining in the contest Canton's Roger Trice hit a short jumper to tie it 60-60, but that was only Trice's second field-goal of the game.

Then it appeared Canton may take the lead on another of Salem's many turnovers, but they in turn turned the ball over back to Salem.

Then with 1:28 left in the game Salem held a tight two point lead. After a missed free throw by Tony Moore, Taylor, who had four fouls, got in between Trice and Jeff Anulewicz and ripped down the rebound. He then hit an easy lay-up, to give Salem a five point lead.

"That was the straw that broke the camel's back," said Niemi.

With just under a minute remaining Taylor fouled out for Salem, but the Rocks held off a late surge by the Chiefs to win the game by eight.

Salem was lead by Hale with 20 points while Jeff Justice also sparked the Rocks with 14 points.

Canton was lead by senior guard Reeves, who had 14 points, but Reeves also fouled out. Brad Carey wrapped up the Chiefs scoring as he pumped in Chief spikers a surprise, Rocks end season early

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

After a disappointing dual meet season, first year Canton volleyball coach Allie Suffety got a surprise Saturday at the district competition.

Canton, which did not have to compete in pre-district play, faced Ypsilanti in the first round of districts.

The Chiefs emerged from the match

Group ice skating lessons this spring

Registration for spring group ice skating lessons will be held tomorrow, Thursday, March 12 from 5:30-8 p.m. at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Fees for residents of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are $20, for Northville residents, $22, and for non-residents, $24.

Lessons are taught by a professional staff once a week for eight consecutive weeks. There are lessons for beginners, intermediate and advance skaters.

The minimum age is four years old.

Call the Recreation department at 455-6620 for more information.

victorious after winning both games 15-9 and 15-13.

Canton's second round district opponent was Westland John Glenn, and unfortunately for the Chiefs they could not match their play of the first round.

The squad lost by the scores of 15-5 and 15-9.

"The biggest surprise of the meet was freshman Susan Ferko, who played exceptionally," said Suffety.

Ferko has only played at the varsity level for a couple of tournaments.

"I was hoping for more wins this year, but I underestimated the talent in the league," Suffety said.

Some of the reasons for Cantons win over Ypsilanti in the first round of districts, according to Suffety, was strong serving. The Chiefs served for over 70 per cent.

Salem was not so lucky as to draw a bye in pre-districts. The Rocks faced Ann Arbor Huron and lost last week by scores of 15-13, 11-15, and 5-15.

The Rocks, according to Salem coach Betty Smith, "Were just trying to hard because of the district pressure."

"I think overall that was the worst serving game we've had," Smith said. "It was a disappointing season. We all expected to get more out of it."

The Rocks finished the season with a 8-18-3 dual meet season.

KATEY GILLES

Gilles qualifies for USGF tournament

Eight year old Plymouth resident Kately Gilles has qualified for the United States Gymnastics Federation, Class 3 state competition.

Gilles, who will be competing at states in April, is a third grade student at Our Lady of Good Council.

Gilles competes out of the Palastra club in Westland. She will be entered in the 12-year-old and under division.

Other local state qualifers from Palastra are 11-year old Kim Rennolds, Kathy Landini (who competes in the 12-14 age group), and Dawn Klee (who also competes in the 12-14 age group).

McSween leads Spartans

Don McSween, a Plymouth native, notched two assists Saturday as Michigan State University's varsity hockey squad won the Central Collegiate Hockey Association championship playoffs, 4-3, over Bowling Green.

The two assists give McSween 127 points for his career, tying an MSU record for points by a defenseman.

The senior defender, a graduate of Redford Catholic Central, was recently drafted by the Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League (NHL).

He has scored six goals and added 19 assists for 25 points in 39 games, not including Saturday's tournament triumph.

The Spartans, 30-9-2 overall this year, will enter the NCAA quarterfinals in two weeks. Pairings will be determined this week.

14 points.

"I'm very proud of these kids, they gave Salem a battle," Niemi said. Canton finishes the season at 11-7, while the Rocks up their record to 19-2.

"The game was called so tight that we had to adjust our game so dramatically that the kids could not adjust quickly enough leaving us in foul trouble," Brodie said.

Now that the Rocks have won such an emotional game against their rival the Chiefs, could there be a let down for a weaker Farmington team?

"I don't think there will be any let down after this game," Brodie added. "There's no time to boost, and no time to brag, it's tourney time and if you lose one your done."

The Rocks will face Farmington High at home in the district semi play-offs tonight, March 11 beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Old hat? Rivals battle 3 times this season

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Salem versus Canton.

