Local men make history in Civil War

P-C soldiers' hallowed hour

BY KEN VOYLES

This day -- the first of July, 124 years ago -- at the Battle of Gettysburg, men of the 24th Michigan Volunteer Infantry Regiment proved they were truly one of the finest volunteer Union regiments of the Civil War.

It was the unit's hallowed hour, a glorious moment in history, glorious but so very costly. Most of the regiment's 496 men were killed or wounded on the first day of fighting at Gettysburg.

The 24th has the dubious honor of having suffered more casualties -- 80 per cent -- than any of the 400 Union regiments in action at Gettysburg. Less than 100 men were fit for battle after the first day of fighting.

Men from Plymouth and Canton formed the core of the regiment's Company C. They had been recruited little more than a year earlier on the Village Green (now Kellogg Park) in downtown Plymouth.

They were volunteers, every one of them.

Many were farmers, others ran shops or worked as common laborers. Altogether 68 came from Plymouth, seven from Canton and eight from Salem Township. Fifteen other Plymouth-Canton men enlisted in other companies of the 24th.

Two of the young community's finest soldiers -- Winfield Scott Safford and Lucius "Lute" Shattuck -- were killed on that day rallying the men of Company C at a deadly place known as McPherson's Ridge.

Less than a month earlier Shattuck, a farmer from Plymouth, had written to his mother: "How I would like to get out where there were flowers and out of sight of so many soldiers."

Shattuck was 26 and a second lieutenant when he was killed at Gettysburg.

Safford, a first lieutenant born in Canton but living in Plymouth before his enlistment, was just 22 when he was killed on that first day.

His brother, Joseph Safford, was also a member of Company C. He lived through that first day of fighting and survived the war to return to Canton to farm.

In a letter to Safford's other brother, R.C. Safford, Sgt. Augustus Pomeroy, a former farmer from Salem, passed on the painful news:

"...your brother behaved most splendidly. He fell at the head of his

Legion, Kiwanis send boy stater to MSU

The American Legion Passage-Gayde Post 391, with the support of the local Kiwanis Clubs, is sponsoring five boys to the 50th anniversary of its "Boys State" program to be held at Michigan State University this weekend.

The students are John Shevlin, Daniel Ream, James Lee, Scott Mueller and Robert Prince. Attending the "Girls State" program at Central Michigan University is Christine Boak.

The programs give students a hands-on experience of the democratic process of government works by campaigning for offices on state, county and city levels.

Former Plymouth man convicted on 29 counts

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

A former Plymouth man has been convicted in Pensacola, FL on 29 counts including: racketeering; manufacturing, transporting and selling obscene materials; and sexual activity with children.

Michael P. Haggerty, 34, was found guilty last Wednesday of the charges by a jury of four women and two men who deliberated for less than one day after a two-day trial in Escambia Circuit Court. Haggerty left the Plymouth area three years ago after serving as sales director of the Plymouth Hilton, advertising director of The Community Crier, and as chairman of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce annual dinner which featured John Dean as the keynote speaker.

Haggerty was arrested Dec. 12 after a 14-year-old boy told Pensacola police that he had had a sexual affair with the man and had been involved in making sexually explicit photos, police said. According to police records, Haggerty's personal effects were seized and found to contain a computer data base of participants and purchasers for obscene materials.

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry, who reviewed the computer files and other information with Pensacola police, said there were no apparent connections or pornographic activities while Haggerty was in the Plymouth area.

The jury also found Haggerty innocent of seven counts of selling obscene matter and one count of sexual activity with a child, according to court officials.

Sentencing was set for July 21 by Circuit Court Judge Ben Gordon and could range up to life imprisonment.

Haggerty's attorney, Toni Stitt, declined to comment on the case until sentencing was completed.

She did, however, say that her client denied having sexual relations with the 14-year-old. Haggerty did not take the stand in his defense.

Flood victims seek answers

BY DAN NESS

Canton residents hit by flooding on June 21 have finished disinfecting their basements, but now want action from the township to prevent the problem from happening again.

The flooding problems were to have been discussed at last night's Board of Trustees meeting.

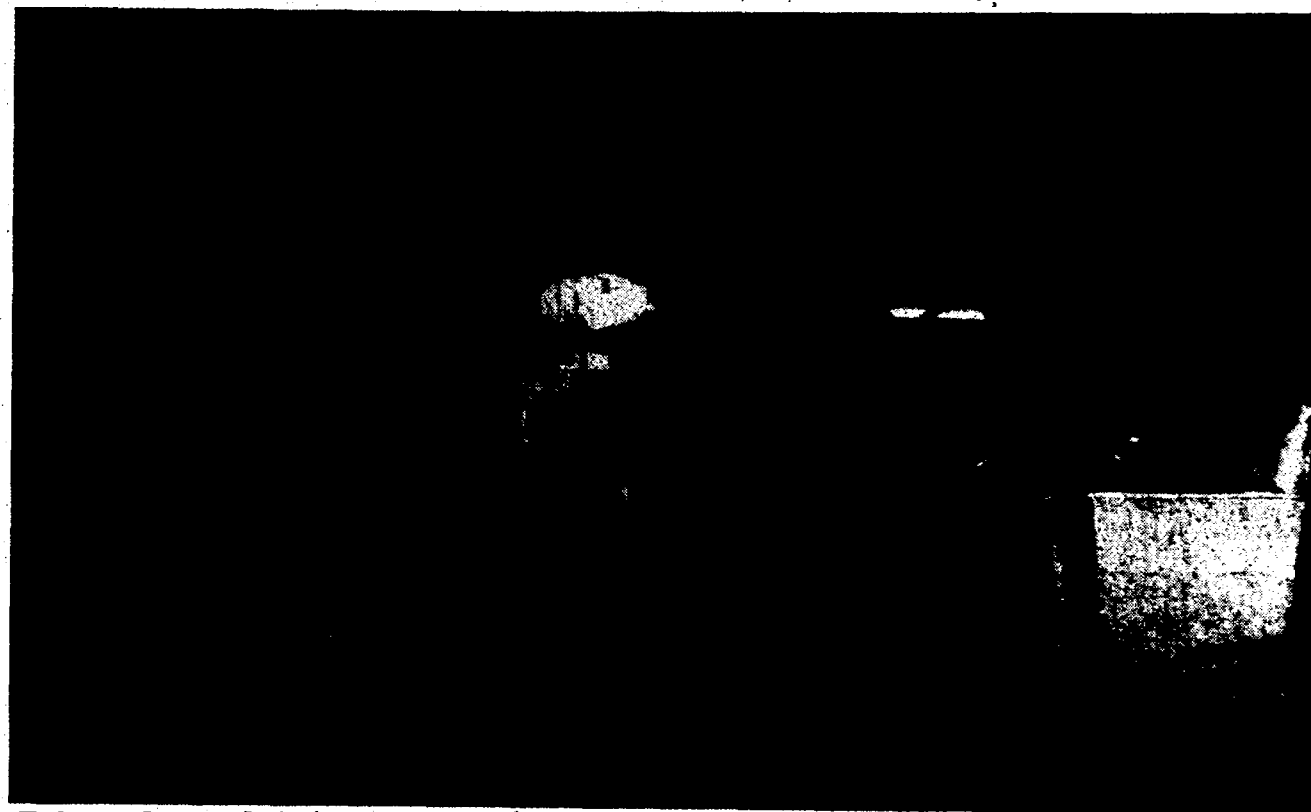

Several homes in the subdivisions between Ford and Joy roads had flooded basements during and after the June 21 downpour, and many residents said they had been told by township officials after the 1979 flooding problems that this wouldn't happen again. A letter directed to Supervisor James Poole was circulated and signed by more than 50 Windsor Park residents asking for action to remedy the situation.

When the heavy rains hit Canton on June 21, the residents' sewer systems backed up into their basements, reaching average depths of more than seven inches in Windsor Park.

"There is no solution to what happened, period," Poole said. "If there's something to alleviate the flooding, that's what we're looking at right now." Poole said many of the houses hit by flooding didn't have gutters or downspouts "and the ones that did have downspouts had them pointing down on their walls." Poole said the township would start notifying households without gutters or downspouts to install them or face a fine.

"Some steps that may be taken could be removal of obstructions and repair of sewers, including a system of monitoring these conditions, increase sewer capacity, additional pumping stations, a moratorium on construction, purchase of pumps for individual homeowners . . .," part of the letter reads. The residents also suggested that "taxes and water rates" be reduced for themselves to compensate for their financial losses.

Canton DPW Superintendent Jake Dingeldey said that he thought the flooding problem was a result of simply too much rain in too short a time span, and not a malfunction of the sanitary sewer system. "We estimated that there was about five inches of rain that fell in that area," he said. "The system is not sufficient to handle five inches of rain and it will never be. It's frustrating."

Dingeldey estimated that 1,000 Canton homes had some flooding on June 21.

The Fraser house, on Brandywyne, was one of those homes. "We had water coming in until almost midnight," said Marjorie Fraser. The water in the basement, which was more than seven inches deep, didn't subside until 1 a.m., Fraser said.

"We've never had water just sit in the basement like that," she said. "Most of the people I know keep their things up off the floor now. You don't know when it's going to happen again."

Janice Jeromin and her husband, who also live on Brandywyne, lost approximately $6,000 worth of belongings in the flooding. "When we got hit with the water, not only was it coming in from the sewers but it was gushing through the basement windows," Jeromin said. "There was not a spot in our basement that wasn't covered with water. We had a number of things that were just floating in the water."

The damaged items included a stereo system, a computer, a telephone answering service and all of her husband's law books, Jeromin said. Jeromin said she would be attending last night's Board of Trustees meeting to talk about the problem.

"I don't want to go through this again. There are a lot of angry neighbors here," she said. "I think the township should know how we feel about this."

Jeromin said that people had ransacked the damaged belongings that were placed on the curb for the Canton DPW to pick up after the flooding. "I came home one day and everything was all over my driveway."

"It's just an unfortunate thing. Life goes on."

Several residents had speculated that the construction of Sheldon Center Road may have contributed to the presence of sand coming through the sewer with the water on that day. Dingeldey said the sand probably came in through the footing drains that surround the houses, and not from any construction in the area.

Men of the 24th Michigan made history

The Muster

BY KEN VOYLES

Following an embarrassing anti-war rally early in 1862, the citizens of Wayne County decided to raise a regiment to fight with the Union Army against Robert E. Lee's seemingly unstoppable Army of Northern Virginia.

President Abraham Lincoln had called for an additional 300,000 volunteers to fill the depleted ranks of the Union Army, but when Detroit residents tried to hold a rally to encourage enlistment it ended in a riot as southern sympathizers turned on those supporting the Union effort.

Henry A. Morrow, a prominent judge in Detroit, headed the enlistment drive. All over the county rallies were called and held to enlist volunteers to join a new regiment — the 24th Michigan Volunteer Infantry Regiment.

The word spread throughout the county and on August 5, 1862, a war rally took place in Kellogg Park (then called the Plymouth Village Green).

Company C was formed on that day in Plymouth with more than 100 volunteers, including 69 from Plymouth, seven from Canton, eight from Salem, nine from Livonia, six from Nankin and one from Detroit. Another 15 Plymouth and Canton men enlisted in other companies of the newly formed regiment.

The 24th was distinctly a Wayne County unit, made up of men from all over the county, including Detroit.

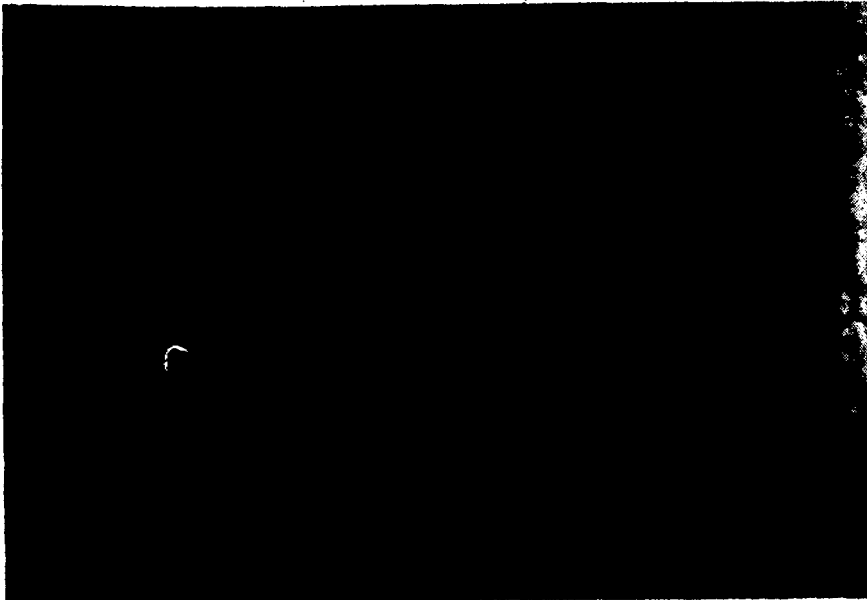

It was also distinctly rural. Of the 898 men originally enlisted, 412 were farmers and another 88 factory laborers. The unit also included 10 students, six lawyers, five doctors, five teachers and three ministers.

