

MacDonald bidding adieu?

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

With all the recent political maneuvering in the Plymouth-Canton-Northville community of late, is the second shoe about to drop?

John D. MacDonald, chief judge of the 35th District Court, will be interviewed in Lansing Friday for a vacancy on the state appeals court. The vacancy was created by the March resignation of Richard Maher from the First District of the Michigan Appeals Court. That region includes Wayne, Washtenaw, Lenawee, Livingston, Monroe and Jackson counties. There are three appeals court regions in the state with eight judges in each, but they all serve in other locations around the state part of the year.

MacDonald, who is 56, is one of 12 candidates being considered by the State Bar Association committee, which recommends to Gov. John Engler.

"I very much like my job (at 35th District Court)," MacDonald said. "It's an honor to be considered."

"But if I didn't get it, I won't cry myself to sleep," MacDonald

Canton votes Tuesday in county race

BY JIM WHITE

The first of what may turn into several special election cycles this year is drawing to a close.

The general election for the Wayne County Commission's 11th District seat -- which represents Canton -- will be held Tuesday.

Democrat Bryan Amann, of Wayne, faces off against Jim Poole, a Canton Republican.

The special election is being held to fill the seat vacated in December when Milt Mack was appointed to the probate bench.

Canton has the largest population of the district's nine communities, and the vote in the township will largely determine the vote throughout the district.

But, just as in the primary, Canton Clerk Loren Bennett is not predicting long lines at the polls, which will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Only seven per cent of Canton's 33,608 registered voters made it to the polls on March 19. "We'll have less than that," Bennett said.

Bennett is encouraging residents to vote absentee ballot. Those who did so in the last election already received one in the mail. The idea is to get as many voters as possible using the absentee ballots.

"I'm doing everything I can to cut down on the lines and make it as easy and as convenient as possible for people to vote," Bennett said.

It also helps Canton save money if Bennett can get away with a skeleton crew of three workers at each precinct. With another special election for 36th District state representative looming, that's a worthwhile consideration. The special primary in the 11th District cost Canton about $21,000, Bennett said.

As of Friday, 859 out of a total 1,543 absentee ballots had been collected.

Even Vic Gustafson, who as a Republican nearly upset Mack last November, admitted that he was not as informed on this race as he might be.

"I haven't even been in town much," said Gustafson, a Canton planning commissioner who runs his own marketing firm. "Business has been cooking, which is why I didn't run again in the first place."

Besides Canton, the 11th District includes the cities of Wayne, Belleville, Romulus, Rockwood, and Flat Rock and Sumpter, Van Buren, and Huron townships.

Committee unveils potential bond of $59 million

BY JIM WHITE

Members of the Plymouth Canton Community Schools Board of Education got their first look Monday night at a report done by a Blue Ribbon Existing Facilities Committee on a potential bond issue and there were smiles all around the table.

"The board is truly grateful for what you have done," board president Dean Swartzwelder told members of the committee.

The report recommends putting a $59.5 million bond issue on the ballot in September. If passed, the money would be potentially used to build two new elementary schools and to upgrade existing facilities throughout the district.

The report must be approved by the board and by the administration before any further steps toward a bond issue and final construction plans can be made. A decision on the report is expected from the board by the middle of May.

But the consensus Monday night was the facilities committee was on the right track.

The committee recommended that roadways be added at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) that would help separate bus and car traffic.

"I'm pleased to see the traffic flow pattern conceptually approached," said David Artley, board vice president.

Heads up, landlords. The U.S. Postal Service is looking to rent space in the City of Plymouth. "We need a space for lock boxes, selling stamps, and sending out mail," said Plymouth Postmaster John Mulligan Monday.

There are 22,000 square feet of work space in the building on Penniman currently owned and used by the postal service, Mulligan said. That includes the front, the workroom behind the counter, and the basement.

All of the sorting operation will soon move out to the new post office on Beck Road in Plymouth Township, said Mulligan, so much less space is needed in the city.

"We have about 65 feet by 65 feet in our front area now," Mulligan said. "We still need pretty close to that, but we don't need a large work room."

The postal service is looking to rent about 3,500 square feet of space in an existing building, with a loading platform area of at least 270 square feet and parking for 23 vehicles.

The total property site must be about 14,000 square feet. The site must be located in the region bounded by Church, Harvey, Wing, and Union and Deer streets.

Mulligan hopes to move services to the new township post office "within 30 to 45 days." There will be no gap in services in the city, he said, as the window in the Penniman office will stay open until a new building can be brought up to postal service requirements.

The Penniman building will be put up for sale, Mulligan said.

The new owner will likely inherit the murals done during the Depression by WPA artists, he said.

"You can't take it down, it's right on the plaster. I don't think there's any way we can save it," he said. "I'm not an expert at it, though."

City commission scrutinizes budget

BY JIM TOTTEN

With a deficit looming over the city, the Plymouth City Commission has been taking a close and careful look during the budget review meetings at the proposed budget for fiscal year 1991-92.

"It is the most detailed study of the budget I can remember," Assistant City Manager Paul Sincock said, adding, "Since the city's financial picture is not that great, they want to be extra careful."

As of July 1, 1990, the city was facing a deficit of $238,272. In the current budget proposal, the city is projecting a surplus of $160,944 for fiscal year 1990-91. Based on these projections, the estimated fund balance would decrease to a $77,298 deficit as of June 30.

In an effort to reduce the deficit, the commission has proposed several payroll cuts in the budget.

One significant cut proposed is the elimination of the lieutenant's position in the police department. This position costs the city $45,494.

Acting Chief of Police Robert Scoggins said that necessary steps will be made to cover the duties associated with that position. He added that, "The job will get done."

Finance Director William Graham said that the commission is also proposing to cut a clerical position in the finance department. Graham added that the switchboard operator retired and will not be replaced since the new phone system will be taking over in that capacity.

Yet Graham feels that the problems with the deficit arise from the costs associated with solid waste removal which has jumped dramatically in the past few years.

"If the decision regarding bag-tag and the deletion of the solid waste program had been made on a more timely basis, we wouldn't be facing the deficit situation that we've faced for the past several years," Graham said. He said the largest expenditure for the city is the payroll while solid waste is the second largest.

At Monday night's budget review meeting, Graham said that this removal has been putting a crunch on the solid waste fund.

Programs such as the bag tag and recycling center are steps to control and decrease those costs for solid waste disposal, Graham said.

At Monday night's meeting, Commissioner Jerry Vorva proposed that the position of solid waste coordinator could be cut and other city employees could take over the job. He said that, considering the financial picture the city is facing, other city employees need to help carry out those responsibilities left unattended by budget cuts.

Sincock strongly advised that this would be a mistake.

