Survives fight at Khafji Local's heroics may earn him a Bronze Star

BY KEN VOYLES

The heroics of a Plymouth Township soldier during savage fighting in and around the Saudi Arabian city of Khafji may earn him a coveted Bronze Star medal.

U.S. Marine Corps Captain Douglas Robert Kleinsmith, 28, was among the first Americans in Kuwait City last week when it was liberated during the ground campaign against the Iraqi military.

But Kleinsmith is likely to forever take home with him from the desert a far more harrowing tale about a night north of Khafji.

Kleinsmith and a team of three other soldiers (Cpl. Steven Foss, Cpl. John Calhoun and Cpl. Ed Simmons) from the 1st Anglico, 1st Marine Division, were cut off at their border post when the Iraqis rolled into Khafji on the night of Jan. 29-30.

Calmly taking charge (he was the only officer on hand), Kleinsmith radioed in air support to Cobra helicopters and attack aircraft to cover his unit and other U.S. teams pulling back to Khafji.

"I tried to cover the retreat as best I could. I (and my team) directed the aircraft to our north and our east," he wrote in a Feb. 7 letter to his wife Astrid. "I could still see the battle going on to our west. I felt pretty safe despite all this because the 4 Cobras kept circling around us."

"I heard the base camp group was evacuating Khafji to a place 40km south. Right at that time the Cobras told me they were running out of gas and had to leave."

Kleinsmith then led his own soldiers, a few Marine recon troops, and some Special Forces soldiers, to safety.

"Needless to say I had to do some

State considers plan for prison

Phoenix eyed as detention center

BY PHILIP TARDANI

A Michigan Corrections Department spokesperson said Monday that the Phoenix Correctional Facility could become a detention center for "technical rule violators" from state halfway houses.

However, "Nothing has been decided," said spokesperson Gail Light, about the potential use change at the Northville Township facility.

"I wouldn't put that possible use above anything else," Light said.

Inmates at a "detention center" — a new program — would be sent there from a halfway house for a technical rule violation, according to corrections field officer Denise Quarles. The detention center would be a step between a halfway house and prison.

"The idea is to get their attention, give them a chance to get adjusted to life in the community," Quarles said. "If they adjust, they'd go back to a halfway house; if they don't they'd go to prison."

A technical violation would include disobeying a direct order from a corrections officer, she said, adding that those guilty of a criminal offense would not be eligible for the program.

Once at the detention center, the inmates would only be allowed outside the site under supervision and escort, Quarles said, and would labor on public works projects.

Most halfway house inmates are property offenders, she said, and sex offenders are not allowed in the program.

"We would need corrections officers (at the detention center), but not as many as they have there now," she said.

Phoenix, formerly a part of Detroit's prison system (along with the old DeHoCo), is scheduled to close April 27.

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, said it was his expectation that the 60-year-old facility would be razed.

"Northville Township would like to see it torn down and put on the private rolls," he said.

Land swap between Ward, developer?

BY KEN VOYLES

© 1991 PCCC Inc.

Is St. John's Seminary in Plymouth Township at the center of a major land swap between Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia and a noted shopping center developer?

Although officials with Ward Presbyterian Church would not comment on the potential for such a swap, the Archdiocese of Detroit, which owns the St. John's site, has confirmed that the church is negotiating with a developer to purchase the site.

And other sources have said Ward is also talking with that individual.

The developer, who declined to confirm or deny the reports, is a major commercial center developer.

A new St. John's scenario might look like this:

The developer would purchase the St. John's land (some 125 acres including the golf course or just the 35 to 40 acres with buildings on it) from the archdiocese and then swap it with Ward for the 140-acre site currently owned by Ward in Northville Township.

Ward, which has yet to begin its expansion on the site at Six Mile and Haggerty roads (although the plans have been approved), has not confirmed whether or not it is negotiating for the St. John's location in Plymouth

Monday morning blaze

Firefighters from the City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township responded to a fire on Farmer Street in Old Village Monday. The blaze, which was reported about 11 a.m. was under control about 12:15, according to Chief Alan Matthews. No one was injured during the blaze. An investigation into the fire is continuing, he said. (Crier photos by Philip Tardani and Ken Voyles)

is leaving the city. See pg. 2.

Myers takes a new job in Illinois

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Almost six years to the day since he was hired, Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers is moving on.

The chief, 36, has been hired as the top cop in Lisle, IL, a suburb of Chicago with a population of 19,000. He'll start the new job on April 8.

"It was an extremely difficult decision to make but we felt it was in the family's best interest," Myers said Tuesday after the formal announcement. "We certainly do love Plymouth and will maintain our contacts here."

City Manager Gordon Jaeger, who is leaving himself in May, said Lisle was lucky to get Myers.

"I think he has been a very good chief for the community," Jaeger said. "He's very professional in his approach to his work and his men."

Mayor Dennis Bila called a Myers "highly professional and a genuinely nice person."

In Lisle, Myers faces a situation similar to Plymouth. The city does not have a high crime rate, according to a member of the media there, and the police concentrate on traffic enforcement.

Lisle is governed by a village manager and six member board.

Myers, who was hired by then-City Manager Henry Graper in 1985, will likely be replaced at least temporarily by an officer from within the city ranks, according to Jaeger.

"I will accept applications for acting chief from within the department," Jaeger said. "There have been a number who have served as chief in his absence."

The chief's departure comes amidst talk of shared police and fire services between the city and Plymouth Township.

Jaeger said his departure could facilitate an agreement.

"Perhaps with our chief now leaving we're in a better position to do that," he said, adding both he and Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen would like to expedite an agreement. "If it's possible to put the department together in some fashion, it makes no sense to have two chiefs."

Myers will be moving with his wife Cindy and daughters Lauren, 6, and Lindsey, 4.

Is Walters Plymouth's new manager?

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Steven Walters has been city manager in Northville for 17 years, and the Plymouth City Commission would like to see him work for them.

The commission unanimously voted Monday night to consider Walters as the only finalist for the city manager position that manager Gordon Jaeger will leave vacant May 1.

Walters said he is "seriously considering" whether or not to take the job if it is offered.

"Now that the option to rediscuss it has occurred, I'm willing to think about it again," he said, referring to his candidacy for the job last year. "I'm going to seriously consider it and discuss with them (the city commission) some employment terms and see where we are."

Negotiating with Walters as the only

Residents oppose zoning

"The homes will be serviced by county water and sewer, underground utilities, and they will be predominantly brick," Bloch said. "They will cost between $200,000 and $250,000. They will equal or exceed the present homes in the area."

He added that his homes will "help bring the township's upgrading plan to reality."

candidate can save the city the time and expense of going through a lengthy search like the commission undertook last year, according to Commissioner James Jabara.

"I assume this is something that can be resolved within two or three weeks without taking two or three months," he said.

The commission will now negotiate terms and go through with a public interview, according to Mayor Dennis Bifa.

Bifa said Walters is familiar with the city and could move in from Northville with little problem.

"He knows exactly what's going on, he's not going to be surprised by anything," Bifa said. "He knows the department heads and city commissioners."

Walters, 47, has 20 years total city manager experience. His accomplishments there include a successful downtown development and construction of Allen Terrace, a senior citizens housing project.

The candidate was assistant city manager in the City of Plymouth from 1967-70. He has a master's degree in public administration from the University of Michigan and is Northville's representative on the 35th District Court advisory board.

Walters said it may be "overstating it" to call him a candidate, since that implies he was actively seeking the job when in fact the city came to him.

without leaving the township when they want to "upgrade."

Canton's master land use plan, the blueprint for future development, reflects this idea. The newest plan was adopted in November. It designates much of the land west of Canton Center as R-2.

But the land is still currently zoned RR. The planning commission must rezone the land on a parcel-by-parcel basis as requests are made.

Pat Butzin, who lives off of Ridge Road, drew applause from many of the residents who jammed the meeting.

"We can develop Canton," she said to the commissioners. "We can develop that area. But let's at least make it one house per acre. Your image for Canton is to have house upon house. But I don't think anyone here wants to see Sunflower 500 next to us."

