

Huntington Falls development is back to square 1

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

The much-touted Huntington Falls project is back to "go."

Hailed as the largest non-industrial development in Wayne County other than the Renaissance Center in Detroit, the 933-acre mixed industrial-residential-office-recreational project was slated for the former Wayne County Boys Training School site between Five and Six Mile roads and Sheldon and Beck roads.

But now its future is in question.

The project was estimated to cost $2 billion and take 11 years to complete.

A year ago, the leading partner of Huntington Falls Ltd., R. A. DeMattia asked Wayne County for a one-year extension on the option to the $31.75 million purchase. The deadline for that extension is in April.

"We could still be on our extension, but we said, 'Let's come back to the table,'" DeMattia said Tuesday.

State cites Cygnet for safety violations

BY ANNA MURRAY

A Plymouth Township firm has been cited by the Michigan Department of Labor for safety violations totaling $280 following a Dec. 13 explosion that sent dozens to local hospitals.

Despite a lengthy investigation, the Michigan Bureau of Safety and Regulation has not yet determined the cause of the explosion at the Cygnet Automated Cleaning facility in Metro West Industrial Park.

However, an extensive narrative contained in the bureau's report reveals there were some potentially serious problems at Cygnet the day of the blast.

The 18,500 square foot facility was used to clean industrial paint containers. The pre-Christmas explosion nearly leveled the facility, and workers from adjacent buildings as well as from Cygnet went to hospitals complaining of dizziness and nausea.

The Department of Labor report found Cygnet did not have adequate lockout procedures to keep people out during an accident. It also found Cygnet did not maintain a log of "recordable occupational injuries or illness."

Finally, the report said Cygnet had failed to post the Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Act.

The first violation carried a fine of $200. The second and third are $40 a piece. The fines must be paid by the end of the month.

The report also recommended the company "evaluate possible chemical reactions between cleaning solvents," but did not determine if any of the chemicals used at Cygnet caused the explosion.

Among other chemicals, Cygnet used Methyl Ethyl Ketone (MEK) and N-Methyl-2-Pyrrolidone (NMP).

If inhaled MEK may cause severe lung damage, according to a material safety sheet issued by the substance's manufacturer. NMP is also harmful if inhaled. Both substances are flammable.

According to statements acquired by the Department of Labor from Cygnet employees, the paint containers are cleaned in a multi-stage process using mostly NMP. MEK is used to wash the containers at the very end of the process.

According to the employee interviews,

Twp., Canton may sue

Detroit hikes sewer rates

BY ANNA MURRAY
AND KEN VOYLES

The River Rouge-Huron Valley water system is asking its users to approve rate increases of 10 per cent for water and 12 per cent for sewers.

And that just may lead to a lawsuit involving both Plymouth and Canton townships.

The Detroit City Council approved the rate increase Monday.

The increase will translate into different percentage rises in the various communities served by the sewer system.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Gerry Law said a recommendation will be presented to the township board to "not pass any increase along to the customers."

"We will eat the cost," he said.

At both of last week's Plymouth Township and Canton board of trustee meetings the increase was outlined by auditor Ken Kankel of the Southfield firm Plante & Moran.

Bus line shutdown to affect P-C

BY HILLAN BOGATER

Unless the Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation (SMART) discovers a way to offset its existing $7.7 million deficit, linchpin transportation services for the tri-county area will stop March 27.

A total of 240 big-bus routes in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties are on the list of expected cuts should the funding fail to come through.

Eighty are located in Wayne County, and two of them directly service The Plymouth-Canton Community.

"It's going to be hard for everybody."

2nd conflict of interest for Twp. trustee?

Abe Munfakh voted on a 1990 Plymouth Township Board issue from which he stood to gain.

This is the second case raised publicly recently involving alleged conflict of interest on the part of Munfakh and his Ann Arbor engineering firm.

He says a lack of communication may have been partially to blame in this case.

On Jan. 9, 1990 the township board voted to rezone a parcel of land adjacent to the Plymouth Hills mobile home park. The land was being rezoned from agricultural to residential use so the mobile home park could be expanded.

Treasurer likely to resign March 24

Will election decide Brown's successor?

BY KEN VOYLES

There's a new wrinkle in the Jerry Brown saga in Canton, one which may allow the township to avoid appointing a temporary treasurer.

The 61-year-old treasurer's disability approval came through from the Canton insurance carrier three weeks ago.

But the official letter, which arrived last week, according to Dan Durack, Canton's administrative services director, stipulates that the benefit period begins March 25.

Officials in Canton now think it likely Brown will resign Tuesday, March 24. The resignation must be okayed by the Canton Board of Trustees, which meets that night, before it becomes official.

"I've gotten indications that he will resign just before that (March 25) date," said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack Monday.

Durack said he had talked to Brown last week to confirm that the treasurer had also received the disability letter. Durack said Brown told him at the time that he would resign effective March 24.

All this sets up the possibility that the township could wait to replace the treasurer until the primary and general elections already planned this year.

Brown will receive his first insurance payment by mid-April, said Durack. He then will receive $2,000 each month as the settlement.

Brown has not been active in township government since taking a medical leave last September. At the time he said he planned to eventually resign his position and leave the board. Sandy Setlock has run the treasurer's office in her role as deputy. During his medical leave Brown has continued to draw his full salary which increased in November to $46,700.

Once Brown resigns the township has 45 days to appoint a replacement. If the township does not make an appointment the governor then has another 90 days or so to call for a special election.

WTUA probe approved; Yack wants changes

BY KEN VOYLES

With a state legislative investigation of the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA) now a certainty, the organization's chairperson said he wants to see "procedural" changes at WTUA.

Tom Yack, the WTUA chairperson and supervisor in Canton, said he welcomes such an investigation.

Jim Kosteva, Canton's state representative, called for the investigation following revelations by a Detroit daily newspaper, of allegedly improper conduct by WTUA in the building of the sewer line to Ypsilanti. The investigation was okayed by state House Speaker Lewis Dodak.

"Procedurally we definitely need to look at some issues," said Yack on Monday.

Yack said the WTUA organization needs to examine its "personnel management," as well as consider using more RFPs (request for proposal) to assist in the selection of professional services and reexamine WTUA's bidding policy.

In another interview last week, Yack said he was trying to "get the project's credibility back to where it was."

"If we are looking at legislation for organizations like ours we need to think about the way we are doing business now and the way we will be doing business," said Yack, who met with Kosteva Thursday.

Yack said WTUA had bid out all of the "product" aspects of the WTUA construction, including such items as concrete, steel and other building materials.

He also said that the law firm involved made "perfect sense" because the firm was already representing both Canton and Plymouth townships.

Yack admits, however, that the engineering aspects of the project "could have been" done through RFPs.

"There were a lot of heavyweights that didn't want this project to go when it first began," said Yack. "Canton was the impetus behind this project from the start."

WTUA was the outgrowth of the township's legal battles with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR), said Yack.

In October of 1986 the township went to court after the DNR banned all sewer construction in Canton. Four days later Northville and Plymouth townships joined Canton in proposing they join "Son of Super Sewer" project.

After Canton's court effort failed the township attorney, Jud Hemming, recommended Canton obtain additional sewage capacity from the Ypsilanti Community Utility Authority (YCUA).

WTUA was then formed in December of that year and the ban on sewers in Canton was lifted by spring of 1987.

Construction, which began in 1991, is expected to be completed by 1994.

In a letter printed in the Detroit Free Press Saturday, WTUA commissioners defended the project.

They said the project is supported by the Michigan DNR, and the chairperson of the Rouge River Cleanup Executive Steering Committee.

Now, said Yack, he wants to make sure Canton "asserts itself" again.

Wetlands plan raises concerns

BY JILLIAN BOGATER

About 30 local residents, company owners and attorneys met Monday afternoon for a public hearing regarding a wetlands use permit.

Several of those present expressed concerns about the project.

Wayne Disposal, Inc., a Ypsilanti based landfill operator, applied for a wetlands permit in November to fill in 30.2 acres of a 200-acre landfill site located at Lilley Road and Michigan Avenue in south Canton.

The public hearing, coordinated by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR), is required by Goemaere-Anderson Wetlands Protection Act if the public requests such a forum.

The hearing began with a review of the proposal by Laurel Kendall, senior project engineer for Wayne Disposal, followed by a slide presentation from Don Tilton, an attorney from Johnson, Johnson & Roy in Ann Arbor.

OV church heading to new Twp. home

This historic church in Old Village is currently for sale. (Crier photo by Erik Lukask)

BY KEN VOYLES

The 200-member strong congregation at Praise Chapel Church of God in Old Village will soon move to a new home in Plymouth Township.

