Despite organizational problems

Canton Foundation on solid ground

COPYRIGHT 1990 P.C.C.C. Inc.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series looking at quasi-public institutions serving The Plymouth-Canton Community.

BY SCOTT DANIEL

The Canton Foundation recently closed the books on its first fiscal year of operation — a year that's been a "success" said its officials.

"The foundation has hit a 'home run' every week this year," said Canton Foundation Executive Director Bill Joyner. "We have met with wide approval and support from the community."

The foundation raised $53,954 in its first year which technically ended May 31, Joyner said. Expenditures amounted to $33,956 he said, leaving $19,998 in the foundation reserves.

In the current fiscal year, the Canton Foundation hopes to raise between $80,000 to $100,000, Joyner said. He said the foundation will seek to expand funding to the programs set-up in its first year.

"The foundation will focus on the maintenance of the programs in its second year of operation," Joyner said. "If the foundation expanded (with more programs), continuity would be lost."

The public starting date of the Canton Foundation was Sept. 13, when a "kick-off" breakfast formally announced the foundation's launch to community leaders.

School board race dominated by $$, politics

BY KEN VOYLES

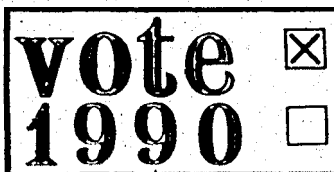

Last week's school board election in The Plymouth-Canton Community continues a trend first seen last year.

The nature of local school board races may have forever been transformed by two factors — money and what one of this year's winners, Carl Battishill, called "good hard core American politics."

The seven candidates this year — Battishill and Lester Walker won the two board seats — spent more money than normally seen in a school board election race, and fought harder over the issues giving a more partisan tone to the race.

"I don't see the two races (this and last year's) being that dramatically different," said Battishill. "There was a crucial issue last year with the millage request. It put candidates in a position where they had to address it."

"That issue wasn't a part of this election and that's what made a big difference," he continued. "Last year was also much more of an identity crisis for the district."

Battishill said that the Citizens for Better Education (CBE) part of the "election equation" changes with each election.

"The race was also different because there were no incumbents," said the City of Plymouth resident. "I don't think, though, that calling this a personality contest is fair."

He added, "It's good hard core American politics. Unfortunately, we're seeing it in a school board race and not a Congressional race."

Battishill said he raised $5,400 this year during the campaign and that he spent $500 of his own money. He also received funding support from a teachers union at West Bloomfield High School and from the union political action committee in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools ($550).

Last year Battishill spent just under $1,000 including about $600 of his own

At DeMattia site

Cleanup will cost $4 million

BY MIKE GUINN

Progress on an industrial park project in Plymouth Township has been slowed by the unexpected discovery of an old dumping ground on the project site.

A company official stressed Tuesday, however, that none of the materials removed from the Plymouth Oaks Business Park over the past two months had proved to be toxic.

Chessie System Railroads (CSX), which sold the site to R.A. DeMattia Co. in 1988, will pay for the $4 million cleanup, said a DeMattia official.

CSX spokesperson Tony Braden, director of environmental risk management, said that the $4 million cost estimate seemed too high.

"I think the cost is inflated about 100 per cent," Braden said. "But CSX is cleaning up the property."

Airport public hearing on tap in Canton

BY SCOTT DANIEL

Residents of Canton will have a chance to voice their views about potential municipal ownership of Mettetal Airport tonight at the third meeting of the Mettetal Airport Study Committee.

Tonight's airport public hearing starts at 7:30 p.m. in the Canton Administration Building, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

The hearing will be a chance for township residents to speak out about the airport issue before the committee makes its final recommendation to the Canton Board of Trustees on Aug. 8.

The committee is considering whether or not Canton should buy the airport, which is currently owned by the Klochko family, said Dan Calabrese, the committee chairperson.

At the committee's first meeting, on April 25, ground rules and the direction of the group was determined.

The committee also formulated criteria to use in judging whether or not the township should buy the airport.

Among the criteria are: the economic impact; the operational

Mandatory tickets for alcohol, drug violations

City cops talk 'zero tolerance'

BY PHILIP TARDANI

City of Plymouth Police will not be pouring out beers and letting offenders go if a proposed "zero tolerance" policy goes into effect in the city.

The policy would require "mandatory intervention when alcohol or substance abuse laws have been violated," according to Police Chief Richard Myers.

As an example, Myers said police would not have a choice of emptying a beer bottle or baggie of marijuana out and letting the offender off with a lecture. The officer would instead be required to issue a ticket, he said.

Only two members of the commission -- Mayor Dennis Bila and Commissioner Jerry Vorva -- came out against the proposal when it was brought up at the pre-commission meeting Monday night.

Both were concerned that the police officer's discretion would be limited.

"Taking all discretion out of the hands of the officers on the street seems to me the wrong way to go," said Bila.

Vorva, a former police officer in the city, agreed.

"Taking away an officer's discretion on the street is probably not a good idea," he said. "I would like to see a lot more discretion for the police officer."

Myers said city officers would ticket and release offenders, in keeping with department policy of only jailing when it is necessary.

One positive aspect of the policy is that -- theoretically -- it would ensure parental notification when minors are in the possession of alcohol, Myers said.

The police would ticket violators of all ages in the interest of consistency, he added, and the policy would apply anywhere in the open public.

Commissioner R. Jack Kenyon said he felt parental notification of minors was an important issue.

"I hesitate to take away an officer's judgement, but I feel that we should take whatever steps necessary to contact the parents," he said.

The "zero tolerance" policy (which Myers said might be better termed "mandated enforcement action") could also help remedy the city's "cruising" problem with teens, said Commissioner James Jabara.

"What we've been doing apparently isn't working," he said. "It's going to an extreme, but in a lot of cases now, you need an extreme."

