Twp. supervisor race tops $42,000

BY RANDY COBLE

Campaign contributions are filling the coffers of Plymouth Township supervisor candidates, and they're coming from a variety of sources.

Stephen Boak, Kathleen Keen-McCarthy, Chief Township Building Official Charles McIlhargey and board of trustees member John Stewart have received a combined total of $42,707 in campaign contributions and have collectively spent $37,663 of that.

According to expense reports filed with the state bureau of elections, McIlhargey leads all candidates with $15,775 in contributions. He has spent $12,424, and $754 was reimbursement for money spent out of his own pocket.

All candidates spending over $1,000 in a race had to file a report with the bureau by July 24.

McIlhargey's contributors included, but were not limited to, the following: Shirley Barney, the township's community development director ($100); township Police Chief Carl Berry ($100); Farmington Hills auto dealer Tom Bohlander ($500); attorney John Breen ($200); Robert DeMattia, local developer ($100); Trustee Ron Griffith, up for re-election ($100); attorney Gerald Hemming ($100); Clerk Esther Hulsing ($100); Mich. Bell Political Action Committee (PAC) ($100); Trustee Abe Munfakh, up for re-election ($100); the Pursell-Congress Committee (the U.S. Congress member will retire at the end of this term) ($100); and City of Plymouth

Mettetal talks have 5 weeks

Canton sets airport deadline

BY KEN VOYLES

Canton's Board of Trustees Tuesday moved to set a deadline for reaching agreement with the FAA over Mettetal Airport.

The board unanimously approved a resolution establishing Sept. 8 as the deadline to complete talks over the private airport facility.

If an agreement with the FAA is not reached by then the township will terminate the jointing operating agreement (JOA) with Plymouth Township on that date.

The move came after Plymouth Township officials requested Canton consider such a deadline, said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack.

"We've heard nothing from the FAA in months," said Yack. "Once we hear from Plymouth Township that they concur we will draft a letter to the FAA."

Earlier this year the FAA objected to part of the JOA language over the length of the operating agreement leading to a stalemate in the talks.

"This is going to be helpful in making the issue black and white," said Yack, and remove any uncertainty over what may or may not be happening with the airport talks. "This didn't come as any surprise to the board. We haven't talked about it in so long that it is no longer an issue."

The deadline will permit the two communities to either move forward with municipal purchase of the airport or terminate the JOA, said Yack.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Gerald Law, in his letter to Canton, said his board discussed a July 21 termination date. It went on, "It is understood, however, that communication with the FAA during the summer could be very difficult to achieve."

County Clerk and judges race

P-C residents run for partisan, non-partisan seats

BY ROBERT PARKER

Before heading to the polls Tuesday, voters might want to take a moment to note the other local candidates seeking office this year.

In addition to the full slate of township, county, state and national candidates, six residents are running for non-partisan and partisan seats on the primary ballot, including Wayne County Clerk, Court of Appeals, Circuit Court and Probate Court judge.

On the non-partisan ballot, Martin Thomas Maher and George E. Ward are both vying for Judge of the Court of Appeals covering the first district, with the term ending in 1999.

They are running against seven other candidates.

Maher, 47, a Canton resident, has been a probate judge for the Wayne County Estates and Mental Division for more than six years.

In addition, he also served as a probate judge for the Wayne County Juvenile Court.

Maher said the Court of Appeals needs a judge with the knowledge of neglect and abuse cases, guardianship and conservatorships, estates and trusts, and mental cases.

Ward, 51, a Plymouth Township resident, has been the chief assistant Wayne County prosecuting attorney since 1986.

He is presently chairperson of the Board of Control of Saginaw Valley State University, and a member of the Board of Commissioners of the State Bar of Michigan.

Ward said that it is important to keep a focus on the way laws are administered in the state.

"We have been challenging a system that is so careless and arbitrary," Ward said.

Ward's campaign calls for an "administrative shake-up" of the court.

Maher's wife, Cathie, is running for Probate Court Judge in the Juvenile Division.

She is running to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Y. Gladys Barsamian.

Currently, she is a practicing attorney in Plymouth.

In County Commish race

Breen outspends foes

BY ROBERT PARKER

The four candidates running for Wayne County Commissioner in the 10th District spent more than $52,000 on their campaigns for the Aug. 4 primary.

Incumbent Maurice Breen came out on top, spending more than $31,000, almost one third more than the other three candidates combined.

