Yack ousts Poole in Canton

BY KEN VOYLES

It was time for a change in Canton.

Based on unofficial vote totals from early this morning, Tom Yack will be the new supervisor in Canton come November.

Although Yack won by an easy margin, the "superintendent" ballot proposal which he supported went down to defeat by nearly a two to one margin.

In the Republican-only race for supervisor, Yack garnered 1,512 votes according to totals from the township clerk's office, while Poole was next with 901. Padgett tallied 771 votes.

There are no Democrats in the Canton supervisor race this year.

Yack, a teacher with the Wayne-Westland School District, has said he would be prepared to take a leave of absence in November if the proposal to make the supervisor part time while bringing on a full time "manager" failed and the job remained full time.

"I'm really satisfied," Yack said this morning. "I'd have to say the difference I had over them (Poole and Padgett) was the 200 people, including my family and friends, who supported me. These folks did all kinds of stuff to make it happen. It really was a team effort."

Yack said he would have to discuss taking a leave of absence from work with his employers and his family before committing himself, although during the campaign he said he would take a leave from teaching.

This morning as he watched his victory countered by the superintendent proposal loss, Yack said it was "unfair" to ask him to decide on the full-time supervisor commitment.

Breen squeaks by

BY PAUL GARGARO

In a hotly contested race, incumbent Maurice Breen held off a serious challenge from James Irvine to secure his third term as Plymouth Township Supervisor.

Breen unofficially carried seven of the township's 13 precincts — leading only by 86 votes until the absentee ballot totals came in.

Irvine unofficially captured five of the precincts outright and managed to fight Breen to a draw in the fifth precinct.

The unofficial vote tallies had Breen with 1,523 votes, Irvine with 1,301 votes, and Jerry Raymor with 381 votes.

"It was close all the way through. I didn't expect it to be that close, frankly," said Breen. "Whatever they (Irvine's campaigners) did, they did it well."

Breen also said that he is satisfied with the turnout in the trustee race.

"We've had candidates before, but never this strong," said Breen. "I think that this will be a stronger board than before."

Although Irvine ran a strong race, he said he was disappointed with the results.

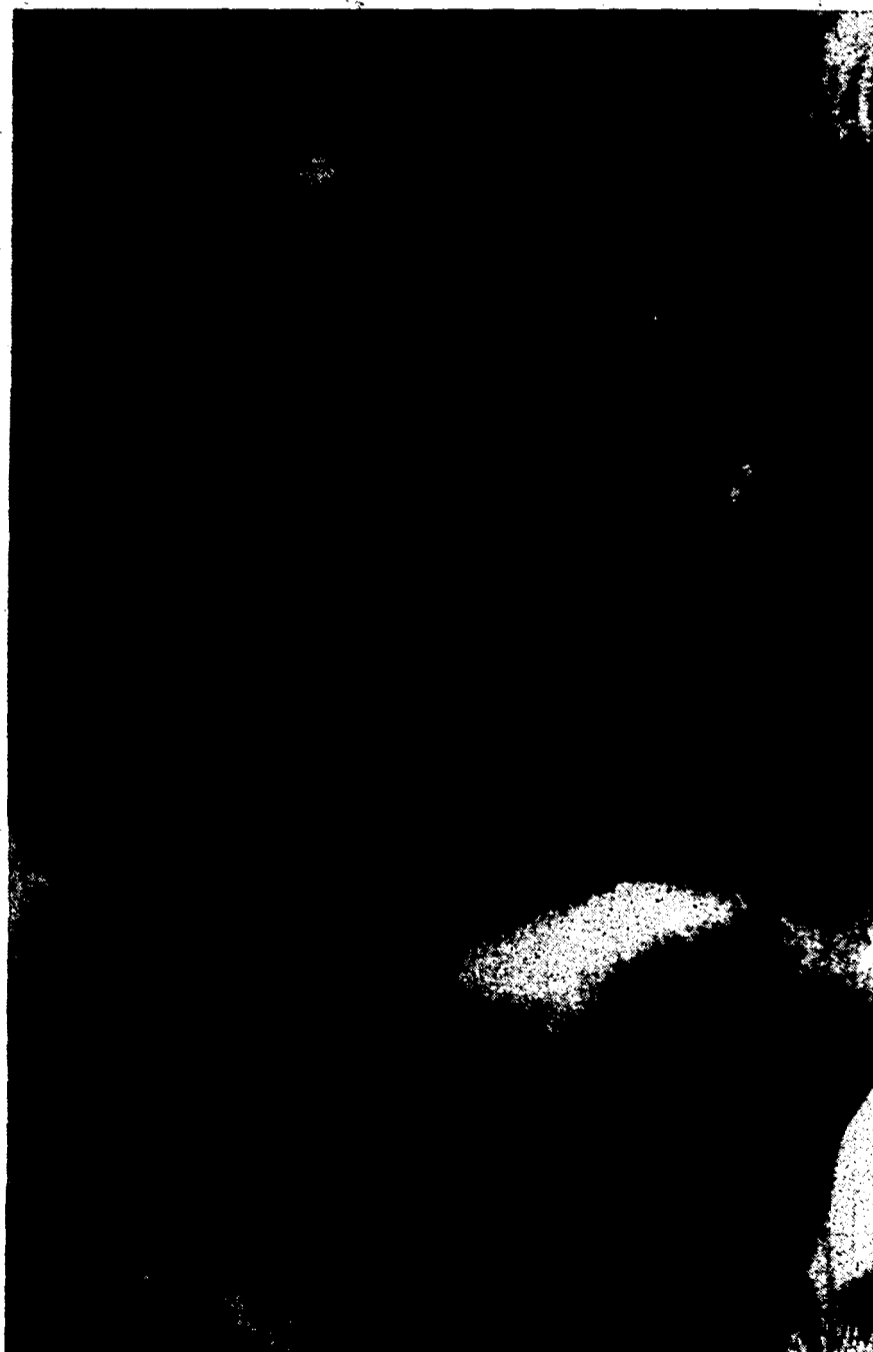

"It's hard," said Irvine.

Currently a township trustee, Irvine's term expires in November.

Breen's victory overcame what many residents thought would be a strong challenge to his re-election with two "anti-Breen" candidates in the race.

"That hurt both Irvine and myself," said Raymor. "I thought there'd be at least 8,000 votes. The heat had something to do with it."

Last-minute motion saves Plymouthrock from revocation

BY PAUL GARGARO

After weeks of delay and discussion, the Michigan Liquor Control Commission (LCC) has been blocked from making a decision on the revocation of the Plymouthrock Saloon's liquor license.

Yesterday, Var-ken Inc. (the corporation which owns the restaurant-bar) lawyer Norman Farhat obtained a court order from Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Collman restraining the LCC from making a decision.

According to Arthur D'Hondt, the attorney general representing the LCC, Farhat asked for the court order based on what he alleged were injustices in the way Plymouth Township has handled the case.

A hearing has been scheduled for next Wednesday to determine whether or not the restraining order will be upheld.

Plymouthrock has been under scrutiny since the winter of 1986 for alleged problems including the sale of

Community United Way poised for campaign

BY PAUL GARGARO

Poised to begin its 1988 fundraising campaign, organizers with the Plymouth Community United Way (PCUW) are eager to witness the impact of the Loaned Executive Program on this year's effort.

PCUW Executive Director Marie Morrow is optimistic about the effect of the Loaned Executive Program which is in its first season in the Plymouth area.

"The organizations and companies participating are community leaders and they're loaning us some of their executives to go out through September and October to solicit contributions for the PCUW," said Morrow. "We've always had volunteers, but Loaned Executive is a program we're beginning this year to get industry and business involved on a continuous basis.

