Local soldier shipped out to Persian Gulf

The Plymouth-Canton Community will be represented today as United States military forces head for the Persian Gulf and deployment in Saudi Arabia.

FEST: Fall Festival's board approved two new groups despite concerns about political activity. See pg. 3 for the story.

Private Stephen Fleming, 20, of the 82nd Airborne Division, was expected to be leaving for the embattled Middle East last night or early this morning, according to his father Caldwell Fleming, of Plymouth Township.

"If Stephen isn't out of Fort Bragg by midnight (last night), I would be real surprised," said his father.

Fleming, a 1988 graduate of Canton High, joined the army two years ago, said Caldwell Fleming, who has not talked with his son since the recent hostilities began.

"It's tough," said the senior Fleming about his son's overseas assignment. This is the second time in the last year that the family has feared

By a three to two margin, Victor Gustafson defeated Linda Chuhran in the 11th District Wayne County Commissioners Republican primary Tuesday.

Gustafson will face incumbent Democrat Milt Mack in the November general election. Mack was unopposed in the primary.

Based on unofficial results from nine communities within the district, Gustafson defeated Chuhran with a margin of 2,322 to 1,527, gathering nearly 70 per cent of the vote.

Although the race was close in most communities, Canton apparently decided the election. Throughout Canton's 27 precincts, Gustafson ran ahead of Chuhran 1,215 to 502.

"It appears that the voters spoke," said Gustafson. "The election shows me that not only are the people tired of the form of

The landslide victory in yesterday's primary belongs to incumbent State Representative James Kosteva in the 37th District.

Based on unofficial results, Kosteva totaled 2,006 votes to Bell's 377 -- nearly a seven to one margin -- in the Democratic primary Tuesday.

"I'm pleased to have the opportunity to run in November," said Kosteva, "and possibly have the chance to represent the district again."

Kosteva has been a Canton resident since 1979. He has been a member of the Michigan House of Representatives since 1984.

"I didn't take anything for granted," Kosteva said. "But, I think the results speak for themselves."

Bell, a resident of Romulus for three years, was running for the seat for the first time. He had previously run for the Detroit City Council.

"It's not a tragedy," Bell said of his Caldwell added that his son's wife, Michelle, who lives at Ft. Bragg, in North Carolina, has been the only one in touch with the soldier. He said he expects to hear from her soon with news about his son.

Michelle's parents, Michael and Julie Matevia, of Canton, are already on their way to Ft. Bragg to be with her while Stephen is overseas.

Caldwell said the rest of the family didn't plan on going to Ft. Bragg. He said having more family with the soldier's wife would put too much strain on her.

"It's a very anxious time for us," Caldwell said Tuesday night.

Board moves to form committee

School bond unlikely next year

BY KEN VOYLES

There will not be any kind of school bond proposal on the ballot in 1991.

That became clear by the end of Monday's Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education workshop as the board grappled with the formation of a blue ribbon study committee to look at the bond idea.

Without a formal vote Monday, the board came to a "consensus" that there wasn't enough time to prepare a bond proposal for next year.

"This is so important that we don't want to do anything to jeopardize that and we just don't have the time to make June, 1991," said Board President Dean Swartzwelter. "It's just not realistic."

He added, "My gut feeling is that it's more like two years to do it right."

Board members also agreed to begin the process of selecting local residents to lead the study committee's three main sub-committees -- a "vision 2010" committee to look at future education trends, and two groups to study existing and new facilities.

Swartzwelter said he plans to send a letter to about 20 residents who might be good candidates to co-chair the study committee and its three sub-committees.

Superintendent John M. Hoben told the board that the 1991 blue ribbon group would be planning the district's future for the next 20 years.

"We feel a need for a bond issue of some sort to bring us into some awareness of what we're going to need in the next two decades," said Hoben, who agreed that a bond vote in 1991 was not possible. "There's nothing magic about June, 1991."

He added, though, "I don't think it's an impossible situation to have up to speed in a year or year and a half."

Lester Walker, who proposed that the district begin the process by finding eight study group leaders and letting them select the overall co-chairs, called a 1991 bond proposal "an unrealistic goal."

Adkins knocks off Kassel in the 15th

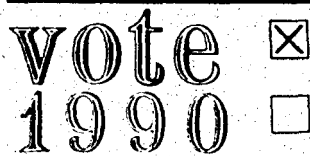

BY SCOTT DANIEL AND KEN VOYLES

It will be an instant replay.

With unofficial results in Tuesday night, it appears Burl Adkins has defeated Glen Kassel in the Republican primary of the 15th Congressional District. The district includes Canton.

It is the second time in two years that the Southgate resident has won the Republican primary bid to face Democratic incumbent William Ford in a November general election. Ford was unopposed in his primary race this year.

Back in 1988 Adkins also knocked off Kassel, then went on to lose the general election to Ford.

"I think the results speak for themselves," Adkins said. "I didn't take anything for granted."

"We worked really hard in the campaign," he added. "We knocked on a lot of doors and shook a lot of hands to get the issues to the voters."

Kassel, who has sought the Republican seat in the 15th in four previous elections, was unavailable for comment last night.

Adkins had to top vote totals in the Republican primary in all of the district's communities except Wayne, Garden City, and Huron Township.

Adkins defeated Kassel in his home town of Westland, with 769 to 663 votes. In Wayne, where Kassel operates a real estate firm, voters went with Kassel, 272 to 219.

Adkins also won in Belleville, Sumpter Township, Southgate, Van Buren Township, Romulus and Taylor.

He also took Canton with 932 votes to Kassel's 558, according to unofficial results from the clerk's department.

Overall, Adkins, unofficially garnered 3,820 votes as compared with Kassel's 2,559.

"I will be looking forward to a real race with Ford this time," Adkins said. "I will be a lot better prepared."

"Everything looks like it's coming together."

loss in the primary. "I thought I might be able to get in there and do a little better."

"I wasn't able to get around as much as I wanted in this campaign," he said. "I just wasn't familiar enough to the voters because I'm new in the district."

In Canton, which has 27 precincts, Kosteva received 198 votes to Bell's 41, according to Canton Clerk Loren Bennett.

In the City of Wayne, Kosteva picked up 607 votes to Bell's 131. In Romulus it was Kosteva 474 to 81 for Bell.