The church, located on Mill street in Old Village, went on sale about two weeks ago, said Pastor Roderick Trusty. The asking price is about $500,000.

"We're in the process of purchasing a new home," said Trusty, who hoped to make a purchase offer on a new site Monday.

The 21-year-old congregation has been looking for a new home for three years, said Trusty, who has been with the church since 1987.

"We're real excited about it," said Trusty.

The congregation, which had shrunk to about eight members when Trusty arrived, now has members from as far as Windsor, Chelsea, Monroe and Pontiac.

"Actually about 80 per cent of congregation comes from outside of Plymouth," Trusty said.

The new site - Trusty did not want to name the location until after the closing - is on eight acres of "prime" township land.

The new church has not been designed yet, Trusty said, so square footage numbers are unavailable. But the building will include among other things an auditorium that seats 600, a recreation

Site of house fire raises resident's ire

BY ANNA MURRAY

A fire that occurred exactly a year ago is still smoldering -- in the figurative sense.

And the City of Plymouth debate over who is responsible for the burned structure on Farmer Street has ignited tempers at Plymouth City Hall.

The fire took place March 4, 1991 at 305 Farmer St. The owner of the building, Kelly Clark, was charged and then acquitted of arson.

In a series of letters -- introduced at Monday night's Plymouth City Commission meeting -- city Engineer Ken West and city resident and Plymouth Township firefighter Charles VanVleck asked why the eyesore still remains untouched.

In his March letter to the commission, VanVleck said, "The owners and residents on Farmer Street...have worked very hard and long to improve the conditions and appearance of their houses."

He said no "repair or replacement" of the burned building had yet begun.

VanVleck said applications to both City Manager Steven Walters and West had not produced results.

In his letter to the commission, West defended his department's actions. He said the building department had issued violations and that a warrant had been filed Oct. 9.

"We have contacted the police department on several different occasions since that date and informed them where Mr. Clark currently resides, and to the best of our knowledge the warrant is still in our police department and has not been served," West's letter read.

Munfakh said he wasn't notified of firm's role

Munfakh -- had been hired for the project.

Munfakh voted in favor of the rezoning, board minutes show.

Reportedly, his firm was paid about $100,000 for work on the addition of 144 lots to the park.

"I didn't even know we were involved," said Munfakh.

He added that no one in his firm notified him because mobile home parks are normally not approved by the board.

According to Plymouth Township Building Department officials, unlike other building projects, mobile home parks are approved by the planning commission and then go to the state for final approval.

The measure would only come before the board in the circumstance that a rezoning was needed -- such as in this case.

"I asked my people, 'Why didn't someone tell me we were involved?'" said Munfakh, "If I knew we were involved, I would have abstained."

Alan Rothe who was in charge of the Ayres Lewis aspect of the project said he didn't notify Munfakh "because we didn't expect it to be a board issue."

Joe Ruggirello, the owner of the development, said he and his attorneys had expected Munfakh to abstain from the vote but added, "I don't know that he's (personally) had any involvement in the project."

Plymouth Township Treasurer Mary Brooks voted against the rezoning. However, she said she cast a negative vote because she was concerned about the proximity of a gun club to the residential area.

Munfakh's firm is also involved in the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA) project. Munfakh voted to form WTUA and has said he has abstained on all succeeding votes. His firm could earn several million dollars from the project.

Who owns WTUA, other bonds?

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

Amidst criticism of cronyism and conflicts of interest surrounding the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA), one issue surfacing is ownership of the project's bonds by elected officials who set policy and who even decide on financing the bonds.

The issue affects not only WTUA bonds, but other bond issues such as the recent bonds approved by Plymouth-Canton School voters.

Should a public official disclose ownership of public bonds which could be affected by that official's vote? Should a public official be allowed to own such bonds?

Currently, state law does not make ownership of those bonds public record -- even for public officials.

Thus, if a township board member votes on bonding for a sewer project, in which he or she owns bonds, it could pose a conflict of interest.

After public discussions about the WTUA bond issue surfaced, Plymouth Township Treasurer Mary Brooks announced Monday that she and her husband had purchased a $10,000 WTUA bond.

With those changes, Mrs. Hulsing moved to approve the agenda as amended. Supported by Mr. Griffith. Ayes all.

E.I Gerald Law, Supervisor

Board Resolution honoring Richard Gornick

Resolution No. 92-02-25-09

Supervisor Law presented the following Resolution to Kathie Gornick honoring Dr. Richard Gornick and signed by the entire board of Trustees.

WHEREAS, Richard Gornick, Ph.D. came to Plymouth Township in 1968; and

WHEREAS, Dr. Gornick was a Township Trustee from November of 1974 to November 1978; and

WHEREAS, Dr. Gornick also served the Township as Chairman of the Planning Commission and Chairman of the Zoning Board of Appeals; and

WHEREAS, Dr. Gornick served the entire Plymouth community as President of the Plymouth Historical Museum and President of the Community Improvement Association; and

WHEREAS, Dr. Gornick, through his unselfish dedication of his time, helped safely guide Plymouth Township through difficult and often perilous times; and

WHEREAS, Dr. Gornick, has departed this earth to receive his rightful rewards in another space and time; and

WHEREAS, that the Charter Township of Plymouth, acting on behalf of its residents and business people, posthumously extends its sincere appreciation and gratitude to DR. RICHARD GORNICK for his tremendous contributions to life as it is today in our fine community; and

NOW, THEREFORE, MAY IT BE RESOLVED, that the Township board, on behalf of the entire community extends its deep sympathy and condolences to the family of Dr. Gornick who gave him the support and allowed him the time to accomplish so many things during his lifetime.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we have hereunto set our hand and caused the seal of the Charter Township of Plymouth to be affixed this eleventh day of February, Nineteen Hundred and Ninety two.

Supervisor Law opened the public comment at 7:38 p.m. Ms. Sandy Fritz of Health Enrichment Center, a state licensed massage therapy school wishing to locate an establishment in Plymouth, addressed the Board and submitted an ordinance revision proposal and educational information. Supervisor Law closed the public comment at 7:50 p.m.

Mr. Munfakh moved to approve the Final Preliminary Plat for Rolling Oaks Subdivision located north of North Territorial, south of M-14, between Beck and Ridge Roads, subject to development consistent with the approved landscape plan and to site plan approval for the pool area being received prior to approval of the Final Plat. Supported by Mr. Horton. Ayes all on a roll call vote.

Mr. Horton moved to authorize the Supervisor to sign the permit applications for the National Pollution Discharge Elimination Systems (NPDES). Supported by Mr. Griffith. Ayes all on a roll call vote with Mr. Munfakh, abstaining.

Mr. Griffith moved to approve Resolution No. 92-02-25-10 declaring the Township's official intent to reimburse project expenditures for Fire Station #3 with bond proceeds. Supported by Mr. Munfakh. Ayes all on a roll call vote. The entire resolution is incorporated in the official minutes in the Clerk's office.

Mrs. Gordon addressed the board requesting approval to purchase a new copier to replace a 12 year old copier for the Police Department.

Bids had been received from 3 vendors:

Alan Bietto - Business Products -- Sharp #8220 - $6,469.55

Metropolitan Office Equipment -- Mesa #3585 - $7,431.40

Konika Business Machine -- Konica #3035 - $7,981.00

Mrs. Brooks moved to approve the purchase of a Sharp Copier #8570 in the amount of $6,469.55 for the Police Department. Supported by Mr. Munfakh. Ayes all on a roll call vote.

Mr. Munfakh moved to approve the purchase of a 1992 Pierce Fire Pumper which meets Township specifications as recommended by the Fire Chief not to exceed $201,218.00. Supported by Mrs. Brooks. Ayes all on a roll call vote.

Mr. Horton moved to approve the $10 per student Township contribution for those who reside within the boundaries for the pre-school 1992 Salary Town program. Supported by Mr. Munfakh. Ayes all on a roll call vote.

Mr. Griffith moved to establish March 10, 1992 as the date for a public hearing on the request of Plymouth/Beck Associates to declare Plymouth Corporate Park - Lot "B" an Industrial Development District. Supported by Mr. Munfakh. Ayes all on a roll call vote.

Mr. Ken Kusiel spoke to the difficulty in determining over the years how Detroit arrived at its sewer and water rates, the confusing "assess of flow" and the "interlocking" by Detroit officials of those raising questions. He touched on the immense amount of planning done on the "super-sewer" project, the federal support of 55% of that project and the recent drying up of federal money. It is warned that the elimination of CSO's in Detroit and the recent and up-dating of the aging treatment plant there would cost over a billion dollars. No action taken.

