Wines, Schwinn won't re-run 2 school seats wide open

BY KEN VOYLES

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education race is now wide open.

Incumbent board members Jeanette Wines and Marilyn Schwinn both announced that they will not be seeking re-election to the board this time around.

Only two candidates have come forth so far in the race — Carl Battishill and Diane Stamp. According to district election coordinator Bernice Nichols, Battishill and Stamp have returned nominating petitions and been certified for the June 11 election.

Wines, who has been on the board for four years, is currently the board secretary, while Schwinn, who has sat on the board for five years, is currently the board treasurer.

Both women said they will not run again due to personal commitments.

"My life is in a chaotic state," said Wines on Friday. "I want to slow down for a while and step back and take a look at it. I just need to evaluate what I want to do and see where I want to go."

Wines, who said she plans to remain involved in the school district, added that she needs to "lower the stress level.

"Being on the board has taken a lot of my time and energy," she continued. "When I can't give what I want to give anymore it's time to step down. I just don't think I have the energy."

Wines made her decision last week, but said she had been thinking about her options ever since she found out her husband might be transferred due to his work.

The transfer will not take place now, she said.

"I got into this mindset anyway that maybe now is a time to change direction," Wines said.

The Canton resident said the recent death of her mother and her husband's heart attack had added to her stress and were contributing factors in her decision.

Wines has been involved in school affairs in Plymouth-Canton since moving to the community in 1973. She has been on a wide variety of district committees, including the safety committee and school council. She has also been an athletic booster. Both of Wines' children graduated from the district.

"I didn't have a cause when I was elected, but I felt I could serve a purpose on the board," Wines said. "I felt I had the time to offer. Boy, did that change."

Wines said she is not currently backing any candidates for the board race. "I just want someone there who will be committed, open minded and use common sense," she said. "They need to keep a good vision of the children."

Schwinn said she made her decision over the past 10 days, but she had apparently been thinking about her options ever since last fall when first asked about her plans.

"I just think that it's time to move on," Schwinn said. "I have spent five years on the board and now I want to put my energies in another direction."

"A lot of things are changing in my life right now," she continued. "It's time to focus on different places."

"I've enjoyed every minute of it," she added. "So it has been a difficult decision to make. It will be tough to give up."

Court advisory group will discuss judgeship

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

Dollars may derail the creation of a new judgeship for Plymouth-Canton-Northville.

At a meeting the 35th District Court Advisory Board Tuesday, the five communities' representatives will discuss whether the third judgeship should — and could — be added this year.

Meanwhile, the State Senate is considering final passage of a bill which would create several new judgeships — including the position for the 35th District.

An estimated $600,000 to $650,000 price tag for architectural changes to add another courtroom in the Dunbar Davis Hall of Justice and for computer changes the judgeship requires is currently seen as the main stumbling

Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen, who chairs the court advisory committee, said that short of issuing bonds — a lengthy and possibly expensive process — there is no way the court authority can raise the funds itself. That means, he said, the local governmental units would have to kick in their shares.

With the City of Plymouth facing a projected budget deficit and no large cash reserves, it may be difficult for the city to come up with its portion. (The City Commission is scheduled to study its budget on April 6, 7 and 8.)

Beyond the city's financial uncertainty, others have questioned whether the case load warrants a third

Firm says City can overcome deficit

BY PHILIP TARDANI

The City of Plymouth can overcome its $115,000 deficit by July, but will still lack a "financial cushion" to protect against future rainy days, according to a consultant's study.

Kenneth J. Kunel, from the Southfield firm Plante & Moran, told the Plymouth City Commission Monday night that finding an alternative to current hospitalization insurance for its employees can eliminate the deficit by the end of the fiscal year.

"We feel at this time that your general fund has an excellent chance of eliminating this deficit as of June 30, 1990," Kunkel said in his report.

Kunkel added that "quickly" finding an alternative to employ hospitalization is important in bringing the deficit down.

"A lot depends on how quickly the alternative hospitalization fund goes through," he said.

City Finance Director William Graham said Kunkel's enthusiasm was warranted, but extreme.

"I think he was a little remiss in saying we can take care of the deficit this fiscal year," he said. "I don't think we can eliminate it, but I do think we can come very close."

However, the report—which cost $6,000—also stated that the city does not have the surplus cash that financial rules of thumb call for to handle unexpected expenses, such as rising landfill costs.

"Although we are projecting a break even point for your general fund at June 30, 1990; it is clear that you have no working capital cushion," the report said.

But Kunkel also had several recommendations to put the city back in the solid financial black.

The most important, he said, is an operations review. The review is an overall look at the organization of the city, Kunkel added, and would include such things as the services and level of services the city is providing and how efficiently it is providing them.

"Operations analysis focuses on optimizing the use of resources and emphasizes improved operational effectiveness," he said.

The city also needs a long-range capital needs study, Kunkel said.

"You must set priorities," he said. "You need to know what sidewalks, storm drains, sewer and water lines, and roads need replacing."

A user fee for waste collection should also be considered, Kunkel said, noting that in this way rates are

Could take 2 months City manager search continues

BY PHILLIP TARDANI
The Plymouth City Commission is quietly continuing its search for a new city manager.
One candidate, Gordon Jaeger of Battle Creek, visited the city on Friday and Saturday, according to Mayor Dennis Bila.

Jaeger, who now works in economic development for Kellogg Corp., has over 20 years experience in municipal management.

Another candidate was in town on Monday and had lunch at the Mayflower Hotel with two commissioners, Bila said. Others are interested in the job, he added.

"(Rod) Bartell (of consultants Bartell & Bartell) is reviewing a number of candidates, trying to narrow it down from the previous list," he said.

The list reportedly includes finalists from last month's interviews. Randall Byrne, the candidate the commission chose for the job last month, turned down the offer.

City Finance Director William Graham, who served as acting city manager for about nine months and was favored for the permanent position by many in the community, was replaced as acting manager last week by the commission.

Recently retired City Treasurer Ken Way was appointed acting city manager at last Monday's commission meeting. He had served as acting city manager twice before during the Norm Gaffney to Fred Yockey and then the Yockey to Henry Graper manager changes.

Bila estimated that the search could take as long as two months more. Former City Manager Graper resigned under pressure last July 3, and was appointed the city manager of Sault Ste. Marie, MI in August.

Vorva settlement to be discussed

BY PHILIP TARDANI
It appears the City of Plymouth and former police officer, now city commissioner, Jerry Vorva, are close to settling a nearly two-year-old grievance.

"We are getting close, I think," said Frank Guido, of the Police Officers Association of Michigan (POAM) and who is representing Vorva. "I feel confident we can get it resolved."

The Plymouth City Commission moved Monday night to hold a closed commission meeting March 26 to discuss a settlement with Vorva.

"We hope to get it wrapped up," said Plymouth Mayor Dennis Bila. "It's been some time and that's our intent."

Guido would not discuss specific aspects of a settlement due to the sensitive nature of the negotiations, but he said the possibilities include the city offering Vorva back his job as a police officer or giving him a cash settlement.