Unofficial results had Kosteva ahead in every community of the 37th District.

"If I got 100 votes it's probably more than I deserved," said Bell. "I have no ill will towards Jim Kosteva. I hope he wins in November and can get some things done for our district."

Kosteva will next face Republican Dolores Carmichael in the November general election. She ran unopposed in the primary race.

"It will be a challenge," Kosteva said. "I think she will take a higher profile in the campaign than Bell did in the primary."

"I will run a tough campaign," he added. "I expect to do well in November."

the moment it's too early to tell what her plans are.

In Plymouth Township -- where both candidates live -- Law's margin of victory was better than three to one. He tallied 1,252 votes to Keen McCarthy's 480.

Township Clerk Esther Hulsing called the 15 per cent voter turnout "awful."

"We gave a party and nobody came," she said.

In Canton, Law received 844 votes to Keen-McCarthy's 506. Voter turnout was a "pathetic" eight per cent, according to Clerk Loren Bennett.

Sixteen per cent of the registered voters came out in the City of Plymouth; the breakdown there was 512 for Law and 241 for Keen McCarthy.

Just under half of the votes in the city were cast by absentee ballot.

In Northville Township, it was Law 1,258, Keen McCarthy 504. Voter turnout there was a relatively high 22 per cent.

City of Northville voters elected Law to run in November 162 to 46, with nearly 17 per cent of registered voters participating.

government that existed in Canton in 1988, they're tired of the county government that exists in 1990."

Chuhran, while disappointed at her defeat, said that she was satisfied with the way the election system worked.

"My feeling is that every voter has a right to express their opinion," Chuhran said. "What it comes down to is the democratic process works."

Although unclear about her future plans, Chuhran did not rule out another try at public office.

"I can't say whether I'll run again," Chuhran said. "I would say that you will probably see me again."

Gustafson said that he feels he has an excellent chance against Milt Mack in the fall.

"We intend to zero in on the issues," Gustafson said. "I think our chances of winning the November election are very, very good."

Communities voting in the 11th district commissioners race included: Belleville, Canton, Flat Rock, Huron Township, Rockwood, Romulus, Sumpter Township, Van Buren Township and Wayne.

Committee says yes on airport Mettetal vote set

BY SCOTT DANIEL

It is likely that the Canton Board of Trustees will reject the idea of the township purchasing Mettetal Airport during a special session tonight.

The board is expected to vote tonight after its joint meeting with the Mettetal Airport Study Committee at 7:30 p.m. Last Wednesday the committee voted 6-4 to recommend the purchase of the airport by Canton.

"From the information I have in front of me, I would have to vote no," said Trustee Robert Shefferly. "I don't see a lot of positives (in buying the airport), but I do see a lot of negatives."

Shefferly said he was surprised by the committee's vote to recommend buying the airport. He said, based on committee member James Darling's economic report, that he didn't see "any pluses" to buying the airport.

"I'll be interested to hear what the committee members have to say," Shefferly said. He added that his vote wasn't "solid," meaning that it could be changed by information from tonight's meeting.

Canton Treasurer Gerald Brown said he was leaning against buying the airport. He added, however, that his decision wasn't "set in stone."

Brown said he has talked to many of his neighbors about the issue.

"I don't run into a lot of people that want it," he said. "I've only had one neighbor say, 'buy it.'"

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack declined to reveal his decision about the purchase of the airport. He did say that it wasn't a "tough decision" for him.

Canton Clerk Loren Bennett and Trustee Philip LaJoy both said they haven't made a decision yet. Board members Elaine Kirchgatter and John Preniczky were unavailable for comment.

The airport committee met for the final time last Wednesday. The group began its study in April and heard from state and federal aviation officials in their quest to make a recommendation to the board. The committee also visited several nearby airports and produced an economic study of the effects of buying the airport on Canton.

Fest beer tent? Groups pass fest test

Two groups new to the Fall Festival have been approved for this year's annual event despite concerns about potential political activity.

There is also a chance the festival may include something new -- a non-alcoholic beer tent suggested by the Plymouth Lions Club.

Both the I-Care Committee and the Plymouth-Canton Vietnam Veterans of American Chapter 528 will have booths in the four-day festival after the Fall Festival Board of Directors determined last Wednesday that

At Canton mobile home park

Heroic residents save family

BY MIKE GUINN

Most people are lucky to have nearby residents who will do favors like loaning a garden tool or inviting them over for coffee.

But neighbors of Christine Smith and her daughter Suzanne did considerably more than that for the pair last Tuesday.

They pulled them out of a fire.

When a blaze broke out in the Smith's mobile home residence in Canton, neighbors Ronald King, his son Ronald, Mike Gibson, and the elder Smith's boyfriend, Rob Yon, acted immediately, entering the burning structure to rescue the two and put out the fire.

Christine Smith suffered second and third degree burns in the incident, and was reported in serious condition Friday at the University of Michigan Burn Center in Ann Arbor. Suzanne Smith was treated for second degree burns of her legs at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne and released the same day.

Lt. Don Adams, of the Canton Fire Department, was a member of the fire crew which responded to the 8 p.m. call in the Sherwood Mobile Home Park at Michigan Avenue and Haggerty Road.

Adams said that the fire could have had more tragic results if not for the neighbors' actions.

"From all the indications I got, they did them quite a service," Adams said. "Had this happened a couple hours later, we could have had two fatalities. I would term the Smiths extremely lucky."

Adams said that the fire started when an aerosol spray can Suzanne was using as a hammer punctured. Fumes from the can were ignited by the mobile home's water heater pilot light, setting the bathroom on fire.

"When I went in there, the clothes basket was flaming," said the senior King. "I grabbed the basket of clothes and threw them out the back door. The carpet was burned, a few odds and ends were on fire."

Yon said that he didn't know what was burning when the men went into the home.

"I was thinking it was a dryer fire," he said.

With the help of a dry-chemical extinguisher used by Gibson, Yon said that the group put out the fire in about five minutes.

The elder King said that the event happened so quickly, the rescue party's own safety never crossed his mind.

"I didn't think about (the danger)," King said. "The thing on my mind was to get the fire extinguisher."

