

State auditors called in to investigate Graper

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER
The State of Michigan Treasurer's Local Audit Division has officially been called in to investigate allegations in expense account spending by departing Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper.

Dave Williamson, the city's independent auditor from the accounting firm of Post, Smythe, Lutz and Ziel, acknowledged that he has officially notified the state about allegations of misspending.

An audit into the funds was requested by Graper's attorneys and by City Commissioner James Jabara. Graper moved to clear his name against rumors; Jabara filed a formal letter through City Attorney Ron Lowe.

In such cases of questions,

Williamson said, a municipal auditor is required to notify the state.

A spokesman for the State Treasurer acknowledged, "we have received some information. We're going to review that and determine whether an audit is in order."

5 Twp. firms reveal data on toxic use

BY JOHN BRODERICK

Five Plymouth Township companies have reported using and emitting potentially hazardous chemicals into the atmosphere.

Title III of the Superfund and Reauthorization Amendment (SARA), which sets national standards for industrial discharges, requires companies using certain chemicals to report the way they are used, and the way they are emitted.

SARA data are reported by companies annually. Figures for 1988 were due on July 1 of this year -- but were not compiled and entered into data bases. Figures represent totals for 1987.

While most of the chemicals listed by Plymouth companies are potentially dangerous -- according to some experts -- the SARA data is insufficient in explaining potential health risks.

"The SARA data is not enough to evaluate the health effects. You need to know a lot more about the particular facility, and the way it is being used and discharged," said Cathy Simon, a toxicologist with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources driver and passengers on the 810 Park and Ride line -- Plymouth-Livonia-Detroit.

Inside, the bus is clean and well-lighted, but shows signs of wear. The ride is bumpy but otherwise comfortable. Ads for radio stations, business colleges and the like line the walls.

The only other rider, a middle-aged, gray-suited, briefcase-toting resident of the adjacent neighborhood, is William McKendry. An employe of the National Bank of Detroit and a rider for a month and a half, he is at the moment engaged in reading a newspaper.

At the next stop -- a Denny's restaurant in Plymouth Township -- five women board the bus.

"They are all professionals, from the way they dress," says Midge Miller, herself an assistant manager at Detroit's First of America bank. A Canton resident, Miller has been parking in the free lot and riding the downtown bus for two years.

"The next stops will fill the bus up," Miller says from experience. Today is a light day -- after the last of three Livonia stops, several seats remain vacant. "It is never so filled that people have to stand," she adds, "but usually every seat is taken."

According to Robert Campbell, SMART manager of schedules and service evaluation, the 810 route averages 500 riders a day. He estimates that 15 to 20 per cent of the riders are from

Canton man held in wagon B&E

BY JOHN BRODERICK

A 23 year-old Canton man is being charged with breaking and entering, and with assaulting a police officer, after he allegedly broke into a closed refreshment wagon parked along Plymouth's Main Street Friday.

City of Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers said that Jeffrey Allen Zimmerman became "extremely disorderly" after he was arrested, kicking a police officer, and having to be restrained, and constantly watched after being placed in a cell.

At about 2 a.m. Friday, a police officer heard breaking glass near the corner of Main Street and Penniman, where the Kiwanis old-fashioned popcorn wagon was parked, according to police.

The officer approached the wagon, saw three men nearby, and called to them. After calling for backup, he ordered the men to place their hands on the police car, police said.

A window on the wagon had been broken, and another had been forcibly removed, said police. The door had been opened from the inside, and doors and drawers inside were left open, they added.

"Upon investigation, it was found that the stand had been burglarized, and evidence was indicative that the suspect had committed the act," Myers said.

Warrants were obtained through the Wayne County Prosecutor, and after arraignment, Zimmerman was taken to the Wayne County Jail. Bond was set at $10,000.

Myers said that Zimmerman shouted obscenities, and struggled with police throughout the arrest.

"While he was in the lockup, he was extremely disorderly -- he created a mess in the cell block -- he wrote on the wall in blood from a scrape on his shoulder.

"His clothing had to be removed because he was stringing himself up with it," Myers said, adding that Zimmerman required constant supervision.

Police said Zimmerman also urinated on a wall in the cell, hung a blanket over the bars, and flushed a roll of toilet paper into a toilet -- he then threw the wet roll at a police officer.

Growth Works earns accreditation

Growth Works, Inc., in the City of Plymouth, has achieved accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

The new accreditation applies to the agency's adolescent chemical dependency program, including the day treatment program for chemically dependent adolescents, which will start in September this year.

The commission accredits more than 5,200 hospitals and 3,200 health care facilities across the country.

In becoming accredited, Growth Works was evaluated against a set of national standards by a commission team which included surveyors experienced in the delivery of mental health services, said Myrene McAninch, director of the Accreditation Program for Psychiatric Facilities.

She added, "Achieving accreditation demonstrates Growth Works' commitment to provide high quality care to their patients."

Dale Yagiela, Growth Works' executive director said the accreditation shows that "we've made a significant investment in quality on a day-by-day basis from the top down."

"Everyone here played a valuable role in working to meet the standards," he added.

Growth Works provides adolescent substance abuse programming, diversion programs for first time juvenile offenders and job placement services.

Band winds up

The Plymouth Community Band will host its final concert of this year's concert series on Thursday (July 27) at 8 p.m. in the City of Plymouth's Kellogg Park.

On hand for the concert in downtown Plymouth will be members of the University of Michigan Club of the Plymouth community. They will be accepting new memberships and answering any questions about the group. For further information call 326-4463.

Graco's move to Twp. in jeopardy

BY JOHN BRODERICK

Graco Robotics, Inc. wants to move its Livonia operations to Plymouth Township, and create about 50 jobs there.

But a Livonia City Council decision is making that move more difficult than company representatives expected.

To be eligible to float tax-exempt bonds through the township's Economic Development Corporation — the proceeds of which would go toward a new facility — Graco must get the approval of the Livonia City Council.

State laws require that if a company is to receive a tax abatement from a municipality, or take advantage of a tax-free bond program with an economic development corporation, the company must request that the municipality it is leaving approve a transfer of employment.

The Livonia City Council has denied requests by Graco to transfer employment, and according to council members, the council probably won't change its stance.

"Graco is attempting to gain the consent of the Livonia City Council. If it does not, the company will not be able to issue bonds through the EDC," said Chuck Hammond, an attorney with the firm of Dickinson, Wright, Moon, VanDusen and Freeman, which acts as bond counsel for the township.

"So the company has asked if the township board itself would sell the bonds, if it cannot get them through the EDC," Hammond said.

While the township board did not formally move to go ahead with the bond issue, it approved a resolution of intent last Tuesday to support such a request.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen said, "We'd like to have them," adding that he would not have reservations about the township floating bonds for Graco.

