

Conservancy wants to protect Holliday preserve

BY MINAL HAJRATWALA

The Southeast Michigan Land Conservancy, a new organization just "getting off the ground," according to President Jack Smiley, has identified the William P. Holliday Forest and Wildlife Preserve, located partly in Canton, as needing protection.

Plans to purchase a 40-acre plot of land adjacent to the 500-acre park are under way. The group, which is non-profit and tax-exempt, is soliciting support from other environmental groups as well as corporate sponsors.

"There was a definite need for a group that would preserve land, particularly in the southeastern Michigan area," said Smiley. "We want to maintain the natural attributes of the land which are beneficial to wildlife."

Located in Westland, Livonia and Canton, the Holliday Preserve is Wayne County's only dedicated wildlife sanctuary. It contains one of the few remaining old growth forests in

Chamber joins ice festival fray

BY TODD LANGTON

What appears to be a last ditch effort is under way to save the annual Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

The Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce is considering organizing the event in order to fill the void left by the departure of previous Ice Festival organizers Hank Graper and Scott Lorenz.

"I think it's appropriate that we step in and take the lead right now in trying to continue the (organizing) activities," said Kosteva, president of the chamber.

With Graper and Lorenz no longer available to do that, the chamber needs to step in and fill the void, Kosteva added. between $75,000 and $100,000 in cash donations or in kin- services in order to put on the event, she said.

The chamber may meet with city officials again this week to determine at what level the municipality will participate in the Ice Spectacular.

William Graham, Plymouth's acting city manager, was invited by Kosteva to a meeting last week at which the ice festival was discussed.

"The city's level of service, or participation and cooperation," said Graham, "would be determined by the City Commission after the determination of what it costs us to participate in the event."

Unlike for other festival events the city has provided manpower support (including overtime), equipment and insurance coverage for the two-week long festival.

"The Ice Sculpture Festival is in a class all by itself in terms of liability potential," Graham said. "The premium exposure on it is very high."

The insurance premium for the 1989 Spectacular was estimated to be $7,000, he said.

School district begins year

Today (Aug. 30) is the first full day of classes for more than 15,000 students in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district.

Students in grades one through 12 will be returning to their academic studies today, while the younger kindergarten students also begin their first day. A morning session started the school year yesterday for all first through 12th grade students.

VIEW: Sports teams at CEP kick off their seasons this week. Turn to the sports pages for some previews.

WAVE: The future is now and Wave-Mat is it. See pg. 12 for details.

Some changes have taken place this year in the district.

Claudia Kulnis, for example, is the new principal at Smith Elementary School, taking over from George Dodson who retired at the end of the last school year.

Also, some realignments of administrative responsibilities have been made for the principals and area coordinators at Centennial Educational Park (CEP), which houses Canton and Salem high schools. The attendance office at both schools will again be handling calls from parents and student absences.

With the passing of the millage earlier this year, the district will also eliminate fees for extra-curricular activities and the district's elementary school buildings will be open in the evenings again for community activities.

District Superintendent John M. Hoben said this year could be "one of the best year ever for students in our district."

The Plymouth-Canton Community Clothing Bank will again be open on Sept. 3, offering clothing to residents of the school district who are receiving some form of assistance. Call 451-6673 for information on the clothing center.

The school lunch program, administered by the Marriott Corporation will hold lunch prices at the same level as last year. Lunches will remain $1.65 for middle and high school students, and $1.30 for all elementary school students.

For further school news call the 24-hour school district hotline at 453-0271.

Wish come true

Saturday was a special day for Charlie Everhardt, of Canton. The six-year-old is Canton's first child in the Make-a-Wish program, and Saturday one of his wishes came true as he rode a Canton fire engine and tried out some of the other fire fighting equipment. Charlie is also going to Disney World through the program. Last June he was diagnosed as having acute lymphocytic leukemia, said his parents Greg and Diane Everhardt. (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

School Board considers bond renovation plan

BY JOHN BRODERICK

The renovation of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education and administrative office may finally make it out of the planning stages — three years after voters approved the money for the project.

Most of the $13 million bond project — which voters approved in June of 1986 — has been spent, according to Plymouth-Canton school officials.

But $925,000 for the Harvey Street offices, and another $200,000 for a maintenance building at Centennial Educational Park (CEP) remain unused.

On Monday, the board was presented with a suggestion to split the renovation and addition into a two-phase plan — the first of which would cost $925,000.

The plan, presented by local architect Erick Carne, would then call for a second phase, which would cost an additional $463,000.

Board president Dea Swartzweier said that the second phase would not necessarily cost the schools anything at all.

"That's the architect's plan, not ours," he said.

The first phase would cover a complete face lift of the existing building, and a 5,100 square foot addition.

Proposals sought in City Manager hunt

BY KEN VOYLES

Wanted: A corporate recruiting firm experienced in the selection of municipal employees. Submit written proposals to City of Plymouth Mayor Dennis Bila.

This week Plymouth officials began the process of finding a firm to help with the task of hiring a new city manager to replace Henry Graper.

Scaled proposals will be accepted until Sept. 18, said Bila, who is also the chairperson of the city manager selection committee annointed by the Plymouth City Commission.

The proposals must include a synopsis of the potential selection process utilized, the price for the services, and a list of at least three municipal clients for references.

The City Commission, and its selection committee, will then accept or reject the proposals, "in whole or in part, and waive any irregularities."

"Anyone interested in coming before us and giving us a proposal, we'd be interested in hearing from them," said Bila.

Even with the accepting of proposals Bila said its really not like seeking bids. In fact, he added, bids may not be "desirable" because the city is looking for a company with a specific professional service to offer.

"We still haven't decided we'd go with the proposals," Bila said, adding that the commission members may end up handling the hiring of a city manager directly.

But Bila emphasized that the city was interested in local individuals or firms. Information on other firms with a track record has been supplied by the Michigan Municipal League, and are already being contacted by the committee, he added.

Addressing the debate over whether the commission should hire a new manager or bring in professional help, acting City Manager William Graham said, "I know there are concerns about spending large sums of money looking for a city manager."

Bila said a job description for the city manager's post would be written as part of the hiring process when it begins. He said a consulting firm (if utilized) would develop that as a part of its service.

Graham, who has made no effort to seek the job permanently, nonetheless has found himself pushed to the center of the selection question. Rumors began surfacing recently that a petition was being passed around suggesting the city hire the former finance director.

"I've heard that comment from people (about a petition)," Graham said. "But I've not heard of any petition in circulation."

Bila said, "I've heard the rumors, but seen nothing. I'd like to see the petition."

Rite of summer

Flier promotes cruising

BY JOHN BRODERICK

Cruising on the streets of the City of Plymouth is back in fashion.

Friday was one of the busiest nights all summer for local authorities. Streets were blocked, extra officers on duty, and in the end, many violations written.

"We had about the most activity that I've seen all year, on Friday," said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager.

Last week fliers had been circulated, inviting people to come to Plymouth to cruise on Friday night. "No drugs, no booze — just cruise," the flier read.

Sincock said that he expects cruising to slow down as school starts this week. He said cruising should not be a problem at next week's Fall Festival.

A dozen people were cited for trespassing over the weekend; five for operating under the influence of liquor (OUIL); five for minor in possession of alcohol; and 10 for open intoxicants.

Many of the people cited were not from The Plymouth-Canton Community, but from communities such as Ann Arbor, Farmington Hills, Livonia, and Garden City.

Groups scramble to get in festival

BY JOHN BRODERICK

With Plymouth's Fall Festival just a week away, a few main attractions have not met the festival board's requirements, and may not participate.

Liability insurance requirements have stalled the approval of two groups which sponsor activities geared toward younger people.

The Salem Rockettes dunk tank, a favorite of students for many years, has had trouble obtaining insurance.

After the city's underwriter refused to cover the dunk tank, the group had to look for insurance elsewhere. The cost of a separate policy for such an activity was so large that the group nearly had to cancel out.

The pom-pon squad's coach, Elizabeth Barker said that insurance had been obtained by Monday, but festival officials said the group had not presented appropriate certification yet.

The Plymouth-Canton Hockey Association is in a similar situation. The group presented an application to sponsor a hockey booth, in which participants are clocked for speed and accuracy of shots.

The festival board approved the project contingent upon receipt of insurance. The board, and the City of Plymouth's underwriter accepted a plan to cover the booth this week.

