Voters say 'No'

Millage defeated in all 14 precincts

BY KEN VOYLES

Voters in all 14 Plymouth-Canton Community Schools precincts overwhelmingly rejected the special millage ballot proposal last night.

Unofficial results showed the ballot request for an additional two mills operating money being defeated by a more than a two-to-one margin -- 4,575 to 2,120.

Sixty-eight per cent of the voters said "no" on the ballot yesterday. Not one of the district's 14 voting precincts supported the request.

"This is a clear message from the voters," said Roland Thomas, a member of the Board of Education.

"I'm very disappointed this went down to defeat," said Board President David Artley. "The kids will pay the price for this. A lot of hard decisions must now be made."

School district Superintendent John M. Hoben said, "It is unfortunate that we were unable to pass the proposed two mills. Because of that loss, the Board of Education will be faced with some difficult choices."

He added that the "immediate effect on the educational program in this community is a negative one."

Nearly 12 per cent of the district's voters -- or 6,710 -- turned out yesterday to reject the proposal. In the last special election in February of 1987 only 2,558 voters went to the polls to defeat a Headlee Amendment rollback waiver request.

"This was a vote against high assessments and not a vote against the schools," said Ray Hoedel, the district's associate superintendent for business.

George Dodson, principal at Smith

Elementary School, said, "We're in trouble, serious trouble."

Artley made it clear that the board has not ruled out putting another proposal on the ballot again some time this year. But, he added, the board will have to wait until mid-April when the Headlee rollback numbers are clearer before deciding the next step.

"I picture Saturday (March 26) as the beginning of the process," said Artley. "The people have spoken."

The board plans to meet Saturday to discuss budget options for the upcoming year. Plans for future cuts in staff, services, or programs, will "evolve" from that meeting, Artley

High schools quiet after confrontation

BY KEN VOYLES

By Monday morning Canton High School was quiet. There were few signs of the previous week's troubles. Even Canton Principal Thomas Tattan went so far as to call it "a really normal day."

It may have been normal on Monday, but in the middle of last week many wondered where the three days of fighting between so-called "jocks" and "burnouts" over Canton High's "pit" area would lead.

It has since led to 23 suspensions (from one to five days). It also led to one arrest on a disorderly conduct charge.

No students were injured during the confrontation, which, last Wednesday, flared so much that nearly 60 police officers from six departments were called to Centennial Educational Park (CEP) to help curb further fighting. And no damages were sustained at Canton, said school officials.

"It was very quiet today," Tattan said. "There were hardly any students hanging around (the contested ground) during lunch."

Tattan said he hoped the dialog begun between students, and students and administrators, on Friday, following the worst of the trouble, would continue.

"Our major goal right now is to do some listening," he said. "We have a lot of issues which need to be addressed."

"From our end, hopefully it's over," said Canton Police spokesperson Dave Boljesic. "We'll only become involved again if requested by the schools."

At one point last week nearly 500 students were directly or indirectly involved in the struggle between the groups, which became identified as "jocks" and "burnouts," but there

City allocates its block grant funds for '88

BY PAUL GARGARO

Following a public hearing on the allocation of Plymouth's $58,000 worth of Federal Community Block Grant Funds, the City Commission voted to spread the money over five projects.

Growth Work's Juvenile Diversion Program, a recent addition to the originally proposed list of recipients, will receive $5,000 from the fund.

According to Growth Works Director Dale Yagiela, the Juvenile Diversion Program is designed for troubled kids who have committed minor offenses. The program keeps these youths from being processed in Detroit's Juvenile Court by establishing a contract system in the home between the kids and their parents.

Assistant City Manager Paul Sincok said that the Growth Works grant would qualify as "direct benefit" to be used to help City of Plymouth juveniles who come from low to moderate-income homes.

In addition, the Council on Aging will receive $2,500, the street lighting initiative in Old Village will receive $22,700, the Senior Van Program will receive $22,000.

The costs of the city's Block Grant administration fees, which include the costs of legal notices and the expense of Block Grant management, will be covered with $5,800.

Federal stipulations say that Block Grant Funds can only be used to improve low-income areas and/or to enhance the lives of low-income residents.

City approves cruising control money

BY PAUL GARGARO

With summer in the not-so-distant future, "cruising" has once again become a topic of discussion for Plymouth residents and the City Commission.

At Monday's commission meeting, Assistant City Manager Paul Sincock presented a breakdown of the costs of cruising and a list of suggestions formulated by the Main Street Committee to both the commission and to the large number of residents assembled at City Hall.

While Sincock reviewed a number of viewpoints regarding the phenomenon of cruising, both he and City Manager Henry Graper stressed that while cruising can be eliminated, it cannot be abolished because the use of streets and sidewalks is protected by law.

"It's like a Ft. Lauderdale situation," said Graper. "All we want to do is keep it orderly."

At the conclusion of the presentation, the assistant city manager outlined the costs of cruising on the city.

From April 1 through June 10, Sincock estimated that cruising would cost the city $42,435.24. This total includes $30,435.24 to hire up to six temporary police officers, $5,500 for miscellaneous costs, and $6,500 for the city overtime costs incurred during the month of April and during Easter week.

From July 1 through Sept. 1, Sincock estimated that cruising would cost the city $41,436.64. This includes $33,320.64 for temporary police (up to six), miscellaneous costs of $1,150, and costs of running the "zone" (a partioned lane set up on Main Street to ensure the flow of emergency traffic) at $6,900.

Combined, this sets the 1988 cruise cost at $83,871.88 for the city.

Following Sincock's presentation, the City Commission voted to allocate up to this total ($83,871.88) in order to control this summer's cruise.

While some say there aren't many positive things to say about cruising, it must be noted that in the past years citations written during the cruise have augmented the city's total revenues from the 35th District Court.

For example, Sincock noted that in fiscal year 1985, the city took in $68,000 in court revenues. In fiscal year 1986-87, the city took in $98,000.

Graper attributed the significant increase to the heavy fines issued to unruly cruisers. However, Graper said that youths who were heavily fined last year will be less likely to break the law this summer and receive another fine.

Graper also said that if Judge James Garber serves in Recorder's Court during the summer, a visiting judge may be less likely to impose such fines.

"Last summer when Garber was off for two weeks, the visiting judge would not issue $200 fines," said Graper.

Graper said that much of the city's cruise revenues depends on the judges' willingness to cooperate with the program.

He also added that next year cruise costs would be added as a permanent part of the budget.

Prisoner had coke, M.E. says

BY PAUL GARGARO

The Wayne County Medical Examiner's office recently confirmed that cocaine was found on the body of a 23-year-old Detroit man who collapsed in a Plymouth police holding cell and eventually died at St. Mary Hospital last Feb. 14.

Dr. John Hain, of the Medical Examiner's office, said that Anderson was carrying one packet of cocaine in his underwear when he was examined.

Hain further said that Anderson had ingested a large quantity of cocaine before his death. "It's most likely that he snorted it," Hain said.

Plymouth Township police said Anderson was delivered into the custody of Plymouth police at approximately 5 a.m. on the morning of Feb. 15, following his arrest and processing by the Plymouth Township police for violations of the Controlled Substance Act.