The coordinator has many tasks in operating the solid waste program including the new bag-tag program and recycling center, he said.

Sincock said that the city "needs somebody in that position to handle these responsibilities."

City Manager Gordon Jaeger said, "If you get rid of the coordinator, the program will go down the tubes."

The commission also discussed the possibility of having a budget review on a quarterly basis in order to better monitor any changes in the budget.

The public hearing for the city budget is scheduled for May 6 at 7:30p.m.

Poole and Amann squaring off for 11th District

BY JIM WHITE

He has been the invisible candidate all along.

Jim Poole has not actively campaigned for the 11th District Wayne County Commission seat at all. He is proud of the fact that he has not spent one dollar -- he does not owe favors to special interest groups this way.

missioner who is beholden or do you want a full time commissioner who is beholden only to the citizens?" Poole asked.

Amann has already said he will give the commission job all the time it warrants, but that he may also practice law.

Poole, 61, is retired from the Air Force. He and his wife live in Canton where Poole runs Michigan Municipal Advisory Group, Inc., a consulting service. They have three grown daughters.

After what he described as a "very difficult primary battle" for the 11th District Wayne County Commission seat, Bryan Amann went to -- where else? -- Disney World.

"I figure I can sneak some days off around Easter," he said right after the March 19 primary, which he won in a walk.

Amann finished first among the six Democratic candidates with 2,872 votes. Shirley Poling was second with 1,966.

During the primary, infrastructure improvements took center stage. At last week's League of Women Voters forum, Amann reiterated his position:

He won the Republican primary in March on the strength of his name in Canton -- where he has served four years as a trustee and eight years as supervisor. Poole collected 646 votes total, 416 in Canton. His opponent, John McCarthy, received 620 votes overall, 267 in Canton.

Poole sees his experience at the township level as a plus.

At the League of Women Voters forum last week, he said, "Bryan (Amann, Poole's opponent in the May 7 election) has worked up here at the county, I have been down here. I have worked at the grass roots level. It's about equal."

The fact that he has not worked at the county further contributes to his independence, Poole feels.

if elected commissioner, the first thing Poole said he would do is try to set up a council among the various city managers and township supervisors of the district.

"I intend to get them together and have them discuss their problems in joint meetings," he said.

As supervisor, Poole said his proudest accomplishments included paving about 11 miles of township roads, building a senior citizens' center "that didn't cost the taxpayers anything," and "extricating ourselves from the clutches of the Detroit Sewer Department" by joining the Western Townships Utilities Authority.

More infrastructure improvements would be on his agenda, he said.

A big issue currently facing all the county commissioners is how to fund a new Tiger Stadium.

"I would like the stadium preserved

But since March, the possibility of public funding for a new Tiger Stadium has arisen.

"The stadium must stay in Detroit," Amann said. "It can be paid for with revenue bonds. It won't come out of property taxes."

Should Amann win the district seat, he won't be heading back to Disney World immediately. "The first thing I want to do is get the appointment to the committee on roads, airports, and public services," he said. "CRAPS for short."

As county noise czar, Amann has already been instrumental in developing a plan to reduce noise at

$450,000 should soon be landing in City's hands

BY JIM TOTTEN

The City of Plymouth should be $450,000 richer once the title insurance for 48 acres of city-owned land arrives.

City Manager Gordon Jaeger said the city is currently waiting for the title insurance to the Beck Road oil field which is in the process of being sold to Nottingham Partners. The property is located on Beck Road between 5 and 6 Mile roads. Nottingham has put down a five per cent ($22,500) deposit on the property.

Jaeger said that Nottingham Partners will have 15 days to close the deal once the title arrives. If for some reason the deal falls through, the city will keep the deposit. The $450,000 for the land sale is to go into a special reserve fund, Jaeger said.

The Plymouth City Commission approved the sale of the 48 acres at their April 15 meeting.

Jaeger cited several positive effects the sale will have for the city.

"It will create a reserve fund for the city that they have not had for years and years," Jaeger said. He added that the reserve fund will help the city respond to possible emergencies and will also make the city more attractive to those buying city-backed bonds.

The city purchased the land prior to 1900 and used it as a primary source of water until the 1960s when the city decided to buy water from the City of Detroit system.

"But what happens to it ought to be decided by the folks around it," he said. "My role as commissioner is to do whatever they determine."

Law makes it official

BY JIM TOTTEN

The appointment of Gerald Law as Plymouth Township Supervisor becomes official this morning at his swearing-in.

After serving eight years as state representative and driving over 250,000 miles to Lansing, Law said that becoming township supervisor is a "personal step forward."

He said he enjoyed being a state representative and found the work exciting, adding that there are few jobs he would accept over the representative job.

Yet Law said that he has "always liked local government" and when the opportunity came to become supervisor in the place he has lived for the past 18 years, he made a quick decision to accept.

Law served on the Township Board of Trustees from 1978-82 and has since been a state representative.

Between the two positions, Law finds that the township supervisor carries more responsibilities and is a bigger challenge than being a state

Board hails Schools bond report

Trustee Carl Battishill asked committee members if the $12 million designated for integrated technology was enough. The goal is to use video, computer, and eventually fiber optic technology to give each classroom greater access to a building's media center.

"It definitely puts us in the right direction," said Glenn Schroeder, co-chair of the committee.

Other ways of increasing the funding for integrated technology, such as getting industry or the Federal government to contribute, are under study, said John Hoben, schools superintendent.

Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business and operations, said a bond issue could be carried out at $59.5 million even considering a possible property tax freeze in 1992.

One of the problems not addressed by the report was expansion at the high school level. It was the feeling of the committee, said Schroeder, that eventually, a third high school will have to be built in the district. But this school should not be built at the CEP, he said.

Pamela Lemerand, a parent on the committee who has one child at Bird Elementary, said, "We parents felt strongly that the number was already too large at the park. It needs to be decreased."

She also said parents were excited about the idea of integrated technology and "felt the need for a computer in each classroom."

Lemerand added that the committee process was very productive and, she felt, very successful.

"We found from a parent perspective, we were really listened to," she said. "The report before you utilized parent input and reflects parent perspective."

"We really feel we will get home with what you parents recommended," said Roland Thomas, board secretary.

Harold Fischer, the other committee co-chair, also thanked the firm of Barton Malow for help in producing the report.

Proposed bond set at $59.5 million

BY KEN VOYLES

There are several key elements to the proposed bond budget presented to the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education Monday by members of a committee looking at current district needs.

The bond numbers presented to the board, however, are merely recommendations, and are likely to change once the board and district's administration begin final preparations for a possible bond vote this fall.

The total preliminary cost projection for a potential bond issue — as suggested by the Blue Ribbon Study Committee's subcommittee on existing facilities — is $59.5 million.