Myers said the Wayne County probate court would automatically divert first-time juvenile offenders to Growth Works Inc., a substance abuse counseling and intervention center.

He added that the policy could take effect as early as this weekend.

Grant reduction won't stop DARE

BY PHILIP TARDANI

The Drug Awareness Resistance Education (DARE) program will continue in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools despite a significant reduction in forthcoming federal grant money, according to local police officials.

The City of Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth Township filed for a $50,439 grant for the program in March. However, only $16,875 -- 33 per cent of the amount requested -- was approved.

"The grant money (approved) wasn't even close to what was being asked for," according to Leonard Schemanske, DARE coordinator in The Plymouth-Canton Community.

Officers from Canton and Plymouth Township police departments will still be instructing children at area schools on the dangers of drugs, however, said Schemanske and Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry.

"Canton has committed to a DARE officer with or without the grant," said Schemanske.

Berry said his department will also continue with the program at the direction of the board of trustees.

"I continue to believe strongly in this program," Berry told the board. "I believe we can get donations from the community to further the projects DARE has to offer."

The Plymouth Township board voted June 12 to appoint a sub-committee to approach the school district and request financial support.

"It's a cooperative program, so I think it should be cooperatively funded," said Supervisor Maurice Breen, who added Plymouth Township isn't "stopping anything at this point" in its DARE program.

Schemanske said a $13,000 DARE budget for supplies and educational materials may be partially financed by fundraisers such as a car wash or pancake breakfast.

Berry said the township's commitment to the program represents a $40,000 investment, the cost of a DARE officer for one year.

DARE has been in Michigan since 1988. As part of the program, police officers specially trained in drug abuse

Vachher report due today

BY SCOTT DANIEL

The Michigan State Police investigation of the incident in which Canton resident Paul Vachher was wounded by Canton Police should be completed by today, according to State Police Lt. Jack Moulik.

The completed report will go to the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office to determine if charges against Vachher will be made, Moulik said.

Vachher, 25, who had been in critical condition since the May 20 incident, is currently in "serious" condition at St. Joseph Hospital's intensive care unit in Ypsilanti, according to hospital officials. He suffered three wounds during the incident, the Vachher family said.

According to a statement made by Public Safety Director John Santomauro on May 22, and based on preliminary information of the incident, Vachher was shot at by police after he had charged a township police officer. Vachher was shot at again after later throwing a knife at another police officer, he said.

On May 29, the Vachher family issued a statement in which they said Canton Police could have subdued Paul Vachher without shooting him. They demanded "that charges be filed against the police officers" involved in the shooting.

The family statement went on to ask for a "full investigation of the Canton Police Department and their actions," by the Canton Board of Trustees.

In response to the family statement, the Police Officers Association of Michigan (POAM), which represents two of the three officers involved, Dave Bojesic and Brian Darow, wrote a June 8 letter to the family that demanded a retraction of their statements.

The union's letter said the Vachher statements "jeopardized the career and reputation of two fine Canton Township police officers."

P-C road improvements coming this summer

BY SCOTT DANIEL

Construction on Warren, Denton, Haggerty and Lotz roads in Canton is or will be underway by the end of the year.

Canton Engineer Tom Casari said construction of the projects, with the exception of Haggerty Road, should be completed by the end of the year.

Work began April 12 on the paving of Warren Road between Lilley and Haggerty roads. Casari said the project should be completed by early fall.

The estimated cost of the project is about $550,000, said Alan Richardson, assistant Wayne County engineer. He said Wayne County is handling the paving work and paying for the project because Warren Road is considered a "primary" road.

Denton road will be repaired and Four Plymouth Township roads will see pavement soon, including two main roads to be paved by Wayne County, according to Township Engineer Paul Jones.

Stretches of Beck and Joy Roads -- both considered Wayne county "primary" roads -- will be paved by the county, he said.

Paving of Beck Road from Warren Road to M-14 should begin by July and be completed by winter, Jones said.

Joy Road will be resurfaced from McClumpha Road to Beck Road, he said, though there are no estimates on when work will begin.

Estimated costs for paving the 1.8 mile stretch of Beck are $1.6 million, while resurfacing the half a mile of Joy will cost an estimated $340,000, Jones

Ernie says: 'save Central'

All Robert E. "Ernie" Archer has heard are rumors.

But the rumors concern his alma mater, the old Plymouth High School on Main Street. Ernie commenced from high school there in 1933.

The rumors say the building is to be sold to developers and demolished to make room for condominiums on that prime piece of real estate in downtown Plymouth.

Nobody on the school board or in the City of Plymouth (where the property is) can confirm the story, and for the time being, it remains a base rumor, like something you'd read in a cheap tabloid.

But Archer isn't taking any chances. He wants to see the site made into a historic landmark, free forever from the wrecking ball.

To that effect, he began circulating petitions two weeks ago, and has received over 200 signatures. These petitions have been turned into City Commissioner Mary Childs, who was chosen as a liaison between those interested in saving the school and the school board.

There are also another four petition sheets out, he said, and two classes that

On the beat

By Phillip Tardani

with reunions this summer have expressed interest in circulating the documents.

"I was quite surprised with the interest expressed in the issue," Archer said. "There are about three or four sheets coming back to me."

Archer has also heard from another group of people — students attending what is now Central Middle School, 57 years after he did.

He said he recently visited the school and its students, and got a chance to tell them what things were like there in the "old days."

"The kids were asking all kinds of questions, like 'What was the school like?', 'What would happen to them when the school was torn down?'" Archer said. "They liked it there."

After the visit he received over 20 letters from the kids, thanking him for sharing his memories.

And what does Archer remember of the school from the 1930s?

"We had darn good teachers," he said. "Some were equal to college professors."

The 90 students graduating in the class of 1933 were close, too, Archer said and looked out for each other.

