

City, Jaeger agree to tentative contract

BY PHILIP TARDANI

The City Plymouth's city manager selection committee and its commission-approved candidate have come to terms on a contract, according to R. Jack Kenyon, chair of the selection committee.

Kenyon said he, city attorney Ronald Lowe and Commissioner John Vos III met with Gordon Jaeger last week and came to a preliminary agreement that must be approved by the entire city commission.

"I think we've about got it wrapped up," he said. "I've had enough surprises."

The tentative contract includes a salary of $59,500, a June 1 starting date and a "fairly liberal" vacation allowance, Kenyon said.

Jaeger said Monday that he had received a copy of the contract and approves of it. "They sent me a copy of the contract and I have no problem with it," he said.

Kenyon said the selection committee will recommend that the commission approve the contract at its next meeting, May 7.

Lowe said he has sent a copy of the agreement to each of the seven commissioners and that they should have seen it by this time.

"I would think that we'd have decision at the next meeting," Lowe said.

Miller Woods will be enclosed

BY KEN VOYLES

Miller Woods will be fenced in.

It may not happen tomorrow but members of the Friends of the Miller Woods and the Plymouth Kiwanis Foundation want to make sure it happens before the unique climax-beech forest is damaged or even destroyed.

The groups received unanimous support for the idea of fencing in the 10-acre site Monday from the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education. Some reservations were expressed by the board, however, over the type of fence envisioned.

The school district has owned the property - 50 acres, of which the woods encompasses 10 - since 1969 when it was purchased to build a middle school. The woods are located along Powell Roads near Ridge Road in Plymouth Township.

"When the school district bought the woods it was a junk heap. Now it's a jewel, really," said Evelyn Edgar, past president of the Friends of Miller Woods who has lived near the woods for nearly 40 years. "Our biggest concern, especially with summer coming, is children and the young adults. They do come in there and build fires and have beer parties."

Edgar said other problems include motorcycles and trail bikes in the woods. She said someone even tried to construct a BMX bike trail in the woods.

"This is the kind of thing we're concerned about," Edgar said. "And it is bounded on almost all sides by subdivisions."

Harold Fischer, of the Plymouth Kiwanis club, said, "It's an area that should be preserved for posterity. We don't want to restrict access. We want to restrict it to those walking."

Fischer said a six-foot high chain link fence was being proposed, but added that the two groups were open to other ideas. He told the board that the clubs will finance the enclosing of the woods if the school district would bid the work and "make the contracts."

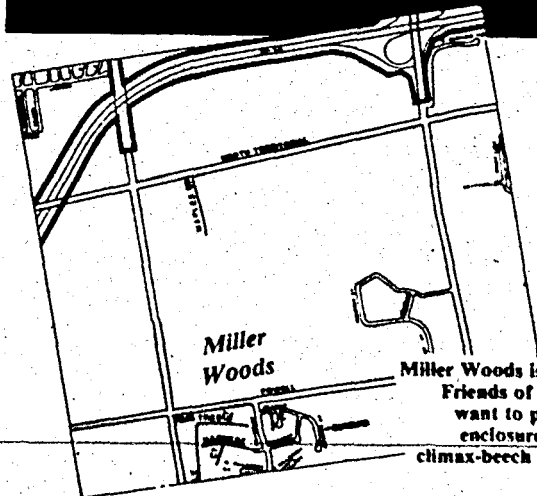

"We'll provide the money and the labor we can do ourselves," said Fischer.

School Superintendent John M. Hoben said the woods includes some fern specimens that are at least 500 years old. University of Michigan students still use the woods as an outdoor laboratory, he said.

"It's very rare," said Hoben. "We can take that as the rationale for why we're trying to preserve it."

Beverly McAninch, current president of the Friends of Miller Woods, said the idea has been kicked

Ann Arbor man held for murder

Canton man declared 'brain dead'

BY SCOTT DANIEL

A Canton man who sustained injuries from a beating outside an Ann Arbor bar was taken off life support last Tuesday after being declared "brain dead" by doctors.

Robert Moore, 23, died April 17 at the University of Michigan Hospitals after doctors disconnected the life support equipment, said Ann Arbor Police Sgt. Tom Caldwell. Moore had been in critical condition since being kicked in the head April 12, he said.

Carlos A. Mayberry, 21, of Ann Arbor, was arraigned last Wednesday in 15th District Court on a charge of open murder, Caldwell said. Mayberry will face a preliminary examination today at 9 a.m. in the court, he said.

Mayberry had been held on a charge of assault with intent to do bodily harm less than murder, Caldwell said. He said the charge was changed when Moore died. Mayberry is being held at the Washtenaw County Jail without bond, Caldwell said.

According to a family spokesperson who asked to remain anonymous, doctors at the hospital initially indicated that there was a "small amount of brain activity" but that Moore would "never be capable of any meaningful life." The doctors asked family members for permission to withdraw life support.

Doctors later told the family that they were "satisfied" that brain death had indeed occurred. "The doctor's felt brain death had occurred and they didn't need our permission to withdraw life support," said the spokesperson. "But they wanted to give us as much time as we needed."

The beating occurred as a result of a brawl that began at Dooley's Bar in Ann Arbor, Caldwell said. Moore and two companions were kicked out of the bar, he said.

Before leaving the bar, Moore was pushed by a patron, Mayberry's brother, Caldwell said. He said Moore responded by punching the man.

Moore and his companions then left the bar and went to his car at a nearby parking structure, Caldwell said. There they were confronted by five men, including Mayberry, he added.

Mayberry demanded Moore to fight, Caldwell said. He said Moore tried to get into his car, but was stopped by Mayberry. Caldwell added that Moore's friends were held back by the other men.

Caldwell said Mayberry kicked at Moore three times. One blow was blocked, the other struck Moore in the abdomen, doubling him over, and then Mayberry landed the final kick to the head, he said.

Moore fell backward hitting his head on a concrete wall, Caldwell said. He said Moore was knocked unconscious and never regained consciousness.

Moore was an apprentice electrician, said the spokesperson. He was taking related courses at Wayne County Community College for the past two years and planned to go two more years, the spokesperson said.

The spokesperson described Moore as a strong family man who was living with his mother and brother and worked with his father. Moore had helped a cousin with electrical work for a new home, the spokesperson said.

Moore was a 1985 graduate of Salem High School, who enjoyed playing softball and lifting weights.

"He was a great kid," the spokesperson said. "He was always glad to see you and greeted you with a smile."

Funeral services were held Monday at the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Livonia, the spokesperson said. He said Moore was buried at United Memorial Gardens in Salem Township.

Bell spending $4.8 million

Michigan Bell will spend $4.8 million this year to improve and maintain telecommunication systems in the Plymouth community, according to Marcia Buhl, public relations director for the phone company.

Buhl said the most of the expenditures will be for maintenance and to meet the high rate of growth in the area.

Most of the new lines laid in the area will be fiber optic cables, she added.

"This investment will make the telecommunications network an even more valuable asset to Michigan's -- and Plymouth's -- homes and businesses," Buhl said.

City resident donates 'living tribute' for youth

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Through the efforts of a local man, the City of Plymouth will pay a special tribute to Ryan White, an Indiana youth who recently died of AIDS.

Robert E. Archer, 74 and a life-long resident of the city, chose a living tribute — a tree — to honor White. The 15-foot Norway maple was planted yesterday in front of Central Middle School.

A small plaque will designate it as "Ryan's tree," after the 18-year-old who died of AIDS earlier this month.

"I said, 'Just call it Ryan's tree,'" said Archer, who made a request for the tribute to the Plymouth City Commission last week. "The kids might ask questions and wonder, 'Who's Ryan?'"

Archer, who has been battling Parkinson's disease for four years, said he thought children should know of White's plight and the persecution he endured from residents and classmates in his home town of Kokomo, IN.

"I thought the kids should be made aware of this," he said. "We have to be tolerant of others less fortunate and not persecute those who have such a dreaded disease."

Archer said he has planted trees in the past for his mother, father, sister and brother-in-law. Now a tree in the city is growing in memory of Ryan White.

"I had been reading about him in the newspapers and I thought planting a tree would be a good idea," Archer said.

City budget

The City of Plymouth will hold a public hearing on the 1990-91 fiscal year budget on Monday, April 30 at 7:30 p.m.

Mayor Dennis Bila said the hearing is for public comment and questions.

"This is the public forum for where they can state their concerns and ask their questions," he said.

The city administration recommended a $5,888,840 general fund budget to the commission, a three per cent decrease over the current year's general fund expenditures.

The police department and cultural center/recreation are the two largest general fund category recipients, at $1,169,109 and $890,050 respectively.

Bila said the commission will not take any action at the meeting because it is solely for public comment.

"It's really just to get input from the public," he said.

The budget hearing will be in the city commission chambers.

Candidates file for state primary races

BY SCOTT DANIEL

Incumbents in three of the five state and national elections to be contested in The Plymouth-Canton Community have filed for the primary races, said county and state election officials.

There is more than two weeks to go before the filing deadline.

In the 6th District, State Sen. Robert Geake (R), of Northville, is the only candidate to file for the election race so far.

State Rep. Gerald Law (R), of Plymouth, is the only candidate in the 36th District race, while in the 37th District, State Rep. James Kosteva, of Canton, is also the lone candidate so far, said officials.

As of Monday, no candidates had filed for the open seats in the U.S. House of Representatives currently held by William Ford (D), 15th District, and Carl Pursell (R), 2nd District, election officials said.

The filing deadline is 4 p.m. May 15 for state and local candidates.

Artley: committee needed

Schools talking waste

BY KEN VOYLES

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools wants to develop a joint program with other local governments to reduce the amount of solid waste generated by the district.

Last week Dave Artley, a trustee on the Plymouth-Canton School Board of Education, told the Canton Board of Trustees that the time had come for such a joint effort.

"We want to simply start talking about the issues. The schools have a responsibility to do something," Artley told the Canton board.

Artley said Monday that the board of education and administration should form a study committee next month to begin talking about the proposal.

"We've talked about it for a long

Bond issue discussion

BY KEN VOYLES

A possible bond issue in 1991 and the new budget will be topics for discussion when the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education meets May 7.