The total figure is broken down into three main categories — building renovation (in all schools), construction of two new elementaries and an "integrated technology" package for district classrooms.

The Blue Ribbon sub-committee has recommended that the district spend $10 million at Centennial Educational Park (CEP), including $5.3 million at Salem High, $2.8 million at Canton High and another $1.8 million for "park site development."

Also proposed is $18.6 million for all 12 district elementary schools, all five district middle schools and the Tanger Center. Tied with that figure, however, is an additional $4 million in costs the district would need to cover outside of any bond (such as architect fees).

Of that $18.6 million, $17.7 million is proposed for work at the elementaries and middle schools, another $735,000 for the Starkweather Center (the adult education facility) and $250,000 for renovation of the transportation building.

The proposal delegates approximately $200,000 for each school for "building priorities."

The rest of the funds for each school cover "required work," which includes health and safety issues; "service-

Canton votes Tuesday:

Amann for county spot

Whoever wins Tuesday's election and captures the Wayne County Commission seat for the 11th District -- which includes Canton -- will find the job is 90 per cent direct involvement with constituents.

So estimates the best of the two candidates, Bryan Amann, currently a deputy county executive.

His challenger, former Canton Supervisor Jim Poole, proved himself a very capable legislator and luke-warm administrator during his 12 years as Canton Trustee and Supervisor.

But the county post requires more diplomacy and maturity than administrative skill. Poole's way of conducting himself can turn off those who don't know him.

Amann has the right personality to deal with constituents.

He is also obviously far more interested than Poole in serving the district as a whole in this particular job. (Poole has not made any serious effort in this race in either the primary contest or the general election. Is he simply interested in another shot at Canton Supervisor in 1992?)

Should Amann win, he will have to set an independent tone immediately. It is imperative he distance himself from ties to the county executive and turn his attention to the smaller district.

(On another note, Maurice Breen, interim commissioner for the 10th District -- which includes the Plymouths and the Northvilles -- also must show he comes to the commission with no strings attached.)

Independence is certainly something that Poole would add to the commission. But Poole can cross over the Kazoo Line. As Canton Supervisor, he once opened remarks before the county commission by playing kazoo. Constituents need a down-to-Earth accessible commissioner.

Parties play no part here -- either in the issues as seen by the two hopefuls -- or on the ballot. It's a special election, and the lone race will likely produce a pitiful voter turnout. (For the record, Amann's a Democrat; Poole is a Republican.)

Canton, because it is the largest community in the 11th district, will decide the election.

But there are eight other communities in the district. Amann can best represent every one -- even the home of his opponent.

Keep D-H library there

Regardless of the changes the Plymouth library may undergo, the one constant that should exist is its location on South Main Street.

With the Plymouth District Library Board hosting four public forums starting May 7 on library services and building concerns, ideas for a new and larger building in a different location will probably be aired. The question will be asked, would this solution not serve the community better?

Expanding the facilities at the current library or at another site is an excellent idea and a necessary step since the number of residents using the library is increasing dramatically each year.

But to move the whole facility to another location would not be a step in the right direction. The location of the Dunning-Hough Library is too central to risk moving to another location. And what would happen to the current building if the library was moved?

True, changes need to happen to keep quality library services, but changing the location should not be one.

Spelling Bee helped literacy

EDITOR:
The Community Literacy Council, Inc. wishes to thank everyone involved in the April 16 "Community Spelling Bee." Thirteen businesses, organizations and schools sponsored 39 brave spellers in three-person teams. A number of people volunteered their time and talent to help raise over $1,300 to be used to promote literacy in our community.

Team sponsors were Canton Chamber of Commerce; Canton Public Library; Canton Rotary Club; The Community Crier; Draugelis & Ashton; East Middle School; First Security Title, Inc.; Plymouth Canton Community Education Association; Plymouth Construction Equipment, Inc.; Roman Forum Restaurant; Rusty Nail Lounge; and Tivador Balogh, Architect.

In addition, Judge James Garber; State Representative Jim Kosteva; Creon Smith, General Manager of the Mayflower Hotel; Dave Snyder of WSDP radio; Carl Cederberg of WAAM radio; and Harry McLaughlin all volunteered their time to support this event.

The Canton Rotary Literacy Committee members are Dr. Michael Homes, Richard Egli, Mary Day Frey, Claire McLaughlin, Dee Bashor, John Schwartz and myself. They spent many hours in preparation; some became very, very familiar with the dictionary as they prepared the word lists.

The cooperation and enthusiasm of everyone involved resulted in friendly competition. "Wait 'til next year!" was heard often. I am proud to be part of a community that values learning and correct spelling.

Thank you all and congratulations on being part of the first "Community Spelling Bee."

Thank you

EDITOR:

I wish to thank the citizens of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, and Canton for their warm reception last Saturday. I was distributing flyers to local businesses advertising a quality craft show I am promoting at the Plymouth Radisson on Mother's Day weekend. I was impressed by the warm and welcoming attitude of all the shopowners I spoke with.

Not only was I granted permission to place flyers in their places of business, many of the people I encountered asked for information or simply thanked me for thinking of their shops.

This experience with the citizens of Plymouth was in marked contrast to a neighboring city of yours, where I was followed by the city police when I tried to distribute the flyers, and was met with rudeness and cold treatment more often than I was welcomed.

It is pleasure to come into a community where courtesy is still practiced every day. I appreciate the gracious welcome and look forward to my next visit to Plymouth.

The White pages By Jim White

If you have to choose between two items, and one item isn't there, then it's a pretty easy choice to make, right?

If, for example, you have to endorse one of two candidates for a political race, and only one candidate is present at your forum, then it is pretty easy to endorse one, isn't it?

Well, no. It's a lot harder.

For reasons of his own, Jim Poole, candidate for the 11th District Wayne County Commission seat, did not attend The Crier's candidate forums for either the primary or the general election.

During one of several phone calls, Poole said, "Why should I attend? Your mind is all made up."

Poole was mad. Like I say, he has his reasons. He knows as well as I do that members of the editorial staff here do not make up their minds until they feel they can honestly endorse one candidate. The process here is well known.

It is also irrelevant.

I am not mad at Jim Poole because I feel stood up. I am worried, however.

The 11th District includes Canton Township, residents rely on the county for certain services, such as road and drain maintenance. The commissioner is their liaison to county government.

Obviously, it is important for residents to make an informed choice. Yet less than eight per cent of the registered voters made any choice at all in the March primary. Loren Bennett, Canton clerk, expects an even lower turnout in the general election Tuesday.

Which, in itself, is not Jim Poole's fault. He himself has urged voters to at least get out and vote for somebody. But he will not help them make an informed choice.