"Those are the two opposite ends of the spectrum," he said.

Vorva's grievances against the city arose after he was suspended then dismissed as a Plymouth police officer after making comments to a reporter about alleged traffic ticket quotas.

Vorva did not vote on setting the meeting. He will not attend the closed session.

DARE program gets a boost from townships

BY KEN VOYLES
Both Canton and Plymouth Township last week moved ahead to obtain funding to take over the DARE (Drug Awareness and Resistance Education) program in the Plymouth-Township Community Schools.

The board of trustees in both communities unanimously agreed at their last sessions to allow the police departments to submit grant applications through the Office of Criminal Justice and the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988.

The grant money, if awarded, will be used to fund one officer from each township to serve the schools. DARE is offered to fifth and sixth grade students. It is a nationally recognized program.

"If we feel this is a good program, and we do, it should be continued," Canton Police Chief John Santomauro told the Canton Board of Trustees last week.

The grant would cover 75 per cent of the funding for two officers who will be assigned to schools within the district. Another 25 per cent funding will come from local coffers (about $9,500).

Santomauro told the Canton board that his department just recently found out that grant money might be available for the program.

"Whether we get the grant or not will not jeopardize DARE," he said.

Santomauro also noted that a Canton police officer was graduating from the DARE officer training program this week.

The grant will be filed by the end of this month, he said.

The chief said he had contacted both Plymouth Township and the City of Plymouth to find out if they wanted to get involved in a joint DARE program.

He said the city was unable to commit at this time.

"Making arrests and putting people in jail is not the answer - education is," Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry told his board last week.

Maurice Breen, supervisor in Plymouth Township, added that the township "can't go wrong" supporting the DARE effort.

"Everything toward drug education is a positive," Breen said.

Funding from a grant would be for one year only, said Santomauro, and would allow the two township departments to cover all of the school district's fifth and sixth grade classes.

The DARE program in Plymouth-Canton is currently being run by the Michigan State Police. Officials in both townships have said the local communities will have to take over the program so that it can reach all of the fifth and sixth grade students.

Prison hotline helps residents tune to escapes

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Plymouth Township residents who live within earshot of the siren at Western Wayne Correctional Facility on Five Mile Road will soon have a hotline number for their own, special use.

According to Warden Luella Burke, prison authorities will be installing a recorded message hotline for use when the escape siren at Western Wayne is activated.

The message will tell callers whether the siren is part of a training exercise or a prison break.

"We're going through the state bidding process," Burke said. "It'll be six weeks or so before the line is in place."

The issue came up last month at a Plymouth Township Board of Trustees meeting after a resident, Patricia Bunyca, sent a letter to Supervisor Maurice Breen expressing concern that residents who live near the prison don't know if it is a test or a prison break when the siren sounds.

The sirens at Western Wayne are activated monthly and randomly, according to Ralph Morgan, administrative assistant at the prison.

"The staff need to be trained to handle the situation when the siren goes off," he said.

Burke said the township police are notified prior to any test of the system. She also said that the prison does not get many calls from residents during a test.

"We notify the state and local police and rarely get calls," she said.

Morgan said residents who hear the siren should be considering what precautions they could take in the event of a break.

"I don't think they should be afraid, but they should practice sound security measures around their home," he said.

Western Wayne has only had one significant break in five years, he said.

"It's not like this place is a piece of Swiss cheese," he said.

Teachers eye tentative contract

BY PHILIP TARDANI

A tentative contract between the Plymouth-Canton community Schools Board of Education and the teachers' union has been agreed to and awaits ratification by both parties.

The contract was announced Tuesday.

The new three-year deal will go to members of the Plymouth Canton Education Association for ratification on Monday. The board will act if and when teacher approval is made.

"We feel it's an equitable contract," said Norman Kee, board assistant superintendent for employee relations. "The good thing about it is there will be three years of labor peace and

Praise our young athletes

Everywhere one turns lately it seems one is confronted by the fine examples being set by high school athletes from The Plymouth-Canton Community.

Over the weekend the Salem High School boys basketball squad won a Class A regional title (they play in the quarterfinals tonight in Jackson); and the Salem girls gymnastics team captured third overall in the state finals while rival Canton High School finished fifth.

Individually, Kim Miller, Salem's dynamite freshman gymnast, and Ron Orris, Salem's talented boys swimmer, have set the pace. By doing so they have set a fine example for all of the other athletes on teams throughout the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district.

And don't forget:

Two other outstanding teams from last fall -- Canton's girls basketball team and Salem's boys soccer squad -- were recently honored by the Michigan High School Athletic Association for their accomplishments in 1989.

Clearly, the district is loaded with talented athletes. That has been shown year after year, but maybe never more so than right now.

The efforts of athletes get plenty of attention around here. Does one have to wonder why? Not really, since time and time again they prove their worth and ability in a team setting or as an individual.

Sometimes there is a tendency to focus too much on the efforts of our local athletes (this isn't professional sports after all), but when those efforts are rewarded at a state level it really is time to stand up and cheer.

Those same athletes you hear about week after week (Miller and Orris) are, like most of the students in the district, fine students.

KIM MILLER

The days of the student who is also an outstanding athlete arrived long ago, and it's commonplace to see a student/athlete make headlines, but nowhere in metro Detroit is that more self-evident than here in Plymouth-Canton.

There is every reason to be proud of these young athletes. Let the record reflect the community's pride and joy over their achievements.

As I approached the window at the Plymouth Post Office this past week, I was privy to the conversation taking place between two female workers attending to customers. These two ladies were discussing the controversy taking place in our school system, regarding the use of "R" rated films and satanic materials in our classrooms and libraries.

According to these ladies, Diane Daskalakis is a "radical," and Reverend Ken Gruebel of Geneva Presbyterian Church was identified as the "leader of the fight against her."

At this lenten season, it seems appropriate to take another look at what's happening in The Plymouth-Canton Community.

Because some residents have been bold enough to question the wisdom and methods of the "professional educational establishment," they are being "stoned" with labels "neo-fundamentalists" and "radicals."

In the scriptures, these same circumstances took place during the times of Christ. Daskalakis and the Citizens for Better Education have been "crucified" in our local press (for what crime?), and these activities are sanctioned by many members of the clergy.

How truly sad, that the people of our community seem to have chosen to subscribe to the propaganda of newspapers over the word of God.

In the margin

By Ken Voyles

Ridge Road is a "Canton treasure." And township officials want to keep it that way.

In a letter dated March 15 and sent to residents living along Ridge Road, Canton Supervisor Tom Yack writes: "...we regard Ridge Road as a Canton treasure and believe Edison must find either a new route or an approach to insure the retention of the trees."

The letter was sent to residents living along Ridge who are very concerned that Detroit Edison is planning to cut down a large number of trees prior to stringing new power lines on the east side of Ridge south from Joy Road to beyond Warren Road.

Yack said that his remarks about Canton's "treasure" were made for the benefit of county officials who he has been meeting with over the entire issue.