"Because of the growth of the area, we need more involvement. It broadens our staff and helps keep campaign costs low. This also creates a source for future United Way leaders," Morrow said.

In addition, Morrow said that the Loaned Executive Program makes each participant feel more connected with the community, while demonstrating to the community the dedication of organizations and companies involved.

This list of organizations contributing the services of their executives includes: Adistra Corporation, Classic Container, Myriad Services, Midwest Bank Note, Northland Container, Unisys Corporation, Ford Motor Company, Michigan Bell, National Bank of Detroit, Community Federal Credit Union, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, Growth Works, and Plymouth Township.

Morrow said that additional participants are still encouraged to join the program.

John Huneke, of Ford Motor Company, is chairing this year's industrial committee for the PCUW and will be training the executive solicitors. Huneke said he hopes to have his executives trained by August and on the street by September 1.

The Loaned Executive Program is part of the nationwide United Way effort.

NEW YORK CITY

Gotham. Fun Town. New York. The Big Apple. It has lots of names and nicknames, but to many people - residents and visitors alike - it's still THE CITY. Other world cities that take on a cosmopolitan air are inevitably compared to New York. Lovers of that big town take this as a sincere form of flattery!

One of the most famous streets in the world -- Fifth Avenue -- is located in New York. Starting at the Washington Memorial, it goes through the heart of the city for seven miles. Lined with clubs, apartment houses, fine stores, churches, hotels, and museums, Fifth Avenue is almost a miniature city-within-a-city.

New York City is considered a financial, shipping, educational, cultural, and theatrical center. The word "center" in fact, accounts for much of New York's greatness. This is because it has become a "mecca" for people seeking careers and fortunes in the aforementioned areas. It's the type of place that must be experienced to really be appreciated ... plan a trip there soon!

Special one-day packages for as little as $129.90.

Commencing August 31, two night packages are available from $184 per person plus air including tickets to Phantom of the Opera.

Workers continue excavating along Joy Road. A major test along the new line (to Beck Road) will take place this week. (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

Waterlines to be tested as construction continues

BY JEFF BENNETT

Construction on Joy Road has entered its final two weeks with approximately 4,000 feet of water pipe remaining to be buried and the original areas to be repaved.

According to Dennis Oszust, project manager, water has filled the pipe to Beck Road and a water test will take place sometime this week. If the test is successful and there are no problems in the line, paving can begin, he said.

"Hopefully we can get the concrete poured between Sheldon and Beck and finish asphaltting to McClumpha by the last week in August," Oszust said.

Digging along the shoulder of Joy began in April after M&M Contracting won the bid for the $3.5 million project by the City of Detroit.

The 48-inch pipes will extend city water to Canton and as far as Superior Township.

The reason for the extension, according to Oszust, is the increasing water needs occurring as new subdivisions are created in western Wayne County.

Currently, most of the land surrounding Joy Road is used for farming, but change is already taking place with the building of the Quail Run Subdivision which has 74 lots.

When work ends on Joy Road, it will then be continued on Ann Arbor Road, extending to Napier Road. It should be completed by September, said Oszust.

Oszust was unsure if traffic would be detoured around the work area or if the road would be cut to one lane.

The project has not run into any problems, said Oszust, but with the drought, complaints are being heard because of dust.

One resident, Marshall Orcher said he can understand the need for the project even though work on the line begins at 7:30 a.m.

"This year all hell broke loose," Marshall said. "Subdivisions are coming out and everywhere you look there is progress. They (the workers) are cooperative. They keep one lane open and the noise is unavoidable. It is impressive to watch and the operation is well oiled from what I can see."

Plymouth officials take action against Stahl

BY PAUL GARGARO

Recent complaints against Stahl Manufacturing by residents of Ann Street, near Junction Street, have forced City of Plymouth officials to take action.

Included in the grievances against Stahl are complaints of excessive noise during early morning shift changes, uncontained trash from the parking lot, heavy trucking on Ann Street, and dust from the manufacturer's recently expanded parking lot.

A formal complaint was filed against Stahl on July 26 with the city's building and engineering department by an Ann Street resident.

In addition, City of Plymouth Engineer Kenneth West said that Stahl's recently expanded parking lot, the relocation of its parking deck, and the addition of some internal offices were constructed without a building permit from the city.

West said that a violation was issued by the city and that Stahl now has a permit for their new loading docks. However, they are still without permits for the construction of the new office space and the expanded parking lot.

Because the property is zoned for industrial use, the expansion of the lot requires a site plan approval by the planning commission. West said that Stahl has been given 60 days to prepare a plan for approval.

The city ordinance requires the construction of masonry to obscure the fence and parking area from adjacent properties, said West.

In addition, West said that the city has ordered Stahl to apply a liquid dust pallet to the new lot each week to reduce the dust.

"I'm suprised that we haven't had complaints against them (Stahl) prior to this," said West. "I think our citizens have been tolerant and they shouldn't have to be. You wouldn't want that in your back yard and neither would I."

Woodland Meadows will add recycling center

BY KEN VOYLES

Woodland Meadows Landfill in Canton will become one of the largest full-time recycling distribution centers in the state later this summer.

The Canton center, run by Southfield-based firm Waste Management of North America, Inc., will be only the fourth such recycling site in Michigan.

"I'm tickled to death," said Canton Supervisor Jim Poole, who is planning a meeting in a few weeks with local service organizations to discuss the center.

Shelia Osann, community relations manager at Waste Management, said the center, to open in mid-August, will accept newspapers, corrugated cardboard, glass, plastic bottles, cans and scrap metal for recycling.

The materials will then be sold to recycling operations and the money will be returned to the various groups who turned in the material, said Osann.

"Money will be coming back to the community," said Poole. "That's a real plus."

Osann said "sponsor" organizations will be sought out and any recycled materials sold during a "sponsor period" will be turned over to that group.

Osann also said Waste Management is working closely with Canton's Beautification Committee. "Our first goal is to raise money for Canton and a beautification project along Sheldon Road," Osann said.

The center will be open on Fridays and Saturdays at the beginning of the project, said Osann. It will also be open to individuals as well as groups.

The new Canton center will be Waste Management's first Wayne County operation, said Osann.

"I think everybody should be excited about recycling," Osann said. "It's an opportunity for people on a very personal level to do something about their environment."

Osann also said Waste Management can plan and start a "curbside" recycling program for the community if Canton eventually decides to follow the path.

Canton's Board of Trustees will get a preview of the center during the next regular board meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 9.

Poole said the project will be "a trigger" to use approximately $11,000 from the state for recycling education, which Canton received through a grant program.

Canton historic park gets another boost

BY KEN VOYLES

History lovers in Canton got another boost last week when the Canton Board of Trustees approved a resolution to go ahead with the first two phases in developing a "historic park."

The board agreed to go out for bids to move the historic Travis House to the 21-acre site on Ridge Road at Cherry Hill as well as recondition the exterior of the house. Moving the Travis House will be the first step toward making the historic park a reality.

The cost of the initial phases of the project would run approximately $85,000 and begin later this year. At the same time the board approved a resolution to continue the Cherry Hill School renovation project.

"I don't think anyone here is against this," Canton Supervisor Jim Poole told members of the Canton Historic District Commission last week. "We're better off to start on our own and then get a grant."

"This is really a wonderful, positive thing for Canton," said Terry Bennett, chairperson of the Canton Historic Commission. "It could be a very nice area for the community to enjoy."

Besides getting funds through the commission, there are plans also to seek out grants and other awards to help pay for the project. Canton's elected officials also accepted the fact that the township might have to chip in funds when needed.