Robert Geracz, a Canton resident involved in real estate, said R-2 zoning was a good idea.

"You drop a house on an acre in Canton, it's going to cost about $375,000" he said. "But going to half acre lots is something unique. They're

Canton plan looks at goals and objectives

Ten goals for the township are also specified.

One of Canton's main strengths is its location, according to the plan. Not only is it close to major highways and airports, but the New York Central and Chesapeake & Ohio rail lines cross through the township.

Close proximity to Ann Arbor and Detroit metropolitan areas affords many educational and training opportunities for the labor force, including the University of Michigan, Eastern Michigan University, Schoolcraft College, and Wayne State University, among others.

The report also notes that land is readily available in Canton, and the township uses tax abatements to attract industry.

doing something good for you," he told the residents.

Paciocco, the developer, echoed some of Bloch's earlier comments when he said he did not just want to build a subdivision to make a profit, but that he wanted to add an attractive development to the community.

"I want to do a good job," he said.

Dorothy Lough, a Gydé resident, asked when planning commissioner Richard Palmer had sold land to Paciocco for his proposed development.

"I have no problem answering that," said Palmer. "I do have a problem seeing the relevance. My brother and I sold 80 acres, that is true.

I believe the deal was consummated on Aug. 6, 1990."

He added that this was the first time anyone had asked him such a question "to my face" in over 30 years of service to Canton.

"I offered to resign at the time, but everyone involved said I should stay," Palmer said. "I don't know what else I can do."

John Burdziak, planning commission chair, denied that any decisions on the master land use plan, which was on the drawing board for two years, had been made without warning the public.

"We didn't try to slide anything by," he said.

The report acknowledges an energy in the community. "Residents of Canton are young and have a willingness to help in the coordination of community resources for...improving the quality of life," it said.

Some of the needs cited included "more complete or balanced reporting" from the local media, a stronger tax base with more of the burden placed on industry rather than residents, an identifiable city center, an exit from I-275 onto Warren Road, and a more streamlined process for site plan development.

Regarding the latter, the report said, "Costs and unreasonable time delays have been mentioned by developers as impediments to doing business in Canton."

The first of the 10 goals listed was to complete the strategic plan itself.

Others include: enhancing a positive image for Canton, making infrastructural improvements which would better prepare the township for industrial development, and creating a city center.

The last goal is to encourage "greater open communication, cooperation, and coordination" with surrounding communities.

"People can be confident that this study will not gather dust on a shelf," Yack said. "We are anxious to begin implementation."

The breakfast will be from 8-9 a.m. at Geneva Presbyterian Church.

Homeowners, developers to meet

BY JIM WHITE

A pair of Canton Planning Commission public hearings held Monday night to consider rezoning two parcels of land in northwest Canton drew a vocal group of township residents unhappy over development of the sites.

But it looks a compromise may have been reached in the end.

In response to residents' concerns about the nature of future development, a meeting is being planned between members of the newly formed Northwest Canton Homeowners Association, Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, Planner David Nicholson, the planning commission, and developers Joe Bloch and Robert Paciocco.

"I am going to facilitate, not dictate," said Canton attorney Bruce Patterson, who arranged the meeting. More than 150 township residents turned out for the public hearings on Monday.

Patterson said he hoped a compromise could be reached before the issue is brought up in a continuation of the public hearings at the next planning commission meeting March 25.

Residents of the area west of Canton Center and north of Ford are concerned that encroaching development will end their rural way of life. A resident who lives on Gyde Road said the wildlife and open space made that part of the township "a very special and unique place, one of the last in Canton."

"We don't want to see it disappear," he said.

Bloch and Paciocco are both interested in building subdivisions west of Beck between Warren and Gyde roads. They requested that the planning commission rezone their parcels from rural residential (RR) -- houses built on lots larger than one acre -- to R-2, in which up to two houses may be built per acre.

Mettetal leaves bad taste

Bila, Yack, Breen meet for lunch

BY JIM WHITE

Geneva Presbyterian Church was packed Tuesday afternoon with the largest crowd in Canton Economic Club history -- six more than came to see gubernatorial candidate John Engler.

Plymouth Mayor Dennis Bila, Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, and Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen formed a guest panel, and various elected officials from the three governments, Wayne County officials, and other community leaders came to see just what might happen.

The three panelists answered questions put to them by Canton attorney Bruce Patterson -- dressed in a referee's shirt and whistle, just in case.

"We've lost our industrial base, and commercially, we are at capacity," said Bila in describing what he saw as the city's vision. "If we are going to continue to have quality service, we must move toward shared services, or we won't be able to afford the cost."

Canton is still in the growing stages. "As we move west, we are concentrating on large lot development, residential development," Yack said. "There will be no commercial development at all. But we must make our retail section more vital."

Breen said that geography has left Plymouth Township in a unique position, anchored as it is by the city.

"Since the 1960s," he said, "our vision has been clear. We have been trying to create an area that is primarily residential."

"We are different from Canton, for instance," he said. "Canton is seeking an identity, but we've had it because the city is our anchor."

On the concept of shared services, all three agreed with Yack when he said, "I hate to see three communities paying for the exact same services."

But Breen was not sure that shared services could ever be a reality.

"It's nice to talk about, we all sincerely want it," he said, "but it's not an easy task to implement."

The subject of Mettetal Airport finally came up near the end of the program.

"We are directing efforts to bring industrial development to the northeast corner of Canton, where it will benefit the Plymouth-Canton Schools," Yack said. "That's the smaller issue. The larger issue is a sovereignty one, which you fight wars over, I guess. Sometimes you even win."

"The quality of life, what you have and expect to get; you can't focus on one piece of property to make or break that," Breen said. "You cannot protect a township boundary, quite frankly. You do not have as much territorial integrity."

Breen said if Plymouth, Plymouth Township, and Canton were going to be considered one community, no lines could be drawn.

"I have spent more time on this, and there have been more important issues," Bila said. "The city is clearly the little guy between two heavyweights. Regardless of how this is resolved, we can't let it affect our relationship. If it does, it's going to be a real sore point."

Canton to host victory parade

BY JIM WHITE

It may not be a repeat of Times Square in 1945, but organizers expect a big celebration along Ford Road in Canton on Saturday.

That's when the community will host a parade and rally to show support for the troops of Operation Desert Storm and to celebrate the cease fire in the Persian Gulf.

The parade will begin in front of Meijer Thrifty Acres at Ford and Canton Center roads and move east along Canton's main thoroughfare. A rally will then be held afterwards in the K-mart parking lot on the corner of Ford and Sheldon roads.

Sylvia Kneeshaw, whose son Scott Badgero is serving with the 82nd Airborne in Saudi Arabia, has been the main organizer behind the rally and parade.

"We already have replies from (state reps) Gerry Law and Jim Kosteva," she said Monday. "They'll be there."

Invitations were also sent to Coleman Young and Carl Levin, as well as all of the Desert Storm support groups in southeastern Michigan.

"I think it's going to be a lot bigger than people think," she said on Monday.

The parade will be led by color guards from the local Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) and the Vietnam Veterans, Kneeshaw said.

Dan Calabrese, assistant to Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, added that attempts were being made to line up the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps as well.

Paraders will walk amidst a sea of American flags and yellow ribbons, thanks to the Canton Community Foundation and the Canton is Family support group, Kneeshaw said.

At the rally, Kneeshaw's husband Larry and his newly-formed band Sand Aid will perform their song, "Desert Strength." Eric Webster is another Canton resident in the band.

"We're going to have a big time," said Larry Kneeshaw, a construction engineer who plays guitar as a hobby. "Desert Strength" is dedicated to all the troops, but particularly to Scott.

"With my son over there, I thought I'd sit down and write a song," he said. "We are so proud. Our military has really shown itself."

Kneeshaw said an agent in California has expressed interest in the song and tapes have been sent to CBS and Geffen record companies.

Kneeshaw agreed with his wife that the rally was going to be quite a show.

"We're planning on a very big shidoo," he said. "We hope to see 20,000 to 40,000 people. In Warren last week they expected about 4,000 and 30,000 showed up."