New Morning School, which sponsors games for kids, is back in the festival, after the board voted them out last week.

"After board members realized that we acted on erroneous information, most of them agreed to approve the school," said festival board president Mike Pollard.

A few other groups have yet to file other required documents, such as board of health certificates, according to festival officials.

Air-Tite blaze caused $280,000 damage

BY JOHN BRODERICK
 The fire that destroyed two Air-Tite Insulation warehouses two weeks ago caused more than $280,000 worth of damage, according to Plymouth's Fire Chief Al Matthews.
 The fire, which officials said was started accidentally by employees, destroyed more than $50,000 worth of insulation, a number of trucks worth more than $100,000, and the two buildings, worth $60,000 and $44,000.
 "The heat was so extreme, the fire so intense, that the other building caught on fire," Matthews said. The two buildings were about 50 feet apart.

 Matthews said the figures are a ball park estimate at this point.
 "We won't know the totals for sure until all the insurance reports are in," he said.

A number of companies rented space in the buildings, which were divided into sections, and were once used as coal storage bins.

Twp. hires architect for 3rd fire station

BY TODD LANGTON
 Plymouth Township is one step closer to constructing its third fire station.

The Plymouth Township Board recently hired the Southfield based architectural firm of Coquillard, Dundon, Peterson and Argenta to design fire station number three, which will be located at the corner of North Territorial and Beck roads.

Plymouth Township Fire Chief Larry Groth, who has already discussed the design of the new station with the head architect of the project, said he is very happy with the progress made to this point.

The architectural drawings should be completed within 90 days and construction on the station should be completed about nine months after that, Groth said.

The station will be a full size facility with three drive-through bays.

"Certainly we're not looking at just today, we're looking at the future, because this is the last fire station that the township will be erecting," he said.

 The third bay will allow for additions to the fire department's fleet of vehicles if necessary, he added.

When completed the station will house an Emergency Medical Services (EMS) company and an engine company.

One reason for building the new facility is that the emergency response time in the area of station number three will be cut by as much as five minutes in some cases, the chief said.

"A building burning that is out of control with nothing trying to suppress that fire, for longer than five minutes, your chances of knocking down that fire and saving (the building) are not all that good," Groth said.

"Likewise, if you provide an EMS service and you've got an individual who has stopped breathing beyond five minutes, you've got a lot of complications," he added.

The service area of station number three will include the area encompassed by Five Mile, Napier, Joy and Sheldon roads.

Woman charged in accident

A 58-year-old Belleville faces negligent homicide charges in the traffic deaths of Canton residents Donald and Nancy Harms.

Dorothy L. King was bound over for trial two weeks ago following her preliminary examination before 35th District Court Judge John MacDonald. She is scheduled to be arraigned in Detroit Records Court sometime in September.

Judge MacDonald said he found probable cause that a crime was committed and that King committed it. King could face up to two years in jail if convicted on the charge.

Donald Harms, 53, and Nancy Harms, 49, both died shortly after the April 13 accident when the car they were driving eastbound on Cherry Hill (near Charterhouse) was struck head-on by King's vehicle.

Witnesses told police that King's car, which was westbound on Cherry Hill, crossed over the center line and struck the Harms vehicle as well as a vehicle driven by a 19-year-old Garden City resident.

Police officials said that King told them she was blinded by sunlight at the time of the accident, which occurred at about 6:33 p.m. The investigation revealed that there were no indications that alcohol played a role in the accident, police said.

"It's tragic, a tragic accident," said Officer Keith Lazar, of the Canton Police Department. "There's really nothing unusual or unique about it, though."

Confront organizers

Ice fest blues

Graham said that the ice festival should provide its own insurance, as do all of the other festival type events which take place in Plymouth, including Fall Festival.

"I will stand my ground on this insurance thing," added Graham, who said he is by no means against the Spectacular taking place. "Nothing could be farther from the truth.

"I just want these festivals to function on a uniform, proper basis," he said. "I would like to see them continue to be an ice carving festival."

If the event does take place then the chamber may seek the assistance of someone who has organized the event before.

"For 1990, if (the Ice Sculpture Spectacular) takes place, what I see happening is a chamber of commerce sponsored event utilizing the cooperation of the City of Plymouth and perhaps buying the services of Scott Lorenz and (or) Hank Graper," Graham said.

Kosteva said, "We are considering hiring someone to put on the event for us."

The ability to put together an event such as the Ice Sculpture Spectacular depends on contacts, she said.

If the chamber is unsuccessful in its attempts to raise the funds necessary to hold the event, then Kosteva said she hopes that another organization could jump in and take over, but she is not holding her breath.

"I would think that if we can't pull it off then it isn't going to happen," she said.

"We can have all the good will in the world, but if that does not translate into someone's signature on a check, then the event won't take place," Kosteva added.

Saving Holliday's land

southeastern Michigan, according to Smiley.

According to state and federal standards, said Smiley, southeast Michigan contains fewer natural wildlife areas than most regions.

Last year, a City of Westland proposal to develop land adjacent to the Holliday Preserve into a golf course met with resistance, and was not pursued.

Celeste Vollmer, of Plymouth Township, was a member of the Holliday Nature Preserve Association, which began in Westland to save the park. She now serves on the board of directors of the year-old conservancy.

"I am interested in saving natural areas, particularly wetlands," she said. The 40-acre parcel of land the group hopes to purchase consists primarily of wetlands, housing fox habitats and rare species of owls.

"People do not understand that animals cannot just live within the boundaries of the land they are on," said Vollmer. "They thrive on the surrounding areas as well."

Natural wildlife areas are especially useful for nature studies.

"School groups come and do biology projects, group camp-outs for nature studies," said Vollmer. "With all the construction going on around here, a lot of land is being destroyed."

90 and counting

BY MINAL HAJRATWALA

Marjorie Winkler had a birthday party recently. Showing off a two-inch-high stack of cards, she said, "It was the nicest birthday party I ever had."

Considering it was the 90th such event for Winkler, that is saying quite a bit.

A resident of Plymouth Township for more than five decades, Winkler has outlived both of her parents, her two sisters, her husband, and her two sons.

In the past seven years she has also lived through two heart attacks and a fractured pelvis.

A church-going Presbyterian until recently, Winkler tried several churches before she stopped attending. "I could not hear the sermons," she said with regret. "I guess there comes a time..."

Despite being hard of hearing and easy to fatigue, Winkler remains self-sufficient. "I want to stay independent as long as I can," she said.

"When you get to be 90 there is not much you can do. I stay active, I drive my own car," she said. Her activities include playing bridge and pinochle as part of a senior citizens group, collecting Lennox figurines, and visiting various daughters-in-law, grandchildren and great grandchildren.

"In the evening I am afraid to go out, so I knit or read," said Winkler. She designs and knits baby booties and clothing, and sells them to a local retailer.

Born, raised, and married in Detroit, Winkler moved to Plymouth after the death of her first son in an auto accident. Since 1937, the community has changed "drastically, and for the better," she said.

"Plymouth is just beautiful now." Other things, however, seem to have changed for the worse. "The day before yesterday I went to the drugstore, and some young woman

— she must have been in her teens — was wearing a shirt with s---t across the front," said Winkler, shaking her head. "What is this world coming to?"

With her late husband, a sanitation engineer ("that's a fancy word for plumber"), Winkler said, she used to travel quite a bit. "I have been to every state except Arkansas."

Winkler attributes her longevity to "good, clean living. That is the only thing I know of to account for it," she said.

"I have had a very good life. Having been happy and doing all these things makes me satisfied to be here by myself," she said. "I could not ask for more."

Board office renovation

Phase one of the plan would also call involve tearing down two buildings which the district owns on Ann Arbor Trail, to make way for additional parking spaces.

School property forms an "L" shape around the Bake Real Estate office at Ann Arbor Trail and Harvey — with facing front space on each of those streets.

Phase two of Carne's plan calls for remodeling the inside of the existing building. Swartzwelter said the parts of the building left vacant by the shift to the new addition, could be left as they are, and temporary dividers added to make work spaces for a number of employees.

"Until we come up with an overall plan of what we're going to do — a space needs analysis — we're not going to renovate the inside of this building," he said.

"Absolutely not," said Swartzwelter, when asked if another bond project was on the horizon.

Association tours

The William P. Holliday Nature Preserve Association is planning two special nature events in September.

The group will be hosting its second annual "Tracks in the Sand" tour on Sunday, Sept. 10 at the Newburgh Road entrance to Holliday Park (located north of Warren Road in Westland).