A township police report said "attending personnel (at the city P.D.) were advised of his physical condition and needs."

Anderson was arraigned early Sunday morning and was then brought back to the Plymouth police station where he was being held on a $50,000 felonious drug warrant, according to Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers.

Anderson was in continuous police custody for over 36 hours prior to his death.

The case is currently being investigated by the Michigan State Police in conjunction with the Plymouth police.

Myers would not comment on the case or the effect it may have on future departmental policy.

Schools face budget cuts

said.

"By law the district must and will live within whatever funds are available," Hoben said. "We will do the best possible job with those funds. Still, further millage requests or cuts are inevitable...there are no other alternatives.

"Even in losing this millage request, however, I would like to thank all those who worked so long and hard to inform the public of the needs which the district has," Hoben continued."

Hoedel estimated the board will begin the process of making $3 million in cuts Saturday.

Voters have now turned down the last three special ballot proposals requested by the school district. The last millage increase request to be passed in the district was for an additional 1.74 mills. It passed by fewer than 50 votes in 1984.

Besides the Board of Education meeting on Saturday, staff and administrators in the school district will begin meeting this week to work out future budget details, said Mike Homes, the district's assistant superintendent for instruction.

Artley said future cuts may be "spread evenly" across the district or they may be concentrated in "those areas most removed from the classroom."

"We've got to look at staffing," he said. Nearly 85 per cent of the district's budget is used to pay for staffing, Artley said.

He added, though, that he was "pleased to see the numbers, but not the trends."

"I'd just like to know why people voted the way they did," said board member Marilyn Schwinn.

Patrol cars wrecked

It was a tough week for the Canton Police Department. In the space of five days, two officers were injured and their patrol cars wrecked in accidents. And that was while the department tried to cope with student clashes at Canton High.

An officer was hurt Thursday while investigating an accident when his patrol vehicle was struck from behind by another vehicle.

Officer Daniel Antieau was released from the Canton's Oakwood Hospital following treatment for head injuries sustained when he hit the plexiglass shield behind the driver's seat of his patrol car.

Police said Leo Calvin Hooper II, 30, of Garden City was arrested and charged with O.U.I.L. He was arraigned last week and his preliminary examination is set for April 15 in the 35th District Court.

The police car was totaled, according to Canton Police spokesperson Dave Boljesic.

Antieau, who remains off-duty, was dispatched to Ford Road and I-275 following the report that a semi-truck had struck a deer. The officer pulled his car up behind the semi and turned on his emergency flashers when Hooper's car exited I-275 and "clipped" the police vehicle, Boljesic said.

"He was hit pretty hard," Boljesic said.

The Michigan State Police are investigating the accident, said Boljesic, but the report is not yet available.

In the other accident last week, Canton Officer Ken Winkler was injured when his patrol vehicle was broadsided at the intersection of Ford and Sheldon roads, said Boljesic. The car was also totaled.

Prison guard beaten

BY PAUL GARGARO

A guard at the Western Wayne County Correctional Facility, in Plymouth Township, was beaten by an inmate while on duty Saturday afternoon.

According to Michigan State Police, Audrey Lynette Bragg, a 39-year-old female prison guard, was grabbed by an inmate at 1 p.m. and forced into a supply closet while she was on duty in one of the prison's housing unit rooms.

Police said that the inmate physically assaulted Bragg while in the closet. Bragg was subsequently transferred to St. Mary Hospital and released later that evening.

Correctional Facility spokesman Kurt Jones said that the inmate has been restricted from the prison's general population and that the State Police are currently investigating the attack.

Jones said that Bragg has not yet returned to work.

The Western Wayne County Correctional Facility is a medium security prison located on Five Mile Road just west of Beck Road.

City rejects OLGC parking proposal

BY PAUL GARGARO

Over 50 concerned residents packed the Plymouth City Commission chambers Monday night to speak their minds and witness the proceedings regarding the Our Lady of Good Counsel Parish (OLGC) proposal to vacate William Street from Arthur to Irvin streets.

The proposal to vacate William Street was an effort by OLGC to provide 28 angular parking spaces.

Public comments were heard during the meeting by seven area residents, including two parishioners, who voiced their dissatisfaction with the proposal and its potential effect on the surrounding neighborhood.

Richard Moyer, an Arthur Street resident, whose neighbor's home was recently purchased by the church, read a prepared statement to the commission which outlined his concerns that OLGC's future plans could have an adverse effect on the neighborhood.

"Through dialogue with parish leaders in the past 10 days, we have learned that OLGC intends to purchase more properties in the vicinity of the church as they become available," said Moyer. "Plans for these properties will be made in the future, but may include parking or buildings and would most certainly require the removal of homes that are purchased. If this is the case, the city will lose tax dollars and we will bear the burden of the loss.

"It is our belief that as a landlocked city, growth needs of our churches may be in conflict with the needs of our residents," Moyer continued. "The erosion of a city begins with the loss of one home and spreads rapidly as contiguous property owners leave in fear of declining property values."

Area resident and parishioner Charlie Angell added, "This is not a religious issue, this is a property issue."

Applause and nods of approval filled the chamber at the conclusion of each citizen's comments.

After listening to the citizens' statements, the commission voted to follow the unanimous recommendation of the planning commission and deny the proposed resolution.

Discussion followed as to whether the Superintendent would be a contractual employee or an employee under Merit System Ordinance. There is concern that if there are carrying opinions regarding this issue, grounds for initiating lawsuits may be possible.

Motion by Padget, supported by Preniczky, to authorize the Township Attorney, Mr. Hemming, to draft the appropriate Merit Ordinance revision language to incorporate Superintendent into the Merit Ordinance; to draft appropriate ballot language regarding the Merit Ordinance Revisions and to draft a resolution for consideration by the Board to place the Merit Ordinance Revision with regard to Superintendent on the August primary ballot.

'Power corrupts' Parishioner looks for support

EDITOR:

I would like to update you on certain "new" activities in the Parish (OLGC). At the last Home School Guild (HSG) meeting, it was announced thru a letter from Fr. Richard Peretto, that there is going to be a new amendment added to the by-laws, to become effective immediately, without a vote. All candidates or nominees must have Fr. Peretto's acceptance before being publicly announced.

In essence, he is saying he will have complete control and authority over all committees. These committees consist of the Future committees which is considering the purchase of properties around OLGC. Fr. Peretto is hand-picking all his Counsel, Commission's, and Committee's. This is contrary to the whole "spirit of Vatican II".

In a closed letter I will be sending to Archbishop Szoka, I will express my great disappointment that Fr. Richard Peretto has taken action to prevent my running for president of OLGC's Home School Guild. This can only be regarded as manifesting a terrible injustice towards my person and effort to serve the parish. I am not the issue, the issue is whether or not correct doctrine is going to be taught. It is an action Fr. Peretto has taken because, I believe he is unwilling to confront the views he has for "New Creation," by William C. Brown Co. which is out of step with those of Rome. "New Creation" is an unacceptable sex education program foisted upon the parents and children of the parish. This sex education program continues to be termed by Cardinal Edouard Gagnon, Pontificum Consilium Pro Familia, in Rome, as a "Travesty of Sex Education" (revised edition, letter enclosed, dated 2-24-88)

For my efforts to bring this matter to the attention of parishioners and to improve the quality of education offered to the children in our parish, I have been, in effect, punished. This has all taken place in a parish which has talked much about democracy, social justice, participation of the laity in parish life, "the spirit of Vatican II", increasing roll of women in the church, and "Renewal".