The average age of the men was 25-26 years old. And besides being mostly rural, the unit was also distinctly family, including more than a dozen pairs of brothers, as well as fathers and sons.

The officers chosen to lead Company C were prominent Plymouth citizens. The captain was Calvin B. Crosby, a local merchant, while the first lieutenant was Charles Hoyt, a farmer. Winfield Scott Safford, a local farmer, was chosen as second lieutenant.

Four of the five sergeants were also from Plymouth, including Lucius L. Shattuck, Willard Roe, Asa Joy and Augustus Pomeroy.

Other well known members of Company C included Clark Eddy, Charles Holbrook, Aiken Holloway, Charles Burr, the Cogswell brothers Charles and George, the Durfee brothers Charles and Edgar, the Root brothers Roswell and Charles, and Alonzo Markham.

Many of the Plymouth men were new to the community, having come west from places like New York, Canada, Maine, and Rhode Island.

But Plymouth, and the state of Michigan for that matter, were young communities. Michigan had been made a state just 25 years earlier.

"Together with my parents I went to Plymouth upon the afternoon of that day and there enrolled my name together with nearly one hundred others as a member of C Co. A few of these boys I already knew but the great majority of them were strangers to me but they proved with few exceptions to be noble characters and who became friends tried and true." From Canton youth Nelson Pooler's recollections.

Within several days of formation Company C moved to Detroit to be mustered into United States service with the other nine companies on August 15, 1862.

One week later the regiment received its colors, a 34-star silk flag with "24th Michigan Infantry" emblazoned on it. The flag was later to be immortalized at Gettysburg.

Morrow, now a colonel and head of the 24th, led it to Washington D.C. less than a month after its formation.

The 24th joined the famed Iron Brigade of the First Corps on Oct. 8, 1862. The unit already included the 2nd, 6th and 7th Wisconsin, and 19th Indiana regiments.

It had earned the "iron" reputation after General George McClellan observed it in action at the Battle of South Mountain.

The 24th was given the usual treatment for a new regiment by the veterans of the Union army, but the raw recruits would soon earn their black hats and respect on the battlefield at Fredericksburg.

The men were treated as "outcasts" for nearly two months by the veterans, especially when the rumor went around that the men had joined because of high bounties being paid in Michigan.

It is true the men of the unit received a small "stipend" (actually their first month's pay in advance), but they would dispute that the money influenced their joining the ranks of the Union army.

However, the commanders of the First Corp were "very much pleased with the unit's appearance. One commander wrote, "From its bearing I have no doubt it will not be long before it will be a worthy member of the Black Hats."

A private soldier in the brigade added, "A fine new regiment has been added to our brigade. They are a splendid looking body of men."

"The 24th Michigan became part of our brigade shortly after Antietam, and we were told they were mostly bounty men. We made unmerciful sport of them, but never a joke or word of abuse did I hear after the 24th had shown its mettle in the battle of Fredericksburg." From the memoirs of George E. Smith, a private, 2nd Wisconsin.

The Michigan unit earned its black hats on Dec. 12-14. While exposed and under fire from the enemy, Colonel Morrow had the regiment drill the manual of arms. The feat earned the 24th praise as did its assault on a small woods on the far left of the Union line.

One general, wrote that the 24th, "showed themselves to be worthy of the praise they have received."

Black hats were not yet available to the unit, but the 24th was finally admitted to full membership in the Iron Brigade.

"Our regiment has won unbounded praise from all our generals, and has now a reputation second to none in the service. Our whole loss is only 22 killed and wounded." Robert Gibbons, of Co. B, writing to his mother after the battle.

Following Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, the unit moved north with General George Meade's army to stop Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania.

"It used to seem to me that Sunday never came to the army or if it did it brought with it extra duties...I often think of the Plymouth Brass Band and wonder if they still sustain themselves and how they progress." Lucius Shattuck in letters to his father, March 1863.

company rallying the boys around the dear old flag. He deserves a monument."

The bullet that killed young Safford entered near the top of his stomach and lodged in the spine. He was buried on the battlefield but was later brought home by then superintendent of Plymouth schools C.A. Frisbee for burial in Kinyon Cemetery in Canton.

Others were to die in that terrible fight as well; and still others were captured and made prisoner only to be sent to the horror of Andersonville.

This is the story of the 24th Michigan, and especially Company C, during the Civil War. It is a story of epic struggles but with very human qualities.

The 24th Michigan was raised throughout Wayne County in the spring of 1862. It went on to join the famous "black hats" of the Iron Brigade and earn the dichard respect of even the Confederates.

The Iron Brigade was the first brigade of the First Division of the First Corps of the Grand Army of the Republic, later renamed the Army of the Potomac.

It was an all-volunteer unit containing "western" regiments from Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana. The unit earned the "iron" part of its name at the Battle of South Mountain, just before the fight at Antietam, also known in the south as the Battle of Sharpsburg.

The 24th Michigan came on the scene as the brigade's replacements just in time to fight in the Battle of Fredericksburg. From then on the unit took part in every major battle of the war in the eastern theater, including Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Mine Run, the Wilderness, Spotsylvania, North Anna, Petersburg and Hatcher's Run.

Near the end of the war the 24th Michigan was returned to Camp Butler in Springfield, IL to train new recruits. It wasn't on hand for the surrender of Robert E. Lee's Army of Northern Virginia at Appomattox, but the unit did earn the honor of escorting President Abraham Lincoln to his final resting place in Springfield.

Fight at Gettysburg

CONTINUED

Gettysburg, more than any other battle of the Civil War, is associated with the 24th Michigan.

Almost all of the unit's fighting took place on that fateful first day as the First Corps attempted to keep the Confederates out of the little town of Gettysburg until the rest of the Union army arrived on the field.

Early in the morning on the first day, the 24th struck as the Confederates tried a "feeling out" attack. The unit routed the Rebels near Willoughby Run, a small stream fronting McPhersons Woods, before yet another even larger assault began.

"We were soon withdrawn across the run and formed new line of battle where we lay for nearly an hour when from the woods across the fields in front came line after line of gray clad men. It was a fine sight as with waving flags they came to the attack but it boded only ill to us who in Macphersons Woods (sic) waited to receive them." From Pooler's recollections.

The 24th Michigan was posted in McPhersons Woods but had to slowly give ground as the whole Union line reeled back from MaPhersons Ridge.

During the Confederate onslaught the 24th's regiment flag was riddled by 23 bullets and the staff splintered in two.

Nine color-bearers were killed trying to keep the flag held high. But the unit refused to break and run, conducting instead a fighting retreat (under orders) back to a theological seminary south of the ridge.

Although overwhelmed by numbers not a single backward step had been taken except under orders.

Finally, it was at the seminary late in the day, July 1, 1863 when the 24th Michigan and other Iron Brigade units made a last stand.

Both Winfield Safford and Lucius Shattuck were killed during the fighting and Colonel Morrow was wounded. In the regiment proper, only 3 of the 25 officers remained in the fight.

"It is only justice to both living and dead to say we fought them well. Time after time did we form line of battle only to be flanked and broken. The last of these formations being directly in front of the seminary. Driven from this and with no organization whatever we gave up the fight and ran each man for himself to Cemetary Heights a mile in the rear." Pooler's recollections.

The rest of the evening the unit awaited a further Confederate assault on Cemetary Hill that never came. On the following morning a rollcall showed that of 496 men present the day before only 98 answered to their names, and of these only six from Company C.

It was an unheralded act of heroism. The 24th's fight, along with the other units in the Iron Brigade, saved the Union army that day and allowed Meade to bring up the rest of his forces and eventually defeat Lee's army in two more days of intense fighting.

Other Plymouth men killed at Gettysburg included Corp. Otis Southworth, George Cogswell, Oliver Kelley, and John Ryder. Edward Corey was wounded that day and died on July 7. Two Plymouth men from Company C captured at Gettysburg were to later die in Confederate prisons.

NELSON POOLER

24th tangled in a case of mistaken identity

The 24th Michigan is inexorably linked with one of those strange manifestations of military history — mistaken identity.

Photography can be blamed for it, though. The art of taking pictures, especially right after a fierce fight, was still in its infancy during the Civil War.

A Timothy O'Sullivan photo, taken just days after the three-day battle showing a small group of dead soldiers in front of a thick woods and originally labelled "A Harvest of Death," became the source of the controversy.

When the photo was reissued in the 1880s the men became identified as dead of the 24th mainly because an editor noticed the dead wore dark broad-rimmed hats similar to the Black Hats worn by the Iron Brigade.

In his book "Gettysburg: A Journey in Time," author William A.

Frassanito claims that the soldiers depicted are in fact Confederates dead from the second day's fighting which swirled around Rose Woods and the famous Wheat Field.

The second label stuck, however, when the ten-volume "Photographic History of the Civil War" was first published in 1911.

Consequently many history books still identify the dead soldiers as 24th Michigan volunteers.

In another famous Gettysburg photograph, which depicts "the scene of General Reynold's death," words can be seen scratched into the foreground tree. Clearly visible are the words "24th Michigan." Frassanito admits the name difficult to decipher, but speculates it marks the grave of W. Williams of Company B, of the 24th.

In memory of...

Akin Holloway's gravestone at Riverside Cemetery in Plymouth. Next to it is a replica of a black "Hardee" hat. (Crier photo by Dennis Bakker)

Besides 67 killed and 210 wounded, another 86 members of the 24th were captured by the Rebel forces. Of those more than a third would die in Southern prisons.

General James Wadsworth, commander of the First Corps First Division said afterwards:

"Colonel Morrow, the only fault I find with you is that you fought the 24th Michigan too long, but God only knows what would have become of us had you not held the ground as long as you did."

Following their mangling at Gettysburg the entire First Corps was eliminated and its proud units dispersed to other corps.

The 24th became a part of the Fifth Corps, despite widespread dissatisfaction with the plan, and went on to lead U.S. Grant's new, revitalized Army of the Potomac in the final campaign of the eastern theater.

During the fighting at the Wilderness, Akin Holloway was seriously wounded, while Pooler, who wrote of his days in the military years after returning from the service, was captured by Confederate forces and sent to Andersonville.

After the fighting around Petersburg, the commander of the Fifth Corps was ordered to relieve some of his veteran units of frontline duty, and, although the commander didn't want the 24th Michigan to miss the surrender of Lee's army, the unit was sent to Springfield's Camp Butler to train new recruits.

Pooler escaped from the Confederates, was recaptured and later released. He wrote: "Parents arms were open to receive me and kind friends made the time pass swiftly but my furloughs end found me ready to again take up a soldiers life and so the first days of April found me with my regiment in Springfield."

The unit did return to Washington D.C. one last time to take part in the huge two-day parade of Union regiments down the capitol's main avenue, Pennsylvania Avenue.

And yet one more honor lay ahead...

...On May 4, 1865 Lincoln's remains were laid to rest in Oak Grove Cemetery in Springfield. The escorting unit: the 24th Michigan Volunteers, including Pooler and many others who had survived the fighting.

"...about May 1st his remains reached Springfield which for a short time lay in state and we were privileged to again look upon the face of him who in life had been so dear to us." Pooler's recollections.

Finally on June 30, 1865 the 24th Michigan passed into history as a fighting unit.

Who will lead P-C school board?

The routine task of selecting a new school board president may not be so easy this year when the district governing body convenes Monday.

Current President E.J. McClendon has said he doesn't want the post again (he's already been board president for two terms). The rule has generally been one term for presidents, although current board member Roland Thomas doesn't fit the pattern either. He has also held the presidency on two different occasions.

So who does that leave?

It is pretty much open knowledge that board members Jeanette Wines, Lester Walker and Marilyn Schwinn do not want the job either. They're probably not ready for it anyway.

An experienced Dean Swartzwelter proved his popularity with the public during the last election on June 8, leading the field (even ahead of Thomas) in votes. But popularity on the streets isn't necessarily translated to support from the other board members.

In the margin

By Ken Voyles

Still Swartzwelter has many of the qualities best suited for the job. He is open, yet diplomatic. He has a grasp for the way a meeting is run. He offers suggestions and ideas on a regular basis.

There is even some suggestion he wants the job badly.

But current board Vice-President David Artley may have something to say about that. He could be considered next in line to succeed McClendon and he does have some support on the board.

But can Artley handle things with the decorum and diplomacy needed for the post? Some school board watchers think not...but it's up to six other board members.

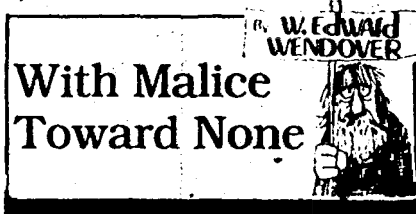

Are Swartzwelter and Artley on a collision course?

Possibly, say the same insiders.

If the board avoids the obvious choices of Swartzwelter or Artley, who remains?

A simple but ingenious compromise candidate: Roland Thomas, who may find support from the other members to avoid a fight over the presidency.

Flooding was your own fault?

With Malice
Toward None

Tempers rise with flood waters.