The Kneeshaws are hoping that members of the many support groups in the region also show up Saturday.

"If the weather is nice," said Sylvia, "we should get them from Ann Arbor, Belleville, Northville, Plymouth, Walled Lake -- anywhere that is within an hour of here."

Plans are also in the works, she said, to arrange a possible flyover of military planes from Selfridge Air National Guard Base.

"I don't think Canton has ever seen this," said her husband.

Ford Road between Canton Center and Sheldon will be closed to all traffic from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Saturday.

No decision on Mettetal school

BY KEN VOYLES

Schoolcraft College is apparently no closer to a decision on whether or not it will support an aviation school at Mettetal Airport in Canton.

A spokesperson for the Livonia school — its district includes Plymouth-Canton-Northville — said Monday that neither the administration or governing board of trustees had taken an official position on support for an aviation curriculum.

"It has definitely not been discussed yet — it's not even been on an agenda for the board," said Sandra Florek, Schoolcraft's director of institutional advancement.

Dr. Richard McDowell, president of Schoolcraft, was unavailable for comment this week, but reportedly met with aviation school proponents last week.

Florek said the aviation school idea would not appear before the board of trustees until after a recommendation by the college's curriculum instruction committee, which reviews all potential new programs at the school.

"It hasn't even been on that committee's agenda yet," said Florek, adding that a "needs" study was still underway by a sub-committee. "That means all of the research isn't done."

Once the needs assessment is completed a possible aviation curriculum will be reviewed by the instruction committee before a recommendation is made to the board of trustees, said Florek.

The committee may or may not recommend Schoolcraft support for the aviation school at Mettetal, she said.

Florek added that a major concern among college officials remains whether or not jobs will be available to those students who enter and complete some kind of aviation program.

Charter amendment date undecided

BY PHILIP TARDANI

No firm date has been set for a charter amendment vote in the City of Plymouth.

City of Plymouth attorney Ronald Lowe said Monday the special election should be held with the general election on Nov. 5. He rules out the August primary.

"It has to be held (according to state law) at a general election or a special election and that is not the same as a primary," he said. "Absent a vote by the commission that there be a special election, it will be in November."

But according to attorney James Romzek, who represents the Plymouth Concerned Citizens, the amendment warrants a special election as soon as possible.

Concerned Citizens opposes the city's involvement in a joint operating agreement with Plymouth Township to own and operate Mettetal Airport. The group seeks a charter amendment forbidding the city to do so, without prior approval of the voters.

Romzek said the vote should come before the November election and even before the August primary.

"I would urge the city commissioners to give serious consideration to holding a special election in accordance with section 12.4 of the city charter," Romzek said. "Hopefully, the commissioners will agree to give this matter the prompt attention it deserves."

Bila said he was having Lowe examine the question of a special election, but the mayor said one might not be necessary as long as the city sets up an "escape clause," where the city can back out of the Mettetal agreement if a majority of voters deny it.

"I would be hopeful that if the citizens are assured we do have an escape clause they would relieve us the expense of a special election," Bila said.

Of Mettetal lawsuit

Judge considers rehearing

A citizens group opposing municipal ownership of Mettetal Airport may get another day in court.

That is if Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Richard Kaufman decides a rehearing of their lawsuit is appropriate. Kaufman is expected to consider that question today (March 6).

One month ago on Feb. 6, Kaufman dismissed a lawsuit filed by Plymouth Concerned Citizens and Canton which challenged the legality of Plymouth city and township owning an airport outside the boundaries of either community.

The two Plymouth communities have since formed a joint board to run Mettetal, which is located in Canton on Joy Road.

Says 'growth' an issue

New trustee in Salem

BY KEN VOYLES

Growth and future development will be the major issues facing Salem Township residents in the 1990s, according to the newest member of the Salem Board of Trustees.

Republican Thomas L. Homrich, 58, won a special election last Tuesday to gain a seat on the board replacing William Taft who resigned last summer.

"I think this township is looking for some direction as it relates to problems of growth and our future," said Homrich after his election victory. "We can't fool ourselves, there is going to be growth."

"But many in this community would like to retain our rural character."

A member of the township's planning commission for seven years, Homrich chaired that body for the past six years.

The township board was expected to meet last night and discuss Homrich's dual role on the planning group and the board of trustees. He is expected to step down from the planning body.

Bob Hill is the current chairperson of the planning group in Salem.

Homrich won last week's election with 309 votes as opposed to Democrat Ariene D. DeForest's 60 votes, according to the official results.

A write-in candidate, Don Riddering, picked up 208 votes, while another write-in candidate, Dave Post, collected six votes.

According to township officials, nearly 25 per cent of the township's 2,451 registered voters went to the polls last week.

"I have to give Don Riddering a lot of credit," said Homrich, who has lived in the township for 24 years. "He did a good job. He worked hard at it and put a lot of pressure on."

"We did just exactly what we determined we would do for the election," he continued. "We had a lot of encouragement."

Homrich added that the recent election results shows that Salem residents want a change on the board.

"I think what residents want is some kind of unity to come back to the board," he said.

The first time Salem trustee also said that the township planning commission is continuing to review an overall master plan for Salem dealing with issues such as farmland preservation, maintaining natural resources and future growth and development.

To Mettetal board

Twp. appointments

BY PHILIP TARDANI

One-half of the Mettetal Airport joint operating board has been appointed, but the City of Plymouth is delaying its appointments.

The Plymouth Township Board of Trustees appointed pilot Thomas Kennedy and resident David Campbell at last Tuesday's meeting.

But City of Plymouth Mayor Dennis Bila said Monday at a city commission meeting that he wants to delay the city's appointments until he is sure the city has an "escape clause" out of the agreement if city voters decide against involvement in operating the Canton airport.

The group Plymouth Concerned Citizens has petitioned for a charter amendment forbidding the city from owning or operating an airport without prior approval from the voters.

The township board also appointed Wade Watterman, John Ruitenberg and Barbara Wilcox as a Mettetal ad hoc citizens committee.

Leaders had a 'light' lunch

It should have been more than a lunch.

A day-long session could barely have contained the topical areas.

Although the time-clock ran out before the citizens had a chance to ask questions from the floor, yesterday's Canton Economic Club meeting was one of the best public forums on local government held in Western Wayne County in the past 20 years.

With Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, Plymouth Mayor Dennis Bila and Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurie Breen on the platform together, the topic of local governmental services and cooperation got more public exposure than it had lately. It proves (first) the value of getting all three leaders together and (secondly) that the need for such forums is aptly filled by the Economic Club under the auspices of the Canton Foundation.

Interestingly, the audience included political, civic and business leaders from Lansing, Wayne County, schools and neighboring communities as well as from Canton.

Did the comments provide much new light or just more heat? Light.

At the end of the tunnel.

Inter-governmental bickering over Mettetal Airport has focused public attention on differences in opinion between the three major components in the Plymouth-Canton Community School District — not on similarities and cooperation. Yesterday's luncheon discussion cleared the air there.

With malice toward none

W. Edward WENDOVER

Although the airport was expected to be an issue — it sold luncheon tickets to the leading opponents and to state aeronautic officials who came down from Lansing — it was overshadowed by the other topics of governmental cooperation and attitudes. That was as it should be since those issues are far more vital to the future.

Yack stressed the importance of the linkage supplied by the schools. Not surprising for a fellow who served on the school board for 11 years — four of them as president.

Breen brought up the Western Townships Utilities Authority which links the townships of Northville, Plymouth and Canton in a sewer program. He raised the "one community" issue.

Bila started comments by mentioning the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments recent study forecasting more cooperation between local governments. He also admitted that the region's relationships are changed because the City of Plymouth is no longer "king of the hill."

But it was Breen, the veteran of the three leaders, who fingered the toughest challenge. "It's one thing to have the theory of shared services.

"But it's not that easy," he lamented. "Each community has its own philosophy of providing services. They don't want to lose their ability to have control."

Yack, who described the Mettetal Airport issue as one of "sovereignty," said that although each local unit saw itself as part of the whole, there was still a legitimate issue of local control and destiny.