"There would be no risk to the township," he said. "It has been done before."

Graco Robotics, Inc., is a subsidiary of Graco Inc., which is based in Minnesota.

The subsidiary, which makes paint spraying robots and paint finishing equipment, is looking to move to R.A. DeMattia's Metro West Industrial Park. The proposed facility — a 100,000 square foot building — would take four sites in the new park.

The company's Livonia operations now employ 100 people — it plans to move those jobs to the township, and create about 50 new ones over the next five years, according to company officials.

"We are still persuing the issue in Livonia," said Al Amiot, of Graco Inc.

"We looked at all available sites in Livonia before looking in Plymouth Township — even as late as last week I had executives out at a building in Livonia," he said.

Amiot said that while agreements had been reached with DeMattia, no details had been worked out, and no decisions finalized. He said that an announcement could come as early as next week.

Public Act 198, of 1974 allows tax abatements be granted by municipalities to a business, but it also requires them to follow certain rules when doing so.

One of those rules prohibits abatements to be granted to companies unless the municipality which it is leaving agrees to a transfer of employment.

P.A. 338, of 1974 allows the practice of selling tax-exempt bonds through an EDC for the purpose of industrial development. But it requires approval of the municipality that a company is leaving, if the transfer of employment involves 20 jobs or more.

Public Act 62, of 1963, allows municipalities to float tax free bonds for corporations, and has no requirement about transfers of employment.

Graco has applied to the township

EDC under PA 338. If the Livonia City Council does not reverse its decision, Graco will apply to the township under PA 62, and likely borrow money from tax free bonds — but it will still not be eligible for the 12-year, 50 per cent tax abatement that the township could grant under PA 198.

"Whether or not we can get tax exempt bonds, or an abatement, will effect the scope of the project," Amiot said, but he would not give any further details.

Livonia says 'no' to Graco

BY JOHN BRODERICK

Livonia City Council members have said "no" to the Graco Robotics Inc., about approving a transfer of employment to Plymouth Township.

Graco needs the approval to be eligible for tax abatements, and tax free bonds through the township's EDC.

But opposition to the request centers more around opposition to tax abatements, than to any particular company.

"My opposition is not based on Graco in particular, but on tax abatements in general," said Ron Ochala, a council member.

"The law which provides for Public Act 198 (which allows tax abatements) no longer serves the purposes for which it was created — that was to bring out of state businesses to Michigan," Ochala said.

Ochala said that over the past few years companies have played city governments off against each other, in order to make use of the abatements.

Council member Joan McCotter said that she would support an effort by "all the communities to go collectively to the state and say 'please, no more.'"

Graco wants to move from Livonia to Plymouth Township's Metro West Beck Road industrial park.

Young's coming

Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young will be speaking on the subject of "Detroit and the Suburbs" at the Kiwanis Club of Colonial Plymouth's community meeting this week.

An open luncheon will be held on Thursday (July 27) from noon to 1:30 p.m. at the Mayflower Meeting House.

The cost is $7.50 per person.

According to John Stewart, a member of the Kiwanis Club, more than 100 reservations have already been made for the event.

For reservations call 455-8120 or 453-3434.

On improvements Stahl begins work

BY KEN VOYLES

Stahl Manufacturing Co. in the City of Plymouth has begun work to correct concerns raised by city residents and the Plymouth Planning Commission.

"They've begun work and we should see some steady improvement there," said William Graham, acting city manager in Plymouth.

Ron Kosinski, the plant operations manager at Stahl's Plymouth site, told residents last week that the company is proceeding with work on its parking lot. He said work is anticipated to be completed in four to six weeks.

"We are trying to address the problems as fast as possible," said Kosinski, who added that the company has been going through "trying times" since it consolidated several of its plant operations. "A lot has happened to us in the last nine months."

The work includes construction of a concrete wall, a new drainage system, and paving the parking lot.

Massey, Bohlander Dealers tapped for Saturn

BY LAUREN SMITH

Don Massey and Tom Bohlander, who both have dealerships in Plymouth Township, have been named among four of the first General Motors Saturn dealers in the state.

Dealers had to apply for the limited number of dealerships and they underwent "an extensive screening process," said Bohlander. He added that employees in both service and sales and even customers were interviewed.

"We're really excited about it," he said, "we consider it an honor."

"I'm excited," said Don Massey, "I feel good. It's a magnificent car." He also added that it is "a wonderful opportunity for a young man like me."

Massey, whose Saturn territory includes Plymouth and Farmington Hills, is not certain at present where the main dealership will be built, but he said he will place it in "the immediate vicinity hopefully."

After that he said he will "expand as rapidly and as far as (General Motors) will permit."

The outfit will only transfer one or two employees to manage the dealership. Otherwise, they will "start with new specially trained employees," said Massey.

Bohlander, whose Saturn territory extends from I-94, south to the Ohio border, said he will have a few dealerships, including one downriver in the vicinity of Telegraph Road.

The company will be "taking some key associates from existing dealerships," he said. They will also be hiring new employees.

The dealerships will be open and selling the new cars by 1991.

Wellness grant

Canton has been awarded a $5,000 grant by the Michigan Health Initiative Worksite Wellness Program for a proposal written by Dan Durack, the township's personnel director.

The grant is for one year and will partially fund Canton's newly developed Employe Fitness Program, which includes incentives for employees who engage in a variety of wellness activities.

1st Fest made $19,500

This year's first ever Canton Challenge Festival cost about $18,700 to stage, according to a report released by the festival committee.

At the same time the festival took in about $19,500 in revenues from a variety of sources, according to the same report, which was released to the Canton Board of Trustees last night.

The board was expected to approve festival dates for 1990 (May 25-June 3) as well as re-appoint the festival committee and approve a contract hiring a company to coordinate promotions.

"The Challenge Fest must be considered a success beyond all expectations," said Russ Courville, chairperson of the festival committee, in his report to the board. "It deserves the opportunity to try again next year, to see if the events can be expanded and built upon."

Courville asked the board to approve festival dates coinciding with the annual Canton Memorial Day Weekend Soccer Tournament.

The largest expenses during this year's first festival included $4,800 for the fireworks show, another $6,209 for publicity and miscellaneous event expenses, and another $4,500 to hire a public relations firm.

Few take advantage of routes

Taking the SMART bus to Detroit

Plymouth. The route has run since 1978 — weekdays only — to Detroit in the mornings and back in the evenings.

Reorganized by the state legislature in December 1988, SEMTA (Southeast Michigan Transportation Authority) became SMART (Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation) in January this year.

SEMTA had been the subject of criticism in recent years. Riders and officials cited poor service, high rates, and little community support as negative aspects.

Paul Jones, Plymouth Township Department of Public Service director and the township's liaison to state and Detroit officials, said, "It has never been very successful."