Poole did show up at the forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters (a "public" forum attended by about five or six people other than those of us who had to be there). He did carry out a debate with his opponent Bryan Amann that was broadcast on Omnicon.

But what if the League had not held a forum? They didn't in the primary. From what source could voters draw information?

I had to make a choice between Poole and Amann as part of our endorsement process. But I have talked to Jim several times since he announced his candidacy. I could make an educated decision. Canton voters do not have that benefit.

Being absent from our forum does not mean a candidate is eliminated from endorsement consideration. U.S. Representatives Carl Pursell and William Ford have both received endorsements without attending. But having to judge the qualifications of a candidate who does not want to talk face to face is difficult.

Poole served Canton fairly well as supervisor. In 1988, he was endorsed by this newspaper. And it looks like he might be aiming for that position again. But now, he does township residents a disservice. And because he - or any other candidate - is not willing to fully debate the issues openly, we all are worse off.

Running for nothing

"Nothing."

Every one of the attendees (a RECORD 217 tickets were sold) at last Thursday's Wayne Second Congressional District Republican Committee "Presidential Banquet" said, upon initial questioning:

"Nothing."

"Aw, come on, really, what are you running for?" I countered.

"All right..." starts the next paragraph, followed by their next reply...

Ron Lowe said, "Nothing." (Third try.)

Lita Popke said, "Mother of the year."

David Popke said, "Plymouth Dog Catcher... because of the amount of feces in the newspaper because of politics." (He may have a hard time even being elected dog catcher though; he later confessed, "I brought in some Cuban cigars," and then, "We're going to get a dog.")

Gerry Law said, "I made a commitment to stay a number of years. Could be 10."

Kay Arnold said, "Are you crazy?" Denise Radtke said, "I'm running for precinct delegate."

Jim Bonadeo, "What should I run for?" (He then, off the record, said, "I'd have run for parking lot operator if the City of Detroit had asked me first.")

Betty Lennox said, "Not (Northville) Township Supervisor." What if Georgina Goss is elected State Rep? "Maybe at that point I might."

Jim McCarthy said, "I'm ready to retire."

Mary Breen said, "I'm staying right where I'm at."

Carl Berry said, "Governor." (But then he said he changed his mind -- that was Thursday; as of press time Tuesday, no new answer was forthcoming.)

Jim Anulewicz said, "Citizen of the year. Any year."

Dick Henningsen said, "I'm still the manager. I'm just trying to keep my head above water."

Murph Collins said, "For cover." Mary Brooks said, "Treasurer, again, next year."

Jeanine Lowe said, "I'm just trying to be a respectable wife."

Sally Repeck said, "Answer that in front of all these Republicans?"

Smith Horton said, "I can't."

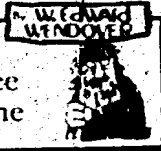

Lynn Collins said, "See me next year."

Lyn Bankes said, "I'm probably one of the only people here who's not running for anything -- but I am handing out fund-raising brochures."

Jerry Vorva said, "EVERYONE in here is running for something."

Marcia Buhl said, "I'm not running for anything. I'm already on the (Plymouth Township) Planning Commission."

With malice toward none

Gary Roberts said, "I'm not running."

Ron Lowe (second answer) said, "Just put 'Judge.'"

Georgina Goss said, "You know." Steve Ragan said, "To retain my (Schoolcraft College) seat."

Dean Swartzwelder said, "(Plymouth-Canton) School Board."

Jerry Vorva (first answer) said, "I'm running with this beautiful lady (his wife, Joan, a fellow jogger)."

Bob DeMattia said, "Me run?"

Abc Munfakh said, "I'm running to lose weight."

Tom Kennedy said, "The door."

Bruce Patterson was wearing a name tag that said, "Candidate for Schoolcraft College Trustee."

Ron Griffith said, "I'm running for the seat of the person who get's (Gerry's-Jerry's) job. I'll move if I have to." (EDITOR'S NOTE: Since he didn't spell the name as "Gerry" or "Jerry," it was hard to figure which "to-be-filled-if-elected" spot Ron was referring to.)

John Vos III spoke more clearly, "I'm running for his (Griffith's seat) when he runs."

John Stewart didn't have to say. He'd pulled the coup d'etat of the evening by buying a full page ad in the program just under the deadline -- the only "I'm running for state rep" ad in the book. Of course, being one of the insiders with Gerry and Maurie, he probably was in on the deal early.

After the recent political events, it's no surprise it was a record turnout for the GOPs. The air was electric -- right from the opening gun, a Republican prayer. (Even with the Pledge of Allegiance having been overlooked.)

With all the buzz of political musical chairs in the background, Vorva was probably right: EVERYBODY in the room was running for something.

Except one.

Conan Parz, an engaging eight-year-old, held firm under intense questioning: "I'm not running. But I vote every time." He was attending with his family to hear U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, whose district includes all the Republican mucky-mucks present plus "conservative vegetable farmers."

The state champion on the vault, Conan has 10 years to decide if he'll broaden his gymnastics to include political gymnastics.

Twenty years from now, he'll probably be the featured speaker at the Wayne Second Republican dinner.

COMING NEXT WEEK: A review of the Democratic Party Wayne Second Caucus dinner (beans and franks) held in Bill Joyner's basement.

1st of 4 returns from Desert Storm

Harvey Street welcomes its heroes

BY JIM WHITE

You can never go home again, Thomas Wolfe said. But then, he didn't live on Harvey Street.

Paul Faunce returned to the City of Plymouth April 10 after serving in Operation Desert Storm. His whole block of Harvey Street, from Farmer to Junction, was a sea of red, white, and blue and yellow ribbons, decorated for his arrival.

The 34-year-old Air Force reserve tech sergeant was a little overwhelmed. "I thought someone else was having a wedding," Faunce said. "I think of myself as a quiet guy. I don't bug the neighbors for anything. I couldn't believe it."

But the neighbors were just warming up. The families in this block have four men to welcome home from overseas duty, and they're going to do it right.

"Our block had more than their share called up," said Dorothy Crews. Her son Jim is a Marine private first class.

"When Paul got home, the kids were home from school and people were getting home from work," Crews said. "We had the whole street decorated."

Besides Faunce and Crews, the north end of Harvey Street is still awaiting the return of Army second lieutenant Shawn Faunce (who may be a distant relative of Paul) and Marine lance corporal Michael Smith.

Paul Faunce himself first enlisted in the Marine Corps after graduating from Salem High School in 1975. He served as an antitank gunner.

"I saw the world," he said, "but after four years on the ground I decided I'd like to go air." After studying aviation in college, he joined the Air Force.

Faunce's outfit, the 927th Tactical Airlift Group, was put on active duty and shipped out from Selfridge Air National Guard Base in October.