Bila, watching the city's growth potential slow while its costs continue to rise, said the process of sharing, however, will break down those local control barriers. "The realization hits home that there aren't any alternatives," he said.

The airport issue of late has commanded headlines and space on the opinion pages, and, in fact, the moderator of yesterday's panel, Bruce Patterson, donned a referee's shirt and whistle to kick things off.

But the common thread of governments working together was the real victor of the match.

"Regardless of how it's (the Mettetal Airport issue) resolved," summed up Bila, "we can't let this affect our abilities to get along."

Light!

And let there be more of it.

For children, adults

Mettetal means treasured memories

EDITOR:

One day last spring, two Plymouth fourth graders bounded into their classroom, rattling excitedly to their teacher about their weekend airplane ride at Mettetal. The teacher's eyebrows went up, and she asked a few questions about the exact nature of this ride. When they answered, the teacher was able to conclude, to the student's delight, that their pilot had been the teacher's son.

A small incident, to be sure. One treasured memory of a hundred thousand to be made at Mettetal this year; one of millions she has made in here 50 years of existence.

Now that the future of this community airpark has been assured, let's forget this nonsense about recalls and charter amendments, which would have no effect on Mettetal anyway.

Let's look to the future, and forge a community airpark that the rest of America can envy.

The building of an aviation school is now underway. This school will prepare students for aviation careers, yes; but the skills its students will learn will be useful in many fields. The same principles of hydraulics, pneumatics, mechanics and electronics which keep large and small airplanes flying also keep assembly lines assembling, stamping presses stamping, operating rooms operating. Need I go on? Well, yes...

Airplane exhibitions give children a chance to touch a dream: is there a kid in America who hasn't dreamed of flight? The first man on the moon was once a kid in Wapakoneta, OH gawking through the fence at rag-wing Cubs on a sod runway.

The public ownership of Mettetal will serve to make her a true community recreational feature. There is, of course, considerable recreational use of the facility, and, as Canton supervisor Tom Yack has pointed out, it is important "to insure that the Canton (and Plymouth) community always has recreational and open space."

Open space, observation decks, picnic tables; airplane exhibitions, charity fundraisers, community get-togethers. Sixty acres of harmony between community, business, recreation, and education. With no local tax money spent to get it. With no tax money required to maintain it.

What Canton didn't have the sense to preserve, Plymouth did. Good for you, Plymouth. Now get behind it. Drop in. Look around. Pack a picnic lunch, if you want, but please, come on in. And oh, yes...

...Bring your children.

WILLIAM KERN

Community opinions

The truth hurts...even in Canton

So, the truth comes out. Canton is in need of "positive local public relations and media attention...there is a strong belief that more complete or balanced reporting is needed."

This is evidently the majority opinion of the more than 40 community leaders who have written the new Canton Strategic Plan for Economic Development. (Among those leaders was the general manager of this newspaper.)

"You've heard these similar complaints involving the media from a certain big city mayor around here. Though I hate to admit it, sometimes I can even see Coleman Young's point."

But this is Canton. Stories about Devil's Night fires or a death rate among black teens that makes going to

The White pages
By Jim White

war seem safer just don't apply.

What does make news in Canton are stories about development of the community, and how that development affects people.

Are road systems going to be improved? Are more fast food restaurants going to be allowed? Are more subdivisions going to be built in the western part of the township, and if so, can the rural atmosphere somehow be retained?

How can an identifiable town center be achieved? Has a small airport outlived its usefulness? Would more people be better served by industrial development on the site?

Canton has its growing pains, and these are the stories we cover.

Not to mention stories about community support for U.S. troops, the annual Challenge Fest, or Canton's myriad opportunities for recreation.

To say reporters are totally unbiased is obviously false — it isn't possible. But it is our responsibility to remain as objective as possible, to give "complete and balanced" reporting.

A "strong belief" that we don't do that? I doubt it.

But pretend there is.

Why did it seem so appropriate to put this right near the top of the "Canton needs" list in a strategic development plan?

Personally, I do not take offense to the charges against the media. I find them ironic.

After all, with four papers covering Canton, none of them can find positive stories? Come on, we do it all the time.

We also write stories that are bound to upset somebody, but sometimes the truth hurts, and as long as what is written is the truth, then what do we have to apologize for?

Just get back to the business of improving Canton, folks, and we'll be more than happy to cover that.

And if you want to help your own PR, how about starting by putting up signs at the entrances to Canton: "Home of the national champion high school marching band?"

Reservist wears uniform with pride

Being a U.S. Army Reservist has always brought me a sense of pride, and I've always felt a twinge when I put on the uniform.

Today I feel I have worn the uniform for the right reasons — to serve God and my country.

Now I'm not saying that the thought of a paycheck was not important, because as an 18-year-old at the time I joined, it was only natural to want to earn a living.

That aside, my feelings were very strong. I wanted to be a part of the army and I truly felt pride in joining. It was the right thing to do back then, and I still feel that I made the right choice.

I was not enticed by ads on television or in magazines. My enlistment just happened. I was at the right place at the right time. Sometimes when you aren't looking for anything specific to happen in your life, it does.

That brings me to today. We are now at war. Am I glad? That's a question I can't really answer except to say that a job has to be done, one that will bring the world closer to world peace.

People sometimes don't realize that armies are not for the offensive, they are defensive, designed to protect and preserve.

Without our military, where would we be? I know in my heart as a soldier that what we are doing is right, but in a different way I also feel that thousands of possible casualties is a nightmare that no one wants to actually happen.

But I guess in the back of all our minds we realized the risk when we swore to protect and defend. I don't know how a man feels, but when I received a call from someone I know in Saudia Arabia, he spoke of the same fears I also have felt.

I was not old enough to be a part of Vietnam, but I guess I thought it was too soon for us to be involved in another war. Maybe too because I am a female I just didn't feel it would actually happen. Yes I am as qualified to do the job as any man, and, like my compatriots, I am a soldier first and a specialist second.

This brings me to today. I have feelings of uncertainty concerning my own involvement in the Persian Gulf conflict. I've already had a couple of phone calls telling me to get ready to leave.

I was spared two weeks ago from leaving with another unit. It gave me more time to regroup. But that possible deployment also left me with the impression that even if you have a home, or a unit as the military calls it, you are not safe from being pulled from there and being utilized elsewhere.

Before I felt quasi safe knowing that if and when I was deployed I was guaranteed to be with people that I knew. That safety doesn't exist anymore. Not knowing who I will end up with or where for that matter is definitely a lot of food for thought.

I am grateful that I am still here. Two weeks ago I was not as prepared to go as I am now.

Of course, there really is no preparation for this kind of activation. It's not like I'll be just walking out the door and leaving behind a husband and child.

I am divorced with a seven year old child whose life will be turned upside down when I leave. She will go out east with her dad for however long it takes since none of us really knows when we will be returning.

I cannot comprehend being away from her for such a long time. She cannot comprehend it either, but how can a seven year old understand it all when her own mother cannot?

I am doing the best I can to prepare her for it, but again there isn't much you can do. It's hard to answer when a child says, "Mommy, I don't want you to get shot."

As much as I reassure here, she does not believe me. She thinks everyone in the army is going to get shot at. The scary thing is it could happen. But I'd rather not dwell on that here or with her.

The hurt is already apparent in what she says and does. I cannot change that, all I can do is encourage her to believe that I will be back.

It's hard to have such feelings of motherhood and patriotism at the same time. They go against each other almost every moment of every day. Like oil and water, they just don't mix.

I feel that all of us affected by this war are doing the best we can. Yes, my life has been turned upside down, but so have many others. We are all trying to prepare and accept that we can only take it one day at a time.

I don't enjoy shaking when thinking about "what if." Hopefully, I am beyond that. When it happens I will deal with it just like everyone else.

About a month ago (on Jan. 16) when I got my second call one of the first things I did was set an appointment to get new eye glasses — my unit supply officer had been bugging me to get it done. It was time to have scratchless lens; I couldn't very well have an old lens prescription in my gas mask.