I believe Fr. Peretto's action in preventing me from running for presidency of the guild was mean-spirited and deprives the members of the parish from deciding for themselves who the president of their HSG should be.

I would still like to be considered as a candidate for the coming May election of the guild presidency, and request the support of members of our parish who believe that Catholic education in the parish needs to be strengthened and improved. I would like to represent in the guild the parents who are not content with the present educational "status quo". In your charity may I hear from such parents.

In closing I would like to quote from an English Nobleman of the 19th Century, a famous Catholic Political Scientist, Lord Acton who said, "Power corrupts, and absolute power corrupts absolutely." It now appears, Fr. Peretto with his "new" amendment has absolute power in our parish.

Thank you,

DOROTHY LEAHY

Illegal signs will be picked up by DPW

EDITOR:

Effective the month of April, 1988 the City of Plymouth Public Works Department will be picking up illegal signs that are placed in front of commercial businesses.

An illegal sign is any type of sign that is considered temporary and has not been approved by the City, such as "A" frames, promotional banners, etc.

The picking up of these signs will be done on a monthly basis, no set date of each month will be established, however, the police will be notified of what day this will occur.

Should a business establishment think their sign has been stolen they are to call the Public Works Department at 453-7737 for pickup concurrence and then they may pickup their sign at the DPW yard.

If it is necessary to pickup such sign a second time it will be destroyed.

Board needs moral integrity

EDITOR:

If you are a Christian you know the fruits of the spirit include peace, love and joy. When the Spirit of God is warred against, as it is by the Plymouth-Canton Community School Board of Education is it surprising to get up and read in the morning paper about a riot in our community high school requiring some 45 police officers?

Let's hope and pray this year's school board election will produce members that have some moral integrity. We need people with more than just impressive resume. what we really need are people that possess a quality that you don't hear too much about anymore— WISDOM.

Canton Chamber thankful for Wilson's aid

I would like to thank Michelle Wilson of The Community Crier for all she has done to help the Canton Chamber in obtaining advertising for the '88 Guide.

We have really had to watch our budget this year with deteriorating office equipment and a possible rent increase resulting from moving the office. (At this time, however, we won't be moving.)

I realize that it took a lot of time to get the desirable result. I know that more was involved than you "just doing your job." Thanks again.

Community opinions

In the margin

By Ken Voyles

Sometimes working for the community newspaper can be frustrating.

Take last week's disturbances between the "jocks" and "burnouts" at Canton High School. Faced with rising media attention, school officials grew more and more paranoid each day, even trying to place part of the blame for the occurrences on the media.

Hype, or way too much hype, certainly played a role in the actions of students at "cellblock CEP," and since the media has always been an easy target for those who don't like what is going on, this attitude came as no surprise.

What was a surprise was the amount of harassment the local media suffered through last week.

Typically, we are never bothered at any other student functions -- be it a basketball game, or a musical like "The King and I."

I guess they like our presence then. They request it often enough.

Obviously, last week's struggles in the halls of Canton were not your average "school function." And obviously it could have been a dangerous situation.

But what happened was just as important, if not more so for what it says about the system, as any wrestling match or debate contest.

All too often we are asked to accept the good and ignore the bad. That's playing games as far as I'm concerned. You won't find any other media folks around when the schools at CEP host the next student fashion show or put on a concert recital. The uglier side of life is so much more entertaining (and real) to the big city scribblers.

I'll be the first to admit that little community outfits sometimes thrive on the ugly as well, but we really thrive more on a rich range of events and ideas, none of which have to (or should be) labelled as positive or negative.

There were a lot of frazzled and frustrated people at CEP last week. Nerves were frayed and tension filled the halls.

It's just hard to see, though, how being paranoid about a reporter or photographer's presence contributes to returning the situation to normal. It only adds to the confusion by implying the media helped cause what happened.

Students pick up on that and pretty soon the media are bad guys, the real troublemakers. The true importance of an issue may end up being forgotten.

Let's not forget that the local media follow through on their coverage whether everything returns to normal or not. Downtown, once the brawling is over, it just becomes boring old Plymouth-Canton again.

Positive points from last week's disturbance?

What happened at Canton High School last week cannot be entirely blamed on "immature" students or even hardcore elements among the so-called "burnouts" and "jocks."

Clearly, the problem is much more deeply rooted than what others have tried (and failed) to read into the series of surprising events.

It wasn't just a case of cabin fever or a territorial dispute over "the Pit." And it really doesn't seem to have had that much to do with factions, stereotyping, or differing lifestyles.

What is important to remember is that rivalries have been a part of going to high school ever since your father or grandfather had to hike to class through miles of snow.

Why things erupted the way they did last week at Canton is a clear manifestation of a larger problem out at Centennial Educational Park (CEP) and maybe with our entire social structure.

So, if blame must be assessed, it should be dished out equally among students, administration, and even the community.

Some have fingered overcrowding as a simple answer to last week's brawling. Others have said the problem centers on what the burnouts perceive as unjust treatment by staff and students at the Park. Still others have said pressures put on the students by the police and media turned a minor incident into a major disruption, even a "riot."

Assessing the damage (in human terms) and turning a negative situation into something positive will be the major task confronting everyone involved. And assessing the damage means discovering the real causes behind the standoff between burnouts and jocks.

The police presence (although relatively low key and well handled by Canton Police and other departments) added to the tension, but it was a necessary step for both the safety of students and to help defuse what might have been an even uglier situation.

The key right now, though, is defusing the tension between the warring groups while at the same time addressing the concerns of all students at CEP and in the school district.

Although the disturbance may have been somewhat trivial (there were no injuries and only one arrest), understanding the real causes behind last week's fighting remains an important step in seeing to it that a "riot" does not occur.

What is needed is a close look at the entire "campus" concept at CEP as well as student scheduling, lunch hours, smoking and "hangout" areas, and even security at the Park, before a truly major incident erupts this spring.

It really is up to the district administration (and community) to address any issues of concern raised by students. And it is up to the students to look at each other with a more tolerant attitude.

A very positive couple of points should be noted about last week's CEP disturbances:

First, no one was injured; there were no weapons -- just strong words, shoving, tussling (according to school officials).

Second, and very notable, students worked together to resolve the confrontations. This showed great maturity and genuine interest on the part of CEP students to live in peace.

are nearly 4,350 students on the combined campus of Canton and Salem, said Boljesic. Police estimated that 150 were involved directly in the confrontations while 500 watched.

"What people have overlooked in all this is that the vast majority of the kids were not involved," Boljesic said. "It was really a vocal minority."

Much of the vocal minority had been suspended by Friday, said Tattan, and other students moved into the vacuum to try and pick up the pieces.