"In every class you knew everybody by name," he said.

Now that Childs has the petitions, she said she will present them to the school board.

"I'm going to take them to Dean Swartzwelder (board president) just to show them that people are concerned," she said. "The people that signed that petition really believe it."

Childs added that she is confident the school will be saved.

"What are they going to do with the kids?" she asked. "That's the bottom line and I think they (the school board) will do right."

But Archer doesn't want to take any chances.

"They say it's only rumors, but a couple people have told me the cement has already been laid for the plans," he said.

Good things come in small packages

Criminals: beware of the bug

Pretend for a moment, if you will, that you are a hard working car thief. You wake-up on a sunny Monday morning anticipating another day of easy pickings in metro-Detroit.

Locked doors, alarm systems and other protection devices are minor inconveniences, but they don't stop you from taking the car and driving away in less than a minute. Then it's off to visit the entrepreneurs at the chop shop where your paycheck awaits.

Shortly after your associates begin dismantling the car, the police arrive, and spoil what was going to be a profitable day. How did they do it? — Lo-Jack.

The new device utilizes a hidden transmitter, about the size of a chalkboard eraser, located in one of about 35 spots in the body of a car, which emits a tracking signal when activated by police.

City of Plymouth firefighter Robert Degan purchased the Lo-Jack system when he bought his 1989 Chrysler LeBaron.

Degan said on the night of May 23 his car was stolen from his driveway at his home in Rosedale Park. With the help of Lo-Jack the car was found 62 minutes later, after he notified police that the car was stolen, he said.

"I didn't want to get it (Lo-Jack) at first," Degan said. "But, sure enough, a few weeks later the car gets stolen."

"I'm very lucky to get the car back," he added.

The car was found abandoned several blocks away from Degan's home by members of the Western Wayne Auto Theft Task Force, said Michigan State Police Lt. Sandra Miller of the unit. She said there was damage to the car, which included a broken steering column and windows among others.

"The car would have been further vandalized if we hadn't recovered it as quickly as we did," Miller said.

Amazingly enough, Degan said the car's stereo wasn't one of the items taken. He said he also had expensive camera equipment and his briefcase in the car that wasn't taken.

Miller said the thief left fingerprints on the car after taking it. With the help of the State Police's sophisticated Automated Fingerprint Identification System (AFIS) the theft unit tracked down the alleged thief.

Last Friday 17-year-old Deon Wayne Jones was arraigned in 36th District Court on charges of unlawfully driving away an automobile and receiving and concealing stolen property of over $100. Miller said AFIS matched the fingerprints off the car to Jones, whose prints were on file.

The recovery of Degan's car was the first since Lo-Jack became operational in late April of this year. The system costs about $600 and can be purchased through a new car dealer or directly from the Lo-Jack company.

Miller said the State Police hope the system will lead to the discovery of "chop shops" in the metro-Detroit area.

Commission: keep taxpayers in mind

EDITOR:

"I haven't seen any cuts or adjustments or significance in the budget so far." This was the statement made by Plymouth City Commissioner Jim Jabara on the second night of this year's budget hearings. And, after the public hearing -- we're still waiting.

Both he and the taxpaying citizens of Plymouth will be following your decision on Monday night very closely as you finalize the spending blueprints for the next fiscal year. After the excesses of the Graper administration the expenses of the resulting needless litigation settlements, Plymouth citizens expect a period of fiscal responsibility.

With SEVs increasing annually they have a right to expect that a constant millage levy against that increased SEV should provide sufficient opportunity for normal growth. Normal growth should be approximately the same as the rate of inflation as specified in the Headlee legislation. Anything more should be submitted to the people as Headlee requires.

But what is proposed?

A "promotion tax" which is to be added to the tax bill without consent of the people. If our city needs "promotion," let it be financed by those who will derive the benefits -- namely, the commercial interests as exemplified by the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce and, as far as permitted by legislation, the DDA. Sure, the new direct "promotion tax" won't cost much, but it is the spirit of the proposal that is an affront to our citizens when they are asking for relief.

Our citizens would probably prefer to have less "promotion" if the image of "beautiful Plymouth" attracted more visitors -- such as the "annual cruise." Check your budget figures for the past few years and project it for a few more to see what "beautiful Plymouth" can cost us! And remember, that's over what we take in as fines -- much of which will not be allocated back to us this year as the court undertakes renovation expenses.

The response to my letter sent to each of you and published in The Crier has been even stronger than anticipated. Taxpayers at Hardees and McDonalds, your "coffee klatch constituents" look to you for action in cutting the costs of municipal government -- or at least not increasing spending while we recover from the fiscal hemorrhaging of the Graper era and while we face the dual prospect of infrastructure repair and waste disposal difficulties.

I have pointed out an area that should be investigated for considerable savings, a restructuring of several of our most expensive departments which appear to be top heavy with administrative and supervisory personnel while the "on-line" workers require overtime to keep up with their responsibilities.

Some of the patrol officers have suggested that it is time to look at the "public safety" administrative set up again. The previous proposal had firemen and police officers performing their duties interchangeably. This will not work and the unions have bafined this concept under their current contracts. However, a consolidation of command and supervisory personnel (at the high end of their salary scale) would result in considerable economy with little effort on the day to day working of the departments.

It is suggested that present fire chiefs could handle the administration duties for both police and fire and that an "executive sergeant" could effect sufficient supervision over the police department. Perhaps it would work -- perhaps not, but it deserves looking into.

One of the finalists in the city manager search predicted that the city and township would have to consolidate within 10 years because the city is landlocked. "It cannot increase its tax base and the people will resist continuing tax increases." He had a point although many feel that the tax base can be increased by a controlled increase in density and careful planning.

"Consolidation" is probably not in the immediate picture. "Cooperation" should be, however. I suggested the gradual establishment of authorities such as we have for our jointly used library.