Jones cites a lack of communication with local officials as one possible reason.

"I see the bus go by the Park & Ride on Ann Arbor

Julie Farris, of Canton, reads a long novel to pass the time on her way to Detroit. (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

Trail, but I would not know where to get a schedule. There are times I wish I could get downtown and not have to drive, but I do not know where the bus goes," said Jones. "I should know about it, I guess, but SEMTA never made it a point to let us know."

Those who do ride, however, seem to be satisfied with the service, citing cost and convenience as factors. The ride is $2.25 one way, and one dollar for senior citizens.

"I would not drive," said Miller.

McKendry agreed. "Expense-wise, it is about the same (as driving), and I would rather have the bus driver worry about road conditions."

Although the bus is slower (taking about an hour to reach the final stop at the Renaissance Center) than travel by car, riders do not seem to mind.

"I could drive down there faster myself, I guess, but it is probably only a difference of 15 or 20 minutes," said McKendry. "It is more relaxing, instead of having to fight the traffic."

As for the bumpy ride, Miller said, "You get used to it."

Plymouth passengers register slightly more complaints on average than riders on other routes, according to Campbell. "Still, I would not call them a complaining group," Campbell added.

Once, on the return trip from Detroit, two buses did not show. Then, said McKendry, "We had to stand on the next one." But normally, he added, "They seem to keep their schedules."

Miller, a long-time rider, has few complaints. "But," she said, "you get the idea they do not tell the drivers their routes. When there is a new driver, we have to tell them where to go."

Another of Miller's complaints concerned a particular driver who was "unsafe" and has since left the route.

The current driver is a 31-year-old Detroit woman. Weathersby quit her nursing aide position two years ago to be a bus driver for higher pay, and is saving her earnings for nursing school.

Drivers, according to Campbell, are paid by the hour, from $7.74 for new drivers to $12.90 for full-time veterans.

Weathersby has been driving the Plymouth route for two and a half months.

"They are friendly, they get to know each other," she said of the riders on her route. "I see a lot of new faces, new people. I also like to see the scenery, and get to know the city. I never used to drive around downtown before."

As the bus goes up the ramp of the expressway into the city on this rainy Thursday morning, newspapers are folded, sleepy eyes are opened, books are closed, walkmans are turned off.

One by one the riders get off the bus, some saying a cheery "bye," or "thanks" to the driver.

The end of the line is the beginning of the work day for riders of the 810 Park & Ride, Plymouth-Livonia-Detroit.

SMART routes in P-C

BY MINAL HAJRATWALA

Two SMART bus routes run between The Plymouth-Canton Community and downtown Detroit, taking local commuters to work during the weekday.

Both routes offer weekday service to the Renaissance Center and other stops in downtown Detroit, and connections to the Detroit People Mover. In addition both lines have special services on Good Friday, Christmas Eve, and New Year's Eve.

The first route is 810 Park & Ride with stops in Plymouth, Livonia and ending in Detroit.

The buses along that route leave from Ann Arbor Trail and Fairground in the City of Plymouth and then stop at the Park & Ride lot near the Denny's restaurant on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township. Buses stop six times in Plymouth from 5:43-8:04 a.m. There are stops in Livonia as well. Buses leave Detroit to return to Livonia and then Plymouth from 3:31-6 p.m.

The other local route is 835 Park & Ride, with stops in Canton along Ford Road.

The buses leave from the parking lot at Meijers Thrifty Acres in Canton. Buses stop six times in Canton from 5:49-7:33 a.m. There are also stops in Westland, Dearborn, and Dearborn Heights. Buses then leave Detroit on the return trip from 3:35-5:46 p.m.

Fares are $2.25 for a one-way ticket. Other SMART routes local residents may use include Westland-Detroit, including service to Wonderland and Fairlane malls, and the Michigan Avenue route, including service to Greenfield Village.

For information on routes and times, youth discounts, elderly and handicap fares, weekend fares, tickets and monthly passes, call 962-5515.

Details speak the loudest

Rather than write the obituaries for The Crier last week, I had to live one. As the reporter whose responsibilities include typing up the paper's obituaries, I must follow a distinct style and avoid spelling errors at all costs.

The "style" doesn't leave much room for variance and inevitably all of the obituaries begin to blend together, losing any human flavor.

Facts are weeded out of sentimentality. Sometimes only one descriptive sentence is provided and it stands alone to forever characterize the years of a multi-faceted individual.

With these austere descriptions, anonymity falls onto these final tributes, masking the unfathomable loss of a complex and valuable person.

On Monday, I had to leave the obits at the office in the hands of another while I attended my own grandfather's funeral.

I could picture the style in which I would write his obituary if I had received it at work.

Boyd D. Smith, 74, ...Services were held...

And then the descriptive paragraph - what would it say? Mr. Smith was an electrician and a World War II veteran.

There was the generic version that succeeds in entirely losing all of the flavor of his personality. Yes, those things did describe him accurately, but that description extracts the meaningless titles and neglects the person who happens to hold them.

I'm sure that everyone who has read their loved one's obituary cringes to see the matter-of-fact account of their loss. And perhaps that's fine; everyone holds his or her own specific memories and they transcend any public account.

"Papa" was the man who would grow pumpkins in his garden just so my sister and I could have our pick on Halloween.

Word for word

By Lauren Smith

He was the man who tied strings around our ankles to show us that square knots will never come undone...months later with ragged strings intact we were convinced.

He was the man who shared my intense love of chocolate.

He wasn't famous in his town, but he was definitely well-known. Described by some neighbors as their "9-1-1," he never really retired, he just didn't pick up a pay check anymore.

The newspapers won't quote his friends or family and feature his obituary on a prominent page with a picture. But, actually, he never would have wanted that. A soft spoken man, it was his style to be tucked away, quietly letting his actions speak for themselves.

Survivors include...a granddaughter who must grow up to face a harsh world.

He was my childhood. The innocent man my grandfather was, has now been taken away from me. It's almost as if such a perfect role model can only exist in childhood idealism. Being 18, it almost seems eerily planned.

But, like a square knot, my personal flawless memories of this man will live forever.

For benefit carwash Jaycees thank volunteers, others

EDITOR:
 I would like to inform you of another successful fund raiser the Plymouth Jaycees were involved with. It was a car wash that was held to raise money for the physically disabled children at Our Lady of Providence in Northville. It turned out so well because of the terrific weather we were blessed with, and because of all the wonderful people that turned out for this event.

I would first like to thank the 16 Jaycees that volunteered their entire Sunday to help with this project.

Without their dedication to the community, and their eagerness to help a great cause, this fund raiser would have failed.

I would also like to thank Michigan National Bank at the corner of Ann Arbor Road and Sheldon. They were very gratuitous for allowing us to use their parking facilities and the water that we washed the cars with. And also for the support they continue to give to the Plymouth community.