It looked grim for a while on Friday as well, with units of police blocking the front drive of the school and other officers prepared to enter the campus at the first sign of trouble.

But instead of trouble, some 30 students (including "jocks," "burnouts," and so-called "neutrals") met in Tattan's office to work out their differences. After meeting with Tattan (and "kicking him out," according to one student), the students met alone to try and resolve the conflict.

"They wanted to help solve the problem," Tattan said. "They called a meeting to try and defuse the situation. We want to give the students a chance to solve it themselves."

Following the meetings several students made an announcement over school loudspeakers. One student said, "Only we can stop this, not the police or the administration."

Another followed by saying, "The first issue is to stop the fighting, get the police and press out of here and get down to restoring pride in our schools."

The same student added: "I find myself talking to kids I couldn't even stand before. We've really got to start thinking about this. We're not getting anywhere with violence."

Following the announcement many of the students in the two meetings went to the pit area and removed police tape barriers which had been put in place Thursday. They then proceeded to sit down together, shoulder-to-shoulder.

At first the administration was reluctant to agree, saying the pit remained close. "We want this to cool off until Monday," teacher Dan Riggs told the students.

One student replied: "We think it's a good idea that we stay here together and show we can get along."

After the administration relinquished and allowed students to remain in the pit area, another crowd formed listening to students voice their concerns.

"This is so immature," one exasperated student said of the entire affair, including Friday's "ceasefire." She put blame square on the "younger students, not the seniors."

One student in the pit Friday, Steve Nelson, a Canton senior, said the demonstration was an attempt to show the groups "could meet without violence."

"We just sat down to show we can," he added.

"The kids themselves have to get along," said Kent Buikema, the district's director of secondary education. "We'll provide the vehicle for them to share their differences and let them know they have a piece of the action."

"I think it's good for the short term," said another Canton senior. "It's good to get the police out of here. They've been a real part of the problem."

"But in the long run," he added, "something more will have to be done. If the meetings hadn't happened there would have been another confrontation because students were planning for it."

The first confrontation began at lunch time last Tuesday when some of the "burnouts" (identified mostly by their long hair, leather jackets, and the fact that they smoke cigarettes) "with no intention to riot" sat down in the pit, home of the jocks and their girlfriends at Canton, said one student.

One student said the jocks began "spitting" on burnouts before CEP security and staff broke up the two groups.

"The burnouts then resolved to come back," said one student. "They even got the burnouts from Salem."

On Wednesday, nearly 75 burnouts invaded the pit again at lunch time and sat down at one side. The jocks, also in number, sat at the other side.

The two groups started to exchange insulting chants and then "someone" from the burnout side tossed a pop can which splashed several of the jocks.

"That's when everyone stood up," said the Canton student. "Security was in the middle and there were all kinds of other students watching."

"It was territorial," said Rick Thom, one of CEP's security staff. "The burnouts felt they had a right to hang out there. It was just a big power thing over the pit."

Thom said five or six security tried to separate the two groups, but other students on lunch filled the halls and jammed the area until there were nearly 500 around the pit and counselor's offices.

"We tried to get the burnouts outside," said Thom. "They went around and came back to the area."

That's when several fights broke out, said one burnout who wished to remain unidentified. "Security even hit a couple people," he said.

The pushing and shoving quickly reached a peak and involved staff and administrators as well just before Canton police units began to arrive. "For a while there is was a survival thing," Thom said. "We were caught in the middle. It could have gotten out of hand but it didn't."

Thom said there are territorial fights between students every spring, but that this year "it just got out of hand."

"I'd just as soon like to see the pit area closed," said Fred Libbing, a counselor at Canton whose office overlooks that part of the school. "It's been a source of real friction."

"The scary thing is these students don't understand how strong and powerful they are and how easily things could get out of hand," he added. "In my 27 years this is a rare incident."

Police arrived in full force Wednesday, forming patrols across the campus grounds and rounding up students to send to their classes. Canton, Plymouth Township, City of Plymouth, Wayne County Sheriffs, Michigan State Police, and Westland officers all responded to the school.

The uniformed officers stayed until classes were released early on Wednesday (2 p.m.) and all of the students had left the campus.

"We had a phenomenal response from other departments," said Canton Chief John Santomauro. "Now we just want to defuse the situation."

At one point last week district Superintendent John M. Hoben said the students had the administration "on the run."

"But this has been blown completely out of proportion," he added, referring to local and even national media coverage.

"We tried to indicate to the student body that we won't tolerate this behavior," Tattan said. "It's not the groups (jocks or burnouts) but the behavior which will have to be dealt with."

Fighting flared again on Thursday when another crowd of some 200 students gathered in the pit area. One student was arrested while standing on top of a picnic table outside the north end of school and "inciting the crowd," said Boljesic.

Again uniformed police officers were called in, but they left shortly after the end of the disruption.

By Friday, staff, students, police and parents were searching for reasons behind the violence.

"Overcrowding," said one Canton teacher.

Manilow mania results in a dream come true

BY PAUL GARGARO

For dreams to come true, it takes hope, determination, and, in most cases, a lot of luck.

Canton resident Debra Jimmerson recently reaped the fruit of this combination and realized a real-life fantasy come true.

When singer/songwriter Barry Manilow appeared at Detroit's Fisher Theatre on March 9, Jimmerson was bound and determined to get on stage and sing a song with him. However, unlikely, it may seem, Jimmerson got the nod from Manilow and soon found herself sharing the stage with her favorite entertainer.

Mind you, it's not often that members of a concert audience are called on stage to sing with the stars, but Jimmerson said that this is a Manilow trademark and she was not about to be denied.

"We were way in back, but he picked me," she gushed. "It was great,

I've been following him for about 12 years."

To make a good story better, Jimmerson is a professional Karen Carpenter impersonator and performs twice weekly at Topinka's Restaurant as part of the Starline Show, which features impersonators ranging from Lou Rawls to Phyllis Diller.

Another act in the show is a Barry Manilow impersonator named Frank Sternett, who just happens to be Jimmerson's boyfriend.

It's a well known entertainment-world fact that Manilow (the real one) used to date the late Karen Carpenter. Imagine his surprise when Jimmerson stepped on stage and sang "I Can't Smile Without You" with a voice identical to Carpenter.

Indeed, fact can be stranger than fiction.

Jimmerson, though, maintains that she wasn't impersonating and the thrill in her voice says that she's not kidding.

Dynamic duo

Canton resident Debra Jimmerson works through a number with Barry Manilow during the singer's recent concert at the Fisher Theater.

"My voice sounds a lot like Carpenter's," said Jimmerson. "So I wasn't trying to impersonate her."

Along with singing, the 36-year old Jimmerson is the mother of two and an accomplished portrait artist. Scattered among her collection of portrait sketches are autographed portraits of Manilow, Dionne Warwick, and Phil Donohue.

For Jimmerson the trip onstage with Manilow was a dream that she'll never, ever forget. And how could she? Manilow's stage crew thoughtfully provided her with an autographed videotape of her night with the star.