Even Canton's State Representative Jim Kosteva (37th District) said, "I'm willing to go to bat for this community in seeking additional funds."

The Travis House will be moved to the park site on Ridge Road later this year. Canton officials recently closed the deal for the land, said Poole.

Besides moving the Travis House, members of the commission expressed an interest in eventually moving the Hough School.

Phase I of the approved program would call for moving the Travis House as well as preparing the site for its arrival. The cost is calculated at $50,000.

Phase II of the approved program would focus on renovating the outside of the Travis House so that it could stand the elements. That project would include constructing a new porch, repairing the roof, painting, and fixing the windows. The cost is calculated at $35,100.

There is also a Phase III, which the board did not discuss, to recondition the interior of the home. That phase would run about $40,700 and may not be undertaken for a year.

"Besides alternative funding we think we can cut many expenses by recruiting volunteers to help us paint and beautify the environment of the park," Bennett said.

"I'm in favor of it but I think there's a limit to how much taxpayers' funds we can use for it," said Canton Treasurer Gerald Brown.

Another member of the commission said that to consider moving the Travis House, planners had to "jump" forward several phases. "We can't just plunk the house down in the middle of nowhere," he said.

West tapped for Rouge

City of Plymouth Engineer Kenneth West was recently elected chairman of the River Rouge Water Shed Council.

West said that the primary purpose of the council, which includes 23 communities in the Rouge River Basin, is to educate people on the benefits of the river system.

"We're trying to make people more aware of the benefits of the Rouge," said West. "We also do anything we can to promote the clean-up of the river."

"I'm enthused because I think that we're really going to start running with the issues. Our director (Bill Jakeway, of Flushing) is a real mover and shaker," West added.

West's one-year term will end on July 1, 1989.

Canton voters reject 'superintendent'

BY KEN VOYLES

Residents throughout Canton rejected the "superintendent" ballot proposal during yesterday's primary election by nearly a four to three margin.

The proposal, which would have allowed for the hiring of a professional superintendent to take over many of the duties of the full time supervisor, was rejected 2,482 to 1,832, according to early morning totals from the Canton clerk's office.

The proposal went down to defeat in 15 of Canton's 23 precincts. It was also defeated among the township's absentee voters.

Tom Yack, a supporter of the proposal, however, won election as the township's new supervisor. "I still think the township needs professional leadership," he said after his victory.

A lot of questions will now be raised, though, as to whether or not the Canton Board of Trustees can still go ahead and look at hiring a professional assistant for the supervisor.

It should be noted, as well, that back in April the board voted to make the supervisor position a part time one as of Nov. 20. Yack, a teacher in Wayne-Westland, has said he would take a leave of absence if it were necessary.

"I'm only one vote," Yack said. "It's up to the board to see how best to handle administering the township."

Candidates Elaine Kirchgatter and John Preniczky, also supporters of the proposal were elected to the board yesterday. Henry Whalen and Robert Shefferly were also elected to the board. During the campaign they voiced opposition to the proposal.

Yack wins in Canton

"I've got to teach the first semester or I don't eat," he said. "That's until January. Then I can look at a leave."

"It's up to the board to see how best to handle administering the township," Yack added. "I still believe there's a need for professional leadership but that will be decided by seven people on the board."

He said one "benefit" to the fact that he will not start work as supervisor until November is that he will have time to prepare for the job.

"I want to start off on a real trust basis with all these folks," said Yack. "There are so many things I want to do." The new supervisor-elect said he plans to meet with the newly elected trustees as well as department heads in the township and other community groups.

"Everybody is going to need time to see how the team approach works," Yack said.

Yack, former president of the Plymouth-Canton Community School Board, is married and the father of four.

alcohol to minors. The investigation was stepped up after an alcohol-related death of a Canton woman, whose car was struck by two underaged patrons of the bar.

One of those patrons, Yvonne Hillier, is now serving a prison sentence for her involvement in the accident. An appeal of her sentence is pending.

John Stewart, who has been representing Plymouth Township against the "Rock," said he is frustrated with the recent delay of the LCC decision.

"I'd love to have this thing in front of a Wayne County Circuit Court Judge -- conservative or liberal -- any one of the 36," said Stewart. "This (Wayne County) is where the bar is located. Why has Farhat gone to two different Ingham County Circuit Court Judges?"

Breen holds on in Twp.

A former attorney and veteran of the United States Air Force, Breen's upcoming term will be his fourth as supervisor (and his third consecutive term).

Breen has also served two terms as a township trustee. He is married with three children.

As a trustee for the past four years, Irvine has been a constant participant and a strong voice on the board.

A former attorney with Ford Motor Company, Irvine and his wife are 22-year residents of Plymouth Township and have five children.

Fresh faces join incumbents in Twp.

BY PAUL GARGARO

Two incumbents and two fresh face will join the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees after November.

Incumbent Andy Pruner lost his seat on the board, finishing third to last in a field of eight candidates.

Incumbents Abe Munfakh and Smith Horton enjoyed solid victories, finishing unofficially with 1,904 and 1,762 votes respectively.

Ron Griffith came in third place with 1,517 unofficial votes. He was followed up closely by John Stewart, who collected 1,443 unofficial votes.

A former member of the planning commission and a current trustee, Munfakh was satisfied with his performance.

"I would really like to thank all of the people who worked on the campaign with me," said Munfakh. "The people are pleased with what I've done for the past four years. The results show it. I really feel good. I think we have a good board for the next four years."

Horton attributed his success to the format of his campaign.

"It was a personal contact, down-to-earth campaign," said Horton. "It was a kitchen counter campaign."

Horton has been a trustee for six years and is a former planning commissioner.

A dean at Schoolcraft College, Griffith knew that the race would be close.

"I'm really excited with the count. I always new it was going to get down to a close vote count between me and John Stewart," said Griffith. "I think I worked harder on the absentee voters than John. I'm pleased, I think we've got a good board."

Stewart, a local attorney, was equally pleased.

"Since July 5, we went door-to-door every night and worked six hours a day on Saturdays and Sundays. I worked really hard for this," said Stewart. "Personally, I'm very happy. I rank this 3rd behind my wedding and the birth of my two daughters."

Planning Commissioner Greg Williams finished fifth with a total of 1,085 unofficial votes. Williams was followed by Pruner with 885 votes, Cameron Miller with 766 votes, and Joseph LeBlanc with 672 votes.

Adkins takes upset in 15th District

BY DAN JARVIS

The race for the 15th Congressional District was being tallied late into the night following Tuesday's primary election.

Though unofficial, the results which came in early this morning pointed to Republican Burl Adkins as the victor. Adkins was unavailable for comment following the race.

Canton resident Peter Bundarin was edged out by Adkins in several communities and was expected to finish in second.

"I did not expect to win," said Bundarin. "The conservative wing of the party was not supposed to choose a candidate, but they did choose Adkins."

Bundarin complained that the ultra-conservatives set out on a separate campaign and emphasized the differences on views such as the abortion issue.

"We just do not see eye to eye," he said, referring to the party power structure. "I don't accept their leadership."

Bundarin praised the efforts of Republicans who worked hard in gaining support for Adkins, but complained that the party had all the cards stacked in Adkins' favor.

Adkins will face Democrat William Ford in November.

Also in the race were Glen Kassel and Robert Fodor.

Jail, schools millages OK'd

BY DAN JARVIS

Adding jail space and penalty options for misdemeanor offenders was apparently approved by Wayne County voters yesterday.

The proposal authorized a one-mill tax levy for the next 10 years to acquire, construct, and operate one or more jail or juvenile detention facilities. The measure will now open options for adults such as work release, home detention and community restitution.