However, the real feeling of gratitude must go to the people that made it so successful.

The many people of the Plymouth Community that waited patiently in line to donate $3, $4, $5, and $10 to have their cars, trucks, and vans washed by the Jaycees. One gentleman paid to have his truck washed, and upon completion, donated an additional $20 to the cause.

But what else would you expect from such a fine community as Plymouth but fine citizens willing to support a great cause. Good work to all of you and we thank you for your support.

What can we expect from Young?

Why is Detroit mayor Coleman Young coming to Plymouth tomorrow?

Already under fire in the Motor City as he enters what could be his toughest election race, Young needs some good public relations right now.

And why not in the mostly white, "safe" suburb of Plymouth? Surely, he won't encounter any problems with what will probably be a very receptive Kwianis audience?

But maybe he will.

Young has often spoke about the strained relationships between Detroit and its suburbs, especially those suburbs in Wayne County, which he somehow believes should go along with whatever move he makes.

Highly respected by many, hated passionately by others, Young plans to touch on those city-suburb relations while in town Thursday.

Don't expect, though, that Young will go off on some harangue. That would be highly unlikely, even foolish, with the election (for an unprecedented fifth term) looming in the background.

Don't expect, either, to see Young wash over an issue that he feels is an important item for any agenda when folk from the "big city" and its "little suburbs" get together (for any reason).

It could be that part of the problem is the "little suburbs" don't think they should play second fiddle to a city that is decaying from within. And Young's leadership seems to be decaying as the rubble of Detroit continues to pile up around him and the people.

So what possibly could Young say in Plymouth this week to make himself look good and the suburbs look bad?

— Maybe he will talk about all of the potential areas for mutual cooperation between Detroit and its suburbs (like the idea of a mass transit system). Maybe he will imply that Plymouth hasn't got anything over Detroit in terms of the management of its government.

— Maybe he will lash out at white youths who come to the downtown area and act like nasty brutes. Maybe he will demand help in saving Detroit's schools and neighborhoods. Maybe he'll tell us what's happening with Detroit's properties in Plymouth Township.

— Maybe he'll call all of us racists, as he's done before. Maybe he'll demand more prisons in the suburbs to help hold all those Detroit residents who suburbanites think are committing all of the crimes.

And maybe — we can only hope — he will blame the media for a standoffish attitude when there is clearly much work to be done to save the Motor City, work that Young somehow thinks should be tossed in the laps of the suburbs.

In the margin

By Ken Voyles

Young faces a city reeling out of control, and yet here he is taking time to come to Plymouth. That's the last thing he should be doing right now. The last thing unless he's got a public relations opportunity in mind.

Any talk about city-suburb relations then is trivial compared to what is happening in Young's own backyard. Detroit faces immense social problems — rampant crime, desolate neighborhoods, a busted school system and waste in all levels of government.

These are important issues, far more important than the current state of relations between city and suburbs. Obviously, the suburbs have to be concerned about what happens in Detroit. The business and social climate in southeast Michigan depends on what happens there. (Yes, as Detroit goes, so goes Michigan.)

But Young can't really believe he'll solve anything by coming to Plymouth, anything other than making for a nice news photo or two-minute radio report.

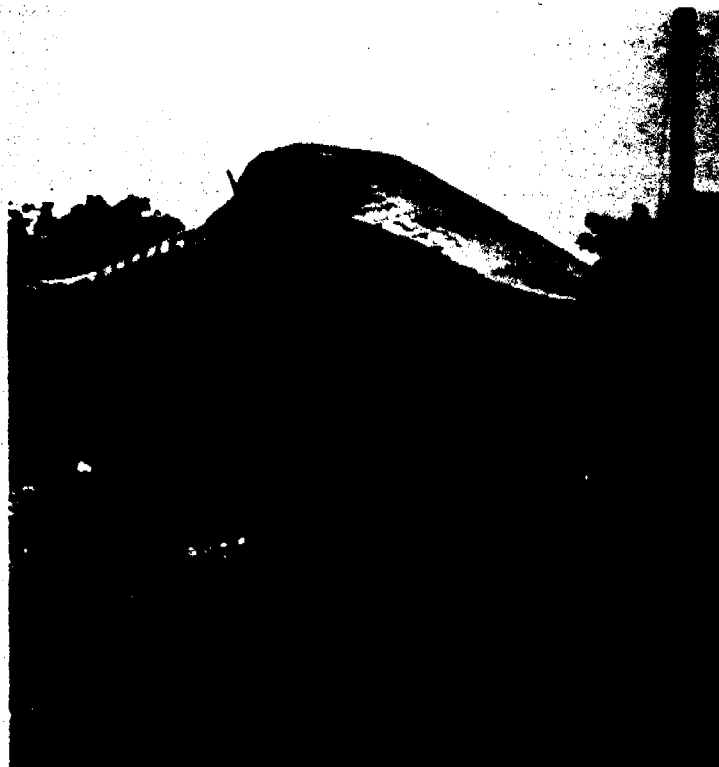

So, go ahead mayor and keep us up to date about what is happening in your town. Tell us about your problems and we'll tell you about ours. Will it help? It can't hurt, but it can't do much good either. Is that too cynical?

Stop me now then before I get into trouble and someone calls me a naive suburban newspaper editor who knows nothing about Detroit or its problems.

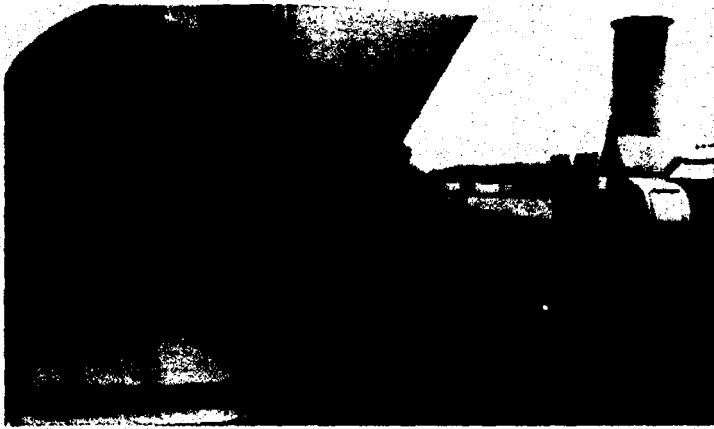

I'll bet Young will tell me a thing or two

At one time, Detroit Mayor Coleman Young criticized Plymouth residents for opposing the conversion of the old Detroit House of Correction into the area's third prison — and Detroit hosts no state prisons. The state eventually made the facility into the Western Wayne Correctional Facility that requires services from Plymouth Township for fire protection and courts.