"We were stationed in UAE (United Arab Emirates) servicing C-130 transports," he said. "Our crews were called to work wherever they were needed. We went to Qatar, Bahrain, and Saudi.

"They said our unit set a lot of records, but we were too busy to know what we were doing," Faunce said. "We just wanted to get the job done."

Faunce said the troops overseas had a good idea of the support shown on the home front. "We got a lot of mail, that's what kept us informed," he said.

The welcoming committee will be out next on the night of May 11, when Smith is expected to return.

"He'll be home after dark so we're asking the neighbors to keep their porch lights on," said his mother LouAnn.

Smith, 20 and a 1988 Salem graduate, arrived stateside the day before Easter and is back at his home base near Tuston, CA. He serves as a crew member with helicopter squadron HMH-465.

"I can't wait to see him," said his mother. "I haven't seen him since July."

It came as no surprise when her son joined the Marines in December of 1989, Smith said. "Mike has been on maneuvers in the back yard all his life. He and Jimmy (Crews) have been friends since kindergarten, and Jimmy went first."

Smith said that her son will give a talk to students at St. Peter's Lutheran School in Plymouth when he gets home. "The kids there adopted him," she said. "They sent him a huge box of gifts at Christmas."

Crews, also 20 and a 1988 Canton High School graduate, enlisted in July of 1989. His supply battalion, stationed in Detroit, was activated in December. It shipped out to Okinawa in December with the rest of the 24th Marine Regiment.

Air Force Tech Sgt. Paul Faunce waves to his Harvey Street neighbors upon his return from Operation Desert Storm. With him is his daughter Ana. Faunce was overwhelmed by the greeting he got from his neighbors, who had decorated their street with flags and ribbons. Faunce is the first of four Harvey Street men who are returning home from overseas duty. (Crier photo by Eric Lukasik)

"It was the first time the Marine reserves were called up since Korea," said his mother. "Mike's unit is filling in for guys who went to Saudi.

"The scary thing about the reserve units from Brodhead (armory in Detroit) or Selfridge going is all the men are from this area," Crews said. "It could have been very bad."

Jim Crews could be sent to the Philippines next. "He was activated for a year, but then the war ended so fast," Dorothy Crews said. "Still, he might not be back till August. He'll probably be the last one home on the street and we'll have the grand finale."

Which still leaves Shawn Faunce. "He's the only one of the four who won't be coming home," said his mother Vi.

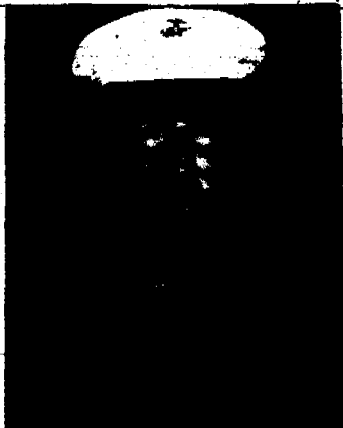

His unit, the 16th Engineer Battalion, is based in Germany. It went to the desert with the First Armored Division and, as part of VII Corps, Faunce was involved in the sweep behind the Iraqi Republican Guard.

After the cease fire, he picked up mines around airstrips in Iraq. But his unit is back in Saudi now, waiting to move back to Germany.

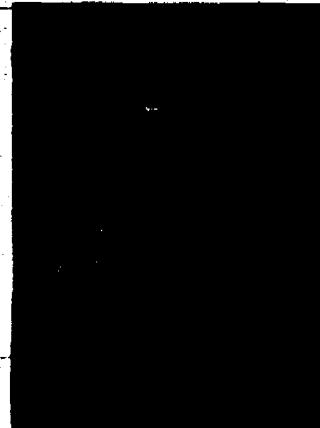

"We're just very pleased he's out of Iraq," said his mother. "His job there was very tense."

Faunce graduated from Dearborn Divine Child in 1984 and from West Point with honors in 1989. He plans to get married in Massachusetts in August. But he might not have time to get all the way home to Plymouth.

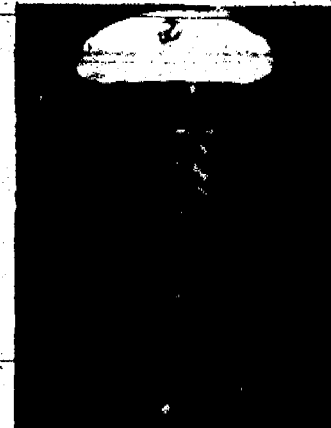

"We hope to get his brother and maybe his father over there (to Germany)," Faunce said. "Someone to give him a hug."

Tell it to Phyllis

By Phyllis Redfern

They just don't make things like they used to. We've all heard and repeated that line many times, and unfortunately it's true.

There was a time when you could buy an appliance and expect it to last for at least 10 to 20 years. Nowadays you're lucky if you make it through the first year without calling a service department.

Last year I broke down and bought a new dryer only to be followed a few months later with the new washer. Since I had had my old washer and dryer for 21 years it seemed only logical to go back to the same store and buy the same brand. I did shop around, but when it came time for the decision I ended up with what I thought was the new version of what I was used to.

The dryer has celebrated its first birthday. It still dries the clothes and sometimes shuts off when it is supposed to. Sometimes it forgets and keeps right on going.

The washer has a couple months to go before its first birthday. It has already been examined by a repairman because a sock somehow got stuck. It still washes the clothes but every once in a while it doesn't know when to stop when it fills up with water. I know the basement floor needs washing every now and then, but I'd rather do it at my convenience, not the washer's.

I really liked the old washer and dryer. They worked great for 21 years and performed miracles on the clothes of two active, growing kids. This new laundry set doesn't know how good they have it. They don't have to deal with worms in pockets, knees in pants that slid into first base, the outfit someone wore while making mud pies or painting pet rocks.

What are you going to do? I'm stuck with this washer and dryer and hope they manage to last half as long as the others.

Now the dishwasher (20 years old) is leaking, the lawn mower died and I think I just burned up the motor in the vacuum cleaner. Since I'm in no hurry to pay twice as much for something half as good, I think I'll continue to mop up the floor after running the dishwasher, borrow the neighbor's lawn mower and find a vacuum fix-it shop.

Obviously I'm going to have to buy a lawn mower soon and probably a few other things (hey, when you're on a roll anything can break). As I check out all the sales, it's time to scratch the old stand by department store off the list.

Now the trick is finding replacements I can afford that will work for a few years.

Robert J. Zambiasi, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Zambiasi of Plymouth, was inducted into the Golden Key National Honor Society. He is a student at M.S.U. and a 1988 graduate of Catholic Central.

Theodore Stevko, son of Paul and Janice Stevko, was awarded a university scholarship from Ohio State University. A senior at Canton High School, he was a delegate to the 1991 Model United Nations. He plans to major in art.