Being in a training division I am luckier than some for now. When I am called I will be sent to Georgia, but what bothers me most about our mission is that we are responsible for training troops. I don't have to spell out what that means if and when we chagrine in a ground war. It's a pretty earth leveling thought.

I feel that even though I am not a front line troop, I am an important part of the army's team. Why else would another unit try to activate me?

I am proud of what I do, and what I may have to do. It may not be easy on anyone, but it's my duty. I pray each day that the conflict ends soon because I do know people close to the front lines and I am concerned for them.

I'd also like to say thanks to everyone for the support going out to the troops. The patriotism in this area is truly amazing.

Also, everyone should keep on writing our troops over there. Their morale depends on it. Every letter I get from over there talks about mail, when they get it, when they don't.

Even while I wait for that call, I plan to continue to write those soldier over there I know and those I don't.

So should you.

Eileen Fallon plays "Danny Boy" at the piano.

Local lass will lead parade

BY JIM WHITE

A pretty colleen from Plymouth Township will be queen of the St. Patrick's Day Parade in downtown Detroit this Sunday.

Dark-haired, blue-eyed Eileen Fallon, 21, was chosen Maid of Erin by the United Irish Society Feb. 23.

"We were judged on speaking, presentation, appearance, personality, and performance," Fallon said last week. "Our performance had to have an Irish theme, we had to show knowledge of Irish culture."

Fallon played "Danny Boy" and "The Town I Love So Well" on the piano.

There were 13 in the competition, held at the Gaelic League in Detroit. In addition to her parade duties, Fallon got her name engraved on a trophy that she will keep until next year's pageant, and won a trip to Ireland.

Fallon was second runner up for Maid of Erin in 1987 and first runner up in 1988. Last year, she was named queen of the Court of St. Bridget, a separate pageant hosted by the Ancient Order of Hibernians that celebrates Irish dance, music, and language.

"I can say 'please' and 'thank you' in Irish, but that's about it," Fallon said.

The Maid of Erin title "has been a while coming but she has worked for it," said her mother Judy.

Sure, it wasn't just the luck of the Irish! Judging by her background, it seems like the honor was inevitable.

Her father, John Fallon, was born in Dublin. Her great grandparents on her mother's side also came from Ireland. Her parents have been back to visit "several times," she said.

She herself has been to the "auld sod" twice.

"I went once when I was about one," she said. "I don't remember that. But then we went back in July of '88. We were there for a month during

Friends & Neighbors

Family takes home a taste of P-C

BY JAMES TOTTEN

Two and a half years after coming to Plymouth Township to live and work, a Japanese family has returned home with memories of friendships kindled in this community and a stronger sense of American culture.

Fumio and Mikiko Shinoda and their two sons, Yuusuke and Kenta, were welcomed by many residents of the community despite a variety of cultural and communication barriers.

Fumio Shinoda, who works for Nissan Corp., returned to Japan in January three weeks before being joined by his wife and two sons.

Not long after arriving here the Shinodas introduced themselves to their neighbors in the township and presented one family with a gift because they wanted to be "good American neighbors."

Next door neighbors Pat and Don MacIsaac still remember how the Shinoda family went out of their way to introduce themselves and share a little bit of the Japanese culture with their new neighbors.

For the MacIsaac family it was the start of a blossoming friendship.

"We would be best friends if she were living in Japan or the U.S.," said Pat MacIsaac, who described her friendship with Mikiko as crossing many cultural boundaries. "Mikiko went out of her way to get involved while she was here."

As a sign of their appreciation towards the community for its special kindness, the family presented both Pioneer Middle School and Isbister Elementary School with traditional Japanese samurai dolls.

It was like leaving behind a little piece of their heart as well as their cultural heritage.

Mikiko also prepared a Japanese meal for the teachers at Isbister with the help of other local Japanese nationals from the area. During her stay she became a contact person for other Japanese residents in The Plymouth-Canton Community.

According to the MacIsaacs, Mikiko made a conscious effort to gain an understanding of the American people and culture.

For most of the past two years Mikiko took English language courses at the Starkweather Center in Plymouth's Old Village, learning about English grammar and writing, American ceremonies, customs and holidays.

She also worked as vice-president of the parents association for a Japanese school where Yuusuke and Kenta attended every Saturday. The Japanese Society of Detroit honored her with a plaque for her time and commitment.

Mikiko said her dream was to organize a Japanese parents group in Plymouth-Canton. She arranged several such meetings during her stay in the township.

She also volunteered as a translator during the recent Plymouth Ice Spectacular and was responsible for translating the Plymouth-Canton schools' mission statement into Japanese.

Overcoming language barriers wasn't as bad as it might first seem. Mikiko said language was not always needed to communicate with others.

Using body language and "speaking with my heart," Mikiko said she was able to communicate with most people she met.

Comparing American lifestyles with the Japanese, Mikiko said she found that Americans seem to enjoy work and life more than the Japanese. She said the Japanese focus more on work and spent less time on leisure activities.

The idea of "family time" and a "family vacation" were new to the Shinodas, but ones Mikiko learned to appreciate.

"I want to take this part of the American lifestyle back with me to Japan," she said during a recent interview with Pat MacIsaac helping to interpret.

During their stay in Plymouth, both Yuusuke, 14, and Kenta, 10, kept busy taking English classes every morning before attending school at Pioneer and Isbister. After school they were tutored in math and English on a daily basis.

The boys, who said they enjoyed riding the bus to school since they were used to walking in Japan, also attended a Japanese school in Birmingham to maintain their native language skills.

American food was a hit with the family as well, including pizza and popcorn for the boys and muffins for Mikiko.

The MacIsaacs were also able to share several special moments with the Shinoda family during their stay in Plymouth-Canton.

But one moment in particular stands out.

During a gathering at the MacIsaac home a few days before their daughter's wedding, Mikiko, who enjoys singing opera, told the family that she would love to perform something for the family.

Dressed in full kimono Mikiko sang three songs that evening - a Japanese love song, a Hawaiian love song and "Silent Night," all of them in English.

"There was not a dry eye left in the house," said Don MacIsaac.

Dick Egli, community relations director with the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, said Mikiko was a positive person who gave information on how to best help Japanese people new to the community.

"She was very helpful in explaining her culture and helping others to better understand her culture," he said.

Egli remembers when he first met Mikiko. She was carrying a desk size dictionary around so that when she did not understand something, she looked up the word.

She later switched to a smaller dictionary.

"I am sorry to see them go back," he said.

Canton strategic plan identifies strengths

BY JIM WHITE

Dan Calabrese, assistant to Canton Supervisor Tom Yack.

"It's part of a series of steps we're taking to position Canton to compete with other communities in industrial development," Yack said Friday. "This was to collect ideas from outside of Canton to see what we need to do."

The report identifies 19 strengths Canton has as well as 19 weaknesses.

Local assessment increase down

BY JIM WHITE

Due to an apparent levelling off in home sales, residents in The Plymouth-Canton Community will get a break on property assessments this year.

Assessments for 1991 increased, but not in double digits as in previous years.

The average assessment increase was from 4.6 to 6.1 per cent, according to officials in Canton, Plymouth Township, and Plymouth.

Glenn Shaw, whose firm Wayne County Appraisals handles assessments in Canton and Plymouth Township, said that Canton assessments increased an average of 4.6 per cent. That's down from the 1990 increase of 10.6 per cent, he said.

Shaw's firm breaks assessments down into individual subdivisions. He said residents of the Holiday Park subdivision will experience the highest increase in assessments.

Shaw added that increases for Holiday Park are a sign that people want to move into Canton.

"Even with a market slowdown, people want to move there," he said. "There are more sales among the lower cost homes. People may not be able to buy the $125,000 homes, but they can buy the $85,000 ones."

While prices are levelling off, sales are still strong, Shaw said. This is particularly true in Canton, where residents may move to a bigger home without leaving the township.

"The step up system in Canton is quite intriguing," Shaw said. "It's quite a good thing for a community."