District Superintendent John M. Hoben said the workshop session is needed to "finalize" the new school budget as well as look ahead to the bond issue idea and a possible "structure" for such a request.

"We want to talk about the whole process," said Hoben Monday.

time. We're talking about the issues but we want to go much further," said Artley. "All I've asked is that we attempt to talk about the variety of issues."

Besides formulating ways to reduce the waste output from the district, members of the Canton Solid Waste Committee responded that an effort should be made to include environmental issues in the district's curriculum.

The committee members also said the school district needs to put pressure on its food service provider to reduce the large volume of styrofoam currently in use in food products available to students at lunch time.

Artley said that once the district had looked at the issues it would be important to begin the dialog process with other local governments.

Hoben said it would take about a year to plan for a possible bond issue in 1991. He said the idea is still in the embryonic stage.

Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business in the district, said input from residents is important to both the budget and bond process.

Hoedel said the district will eventually need to form a bond steering committee.

School officials have said they want to avoid asking for a millage renewal on the four mills approved by voters last year.

P.O. site plan approved

A proposed post office for Plymouth Township received final site plan approval from the township planning commission last Wednesday.

The plans for the proposed Plymouth Post Office call for a $2.5 million, 22,123 square-foot facility on Beck Road north of the CSX railroad tracks. Five customer windows are shown in the plan, as well as three bays of postal boxes and a self-service area.

Susan Gillespie, spokeswoman for the the U.S. Postal Service in Detroit, said the service is committed to maintaining a finance unit in downtown Plymouth where mail transactions could take place.

Growth of the 48170 zip code has necessitated a larger postal facility, Gillespie said.

The new buildings site plan approval is subject to landscaping and outstanding planning concerns.

CBE denies exploiting tragedy

BY KEN VOYLES

Is the Citizens For Better Education (CBE) group exploiting the tragic death of eight-year old Stephen Nalepa for its own purpose?

The CBE, a conservative Christian group made up of an unknown number of local residents, has opposed the use of "controversial" teaching materials in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district for nearly four years.

In a letter dated April 10 and written to the district superintendent, John M. Hoben, Debby Nalepa denies the accusation that the CBE has exploited her family's tragedy.

"In no way, shape, or form is any CBE member trying to use us or exploit us," wrote Nalepa.

Nalepa's letter was written in response to a April 4 memo from Shirley Spaniel, director of elementary education in the district, to Hoben.

In the memo Spaniel said she spoke with a friend of Nalepa's who, said Spaniel, told her that the Nalepas want "no part" of the CBE "bandwagon." Spaniel also reported to Hoben that the friend said the CBE is "trying to use this situation to further their cause."

Debby Nalepa's response called the Spaniel memo "utterly misconstrued and erroneous."

In the letter, Nalepa said she feared "at first" that the CBE was using her and the tragic death of her family, "believing what we read in the newspapers."

She added, "Now I know for a fact that one cannot believe everything one reads in print, after reading this letter."

Nalepa signed her letter, "Setting the record straight."

Some of the misunderstanding may come from the fact that the family turned to the CBE after their son's death in an attempt to get their hands on a copy of the movie "Nobody's Useless."

Diane Daskalakis, the CBE founder, in an April 2 interview with The Crier, denied making first contact with the family or exploiting the tragedy.

"Many people are beginning to say we've been like sharks around the family," said Daskalakis. "I just want to set the record straight - it's not true."

Daskalakis said the Nalepas turned to her in their effort to see the movie. "They just wanted someone to help them," she said. "There's nothing else to this at all."

Daskalakis said she called the school district on behalf of the family the Tuesday following Nalepa's death. She said the Nalepas had by then already tried to get the film from the district unsuccessfully.

"Nobody's Useless," will be shown tonight (April 25) and tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Gallimore Elementary School gym. Parents and other interested residents have been invited by the district to view the film.

The film showings follow claims by several district parents that the district has been reluctant to make the movie available to the public.

2 years after closing St. John's still unsold

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Nearing the second anniversary of its closing, St. John Provincial Seminary in Plymouth Township remains for sale.

Jay Berman, a spokesman for the Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit, said the seminary site still has not been sold.

"It's still on the market and we have no indication that there are potential buyers," he said.

The seminary, which at one time was one of the main institutions for training priests in the state, was closed in June of 1988 after the student body dropped to 57 out of a capacity of 250, Berman said.

Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit now trains priests in Michigan, he said. Berman said the facility is staffed with security personnel and is being fully maintained in anticipation of a purchaser.

"We're confident that some day we'll find someone who can make good use of it," he said.

Thirty-five acres of the 125-acre site were directly involved in the operation of the seminary, Berman added, while the remainder is an 18-hole golf course.

Berman said the golf course is being leased out and that a sale of the seminary should not affect its operation.

"The sale of the property does not legally break the lease," he said.

Szoka will help dedicate church

Cardinal Edmund Szoka will make one of his last appearances in the metro area at a Plymouth Township church dedication Saturday.

Szoka, who is leaving the Archdiocese of Detroit to take a post at the Vatican this summer, will conduct a 4 p.m. mass Saturday (April 28) dedicating the newly completed expansion of St. Kenneth's Catholic Church on Haggerty Road.

Following the mass there will be a reception for Szoka.

The church began its expansion into a new facility more than one year ago. There are approximately 700 families in the parish.

Committee calls for mandatory programs

Canton mulls solid waste issues

BY KEN VOYLES

An overview presentation made last week by the Canton Solid Waste Committee included a variety of suggestions for ways the township can pursue its immediate goals when it comes to dealing with solid waste issues.

Solid waste committee members met last Tuesday with the Canton Board of Trustees during a special workshop session. Many of the topics looked at last week will come before the board for formal discussion during the upcoming weeks and months.

Among the issues discussed were:

- A mandatory pickup for yard waste.
- A pilot curbside newspaper pickup project.
- A joint effort with the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools to reduce the district's solid waste.
- An office paper recycling project for township government offices.

"I think most folks in Canton are ready for it," said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, regarding the start up of a yard waste pickup in the township.

The yard waste plan may be the first issue to come to a realization since Canton is going to be the site of a new yard waste composting center run by Compost Systems, Inc. (CSI).

The 80-acre center, at Geddes and Beck roads, is being funded through a Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) grant obtained by the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA). The $300,000 grant will fund the start up of the center, which could be on-line this June.

Pete Rekshan, owner of CSI, said the site will pick up from where a Canton pilot program began last year through Canton Waste Recycling, owned by Dave Denski.

The pilot program used a unique method for composting, said Denski, involving wood chips to help break down yard waste such as grass. Denski said the method was tested during the pilot program and helped eliminate the smell often associated with composting mounds.

"The communities in WTUA are going to enjoy a great opportunity to get this going," said Denski.

Denski, who will manage day-to-day operation at the new composting site, said the state DNR visited his test site recently and did not find any problems with the effort.

Rekshan said the composting center could become a regional facility, offering space to other communities as well as the three townships in WTUA. He has also spoken with the City of Plymouth about joining the program.

If a yard waste program becomes mandatory, residents will have to bag that waste separately in either biodegradable bags or some other form of container. The yard waste would then be picked up by Denski for a small fee to the township (about $2 compared to nearly $10 for landfill hauling).

Cindy Burgess, co-chairperson of the waste committee, told the Canton board that the community needed to commit to the effort for at least two years to help develop the program.

As for the curbside newspaper pickup, Burgess said, "We would like to see a curbside pickup even though we are getting a landfill."

She added that the pickup would be a "first step" in getting residents to recycle a variety of products.

Yack said he was a little apprehensive about starting a curbside newspaper pickup since the township is already involved in a variety of other programs like the composting center.

"We've got a lot going right now," he said.

City audit still on backlog

BY PHILIP TARDANI

An audit of the City of Plymouth's finances remains on backlog at the state level waiting to be completed, according to a state treasury official.

Robert Colt, public information officer for the treasury, said the state has not got to Plymouth's audit yet.

"It's on an examination backlog and we haven't conducted it yet," he said.

The audit was suggested in January by former city commissioner Robert Jones and former city manager Henry E. Graper after Graper resigned under pressure in July.

In September, Graper paid the city back $17,300 in "overpayments."

Colt said treasury official will complete the audit as soon as possible.

"We will get to it as soon as we can," he said.

Nalepa sets the record straight

We called Daskalakis

EDITOR:
To set the record straight: immediately following our son's death, we requested the Plymouth-Canton School Board to allow my husband and I to see the film that was shown to our son's class. We were told that we should not view the movie for at least a week. At this point, we called Diane Daskalakis for assistance so that we could see the film as soon as possible. Daskalakis then telephoned the board office on our behalf and requested viewing privileges.

The people from CBE (Citizens for Better Education) were involved at my request and at no time has any member tried to exploit this family. People have to start believing this is not the religious fanatical group that the media portrays them to be.

Through my recent association with CBE, I have discovered their main focus is not-censorship but parental involvement in their children's education.

I did not like Jack Farrow's comments in the local papers. He seems to feel that his expression of sympathy gives him the right to use our son's death like a political football.

DEBORAH NALEPA

Sustain historic Plymouth

The City of Plymouth needs its citizens to speak up on the idea of a historical district in the city.

The concept was brought to light at the last meeting of the planning commission when city planner Robert Donohue gave a detailed presentation on the district idea.

Donohue, who is also a registered architectural historian, said Plymouth is a great place for a historical district.

"Plymouth has state-wide and nationally historic architecture," he said. "There are many streets in the city that have potential."

The city's architecture is not confined to any one period, Donohue said, combining Greek Revival (1820-1860), Italian Villa (1840-1880), and Victorian Eclectic (1860-1900), among many other styles.

"Each building is like a chapter in a book," he said.

The city also has fine examples of carriage houses, barns and other outbuildings from throughout the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, he added. Also during his report, Donohue noted that there are "hundreds" of homes in the city over 50 years old.

The question is, "How best to preserve these buildings that give so much to the atmosphere and style of Plymouth?"

There are two main approaches, according to Donohue.

On the beat

By Phillip Tardani

The first is a mandatory district, which would require approval from 51 per cent of the residents in the proposed district and would then mandate design review and approval for renovations and additions.

