

Substance use on rise at CEP?

BY TODD LANGTON

There have been 37 drug related incidents at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) since the beginning of the current school year.

"My gut level is it's probably a little bit higher," said Ken Jacobs, area coordinator at CEP, about the level of incidents this year as compared to previous years.

Although it appears that the level of drug related incidents may have gone up, the numbers may not actually indicate increased use, he added.

Recent changes in the school security department may account for the number of individuals caught with substances, he said.

"We now have a more consistent force," he said.

The number of incidents also includes one substance which many do not consider a drug -- alcohol.

"That 37 encompasses substances and we count substances as alcohol related," Jacobs said.

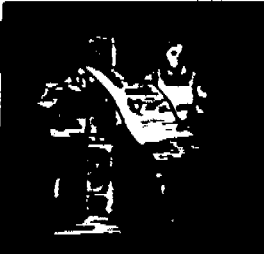

The incidents at CEP to this point have all involved alcohol or marijuana, he said.

Regardless of classification of substance, 37 incidents is still too high for Jacobs. "It didn't seem like there were that many," he said. "I was kind of surprised. We would like to see nobody involved with substances.

"We don't support the use of any substances here. That is why we have our policy structured the way that we

New day dawn$ for City campaign

BY TODD LANGTON

The events of the recent city election may have forever changed the face of campaign strategies, and coffers, of candidates who hope to gain a seat on the commission.

Several of the candidates, in the weeks leading up to the election, said they wanted to make sure the taxpayers got the most "bang for the buck."

Well, for the most part, those candidates who spent the most bucks during their campaigns got the biggest bang.

With two exceptions, the number of votes that each candidate received corresponded directly with the amount of money which each candidate spent during his campaign.

Jerry Vorva, who received the most votes in the election, spent approximately $2,000 during his campaign. Vorva bought 250 political signs, mailed literature to many absentee voters and had 500 "Vote Vorva" magnets produced.

Fund goes over the top

BY PATRICIA BROWN

Friendly competition between local service organizations, the Plymouth Rotary and the Plymouth Kiwanis, has pushed this year's Plymouth Community United Way fund campaign beyond its $475,000 goal.

Donations by the two groups put the fund drive over the top last week; this year's campaign total has already reached $477,286.

Plymouth Community United Way Executive Director Marie Morrow said, "The end product of their rivalry not only benefits the Plymouth United Way, but the community as a whole."

The money raised during the United Way campaign each year helps as many as 16 community organizations in the Plymouth-Canton Community Growth Works, the YMCA, First Step and the Senior Citizens Club of Plymouth are just a few of the organizations that benefit from the campaign.

Also contributing to this year's success were many local clubs, schools, local government employees and employees of the Industrial Division of the Ford Sheldon Road Plant. The Industrial Division recently exceeded its goal of $128,695. Employee and corporate contributions account for the division's success.

According to Richard Egli, this year's campaign chairperson, "While the drive has been successful, there are still some divisions working to reach their goals."

The divisions Egli is referring to are the community's business, professional and residential divisions.

Morrow said, "We're still looking to

After state soccer loss 'If onlys' haunt Salem

BY RITA DERBIN

About all Salem boys soccer coach Ken Johnson could say after Saturday's heartbreaking soccer game was that his athletes got "a nice runner up trophy."

Small consolation for the soccer squad. The Rocks thought they were the better team but they lost 1-0 to Troy Athens in the Class A state finals.

Dominating the game wasn't enough

-- a little luck would have been much better. Johnson said, "You know, it was great beating Stevenson and CC -- if only we could have used a couple of those goals today."

'If only' was on the minds of the players and the fans after Saturday's game -- If only the high scoring Rocks could get past Athens goalie Mark Slimak, who stopped shot after painful do," he added.

CEP policy requires that a first time substance offender receive a two day out-of-school suspension and a one day in-school suspension.

During the in-school portion of the suspension a substance abuse committee may interview the student in order to determine the level of use the individual has reached, Jacobs said.

A two time offender will be given an out of school suspension for a period of up to five days, he said.

If the parents and the student agree to participate in some form of counseling, he said, then the length of out of school suspension may be shortened.

A petition for expulsion will be requested for any student who commits a third offense, Jacobs said. An automatic petition for expulsion will be requested for any student found selling or distributing any illegal substances, he added.

So far only one student has been expelled for the distribution of marijuana at CEP this school year, said Jacobs.

"This is a cumulative policy," Jacobs said. "In other words, it doesn't start over year after year."

If a student is caught once in ninth grade, for example, and once in 11th grade then he or she has two offenses, he said.

The drug awareness and enforcement policy in effect at CEP has been recognized as one of the top 100 such efforts in effect in high schools throughout the country, said Richard Egli, the community relations spokesperson for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The school drug policy is there "to make sure that when we are aware of these situations that we deal with them," said Tom Tatten, principal of Canton High School.

The program integrates preventative and disciplinary elements as well as treatment methods for individuals if need be, he said.

Tatten said that security staff improvements have helped the situation. "I think we are doing a very good job through our security," he said.

Pat Nemecek, a Canton Police Department spokesperson, said that the department has been involved in 11 or 12 drug incidents at CEP.

He also said that, as the year has progressed, fewer and fewer offenses have occurred.

"Word is getting back into the schools that this is not going to be tolerated," he said.

Robbery suspect nabbed

BY TODD LANGTON

An 18-year-old Plymouth Township resident has been arrested and placed in the Wayne County Jail on felony firearm and armed robbery charges, according to Plymouth Township Police.

Kevin Brett Simmons was arrested last Wednesday at Salem High School for the alleged hold-up of a Hungry Howie's delivery person seven months ago, said Erik Mayernik, a Plymouth Township officer who investigated the case.

If convicted, Simmons could receive up to life in prison for the armed robbery charge, Mayernik said. Simmons is also charged with using a firearm during the commission of a felony, which carries a mandatory two year sentence, Mayernik added.

On May 3, Hungry Howie's received an order for a pizza which was to be delivered to a residence on Ridgewood Road near the corner of North Territorial Road, police said.

When a delivery person attempted to deliver the pizza to the residence, an individual who wore a ski mask and dark clothing jumped out of the bushes wielding a gun, said police.

The suspect then ordered the delivery person back into the delivery vehicle, police said.

Then the suspect entered the passenger side of the vehicle and ordered the delivery person to drive away from the scene.

The suspect took about $360 cash from the delivery person, ordered him out of the car, and drove away in the delivery vehicle, Mayernik said.

The vehicle was later located in the parking lot of a Methodist church on the corner of Ridge and North Territorial roads.

"That's all we had for a while," Mayernik said.

Recently, while investigating another armed robbery case, Mayernik contacted a witness who signed a statement indicating who had committed the robbery on May 3.

Mayernik then discussed the case with the prosecutors office and found that he had established probable cause.

"Based upon that, myself and Officer Jarvis went to the Salem High School where we arrested the suspect," Mayernik said.

Simmons was arraigned Thursday in 35th District Court in front of Judge John MacDonald, police said. Bond was set at $100,000, or 10 per cent cash.

The preliminary exam will be held Friday (Nov. 17) at 9 a.m. in 35th District Court.

Bila tapped as City mayor

BY PATRICIA BROWN

Before an audience of about 40 citizens Monday night, the City of Plymouth's newly elected commissioners were sworn in and a mayor and mayor pro-tem elected.

As had been expected Dennis Bila was unanimously retained as mayor. Commissioner John Vos III nominated Bila with Commissioner James Jabara seconding the nomination.

Bila originally became mayor back in August when Karl Gansler resigned.