A portion of the funds raised from the addition tax will be used to build and operate a juvenile offender work-training institution.

Voters in The Plymouth-Canton Community showed mixed support on the proposal.

Also approved by voters was a proposal that will fund the education of handicapped persons within the county.

The special education millage proposal, put on the ballot by the Wayne County Intermediate School District, is expected to raise about $20 million in funding for the special education. About half of the funds are expected to be reimbursed to the local school districts for additional special education programs.

Plymouth's Pursell will face Pollack in November

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell is looking at his stiffest challenge to re-election this November.

That prediction by Pursell supporters materialized late last night as results of the 2nd Congressional District primary battle between Lana Pollack and Dean Baker showed Pollack with a commanding lead.

Pursell is a Plymouth Township resident.

Pollack beat Baker by about a two-to-one margin, according to figures from Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville, Northville Township, Livonia and from outlying areas in the far-flung district.

Baker conceded that he had lost at about 11 p.m.

"It looks like Lana has won by a pretty wide margin," Baker said. "We were surprised. We thought it would be close," he said.

Pollack said she was pleased at having carried most precincts except where "Dean had his strength in student precincts."

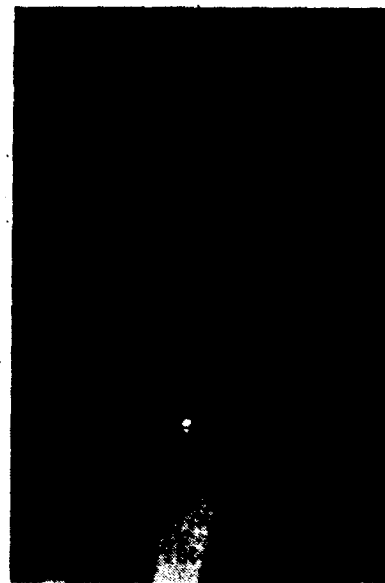

A state senator from Ann Arbor, Pollack ran two-to-one in Plymouth and Plymouth Township precincts in her race against Baker, although in both those communities Pursell (who was unopposed) outdrew her.

The race for the 2nd District, especially now with Pollack as Pursell's opponent come November, has attracted national attention. It is projected to be one of the most expensive congressional races in state history.

Baker, a university professor, ran two years ago on a low-budget campaign, losing to Pursell. He was outspent in this primary by about six to one.

Pollack's campaign has been geared towards the November confrontation. "The theme: let's bring Carl Pursell's record home."

Canton cuts Chuhran, Bennett to face Burgess

BY KEN VOYLES

Incumbent Linda Chuhran is out as a candidate for the Canton clerk job in November, but incumbent Gerald Brown is in as a candidate for treasurer.

Chuhran was defeated in yesterday's primary by Canton Board of Trustee member Loren Bennett, according to unofficial voting results obtained through the clerk's office early this morning.

Bennett, who will give up his slot as a trustee, has to face Democratic candidate Cynthia Burgess in November's general election. Unofficial voting totals gave Bennett 1,939 votes and Chuhran 1,056.

Brown, treasurer for the past four years, easily knocked off challenger Ruth Allegrina for the Republican treasurer slot. He totaled 2,009 votes, according to unofficial results, while Allegrina picked up 891 votes.

Brown will face Democratic candidate Carol Bodenmiller for the treasurer position during November's general election.

Both the clerk and treasurer positions are full time jobs. The length of the term is for four years.

Write-in vote results were unavailable this morning, according to Chuhran.

Salem ousts Sackett

BY DAN JARVIS

The primary election in Northville Township did not offer any surprises last night.

All of the incumbents were re-elected, according to unofficial election results from early this morning. They included supervisor Georgina Goss, clerk Thomas L.P. Cook and treasurer Richard M. Henningsen, all of who ran unopposed in the race.

The race for four trustee spots were also filled by incumbents as the challenger, Myron Kasey was left behind.

Re-elected as trustees were Donald B. Williams, Richard E. Allen, Thomas A. Handyside and James L. Nowka.

Unopposed candidates James Schrot and Edward J. Mroz were elected constables.

In Salem Township, incumbent supervisor Richard Sackett was ousted from the position by challenger Michael P. Geary, who won the vote 310 to 224, according to unofficial results this morning.

Incumbent treasurer Suzanne Witthoff took the race over challenger Susan Clark by a wide margin. Clerk Nancy Geiger and constable Kent L. Stanburg both ran unopposed.

In the trustee race, incumbents William Taft and Ferman Rohraff, both Republicans, received the top votes for the party. Elizabeth Hugg and Sharon Bell were the high scoring Democratic candidates and all four will face off for two spots on the Nov. ballot.

Trustee candidates David Miles Post, a Republican, and Democrat Richard Bragg did not place in the election.

VOTE 1988

Kirchgatter leads

BY KEN VOYLES

Elaine Kirchgatter led all Republican candidates in the Canton trustee race during yesterday's primary, according to unofficial vote totals from the clerk's office.

Kirchgatter, a former Plymouth-Canton Schools member, was tapped by voters along with Henry Whalen, Robert Shefferly, and incumbent John Preniczky. Kirchgatter had been appointed earlier this year to fill the trustee seat vacated by Stephen Larson.

Kirchgatter led all Republican vote getters with 1,810, according to unofficial results early this morning. Whalen was second with 1,523, while Shefferly came in third with 1,264 votes. Preniczky slipped in fourth ahead of Robert Greenstein with 1,253.

The four Republicans will next face Democrats Edwin Rasmussen and Matie Ostrum during the general election in November. There are four, four-year slots open on the board.

The other Republican candidates finished in the following order: Ralph Shufeldt with 1,004 votes; Honorio Orenca with 911; and Delmar Myers with 603.

The top four Republican candidates are also split on the "superintendent" question, with both Kirchgatter and Preniczky for the idea of a professional manager and Whalen and Shefferly opposed to the plan. (The ballot proposal was defeated by Canton voters yesterday, according to figures from the clerk's office.)

Hulsing, Brooks win

BY PAUL GARGARO

Plymouth Township's incumbent Clerk Esther Hulsing and Treasurer Mary Brooks sustained comfortable victories in the bid to stay in office.

Challenged by political newcomer Patricia Pashukewich, Brooks unofficially captured 2,006 votes to Pashukewich's 1,163 votes.

Brooks overcame allegations levied by Pashukewich late in the campaign charging that she had, among other things, mishandled township funds.

Ready to begin her second term in office, Brooks said she is happy with the outcome and grateful for the support she received.

"All I can do is thank everybody that voted for me and helped me, especially Jim and Mona Irvine," said Brooks. "Without them, I couldn't have done it."

Hulsing captured more votes than any single candidate in the election with 2,471 unofficially.

Her challenge came from her former deputy clerk, Lorraine Halmekangas, whose write-in - sticker campaign failed to come anywhere near Hulsing's total, with 274 votes.

About to begin her fourth term as township clerk, Hulsing said, "Why sure I'll be happy, after I get a good night's rest."

Hulsing said that of the 15,497 registered voters in Plymouth Township, 4,605 voted in the primary - including 998 voters by absentee ballot.

Hulsing said that 3,338 voters voted Republican while 645 voted Democratic.

With the breakdown of one counting machine, Hulsing and her crew finished the tally at 1:10 a.m. this morning.

A Canton senior's tribute

As Canton nears groundbreaking for its new senior citizen housing center, there's one important piece of unfinished business.

Selecting a name for it.

Before such a decision come become a major political wrangle, here's a suggestion that should bear consideration and adoption:

THE HAGBARD 'BART' BERG CENTER.