All of the materials to make plaster cast's of animal tracks will be provided for tour goers. The tour begins at 1 p.m.

There will also be a Holliday Nature Preserve general membership meeting on Thursday, Sept. 21 at 7 p.m. It will be held at the Livonia Churchill High library.

The meeting is open to the public and will give interested residents a chance to find out about the group's goals and plans.

Residents who are interested in fungus can learn about the different types of mushrooms and fungi on another walking tour into the nature preserve.

The second tour will be held on Sunday, Sept. 24 at 1 p.m.

It will begin at the Koppernick Road entrance in Canton (located between Hix and Haggerty roads). Various forms of fungi will be studied.

For more information about the group call 453-3833.

Joanne Hulce, George Hudson, David and Janet Campbell, Robert and Nancy Cooper, and George and Mary Elizabeth Smith -- THE TIME IS NOW

The next school board election is nine months away, but after what happened last June, it seems fitting to plant a seed about the two seats which are up for election.

During last June's campaign, a number of prominent community leaders (listed above) worried that too many candidates in the field would split the vote and pave the way for the election of a conservative Christian candidate.

They urged that the other six candidates choose from among themselves, while the others bow out. This, they reasoned, would insure victory for the forces of reason.

Their effort was too little, too late.

Citizens of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district are best served when they can choose from as many candidates for the school board as possible. The two incumbents whose seats are up this coming June are Jeanette Wines and Marilyn Schwin - neither has committed to seeking re-election.

If these citizens, who tried too late to consolidate mainstream support, are indeed concerned, they should start NOW to coalesce community backing behind candidates, or run themselves.

With school board seat races becoming more and more expensive (far more money was spent on the last election than ever before), starting early makes a lot of sense.

Those who urged the mainstream candidates to drop out would each make worthy hopefuls themselves. (This should not be taken as a vote against the two incumbents, both of whom say they are considering running, but rather as a call to give voters as many choices as possible.)

A number of strong candidates have emerged, through the last campaign, and from the ranks of the Citizen's Election Committee, and the CREW study group.

Carl Battishill showed that he was not just a music man - coming in third last time. Robert Anderson, although a conservative fringe candidate, came in second.

Recently retired principal George Dodson has expressed some interest in the board - he's well known, well liked, and would certainly liven up board meetings.

The I-Care campaign rose to the occasion in June, and helped the district win its first millage hike in several tries. Jack Farrow and Debbie Drinkhahn, the co-chairs, treasurer and former school board member Steve Harper (but who would fill out the financial forms?), as well as all-around cheerleader Ray Buckman, could all find support from various circles, and make good board members.

Annette Remsberg, who chaired the CREW committee, ran two years ago, and may just have her eye on one of those seats. Betty Jo Welsh, chair of CREW's subcommittee on communication, may not have her eye on a seat - but she probably should.

And last June's other candidates - Mary Buti, Brian Kidston, Ronald Turner, and Joan Kotcher - all should be looking ahead to the future election.

NOW is the responsible time to think about next June. As the school year starts its first full day of classes today, the future of Plymouth-Canton Schools is on everyone's minds.

Teacher says thanks

Organizations make education possible

EDITOR:

As I open my classroom and prepare for the new school year I have many fond memories of last year and wish to thank four organizations: the Michigan Council for the Arts, the Plymouth Community Arts Council, the Excellence in Education Foundation, and the EMU Alumni Education Foundation. I received generous grants from these sources to enhance classroom materials. Students and parents responded positively to the programs and I maintained great enthusiasm for my profession because creative ideas were realized - dreams became activity-based learning.

With the onset of the 1989-90 school year I (and I'm sure many colleagues) are dreaming of new and different kinds of learning experiences for our students. These organizations and others like them will again receive numerous funding requests. The members of this community deserve a hearty "thank you" and need to know teachers like me appreciate their generosity when they support the Arts Council, the Excellence in Education Foundation, and college alumni groups. Your donations very often come back to serve your students and enhance their learning.

Thank you for your continued support. Wishing you a grand school year!

Forest through the trees

By Todd Langton

Hello Plymouth-Canton!

Believe it or not, this is quite a large town, comparatively speaking. I recently moved from Harbor Springs, a quaint little town 35 miles south of the Mackinac Bridge.

The citizens there would have a proverbial cow if they were presented with an $87,865,000 sewer improvement project like the one the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA) has undertaken.

In fact, so would most people -- $87,865,000 is quite a chunk of change.

The funny thing is that the residents of the townships represented by the WTUA -- Canton, Northville and Plymouth -- were not allowed to decide whether or not they wanted to approve an $87 million bond sale to fund the project.

The reason that the residents of the three townships did not get to vote on the issue is because the WTUA does not have the power to raise taxes to pay off the bonds.

So, as a result, the area will get a much needed sewer capacity increase without raising taxes one penny.

If taxes are not being raised to pay for the project then where will the money to pay the improvements come from?

The funds to pay for the sewer increase will come from those who use the sewer, i.e., the residents of Canton, Plymouth, and Northville townships.

Pretty sneaky. The money is not coming out of taxes, but it is still coming out of residents pockets, in the form of higher sewer and water rates.

So much for not being able to vote because taxes won't go to fund the project.

Actually, the people served by the WTUA are lucky.

Expected growth in these communities should keep rates lower, even with the expansion, than if the expansion had not been undertaken.

Once the project is completed the townships of Canton, Plymouth and Northville will not have to purchase extra sewer capacity from other municipalities at exorbitant prices.

Therefore, in the long term, this project may actually save money for consumers. But that is no excuse for not letting those affected by the project vote on the issue.

Some of the founding fathers of this nation worried that the masses would not be intelligent enough to govern themselves or make their own decisions.

As it turns out, we've done all right so far.

Don't try and fool the voters by telling them that their taxes aren't going to be raised to pay for improvement projects; the money will always have to come from somewhere.

If an improvement is necessary, as I'm sure that the sewer expansion project is, let the voters decide that for themselves.

Even if there are people who choose not to take advantage of the right to vote, there are many who vigorously accept the challenge that a democratic society has set before us.

Be careful when you try to pull the wool over the eyes of a sheep...there might just be a wolf inside.

Have a good day.

Word for word

By Lauren Smith

It's the end of August but it feels like New Year's. Last August was a big time for me, a definite new beginning, and now I've come full circle.

At this time last year, I had finished my first summer at The Crier, packed my bags, crowded them into and on top of a tipsy station wagon, and taken the pilgrimage to college -- in Maine.

Ironically, what felt like the end of my world was really the beginning of what has become something of a double life.

The day my life turned inside out and my predictable world came to an end, was the day my aunt's first baby was born. Now after the celebration of his first birthday on the anniversary of my departure, it's amazing to think about what has happened in one year.

Returning to The Crier and finding new faces to replace the old was a familiar adjustment after a year of change. Seeing my high school friends on a daily basis during the summer reversed life somewhat back to what it was before college, but in a temporary way.

This summer there were friends all over the country to write to and phone during the of months reliving highschool and life at home. They served as reminders of an aspect of my life that was built in one short, significant year.

In many ways, life this summer was like a rerun of a long running television program with new commercials.

All of the busy weeks working on the Fall Festival edition also brought back memories and made it feel like the holiday season when everyone is awaiting the calm of a new year.

My friends are leaving one by one, and the cycle is beginning again.

Another class has graduated and being on the alumnae side makes me feel uncomfortably old. Next year, another class will graduate and another circle will close.

To all graduates -- Happy New Year.

In the margin

By Ken Voyles

Dear Canton residents:

You probably won't notice -- it shouldn't affect what you read on the police blotter -- but there's been a subtle shift in the way things are done at the Canton Police Department.

It's a shift in a slightly more controlled direction, and any "blame" for that change in the way things are done should rest solely on the shoulders of attorneys.

Yes, it looks like your local municipal attorneys are up to those typical attorney tricks once again.

This time it revolves around a letter sent from C. Gerald Hemming's office to John Santomauro, Canton's police chief.

In the letter it suggests that the police department change the way it releases police reports to the local newspapers. There is no mention in the letter of any past problems with the current system (there haven't been any).

The letter suggests police review all police reports prior to their release or "that the news people be required to file a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request before the information is released to them."

It goes on to add that a "screening" mechanism should be set up to insure that information released is not being released "in violation of the Freedom of Information Act."