Salem computer team in lead

With the completion of the fourth of five Metro Computer League competitions, Salem High's team holds a commanding lead over the 21-team field.

Salem's squad has already totalled 989 points, well ahead of second place Livonia Churchill (host of the league) with 662 points. Canton is eighth overall with 348 points.

Dan Kinczkowski, coordinator of the event for Churchill, said it was not hard to "imagine a scenario where the Rocks don't event show for the final contest and still walk away" with the league crown.

In the March competition, Salem took fifth place with 89 points. Churchill won the March round with 168 points to move into second overall.

The final league competition is set for Friday, April 15 at Churchill. Competition begins at 3:30 p.m. in the school's instructional materials center.

Balash honored

East Middle School cafeteria manager Eleanor (Ellie) Balash was recently named the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools "Extra Miler."

Balash previously worked as the manager at both Allen and Eriksson Elementary Schools. She has been known for her "cooperative spirit," said Board of Education President David Artley.

Balash has rearranged the East kitchen to be more efficient and is working to being more nutritious lunches to students.

Monet comes to library

Nancy Good, internationally known writer, photographer and freelance journalist, will present a lecture slide presentation on the evolution of Claude Monet's paintings.

The program, "Claude Monet's Inspiration...The Gardens at Giverny," will be held Tuesday, March 29, at 7:30 p.m. on the second floor of the Plymouth Dunning-Hough Library.

There is no admission charge, but phone reservations are necessary due to limited seating. Call the Plymouth Library at 453-0750 for a reservation.

Good has exhibited "The Monet Series" at the Robert Kidd Gallery and her slide lecture show has been presented at the Detroit Institute of Arts. A limited edition of her photography, "Reflections and Flowers," was recently released by Art Photography, Detroit.

Tell it to Phyllis

By Phyllis Redfern

According to the calendar spring arrived last Sunday. Somehow I get the feeling that mother nature is playing tricks on us, or maybe just taking her good old time getting around to warm weather.

Most of us are more than ready for sunshine and warm weather. I'm tired of having to wear sweaters, gloves and heavy coats to keep from freezing. I'm tired of snow and the cold wind.

The college kids have the right idea about spending spring break in the south. Maybe we should all join them, or at least have them bring some warm weather back with them.

The fact that we have all had enough of this winter weather is beginning to show in our moods. Everyone is having a bad day, or sick, or just plain grouchy. Everything that can go wrong is going wrong (Murphy's law in full swing this time of year).

Now that you're in a rotten mood, maybe it's time to think of something positive like planning a vacation. Wow, a few days off work, going someplace, doing whatever you want whenever you want. Another good cure for a bad mood is a hug or sometimes lots of hugs (that's why God invented friends).

Spring can't be far off — I saw a robin last week. While mother nature might fool some of us, I'm sure she wouldn't fool a robin. . . would she?

Plymouth students included on the Honors List at Central Michigan University are: Brian Callahan of Rockledge, freshman; Kimberly Henshaw of Terry, Senior; Constance Podnar of Farmbrook, senior; Kathy Ross of Ann Arbor Road, sophomore; and Kimberly Wallet of Hidden Creek Lane, senior.

Area students included on the Dean's List at Alma College are: Mark Bennett, son of Daniel and Sharon Bennett of Gyde in Canton; Tamara Budlong, daughter of Robert and Judith Budlong of Old Salem in Plymouth; and Marc VanHeyningen, son of Pamela VanHeyningen of Denise Drive in Plymouth and Tom VanHeyningen of Brighton.

Geer benefit planned

The Plymouth Rock Masonic Lodge will host a Charity Dinner on Friday, March 25 to benefit Geer School, the one-room school house which will be restored to its original state sometime in the near future.

The 7 p.m. event will be held in the Masonic Temple on Penniman Avenue. Donation tickets are $7.50. Proceeds will go to the Geer School Restoration Fund and will be used for work on the school.

Call Clifford Smith at 453-4586 for reservations or other information.

Friday's charity dinner is just one of the many fundraising projects designed to raise money for restoring Geer.

A Geer School pencil sale will be held at West Middle School April 11-14 during the school lunch hours. The winning homeroom will host a pizza party.

"Cheer for Geer" pencils are also on sale at all elementary schools in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools and at the district's Board of Education building.

In February, students at Lowell Middle School raised $426.25 by selling more than 1,700 pencils. Karen Storey's seventh grade homeroom won the school's pizza party.

Temporary duty

The 35th District Court will conduct business without Judge James Garber until April 25, when the judge returns from temporary duty at Wayne County Recorder's Court.

According to 35th District Court Administrator Marian Belding, Garber was sent to Recorder's Court last Monday to fill in for the recently deceased Judge Joseph Gillis.

Visiting Judge Kalem E. Garian sat in for Garber for the first week and will serve again for him during the last three weeks of his absence.

Belding said that Recorder's Court will cover the reassignment costs.

Travel TALK
FROM Emily's

TRAVEL, LTD.

Emily Guettler

TO RUSSIA — WHICH WAY BEST?

Visiting Russia is a whole lot different than vacationing in Mexico or touring Canada. The usual question is: "Will I get better service traveling as an individual or as part of a tour group?"

Unless you're an old Russian hand who knows the language and understands how the bureaucracy affects every aspect of the daily life, we strongly suggest visiting Russia with a group tour.

The Soviet collectivist mentality definitely applies in the field of tourism. Intourist, the Soviet travel service, gives priority to group tourists. You'll pay less and receive more attention than if you travel as an individual tourist. And given the restrictions on travel within the country, you won't really miss much as part of a group. Your itinerary as an individual tourist would be just as circumscribed. As a group tourist, you're less likely to be treated as an average Russian. In a country where people queue up in long lines for hours to obtain everything from underwear to dinner, that's a blessing.

Radon becomes natural source of concern at home

BY KAY FAHEY

Late in 1984, alarms sounded as a nuclear power plant worker triggered radiation detectors at an eastern Pennsylvania plant. Investigators eventually found that instead of being exposed to radiation at the plant, the worker was being exposed at home and bringing radiation into the plant. Tests at the worker's home revealed extremely high radiation levels.

The incident brought nation-wide concern to radon, a naturally occurring radioactive gas. Since the 1950's, radon has been linked to cancer in uranium miners. With the advent of air-tight, energy efficient houses, there has been growing concern about increased concentrations of the colorless, odorless gas.

Radon is given off by soil or rock containing trace amounts of radium or uranium. After a few days, the gas decays into "daughter products," which tend to cling to surfaces and particles. Two of these products, Polonium-218 and 214, release alpha particles as they decay. Riding on dust particles, these "daughter products" can be inhaled, and release their alpha particles in the lungs.

It's like a constant X-ray down there," said Alex Johnson, Executive Assistant for the American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has identified radon as the second leading cause of lung cancer, responsible for 5,000 to 20,000 cases of the diseases each year.

'Action level' radon

The risk of contracting lung cancer from radon exposure is 15 to 20 times greater if one smokes, according to Johnson. The EPA has established an "action level" of four picoCuries of radon gas per liter of air. This concentration produces a risk of lung cancer equivalent to that cause by smoking eight cigarettes per day, or receiving 200 X-rays per year, as reported by Dr. Paul Tombouliau in the Eastern Michigan Environmental Action Council Newsletter.