In Plymouth Township, the average increase was 6.2 per cent this year, compared with 9.5 per cent last year.

Shaw said 60 per cent of the homes in the township will be increasing by less than four per cent. But some homes are increasing by as much as 9.5 per cent, he said.

"This year, the good news is assessments are only going up four or five per cent," Shaw said. "The bad news is your house is only worth that much more." - City of Plymouth Treasurer Judy Zirblis said city Plymouth assessments will increase 5.2 per cent across the board, compared with a 12.6 per cent increase in 1990.

"We don't break it down any further because we are so small," she said.

According to George McEachran, Wayne County equalization director, the smaller increases this year indicate a "plateauing" in home sales in the area.

"The northwest area of the county -- Canton, Plymouth, Northville, that area -- experienced mild increases in 1987 but then they led the pack," said McEachran.

"Bigger homes took a drop in the recession (of the early 1980s)," he said. "But they were the first ones to recover."

Assessors study house sales trends for a two year period before setting assessments at 50 per cent of market value. So there is always a lag time.

McEachran said 1990 assessments were based on sales in the period from April 1, 1988 to March 31, 1990.

"We're using '88-'89 sales now," he said. "The plateauing started then. That's what we're reflecting."

McEachran said that the large increases beginning in 1987 reflected the end of the recession in the area in 1984-85. He said that the rest of the county lagged behind in recovering.

In 1987, he said, "Downriver hadn't started to move yet. They are essentially a year to a year and a half behind. They are the more moderately priced homes, and we are seeing them catch up."

Gibraltar, for example, is experiencing a 15.5 increase this year, he said.

"But they should experience the same kind of plateau," he added.

Assessors throughout The Plymouth Canton Community said residents who feel they are overassessed should bring documentation regarding home sales in their neighborhood to their local board of review.

The Canton board will meet today

(March 6) and tomorrow from 9 a.m. till noon and from 1-5 p.m.; March 11 from 1-4 p.m. and 5-9 p.m.; March 12 from 9 a.m. till noon and 1-4 p.m.; and March 13 from 1-4 p.m. and 5-9 p.m.

Dates for the Plymouth Township board are March 11 from 2-9 p.m. and March 12 from 9 a.m. till noon and 2-5 p.m.

The City of Plymouth board will meet today (March 6) from 3-9 p.m.

Twp. rate cards a little late this year

Assessment rate cards for Plymouth Township residents should reach taxpayers by the end of the week, according to township Treasurer Mary Brooks.

The cards were delayed about a week when the board of trustees pushed back a vote on whether or not to accept this year's Wayne County equalization factor.

Supervisor Maurice Breen had hinted the township may assess at last year's levels, while the rest of the levying bodies assess at a flat rate of 6.2 per cent.

After further study, however, Breen said it was more equitable for residents if the township accepts the county rate and levies on a subdivision by subdivision basis.

"About two-thirds of the properties in the township will be less than six per cent," Breen said.

There have been added times scheduled to the Board of Review to make up for the delay rate card notices, Brooks said.

Fall Fest aps out

It's almost time again to think about this year's annual Fall Festival held in downtown City of Plymouth the first week in September.

The Fall Festival Board of Directors will be distributing the 1991 festival application forms for all service groups, non-profit organizations and past participants of the festival.

The applications will be available at tonight's (March 6) meeting starting at 7:30 p.m. in the City of Plymouth City Hall.

Groups should have a spokesperson or chairperson on hand to pick up the information.

For those who cannot attend, call Cameron Miller at 455-1230.

Recycling pilot program 'doing well'

BY JIM WHITE

Canton's pilot curbside recycling program is going "amazingly well," according to Tammie Denski, of Canton Recycling.

Last week the Canton Board of Trustees voted to purchase 13,900 bins in preparation for the implementation of recycling community-wide.

The pilot program is testing "commingled" versus "rotational" recycling in four subdivisions.

In the commingled system, presently used in Plymouth Township, residents place all their items, regardless of material, at the curb each week. In rotational recycling, residents put out only one material, such as glass or paper, each week. They are on a schedule, so that each material is picked up every fourth week.

Rotation makes work much easier for the pickup crews, Denski said, as they don't have to do any sorting.

"It's about 15 times faster," she said. "We just fly through the subs."

The Canton solid waste committee will survey participants after the pilot program is complete, according to Canton Clerk Loren Bennett, who is also a member of the committee.

"Rotation means you have to store some items before putting them at the curb," Bennett said at the start of the program in February, "but we think it could save the township up to 30 percent in pickup costs."

The committee hopes to implement community-wide recycling beginning in May.

quick thinking," Kleinsmith wrote to his mother Carolyn Kleinsmith, of Plymouth Township, on Feb. 14.

In the letter to his wife, who is also in the Marine Corps, Kleinsmith wrote, "They asked me to lead them out."

"The normal escape route thru Khafji was blocked as was the one to the west. The only place left was straight south and west into a giant salt marsh. We grabbed what gear we could and we took off."

Later back in friendly lines the soldiers were greeted with surprise. "All they could say was, 'We thought you were dead,'" Kleinsmith wrote.

The 1981 Salem High School graduate added that his commanding officer was "very pleased" and had recommended him for a Bronze Star.

"I am very proud of my men," Kleinsmith wrote. "They did exceptionally well under fire even when the Special Forces and recon guys showed signs of panic. I am also happy because if I get this medal it will be the first ribbon I have gotten in almost six years service."

Kleinsmith and his team later rejoined the fighting around Khafji and then took part in the ground assault unleashed to liberate Kuwait.

"The battle was the most incredible thing I've ever seen," he wrote to his wife. "One thing about being in battle that I never really appreciated from reading history is how fast time flies. Four days of battle seemed all like one."

"Also surprising is how little rest you get but it doesn't affect you because of all the excitement and rush of adrenaline."

At the end of the letter to his mother, Kleinsmith remembered his home town.

"As you can tell, God is looking after me and I am sure the prayers of the family and Plymouth are what make the difference."

Carolyn Kleinsmith is full of pride for her son.

"I'm proud of him and I'm glad he's safe. I just wish he didn't have to go through it," she said on Monday. "I just think he was very well trained and knew his job."

Kleinsmith is expected back in this country in about three weeks, according to his mother. He may make a return visit to Plymouth-Canton.

"We have been overwhelmed by the support from the community of Plymouth," said Carolyn Kleinsmith. "We want to thank everyone."

She added that official confirmation on her son's Bronze Star nomination would not come for several months.

"When I get official confirmation that will mean he has gotten it," she said.

Kleinsmith, a 1986 University of Michigan graduate, has been in Saudi Arabia since August of last year. He spent most of his time attached to a Saudi unit, but also spent time with members of the French Foreign Legion.

His brother Erik is a member of the U.S. Army, while his other brother, Jeffery, recently left the service. Jeffery's wife, Nancy, is in the reserves.

the millennium."

The city of Dublin celebrated its 1,000th anniversary in 1988.

"I liked being able to see my cousins, whom I had never met," Fallon said. She also enjoyed the stark beauty of the Connemara "moon-cape" in western Ireland.

"I liked going out to the west," she said. "Nothing here compares to it."

The Fallon home is filled with emblems of the family's heritage. There are photographs of the Irish landscape on the walls. There is also a plaque bearing the Claddagh ring design -- hands clasped around a heart.

Eileen's Irish dance trophies fill a shelf in the living room.

"I competed from when I was about 12 until I was 19," she said. "I still do it, but not for competition."

Fallon currently is studying political science at the University of Michigan. She expects to graduate in December. She said she'll probably take the trip she won in the summer of 1992.

The Maid of Erin, in her emerald dress, will ride with her court in a horse-drawn carriage at the head of the St. Patrick's Day Parade.

The parade will wind down Woodward on Sunday (March 10). But that's not all.

"On Friday, (March 8) we'll have the annual painting of the shamrock on Michigan Avenue in front of Reedy's Saloon," she said. "We'll be on J.P. McCarthy's morning show (760 am) on March 15."

Having been on the court before, Fallon said she is getting used to the attention.

"Yeah, I'm an old pro, I guess."