Acting City Manager William Graham said, "I'm very very pleased to see the commission elect Dennis. He's been mayor since the first part of August and because of all the turmoil, he hasn't had much of a chance."

At a reception following the meeting, Bila said, "I'm glad to be elected by the group."

Commissioner R. Jack Kenyon, who was appointed mayor pro tem in August when Bila moved up to become mayor, was reinstated as mayor pro tem Monday.

In last week's election, Kenyon squeaked by former Commissioner Robert Jones by seven votes to finish in the fourth spot. He gained a two-year term.

"Jack has been a very good commissioner," said Graham. "He's sensitive to the community and to the other commissioners. He's a very good choice."

Big changes: Hillside becomes Ernesto's

BY PATRICIA BROWN

Slowly but surely, the Hillside Inn is becoming Ernesto's Italian Country Inn.

"We're in transition, as we speak," said Hillside owner Sam Messina Monday.

Indeed, painters worked over the weekend to add the new name to the face of the structure, located on Plymouth Road at the edge of Edward Hines Park. But at the same time the staff were still answering the phone, "Good evening, Hillside Inn."

Not only is the renowned Plymouth restaurant changing its name, but Ernesto's will begin exclusively serving Italian food.

The recent changes — they've been in the making for some time — came about after Messina hired Italian chef Ernesto DeMichele.

DeMichele, known to his staff as "the maestro," is the restaurant's namesake. At 74 he is a well known Italian chef who has worked in the Detroit metropolitan area for 45 years.

Messina, owner the Hillside for six years, said that he wanted to change the menu to accommodate the DeMichele's style and to give him more flexibility.

The new menu will include pasta, veal, chicken and fish dishes. Messina said, "The nicer Italian restaurants are known for their veal." He hopes that

Schools' fund on 'thin ice' Audit aftershock

BY TODD LANGTON

The Plymouth-Canton Schools Board of Education Monday received a 1989 year end financial report which revealed that the district's year end fund balance is significantly lower than the average fund balances of other districts throughout the state.

"We are skating on thin ice," said Dr. John Hoben, superintendent of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Tuesday in reaction to the report.

The report, prepared by Plante & Moran for the board, revealed that the district has a fund equity balance of only 3.6 per cent. The report states that in 1987-88, the state average fund equity balance (excluding Detroit) was 9.3 per cent.

That does not leave a lot of leeway in case of a financial emergency, said Lyle Algate, of Plante & Moran, during the meeting.

"You would certainly be better off to have a little bit larger cushion than that," he said.

Hoben said that it is important to have a fair sized fund equity balance in case some unforeseen occurrence requires that the schools spend a large sum of money.

Businesses usually like to have fund equity balances of around five to 10 per cent, he said.

The problem, Hoben said, is that the general fund equity as of June of 1989, which amounts to $1,974,000, is not all liquid.

Some of that fund balance consists of parts inventory, escrow accounts set up to pay the teachers during the summer and other such items, he said.

That means that the available cash flow of the schools is actually less than the amount indicated by the fund equity balance, he said.

"We are going to try to protect and

In Canton

Zoning changes expected

BY KEN VOYLES

Major changes in Canton's zoning ordinance text are expected to be approved by the Canton Board of Trustees at its next regular meeting on Nov. 28.

The revisions, which are being put together through the township's build up our fund balance as much as possible, Hoben said."

The school district is going to have to "be more prudent in expenditures" in the future in order to build the fund balance to a five or 10 per cent level, Hoben said.

"The fund balance is going to increase," said Raymond Hoedel, associate superintendent for business and operations in the school district.

The combination of the millage increase passed in June and cutbacks made over the last two years may help bring the fund equity balance back to a comfortable level in two or three years, he said.

As long as construction continues in the district and State Equalized Valuations (SEVs) continue to grow "we should be pretty good," Hoedel said.

Study eyes Canton road

A traffic study of Canton Center Road between Joy Road and Sheldon Center may focus on the possibility of reducing the speed limit along the roadway and adding a flashing light.

That's according to Pat Nemecek, Canton Police's community relations spokesperson, who also sits on the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Safety Committee.

Nemecek said the study, which will be conducted by Wayne County officials in the near future, comes after a student was injured in an accident three weeks ago near the entrance of Canton High School.

Nemecek added that that section of Canton Center Road had not been looked at since Sheldon Center was completed.

Community Economic Development office, will include a new zoning text and a revision of the zoning map to help regulate land throughout the township.

According to Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, the revisions will include some "major changes." A few of the areas to be revised include lot size, density levels and landscaping, he said.

"This is an on-going process, on-going since before I became supervisor," said Yack.

Originally, the board was to have considered adopting the changes at last night's meeting (Nov. 14), but Yack said the board had not had "adequate time to review the text."

Yack expects the board to consider the changes at the Nov. 28 meeting. He added, though, that changes will probably also be made after approval of the new ordinance text.

Canton officials have been moving rapidly to make the adjustments since January when the board of trustees met with the Canton Planning Commission. At that time the two groups concurred on some of the issues that should be incorporated into the zoning changes, said Yack.

Ernesto's will also become known for its veal dishes.

"When you walk away, you will be very pleased," Messina said.

Although the menu has changed, the restaurant still holds its country charm and warm atmosphere. "That's why we kept the Country's Inn part of the name. The charm and ambience of the old Hillside still remains," said Messina.

The Hillside Inn has been a part of Plymouth for 60 years. It was originally owned by the Stermich family.

In terms of people's reactions to the change, Messina said, "We're ready and the food is dynamite."

Boys are champs to community Team should feel proud

Despite losing the state title bout Saturday, the Salem High boys soccer team has every right to be proud.

And so do the residents of The Plymouth-Canton Community.

As tough as any high school team comes, the Rocks clawed their way to the state finals and almost came away with the community's third state soccer crown in as many years.

Back in 1987 the Salem girls kick squad won the Class A title and last year the Canton girls proved tops in the state by winning a shootout with Livonia Churchill for the state title.

This year it was the boys turn. The Rocks came within one goal of winning it all, and holding on to the title of "soccer capital" of Michigan.

The soccer squad capped a marvelous fall for Salem and Canton teams. Both schools saw their football squads put together outstanding seasons; and the cross country squads representing the Chiefs and the Rocks finished in the running at the state finals.

For many, Salem's soccer triumphs went unnoticed during the rise of the football teams, but it shouldn't have come as a surprise to most local sports fans.

Ken Johnson, who also coaches the girls, knows how to hold a team together, especially during the grueling battles that make up the post season.

Johnson's Rocks showed their mettle right up to the end, losing in the end on what may have turned out to be a bad call by an official. (Salem scored Saturday but had the goal called back because of an offsides penalty. Film later revealed, according to Salem boosters, that the official had made a mistake.)

Still, Saturday's state final showing by the Rocks can only leave a good taste in everyone's mouths, knowing that this community produces fine young athletes who excel not only on the field but in the classroom.

What more could you ask for?

City needs more Vorvas

EDITOR:

Hearty congratulations, Jerry Vorva, for your outstanding campaign and for ending up on top. You can be justly proud for having spoken the truth -- that there are too many department heads in our small city, drawing big paychecks for supervising very few employees.

May you always possess the physical strength and inner courage to continue in the pursuit of truth and maintain personal integrity as a member of the commission.

The voters have shown their displeasure with the "double-speak" attitude currently prevalent in the chamber -- say little and do nothing.

The waste of our tax dollar is way out of line in every department. This writer's monthly tax bill has increased $92 per month this year alone. Is there no end to how much tax is enough? What's worse is that we don't get the services we pay for. Just to cite one example, look at the lack of sidewalk repairs and tree trimming.

