Canton landfill gets first OK

BY DAN NESS

By an 8-4 vote, the Wayne County Solid Waste Implementation Committee approved the proposed Sauk Trail Hills landfill for construction in Canton at its Nov. 4 meeting.

The vote marked the first time the body had approved a landfill for construction in Wayne County since the board was created in 1978, according to its chairman, 11th District County Commissioner Milton Mack.

Representatives of the project developer, Wayne Disposal, Inc., argued that the county only had less than 3½ years of waste disposal capacity left as of Jan. 1, 1988 before running out of space, in pushing for the landfill. The new landfill would add another three years of capacity for the county, they said. Their arguments were effective, Mack said.

"I think the committee was persuaded that the shortage of (waste disposal) space was so imminent that it thought next year would be too late," Mack said of the vote.

The Sauk Trail Hills facility would involve approximately 200 acres of land on both sides of Lilley Road south of Michigan Avenue. The project would also incorporate two abandoned landfill parcels into the facility, with about 106 acres of the entire project

Vietnam vets don't dwell on memories

BY PAUL GARGARO

It's easy to imagine the terror of war, the fear of being wounded or killed, and maybe even the macabre glamour of combat.

But what about the reality of war?

The plain and simple fact that each one of us could be susceptible to the grim characteristics of war is in itself more disheartening than any combat story or film.

LAND: How much property do our local governments own? See page 3.

DUMP: The county's garbage has to be disposed of somewhere, but some locations are better than others. See pages 8 and 10.

RUN: The Canton High School girls' cross country team and the Salem boys' team ran in the state meet last weekend. For results, see page 28.

Mark Hyland and Steve Mansfield, co-owners of Heide's Flowers and Gifts in Plymouth, experienced the awful realities of war while serving in Vietnam in the late 1960s. Both speak of their experiences calmly, showing neither overt pride nor shame, and it's quickly understood that many of their feelings will remain unmentioned.

"The war gave me a certain appreciation for life," said Hyland, 39. "I have lots of clear memories, but I try not to dwell on them."

"I remember watching clips of the Detroit riots and thinking that we were more secure," said Mansfield. "I guess we were all pretty callous, but that's how we survived."

Hyland was 18 when he was drafted in 1968. At the time, he was working and trying to save money to go to school. He left the safety of his home in Livonia and reported to Fort Knox, KY. Twenty-eight weeks after he was drafted, he joined up with the 101st Airborne and made his new home six miles south of Vietnam's demilitarized zone.

In 1965, Mansfield was a 19-year-old student at Ferris State College. He was studying for finals the night that his father called to notify him that he had been drafted.

"I didn't do too well on my finals the next day," said Mansfield. "President Johnson was starting his major buildup then. Just about everyone in my dorm was drafted, regardless of grade points."

Initially, Mansfield went through training at Fort Knox. He was later sent to Ft. Lewis, in Seattle. Serving as a truck driver, Mansfield spent his one-year tour of duty in the Mekong Delta region of Vietnam.

For these two men, the draft was an unavoidable reality. They weren't happy about leaving the comfort and familiarity of their homes, but there was no other choice.

"It was a wholesale deal," Hyland stated. "Everyone on my block was going." Indeed, the draft touched

Gansler, Bila to lead City

BY PAUL GARGARO

By unanimous decision, Karl Gansler was chosen as the mayor of Plymouth by the city commission in a vote Monday evening at City Hall.

Dennis Bila was chosen as mayor pro-tem over Commissioner Mary Childs by a vote of six to one, and Ron Loiselle was sworn in as a new commissioner, replacing Donald Keller.

Gansler, who had served for two years as mayor pro-tem, replaced William Robinson in the center of the rostrum. Robinson ended a two-year term as mayor and received grateful acknowledgment for his service by those present.

In his inauguration speech, Gansler vowed to continue the pre-commission meetings. He promised, though, to move the meetings, which had previously been held in a small room on the first floor, upstairs to either the commission chambers or to the adjacent meeting room. These new locations, he said, would offer more space for visitors as well as department heads.

Gansler also proposed the idea of renovating the chambers to provide for better communication between the commissioners and the observers.

"If at all possible, I'd like to have the commissioners seated in the middle of the room, on a slightly raised platform with the citizens seated around us," said Gansler. "As it exists, it looks as if we're holding court."

After praising Robinson's gift for encouraging communication, Gansler proposed the idea of holding periodic town meetings in order to give the public a scheduled time to voice their opinions.

Gansler also stressed the need for heightened activities for senior citizens, like a summertime softball league organized through the recreation department. He also expressed a desire to rewrite the existing sign ordinance so that the size of building signs would be reduced in order to improve the appearance of downtown Plymouth.

City: Slow down on Harvey St.

BY PAUL GARGARO

Motorists will be reminded more often to slow down on S. Harvey Street in Plymouth after a study performed by City Engineer Ken West.

West's study recommended adding more speed limit signs along Harvey Street and having more police patrols on the street to keep speeders at bay. But West did not recommend adding more stop signs, a request made by several Harvey Street residents who initiated the study through a recent petition drive.

The study was presented to City Manager Henry Graper and the City Commission last Monday.

According to West's study, residents on S. Harvey Street had concerns of frequent speeding, use of Harvey Street as an alternative route to Main Street, the potential danger for Smith School students who cross at Harvey Street, safety to the small children who live there, difficulty for residents backing cars out of driveways, and noise.

The conclusion of West's study, which included speed monitoring, measurement of traffic volume, and a breakdown of auto accidents, indicated that there has been a significant increase in the volume of traffic on Harvey Street. The increase, though, is within the safe capacity for the street, according to the study. West also noted that some of the problems are related

What property does gov't. own?

BY KEN VOYLES

Like most governmental units the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools owns property, but district officials discredit the idea that they are running a real estate office.

Most school district land has been purchased with an eye to the future -- growth means more students, means more schools.

"We're not in the real estate business. We're just looking out for our future."

— Supt. John Hoben

"We're not in the real estate business," said District Superintendent John M. Hoben. "We don't want to be. We're just looking out for our future."

"We bought every piece of property with the idea to use as a school site," he added. "If that hasn't been feasible we've sold them or tried to sell them."

That's the bottom-line when it comes to vacant schools property, according to the superintendent.

The district currently owns nine vacant sites throughout the community. It does not own vacant buildings, or lands held outside of the district.

The nine parcels include:

• The rest of the Trusedell Farm site in Canton. This includes 40 acres not currently in use. There are already two schools on the eastern portion of the land.

• The Falkner Nursery site behind the Canton Administration Building. This 15 acres has been offered for sale to the township and fits into the recreation area there. According to Hoben the district would like the township to purchase it.

• The Barchester site in Canton. This 10-15 acres is Public Urban Development (PUD) land. The district had a chance to sell it but required rezoning upset homeowners who used the site as a park. They objected and the sale fell through. Hoben said the district will try and package it to sell.

• The Sunflower Subdivision site in Canton. This 20 acres is surrounded by new single family homes. The district is considering it as a potential middle school or elementary school site.

• The Waldecker Farm site in Canton. This 10 acres of farm land could be used by the district in the future. Or not, depending on growth, said Hoben.

• The Gyde site in Canton. This 10-15 acres is a prime spot for an elementary school.

• The Amherain site in Plymouth Township. This 17-acre site is disputed. The township originally wanted a school site near Township Park. Then it offered to buy the land as an addition to the park.

The district has declined to sell the land only to see the township put it on the tax rolls. Both parties are currently discussing the matter through their respective attorneys.

"It's a real potential school site. It's obvious to me that's our next school," Hoben said.

• The Bartlett School site in Canton. This 10-15 acre plot is the site of a former school.

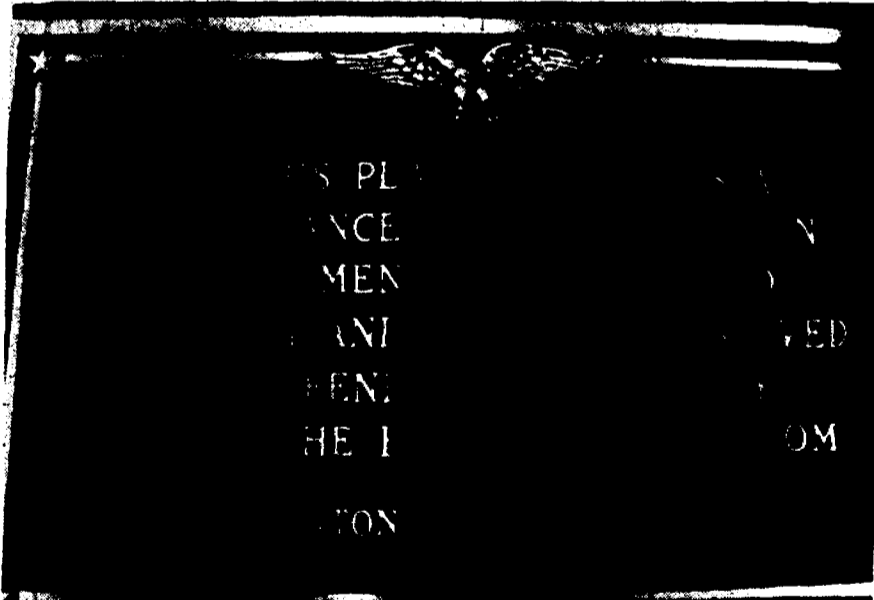

• The Miller Woods site in Plymouth Township. This 40 acres could have two uses. Besides the 20 acres of climax forest there are another 20 acres for a future school.