The Edison plan first surfaced in January, but officials for the utility company said they were revising their plans for a third time to try and address the concerns about the natural setting along Ridge Road.

When the plan first surfaced Edison officials said they hoped to avoid cutting many of the trees down in the area.

Also in the letter, Yack writes that before a new plan can be developed for that section of road, the county first "must survey Ridge Road to determine the actual road right-of-way" and second, Edison crews "must locate proposed pole locations."

Edison officials have said they are not yet ready to proceed along Ridge road. Prior to this week Edison officials have said the power lines were going up in preparation for the day when Ridge Road is finally paved.

According to Edison spokesperson Marty Bufalini, "everything is pretty much on hold right now."

Bufalini said Edison is looking at all of its options for Ridge, and that there is no timetable yet for the work.

He added that work along that area will eventually have to be done.

Yack said he has been trying to keep the residents along Ridge informed about the status of the Edison project.

Residents who live along Ridge want to retain the unique character of the land as it currently looks. Residents have said that if Edison crews come in and "clear cut" the area along where the line will run they will consider other alternatives, including legal action.

The issue along Ridge strikes home right now because of all the recent talk in the township over an ordinance to protect "woodlands" or "forests."

The board has already discussed such an ordinance (many seem to favor it), but currently it remains in the hands of the Canton Planning Commission. In fact, the commission was expected to discuss the ordinance at Monday's meeting.

As land in the township is gobbled up for development many fear the few remaining stands of trees will be obliterated. Canton is still very much a rural community, but that character is based on an ever shrinking base of farmland.

So much of the township which remains undeveloped is farmland bare of most vegetation that it only makes sense to find a way to save the remaining groups of trees.

Edison can help by finding another way to string its Ridge Road line; the county can help by clarifying the road right-of-way along that part of Canton; and township officials can help by continuing to have the vision to call for a woodlands preservation ordinance.

It may be too late for any ordinance to give the township that needed bit of extra leverage along Ridge Road. And it's also unclear whether such an ordinance could be enforced against Edison, but at least an effort is being made to save the township's last bastions of trees.

Farmland preservation may be dead and buried (under mounds of development), but at least consideration is being given to woodlands preservation.

A riddle:

If a stand of trees is cut down by a utility company and there are no residents around to voice their concerns, does the sound of those trees crashing to the ground ring of progress or waste?

Lisa Tinik is one of the Ridge Road neighbors who oppose Detroit Edison's plans to clear one of Canton's loveliest country roads. The "tree huggers" of the area are being supported by Canton Supervisor Tom Yack. (Crier photo by W. Edward Wendover)

City: Thanks!

EDITOR:

I would like to thank the Commissioners of the City of Plymouth for prompt action in their response to the problem of waste management the city is encountering.

Their drawing up of the policy statement of handling and disposal of solid waste, is an excellent first step on our community's long journey to make our handling of solid waste both economical and environmentally sound.

This process requires time, to which we are running short of.

We must push forward with a plan to have mandatory recycling. I would hope that this community will support such a plan and understand its necessity and that the city will continue to educate us and our children as new issues arise.

Great '90 Guide

EDITOR:

I was very pleased this week to see four of our five fire fighters on the cover of the 1990 Crier Guide to our local communities.

We always like to see our public servants, especially those who put their lives on the line to protect others, get the recognition they deserve. The picture on your cover did this well, and I'm sure all Canton residents share the pride I felt in seeing them there.

I also want to commend the Crier for its annual commitment to valuable resources in our community.

Be assured that many people here in Canton Township hall, as well as residents throughout the community, utilize it extensively.

Congratulations on another job well done, and thank you for helping, through your cover photo, to show the community some of the people Canton is most proud of.

Canton will be the site of a new community arts project featuring the work of noted home-town sculptor, Joseph DeLauro.

The Canton Arts Council and the Canton Foundation will jointly sponsor a $7,000 DeLauro sculpture, "The Story Teller," to be cast in bronze and publicly displayed for Canton children.

(DeLauro is chair of the council, but was not present at the meeting Sunday at which the council members voted unanimously to co-sponsor the project.)

A former Windsor, Ontario art professor, DeLauro, 74, has exhibited his work in several countries. Churches and other public buildings display his work. He is currently chipping away at a marble sculpture in his Plymouth workshop.

The Plymouth Township Office of Emergency Management is recruiting volunteers to become part of the severe weather spotters team.

Trained spotters are needed for all times of the day, seven days a week, according to Chuck VanVleck, the deputy emergency management director for the township.

good educational growth."

Tom Cotner, chief negotiator for the teacher's union, was of the same mind.

"I think it's a good agreement for us and a good agreement for them," he said.

The contract calls for a five, four and five per cent teacher salary increase over the next three years. A maximum two per cent cost of living increase could be tacked on. The existing contract was scheduled to expire at the end of June. Kee said that though neither side got everything it wanted, the welfare of district students was the primary consideration.

"There's too much to do educationally to be fighting," he said. "Hopefully we can join hands and do what's best for the kids."

But with the Canton project announcement, DeLauro's "Story Teller" work will take place in a new Canton office building - Carriage Park, on Canton Center south of Ford. Workshop space in the building has been donated by Guenther Building of Ann Arbor and was arranged by Terry Bixler of the Patrician Group.

Once DeLauro begins his sculpting in clay during the first part of April, Canton school children will be invited to visit his studio and the artist at work.

After the clay stage is complete, the work will be molded by the lost wax process and then cast in bronze. When finished, the work will be two-feet tall and sit on a pedestal - perhaps in the front of the Canton Library. Its unveiling is slated for the second annual Canton Foundation meeting in September.

Residents interested in joining the network should call 453-5015 as soon as possible to reserve a place in the class.

Myers responds to study; sergeant wants union

BY PHILIP TARDANI

City of Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers has responded to a new study of his department with confidence that communication problems and a lack of trust can be overcome.

Myers comments Monday came while one of his top officers has filed with the state to form a command officers union.

"We look forward enthusiastically to working with the city manager to affect many of the positive improvements that are needed," Myers said in a memorandum to Acting City Manager Kenneth Way.

A study commissioned under former City Manager Henry Graper and completed by consultants Bartell & Bartell in February found that the Plymouth Police Department was in a "pre-crisis state typified by a lack of trust and communication."

"When an organization is in a pre-crisis state, deterioration often begins to escalate more rapidly," the report said. "As a result, immediate and definite steps are necessary to reverse this deterioration."

The report calls for Myers to accept with enthusiasm the role of managing the department at a time of fiscal constraints that prevent growth and expensive innovation.

The city commission and city manager, acting with the chief, must establish a funding level for the department, the report said.

The report also said that the chief and his management team need to develop a list of rules for guiding management in the new phase.

Among the rules:

- The department command and supervisory staff recognize that they are role models for the department and should act as they wish their subordinates to act.

- All new innovative programs in the department be implemented only after the individuals to be affected fully understand the purpose and intent of the program.

- Allow mistakes to occur on the part of line and staff as part of the development process.