The trend, however, is away from mandatory districts, Donohue said, and toward the second approach: voluntary districts.

"Towns are finding that if they just come in and talk, the idea is very successful, and strictly voluntary from the beginning," he said, citing Tecumseh as a city that has smoothly run such a program.

The key to a good historical district, however, is time.

"The biggest thing we found out at the meeting is that we are nowhere near making any recommendations," said David Opple, chairman of the planning commission. "To make the best decision would be a one-to-three year process."

The first step, Donohue said, is to follow the guidelines of Michigan Public Act 169, of 1970, that enables local legislative bodies to appoint a historical district study committee.

It is important that the study committee be a cross-section of all vested interests in the city, Opple said, such as the chamber of commerce, the historical society and area realtors.

"Our commitment is to involve all interested parties, to get input from all interested parties," he said.

Donohue agreed, and stressed the issue of public involvement for a successful historical district program.

"The study committee has got to involve as much of the public as possible," he said. "There's a lot of education and a lot of community involvement that has to take place."

When the time is appropriate, I should like to have a tree planted in front of our former Plymouth High School in memory of Ryan White who so valiantly battled AIDS.

Include it in our City's beautification program. It might be an inspiration for the children in our community to prepare for the adverse challenges that may lie ahead.

It would be appreciated if someone from city hall would inform the parents of Ryan that the citizens of Plymouth, Michigan share their grief.

A check is enclosed, use it to include a plaque for this admirable and courageous young man.

Voters must come through

We need realistic board members

EDITOR:

A recent event has brought the importance of this year's election of two school board members into sharp focus. On Monday, April 16, the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal of a lower court ruling in favor of the school board of Purdy, Missouri. The school board's continued support for a 100 year old ban against school dances had been challenged by non-fundamentalist students and their parents. The challenge was based on the concept of the separation of church and state.

It is important to realize, in this instance, that the Supreme Court has always been reluctant to enter into matters that could be resolved by legislative action. The Supreme Court's message to the enlightened students and parents of Purdy is simple: If you want to change the rule, elect people to the school board who support your point of view. Don't ask the courts to do it for you.

The implication of this message for voters in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district is very clear: A school board has wide latitude to support and enact rules governing the conduct of school matters. The fact that a particular policy is consistent with religious beliefs of, or the position held by, a particular religious group or order, does not mean that the separation of church and state is being violated.

Clearly, a school board has extraordinary power to shape school policy as it wishes. Who we elect to fill school board positions is extremely critical to the conduct of education.

Although eight candidates currently remain in the race, two clear points of view should emerge. The major debate will center around the teaching of values and the dangers of ideas. One of Citizens for Better Education's candidates is already quoted as believing that the teaching of values belongs exclusively in the home and the church.

As the debate continues, we will hopefully see the emergence of an opposing point of view. Our nation is beset by racism, sexism, rape, spouse and child abuse, reckless substance abuse, irresponsible sexuality, rampant white collar crime, abuse of governmental power, and even church activities of questionable propriety. Where have home and church been all these years?

Our young people spend a substantial amount of time in school. Schools should play an important part in defining the values and responsibilities necessary for individuals to function successfully in highly complex social mentality. Knowledge is not an invitation to sin. Rather, it is the key to reasonable, lawful behavior.

Last year, thoughtful, realistic voters turned out in large numbers to demonstrate how much they valued our schools from a monetary point of view. This year, we need the same citizens to turn out and express their support for candidates favoring education for the realities of today's complex and changing world.

Be careful Jack

Farrow is insensitive

EDITOR:

This is just a quick letter to thank you for withdrawing from the Plymouth-Canton School Board election. I, too, feel strongly that you made the best decision for both the children and the community.

It is frightening that someone who would publicly say so much about something he obviously knows so little about, might have had the chance to do the same as a school board trustee.

I am personally aware of a letter from Debbie Nalepa to Superintendent John Hoben "setting the record straight" to use her words. In this letter she explained to him that "at no time and in no way did anyone from CBE (Citizens for Better Education) exploit or use us."

In my opinion, you could be placing yourself in danger of litigation by representing as fact something that is clearly only your uninformed and prejudiced assumption. Does a school board need a trustee that could also put them in jeopardy in their future dealings with the community? Your appalling lack of sensitivity in using this family as part of your reason for not running is incomprehensible and inexcusable.

Also, your obvious narrow-minded bigotry about a large and growing group of concerned citizens in our community would have been counter-productive to good community-board relations should you have been elected.

As for your personal attack on Robert Anderson, I see this as nothing but low-class mud-slinging type campaigning and I don't understand your willingness to stoop so low.

In conclusion, I feel that you have done all of the community a great service by withdrawing and I feel that you owe CBE, Robert Anderson, and the community as a whole, an apology. You know, as I think about your conduct, it is frightening to think that you seem to be in a leadership position in the ICARE Committee.

I would like to suggest that you either conduct more in-depth investigations on issues of importance before leading these people or withdraw from that position as you have withdrawn from the school board race.

Farrow knows not what he speaks

EDITOR:

I hate to dignify Jack Farrow's recent attack against Citizens for Better Education (CBE) and myself with a response. However, for the general public's benefit, I felt compelled to comment on his peculiar views.

Glad you withdrew

Thanks, Farrow

EDITOR:

I applaud Jack Farrow's decision to withdraw from the school board race, because I heartily agree, "it would be in the best interests" of The Plymouth-Canton Community for him to do so!

The first reason I feel him to be unqualified to serve on the board of education is because he chose to judge a local group for their alleged conduct during a recent tragedy in our community.

FACT: I have in my possession a copy of a letter to John M. Hoben (schools superintendent) that clearly absolves these people of any involvement in the so-called "shameless exploitation." So who has behaved irresponsibly?

The second reason I feel him to be unqualified is his statement that Robert Anderson's election to the school board could lead to the "destruction of our public school system." Since the community is aware that Anderson has previously run for the school board, why was he never arrested for carrying explosives if these are his motives?

The third reason I feel Farrow's resignation to be of importance is that almost everyone in this community could do, "at least as good a job" in serving on the school board. Why? Because, Farrow has made accusations and judgments that are not substantiated by fact.

I feel he owes an apology to the citizens and the students of this community for his blatant example of how ignorance breeds prejudice and bigotry.

political gain. I would like to know where he gets his information -- public school officials (this question is not rhetorical, I would truly like to know)?

I have never even brought up the subject for discussion in the media. Moreover, Mrs. Nalepa has gone on record herself to say that CBE has been helpful. CBE has merely done what Christians are supposed to do. That is, to lend help in times of need.

I will agree with Farrow on one point. It is better for the community that he has dropped out of the school board election race. We need board members that reserve their judgment and take action only after having obtained the important facts. We do not need board members that ride bandwagons and spew reckless accusations based on hearsay and prejudice.

Recall is a bad word

Redeem yourselves, Commissioners

EDITOR:

A letter to Plymouth's Mayor, Pro tem, and Commissioners:
"Recall"

It's a frightening word and I sincerely hope that we will hear it less frequently in discussions concerning our municipal problems. I am doing all I can to counter the suggestion that we would be better served by new faces on our city commission -- even before the next elections.

It is true that most of the members of the present commission permitted the former city manager to carry out his excesses and poor judgments which have cost taxpayers dearly. The selection of his replacement has also reflected poorly on most of the commissioners. It took far too much time and cost far too much money.

Commissioners can re-establish credibility with the citizens as they react to the upcoming budget.

Most of us feel that Plymouth can operate efficiently without an increase in real property taxes if we forego some of the "frills" that have been characteristic of previous spending programs. Priorities mandate that some of the support given to advancing the "image" of the Plymouth Community should be reduced, postponed or transferred to other sources of income. The commission has been overly generous in funding activities which should also be supported by others who share in the benefits.

The "coffee klutch" experts -- really mostly aroused taxpayers -- suggest that commissioners who are concerned for our citizens look into the following as means to regain a more sound fiscal policy:

1. Restructure some of the departments which are currently overstaffed with supervisory personnel. (Elimination of the position of Police Commander, long a favorite of mine, comes to mind.)

2. Allocation of appropriate expenses to the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) (which is rich with available funds). This will relieve the general fund from pressure in this year's budget. Appropriate areas would include --

- Establishment of a police foot patrol in downtown.
- Support for special events which are primarily downtown oriented such as band concerts and parades.
- Cost of parking maintenance and expansion.

- Cost for beautification and tree planting in the downtown area.
- Even some of the cruise control costs should be considered because that activity affects the downtown area.

3. Refusing to accept school related costs for street crossing guards which have traditionally been underwritten by the schools. The schools were recently given more tax dollars and they should be willing to undertake this part of their responsibility.

4. More pressure on Plymouth Township to underwrite more of the special events which have enhanced their total value as a part to the "Plymouth Community." They are hitch hiking on our image and not paying their share. We got them to pay a more appropriate portion of the costs of the library by establishing an "authority." We should investigate the longer range possibilities for "authorities" for --

- Police and Fire Departments
- Recreation
- Building and Inspection
- Planning
- Special Events

Our citizens will be opposed to the suggested "Promotion Tax." They feel these costs are more appropriate for the commercial interest in town, the Chamber of Commerce for instance.

Gentlemen and Mrs. Childs, there are many items in this year's proposed budget that "would be nice to have," but the taxpaying citizens are already feeling the pressure of last year's rates and will be enraged if an increased levy is proposed against an already increased SEV assessment. "Nice to have" is an expression that has no place in a budget proposed to offset the extravagant excesses of the previous administration. Certainly not this year!

The spotlight will be on you. I hope you can work out a budget and tax plan that will not reflect any increase. I think you can do it. I do not want to see any change in the composition of our present commission particularly with a new city manager taking command. He will need all of your skills and your experience.

In the margin

By Ken Voyles

Canton needs a new fire station to replace fire station number one located at the corner of Canton Center and Cherry Hill roads.

One only has to drive by the current site to see the validity of that statement. Apparently, others in the township have had the same concerns about the ancient facility.

According to both Supervisor Tom Yack and Canton Police Chief John Santomauro, a new fire station is indeed in the works. But wait, they're talking about building a third fire station, not replacing the small, over crowded firehouse on Canton Center.