The City of Detroit does not pay taxes on its un-used properties — about 500 acres — in Plymouth Township. And recent reports on abandoned buildings in downtown Detroit were not surprising to Plymouth-Canton residents who've watched abandoned buildings crumble on Detroit property in Plymouth and Northville townships. Rigorous control methods reduce toxic effects

While Plymouth-Canton companies use toxic chemicals in different industrial processes, rigorous procedures are employed to ensure that any discharge has as small as possible effect on the community.

Company officials are adamant that the processes by which these chemicals are used are not only safe, but thoroughly in compliance with all federal, state, and local regulations.

One such company is especially proud of its efforts.

Plymouth Plating Inc., on Joy Road across from Mettetal Airport, goes through rigorous internal inspection procedures, in addition to inspections by local health authorities.

"We are inspected by the City of Detroit regularly, because we use their wastewater system," said Paul Piplani, a chemist and vice president of the company.

"We have records showing their approval of our compliance with wastewater pretreatment regulations," he said.

Piplani also showed off the company's $1 million machine that separates and neutralizes chemicals before they are sent to off site waste water treatment facilities.

"We have detailed information about each of the chemicals we use -- which is available for all of our employees," Piplani said.

Employees are trained in the use of all hazardous materials, and must sign a statement to that effect before they can begin work in the plant, Piplani said.

Piplani oversees the company's technical operations, which involves the use of many chemicals -- he is certified by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

"Everything we do is kosher," Piplani said.

Several years ago, the company -- founded by Frank Henderson, a former mayor of Plymouth -- was criticized for its outdated anti-pollution efforts when it was located on Farmer Street in the City of Plymouth.

But with its move to the new facility on Joy Road, Plymouth Plating added state-of-the-art equipment which reduces pollution.

Variety of toxics released by firms

(DNR) in Lansing.

The Plymouth Township companies include Plymouth Plating Works, Sun Plastic Coating, Unisys, Wyckoff Steel and Ford Motor Company's Sheldon Road Plant.

There are a number of types of discharge recorded by the SARA data: air releases, off-site transfers to other locations, and releases into land and surface water.

According to the 1987 SARA data:

•Ford Motor Company emitted 14,000 pounds of glycol ethers, 130,000 pounds of 1,1,1-trichloroethane, 18,200 pounds of dichloromethane, and some 25,000 pounds of trichloroethylene, all into the air.

•Plymouth Plating released 500 pounds of sodium hydroxide, 250 pounds by transfer, and 250 pounds into the air.

•Sun Plastics discharged 11,300 pounds of methyl ethyl ketone into the air; 19,000 pounds of tetrachloroethylene, 1,000 into the air; and the rest was transferred off site.

•Unisys emitted 3,000 pounds of ethylene glycol -- 500 into the air and 2,500 transferred.

•Wyckoff Steel released just under 130,000 pounds of sulfuric acid -- about 90,000 transferred and about 40,000 released into the soil.

Most of the compounds are used either for cleaning, or for neutralizing acids in different industrial processes.

At Plymouth Plating, sodium hydroxide is used to neutralize acids after they are used to remove rust from parts to be refinished, according to Paul Piplani, a chemist and vice president of the company.

Sun Plastics' general manager Beverlee McAllister said that methyl ethyl ketone and tetrachloroethylene are used to clean parts before a coating is applied.

"Any such chemicals that go off the site go in a 55-gallon drum, and is handled by a sanitation company that specializes in hazardous waste," she said.

"Ethylene glycol is really the only chemical we use," said Bill natter, manager of industrial engineering at Unisys' Plymouth facility.

"It is used as a component in ink that is used in the machines we make here. We used to have more chemicals in use when this was a machining plant -- degreasers and cleaners, but that stopped five or 10 years ago," he said.

A spokesperson for Wyckoff, who handles such issues, was not available Monday or Tuesday.

Alan Amberg, who oversees compliance with Title III for 62 Ford facilities, said that Ford is constantly looking toward reducing and recycling these chemicals.

"They're very expensive -- it only makes sense for us to reuse, reduce and recycle," Amberg said.

Amberg said that Ford has common ground with environmental groups, and does not necessarily disagree with them.

"Yes, perhaps we do emit these chemicals, but it doesn't mean we leave it at that. We're constantly researching new ways to reduce waste," he said.

Charles Griffith, a toxics specialist with Ann Arbor's Ecology Center, said that the immediate effects of such chemical releases are difficult to measure, and thus difficult to regulate.

"We're concerned with the cumulative effects," Griffith said. "There are lots of signs that there are problems. But because we can't prove that it's this chemical at this facility, they say 'you guys are taking away jobs and hurting our economy just because you think there is a problem'," Griffith said.

Of the chemicals, a few have caused cancer in laboratory animals, and are considered potential human carcinogens. Others are expected to cause reproductive problems such as birth defects and infertility, and others may cause respiratory problems in humans, according to Simon, of the DNR.

Picnic planned

Rain or shine, Sunday (Aug. 6), will be a fun day for a picnic.

That's when the Mayflower Lt. Gamble Post and Auxiliary 6695 Veterans of Foreign Wars will co-sponsor a free outdoor picnic for the developmentally handicapped.

The picnic will be at the Post Home, 1426 South Mill St., and starts at 2 p.m.

Hot dogs, chips and pop will be served.

For reservations call Ann Smith at 453-1529 or Lorraine Nelson at 349-6366.

Ford enters agreement with Waste Management

P.C. 9 THE COMMUNITY CRIER: July 24, 1989

Ford Motor Company has entered into a five-year agreement with Waste Management for daily purchase of two million cubic feet of methane gas produced at the Woodland Meadows Recycling and Disposal Facility in Canton.

A mile-long polyethylene pipeline will be constructed by Waste Management to transport the gas to Ford's Wayne Plant where it will be used to fuel steam-generating boilers.

Construction of the pipeline and a processing plant -- to be built north of Waste Management's facility -- will begin in the fall, pending approval by both Canton's Board of Trustees and the City of Wayne.

"The system will be similar to a gas recovery plant we have in operation in Ohio," said Ray Kellas, Mideast Regional Landfill operations manager for the company.

Tom Yack, Canton's supervisor, described the project as "an ideal situation.

"Converting the methane to energy is an economic, efficient method of utilizing a natural resource created by the landfill decomposition," Yack said. "It's the ultimate in recycling and should be a productive energy source for many years to come."

Milton Mack (11th District, Wayne County Commissioner) and chairman of the Wayne County Solid Waste Planning Committee, said, "I am pleased to see this kind of cooperation between an industry which generates waste materials and another company responsible for disposing of it.

"I am hoping we can see more of these cooperative efforts so we may someday design more products that can be reused or recycled," Mack added.

According to Waste Management officials, the company has 12 years experience in landfill gas testing, extraction and marketing and has designed, built and operated both gas purification and gas-to-electric systems.