The letter came somewhat as a surprise to Santomauro, who immediately called a meeting with local newspaper folk.

Santomauro said he didn't want to "fix something that isn't broken" and change a working system just for the sake of satisfying the township's legal people. Liability is a concern, he said, but so is a good relationship with the media.

The chief also felt screening all of the police reports each week would be a waste of his department's manpower; dealing with endless numbers of FOI requests would probably add to manpower overload.

In subsequent discussions a compromise was worked out so that all of the reports would still be available to reporters covering the police beat.

Now, though, the department will not automatically release the names of suspects, victims and witnesses. That information will have to be requested separately through the department's community relations officer.

The reason behind the change is to further protect the names of suspects, victims and witnesses (and thus the township police).

But this newspaper has never made it a policy to print the names of suspects until they are formally charged. We are also careful not to print victims names, especially those who may have been involved in a rape or other sexual crime.

Witnesses are also sometimes protected, though they are often very important to help try and recreate the incident or crime.

As said, the policy change isn't a drastic one, but it will alter the method used to obtain some information from the Canton police.

And there remains some real concerns among local news folk. Under what circumstances will a witnesses' name be withheld? Will all of the victims of local crimes now be protected, whether justifiable or not? Will the new system still create a Freedom of Information Act bottleneck?

It's hard to say.

Police officials, especially Santomauro, would like to maintain the department's good working relationship with local media, but at the same time they feel they must address the concerns of the township attorney.

The compromise finally worked out also addresses some of the concerns of local newspaper people. Filing FOI requests for every police report would be time consuming and might have even resulted in some form of legal challenge.

Like the police, it's hard to see from this side of the margin why the system needs fixing when there haven't been any problems.

Leave it to attorneys to create problems (or potential conflicts) where there haven't been any; to do so they spent your hard earned tax money -- attorneys fees being what they are.

As residents you should be aware of what is happening with your police department, and your attorneys. The change may affect future relationships between the police and the media, and infringe upon your "right to know."

Yours truly,
Ken Voyles

Campers, volunteers share friendship

BY TODD LANGTON

"That's usually the hardest thing about camp -- going back every year, knowing that someone might not be there next year."

Eric Sheehan, an 18-year-old Salem Township resident, is referring to a very special camp which exists solely to enrich the lives of those afflicted with a disease called Muscular Dystrophy (MD).

Muscular Dystrophy is a disease which causes the muscles of the body to deteriorate. The disease, when it effects children, is irreversible, and is quite often fatal.

Sheehan is a volunteer at Camp Cavell, located just north of Port Huron. The camp is funded mainly by proceeds raised during the Jerry Lewis Telethon.

Sheehan's 21-year-old brother, Pat, has been a helper at the camp for the last six years.

Anyone over seven years of age can attend the camp during the last week in June and the first week in July if they have Muscular Dystrophy.

Each volunteer at the camp is assigned a camper for one week.

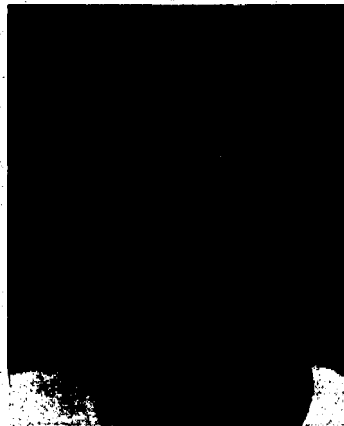

Sheehan has helped the same camper for the past four years -- Tommy Neff, of Farmington Hills.

"They said when he was little he used to be one of the little kids running around (the camp)," Eric said. "Now he's in a wheelchair."

"(Muscular Dystrophy) just takes them year after year," he added.

Sheehan and Neff, who is a junior at North Farmington High, are more than just helper and camper.

"We're not up there as baby sitters," Sheehan said. "We go up there and we're like a buddy for a week."

ERIC SHEEHAN

"Some of those guys are our best friends," he added.

The helpers and campers participate in activities such as arts and crafts, baseball, basketball, golf, and swimming.

Neff favorite activity is baseball, Sheehan said.

The camper and the helper are a team in themselves during the baseball games. When in the field, the helper must touch the camper before he can throw the ball if the camper cannot throw the ball himself.

At the plate, the helper lends a hand if the camper cannot hold the bat and hit the ball by himself.

Once the ball is hit the campers go around the bases their electric wheelchairs, Eric said.

"Tommy likes his wheelchair," he said. "He's always got the fastest one."

The campers run wheelchair races and obstacle courses quite often, he added while chuckling.

The entire group of campers and helpers are close.

"It's kind of like a big family," he added. "You pretty much meet everyone before the week is over."

The day at the camp begins at 7:30 a.m. The helper first showers himself and his camper and then the two go to breakfast.

After breakfast the two participate in a couple of camp activities such as baseball and fishing and then go to lunch. The campers participate in two activities after each meal throughout the day.

The campers and helpers generally try to keep in touch with each other after camp is over, said Sheehan. Neff likes to see movies and go the mall, he said.

Sheehan said it bothers him when people look away or look down on someone just because they are in a wheelchair.

"They think just like me and you," he said. "They just can't do some of the things we can do."

Working at Camp Cavell has taught Sheehan a lot about people.

"(People) come in different sizes shapes and colors," he said. "You can't judge people by their handicaps or race or anything like that."

Sheehan said he plans to continue being a helper as long as he can because the campers are very special people.

Jerry, another camper, wrote a poem about going to heaven for four of his buddies from the camp.

"It touched a lot of people," said Sheehan.

One of the major ideas stressed at the camp is to show campers how to feel good about themselves and have a high sense of self worth.

"The only thing you can say (to the campers) every year is just keep trying, don't quit," Sheehan said.

"Because when they quit, that's when they die."

Dancers honored

Masters of Dance Arts Company, of Canton, under the leadership of founder and choreographer Mary Helen Stewart, was awarded the Dance Educators of America Presidents Challenge Cup, in New York City recently.

Local dancers performed a lyrical routine to the music "Cry Little Sister," drawing a standing ovation. With the highest scoring routine out of more than 350 acts, the group was awarded the National Grand Champion cup, title, and first place prize money of $1,000.

Dancers from the company, established in 1976, also were rewarded a second Grand National Championship from the North American Youth Festival in Nashville.

Participating local students were Tracy Anderson, Aileen Balatico, Jim Bray, Darleen Brzezinski, Kristen Esser, Lisa Guzzo, Lisa Jackson, Rod Hill, Rose Mallare, Amy Pacheco, Elaine Plakas, Mindy Shearrer, Jodi Wetzel, and Amy Zasadny.

Getting down to business

Wave-Mat in Plymouth Township is on the cutting edge of "microwave plasma" technology.

Wave of the future

BY MINAL HAJRATWALA

In the kitchen lies the technology of the future. And the future is now.

Microwaves, if Richard Garard of Wave-Mat, Inc., has his way, will soon be used to form advanced ceramics for industrial use, etch silicon, and create diamond film.

Garard, president and chief executive officer of the Plymouth Township company, said, "We are taking the standard microwave concept a giant leap forward in controllability for industrial applications."

Based on technology researched and developed at Michigan State University, Wave-Mat systems have been purchased by universities, including Harvard, the University of Michigan, Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), and Stanford, as well as industrial giants like Ford and IBM.

Wave-Mat produces several types of equipment, all based on microwave technology, and conducts on-site research for the likes of NASA.

In a standard household microwave oven, the energy is uncontrolled and random. While this is acceptable for heating food, industry requires greater precision.

"We can control those microwaves by how we physically tune the cavity, so the energy is focussed where we want it," explained Garard.

Also, while in a standard oven the energy is used to vibrate water, creating heat, "we can tune the microwave energy to vibrate any molecule — plastic, polymer, composite material," said Garard.

One application of this is the creation of a sophisticated "industrial microwave oven," for use in creating advanced ceramics for the aircraft industry according to Garard.

Wave-Mat's "microwave plasma disk reactor" takes the process one step further. Controlled microwaves vibrate molecules of gas, creating a plasma or "glow." (Fluorescent light bulbs, for example, are low-energy plasmas.) This plasma is a sort of "fourth state" in which the gas is broken down into individual molecules.

Plasma has several uses. Depending on the type of gas, the reactor could produce diamond thin film, oxide coating, tungsten coating, or etching on silicon wafers.