- Keep commissioners fully informed of the processes, problems and successes of the department.

"It is anticipated that the healing process could take as long as one year until the members of the police department begin to believe that the new mode is underway," the report said. "It will take even longer for trust to be established and the past left behind."

Commissioner Jerry Vorva told Myers during the Monday city commission meeting that lack of trust is the crux of the report.

"There is going to have to be some renewed trust between citizens and police and between the members of the department themselves," Vorva said. He added that he felt it will be impossible for the present police administration to bring that trust about.

Myers disagreed.

"Obviously I don't believe it (trust) can never be restored," he said. "It takes time, only time can take care of it."

The department had problems with communication and trust before he came aboard in 1985, Myers said, and he is encouraged that there has been progress made since then.

Way told the Plymouth City Commission Monday that Sergeant Wayne D. Carroll has filed with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) to form a command officers union that would include the commander, lieutenant, and the three sergeants.

MERC will conduct an election among the five to determine whether or not a bargaining unit will be formed.

Myers, who already works with the police officers union and dispatchers union, has said he has no objection to the command officers union.

Director named for day care

With the naming of a director, the new Extended Day Care program in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district takes another step forward.

Patricia MacIssac was recently named to the post by Larry Masteller, Plymouth-Canton Community Education director.

MacIssac, who holds a master's degree from Eastern Michigan University in Early Childhood Education, headed the district's Kiddie Kampus at Canton High School from 1979 to 1984.

Prior to that MacIssac worked as a pre-school teacher in the Canton vocational education child care program in 1976-77.

Over the next month she will visit 12 different elementary buildings in the district to determine program locations. By May, MacIssac said she expects to begin meeting with parents and accepting applications for next fall.

The new program is expected to offer a variety of activities for youths in grade K-5. It will operate during the school calendar prior to class in the morning and after class until 6 p.m.

"In each elementary school in the district, I hope to provide safe, nurturing, quality care in an environment that is relaxed and that promotes the physical, social, emotions and cognitive well being of children," said MacIssac.

Emphasis on rape prevention

Expert instructs women in defense

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Paul Henning is intent as he addresses his students, many of them women interested in self-defense.

"If someone comes at you, don't keep backing up -- sidestep," he says in his very British accent.

Now he has a male student reach his arm forward.

"When he grabs for you hit here and break here," he says to the women, softly demonstrating the correct blow to the back of the elbow.

"Now you've got to figure the arm is already broke," he says. "They're not going to grab anything after it's shattered."

Henning steps behind the would-be attacker and points out where the weak spots are in the back.

"Step behind and go for the kidneys or floating ribs," he says. Then he shows the women how to grab an assailant's ankles from behind, sending him flat on his face.

"Once you've got him on the ground, aim low for the groin area," he concludes, leaving the women to practice the moves with their male partners.

Sound like effective self-defense?

That's the idea, said Henning, a third degree black belt in Tae Kwon Do who has never lost in eight years of competition.

Henning teaches women's self-defense and rape prevention three days a week at the Plymouth Fitness Studio. The classes, which involve about 15 men and women, concentrate on the basics of self-defense.

A former owner and chief instructor of the Academy of Martial Arts in England, Henning is a former U.S. Junior Olympic team coach and has taught at schools around the world.

"Just learning a couple things makes you feel better," said Elaine Jeris, who has been in the class since its inception about a month ago. "(Henning) works with everybody at their own level."

"Keep it simple," Henning likes to tell his students. "The harder you make it, the harder it is to remember."

An important and often over-looked basic is how to fall, Henning said, noting that it is important to fall and roll on the soft areas of the body.

"Most people think, 'I know how to fall,'" he said. "But they don't."

Henning also uses a fusion of three martial art: judo, which involves throws and wrestling; Hop Ki Won, which emphasizes bodily pressure points; and Tae Kwon Do, or foot and fist art.

"If you mix all three you give them knowledge they're going to benefit from," he said. "I try to teach the actions that I use and I know they work."

Though it is more challenging for women to learn self-defense, Henning said, it is by no means impossible, because physical stature plays a minimal role.

"It's 90 per cent mental, 10 per cent physical," he said. "It's not power, it's technique."

The former Florida State Champion in Tae Kwon Do said he avoids complicating the classes with unnecessary showmanship, stressing instead what will work in threatening situation.

"All that fancy stuff is great, but does it work?" he asks. "No, it's for show."

"I believe it's better to be good than to look good."

Jeris said she joined to feel more secure.

"I grew up in Detroit so you learn to fear the night, she said. "I was just afraid of leaving the house."

She said during the month she has been working with Henning, the classes have begun to already made a difference.

Henning instructs his students on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays.

Another member of the class, Trisch Gutuski, said, "He's a good teacher. I'm really pleased."

Tell it to Phyllis

By Phyllis Redfern

Moving back home is becoming more and more popular as kids finish college or for some reason or other seek the shelter mom or dad can provide.

Once kids have lived on their own and established their independence, it's hard for them to give it up. However, moms and dads have their set of rules and as long as they are providing the shelter and paying the bills expect those rules to be followed. This same old argument has been going on since the first kid moved back with his or her parents.

After living alone for two years, I've been blessed with my daughter living back home for the past eight months. Other than her job frustrations, her stupid car that decided to self destruct on the freeway last week, and the fact that we have similar temperaments, we have somehow managed to survive.

Last week my son moved back home, after deciding to take an internship with an advertising agency instead of classes spring term. His decision will probably prove to be a very good one, but a mom needs time to psyche herself up for these things.

Kids moving back home is supposed to be a negative situation, and believe me, there are a few negative thoughts. However, there are a lot of nice things about having the kids back home.

The biggest drawback of having them home is probably the amount of money that slides through my fingers. When I clean the house I expect it to stay that way -- who raised these kids to be slobs?

There are times when it is nice to have someone around to cook dinner for. While at the same time if I have plans to go out to dinner, they are old enough to cook and fend for themselves. They even know how to shovel snow and do some other helpful things around the house. As for the house staying clean, I was becoming too set in my ways and needed to learn how to roll with things again.

There aren't that many times when we are all home at the same time. They have their friends and plans and I have mine, but for the most part, we respect each other and can (sometimes) communicate when we will be home.

I have to admit I enjoy the evenings and weekends when we are all home. They both have a lot of nice friends who are fun to have around. The house is big enough if someone wants to study or have a private phone conversation without being harrassed. We have fun playing games or just simply talking.

We've had arguments, but there has been some fun mixed in with them. I wonder how long it will last -- I have five and half months before I can the other kid back to school.

Schools race

The Plymouth Township resident is currently working for The New Health Center, a Livonia based non-profit agency which provides AIDS education, counseling and testing.

"That's an important part of my life right now," said Schwinn, who as a single mother with three sons (one of whom is still attending class in the Plymouth-Canton district) has had to devote much of her energy to her family. "I want to put my energies there (at home and the job).

"I'd also like time for myself."

Schwinn was appointed to the board in March of 1985 to replace Nancy Quinn. Schwinn than sought and won a seat on her own the following year.