Let us hope that all on the new commission will put action where their mouths are and make the Plymouth residents proud of living not only in a unique town, but a safe and quiet one, with clean air and well maintained rail crossings.

We need more Jerry Vorvas at every level of government.

City receives bad advice?

EDITOR:

With regard to the Plymouth City Commission increasing millage to pay off a lawsuit, William Graham perhaps summed up this "bad situation" with his comments, "...the City made a lot of bad decisions. The city perhaps took some bad advice from its legal council that was handling this."

To pay off the $156,000 debt he stated, "one of the options is the so-called 'Court ordered judgment millage,'" i.e., take the easy way out, just charge the taxpayers!

I kept reading your article to review the other "options" which were made available to the commission. What about going after the city insurance broker for failure to offer wrongful discharge/discrimination coverage? Was this coverage offered and did the city decline in writing to purchase the coverage? If not, the insurance agents "errors and omissions" insurance could pay for this lawsuit.

"Bad advice from its legal council?" Attorneys carry errors and omissions insurance. Where was that option? If they gave us bad advice, why should we pay the tab?

Finally, if the above "options" are not realistic, perhaps the citizens of Plymouth should test the city's Public Officials Liability Policy. This coverage defends our city officials and pays damages for their failure to carry out their duties in a proper manner. It's their screw-up insurance.

There are options, I simply question the extent the city commission examined all these alternatives.

Thank you Graham

EDITOR:

I want to publically thank Barbara Graham for sitting in Susan Schneider's class while the R-rated movie, "Excalibur," was being shown.

I find it heart warming that a school board member is willing to take the time and cares enough about our youth to view this movie in a classroom setting.

It is obvious to me that Graham takes her appointed position seriously and can be counted on to be involved in the curriculum.

I do not agree with the use of R-rated movies and I am thankful Graham shows the courage necessary to inform herself of their use.

City haunt successful

EDITOR:

The 1989 Halloween season has passed, and Plymouth has again demonstrated why it is a great city to live and shop in. The Sunday and Monday activities during Halloween week were enjoyed by several thousand youth, without the tragic results experienced by other cities in our area.

Volunteers like the PACT/React Team, the Stu Rockafellow Amateur Radio Society assisted our extra complement of police officers. Society assisted our extra complement of police officers.

Individual store owners joined together to pass out treats, providing a safe atmosphere for children and concerned parents. And neighborhoods were well illuminated, assuring safe passage for kids of all ages.

As police chief, my job is made easier by the countless volunteers who maintain the tradition of quality events in our city. It is this spirit which makes Plymouth an ideal city to be part of.

Community reaches out to help those in need

EDITOR:

The response of our community with donations of food, clothing and monetary assistance after the recent disasters of Hurricane Hugo and the San Francisco earthquake were tremendous! The community reached out their hearts and their hands to other Americans when their need was their greatest and for this, the Salvation Army gives a warm thank you!

Major disasters, however, are not the only time when the community helps those in need. Each year, the Salvation Army has a Kettle Campaign where we have our bell ringers stand with kettles from Thanksgiving to Christmas. We have many, many people to thank for bringing this campaign together.

We would like to thank the Salvation Army Advisory Board, Plymouth Kiwanis, Plymouth Rotary, Plymouth Township Police, Plymouth Optimists, Plymouth Rock Lodge, Plymouth Knights of Columbus, Plymouth Police, Canton Civitans, American Yazaki, Plymouth Jaycees, Canton Rotary, Geneva Presbyterian Church, Sakem Honor Society, and the Salvation Army Corps.

Many more groups and individuals have expressed interest in volunteering even two hours of their time for this annual campaign.

The proceeds of the Kettle Campaign go directly to the underprivileged in the community. We are able to provide emergency shelter, food and clothing for those who would otherwise go without.

Again, we sincerely thank everyone who has come to the aid of those less fortunate than themselves in the past, and would like to encourage anyone who would like to make a difference in this world by volunteering to ring bells, stock pantry shelves, or donate their time in a number of ways, please contact the Salvation Army at 453-8480.

With heart to God and hand to man, I thank you for your generosity, and I thank God for the goodness in your hearts and wanting to share your good fortune with others.

Forest through the trees

By Todd Langton

With all due respect to the intelligence of the voters and the ability of the candidates chosen to lead this city over the next few years -- the citizens of Plymouth have made a big mistake by not returning Robert Jones to his commission seat.

The people who sat through commission meetings and watched Jones look out for the taxpayer's dollar, down to the last penny, were astounded by his defeat.

Most were astounded, after watching him serve the public in the best possible way, that he did not receive more votes than any other candidate.

Jones was no yes man.

He took every issue at face value and tackled it with the best interests of the citizens in mind.

That is not to say that the other commissioners did not act in that fashion. But at almost every commission meeting Jones had some small correction on the minutes of the previous meeting.

To some that may not seem very important, but in actuality his attention to detail was very important.

If he took the time to read every single word of what could sometimes be very, very boring text, then think of how much attention he paid to something that was of great importance to members of this community.

Think about it.

Whatever the reason the other commissioners rarely had amendments to the minutes of previous meetings.

Maybe they knew that they could depend on Jones to thoroughly look them over? Who knows?

Jones did not hesitate to ask the tough questions. If a question required a long and drawn out answer, so be it, as long as his concerns were addressed.

Jones is a quiet man, and unfortunately that may have cost him the election, but he is by no means timid. If a point needed to be raised or a question needed to be asked, he would do it.

Jones has the invaluable capacity of objectively viewing an argument from all angles, regardless of his feelings on the issue.

He and I once discussed an issue concerning a column I had written. Jones, for 20 minutes or so, very effectively took a viewpoint opposite to that of my own.

He then, after constantly confounding my arguments, proceeded to explain that he agreed with me but that he wanted me to see the argument from the other side.

The ability to objectively view both sides of an argument is a very rare commodity.

Jones is just that -- a rare and valuable commodity which the traders in this market, for some unknown reason, feel hasn't proved itself yet. Those who observe this market on a day to day basis realize that this is one stock which should stay in the Plymouth portfolio.

Just because among the candidates Jones is the newest member of the community does not mean that he does not have valuable contributions to make.

Those who invested in IBM in the company's early days are now smiling all the way to the bank.

One of the candidates who gathered enough votes to obtain a seat on the next commission actually said that he would rather have Jones on the commission than himself.

The worst thing is that Jones lost his seat by seven votes. So much for your vote not meaning anything.

That is not saying that R. Jack Kenyon, who beat Jones out by seven votes, is not deserving of re-election. Let's just hope that he gets out there and shakes things up if they need to be shaken.

The citizens of the City of Plymouth did not lose a politician when they removed Jones from the commission. If he were a true politician he would have bought all the signs and made all the promises.

Jones simply stated his case and hoped that was enough. Unfortunately, it wasn't.

When residents voted Jones out of office they lost a concerned resident who honestly tried to look out for the well being of this community.

Let's hope that he is not so disenfranchised with this community that he decides to refrain from all public service.

That, residents of the City of Plymouth, would be a great loss.

Let's support schools' mission

EDITOR:

American Education Week will be observed throughout our community, Nov. 12-18. Observance of American Education Week encourages citizens in communities across America to reaffirm their support for the mission of their public schools. In past years, observance of American Education Week has been noted in The Plymouth-Canton Community by strong support from the business and community organizations who have generously provided special projects for our students and teachers.