Operating independently from both city and township financing and with control by an independent board directed by citizens of both areas, the concept should be investigated to include police and fire departments, engineering and inspection, recreation, and some aspects of cooperation between the planning and other commissions.

It isn't going to happen overnight, but a careful and controlled study of what can be done will save a lot of mistakes later. Both the city and township should save by eliminating costs now duplicated in many areas.

As you know, I am a retired person and as such, I meet a large number of citizens in our community. I must tell you that the mood is changing and, unfortunately, with Graper no longer a target, they are looking to you for action in reducing (or at least increasing) the cost of municipal government.

I give you my suggestions:

1. Restructure personnel organization.
2. Have the schools assume their legal share of costs.
3. Have DDA assume responsibility for appropriate costs.
4. Cooperate with Township in "authority" concept.
5. Forget the "publicity tax." Forget "nice to have items" -- especially this year!

I speak for many taxpayers who seek relief from the "annual increase." Please don't ignore them. They are watching carefully.

I think you can do it, if you try.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This letter was sent to the Plymouth City Commission recently.

Know educational model before you criticize it

The Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health Education, which is used by the Plymouth-Canton Schools, has come under attack recently by various groups throughout the state.

Opponents of the health education package content that the relaxation techniques and calm breathing exercises taught in the model as tools for handling stress are "really intended for hypnosis and mind control," according to state officials supporting the five-year-old plan.

Opponents contend that "inappropriate, sexually explicit materials" are being used in classrooms to teach the AIDS section of the curriculum.

And they also oppose much of the problem solving aspects of the model, saying that students who can make their own decisions will no longer heed their parents!

Two days ago your school board got an overview of the model from Judy Cavell, a consultant with the Wayne County Intermediate School District (WCISD).

Cavell said the model is a program "that teaches children to value and protect their health," stressing areas such as consumer safety, nutrition,

In the margin

By Ken Voyles

family health, substance use and abuse, emotional and mental health and disease prevention and control.

The model has already been reviewed and "voluntarily adopted" by more than 455 Michigan school districts, including most of those in the WCISD. By next year it will reach nearly one million students in grades K-8.

In Plymouth-Canton, 172 teachers are trained in the program, said Michael Homes, assistant superintendent of instruction, reaching students in all of the elementary and middle schools.

Homes said efforts are now being directed at parental involvement, through workshops and making available the program manuals (anyone can look them up in either the Canton or Plymouth public libraries).

"We want to continue our support of the program," Homes told the board Monday. "We want to see it grow and we want it to work effectively for our kids."

Homes said that there is nothing "secret" about the Michigan Model and its use by school districts, nor is there a "hidden agenda."

More than anything, Homes called the use of the model a way to "extend and enrich" the district's current curriculum.

District officials said they are more than willing to discuss the use of the model with concerned parents since much of the current plan already calls for parental involvement at many different levels.

It might make sense for those who think they oppose the use of the model to check out how it works before laying blame on it for any academic or social ills perceived in the district.

Recycling will save America

EDITOR:

Since Earth Day, I have become much more conscientious of the problems facing our planet today.

Though the severity of all the problems astounded me, I was shocked by the amount of recyclable waste dumped into landfills each day.

Why must the people of our country be so lethargic to as not even separate the recyclable material from the rest of their waste each day? Such a small task can make a big difference.

It's our decision America, either live in a proud, clean, respectable society or a gigantic waste dump. It's up to you to decide the fate of our nation.

Catholic parish on Canton's horizon

BY MIKE GUINN

Church goers in The Plymouth-Canton Community will be given another choice where to attend church services when a new Catholic parish opens in Canton next month.

The Rev. Richard A. Perfetto, pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church (OLGC) in the City of Plymouth, will be heading the new parish.

While Perfetto looks forward to the new opportunities that await him, he confesses that leaving his present church is not easy.

"I like to take on new challenges," Perfetto said. "But I'll miss the people here. They've done a wonderful job on all the activities here."

Given the new assignment by former Detroit cardinal (now archbishop) Edmund Szoka, Perfetto has a good size job ahead of him.

Approximately 1,500 families are expected to attend services at the new parish.

Canton has been targeted to receive the new parish due to the large numbers of residents already attending St. John Neumann Church, said Perfetto. The growing population in the area is another reason for the new addition.

The new church will be constructed on Warren Road between Beck and Ridge roads.

Perfetto sees many opportunities at the new location. Getting people to become active in their church is one of his primary objectives.

"I'd like to be a catalyst in forming a close-knit community," Perfetto said. "I hope to lead the people in deciding the direction of their parish." In addition, Perfetto hopes to meet the people of the church "on a close personal basis."

Although church activities at the new location will be limited at first, Perfetto expects to have programs such as a youth ministry and a parish counsel in place in the near future. The counsel will help determine the future direction of the new church.

"Counsels are like the senate," Perfetto said. "They make recommendations to the body as a whole."

The new parish will officially be established July 2, with services expected to begin in the middle of the month. Until a building to house the new parish is constructed, masses will be celebrated at the Isbister Elementary School on Canton Center Road. Mass will be held once each Sunday until the parish can be firmly established.

An organizational meeting is planned for tomorrow (June 21) at the OLGC parish gym for all residents interested in joining the new church.

Perfetto has been pastor of the OLGC parish for four years. He has also served as pastor of the St. Hugh parish in Southgate.

Church creates a 'safe environment'

BY SCOTT DANIEL

If fire and brimstone aren't your ideas of learning about Christianity, look no farther than the Canton Community Church.

Eric Moore, church planter and pastor of Canton Community Church, said his new church looks to provide a "safe environment where people who are spiritual seekers can investigate Christianity."