Schwinn also said she hopes to stay involved with district concerns. "I've enjoyed the people and the experience," she said.

Nominating petitions are still available for registered residents of the district who wish to seek a seat on the board.

Petitions are available at the board office at 454 S. Harvey St. in the City of Plymouth. They must be filed with the district by 4 p.m., April 9. The petitions must include a minimum of 62 valid signatures.

The final day for certified board candidates to withdraw from the race is April 12 (by 4 p.m.)

Voting will be held from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., June 11 at regular school polling locations. There are no millage questions on the ballot this year.

Airport study committee supported

BY KEN VOYLES

Mettetal Airport will be the focus of a new citizens airport study committee being formed in Canton to consider whether or not the township should purchase the privately owned facility.

Last Tuesday, Canton's Board of Trustees unanimously agreed to form the citizens committee following a lengthy discussion by both supporters and detractors of municipal airport ownership.

The committee is expected to be formed over the next few weeks and will eventually deliver a recommendation to the board on whether or not the township should proceed with the purchase of Mettetal.

"I think we owe it to the citizens to investigate this regardless of the outcome," said Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter.

Canton Treasurer Gerald Brown said he own inclination was to "let it sit" and "mull it" over for a few days before voting on the formation of a committee. But Brown still supported the resolution offered by Kirchgatter.

Last week's presentation included representatives from the State of Michigan and the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association (AOPA); the current operator of Mettetal and several local pilots, including John Vergona who originally suggested that the township look into saving the airport.

"I want to see this work for the community," Vergona said after last week's meeting. "It's a touchy thing for me. I bought my house in Canton because of the airport. You can really get attached to that place."

Gary Powers, another local pilot and vice president of Chrysler Aviation, said, "As a homeowner I really feel a facility like Mettetal could enhance property values much like a marina, a municipal golf course, or a public library.

"It's important to look at this as something that could be shared by the entire community," he continued. "Airplanes aren't just for rich kids."

The airport is currently owned by Desert Sand Inc., which is run by the Klochos family. The Klochos have said they would sell the airport.

Ashley Heimbaugh, owner of Cratt-Air, the current lease operator of the airport, said that he wants to operate the airport "for the community, in the best interests of the community.

"We want it to be a community airport," he said.

Heimbaugh said there are currently 104 planes based at Mettetal, which encompasses 64.4 acres at Joy and Lilley roads. The single runway at the general aviation facility is 2,550 feet.

"We can't expand there but we can improve," Heimbaugh said. "We want to stabilize it and keep the size as is."

Heimbaugh said jets currently do not land at Mettetal. He also stressed the airport's benefit as "the community's link to the rest of the world."

He added, "It is a good airport. At one time we had 250 planes on this field. The reason we lost the majority of them is that no-one understood the status of this airport. Is it going to be turned into an industrial park?"

Peter Burgher, the Great Lakes representative from the AOPA, said private airports are in jeopardy.

"It can be your airport but for some other reason it's associated with that other community (Plymouth)," said Burgher, who added that the economic impact of Mettetal on the community is at least $3.5 million annually. He said that figure may in fact be too low.

"It's an enticing commodity," he said. "The community needs to step forward and protect it."

Richard Jackson, assistant deputy director of the Michigan Bureau of Aeronautics, said the increasing value of an airport is all too often not recognized until it is too late.

"An airport is not just for people who have something directly to do with it," he said. "And once gone they're pretty much gone."

Bob Addy, also with the state aeronautics bureau, said funding to buy the airport can come through state, federal and local programs with the local community paying five per cent in some cases.

Jackson, at one point last week, added that the bureau would consider asking for a waiver of the local share so that Canton would not have to pay anything for the initial purchase.

Jackson said the only requirement for federal support of the purchase would be that Canton (or some kind of authority formed to run it) keep the airport in the public domain for 20 years.

"All we're asking for is continuing the study of this idea," said Vergona.

Vergona added that any community could take advantage of the chance to own and operate the airport and Canton would be left without any say. He said an authority could be formed or a community, such as Plymouth,

Twp. man arrested growing pot

A Plymouth Township resident arrested in a raid on a Southfield home where marijuana was found being grown in a basement faces charges for the manufacture of an illegal drug, according to Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) officials.

James Spinelle, 47, a teacher at West Bloomfield High School, was arrested Thursday along with two Southfield men after DEA agents and the Michigan State Police seized more than 300 marijuana plants being grown in a house on Farmbrook.

DEA officials said Spinelle is expected to be indicted and arraigned within 30 days. The federal charge carries a maximum five year sentence. DEA officials also said Spinelle may face charges of conspiracy.

DEA officials said that they did not raid Spinelle's Plymouth Township home during their investigation.

The plants, said DEA officials, were being grown under special lighting conditions in the Southfield home. Spinelle has told DEA officials and members of the media that the plants were grown for personal use only.

The raid last week followed a lengthy investigation, said the DEA.

Last fall DEA agents seized equipment and customer lists from a gardening retailer in Canton, but DEA officials would not confirm whether the two raids were connected.

No indictments have been brought against the owners of the Canton operation, said Bill Ward, a spokesperson in the DEA's Detroit office.

CEP bands honored

The Centennial Educational Park (CEP) Symphony Band and Concert Band recently competed in the annual District Band Festival sponsored by the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association.

The festival, held at Ann Arbor Pioneer, drew bands from Lincoln Park, Milan, Wayne, Detroit, Northville, Monroe, Westland, Belleville and Livonia.

The CEP Symphony Band won a first place rating of 'I' in Class Double-A competition. The group is now eligible to compete in the state competition April 28.

The CEP Concert Band competed in Class B and won a second place rating of 'II.'

Both bands are conducted by James Griffith, and turned into an industrial park.

He said buying the airport would mean "major negative financial implications."

Mueller questioned the study done by the aeronautics bureau last year, saying that the data was inaccurate and that the economic impact would be far less than suggested.

"He's probably right. It could generate a lot of taxes," said Burgher, who added that the airport could be used as an attraction to expand the township's industrial base.

"I don't think you can compare the impacts," said Brown. "If you do it on a sheer economic basis you're in deep trouble."

Jackson said, "you can't compare airports and industrial parks. You've got to make a decision whether you want industrial parks, airports, or schools."

Scott Hebron, owner of Acro Marine Inc. in Westland, which has a plane at Mettetal, said Canton already has a lot of industrial parks. "Mettetal is an asset that shouldn't be wasted," he said.

Hebron also questioned Mueller's motivations, revealing that Mueller's father owns an airport in New Hudson which would benefit if Mettetal disappeared.

Another resident, Mike McKeon, asked whether or not Mueller had factored in the value to the industrial park being next to the airport.

Sam Sackllah, a business owner near the airport, said township ownership of Mettetal was a good idea 20 years ago, but that he did not favor the idea now.

Tom Brown, a resident of the neighboring Windsor Park subdivision said the noise of the airport would not be "music to my ears."

Brown said he would vigorously oppose any township purchase of Mettetal.