It having been a few years since there were several Canton floods and two "100-year floods" hit Plymouth within a year-and-a-half, that adage was forgotten.

Standing knee-deep in brackish water looking for Great Aunt Matilda's antique linen under the surface tends to make homeowners blame:

- The gods.
- City or Township Hall.
- New development in the upstream areas that used to soak up excess rainwater.

- The DPW.
- Their builder.

But never do they blame themselves.

But Canton Township Supervisor Jim Poole, after a number of his constituents had pools in their lower levels a week-and-a-half ago, blamed the homeowners.

"The people (that had flooding problems) are causing their own damn problems," the supervisor blurted to Crier Reporter Dave Pierini. He apparently was referring to one theory that some homeowners lack proper downspouts and that this caused the flooded basements.

First-hand inspection of the flooding showed that there were obviously greater problems than inadequate downspouts to blame.

Possibly the best course for Canton flood victims to follow in light of this is to call their supervisor or, better yet, set their flood-damaged trash on Poole's curb at 44330 S. Umlerland Circle (just off Sheldon Road).

Runs had help

EDITOR:

We would like to thank the following businesses for their contribution to the Canton Parks and Recreation's 9th Annual Five Mile Run.

Classey Chassis Car Wash, Lighthouse Car Wash, White Castle Systems, Johnson's Family Restaurant, Superbowl, Bob Evans Restaurant, Elias Big Boy Restaurant, Roman Forum Restaurant, Wendy's, Baker's Square, Papa Romanos' Pizza, B. J.'s Bowery, Little Caesars, Community Federal Credit Union (Canton), Famous Recipe Chicken (Plymouth), Plaza Lanes, Canton Sports, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Wayne Bank, Oakwood Hospital of Canton, Lillo's Pizza, Tanfaster, Plymouth Bowl, Quick Silver Photo, Endless Summer Suntanning, Gags & Games, Twist & Shake, Rose Shores Racquetball, Baskin Robbins, Skatin' Station, McDonalds of Canton, Oasis Golf Course, Fellows Creek Golf Course.

With the cooperation of the local businesses and with the hard work of my staff, this race proved to be most successful.

EDITOR:

This year more community residents and community businesses joined in to help make the "Y"'s 8th Annual Run on Sunday, June 21, its greatest success.

More than 780 runners and walkers participated in three runs; a one-mile walk/run, a five-kilometer run, and a 10-kilometer run. It was an exciting event to see so many runners meeting at The Gathering and running the scenic routes through the residential sections of Plymouth.

With the assistance of seven sponsors: Dr. Tom Morse D.D.S., Ford Motor Company - Sheldon Road Plant, Adistra Business Services, Arbor Health Center, Ed's Sports, New York Seltzer, The Community Crier and 13 contributors: Famous Chicken, Stan's Market, George's Discount Produce and Deli, Hungry Howie's, Elias Brothers, Dominos Pizza, Pizza Hut, McDonalds, Cozy Cafe, Baker's Rack, Little Caesars, Mayflower Hotel, and Denny's Restaurant, the "Y" was able to make the run a memorable event.

Well decorated t-shirts, ribbons to one-mile run/walkers, medals, trophies and lots and lots of good food were given to the runners. The runners enjoyed a well-supervised and well executed run.

Only with the assistance of over 200 volunteers, the City of Plymouth, the Department of Public Works, the Police Department, the Fire Department, Plymouth REACT, and PACT, could this run have been possible.

This is a wonderful yearly event to have in the City of Plymouth, every Father's Day. The "Y" wants to thank every single person who helped make this run possible.

This is just another plus for the City of Plymouth.

This is bull

To the lady screaming bloody murder in Canton two weeks ago at the sight of a black Angus bull roaming your neighborhood: I've got some information that should keep your blood pressure a little lower the next time you may see such an animal nosing around your yard.

The fact is, I talked to the owner of the black Angus bull - "Triple B" by name - and "Triple B" is technically no longer a bull anyhow, but more on that later . . . and the owner assures me that the steer is basically harmless and would rather eat apples from your hand than gore young Cantonites to death.

To oversimplify the story: Joan Stachowski owns the former-bull, which escaped from its pen at the Stachowski property on Cherry Hill Road and being an amiable sort, wandered onto heavily residential Meadowlake Drive where several non-farm types saw the beast and assuming the worst, whatever that is in this case, called the Canton Police Department, which dispatched motorcycle policeman Karl Heinzman to the scene, who probably had more fun there than his official police report indicates.

If one were to believe Heinzman's written description of the action, a farm animal got loose and it was brought back. The report reads, in part: "Upon arriving at said location, this reporting officer found a black Angus bull (we'll clear that up later, folks) in the rear yard of John Sukin (who just happens to be an agricultural engineer from Michigan State University. What are the odds?) . . . along with the owner."

Joan Stachowski and I both know Officer Heinzman left many of the details out of this report, most likely in kind consideration to Stachowski.

As the owner of the stray steer tells it herself: "I got there before the cop got there, and the lady was screaming bloody murder. When Officer Heinzman arrived, I saw his holster and asked him 'You got any bullets in that gun?'"

Before the more action-oriented of you jump to conclusions, rest assured that the owner of the bull-at-one-time did not mean any harm to one of her more hysterical neighbors, but was merely looking for an abrupt solution to her embarrassing predicament of pulling her stray back home.

"I said to the cop, 'How about shooting me before I have to walk back through the sub?'" Stachowski recalled.

Heinzman, being a reasonable guy, politely declined. But he did comment on the fact that Stachowski, albeit used to the strenuous farm life, would be no match in a tug-of-war against the beefy "Triple B" across Cherry Hill Road.

"He said, 'I hate to tell you this, but you don't have enough weight to pull anything home,'" Stachowski said.

It was probably at this point that Stachowski knew she had, if not a friend, at least a sympathizer in her cause to lead the livestock homeward. "He was very nice about it," she said of Heinzman, as he wrote out an ordinance violation ticket for something about not controlling a large farm animal in a residential area.

The fact that the animal in question was de-horned, and de-bulled, to put it as gently as I can, did not sway the officer from issuing the ticket. Heinzman was quite aware, though, of the non-threatening nature of the beast, gauging by his response to Exhibit A of Stachowski's defense of her animal as a tame breed.

"I asked him, 'Did you notice there's something missing?'" all the while struggling to call the steer towards her. Heinzman, observing Stachowski's unsuccessful attempts to woo "Triple B" across the road replied, "Hell, he won't come to you let alone charge you."

But, the law's the law, and Stachowski will appear in 35th District Court on July 7 to answer to the charges brought before the court. Stachowski already has her legal strategy planned, she confided.

"The judge will ask me how I plead. . . I'll plead insanity."

Realtor Nick Kulka sponsored a recent Drug Awareness Day program because he wants to do more for his community than sell houses.

"Actually, I'm motivated by something else," the Realtor-associate for Plymouth's Coldwell Banker Real Estate Services said. "If we knew a little more about drugs, my brother wouldn't have died of a drug overdose in 1984." Kulka was eight years old when his brother said two things to him:

If I ever catch you using drugs I'll break your arm. Nick, I do drugs to reach your normal high.

There were very few people that came to the June 22 seminar at Canton High. That's a shame.

The problem is, many people think drugs are a problem for only a certain few.

According to Michigan State Police Trooper Charles Schumacher, a guest speaker at the seminar:

•61 per cent of all high school seniors have used marijuana.

•26 per cent have used it in the last month.

•13 per cent have used cocaine in the last year.

In Bold Print

By Dave Pierini

"That's not in Detroit," Schumacher said. "That's here."

Drugs are a serious problem not only in high schools, but now in middle schools and elementary schools. Drug use is no longer the exception, it is the norm.

Schumacher urges parents to become aware and educated about drug abuse - not to run away, not to deny.

Education - instilling values and explaining the hazards of drug use to our young - can solve the problem. Arresting someone with a drug problem only identifies to the courts that an individual has a problem.

Drug awareness starts early for children, in various settings. They see drugs used on television, in music videos, and before long, they are approached by peers saying, "hey, it's cool."

Make them aware early that drugs aren't cool, that there's no such thing as casual use - that drugs kill.

Ian has known drugs all his life. He is 18.

"I was seven years old and I was visiting my uncle in California," he told the sparse crowd at Canton High's auditorium. "He took me to a party and he and his friends thought it would be cute to see a little kid drunk."

"I think my father gave it to me as a baby. I've seen baby pictures of me with alcohol."

Ian's been straight for 10 months now thanks to Straight, Inc., a family-oriented treatment program here in Plymouth. His mother Alice said she can finally call Ian her son.

After listening to her son Joe, another Straight, Inc. success story, tell of his plight with drugs, Donna talked of the denial she once had.

"I was so busy denying my oldest son's drug use, I didn't even realize Joe was using drugs."

Joe and Ian are alive today. They hit bottom hard several times, coming close to death, and learned the hard way.

Today they teach, and their experiences can educate us all.

It's my back

I've come a long way since the fateful day one year ago with my feet hoisted on a desk and my publisher approaching with a Cheshire grin.

If you remember, it was about a year ago when I was cornered into joining a squad of grown men who toss briefcases into the air with the grace of, well --- uh, with the grace of business men.

Since that day, I have become a devotee member of Plymouth's chosen few. During this past week this band of case-toting desperados has reformed for the third appearance in Plymouth's July 4th parade this Saturday.

And because of a practice parade last Friday in Ann Arbor, I write to you from a groggy state of pain killers and muscle relaxers, with a pile of pillows behind me. Nudge me if I doze.

Rewinding tape a little, last Friday was Fred Hill's briefcase drill team's first appearance outside of Plymouth's city limits.

And to put it mildly, we were a "really big hit." (Spoken in your best Ed Sullivan)

We had the Detroit News, Detroit Free Press and Ann Arbor News following us through the 1.9 mile route. We had people craning their necks well ahead of us to get a glimpse of grown men in button down shirts and red ties singing "Doo, Wa ditty."

But back to me and my propped pillows. Speaking of back, it is embarrassing to be the youngest member of the drill team, and an hour after the parade throw your back out.

(Please see the part about pain killers and muscle relaxers.)

I'm not totally sure my malady has anything to do with flipping a heavy briefcase a couple million times or me lacing my shoe once too often.

None-the-less, one hour after our show-stealing in Ann Arbor, this writer found himself writhing in pain on the floor next to his VDT.

I have a tendency to believe that my situation has something to do with a fully-lined wool suit, long sleeve shirt and 85 degree weather, while walking 2 miles on hot asphalt. (Everyone knows journalists have but one suit, and seldom wear socks)

Plymouth's city attorney would have you believe that I'm just a wimp.

The point is, Fred Hill's mean, green fighting machine is back this Saturday. And we are better than ever. Come join in on the fun, I hear a more news media are planning the trip to Main Street, and if this is juicy enough for a former News YT writer to make the trip -- it is good enough for you.

That's the fact jack.

To the 15 guys lining up Saturday morning....Ready..TIP.

Sr. party thanks all who helped

EDITOR:

As co-chairpersons of the food committee for the Plymouth Canton/Salem Senior Party, we would like to take this opportunity to thank those who contributed in making our party such a success: Maria's Pizzeria, Guernsey Dairy, Famous Recipe Country Chicken, George's Produce Market, Coca Cola Co., Del Hoover, Linda Reeves, the mothers who baked, and all of those who helped in the kitchen on the night of the party.

The parents who made this party possible were great to work with. The decorating committee, in particular, did a super job in transforming Salem into a real "sea cruise."

It was a most memorable evening for the graduates who attended. These young people were so polite and appreciative that it made all the work involved worthwhile. The principals of Canton/Salem should be proud of those graduating students who attended the senior party.

Thanks to all of the "caring" Canton/Salem parents for a job well done.

Some projects are not

Meadows condo project on schedule

(Editor's Note: This is the second of two articles which has examined building projects in Plymouth, one which has made it, and one which has not.)

BY T. M. SMITH

The difference between a successful building project and one that never gets off the ground is a very simple problem to locate, but not always simple to solve.

It is a problem of money.

That is a problem the Meadow Condominiums, quickly taking shape on the old Moore sheep farm, has not had to deal with in a negative sense.

A quick drive past the construction site will verify that construction is well underway, and that tenants will occupy the homes well before the end of the year.

In fact the construction site appears to be a model of efficiency, with building progressing on schedule and a good deal of the apartment space reserved.

According to Jim Jabara, one of three partners in the project, construction of the first building is better than 75 per cent complete, with the second building being right on its timetable for completion by the first of next year.

K.C. Mueller, who is president and sales agent of K.C. Colonial, said that the project has already received 10 - 12 firm commitments from buyers, and more are expected. Last week Mueller hosted a gathering for potential buyers to give them a presentation on the condominiums.

"I really expect that we will have the first building completed and occupied by late September or early October," Mueller said.

K.C. Colonial was formed to handle all of the sales, marketing and promotions of the condominium project.

With a prime location in the heart of Plymouth, however, both Jabara and Mueller believe that the condominium project will go a long way in selling itself.