The use of plasma to etch silicon wafers is not new, but while current technology uses radio waves to do this, microwaves are 200 times more concentrated. According to Garard, this increased efficiency makes microwaves ideal to meet "the demand for smaller and smaller devices, the demand for more intense control."

Another application is the production of diamond film by isolating and compressing carbon atoms in a gas. Diamond is used industrially as a coating for cutting tools and wear surfaces.

Natural diamond is produced by intense geological pressure over millions of years; as such it is both rare and expensive. With Wave-Mat equipment, the main cost is the original system.

"The ultimate commercial benefit is enormous in terms of cost return and efficiency," said Garard, who hopes eventually to see microwave-produced diamond coating for costume jewelry and radar glass, and diamond rather than silicon used in integrated circuits.

"Diamond has properties that far exceed other materials in all facets — hardness, conductivity, resistivity, transparency," said Garard. "It really is the ultimate material."

The market for diamond thin film is relatively new, as is the market for advanced ceramics, according to Garard. The semiconductor market is more mature and competitive.

"What we are trying to do in that division is sell to (the large companies) and let them sell our systems," said Garard.

"In a year, we took up and designed a product, and took it to the marketplace," he said.

Currently the systems are being purchased for research; within a year, predicts Garard, they will begin to be used for actual production.

Business people

Two local residents have joined the Bloomfield Hills office of D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, an international advertising and communications company.

Sherry Foust, of Plymouth, will be account supervisor. She graduated in 1973 from Oakland University with a BA degree, and lives in Plymouth with her husband and two sons.

Glen Schreiner, of Canton, will be senior writer with the company's subsidiary, InterGroup Marketing and Promotions. She lives in Canton with her husband and daughter. She has a BS in business management and communications, and an MA in communication, both from Eastern Michigan University.

You can't do much about most factors in the marketplace . . . rent, labor costs, price of merchandise, what the competition will do. But one thing you do control is your own promotion. Remember that advertising is not just a cost of doing business. It's a proven sales tool that returns many times your investment in store traffic and sales.

Plymouth woman names a moose

BY KEN VOYLES

What do you get when you cross a Michigan and a moose?

A Michi-Moose.

Kathy Fry, of Plymouth, should know. She combined the two names to win the Upper Peninsula Travel and Recreation Association name-the-moose mascot contest recently.

Fry, a 32-year-old city resident, has never seen a moose in her life, but hopes to see one as a part of her prize for winning the contest.

"I never enter things like this, but I thought it was a cute idea," said Fry, who came up with the name -- one of nearly 10,000 entries -- almost immediately. "I hope I get to see one."

"It's like a life time chance."

Fry wins an all-expenses paid four-day trip to the UP in September, which includes stops on Mackinaw Island, at Sault St. Marie, Tahquamenon Falls, Munising (and the Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore), an iron mine and Marquette.

The highlight of the trip, though, will be a day tracking moose, during which Fry and a Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) biologist will see if they can catch a look at a moose. The DNR transplanted a number of moose a few years ago to try and rebuild the population in Michigan.

While Fry took the contest half in jest and half seriously, many of her friends thought it was just one big joke, but it became very real last week when she was named the winner.

"There were 96 Michi-Moose entries," she said. "They liked that one the best so they had a drawing to pick the winner."

Fry said she also submitted two other entries: "Moose-igan" and "Mighty Moose."

Some of the 10,000 entries were sent from as far away as California and Louisiana. (The new Michi-Moose will be the UP travel association's mascot, and may even end up being the name of a moose costume worn by a person.)

Originally from Dearborn, Fry has lived in Plymouth for four years. She works with her husband's building company and for another firm in Ann Arbor.

"The DNR is a little worried about this," she said. "It's mating season for the moose and they don't want them to be disturbed."

Hopefully, Fry, who has traveled in the Upper Peninsula before, won't be disturbed either, even if she sees two moose instead of one.

included: Richard Bryja, Jackie Clerc, Jerry Zmiky, Mike Mahoney, Bill Vander Groef, David Culps, Bill Zajac, Woody Seymour, Robert Cieslak and Kathy Szelazek.

August winners included: Jill and John Leeper, Carol McGaw, Tim Jeffries, Robert and Julie Walker, Loretta and Larry Barczewski, Mary Ann and Andy Pilszak, Carolyn and Will McWhirter, Darwin and Geraldine Foxworthy, James and Sheryl Downs, Geronimo Martinez, Homer and Sharan Whitt and Denis and Lynn Clark.

This summer's winners were selected by members of the Beautification Committee, which tracked potential winners throughout the community.

"We're close to 60,000 people in Canton, so you are special," Kathy Johnson, of the Beautification Committee, told the residents last week.

Westland man hurt in accident

BY MINAL HAJRATWALA

A 22-year-old Westland man remains in serious condition at the University of Michigan Hospital after the vehicle he was driving crossed over into an oncoming lane and ended up in a ditch Saturday night in Canton.

John Edgar Shanault was injured while driving eastbound on Cherry Hill Road, west of Sheldon Road, at approximately 11 p.m. on Saturday. A passenger in the car was not hurt.

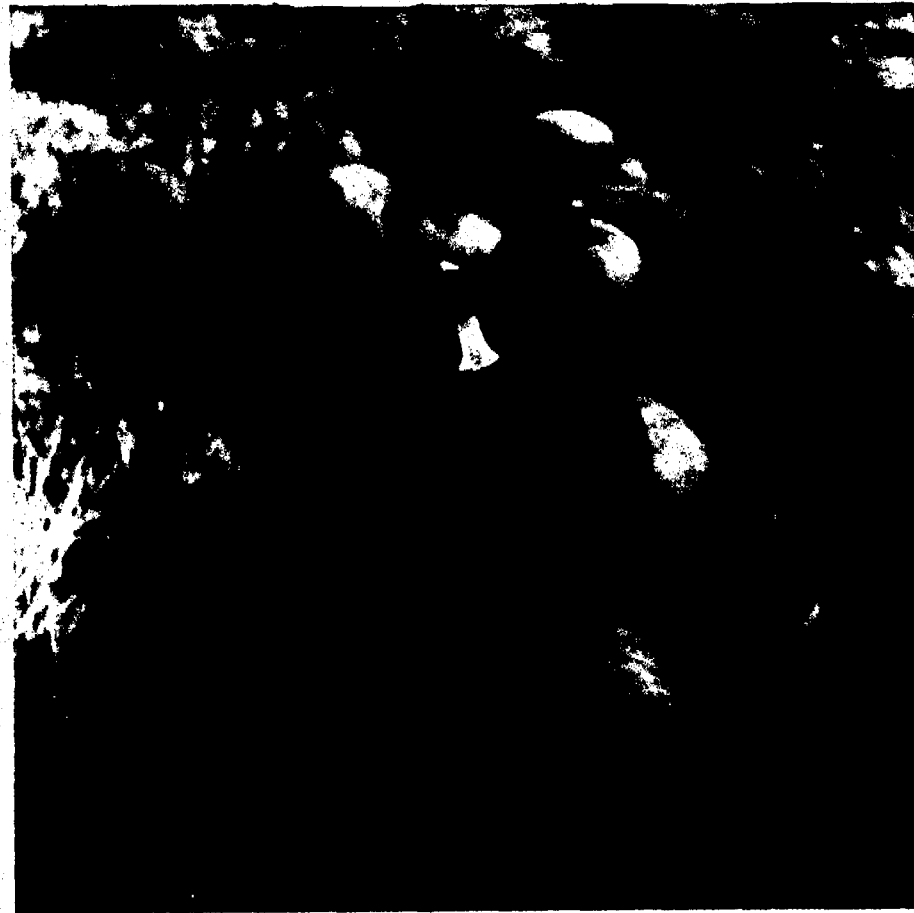

The police investigation is pending as to the cause of the one-car accident.

BPW seeks top women

The Canton Business and Professional Women's organization is once again seeking nominations for its annual "Woman of the Year" award given to a woman in the community who projects a "positive image for women professionally, in the community, and at home."

Residents who know of a woman with outstanding achievement should contact Kelly Baldrice (489-4257 or 737-7300) to make nominations.

Applications also available at the First of America Bank on Ford Road in Canton and at the Canton Public Library. The application deadline is Sept. 27 this year.

The award will be presented at the local Canton BPW meeting on Oct. 9 at 6:30 p.m. in the Roman Forum restaurant. The District 9 BPW will then recognize all Women of the Year recipients at a dinner two days later on Oct. 11.