This year, again, the Mayflower Hotel has generously extended their support by pledging large red apples for the 800 teachers in our district. Additional activities being planned for the week include staff breakfasts, flowers, personal thank yous and souvenir pins.

'Times have changed' in City votes

said. "I would not be surprised if at the next commission race they would spend $2,000 to $5,000 dollars.

"This way you are going to see just how much" someone wants to serve on the commission, he continued.

Although Vorva did say that it is possible that someone who spent excessive amounts of money to gain a position which pays only $120 a year might have ulterior motives as far as future political positions are concerned.

Here comes exception number one.

John Vos III, who finished second, gave an early spending estimate of approximately $4,300 for his campaign.

The money went toward 125 signs, door knob hangers, printing leaflets, postage and newspaper advertising, Vos said.

"Times have changed," he said, referring to the campaign.

Vos said he knew which way the wind was blowing when he observed how the race went during the last Plymouth-Canton School Board of Education election.

"I think Jerry Vorva kind of set the pace," said Vos, who raised approximately $4,000 for his campaign during a fundraiser held in late September.

"I think more people will be using signs to gain recognition," Vos said.

Because of what happened to Robert Jones, Vos said, incumbents may have to campaign harder to keep their seats in the future, he said. "It was a clear indication that the harder you campaign, the better your chances of getting elected," he said.

James Jabara, who spent the third largest sum of money during the campaign, approximately $1,300, received the third largest number of votes.

Campaigning has "never (gone) to this extent in the 30 years that I've been here," Jabara said. The campaign events this year have "probably changed the complexion" of elections in the city, he said.

Although, if every candidate campaigns aggressively in the future, Jabara said, then no one single candidate will stand out in the crowd.

"The more signs the less effective they are," he said.

Here comes exception number two.

Incumbent Jones, who was defeated in his re-election bid, said he spent about $970 on his campaign. The majority of that sum went toward the printing and mailing of flyers.

Jones said the new trend may make it very difficult for some people to run for commission in the future.

The cost of running a campaign may be too great for some people, he said. "If that's the way it's going to be then that's the way it's going to be."

R. Jack Kenyon, the incumbent candidate who beat Jones out by only seven votes, said he spent approximately $600 during his campaign.

The funds went toward door hangers and mailings, he said.

"We are now into expensive elections," Kenyon said.

"I think it will be a trend," he added. "The Greg Greens and the Jean Morrows are going to be completely excluded.

"I think that these elections are going to be heavily influenced by major expenditures," he said.

"It's a shame. It will make someone like me think twice" before running for a seat, Kenyon said.

Jean Morrow, who received the sixth largest number of votes, said he spent approximately $375 on his campaign.

Morrow said he spent most of the money on the printing and mailing of leaflets, while some of the money went to newspaper advertising.

"That's their business if they want to spend $5,000," he said. "But I think it will deter a lot of people in the future.

"The ones that have lots of means will run," Morrow said.

Greg Green, who received the least number of votes, also spent the least amount of money during the campaign.

Green said that he spent less than $25 preparation for the election campaign.

High powered and expensive campaigns are not good for the city, he said.

"You can end up with not necessarily the best candidate.

"It's a shame that lawn signs can determine the outcome of an election," Green said.

Jones is a perfect example, he said. Jones did all the right things while on the commission "yet he is beat out by lawn signs.

"It's a catch 22," Green said.

A person wants to get on the commission to do good things, yet to get there one must compromise one's self, he said.

Green said he was just not willing to do that.

Canton Board plans cable meeting

The Canton Board of Trustees and members of the township's Cable Advisory Committee are tentatively set to meet in a workshop session Tuesday (Nov. 21).

According to Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, the meeting will be used to discuss an "issue that is important to Canton."

Committee members have been studying the township's cable agreement with the Omnicom Cable Company and will be making several recommendations to the board during next week's workshop, said Yack.

Frank McMurray, chairperson of the committee, was unavailable for comment on those recommendations.

P-C School Council worries about duplication

BY PATRICIA BROWN

As time goes by it is often easy to forget and take for granted those things that become too familiar.

The Plymouth-Canton Community School Council is an old friend to the school district, but members of that group are expressing concern that they may be overshadowed by more recently formed organizations.

With the creation of new schools support groups like, I Care, CREW and CAFE, members of the school council said they feel that the school board might forget about the organization.

Members of the school council expressed those concerns before the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education at a recent joint workshop discussion.

According to the president of the school council, Joan Noricks, the organization was created in 1972 when schools superintendent John M. Hoben wanted to increase community input about school issues.

"When it first started Dr. Hoben used citizens as a sounding board for new ideas," said Noricks. "He could tell whether or not he should pursue them."

At that time, Hoben appointed Flossie Tonda, a long time community volunteer, to develop the organization's by-laws and to have one representative either elected or appointed to the school council from members of each school's PTO.

Noricks said the school council has become concerned that the community group I Care may be duplicating the purpose of the school council. Both groups' major function is to distribute information about school issues and to involve more members of the community.

"If I Care goes with a representative from each building, then it seems we may be duplicating purpose," said Noricks.

According to I Care member Betty Bloch, I Care has a broader function and is concerned with involving all residents of the community, even those who don't have children attending school.

On the other hand, the school council is concerned with involvement from those residents who are parents of school children, said Noricks. She also said that unlike I Care, the school council was formed at the request of Hoben.

School board president, Dean Swartzwelter, explained during the session that the two organizations are equally important to the district.

Board member David Artley suggested that the two organizations should sit down together and see if they could help one another, since they both strive to achieve the same overall goals.

Bloch said, "We in no way, shape or form intend to take over the role of the PTO council. We would like to enhance their role and to broaden it and unify the district."

According to both Noricks and Bloch, anything is possible. They both agree that the problem between the two organizations is communication.

Caruso comes to life for Canton man

BY KEN VOYLES

If John Zaretti has his way a lifesize bronze statue of Enrico Caruso will be unveiled at the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Sunday.

Zaretti, a Canton resident and executive director of the Verdi Opera Theatre of Michigan, helped recently form the Statue of Enrico Caruso Society, the group which is making the Caruso statue a reality.

The statue, a work by sculptor Ferenc Varga, depicts the world famous tenor in the role of the Duke of Mantua in Giuseppe Verdi's opera "Rigoletto." It will be revealed to the public at a ceremony on Nov. 19 before a concert by Verdian baritone Sherrill Milnes.

John Zaretti, executive director of the Verdi Opera Theatre, is seen here holding the statue of famous opera singer Enrico Caruso. (Crier photo by Chris Farina)

"It was our idea to commission this statue in honor of Caruso," said Zaretti. "We contacted Orchestra Hall and they liked it."

Caruso once sang at Orchestra Hall in 1919, according to Zaretti, a Canton resident since 1979.

Born in Parma, Italy -- home also of Verdi -- Zaretti emigrated to the United States in 1956. Today he is vice president of Central Holiday Tours, Inc., which is considered one of the major Italian tour outfits. His wife Susan is a teacher in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district.

Zaretti's love of music, especially Verdi, inspired him to host a radio program with a friend, Dino Valle, shortly after moving to the area.

The pair later formed the Verdi Opera Theatre of Michigan in April, 1988. The group has since remained dedicated to the preservation and education of opera (especially Verdian opera) through education, concerts, workshops and intimate dinner operas.

One of the group's major efforts is exposing high school students to opera and Verdi, Zaretti said, through presentations at their schools.

"We're available for other groups as well," he added.

There are only four or five members of the Verdi currently, but they have sponsored Verdi concerts and are currently concentrating on raising funds for the Caruso statue. About $10,000 is still needed, said Zaretti.