The Meadow Condominiums project has been progressing of the condos has been trouble free, for the most part, other on schedule with many of the units already purchased, local projects have not been quite so successful. (Crier photo according to the project sales manager. While development by T. M. Smith)

During a walk through the project in progress, Jabara is quick to point out the luxury features of the homes. From the third story window, Jabara points to the natural view which was preserved for the residents. Along with fireplaces, firewalls and underground parking he is convinced that the offerings of a quality and limited environment warrants the $150,000 price tag which comes with the purchase of the home.

Because there are only 36 units available, 18 in each building, Jabara believes the demand will outnumber the availability.

Wilcox condo plans expire

A project that has been plagued with problems from the beginning appears to have taken its last gasp of air.

According to city engineer Ken West, The Wilcox House project missed the deadline to appear on the next city planning commission meeting scheduled for July 8. Which means that the July 9 deadline for building permits and construction to begin will pass without action.

This will force Wilcox to begin anew with plans and approval from the board before proceeding.

TAG person of '87

Louise Townley was recently named Person-of-the-Year by the Plymouth-Canton Association for the Academically Talented.

The award is presented at the end of each school year to the individual who has contributed in an "extraordinary" way to the education of gifted children.

As a parent and activist, Townley was long ago instrumental in focusing the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools officials of the need for gifted education in the district.

Since then Townley has continued her long term involvement as a leader in programs for talented and gifted children at the local, county and state level.

Previous award recipients include Carol Davis, former president of the Plymouth-Canton Schools Board of Education, and Gerald Elston, a retired school district building administrator.

PCAC awards CEP scholarships

The Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC) awarded $750 to Grant Carmicheal recently as winner of the JWH award to a graduating senior who is outstanding in an artistic field and who intends to pursue that field after high school.

Carmichael attends Canton High. He specializes in graphic design. He plans to attend Carnegie-Mellon University in the fall and will major in both graphic design and architecture.

In a related note, the PCAC awarded 10 Jeanet M. Allison

Honored J-students given awards

Two journalism students from The Plymouth-Canton Community were honored recently.

Deborah Steffen, a student at Canton High, finished third in the Focus: HOPE Journalism Olympics, while future Michigan State University freshman Cameron Murray won a Distinguished Minority Freshman Scholarship.

Steffen won a bronze medal for her effort and $250. More than 120 high school journalism students competed to produce stories which were judged by a panel of editors from newspapers in the metro Detroit area.

Murray, from Canton and a Redford Catholic Central student, won one of 20 scholarships for outstanding high school students to study at MSU. Each scholarship pays a student's full tuition for four years at MSU.

Students were chosen on the basis on test scores, academic ability and class standing.

Plymouth student completes year of study in Austria

Leslie German is just completing a scholarship year at Innsbruck, Austria.

The Plymouth resident studied there under a Rotary Foundation Scholarship.

Tuition and expense scholarships to foreign countries are available again this year from the Plymouth Rotary Club. The scholarships include: graduate scholarships, undergraduate scholarships, vocational, journalism and teacher of the handicapped scholarships.

Preliminary applications are now available for the 1988-89 year. Applications are available at Carne Associates, Inc., 383 Starkweather, in Plymouth.

The scholarships are sponsored through the Rotary International Foundation, and locally supported by the Plymouth group.

Student honored

Ammie Blackman, of Plymouth, has been awarded a free Elderhostel trip by the American Association of Retired Persons.

The award was based on volunteer service done by Blackman for the 35th District Court in Plymouth, the Detroit Institute of Arts, Recording for the Blind in Detroit and several peace and feminist activist groups.

Blackman has chosen as her trip an intensive 13-day adventure in sub-arctic Churchill, Canada, on Hudson Bay during August.

She will spend time in classroom sessions, whale-watching, riding a tundra-buggy, and looking for the Aurora Borealis.

WINNER OF THE WEEK

(Winner of the Week is selected by The Crier Editorial Staff without knowledge of the sponsor. Nominations for this honor may be submitted to The Crier Editorial Staff.)

Shirley McKeon, a teacher for 17½ years at West Middle School, retired after the past school year. West Principal Judy Stone called McKeon an "outstanding" influence on her students. "She was able to get kids fired up about literature and English," Stone said.

WHY AND WHEN TO VISIT BURMA

Only a comparative handful of American tourists visit Burma, which is definitely a mistake. This small, charming country is definitely worth including on a tour of the Orient, provided you go at the right time and know what to expect.

The lack of a strong tourist industry may actually be a plus. Although there is not an abundance of world-class tourist facilities, it is also easier for the visitor to get in touch with the "real Burma." The Burmese people are attractive, warm, and not at all jaded by exposure to hordes of tourists. They are hospitable and helpful and a real natural resource.

The "when" to go it just as important as the "why". It is very hot between late March and late May. It isn't impossible to visit during that period, but you'll have to adjust to the weather. Then comes rainy season which last until the end of October. So, given the choice, November to March is the best period to travel to Burma.

Over 30 years experience assures you of the finest travel service available. And, best of all, THERE IS NO CHARGE TO YOU FOR OUR SERVICES. We are reimbursed in commission fees by the airlines and hotels, ships and resorts that we book.

Through diaries, letters, memoirs

Families seek links to the Civil War

BY KEN VOYLES

Families of the men who fought with the 24th Michigan Infantry have a link to the past through memoirs and recollections passed on orally and by the written word.

Beverly Schmitt's great grandfather Akin Holloway fought with the 24th during the Civil War as did Jill Licata's great grandfather Robert Gibbons.

Glimpse At Yesterday

Both women -- like others interested in the Civil War -- have come to know the history of their great grandfathers' adventures as if they happened yesterday.

Akin Holloway spent most of his life in Plymouth before enlisting in 1862 with Company C of the 24th. He worked as a painter in the community before the war and returned to that work following the fighting.

Holloway served until discharged in 1864 following a severe wound at the Battle of the Wilderness. The 36-year-old took a mme bullet to the left lung in that battle but survived to return home.

He died in 1898 at the age of 71.

"My father first told me about my great grandfather," said Schmitt. "Of course my dad was proud of the fact that his grandfather fought in the war. But we didn't know much about the specifics."

Schmitt said her relative is in a famous photograph of the 24th gathered for the dedication of a monument at Gettysburg.

"But I don't know who he is," she added. "There aren't any other photos of him and no one is alive who could identify him."

Some of Holloway's war gear can be seen in the museum, including the famous Hardee Hat or Black Hats worn by men of the 24th. There is also a copy of his discharge and the tunic he wore when wounded in the Wilderness.

"My father (Fred Holloway) used to tell me stories of his grandfather showing off his wound," said Schmitt. "It went right through. He used to say you could 'look right through it.'"

Holloway was an active member of the GAR (Grand Army of the Republic) veterans chapter which formed after the war and included nearly 230 members at its peak.

Schmitt made the connection with her long dead relative while doing genealogy research in the Historical Museum. She later became a volunteer at the museum and is today the resident archivist.

"Years ago I visited a lot of the famous battlefields. I knew then that my great grandfather was in the war but I didn't realize he fought at many of the sites," Schmitt said.

Unfortunately Holloway did not leave behind any letters or diaries of Beverly Schmitt, of Livonia, kneels next to the gravestone of her great grandfather Akin Holloway. Akin is buried at Riverside Cemetery. (Crier photo by Dennis Bakker)

Unit's memory lives on

But the unit's memory lived on as a veterans outfit known as the GAR (Grand Army of the Republic) Eddy Post was formed from the survivors. Many of those same survivors were present at Gettysburg when a monument to the 24th was erected in McPhersons Woods.

Later still some of the survivors were laid to rest, after living out the rest of their days in Plymouth and Canton, at Riverside Cemetery. Today those remains can still be identified by the small government stones put up to honor the former soldiers of the gallant 24th.

A look at some sources

Many sources have been used to put this piece together, including noted authors Bruce Catton, Willis Dunbar and O.B. Curtis. Personal letters and recollections have been examined as well through the Plymouth Historical Society and government records were used to obtain the 24th's enlistment and killed and wounded tallies. Thanks should also go to Beverly Schmitt at the historical society for helping obtain these records and for her valuable assistance.

life at the front, said Schmitt.

Licata's great grandfather, Robert Gibbons, was in Company B of the 24th. A newspaper man in Detroit, Gibbons was also known for his work as editor of "The Michigan Farmer" newspaper.

Licata, who has been a Plymouth resident herself for more than 10 years, first discovered the story of her relative when cleaning out an attic in Detroit.

There she found some letters written by the young Private Gibbons.

"I was the only one in my family interested in the stuff so I took it," Licata said. Just last week she visited the Plymouth Historical Museum to see if the letters would be of interest to Schmitt.

Gibbons came to Detroit in 1857 and worked with the old Detroit Tribune before enlisting in 1862. He went from a private to sergeant and then in command of his company by the end of the war.

The Union soldier was severely wounded at the Battle of Spotsylvania in May of 1864 and was released from front line duty and assigned to train recruits before the end of the war. Today he is buried at Elmwood Cemetery in Detroit.

One of Licata's finds were her great grandfather's letters courting his future wife, Helen Torburn. He also wrote to his mother during the fighting.

In one letter he describes how a soldier said he was glad Lincoln had been shot and killed. The man was later executed for his treasonable remarks.

Other men from the 24th survive in letters and recollections as well. The best known of these are the recollections of Nelson Pooler.

Pooler was born in Maine but came to Canton in 1853 with his family. They bought a farm on Hanford Road in Canton -- Pooler spent the majority of his life before and after the war on that farm.