Canton Fire Chief Mel Paulun, who was involved in a similar experience last year when he entered a burning mobile home to save a child, said that people often don't have time to consider the danger in situations like the one the neighbors faced.

"You don't really think of your own safety, you just have something to do and you do it," Paulun said. "You have to make a quick decision on something like that."

Adams said that the men will probably receive a commendation for the assistance they provided the Smiths.

"What they did went way beyond normal actions," Adams said.

King said that the citation is not the most important thing on his mind.

"I don't care about the commendation," King said. "Just as long as (the Smiths) are all right."

Does Fall Festival condone theft?

Certainly, as part of a multimillion-dollar millage plot, it could be termed "grand theft."

But, apparently, no police have been notified of this two-year-old crime as yet.

"We was robbed," says Steve Harper, treasurer-chief-hoo-ha of the great Citizens' Election Committee which won a major Plymouth-Canton Community Schools millage campaign using the "I Care" slogan. Both the slogan and the pencil-apple logo have since been used by the schools' parent-involvement group, officially named "I Care."

"Don't confuse us with those other guys who use the 'I Care' slogan and even used our logo," he said to the Fall Festival Board, which asked (rightly so), "Aren't you the same pro-millage politickers we saw two years ago?" (Politics are prohibited at the Fest.)

"Not exactly," Harper replied, giving the "we was robbed" excuse while quickly switching hats.

With malice toward none

Of course, Harper et al would have also allowed Diane Daskalakis to use the committee's name and logo to mount a campaign against Devil Worship in Vacation Bible Schools. Right!

In explaining why the "I Care" group should be allowed to hawk (soft)wares at Fall Fest, Harper said the non-profit group was set up to "keep spreading the good words about our schools..." It's just that they stole the logo and slogan of the duly-registered Citizens' Election Committee to spread that "good word." (Talk about "spreading...")

Confusing?

Sure. In fact, Harper goes further to explain future projects by the "I Care" Committee under his Citizens' Election Committee letterhead.

Legal?

Probably. At least legal enough to get the Fall Festival Board off the political hook -- unless the Fest Board adopts a rule to prohibit thieves as well as political groups from getting Fest booths.

There WILL be postal services in downtown area

EDITOR:

Recently there has been much said and written about future postal services and facilities in Plymouth. To help clarify this situation, I wish to share a response I requested from the Postal Service which speaks to the Postal Service's intentions.

As you may recall, an agreement regarding modernization of the Plymouth Post Office was reached in January, 1989. At my suggestion, representatives from the municipal governments, Postal Service and my office, met to work out an understanding. That understanding provided for continued window service somewhere in the downtown Plymouth area, and construction of an expanded facility outside the downtown area.

As I indicated at the time of our January meeting, it is important that local officials and the Postal Service work together to assure that a suitable downtown retail facility is maintained.

My reason for active involvement continues to be finding a solution to the traffic and parking problems encountered with the existing facility -- a solution which best serves the interests of everyone involved. As of this writing, I have every reason to believe our understanding with the Postal Service remains intact.

CARL D. PURSELL
MEMBER OF CONGRESS

DEAR CONGRESSMAN PURSELL:

This is in response to your July 19 letter on behalf of Maurice M. Breen, Supervisor, Charter Township of Plymouth, concerning the Postal Service's facility plans for Plymouth, specifically, whether or not we intend to maintain a retail outlet in the downtown area.

At this time, the Postal Service is in the process of building a new post office in Plymouth. This new facility, to be located on the northwest corner of Beck Road and Clipper Street is a 22,123 square foot building on a site of 178,600 square feet. The project is budgeted for $4.2 million. The new facility will house carriers and clerks, and will also provide full retail services to the public. This project is currently scheduled for completion in May of 1991.

In respect to maintenance of a retail outlet in the downtown area, we plan to lease a building in the business district for a finance station. We will advertise for appropriate sites in the near future. It is not possible at this time to specify exactly what services will be provided from the outlet, because this may vary depending on the size and type of leased building we are able to acquire. You may be assured, however, that the services provided will be based upon the needs and requirements of the community.

Contribute your vision

Here's your chance. You can help out the school board and the district administration.

They want to consider -- they want you to consider -- a school bond proposal, probably within the next three years. But this goes beyond the any mere debate about new elementary or middle schools.

You must have a "vision."

It's time, district officials are saying, to look ahead 20 years -- at least -- to plan for the future and our future's future.

At stake, they say, is the welfare of this school system and its students. The "global society" is here, says John M. Hoben, and it's at the forefront of current thinking economically, culturally, socially. In education, too.

They want you to consider this, to ponder the changing nature of education, and prepare for those changes. Not only esoterically, but practically; the infrastructure we all take for granted -- even with our schools -- must be watched and maintained, somehow adapted and updated.

It may mean the district needs more. Of everything. But it also means holding on to what we have -- schools like Central, Farrand, CEP -- and making it better.

Sound appealing, if mildly interesting? Then pick up that phone and call now to join. Put your name on that roster.

The arbitrator of this district's fate may just be you or someone like you.

On the beat

By Philip Tardani

There may be a sure way for local State and U.S. House of Representatives candidates to win over every voter in the City of Plymouth.

Tell them you'll make sure something of a post office remains downtown after the Plymouth Post Office moves out to Plymouth Township.

The issue certainly seems to be hot, despite continued assurance from postal officials that there will be a service area downtown, where residents can buy stamps and get their packages weighed.

Maybe people just don't trust the government on this.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen brought the matter up in July with a letter to U.S. Congressman Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

In it, he said that letters to newspapers and comments around town "seem to put some doubt as to the real purpose of the program being undertaken by the United States Postal Service."

He enclosed a memorandum from Community Development Director Shirley Barney, who reviewed the Postal Service's plans for a 23,123-square foot facility on Beck Road north of the CSX tracks.

She was also careful to mention that "a presence will be maintained downtown."

In the city itself, City Manager Gordon Jaeger reassured the city commission in July that city residents will still be able to stroll downtown and buy stamps.

"They (the Postal Service) indicated they will provide 1,500 to 1,800-square feet of service space," Jaeger said. "It will still be available downtown, though not necessarily in the same location."

Enter Carl Pursell's letter to local media.