The church, which began in Moore's home in September, is currently holding services at Field Elementary School, in Canton, at 10 a.m. on Sundays. The church moved from his home to the elementary school back in February.

"Our goal is to communicate the truth of Christianity in contemporary, relevant methods," said Moore.

Moore said he conducts a "seeker's service." He said he plans his sermons differently than many pastors. The sermons are sequentially arranged to fully cover a subject. Moore added that many pastors sermonize in a "disjointed" fashion, often covering completely different subjects every Sunday.

"We have a six week message series," said Moore. "Everything in the service is based on the topic."

Instead of singing hymnals, the church uses soft rock gospel music as part of the services. Singers such as Amy Grant make his services feel more contemporary, Moore said.

Moore described his sermons as "user-friendly" messages that communicate Christianity at a "basic level." He said the messages are intended to show the relevance of Christianity in everyday life.

"People look for what helps them," said Moore. "I want to meet their needs. We are changing the methods, but not the message. I think people are ready for that."

The point of changing the methods of the church is to reach the "unchurched" people of Canton, said Moore. About 49 per cent of Canton residents are unchurched, he said. Moore added the church is targeting these people, hoping to attract them with a more contemporary style.

"I've sat through to many boring services," said Moore. "We want to be dynamic and show how exciting Christianity is."

The Canton Community Church is affiliated with the Evangelical Free Church of America. Moore said his church is the first affiliated branch in Wayne County. He said there are other branches of the church scattered throughout the state. The highest concentration of branches are on the west coast, he added.

"We try to maintain what is historically true about Christianity," said Moore. "Rather than focus on sectarianism, we are going back to basics."

Moore said his church isn't against other churches in the area. Moore said his church provides another option to the community.

"We are all on the same team," said Moore. "We want our church (and others) to reach everybody."

The hope of the church is eventually expand, said Moore. He said the church's congregation averages about 45 every Sunday. After the congregation increases, the church will probably move into a middle school.

In four or five years the church will look to break ground on a permanent home, Moore said.

The church is concentrating on using its funds for the ministry now, he said.

"We are downplaying the role of contributions," said Moore. "This is why we want to stay away from building right now."

funds.

"People forget that we live in a much larger community than perceived. In order to cover it it takes money to get your name out there," he said. "If you figure spending as a percentage of this community's size I don't think it is grossly out of line."

Battishill called the heavy spending a "cost of doing business," adding that it is "not fair" to say the candidates were "buying" votes.

Walker, who raised and spent approximately $3,700 this year, including about $500 of his own funds, said he was surprised by the political nature of the race.

"It was just more of everything," he said. "There did seem to be more of a political nature to the non-CBE candidates."

But Walker said he felt the "real education issues were sort of ignored." He also said that the personality of the candidates came into play more than the issues.

"The issues came to the forefront more in the past," said Walker. "It's kind of unfortunate."

Walker originally sat on the board in 1984-88 but was defeated by Barbara Graham in his re-election bid in 1988. In that race, Walker said he did not campaign nearly as much as he needed to win. He also did not spend much money during the re-election bid.

On election night Walker said, "This race became more of a political race than in the past. I didn't run it that way, but that's kind of what it has become."

Robert Anderson, the CBE-backed candidate who finished third in the voting, said, "I'm spending more money now, but I still think it's issues oriented. The people in control want to stay in control."

"It's whoever fits the mold gets the nod," added Anderson, who said the "status quo" was maintained by those who stood against the CBE.

Anderson said he spent just under $4,000 during the race. Most of that funding was his own, Anderson said, but he also said that he shared some expenses with the other CBE candidate, Diane Stamp.

"I wasn't involved in a lot of the bickering going on. I tried to put the issues out in front," Anderson said.

Stamp said, "I think we (CBE) stuck to the issues. I didn't hear a lot on the issues coming from the other side."

"I don't think the public spoke: That was the unions, the developers, the entrenched administration and the media," Stamp added. "I don't think they (assaults on CBE) were too bad."

Stamp said the race was 70 per cent humor and 30 per cents. "For me it was fun, but I feel I didn't get the message out to the people," she said.

Stamp said she spent just under $4,000 during the election campaign.

K.C. Mueller, who finished fifth in the voting, said, "I felt this was much milder than what happened last time."

"I think the five non-CBE candidates stuck together. None of the five were competing against each other until the end. They were competing against the CBE."

"If the CBE had not been involved the other candidates would have been able to more clearly define where they varied," Mueller continued.

Mueller said she spent approximately $4,500 on the election race this year. Almost $3,900 of that came out of her own pocket.

Toni Hartke, another newcomer this year, finished behind Mueller in sixth place. During the campaign she spent under $900, almost all of it her own money.

"I had no idea it would be such a high cost," Hartke said. "I was ignorant of that but I found out shortly after I got into it."

"I know now that I probably would have proceeded differently," she added. "I would not fund my own effort next time."

Hartke said she saw the race as "more of a who can beat the CBE" campaign than anything else.

Industrial site cleanup continues

"We're doing everything we can for the development of the property to continue," added Braden.

Gary Roberts, vice president of development for DeMattia, said that while many items were found in the site off Sheldon Road between the CSX tracks and M-14, hazardous materials were not among them.

"There were no toxic substances here," Roberts said, citing a report issued by an environmental testing company. However, "concrete, paint cans and all other kinds of trash" were found.

Roberts said that the excavation area was limited to less than one-half of an acre. He said that one theory of the site was that it was used several years ago by a contractor who lived on Shearer Drive - a road abandoned for the new M-14 expressway.

"We've had all excavations tested,"

Roberts said. "Follow up testing will be done when the excavation is finished."

NTH Consultants and City Environmental Contracting have been working to clear the refuge since the beginning of April.

Laurie Kendall, NTH senior project manager in charge of the cleanup, said that many elements are involved in returning the site to normal.