Mr. Horton moved to accept and file Communications, Resolutions and Reports as listed. Supported by Mr. Munfakh. Ayes all.

It was moved by Mr. Munfakh and supported by Mr. Horton that the meeting adjourn at 8:50 p.m. Ayes all.

N'ville man hurt after chase

A Northville Township man was injured Thursday when a car, chased by Plymouth Township police, jumped a highway median and crashed into his car, police said.

According to Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry, Officer Steven Mann attempted to stop a 1987 Cougar for improper registration when the driver accelerated and tried to flee.

The officer chased the car northbound on I-275 into Livonia, when the suspect's car jumped the median to eastbound I-96. The fleeing car then crashed into the rear of a Ford Festiva driven by a Northville Township man, Berry said. Both the suspect and the Northville man were taken to the hospital, treated and released.

According to Berry the injuries were minor in nature.

The suspect was released to the custody of the Wayne County Sheriff's department because there were outstanding felony warrants for his arrest.

State action needed Quasi-public agencies need strict policies, procedures

Now that some of the highly-charged emotion has settled, and people are looking at the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA) project with a more level approach, it is time to take stock and suggest changes which could, in the long run, ease the minds of residents living in the three townships of Canton, Plymouth and Northville -- and perhaps the entire state.

All authorities or quasi-government agencies -- WTUA, the Plymouth Library Board, or the 35th District Court Building Authority, for example -- must be reexamined in light of recent developments.

Since there are no natural checks and balances in place, they need to be created -- and in a hurry. The best way to do so is by demanding full accountability and regular public scrutiny.

An organization that does not have written policies and procedures for such important items as personnel, ethics, hiring, bidding out projects, disclosing information and conducting open meetings should not be allowed under state law. Local governmental units participating in such "authorities" should demand the highest level of standards be approved as board policy.

Setting up a mechanism to assure taxpayers that such authorities or agencies follow tough guidelines, as tough as any for local governments, is the next logical step for the Michigan Legislature.

This public accountability should now be foremost in the minds of those folks who dreamed up and continue to run WTUA. The organization should now rightly come under closer public scrutiny for years to come as the construction phase of the project concludes.

But it is too late now to correct any appearance of impropriety when WTUA admits it does not have a board-passed policy of bidding or requests for proposals.

The examination of practices and policies should not have been necessary in the first place, but sloppy management and loose control let the WTUA monster get away from the commissioners who ultimately have to face the music.

Tighter control from the inside the organization is called for. This can only happen if there is a clear-cut set of written policies telling staff and elected officials what is and what is not acceptable.

Today calling WTUA an organization is almost a misnomer. It is made up of an executive, a secretary to the executive and the three commissioners one each from Canton, Plymouth and Northville.

Everyone else connected to WTUA is connected by figurative umbilical cord. All of the contractors, site planners, engineers, lawyers, consultants, and lobbyists, have "joined" WTUA in one way or another under the eyes of a commission dedicated to being the overseer.

Often it was done without competitive bids. This, first and foremost, must end. There apparently was active bidding only when it came to "products," things like concrete or steel. But in hiring consultants and attorneys it apparently just seemed simpler not to worry about any family or business connections.

State law should offer more regulatory help. These complicated bond issues and public works projects often receive less scrutiny than Plymouth Township building its new police station or Canton Township remodeling its third floor at Township Hall.

Why doesn't the state require public officials to disclose their personal purchase of bonds for public projects they help set policy for?

WTUA will never go away now. The sewer lines are almost in the ground, and it would cost too much to start all over again.

So now what is called for is the ending of the apparent mismanagement at WTUA. This can be best done by implementing, or forcing the implementation, of standard policies and practices, the kind of guidelines all public agencies should have in place.

It may also be appropriate for public officials to wonder whether it is good public policy to have the same legal counsel as most other governmental units in the area. (The same law firm that represents WTUA also works for Plymouth, Canton and Northville Townships; Schoolcraft College; and the 35th District Court.

The best answer may be -- in the long run -- to simply end the link between all of those who began WTUA and those who jumped on the lucrative bandwagon. If that means finding new attorneys then so be it. If it means cutting off consultants and the charade of the lobbyist, then so be it.

When all is said and done, the surest way to put an end to improper and irresponsible management is to make sure all such authorities not only fashion but follow the kind of practices one has come to expect from township or city governments.

... and some small successes

Shared services story full of failures

EDITOR:

First of all, the City of Plymouth needs Plymouth Township, and the township needs the city. Otherwise, The Crier issue of Feb. 12 amply covered the issue of sharing services.

Why am I writing this? Well, I am not running for public office again -- the last time I did, the late Fred Delano was quoted in The Crier as saying "I had hoped for a younger man." (I was 70.) So why am I writing this today? Well, it's a dark, cloudy day, even thundering. Overlooking the M-14 overpass at Beck Road I recognize township police cars, blue lights flashing, issuing tickets to heavily loaded BFI rubbish trucks, probably for not stopping leaving the ramp, thus contributing to expanding the Plymouth courthouse.

Back to shared services. Talks dragged out as a matter of public relations.

Why is shared services a dead issue? History, city managers.

Let's go back to Mr. Blodgett's reign in the city. When he was city manager, cooperation was the main issue then. Due to the need for an area-wide ambulance service to replace what undertakers had been handling, officials from surrounding communities met to come up with the best answer.

I handled sending out for bids from private companies. Lowest bid was $80,000 a year, and this housed in a private home with an ambulance parked in the side drive. There was no guarantee that it would be available when called.

A committee suggested that all should consider using their own firefighters, including medical training. The township was already doing this. What did the city manager do? He went out figuring he could do better. From then on Plymouth continued using private companies.

Over the years The Crier regularly reported failures. Township residents received free ambulance service.

Another example: both the city and township used wells for water. The city wells were larger producers. Due to increased requests from township industry on the east side of Mill Street, we asked the city for help! The answer we received, "Join the city or be annexed." A challenge.

Shortly thereafter I was invited to join a committee of prominent residents including members representing Wayne County. As I was president of the large homeowners association, the Community Improvement Association of Plymouth Township, they used me as chairperson. All I recall is that I never entered into the planning that went on until at a meeting several weeks later.

They put before me a complete plan to get Detroit water and asked for my signature. I have the copy I signed. This was another failure to share. The city, to be different, built a large reservoir at their well field, later referred to as "Archie's folly."

A few years passed by and an aspiring young woman living on the city's west side didn't like the well water. She complained to get city residents on her side. She won. The city hooked up to the system. It took a woman to guide the city fathers.

In the middle 1970s, against a "no" vote by residents to a referendum to purchase the Hilltop golf course and start a recreational area, the township purchased it anyway.

The city was approached on joining the township in this endeavor. This was also rejected. Regardless, in my minutes, it was announced that it was there for the use of all community residents, not to be run for profit. How things have changed since then. (A profit of $230,000 reported for 1991.) One more failure, right or wrong.

Any successes? Yes.

At the regular gathering at the round table in the Mayflower dining room at 10 a.m. over coffee with all of the so-called business leaders in the city former mayor Harold Gwenter, a deer, brought up the subject of "the Plymouth community."

This at the time the Plymouth "area" planning commission, representing all surround governments, including the school board, attended, including top officials. Subject, "How to welcome travelers coming in from the west to 'the Plymouth community.'"

Gwenter promised us the deed to a parcel of city owned land. I, for the township, promised a park with a sign welcoming all to the community. Give Harold the due credit.

After reading the editorial dwelling on shared services, as a participant in the past, I couldn't resist adding in the actual fine details leading up to the current impasse as I see it. It is regrettable, as what affects one affects all.

We need leaders. Why are they hiding? Speak up!

FRANK MILLINGTON

Shuts off public comment

Law forgets people

EDITOR:

The Plymouth Township Board of Trustee meeting of Feb. 25 included in its agenda a section for "public comment."

I and other township residents in attendance were completely surprised that Gerald Law, Plymouth Township supervisor, proclaimed that there would be no public comments.

It is the usual practice that each board meeting agenda include a public comments section, which allows questions and comments from the public. Law stated that if an individual had questions then the individual could come forward after the meeting to discuss concerns.

I strongly object to deleting the public comment section at any meeting. I believe this provides the opportunity for an individual to step forward and direct a question or make a comment to the board. If there is apprehension on someone talking too long this situation can be controlled by limiting the time an individual can talk or have the floor.

I also strongly disagree with the suggestion made by Law at an earlier meeting that I was welcome to come to his office to discuss affairs. The practice of office meetings might be proper for an individual problem but, in my opinion, not the way to conduct discussions on general issues.