"We have a problem using that one," Hoben said. "It has a very rare forest in there."

The district also owns Geer School, the last remaining one-room school site

PSO opens with a comeback

BY CHERYL SZYNISZEWSKI

An enthusiastic and appreciative crowd greeted the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra Friday night at the opening concert of its 42nd season.

Under the direction of conductor Russell Reed, the PSO displayed all of the qualities that has earned it the reputation of being one of the top community symphonies in the Detroit metropolitan area.

After getting off to a shaky start with Beethoven's Symphony No. 8 in F major, Opus 93, the orchestra settled down and gave a pleasing performance. Enjoyable it was until the final few bars of the piece when a glaring mistake in the strings and a horn that didn't end with the rest of the orchestra left this reviewer with a slightly-less-than-satisfied feeling.

Mistakes do happen, and generally, one doesn't expect perfection in a community symphony, but a golden rule of performance was broken, nonetheless. That is, leave the audience on a pleasing note. Whatever happens between the beginning and the end can be forgotten if the performers end on pitch and together.

During intermission, one couldn't help but wonder if the problems that have plagued the Symphony Board the past few years were finally taking their toll on the orchestra members and becoming apparent in the orchestra's performance.

However, this was not the case.

The PSO performed brilliantly during the second half of the concert.

42nd season in Plymouth

Plymouth Symphony Orchestra conductor Russell Reed congratulates featured guest soloist Walter Verdehr during the PSO's opening concert of the season Friday at Salem Auditorium. Following the concert, a reception was held, where Reed was introduced to all who attended. (Crier photo by John Grybas)

This fact leads one to believe that the orchestra will have a season worth noting. After all, the true mark of a champion in any game or artistic performance is the ability to make a remarkable comeback.

The opening work for the second half of the program was Belgian composer Henri Vieuxtemps' Violin Concerto No. 4 in D minor, Opus 31. This is a demanding work for both soloist and orchestra.

Walter Verdehr, the soloist for the evening, performed with the dramatic flare this virtuosic piece required. His tone was beautifully resonant. The PSO accompanied him superbly, displaying remarkable dynamic control again and again, matching Verdehr's expressive quality.

The final work of the evening, Tchaikovsky's Marche Slave, Opus 31, was performed with the same enthusiasm and outstanding control as was the Vieuxtemps piece.

Attending the PSO concert at Salem Auditorium was a refreshing way to end a busy work week and a good way to start off the weekend.

Reed's selection of works for the season is impressive. The community will have the chance to hear works of little-known composers like Vieuxtemps, current composers like Iannaccone, popular composers like Gershwin, and the giants -- Beethoven, Handel and Mozart, to name a few.

Now, with the performance requirements of the orchestra members in the skilled hands of Reed, perhaps the Symphony Board can concentrate on increasing community interest and getting the corporate sponsorship this vital community arts organization, the PSO, so richly deserves.

Flag swiped again

BY KEN VOYLES

Demoralizing.

That's what Salem High Principal Gerald Ostoin called the weekend theft of the school's giant 20 feet by 30 feet American flag.

It's the second time a flag has been taken down from the flagpole in front of Salem. A much smaller flag is flying over the school this week.

The original giant flag disappeared near graduation time last June, but residents, staff members, students and even the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) all chipped in with money to purchase a new $540 flag.

"They got it again," Ostoin said after the weekend. "It's just so demoralizing. We want to add to the school, not take away."

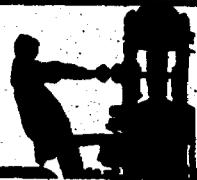

Canton Police and school officials are investigating the disappearance of the flag, but there are currently no suspects.

"It's the kind of thing someone would want to brag about," Ostoin said, "We've got our people out listening."

Thieves would have had to climb 15 feet to reach the tie-up connection before removing the flag, said Ostoin. The new connection spot was put in place following the first theft.

"We'll try a different plan next time," said the principal. "I'm optimistic one of the flags will turn up."

But Ostoin added he wasn't sure where the school would get the money if it had to order yet another new flag.

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will "opt out" of a federal class action asbestos suit but will participate in the Michigan Class Action.

The Board of Education unanimously voted for the move Monday. The vote came following a recommendation by Thrun, Maatsch and Nordberg attorneys.

The move was made Monday to beat a Dec. 1 deadline, according to John M. Hoben, who also recommended opting out of the federal action.

"We're going back to our inspections and removal costs so that when they ask for it we'll have it ready," said Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business.

"Hoben told the board more money would be gained by going with the Michigan suit.

In a memo to the board Hoben noted that federal monies would be dispersed among parties involved in the suit and "likelihood of payment would be considerably less than what could be received" from the Michigan action.

Besides a better payment the district will also have more control over the progress of the litigation, said Hoben.

The Michigan suit -- "Board of Education of the School District for the City of Detroit, et al v Celotex Corp., et al" -- was filed by 12 representative public and private Michigan school districts. The defendants include most, if not all, of the solvent asbestos manufacturers, miners, suppliers or producers.

It will be tried in the Wayne County Circuit Court before Judge James E. Mies.

Hoben also said the administration has received detailed records of inspections while Central Middle School underwent asbestos removal during the summer.

No hourly legal fees will be incurred by the district with participate in the Michigan suit, but Holben added that the district will probably face some costs for testing to prove damages.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

County of Wayne, 728 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Michigan 48226

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS:

On or about 24 November 1987, the above named County will request the U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development to release federal funds under Title I of the Housing & Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93.383) for the following project(s) accordingly:

1. PROJECT: Willow Creek Improvements
LOCATION: Willow Creek, Haggerty Road to I-275
PURPOSE: Relocation of flood elevation; planting of trees
COSTS: $137,193

2. It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and, accordingly, the County of Wayne has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190). The reasons for such decision not to prepare such a Statement are as follows:

No significant impact was found as a result of the environmental assessment.

An Environmental Review Record respecting the above project has been made by the County of Wayne which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request, at the office of Community & Economic Development, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton Township, Michigan, 48188, between the hours of 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the County of Wayne to the office of the undersigned. Such written comments should be received at 2211 East Jefferson, Detroit, Michigan, 48207, on or before 23 November 1987. 3. CERTIFICATION: The County of Wayne will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development (HUD) under Title I of the Housing & Urban Development Act of 1974. The County of Wayne is certifying to HUD that the County of Wayne and Executive Edward McNamara, in his capacity as County Executive, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision-making, and action, and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the County of Wayne may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases:

a. That the certification was not in fact executed by the Chief Executive Officer of the applicant; or

b. That the applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process.

Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24CFR Part 58), and may be addressed to HUD at: 15th Floor, McNamara Building, 477 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, Michigan, 48226. Omnicom videos Straight Omnicom of Michigan, Inc., has just completed a 30-minute video on Straight, Inc. and its long-term drug rehabilitation program based in its Plymouth office.

The program -- "Getting Straight in Plymouth, Michigan" -- focuses on Straight's format for working with the family as well as the individual on a long term basis. It also centers on the group's fund raising efforts.