However, Tombouliau indicated the risk for each individual is influenced by such factors as the time exposed, ventilation, smoking, and individual susceptibility.

"The EPA set the standard because it believed this to be an achievable level currently," Johnson said. Other countries have established levels both above and below four picoCuries. "This standard has caused great controversy, because it has created the impression that four picoCuries is a safe level," he said. In fact, the EPA has found that no level of exposure is safe.

"They don't say four is safe, but if you have a level above four, you should do something right away to bring it down below that," Johnson said.

Radon occurs everywhere, but it causes no problems outdoors where it is widely dispersed. However, indoors it can concentrate at harmfully high levels. The major source of indoor radon is the soil and rocks around a building. Other potential sources include water from underground wells and building materials such as brick and concrete, according to a report issued by the U.S. General Accounting Office.

In 1987 ten-state survey, the EPA found over 25 per cent of homes in some states have radon concentrations above "Action

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

United Sub-Contractors of Michigan approached us about siding our 80-year-old home with the narrow, restoration vinyl siding. Mr. Larry Secosky, the salesman, did an excellent job of educating us to the differences (as well as the benefits and disadvantages) of aluminum and vinyl siding.

After obtaining a reasonable price from United Sub-Contractors of Michigan and thoroughly checking out their background, we decided to side our home last summer and have not regretted our decision.

We have received innumerable compliments on our home from neighbors and friends. In addition, we have had many inquiries about whether or not we recently painted our house or sided it. United Sub-Contractors of Michigan takes pride in their crew of professionals and their workers certainly deserve it. The workmanship of the crew, who completed the entire job in three weeks, was commendable. Their thoroughness and attention to detail was well-appreciated.

I would certainly recommend United Sub-Contractors of Michigan to anyone who is concerned with the quality of the product, reasonable price and overall fine craftsmanship.

level". Eight percent of the homes in Michigan were found to have levels of radon higher than four picoCuries. Some of the highest levels in the country were found in the Upper Peninsula, and readings in the teens and twenties have been reported in Washtenaw County, Johnson said.

Johnson added that the EPA has identified radon as its most important environmental problem for next year, and that a five-year action plan has been developed to address the issue. Michigan is one of 10 states participating with the EPA's program, which spent $5 million last year.

The American Lung Association (ALA) recommends everyone test for radon. Although radon causes long-term health hazards, it produces no easily recognized effects such as headaches. And since it is colorless and odorless, the only way to detect its presence is to test for it.

The best time to test is while doors and windows are still tightly shut against cold weather, an ALA release stated. Then any mitigation steps necessary can be taken during the summer, before the next heating season begins.

The ALA recommends testing for the presence of radon first with charcoal canister. If radon is found, further testing should be done with the more accurate alpha-trak monitor. Both test kits are available from the ALA for a nominal fee.

"We provide the kits at costs, and we did everything possible to keep the cost down. We hope the community will realize we are not just trying to sell kits, and will look at this as a full service. We got into this because most testing labs will give you the numbers, but they won't help you deal with the problem. We're finding that many times you don't have to spend a lot to find a solution," Johnson said.

The kits include complete instructions and the cost covers EPA approved laboratory testing. Radon findings are returned to the ALA by the EPA. "We are trying to build a data base," Johnson stated.

The ALA will pass along the EPA's booklet on radon reduction techniques if a problem is found. Since a frequent source of radon is cracks in basement and foundations, one common mitigation technique is to seal up the cracks.

Any point of contact between the soil and the building may be a source of radon, according to Johnson. Other mitigation techniques include increasing home ventilation, air filtration, which draws the gas away from the home before it can enter.

In the 18-home demonstration project, the EPA found home site and structural conditions dictate the success or failure of each technique or combination of techniques. Thus, mitigation cost may vary widely from home to home.

Although there is no federal program for regulating radon for providing federal assistance to alleviate its hazards, the EPA and the Department of Energy can conduct radon research and provide technical assistance to states and homeowners. In addition, the ALA will work with homeowners to help identify the least expensive solution.

"We are finding unique problems with unique solutions. You don't always have to spend a lot to solve a problem. One woman reduced radon levels dramatically by covering her drains with aluminum foil," Johnson said.

The University of Michigan's School of Public Health is planning to open a Radon Resource and Training Center by summer of 1988. The training program will be directed by Dr. A.P. Jacobsen and Dr. James Martin, both professors in the school's radiation protection program.

"The center will continue radon research and will train radiation diagnosticians and those who hope to become radon remediation contractors. The purpose is to ensure that people who become involved in radon remediation are trained," Johnson said. Funding for the center will be provided by the state health department.

Johnson added that awareness of the problem is increasing. "We get hundreds of calls about it. We have had calls from realtors, because buyers are demanding tests before they purchase. Liability is forcing realtors to become more aware. More and more people are checking radon as a concern when buying a home," Johnson said.

However, Darlene Shemanski, manager of Schweitzer Real Estate in Plymouth, indicated radon does not appear to be a concern among home buyers in this area.

"Out of all the homes we sell and all the brokers we deal with, it has not been a big enough concern to be drawn to the broker's attention. Radon does not seem to be a big factor here," she said.

Canton Township Treasurer Gerald Brown also said area residents do not appear too concerned about radon.

"We ordered 25 testing kits from the University of Pittsburg to be made available to the public, and we've still got eight of them left. There hasn't exactly been an overwhelming demand for them," he said.

Brown indicated the kits can be obtained from his office for a nominal fee.

Invest in the right kind of spring planting

BY M. ANNA SCHLOSSBERG

Would you like to raise the resale value of your home as much as 15 percent? Homeowners can do just that by planting landscape trees and shrubs, according to reports from the American Association of Nurserymen in Washington D.C.

The investment is even better if homeowners do their own planting and save the cost of hiring a professional. You have to plant correctly, however, or you may end up just throwing money away.

The following advice should help you have a successful spring planting.

Buy wisely — "We've gotten far enough away from the farm that most people don't know plants well," Tim Joy from Christenson's

There are other brands on the market, but Wolmanized wood is the brand that's guaranteed for a lifetime against termites and decay and the brand that professional builders use 3 to 1 over the nearest competitor. Plant Center in Livonia said. "It's best to ask for advice from a professional. Have a general idea what you want and then let them recommend the specific type of plant."

Choose the spot carefully — A misplaced tree or shrub can later become a liability. A tree over hanging a house will clog the gutters with leaves in the fall. Roots can invade drain fields, crack walks, and pierce foundation walls. In addition, "...select a site that has good drainage," Joy said. "There is a lot of heavy clay soil in this area, which is poor for drainage. Then people want to put a tree in the lowest part of the yard, and that just won't work."

Prune before planting — "It is standard practice to prune the roots of trees and shrubs before planting, unless they have root balls," Joy said. "On top, prune bare branches, crossed branched and for shape." It is important to get professional advice on when and how much to prune, as you may harm the plant.