When I come to board meetings I would like all the board members to hear my questions and likewise I would like both the board members and those in attendance to hear any response.

Law's decision at the Feb. 25 meeting did not keep within the spirit of our township's motto "People-Our Priority."

Haberdasher says thanks

EDITOR:

Thank you...thank you for helping us liquidate our inventory so quickly, for your offerings of best wishes and for your kind acknowledgements of our years of service to you and to our community -- it feels good to know so many people noticed and care...and, it was our pleasure.

"So where to from here, Fred? What about the Briefcase Drill Team?"

Well, first things first -- the drill team will continue to march. My own plans include further developing of our me and mr jones petite store, finding tenants for our Ann Arbor Trail and Main Street locations that will compliment downtown Plymouth and pursuing my full time position in residential real estate sales and investments with Robert Bake Realtors.

Yes, community promotions and working toward an attractive, vibrant downtown Plymouth remain high on my agenda.

Again my thanks, and I hope to see you about town...

Friends & neighbors

Interpreters integrate deaf and hearing worlds

Local churches preach to the deaf

BY ANNA MURRAY

Last fall on Devil's Night, a deaf couple returned to their Northville home to find a fire set in their garage and the wall of their house spray-painted. As police rolled into their driveway, they tried frantically to find out what was going on.

Ken Stevens, pastor of Orchard Hills Baptist Church in Northville, tells this story to illustrate the degree of helplessness and isolation deaf people feel when they cannot communicate with the hearing world around them.

"The social isolation cannot be compared," he said.

Stevens' church is one of several local churches -- including also Main Street Baptist Church in Canton and Tri City Baptist Church -- that provide sign language interpretation to the deaf.

But as Stevens describes, interpreting for the deaf goes far beyond translating sermons and church notices into American Sign Language.

It can involve being called out in the middle of the night to explain to a deaf family, in sign language, why the police have arrived and what has happened to their house. It can also mean accompanying a deaf person to the doctor, or a deaf family to marriage counseling, as well as providing translators for all church activities.

Stevens, a portly and energetic 38-year-old pastor said he first began learning sign language when he was an associate pastor in Mississippi. Since there was a young deaf girl in the parish,

Interpreter Karen Levos of Orchard Hills Baptist Church translates a song for the deaf. (Crier photo by Eric Lukasik)

Stevens was inspired to learn sign language.

Later, as a pastor in Durand, MI, five deaf people joined the parish but soon after, their interpreter moved away and Stevens could not find another one. So Stevens had to take over the job of interpreting the services himself.

"At the end of the first (morning) service I was so exhausted my wife had to wake me up for church that night," Stevens said.

Now Orchard Hills has six interpreters

-- enough so Stevens doesn't have to do the signing himself.

Valerie Reynolds, their head interpreter, gives sign language classes so that other parishioners can interpret services and communicate with deaf members of the parish. Orchard Hills offers interpreting at all church functions including all services, bible study groups and women's craft sessions.

"Most deaf people would not go to church unless there was interpretation," said Stevens.

But deaf interpreting, according to Stevens, accomplishes more than conveying the gospel.

"It helps the deaf understand social circles better," he said.

Deaf people, he added, may have very limited contact with the hearing world. "But they want to communicate and share their hearts with others," he said.

Stevens said though his parish serves only five deaf people on a regular basis, there are an estimated 25,000 deaf people in the metropolitan Detroit area.

"Deaf people are hard to find," said Stevens. "What do you look for in a deaf person?"

Ken Stevens, pastor of Orchard Hills Baptist Church, demonstrates the art of signing.

He adds deaf people are also hard to reach through television or radio advertising. Stevens said the deaf parishioners at Orchard Hills often invite their deaf friends to church.

The Orchard Hills program also helps integrate the hearing into the deaf culture.

Stevens said one of his favorite parts of the service is the interpretation of songs into sign language. The whole congregation joins in the songs.

"To watch sign language is singing is beautiful," said Stevens. It's every bit as beautiful as drama or ballet."

Stevens has started three other deaf ministries in Tennessee. He has taught his wife Beth and his daughter Meghan, 13, to interpret as well.

"The hard part is hearing and immediately translating it," said Beth. "It's also hard taking the abstract and putting it into the concrete."

Theresa Freeman, who has interpreted for the deaf for 17 years, translates a service at Main Street Baptist Church. (Crier photo by Eric Lukasik)

Huntington Falls

"The county is taking it under consideration and reviewing its options," he added.

What happens to the $300,000 deposit handed by DeMattia and his partners to Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara in a ceremony at the site?

"It goes bye-bye," sighed DeMattia, "but everything's negotiable."

The developer estimated that the Huntington Project thus far has cost a total of $1.5 million in "hard costs" such as the deposit, surveys, a tree census and engineering.

"Due to economic conditions," DeMattia said, we have gone back to the county on both the terms and the timing of the agreement. Bringing that much on line right now wouldn't work."

He said the land's value has decreased since the recession and that financing is "very tough."

The county's options could include completely starting over on the property, as it did in 1985 when it rejected all bids. It could give DeMattia's group additional time, or it could seek several developers for various portions of the project.

The Huntington partnership was one of four final bidders on the county site in 1989.

One rumor even suggested the site as a possible Tiger Stadium location since Wayne County was trying to insure the baseball team stayed inside its boundaries.

Wayne County's Office of Economic Development was referring all inquiries on the Huntington Project to the Wayne County Executive's office Tuesday.

Although no official comment was released, one county source said the Huntington Project was the subject of a press release which had been prepared and would be released soon.

'Town meeting'

A special town meeting, which will present a plan on how to improve downtown City of Plymouth, is scheduled for March 12.

The Plymouth Downtown Development Authority (DDA) is sponsoring the meeting, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The meeting will be moderated by officials from Hyett Palma Inc., a Washington D.C. consulting firm that prepared the plan.

Copies of the plan are available for public inspection in the Plymouth District Library, 223 S. Main Street, and in the Plymouth City Hall, 201 S. Main Street beginning Tuesday, March 9.

City Charter hearing planned

BY ANNA MURRAY

A public hearing date has been set for March 9 to determine if, among other charter revision issues, City of Plymouth commissioners should get a raise.

According to some commissioners the commission salary increase in the proposed charter amendments may not be enough.

At a recent commission meeting, some members said the increase in stipend from $10 to $50 for commissioners and to $60 for the mayor was insufficient to cover the incidental costs of holding office.

The commissioners discussed the issue, but no action was taken.

"We ought to have a stipend that allows people in the city to equally strive for office," said Commissioner William McAninch.

McAninch said the small stipend paid to commissioners and the mayor does not "open up the job to all citizens."

Hugh Harsha, chairperson of the Plymouth City Charter Committee, said the $500 stipend to the mayor was established in 1965. The $500 has not been changed in the proposed amendments and is an amount paid to the mayor above the per-meeting amount.

McAninch recommended doubling the stipend.

Mayor Pro-tem Douglas Miller agreed. "No one expects to run for city commission and make money, but it's not necessary to make sacrifices," Miller said.

The commission set March 9 as the date for a public hearing on the charter.

At that time, Plymouth City Manager Steve Walters said, proposed changes to the charter amendments will be discussed and considered.

The amendments will then have to be approved by residents at the polls this year.

Cable group expands to 4

Three local communities have agreed to join Canton in forming a consortium to jointly negotiate their cable franchise renewal contracts.

The City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, and the City of Northville have all agreed to use Municon, a firm that helps municipalities negotiate cable agreements. The firm was hired by Canton last year.

The City of Plymouth was the latest to join the group, with the Plymouth City Commission approving the idea Monday.

Northville Township has not yet decided to join the consortium, according to Township Manager Dick Henningsen.

Find out what it's like to be part of a really exciting and enjoyable sport.

SMART shutdown affects P-C routes

said Jim Maslanka, manager of service development for SMART. "In Plymouth-Canton there is an awful lot of commuters that will be hurt badly."

Route 810 starts in the City of Plymouth on Ann Arbor Trail, and continues on to Main Street, Ann Arbor Road, Newburg, Five Mile Road, Farmington Road and the Jeffries Freeway into Detroit.

An average of 440 people ride the bus route every day, Maslanka said. Out of that number, 95 riders are from Plymouth and Plymouth Township and an average of 19 are from Canton.

The other route which directly services the area is route 835.

This bus line begins on Canton Center Road in Canton and continues on to Ford Road and the Ford Freeway into Detroit. The average weekday ridership for this route is 404; 55 of them are from Canton, Maslanka said.

Other routes that service areas outside of Plymouth and Canton still have a significant effect on residents in the area, Maslanka said.