Bart, who died April 19, 1985 at the age of 73, was one of Canton's foremost senior citizens. His drive and community pride were examples to Cantonites of any age.

But when you consider that he was a major force behind the Canton Chamber of Commerce, the Canton Republican Party, the Canton Rotary Club, the Canton Historical Museum, the Canton Sesquicentennial and other civic endeavors at an age most folks are content to sit back, Bart becomes the prime candidate for recognition.

In addition, as western Wayne County's elected representative to the Wayne County Charter Commission which reformed county government, Bart was Canton's highest elected official in decades.

As an example to senior citizens everywhere -- and to other citizens of The Plymouth-Canton Community -- the new senior citizen center in Canton should bear this dynamo's name.

Disaster practice makes perfect?

A smashed car, lay twisted and burning at the the side of the railroad tracks. A cracked railroad tanker had been derailed and was leaking toxic fumes.

It's a wild scenario -- far too grim to seriously consider here in our hometown. But as we're constantly reminded by our police and fire chiefs, Plymouth is not entirely immune from this kind of railroad tragedy.

Indeed, trains carrying a veritable "Variety Pack" of toxic chemicals to and from Midland race through Plymouth each week.

It kind of makes you shake in your shoes. But then again, that kind of a disaster couldn't really happen here, could it?

Not in Tree City U.S.A.!

It's easier to imagine some poor citizen meeting his demise at the Fall Festival -- slipping on a discarded Rotary chicken bone and falling into the path of an antique car, than it is to think of him dying in his home, choked by the toxic fumes of a smashed railroad car, loaded with poisonous chemicals.

Last Friday, I almost did an involuntary backflip out of my chair when a distress call describing a similar situation, at the Starkweather railroad crossing in Old Village, came over the office police scanner.

Immediately after the dispatcher relayed the sobering signal, she said that the situation was only a simulation.

Unbelievable -- a potential disaster the size of the Grand Canyon and it was staged.

Regardless, the performance that went down in Old Village was at least entertaining.

cock, Police Chief Richard Myers, and Fire Chiefs Alan Matthews (Plymouth) Larry Groth (Plymouth Twp.), and a handful of other notables from surrounding departments were on hand to coordinate the activities.

At first glance, it seemed as though I had stumbled into the forests of Grayling for a weekend of war games with the National Guard.

In the opinion of a layman, the performance was well executed, despite the fact that an official from the Air Pollution Control Division for the Wayne County Department of Health said that the fire department failed to apply for a permit to stage a training fire.

Indeed, firefighters stretched hoses, cops directed traffic, obnoxious media folks were arrested, etc., etc...

The only thing missing was the look of panic on the faces of those involved. Even the fake dead and injured were smiling as they lay stretched on the ground.

If disasters are that fun when they're not real, they must be a regular laugh-riot when they are for real.

Probably not.

Before the day was over, nearly 50 disaster-trained personnel from the Western Wayne Response Team and participants in the Mutual Aid program visited the scene. Even the Wayne County Hazardous Materials Vehicle was on hand for the trial run.

We can all be thankful that our community is relatively crime free, but a leaking chemical car could make that blessing seem like extremely small potatoes.

In the final analysis, chiefs Myers and Matthews said that the effort of the disaster crew was admirable, but that there were still some rough spots to be ironed out. Both men, however, were confident that the next exercise would run more smoothly.

Now more than ever, let's hope that practice does make perfect.

Crier's ducks in order

EDITOR:

Obviously, Huey, Louie and Dewey are alive and well and working at The Crier.

Their support for their Uncle Donald as the Clerk of Canton Township is most admirable.

If he can break away from his job as Publisher of The Crier for the next four years he has my support.

It would be nice if he could grant Daisy Duck a leave of absence and bring her along as his Deputy.

Myers committed

EDITOR:

When I drove through town on Sunday, Chief Richard Myers was directing traffic at the corner of Main and Mill. The traffic light was not operational due to the storm. He looked very tired and unshaven -- as though he had been on duty throughout the night.

While waiting for my turn to proceed through the intersection, I was convinced of his exhaustion. At the same time, however, I realized what a commitment he has to the community and his position, and what a fine example he set for others.

Chief Myers and the other officers and city workers who so tirelessly corrected problems caused by the storm should be commended for their efforts in a difficult situation.

Thanks for parade help

EDITOR:

The Plymouth Jaycees umpteenth annual Fourth of July Parade is history.

It was a resounding success with many first time entries, a fly-over from the Yankee Air Force and Selfridge ANGB, many familiar friends all covered by CNN News for national news coverage.

God's name misused

EDITOR:

This letter is in regard to the picture caption which appeared in The Community Crier on July 13, 1988. The picture was of a small boy being sprayed by sprinklers and in the background was a church building. The caption read, "God, It's hot!"

Our Sunday morning Bible class has been studying various aspects of communication, including profanity. One type of profanity is taking the Lord's name in vain and one way of doing this is to use the Lord's name carelessly or irreverently in ordinary conversation. We feel that the picture caption was an example of taking the Lord's name in vain.

We would like to express our feelings of dismay at seeing this use of profanity in your newspaper. Even if it was an attempt at humor (because of the church building in the background, we feel that the caption was inappropriate.

With malice toward none

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

Has Canton Township sent an official threatening letter to The Community Crier?

So it might appear.

Last week -- following this paper's election endorsements -- a certified letter arrived here in an official township envelope and apparently mailed at taxpayers' expense on the Canton Township postage meter (number 3008396).

The letter (written on plain paper) read:

Dear Editor Wendover:

Your article on Page 9, of July 27, addition (sic) of the Community Crier states "Write-in Donald Duck for Canton Clerk" contains comments and notes which have no foundation or merit. Your endorsements have never been requested or desired from myself as Clerk.

Due to the lacks (sic) of facts presented, I am therefore demanding a correction with the same coverage and focus with a special edition of your newspaper prior to the Primary Election of August 2.

Sincerely,
Linda Chuhran
Canton Clerk

If Chuhran is personally hinting (again) at a lawsuit, the taxpayers' dollars shouldn't be used. Other Canton officials admit that the township hall postage meter and mail room are loosely guarded and that abuses can occur.

But the township clerk should know better.

In the margin

By Ken Voyles

Canton on my mind...

Where is it headed? What does the future hold (as seen through the glass darkly)?

It's a topic everyone in the township should be concerned about, especially in light of yesterday's primary and the changes expected through election.

Two visions come to mind when one thinks of Canton -- the open spaces of farmland fields, and the bland subdivision housing, tacked together with commercial strips. Where is Canton's downtown? There isn't one.

Now farmland is pretty and helps give Canton its natural character, but farmland is also hot right now as prime development land. There is so much of western Canton not yet developed that it's soon to become prized among builders. Just wait and see.

The farmlands, while beautiful and adding to Canton's character, might also slow down progress, but some have already said Canton is speeding toward its future so fast that no-one has had time to take a measurement of just how well it's coming along.

It's unrealistic to think western Canton will remain pristine open land, but it's also foolish not to consider saving at least part of it. This has been an agricultural community for so long it would be unwise to forsake it for the sake of more development along the lines of what is already in place in the township.

Canton doesn't need any more strip malls. Canton doesn't need any more jaded subdivisions. Canton doesn't need a major shopping center. Canton doesn't even need a downtown.

What Canton has should be cherished and developed along lines natural to the history and culture of the community -- a historic park, for example, fits into this image rather neatly. Strip malls along Ridge Road in 10 years would be a crime. Subdivisions in Ross Hawk's fields would be ugly (and no different than houses which have been in place along Sheldon for years).