"Cleaning the site, disposing of the waste and getting DNR approval are all involved in the cleanup" she said. "We've removed everything back to detection limits. Long term monitoring will also be done, but nothing yet has been determined."

Follow up testing is expected to be done on the site once the excavation is completed.

Kendall estimated that the total bill for the cleanup - projected to be completed in about two weeks -- was $4 million.

School Board approves funding for Central pool

BY KEN VOYLES

The budget axe did not fall on the Central Middle School swimming pool when the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education approved its 1990-91 budget last week.

It was given an official reprieve at the meeting when the board adopted its operating budget and included $47,700 to reopen the Central pool, which has been closed for more than one year.

The board had delayed any final decision on funding the pool this year until after the administration completed a report on its potential future use.

That report, looking at five issues brought up by the board during a June 1 meeting, was issued last week.

The five issues include: use of the pool by Central eighth graders to meet the high school swimming class requirement; use of the pool by other district eighth graders for the same purpose; development of an adaptive program for special education students to use the pool; allowing competitive swim teams from other middle schools to use the pool; and middle school age competitive community swim use of the pool.

According to the report, to use Central's pool in those five ways would cost the district an additional $3,960, with most of the cost coming from the need to bus students from other middle schools to Central to take the swim class. The adaptive special education program would also cost about $800.

Current summer fees to use the pool are 75 cents for students and children and $1 for adults. School officials suggest retaining that for now, but in the fall the new fees should be increased to $1 for students and children and $1.50 for adults.

The board is expected to further discuss the uses of the pool, and whether or not the district should expand funding for such uses, at Monday's (June 25) regular meeting.

Jaeger gets DDA post

BY PHILIP TARDANI

In a move that could lead to a more integrated effort at refurbishing the City of Plymouth's downtown, Gordon Jaeger became director of the Plymouth Downtown Development Authority (DDA) last week.

Jaeger, who took over as city manager in Plymouth on May 1, said he wants to see the city and the DDA work together in the downtown effort.

"I think the initial plans are to put the pieces back together again," Jaeger said, noting the "pieces" as the commission, the DDA and the Plymouth Planning Commission.

After a unanimous vote at Thursday's DDA meeting—confirming Jaeger as the new director, Greg Goodman, chairperson of the DDA, welcomed the change.

Township residents, however, have already indirectly paid for those improvements, he said.

"The money for Beck and Joy comes out of state gasoline and weight taxes," Jones said.

The new surface should also help improve drainage on the now gravel portions of the roads, he said.

"It's two-lane asphalt, 30-feet wide, with improved drainage," Jones said.

Portions of two other township roads scheduled to be paved include Ridge and McClumpha Roads.

Ridge will be paved from Plymouth Hills Trailer Park north to 5 Mile Road.

The estimated $400,000 it will cost to pave the .7 of mile will be paid for from a township community development block grant, Jones said.

Pavement of Ridge has been under way for a few weeks and should be completed soon, he said.

One quarter mile of McClumpha Road from Rockledge Road to Ann Arbor Road will also be paved, Jones said.

The estimated cost of this project is $165,864, he said, and this money will be raised from a special assessment of the property owner along the strip that will be paved.

A majority of the property owners petitioned the township for the improvements, Jones said.

The stretch of McClumpha will be asphalted, 30 feet wide, with a curb on one side, he added.

Mettetal Airport hearings tonight affect on township government; local use of the airport; comparing future use of the site, light industrial versus keeping it as an airport; and safety of residents.

A number of state and local aviation officials spoke to the committee on May 23. Arguments for and against buying the airport were made at the time.

Supporters for buying the airport pointed out that it would cost Canton 10 per cent or less of the asking price, which is believed to be about $4 million. Grants from the state and the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) could be used to pay for the airport, according to Dean Nitz, FAA supervisor for Michigan.

Supporters of the idea also claim that making improvements to the airport would result in increased usage, thereby making it profitable for the township.

Those who oppose the idea point out that with the grant money comes the restriction of Canton never being able to sell the airport, even if it were losing money.

The other main argument for not buying the airport, detractors said, is that if the 65-acre site was sold for light industrial usage it would generate 10 times more revenue for Canton than an airport usage would.

The committee will meet again in July and then for the last time on Aug. 8 before making its recommendation to the board.

Looking for a 'sense of identity'

That breakfast was "a public indication that (the foundation) was started," said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, the original incorporator of the not-for-profit Canton fund. "But there were lots of discussions before that."

On the foundation's annual filing with the State of Michigan signed by Foundation President Norman Cepela last Wednesday, the date of creation of the foundation, was listed as "December 14, 1989."

According to Ken Gruebel, foundation vice president, the idea behind the foundation was to promote Canton as a "good place to live."

"I think the foundation is helping to give the community a stronger sense of identity," Gruebel added.

Bruce Patterson, Canton Foundation board member and former counsel to the board, said the foundation is classified a private, directorship non-profit corporation. He said there have been some organizational problems, in terms of setting up the foundation, in its first year.

Yack said the foundation was late in filing the last of all its required paperwork, although that was done three or four months ago. The final filings were "certainly after we had already collected money."

"These folks only want to do what's right," Yack said.

Patterson added, "I am confident that all of the organizational paperwork will be in place inside of one year."

The main idea in starting the foundation came from Yack, Joyner and Mitchell Howard, a Canton restaurateur, said Gruebel.

Yack agreed with Gruebel that a major function of the foundation is to promote Canton. He added that the foundation will help make the township more like established communities.

"Canton hasn't had the time to create many things that a 'mature' community has," Yack said. "The foundation will help Canton to mature."

In its first year, the foundation has established five major programs, said Gruebel. Those programs are:

- Educational scholarships -- The foundation awarded nine $500 scholarships, given to students going to college.