Apparently responding to perceived constituent concerns (or why else would he write the letter?), he says that "it is important that local officials and the Postal Service work together to assure that a suitable downtown retail facility is maintained."

He enclosed a copy of a letter from the Postal Service's director of government liaison, who says that the service will lease a building in the business district for a finance station.

"You may be assured that the services provided will be based on the needs and requirements of the community," the letter concludes.

So forget abortion or taxes or the environment.

If candidates really want the Plymouth vote this November, all they have to do is stand on the Penniman Avenue post office steps and say to all who come near:

"Read my lips: There will be a postal service area maintained downtown."

Whether or not they can keep the promise really doesn't matter once they're elected.

Meals, booths falling into place

Fall Festival gains new participants

BY PHILIP TARDANI

The 35th annual Fall Festival is less than a month away, and 42 groups are participating thus far, including new participants from the Canton Football Boosters and the CEP Marching Band.

Twenty-one of the groups will have booths planned this year, according to Larry McElroy, Fall Festival board president.

Once again downtown City of Plymouth will play host to the event and the 200,000-plus festival goers expected over four days (Sept. 6-9).

Booths will be set up along Peniman Avenue from Harvey to Union and along Main Street from Fralick to Ann Arbor Trail. Other activities will take place in Kellogg Park and around the festival grounds in downtown.

Meals and entertainment are falling into place, too. Thursday night it'll be a veal dinner brought to you by the Salvation Army.

Johnny Chase and His Magic Music Sounds, the Canton Seniors' Kitchen Band and the Plymouth Community Band will perform Thursday beginning at 5:30 p.m..

The Plymouth Knights of Columbus have applied to sponsor a Friday meal of spare ribs. Music begins at 5 p.m.

with the Downriver Dulcimers, then the band Innovation.

Get up early Saturday morning for a pancake breakfast cooked up by the Plymouth Kiwanis Club.

When evening rolls around, the Knights will fire up the grills and throw the steaks on.

Entertainment on Saturday begins at noon and will include a clown, magic act, the Polish Centennial Dancers and the Johnny Trudell Orchestra.

Wind the fest down with a chicken barbecue from the Rotary Club on Sunday afternoon and evening.

Wake up first, though, with a special church service in Kellogg Park beginning at 8:30 a.m. Sunday morning.

Entertainment on the final festival day starts at noon with the Salem Rockettes team and continues until festival closing remarks at 5:30 p.m.

Other groups to entertain festival goers on Sunday include the Plymouth Theater Guild, the Canton Chieftes and the ever popular Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps.

Fall Festival

neither group was politically involved.

"The board is satisfied that neither group is politically involved and that we're not violating our by-laws by having them participate in the festival," said Board President Larry McElroy.

The board's by-laws forbid political groups from participating in the festival.

Word on the application of the Western Wayne County Conservation Club — which the board is also reviewing for political ties — was delayed until next week.

Ray Buckman, chairperson of I-Care, told the board that his group is "completely free of any political connections.

"The purpose of the I-Care Committee is to bring the public into the school system," he said. "I-Care will not and has not supported any candidate for public office."

Confusion about I-Care's status may arise from the fact that its founders had all been volunteers for the Citizens' Election Committee (CEC), a registered political group, according to CEC Treasurer Stephen Harper.

I-Care will have a computer software booth at the festival.

The local Vietnam veterans chapter was also able to convince the board that it is not politically active.

"We are a non-partisan organization," Greg Huddas, president of the group told the board. "We are not funded by any political action group."

Mike Pollard, who represents the Plymouth Lions Club on the board, said the veterans have a "complex set of by-laws, a complex set of goals and purposes" that merited a further look.

"I'm satisfied that based on the information they gave us, they qualify under our by-laws," he added.

Huddas said the vets group did not have enough time or money to host the Friday fish dinner and will have a resale booth instead.

The group will sell pins, shirts and hats. Huddas said the vets would like to sell corn on the cob Thursday through Saturday.

In other festival news, the Plymouth Lions Club submitted a late application to participate this year by setting up a non-alcoholic beer and wine tent.

The board agreed last week to at least review the application.

The issue of whether or not the festival should consider a "beer tent" arises each year, but there has never such a booth at the festival in the past.

"We can debate the merits of the application next week," said Pollard.

There is also some question about whether or not the Lions would need special permission from the state Liquor Control Commission to host the tent.

"Non-alcoholic" beer actually contains a trace amount of alcohol, about .5 per cent.

Agency available to help seniors

BY MIKE GUINN

Society has never been easy on people when they reach their "golden years," but a Wayne County organization is working to assist those who can use a helping hand.

The Senior Alliance, a non-profit agency serving many metro-Detroit communities, including Plymouth, Canton and Northville, provides services ranging from meal delivery to day care for the elderly.

The state-funded organization charges no fee for their services. The only requirement is that people who use their agency be at least 60 years of age. While the group is prepared to help as many people as possible, it is hindered because so few of its potential users are unaware that the Senior Alliance exists.

"People don't know we are here, and that's a big problem," said Amy Punke, the organization's spokesperson. "We're here to keep the seniors active and in the community."

Primarily a contractor to groups that will provide services to aid the elderly, the Senior Alliance is administered by the Michigan Offices of Service to the Aging (OSA). Money is also provided to the alliance by outside sources.

"We receive about $4 million a year in donations to put the services together," Punke said. "Donations are encouraged, but seniors who can't afford to donate will not be refused service."

One agency funded by the Senior Alliance is the Plymouth Adult Day Care Center. The group operates out of St. John's Episcopal Church and provides supervision for elderly adults who suffer from aging diseases while family members are at work.

Site manager Sally Walker said that the Senior Alliance provides excellent support to the center.

"They're our main funding source," said Walker. "They provide us with referrals, services. If we have any questions, we can call them."

Currently serving 29 adults with problems such as stroke recovery and Alzheimer's Disease, the day care center is open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekdays. The center has three activity assistants and a part-time nurse, but Walker says that they are always looking for volunteers.

"Anyone who would like to volunteer should call us," Walker said. "They can also come in and observe our program, but they should call first."

Other services provided by the Senior Alliance include a free newsletter, a program to help seniors with paying for prescribed medication and assistance in obtaining state and federal benefits that they may be eligible for.