"We try to encourage a love of music and opera," said Zaretti, who added that his cause has been helped somewhat by the great success of "Les Miserables."

"I don't think of this as high culture, but as music," Zaretti said. "It's the development of human knowledge and human development."

Zaretti said the opera group's future goal is to expand its membership and introduce even more local people to Verdi.

Tell it to Phyllis

By Phyllis Redfern

Football is a great sport. It is wonderful to see more and more women at the games and watching the game on TV.

Growing up with two brothers and a dad who loved football, baseball and basketball, I had no choice but to learn to love them too.

I could hit a softball through a bathroom window, leap in front of a neighbor's car (unfortunately it was in gear -- but fortunately it was barely moving) to catch a football, and I can't remember doing anything exciting with a basketball.

I wasn't exactly what you would call one of the star players in the neighborhood, but I was Bob and Dick's sister so the kids put up with me. We all got along pretty well -- until someone wanted to change the rules in the middle of a game.

I still enjoy watching the games with my brothers. In fact, we try to go to at least one baseball and one or two football games each year.

When we were little, going to Detroit to a baseball game was a big deal, especially because my brothers got to go to the game with dad and I got to go shopping and visiting with my mom and aunts. (I still don't like shopping any better now than I did then). We lived in Lansing so we grew up going to Michigan State football games. We didn't have season tickets, but the company dad worked for did, so we got to go once or twice a year.

Of all the sports, I think college football is my favorite. It is fun to be in a crowded stadium cheering for the MSU Spartans. It doesn't matter if you're with a little group or a big group, you can always get into the spirit of the game.

This year I only had the opportunity to go to one game. We sat in the freezing rain and wind last Saturday and watched MSU beat Minnesota. It was one of those family events so my brother, my niece, my cousin, her daughter, her boyfriend, my son and I all caught colds together.

It may have rained during the whole first half, but that didn't scare us off and even though the wind started when the rain stopped, we stayed to the very end. It was a good game (at least the fourth quarter).

As the next generation grows up and enjoys sports, it is nice to see as many females as males at the games.

The Canton Chapter of the Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women (BPW) recognized Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit as its annual "Employer of the Year."

The award, accepted by Senior Vice President Thomas Fisher, was given due to demonstrations of several principles and practices which support the mission of the BPW, according to Rosemary A. Kosovac, Chairman of Employer of the Year Committee at the BPW.

Some examples of the support are benefit programs which include parental leave policies and opportunities for educational grants.

The BPW will nominate the Bank for the State award in early 1990.

I Care, Council

Bloch said that the members of I Care discussed bridging the communications gap between the two organizations when members of I Care met last Wednesday.

Neither organization is sure, though, how the two will be able to help each other.

Some of the issues that the school council has dealt with in the past include reading curriculum, discipline in the classroom and the MEAP test. Noricks added, "Things that deal directly with our kids."

Bloch said that it's important to make it clear that I Care and the school council are on friendly terms.

Noricks agreed and said that both organizations want the same thing -- what is best for the school district.

Community Band serves up

Holiday concert

The holiday season will be starting off on a musical note this year.

The Plymouth Community Band will be performing its Holiday Concert on Friday (Nov. 17) and Dec. 8 at 8 p.m. in the Canton High School's Little Theater.

Residents are invited to enjoy the program which is to feature the "Festive Overture" by Dmitri Shostakovich, "the New England Symphony" by William Schuman, selections from "Funny Girl," and a performance of the "Grand Serenade For An Awful Lot Of Winds And Percussion" by P.D.Q. Bach.

Admission is free to both performances.

The Plymouth Community Band, under the direction of Carl Battishill, is a volunteer organization which welcomes all musicians to join. If interested call Battishill at 453-5334.

Open house set

The Christmas spirit will be in the air on Friday and Saturday (Nov. 18-19) as the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce sponsors a Holiday Open House throughout downtown Plymouth.

The downtown businesses will be offering sales on Nov. 18-19 to kick off the holiday shopping season. Those stores participating in the event will have red ribbons on their doors.

Take advantage of the sales from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Craftily speaking

The annual Christmas Arts and Crafts show, sponsored by the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department, will be held on the weekends of Nov. 24-26 and Dec. 1-3.

Each show will feature more than 75 different crafters. Admission and parking are both free.

The show hours are from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays and noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

For further information, call the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department at 455-6620.

Turning on the lights in Canton

With only 34 shopping days before Christmas, the Canton Chamber of Commerce is ready to light up your life.

All businesses in Canton are encouraged to participate in the Canton Holiday Lighting which is to take place this evening (Nov. 15) at 6:30 p.m.

Joan Bolek, of the Canton Chamber, said, "The purpose is to create a pleasing image for Canton."

The participating businesses are being asked to decorate only those trees between the curbing and the sidewalk with non-flashing, white lights to create a uniform look throughout the township.

The intent is to attract viewers of the lights to Canton who will then utilize the businesses while they are in the area.

The McDonald's restaurant on Ford Rd. in Canton is acting as the base for all the businesses and will throw the switch at exactly 6:30 p.m.

Getting down to business

Broder Bros expand operations into Twp.

BY ANDREA WATTS

"We are 10 times as big as we were when I started here seven years ago," said Todd Turkin, vice president of Marketing at Broder Bros., a wholesale distributor in Plymouth Township.

Turkin said the company moved from its small Oak Park location to the larger Plymouth Township setting this past September in order to accommodate for the increase in products they carry.

"We widened our line this past year," said Turkin who also predicts a further expansion in the upcoming year.

Broder Bros., with approximately 107 employees, supplies about 15,000 companies nationwide with sportswear such as sweatshirts, pants, hats, and tote bags.

The company also has customers in Canada, West Germany, England, the Netherlands, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Columbia.

The company was begun by Max and Louie Broder in 1919 when they opened a wholesale hosiery outfit.

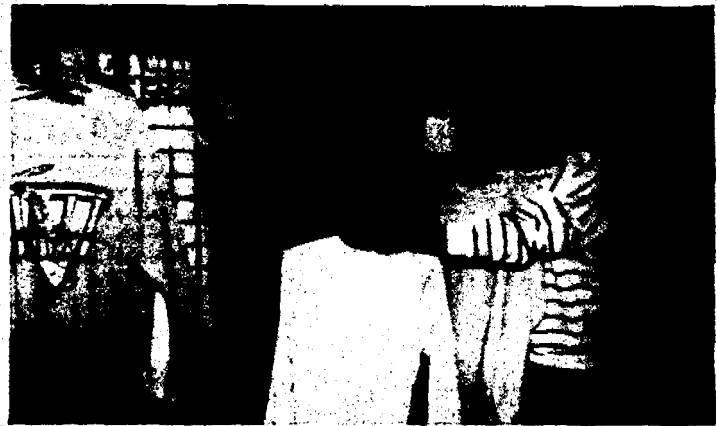

Owner Harold Brode, 61, took over the presidency of the company from his father, Jack, who bought Broder Bros. in 1955 with a coincidentally close last name.

The new, modern location has an 80,000 square foot distribution center with a 28 foot high ceiling, and a "super flat floor," according to Turkin. He explains that the floor is, "perfectly, absolutely flat," in order to accommodate the very sophisticated hi-los costing in the area of $65,000 each.

The hi-lo drivers don't even have to steer the machines since there is a guide wire for the hi-los to follow down every row in the warehouse. Turkin said that this process makes the job of loading and unloading the ceiling-high shelves much easier and efficient.

A conveyor belt which runs through the entire length of the distribution center assists in the speed and accuracy of order shipments.