- Human Services -- The foundation helps in the coordination and funding of self-help groups, such as helping to establish a dental program for the Salvation Army and sponsoring a local resident to go to a seminar in Lansing. The foundation spent $731 on human services.

- Arts & Culture -- The foundation set up the Canton Arts Council, which sponsors art and cultural events in the community, such as the recent Canton Arts Show and Playathon, a sculpture for the township and an opera visit by 300 Canton school children. The foundation spent $4,000 on arts and culture.

- Clubs & Organizations -- The foundation started the Canton Economic Club and underwrites its costs, such as luncheons. The foundation spent $1,680 on clubs and organizations.

- Outreach and promotion of Canton -- This includes "Wednesday Reports" published monthly and a cable TV show called "Wednesday Report Live," both funded by the foundation. The foundation spent $3,937 in this category.

The foundation will spend a minimum of $5,000 on each program this year, Joyner said.

"The foundation is just getting started," said Gruebel. "We are just beginning to crawl."

The foundation is governed by a 12-member board currently, Yack said. He said between five and 13 members are allowed to sit on the board, according to foundation rules.

Even though the board presides over the foundation, Yack said that an "executive director" concept of governing is used in running the foundation.

Essentially, the executive directors, Joyner and Cindy Burgess, administer the day to day operation of the foundation, Yack said. Joyner and Burgess were paid $18,548 with $1,760 in expenses for fund-raising and administrative services last fiscal year.

Yack said the board sets the foundation's policies, but the executive directors are the "doers" in running the programs.

"The idea is to not get bogged down in red tape," Yack said.

The executive directors can solicit funds directly from the foundation's treasurer for programs, Yack added.

This allows the foundation to respond to community needs more quickly than if the board had to approve every expenditure, he said.

Almost all of the income to the foundation last year was made in the form of general contributions, Joyner said. He said the average contribution was about $200.

The largest donation was made by the American Yazaki Corporation in the amount of $20,000, Joyner said. He said the smallest donation was $30.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Canton Foundation has three direct ties to The Community Crier. First, The Crier is a donor to the foundation. Secondly, the foundation paid the standard non-profit rates to publish its "Wednesday Report" on The Crier's back page and to obtain other publishing services. Third, The Crier's general manager, Phyllis A. Redfern, of Canton, was appointed to the foundation's board in May.

Library race

Nominating petitions are currently available at the clerk's offices of the City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township for election in November to a four-year term on the Plymouth District Library Board.

One seat is open this fall, said Patricia Thomas, library director.

Thomas said that a new state law, which downsizes district library boards from nine to seven members, is taking effect this year.

Nominees must be over 18 years of age and residents of either the city or the township. The petition filing deadline is 4 p.m., July 19.

Canton paving projects

paved between Geddes Road and Michigan Avenue, Casari said. A start-up date for the project hasn't been determined, but, he said, it should be completed by the end of the year.

"Denton Road has been in bad shape for a couple of years," said Casari. "The township has taken proactive involvement (with Wayne County) to get it repaired."

Robert Mahoney, director of the Wayne County division of roads, said Canton and the county are dividing the cost of the project 75 to 25 per cent, respectively. He estimates the cost of the project at $250,000, with Canton picking up about $190,000 of that cost.

Denton Road is considered a "local" road, Casari said. He said municipalities are responsible for the bulk of the cost of improving local roads.

Haggerty Road will also be paved from Koppernick to Joy roads, Casari said. He said the project would begin this fall and should be completed by the summer of 1991.

Drainage and storm sewers will also be part of the work on the project, Casari said.

The cost of the project will be financed through special assessment to businesses, which petitioned the township to make the improvements, that front Haggerty Road, Casari said. He added that cost of the project is estimated at $1.5 to $1.7 million.

Lotz Road has been under construction since last fall, Casari said. It is being paved from Palmer Road to Michigan Avenue and should be completed by July, he said.

Cost of the project was originally estimated at $308,000, to Canton, but increased to $380,000, Casari said.

City DDA

"We welcome you as director of the DDA," Goodman said. "We're excited to have you."

Goodman said later that Jaeger is in the right position to be a "middle man."

"He becomes a liaison between the city commission and the DDA," Goodman said.

Jaeger said he will try to get people working together, adding, "I think we've got a good start toward that."

He said he considers the additional job part of his duty as top administrator in the city.

"I feel there's an obligation as city manager to do this," he said. "There is no salary."

In Van Buren, Wayne-Westland Other school elections

BY KEN VOYLES

Some residents of Canton went to the polls in two other school elections last Monday (June 11), selecting new board members for both Van Buren Public Schools and Wayne-Westland School District.

Voters in those communities also decided a pair of millage issues during the elections.

Robert LaPointe and David Peer finished first and second out of five candidates seeking spots on the Van Buren Board of Education.

LaPointe garnered 1,749 votes, while Peer picked up 1,614 in the official tabulating. The two newcomers — there were no incumbents in the Van Buren race — will sit on the board for four years.

A four-mills tax increase was rejected by voters by the closest of margins, said Van Buren school officials. The additional millage was turned down by 33 votes — 2,044 to 2,011 (one ballot was spoiled).

A total of 4,076 voters went to the polls in Van Buren, said school officials.

In Wayne-Westland, Leonard Posey won the one four-year seat open on that district's board of education. There were three candidates in the race, but no incumbents.

Posey finished first with 3,202 votes, while Laurel Raisanen was second with 3,138 votes. Linda Pratt finished third in the race with 2,696.

Posey had been appointed to the Wayne-Westland school board in December when Teresa Reighard-Johnson left her position to become a council member in Westland.

A millage package including a renewal of 2.75 mills and a millage increase of 5.0 mills was defeated by voters, said school officials.

The 7.75 mills package was rejected by voters 6,251 to 4,378.

District officials said that just over 10,000 voters went to the polls in the Wayne-Westland election.