Punke said that anyone who is interested in the alliance services can call the office at 722-2830. Even if callers are in an area not served by the Wayne County office, they will be referred to an agency in their area.

Judy Zirblis, the City of Plymouth's new treasurer and assessor, has the right qualifications for the job. She has been performing the function for the previous six

City treasurer no longer acting

BY MIKE GUINN

The title is different, but the job is the same for one of the City of Plymouth's new financial department heads.

Judy Zirblis, 49, has been the acting city treasurer and assessor since Jan. 1 when she replaced Ken Way, who retired from the post last year.

Just over a month ago the 'acting' part of her title was removed from the job description.

A 15-year employe of the city, Zirblis said there were two reasons she decided to work for Plymouth.

"It was a very nice community," Zirblis said. "I was also looking for a steady income."

Originally splitting her time between the engineer's office and the treasurer's office, Zirblis became deputy assessor and treasurer in 1980, a position she held 10 years before her promotion.

Zirblis said that aiding community members and watching over public funds give her a sense of pride.

"I enjoy helping people," said Zirblis. "I like to make sure that city monies are used properly."

An art major in college, Zirblis originally intended to become an elementary teacher. But her career goals were somewhat altered, she said, by marriage and children.

"Your life changes," Zirblis said of her new employment direction.

One of the goals for her three-member staff, Zirblis said, is to have each person familiar with all office functions. She feels they already have a good start to achieve this end.

"We work well as a team," said Zirblis. "If there is a problem, we'll get to the bottom of it."

Although she lives in Livonia, Zirblis and her husband are "actively" looking for a home in the city to fulfill Plymouth's residential requirement. (She was granted a one-year waiver upon assuming her present position.)

Being able to deal with problems that arise is a valuable asset for her job, Zirblis said. "You have to have the ability to roll when crises come up," she said.

It's clear that being in the treasurer's position is a job that Zirblis enjoys. When asked where she hoped to be career-wise 10 years from now, she had a short but direct answer.

"Right here," Zirblis said.

New Twp. asst. aids residents

BY PHILIP TARDANI

There's a new executive assistant aboard at Plymouth Township Hall.

Christine Morrison, who was hired July 23, will be handling "resident support" matters handed down from the supervisor's office, according to Township Supervisor Maurice Breen.

Morrison will concentrate on coordinating the new solid waste program and also on senior citizen affairs, Breen said.

"She's going to be coordinating programs, but it will probably get deeper than that," he added.

Morrison, 37, said she has spent a lot of time studying the township's new solid waste program, which includes mandatory curbside recycling and begins Sept. 4.

"It's been real interesting. I've learned everything you want to know about recycling," she said.

Morrison lives in Canton and has an associate's degree as a legal assistant from Schoolcraft College.

Her other duties, Breen said, will include, among other things, working with homeowners groups, coordinating staff relations and obtaining grants for the township.

The $20,500 administrative assistant position was created several years ago, according to Cathy Broadbent, township human resources analyst.

Guess what -- four weeks from today is Fall Festival.

In Crier language that means summer vacations are a thing of the past and fall deadlines are breathing down our necks.

Attention certain staff members -- some of the deadlines are now! As with any major project, there are many deadlines and always a few people trying to push them. Sometimes I feel like the mom as I listen to everyone's excuse for being late with ad copy, a photo or a story.

It's hard to think about fall when you can look outside and see a beautiful summer day. It's harder to stay inside and work once you've looked out and checked the weather. However, as a mom would say, you have a responsibility to get your work done on time -- before deadline.

There is still so much to do and so little time to do it. This is when the real tension starts and my patience ends -- just do it -- now.

Thank heavens I don't have to be a mom to 24 little kids. After the first reminder it doesn't take much to simply say I'm the boss and we'll do it my way.

My attitude from work sometimes goes home with me. It doesn't take much for my kids to figure out when Fall Festival deadlines start.

Everyone loves Fall Festival and working on the special edition brings out the team work of the staff. Every person in every department is important and has a responsibility, therefore we all share the stress and tension that goes with it (mom said to share).

Okay everyone, inside, let's get to work. There will be plenty of sunny days in September to enjoy -- I hope.

Attorney Perry Richwine is celebrating his 85th birthday! Congratulations Perry!

Schools plan for 'vision 2010'

the sense that we have to do it by next June," he said.

"I'd like to take a little more time now so that we -- the board, staff, residents of the community -- are comfortable with the package," said Dave Artley. "I don't see how we can do all that before next June."

"If we try to rush this we'll just set ourselves up for grief," said Barb Graham.

Carl Battishill and Roland Thomas also agreed that 1991 was an unrealistic timeframe. Board member E.J. McClendon was not present at Monday's meeting.

"There is a perception that we've approved this bond issue," Battishill said. "In reality we haven't even started the process at all."

The first suggestion of a possible bond proposal came more than two months ago.

At the time it was suggested by the district administration that the schools consider a bond plan, but not ask for an extension on a four-mills increase approved by the residents in 1989 and which expires in 1991.

District voters will still be going to the polls next year to vote on a renewal request for 17 mills.

"If we pass on this (the bond) in effect we'd be lowering taxes," said Battishill.

Hoben said that when voters approved the millage increase the district "promised" to reduce it again at the end of the two years. He said approval next year of the renewal would also reduce the district's Headlee tax rollback factor and bring in more money to the district.

The blue ribbon group needs to be concerned about a "vision 2010" because of changes in education, advances in technology, and population projections for the area, said Hoben.

He added that the district has about 80 maintenance and other projects that have been delayed over the past few years due to a lack of funding. Other areas that will be considered include the need for new elementary and middle schools.

Once the leaders of the study groups are selected they will be given a charge to: develop a view of education; determine facility and equipment needs; assess current facilities for short and long term needs; and determine the difference between existing facilities and future needs.

The district currently has a list of 70-80 residents who have either expressed an interest in working on the study group or who might be interested. Other names of prominent locals who could be co-chairs are also being gathered, Richard Egli, the schools' community relations administrator, said.

He said the current structure presented by Hoben "still retains the openness to get anyone who wants involved."