"Right now we ship six to seven thousand orders a day and we want to continue to grow," said Turkin.

Batch plant to be removed by Jan. 1

BY KEN VOYLES

A concrete batch plant at the center of a zoning dispute in Canton may be removed by the end of the year, according to township officials who are currently preparing documents to take the owner to circuit court.

The use of the batch plant by owner Ed Bretzlaff is a non-conforming industrial use on land zoned for commercial use, said township officials. Such a use is prohibited by township zoning ordinances, they said.

Bretzlaff, who said the batch machine has been on the property for 20 years, is now apparently willing to remove it voluntarily by Jan. 1.

"We're prepared to go to circuit court," said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack. "But we want to talk to George (Bradley) before we do that and let him know that Ed has volunteered to remove it by Christmas."

Bradley, who lives next to the batch operation on Canton Center Road, first brought the non-conforming use status of the operation to the township's attention.

According to Yack, Bradley said he was "comfortable" with the Jan. 1 date. Bradley was unavailable for comment on the agreement.

Yack added that if "we believe Ed is a man who has some credibility" the

Wilcox revisions will be ready in December

BY PATRICIA BROWN

Plans for the proposed Wilcox House development remain on hold following last Wednesday's meeting of the City of Plymouth Planning Commission.

The development project wasn't even discussed, according to Planning Commission Chairperson Doug Miller.

"We're being real cooperative with the architect," Miller said. "They are reworking the plans and changing the elevations from an architect's stand point."

According to Miller, the elevation changes he is referring to are being reworked to make the apartment buildings conform to the shape and form of the Wilcox house. "So that it doesn't strike you as a big square building," said Miller.

The project architect, Ilio Alessandri, said that the first two stories, of the two five-story apartment buildings, will be projected out from the face of the structure to break up the visual effect a five story wall creates.

The necessary changes being made to the design of the development won't be ready for revision before the planning commission until next month's meeting on the second Wednesday of the month (Dec. 13), said Miller.

Panel discusses education woes

BY TODD LANGTON

Four prominent local figures spoke their minds on subjects ranging from the future of education and the environment to an outlook on social and moral standards into the next decade at the Plymouth's First Presbyterian Church on Saturday morning.

Dr. John Hoben, superintendent of the Plymouth-Canton Schools, Richard Kaufman, Plymouth Township resident and chief judge of the Wayne County Circuit Court, Carl Pursell, U.S. Congressman (R) for Michigan's 2nd district and Reverend Dr. Charles MacDonald, parish associate of the Kirk in the Hills Parish, held a panel discussion concerning the future of the future at a church Men's Club Breakfast.

Hoben started the panel discussion by tackling the issue of education.

He broke right into the conversation by saying that the system needs to be totally transformed.

The school year in other countries is 240 days long as opposed to 180 days here, he said. "I think we baby our kids," he said. "I think we need to totally redesign the curriculum.

"We need to teach kids how to learn as opposed to facts and figures" if they are to succeed in today's highly competitive job market," he said.

Hoben also cited a lack of credibility on the part of the state legislature as a part of the problem in funding education.

State school funding out of the general fund has been raised only $1 million over the last 19 years, Hoben said. "They played games with the lottery monies. They still haven't been able to get past that particular issue."

Because of this Hoben said he sees some big changes ahead for the entire education system.

"I think you are going to see a county wide (school) system in the next ten years," he said.

"Education should be the highest priority in this country," Pursell said. "It is not."

Time runs out for Salem's kickers

shot.

If only, indeed.

The entire Salem team had been dreaming about the finals all year and could only watch as time ran out on their incredible 18-4-1 season.

After the game most of the players sat by themselves, lost in in their thoughts. It was an especially tough loss for the seniors who won't be back next year to prove they were the best team.

"I'm really happy about how far the team went," said goalie Matt Tudor, who gave up one goal too many in his record-breaking career at Salem. Tudor had 20 shutouts to his credit -- 14 of them this year -- and probably would have traded them all for a shutout on Saturday.

"The game was very disappointing at first," said Greg Christensen, who was the most visibly upset player after the game. "But after a couple days it sunk in what an awesome accomplishment it was to make it to state.

"During the slump, everyone was playing for themselves," he added. "But then the team came together -- our nickname was 'the family' -- and we really played well. It's been a tremendous experience."

Matt Gold was a little sad.

"That was my last high school game. It didn't hit me until much later that that was it," he said. "We didn't win but we got there. A victory would have been great but we had a great team and lots of good times getting there."

"It was a real special season for me," said Bill Joker, who thought up the idea that the team should be a family. "My last season -- and to go that far. The best part of the season was the wins and getting to the finals -- just being involved was something else.

"It really hasn't hit me yet that my high school career is over," Joker added. "It'll be weird walking down the halls and seeing the guys and knowing I won't see them in practice."

"I never thought I'd say this," said Chris Olson. "But in a few days I'm going to start missing practices and I'll really miss the games and being with the team. We had our arguments early in the season but we got over them and really played well together."

"It's real upsetting now," said Jeff Gold. "But when we look back we'll see what a great year we had. We should hold our heads up. We didn't get the breaks in the game but we're still the best team Salem ever had. We went farther than any other team. We'll go down in history."

As players made their way back to their bus for the long ride home, Joker reached up and took a poster off a wall. "I'm getting some momentos of the game," he explained.

The seniors will get over their disappointment and have a lot of memories to take with them when they leave Salem -- most will probably pursue soccer in college.

And the rest of the team? They'll be back.

Yrlola needed to 'let go' PSO outshines guest artist

BY CHERYL SZYNISZEWSKI

Sometimes it's hard to sit through a piece of music you don't particularly enjoy. At those times you look for other interesting aspects of the music and reasons you don't normally think about to assist you in the appreciation of a performance.

During those times the featured performer can make all of the difference in the world.

For Friday's concert the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra (PSO) program featured music from the Romantic era. Although the works were all from the same period the styles were dramatically different. Under the baton of Russell Reed, the guest artist, Tapani Yrlola, was outdone by the PSO.

Perhaps Friday was a bit unusual, but after walking from the far end of the parking lot and fighting their way through the crowd gathered in the Salem High hall during the Western Lakes Activities Association swimming meet, most of the concert goers seemed anxious to relax and become involved in the music.

So, when the opening strains of Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas Overture" muffled the hallway noises with its regal sound it appeared all was well. But alas, that wasn't the attire laid out for the evening.

After a thoroughly enjoyable and uplifting opener, violinist Yrlola needed to be at his best to continue with the established pattern. He wasn't.

Yrlola's interpretation of Jean Sibelius' "Violin Concerto" was interesting at times but not overall impressive. Occasionally Yrlola displayed an expressive quality that hinted at the meaning he is capable of conveying but he never carried it through.

Because Sibelius' works can feel very bold it takes great skill to carry out that effect and still convey an ardent feeling, the tender and sentimental quality the program notes discussed.

When Yrlola hadn't totally succeeded in wooing his audience after two movements a few concert goers left, while others felt an unresolved tension.

Yrlola had obviously studied the works of Sibelius and knows them technically. He just needed to let go a little more in his recent performance and allow the emotion to surface.

Thankfully, Reed has worked wonders with the orchestra. Their performance of Brahms' "Symphony No. 4 in E Minor" was excellent.

After battling the crowds once more at intermission, the audience got a performance worth staying for. Throughout the work thematic material flowed from section to section matched in tone and color.

Dynamic levels were well differentiated and evenly matched among the sections. From the blaring fanfares to the ardent melody and on into the robust harmonies, the orchestra showed it was capable of tackling it all, and inspiring the audience.