"I'm telling you I'll organize if you do this," he told the board.

The commission discussed the possibility of a user fee at the pre-commission meeting and Mayor Dennis Bila asked Acting City Manager Kenneth Way to set up a public hearing on the question as soon as possible.

Several commissioners stressed the need to have citizen input on the issue.

"It's a rather major step and I'd hate to see it discussed for 15 minutes or half an hour and then moved on," said Commissioner James Jabara.

Commissioner Jerry Vorva agreed with Jabara.

"When we start changing our processes like that in a major fashion, the public should have some input," he said.

Bila also suggested getting input on the issue from the Michigan Municipal League.

Kunkel said that though the city is in some financial trouble, the budget can be worked out.

"They're very tight financially, but it can be worked out," he said.

Plymouth was not the only city caught by surprise when landfill prices went up from $6-9 a yard, thus precipitating the deficit trouble, he said.

"It's really something you can't anticipate," he said.

Kunkel, however, also advised caution in pursuing a user fee.

"You just can't go in and run with it," he said. "You must study it."

Census workers needed

Census workers are still needed for work in The Plymouth-Canton Community, according to Patricia Cunningham, a Wayne County district office manager.

Cunningham said that jobs need to be filled this week by residents who live in Plymouth-Canton. Field and office workers are needed, she said.

Field workers, who are paid $6.50-8.50 per hour, go into a community to check on households which have received but not returned a census questionnaire form. Office workers are paid $6-8.50 per hour.

Workers are needed for about the next eight weeks, said Cunningham, anywhere from 20-40 hours each week. All census employees are trained prior to going into the field or working in an office.

Census questionnaires will begin to go out Friday, said Cunningham, and are expected to be returned over two weeks.

Youths who are 16-17 years of age and want to work the census must have a high school diploma. Other workers can range in age from college students to senior citizens.

Those interested in working during the census period should call 523-6700.

New Morning auction

Imagine joining Ernie Harwell in the radio booth as he calls the play-by-play of a Detroit Tigers game, or imagine viewing a game from Tom Monaghan's private suite.

Those are just two of the items to be auctioned off during New Morning School's 14th Annual Auction -- "The Great Escape to Hollywood."

The auction, which is sponsored by First of America in Plymouth and the Plastomer Corporation, will be held this Saturday (March 24) at 6 p.m. in the Hellenic Cultural Center in Westland.

Tickets for the fundraising event are $35 per person and include hors d'oeuvres, an open bar and desserts.

A silent auction will be followed by a live auction slated for 8:45 p.m.

The annual event is a major fundraiser for Plymouth Township's New Morning School, the only K-8 parent cooperative in southeast Michigan. The school hopes to raise $60,000 from this year's event. Proceeds will support the school's child-created curriculum.

Among the other items slated for auction are:

A hot-air balloon ride; a whitewater rafting trip; a road rally for 40 people; the use of a Fox Theatre suite to see Tom Jones; dinner for two at the London Chop House; lodging for four in New York city with tickets to a Broadway show; an IBM personal computer; a whirlpool bathtub; and round-trip tickets for two to anywhere American Airlines flies domestically.

Advance reservations are necessary and pre-registration can be handled by phone. For further information call New Morning School at 420-3331 or Christa Hitchcock, auction chairperson, at 459-1326.

Mayflower homeowners seek answers

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Residents of Plymouth Township's Mayflower subdivision are expected at the Tuesday board of trustees' meeting for an explanation of why their property tax assessments are so high.

The residents were invited back after about 60 of them showed up last week's board meeting to complain that their assessments have risen 39 per cent in the past two years.

Township Supervisor Maurice Breen told the group at the time to come back in two weeks when members from assessment groups can be present to answer questions.

Township resident Lynn Ehrle told the board that errors had been made in the assessment of his house.

"The fact is there have been monumental mistakes in the assessment practices," he said.

Specifically, Ehrle said, the township assessor from Wayne County Appraisals misread the square footage of his house.

Also, Ehrle claims that three comparable homes used by the assessor to justify the increase in his assessments were not comparable at all. His one and a half-story aluminum sided house with a detached garage was unfairly compared to two-story brick houses with attached garage, he says.

Breen told Ehrle that the board could not address his complaints and that he should speak to someone from the township board of review or with Wayne County Appraisals.

"You bring up an excellent point, but it's typical to criticize somebody when they're not here to answer for what they've done," Breen said.

Ehrle said on behalf of Mayflower residents he has asked the state tax commission to investigate the tax assessing policies and practices of Breen and Wayne County Appraisals.

Breen told Ehrle that he is more than welcome to voice his grievances.

"If you wish to make a complaint, you may go ahead because there's nothing to hide," Breen said.

The township should also abandon its practice of using an outside assessor and assessing by subdivision, Ehrle says.

Breen, however, maintains that assessments in the township are fair.

"The fact is, our assessment practices have been at the forefront of equity in the past eight years," he said.

Several Mayflower subdivision residents addressed the board and expressed concern over rising assessments.

"There are some people that if we don't see some sort of relief from these increases, we will have to sell our homes," said one resident.

Township Assessor John McLenaghan and Alice C. Trippe, of the state treasury, have been invited to Tuesday's board meeting, Breen said, and both are expected to attend.

McDonald's accuses Canton of fraud

BY KEN VOYLES

A representative of McDonald's last Tuesday accused the Canton Board of Trustees of "fraud" prior to a vote on whether or not to grant the fast-food company a special land use permit for a third McDonald's in the township.

The representative, attorney Ann Hiemstra, said she was at the meeting last week to "talk about fairness, equal treatment and playing by the rules."

McDonald's has been trying to get special land use approval in the township since 1987, but has already been denied two times by the Canton

Planning Commission, earlier this year and in August of 1989.

The commission said it found McDonald's proposals "inconsistent" with the development objectives of the township.

Canton and McDonald's have already been to court once over the issue of a third fast food outlet in the township. A prior application by the company was approved by the township planning commission but later rejected by the previous board of trustees.

A lawsuit then followed, a lawsuit which Canton lost. During the proceedings, McDonald's was allowed to refile for special land use approval.

Since that time the company has been trying to get special land use approval from the board. McDonald's wants to build at Ford Road and I-275.

"You know, and I know, this is not going to end with the passing of this resolution," said Hiemstra, referring to a resolution to deny the land use and site plan. "This resolution makes no sense. It's a product of an enormous

Getting down to business

Morris elected to top chamber post

BY KEN VOYLES

Mel Morris had mixed emotions about taking the job as president of the Canton Chamber of Commerce but has since realized the possibilities open to the organization and the township.

Morris, 51, owns Mel's Auto Clinic on Ford Road. He was elected to the top chamber post earlier this year.

"I had some mixed emotions," Morris said, "but now that I've gotten involved it's been pretty good.

"If you've got a solid business community banded together and working in cooperation with the government there's nothing that can't be accomplished," he added. "Canton is very vibrant. You can just feel it."

Originally from the Upper Peninsula, Morris moved to Detroit at age four. But he said he had never heard of Canton until he was 35.