Sgt. Keanna Filarski has graduated from the aeromedical specialist course at the School of Aerospace Medicine, Brooks Air Force Base, San Antonio, TX.

Ronald Redfern of Canton has been named to the Dean's List at Northwood Institute. He is the son of Phyllis Redfern of Canton and Stephen Redfern of Pontiac.

LAW DAY

May 1, 1991

"Freedom Has A Name: The Bill of Rights" is the 1991 theme for Law Day and Law Week events planned by bar associations, courts, schools, government and other organizations throughout Michigan the week of April 28-May 4.

Governor John Engler has proclaimed May 1, 1991, as Law Day in Michigan, as have the Michigan Senate and House of Representatives.

Law Day was established by President Eisenhower in 1957 to contrast the American system of equal justice under law with those socialist countries celebrating May Day on May 1. Since that time, Law Day has provided an annual opportunity to honor our Constitutional system of government by laws, not individuals.

Some of the events planned for Law Day and Law Week on a statewide level include:

The Michigan Senate will suspend its business at 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday, May 1 to recognize Law Day and the Bill of Rights in a special ceremony in the Senate chambers.

The Michigan Historical Museum and Library will feature an exhibit on the Bill of Rights throughout Law Week, and will host the annual Michigan Lawyers Auxiliary Law Day Luncheon on May 1, with principal speaker Michigan Supreme Court Chief Justice Michael F. Cavanagh.

The Michigan District Judges Association is working with district courts across the state on Law Day programming. Many courts will sponsor open houses, classrooms visits and other activities.

The popular "Ask the Lawyers" television program produced on public television stations by the State Bar of Michigan will feature four special broadcasts during the week, with WFUM-TV in Flint and WUCM-TV in Bay City airing Law Day programs May 1, and WGVU-TV in Grand Rapids and WCMU-TV in Mt. Pleasant airing May 2. The four versions of the program air throughout most markets in Michigan. Views should check their television listings to determine when "Ask the Lawyers" airs in their area.

For additional information about Law Day and Law Week, call your local bar association or the State Bar of Michigan.

Bond includes funds for integrated technology

ability, which covers needs in the areas of air conditioning, heating and electric systems for each building; and "space" requirements, which address specific space "deficiencies" in each school.

Needs proposed for each of Allen, Eriksson, Field, Hulsing and Miller elementary schools total more than $1 million, as do needs at Central, East and West middle schools.

The committee is also recommending $12 million for the design and construction of two new elementary schools and another $12 million for the integrated technology package. Another $2.75 million is proposed for new school buses.

Committee members said that money for the technology package would give the district "a very good start" in bringing the school district into the 21st Century.

The funds would be used to purchase technology currently available, they said, including computers, monitors for each classroom, video and floppy disc hardware, and other equipment to advance the idea connecting each room to that building's media center.

"We would be remiss if we did not include this in the bond proposal," said Glenn Schroeder, one of the co-chairpersons of the Blue-Ribbon subcommittee. "We think we really need to put a massive number of computers in our schools. First we will have to decide on a design system and then educate teachers on how to use it in the classroom."

"We can't, right now, define exactly what the $12 million will be used for," he continued.

District Superintendent John M. Hoben has also begun a campaign to try and obtain federal dollars for the technology package and has been meeting with local Congressmen Carl Purcell and William Ford to generate their support.

Barton Malow consultants working with the committee said last week that the district's facilities are "not uniform" and that it is important to "recognize that the condition of each building is different."

Committee members said the recommendations are an attempt to make all of the elementary and middle schools "comparable" in terms of both space and equipment.

Plymouth man sentenced on drug charges

A Plymouth man has been sentenced on federal charges that he was involved in a marijuana manufacturing operation.

James "Doc" Spinelle, 48, was sentenced to 18 months imprisonment before federal Judge John Feikens in Detroit.

According to U.S. Attorney Stephen Markman, Spinelle was involved in an "extensive indoor 'hydroponic' marijuana operation." Agents from the Drug Enforcement Administration seized 388 marijuana plants during the

Engler signs airport pact

BY JIM WHITE

There's still some way to go, but more hurdles were cleared this week as Mettetal Airport inches closer to becoming publicly owned.

Governor John Engler last Wednesday signed the agreement between Plymouth and Plymouth Township to buy the airport using federal and state grants.

A spokesperson for the governor, John Truscott, had said earlier that Engler would sign the agreement "once the attorney general's office has reviewed it and recommended it to us."

MacDonald eyes vacancy

As one of two judges in the district court, MacDonald earns $93,817 per year. An appeals court judge annually earns $102,346.

MacDonald, a former Northville Township supervisor, practiced law in Wayne and Plymouth before elected to the bench on Jan. 1, 1985 after defeating former Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein in a runoff election the previous November. He was re-elected without opposition last November.

Even if MacDonald is not appointed to the appeals court, he might be considered for the Wayne County Circuit Court which has a vacancy now because Tom Foley, of Plymouth, has retired, and because another circuit judge might get the appeals court spot. But MacDonald might be lukewarm to working downtown for a $4,000 raise.

If MacDonald is elevated, his 35th District seat would then be open to appointment by the governor.

And that opens the door to all kinds of speculation as to possible candidates.

Similar legal excitement was created a year ago when the 35th District Court was authorized by the state to add a third judgeship because its caseload was much higher than the average caseload-per-judge statewide. But, at that time, the local court's five member communities faced fiscal constraints and therefore did not have the funds necessary to construct a new courtroom.

Since then, however, the court has been setting aside funds from the revenues destined back to each of the communities. "We've set aside monies," said MacDonald. "We have more than enough for the judgeship."

But the local communities -- through the 35th District Court advisory board -- have not yet asked for the third judgeship.

The local political turmoil may now affect that, however.

Former Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen has become Wayne County Commissioner -- and he opposed the third judgeship last time. He has been replaced by former State Rep. Gerald Law, who is said to favor the third judgeship.

A hold on adding a judge may also be placed by the state's budget condition. "Until the state puts forth their budget, it's hard to say," Law said.

"The recommendations won't come until fall. But the legislature won't force a judgeship on communities that don't want it," Law added. "If they do add any courts' (judgeships) though, we'd certainly be one of them," Law said, citing the state figures on caseloads.

Old Village comes alive

Live music, entertainment and games will soon be spreading over the streets of Plymouth's Historic Old Village. Old Village will be hosting its second annual Spring Festival on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Musical talents such as The Volebeats and blues guitarist Kevin Brown will perform on the main stage while Crazy Richard the Mad Juggler will dazzle audiences with his unique style of juggling.

There will also be an auction, a special flower sale and crafts and antiques.