Canton can be different. It has a chance to retain a township feel even as it heads toward eventual cityhood.

Yes, cityhood. The evil word creeps up again. Canton is already offering the scope of services most cities offer, yet by staying a township taxes remain low. For many residents that's the key - keep taxes low. The best way to do that they say is to remain a township.

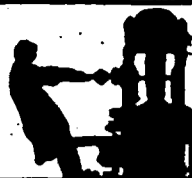

Cityhood would mean more taxes, but it also might mean more respect. Canton has all too often been the butt of jokes about its shape, size and so called lack of cultural ambience. I've rarely understood these jokes, but to many they are painfully clear.

Canton is currently run as townships of old were organized, but the more complex things get the more important it will be to manage all of the ingredients that make the community what it is. It just might not be possible with the current form of government. Cityhood is the next step.

But can Canton retain its unique feel while sprouting more subdivisions and burger joints, even if it is under the guise of cityhood?

Hardly. And that's a shame. One would think there's a way to blend the old and make way for the new.

Maybe there should be a township meeting to bring residents together to discuss the future. Newspaper writers can write all they want to, but it is the people who must decide.

Contracts signed for Canton senior housing

BY KEN VOYLES

Now that contracts have been signed for a senior citizens housing project in Canton work should begin sometime this fall and be completed by the fall of 1989.

The National Church Residences will operate the facility and process applications for seniors in the near future. The site of the project is at Sheldon and Ford roads.

Housing will be available to any senior who meets some basic requirements -- they must be a minimum of 62 or handicapped. Minimum incomes have not yet been determined, and rental fees will be based on a percentage of an individual's income.

Canton residents who want to get on a waiting list should write the National Church Residence, 2335 North Bank Drive, Columbus, OH 43220.

The development of a true seniors housing center in Canton goes back to 1981. Then nearly three years ago Canton had a chance to evolve such a development but was unable to get the funding needed.

Property for the current project was purchased through a local bank, which had foreclosed on it recently. Financing of the land and the building has been done entirely with grants or loans from HUD, according to Canton Supervisor Jim Poole.

"This is one of my proudest accomplishments," Poole told some seniors who gathered recently for the official contract signing. "The real winners of this project are the community and our senior citizens."

Local trumpeter joins the DSO

BY JEFF BENNETT

White panels provide a backdrop that appears smooth and polished while the Detroit Symphony Orchestra (DSO) practices on the Meadow Brook outdoor stage.

Behind the panels are scrawled the names of artists who have performed on the stage and left their signature as a remembrance. Some are spray painted in large black letters and others are small pen scratches, but for Bill Lucas, his mark has only begun.

Lucas, a 31-year-old trumpet player who is also an alumnus of Salem High, holds the fourth trumpet position and has been playing with the DSO for two months.

Being on stage and playing with the DSO is a dream come true for Lucas.

"The thing you notice the most is that you are under a very white light," said Lucas. "It's a very high pressuring job and there is lots of tension but it's almost serene. It's like putting your hand under hot water, it gets so hot that it almost feels cold."

But before the glamour of lights and a stage, Lucas had to go through three auditions held in May where he competed against 176 players from around the country and the test was "hell."

"I had to go on stage behind a screen completely anonymous to the committee and I had to play and demonstrate in 10 minutes or less in the first round that I was good enough to play here. That's how you get hired."

The committee asked Lucas to return for the semi-finals and for the final round where he was selected.

"The two things that won me the job was the sound," he said. "My sound works here and the other (thing) was my style."

Lucas could not describe in words his "style," but he did remark that it was something that comes naturally.

He also said that his past experience as a free-lancer when he would play for the DSO during charity or "fun" occasions helped him win the spot.

But is there a change in attitude for Lucas now that a talent which allowed him to play for enjoyment in the past is his full time job now?

Bill Lucas (left) enjoys a lighter moment during a recent DSO rehearsal at Meadow Brook. Lucas, a Salem graduate, recently joined the symphony. (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

"There is a certain pressure," he said. "I'm not tenure which means that if I don't perform up to level, I can be let go without any problems at all."

"But the real pressure comes from within. The real pressure is from me; Bill. Bill telling Bill 'Look, you have to play perfect when you are here.' You have to strive for that. Every time you put the horn to your lips, you have to get something out that is close to being perfect as possible. You also have to fit in and find out where your boundaries are. But I like the pressure and that is what makes it fun."

Learning about music and more importantly for Lucas, having fun while playing, was first developed during his Salem years.

"I think the kids at Salem get more than other high schools in that (they) learn about music which was the biggest thing I learned as a young player," he said. "In marching band, I learned to have a good time with music."

Lucas continues to work with Salem's marching band as a trumpet instructor.

He said that the kids he is instructing are smarter. They learn quicker and are more mature, but he advises not to go into music because of the fierce competition.

"If you can wake-up one day and not play the trumpet all day and feel great about it, don't be a professional musician," Lucas said. "But if you wake-up one day and say 'I've got to play,' then you should think about a career in music. But to be good, you HAVE to do it, you are going to want to do it."

Lucas admits that his trumpet obsession began at age 11 when he got involved with the West Middle School music program and began taking trumpet lessons.

Lucas said that he ended his senior year at Salem with the thought of pursuing engineering and entered the University of Michigan with that goal in mind.

"I got to the U of M, but I spent more time at home practicing than I actually did in the engineering department," Lucas said, adding that it was during this time he became interested in playing symphony music.

He never graduated but used the university as a conservatory where he would spend six hours a day practicing, taking music classes and playing in clubs at night.

In 1981 he left the university to play with the Toledo Symphony. He was hired by the DSO this past May.

"This orchestra is incredibly warm," Lucas said of the DSO. "This was one of the reasons why I wanted to play here. There are a lot of brilliant minds in this orchestra."

The orchestra itself has recently returned from a tour in the Upper Peninsula and plans are being finalized for another tour in Europe.

However, there are problems the DSO is struggling to overcome. The symphony has a reported $4 million deficit and a decline in audiences. There was also a strike during the fall season last year.

"I was supposed to take my audition the day before the official (strike) announcement came, so I was ready to play the next day," he said. "Then it was 'no work guys.' I had worked very hard preparing for this audition in hopes of winning here and I wasn't sure there was going to be an orchestra."

Dealing with deficit and any other problems are on the minds of the musicians but as a new player he must learn the job regardless of the difficulties, Lucas said.

Professionalism and perfection are the key element to a symphony for Lucas and he said that despite decline in attendance there will always be a symphony and classical music.

"We are professionals like lawyers and doctors and what we provide society is equally important if not more," he said. "I always ask myself 'why are people coming to symphony concerts?' You have the opportunity to see music through a master's eyes. You have an opportunity to see genius."

"That is something that can be very inspiring to anybody who wants to enrich their lives."

Tell it to Phyllis

By Phyllis Redfern

When was the last time you saw your kid's room clean?

I honestly don't remember. My daughter's room probably hasn't been clean since the last time I painted it and moved everything out. My son actually makes an attempt at cleaning and moving things around, but the dust bunnies in the corners have been growing for a while.

Unless we are expecting company, I don't usually get too upset with the kids' rooms. There are other things much more important in life and you can always simply close the door. Besides eventually they are going to lose something in that mess and have to clean to find it.

My house is not (by anyone's standards) what you would call clean. It has that "lived in" look. Although I'm not always what you would call an organized person, I usually know where everything is.

Just for the record, a "lived in" look does not include shoes or dirty socks in the middle of the family room floor. My gosh, the older the kids get, the worse they get. One would think for the amount of money you pay to send them to college, they could learn something other than how to live like a bum.