Business seminar on tap

Interested in starting your own business? The Wayne State University School of Business will host a free workshop in Plymouth entitled "How to Start or Run a Small Business."

The seminar will be held Thursday,

Sept. 14, at the Radisson Hotel of Plymouth, 14707 Northville Road, at 7 p.m.

The two hour workshop is open to the public, but seating is limited so come early to insure a seat. No reservations will be accepted.

Brewin, retired engineer

FRED BREWIN

Fred W. Brewin, 91, of Windsor, Ontario, Canada, died Aug. 24 in Farmington. Services were held Aug. 26 at the Schrader Funeral Home with Pastor Frederick Edward Dunford officiating.

Mr. Brewin came to the Plymouth community in 1969 from Detroit, and was a retired stationary engineer for the Detroit Public Schools. He was a member of the International Union of Operating Engineers Local 522 and was its president from 1940 to 1945. He had his first class license for operating engineer.

Survivors include: son Bruce, of Novi; daughters Virginia Krueger, of Torch Lake, Kathleen Brockbank, of Windsor, Elizabeth Greene, of Bowling Green, OH, and Janet (Brass) Hundley, of Plymouth; 17 grandchildren; 19 great grandchildren; and two great great grandchildren.

Burial was in Riverside Cemetery in Plymouth.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Plymouth Community Band.

Norton, school secretary

Carol Ann Norton, 56, of Plymouth, died Aug. 20 in Livonia. Services were held Aug. 24 at Divine Savior Catholic Church with the Rev. Alexander A. Kuras officiating.

Mrs. Norton came to the Plymouth community from Boston in 1969. She was an administrative secretary for Canton High School since 1976. She was also a member of Divine Savior Catholic Church.

Survivors include: husband Thomas F., of Plymouth; sons Thomas, Jr., of Dearborn, Kevin, of Farmington, Stephen, of Lansing, and Paul, of Plymouth; daughter Elizabeth Kenderes, of Binghamton, NY; brother Thomas Mahon, of Hartford, CT.

Burial was in Glen Eden Cemetery in Livonia.

Hartgrove, GM employe

Betty Jean Hartgrove, 63, of Plymouth, died Aug. 22 in Plymouth Township. Services were held in Indiana.

She worked 32 years with General Motors and was a member of the VFW Auxiliary Plymouth Post. She lived in the Plymouth community all of her life.

Survivors include: sons Robert Walker, of Oklahoma, and Randolph Walker, of Belleville; daughters Rosemary Constantine, of New Baltimore and Marie Brewer, of Indiana; one brother; three sisters; 13 grandchildren; and two great grandchildren.

Local arrangements were by Schrader Funeral Home. Burial was in Indiana.

Brown, schools employe

William Alexander Brown, 77, of Plymouth, died Aug. 22 in Plymouth. Services were held Aug. 25 at the Schrader Funeral Home with the Rev. Leland L. Seese, Jr., officiating.

Mr. Brown was retired from the Farmington school system maintenance service. He came to the Plymouth community in 1970 from Detroit. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, the Signal Star Lodge No. 555 F & A.M., the Northville-Plymouth A.A.R.P., and the Farmington School Retirees Association.

Survivors include: wife Mary S., of Plymouth; son William R., of Rochester Hills; daughter Virginia Waerfel, of Redford Township; sister Harriet Cole, of Plymouth; seven grandchildren; and six great grandchildren.

Burial was in Parkview Memorial Cemetery in Livonia.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

McGonagle, retired nurse

Jeanne C. McGonagle, 65, of Plymouth, died Aug. 22 in Canton. Services were held Aug. 26 at Our Lady of Good Counsel with the Rev. Fr. Joseph Plawocki officiating.

Mrs. McGonagle retired from Mt. Carmel Hospital after 21 years of service as a nurse. She came to the Plymouth community in 1924 from Manchester. She graduated from Mercy College in 1946 summa cum laude, and was a member of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church.

Survivors include: husband John R., of Plymouth; sons John, of South Lyon, Russell, of Chicago, and Michael in the US Navy; daughters Kathleen Johnson, of Novi, Carol Boudeman, of Ann Arbor, Mary Kay Horn, of Livonia, and Constance Wallace, of Colorado; one sister and three brothers; and six grandchildren.

Burial was in Riverside Cemetery in Plymouth.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Heart Association.

CEP sports teams ready for season start

It's almost time again for the start of the fall portion of the 1989-90 varsity athletic seasons at Canton and Salem high schools.

Salem's girls basketball squad started the season off with a pair of games in Traverse City over the week-end, but enters full scale competition this week at home against Flint Powers and Mercy. The Mercy game is set for Saturday (Sept. 9) with junior varsity at 6 p.m. and varsity to follow.

Canton's girls hoop squad kicks off the season on Sept. 5 at home against Trenton and then faces Marion on Sept. 7.

Both CEP (Centennial Educational Park) football squads begin play this weekend - Salem faces Trenton at the CEP football field on Friday (at 7:30 p.m.) and Canton travels to Monroe Friday (also a 7:30 p.m. start).

On the soccer field, Salem's boys squad opens the year at Brighton today (Aug. 30) and then hosts the Plymouth Invitational tournament this Saturday (Sept. 2) against teams from Grand Blance and Portage Central.

Canton will open its boys kick season at the Plymouth Invitational also.

Most of the other CEP teams from Canton and Salem begin the season next week, including boys and girls cross country, boys golf, girls swimming and girls tennis teams.

(Watch The Crier for the complete sports schedules for each team.)

Sports

Entire backfield returns

Senior experience key for Salem grid squad

BY RITA DERBIN

Experience should be the key to the success of the Salem High football squad this fall.

With the entire backfield returning, Salem football coach Tom Moshimer is expecting results from an experienced football team that only lacks playing time on the front lines due to graduation.

Preview 1989

SALEM

The two biggest losses (the Rocks will miss are middle linebacker Mike Jarvey, and John Brannan, a running back and outside linebacker. Other losses include tackles Ernie Watson, Scott Sauter, Rick VanDomelen and David Vela.

The returners will be led by tri-captains Bryan Schultz, a wide receiver and free safety; Pat Bowie and full back and defensive tackle; and Casey Nichols, a center and defensive tackle.

The captains double duty on offense and defense reflects the team overall.

"The returning seniors are going to be doing everything on this team," said Moshimer. "They'll be playing both ways because we don't have much depth."

Other notable seniors include starting quarterback and strong safety Rob Kowalski; Ryan Johnson, a starting middle linebacker and half back; Scott Austin and Mike Cygan, who play wide receiver and cornerback; Brian Burlison, a returning starter at tight end and outside linebacker; and brother Steve Burlison, who is an outside linebacker.

More two-way seniors are Don Parrish, outside linebacker and defensive end; Brian Connell, offensive guard and defensive end; Pete Israel, offensive guard and defensive tackle; Joe Roza, offensive tackle and defensive end; and Chad Johnson, a transfer from Redford Catholic Central, who will play half back and corner back and Curt Wachlarz, a tight end.

The team has been conditioning since July 31 and practicing since Aug. 9 in preparation for their season opener this Friday (Sept. 1) night at home against Trenton. The game will kickoff at 7:30 p.m.

"I'm ready," said Moshimer. "I hope the team is ready."

The Rocks are strong at the skill positions, according to Moshimer, but lack solid experience on the offensive front line.

"Parrish and Connell are both former backs we converted this year," said Moshimer, who lost most of his front line to graduation.

"On defense, we're strong - very solid," Moshimer added. "But our success will depend on how that line holds up on offense."

The season opener will be the true test of how the team will perform this year, according to the coach.