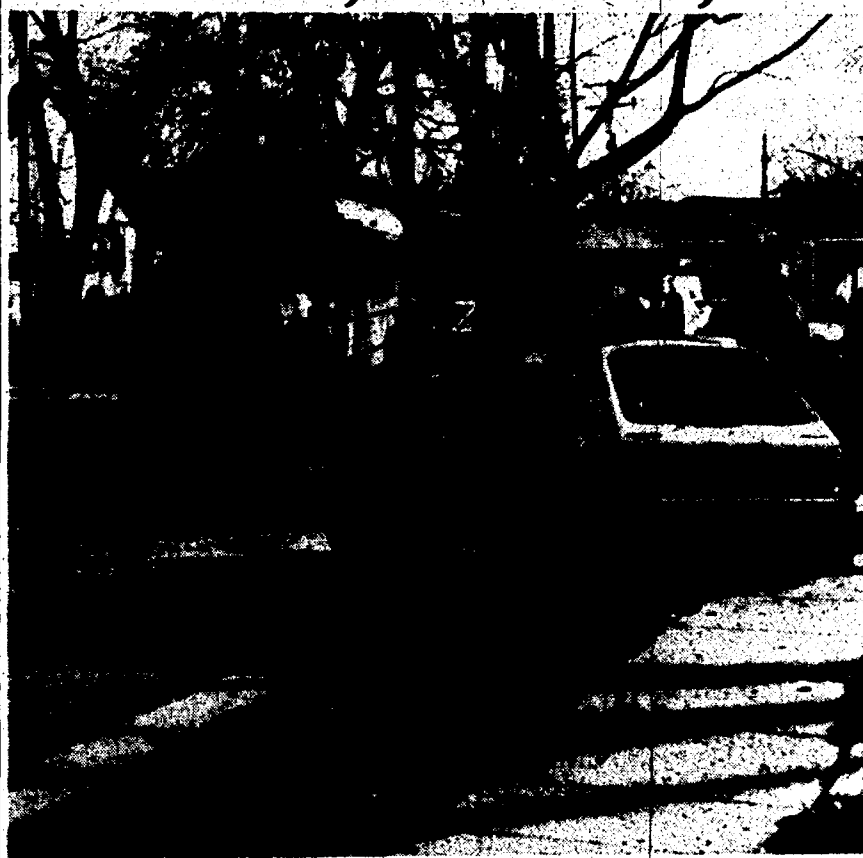

Footage includes a Straight meeting in Springfield, VA, attended by Nancy Reagan and Princess Diana.

Lynn Lecours, community services director at the Straight Inc. chapter in Plymouth said the program will serve to heighten the awareness of today's adolescent drug problem.

She also added that the program is one of many steps toward educating the community about solutions available in the substance abuse struggle.

The program, produced by Richard Perry, is being cablecast on Omnicom's Channel 15.

School bus, car collide; one injured

Plymouth rescue personnel attend to Joan Scarpulla, of Plymouth, in her car after an accident involving a school bus on Friday. The accident occurred at the intersection of Harvey and Linden streets at about 2:40 p.m. (Crier photo by W. Edward Wendover)

Joan Scarpulla, of Plymouth, was seriously injured when her automobile was hit broadside by a Plymouth-Canton Schools bus carrying students at the intersection at Harvey and Linden streets on Friday, said Plymouth police.

The collision occurred at approximately 2:40 p.m. on that day.

According to police and witnesses, Scarpulla was heading westbound on Linden and failed to stop at the Harvey Street stop sign. As she passed through the intersection, her car was struck by the northbound school bus.

Scarpulla was driving alone and was wearing her seat belt. None of the school bus passengers were injured, police said.

The damage to Scarpulla's automobile forced rescuers to remove the door on the driver's side in order to free her.

Immediately following the accident, Scarpulla was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in Livonia for treatment, said police.

Later that evening, Scarpulla was transferred to the University of Michigan Hospital where she was listed in serious condition as of Tuesday, said a hospital spokesman.

Aftermath

A bird's eye view of the destroyed Grain Mill Crossing reveals patterns on the floor where an undetermined flammable liquid was poured to start the blaze. The State Fire Marshall's office is still investigating the arson which consumed the Plymouth structure on Oct. 30.

A tough call

Canton bites the bullet for county

The vote by the Wayne County Solid Waste Implementation Committee last week to approve the Sauk Trail Hills landfill for Canton marks a significant trend in our county's handling of the garbage disposal crisis.

The committee gave its go-ahead to Wayne Disposal, Inc. to build the 200-plus-acre facility for waste disposal south of Michigan Avenue on Lilley Road. The Canton Board of Trustees had voted to not support the development at this time last year.

The committee's action says two things: 1) that it realizes the severity of the a garbage disposal crisis; and 2) that it is willing to take action to help alleviate the problem of waste disposal.

Canton officials oppose the landfill. So do the neighboring residents to the proposed development. The dilemma is, then, that there is a garbage disposal crisis but nobody is willing to accept a much-needed landfill in their community.

The county solid waste committee's vote of approval for Wayne Disposal's Canton landfill was not taken lightly. The vote went down like a gulp of bad-tasting medicine -- it is needed, but it is not pleasant.

The task of disposing of Wayne County's garbage is not a pleasant undertaking either. Regardless of the solutions, there will be opposition. Unfortunately, Wayne County is in the position of having opposition with every alternative it looks to during this garbage crisis.

Wayne County has less than three-and-a-half years of landfill space left according to some estimates. A proposal by Wayne County Commissioner and Solid Waste Implementation Board Chairman Milton Mack will set in place a procedure for developing waste disposal facilities, but that process won't begin until sometime next year.

The board found an immediate alternative to help extend the deadline for long-term solutions in the Sauk Trail Hills proposal. This immediate alternative also was a solid, well-planned, well-presented plan for creating additional capacity for the county's garbage. If the county solid waste committee rejected this plan, it would be hard pressed to explain why any project could be acceptable.

The fact that this proposal looks good on paper makes it difficult to oppose regardless of the community in which it is sited. This "good-on-paper" proposal just happens to be sited in Canton.

The biggest obstacle for Wayne Disposal in trying to build Sauk Trail Hills is its plan to vacate Lilley Road to incorporate it into the facility. The county Office of Public Services will ultimately decide whether or not that part of the plan is feasible.

Canton is faced with its second operating landfill with Sauk Trail Hills. Although Canton may be one of the first Wayne County communities to bear some of the weight of the garbage problems, it most certainly will not be the last.

And the Sauk Trail Hills, while maybe unpleasant to take in your own community, is medicine for the entire county.

In the margin

Rumblings at Centennial Educational Park (CEP)...

...Students are grumbling at both Salem and Canton Highs over a new dress code which outlines the vague notion of school as a place where students are supposed to learn moral righteousness.

Clothing which advertises or promotes alcohol, drugs and underground lifestyles is considered prohibited at the Park this year under new guidelines set down in the revised Student Handbook.

Apparently wearing a t-shirt that portrays Spuds Mackenzie or a stoned out Ronald McDonald "interferes" with the educational process not only for the wearer but for his or her classmates.

Not only that, but under the new guidelines even clothing which is provocative in nature (tank tops, short short skirts) can be used as a reason to send a student home.

Students are now being judged by their "cover" and not what's inside. And some of them aren't too happy about it.

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) has also jumped into the fray. The group sent district Superintendent John M. Hoben a letter last month questioning the new dress policy on behalf of some students.

In his response, Hoben said no students at CEP have been "expelled or suspended." He added that he had heard of one student who was asked to "reverse" a t-shirt or, presumably, go home.

Hoben also wrote that "we are exercising our rights to have a minimal dress code and that the Michigan School Law does require the teaching of the harmful effects of tobacco and alcohol as well as drugs."

Hoben said the action was taken by the administration to "enforce school law."

Fall Festival edition earns praise from afar

EDITOR:

It's beautiful! The Fall Festival Edition is the best so far.

I appreciate all the work, all the long hours, and mostly all the creative thought that went into this work of art.

I pat the sales department on the back for their endless sales efforts, but I tip my hat to the art department for making their visions come true.

I have to smile at the thought of editorial rolling their eyes at how many pages they have to fill, and it was

Thomas Tattan, principal at Canton High explained the administration's stance further in a memo to Hoben. He wrote, "It is our belief that the Substance Abuse Policy and our continued daily efforts are aimed at preventing abuse."

He added that such a policy was a "logical step in presenting a consistent message to our students."

While it is true dress should in no way interfere with the educational process, it also seems clear that controlling students under the new code will be difficult, especially during the warmer months.

Trying to get students to learn has never been easy. School officials have to deal with all of the tangibles which go into the making of a student, including dress, and since those officials are on the front lines such tactics are commonplace.

These people know their students. They also know the importance of discipline, discipline created to focus a student's growing awareness of the world around us.

The dress code system has never been an easy one. The district's is a fairly liberal one — nothing in there about girls having to wear dresses or boys wearing ties.

The inherent problem with most dress codes is that they assume students dress the way they do as a form of minor rebellion against an out-dated system.

But wearing a t-shirt advertising beer does not necessarily mean a student condones drinking, just as wearing a hunting jacket does not mean I hunt.

enjoyable reading.

If you ever have a bad day and begin to think nobody notices, I want you to know — I do. Best of luck in the Press Awards.

Twp. resident angered

EDITOR:

At this time I would like to express my disappointment in The Crier for its criticism of the Plymouth Township park ballot proposal.

It seems to be that, instead of degrading the efforts of a few concerned residents who are only trying to improve their community, why couldn't The Crier endorse an issue that could have been both enjoyable and beneficial to the people of Plymouth? Does The Crier actually believe that we need another Meijer development? Or, is the real reason for your disapproval the fact that The Crier is owned by someone who also has an interest in the Meijer corporation?