Most of the discussion, said the two officials, centered on building a new station somewhere along the Michigan Avenue corridor.

Yack said the township was "trying to maintain" fire station one, noting that money has been spent to renovate it, add a new roof, install new fuel tanks and upgrade the grounds. He said the assessor's office located in the back of the station will eventually be moved to make more room for firefighters and equipment.

The supervisor said future plans for the first station and/or a third fire station remain dependent on development in the township. He said the township is currently conducting an infrastructure analysis to assess the community's future needs.

That's where a new station might come in.

Santomauro said questions about fire station one remain: Can it be expanded? Will it be able to accept aerial equipment in the future?

He said the feasibility of using that station was a long term issue. But another long term issue -- the widening of Canton Center Road -- may also play a role in deciding what to do with the firehouse.

"We've done a lot down there to clean it up. The problem is that there is only so much you can do with the building," said Santomauro, who added that the township has been very supportive of the entire public safety program.

The chief seems to think that a third station will be a reality within the next three years.

"The timing is important. We don't want to do it before there is a need, but we also shouldn't wait until it is too late," Santomauro said.

Canton has spent nearly $1 million equipping its fire department in the past three years, said the chief, but he added that "that doesn't mean we're done."

Welcome, Jaeger

EDITOR:

I hope the seemingly monumental process in selecting a new city manager is over. It was amazing that on the last night of the process a report from the selection committee appeared on the agenda. I guess better late than never.

It is a positive sign that Gordon Jaeger desires the job enough to make two trips from Battle Creek in one day. It is refreshing to see someone that can decide to take a job and not hem and haw when things are in the final stages. I welcome Jaeger, as well as his spirit and enthusiasm, to our community.

What is troubling are the questions asked during the interview. They were in the nature of, "What do you intend to do when you grow up as a city manager?" Do those type of questions deserve an $18,000 price tag?

The city commissioners stressed the importance of hiring and utilizing the firm of Bartell & Bartell. In the end, none of those marvelous techniques was used except for the riveting interview questions. Jaeger was not even in the original field. The commission was able to perform their elected function and find a new manager. I say, shame on them for not attempting to perform the task before throwing away $18,000.

Hopefully Jaeger can provide the floundering commission with a little guidance and foresight based on his number of years as a city manager.

I wish him the best of luck.

Through Miller Woods Take a hike

Enjoy spring on April 28 and May 6 when the annual Miller Woods Spring Walks will be held from 1-4 p.m. in Plymouth Township.

The "Friends of the Miller Woods" will provide guided tours of the woods, located on Powell Road between Beck and Ridge roads, which will feature many spring flowers in bloom.

This year marks the 15th anniversary of the "Friends of the Miller Woods," a group of concerned citizens who are committed to help, protect and preserve the Miller Woods.

"Friends of the Miller Woods", a non-profit group, are always open to new members to help keep this unique woods as a preserve.

Dues are now renewable for present members and new members may join at this time. The dues are $10 for individuals and $25 and up for patrons. Dues may be sent to "Friends of the Miller Woods", Plymouth Community Board of Education, 453 S. Harvey, or call 451-6423 for further information.

around for at least three years.

"Every time we've turned it down," she said. "We just didn't want to do it. We want to try and keep it as open as much as possible, but there have to be some restrictions."

Edgar added, "It goes against all of us to lock it up."

Bob Evans, of the Kiwanis club, said the groups were looking for approval "of the idea that it needs to be protected." He said at this time fencing was the "only way to do it."

The clubs also recommended constructing a small parking lot nearby. Currently anyone visiting the site has to park along Powell Road.

Pearse Johnston, a resident who lives near the woods, said he was concerned about restricting access to the woods. He called the fence idea "hideous."

Johnston said he wanted the "opportunity" to solicit support from nearby residents who agree with him. E.J. McClendon, board vice president, said, "This is a valuable thing. Sometimes I wish we never had gotten the property."

"We can't in good conscience use it for its original purpose (a middle school)," he added. "But we can't stand by and see it destroyed."

Hoben said, "When we discovered (the woods) that kind of closed off the idea of a middle school there." He added, though, that an elementary school could still be built on the remaining 40 acres.

Board Trustee Dave Artley said he supported the idea but did not like the fencing. He suggested a "baffle" of some sort.

Board Trustee Barb Graham also supported the idea as long as there was "ready access" and "no locked gate."

Edgar said she didn't think the Michigan DNR would oppose the project. She said when she spoke to DNR officials a few years ago they said it wasn't a large enough piece of land.

Adams donates historic map

Local man maps the world

BY SCOTT DANIEL

If a career in map making doesn't sound like your cup of tea, relax it didn't sit well with the wife of a Plymouth Township man either.

Edmund Adams, a retired cartographer, made maps of everything from cities and townships to the solar system during his career. But, his wife, Ann, thought he could have made more money working for Ford's.

Despite her objections, Adams spent 37 years as a map maker for Hearne Bros. Engineers and Cartographers of Detroit. Adams said he began his career in 1944, after taking night courses in topographic map drawing at Wayne State University during World War II.

Adams said he was promoted to the position of assistant chief cartographer and manager of the photographic department in 1950. He held that title until his retirement in 1981.

"I was a big part of their success," Adams said.

The last three years of his career were spent working on an Earth Science Map of American History, Adams said. He said he was given three copies of the map when he retired. He recently donated copies to his hometown school district in Amsterdam, NY, and to the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The map consists of illustrations which cover American history from the revolutionary war to the present, Adams said. The map shows the states east of the Mississippi River on one side and those west on the other, he said. The map also shows pictures of all the presidents and famous Indian chiefs, he added.

The outlining and all the illustrations on the map are his own work, Adams said. The historical data was provided by college professors, he said.

"It was a very time consuming process," Adams said. "But it was my baby."

Adams moved to Plymouth Township in 1951 when he purchased five acres of land and a shell-frame home, which he finished himself.

There is only one acre remaining of "Adams Acres," Adams said. He said he sold the land over the years to developers.

Adams met his wife in Detroit when she was 13. They were not allowed to date until she turned 16, he said. They were married in 1941 and will celebrate their 50th anniversary next year.

"We've had our fights over the years," Adams said. "But we've always made up."

Plymouth was a "great background" for raising his daughters, Cindy and Gloria, he said.

Adams said he is busier now than when he was working. In 1977 he started painting and has concentrated mainly on landscapes. In 1980 he had a display of his work at the Fall Festival.

"I have given most of my paintings to my friends," Adams said. "But, I would like to get into abstract painting."

Besides painting, Adams runs his own commercial arts business out of his home. He said he has done many signs for Plymouth businesses such as the Penniman Deli, Andy's Hallmark and Chicken Charley's.

Adams has also painted mail boxes -- he painted a crocodile on one neighbor's box.

Adams has also collected maps throughout his career. An 1862 Johnson's Atlas is his most prized item, he said.

"The house is full of maps," Ann Adams said. "Too many maps."

Edmund Adams points to the map that consumed the last three years of his career. (Crier photo by Scott Daniel)

Tell it to Phyllis

By Phyllis Redfern

A few months ago the following prayer for secretaries and office managers appeared on my desk. Most of the staff read it and laughingly said "how true."

I didn't think much of it until last week when it happened to resurface on one of the piles on my desk. The first time I read it, I assumed it was directed at some disorganized man. However, after rereading it last week, I had an uneasy feeling.

Guilty started flashing through my mind as I read the prayer. In fact, almost everything in it read like it was directed right at me. If you change the three-page letter in the first part to read three-page report, I'd know these thoughts came from our business department.

I know I'm not the only boss guilty of some of these things. Perhaps you can relate or know of someone who can relate to this prayer.

Prayer For Secretaries & Office Managers

Dear Lord, help me to do my work well; to have the memory of an elephant, the patience of a saint and the hide of a rhinoceros. And when the boss asks me to stay late to type a three-page letter that absolutely must go out today, andn he (she) doesn't get around to signing it until tomorrow, please help me to keep my mouth shut.

Dear Lord, never let me lose patience, even when the boss has me searching the files for hours for something that is later discovered on his (her) desk.

Help me to have the knowledge of a genius, although my education is limited to high school and secretarial training.

Help me to understand and carry out all instructions without any explanation.

Let me always know exactly where my boss is and when he (she) will be back, even though he (she) never tells me when he (she) leaves.

And Lord, when the year ends, please give me the foresight not to throw out records that will be asked for in a few days, even though I was told emphatically, 'Destroy these -- they are cluttering up the place. AMEN'

Since this is Secretaries Week, it is a good time to thank those people who do all those little (and big) things for us. Although we don't have any secretaries at The Crier, we do have three people in the business department who take our calls, type our letters and manage to come up with the reports we need. Thanks to Peg Glass, Kathe Allison and Margaret Glomski for having the patience to get things done.

Mettetal meetings set

The first meeting of the Canton Mettetal Airport study committee will be tonight (April 25) at 7:30 p.m. in the Canton Administration Building.

The airport group, which is looking into the feasibility of municipal ownership of the local facility, will meet again on May 23.

A public hearing is then planned for June 20 and a final meeting of the group will be held Aug. 8.

'Positively' Plymouth

Positively Plymouth month kicks off again next Wednesday (May 2) with a free community mixer/mini-expo from 5:30-8 p.m. at the Radisson Hotel, Plymouth.

Admission is free to residents. There will be door prizes, refreshments, a cash bar and more.

Positively Plymouth month in May is a way to promote the community, said organizers at the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

Three works will be performed by the PSO on that Friday -- Rachmaninoff's "Symphonic Dances," Dvorak's "Slavonic Dances," and Borodin's "Polovetsian Dances."

and will also look at the early history of Plymouth as it relates to Burroughs and its employees.

Burroughs first gained fame producing the Norden Bomb Sight during World War II and later became known for its Sensimatic machine, which revolutionized bookkeeping and accounting systems. Today the facility, located on Plymouth Road, produces a variety of computer systems.

The Plymouth Historical Museum is open Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. Hours are 1-4 p.m. on those days, except Sunday when it is open from 2-5 p.m.

Admission to the museum is $1.50 for adults, 50 cents for students ages five to 17 and open free to children under the age of five. A family admission is $4.