Last week when the kid stopped by the office, he looked at the papers sticking out of the index card box used for phone numbers then looked at my desk, and asked, "How do you find anything?" I admit he's not the first person to ask that and my standard reply is, "As long as nobody touches anything I know where things are."

It's one thing for a normal person to come in and comment about my desk, but it's another thing when the kid says something. Who does this kid, who has been a slob all summer, think he is?

Actually it's nice to know he does recognize a mess when he sees one. I was beginning to wonder. I may have to go through and rearrange things on my desk, but just think, if he recognized one mess, maybe there's hope he will recognize another.

Tombstone troubles in Canton

BY KEN VOYLES

Somebody tell Bob Dylan, Canton's got the "tombstone blues."

Since late in January of this year at least seven grave tombstones have turned up at various locations throughout Canton, moved by unknown suspects, according to Canton Police.

"It's probably kids pulling pranks they think are funny," said Dave Boljesic, Canton Police's liaison officer. "They aren't something you just pick up and carry."

The tombstones are all "pretty old," said Boljesic, who added that most of them are illegible and it remains unclear which cemeteries they came from. The police are currently checking Canton's older cemeteries for further leads.

Boljesic said the first tombstone turned up in January in a resident's yard. Another was found on June 15 in front of Oakwood Hospital and four more turned up at Honeytree Apartments. More recently a tombstone turned up in a subdivision park in Canton. Three of the stones were old concrete crosses.

Boljesic said there are currently no suspects or leads in the case. The "destruction of tombstones and memorials" is considered a misdemeanor, he said, unless the tombstone itself was worth $100 or more, in which case it becomes larceny and a felony.

On one of the stones can be read the name "Alice Lewis (1889-1913)," said Boljesic, and another seems to read "Marshall." The police are currently holding all of the stones while they continue their investigation.

City looks at sign changes

BY PAUL GARGARO

City of Plymouth residents who want to voice their opinions regarding proposed changes in the city's sign ordinance are invited to attend a public hearing on the subject scheduled for Aug. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in front of the planning commission in City Hall.

Doug Miller, chairman of the planning commission, said that the proposed changes include three main points.

"The proposed changes would encourage the use of smaller wall signs or ground signs as opposed to larger pole or pylon signs," said Miller. "(They would) require that certain free-standing signs used within the city have a permit number assigned and affixed to the sign."

In addition, Miller said the changes would "encourage the elimination of non-conforming signs in the city by the year 2000."

Miller said that copies of the first draft of the proposed ordinance changes are available for review in the building and engineering department in

City Hall.

"We expect that several hearings and a good deal of public input will be necessary before the planning commission will be able to prepare a final draft and feel comfortable voting to recommend its adoption by the city commission," Miller said.

Getting down to business

Pelc's cycles, a first in Canton

BY DAN JARVIS

For more than 30 years, Andy Pelc has offered quality motorcycles throughout Southeast Michigan, and he's recently opened an outlet in Canton.

Located at 39933 Ford Road, just east of I-275, the shop is stocked with a full selection of BMW motorcycles and any accessories that a rider may need.

The motorcycle dealership is a first for Canton, which has yet to see the opening of a car dealership along any of its main commercial thoroughfares.

Pelc's previous location was in Southgate and as of the Memorial Day weekend has begun to serve not only The Plymouth-Canton Community, but also riders in Ann Arbor, Southfield and even northern Ohio.

Being one of only 200 BMW cycle dealers in the U.S., Pelc and his wife Sally can offer sales of the complete BMW cycle line ranging from $5,500 to $10,000 as well as service to all of the BMW line.

"We're the largest BMW bike dealer in the state and have consistently been in the top five dealers in the country," said Pelc. "If you want to open up a motorcycle shop anywhere in the state, Ford Road is the best place. It's just minutes from Detroit Metropolitan Airport and centrally located to serve the largest number of people."

Awards for sales and service are nothing new to Pelc.

"We've received numerous awards for every area we've dealt in," Pelc said. "We've also been a member of the 500 club, a group who's membership of dealers have sold more than 500 motorcycles in one year."

The service department, of which Pelc is obviously proud, has also won awards from the parent company, BMW of North America.

Financing can be obtained from the parent company, which offers interest rates at the current average for recreational vehicles, about 14 per cent.

Making the shop successful is more than just wishful thinking for Pelc, who is very satisfied with the sales volume since the inception of the Canton location. He said he expects the sales to rise over the long term.

"We're not just trying to make quick money," he said, "We're offering a quality product and we're in business for the long term."

The wide variety of accessories include leather riding suits, rain suits, shirts, jackets, helmets and motorcycle parts.

Hours for the shop are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday. In addition, later nights include open hours until 9 p.m. on Monday and Friday, though just a temporary measure, he said. Service hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

For more information about the shop or any of the items offered, call Andy or Sally at 981-1479.

Range turns 20

Arbor-Joy Golf Range, at the intersection of Ann Arbor and Joy roads is proud to be celebrating its 20th anniversary.

Owned and operated by the William Gurney family, the popular driving range first opened its doors in 1968.

"When we started in 1968 this was the 'boonies' (there was) nothing west of Sheldon and Ann Arbor roads - no Trailwood, no Ridgewood, it was, in fact, called M-14 until the expressway came along," said Estelle Gurney.

Karate kids

Canton youths bring home the gold

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

You might call them our local "karate kids."

Five Canton kids recently competed in the Tae Kwon Do National Junior Olympics in Tampa, Fl.

The Canton athletes, who competed along with 28 other athletes from the Wayne Tae Kwon Do studio, combined to bring home five of the 18 medals won by the studio.

Competitors came from all 50 states with about 3,000 kids competing in two different events, forms and sparring.

The forms competition pits the competitor against an imaginary opponent while an official judges the form.

Sparring is a controlled contact sport with the competitors actually squaring off against each other.

In order to have qualified for the National Junior Olympics, an athlete must first have become the state champion in his or her division.

Nine-year old, Jennifer Lyons, of Canton, brought home a gold medal in the forms competition.

Frank Phillips II, also of Canton, took a bronze medal in forms, and a silver medal in sparring.

mantle pieces was Kristy Pilch, of Canton, who took a bronze in form and a silver in sparring.

Jason Suaeaz and Tom Swarhout, both from Canton, competed in the tournament but did not win medals.

While preparing for the Nationals, the fighters trained on the average of five to six days a week.

According to instructor Chris Rose some kids get their start in the sport by watching movies like "Karate Kid."

"But most come in for the physical fitness," said Rose.

Lyons agrees with Rose, "It's fun, plus I get my exercise in."

Asked if the kids ever use their knowledge of the sport for acts of violence outside of the gym, Rose quickly said, "The more the kids learn the art (of Tae Kwon Do), the more they learn how to avoid violent situations."

"It's to be used as a last resort," said Lyons.

"They learn as part of the class that it (Tae Kwon Do) isn't to be used against someone else," added Rose.

Rose feels that the concentration that is involved with the sport helps the kids with their everyday life.

"We find that they excel in school and in other sports," said Rose.

Pride of the league

Craiger team earns respect in Canton

BY RAY SETLOCK, JR.

The trees beyond the outfield fence whisper in the wind. Dusk has set in at Canton's Flodin Park. The game is in the sixth inning and Craiger's leading 6-1.

This has been a familiar scenario during the past five summers.

In each of those seasons, Craiger manager Bob Ruete has led his Babe Ruth League baseball team to the championship.

Although Craiger is not a household name, it means something to anyone who has taken a part in the Canton Babe Ruth League.

Ruete has built the team into a powerhouse, not only in the Canton League, but in the entire metropolitan Detroit area.