The final size of the committees, which would include residents and staff, will be determined by the leaders who volunteer to take charge of the group. It is likely, however, that 50 residents will eventually comprise the overall study committee.

Swartzwelder said the district must involve residents at the beginning of the process or the district would not have as much "credibility at the end" if the schools propose a bond plan.

Thomas said a "straw dog" approach of having district staff do the groundwork before a "big" citizens group looks at the idea would be "quicker." The previous bond vote in 1986 came after nearly two years of work by district administrators and residents.

The success of that bond project was based on the fact that it had "something in it for everyone," said Thomas.

Walker said the whole plan needed a "tighter definition" and suggested "getting more flesh" on it before bringing it to residents. But he also suggested the district "zero in on" the committee chairs and begin the work there.

He called the bond framework laid out by the administration more "ambitious" than in 1986.

Battishill said the district should look for people who can "put in words what we need." Before a large committee is formed the district needs "a framework," he said.

Graham said the residents "have to know what their getting into" and "have a good working role."

One part of the plan worked out by the district, starting an assessment of each school involving residents and district principals, is already underway, said Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business. A "survey" will be completed by October, he said.

Barton-Malow, a consulting firm, is also involved in assessing district needs.

Once the co-chairs of the study group are selected the district will formally direct them to form the committees and eventually recommend whether the district seeks a bond sometime in 1992 or 1993.

Commission amends ordinance

Overnight parking OK

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Overnight parking in City of Plymouth lots is currently all right, unless otherwise posted.

The Plymouth City Commission voted unanimously Monday to amend the city's parking ordinance and allow overnight parking in all lots. Parking on the street, however, is still forbidden.

The amendment was recommended by the city parking commission.

"We reaffirmed the policy of no parking on the street, but made it allowable to park in city lots at night," said David Pugh, a member of the parking commission.

Commissioner James Jabara brought up the concern of parked cars inhibiting the removal of snow in the winter.

The commission addressed this concern by making overnight parking legal "unless otherwise posted."

Ken West, city engineer, said people living downtown need the overnight parking, especially in the central parking deck on Fleet Street.

Pugh agreed.

"The more people you have living downtown, the antiquated (the prohibition)," he said. "We thought we'd clean up the ordinance."

Police Chief Richard Myers said he thought the amendment was a good idea.

"We worked with the parking commission to put it together," he said. "We don't have any concerns about it."

Being able to close a parking lot gives the ordinance some flexibility, Myers said.

"It allows the city to judge and evaluate each particular lot individually," he said.

Commissioner Jerry Vorva, who brought up the issue during his campaign for the commission, also praised the flexibility of the ordinance, saying it allows the city to "do something about it" in the event of snow removal or abandoned cars.

The ordinance applies to all city lots, including the central deck, the east-central lot (by the Dunning-Hough Library) and the lower level of the Mayflower parking ramp.

Airport ownership debated

Committee member Jerry Jarvis, who voted to recommend buying the facility, said the airport could be developed for education, business and recreation uses. He said the township shouldn't be concerned about making a profit by running the airport.

"It's not fair to insist that it should make a profit to exist," Jarvis said. He said the township does many things in the community that aren't for profit.

Committee member Vic Gustafson said the township should buy the airport and establish a program with the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

"Canton has a wonderful opportunity to work in conjunction with the school district to establish a program," he said.

Gustafson also said Canton should insist on a guarantee from the state to work with the township for five years if they buy the airport. He said Canton shouldn't be "walking alone" in operating the airport.

Also voting for recommending buying the airport were committee members Richard Cebulak, Mike Clark, Sam Marshall and Dan Barton.

Committee member Robert Olson said buying the airport would be a bad investment for Canton. He said the township could make more money with other development.

"I would like to see Canton get the land filled as an industrial park," Olson said. "It would bring more dollars to the township."

Committee member Mildred Murphy said taxes is the biggest issue in Canton buying the airport.

"I wouldn't want to be responsible for a tax increase," she said.

Olson added, "Should Canton go millions of dollars in debt for a few citizens? I don't think so."

Committee members Ken Bennane and Darling also voted against buying the airport.

Mitsubishi: another Twp. jewel

BY KEN VOYLES

Another jewel is being added to Plymouth Township's high-tech crown.

The recent groundbreaking for a new 86,200 square foot headquarters of the Automotive Products Division of Mitsubishi Electric Sales America, Inc. (MESA) will help put the North Plymouth Commerce Center on the map.

"This area looked to be a growing high-tech corridor," said Thomas Wearsch, branch manager of MESA, which is moving its headquarters from Livonia to the Plymouth Township site. "It's a nice site and gives us room for future expansion."

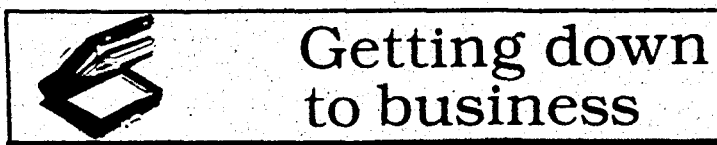

MESA, with corporate headquarters in California, is engaged in the marketing, sales and distribution of consumer electronics and electrical industrial products.

Besides direct-view color and big-screen televisions, MESA's product line includes industrial sewing machines, commercial and residential heating and cooling systems, video recorders, audio components, and cellular telephones.

The company, with its affiliates, employs nearly 3,000 people in 12 facilities across the United States and Canada.

The automotive division is involved in the sales and distribution of imported and locally manufactured OEM electrical and electronic parts as well as audio products.

Over the last 10 years the division has grown to nearly 60 employees involved primarily in supplying audio systems, starters and alternators to the big three automakers and Japanese transplants. Its sales last year were more than $160 million. Ten per cent growth is expected in 1990.

Wearsch said the new facility will add more than 20 jobs to the community over the next three years.

mostly on the technical side.

"The biggest thing is the technical center. It gives us a lot of testing facilities and it will greatly enhance our technical end of it," said Wearsch.

"We have a manufacturing facility in Cincinnati and we'll now be able to do the testing here in the United States."

Scheduled for completion by the spring of 1991, the division's new township headquarters will consist of a three-building complex housing offices, a warehouse, space of quality control and repairs, and the technical center.