For further information call 455-8940.

Also, before and after the concert selected art work by students at Centennial Educational Park (CEP) will be on display for concert goers. There will be some 200 pieces in a variety of mediums. They will be on display one hour before and after the concert.

Tickets for the show are available at the box office 30 minutes before the performance or in advance at Beitner Jewelry, Evola Music Center, Orin Jewelers, Bookstall on the Main and Hammell Music.

Places to be

OV Spring Festival

The first ever Spring Festival in the City of Plymouth's historic Old Village will be held this Sunday (April 29) from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The spring event features antiques and crafts dealers, entertainment, special food dealers, pony rides for the kids and more. Most of the shops in the Old Village part of town will be open on Sunday.

At the same time, residents of Old Village will be holding spring yard sales throughout the day.

Entertainment will be set up along Division Street between Starkweather and Mill streets. The schedule includes: the Livonia Y Gymnastics team at 12:30 p.m.; the musical group Black Tie, 1 p.m.; Main Street Cloggers, 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.; and the Polish Centennial Dancers, 3:30 p.m.

The new spring festival was created after the success of last fall's Old Village Applefest, said Mark Oppat, president of the Old Village Association.

For event information or Old Village walking maps call the Old Village hotline at 455-7011, or call Oppat at 455-4169.

Omnicom editing workshop

The Programming Department of Omnicom Cablevision will offer a Public Access -- Camcorder and Editing Workshop for residents of Plymouth-Canton-Northville.

The workshop will cover how to operate camcorders and participants will be required to produce a three-five minute program.

Classes will meet one night each week for six sessions, beginning May 7 from 7-9 p.m. The May 28 class will meet on May 29 due to Memorial Day. Classes will conclude on June 11.

To register for the program call 459-7335 or 459-7391. There is a $10 registration fee. Class size is limited and advance registration is required.

Helping wild birds, mammals

Residents interested in learning how to rehabilitate wild birds and mammals in their homes can receive training through a special workshop offered by the Humane Society of Huron Valley (HSHV).

The workshop will be held this Saturday (April 28) from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The cost is $15, which includes a rehabilitation manual and sessions on both wild birds and mammals.

More than 1,800 orphaned and injured wild animals came through HSHV in 1989 for care. The society's Wildlife Rehabilitation Team was responsible for returning more than 1,300 of the animals to the wild.

For further details on the session call Linda at 662-5545 to pre-register.

Chorus presents spring show

The Plymouth Community Chorus will present its annual spring concert, "For the Beauty of the Earth," April 28 at 8 p.m. and April 29 at 4 p.m. in the Salem High auditorium.

The 17th annual spring event features songs dedicated to the celebration of Earth Week, including "For the Beauty of the Earth," "Michigan Morn," "Edelweiss," "Seeds grow to Plants," and other favorites.

Tickets for the concert are $6 for adults and $4 for seniors and children. Group rates are available. Tickets can be purchased at Sideways in Plymouth and the Gitfiddler in Northville.

For further ticket information call 455-4080.

Also, during the Saturday show, the chorus will present its 1989-90 student scholarship winners. The winners include: Angelica Alvarez, Joseph Phillips and Kirk Metzger.

Organized in 1973 with less than 25 members, the Plymouth Community Chorus today consists of 120 voices from various western Wayne County communities. It is directed by Michael Gross.

PCAC spring cleaning gallery sale

Spring cleaning time is upon us. At the Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC) Art Rental Gallery a "Spring Clean the Gallery Sale" has been slated for April 25 from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Special pricing on original artwork and reproductions, with prices ranging from $9 to $500. Also two months free rental of one painting will be offered as door prizes during the sale.

Prices will be held over for a May 2 date also.

For further information call the gallery on Wednesdays at 459-0110 or call 459-6896 at other times.

1st time buyers make mark

BY SCOTT DANIEL

Owning a home in Plymouth, Canton or Northville sounds appealing to many buyers looking for their first home. Although it isn't easy, it's not impossible, realtors said.

Lillian Verkerke, a real estate broker for Remax of Plymouth, said first-time buyers comprise about 25 to 30 per cent of all homes sold by Remax in Plymouth and Plymouth Township. There are more ways to finance the purchase of a first home now than in the past, she said.

Many first-time buyers have two incomes now, Verkerke said. These couples tend to be professionals, who are able to handle large house payments, she added.

Even with two incomes, couples still find it difficult to come up with enough money for a downpayment on a first home, said Sandra Nickol, a mortgage specialist for Republic Bancorp Mortgage in Plymouth.

"Typically, 70 to 80 per cent of first-time buyers receive gift money from their parents to help with a downpayment," Nickol said.

Downpayments range from about five to 10 per cent with first time buyers, Nickol said. She said this accounts for the large house payments of first-time buyers.

Nanette Hebets, broker/owner of Suburban Century 21 in Northville, said loans guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration are being used more and more now by first home buyers to help with financing.

The Federal Housing Administration will guarantee up to $79,700, currently in Wayne County, for a mortgage loan, Hebets said. That maximum limit is being "raised almost every month," she said.

Another factor increasing the chances of first time buyers getting a home in the area is that many are willing to take a house which needs work, Verkerke said. The popularity of the community makes many overlook the problems with a "fixer upper," she said.

Hebets said first-time buyers are an important part of housing sales, for Century 21, in Northville also. First time buyers increased from 24 to 28 per cent of total sales from 1988 to 1989, she said.

Sale prices for first homes in Northville range from about $90,000 to $160,000, Hebets said. She said it is important to establish a good relationship with first time buyers for future sales.

Robert Olson, owner of Realty World in Canton, agreed saying that accurate and complete consultation with first time buyers helps to form a good relationship. He said it is important to treat first time buyers with extra care.

First time buyers make up about 20 per cent of housing sales in Canton, Olson said. He said the figure was lower in Canton than Plymouth and Northville because housing is newer.

"There isn't very much older housing available," Olson said. "But, if we can keep prices stabilized in Canton, there will be more first time buyers."

The biggest problem in getting a first home in the Plymouth area is taxes, said Verkerke. First time buyers will buy a home if they feel they can afford the house payment, she said. Verkerke added that Plymouth's taxes often make house payments unaffordable for first time buyers.

Hebets said taxes were also a problem in Northville for first time buyers. Northville had one of the highest increases in the state for tax assessments last year, she said.

First time housing buyers should have good credit and job security before looking into buying a home, Hebets said. She said a substantial downpayment, at least 10 per cent, is also important.

Ann Kelly, associate broker with Century 21 in Northville, said first time buyers must be willing to compromise.

"First time buyers never buy their dream house," Kelly said. "They must be realistic."

SALEM. Plymouth schools and address. Custom built rustic country home. 2250 sq. ft., almost 2 acres. 3 fireplaces, deck, and above ground pool. $185,000.

PLYMOUTH. Walk to downtown and schools with this lovely 3 bedroom ranch. Remodeled kitchen and bath, finished basement, new roof, 2 car garage with opener, extra deep lot plus a city park at each end of block. $109,900.

LIVONIA. One of Livonia's most desirable subs, 3 bedroom brick ranch. Full basement, 2 car garage with opener, central air, new hot water heater. $84,800.

THE CITY'S REAL ESTATE SECTION '90

How affordable is P-C-N?

BY PHILIP TARDANI

It came as no surprise to some residents of The Plymouth-Canton Community back in March when INC. magazine rated "Livonia-Plymouth" as the sixth best booming business neighborhood in the country.

Most of us know that this is a high growth area and a good place to live. But how does that desirability compare with affordability? Do you have to be in the upper end of the income bracket to be able to buy a house in The Plymouth-Canton Community?

The answer from area realtors appears to be no. "Our business has been particularly lively the first part of this year and we expect it to continue," said Robert Bake, a realtor in Plymouth. "The real attractive price range is between $90,000 and $175,000."

Bake also said he expects real estate prices in the area to remain reasonable. "I don't think they're going to be out of sight at all," he said.

As far as young couples being able to move into the area, Bake said it was possible if they were prepared and had some money ready.

"Young couples can do it, but they've got to do some advance planning," he said.

Downtown Plymouth is a big draw for the city, Bake said, but Plymouth Township also offers some nice subdivisions, he said.

Nanette Hebets, owner of Century 21 real estate offices in Plymouth and Northville, said that about a third of the homes her company sold last year in Northville were to first time buyers.

"We have a great number of first time buyers and we are able to help these people," she said.

Ann Kelly, Hebets' top salesperson in the area, said apartments and condominiums are popular in Northville for those not able to buy a house right away.

Falling for a community Buyers find ways to move here

CONTINUED

Kelly said she thought the time to buy in the area is right now. "Right now it is affordable," she said. "In years to come I think we'll be as expensive as many of the larger cities in the country." Joan Smith, of Real Estate One in Plymouth, said one trip to downtown Plymouth or Northville is often enough to convince interested people that they can afford to buy in the area. "You have to fall in love with the city first," she said. "Quite often we end up getting people walking in and saying, 'okay, what do we have to do to get in here.'"

Smith said the "quaint and charming atmosphere" of Plymouth is its main draw to young couples and older folks alike.

"We get a variety of buyers," she said. "It seems to hold a lot for the different ages."

In Plymouth, Kellogg Park is an important part of the city's atmosphere, she said.

"A lot of couples like to walk hand-in-hand or stroll with their babies in the park," she said.

Though downtown Plymouth and Northville are popular Canton offers "a lot of house for the money," Smith said.

Hebets said Northville's country atmosphere is a big draw, with such attractions as Maybury State Park and Mill Race Village.

Joseph Attard, building official in Northville, said the city's historic character is very important to its attractiveness.

"We're trying to maintain the older look," he said. "A lot of our homes are over 100 years old."

Kenneth Way, currently acting city manager of Plymouth, said community pride makes his city desirable.

"The general attitude of the people is good," he said. "We have well-maintained shrubs, yards and buildings; those all add something to the community."

Way also credited the citizens of the city who serve for little or no money on city boards and commissions as well as charitable organizations for their contributions to the city.

"We have an unpaid group of people who work just to be dedicated to the community," he said.

Lou LaRiche has headed the Chevrolet dealership for 20 years.