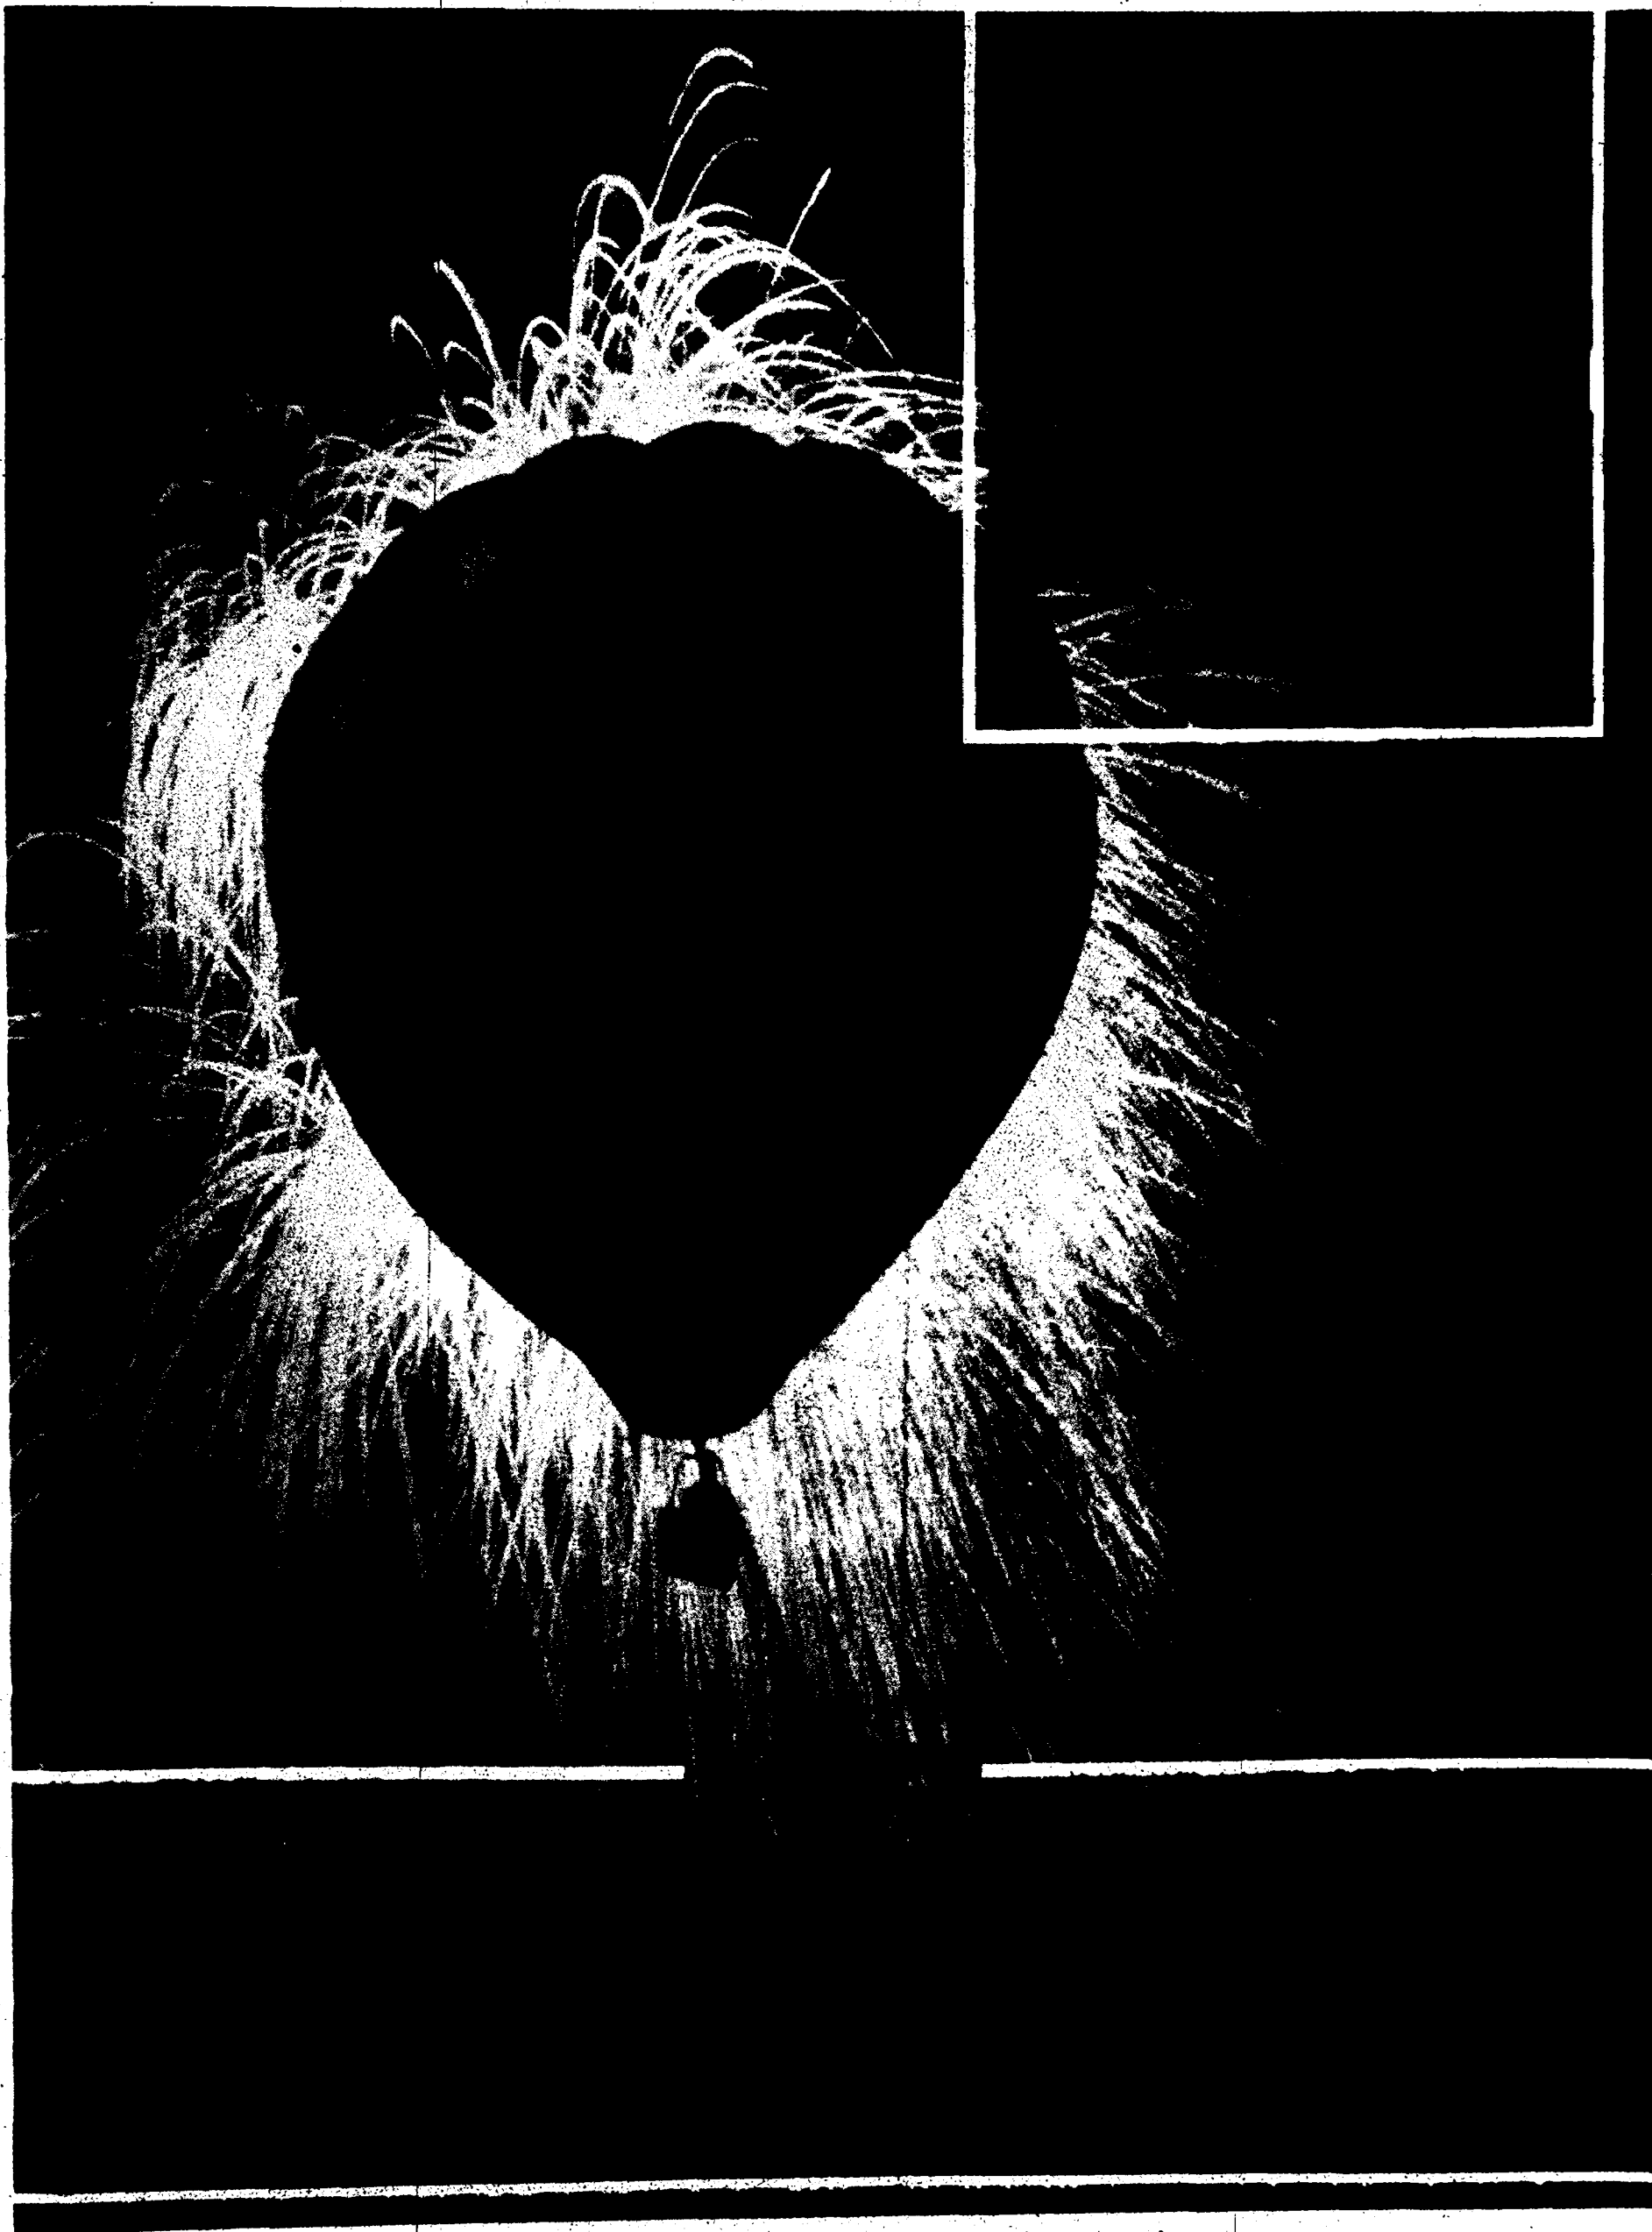

Pooler survived the fighting and a short stint at Andersonville prison to return home to farm. At one time he was even elected township supervisor in Canton.

He died in 1921 at the age of 77 and was buried at Riverside Cemetery in Plymouth along with other veterans from the 24th.

Before his death, in 1906, some of Pooler's friends asked him to record his war reminiscences. Today we have a copy of the 32-page document which details military life as well as Pooler's own story.

It is with that kind of documentation, as well as letters, news accounts, and oral histories passed on from one generation to the next, that one can gain direct insight into the men who fought in the Civil War.

And discover that historical moments remain alive even after the passing of many years.

BALLOON FEST '87 THE COMMUNITY CRIER

The annual Balloon Section is traditionally a part of The Crier's Red, White and Blue special edition of the paper. Because of the marriage of the balloon and fireworks celebrations this year, readers will find valuable information inside on programs, activities and events happening during this weekend, and even into the July 11 weekend.

This section is distributed to The Community Crier's regular 21,000 subscribers as a part of the July 3 weekly edition, and is also available to thousands of other readers through free distribution during the balloon festival.

This year's edition is complete with photos from past festivals, schedules, listings of events and suggestions for viewers of all ages.

About the cover

This year's annual Balloon Festival, Fourth of July Plus Section cover is the result of a special photographic process. The cover is actually composed of two separate color slides that have been "sandwiched" together in the developing process to make one print. Because this year provides spectators with balloons and fireworks, this became a perfect way to display the pair of visual treats. The result is one photo of a balloon inside of a fireworks burst. Both photos were taken by Chris Boyd, color processing by Ultimate Photo in Canton. Section Editor T.M. Smith and Assistant Production Manager Stephen Wroble were responsible for cover design.

They're off!

All of the trite and cute metaphors in the world cannot take away from the natural beauty of a hot air balloon rising gracefully into the sky with the morning sunrise as a backdrop.

The sound of the gas being heated from the balloonist's basket, and the sight of the larger-than-life balloon becoming smaller and smaller will melt everyone's heart.

During the coming weekend, these sights and sounds will happen hundreds of times when the Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Festival floats into The Plymouth-Canton Community.

The seventh annual balloon festival will begin July 3 and continue through July 5, with daily launches at sunrise and dusk at Centennial Education Park at Joy and McClumpha Roads in Canton Township.

This year, there will be an added treat, with the balloon festival and the Plymouth Jaycees linking hands on Saturday, July 4.

With the annual Fourth of July Parade in downtown Plymouth and the annual fireworks later that night, both groups have decided to make it easier for people to see all the visual spectacles.

While the balloons rise in CEP's expansive yard at Joy and McClumpha, the fireworks will shoot off at Township Park at Ann Arbor Trail and McClumpha. The two sites are within easy walking distance of each other. But for those who might not be in the mood for a walk, the M-Care Health Centers will be offering a free shuttle service for travelers between the two sites.

This year's festival will also feature many balloon races, games for the children, the annual Fly-in pancake breakfast at Mettetal Airport, the Balloon Brunch, Ball and Dinner along with traditional ballooning events such as Hare and Hound, Pick-em Up Key Contest, C.N.T. Race, and many other events. A week later there will be the Plymouth Inflation Sale and as always there will be Art-in-the-Park at Kellogg Park in Plymouth.

The Full Schedule of Events goes like this:

Friday - July 3

• The balloons will make the first scheduled lift-off at 6 p.m. from the CEP park near Plymouth Canton High School. Pilots will be competing for a complete round-trip for two to Zurich or Geneva Switzerland aboard American Airlines.

• At 8 p.m. the Balloon Ball, a dance under the stars will begin at the Mayflower Hotel. A small charge is asked for at the door. There will be a cocktail bar and hot dogs.

Saturday July 4

• The Hare and Hound race will fly off from CEP at 6 a.m. This will be another mass departure with scores of balloons heading skyward.

• At 1 p.m. in downtown Plymouth, there will be the Jaycees July 4th Parade. People will line Main Street for a look at all the groups. Fred Hill's Briefcase drill team will try to retain its title as best marching group.

• At 6 p.m. will be the British Airways Race from CEP. Pilots will compete for a round-trip set of tickets to London aboard the sponsoring airlines.

• At 8 p.m. the balloon ball will be in high gear for the second night. The Wildcats from Canton will be the featured live band.

• The Jaycees will put on a musical fireworks display at dusk again this year. At Township Park at Ann Arbor Trail and McClumphia roads the Plymouth Community Band will play live music in sync with the fireworks.

Sunday - July 5

• C.N.T. race at 6 a.m. from CEP. This mass ascent will happen at sunrise.

• Sunday Balloon Brunch from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Mayflower. Reservations are needed.

• The pick'em up key contest will begin at 6 p.m. as balloonists will attempt to "pick" keys from the top of a sailboat mast at the launch site to win a car, sponsored by Dick Scott Dodge, and a trip for two to London.

• All day Sunday there will be free long-distance phone calls given away from AT&T.

JULY 11, 12 Plymouth's Inflation Sale will be July 11, while the Art-in-the-Park will be July 11 and 12 in Kellogg Park.

Christmas in July?

July may seem like an odd time to be talking Christmas, but it's also the right time for the Plymouth Community Arts Council's Christmas Card Contest.

This year's winning entry -- featuring Kellogg Park -- was designed by Damaris "Dee" Shulte.