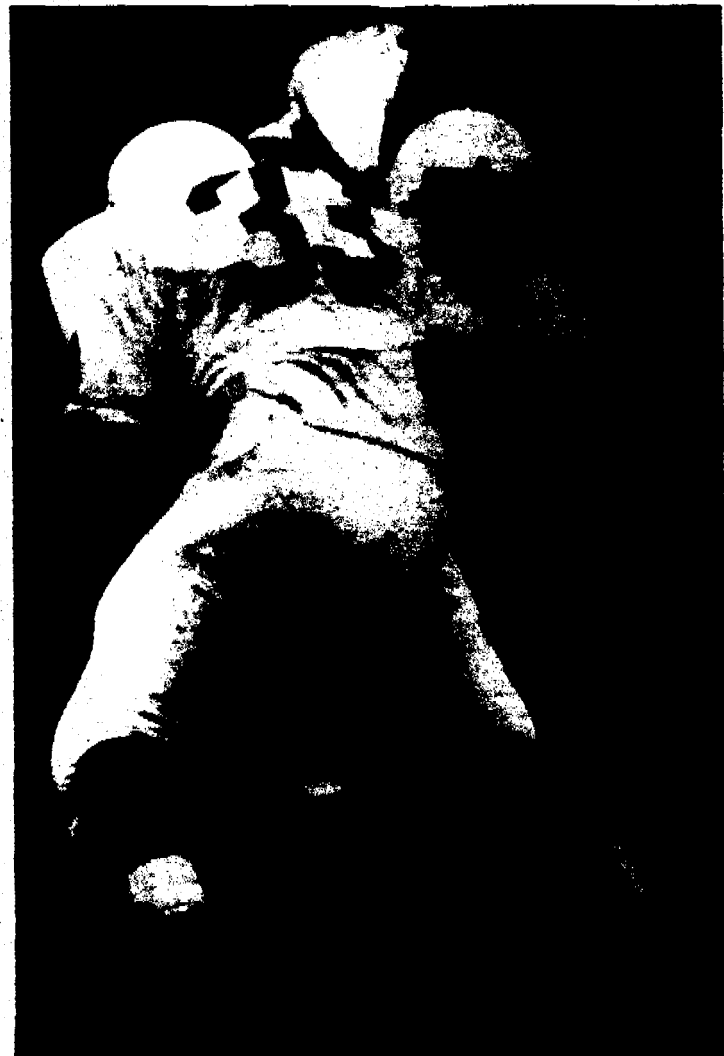

"We'll see how Friday night goes," Moshimer added. "And move on from there."

"This year we have a senior football team," said Moshimer. "This is their year -- there are a few juniors coming along but all the starters are seniors."

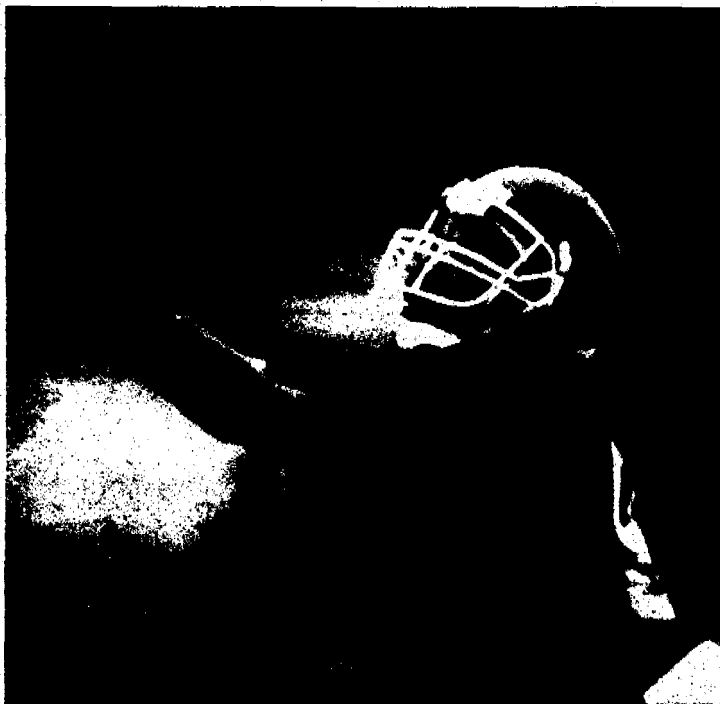

Lakes Division rivals who the Rocks have to look out for include Westland John Glenn (the Rockets), who are always tough, and much improved teams from North Farmington, Walled Lake Central and Farmington.

"We lost to both Glenn and North Farmington last year," said Moshimer. "And they'll be tough again this year."

Young Canton football squad counts on intensity

BY RITA DERBIN

Youth will be served this year at Canton.

The Canton High football team is looking for good things out of a young team, according to coach Bob Khoenle.

"The kids have good attitudes and have played with lots of enthusiasm and intensity in practice," the coach said. "We're a better ball club this year because the players are older."

The Chiefs finished 3-6 last year but did defeat cross campus rival Salem on the last day of the season to end last year on an up note. Canton finished third in the Western Division with a 2-4 record.

Several graduated players from year's squad will be missed, including full back Jimmy Young, split end Mark Barrette, defensive tackle Kevin Stackpoole, defensive tackle Billy Thams and Scott Swartzwelter who played linebacker and half back.

"We have quite a few players back," said Khoenle. "There are a lot back with experience at certain positions that will improve the team."

Leading the offense this year will be junior Kurt Wukie at quarterback with Brett Howell, also a junior backing him up.

"(Wukie) is a good one," said Khoenle.

Returning backs include junior Jason Riggs, and senior Brian Riggs. Others include juniors Liam Rentz, Chris James, Mike Wougamon and Shawn MacInnis and seniors Jeremy Rheault, Ron Groh and Ron Barlow.

Defensive ends include seniors Jason Dembny (also a back up quarterback), Jason Eby, Scott Hanes, Dave Makara and Chris Robinson; and juniors Gordon Gibbings, Jason Lee and Dave Cessante.

Tackles this year will be Brian Bartlett, a senior co-captain, Jeff Roch and Chris Lumsden, both seniors; and junior Mike Teller.

Centers will be junior Wayne Robinson and senior Max Corona.

Guards include senior co-captain Trond Darbey, Loius Poulos, Stan White, Jason Bielec and Josh Walaskay.

"We have a relatively young team," said Khoenle. "There's a big difference between a junior and senior players."

"The defense has to gel and come together in order for us to be contenders," Khoenle added. "They're relatively small but a good bunch of kids."

The Chief have also had good play out of the skill position players.

Canton will travel to Monroe on Friday (Sept. 1) and get an early taste of playing a good team.

"Last year they were one game away from making the Class A playoffs in the Silverdome," said Khoenle. "We have to play well with lots of intensity if we want to win...last year we lost 6-3 to them and had lots of turnovers which led to our downfall but we're better this year."

The Chiefs' first home game will be next Friday (Sept. 8) against Farmington at 7:30 p.m.

Canton hoopsters face challenges

BY MINAL HAJRATWALA

Canton High School's girls basketball team faces a tough opening season, but its coach is confident in the team's ability to meet the challenge ahead.

Preview 1989

CANTON

"We have the talent to have a good season," said Canton coach Bob Blohm. "But there are a lot of factors involved — will we stay healthy, will we work hard, will we work together well."

The team will start the season with a "nucleus of strong players" — five seniors and four juniors — returning, said Blohm.

"It is a competitive, hard-working group," said Blohm. "They work hard, they play hard; they are a very smart team."

He cites three "question mark" areas: defense, rebounding, and conditioning. "Those are areas we are trying to strengthen," Blohm said. "You have to be good in those areas to be a good team."

Seniors Susan Ferko, Stacy Thompson and Jenny Russell are expected to be strong contributors. Ferko, a strong rebounder, and Thompson, who plays point guard, were starters on last year's 19-2 squad. Russell, a versatile player, suffered an injury mid-year but is now fully recovered.

Two other seniors who will add to the team are Jenny Clark, who is "very much improved" and Kristen Halliday, a transfer senior from Utah who brings with her "a lot of skill," said Blohm.

The returning juniors are Mary Barna, Shannon Murphy, Julie Toma, and Kris Ford.

The first test of the team's skill will be on Tuesday, Sept. 5 against Trenton, which reached semi-finals last year. The 1987-88 Canton team made division and conference champs, but lost in the first game of district competition to cross-creek rival Salem High School.

Blohm did not want to predict how far the team will go this year, saying, "If we compete and improve with each game, for the play-offs we will be able to elevate that playing one level."

He continued, "Right now you just have to concentrate on the team being consistent throughout the 20 regular season games, staying healthy both physically and mentally."

Ramsay visits USSR

As one of 1,040 young athletes who toured Europe back in July, James Ramsay, playing forward for the TEAMS/USA Michigan 16-under Select Men's team, was then selected to play on one of the four TEAMS/USA Elite teams that also toured the Soviet Union.

Ramsay, of Plymouth, was among 69 TEAMS/USA players selected to be a part of the teams which played throughout the Soviet Union.