Regardless of what your one-sided paper has to say, I applaud Loraine Potochick and the efforts of all the other hard working township residents. At least they tried to make Plymouth Township an even nicer place to live. It's just too bad they weren't given the support they so rightfully deserved.

R. BARON

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Plymouth-Canton Community Crier, Inc. is owned entirely by its publisher, W. Edward Wendover, who (he says "regretfully") has no financial interest in Meijer Inc. It is true that Hank Meijer, a former publisher of this paper and a member of the food-retail company's family, serves on The Crier's board of directors. He was not involved in the editorial process in any way. Careful readers will note that Meijer doesn't even advertise in The Crier.

Salem High mom irked by loss of son's jacket

EDITOR:

My son, Michael Sullivan, had his grey leather jacket stolen from Salem High School when he stayed after class for a minute after the bell rang. It is hard to believe that this child's parents have not noticed a leather jacket in their home the past month that does not belong there.

The jacket, which was purchased at the Leather Loft, is a medium grey short jacket with a narrow band collar, size 36, has a furry zip out lining under which is a ripped taffeta lining. (I had planned to replace the lining but as a single parent who works full time and attends college in the evenings, I didn't get around to it.)

Mike has been working since his early teens and buys all his own clothes. He works very hard for his money as he is employed by a horse breeding farm. He works every day after school, all summer, weekends and holidays. He was very proud of that jacket because he earned the money to buy it. I wonder what feelings of self-worth the boy who stole it has.

The fault lies not with the boy but his parents who do not check everything that comes into their home including receipts. This is not an isolated incident. Every neighbor and co-worker I talked to had something of their child's stolen at some time or another. As for the jacket, Mike can purchase another with his hard earned money. For the boy who stole it, both he and his parents have a lot of heartaches in front of them unless changes are made now.

Should anyone have any info on the jacket, leave the info (or the jacket) with school security and they will see that we receive it.

Poll watchers

Is democracy that dull?

Jay Laney and Todd Muschott, two Canton High School seniors, spent the night of Oct. 3 hanging out at school after hours.

They even got extra credit for it.

As a result of their hanging out, I didn't have to hang out as long as I might have here at The Crier office that Tuesday night.

It was another election night in The Plymouth-Canton Community. In what must have been a fairly even trade-off, several students from Audrey Etienne's government class at CEP helped retrieve precinct results for us while they got extra credit for the class.

It probably isn't surprising to learn that some of the students' reactions to the night of democracy in action was understated.

"It was okay," said Laney, when asked to react. "They just counted the votes and gave us the totals and that was that."

That was that.

Those of us who have ever been present at any one of the local municipal clerk's offices on Election Night know better than to ever downplay the effort it takes to pull off an election, especially in the presence of Esther Hulsing, Linda Chuhran or Bill Graham.

"They said we'd be waiting for the votes and then calling in, and that's what happened," said Muschott. I was interested to know whether he had learned anything from his experience.

"Not much," was his reply.

I'll optimistically take that as proof positive that our high schoolers possess a good working knowledge of how an election is coordinated. Besides, any student that replies "I learned several valuable lessons from watching the electoral process firsthand" is a prime candidate for "Most Likely to be Convicted of Insider Trading Charges" in the high school yearbook.

The fact that the election was not a barrel of monkeys for the students did not affect the diligence in which they gathered results, however.

My publisher, who has seen a few Plymouth-Canton Election Nights in his time, raved about getting results from every precinct in Plymouth and Plymouth Township by 9:30 p.m. Even with three separate paper ballots for Plymouth Township voters, all of the precinct totals were called in a mere hour and a half after the polls closed, he noted.

If Audrey Etienne's students are commended for their work here, Jane McCourt certainly should be recognized for going above and beyond the call of duty in this election season.

Whether you supported or opposed her proposal to collect millage for construction of a township swimming pool, you'd have to be an irascible crosspatch not to appreciate the effort that went into her proposal -- collecting signatures for a petition to get the matter on the ballot, then campaigning for the proposal -- especially when she is eight months and three weeks pregnant as of Election Night (which in my book left her with about seven days to analyze the election).

Democracy can be boring, the CEP students witnessed that. Although I will never know myself, democracy while eight months and three weeks pregnant is probably much less boring.

Leaders lend thrills to special occasions

EDITOR:

I must disagree with Wendover's caustic remark that "The Crier prefers to feature stories and photos . . . without the politicians trying to get their mitts in the middle of it." (It appeared in the "With Mallace Toward None" column Nov. 4 issue.)

I've been a newswriter and photographer for some 40 years and I've taken pictures of Presidents, Vice Presidents, Mayors, you name it, and, although I've long since lost my thrill at meeting such luminaries, most people haven't. You may look down your nose at community leaders, but an award or proclamation presentation doesn't mean much unless someone of authority is present.

Ten years from now these youngsters will point with pride at being given their award by the Canton Supervisor. I have pictures of myself with "Soapy" Williams taken 30 years ago. Without the "Guv" it would just be another picture.

You may have a dim view of politicians, but I don't think you should let that stand in the way of people enjoying a memorable photograph.

I could relate it to your being called to Washington to receive a press award from the President and some idiot photographer asks the prez to step out of the picture. You might just as well be in Oshkosh.

As an aside, I remember taking a group picture at Metro Airport of President Carter, Coleman Young and three or four other local leaders. Mayor Young was standing on the end and when I was ready to shoot he casually put his arm over the President's shoulder so that his hand dangled predominantly on the other side of the President.

"I know you guys," he looked at me, "you stick people on the end then crop them off when you make a print. You might crop me out, but what are you gonna do with that black hand?"

Most politicians are allergic to standing at the end, including, I'll bet, Jim Poole.

Neglect spoils preserve

Forgotten, among Wayne County's massive problems, is the William P. Holliday Forest and Wildlife Preserve.

This natural-setting park, which begins off Koppernick Road in Canton, is a neglected part of the county's park system.

No sign identifies its entrance.

Garbage is strewn in its roadways.

Graffiti adorns its bare facilities.

The vandalism and thoughtlessness is bad enough, but it's obviously been a long time since the county paid attention to Holliday park.

Is this another reason that the western tiers of Wayne County should consider annexation to Washtenaw County?

At least Plymouth-Canton taxpayers can note that the county's tax services here don't seem to be neglected. How about returning those tax dollars -- at least in small part -- to the constituents?

Property and growth linked in district in the district.

The others one-room sites -- Canton Center School, Cherry Hill School and South Salem Stone School -- were either sold or given away.

"We gave Canton Center to the Historical Society and we gave Stone School to Salem Township," Hoben said. "And we sold Cherry Hill for $25,000 to Canton Township.

"I don't apologize for any of it," he added. "I think we're in reasonable shape for the future."

The future hinges on growth in the south and west, said Hoben. "If we get sewer and water in Canton we'll probably see even more growth," he explained.

Hoben said the district's philosophy behind acquiring land dates to superintendent Russell Isbister's time in office.

Isbister planned his purchases around the idea of concentric circles stretching westward from the northeast corner of the district toward Ann Arbor.

"We've bought property where we think there will be future growth," said Hoben. Each purchase was designed to fit the following plan: 40 acres for a high school; 20 acres for middle school; and 10-15 acres for elementary school.

Hoben's major purchase while superintendent has been to acquire the current board building site on Harvey Street in Plymouth.

Some of the land owned by the district has been appraised, said Hoben, but no value has been computed for all nine parcels.

As far as he is concerned -- "To buy land and sit on it is not our business."

Friends & Neighbors

Bibliophiles organize to help library

BY DAN NESS

Bookworms of Canton, unite!

Actually, the new Friends of the Canton Public Library group is looking for more than just those who read, according to its organizer, Marcia Barker.

"Hopefully, we'll have a good cross section of people," Barker said. "Basically, we hope to make our focus service and social."

The Friends of the Canton Public Library will hold its organizational meeting on Thursday, Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the third floor meeting room of Canton Township Hall at 1150 S. Canton Center Rd.

It will be at that meeting, Barker said, that the group will decide what it actually wants to do as a group. Whereas many library support groups are formed to raise money or campaign for a millage proposal to construct a new building, the Canton group will already have a new library in place next fall, Barker noted.

One goal of the Friends will be to draw attention to the diversity of services the Canton Public Library offers, Barker said. "Unfortunately, I don't think people are aware of all the special services the library offers," Barker said.

The Canton Public Library staff is happy with the development of the new support group, according to librarian Claire McLaughlin. "It was an idea worked on by (library) board members and staff members together," she said.

"It will be a fun group to belong to," McLaughlin added.

Barker, a Canton resident for 16 years, has been active in the community in school and church activities. She has served on the board of directors of the Plymouth Symphony League for the past five years and is currently its secretary.