A children's festival will also be part of the day's events. Laura Pershin will weave magical stories, Mama and the Puppets will put on a show, and O.J. Anderson will perform mime.

A frisbee group will also be part of the free entertainment and game booths will be set up for the children.

Residents of the historic village will also be having yard sales. Walking maps of Old Village will be available at most shops.

The festivities will be centered between N. Mill and Starkweather in Plymouth.

Construction to begin soon on CRC

BY JIM WHITE

The site plan for the Canton Recreation Complex phases III and IV has been approved unanimously by the Canton Board of Trustees.

Construction for the new phases of the park, located behind the township administration building on Canton Center, includes digging a pond and moving the dirt around to create a sledding hill and amphitheatre. Landscaping will also be added.

The Canton board is expected to award a bid for the work at its May 14 meeting. The tentative opening date for the new section of the complex is Memorial Day, 1992.

There was some discussion among board members as to whether pathways in the park should be paved as part of the site plan, usually a township requirement.

"If this were a private project," said trustee Elaine Kirchgatter, "we would require paving. We ought to be bound by that, too."

"I'm not sure parks have to measure up to standards for commercial use," said Treasurer Gerald Brown. "I think a park is a unique thing."

Andrea Phillips, from Pollack and Associates, who designed the park, said paving of the paths would be a good idea.

"This is not a passive park," she said. "It will have greater and greater demand. It will be in your best interests to pave eventually."

Paving was not included in the original bid. The trustees are going to wait until bids come back in before deciding whether to move ahead with paving as well, said Yack.

representative. He explained that the state representative job is mostly legislative while a supervisor is both legislative and executive.

As far as the direction the township is heading, Law said that he is not planning any sudden changes in its course. He feels that the township is already doing a good job in maintaining services and is taking the necessary steps with such programs as solid waste, recycling, and joint services. He said that he will keep the township moving ahead on these programs.

He said that he has found the township to have been well-managed for the past 10 years.

His main goal for the township is to "provide the best services for the lowest cost," he said.

Compared to a state representative, Law will be getting a raise as supervisor. The flat salary for a state representative is $45,000 while the flat

Spinelle sentencing

Spinelle recently resigned from the staff at West Bloomfield High School, where he was a teacher. There was no evidence that Spinelle provided marijuana to students, Markman said.

Spinelle's sentence was "a substantial downward departure from the Federal Sentencing Guidelines which dictate a sentence of 51 to 63 months," Markman said.

"The U.S. Attorney's office is currently trying to decide whether or not to appeal the sentence," he added.

Rocks race to first place in relays

BY RITA DERBIN

It was quite a Rock show Saturday at Centennial Educational Park. The Salem track teams swept the relocated Belleville Tiger Relays with impressive performances.

The girls team won the relays with 86 points. Wyandotte was second with 69 points and Saline finished third with 45 points.

"We had 26 different girls score varsity points Saturday," said coach Mark Gregor. "The girls were excited about the way they competed and also had a chance to cheer the boys on."

The boys team placed in all but one event to win and rolled to victory at the relays with 101 points. Belleville was second with 79 points.

First places for the girls were the long jump relay of Tracey Livermore, Dana Driscoll and Alysia Sofios (44-11); the 800-meter relay of Andrea Kinnelly, Driscoll, Livermore and Sofios (1:52.67); the distance medley relay of Corey Gulkiewicz, Stacey Witthoff, Julie Cutting and Emily Farrell (13:47.12); the 400-meter relay of Driscoll, Kinnelly, Livermore and Sofios (53.47); and the 1,600-meter relay of Witthoff, Lynda Sebestyen, Jessica Moyer and Tonya Wheeler (4:20.3).

"All five of our first places would be in the top of the scoring any place in the state," said Gregor. "The kids were mostly running against themselves and they were still running their best times."

"It was a nice meet — both the girls and the boys put out good efforts," he added.

Third place finished for the Rocks were the discus relay of Nikki Santilli, Kristin Bernhardt and Kathryn Ryan (244.7); the shuttle hurdle relay of Theresa Giacherio, Sarah Makins, Cherylann Paravantes and Katie Lyons

(1:13.4) and Giacherio in the open 100-meter dash (16.26).

Fourth-place finishes for the Rocks were the shotput relay of Santilli, Bernhardt and Ryan (84-6); Alysia Sofios in the 100-meter dash (13.39); and Witthoff in the 1,600-meter run (5:49.9).

Fifth-place finishes were the 6,400-meter relay of Beth Turomsha, Marcia Woodburn, Katey Heid and Kelly Stenkoy (24:00.11); and the high jump relay of Wheeler, and Shelly Sockow (10-8).

Thursday the girls improved their dual meet record to 2-0 with a 105-23 victory over North Farmington, taking 13 of 16 first place finishes.

The boys are also undefeated after winning the Tiger Relays.

"It was a team effort," said boys coach Gary Balconi. "Balance has been the key word for this team."

"We performed well in the field events, the distance team has been outstanding and the sprints are running well," he added. "We have excellent athletes and the track staff are helping the kids come prepared to competition."

First place finishes for the boys included the high jump relay of Jake Baker and Cliff Lee; the long jump relay of Leon Hister, Jim Ramsay and Don Johnson; the 6,400-meter relay of Mike Wooters, Jason McDonald, Derek Cudini and John Thomas (19:00.05); and the 3,200-meter relay of Joe Pawluszka, McDonald, Thomas and Mike Patterson (8:26.1).

Second place finishes were the shot relay and discus relays of Rob Casler, Steve Balog and Brian Schumacher; Ramsay in the open high hurdles (15.5); the 800-meter relay of Joe Nunez, Baker, Mike Richards and Andy Rojeski (1:34.7); and the 1,600-meter relay of Nunez, Baker, Pawluszka and Rojeski (3:35.4).

Third places went to the shuttle relay of Jamie Miller, Johnson, Brian Bouchene and Ramsay (1:09.5); the distance medley of Miller, Andy Leroy, Wooters and Derek Cudini (11:36.5); and the 400-meter relay of Hister, Todd Forbes, Ramsay and Matt Perron (45.6).

Fourth places went to Johnson in the open high hurdles (16.2), Andy Hellmers, with a personal best in the open 1,600-meter run (4:50.00)

Thursday the Rocks defeated North Farmington, 97-39, to improve their dual meet record to 2-0.

The Salem boys squad will travel to Westland John Glenn to take on the defending division and conference champs tomorrow while the girls host the Rockets at 3:30 p.m.

Saturday the boys will participate in the all-area relays at Livonia Churchill and the girls will travel to Walled Lake Central for the Stafford Relays. Both teams will be at home for dual meets against Canton at 3:30 p.m.

Salem baseball undefeated

BY RITA DERBIN

The Rocks, ranked sixth in the state, are on a roll and remain undefeated this baseball season behind strong hitting and solid pitching.