The company currently has 16 gas-recovery plants on line -- six are similar to the Woodland Meadows project which offers direct use of the gas by the customer.

Don Spurlin in his Canton home. Spurlin is trying to form a High Five group in Plymouth-Canton. (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

For High Fives IQ isn't everything

BY MINAL HAJRATWALA

Don Spurlin, of Canton, never graduated from college. Considering his membership in the International High Five Society, that may seem surprising.

"Intelligent people dedicated to the pursuit of fun" is the motto of the non-profit society; its sole requirement is that members score in the top five per cent on a standardized IQ test.

"I guess I have gone through the university of life," said Spurlin, smiling.

Born and raised in Detroit, Spurlin ran his own business for 20 years as a photographer. He is now a real estate investor, property manager, and resident manager of Your Attic self-storage in Canton, where he lives with his wife.

Spurlin, who is 46, said he is trying to start a local High Five society. Only a year and a half old, the society has chapters in nine states and Toronto, the closest of which is based in Toledo.

"Basically, we were looking to form a social group of people with reasonable intelligence," explained Spurlin. "I don't think anybody picks High Five only because they think they are going to find intelligent people there...I find more people that I can relate to in this group."

And the membership is diverse.

"Most of the people I have met are just normal everyday people from all walks of life, all different kinds of occupations, all income groups, all nationalities, all ages," said Spurlin.

And, although it is not a dating society, "the mix of members is about 50/50 for males and females," he said.

Spurlin added that he regularly travels to Toledo to attend the meetings there, but would very much like to see a group formed nearer to his home.

Recent group events have included such varied activities as horseback riding, cycling, dancing, movie nights ("the type of movie that would probably be better if you shut off the sound and made up your own dialogue"), board games and computer games, bowling, concerts, roller skating, and zoo outings.

But never, said Spurlin, are the activities "too serious."

The society's next major activity will be a Boblo Boat Moonlight Cruise on Aug. 5, to which prospective members and guests are welcome. Persons interested in the Boblo cruise, in membership, or requiring more information should call Spurlin (981-1033).

Tell it to Phyllis

By Phyllis Redfern

The relationship between a mother and daughter is different from any other.

Books have been written on the subject from many view points.

Some mothers and daughters are very close, while others can hardly stand to be in the same room with each other. There's no doubt that each relationship has its on and off days.

My daughter and I are a lot alike. Our views on life in general are basically the same. There are times when I know how she's going to react or what she's going to say before she says anything. All I have to do is look at her and remember what I was like 20 years ago.

As a mom there's something I seem to be having a problem trying to understand -- if my daughter says and does the same things I did at her age why was it okay then but it's not okay now? Lifestyles have changed somewhat but that's not the problem.

When I was her age, I knew I could do anything I wanted to. It was just that simple. I knew if I wanted something bad enough I could figure out a way to do it. I never doubted or wasted time wondering how, I just did it.

I'm not sure self-confidence had that much to do with it. I think it was more of a philosophy on life -- jump in over your head and simply learn how to swim or call to someone to throw you a life preserver.

The innocence of youth has some advantages.

However, after a few upstream swimming lessons a mom tends to look at things differently. A mom wants to know how deep the water is, how far she'll have to swim and who is standing by with the life preserver.

The fact that the kid and I are a lot alike means we can share ideas and be very close. It also means that one is just as stubborn as the other -- and when we clash electricity fills the air.

I have no doubt that she can do anything she wants to do. She is talented and extremely independent and will always find a way to get what she wants.

I think we both want the same thing for her. Perhaps the difference in opinion is simply in timing.

I want her to get a job today, while she would be content to wait a few months. Sure she's taking a class to study for the CPA exam and will take the exam in November, but can't she work at the same time?

Patience is something else I seem to have misplaced in my upstream swim to become a mom.

Ad Advice #596

Several things to remember when putting together an ad as a means to have people come into or call your business:

1. Eye catching headline to draw the readers attention
2. Keep copy to a minimum and ad clean.
3. Give them a good reason to shop your business.
4. Create urgency to get them to act now.
5. Run ad a minimum of 3 times to make your name and association to a certain type of business known and linked together.

Mayflower gets nod

BY LAUREN SMITH

The Mayflower Hotel in the City of Plymouth has been listed in the third edition of Michigan's Town and Country Inns — a travel guidebook of lodgings published by the University of Michigan Press.

Of the more than 250 inns and bed and breakfast homes in Michigan, 75 state lodgings are featured in the current edition of the book.

"We included inns and B & Bs (bed and breakfast) that have been completed and open at least two years, and that we feel have the winning combination of tasteful decor, interesting location, good food, and — probably most importantly — excellence in hospitality," said Stephen Pyle who worked on the book with this wife

"We're delighted," said Scott Lorenz about the inclusion of the Mayflower in the book. Lorenz is a co-owner of the historic establishment.

"It's a great honor," he added. "We're very happy about it. Especially since our new renovation — it's beautiful."

The Pyles visited all of the inns they feature in their book and they include historical information, style of furnishings, unusual amenities, local points of interest, innkeeper profiles; rates, open season, and resident pets in their descriptions.

The book is available at local book stores or directly from the University of Michigan Press. It retails for $13.95.

Among schools, churches PCA expansion points to new trend

BY LAUREN SMITH

The new trend is expansion, and Plymouth Christian Academy (PCA) is no exception to a phenomenon being seen among a variety of churches and schools throughout Plymouth-Canton. The private school, located in Plymouth Township and affiliated with Calvary Baptist Church, is adding an "activities center" -- a gymnasium and banquet/meeting area.

Roland DeRenzo, superintendent of PCA, described the project as "a major addition to the already existing school building."

The new facility, when built, will be able to accommodate the school's inter-scholastic program and also be used for meetings or banquets of up to 400-500 people.

The center, which DeRenzo describes as a "joint venture" between the church and the school, will also be available for community use.

The 13,000 square foot addition will cost between $500-600,000 to complete, he said.

DeRenzo added that the unique aspect of the addition is that "we are going to build it debt free through cash pledges."

He said that 50 per cent of the cost will be raised by the members of Calvary Baptist Church. The other 50 per cent will be raised by the families of students at PCA and friends of the school.

A third source of support which has been formed to aid in the cost for PCA families is a community and business fund.

"We are hoping all pledges are secure by October," said DeRenzo.

The campaign began in May and approximately $250,000 has already been raised.

"I feel very confident and good about the prospect of seeing the remaining (amount) raised by October," he added.

If all goes as planned, construction will begin in March of 1990; the aim is for a September, 1990 opening.

"The enthusiasm and support has been really overwhelming and strong," said DeRenzo of the project.

Plymouth attorney John Vos III is chairing the Special Grants Committee which is responsible for "gaining and developing and garnering support," said DeRenzo.