"Our long term goal is to increase our R & D capabilities and focus more on advanced electronic products," Wearsch said. "We've been working on this for almost two years now. We tried to find a place that would fit us and offer us some visibility."

The new 11-acre complex will double the division's current office space. The 16,000 square foot research and development lab will provide space for three engine-test cells, a chassis dynamometer and other test stations.

The property for the MESA facility is being developed by Kojajan Properties, Inc., out of Bloomfield Hills. The complex was designed by the architectural firm of Hobbs & Black Associates.

Wearsch said that the future growth of the division is a key factor in its current plans.

"North Plymouth Commerce Center not only provides us with the space to accomplish this growth, but does so in an environment that promotes the type of hi-tech research and development we are involved in," said Wearsch.

Sportswear distributor profits from teams

BY MIKE GUINN

A new business member of The Plymouth-Canton Community has an added incentive to support Detroit's professional sports teams.

Todd Turkin, vice president of marketing for Broder Brothers, a printable sportswear distributor, said that when Detroit teams win, sales increase.

"We sold a lot of items when the Pistons won," said Turkin. "It's a good incentive to root for the team when you know you're going to make a lot of money."

Now in its 71st year of operation, Broder Brothers moved into Plymouth Township last fall from Oak Park. Turkin said that the company was attracted to Plymouth for a number of reasons.

"We were looking to build a building, and there was a beautiful site (in Plymouth) out here," Turkin said. "There also was an excellent pool of employe talent."

Although the company has kept the original company (Broder Brothers) name, it was sold to Jack Brode in 1955. His son Harold, has headed the organization for the past 25 years. The similarity of the new owner's name to the brothers, Turkin said, is coincidental.

Turkin said that the company has hired "about two dozen" employes since moving to Plymouth. He also said that they expect to hire more people when the company opens a site in Orlando, FL, next year.

The wholesaler's customers span all 50 states, and also include Puerto Rico, Canada and West Germany.

Harold Brode, president of Broder Brothers. The sportswear company relocated to Plymouth Township last year partly because of the available work force in the township. (Crier photo by Kelly Sauter-Dobson)

Seniors to sue over rent?

BY SCOTT DANIEL

A complaint against the owner of the Royal Holiday Mobile Home Park in Canton is expected to be filed with the Michigan Civil Rights Commission by the end of the week.

According to Peter Bundarin, a Canton attorney retained by the homeowners group, the complaint is being filed against owner Sheldon Futernick. Residents believe Futernick is trying to force older residents out of Royal Holiday by raising lot rents, he said.

"If it can be established that he is trying to kick the older residents out," Bundarin said. "It's a good civil rights case."

The homeowners group plans to attach a petition including all the names of residents who want to file a complaint, Bundarin said. He said he would review the petition before the complaint is filed.

Korpus said he expects to get a majority of Royal Holiday residents to sign the petition.

Once the complaint is filed, the Michigan Civil Rights Commission will said the final word could take awhile yet, however.

"The investigation is continuing, we are simulating and gathering evidence," he said, adding that it could take another six to eight months to complete.

assign an investigator to the case, Bundarin said. He said the investigator would likely send a copy of the complaint to Futernick and seek a response from him.

Bundarin added that it would be at least a couple of weeks to get a response from Futernick. "It's not a fast process," he said.

John Korpus, president of the homeowners association at Royal Holiday, said that if a settlement is reached with Futernick by Sept. 1, residents would put lot rent in an escrow account. He said it may be the only way to get the owner to talk to the association.

"It's my recommendation that they don't put the money in escrow," Bundarin said.

He added that the residents could be evicted by refusing to pay their rent. Bundarin said the residents should wait until the completion of the commission's investigation before taking such action.

Korpus said residents would continue to picket at Royal Holiday and the offices of Futernick.

Doub said the NTSB is reconstructing the flight paths and studying the visibility of both aircraft to "try and figure out why they didn't see each other."

The two planes -- a single engine Piper Cherokee and twin-engine Piper AeroStar -- collided over a field just south of M-14 on July 23.

Preliminary evidence suggests that the AeroStar -- which cruises at a speed of 200 knots -- struck the slower Cherokee from below, according to Larry McCartney, a Federal Aviation Administration investigator.

Visibility at the time of the crash, however, was reported to be "clear and unlimited."

The Cherokee had just taken off from Mettetal Airport in Canton when it crashed.

Its occupants -- Charles Nix, of Detroit; and Robert Gunn, of Livonia -- were found about 150 to 200 yards from where the plane crashed.

The body of the AeroStar's pilot -- Daniel Starr, of Cedar Springs -- was recovered from the aircraft, which landed about one half mile from the Cherokee.

McCartney said it is not unusual for collisions to occur on clear days.

"It appears that's when the majority of these types of accidents happen -- in clear flying weather," he said.

Competed in Mackinac race

Sailing is a family affair

BY RITA DERBIN

If the Halls don't answer their phone, don't worry. Gary Hall and his family are probably off sailing around the Great Lakes before summer becomes a memory.

Gary, a dentist who has lived and practiced in Plymouth Township for 27 years, began sailing 30 years ago and enjoyed the sport so much he passed his enthusiasm on to his sons, Bart and Matt.

Bart, who is now a 21-year-old student at Michigan State, and 18-year-old Matt, who will be attending Hillsdale College this fall, were practically raised in the water. The two were taking lessons, going to sailing camps, entering races and sailing with their father as soon as they were old enough to handle a boat.

One trip they took with their father was an 18-day transatlantic sailboat ride from Madeira Island off the coast of Africa to Antigua, which is located south of the Virgin Islands. During the trip, the Halls and their shorthanded crew of about six sailors encountered 50-foot waves and 65-75 mile per hour winds.

"That was one time I didn't like sailing," said Matt, who was in sixth grade at the time and spent most of the trip down below. "It was quite an experience but we had a great time."

The trio has also spend a lot of time sailing in the Carribean and the Great Lakes.

Bart and Gary sailed a boat from Bermuda to New York recently. Bart and his friends then sailed the rest of the way back through the Erie Canal for eight days.

"It was like being in the Twilight Zone," Bart said of the little towns he passed along the Erie Canal. "We were like foreigners -- the people were really strange but it was fun."