Route 200, which starts in Wayne and continues down Michigan Avenue into Detroit, services 10 Canton residents per day, while routes 240, 250 and 260, which all start in Westland, affect 22 Canton riders. Route 820, which begins in Farmington and continues into Detroit, affects 16 Plymouth-Canton riders, he said.

The possible elimination of route 810 is making Canton resident Jean Kearney nervous.

"This will make it difficult for me to get into work," said Kearney, who works at a downtown office located at Clifford and Bagley. "I'll need to find someone to carpool with."

Kearney said she has a car she can drive, but fears it may not be dependable and that the drive into Detroit everyday may be too much.

"I'm concerned about my car wearing out," she said. "I don't have the means to replace it."

SMART officials also are becoming concerned about the shrinking bus system.

"Detroit is the largest metropolitan area in the country that doesn't have a dedicated source of income for a transit system," said Jim Aho, acting general manager for SMART. "This is the second time in nine years we've had to make substantial reductions in our busing schedule.

"It's getting to the point where we're fastly becoming a transit agency only in name."

Also likely to be affected by the shutdown of SMART is the Nankin Transit Authority, which serves five communities in western Wayne County, including Canton.

Nankin officials have already approached elected officials in the five communities requesting financial support to continue operating.

The Canton Board of Trustees gave Nankin the extra funding requested but did so contingent upon starting a study to look at the township's options. The study is expected to be reviewed by the board sometime this month.

Nankin depends on SMART for a portion of its funding. State money for Nankin is diverted through SMART, said the Nankin officials, who are trying to get direct aid from the state.

"Transportation in western Wayne County is in basic disarray," said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack. "There is very little coordination. It's a patchwork solution."

Canton wetlands hearing

Approximately 80 per cent of the wetlands in question are classified as indigenous forest, which includes elm, cotton wood, red maple and silver maple trees, Tilton said. The wetland is seasonably flooded -- usually in the spring and the fall -- and consists of peat soil on top of clay, he added.

Ten per cent of the wetland is "shrubby" with dogwood and organic peat soils.

Showing colorful slides of the south Canton wetland site, Tilton cited several other communities -- including Westland, Taylor and Belleville -- that successfully created wetlands, as Wayne Disposal will have to do if their wetlands permit is approved.

Although a new wetlands site has not been chosen yet, it will remain in Canton, Kendall said.

The only public comments generated during the meeting came from attorneys representing a Canton family and a Canton business.

Richard Clark, an attorney representing Canton residents Henry and Phyllis Herig, addressed the hearing officers expressing concerns about the landfill's expansion.

"Birds don't know the difference where boundary lines begin and end," Clark said. "We're running off all of the wildlife with the landfill."

"We're very much opposed to this."

The Herigs have lived at Michigan Avenue and Lilley since 1914, and also have property across the road. They have actively fought landfill efforts to expand since 1986 -- avoiding buy-out offers -- determined to stay where the past four generations of their family have lived.

"We've done all we can to keep the landfill out," Phyllis Herig said. "It's getting to the point where I just can't take the fight. But I don't want to give up...this is big business."

Tom Martin, an attorney representing Canton business Greif Brothers Inc., 4301 Lilley, responded from a letter he received from Wayne Disposal.

"We have obtained some answers that were critical to us," he said, touching on several initial concerns including drainage, what will happen to Lilley road, odor and blowing debris and what will happen to the site once it is filled.

In the end, Kendall said she was pleased with how the hearing went.

"It seemed like a pretty good hearing," she said. Everyone got their piece in and now we'll leave it to the DNR to issue the permit."

Wayne Disposal will find out within 90 whether or not the DNR has granted the permit for the wetlands project.

From state reps, Canton Nankin line enlists help

BY JILLIAN BOGATER

Nankin Transit Authority officials have enlisted the help of a state senator and a representative to change the process of funding for the area transit system.

Currently Nankin's funding is funneled from the State of Michigan through SMART (Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation). The Nankin line services residents in Canton along with four other communities in western Wayne County.

State Senator William Faust (D-Westland) and State Representative William Keith (D-Garden City) are currently lobbying to change the funding process for Nankin, said Ralph Shufeldt, transit commission representative for Canton.

"We want it changed to our money doesn't become part of SMART's money and we can get our funding straight from the state," Shufeldt said, adding that he expects a decision within 30 days by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

"We all try to work as diligently as we can to save this transportation network," Shufeldt said. "It's absolutely vital to the life of our community."

If SMART's funding is cut as expected, Nankin will suffer because of its financial dependence upon SMART, he said.

"If SMART goes out of business, then we're out of business," he said. "They will have done a travesty on the transportation needs of south-western Michigan residents and throw us further into economic chaos."

Presently Canton accounts for 25 per cent of Nankin's ridership, Shufeldt said, adding that Canton provides 25 per cent of funding -- $65,000 for 1992 -- to the small bus system.

"As far as I'm concerned, transportation is going to boil down to taxi cabs and other measures that will be far more expensive than Nankin," Shufeldt said.

A staff report on possible transportation alternatives to Nankin, or other ways to support the bus system, is expected sometime this month in Canton.

Canton officials have said they are most concerned about what effect the shutdown of Nankin will have on local seniors citizens who use the system.

"We could create a service in Canton very easily, but the problem is residents want to go to St. Joseph's in Ann Arbor, or to Plymouth to shop," said Tom Yack, Canton's supervisor. "Then the question becomes one of are we willing to subsidize part of the program?"

Still, Yack thinks, "We'd like to develop our own system or latch on to some other."

Yack said the report on Nankin alternatives will likely be presented to the Canton Board of Trustees sometime this month. He said the report spells out four or five options the township should consider.

"I think the board will be looking for the numbers that justify public support," said Yack, who noted that transportation concerns were ranked at the top of a needs assessment completed last year.

Mostly seniors, but also some mentally handicapped residents, use the line on a regular basis as it runs through Canton, Inkster, Garden City, Westland and Wayne.

Detroit rate hike

Kunkel said the increases asked for by the Detroit sewer system could total 20-25 per cent over the next three years and would cost Plymouth Township about $205,000 and Canton about $350,000 over what they currently pay.

Kunkel also said sewer credits due to Plymouth Township would not be paid by the Detroit sewer system.

Usually, he said, the suburban municipalities are overbilled based on tentative budget projections. But then they are reimbursed later.

"This year $2.9 million was taken by the City of Detroit to pay their sewer bill," Kunkel said.

Kunkel advised the township not to agree to the proposed sewer rate increase because "they have not released the information we need to make an assessment."

Law asked Kunkel if he thought the matter would end up in court.

"I would think it is heading that way," said Kunkel. "It appears part of their CSO program is being billed to you." CSO, or combined sewer, overflow occurs when rain water mixes with sewage and overwhelms treatment facilities, forcing raw sewage into local rivers.

All municipalities must begin to comply with federal regulation limiting sewer overflow.

The Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA) project being built by Canton, Plymouth and Northville townships will treat the townships' sewage in Ypsilanti and provide holding basins to accommodate overflow. That could solve the local CSO problem by 1994 when WTUA's sewer line is completed.

Kunkel said he estimated $10 million of Detroit's CSO program was being billed to suburban communities.

Kunkel added this was the first time a sewer increase has been protested by the Wayne County Executive. Edward McNamara sent the letter of protest on behalf of the county, he said.

Law said, "I want to alert the board that we will be pursuing legal action with other communities."

Law added he was so much criticism has been leveled at WTUA for its high cost, when the City of Detroit sewer rates were skyrocketing.

Law later said in an interview, a study undertaken by township accountants and scheduled for release, March 10 projects it would be 10 times more expensive for the township to stay on the Detroit system than to participate in the WTUA system.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack asked Kunkel at the Canton meeting whether a lawsuit was the only option.

"In theory it shouldn't be," Kunkel said. "But the information has not been furnished to us. They've given us no details in the information we do have."

Kunkel said he attended a public hearing on the increase and was told the water rate increase was due to "capital programs." He said the townships should be concerned about this possible precedent.

Yack said the townships should begin talking with other users of the system as soon as possible.

"Even when WTUA is complete we will still be a split system until 2011," said Yack. "Our goal from the outset of WTUA was to get out of the Detroit sewer system all together."

Canton's water will still come from Detroit but when WTUA is complete most of its sewer capacity will go to Ypsilanti. It will all end up going to Ypsilanti if that treatment site expands.

Elaine Kirchgatter, a Canton trustee, said the township is subsidizing Detroit's system since Detroit does not collect on its delinquent bills.