'Uncle Lou' says: 'satisfaction important'

BY MICHELLE IRANI

Already, 1991 is 'rolling around' at Lou LaRiche Chevrolet/Subaru in Plymouth Township.

The 1991 Caprice, 1991 Camaro, and a variety of 1991 trucks are already available, said Lou LaRiche, owner of the dealership. "And this is still only 1990."

"There are a lot of new and exciting things" happening in Chevrolet, said LaRiche, there have been "25 new or restylized cars in the last 20 months."

"We have a little bit of everything for everybody," said LaRiche. "We cater quite a bit to the first time buyer, with special rebates (for them of) up to $600."

The dealership, 40875 Plymouth Road at Haggerty across from Unisys, has expanded four times to host approximately 200-400 new cars in stock at one time. The cars' price range starts at $6,000 and can go up to $45,000.

Some 75 to 100 different makes and models of used cars are also in stock, reconditioned, and ready to go.

A "full service leasing program," is also in effect at the dealership, said LaRiche, with the "capabilities of leasing any car or truck we sell."

A huge variety of parts are carried in the parts department. The dealership also has a service department, which guarantees its work by a number of well-known local mechanics - "Mr. Goodwrenches."

The dealership, which employs 77 people, is proud of the numerous awards they have received, notably, the Certified Supremacy Dealership award, which they have won repeatedly.

"This award is given out to 350 dealers out of the 5,000 in the U.S.," said LaRiche. "The award is based on customer satisfaction in sales and in service."

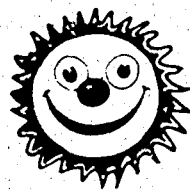

LaRiche, a Plymouth resident, has owned the dealership for 20 years. He also owns two other dealerships in Findley, OH.

Significantly, he is a past president of the Detroit Auto Dealers Association, The Metro Detroit Chevrolet Dealers Association, and of the Plymouth Rotary.

"We are members of the Plymouth, and Livonia Chamber of Commerces," said LaRiche. "And we support the local communities."

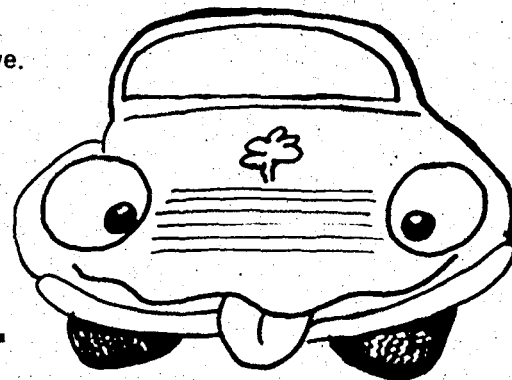

"Business is good," said LaRiche. "Simply because of our location in The Plymouth-Canton Community, and our product."

"Price is important, but satisfaction is priceless," concluded LaRiche.

Buying historic property in P-C

Brian Dietz sits on the rafters in front of the "1904" discovered by workers during the early stages of renovation. (Crier photo by Ken Voyles)

BY KEN VOYLES

Buying and renovating a historic home is not only an expensive proposition, but one filled with the frustrations that go hand in hand with any large scale project, especially those that drag out over time.

The Plymouth-Canton Community has a plethora of historic homes; one recent statistic noted that the City of Plymouth has hundreds of homes at least 50 years old and many that go back to the turn of the century.

With those kind of numbers, it's easy to see that the real estate market for historic homes is alive and well throughout the community.

Overseeing a historic renovation

"When they were gutting this place it was a real mess, but now it's beginning to take shape," said Leo Dietz, the owner of a historic home currently under renovation along Penniman Avenue. "It's been a long time coming."

Dietz, 63, is overseeing a project to restore what he calls a "typical farmhouse." It's an effort that has been many years in the making.

"Other than being turned down by the city's ZBA (Zoning Board of Appeals) we've never had any trouble with the city," said Dietz, who currently lives in Livonia while the renovation work continues. "If we did have trouble with the city I wouldn't want to move here."

The Dietz family purchased the two-story structure nearly 20 years ago.

They believe the home was first constructed around 1904. Evidence to that fact was found during the renovation when workers discovered the date "1904" painted (or burned) on some of the original roof beams.

Once the Dietz children grew up the family turned to the house to finish a project that they had dreamed of when they first bought the historic building.

"When we first spotted it we said, 'Let's buy it,' and we did. We knew it would be gorgeous when it was finished," said Leo Dietz.

But the renovation has been somewhat of a frustration. When the roof was removed, for example, many of the beams were apparently charred from a fire and had never been replaced.

"That's typical of the things you run into that you cannot anticipate," said Dietz.

Historic home

Before ever getting to start the renovation, though, the Dietz family ran into some other unexpected problems. The original plans were rejected by the city ZBA two years ago because they called for an attached garage.

Shortly after that the family's architect, John Graham, died, forcing the family to start all over again with a new set of blueprints and designs.

"We didn't change a lot. We detached the garage," said Dietz. "And we made some other minor changes."

Last spring the city finally gave the go-ahead for the renovation, said Dietz, who then contracted with a builder, Bryce Construction, to begin the renovation work last fall.

Besides the roof, one of the first jobs was to tackle the original fieldstone foundation (another marker pointing to the home's age). That turned out to be a major job, said Dietz, when a concrete base had to be filled under the fieldstone work. Later, part of the original foundation collapsed.

"You've got to be crazy, but you've got to love a place to do this," said Dietz. "Obviously, we love Plymouth and the neighborhood or we wouldn't be doing all of this. It will be nice when it's done."

Dietz advises others thinking about buying and restoring a historic home to be patient. He also advised against any "do-it-yourself" efforts.

"I don't know anyone that could do a job like this by themselves," Dietz said. "It's the kind of job you just can't do yourself."

"And you need a good contractor. If your contractor doesn't know what he's doing you're in real trouble," he added.

REMEMBER: AT ERA® PRIME PROPERTIES -- "WE'RE SELLING HOUSES"

Be prepared for 'hidden' costs

Dietz said the current project calls for saving the "basic shape of the house.

"All we wanted to do was just keep the old character of the house, which we've done," he said. "We've added to it in the back and are building a detached garage."

Besides Bryce, another contractor will be putting in the electric work, while Dietz' son, Brian, who works for Long's Plumbing in Northville, is putting in all of the plumbing.

Dietz has no regrets about the project, although he said he "dreads" the extra costs with all of the delays over the years.

"Why should I regret it?" he asked. "It will be worth over twice what I've put into it when it's done.

"Still, it's frustrating to come by here and see how little progress is made," said Dietz, who visits the construction site every day.

The plans call for an "open" floor plan, said Dietz, to take advantage of the site and the original design. He said having a good working relationship with an architect is important, especially if you have ideas of your own you might want to incorporate into the design.

"We're very pleased with the design," he said. He added that the city "seemed" hostile at first, but soon came around once the adjustments were made to conform with the ZBA's instructions.

Neighbors of Dietz were "tickled to death" over the plans, he said, and the family had little trouble getting a local bank to approve a renovation loan.

"I'll tell you if you're going into an old house like this you better count on having extra money for the hidden costs," Dietz said.

Dietz said the project will cost him more than $100,000, with every delay raising the price a little bit more.

By this time next year, though, the family should be able to move into their restored home, he said. "In the long run the delays didn't do us any harm," said Dietz.

Dietz also called the location on Penniman "terrific."

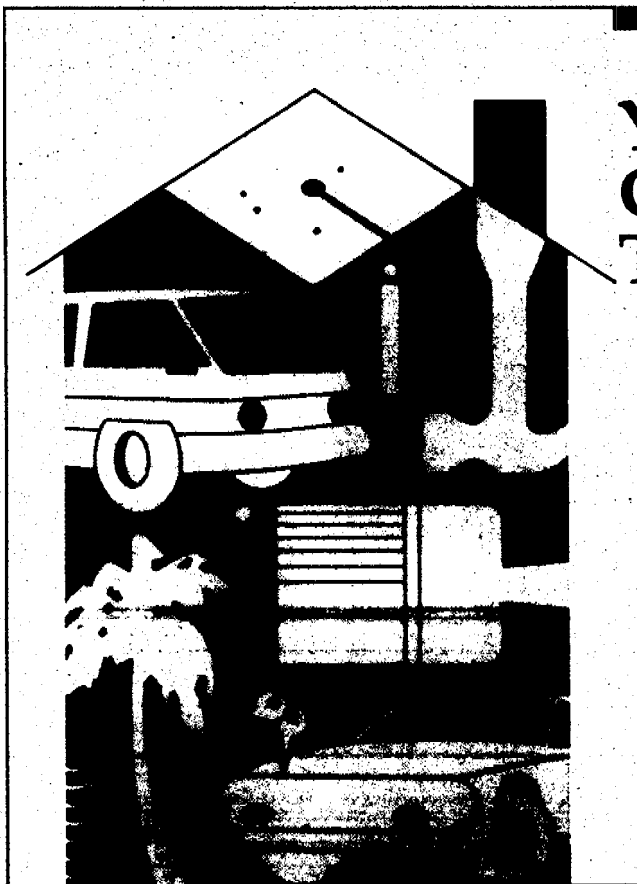

He added, "We could have leveled the house and sold the lot for twice what we paid originally."

As for historic designation, Dietz said he did not want to go that route because of all the restrictions such a designation puts on the homeowner.

"We can do anything to it we want since it's not classified," he said.

Although he has no regrets about the project, Dietz said he wishes he had kept an old flint-lock derringer pistol he found in the basement. He "naively" sold the relic for $50, knowing now that its value is probably 10 times that.

"I'm sure this will all be worth it. The house is going to be built like a tank when it's done," Dietz said.

New road study is a Twp. 1st

A study of roads in Plymouth Township is in the hands of the township board of trustees for their information, according to Paul Jones, township engineer.

Jones, who did the study with James Anulewicz, public services director, said it was the first of its kind.

"This is the first comprehensive study of the township road system," he said.

The study was an inventory of road in the township and looked at surface types, traffic congestion and accidents, and the condition of the surfaces, Jones said.