Canton computer whiz kids win programming event

Canton High finished first and Salem High came in second at the computer programming contest held during the recent Computer Conference for Youth II in Livonia.

Canton won both the Basic and Logo competitions and finished third in the Pascal.

The Canton students scored 42 points, while Salem collected 37. The next nearest team came from Redford Bishop Borgess with 24 points. The team competed against schools from across the state.

Canton's team members include Jim Hartnett, Pat McAuliffe, Ron Rojas, Tracey Lipford, Sue Long, Ed Wrenbeck, Robin Blair, Brad Carey and Marc Holdwick. They are coached by Ron Carlson.

Elks name top students

Scott Mueller has been selected as the male Elk Student of the Month for Canton High School.

Mueller was chosen for the award based on his achievement, character, leadership, service and citizenship qualities.

Mueller has been the vice-president of his sophomore class, freshman and senior class treasurer, and business editor of the CEP Perspective.

Outside school activities include member of his Church Youth Council, Senior Patrol Leader of his Boy Scout Troop and a Life Scout ranking.

He was also selected to attend Boys State during the summer of this junior year.

Mueller has maintained a 3.5 grade point average at Canton. He has applied to G.M.I. and the University of Michigan for the fall 1988 semester.

Senior Shilpa Parikh has been selected as the female Elk Student of the Month for Canton High School.

Parikh is a member of the Canton girls tennis team, Science Olympiad team, National Honor Society and Spanish Club at Canton.

She was chosen based on her achievements, character, service, leadership and citizenship qualities.

Outside of school Parikh is a Group Leader in Gujarati Samay Youth Association, Indian Dance Group, W.S.S.L. Sollen team. And she works.

She has maintained a 3.9 grade point average while at Canton and has been accepted at the University of Michigan. She plans to earn a degree in computer engineering.

Teachers honored

Twenty-nine teachers in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools were honored Monday by the Board of Education for perfect attendance during their 1986-87 school year.

The teachers honored include:

WINNER OF THE WEEK

Sharon Bouchard is one of two athletic trainers helping Salem and Canton varsity sports teams this fall and winter. Recently, Bouchard's invaluable services came into use when a Salem football player was hurt during a game against Livonia Stevenson. Bouchard kept the player - Ryan Johnson - immobilized, preventing any further damage to his back and legs. She quickly took charge of the situation and kept others from removing Johnson's helmet while he was on the field. Her efforts helped assure a safe recovery for the youth. She deserves high praise for her continuing work.

(Winner of the Week is selected by The Crier Editorial Staff without knowledge of the sponsor. Nominations for this honor may be submitted to The Crier Editorial Staff.)

Tell it to Phyllis

By Phyllis Redfern

It was follies time again last weekend when 26 members of the cast in the Plymouth Follies went to Kalamazoo to see the performance. The people in Kalamazoo did the same basic show (with some additions and deletions) that we did here, under the same director, Paul Lubera.

Actually it was a good excuse to get some of the gang together, especially those who enjoyed working with Paul. Car pools made the drive over and back more fun, and the evening wouldn't have been complete without dinner with the director before the show.

I'm sure most people who have ever been involved with the follies agree the best part of it is the friendships you make. I remember the year Joan Gerigk dragged me to a rehearsal, as I screamed all the way that I couldn't sing or dance. All she said was, "you're just the person the director is looking for — a Lucille Ball type whose only talent is being able to laugh." And that's how I became a Has Been, and that's also how I met some of my best friends.

In any follies there are many people with real talent, a few who think they have talent and then there's the rest of us who just keep laughing. The first time I was on stage I was really nervous, but it didn't take long to realize with my talent I wasn't going to impress anyone anyway. Sometimes people need to be reminded that the only reason they got involved in the show is to have a good time. If you can't get out there and laugh and have fun, why bother?

Unfortunately as we sat in the front row watching someone else do our parts we couldn't help but sing along (we had permission from the director). It was hard to sit still when we knew all the dance steps (too bad we couldn't remember them when it was our turn on stage).

The people in Kalamazoo did a great job with the show, but there's no doubt in our minds that we had more fun doing it. A special thanks to Bill (do you have an announcement) Baxter for organizing a fun evening.

To all of you who missed the follies, stay tuned — not only did we have fun but we came up with a lot of great ideas for the next follies.

Area students who received scholarships from Alma College are: Janai Stepp and Cathleen Farrell of Canton; and Carrie Mason and Marc VanHeyningen of Plymouth.

Canton students who received the University's 1987 Recognition of Excellence Awards from EMU are: Candace Baldwin of Geddes; Michelle Bober of Lombardy; Lisa Bouchillon of Cumberland; Deborah Butske of Applewood; Angela Dugas of Chichester; David Frigerio of Willow Circle; Amy Harris of Beck; Gregory Kehoe of Georgetown; Ann Kotcher of Nantucket; Lisa Lewandowski of Craftbury; Karen Luelleman; Michelle McCormick of Northwind; Lisa Miller of Hanford; Kristina Murphy of John; Linda Nailor of Brandywyne; Kimberly Oakley of Lancelot; Stephanie Robel of Cherrylawn; Alicia Szydlowski of Orleans; and Sandra Vergari of Westminster.

Plymouth students included on the list are: David Fedewa of Byron; Deborah Rogers of Lilley; Freda Smith and of Brownell.

Jennifer Croll, a graduate of Canton High School, has been named a Wittenberg University Scholar, the highest academic honor bestowed upon a freshman. She is the daughter of George Croll of Birchwood Drive in Plymouth.

Area students who were on the Dean's List at Michigan Tech for summer term are: Viren Merchant, a senior in electrical engineering from Canton; and Michael Halliday, a senior in computer science from Plymouth.

TAHITI — POLYNESIAN
PARADISE

Tahiti is not so much a place as a magic word that conjures up images of white sandy beaches, clear blue water, swaying palm trees and long cool drinks being served by a Tahitian beauty — in short, paradise. Well, paradise has yet to be spoiled, and you will likely find Tahiti just as you imagined it. It's a visit you will remember the rest of your life.

Tahiti is the largest island of French Polynesia — a group of 130 islands in 5 archipelagoes. Tahiti covers an area of 402 square miles with a variety of scenery, beaches, and vegetation of the most luxurious sort.

Make Tahiti your Polynesian vacation home, but think about visiting a couple of the other islands as well. The neighboring islands of Huahine and Moorea are a little more leisurely than Tahiti, and Moorea in particular is also one of the most spectacular and scenic islands of the group.

Over 30 years experience assures you of the finest travel service available. And, best of all, THERE IS NO CHARGE TO YOU FOR OUR SERVICES. We are reimbursed in commission fees by the airlines and hotels, ships and resorts that we book.

Vets recall war life for Veteran's Day

many homes and changed so many lives.

"If you were warm, you went," said Mansfield cynically.

While Mansfield was lucky enough to avoid injury during his stay in Southeast Asia, Hyland was less fortunate. Four and a half months into his tour, Hyland was critically wounded in the chest during combat in the Quang Tri province. The wound released Hyland from his obligations as a soldier in combat, but hospitalized him for more than six months.

Admittedly, coming home presented certain challenges, but both men agreed that it was great to be back. "I got called 'baby killer' in the airport when I got back, but my friends were all adult enough to realize that I didn't want to go," Mansfield said.

"When I got back I encouraged my brothers to enlist," said Hyland. "That way they could have some choice before they got drafted."

Hyland recently visited the Vietnam War Memorial in Washington, D.C..

"It was heavy duty," he said. "I took my 10-year-old son. We were both moved."

Today, Hyland lives in Plymouth with his wife and two children. Mansfield is a resident of Salem Township, is married and has one child.

Fraud calls being made

Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers reports that a series of fraudulent calls have been made recently to Plymouth residents by solicitors claiming to be Plymouth police officers.

In one case, Myers notes that the caller identified himself as a Plymouth policeman named Joe Rutledge. The caller then proceeded to ask the receiving party for contributions for a children's aid fund.

"It's illegal for people to pose as Plymouth police officers and solicit money," said Myers. "We don't even have a Joe Rutledge in the department."

Myers urged that anyone receiving such a call in the future should act interested in the proposal and obtain as much information from the caller as possible.

Myers added that the more information the police receive on the fraudulent calls, the better their chances are of finding and prosecuting the guilty party.

Canton woman robbed

A Canton woman reported that she was robbed at gunpoint Saturday in the Meijer Thrifty Acres parking lot on her way to her car, according to Canton police.

The woman said she had left the store's west exit at about 6:50 p.m. when she was approached near her car by a man with a gun. The man pulled her wallet out of her purse and fled southward, according to the woman.

The suspect is described as a white male, between 20 and 25 years of age, between 6' and 6'2" tall, weighing 170-180 pounds with dark, collar-length hair. He was wearing blue jeans, a grey jacket and a dark baseball cap, according to police reports.