"We'll come back to the board," said Yack, "with a list of other communities that might want to join a protest of the rate increase. If we litigate, the more users we have the cheaper it will cost."

Kunkel said Detroit officials expect further rate increases to come in the future.

The increases will be effective July 1 this year.

Who owns bonds?

She had voted in favor of renegotiating the bonds, records show. Generally, such renegotiations would not benefit bondholders.

"I have nothing to hide," she said, explaining that her husband, Bob, a retired 38-year Ford Motor veteran, had suggested the investment as part of their portfolio. (A friend was the stockbroker, said the township treasurer.)

"I did feel (the WTUA) bond was a good idea for an investment," Brooks said.

"I may not be perfect, but I'm honest," she said.

Two Northville Township officials have also purchased WTUA bonds — Township Trustee James Nowka and Township Manager (and former Township Treasurer) Richard Henningsen have been identified as owners of the utility bonds.

Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack said he was unaware of any Canton board members who had purchased the bonds.

Decisions of WTUA are made by a three-member board of the township supervisors participating — Plymouth, Canton, Northville. Township board members of those local entities vote on some issues directing their participation in the multi-government body.

David Artley, president of the Plymouth-Canton School Board, said he did not know if any fellow board members owned local bonds, but he did not.

"If they did (own bonds), they should have abstained," Artley said about the recent vote to refinance the school bonds. "It's an issue of ethics."

"If I'd have bought bonds, I'd have sent a note to my fellow board members, and to the superintendent," he added.

Community deaths

Barnett, local author

A local author and artist recently lost a 30-year battle with Muscular Dystrophy. Joseph Barnett, 66, of Canton, died Feb. 15 at the Greenery Extended Care home in Farmington Hills. Funeral services were held Feb. 19 at Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Livonia with the Rev. William Lindholm officiating.

Barnett authored a book of poetry and essays called "Clouds, Clowns and Rainbows," printed by Winston-Derek Publishers. He spent much of his time when he was not writing, painting watercolor clown images. Active with the Muscular Dystrophy Association, Barnett participated in the Adult Club and went to MDA camp every year. He also was a member of the Greenery Resident Council, attending meetings up to a day before his death.

Survivors include Barnett's wife of 38 years Ann; daughters Cheryl, of Canton, and Kimberly Van Dyke, of Suttons Bay; son Mark, of Canton; two grandchildren; one brother and three sisters.

Pastula, Ford employe

Ronald Andrew Pastula, 56, of South Lyon, died Feb. 20. Funeral services were held Feb. 24 at St. Joseph Catholic Church in South Lyon with the Rev. Fr. Howard Vogan officiating. Burial was in Salem-Walker Cemetery.

Mr. Pastula worked for Ford's as a parts handler for 23 years. He served with the U.S. Army in Germany and came to the community 23 years ago. He was a member of the St. Joseph Catholic Church.

Survivors include: wife Judith, of South Lyon; daughters Nancy Stavel, of Colorado, and Kelly Pastula, of South Lyon; grandchildren Andrew and Chad Stavel; brothers Roman, of Redford, John, of Arizona, and John Nakoneczny, of Garden City; sister, Mary Ann Pietrowski, of Westland; and 16 nieces and nephews.

Local arrangements made by the Schrader Funeral Home. Memorials may be made to the Arbor Hospice.

Sullivan, a retiree

Margaret M. Sullivan, 89, formerly of Plymouth, died Feb. 25 in Detroit. Funeral services were held Feb. 28 at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church with Rev. Joseph A. Plawewski officiating. Interment was in Mt. Elliott Cemetery, Detroit.

Ms. Sullivan was a retired Parke Davis chemical employe. She is survived by seven nieces and nephews.

Local arrangements made by Vermeulen Trust 100 Funeral Home in Plymouth.

PSO goes French for show

For those who have taste for anything French, an upcoming concert may be just what you are looking for.

"The French Flavor in Music," presented by the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra (PSO), is scheduled for March 20 beginning at 8 p.m. in the Salem High auditorium.

The program features several French pieces including Debussy's "Nocturnes," "Bolero" by Ravel and selections from "Man of La Mancha" by Leigh.

The event will also feature guest artist Donald C. Hartmann, a bass-baritone from Eastern Michigan University, where he works as an assistant professor of voice.

Tickets are $11 for adults, $10 for senior citizens and students and $5 for students K-12.

DONALD HARTMANN

Tickets are available at a variety of locations throughout Plymouth-Canton-Northville, including Beitner Jewelry, Evola Music Center, Giftfiddler, Bookstall On The Main, and Dearborn Music. They can also be purchased at the box office 30 minutes before performances.

Ballet features youths

A children's ballet featuring the dancers of the Plymouth-Canton Ballet Company is ending this month.

Directed by Dawn Greene, the company will present a dance program aimed specifically at a younger audience. "An Introduction to the Ballet" will include three ballets: "Peter and the Wolf," "Les Sylphides" and "Symphonic Colors."

Three performances are scheduled for the Canton Little Theatre: March 14 at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. and March 15 at 3 p.m.

Tickets are $7 for adults, $6 for senior citizens are children 12 and under. Call 397-8828 for group rates or other information.

Players offer 'Plaza Suite'

An evening of fine dining and theater is available for food loving theater buffs this weekend.

The Northville Players present Neil Simon's "Plaza Suite" Friday and Saturday (March 6-7) at the Northville Community Recreation Center. Curtain time is 8 p.m. and dinner begins at 6:45 p.m.

Tickets are $19.50 and are available at Bookstall on Main or calling 344-1969. A limited number of general admission tickets are available for $7 each.

For more information, call 349-1205.

Kindergarten registration

Kindergarten registration for the 1992-93 school year is set for March 9-13 for children in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools District.

Children are eligible if they will be five-years-old on or before Dec. 1, 1992.

To register, parents or guardians must bring the child's birth certificate, social security number and record of immunization to the school which the child will attend. Proof of residency for the district may also be required.

For more information call Ginnie Murdoch at 451-3137.

Breathers mull pollution

Although a lot of attention is given to outdoor pollutants, the topic of an upcoming speaker is about pollution in the home.

Alex Johnson will lead a discussion about indoor air pollution at the next Plymouth Breathers Club meeting, March 11. Johnson, who represents the American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan, will uncover the most common home pollutants and how to protect your home.

The meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the Community Room of the McAuley Health Center in the City of Plymouth. The Plymouth Breathers meet the second Wednesday of every month.

Places to be

Lamour featured in April

Actress Dorothy Lamour will visit The Plymouth-Canton Community April 30 as guest speaker for the joint Canton Economic Club and Canton Community Foundation luncheon.

The event, which begins at noon, will take place at Plymouth's Mayflower Hotel.

In the evening, Lamour will appear at the Penn Theater for a showing of "This is the Army," a 1943 Irving Berlin musical she starred in. Sponsored by Omnicom Cablevision, the movie showing is free and open to the public.

Tickets for the luncheon are $12 and are available through the Canton Community Foundation. For more information call 454-5427.

"On Golden Pond" stars Rosemary Rock and Bob Kettner rehearse their roles for the upcoming shows.

Guild offers 'Pond'

The Plymouth Theater Guild will present its third play of this season beginning next week.

Performances of "On Golden Pond," by Ernest Thompson, will begin March 13 and continue on March 14-15, 20-22, and 27-28. Friday and Saturday performances will begin at 8 p.m., while Sunday performances start at 6 p.m. The March 20 show will include a sign language interpreter for the hearing impaired.

All performances are at the Water Tower Theatre located on the campus of the Northville Regional Hospital, 41001 W. Seven Mile Road, Northville.

Tickets are available for $7 at the door or $6 for senior citizens and students. Tickets are one dollar less if purchased in advance. Tickets are available at the Penniman Deli and Sir Speedy Printing, both in the City of Plymouth.

For additional information call the Plymouth Theater Guild at 349-7110.

Bookmark contest closes

Book worms take your mark, and start marking.

Entry forms for the annual Children's Bookmark Contest are now being accepted at local schools or libraries.

The "Road for the Gold" contest will accept designs until March 7. Only one design per student is allowed and each design must be accompanied by the student's name, phone number, grade and home address.

Judging categories are grades one-two, three-four, five-six and seven-nine; there will be three winners in each category. Students from Plymouth-Canton schools are eligible to participate.

The contest is being sponsored by the Friends of the Downing-Hough Library and the Friends of the Canton Library.

An awards ceremony will be held April 8 at Canton Library. Call the Plymouth library 453-0750 or the Canton library 397-0999 for more information.

Damaris competition

The Damaris Student Fine Arts Competition will feature 50 middle school students over a two-day period.

Sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council, the competition begins Thursday (March 5) and will finish Friday (March 6) in the Canton High's Little Theater.

The Thursday performances will include vocal music, instrumental music and dance, beginning at 4:15 p.m., while Friday's performances begin at 3:45 p.m. featuring the piano competition. During both performance sessions, the visual art and creative writing entries will be on display in the adjoining hallway.

The competition is free and open to the public.

Canton, Salem hoop squads win playoffs

BY ANNE SULLIVAN

It was a steady methodic pace from a group of guys taking care of business that led the Salem Rocks to a 77-56 victory over John Glenn, in the first round of the Western Lakes Activities Association Conference basketball playoffs Friday.

It was destined to be a hard fought battle as the two teams came together for the second time this month. The first time they faced each other (Feb. 7) the game went into double overtime in the Glenn gym, and Salem walked away with a one point victory, 65-64, in the final seconds.

Convinced the Rockets would be out for paybacks, and chasing the chance to advance in the conference playoffs, Salem coach Bob Brodie knew his team "couldn't take anything for granted. It was a close loss for them (Glenn) the last time. We controlled the tempo (in the second face off) and were able to do what we wanted."

Salem started the game with a controlled pace, indicative of the Rocks desire to win, pumping in 22 points in the first quarter, and holding Glenn to 14.

BY ANNE SULLIVAN

It's just what this community loves. Another Canton vs. Salem match.

Canton and Salem both won the first round of Western Lakes Activities Association Conference playoffs Friday night, and faced each other yesterday (that match was not completed at press time).

The games on Friday night were played simultaneously at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP). Canton and Salem each battled in the first round of playoffs, and won, on home ground.

To advance to the second round of playoffs, the Canton boys basketball team was victorious over Livonia Stevenson, defeating the Spartans 71-55.

"We took care of business," said Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner. "We're taking it one game at a time. We're fortunate to have won 13 in a row, but the 14th will be the hardest."

The Chiefs came onto the court strong, outscoring Stevenson by eight in the first quarter, 20-12. The Chiefs kept the pressure on adding 10 points more than Stevenson in the second quarter, outscoring them 18-8, to end the first

Salem, Canton grapplers reach state finals

BY JAY KEENAN

Local wrestling enthusiasts who are planning to make the journey to the individual Class A state wrestling finals at Battle Creek's Kellogg Arena the weekend of March 13-14 will have several Plymouth-Canton grapplers to watch for.

Both Salem and Canton high schools will send two wrestlers as a result of placing those grapplers in the top four at the individual Class A regional finals Saturday in the Salem gym.

While that tournament was going on, two other Plymouth athletes from Detroit Catholic Central placed in the Troy regional and will also compete in the states March 13-14. Opening rounds start at 9:30 a.m. both days.

In the Salem tournament, the Rocks scored a first place finish when Dan Bonnett (at 125 pounds) edged Romulus' Mike Scully, 8-7, in an exciting finale. Bonnett, who is sporting an amazing 42-1 record, ironically suffered his only loss to Scully earlier in the season.

"Bonnett was outstanding," said Salem coach Ron Krueger. "Hopefully Bonnett can work hard and win at the state. I just hope they (Bonnett and Scully) don't even it out at state if they wrestle against each other up there."

Bonnett opened the tournament with a 4-2 decision over Brian McNally, followed by a 14-1 trouncing over Farmington's John Duff in the semis.

George Young came away with the 171-pound title for Canton when he pinned Belleville's Mike Kosaromi at 3:33 in the championship match.

Young pinned Jamie Brescol of Temperance Bedford in his first dual and then beat a Farmington grappler in the semis 15-3.

"George wrestled the best he has wrestled in a month and a half," said Canton assistant coach Jim Eddy. "His mental focus was where it needed to be."

Salem's Scott Martin finished second amongst a tough field at 119 pounds when he was decisively in his final match by defending state champion Fred Schumacher of Temperance Bedford 10-1.

Martin got vengeance on his first two opponents when he pinned Mike Dussseau in the opening match at 2:40 and won his semi-final on a fall over South Lyon's Cam Grahl at 4:28. Grahl defeated the senior standout in last week's district semis and Dussseau eliminated Martin from last year's regionals.

"Martin did a great job," said Krueger. "He came back against a couple of great guys. He has a good shot at doing well at the state finals."

At 130 pounds, Canton's Nick Spano took third place when he won the consolation final on an injury default over Howell's Ryan Lane.

Spano pinned Cassey Wilbur in his first match but lost in the semis on a fall against Lonie Tibai of Temperance Bedford. Spano came back to qualify for the states when he decisively won Romulus' Jason Drouillard in the consolation semis, 12-8.

"Spano wrestled real well on the day," said Eddy. "He had a tough time against Tibai but so did everybody else."

In other regional action, Catholic Central's Jason Krueger, of Plymouth, placed first at the Troy tournament at 160 pounds. Krueger, 46-3 overall, is the son of Salem's coach.

Another Plymouth resident from Catholic Central, Dan Kelly, also took first place in his weight class. Kelly, a 171-pound wrestler, is 46-2-1 on the season.

half 38-20.

In the third quarter, Canton tossed in 16, the Spartans added 18 to their score, ending the third 54-38.

Both teams scored in 17 points in the final quarter.

The Chiefs had four players in double digit scoring Friday night. Jon Paspor led his team with 15 points. Derrick McDonald tossed in 13. Tony Coshatt and Owen Crosby each added 12.

Coshatt led the team in rebounds with 13. Mike Breanan lead the way with assists, with seven.

"We played a great defensive game, and did a good job rebounding the basketball," said Van Wagner. "We have seven great seniors this year who are taking Canton to the best season they've ever had, so far."

"It was a total team effort. I'm excited about playing a very good Salem team Tuesday."

When these two teams met in regular season play, Canton won by three, 67-64.

The winner of Tuesday's Canton/Salem game will battle for the conference championship Saturday, in Northville.

In the second quarter, Glenn outshot the Rocks by four, tossing in 16 points while Salem added 12, to end the half with Glenn behind by four, 34-30.

When the teams returned to the court after halftime, Salem's lead started to stretch. The Rocks outscored the Rockets in both quarters. Salem added 19 points in the third quarter while holding Glenn to seven, to end the third leading 53-37.

In the final quarter, both teams had their highest scoring quarter of the game. Salem added 24 points, while Glenn pumped in 19.

Bobby Schneider led the Rocks in scoring with 27. James Head contributed 15. Head led the Rocks in rebounds with eight. Eric Stenamer had five assists. Head and Brandon Sloane each had three assists.

Chief tankers edged out of title

BY ANNE SULLIVAN

It was a heartbreaker for the Canton boys swim team as the Chiefs were edged out of the division championship Thursday night, in Northville, 46-47.

Going into the match, Canton coach Hooker Wellman knew his team was the underdog. The Northville pool is only five lanes, and scoring in that pool is different than all other pools in the division. But the Chiefs hoped to squeak out a win.

"We should have beat them. We swam and dove pretty good until the end of the meet," said Wellman. "We swam fast, just not fast enough to beat them in the end."

Mike Orris set a new varsity record for Canton in the 500 yard freestyle. He completed the race in 4:58.16, but placed second in that event, .03 seconds behind first place.

The Canton squad captured six first places against Northville.

Pat Lancaster, Craig Steshetz, Mark

Ealovega, and Jeff Clark took first place in the 200 yard medley relay, completing their race in 1:44.45.

Orris took first in the 200 yard individual medley, with a time of 2:06.71.

Steshetz completed the 50 yard freestyle in 23.08, to take another first for Canton. He also took first place in the 100 yard breaststroke, completing that race in 1:07.87.

In diving competition, Nick Atwell placed first, earning 255.60 points for Canton.

Lancaster, Steshetz, Orris and Clark teamed up in the 200 yard freestyle relay, completing the race in 1:36.66, to take first place.

The Chiefs ended their regular season with an 8-3 overall record. Their conference standing is 6-2, and their division record is 4-1.

CEP gymnasts finish 1,2 again

BY ANNE SULLIVAN

It was another one-two finish for the Salem and Canton girls gymnastics teams Thursday night as they competed in the Western Lakes Activities Association Conference meet.

The story is much the same each time these two teams meet. Salem is the dominating force in gymnastics in this area, and Canton puts forth an excellent effort, usually capturing second place.

Although the Chiefs have finished five or six points behind the Rocks each time they face each other, the song changed a little this time around.

The Canton squad closed the gap substantially in the final score, finishing 2.45 points behind Salem.

Salem took first place with a total of 145.85 points. Canton came in second with 143.40, setting a new school record.