Jones said township roads use three surface types, concrete, asphalt and gravel. He admitted a personal bias in favor of concrete, but said asphalt was also acceptable.

"If asphalt is designed properly, it's O.K.," he said.

The township would like to phase out gravel roads, however, he said.

"We don't feel that gravel is a suitable surface because of high maintenance and dust," Jones said.

The busiest roads in the township are Ann Arbor Road at Haggerty, with up to 40,000 vehicles per day; Shelon at Ann Arbor Road, with up to 22,000 vehicles per day; and Lilley at Ann Arbor Road, with up to 16,000 vehicles per day.

Jones also said there are up to 30,000 vehicles per day travelling between Lilley and Sheldon.

Two of the biggest intersections for accidents are Sheldon and Ann Arbor Road, with up to 56 accidents a year and Ann Arbor Road and Haggerty, with up to 58 accidents a year.

Jones said township roads are generally in good shape.

"I was suprised at the good condition of most of the roads," he said.

The study recommends the following to the board:

- Priorities be established with regard to a comprehensive road construction and maintenance program.

- Methods of financing be reviewed and developed.

- The board establish priorities consistent with the wishes of residents and voters and the ability to fund projects.

At its last meeting, the board authorized the administration to investigate the creation of special assessment districts for Morrison and Roker street paving improvements.

The assessment process works when 51 per cent of the property owners on a street petition the county to pave or otherwise improve a road.

The affected residents would then pay for the improvements, Jones said, generally getting 10 years to do so.

The township has the power to authorize special property tax assessments against the benefitting properties to pay for the improvements, according to state law.

Township Supervisor Maurice Breen said that special assessments are probably the only way to get gravel roads in the township paved.

"I think that's the only way they'll ever get the money to do those things," he said.

Twp. trustee faces OUIL charge

A Plymouth Township Trustee is facing a pre-trial hearing on charges of operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor (OUIL) after a Feb. 17 accident, according to Judge James Garber of the 35th district court.

Trustee Ron Griffith pled innocent to the charges at his arraignment earlier this month, Garber said. The pre-trial hearing is scheduled for Friday (April 27) before Judge John MacDonald, he said.

The accident occurred on Seven Mile Road in Northville Township. Griffith said he was heading east when one of his tires went off the edge of the road and into the ice and snow.

Griffith said he lost control of the car and struck a tree, sustaining facial lacerations and a broken arm and hip.

A Michigan State trooper wrote Griffith the OUIL citation, Garber said.

Getting down to business

Alan Marshall's marketing and graphic design firm recently landed the Ansel Adams gallery account. (Crier photo by Robert Richards)

Flexibility at home

The lone marketer

BY SCOTT DANIEL

Not far away from Plymouth's business center lies the home of a one-man marketing and graphic design firm. Well, almost.

Alan Marshall's Marshall Marketing and Graphic Design, 10306 N. Canton Center Rd., consists of Marshall and a silent partner -- the FAX machine.

Marshall, 50, began the marketing and graphic design firm in August 1985 with the idea of leading a more "sain" life by working for himself out of his own home. The FAX machine has made it possible, he said.

"I can create right here and then FAX it out to my clients," Marshall said. "It's fun to have this kind of flexibility."

Creating a marketing strategy, providing marketing consultation, developing promotional literature and advertising concepts are the main functions of the firm, Marshall said. He said the firm currently has seven clients in four states.

Among the firm's clients is the Ansel Adams Gallery of Yosemite National Park, CA, Marshall said. The process of getting the gallery's account began two years ago, he said.

Marshall said he met Jean Adams, president and general manager of the gallery, as well as daughter-in-law of Ansel Adams, at a direct mail catalog seminar in Phoenix two years ago. Adams had been impressed with the firm's handling of a previous account and expressed an interest in promoting the gallery in a "fresh" way, he said.

Adams decided to use the firm in September 1989 after two years of informal communications, Marshall said. He added that an overall marketing program was being targeted for the gallery's 1990-91 season. Development of the program will begin in June.

Ansel Adams has remained one of America's favorite photographers since his death in 1984, Marshall said.

"It's an honor to be involved with the gallery," Marshall said. "I identify with this man."

Adams intended originally to pursue a career as a concert pianist, instead of photography, Marshall said. Like Adams, it was also his intention to pursue a career in music, he said. But, Marshall added, it was the desire to "be a problem solver" which led to his career in marketing.

After graduating from the Cleveland Institute of Arts in 1961, Marshall began his career in marketing. He said he has lived in Michigan since then and Plymouth has been home for the last 13 years.

The biggest success in the firm's five years of business has been the New Pig Corporation of Tipton, PA, Marshall said. The corporation, which markets industrial cleanup products, has relied on his firm for all of its marketing services, he said.

Marshall said the birth of the New Pig Corporation came at the same time of his firm. Dealing with the corporation has occupied most of his time in the last four years, he said. The corporation now has $16 million in sales, Marshall added.

"It was the most exciting environment I've ever worked in," Marshall said.

The firm will focus on developing local business now, Marshall said. He said he would like to eventually expand his firm.

Pilot plastics program

During the rest of April and on into May, customers of Danny's Markets in the City of Plymouth and Livonia will be able to deposit their clean used plastic containers into plastic recycling dumpsters located in the parking lots of the stores.

The recycling dumpsters are part of a pilot program started by Wayne County to look at the effectiveness of plastics recycling.

The plastics will be picked up and transported to Clean Tech, a plastics recycling plant and affiliate of Plastipak, a plastics manufacturer in Plymouth Township.

Clean Tech will then grind and use the plastic to make new containers for non-food products.

The demonstration project will track the process and make information available to residents. Customers will have the opportunity to offer their opinions about the program.

Canton industry surveyed

Canton and the Canton Chamber of Commerce have joined forces with Michigan Bell in an economic development project.

Both the township and the chamber have signed up to participate in Michigan Bell's Business Retention Survey, which is designed to gather information about a community's light industrial manufacturers.

The survey will be done at no cost to the township. Besides township officials and chamber members, volunteers from the Canton Community Foundation, local educators and the Wayne County Business Development Team will participate in the survey.

Task force members will be assigned local manufacturers to survey and conduct a follow-up interview to gather the necessary information.

"This project will prove invaluable to us in coming months as we seek to expand our manufacturing base," said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack.

Carriage Park opens to public

Carriage Park, Canton's newest senior citizens community, has officially opened its door to the public. The community, located on Canton Center Road south of Ford Road, offers apartments for local seniors.

The 91-under apartment community is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. Model tours are being made by appointment.

Besides the apartment units, an on-site Wellness Center is available to provide access to health care. The center is being operated in association with Oakwood Hospital and Home Care People.

Ad Advice #10

Your Market Changes

You say your customers know you and for a while at least they'll keep coming in even if you don't promote? That's partly true, but shortsighted. Remember, one out of five Americans moves every year. So there's a steady flow of your customers out of your market, and a corresponding influx of new folks who don't know you at all. Tell them about yourself. Advertise consistently.

Chiefs romp; 6-2 after no-hitter

BY RITA DERBIN

Geoff Allen was almost perfect Monday night. The senior righthander pitched a no-hitter as the Canton baseball team romped over Northville, 18-0, in their first Western division match up of the season.

Allen had a perfect game going for 6-2/3 innings before walking a Northville batter. He then struck out the next batter to preserve the no-hitter. For the game, Allen had 11 strike outs and one walk.

"Geoff has done a great job -- he's pitched 21 consecutive innings where he hasn't allowed an earned run," said Canton coach Fred Crissey of his ace. "That's real impressive for a high school pitcher."

Three Chiefs had multiple hits in the game. Ron Groh had three hits and 4 RBIs; Jason Dembny, two hits and two RBIs and Chris James, two hits and two RBIs.

The Canton baseball team is 6-2 following their first Western division match up.

"Our intensity is much better now," Crissey said. "Playing over Easter break has prepared us for the league season a little better."

Over spring break, the Chiefs played four games and finished by splitting two doubleheaders.

Canton lost to Lansing Eastern, 5-4, in the first game Saturday. Pitcher John Anthony allowed only two hits and fell victim to poor defense in the game.

The Chiefs beat Lansing Everett 5-0 behind Coleman Flashkamp's two-hit shutout in the second game. Flashkamp, in his first start of the season, struck out 10.

On Thursday, the Chiefs split a double header with two Catholic schools.

Scott Kennedy pitched 6 1/2 innings and picked up his third victory as Canton defeated De LaSalle, 7-3, in the first game. Anthony came in with bases loaded in the seventh inning to preserve the victory and record a save.