Youngsters aged 13-15 are eligible to participate, provided they pass muster at the tryout.

Ruete stressed that his club is not in competition with the with the Mickey Mantle program in Canton, which features the talents of kids aged 15-16.

"We do not wish to compete with the Mantle program," Ruete said. "Our purpose is to provide another option for talented players in the community. If you're 15-years-old, you have a better chance at getting to play in Babe Ruth because our program doesn't exceed 15-years-old. The Mantle program has 16-year-olds which cut in on the playing time of the 15-year-olds."

Larry Sebuck, who coached the Craiger team for four of their five championships, agreed with Ruete.

"I would have to say the better option for a 15-year-old would be our league," said Sebuck. "They definitely get more playing time and at this point in their careers, they need playing time."

In the Craiger team's short history, they've turned out a number of high school and college players.

One of the most notable Craiger veterans is Todd Marion, who played high school baseball with Salem and will attend the University of Michigan this fall on a baseball scholarship. Marion played on the Craiger team when it won its first two championships:

"The Craiger team could compete with any other teams around," Marion said. "For me, it was the turning point in my career."

The Canton Babe Ruth League was founded five seasons ago by Jim Gee and Jack Ewald. It was intended as a program to provide a competitive alternative for those kids who couldn't qualify for the Mickey Mantle League.

"The Mantle Program is very select in letting private school kids play," said Ed Goff, whose son Kevin is a Craiger infielder. "Therefore, the Craiger team is a good summer league for those youths who attend Divine Child or Catholic Central high schools."

Craiger catcher Scott Kopla, who will be attending Catholic Central in the fall, is grateful for this summer's participation on the Craiger squad.

"If it wasn't for Craiger, who knows what other city I would have had to go to for baseball," said Kapla. "This team offers good competition and excellent coaching."

Craiger's competition over the past five years has stemmed from cities like Detroit, Farmington, and Grosse Pointe.

Dennis Kennedy, whose son Scott plays on the Craiger club and whose son Chris plays at Canton, after a three-year stint with Craiger, said that the team's results speak for themselves.

"This team has turned out a number of varsity ballplayers," said Kennedy. "The program is a good feeding system for the high school teams."

Play ball!!

The Plymouth-Canton thunderstorms will be part of 40 other teams playing in the 1988 Special Olympia Softball Tournament to be held Aug. 5 - 6 in Canton. The tournament will be hosted by Canton Softball City.

Big business

Baseball card show draws people, dollars

When I was a kid, collecting baseball cards was the thing to do. All of my friends collected them and even some of the adults I knew had a few around the house.

But it wasn't until I attended the baseball card show this weekend, at the Plymouth Hilton, that I realized just how many people make a hobby of collecting baseball cards and other sports memorabilia.

In fact, once inside the door, it was almost impossible to find standing room because of the number of people in attendance and the number of dealers perched behind display tables.

Even though it was a bit too crowded for my tastes, it was well worth the visit, even if you were just there to browse, you could have a good time.

The atmosphere was like a scene from the floor of the New York Stock Exchange. I could almost sense the deals that were being made.

Second thoughts

By Janet Armstrong

You might be sitting there thinking to yourselves, they're just baseball cards. What's the big deal?

They're just baseball cards, but believe it or not, there are some cards worth about a price of a car.

"My friend has a 1951 Bowman Mickey Mantle rookie year card, that he's selling for $4,500 dollars," said trader and sports columnist Dave Miedema.

Baseball cards were not the only thing the dealers were selling. They were also dealing in all kinds of memorabilia, like hockey, baseball, basketball, and football uniforms. They also had autographs for sale, bats, batting gloves, hats, and football, basketball, and hockey cards.

You name and they were selling it.

In fact, I'm inclined to think that if I would have told one of the dealers there that Pete Rose touched my hand once, they would have probably tried to sell my hand.

But hey, everyone's got to make a living, right? And if someone can do it selling baseball cards, more power to them.

According to Miedema, there's a reason why so many people were at the show.

"This is one of the best shows in the nation -- it's a must stop for dealers," he said.

I guess most of the other collectors agreed with Miedema because they came from all over the United States for this show, as far away as California, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Georgia, Ohio, Minnesota, and of course Michigan.

Most dealers got their start collecting cards early on in life.

"I started collecting when I was just a kid," said Robert Curtiss, who traveled from Minnesota to be in the show.

A lot of people are still probably wondering why so many people are involved in what some people call "a kids hobby."

A lot of people go to sports events because they feel closer to the players, it's almost like they feel involved in the game.

Well, baseball cards are just another way of becoming one step closer to actually being a part of our sports teams.

May take legal action

Canton scrambles to find surcharge answer

BY KEN VOYLES

Canton officials are scrambling to figure out why the township has been paying a $70,000 a year water surcharge when other communities on the same water line are no longer paying the fee.

According to Canton Supervisor Jim Poole, Canton is has been charged $500,000 to a $1 million since 1959 when the community first signed an agreement with Detroit to deliver water. That agreement runs out next year.

In conjunction with that original agreement, new water lines were built in various communities, including Canton, at a cost of nearly $90 million. Communities were then charged a yearly surcharge to help pay off the debt.

In January of this year, Canton Finance Director John Spencer noticed the extra charge and wondered what it meant. Even the township's auditors missed the charge, according to Poole.

"We can't find anyone paying anymore but us," said Poole. "I don't know if there's anything wrong. There was a 30-year bond on the project, but if we're paying for a bond how come no one else is?"

"Maybe we still owe them money, maybe we don't," Poole added. "I just want to know if my taxpayers' debt is paid off or not and nobody can tell me."

At last week's board meeting it was decided to delay any legal action against Detroit for at least 30 days while officials scramble to set up meetings with the township auditors and the City of Detroit.

"I don't want to go through all the fuss unless we give them a chance to respond," said Trustee Bob Padget concerning possible legal action.

Poole told the board Canton should file a lawsuit and obtain an audit to account for the funds.

Air, space day camp

The Living Science Foundation, in cooperation with New Morning School, in Plymouth Township, will be offering its Advanced Air and Space Day Camp at New Morning starting on Aug. 22.

Campers should wear comfortable indoor and outdoor clothing and bring a sack lunch. Snacks will be provided.

All activities are created and supervised by the trained science interpreters of the Living Science Foundation, a non-profit, non-governmental science education organization.

Skating away

The Northville Community Recreation Department is sponsoring its 3rd annual Street Skateboard Contest, in cooperation with Town & Country Cyclery.

The contest will be held Sunday, Aug. 7 in the parking lot of Northville High School, at the corner of Eight Mile and Sheldon roads.

Registration will begin at 11:30 a.m. the day of the event and will close at 12:30 p.m. Competition will begin at 1 p.m.

Competitors may enter the novice or experienced categories and will be divided into several age groups: 12 and under, 13-15, 16-17, and 18 and older.

The entry fee is $5 for Northville residents and $8 for non-residents, and includes first through third place awards in each age group and a merchandise raffle.

Each competitor will have two minutes to perform stunts on spoons, parking curbs, cinder blocks, and ramps.

Participants may register the day of the event or pre-registration forms are available at the Northville Recreation Department.

For further information, call 349-0203.

City loses power again

Portions of the City of Plymouth, north of Ann Arbor Trail, went without power during Saturday night's thunderstorm.

Police Chief Richard Myers said that City Hall lost its power from approximately 7-10 p.m. on Saturday.

Fire Chief Alan Matthews said that no lines went down during the storm and said that Detroit Edison attributed the power outages to a defective transformer "ear" in the main substation at Theodore and Farmer streets.