Monday the Salem squad defeated Farmington, 3-0, behind Chris Tomas' outstanding pitching performance and a perfectly played game in the field.

"We weren't ourselves offensively," said coach John Graylin, whose Rocks are 10-0. "But we had strong pitching and defense."

Tomas (2-0) went seven innings throwing only 71 pitches. The bats were quiet in game, but a Kevin Craggs home run made it 1-0 early and Scott Niemiec, who had two hits on the day, doubled in a run in the sixth.

The Rocks won three games Saturday to win the Monroe Invitational Tournament.

Salem held on to beat Canton, 11-4, in the championship game. Kurt Singleton (1-0) relieved starter Dan Hutchinson, giving up two runs, four hits and struck out one in four innings for the decision.

Jeff Belisle had two doubles and four RBI in the game and Niemiec added two hits.

In the first game Saturday, Belisle (1-0) struck out six and gave up five hits and five runs as the Rocks defeated Taylor Kennedy, 11-5.

Helping Belisle out at the plate was Tom Davey, who had three hits four RBI. Niemiec added a triple and a single and scored two runs.

In the second game, the Salem squad, behind Scott Rodgers' pitching, won 8-1. The victory was Rodgers' fifth win in as many games. He scattered five hits over six innings while striking out seven and allowing one run.

Last Thursday the Salem squad recorded an 8-2 victory over Walled Lake Central. Tomas pitched a two-hitter and Belisle contributed a double and two RBI. Niemiec added a single and scored two runs and Davey went had a double in two at bats.

Monday afternoon Rodgers struck out 11 in six innings as the Rocks defeated North Farmington, 13-4.

Salem travels to Westland John Glenn tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. for a crucial doubleheader against the Rockets, who are ranked second in the state. The Rocks will then participate in the Redford Union Invitational Saturday before hosting Livonia Stevenson Monday at 4 p.m.

Ranked 2nd in state

Rock kickers down N'ville

BY RITA DERBIN

A stingy defense has been the key to success for the Rocks girls soccer team.

The Rocks have only given up one goal this season to the 59; they have scored in front of goalkeeper Jenny Emmett.

Monday was the same old story as the Rocks defeated Northville, 2-0. Erin Harvey scored both goals as the second-ranked Salem squad went to 8-0 and Emmett recorded her seventh shutout. Assists in the game went to Gwen Gibbish and Mandy Drummond.

"It was a tough game," said Salem coach Ken Johnson. "Northville was very physical but our defense was terrific and Harvey was shooting."

The defense of Michelle Cronin, Gibbish, Lisa Ferguson and Shelby

Carey played outstanding, according to Johnson, stopping Northville after Salem took a 1-0 first half lead.

Saturday the Rocks defeated Kalamazoo Loy Norrix, 11-1, but Emmett gave up her first goal of season after recording six straight shutouts.

Last Thursday the Rocks defeated Troy, then ranked number two in the state, 2-0.

Harvey and Kris Goff each scored for Salem. Drummond and Harvey each added assists.

So far in the season Harvey has 16 goals and seven assists for 39 points and Drummond has 12 goals and 10 assists for 34 points.

The Rocks will host Farmington on Friday and travel to Livonia Churchill Monday night. Both games begin at 7 p.m.

"There were a lot of teams and the weather was nice," he added. "We had a nice time."

Last Thursday the Chiefs defeated Farmington Harrison, 80.5-66.5. The Canton squad is now 1-1 in dual meets.

Canton softball

BY RITA DERBIN

The Chiefs softball team is 7-0 after defeating Farmington Harrison, 12-0 Monday afternoon.

Kelly Holmes improved her record to 5-0 and lowered her .38 earned run average (ERA) to almost zero as she pitched a no-hitter for the Canton squad, striking out 10 and walking four in the five inning affair. Renee Dory led the offense with two hits. Holmes and Danielle Mortiere each added hits in the game.

"We're starting to gel as a team," said coach Jim Arnold. "Our defense has been playing good and the bats are finally coming alive."

The Chiefs swept a doubleheader against Redford Union Saturday.

In the first game, Holmes struck out nine and threw a one-hitter in a 13-0 victory.

Kris Ford led the 14-hit offensive attack in the mercy-shortened game going three for four. Mortiere added two hits and two RBI. Sarah Shimmelfenneg and Kim Hengy added two hits apiece and Renee Dory drove in two runs in the game.

In the second game, also shortened to five innings, the Canton squad won 14-1. Shannon Murphy (2-0), who has a 1.25 ERA struck out four and walked one and recorded a no-hitter in the game, allowing only an unearned run in the game.

Julie Nicastri had two of the Chiefs' six hits in the game. Murphy also added two hits and Esther Buzuvis and Nicole Sequin each had a hit.

Last Thursday, the Chiefs defeated Northville, 7-3. Holmes struck out 11 and walked none for the victory.

Dory, catching in the game, threw out two runners attempting to steal. Sequin and Holmes added the offense with two hits and two RBI each.

"The defense played real well," said Arnold. "And the pitching has been excellent."

The Chiefs will travel to Livonia Franklin Thursday and host Livonia Churchill Monday. Both games begin at 4 p.m.

SEMCOG okays grant for Mettetal purchase

On Thursday, the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments' regional review committee recommended that the purchase of Mettetal with the $5.1 million grant be carried out. The Michigan Department of Transportation is responsible for securing the grant.

SEMCOG had asked for input from Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton, and the Wayne County Planning Commission before making its decision.

Canton, where the airport is located, presented a nine page paper to the review committee citing why the airport should not be bought. But, it didn't do any good, said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack.

"It was slam dunk before we even got there," Yack said. "Their staff depended on a study on airport systems (SEMCOG's own) that is not yet complete. What they should have done is not issue an opinion. But they voted."

The review committee voted unanimously to recommend the grant.

The grant will still be held up by the possibility of contamination from leaky fuel tanks (that have been removed) at the airport. The Federal Aviation Administration requires an environmental review of the site before approving any grant.

Currently, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources is working with the Klochko family, who own the airport, to determine the extent of any possible contamination to soil or ground water.

Then there is still a referendum on the November ballot in Plymouth that, if passed, would bar the city from owning or operating an airport.

But if the grant is approved before then, Plymouth might go ahead with a purchase, Mayor R. Jack Kenyon said Monday.

"I don't think the city would stop for any artificial reason," Kenyon said. "We'll move ahead with the process. But I don't think the grant will come through before then."

Theme picked

The theme for the 1991 Fall Festival will be "American Small Town Fair."

Shawn Santo, of Plymouth, came up with the winning theme. She will receive complimentary main meal tickets throughout the festival, which runs Sept. 5-8.