Digging the Hole — A planting hole should be twice the width of a tree's rootball and as deep, but no deeper.

"Never plant a plant deeper that it originally grew in the nursery," Joy advised.

Staking — "Usually we don't recommend stakes," Cathy Schafer, a horticulturist with Plymouth Nursery and Garden Center said. "You want to encourage the tree to support itself."

"Stake on need," Joy explained. "If there is a windy situation and the plant is moving a lot, stake. If not, don't stake."

Watering — "Watering is one of the areas that people are most unsuccessful in," Joy warned. "Trees need to be thoroughly watered and then left to dry out before they are watered again. In clay it's a problem because it doesn't dry out well. In addition, everyone is trying to water their grass and the poor tree is in a hole, and the grass water runs into the hole. That's why you need to plant on high ground, so that you create some drainage."

Another thing to remember, Joy continued, is that "...the symptoms are the same, whether the tree has been under - or over - watered. The plant will wilt, yellow and die. Most often, the problem is over-watering."

Wrap for protection — Young bark is susceptible to damage from the sun and from gnawing rodents. Schafer recommended using a product called tree wrap, made from paper and tar. It deteriorates in a year, after which it can be removed. Joy added a warning not to use tape or plastic twine on trees and shrubs, as these impede growth.

Mulch for water retention — Schafer recommended using wood chips or shredded bark around the base of trees and shrubs to keep moisture in, maintain even soil temperature and protect shallow-rooted plants. She does not recommend grass clippings or compost as it deteriorates too quickly. In addition, wood chips or bark look better.

A final word of advice from Joy is wait to plant until "shirt-sleeve" weather.

"You might as well make it easy on yourself. Planting should be a rewarding experience."

OLDE is new in town

BY KEN VOYLES

Siege Mormon, 29, recently returned to The Plymouth-Canton Community when he opened an OLDE Discount office on Main Street.

The Canton High School graduate grew up in Plymouth-Canton but moved on when he went away to school.

Since earning his B.A. from Marietta College in Ohio and his MBA from Wayne State University, Mormon has returned to the community that he has always loved.

"OLDE gave me the opportunity to open here and I jumped on it," Mormon said. "I really like this community. My parents still live here."

The Plymouth office is OLDE's newest among 165 branch offices nationwide. The office, which is located at 706 S. Main, opened in November last year.

Licensed to trade in all 50 states, OLDE is a member of the New York Stock Exchange, the Securities Investor Protection Corp., and all the other principle exchanges.

Mormon not only sells stocks for customers but also offers financial planning on a wide variety of mutual funds.

Besides Mormon, there is one other planner in the Plymouth branch.

"So far we've both been happy how things have turned out," Mormon said. "We do much more than just take orders. We try and help people with a wide range of investments."

Chief gymnasts finish 9th in states

BY CHRIS FARINA

After an exceptional performance by the Canton girls gymnastics team in the Class A state meet Friday and Saturday, Canton coach John Cunningham was the proudest coach in the gym.

"You cannot ask for more than the best," he said of Canton's 129-point, ninth place finish.

"Nobody can look back and say 'if I only had one more chance,'" said Cunningham.

Maureen McLean scored an 8.75 on vault while Darcy Gigniac ended up with an 8.55.

McLean also earned a qualification for All American with an 8.5 on bars. Mary Jo Charron and Gigniac tied with a score of 7.8.

On beam, Canton notched its highest finish of the meet, as Sharron Moran recorded an 8.6, a score that qualifies her for All American. Also on beam, Heather Murphy finished with an 8.05 while Charron and Gigniac tied at 7.6.

In the floor exercise, Charron had an 8.3 while Murphy, Moran and Apryl Mosakowski all tied with 7.95.

Charron also scored an all around total of 31.60.

"The girls had their best meet of the year as a team," said Cunningham. "I was immensely pleased with them."

Junior basketball madness

March madness hits the Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association, as they will be wrapping-up their 87-88 season this Saturday March 26 at Central Middle School.

Tip-off time for the girls 'AA' championship is set for 9:30 a.m., while the boys 'AA' game time is set for 12:00 p.m.

In boys 'AA' action, it was the Rockets wrapping up the season, as they finished as league champs with a 10-2 record, followed by the Pistons in second place with a 7-5 record, the Kings finished third with a 6-6 record, and the Celtics brought up the rear at 1-11.

In the first round of the junior hoop tournament for the 'AAA' boys, the Suns dropped the Celtics 67-60, while the Kings defeated the Pistons 78-70.

In second round action, the Nets slipped by the Kings 68-60 and the Rockets beat the Lakers 67-53.

In first round action of the girls 'AA' tournament, the Pistons beat the Lakers 45-39, while the Kings dropped the Rockets 52-42.

Canton cagers fall short in round one

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Canton's scrappy boys basketball team qualified for the first round of regionals for the first time in eight years, but that's as far as the Chief cagers would go in the high school tourney, as Canton was knocked out of the tourney by Taylor Truman high 53-49.

The Chiefs started out strong against Taylor, as they took a commanding ten point lead into the lockerroom at half time.

Canton, which normally shoots in the high 40 per cent range, was shooting 38 per cent from the field in the first half, and that had Canton head coach Tom Niemi worried.

"Our shot selection was good, but the shots weren't falling like they use to," Niemi said.

Taylor Truman came out storming in the second half, as they quickly pulled within range of Canton.

"They (Taylor Truman) did a fine job of coming back, they never gave up," Niemi added.

For Canton, however the shots were not hitting their mark, as the Chiefs shot 22 per cent from the field in the second half.

"Again, our shot selection was good, but they just wouldn't fall," Niemi said.

With time running out on the Chief cagers late in the fourth quarter, they had a chance to tie the game, but a three point shot by Brian Paupore missed its mark and the game was all but over.

"Were dissappointed we lost this one, but these kids should be very proud," Niemi continued. "They worked hard all season, and they're a fine group of young men."

Canton was lead in scoring by senior Mitch Fyke with 14 points on the night, but the usual balance of scoring didn't come in this game.

"It was just one of those games, and it's too bad we had to have it now," Niemi added. "We had a great season, and the men on this team are a bunch of winners, and they'll be winners in life. I'm proud of our team, and our season."

Dena Head gives okay to Tennessee

The University of Tennessee gets the nod from Dena Head.

Head, who has been called one of the greatest girls basketball players to ever wear a Salem High uniform, recently signed her letter of intent to be a Volunteer.

"I chose Tennessee for a number of reasons," Head said. "I looked at the whole picture, its basketball program, its coach and staff and its academics."

According to Head, who hopes to one day be a surgeon said that academics was her top priority.

"I hope to get my degree in four to five years, and go to graduate school at Tennessee. They have a good program, and I think I'll like it," Head said.

James Head, Dena's father, also attended the University of Tennessee, but Dena said that had no bearing on her decision.

"My dad and my mom and Fred (Thomann, Salem girls basketball head coach) played no part in my final decision," Dena continued. "They were just there to help me look at the overall picture of each school."

Head, who has racked up enough awards to make anyone's trophy case look small, picked up one more award, as she wrapped up her career as a Salem cager. She was named to the All-National Second Team.