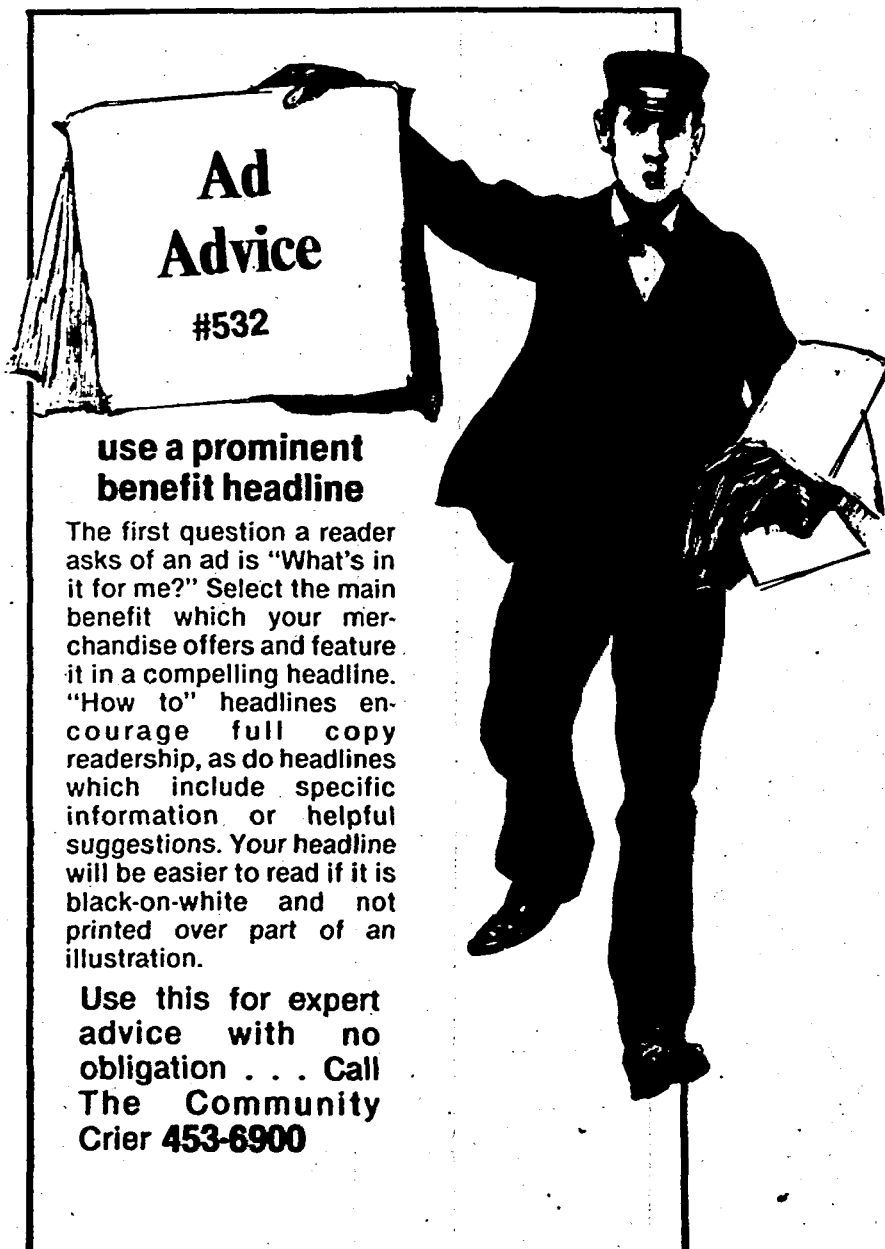

Police have no suspects.

GRM will be first at park

GRM, a firm which manages self-insurance liability programs, will be making the move this spring in order to accommodate its rapid growth over the last year.

According to a statement issued by the R.A. DeMattia Company, the proposed 22,500 square foot GRM building will be constructed on a five acre site and will provide both office space and classroom and training facilities.

Getting down to business

Newlyweds on a roll

The sweet smells of success

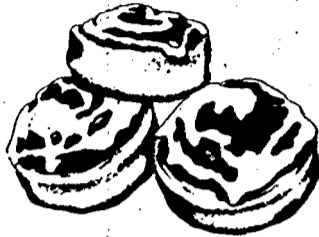

BY PAUL GARGARO

Who says the entrepreneur is extinct? Certainly not Mark and Sue (Pierce) Tanski, of Plymouth. In fact, the local newlyweds are taking this American dream, rolling it in butter and cinnamon and baking it at 400 degrees.

Cinnacraz, a gourmet cinnamon roll and espresso shop in Ann Arbor's Briarwood Mall (between the J.C. Penny and Hudson stores), is the creation of the ambitious young couple and a sweet dream that they hope to make a reality.

"After graduation, I went to work for Boeing in Seattle. I saw this concept out west and decided to come home with it," said Mark, a 24-year-old electrical engineer. "Believe me, it's a lot more rewarding than working for someone else."

Married for only 16 months, Sue and Mark began their cinnamon roll enterprise by experimenting with recipes in their own kitchen. After finding a delectable mixture, they contacted a milling company and now they have their secret recipe produced and delivered under their own label. Premixed flour saves on labor, but the couple estimates that they still work about 95 hours a week.

"We've been lucky. We've had good employees," said Sue, whose brother

Dave works as manager. "It makes the long work week a lot easier."

Cinnacraz has made a good start and the Tanski's are confident that they've got a marketable concept.

"We're working on opening a second store in about three months at the Wonderland Mall," said Mark. "We want to grow to 100 stores in 10 years."

Both Sue and Mark admit that the endeavor is a risk, but it's a risk that they've placed in perspective.

"What isn't a risk?" asked Mark. "Going to college is a risk. There are no guarantees that you'll get a job. Actually, this risk is smaller -- if we fail, at least we have an education to fall back on."

Sue, who studied retail and marketing at Eastern Michigan

University and worked in the retail industry, agreed with her husband. "We're tired of listening to people who wish that they had done this or that with their lives. We don't want to have those regrets in our future."

"We're selling a concept. It's like Mrs. Fields and her cookies or Tom Monaghan and his pizza," said Mark. "I guess the only risk is trying this new concept on the public. It'll probably take a year for them to get used to it."

As it stands, the Tanski's and their 10 employees are meeting the challenge of starting a new business head on.

Somehow, a few intangibles, like daring and determination have made their way into an already rich batter.

"We're on the bus," laughed Mark. "We might be in the back seat, but at least it's rolling."

"It's a dream come true," said Janet Harwood after 10 years of planning, and the recent opening of the Plymouth Fitness Studio Inc. -- a women's only exercise studio.

A Plymouth resident for 11 years,

One of Yolanda Bello's dolls.

Salem swim coach wins "Extra Miler"

Charles 'Chuck' Olson was named the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools "Extra Miler" Monday by the Board of Education.

Olson, a graduate of Plymouth High School, began teaching in the district back in 1970. He originally taught as an art instructor at East Middle School, where he stayed until 1979.

Olson then transferred to Salem High School where he has become as fixture as a physical education teacher and swimming coach.

Olson earned his bachelor's degree in science from Central Michigan University (CMU) and returned to his native school district following graduation.

He has led both boys and girls swim teams at Salem and has been named coach of the year twice. Olson also plans and organize the annual Rotary Christmas Swim Meet at Centennial Educational Park (CEP).

Board member E.J. McClendon called Olson a "true citizen of Plymouth-Canton.

"Chuck has wanted to be a teacher his whole life," McClendon said. "He's known as 'Mr. Swim' at Salem."

Students see Olson as a friend first, then a teacher and then a coach. And he makes "footprints in the lives, hearts, and characters" of his students, said McClendon.

Telethon coming

'Love Box' collections needed

The 4th Annual Salvation Army "Baskets filled with love" food drive and telethon is shifting into high gear.

The food drive is sponsored by Omnicom Cable in cooperation with the Plymouth and Canton Chambers of Commerce. The groups are all working together this year to help provide for those in need this holiday season.

Businesses, schools, churches and service organizations are being asked to participate by posting a "Baskets Filled With Love" sign and collecting canned goods in a "Love Box."

The food drive will run for five weeks and anytime during the season arrangements can be made to have the food picked up by contacting the Salvation Army.

Plymouth participants can present their collected goods at the "Giving Thanks Parade" at Kellogg Park on Friday, Nov. 27.

Canton and Northville, as well as Plymouth groups, can continue collecting until the "Baskets Filled With Love" Telethon on Dec. 5.

Any merchant, school, service club or church that contributes this year is being invited to appear on Omnicom's live Telethon to discuss how they collected the goods and to share information about their group.