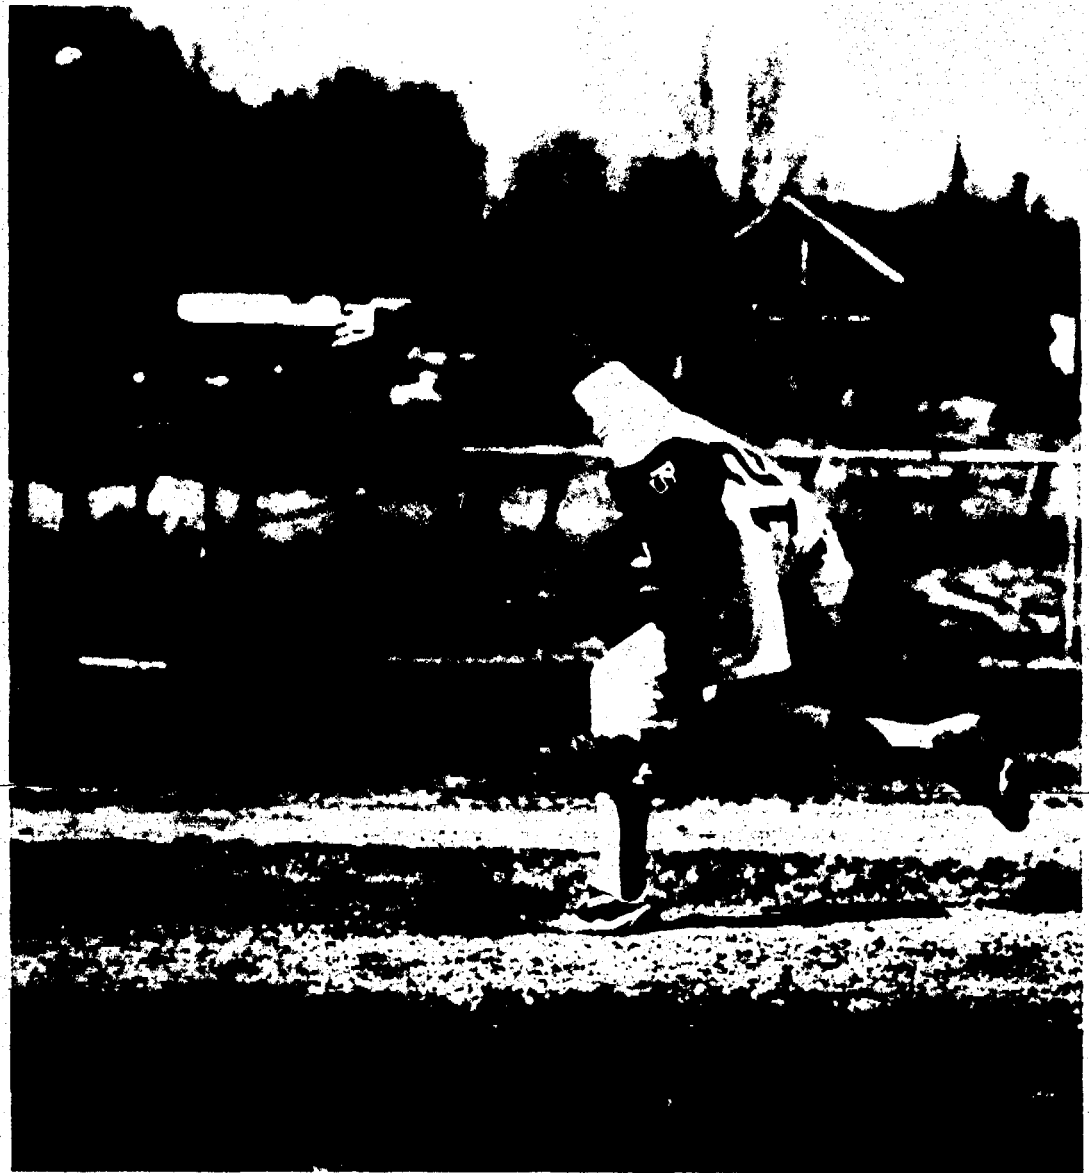

Allen was the victim of poor defense as the Chiefs lost 3-2 to Notre Dame, the defending state champions who are ranked 17th nationally this season. He pitched a five-hitter and struck out seven but the defense fell apart and gave up three unearned runs behind Allen.

In the four games, James and Dave Makara each had six hits.

"When we had to make a play we couldn't come up with it," said Crissey. "We could very easily have been 7-0 after last week, we just have to shore up our defense.

"Our pitching has been excellent and our hitting has been adequate,"

Salem hitters rebound after losses

BY RITA DERBIN

The Salem baseball team rebounded Monday night after suffering three losses over spring break. The Rocks defeated Walled Lake Central on the road, 4-2.

Over the spring break the Rocks could manage only one victory in four games against strong non-conference opponents.

On Saturday, the Rocks lost to Lansing Eastern, 3-2; then Lansing Everett defeated them, 11-3.

Last Thursday, the Rocks split a doubleheader. In the first game, Salem got behind early against Harper Woods Notre Dame, the defending state champions and lost 12-4.

In the second game, the Rocks fell behind once again but rebounded against Warren De LaSalle to win the game, 9-8, in their final at bat on a sacrifice fly by senior Tom Noonan.

The Rocks will travel to Farmington tomorrow and then participate in the Monroe Taylor Invitational Saturday. Monday afternoon they will host Westland John Glenn at 4 p.m.

Football sign-up Saturday

Canton Lions Junior Football registration and cheerleading registration for the 1999 season will be April 28 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at McDonald's on Ford Road in Canton.

Boys eight through 14 years old and girls nine through 14 years old are encouraged to join up.

For more information on registration or the Lions football camp to be held in June call Debby Bradley at 397-1720, or Cindy Russette at 981-4856.

Chief tracksters win home relay competition

BY RITA DERBIN

After weeks of bad weather, the sun came out on Saturday and the Canton girls track team shone at their Lady Chief Relays.

"The track conditions were excellent for racing," said Canton coach George Przygodski. "And it was good to see all the area teams stacked up against each other."

The Chiefs hosted and won the 13-team Lady Chief Relays with 69 points. Adrian was second with 65 points. Third was Mercy (49 points), fourth was Salem (40 points) and fifth was Livonia Stevenson (39 points).

"It was a great meet for us," said Przygodski. "We scored in 13 of 14 events -- it was just an overall great effort by the team."

A new school and meet record was set by the Chiefs when Karina Kilpelainen, Angela Fountain, Michelle Lee and Khristina Kozuch won the shuttle hurdle relay in 1:10.2.

Second place finishes for Canton included the high jump relay of Stephanie Gray, Aimee Lanzon and Selena Bastine with a total jump of 13-3; the distance medley relay of Kim Gudeth, Christie Saffron, Adrienne Garrow and Amy Smith (14:04.2); the 300-meter hurdle relay of Kilpelainen, Tricia Russo, Kalee Smith and Lee (3:35.9); and the sprint medley of Kristy Brugar, Gray, Alicia King and Gudeth (3:07.9).

The eight mile relay of Amy Smith, Garrow, Kim Rice and Laura Antezak; the 3,200-meter relay of Gudeth, Monica Pellow, Erica Carson and Christie Saffron (10:41.1); and the 1,600-meter relay of Monica Pellow, Christie Saffron, Brugar and Gudeth (4:25.5) finished third.

The long jump relay of Kozuch, Russo and Pellow was fourth with a total jump of 41-4. Finishing fifth for the Chiefs were the shot put relay of Iloema Okwumbua, Gina Fuerst and Bastine (83-5½); the discus relay of Okwumbua, Dawn Kersten and Allison Phillips (240-2¼); and the 800-meter relay of Brugar, Russo, Kilpelainen and King (1:55.4).

The Salem track team had two first place finishes in the relays: the high jump relay of Jennifer Harris, Martha Bol, and Yolanda Jackson (14-5); and the 300-meter hurdle relay of Harris, Theresa Giacherio, Cyndi Platter and Sue Vij.

Second place finishers for the Rocks were the shuttle hurdle relay of Harris, Giacherio, Platter and Vij (1:14.23); the 800-meter relay of Tracey Livermore, Tonya Wheeler, Dana Driscoll and Jackson (1:53.4); and the throwers relay of Chris Simpson, Nikki Santilli, Toni Lupo and Sharon Hoover (1:01.51).

The Rocks had three sixth place finishes: the long jump relay of Livermore, Driscoll and Sarah Ruete (40-4¼); the eight-mile relay of Payal Parekh, Cory Gulkiewicz, Jill Czapliski and Alison Rybski; and the spring medley relay of Carla Kehrier, Cheryl Lim, Tracey Clemente and Wheeler (3:22.03).

The 400-meter relay of Livermore, Wheeler, Driscoll and Jackson finished with a time of 53.63, good enough to win, but was disqualified.

"We scored in nine of 14 events," said Salem coach Mark Gregor. "In a meet like this you have to score in as many events as possible."

"I'm disappointed -- we were shorthanded in a few events and it hurt us more than I thought it would," added Gregor. "We learn a lot from (the relays), though. We know what we have to work on."

The Chiefs will host Northville on Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. and the Rocks will travel to North Farmington at 3:30 p.m. Both teams will then participate in the Belleville Tiger Relays on Saturday.

CEP boys tracksters finish 7th and 9th

BY RITA DERBIN

The Centennial Educational Park (CEP) boys track teams traveled to Dearborn Saturday to the Elks Relays. Salem finished seventh and Canton was ninth in the 12 team event.

The Rocks' best effort came from Cliff Lee, Jim Ramsay and John Hoffmeyer who combined for a second place finish in the high jump relay.

Finishing third for the Rocks was the discus relay of Rob Casler, Jack Lupo and Brian Schumacher; the shotput relay of Casler, Lupo, Schumacher and Steve Balog; and the 3,200-meter relay of Mike Patterson, Todd Cimo, Brendon Masterson and Joe Pawluszka (8:35). The 400-meter relay of Casler, Lupo, Schumacher and Balog was fourth.

The Canton boys track team finished with seven points in the 12-team Dearborn Elks Relays on Saturday.

Third place for Chiefs was the 6,400-meter relay of Mike Ream, Matt Boland, Jason Napolitano and Brian Beach (19:13.9); fourth place went to the high jump relay of Mike DeJarnett, Damon Collier and Mark Koziol (16-9); fifth place finishes went to the 800-meter relay of Jeremy Rheault, Collier, Dave Washenko and Josh Walaskay; and the 3,200-meter relay of Chris Nelson, Boland, Beach and Ream (8:56.7).

Tomorrow the Chiefs will travel to Farmington Harrison and the Rocks will host North Farmington. Both meets will begin at 3:30. The two teams will also participate in the Belleville Tiger Relays on Saturday.

Athletic physicals set at CEP

Pre-preparation physicals for high school and middle school athletes will be held at Salem High School on June 7 at 6 p.m. There is a $12 fee for the examinations.

Registration for the physicals must be received by May 7. Physical exam cards may be obtained at the physical education offices at Canton, Salem, Central, East, Lowell, Pioneer and West or from CEP athletic trainers, Wendy Crummel and Sharon Bouchard. These must be filled out and signed by parents or guardians prior to the examination.

Questions should be directed to Crummel at 451-6600 ext. 311 or Bouchard at 459-6099 after 2 p.m. at CEP.

Sign-up for Steelers grid squad

Registration for the Plymouth Canton Steelers Junior League Football and cheerleaders is coming.

Sign ups will be held on Saturday, April 28 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Canton High cafeteria. Cost is $50 per player and $40 per cheerleader. There is a $135 maximum charge per family.

Bring a birth certificate signed and dated by parent or guardian to registration.

For more information call Sue Herman at 455-7299. Please call ahead because cheerleader positions are limited and often unavailable.