In her early career, Shulte participated in an "Experiment in International Living." The program was a forerunner of the Peace Corps. She lived with a Mexican family and traveled extensively throughout Mexico.

Shulte said her fondest memories of that experience were "brushing her teeth with Orange Crush, riding buses with chickens and sleeping in hammocks."

Later, at the University of the State of New York, she coordinated art programs for art teachers (K-6) in rural schools.

Shulte moved to Plymouth in 1963 with her husband Richard and two sons. Joining the Arts Council when it was formed in 1969, she became involved with their first fundraiser -- a calendar representing art work of students in grades one through 12.

The calendars were sold on Union Street during the first Fall Festival.

Shulte was also a demonstrating artist during Artrain's first visit to Plymouth in 1971.

And because of her dedication and service to the PCAC she was recently honored at an annual luncheon where she was presented with a plaque and the Student Fine Art Awards were named in her honor.

The winning entry this year by Damaris Shulte.

Packages containing 25 of the Christmas cards and envelopes are being sold for $8. Special orders are being taken for imprinted cards -- a one line name, i.e., the Jones family.

Imprinted cards must be purchased in increments of 100. The cost is $40 per 100.

Two local stores will sell the cards: Me and Mr. Jones, Me and Mr. Jones Petite Shop.

They are also available through the PCAC office at 332 S. Main St. During the summer, the office is open Wednesday from 9 a.m. to noon. The office is also open daily 9 a.m. to noon from September to mid-June.

Or call 455-5260. The cards will be sold at the 16th annual Artists and Craftsmen Show during the Fall Festival as well. For more information call Pat at 453-7537.

Although balloons fill the sky in July, there will be five more balloons flying all the way to Plymouth, Mass. in October for a unique "balloon mail" event. (Crier photo)

This air mail may take longer

A new attraction at the balloon site this year will be a sale of "balloon mail" in connection with a scheduled balloon ride from Plymouth, MI to Plymouth Mass., sometime in October.

Organizer Scott Lorenz said that special mail cover sheets will be on sale at the balloon site for $10. People can purchase the mail, and then it will be sent back once the balloons land in Massachusetts (or wherever).

"The mail will be carried on the balloons, and once we land, we will send them to the people, so it will have a postage mark from both Plymouth's," Lorenz said.

He warned that this is also dependent on the balloons actually landing, because "they could end up in Kentucky."

The sale of the special mail, however, is to fund the Straight, Inc. program of Plymouth which helps young people kick drug addictions and substance abuse.

Lorenz said he expects that some 2,500 pieces of mail will be aboard the five balloons scheduled to make the trip.

600 JUNCTION • PLYMOUTH

Events go on and on...

It might be a week after the big events of the balloon and fireworks, but Plymouth still stays in the festive mood the weekend of July 11 and 12 with two city events.

Saturday and Sunday downtown Plymouth will explode into a gigantic art exhibit with the Annual Art-in-the-Park art fair. In the center of town, around Kellogg Park, an estimated 100 or more artists will gather to display their stuff.

The hours of the fair will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday; with parts of Main Street and Penniman Ave. closed off to permit free walking room for visitors.

Exhibitors from all over the state are expected to show up for the fair. Some of the predominant themes during the fair will be the country and folk art. Paintings on traditional canvas, as well as on wood, tin, shirts and other various garage tools, all done in oils, water colors and acrylics. There will also be examples of jewelry, pottery, needlework, wood carvings and stained glass.

Inflation is usually a word that bargain hunters hate to read about.

But on July 11, inflation is a word that serious shoppers love to hear around Plymouth. It is also a day where the early bird really does get the cheapest worm.

Starting promptly at 5 a.m. downtown shops in Plymouth will slash prices up to 50 per cent off normal tagged prices. That is right, many stores open their doors at 5 a.m. and cut prices in half off many items in the store. But there is a small catch.

The "inflation" part of the sale begins at 6 a.m. when prices rise to 40 per cent off. This inflation rate continues throughout the morning at 10 per cent per hour until 10 a.m. when all prices go back to normal.

For kids!

This year parents need not worry about a babysitter if you have plans to attend the balloon festival. Organizers have made plans for lots of good times for youngsters at the launch site during Saturday and Sunday of the festival.

The Canton Parks and Recreation department is planning on sponsoring a whole host of activities for the younger ones during the festival beginning in the early evening hours.

Starting at 6 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday there will be an area marked near the balloon site where children will be able to participate in many supervised activities while mom and dad wait for the balloons to rise into the afternoon air.

Some of the games that will keep the kids active include a helium balloon give away to the first 1000 kids, so they can write their names on the balloon. There is a prize for the child who receives his card back from the furthest place.

There will be a mass sendoff of these balloons on all three days of the festival.

There will also be parachute games, gigantic bubble making contests, a water balloon contest and drawings for prizes from local businesses.

Shuttle to fireworks

If you like the fireworks display, but don't want to deal with the traffic from the festival, the University of Michigan M-Care Health Centers will sponsor a free shuttle bus service.

The bus service will transport spectators from the Hot Air Balloon Festival to the fireworks display at Plymouth Township on July 4. Four buses will run continuously from 7:30 p.m. to 11 p.m.

With McClumpha Road closed to regular traffic and with no parking inside Plymouth Township Park, you may want to consider the bus service. Pickups will begin at the corner of McClumpha and Joy Roads.

Business Spotlight

A SPECIAL COMMUNITY SERVICE PHOTOSTORY SERIES
FEATURING OUTSTANDING BUSINESSES AND BUSINESS PEOPLE

IN THIS ISSUE THE SPOTLIGHT IS ON H. A. SMITH LUMBER & SUPPLIES

"If we don't have it in stock, H. A. Smith Lumber and Supply Company will find a way to get it for you." These are the words of Jack Woodworth, Vice President and General Manager of H. A. Smith Lumber and Supplies Company. Located at 28575 Grand River Avenue in Farmington Hills (just west of Eight Mile Road), H. A. Smith Lumber and Supplies Company is a full line supplier of retail building materials.

"Since our founding in 1946 we've been serving both local contractors and do-it-yourself individuals with all of their building supply needs." Started by Helen Smith and now headed by her nephew Robert VanEvery, H. A. Smith Lumber and Supplies Company has developed a faithful clientele of both commercial contractors and individual customers.

Satisfying customers since 1946, H. A. Smith Lumber and Supplies Company is the only supplier you'll ever need for all of your building needs.

The fact that H. A. Smith Lumber has a loyal following is no accident. Bob, Jack, and the entire staff work very hard to keep their business and community ties. They make numerous donations of materials to local high schools and community service groups and are actively involved in community affairs. Most recently, H. A. Smith Lumber and Supplies Company was a major sponsor of the very successful Farmington Home Show.

Though 75% of their business is commercial, H. A. Smith Lumber and Supplies also meets the smaller but no less important needs of the individual buyer. Their house accounts, over 2000 in number, range from cities and school districts to commercial contractors, manufacturing companies, and management companies. Building everything from single family homes to the largest shopping centers and office buildings, these organizations rely upon Smith Lumber and Supply for on-time delivery of the best quality materials available.

The individual buyer can also reap the benefits from H. A. Smith Lumber and Supplies' numerous and loyal commercial patrons by being able to find anything he needs for his home improvement jobs. Commercial contractors rely on the variety of H. A. Smith's broad range of inventory to meet their diversified construction demands. For this reason, individual buyers are almost guaranteed to find what they need and in any quantity.

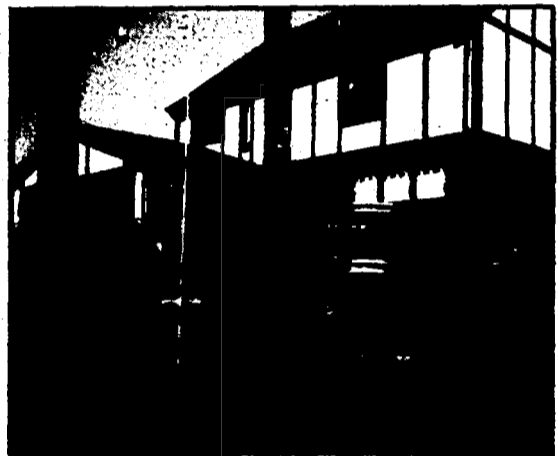

Bob VanEvery helps out a couple who have come in for supplies and advice.

"We're not a bath boutique or knick-knack shop..." Jack is quick to point this out. H. A. Smith Lumber and Supplies delivers the very best treated lumber as well as custom doors and windows, skylights, decorative hardwoods, panelling, molding and trim, and paints and stains. One of their specialty products is Western Red Cedar for decks, spas, and hot tubs.

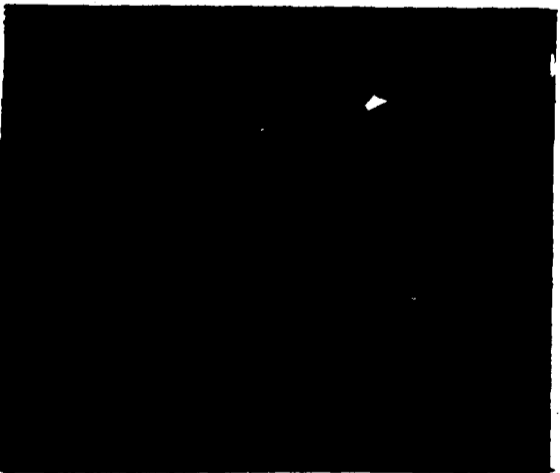

With a capable staff of 25 full-time employees, customers can come in and receive personalized attention from the same salesperson for the duration of the customer's dealings. "We have a very experienced and dedicated sales staff whose purpose it is to be the client's personal contact for business transactions," says Jack.

Business at Smith Lumber and Supplies, however, does not start and stop with just the delivery of building materials. Its staff has the ability to look at a construction plan, large or small, and develop accurate estimates for both materials and costs. They can also help the customer develop a timetable for the delivery of materials in order to meet construction deadlines.

Beautiful things can be created with supplies from H. A. Smith Lumber and Supplies Company.

Smith Lumber and Supplies' personnel can also suggest design concepts and construction tips. Having seen literally thousands of construction plans, they have a wealth of proven techniques from which to draw. In addition, they maintain an extensive library of contacts for contractors or individuals in search of any kind of construction services.

"We believe that the long term benefits of quality supplies and personalized service outlast the short term benefits of a cheap price for second rate materials."

Dancers lift off

After a full day of ballooning, fest-goers relax by going to the Balloon Ball at the Mayflower Hotel. (Crier photo)

Balloon Ball will keep 'em going into the night

Some of the activities surrounding the balloon festival don't begin until the balloons are safely tucked away for the night.

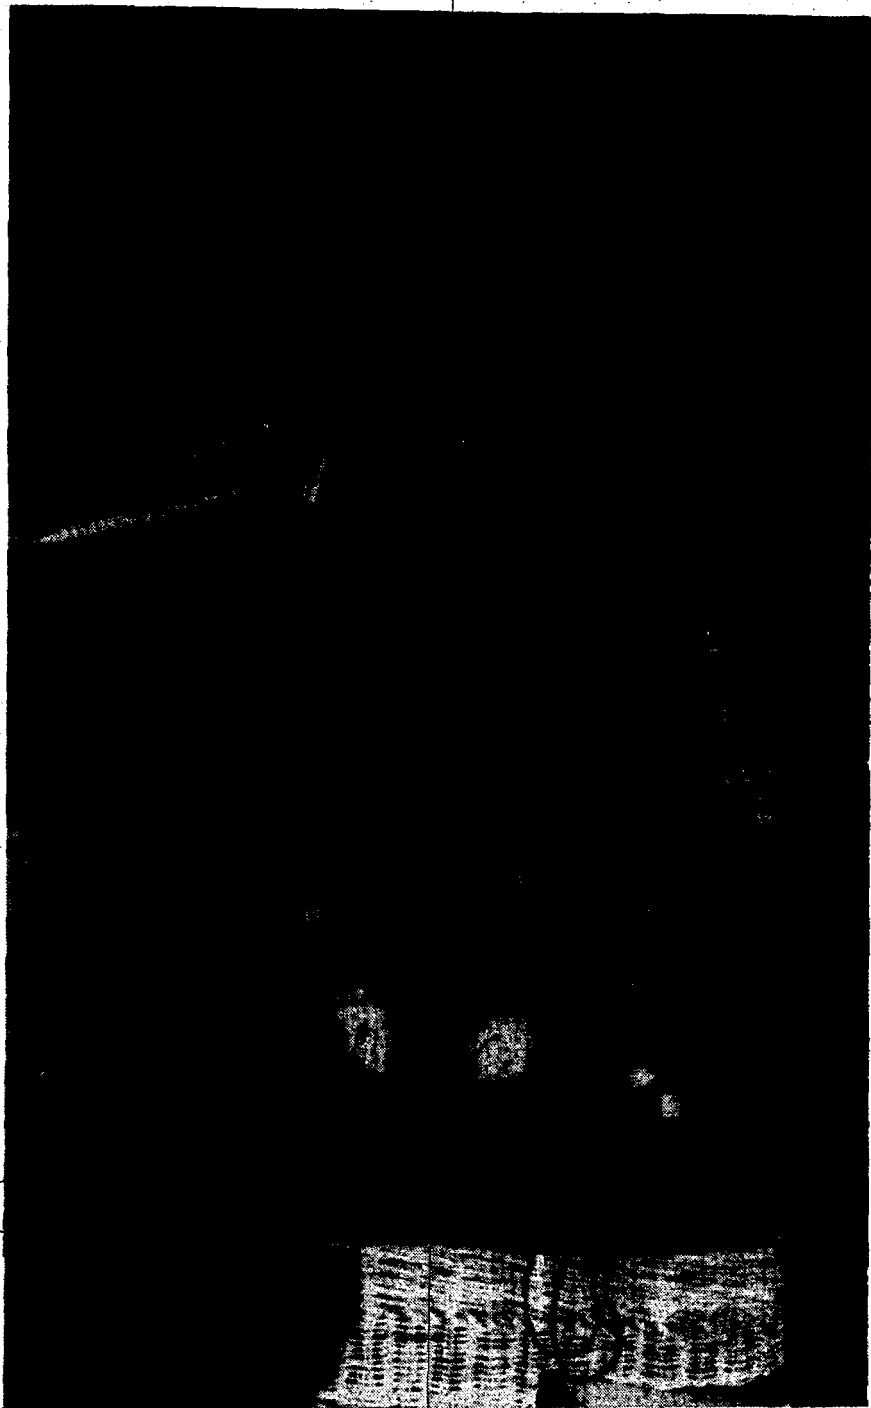

One of those events is the Balloon Ball, scheduled for Friday and Saturday night at 8 p.m. at the Mayflower Hotel.