"Over the past three years, the communities have worked hard to make this project a success," said Omnicom's Telethon Chairman Pete Smith.

"It has now become a tradition for the various groups to collect canned and dry goods for the Salvation Army. It gives me great joy to see more community awareness about our neighbors who are in need," said Omnicom's Community Affairs and Program Director Maria Holmes who began the food drive/telethon in 1984.

The telethon is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. on Dec. 5 on Omnicom Channel 15.

"It will continue as long as the community responds by calling in pledges of support and dropping off canned goods at the studio," Smith said.

Omicom's studio is located south of Joy Road between Haggerty and Lilley. The telethon will feature entertainment with visits from various celebrities.

Santa Claus and the Balloon Fairy will visit and talk with children beginning at 1 p.m.. Candy, balloons, and other refreshments will be provided.

There is no charge for the childrens activities and refreshments but children are asked to bring a canned good.

Girls run to 11th at harrier finals

BY KEN VOYLES

Running in the Class A state cross country finals for the first time, Canton's girls harrier team finished 11th from among 28 teams Saturday.

The Chiefs totalled 339 points for 11th overall. Ann Arbor Pioneer won the team meet. Nearly 200 girls raced in the finals, held at Grosbeck County Club in Lansing.

"It was a real good showing for us," said Canton coach George Przygodski. "Everybody had real good times considering it was our first time on the course and our first time in a race of that magnitude."

"Let me tell you the girls were very nervous," he added.

Cindy Spessard led the individual Canton finishes as she came in 47th with an effort of 20:36.

Lori Penland raced to 52nd overall with a time of 20:44, while Lynda Schendel was 61st in 21:02.

Missy Jasnowski finished the race in 83rd (21:21), while Sheri Figurski was 96th (21:31), Cathy McCabe, 114th (21:43) and Sherry Sweeney, 141st (22:21).

"We can't complain really," said Przygodski. "Now we have an idea of what we have to do to get better next year."

The Chiefs wrapped up a season of firsts at the state finals. Canton went undefeated in dual races (9-0), won its division and league titles (Western Lakes Activities Association) and also finished second in the regionals.

It was the first time Canton was represented at the state cross country finals by the girls.

"Our team is very close this year and we always worked wach other very hard," said one of the Chiefs, Lynda

Schendel. "We're a close knit group."

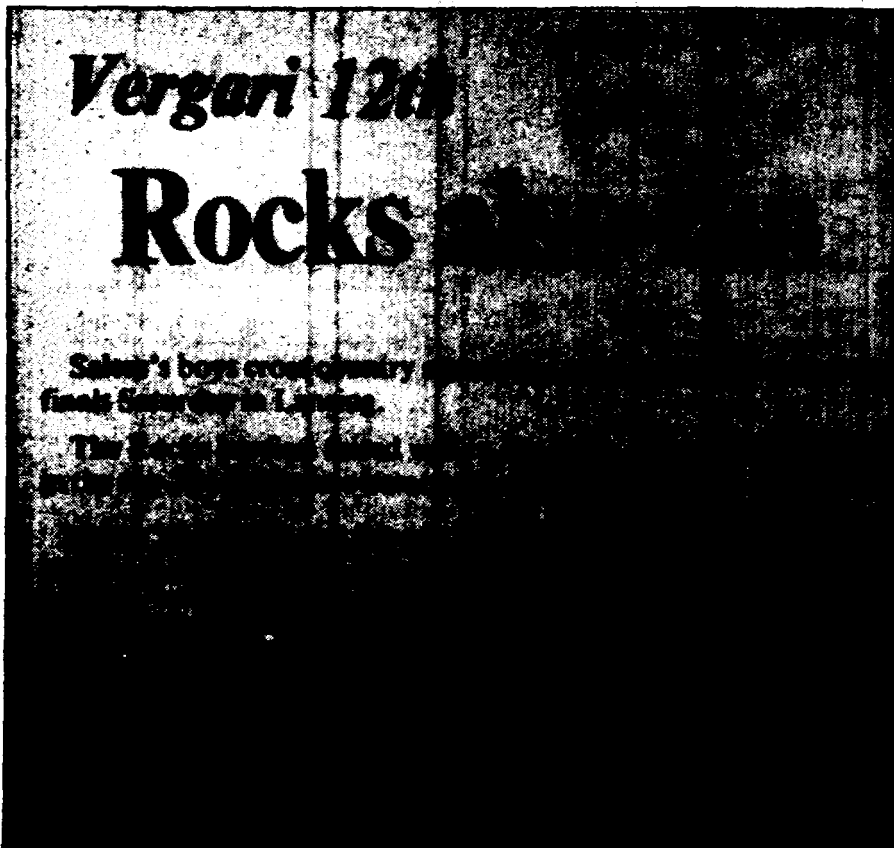

Przygodski, in his second year as coach of the team, said Canton had rarely been able to field a girls team until a few years ago. "We never had enough girls to start and then finish a season," said the coach who also leads Canton's girls track team in the spring.

Besides the seven who went to the state finals the rest of the Canton team this year included Adrienne Garrow, Lisa Korineck, Jenny Jarosz, Angie Miller, Heather DeJong, Sherri Emery, Jenny Power, Tricia Carney and Tonya Walaskay.

Most of the squad will return next year, according to Przygodski.

And then once again local cross country fans will hear the girls favorite cheer (a salute to their coach): "Thanks coach 'P' for making us better athletes."

Canton tankers win 7th dual

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Splish, splash the Canton Chiefs girls swim squad gave Westland John Glenn a bath. The Chiefs tankers held nothing back last week when they sank the Rockets 109-59.

The Chiefs captured seven first places during the meet with Cassie Cummins getting things started in the 200 individual medley. She clocked 2:18.45 for first.

Danielle Dickinson raced to first for Canton in the 50 freestyle in 27.08 seconds, while Liz Rickhard finished first in diving with 160.25 points.

Lori Engeluber captured first in the 100 free with a time of 1:00.67, and teammate Nicole Drake took first in the 500 freestyle turning in an effort of 5:15.91.

It was Cummins again in the 100 backstroke. This time she cranked out a time of 1:05.19 for a first place.

Finally in the 400 freestyle relay the quartet of Dickinson, Kelly Rische, Cummins and Drake swam to first for the Chiefs. The foursome recorded a time of 3:58.71.

The win lifts the Chiefs to 7-2 in overall dual meet races. Canton now gears up for a Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) showdown with Livonia Churchill.

It is a critical dual meet for both swim squads.

Chiefs, Rocks win

Hoop rivals to clash this Saturday

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Round three.

The Canton girls basketball squad will square off against the Salem girls hoop team for the third time this year, as each team won their semi-final game Saturday in the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) conference tournament.

The Chiefs advanced to the final game after they defeated a tough Walled Lake Central squad 55-37.

"We weren't ready to play tonight," Canton head coach Rob Neu said.

Central played a hard fought game for one and half quarters, but then the Chiefs took charge.

Central was leading the Chiefs after the first quarter 10-7, then after a few lead changes Canton erupted and scored 10 unanswered points.

"That was the key for us, we really started to work," Neu added.

The Chiefs hammered away at Central and opened up 20 point spread at the end of the third quarter 43-23.

Then the Chiefs held on to win the game 55-37.

"We weren't thinking in this game tonight, the girls weren't patient, nor did they execute the way they should," Neu said.

Heather Miller led the Chiefs in scoring with 15 points, followed by Karen Boluch with 12. Susan Ferko added 11.

The Chiefs, who wanted a third match-up between the Rocks formed a line by their lockerroom and cheered them as they poured out onto the floor.

"That's great school unity," a Salem fan said.

The Salem cagers made their way into the WLAA championship round with a easy win over Westland John Glenn 70-42.

The Rocks led from the opening minute until the final buzzer in this one and the entire team saw action in the contest.

Senior sensation Dena Head lead all scores with 26, while Barb Krug added 16 points and Keri McBride pumped in 11 points for the Rocks.

The game was a physical game, as the bitterness of the rivalry came to life.

"I expected a physical game from Glenn. When we play Glenn it's always a hard fought game," Salem head coach Fred Thomann said.

And the Rock's defense has been the question mark all year.

But Saturday the Rocks showed they could play defense, and showed they could shut-down the fast break of John Glenn.

"We've been working on our defense all year long. It's something you just continually work on," Thomann said.

When both Neu and Thomann were asked if they would do anything different against each other, they said no changes were planned.

"Once you've established a style you don't change it, and we don't plan on changing anything," Thomann said.

"We (Canton) won't do anything different. We don't have plays. We'll just keep on playing our game," Neu said. "Plays don't win games, players do."

The WLAA championship game between the two cross-campus rivals can be seen at the Salem High gym on Saturday, Nov. 14 beginning at 8 p.m.

A legend

Thomann reigns

BY MARTY TUNGATE

"He's a legend.