For sump pumps

Canton expands program

BY JIM WHITE

Canton is going to step up its campaign against storm water in the township's sanitary sewer system by expanding its sump pump program.

Last Tuesday the Canton Board of Trustees approved adding $450,000 to the sump pump pilot program.

Since September, the township has been installing sump pumps in basements at no cost to homeowners in an effort to reduce flooding during storms.

According to Aaron Machnik, Canton municipal services director, there are 160 pumps presently installed in Mayfair, Windsor Park, Carriage Hills, Cherry Hill Pines, and Cherry Hill Orchards subdivisions. 100 more installations are already scheduled, he said. Machnik said the township would like to install pumps in homes that do not currently flood, for storm water from their footing drains causes backups farther down the line. The pumps keep the storm water out of the sanitary sewer.

"We are trying to concentrate our efforts with a public information campaign," he said.

The additional money will cover the purchase and installation of 800-900 more pumps, Machnik said.

Under the Western Townships Utilities Authority plan, Canton must reduce its sanitary sewage flow by 40 percent, Machnik said.

The sump pump program is intended to exceed this reduction, he said.

Township.

If Ward took over St. John's, it would build an additional sanctuary on the site, reports have said.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen confirmed that representatives of Ward had met with township officials about St. John's "to see whether we had any strong objections."

"We told them we were into preserving the (seminary) buildings. That would be preferable to having a cookie cutter shopping center," Breen said.

The Ward site in Northville Township is currently zoned a mix of office and residential, according to Georgina Goss, the township supervisor. It is located near other major regional shopping areas and is on the Haggerty Road Corridor identified by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments as a future major commercial corridor.

"That's not a very large site (for a shopping mall)," said Goss. "We have major concerns along that corridor with traffic mainly.

"We have heard that Ward is interested in St. John's," she added, "but nothing about that (a land swap). We haven't had any direct contact with corporations looking to change the zoning (of the Ward site at Six and Haggerty)."

Goss said Ward's current site plan is a revised one after the original was rejected by the Northville Township Planning Commission because of the planned height of the building.

"The original showed a 127-foot church," said Goss. "We felt that was just out of character with the rest of the township." The current plans call for a building with a height of some 70 feet.

Several archdiocese officials have said an announcement about St. John's future may come as early as this month.

A Baltimore developer apparently had an agreement with the archdiocese to construct a senior citizens center on the St. John's site, but that plan did not materialize.

Schools unions get new contract

New contracts for two union groups in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools have been approved by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education following recent ratification by local members.

Members of the International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 547, representing the district's transportation employees, and the Plymouth-Canton Association of Educational Office Personnel, representing secretaries, both ratified the new contracts in recent weeks.

The board of education put its stamp of approval on the two new agreements two weeks ago.

The transportation employees won a three-year agreement with monetary adjustments of five, three and four per cent, a cost of living adjustment to a maximum of two per cent and several contract language changes.

The secretaries' agreement also runs for three years (until 1993) and includes salary increases of five, four and five per cent, with a cost of living adjustment to a maximum of two per cent and several contract language changes.

With the new contracts for transportation workers and secretaries, five of the six major school union groups now have contracts.

The only bargaining unit currently without a contract is the Plymouth-Canton Paraprofessional Association representing office and teacher aides.

There are approximately 115 members of the union local which has been without a new contract since last summer.

Twp: no thanks Tigers

Make no mistake about it the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees opposes even the thought of a new stadium for the Detroit Tigers in the township.

The board, reacting to media speculation that Tiger officials were interested in building on the site of St. John's Seminary, unanimously moved to oppose "any and all efforts" to locate a new stadium in the township, according to a resolution passed last Tuesday.

The resolution noted that the township master plan does not allow for a baseball stadium and the "community in general" does not favor it.

Getting down to business

Supporting U.S. troops a priority

Ford union group spearheads letter drive

BY CHERYL VATCHER

Even as the war in the Persian Gulf apparently winds down, support for U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia remain a top priority with local businesses and individuals.

Members of UAW Local 845 at the Ford Sheldon Road Plant in Plymouth Township have created a letter writing campaign targeting troops in Operation Desert Storm.

Don Jividen, president of the local, along with Ford workers Gloria Aldrige and Ruth Lucas have spearheaded the local effort.

A special card (more than 2,000 were printed) was created in the plant's learning center with the message, "Greetings from the UAW and Ford. We support the troops." The cards are decorated with the flag and the presidential seal.

Jividen said, "We are encouraging plant workers to sign them and put their own message in too." More than 500 cards had already been collected to send to the Middle East by Friday.

Some of the UAW members have relatives in the Persian Gulf, including one local member with a daughter, a son, a daughter in law and a son in law, all over in Saudi Arabia.

Besides the cards the Ford workers have also created more than 400 buttons with the American flag, UAW logo and the words "God Bless America."

The workers have also decorated the main hallway in the plant with yellow ribbons, a variety of signs showing support of Operation Desert Storm and a large American flag.

"We also have a list of 50 family members for those UAW individuals who would like to correspond," said Jividen. "I have written at least 10 on the list."

Aldrige and Lucas have also been making yellow ribbons for everyone who sends off a card.

Lucas, who has a civilian son flying equipment in and out of Saudi Arabia, said she is worried every time he goes over there.

Even though Jividen does not have an immediate family member in the operation, he has a nephew that may still be sent depending on the course of the war.

"My nephew, who's in the navy, told me in December that he expected to be sent there in March for troop rotation," said Jividen. "At this time we don't know of any troop rotation being planned."

More than anything, though, the workers at the Ford plant want the community to know they support the American troops.

"It's not an issue of whether we support the war or not. We want those in Saudi to know that they are on our minds all the time," Jividen said.

Jividen hopes the letter writing campaign forges some new friendships for the UAW members among the soldiers in the gulf.

"I've been fortunate that I've never been in a war, yet I've always been patriotic," he said.

It is a sentiment expressed by many at the plant, and in this country.

Rock tankers take 3rd in conference

BY RITA DERBIN

They may not have won the conference, but several Salem swimmers put on strong performances and earned themselves a trip to the state meet at University of Michigan this Friday and Saturday.

With 437 points, the Salem squad finished third behind Livonia Stevenson (499 points) and Northville (442) at the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) conference meet Friday night. Canton was fourth (387) and North Farmington (364) rounded out the top five.

"It was another outstanding (WLAA) meet -- there was great competition among the teams," said Salem coach Chuck Olson, whose team hosted the event. "In particular, our team made a good impression -- it was the first time we didn't finish first or second but it wasn't because we didn't swim well. There was tough competition.

"As a coach I'm pleased but I think the guys may be a little disappointed at third," Olson added, saying the individual efforts of his team were tremendous. "The relays swam superbly and we had several individual state cuts."

The Rocks had one first place finish. The 200-yard medley relay of Curt Witthoff, Jon Stridiron, Matt Erickson and Albert Sneath won with a varsity record time of 1:40.40, which also qualified them for the state meet.

Other state qualifiers include Witthoff's fourth place in the 200-yard individual medley (2:02.60), and fourth in the 100-yard backstroke (56.66); Sneath, who finished third in the 100-yard butterfly (55.39); the 400-yard freestyle relay of Joe Pawluszka, Gary Bergman, Witthoff and Sneath

With win over rival Chiefs

Salem hoop squad takes league title

BY RITA DERBIN

The Rocks rolled to their third Western Lakes Activities Association basketball conference title in five years Saturday night by defeating cross campus rival Canton, 89-72.

The high scoring affair featured an aerial attack by both teams, including six three-point baskets in row at one point.

During a second quarter barrage, Salem's all conference forward Jake Baker hit three three-pointers in row, which was followed by threes from Derrick McDonald, Mike Stafford and Jon Paupore of Canton.

Baker led all scorers with 22 points. The senior also had 13 rebound and six three-point baskets. All conference selection K.C. Kirkpatrick added 21 points and 12 rebounds for the Rocks.