The tour, including seven days of training with Soviet coaches in Minsk, consisted of 11 soccer matches against premier Soviet youth soccer players.

The Elite teams finished the tour with a record of 5-5-1.

Life after Estey -- Salem regroups

BY RITA DERBIN

Is there life after Jill Estey?

The Salem High varsity girls basketball team will find out this season.

With all-conference star Jill Estey, and fellow senior Terri King, no longer on the team, the Rocks will have to look elsewhere for leadership on and off the court.

Preview 1989

SALEM

Four seniors may hold the Rocks together at the post position this season.

Captain Wendy Bailey, a five foot, eight inch second-year varsity player, Lydia White, at five foot, nine inch, Chris Simpson, five foot, eight inch, and Tracy Shough, also five foot, eight inches, will provide leadership and experience on the court according to Salem coach Fred Thomann.

"There's a hole left by those two (Estey and King), but the young players are going to be given an opportunity to fill those holes," said Thomann. "More girls are going to play this year."

"We'll ask more people to do more to make up for the loss of Estey and King," he added. "But we're not going to change our style that much."

The team will be looking to have an aggressive defense and offense, according to Thomann.

"Our plan is for the offense to push the ball ahead and get easy scores," Thomann said. "If that doesn't work we'll slow down and create opportunities and be successful in a half court offense."

The Rocks are developing a new team of young players that do not have much experience playing on the varsity level.

Working out can get intense as this photo of members of the Salem High girls basketball team attests. (Crier photo by Damon Smith)

Outside of the four seniors, the team will consist of juniors Sarah Ruete and Betsy McAllister, both forwards; sophomores Kelly Austin, a point guard, and Emily Giuliani, a post player.

One first year player also made the team. Yolanda Jackson is a five foot, nine inch forward.

"There's obviously a change in faces," said Thomann. "But there's a lot of last year's club is still with us with good game experience.

"Hopefully we'll have another great season," he added.

The Rocks were 18-5 last season, finishing 10-0 in the Lakes Division and winning their district title before falling in the regional competition.

There are no real surprises this early in the season for Rocks.

"The younger players have done a nice job getting ready for the season," said Thomann. "We've worked with them and given them the opportunity to play."

It's too early for Thomann to tell who will step forward and be the leaders on the team. There will be scorers and rebounders that will help the team, according to Thomann, but who they will be is a question mark.

"Sarah Ruete did quite well last year and we're looking to her for some scoring and playmaking," said Thomann. "Bailey and White should be the big rebounders and defensive guns -- they did a good job last year."

And several of the young players should excel on the court, according to Thomann.

"These girls have little or no varsity experience," Thomann added. "So it's too early to tell who will come out and surprise us but they're all capable."

Salem is looking forward to defending its perfect record in division play, but Thomann knows it will be difficult.

"We're shooting for 10-0 again this year -- that's our goal and we'll go from there," Thoman said. "But we should get some good competition from North Farmington and Livonia Stevenson. They're both improved from last year."

In the Western Division, Canton and Livonia Franklin should be contenders, according to Thomann.

The Rocks will host Mercy on Saturday, Sept. 9 with junior varsity action beginning at 6 p.m.

Kick and pass in contest

Look for the annual Punt, Pass and Kick contest, sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, again this fall.

The annual one-day event will be held on Saturday, Sept. 30 and is open to boys and girls ages eight to 13. It will be held at Canton's Griffin Park (Sheldon Road side).

Registration is set for that day at 9:30 a.m., followed by the competition at 10 a.m. Wear tennis shoes only; cleats are not allowed.

For more information call 397-5110.

Youth bowling begins

Back to school means Back to Bowling leagues at Canton's Super Bowl.

Fall youth leagues, and "bumper" bowling leagues, are being formed through the Canton Super Bowl and the Canton Parks and Recreation Department.

Registration day is set for Sept. 9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Super Bowl. The cost is $3. Youths can also register before that date.

Regular youth leagues run on most weekdays and include mixed trio, mixed four and mixed five. The bumper league is open to three to eight year olds. It runs for 12 weeks.

For further details call the Super Bowl at 497-4999 or the Canton Parks and Recreation at 397-5110.

Enjoy a home tour of six historic homes and buildings during this year's Canton Home Tour, sponsored by the Canton Historical Society.

The tour will take place on Saturday, Sept. 23 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Tickets are $7. A luncheon, to be served at the Cherry Hill United Methodist Church, will be available for $3.50.

Tickets may be purchased in advance at the Canton Historical Museum.

which is open Tuesdays and Saturdays, 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

The laundry piles are getting so high! Julie - where are you?

Rebecca - have you found your clesees?

Why do I feel that half my wardrobe is in Indiana?

To the guys on Wiggins St. - Ice cream IS better - just ask Julie's mom! (But don't ask Julie's dad!)

ARNES (March 21 - April 18): Don't be over confident because you feel you know everything. Sometimes things are hidden. Smile, you might be on Candid Camera.

Yes, John, my life is gossip!

Bob Jr. - I hope you're back to lots after slipping into your old habits during my visit. - Rita

Peggy - Is it time for them to come home from camp yet?

Chris D. Hey I miss you lots you Zeka, but if you send me those Upper Decks I'll think of you often...

George Alleen - Way to go!

Ruthie - It's your own fault that I don't have any "normal" pictures of you. Always the clown, aren't you? But I love you anyway.

After 4 years of "Chiefs Rule," it's going to be hard to say "Salem Rules!" Good luck Salem JV Soccer!

Bob Jr. Remember - get thx for the World Series & I'll be there if the Giants are! Why does The Thrill hit homers for you & not me?

Everyone is special at the Side Street.

See Big - Congrats on the new position at FOROCO. Hope to see before I am California bound. The Other Mailman

Hey Daddy "O", so this is your 50th year high school reunion. Do you mean to tell me that they had high schools back then.

From River Rouge to Detroit, to Grosse Pointe Park to Yucalpa, to Prescott, to Desert Hot Springs, and finally back home to Canton and St. Cecilia's. All that in 57 years. Dad, you're quite a load.

Hey Ag. Good luck at the University of Chicago, home of Red Grange and the Atomic Bomb. We love you and support you. Your nephomere side.

Julie - thanks for the letter. We miss you. - Love, Dad & Mom

Rebecca and Maricell are "roomies."

Kevin - what's "cooking" & Anything?

Congratulations Laine on being chosen for the Purcuse Show Chorus! The next step - BROADWAY!

TAURUS (April 20th - May 20th): Your dreams have positive meanings. The goals you are after are within your grasp but when you reach the top don't let anyone push you off. You can open your doors to allow fresh air in, just keep the safety chain on.

Mik - that's the best fish story we've ever heard!

JESSICA is a new philosopher. Nice rock you were sitting on.

Who was that cute "Little Missy" driving that grey pickup in Chelsea?

Fireplugs, salty skin, straw, hugs, & level 8 tattoos.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Wind down and relax, take a break for the holiday. Think on the future both for yourself and those close to you.

HI JANET! No, I will not race you when you finish. I picked up and sent your shot records Monday. We are winding down here and should get a break. Everyone says HI. Do those 15 or 25 pushups. Behave but don't take any guff. Love, Dad

SABINA from MaryAnn's Cafe is going back to France soon, stop in to say Au Revoir!

I wish Woodstock was for the whole month.

JON & SARA - back to school.

Janet - are you behaving yourself? Or are you acting like your Dad?

JACK WILCOX: you are so succinct about Fall Fest!

Rebecca - have you phoned home yet?

WANTED TO BUY: Old Jukeboxes, Slot Machines, Neon Signs, Cash Registers, Coca Cola Items, Gas Pumps, etc. CASH PAID. Evenings, 427-1221.

Johnny and Beth: Summer went too fast! Good luck in school this year.

Mom, one eye down, one to go. Good Luck! Sparky

RCD - Hope your 50 year reunion is everything you expect it to be. Have fun! Rita

Anne Hopper, congratulations on your promotion at F.O.A. Sparky and J.R.

Hey Big Daddy - Hope you enjoy coming home as much as I enjoyed visiting California. Hope you have a great vacation. Rita Sorry Sparky!

Kit, we'll have to go to more Tiger games before October. We're on a win streak!

Mom & Dad on Lotz Rd. I suppose you're too busy packing to read this... but see... I thought of you while I was typing Saturday!

Oh, Minnesota is a nice place but you should have come to Michigan - I'm looking forward to next year's reunion.