Head hopes to one day be a part of the national scene, and world scene, as she would like to be a part of the 1992 summer Olympic girls basketball team.

"That's down the road for me, but it is something I would like to take part in some day," Head said.

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Spring is almost upon us, and that means spring sports at Salem and Canton are getting into gear for the 1988 campaign.

Girls soccer is the talk of the town, as the defending Class A State Champion Salem Rocks get back to the basics. They will try to defend that hard earned title.

This year the Rocks will try to fill a key hole in their line-up due to graduation at the sweeper position.

Sophomore Jennifer Marshall will most likely be the candidate to fill that position, according to Salem head coach Ken Johnson.

"If Marshall does the job we think she can do at the sweeper position we won't have to worry about some teams getting by our defense for some quick goals," Johnson said.

Salem will be led by junior All-American Jill Estey. Estey broke her own record for most goals with 32 last season and most assists with 28.

But will the pressure of being state champs effect her performance?

"I hope not," Estey said. "We have a good team, and we're not looking past anyone this year. We're taking it one game at a time."

Estey won't be alone in the front line either, she'll have some help to get the ball in the net.

Junior Teri King, and sophomore Michelle Minton will add to the potent offense the Rocks will throw at their opposing teams.

Salem will also be strong defensively, with six girls who could start at anytime for the Rocks.

"We have great depth again this year, especially with our defense," Johnson added.

Senior tri-captain Ellen Schnackel will be starting in goal once again for the Rocks, and she will be a steady force in the net according to Johnson.

Salem has the task in the 1988 season of defending the state crown, although Johnson predicted a state championship again in 1988 after his win in 1987, he's toned down quite a bit as the season's first game draws near.

"We do have a great team, probably better than last year's state championship team, but we have our work cut out for us," Johnson continued. "Every game will be a new challenge for these girls, as every team we play will be gunning for us."

"We must also stay healthy, and the team can not lay back and take anyone lightly, Canton, Northville, Troy, Troy Athens, Livonia Stevenson, and Livonia Churchill will all have their hand in it as the season wraps up," he added.

Salem's captains this year will be seniors Rachael Thiet, Tracy Krajewski and Schnackel.

"This team has a lot of pride and a lot of talent, and if they remember that, this could be an exciting season," Johnson said.

The Rocks will be tested early this year, as they will meet three of the best teams in the state in their first three games.

Salem will open with Mercy on March 29. Then they will take on Marion High School, and then the big test, as the Rocks will meet their neighbor rival Canton.

All that in the first week.

Chief kickers are ready

BY MARTY TUNGATE

The Canton girls soccer squad of 1987 had high hopes, but throughout the season the Chiefs were overshadowed by Salem's girls squad.

Canton coach Don Smith hopes that this is the year for his team.

Canton will be returning an experienced team in 1988, as they only lost four players to graduation.

"This is good team," Smith said. "We're a very balanced team, and we think this team is better than last year's squad."

Canton will have the experience this year, but they will also have the added dimension of two lightning quick freshmen.

"I have high hopes for these two freshmen, Lynne Nichols and Ayane Nash," Smith said. "I like to sub a lot during games, and they'll play a key part in keeping fresh legs on the field."

Canton will have many experienced players, who will aid in the team's cause in 1988.

Shanon Meath, Julie Stabnick, Jenny Russel, Renee Rice and Candi Jones will be the heart of the Canton team, and Jenny Saul will be in the net for the Chiefs for her second straight year.

"The girls are looking good in these early practices, and this could be an exciting year for us at Canton," Smith added.

Canton finished the 1987 season with an 11-3-3 record, a record Smith feels this team can improve on.

"I think I'll be disappointed if we don't improve on our record," Smith added. "We have a deep bench and a fast team. I think we can add to the win column this year."

Canton will have a quick team, that could hurt it's opponents. The Chiefs will be trying to put a lot of points on the board, as they'll try to improve on last years record.

But one thing the Chiefs won't forget that went into the record books in 1987. That is, their final loss of 1987 to Salem in the district championship in overtime.

The Chiefs will meet the Rocks in the first week of play.

That should be a battle.

PCAC scholarships offered to P-C students

The Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC) has two scholarships available to students living in The Plymouth-Canton Community. The JWH Scholarship, awarded in honor of Joanne Winkelman Hulce, fulfills the PCAC's goal to "encourage and help individuals in pursuing a career in the arts."

Some $750 in awards is available to seniors who show promise in an artistic field and wish to further their education in that field.

A committee of judges with various artistic backgrounds will consider applicants from a variety of categories including painting, ceramics, dance, design, graphics, drama, photography, sculpture, textiles, instrumental and vocal music and literary arts.

Those seniors who feel they may qualify and who live in the community should write a letter, including name, address and phone number, giving background in their artistic field, plans for continuing education and a personal profile explaining their qualifications for the award.

Two letters of recommendation from a teacher and another person closely associated with the applicant's artistic ability are also needed, and at least two representative pieces of work are required. Performing artists should be prepared to perform for the judges.

Applications can be mailed to the Plymouth Community Arts Council, JWH Award, 332 S. Main, Plymouth MI 48170. The deadline for applications is April 15.

Finalists will be interviewed or auditioned on April 23. Interested seniors are urged to inquire at the scholarship office of their high school or call the PCAC office.

The second scholarship available at this time is the Jeanet M. Allison Memorial Scholarship Fund for Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp. The PCAC has available $1,000 for the use of students presently in grades six-11 who will be attending the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp in 1988.

The scholarships will be offered in art, dance, music, and theatre. Applicants will be judged on talent, neatness and interest.

The deadline for submitting applications and three samples of the student's work (where applicable) is April 15.

Application materials need to be brought to the PCAC office at 332 S. Main through the entrance by Fred Hill's. Art work may be picked up at the same location starting April 26 or by appointment.

Music, dance, and drama auditions will be scheduled after receipt of application. A letter of recommendation from a teacher or someone who is familiar with your talent is required. Information may be obtained from the PCAC office or music and art teachers.

Canton officers rush to the high school just after Wednesday's fight.

Filling the lot

Patrol cars from Canton, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Wayne County fill the parking at Canton High last Wednesday. Nearly 60 officers took positions at CEP following the major fight between so-called "burnouts" and "jocks."

Police called to Canton

"We're a max, there's not question," Libbing added.

Some of the burnout students claimed they were mad at unfair treatment by staff and other students.

"On Tuesday and Wednesday it was jocks versus burnouts," said one burnout. "On Thursday and Friday it seemed like it was the students versus the administration. That's because of the way it was handled. A lot of cops tends to send everyone off the handle."

The same student blamed the media for turning Canton into a "black and white" school. "They made it seem like we were all either burnouts or jocks," he said.

Cop conference

Local police meet in Phase III at CEP just after last Wednesday's "riot" among Canton students. Canton Chief John Santomavro (center, left) confers with other officers. Also on hand during the meeting were Canton detective Larry Stewart (center) Plymouth Township Chief Carl Berry (against wall), and Mike Gardner, a City of Plymouth commander. Other uniformed officers listen in.