In 1960 Morris opened his first business venture -- a local gas station. Sixteen years later he opened the first Mel's Auto Clinic in Canton.

The company moved to its current facility in 1980.

Today Morris operates two auto shops -- the other one is in Livonia. He runs the outfits along with his sons Mike and Terry.

"We do a lot of the heavy auto work," Morris said.

Three years ago Morris moved to a residence in the township, but he had become active in the township long before that.

As president of the chamber Morris said he wants to continue developing the dialogue already begun between township officials and chamber members.

"It's just been a tremendous asset to have those meetings with the local

Bergquist gets nod

The Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce also has a new president -- Harold B. Bergquist.

Bergquist, who was elected to the post in February, is president of the Northland Container Corporation. The company encompasses six branch offices in the United States and Canada.

Bergquist is also currently serving as chairperson of the Western Wayne Chapter of Ducks Unlimited.

amount of discrimination and fraud on the part of the township.

"There's a way out of this -- the store should have been built last April," Hiemstra added.

Canton currently has two McDonald's operations -- one on Ford Road and one along Michigan Avenue.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said he appreciated Hiemstra running the board through the chronology of McDonald's attempt to get approval for their site and added that "aside from the obvious threat" he was very familiar with the company's arguments.

"Personally, I reject the idea of any conspiracy," said Yack, in reference to McDonald's accusation that the township deliberately stalled the approval process until after changes were made in the zoning ordinance which would make it impossible for McDonald's to build at its current location.

"If you wanted to deny it I don't know why you just didn't deny it then," said Hiemstra, of the Dec. 12, 1989 meeting when the board delayed approval until after further study of a traffic investigation.

"I've been around 55 years and I've never been accused of fraud in my life," said Canton Treasurer Gerald Brown. "I really resent that."

Judgeship considered

judgeship, Breen said. "I think everybody's been looking at it," he explained.

According to the State of Michigan Supreme Court administrator, the 35th District Court's two judges handle about 50 per cent more cases than the state-wide average of district judges. The court's magistrate Eric Colthurst handles many cases on a part-time basis.

In addition to the financial and caseload questions, the third judgeship faces another hurdle -- deadlines.

According to the bill pending in the legislature, the five local communities must each pass a resolution supporting the judgeship by Tuesday, April 17. Sample resolutions have been sent out, but as yet, none of the five boards have passed one.

If the communities agree on the financial and caseload questions, then pass the resolutions, nominating petitions for the new judgeship would be due on May 15. A primary would be held Aug. 7 and the general election on Nov. 6.

It is possible that if the communities cannot clear the hurdles in time, a special election to fill a new spot on the bench could be held in 1991. Barring that, the judgeship could be added in 1992, when the seat currently held by Judge Jim Garber is up for election.

Salem 3rd overall, Canton 5th

Miller wins state title; leads Rocks

BY RITA DERBIN

Kim Miller did exactly what she wanted to do.

On Friday night she became the first gymnast from The Plymouth-Canton Community to be named Michigan's top gymnast.

Then, on Saturday, she won another individual state title.

Salem's freshman sensation won the state all around title with 36.3 points, while her team, the Rocks, took third place at Class A state finals with 137.6 points behind winner H.H. Dow (139.7) and Mona Shores (137.75).

Canton placed fifth in the meet with 136.9 points.

In the team competition, on vault, Salem's Courtney Gonyea finished fifth (9.35); Miller and Canton's Kim Rennolds tied for eighth (9.3); Salem's Autumn Bunch, 12th (9.25); Canton's Johanna Anderson, 17th (9.15); Canton's Dawn Clifford, 25th (9.0); Canton's Danielle Mirto, 33rd (8.8) and Salem's Jenny Wong, 55th (8.25).

On bars, Miller was second (9.05); Gonyea, 14th (8.55); Canton's Jenny Tedesco, 19th (8.4); Rennolds, 24th (8.35); Bunch and Clifford, 29th (8.15); and Salem's Aimee Wong and Mirto, 43rd (7.85).

On beam, Miller, Murphy and Gonyea tied for fourth (8.85); Clifford, 8th (8.8); Tedesco, 41st (7.95); Bunch, 45th (7.85); Rennolds, 49th (7.7) and Salem's Jenny Skylakos, 58th (7.15).

On floor, Miller was fourth (9.1); Gonyea, 10th (9.0); Mirto, 15th (8.85); Bunch, 22nd (8.75); Anderson, 25th (8.7); Murphy, 31st (8.6); Rennolds, 36th (8.45) and Salem's Sue Farmer, 52nd (8.3).

Miller was the only gymnast at the meet to qualify for individual honors in all four events, placing in the top eight in all the team events.

On Saturday, Miller won the uneven bars title with a total score from both days of 18.25, placed second of floor (18.45), fifth on beam (17.75) and ninth on vault (18.23).

"I feel good right now," Miller said. "It feels real good that I accomplished what I wanted to."

"I really wanted it (the all around title) and tried real hard -- on Friday night, Kathi (Kinsella) told us to do it for the team," Miller added. "And I did the best I could."

And Miller has already set a goal for next year: "I want to do it again," she said.

In the all around competition, Gonyea finished fourth overall and placed second on beam (17.85) and eighth on vault (18.24) on Saturday. Bunch was 18th (34.0) in all around and Rennolds was 22nd (33.8).

"Kim's first and Courtney's fourth was a good way to finish the season," said Salem coach Kathi Kinsella. "They both looked pretty good out there and wanted to do well for the team.

"The team looked relaxed out there," added Kinsella, who feels her Rocks have finally made themselves a part of Salem's winning athletic tradition. "I was very pleased with our team spirit and attitude -- we went there to beat our best performance and not to beat the other schools but we're very happy with third place."

The Chiefs were also standing tall. After a team fifth-place, three girls qualified in individual events.

Rennolds was ninth on vault (18.23); and on beam, Clifford was sixth (17.70) and Murphy was eighth (17.25).

"I'm real pleased with the girls," said Canton coach John Cunningham. "We didn't get the breaks but my kids performed their best -- if you do your best the problem belongs to someone else."

There was only .10 point difference between the Chiefs and fourth-place North Farmington and less than a point between second and sixth-place so Canton had nothing to be ashamed of, said Cunningham.

"The girls were a little disappointed but not me," Cunningham added. "The kids did the job they were supposed to do, I'm very proud of them."

Both schools enjoyed their best seasons ever and broke all the previous school records.

The highest individual honor at Salem before Miller's state title on bars was Beth Rafail's second place on beam in 1986. At Canton, Linda Beale was fourth on beam in 1984 and, before their fifth place finish, the Chiefs' squad had never finished

Play in quarter-finals tonight

Rocks win regional hoop title

BY RITA DERBIN

The red hot Rocks are headed for the state Class A quarterfinals tonight.

No tickets will be available at the door when the Salem boys hoop team (23-2) plays the Battle Creek Bearcats (23-2) at Lumen Christi High School in Jackson at 7:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased in the Salem athletic department between noon and 4 p.m. today.