"The church will definitely benefit with the activities center," said DeRenzo. The center is not only for school and parish use. It will also be geared toward community use, and as a result, community support is also important, he said.

There will either be special hours when the center is open to the community, or more likely, said DeRenzo, it will be available for special events when not in use by the school or the church.

PCA's project comes as the First Methodist Church and St. Kenneth Catholic Church (both in Plymouth Township) are also in the middle of similar expansion. Both the Methodist church and St. Kenneth are more than doubling in size.

Also, Our Lady of Good Counsel in the City of Plymouth, recently announced plans to expand their school and church.

Rouge funding mullied

Funding to help clean up the Rouge River was approved last week by the U.S. House of Representatives Appropriations Subcommittee on Veterans Affairs, Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies.

The committee approved $500,000 for a demonstration project to clean up the Rouge River, according to 15th District Congressman William Ford (his district includes Canton).

"These monies, if approved by the entire House and Senate, will go a long way in helping local communities to clean up the Rouge River," said Ford.

The Rouge winds through a 467-square mile area known as the Rouge River Basin, including parts of Plymouth, Canton and Northville.

The funds are targeted for basins identified within the Rouge River Remedial Action Plan.

City moves to recycle, compost

BY KEN VOYLES

Last week Plymouth's City Commission approved the expenditure of $8,818 for a new recycling station as a part of a plan to develop a city-wide recycling program.

William Graham, acting city manager in Plymouth, asked the commission to approve the expense even though "funding for construction of the recycling center has not been fully defined."

Graham told the commission he would offer further recommendations on the project during August. No work on the project will begin until after the funding is "defined," he said.

"We want to determine where the money is coming from before we put a shovel to the ground," said Graham.

In a related note, Graham said he had verbal communication from Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) officials concerning the use of the old Salem landfill as a future composting site.

Graham said the DNR indicated it was appropriate for the city to move ahead with the composting plan, but the acting city manager added that he wanted to get a qualified opinion from an environmental attorney before moving ahead with the project.

"I still have some concerns," he told the commission last week.

Ken West, the city's engineer said the DNR told him no permits were needed for the project. He added that the DNR considered the idea a benefit since it would act as a cap on top of the old landfill site.

For adults

College Night

Schoolcraft College's Counseling Staff is hosting College Night for adult students on Aug. 3 at 7 p.m.

The special night will address the growth of adult student enrollment, jobs in the 1990's and an adult viewpoint of college.

The discussion will also include how to get started at Schoolcraft College, financial assistance, available academic programs, child care, and who to talk to about career choices.

Representatives from Cleary College, Detroit College of Business, Eastern Michigan University, Lawrence Technical University, Madonna College, University of Michigan-Dearborn, Walsh College, and Wayne State University will be available to answer questions for Schoolcraft College students planning to earn a baccalaureate degree.

This program is open to the public and free of charge. College Night will be held on the upper level of the Waterman Center, which is located at the north end of campus.

For more information, call 462-4400, ext. 5206.

Hunter safety program

A Hunter Safety Program has been scheduled in Canton for Sunday, Aug. 20 from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Sunday, Aug. 27 from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. A second program is scheduled for Sept. 17 and Sunday, Sept. 24.

Classes will be held at the Canton Administration Building on Canton Center Road. State Department of Natural Resources regulations require persons between the ages of 12 and 16 years of age to obtain hunter safety certification prior to obtaining a hunting license.

The Canton Hunter Safety Program is open to boys and girls 12 years of age and older.

Registration for the class is not necessary, however, classroom size is limited to 100 students. Students should bring a pencil and a sack lunch.

The programs are offered through the Canton Department of Public Safety and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. They will be led by Christian Mayer.

Sidewalk sales

Get ready to pound the bricks during the City of Plymouth's annual Sidewalk Sales set for Friday and Saturday (July 28-29).

Many of the city's merchants will set up booths in the downtown area and offer a variety of sales for shoppers.

The annual sidewalk sale is sponsored by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and will be held from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on that Friday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday.

For further information call the chamber at 453-1540.

Women's group to meet

The MAIA Chapter of the American Business Women's Association, in conjunction with Arbor Charter, Chelsea and/or Embers Chapters, is sponsoring an "Evening with ABWA."

This will be an orientation and networking session that will allow women to become more familiar with the activities and benefits of membership with ABWA.

The meeting is from 7-9 p.m. on Thursday (July 27) at Plymouth VFW Hall, 1426 S. Mill.

A cash bar will be available. For information call 451-7205.

ABWA is a non-profit organization dedicated to the personal and professional advancement of women.

Starts Saturday

Canton farmer's market

Some of that "home grown goodness" will be available again this year in Canton.

Residents looking for a variety of produce, baked goods, flowers, dairy products and other food stuffs might find what they need at the annual Canton Farmer's Market.

This year the market will be held on every Wednesday and Saturday starting on Saturday, July 29 and running through Oct. 28.

The market is open at the New Towne Plaza Shopping Center at Sheldon and Ford roads in the township. It runs from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays, and from 3-7 p.m. on Wednesdays.

The City of Plymouth also has a Farmer's Market every Saturday this summer at the Gathering near Kellogg Park.

Benefit golf outing

Come out swinging for a good cause.

The UAW Region 1A is holding its Third Annual Make-A-Wish Golf Outing at the Fellows Creek Golf Club in Canton on Saturday, Aug. 5.

The Make-A-Wish Foundation has been making wishes come true for children up to the age of 18 who have terminal illness since 1984.

"UAW Region 1A is proud to sponsor this benefit golf outing for such a worthy cause," said UAW Region 1A Director Bob King. "We have been involved with Make-A-Wish for a number of years and are sponsoring this golf outing as a means of encouraging greater community and union involvement with the foundation."

Players donate $100 for the round of golf with all proceeds going to the foundation. The first tee-off is at 7 a.m.

For more information, contact Bob Wilson at 926-5451.

Getting down to business

Pharmacy plans various services for seniors

BY MINAL HAJRATWALA

April Pharmacy, located in the Canton Professional Park across from Centennial Educational Park (CEP), is the newest occupant of a space that has housed a pharmacy for about 15 years.

Owner, and pharmacist, Janet Hartlep, said her new location is "an ideal place, with all the doctors and medical professionals around."

Her business, which opened up around Memorial Day of this year, is one of a few small, privately owned pharmacies left in the area.

Hartlep hopes the personalized and speedy service which characterizes her pharmacy will make it a more convenient place for her customers.

"A lot of people think small, private facilities are more expensive," said Hartlep. "But our prices are competitive."

In addition to her regular services, Hartlep plans to offer senior citizens a special discount.

Hartlep also hopes to serve the senior citizen community by offering a free delivery service to senior-care assistance facilities, along with a monthly lecture on timely topics.