So, it wasn't so bad when the concert and swim meet ended about the same time. It made the hall and parking lot easier to handle.

Concrete mixer will go

machine will be removed and the issue settled by the end of the year. He said the township has a verbal agreement with Bretzlaff.

"If we have to go to court we'll do it," said Yack, who added that he believes the zoning dispute can be resolved without legal action on the part of the township.

Bretzlaff, who owns C & J Construction Company, was first ticketed for having the two-story concrete mixer on his property earlier this year.

The case was dismissed in 35th District Court in August after Bretzlaff agreed to make other changes on the property and after he said the machine had been on the grounds for years.

According to Bretzlaff, who has said he felt harassed by the township and his neighbor, the troubles over the machine started when he stood it up last fall. Before that he claimed it had been on the property laying on the ground.

Bretzlaff was also unavailable for comment on the agreement.

Information night planned

The confusion over financial aid qualifications and procedures can be reduced by attending a Financial Information Night on Nov. 15 from 7-9 p.m. in the Salem High School Library.

aid officer will speak of other options of financing school beyond high school.

If interested in attending, call Guidance and Counseling Department at CEP at 451-6600, ext. 219. Prior reservations are not necessary to attend.

Panel talks education, environment

PG. 13 THE COMMUNITY CRIBER: November 15, 1989

and the possible future integration of European economies through lowered trade barriers, Pursell said he sees education becoming a very strong priority in the future.

The priority level of education, on state and federal levels, has dropped over the years due to increasing financial needs of social services, prisons and other factors, he said.

One major factor which takes $180 billion right off the top of the budget every year is the federal deficit, Pursell said.

Some $180 billion in interest payments every year is incurred by the level of the federal deficit, he said.

As a result, the state legislatures will have to decide whether education will be a high priority or not, he added.

Pursell said he does have hope that strengthening relations between the U.S. and the Soviet Union will eventually allow for decreased military spending, creating more dollars for education.

Kaufman addressed the problem at more of a nuts and bolts level.

"In many of the public school systems there is either not a big enough connection or there is no connection between the quality of a teacher's work and that teacher's promotion or advancement in the district," he said.

"I think someone's performance is affected by whether or not what they do is going to affect, not only how they are promoted, but whether or not they keep their job," Kaufman said.

On the environmental front Hoben said, "I think the children are more sensitive to it than the adults.

"Michigan is probably ahead of a lot of other states, but we still have a long way to go," Pursell said.

He added that the U.S. is far ahead of other countries in terms of environmental awareness.

The panel continued by discussing the decline of morality and the growth of new ideals in society.

The discussion ended with a comparison of one possible version of the 1990s to the 1960s.

Stopped cold! Rocks fall in finals

BY RITA DERBIN

"We know who the better team is!" Bundled against the November chill, one fan voiced his frustration as the Salec part of the crowd at Bloomfield Hills Andover emptied their seats.

And then everyone knew it was over -- the Salem boys soccer team (18-4-1) had lost to Troy Athens, 1-0, Saturday in the Michigan Class A state championship game.

The Redhawks ruined the Rocks' shot at their first boys title when they scored the game's only goal less than 10 minutes into the contest, on what members of the Salem team called "a lucky break."

John Farley, the Redhawks' top scorer, got past sweeper Jake Baker and goalie Matt Tudor for the lone goal of the contest.

Baker hesitated and the ball dropped between him and Tudor, according to coach Ken Johnson. Farley got there a second before Tudor and put it past him. "It wasn't a good goal but it went in," Johnson added.

If Athens got a lucky break, the Rocks had no breaks at all.

"Things were going against us from the start," said Johnson. "The field condition wasn't great after two games, it rained a little and the field was slippery, and the smaller field took us out of our game. But Athens is a great team. They really made us work."

Salem appeared to have opportunities but was turned back every time.

With 13 minutes to go in the half, midfielder Greg Christensen scored what appeared to be the tying goal but it was called back after the linesman ruled Christensen was offsides.

"I saw the tape," said senior forward Chris Olson. "We got a bad break on their goal and a bad call on our goal. The goal was in. It was good, but what can you do? That was the same linesman who called back a couple of our goals earlier in the season. It's tough to have the title decided on a bad call."

Senior midfielder Bill Joker added to the sentiment. "We just never got any breaks, they got one break and we got zero," he said. "That was the game."

After that, the Redhawks' big, strong defense, and goalie Mark Slimak, kept the Rocks at bay.

"I have to say (Slimak) made some great plays -- he must have saved five to 10 shots that would have went in against anyone else," said junior defender Chris LaJoy. "We played a great game but the breaks weren't there. We have a great team and I think either team out there could have won."

"What made the loss so tough was that the boys felt they were the better team -- they dominated the game," added Johnson. "What will take the sting out of the loss, however, is knowing that we made it through the toughest regional in the state and beat Stevenson and Catholic Central on the way to a great season."

"We were one of only two team who made it to the finals," said Tudor. "We played great but it's tough not winning..."

On Wednesday the Rocks advanced to the finals by beating the Portage Northern Huskies, 4-0.

Andy Cosenza, starting in place of 30-goal scorer, Jeff Gold, led Salem with two goals and one assist. Cosenza scored the first two Rock goals. Assists were given to Ryan Fitzpatrick and Joker. Joe Nunez came off the bench to score late in the first half with an assist by Cosenza to make the score 3-0 at the half.

The Huskies could not penetrate the Rock defense and Salem added another goal by Christensen from Chris LaJoy to make the final 4-0.

In the game, Tudor recorded his 14th shutout of the year before being replaced with 15 minutes left in the game. Backup Nick Dazar preserved the shutout.

Above, Christensen raises his arm in triumph after apparently scoring for the Rocks. The goal, however, was called back. Right, after the game Christensen sadly contemplates the end of Salem's glorious season. (Crier photos by Chris Farina and Eriq Lukasik)

Unlikely pair led Rock kickers in '89

PG. 25 THE COMMUNITY CRIER: November 15, 1989

BY RITA DERBIN

The Rocks had an unlikely pair of co-captains this year -- one that saves and one that kills. Together they helped accomplish what no other Salem boys soccer team has ever done before them.

Matt Tudor recorded 14 shutouts this season and closed out his career with 20. Jeff Gold scored 30 of his 46 career goals this year along with 18 assists. All are school records.

The two 17-year-old seniors also led a talented group of young men to probably the most memorable moment in their high school careers.

They were leaders, they were friends and they were part of a big family.

"It was kind of scary when we lost three games in a row, tempers were flaring and nothing was going right," said Gold. "But after the Stevenson loss we came together as a family and played like a team and things turned around."

Tudor added that the team started focusing on their goals after their three-game slump was over.

"We were taking everything too seriously at first," he said. "After the losses we decided to have fun. That's when the wins started coming."

Gold and Tudor, along with many of their teammates, have been playing together for years. Their friendship and their love for soccer got them to the state finals.

"The team is more than guys who practice together," said Gold. "We're real close friends -- we've been dreaming of the finals since we were freshmen and we made it. I'll never forget this year. It's been one memory after another."

"We're not just on the same team," Tudor added. "We all go out and do things together. We had such a good attitude all season that even when things weren't going well we knew it would come and it did. We always knew we were good enough."

Gold has real "family" on the team. His twin brother Matt is a teammate, and his younger brother Mike is on Salem's junior varsity squad.

"Matt is our unsung hero, he never gets much press but he's been a great help to me," Gold said. "I've practiced and played with him my whole life -- that's why we play so well together. We're also great friends."