Going into the game, the eighth-ranked Rocks are considered the underdogs to the state's second-ranked Bearcats.

"I'm real pleased with the way the team's playing right now," said Salem coach Bob Brodie. "We've been underdogs before but the kids are playing hungry right now. They're playing well as a unit and seem determined to continue on — they don't want it to end."

The Rocks will be seeing a zone defense and the zone press from Battle Creek, but Brodie said they will not be changing their game plan.

"You don't change anything at this point in the season," said Brodie. "You just try to do some fine-tuning."

The Rocks will be facing a team that outsizes them at the guard position and matches up well at the post.

"They're a pretty solid team and we're pretty solid," Brodie said. "But you expect that at this point in the season. We need to execute and play like we're capable and get a few breaks and we'll be fine."

According to Brodie, the Bearcats' best athlete and biggest offensive threat inside may be Marc White, a 6'3" forward.

The guards that will be matched up against Jeff Gold (5-11) and Tom Noonan (6-0), are David Hart, a 6-3 guard and good ball handler and Dave Freeman, a 6-2 point guard and the team's best shooter, according to Brodie.

"Our primary goal is to put pressure on them and break their zone defense," Brodie said. "We want to control the tempo on the defensive end, and contain White on the inside and Freeman on the perimeter."

The Rocks advanced to the quarterfinals by defeating the Romulus Eagles Friday, 86-73, for the Regional II championship.

It was the first regional championship by a Salem team since the 1974-75 team went 22-3 and made it to the state semi-finals. This season's 23 wins is a new school record.

"I'm feeling good right now, any time you're playing in the final week of the season you feel good," said Brodie, who has 101 victories in his six-year tenure as the Rocks' coach. "(The win over Romulus) was a great win for these kids, they're a great team to work with."

"Everyone was pumped up," said senior forward Ryan Johnson. "We played with a lot of confidence ... you play your best ball, and when you win, you feel good."

In the game, Salem struggled early on and found themselves down 21-12 in the first period. They cut the Eagles' lead to 40-38 at the half.

"We spent too much time on defense and not enough time on offense in the first half," Brodie said. "At half-time I told them to maintain their poise and make (Romulus) play some defense."

"We've had a lot of depth all season," Brodie added. "And tonight 10 people contributed in the victory."

Junior forward Jake Baker led the Rocks with 24 points while Johnson and junior K.C. Kirkpatrick added 20 points each for Salem. Backup center, junior Cliff Lee contributed eight points and powerful defensive game that included four blocked shots.

"Cliff had a good game," Brodie said. "I'm not surprised with his performance, though. He's a good ball player and put in some quality minutes for us."

Back up guard Mike Mulder contributed two three-pointer baskets, and Noonan and Gold kept Romulus scrambling with five and four steals, respectively. Gold also led the team with eight assists, while Noonan dished out five.

"There's more to the game of basketball than scoring," said Brodie, talking about the importance of his senior guards and co-captains. "They've been contributing on defense with their steals and harassment out there on the court."

"On offense they're delivering the ball," added Brodie. "But they have the ability to score, too. They're about due to have big games."

Salem was flat early in the regional championship game, according to Baker. "(Romulus) was aggressive and we weren't holding them — we were letting them in too far," he added. "But we shut them down in the second half."

Johnson kept the Rocks in the game when they were struggling with a strong inside game, contributing 10 points in the first half.

"It wasn't just me out there — the whole team worked for the win," Johnson said. "If I was scoring it was because of Jake and K.C. and the guards getting me the ball."

"We were just running our motion offense and I was getting open," Johnson added. "I'm not use to getting that many point but I'll take them."

Last Wednesday, the Rocks advanced to the regional finals by defeating the Ann Arbor Huron River Rats, 73-71. Baker had a career high 32 points in the game, including 20 in the first half. Kirkpatrick added 12, Noonan had 10 and Johnson scored nine in the battle.

The Rocks led most of the game but the River Rats kept coming back and the score was tied going into the fourth period.

With 35 seconds left in the game and Salem ahead, 70-68, Kirkpatrick was fouled and made both free throws to make score 72-68. Noonan then grabbed the rebound at the other end of the court on a missed field goal attempt and made the front end of a one and one situation to make the score 73-68. Huron made a three-point shot at the buzzer to make the final, 73-71.

If Salem wins tonight the Rocks will play in the semi-finals at Michigan State at 1 p.m. on Friday. The winner of that game will advance to the finals on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at The Palace in Auburn Hills.

higher than ninth-place.

And it was only fitting that the two Centennial Educational Park (CEP) rivals ended their seasons with a 3-3 record in head-to-head competition; Salem winning the Western Lakes Activities Association title for the first time and Canton winning the regionals.

"We had rough and rocky times," said Kinsella, who credits assistant coach Debbi Popp with helping and encouraging the Rocks all season. "But Courtney came through at state and Kim was steady as a rock all year long, I'm real optimistic for the future.

We're looking good for next year, too. It should be fun."

"Right now there's a two-way dog fight for first-place next year between Salem and Canton," said Cunningham. "I'm already looking forward to next year."

League honors for CEP athletes

Post season honors in the Western Lake Activities Association went to several Centennial Educational Park athletes.

Junior Jake Baker was one of the five starting Salem basketball players to receive post-season honors. Baker was named to the all-conference team. Senior Jeff Gold and junior K.C. Kirkpatrick were named to the all-Lakes division team and Tom Noonan and Ryan Johnson, both seniors, were Lakes division honorable mentions. Canton junior Brett Howell was a Western division honorable mention.

In volleyball, Salem senior Aimee Rutan made the all-Lakes division team and honorable mentions went to Canton's Susan Ferko and Salem's Jenny Justice and Kolleen Lawrence.

Morris now leading Canton Chamber

government," he said. "There's a tremendous feeling of cooperation."

One project currently underway at the chamber is a directory of local members, said Morris, who has also worked to hire a "computer" to line up new chamber members and survey manufacturers in the community.

Morris said one of his goals is to expand the chamber membership as the township's business community continues to expand and develop.

Besides running his business and leading the chamber through 1990, Morris keeps himself busy as a local chairperson for the Moslem Shrine Temple's Scimitar Club.

Morris joined the Shriners in 1974 -- in 1992 he will be appointed as general chairperson of the Moslem Temple, in effect becoming the potentate's right-hand man.

For now, though, Morris helps out at the temple's restaurant, which services residents in the area near the temple headquarters in Detroit. He's also on the group's special events committee.

There are nearly 12,000 members throughout 11 counties in southeastern Michigan, said Morris, who has worked the Shiner's renowned circus since joining the group in 1974.

Morris loves to cook -- at the circus and the volunteer restaurant -- and he belongs to a snowmobile club in northern Michigan; recently, he returned from 1,000 mile journey through the Upper Peninsula with the group.

And within the next two years Morris said he hopes to have a plan together to involve the Shiner's in the annual Fourth of July parade put on by the Jaycees in Plymouth.

"I think it would be great to be in that parade," he said.