Also finishing in double figures for Salem were Lakes division honorable mention Chris Tebben with 15 points and eight assists and all Lakes division forward John Hoffmeyer with 13 points and eight rebounds.

"It was nip and tuck all the way," said Salem coach Bob Brodie. "By no means did we knock them out -- we just maintained the lead throughout the game and spread it out in the fourth quarter."

For Canton, McDonald, an all Western division selection, led the Chiefs with 18 points, Stafford, a Western division honorable mention, added 17 points including five three-point baskets, Paupore had 13 points, Kevin Holmes, an all Western division selection, had 11 points and Brett Howell had 10 points and nine rebounds.

"For a while it was a real shootout," said Canton coach Dave VanWagoner. "Salem just had more guns than us with Jake and K.C."

"My guys hung in there -- we just relied too much on the outside shot," VanWagoner added. "We had 13 three-pointers (a Canton school record) but no inside shooting. To beat a team as good as Salem you have to have balanced scoring."

The Rocks, on the other hand, were attacking from all sides. Salem made 25 of 36 shots and made easy inside shots while Baker was hot from the outside shooting six of nine from three-point range.

Rocks led by Miller

Salem gymnasts 1st, Canton 2nd at leagues

BY RITA DERBIN

Led by defending state all around champion Kim Miller, the Rocks defended their conference gymnastics title Thursday with 144.40 points. Canton finished second with 138.50 points and North Farmington was third with 137.35 points.

"We did a real nice job to take the division and conference for the second year in a row," said Salem coach Kathi McBride. "We had two falls on bar and beam that counted but overall we look good gearing up for the regionals and state."

"The girls are looking good and are peaking just in time for regionals and state," she added.

Miller, a sophomore, won the all around competition with 37.55 points. Other Rock all arounders were Courtney Gonyea, third (36.40); Alysia Sofios, fourth (36.30) and Sara Makins, 11th (33.90). Canton all arounders included Kim Rennolds, sixth (35.10) and Johanna Anderson, ninth (34.45).

Miller also won three individual events - vault (9.55), beam (9.55) and the floor exercise (9.45). Teammate Sofios took the other first in individual competition with a 9.35 on bars.

Gonyea tied Sofios for second place on vault (9.2), finished 10th on bars (8.35), second on beam (9.5), and second on floor (9.35). Sofios also finished fourth on floor (9.2). Makins was eighth on vault (9.0) and 12th on bars (8.2); and Autumn Bunch was 12th on beam for Salem.

For Canton, Rennolds was 12th on vault (8.7), tied for seventh with teammate Laura Anderson on bars (8.4), eighth on beam (8.95) and sixth on floor (9.05).

Also, Johanna Anderson was fifth on vault (9.15) and eighth on floor (8.85); Jenny Tedesco was fifth on bars (8.6); Heather Murphy was fifth on beam (9.2) and 12th on floor (8.65); and Dawn Clifford was sixth (9.15).

"We had two half meets," said Canton coach John Cunningham. "The first half went terribly - we had a lot of falls on floor and four of five vaults had falls."

The Chiefs, however, regrouped and finished strong.

"We were excellent on bars and beam," Cunningham added. "Beam is our best event and we did well - I was pleased when the meet was over that we regrouped in time to take the second place."

Phase III, where both schools compete, will be the site of regional action Saturday with events beginning at noon. Last year Canton won its regional and Salem finished second with both schools advancing to the state meet.

"I'm going to have the most girls I've had competing," said McBride who is taking 13 vaulters, nine on floor and bars, and eight on beam. "Everyone is going to want a lot of practice this week."

Cunningham will also be working at getting his girls ready for the regionals.

"Being at home will make life a lot simpler," he said. "We're not going to have another slow start like the conference meet - we'll be ready."

McBride, whose Rocks are ranked second behind Muskegon Mona Shores, a team that has beaten them both times they've faced each other this season, is looking for the regionals to warm the Rocks up for the state meet.

"We're a little worried about Mona Shores but we know all about them and what we have to do to beat them," said McBride, adding that Mona Shores has yet to see the Rocks at full strength. The first time the two teams met Sofios was out and the second time Miller and Bunch were both out.

Salem, Canton hoop clash

And the victory was sweet for all the seniors who suffered a one-point loss to Stevenson last year in the conference finals.

"The players deserve the title, we got tripped up a couple times this year," Brodie said. "All along we felt we were the best team in the conference but we had to prove it by getting through the tournament."

Last Tuesday Canton defeated Livonia Stevenson 54-46 in a defensive struggle to reach the WLAA finals.

Stafford led the Chiefs with 18 points and Anthony Coshatt, a Western division honorable mention, added 10 points and 13 rebounds.

"They jumped out to a 15-5 lead and we just dug in and played good defense to win and get us to the finals," said VanWagoner. The Rocks defeated Farmington Harrison last Tuesday night, 77-64, to reach the finals for the fifth straight year.

Kirkpatrick led all scorers with 26 points. He was followed by Baker's 16 and Cliff Lee, a Lakes division honorable mention, scored 10. Mike Mulder was also an Lakes division honorable mention selection for Salem.

"It was a three point game at the half," said Brodie. "But we started taking advantage of their foul trouble and took the ball to the basket."

"I'm very pleased with the way we've played the last six games," Brodie added, saying that his team has improved greatly throughout the season. "Our offense is uptempo and the kids are having more fun ... we want to accelerate to another level and make another good tournament run."

Tomorrow night the Rocks travel to Novi High School to take on Northville in district action. Earlier in the season Salem defeated the Mustangs, 77-58, but Brodie is quick to point out Northville is a different team now.

"They've had a lot of changeovers and are a better team now," he said. "And we know that there's no tomorrow if we lose."

Last night the Chiefs played Novi in district action. The winner of that game will face Livonia Stevenson tomorrow night at 8:30 p.m. District finals will be Saturday.

In conference

Chief swimmers 4th

BY RITA DERBIN

The Chiefs gave it their all and ended surprising themselves a little by doing better than they thought at they could at the Western Lakes Activities Association conference swim meet Friday night.

Canton placed fourth (387) behind Livonia Stevenson (499), Northville (442) and Salem (437), but the Chiefs did beat North Farmington, a team coach Hooker Wellman did not think the Canton squad could beat before the meet.

"It was a great meet," Wellman said. "The kids swam real well on Wednesday (in the qualifying heats) and most went even faster in the finals on Friday."

"I felt going into the meet North Farmington was better than our team but we beat them," Wellman added. "We worked hard and it paid off."

The Chiefs qualified for the state in three events, setting two new varsity records in the process.

Qualifying for the state meet was the fourth place 200-yard medley relay of Doug Nevi, Ron Trosin, Mark Ealovega and Craig Steshetz who set a varsity record with the time of 1:41.07. Another varsity record was set by the fourth-place 200-yard freestyle relay of Ealovega, Jeff Clark, Mike Orris and Steshetz. The time of 1:32.05 was also a state qualifier.

Steshetz also qualified for the state meet in the 100-yard breaststroke with a time of 1:02.99;

Divers Nick Atwell finished sixth and Jon Stirling was ninth. Both made the regional cut. Mark Charmin was 17th in diving.

Locals shine in states for C. Central

BY RITA DERBIN

Three Plymouth residents went to the state wrestling meet recently while competing for the Detroit Catholic Central Shamrocks and two of them placed in Class A action.

Junior Dan Kelly, who won his region last week, placed fourth at 171 lbs. He finished the season at 44-11.

"Dan had an excellent shot and let it slip away from him," said Catholic Central coach Mike Rodriguez. "He lost a close semis match...he'll be a lot better next year now that he knows what it's like."

Senior Rob Sylvester placed fifth at heavyweight and finished the season with a 37-9 record. Last week he qualified for the state meet by placing second at the regionals.

"Rob wrestled like a senior," Rodriguez said. "He wrestled hard to take fifth rather than a sixth place - he wrestled well throughout the tournament."

Sophomore Jason Krueger, who placed second in regional action to advance to the state meet, won one match at 160 lbs. before losing.

"I'm proud and impressed with him doing so well as a sophomore," Rodriguez said.