Matt doesn't race as much as Bart or Gary but still finds sailing a good way to keep the family close. "It has been a great way for me to get together with my brother and dad. It's a real challenge, especially when you sail overnight," he said.

Bart added that having the same interest in sailing has kept his family close.

"It really has kept our relationship close," he said. "When I'm out there racing with my dad it's a lot of work but he teaches me a lot -- it's just a good time to talk and be together."

Recently three additions were added to the sailing family when Gary's new wife, Marcy, and her two daughters, Michelle and Jennifer Hirschauer joined Gary, his two sons and daughter Loreli. Michelle, 20, and Jennifer, 18, are both graduates of Mercy High School and now attend Michigan State.

Marcy, who has been sailing for just over a year, spent part of her honeymoon as the only female on a 12-member crew when she joined Gary and Matt in the Mackinac Island sailboat race last month.

Gary and Marcy Hall on the Two Dogs, which they sailed to a ninth place finish in the Mackinac Island sailboat race last month. The Halls took part in the race as part of their honeymoon.

"It was something else ... I really had a great time," said Marcy, who cooked and took her turn on night watch sailing the boat.

The Halls' sailboat finished ninth in the race, which was a respectable finish for Gary.

"For me that's good, it was a new boat and we finished way up in the fleet," he said. "We aren't that great at crew racing -- I like the solo and double-handed races because they're more fun."

"The winds were light for the race," added Matt. "The seas were flat but we did get a mixture of everything during the race. Overall, everyone thought it was a great race."

After finishing the Mackinac race, Gary and Marcy finished their honeymoon by sailing around Lake Michigan a few days before trading places with Bart who sailed the boat down to dock at North Cape in Monroe.

The Halls' sailboat, Two Dogs, (the name of the boat comes from an old Indian joke, according to Bart), is a Serendipity 43 painted pink, purple and light blue (so it sticks out in the water, Bart said).

The boat was transported in pieces from the naval academy in Annapolis, MD last fall and the Halls worked on it all winter.

"For ordinary people to get into big boat racing the only way they can afford it is if they buy an old boat from the navy," Gary explained. "You buy them and bring them home to work on."

Gary added that maintaining a boat is a 16-1 proposition. "For 16 hours of work you get one hour of enjoyment," he added.

Working on Two Dogs was a family affair. After Bart's journey from Kansas City to get a trailer, then to Annapolis to disassemble the boat (he had to cut 1/2 feet off the keel in order to fit it on the trailer) and back to Michigan, everyone worked all winter to get the boat ready by spring.

"It's a lot of work -- I don't know why people do it," Bart kept saying about the sport of sailing. "I don't know why I do it but I do, and I can't imagine not sailing."

If you have any questions or want further information please contact coach Fred Thomann at 459-7315.

Dr. and Mrs. Gary Hall pose with their family for a wedding photo outside their Plymouth Township home in July. From left are Bart, Michelle Hirschauer, Marcy, Gary, Lorell, Jennifer Hirschauer, and Matt.

Up for the challenge

Gary agreed with Bart. "Anyone who thinks sailing is relaxing hasn't sailed," he said. "There's really never any time to relax but it is a lot of fun."

Besides the expense involved in buying and keeping the boat in racing shape, there's a lot of work to be done once you're in the water. Both Gary and Bart have run into troubles during solo and doublehanded races and know you have to be alert at all times.

Bart and Gary entered in the Huron Doublehanded Challenge sailing event last month and limped to a second-place finish in the Lexington class monohull competition. They also receive the dubious award for breaking the most boat parts during the race, which took place during thunderstorms and winds getting up to 40-50 miles an hour.

The father and son combo sailed from Port Sanilac to Rogers City in the annual 205-mile competition.

"(The race) is really unique in a way," said Bart. "Because it's only two guys that are racing like there's a whole crew."

"It turns out to be a real race -- one of the toughest around," Bart added.

But whatever the difficulty, the Halls are up for the challenge.

Next spring Gary plans to be in the Bermuda 1 - 2 race from New York to Bermuda and back. In the race, he will sail solo to Bermuda and pick up a partner in Bermuda for the return trip.

And because sailing is in their blood, you can bet the family will continue to sail into new horizons together.

Area man held in rape

A Superior Township man will be arraigned in Wayne County Circuit Court later this month on two felony counts after being accused of rape, according to Plymouth Township Police.

David Scott Regehr, 18, was arraigned on July 31 in the 35th District Court on one count of third degree criminal sexual conduct and one count of breaking and entering with intent to commit a felony, according to township investigator Erik Mayernik.

He pled innocent to both counts, Mayernik said.

Regehr faced a preliminary examination before Judge John MacDonald Friday, Mayernik said. He was then bound over to circuit court, he said, because felons are not tried in district court.

Third degree criminal sexual conduct involves forced sexual intercourse and coercion, Mayernik said. Regehr did not use a weapon, however, he said.

Regehr is free after he posted $1,500 bond, Mayernik said.

Both felons carry a maximum of 15 years in prison, he said.

According to police, Regehr knocked on the door of a 16-year-old Plymouth Township girl. The girl told Regehr she would talk to him after she let her dogs -- who were barking -- outside, Mayernik said.

When she returned, Mayernik said, Regehr was in the house. He then had forced intercourse with her and left, according to Mayernik.

Canton Library selected

The Canton Public Library has been selected by the Library of Michigan to receive $5,000 in federal funds as part of its Cultural Diversity program.

The project, written with the assistance of Canton Township Resource Associate Gerald Martin, is intended to produce brochures written in languages spoken by non-native Canton residents. They are intended to provide helpful information such as how to get a Social Security card, or filing an income tax return.

Librarian Ophelia Lo will coordinate the project.

It seems like yesterday that the Rotarians started it all with a picnic ... 35 years have rolled by as the annual Fall Festival has grown into SE Michigan's grand daddy of all festivals.

With over a quarter million visitors expected this year, the Fall Festival is the showcase opportunity for The Plymouth-Canton Community and your business.

Our staff is already planning its yearly full-color award-winning Fall Festival Edition -- including the annual Salute to Industry and Commerce of Plymouth-Canton-Northville. This edition annually helps publicize the many aspects of our vibrant community and its largest Festival.

With your participation -- the 35th annual Festival should be the best ever.