The name of the business was derived, said Hartlep, from the fact that April is the translation from Polish of Hartlep's maiden name.

Gymnast eyes Junior Olympics

KATIE GILLES

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

Playing outside with friends, going to the movies and talking about boys, that's what one might expect of your average 10-year-old.

But Katie Gilles is not an average 10-year-old.

Gilles, a Plymouth resident, spends Monday through Friday from 5-9 p.m. at the Gym America gymnastics club practicing.

But for Gilles, who will be in the fifth grade at Smith school, all that practice seems to be paying off.

After taking second place in an AAU qualifying meet, the 10 year old has earned a berth in the 1989 Junior Olympics in San Antonio, Texas.

Gilles scored over a 30 in the all around competition in the AAU gymnastics meet to earn the right to compete in the Junior Olympics.

According to Gilles, she doesn't mind practicing so much.

"It (practice) doesn't really bother me," said Gilles. "Because most of my friends are at the gym."

Gilles added that she finds gymnastics fun and exciting.

"That's what it is to her," said her mother Beth. "She enjoys doing it."

"My favorite part is when I win first place," said Gilles. "Or when I stick my beam routine."

When the professional gymnastics circuit performed at the Palace of Auburn Hills this year, Gilles attended and had something rather funny happen to her.

"Some girls saw me, and thought I was Phoebe Mills," said Gilles.

Mills was one of the professionals on the circuit, and, according to Gilles, if she could be like anyone it would be Mills.

"I would like to be like Phoebe (Mills), said Gilles. "Because she's a great gymnast and she still takes time to go shopping."

Gilles switched to Gym America in Ann Arbor last year, and said she is very happy she did. She is coached by Claudia and Ed Kretschmer and Tim Howes.

Part of gymnastics is being relaxed going into the event, said Gilles, but she doesn't have a hard time concentrating.

"I have to visualize each event, so I'm relaxed going into the event," said Gilles.

Right now her major concern is the Junior Olympics that begins on Aug. 9 and runs through Aug. 12.

"I'm learning my routines and practicing hard," said the gymnast.

Katie Gilles in action.

"I'm still kind of nervous though."

Gilles is hoping she does well in the meet so she can earn a scholarship to Arizona State University.

And although it's the Junior Olympics, that hasn't stopped Gilles of dreaming of one day being an Olympian.

"I dream about the Olympics all the time," said Gilles.

Special Olympics tourney on tap in Canton

The Michigan Special Olympics State Softball Tournament will return to Canton on Aug. 4-5.

Thirty-five teams, including the Thundercats from The Plymouth-Canton Community, and 40 individual skills contestants from across the state will compete at the Canton Softball Center.

The counties represented by teams will include: Crawford, Oscoda, Roscommon, Ogemaw, Ingham, Eaton, Bay, Arenac, Kent, Barry, Ottawa, Allegan, Genesee, Lapeer, Macomb, Oakland, Kalamazoo, Oceana, Newaygo, Muskegon, Saginaw, Wayne, Livingston, and Midland.

The tournament is hosted by the Wayne Civitan Club.

Opening ceremonies will be held on Friday at 7:40 p.m. The tournament will run all day Saturday with closing ceremonies and awards presentations on Saturday afternoon.

The competition is open to the public at no charge. For more information, contact tournament director Dick Clark at 728-3915.

Enter '89 City, Crier tennis tournament

It's time to get the ball rolling for the annual City of Plymouth Parks and Recreation/Community Crier Tennis Tournament.

This year's tournament will take place on Aug. 11-13, at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) tennis courts near Canton High School.

The deadline to enter the tournament is 4 p.m., on Aug. 8.

The singles competition is open to all residents of the Plymouth-Canton School District; in doubles competition, at least one partner must reside in the district.

Participants are limited to one doubles and one singles entry each.

Classifications, based on age as of Aug. 11, 1989, for men and women are as follows: 10-12 (singles only), 13-15 (singles only), 16 and over (singles and doubles), and 35 and over (singles and doubles). An additional 16 and over category is for mixed doubles.

The entry fee is $4 per player per event. Each participant must also provide one unopened can of USTA-approved tennis balls.

A minimum of four players must register for any given category. If "competition in a category" is not held, registered players may either move up a classification or accept a refund.

For further information, call the Plymouth Department of Parks and Recreation at 455-6620.

Softball takes over as most popular

It's the season for softball, or so one could say, especially since it seems obvious everyone in this community is playing with one softball team or another.

There are 62 teams currently in action through the Canton Parks and Recreation, and another 60 or more through the Plymouth Parks and Recreation.

At the Canton Softball Center during the week there are 45 different leagues of 12 teams each which play constantly. That doesn't include all of the other teams from all over Michigan that participate in the different tournaments held each weekend.

So, it seems that softball is the sport of choice in this community, and those who don't play in the above mentioned leagues could possibly be involved with one of the many church softball leagues this summer.

Soccer tryouts

Local athletes who were born in 1980 and live in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district can pull out those cleats and get ready for the new Plymouth Kicks "80" boys select soccer team.

Tryouts for the squad will be held at the Edward Hines park soccer field on Monday, July 31; Tuesday, Aug. 1; and Tuesday, Aug. 8 between 6-8 p.m.

Athletes are asked to bring a soccer ball and water bottle on the first tryout date.

For further information contact either of the coaches - Jeanne Martin at 459-5997 or Craig Evans at 455-2041.

Second thoughts

By Janet Armstrong

Bernie Goodstein, the general manager of the Canton Softball Center, has a few ideas of why softball is so popular.

"It's an every person sport," said Goodstein. "You don't have to be a superstar to play."

Canton Township's Parks and Rec director Bob Dates said softball has always been popular, but Goodstein adds that it's really on an upswing.

According to all three, the leagues are not just made up of men, but of women also (they also have many co-ed teams playing).

Softball started getting popular about five or six years ago, said Plymouth Parks and Rec director Chuck Skene, and has been on the rise ever since.

Goodstein added that there may be one more element to the sport that attracts so many people. "The camaraderie between the teams attracts people," said Goodstein.

There are thousands of people this summer that are having a good time and getting some exercise through a casual game of softball.

And why not?

Sirs,

As difficult as it is to gauge the true effectiveness of any advertising, with my increased ad budget, the results are unmistakable. Newspaper advertising really works!!!

Please continue with your fine community service work as you have in the past, and maintain your fair editorial profile. Together with regular advertising in your weekly publication, and a firm commitment to quality The Plymouth Booterie-Red Wing will continue to prosper well into the next decade.

Thanks to The Crier staff, and specifically Jack Armstrong, for your professional assistance over the years. I have been advertising in The Crier for the last 10 years and have always received excellent service from those involved.

Sincerely,

Frank Szalma