Twp. considers HVA service

Plymouth Township may soon be soliciting advanced life support care from Huron Valley Ambulance (HVA), after recent township board of trustees action.

The board moved to negotiate with HVA for its services on June 12.

According to Larry Groth, fire chief in the township, HVA ambulances may be responding to emergency calls in the township by the fall.

"It's real preliminary right now," he said. "It will probably take two to three months."

Groth said the township would continue to provide basic emergency medical services, while HVA would specifically concentrate on advanced emergency medical care.

To downtown Plymouth Y's run draws 1,000

BY RITA DERBIN

More than 1,000 runners flooded the downtown streets of Plymouth for the 11th Annual YMCA Run on Sunday.

With a good crowd lined up along the streets to cheer them on, 1,049 registered runners participated in several events on a hot and humid Father's Day.

"The crowd was good," said Carol Brockschmidt, who co-chaired the event with Ann VanWagoner. "There was a big family participation - a lot of people turned out to cheer the runners on."

Winning the men's one-mile race was Mike Patterson, of Plymouth (4:48). Patterson was followed James Federson and Todd Visnaw.

Maggie Frump won the women's one-mile race. She was followed by one-mile race. She was followed by Andreanna Droz and Jeanne Regan, five-kilometer run with a time of 15:36. He was followed by Rick Shaffer and Jeff Fedewa. In the women's five-kilometer run, Jacqueline Krug, of Marshall, won (19:54) with Marian Shears and Patricia Barrowcliff coming in second and third.

In the 10-kilometer run, Terry Eley, of Farmington Hills, won the men's event (32:06) and was followed by John Springer and Ben Goby. The women's 10-k was won by Meredith Saillant (40:06). Janet Novallo was second and Lisa Milezarski was third in the event.

Runners from all over Michigan participated in the run but the person who traveled the farthest was Mark Thomas, a tri-athlete from New Zealand. The oldest participant was 91-year-old Delia Curtis from Ann Arbor who participated in the one-mile walk. Both participants received plaques.

"(The run) was a success in my opinion," said Brockschmidt. "The route was wonderful - so many people cheered the runners on."

"We had over 150 volunteers and more sponsors than ever before," she added. "That really helped. We couldn't have done it without them."

One volunteer in particular, Randy Clough, was commended by Brockschmidt.

"He just knew everything," Brockschmidt said. "He helped with set up, the finish line and the scoring."

The run also featured the first annual tot trot, a race in which youths eight years old and younger ran a 1/8th mile course that concluded with a regular finish line and shirts, balloons and certificates for all participants at the end of the race.

Trio shoots 62, wins golf tourney

An 18-hole scramble format golf tournament was held on Sunday at Fellows Creek Golf Course to honor Father's Day.

The Annual Canton Parks and Recreation Father's Day Scramble Golf Tournament had 32 teams participating in the daylong event.

Winning the tournament was team leader Kevin Schaum, of Canton, and teammates T.C. Wilmot and Paul Lapinski. The trio shot a 10 under par 62 for a three stroke victory.

Runners up included team captain David LeClaire Sr., of Canton, David LeClaire Jr., and Mike LeClaire. The second place team finished seven under par with a 65.

Coming in third place was Jim Marti, of Canton, and his team of Bob Schmitton and Byron Howard. The trio shot a 65 for the day.

Winning the co-ed division was Bob Dates, of Canton, and his team of John Johnson and Kristen Harrison.

Tim O'Neil won an award for the longest drive of the day and Dave LeClaire Sr. won the closest to the pin award.

Hoop camp offered at SC

The registration cost will include daily sessions from either 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. or 12:30 p.m. to 3 p.m., individual and group instruction, team play and tournaments, a written evaluation of each player and a camp t-shirt.

Wolves win tourney

The 1977 Michigan Wolves soccer team recently won the 1990 Potomac Invitational Soccer Tournament in Potomac, MD. The tournament featured teams from New England, Toronto, and as far south as Mississippi.

The Wolves did not allow a goal in the tournament and went undefeated.

They defeated the Ohio Elite team 4-0 to win the tournament. Top goal scorer, Paul Dood, however, suffered a broken leg in the game.

The Wolves are scheduled to tour England and Scotland in late July and early August making stops in Manchester, England July 27-29 and Edinburg, Scotland August 3-5.

Junior link league

Interested boys and girls between the ages 11 and 18 are invited to join the summer junior golf league at Fellows Creek Golf Course sponsored by Canton Parks and Recreation.

A $35 enrollment cost will cover a six-week program designed for individuals who have previous golf experience.

Each participant will receive six nine-hole rounds of golf, a golf clinic taught by professional staff and a tournament at the end of the six week program.

The golf clinic, to be held at Fellows Creek on Saturday, June 23 at 10 a.m., is required for all participants. The league begins the week of June 25. Golf times run Monday through Friday with participants playing between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Register in person at the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

POAM 'insensitive'

Clarence R. Constan, an attorney for the Vachher family, said the family will not respond to police union's letter until the State Police investigation is completed.

The union's letter was termed "insensitive" by Constan, in light of the Vachher family's continued suffering over the condition of Paul.

He said the younger Vachher has gone through five operations since the incident.

Canton Police have declined to comment further about the incident until after the State Police report is completed.

School election race

Richard Sumpter spent the least amount of money this year — $200. He also finished last in the voting behind the six other candidates.

"It appears money is playing a big factor," Sumpter said. "The votes came in parallel to the amount of money spent."

Sumpter said the campaign was without major issues, except those "the CBE created."

He added, "What I saw was the alignment of different factions and the money spending. It was more partisan with all the factions."

This was Sumpter's fourth try at winning a seat on the school board. He said the recent campaign was no different than previous races except that there were "a few more attacks." "But nothing got out of hand," he said.