Kim Rennolds took first in the all around, scoring 37.1 and setting a new school record.

In the all around, Canton's Rennolds took first place with a final score of 37.1. Salem's Gonyea took second with 36.2.

Canton's Tedesco and Lewke, and Salem's Makins tied for sixth place, all earning 35.5.

Salem's Skeppstrom took ninth all around with 35.15. And Canton's Clifford took 11th with 34.9, her highest all around for the year.

"The scoring was liberal," said John Cunningham, Canton's coach. "I saw a lot of good scores, but I also saw a lot of good routines. Kim Rennolds had a 9.2 on the vault, and 9.3 on everything else. I think the 9.3 on the bars ties the school record (which Rennolds holds)."

Rennolds currently holds all school gymnastics records, except the beam, which is held by Heather Murphy, who graduated last year.

"I am extremely pleased," said Cunningham of his team's performance Thursday night.

Cunningham will be taking 13 girls to the state meet, with 11 competitors qualified on the vault, six on the bars and beam, and nine on the floor.

"It (the regional meet) will be a shootout between Canton and Salem," said Cunningham. "We have the two best teams in the region."

City engineer requests deputization to serve violations

West requested both he and his assistant Jim Penn be deputized to issue violation tickets.

"The process is so slow that it isn't taking care of the problem," West said in an interview. "And my department takes all the criticism."

"We have attempted to locate Mr. Clark on several occasions," said Plymouth City Police Chief Bob Scoggins.

Scoggins said the police department would probably have to review the way it allocates manpower to execute warrants more efficiently.

Scoggins said he wasn't sure if deputizing the two building department officials was the best plan.

"It might be bringing liability upon the city," he said, as the building department officials might not have the requisite training to take over this function.

At the Plymouth City Commission meeting Monday Walters told the commission, "There is a change being looked at in our system."

Scoggins said a warrant had already been served and Clark arraigned on two misdemeanor counts based on building code violations.

The first count charges Clark with the failure to remove a dangerous structure. The second count charges Clark failed to obtain the requisite permits to remove the structure. His hearing date set for March 24.

Walters recommended the commission center and a nursery.

"We're moving because of all our growth," said Trusty. "On Sunday we had to go to two morning services for the first time."

Church officials will present their plans to the township within a month, said Trusty, including a request for a building variance. Construction will not act on deputizing the building department officials until he had a chance to evaluate the procedure by which violation notices are served.

likely begin in early summer.

"By this time next year we hope to be in our new building," said Trusty.

Trusty said that the congregation sought to purchase the former Radisson hotel on Northville Road, but were locked out of the negotiations between Columbia-Sussex and several local developers.

The current church building was built in 1855. Two additions have been put on it and the current congregation renovated the site several years ago.

Trusty said the congregation chose not to put the building on the historic registry during the recent renovations.

"I know the Plymouth Historical Society would like to see it on the registry," he said.

The pastor added that the building — on land zoned for office — has already attracted interest among several buyers including another church organization.

Bye, Brown

Yack thinks one way to resolve who the next township treasurer will be is to let residents of the township decide during the regularly scheduled elections this year.

"I'd like to talk to the governor's people and see if we can't use the primary and general election," said Yack. "If you look at the dates the primary would fall within that 135-day period."

Yack said he would wait for Brown to resign before suggesting such an approach to the Canton Board of Trustees.

"I'd turn to our board and suggest we explore this," he said, "if we could get the governor's blessing. But I'd need assurances that if we let the 45 days lapse the governor would then hold off and let us go to the election."

Yack said he would not consider such an idea without the governor's assurance that he would "defer" to the township.

The supervisor said such a plan raises other interesting questions. For example, if the only candidates who file for treasurer this August are from one party, say the Republicans, the primary winner would then be the new treasurer.

"Maybe then we could appoint the primary winner as treasurer," said Yack. "That way we'd have our treasurer in place before the November race when that person would run unopposed anyway."

Yack added, "I'm just trying to find a way to let the citizens vote and decide this."

If the governor is unwilling to hold off calling a special election, Yack said he would then propose following an appointment process already set up by the board of trustees.

Cygnets probe reveals possible hazards

NMP is sprayed at a temperature of 163 degrees Fahrenheit. NMP's flashpoint is 195 degrees. The "flashpoint" is the temperature at which a substance ignites.

According to the Department of Labor documents, "the NMP cooling system was not working the day of the accident."

Also, according to the Department of Labor investigation, Cygnets reused NMP after distilling it.

The distilling process heated NMP to 225 degrees. Vacuum pressure was used to prevent it from exploding.

The Department of Labor documents do not reveal if the vacuum pressure was working properly or if the NMP could be cooled properly after being distilled, as the cooling system was malfunctioning.

The documents do say, however, that the cleaning machine was shut off all morning on Dec. 13 because it was clogged with flakes of metallic paint from the paint containers.

A buildup of pressure can decrease the temperature at which substances ignite.

The investigation concluded, "At this point it is inconclusive as to the source of ignition...of this explosion...Although a safety recommendation is being issued in that the employer should evaluate the possible hazards between cleaning solvents."

Tommy Newcome, Cygnets' owner, said, "We're in the process of correcting the violations."

He also said the facility used only two chemicals, NMP and MEK. "These substances do not react," he said.

The Department of Labor evaluated four chemicals associated with the Cygnets cleaning process. One of the four, "Zep-Off," can cause "central nervous system depression" including dizziness and nausea when inhaled, according to its manufacturer.

Another substance used in cleaning, Rapid Rinse 6745, is a caustic base. The manufacturer of MEK lists bases as one of the substances that must not come into contact with MEK.

Newcome said the facility would be operating again by early summer.

Kea Hines, regional supervisor with the Department of Labor, said his department had no way of enforcing its recommendation that Cygnets evaluate the hazardous nature of the chemicals it uses.

"If they don't want to, they don't have to," he said.

Hines said his department could not prevent Cygnets from reopening despite the fact that the cause of the explosion had not been determined.

He said only the regional government could prevent the company from rebuilding.

Charles McIlhargey, Plymouth Township building department head, said he disagreed with the Department of Labor finding that the cause of the explosion was inconclusive.

He said he thought it was caused by a welder who was attempting to fix the machine that was malfunctioning.

McIlhargey said he thought a spark from the welder's torch probably set off the explosion.

McIlhargey said while the explosion was "unfortunate" the circumstances that probably caused it were "unusual."

He added the building department was reviewing the rebuilding plans and did not have a problem with Cygnets continuing operations once the facility was rebuilt.

Woods walk

As the weather gets warmer, take advantage of the great outdoors with a stroll through Miller Woods in Plymouth Township.

This Sunday (March 8) brings the "It's Sugar Bush Time" walk. Those interested in participating are urged to meet at the Powell Road entrance to Miller Woods at 1 p.m.

During the walk, those who attend will have a chance to tap some maple trees and do some boiling down of the syrup, as the Native Americans taught the settlers.

Other walks include the "Harbingers of Spring" on April 12, "Spring Wildflowers I" May 2 and "Spring Wildflowers II" on May 10.

Churches sign to deaf

Main Street Baptist Church for four months, but Main Street has had a deaf ministry since 1969. Nan Bragg helped to found it.

Bragg, a small grey-haired woman who wears a medallion around her neck bearing the symbol for love in American Sign Language, said she fell in love with sign language when she and her husband were attending an orientation for Baptist ministers assigned to foreign language ministries.

"I took a class in sign language and I got hooked," she said. "I felt the Lord was calling me into this special ministry." She and five other people serve as deaf interpreters at Main Street.

"Ministering to the deaf is a 24-hour-a-day, eight-day-a-week job," she said. "Anything that happens to them, they need an interpreter."

Bragg said just learning sign language was not enough for her to fully understand and communicate with the deaf.

The deaf, she said, have developed their own form of slang to keep hearing people from understanding their private culture. "The language is a part of their culture," she said. "I found it difficult to break in."

"I'd say to deaf friends, 'you speak differently to me than to your deaf friends.'"

"It's a protection of that inner language," she said. "Until you have their trust you don't get in."

Bragg said ministering to the deaf gives them the opportunity to hear the gospel and also provides deaf people with the chance to assume leadership positions, a possibility many never have.

York said coming into a church with an active deaf ministry has been a challenge.

"It's a little unsettling when you can't communicate," he said. He also has to update his sermon notes to make sure they are more easily interpretable.

Bragg says the church's deaf ministry benefits the hearing as well as the deaf. "Well, for one thing it makes them thankful for their hearing," she said.

The expressions and movements of the interpreters, she added, also help reinforce the meaning of the service to the hearing as well as to the deaf.