"He's one of the greatest coaches ever to hit Salem High School."

The list of credits and dedications for this man could go on and on. He's a coach that prepares, he teaches, he coaches and he cares.

He just happens to be Salem's veteran girls basketball coach -- Fred Thomann.

Thomann began his coaching career at Salem in 1972, when he took on the challenge of the Salem's boys basketball team.

But athletics was nothing new to the former Michigan State University basketball star.

Thomann, a member of the MSU Spartans varsity basketball team from 1961-64 made his mark on college basketball and on the Big Ten.

It was in 1964 when the six-foot, eight-inch center averaged 17.8 points a game and was named to the All-Big Ten honorable mention team.

"It was quite a thrill, but that was a while ago," Thomann said.

After college ball Thomann had his chance to show his stuff to Boston Celtics head coach Red Auerbach.

"It was a mini-tryout in the east, but I just wasn't good enough to make the team," Thomann said.

From there it was on to Muskegon for two years of semi-pro basketball.

Then Thomann moved onto coaching at Willow Run High School, where he won his first, and to the present, only state championship with the boys hoop squad.

Then, the sometimes called jolly giant, showed up at Salem High School in 1972.

Thomann coached the boys basketball team at Salem from 1972 until the end of the 1983-84 season. That's when Thomann stepped down as the boys basketball head coach.

"I stopped coaching the boys basketball team because I wanted to make a statement to the board of education to make a commitment to sports," Thomann said.

It was in 1984 when Thomann started coaching the girls basketball team at Salem -- a job he still enjoys.

"I love it. I'm committed to it," Thomann said. "I wouldn't do it if I wasn't."

When you talk about commitment to a job or a task, Fred Thomann wrote the book.

"Fred is the most committed and dedicated coach we've ever had here at Salem," Salem Athletic Manager Gary Balconi said. "He prepares for every game and every opponent. He knows who he is playing and how to prepare for that team."

"He's the greatest coach I've ever played for," Salem starter Jill Estey said. "He makes us work and work, and he shows us what to do. He's really committed to his job."

"As a high school coach, I wouldn't give him up for anyone," Salem's star Dena Head said.

The sometimes intimidating Thomann knows basketball like he knows the back of his hand. He rules the court and runs it.

"Some people are scared of him, but he's really just a great big teddy bear," Estey added.

The other side of Fred Thomann, aside from basketball, is his love of the outdoors.

"I love camping, hiking and fishing," Thomann said. "It really lets me relax, being outdoors with my dogs."

Thomann has coached many great athletes in his time at Salem -- Rich Hewlett a former basketball and football star, who later went on to play football for the University of Michigan.

Gilles sisters stand out for U-W

Chris and Wendy Gilles, of Plymouth, are standouts of the 1987 University of Wisconsin women's tennis team. The Gilles sisters, daughters of Brian and Candace Gilles, are graduates of Salem High.

Chris, a senior majoring in business, compiled a record of 27-16 overall last year, including a 12-3 record in the Big Ten Conference. Wendy, a junior majoring in journalism, had a 22-14 overall record, including an 8-4 record in the Big Ten.

Last year, Wisconsin finished third in the Big Ten with its second consecutive 20-win season, the third in the last four years. The Badgers 22-9 overall effort earned them a national ranking of 25th, the second straight season they received a national ranking.

The Badgers lost to the eventual Big Ten champions, Indiana, in the semi-finals of the conference championship.

Chris Gilles was named to the first team All-Big Ten in the singles category, while Wendy Gilles and Charlene Kaya were selected All-Big Ten in the doubles category. The doubles team of Chris and Cathy Van Pelt earned second-team All-Big Ten honors, and Wendy and Van Pelt were

Salem tankers fall

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Salem's girls swim squad dropped its dual meet to Livonia Churchill, 94-78, last week but a drop in times shows continued improvement.

The Rocks did capture two first places in the meet, as they won the medley relay and the diving competition.

Heather Bunch, Erin Olson, Stacey Anderson and Lisa Brown teamed up in medley and clocked 2:04.9, while Susan Wooters captured the diving first place with 162.9 points.

"We're not quite ready for the league meet just yet, but the girls are working hard," Salem coach Chuck Olson said.

The loss drops the Rock tankers to 5-5 on the year with Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) powerhouse Livonia Stevenson coming up tomorrow (Nov. 12).

"I'm real pleased with the team as a whole," Olson added. "Their times are starting to drop, and the practices are really good, the girls just need to carry the practice times over to the meets."

Ellinghausen? He's a former Salem star hoopster, who later went on to play for Elden Miller and the Ohio State Buckeyes.

"They've all come back to talk. We've had some great conversations," Thomann said.

But who is the greatest athlete Thomann has coached?

"They all are great in their own ways, and to name one is almost impossible," Thomann said. "For right now I would say Dena (Head). She can do it all."

Thomann has many titles and honors under his belt, and one wonders how much longer this legend will stay in the game.

"I'll keep on doing what I love, as long as I keep on loving it," Thomann said.

"Fred Thomann. He is Salem athletics," Balconi said.

Canton landfill clears first hurdle being previously unused land, according to Michael Miller, manager of planning and corporate development for Wayne Disposal.

Earlier in the meeting, the board had adopted "in concept" a proposal by Mack which is designed to take care of garbage disposal in the county for the next 20 years. The plan calls for proposals for waste disposal facilities to be solicited by the board, which would then rank the proposals based on several factors ranging from capacity of waste disposal, effects on the environment, effects on the host community, and mitigating measures built into the proposal, Mack said.

Mack's proposal would begin with the solicitation of proposals "some time next year," Mack said. "I think the majority of the committee felt that it was cutting it too close," to wait for his proposal next year before siting a landfill facility, Mack said.

Mack and Canton Supervisor James Poole, who also serves on the county's solid waste committee, were included among those who voted against approval of the landfill.

"We don't object to landfills per se," Poole said at the meeting, "we just don't want it under the present circumstances." Poole and Wayne Disposal representatives were at odds during the meeting, leading to heated accusations from both parties.

"Some of the comments made here were just not true," Poole said following the Wayne Disposal presentation to the board. Poole disagreed particularly with Wayne Disposal's contention that the township had not made sincere efforts to negotiate on the project for two years.

The Canton Board of Trustees voted to not support the Sauk Trail Hills landfill project in November of last year. With that vote, Wayne Disposal went through the "amendment route" for project approval, which began with the vote by the Solid Waste Implementation Committee last week. Now, the project goes to the Wayne County Commission and the County Executive for consideration, then onto a vote by the 43 Wayne County communities.

If the project is approved by the county commission and executive and 29 of the 43 communities, the project would go to the Department of Natural Resources for final approval.

"I would consider it likely that the commission will send it to the communities for approval," Mack said, and added, "I think it will be very difficult to get 29 'yes' votes by the communities."

One part of the Sauk Trail Hills proposal may prevent the landfill from being built regardless of the approval route, Mack said. Wayne Disposal's plan calls for Lilley Road, which runs through the project, to be vacated for use in the facility. The solid waste board did not consider that issue, leaving it instead to the Wayne County Office of Public Services to decide whether or not it can be done.

"That is a significant roadblock," Mack said. "I know the county does not approve of vacating Lilley Road at this time," he said, stressing "at this time."

"I do know the county is willing to consider it, however," he added.

West: Stop signs not answer

to the summer cruise issue.

"We set up traffic counters and used radar which was hidden in an unmarked car," said West.

Because the issue of speed control relates to many of the residents' concerns, West's study indicated that additional 25 mph speed limit signs should be installed on Harvey both north and south of Hartsough and for southbound traffic at Wing Street. The study also stated that recommendations will be made to the Plymouth Police Department for selective speed enforcement in the area.

"Police are subjected to the 'There's no sign' excuse continuously," said West. "The added signs will be a reminder to citizens that they are in a residential area and they will give the police more effect in enforcing the law."

West disagreed with Harvey residents on adding more stop signs.

"Stop signs are not to be erected unless they meet the warrants of the Michigan Manual of Uniform Traffic Control Devices," said West. "To put them up unnecessarily would open the city up for liability."

In addition, the study points out that 20 per cent of the residents are ignoring the stop signs that are already in place, which can lead to more collisions at right angles and rear-end collisions for those who are stopping.

The addition of more stop signs would also increase the noise created by cars stopping and then accelerating to make up for lost time, according to the study.

Regardless, the intersection of Wing and Harvey streets is under continuous surveillance to determine whether or not it warrants another stop sign, the study indicated.

While the safety of children is always a concern, West's study shows that the most effective method of reducing the potential for accidents involving children is continued traffic education.

The study also noted that the volume of traffic on Harvey Street allowed for significant gaps in which well-informed school children could cross with safety.

Copies of the report are available at the Dunning-Hough Library.