The bash comes complete with a live band, the Wildcats from Canton, a cocktail bar and some hot food. The price to get into the dance is $6 at the door.

The dancing under the stars is scheduled to last both nights until 1 a.m., and visitors will most likely have a chance to rub elbows with some of the pilots and sponsors of the balloons seen earlier in the day.

Other scheduled activities throughout the lull time of the balloon launches include brunches and dinners at the Hotel.

plus

Do you want to do this?

Lessons will be given for would-be balloonists on Aug. 15-16. The course will turn the novice into a budding balloonist, according to the instructor. (Crier photo)

Becoming a balloonist

If you've always been fascinated with the Hot Air Balloon Festival, then you'd be even more fascinated with the view from above.

Folks can take a two-day hot air balloon pilots course at the Mayflower Hotel on August 15 and 16, which will begin at 8 a.m. Those completing the course are eligible to take a written exam to become a licensed hot air balloon pilot by the Federal Aviation Administration.

The seminar, conducted by Van Stifler of the Fort Wayne Ground Schools, will cover all the material a hot air balloon pilot needs to know.

The $125 fee will include lessons in density, altitude, lifting force, landing and ballooning weather as well as basic operating practices. The price also includes all classroom presentations, hand out materials and loan of an aeronautical chart and test guide.

Stifler guarantees that people attending the seminar will pass the FAA written exam or tuition will be refunded.

For reservations and more information, call the Wicker Basket Balloon Center at 669-4232 call Stifler at (219) 747) 5533.

Mettetal Airport's where the cakes are

Happy flapjackers

This is an event that would make any lumberjack proud. And if that lumberjack happened to enjoy experimental aircraft — well then he would be in heaven.

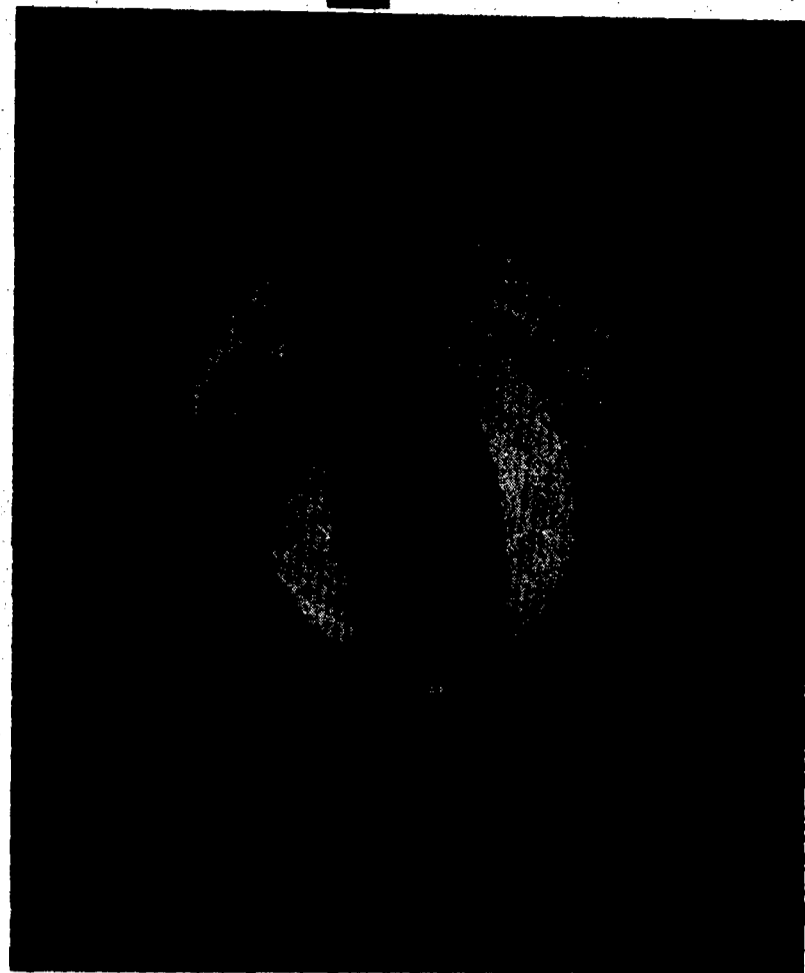

Saturday morning, July 12, the annual Fly-in Pancake breakfast, will land at Mettetal Airport in Canton. Inside the main hangar, located on Lilley and Joy roads, pancakes will be flying high from the griddle to the plate as members of the Chapter 113 of the Experimental Aircraft Association host the annual breakfast.

Breakfast will be served from 7 a.m. to 11 a.m., with a small cost for adults, and even smaller donation for children 12 years and younger.

The EAA is an international organization dedicated to the promotion of aviation and provides support and encouragement for those who want to design and build aircraft.

The proceeds of the breakfast go to the local AEE scholarship fund, which was established in 1986. The first winner of the award, Todd G. Mueller, will be entering the Aviation Technology and operations program this fall at Western Michigan University with the help of his scholarship.

This breakfast is a way for people to tour the airport, see some of the planes on display, and meet people who have built, or are building their own plane. Among the planes on display will be a homebuilt "amphibian."

Flight pattern

The agricultural fields of Canton provide a linear backdrop to the balloons floating over the community. Balloonists come from all over the region to participate in the Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Festival. (Crier photo)

Dancin' in the streets

Some of the crowd at Friday night's Plymouth Summer Street Dance debut enjoyed watching others do all the "work" while they found comfortable sitting spots in Kellogg Park. At right, Lisa Auckerman takes the lead with Jimmy Burns during a slow song. The city hosts the street dances Friday nights on Penniman Avenue in front of The Gathering.

Advertising nourishes the consuming power of men. It creates wants for a better standard of living. It sets up before man the goal of a better home, better clothing, better food for himself and his family. It spurs individual exertion and greater production. It brings together in fertile union those things which otherwise would never have met.

BY DAVID PIERINI
 Two Canton men are making waste-reduction efforts that will enable them to handle a steady diet of garbage.
 David Denski, owner of Canton Recycling which picks up the Canton's garbage, and Ed Bretzlaff of C and J Contracting, have presented Supervisor Jim Poole a proposal that would turn an old landfill into a new recycling center.
 Denski and Bretzlaff offered to buy an unused dump site located on Lilley Road near Van Born and start a year-round recycling park that would take papers, concrete, oil, wood, and other materials.
 The two were expected to make a bid for the 17-acre land at Tuesday night's board meeting.
 "We want to take a piece of property that has heavy liability to the Township and put it to good use," Denski said. "This won't cost the people anything. I want to buy the land and relocate.
 "I'm the garbage contractor and I want to reduce the Township's waste." State funds -- $10 million -- are available to assist in starting new collection programs, money that Denski would be eligible for. If the board accepts his bid, Denski said the center could start operating 30 days after closing.

 The proposed Canton Recycling Park would make use of an existing building, with the addition of a concrete crushing machine, a wood pulverizer for free stumps and brush, a composting area and drop-off sites for newspapers, tires, oil and other recyclable materials.
 Composting is a biological process used to break down organic components of the solid waste stream. Composted materials -- leaves, grass clippings, ground up yard and wood waste, sludge and septage -- could then be used for gardening, landscaping, erosion control, nursery applications and as a buffering agent for fertilizers.
 Denski said the center would be a good place for people to drop off old refrigerators, stoves, sinks and other household items too big for normal trash pickup.

"The Township already pays us for spring clean up, but a year-round program would be more efficient," said Denski, who had over 800 people in May drop off trash and reuseable discards at Canton Recycling. The spring program only allows for people to drop things off twice a week.

"I just want to keep people from throwing things into ditches along side the road," Denski said.

Poole said he's in favor of the proposal and said he couldn't think of a better place than the Lilley Road landfill.

"I've asked them to put it all together and present it to the board,"

Poole said. "We tried (a recycling program) four years ago for oil that didn't work.

"This sounds like a big operation and I'm for it."

A portion of the dump site was being used for an airstrip by the Pilgrim Flying Club. The club's lease recently expired, but Denski said he'd meet with club officials to discuss use of the land.

He said he also wants to meet and work with the Canton unit of the League of Women Voters, which approached Poole about a drop-off site for newspapers.

Michigan ranks 10th in the nation in generating raw materials from trash. Nearly 10 per cent of the state's industrial waste is reclaimed, but only one per cent of household trash is being recycled.

Glimpse At Yesterday

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following information was provided by the Plymouth branch American Association of University Women.

THE BAKER HOUSE

233 Main Street
1976 Landmark Award

This High Victorian Gothic-style house was built in 1875 in the fashionable section of town by Henry Baker. The home was built for durability, so the outside walls have two layers of brick with an air space between them. This is called "cavity-wall" construction and is found in English-Victorian houses.

There is a solid brick wall inside running the width of the house between the front rooms and the kitchen. Kitchen fires were very common in those days and this brick wall served as a firewall for the rest of the house. This wall has been plastered and no brick is visible inside the house. Even the ordinary walls are at least 10 inches thick. This is an excellent form of insulation and even with present day heating costs, the entire home can be heated in the coldest months for about $100.

All the woodwork is done on butternut with grooves and scrollwork along the stairway. Hundreds of feet of beading, thin strips of wood, are placed in all the grooves to accentuate its beauty. There is also a secret panel under the carved staircase.

At the time the house was built several innovations were in the process of development and Henry Baker incorporated them into his home. First, the elaborate black marble fireplace in the front parlor was built for coal, not firewood; second, carpeting was making its debut and Baker used less expensive planking for the flooring instead of the hardwood floors found in some older homes; and third, indoor plumbing was not commonplace, but the outhouse had moved from a separate structure at the back of the property to an attached two-story shed with stairs at the back of the house.

The home remained in the hands of the original owners until 1943 when Ann Baker, Henry's sister, sold it to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Buzzard. Baker was the chairman of the board and president of the Daisy Air Rifle firm. Buzzard was an attorney for the railroad. Mrs. Buzzard stated in a newspaper article that the home "was the first house downtown to change hands." Later it was purchased by Mrs. Ellen Smith who converted it to the Damsel Beauty Salon. The home has since been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lee and is currently owned by attorney David Frost and Jack Marsh. They have completed extensive renovation in the home, including brass fixtures and black and white marble flooring in the foyer. Although some structural changes have been made, they have retained the original beauty of the house.

Burial was at Riverside Cemetery, and memorial contributions can be made to the First Baptist Church or the Cancer Society of Plymouth.

Library seeks Nov. ballot

around" 1 full mill,

That figure would represent about 20 cents more per household for each $1,000 of SEV currently collected in taxes. Currently the district receives 80 cents per $1,000, and would get $1 per $1,000 of SEV with the increase.

"I think that (1 mill) is about what we have been talking about but I don't think anything definite has been set," Doetsch said.

She said the extra money would hopefully be used to leave the library open for more hours during the week, and stock the shelves with more books.

"We talked about doing those things, and we decided we just needed more money," she said.

The Plymouth Library District Board was formed in September of 1985, with the current .8 mills voted on in November of that year.

This is the first additional millage the board has sought. If an election does happen it would most likely take place in conjunction with the city commission election in November.

Currently the library is closed on Friday and Sunday.

Both city and township residents of Plymouth currently pay taxes to the library district. The library is located at 223 S. Main St.

Places to be

Elementary students ready for summer playhouse program

A summer musical -- "The Grapevine Connection" -- with a cast of more than 30 fourth, fifth and sixth graders is being readied for this summer.