Tudor's best friends on the field this season were the defense.

"They made my job easy, there's no doubt we had the best defense in the state," Tudor said. "They worked hard all year and never let down. We knew that if we scored two goals we would win because the defense would just shut the other team down."

Both Gold and Tudor have played since they were about five years old and both actively play soccer year-round.

Gold, who is also a guard on the Salem basketball team, manages to squeeze indoor soccer in during basketball season and plays club soccer in the spring.

Tudor has always been a one-sport player. "My mom got me into soccer because she didn't want me playing football -- she thought it was too dangerous," said Tudor. "And ever since then she's supported whatever I wanted to do when it came to soccer."

Gold, a Plymouth resident, would love to play soccer in college but that's not a priority. "Number one for me is a good medical school," said the student averaging better than 4.0 in his classes. "If I can play soccer too, that would be great."

Tudor, who lives in Canton, thinks he has a good shot at a soccer scholarship somewhere but hasn't looked into all the possibilities yet. All he knows is that he wants to play soccer a little longer.

Though their high school careers are over, Tudor and Gold will long be remembered at Salem as part of the "family" that left behind a winning soccer legacy in the 1989 season.

To win hoop title Chiefs dump Rocks

BY RITA DERBIN

The Chiefs played a solid game and were rewarded with the Western Lakes Activities Association conference title.

"The conference title was one of our goals this year," said Canton coach Bob Blohm. "We're pleased to be division and conference champs and are looking forward to our second season."

Canton girls basketball team defeated Salem, who won the Lakes Division, 54-39, on Saturday in the championship game.

Canton lead 11-6 in the first quarter and 25-17 at the half but in the third quarter Salem cut the lead to three points before Canton started rolling to a 19 point quarter.

"I think both teams got tired in the third," said Blohm. "But we played a solid fourth quarter after having a lead."

Canton's Stacey Thompson and Susan Ferko led all scorers with 17 points each. Jenny Russell (eight) and Christyan Halliday (seven) also pitched in for Canton.

"Halliday really gave us a spark," said Blohm. "She put in a couple long jumpers to give us a 12 point lead at one point."

Ferko also had a good game off the boards. She brought down 13 rebounds while Thompson chipped in with eight. Russell, who was 8-10 from the free throw line, had five assists and four steals in the game.

"Canton has an awfully good team," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "Their seniors really stepped out and had a great game. We hung with them for a while but then they took over."

Sarah Ruete was Salem's top scorer with 13 points. She was followed by Darcy Miller (nine) and Yolanda Jackson (seven).

Both teams will be at Northville in the districts tonight. Salem will face Livonia Stevenson at 7 p.m. and Canton will face the winner of the Ladywood/Northville game at 8:30 p.m.

In WLAA swim finals

Canton 3rd, Salem 4th

BY RITA DERBIN

There was only the smallest margins between second and fourth but neither the Canton or Salem swim teams could get a second-place at the conference meet on Saturday.

North Farmington won the meet with 438 points. They were followed by Northville (357), Canton (355), Salem (348) and Livonia Stevenson (293).

For the third-place Chiefs: Nicole Drake was fourth in the 200-yard freestyle race (2:00.53) and second in the 500-yard freestyle (5:17.68); Cassie Cummins was sixth in the 200-yard individual medley (2:19.67) and third in the backstroke (1:03.90); Becky Hoisington took fourth in diving (327.25 points) and teammate Amy Kodrik was sixth (312.70 points); Chris Lang was fifth in the butterfly (1:03.42); and the 400-yard freestyle relay team of Kelly Rische, Jeni Cooper, Drake and Janet Roberts was fourth (3:51.34).

For the fourth-place Rocks: the medley relay team of Cheri Vincent, Amy Austin, Andrea Alex and Kristin Stackpole finished second (1:55.51); Vincent was first in the backstroke (1:01.95); Carrie Vanderweele was sixth in the backstroke (1:06.64); Stackpole was fourth in the breaststroke (1:12.16), Austin was sixth in the breaststroke (1:13.81) and the 400-yard freestyle relay team of Candi Bosse, Jane Seidelman, Julie Hickey and Nicole Bosse was sixth (3:51.34).

Both the Canton and Salem teams will be represented in the state meet. Preliminary races will be at 2 p.m. on Friday at Eastern Michigan University and the finals will be at 2 p.m. Saturday.

CC led by P-C runners

When the Redford Catholic Central boys cross country team won the Class A state title two weeks ago one could almost call it a Plymouth-Canton victory as well.

The Shamrocks finished first at the state meet, thanks in part to the efforts of student runners who hail from The Plymouth-Canton Community.

Racing for CC this fall were John Borke, Chris Antczak and Jack Massarello. All three ran in the state finals -- Antczak, of Salem Township, was 19th overall, while Borke, of Canton, was 63rd and Massarello, of Canton, 108th.

Borke and Massarello are both juniors and Antczak is a senior. Also from Plymouth and Canton and racing for the Shamrocks this year (although they did not compete in the state finale) were Pat Koelzer, Mike Krasko, Dave McDonagh, Jay Czarnecki, Matt Kilarski and Mike Sheenan.

Salem students take stock in game

BY TODD LANGTON

Economics students at Salem High School are giving the traders on Wall Street a run for their money in an annual state wide stock market game.

The Salem stock market team of junior Scott Bright (captain), senior Gerald Ash, junior Jeff Bobo and senior Megan Barker, and advised by teacher Carolyn Anulewicz, was in first place in the state wide competition as of Friday.

Teams in the competition start out with an imaginary $100,000 to invest in the stock market.

The team that has earned the largest amount of money through investments at the end of the ten week game is the winner.

The team captained by Bright has held the first place spot since week two of the competition.

As of the fourth week of competition the team had accumulated $144,372 in assets.

"Since we are using play money, basically, I have encouraged (the students) to be aggressive," Anulewicz said.

"If you are not aggressive in the game you won't win," she said. "You'll just putz along."

The students invest quite a bit of time, in addition to the imaginary money, in each decision to buy stock.

"It takes a lot of reading in the business sections," Ash said.

"Information is the hottest item that we can have in order to stay number one," he said.

"When we started out in this game we all decided that our goal was to be in the top 10 in the state.

"We have exceeded that goal and we have the number one spot," Ash said.

"Our new goal is to be number one at the end of the game," he said.

"I think that, as a team, if we stick to working together as we have in the past then we will stay in the number one spot," he commented.

The winners of the competition will be invited to attend a meeting of the Detroit Economic Club, tour the Federal Reserve Building in Detroit and possibly receive a cash award as well, Anulewicz said.

As of week four Salem had five teams in the top twenty positions of the competition.

Curiosities

WHEN I AM AN OLD WOMAN

I shall wear purple.
With a red hat which doesn't go, and doesn't suit me.
And I shall spend my pension on brandy and summer gloves.
And satin sandals. And say we've no money for butter.
I shall sit down on the pavement when I am tired.
And gobble up samples in shops and press alarm bells
And run my stick along the public railings
And make up for the sobriety of my youth.
I shall go out in my slippers in the rain
And pick the flowers in other people's gardens and learn to spit.
You can wear terrible shirts and grow more fat
And eat three pounds of sausages at a go
Or only bread and a pickle for a week.
And hoard pens and pencils and beermats and things in boxes.
But now we must have cloths that keep us
dry
And pay our rent and not swear in the street
And set a good example for the children.
We will have friends to dinner and read the papers.
But maybe I ought to practice a little now?
So people who know me are not too shocked and surprised
When suddenly I am old and start to wear purple.