The crowd packed into the Salem gym as the two fierce rivals warmed up on the court. The cheerleaders would yell and scream and the crowd noise would grow louder.

Sounds like a lot of fun.

And that's how you might think every game when Salem and Canton clash is like, but it wasn't even close to anything like the described statement above.

The Chiefs and the Rocks were meeting for the third time this season. One might expect a large, rowdy crowd, but Monday's first round district clash between these two rivals didn't bring the fans to their feet.

Why?

It was a big game, the Detroit newspapers were there, a local radio station from Ann Arbor came to tally notes on the game, and even college scouts could be spotted all over the gym.

But the game lacked that good old student body turnout. Oh sure there were students from both schools, but the numbers were small.

And yes the fans did make a little noise toward the end of the game, but it was nothing to write home about.

"I was disappointed to see so few students at the game," a scout from Siena Heights said.

The game was exciting, the players worked hard to stay alive in the tourney, and the game went right down to the wire. So why did this game feel like an ordinary game?

Noise, the place was simply too quiet.

"So Salem beat Canton again. This is getting old," one Canton fan said.

One couldn't even tell the crowd's reaction as they filed out of the gym.

Maybe these clashes between Salem and Canton are getting to be old hat.

That's almost too hard to believe.

Dameron, May both finish wrestling dreams

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Salem's wrestling varsity squad sent two of its grapplers to the Class A state meet Friday and Saturday, and, according to Rock head coach Ron Kruger, the guys didn't do as well as he had hoped.

"I would have liked to have seen our kids do better, but the competition was tough," Krueger said.

Dennis Dameron and Sean May were the two hopefuls for the Rocks seeking to bring home a state title, but the closest either of them came was a third place finish.

Dameron wrestled in the 126-pound weight class, and came up with a third place finish.

Dameron lost to Ken Allison of Grand Ledge for third place, while Marc Smith from Holt captured the state crown.

May didn't fair as well as Dameron. May lost his first two matches at 112 pounds, but turned the second match into a dogfight.

May came back to take his opponent to an 8-8 tie before losing it by one point, 9-8, in the late going of the last round.

"This was the toughest state meet I have ever seen," Krueger said.

The Rocks finished their season with a 12-2 dual meet season.

"There were good and bad moments this season," Krueger said. "In the beginning we weren't sure how good we could be, but we did well. But I would have rather seen the younger kids do better in the tournament."

In the past the Rocks have qualified underclassmen to the state meet, but this year was the exception.

"Next year we will have no experience in the state meet, which will make it difficult for the boys," Krueger said.

Next year the Rocks will have the a squad strong in seniors, which Krueger has wanted and worked for all year.

But will they be able to have the success of the past teams at Salem?

"Yes," said the veteran coach. "If the boys work hard during the summer we could have a fine season next year."

Rocks 2nd, Canton 4th at gymnastics finals

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

It was no surprise to anyone that the North Farmington Raiders finished first in the Western Lakes Activities Associations (WLAA) league meet Thursday.

As for the second place team spot it was up for grabs between the Salem Rocks, and the Westland John Glenn Rockets.

By the time it was over Salem was in second place, beating out Glenn, 130.7 to 126.1. North won it by compiling a team total of 138.3.

Jackie Huff was one of the reasons for the Rocks impressive performance.

Huff started off the day capturing a fourth place finish in the vaulting competition. Dana Holda was the other Rock finisher in the vault with a seventh place finish.

Huff also finished strong on the uneven bars with a second place finish, scoring 8.8. Becky Talbot was right behind Huff on the uneven bars with a score of 8.7.

It was again Huff who led the Rocks on the beam finishing seventh with a score of 8.0.

Talbot tumbled her way to a fourth place finish in the floor exercise with the score of 8.65. Huff was next for the Rocks with a sixth place finish and a score of 8.5.

The two seniors - Huff and Talbot - also produced strong scores in the all-around competition. Huff was third individually with the score of 34.05, while Talbot finished sixth with the score of 32.75.

"We didn't do as well as I thought we would," Salem coach Kathy Kinsella said after the league meet on Thursday.

The 8-3 Rocks next tumbling block is the Class A regional meet on Saturday, March 14 in Adrian, MI.

"We know its going to be tough," Kinsella said. "I'm betting we'll finish in the top three."

Junior baseball league registration

Fees range from $20 to $30 per individual. There is also a family plan available for $70.

Managers and coaches are needed also this year and anyone interested in umpiring must register with the league on the 21st or the 28th.