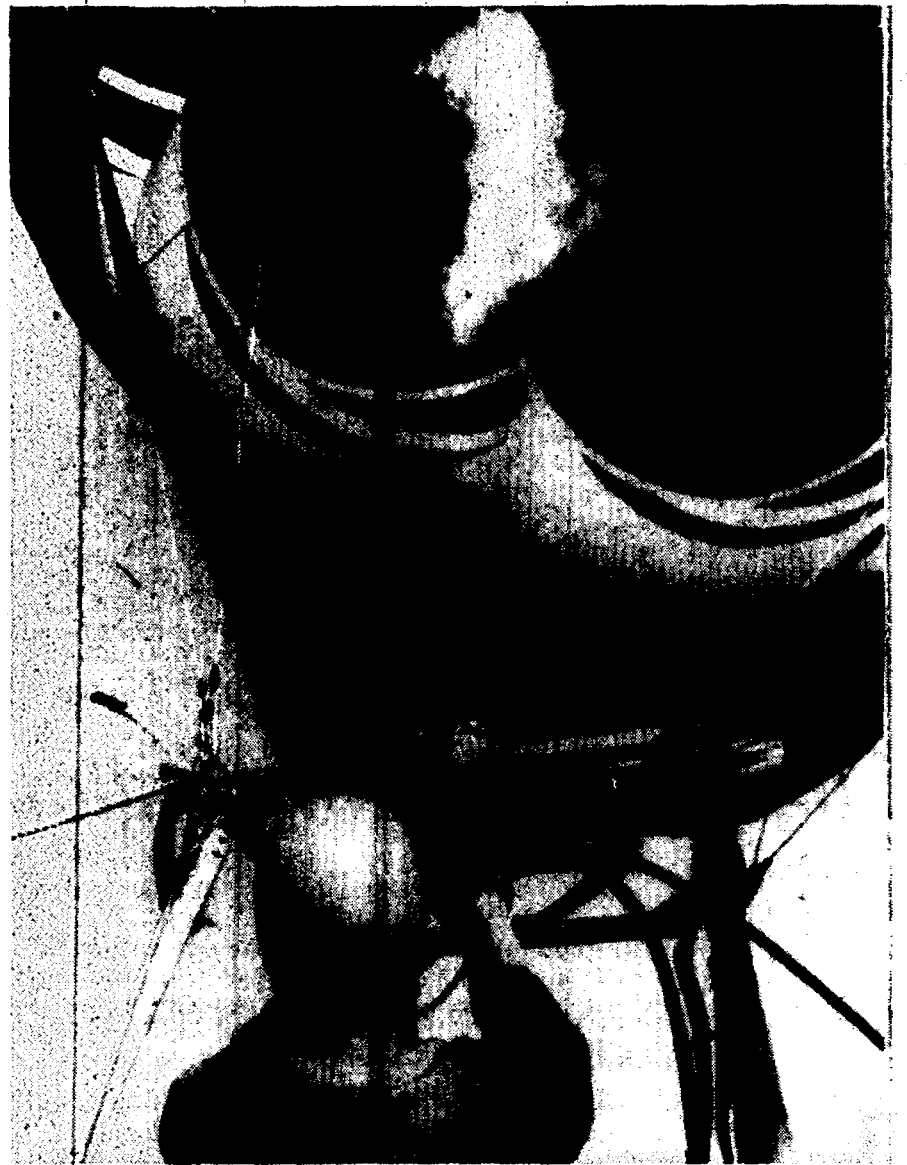

The two-day performance is a first-time musical summer project in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. It's slated for Friday and Saturday, July 10-11. Performances will be held at 7:30 p.m. on both days, with a 2 p.m. matinee scheduled for Saturday.

Tickets are a $1 donation and can be purchased through a member of the cast or at the door.

Some of the songs and dances featured include "You Can Read the News," "Dot! Dash!," "The TV Weary-me Blues," and many more.

The show was written by John Carter and Kay Beall.

Performances will take place at Canton High's Little Theatre.

Pilots from all over will converge on The Plymouth-Canton Community this weekend for the seventh annual Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon festival. (Crier photo)

Pageant seeks applicants for Miss Michigan

Applications are currently being accepted for the Miss Michigan National Pre-Teen Pageant which will be held on Sept. 5-6 at the Clarion Hotel in Lansing.

The competition is to select a young woman who is representative of American youth at its best. Organizers stress that it is not as beauty pageant.

Girls born between Jan. 2, 1974 and Dec. 31, 1978 are eligible to participate. Contestants will compete for cash awards, saving bonds and other prizes.

The winner will receive a $500 savings bond, a $100 gift certificate, trophy and banner, along with a flight to the National Pageant in November.

Contestants will be judged on talent, appearance, poise-personality, scholastic achievement and personal interviews with the judges. Included will be a stage appearance in a party dress, when contestants will be escorted by their fathers.

For information or applications write to Michigan's Director, DiAnna VanSickle, 214 Fifth Ave., Lehigh, FL, or call 813-369-4283.

Balloons, fireworks

Local birds and other creatures of the sky should beware during the July 4 weekend -- there won't be much room for clouds, let alone anything else in the skies, with the annual balloon festival during the day and a fireworks display during the evening hours.

This year, the Jaycees and balloon organizers have teamed up to bring a double-dip celebration? The annual parade and fireworks are set to go off Saturday July 4, sandwiched in between five mass balloon lift offs and various other activities.

The annual parade is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. in downtown Plymouth. The parade route begins near the Cultural Center and will continue down Main Street to Hartsough.

Once again there will be a reviewing stand at the foot of Kellogg Park where the parade's participants will compete for parade awards.

The fireworks display is set for dusk at Township Park at Ann Arbor and McClumphia roads in Plymouth Township.

Jaycees President Chuck Lowe said the Plymouth Community Band will perform live music to accompany the fireworks display.

Parking for the event will be near the park and along some of the roads, but local police warn that many of the streets will be closed to traffic, and turned one-way beginning early in the evening (see news section for map).

There is no charge for entry into the park, and the fireworks display is expected to last 45 minutes.

For those who plan on coming from the launch site of the balloon festival, there will be a free shuttle service sponsored by M-Care Heath Service, or it is a short walk down McClumphia Road to the park.

Larry Trafficant, also from Canton, captured ninth overall in the 15-lap Street Stock feature, also on Saturday.

Hoop campers say 'A lot of fun'

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Building and supporting the foundation of the local basketball community.

That's what the annual summer basketball skills camp at Salem and Canton High Schools this week was all about. It was also about athletes helping younger athletes.

There was even a new addition to the program this year -- a first time summer skills camp for boys. The camp ran for two weeks and sessions will end tomorrow at the high schools.

"It's really a great idea, we like getting the kids into basketball as early as possible," Salem girls varsity basketball coach and camp advisor Fred Thomann said.

The summer camp is for both boys and girls in The Plymouth-Canton Community from grade four right through grade nine.

The purpose of the summer camp is to get potential future stars from the community involved in basketball at an early age and instill a desire to play basketball. The camp sessions also stressed basic individual fundamentals and team skills, according to Salem boys varsity coach Bob Brodie, who heads the boys summer camp.

"The great thing about this camp is, it's not Salem versus Canton. We're trying to promote harmony, and get the kids to know one another. It's kind of like a family," Brodie added.

What makes this camp different then the high priced camps?

Well the camp doesn't feature visitors the likes of Isiah Thomas or Bobby Knight. But it does feature great local stars like Jill Estey and all-state Salem star Dena Head.

It is better in some ways than the bigger camps; player to coach ratios are much smaller, allowing for more individual tutoring, said Thomann.

Those tutors are mostly Salem and Canton varsity basketball players. They do more then lecture, though, they teach.

"We don't like to have lots of lectures, we like to give the kids as much court time as possible," Brodie said.

The camps cost was reasonable as well. For $45, the young athletes got a T-shirt, a basketball, 27 and one half hours of court time, and were instructed by some of the finest coaches and player in the area.

And the camp is still growing.

Last year's first summer session drew 57 girls, while in 1987 that number almost doubled to nearly 110 girls from throughout the community.

In its first year the boys camp 124 young athletes.

"It's a lot of fun and the kids are learning a lot," Canton girls varsity head coach Rob Neu said.

The kids really seemed to enjoy the camp, as the numbers showed.

Mary Barna, of Canton, who hopes to one day wear a Chief uniform said, "The camp is a lot of fun, and we're learning a lot from the coaches and the varsity players who help us out."

Teri King a Salem varsity basketball player is seeing great improvement in the kids as well.

"The girls are doing great. They've really improved since the camp began," she said.

Jennifer Werner, who has been playing basketball for two years now, and is headed for the sixth grades "learn a lot."

"They've taught us a great deal. I'm having a lot of fun," Werner added.

Karen Bolush a Canton seni feels the camp will aid basketball in the community greatly.

"The kids have really improved, and some of these girls are really good," Bolush said.

As the summer camped wrapped up Thomann dubbed it a "great success."

"We really want teach these kids, and hopefully they'll stay in the district and play for either me or Rob (Neu)," Thomann said. "I think we've created a great camp, where we can develop the talents of the kids in The Plymouth-Canton Community."

Donation hoax

Michigan Special Olympics Director John Walsh is warning residents to beware of fraudulent telephone calls soliciting money to support the program.

"We don't know where these calls are coming from, but we are asking the public to help us," said Walsh.

Walsh added that the only legitimate telephone solicitation on behalf of Michigan Special Olympics is done by DialAmerica Marketing.

Walsh suggests residents who receive a suspicious call to stay on the line long enough to get a name and/or address for mailing donations.

Just contact Michigan Special Olympics, 127 Rowe Hall, Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, MI, 48859. Or call 517-774-3911.

Bennett letters

Junior Mark Bennett, of Canton, has earned a 1987 varsity baseball letter at Alma College.

Bennett helped the 10-2 Alam Scots win their seventh Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA) championship in 15 years.

Bennett, a 1984 graduate of Canton High, earned his third varsity award as a pitcher fo the Scots. He is the son of Daniel and Sharon Bennett and is majoring in business administration at the school.

Chamber golf classic planned for September

The Plymouth Chamber of Commerce will host its Annual Golf Classic '87 in September.

The classic -- to be played at the Fox Hills Country Club -- is slated for Tuesday, Sept. 22. If rain prevents play on that day, a rain date has been set up for the following Tuesday (Sept. 29).

An individual ticket is $85, while a $40 ticket buys dinner. But as a sponsor participants receive a package two tickets for a round of golf, cart rental, meals, refreshments, and a shirt.

There are a limited number of reservations available.

Tee-off time is 10:30 a.m. Golfers should check in by 9:15 a.m. to assure a good tee time for the classic.

To register call the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce at 453-1540, write the chamber at 960 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Suite 2, Plymouth, MI 48170.

Hotshot shootout

Here's one for hotshots.

Canton's Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring the Pepsi/NBA Hotshot Basketball Competition in conjunction with Pepsi-Cola on three separate dates this summer -- July 7, 13 and 15.

The three competitions will each be held at noon. The first (July 7) will be at Eriksson Elementary, while the other two competitions (July 13, 15) will be at Hulsing Elementary.

The event is open to boys and girls ages nine to 18. The competitions test a youngster's speed, dribbling, shooting and rebounding abilities.

The winners of each age group will advance to an area playoff to be held in Detroit this fall. The age groupings are 9-12 years of age, 13-15 and 16-18.

Registration will be held at each school site on the day of the event. There is no entry fee.

Call 397-5110 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday for further information.

Seniors ready for Olympics

The 8th Annual Michigan Senior Olympics will be held beginning at 9 a.m. on Saturday, August 15 at Oakland Community College. Seniors from The Plymouth-Canton Community will be among the athletes on hand for the event.

The Canton Seniors, for example, will take a busload of seniors to the event -- including participants and spectators. The bus will leave the Canton Recreation Center at 7:10 a.m.

Registration forms are available to compete through the Older Persons and the Canton Seniors (397-1000, ext. 278). They are due no later than July 23.

Men and women 55 and over are eligible to compete. The cost is $2 to register (includes a t-shirt and lunch) and $1 for each "closed event." Open events are free.

Singles tourney coming

The 2nd annual Singles Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, is slated for July 10-12 at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) tennis courts.

The event is open to residents ages 14 and under, 15-18 and 19 and over. Trophies will be awarded to the winner and runner-up in each of those age brackets.

The fee is $4 per person. Registration deadline is 5 p.m., Wednesday, July 8.

Each participant must furnish a new can of USTA approved tennis balls for each match. The new balls go to the winner.

Participants who play on Friday, July 10 at 6 p.m. will be notified on Thursday, July 9. Saturday check-in time is 8:30 a.m.

To register make a check payable to: Canton Township, 1150 S. Canton Center Rd., Canton 48188.

Call 397-5100 for further registration and tournament information.

Jr. football

The Plymouth-Canton Lions Junior Football League still has openings for both boys and girls ages nine through 14 years old to participate in the 1987 fall football season.

For further information call Kathy Milligan at 981-6406.

$3.50 for the first four ads. 10¢ each additional word. Deadline Monday 4 p.m. Call 453-8900