Thaddeus McCotter filed his campaign expenditure report yesterday, a week after the July 24 deadline. He estimated two weeks ago that expenditures would total approximately $10,000.

Breen campaign contributors included:

Wayne County Government Bar Association ($600), Jim Bonadeo ($400), James Haverstick ($300), Joe Ruggirello ($300), Abe Munfakh ($275), Charles McIlhargey ($150), Robert Demattia ($150) and Don Massey ($150).

Pat Downes spent almost $10,000 on his campaign, a little over his $8,000 prediction.

Downes pumped $7,000 out of his own pocket in the campaign.

As of July 30, McCotter's expenditures totaled about $9,800.

McCotter said he filed his report late because some in-kind contributions had not been processed by the deadline.

McCotter's largest contributor, Sean Cox, an attorney in Livonia, donated $500.

Clayton Stacey's campaign came in under $1,000, with most of the funding coming out of his own wallet - $500.

Clerks race get expensive

BY RANDY COBLE

Plymouth Township clerk candidate Marilyn Massengill made an error on her campaign financial reports submitted to the state bureau of elections.

Massengill, competing with fellow Republican Denise Radtke to replace retiring Clerk Esther Hulsing, did not specify in the report that contributions of $50, $450 and $501 which she made to her own campaign paid for her political law signs. Under state regulations, she would have to make such a notation.

"I obviously made a little mistake," Massengill, Hulsing's administrative assistant said. She contacted an official of the Wayne County clerk's office, she added, and the official's reaction was "don't worry about it," Massengill said.

Massengill sent the office an addendum to her report dated July 29 which properly notes the lawn signs.

The candidate has campaigned on her experience and knowledge of the job of the clerk's office, which includes election matters, but does not include the handling of campaign financial statements.

Cathie Maher attended both Olivet College and Madonna University. She earned her law degree from the University of Detroit Mercy School of Law in 1981.

She has been a Girl Scout leader for a number of years and is active in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Jeanne Stempien, a practicing trial attorney in Livonia, is seeking one of three vacancies on the Wayne County Circuit Court.

Since 1986, Stempien has served on the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees.

She graduated from the Detroit College of Law in 1980.

Two local residents are in primary battles on both sides of the ticket for Wayne County Clerk.

Democrat Thomas P. O'Rourke, a Plymouth Township resident is running against 10 other candidates.

O'Rourke was a Wayne County Commissioner from 1969-1975, and has served on the Plymouth Economic Development Commission.

He is the founder and president of the Michigan Forum for Balanced Transportation.

O'Rourke's wants three steps implemented: keep the County Clerk's office independent; curb abuse in campaign financing and challenge ballot language that confuses the voter.

Former Canton Clerk, Linda Chuhran, is battling against two other candidates on the Republican side in the County Clerk race.

Chuhran, 42, said her campaign has gone smoothly, with the Republican side remaining quiet.

"The (Wayne) County Clerk's office is behind the times," she said. "I have the skills to do the functions of the job."

Best choice in Republican primary

McIlhargey top of GOP lot

The contest for Plymouth Township supervisor has been perhaps the most hotly contested race this primary season. Four Republican candidates are battling for the right to face independent Ron Edwards in November. The issue will be decided Tuesday as voters go to the polls in the GOP primary.

The candidate residents should pull the lever for is Chief Township Building Official Charles McIlhargey.

Possessing the most governmental experience of all the candidates, McIlhargey has also succeeded in business as well. That combination gives him the knowledge to be the chief administrator of the township and a veteran hand to negotiate the political waters as well. He has the leadership credentials and the best chance of the four candidates to lead the township where it must go. He is an even-tempered individual who can work with board members and township employes, and yet is willing to stand his ground when need be.

While McIlhargey tends to discuss the minor details of an issue more than the big picture, he knows the issues and has a plan to address them. While he has ties to some current and former township officials, he doesn't seem to be chained by them. He can be an independent supervisor.

And that is what the township needs. Whomever wins must be a real change, not another traditional, status quo politico-type. The victor Aug. 4 should remember this.

Stephen Boak, local attorney, is another candidate who has the credentials to be supervisor. His experience in the Wayne County Prosecutor's office and in the United States Army Reserve give him valuable skills in budgeting, government and leadership. His depth of knowledge on the issues surrounding the township, however, seems to be a weakness.

The major problem with Boak is that he hasn't put a great deal of effort into being elected. He entered the race later than others, and since that time has not been very visible on the political landscape. Other candidates have been seen about town, meeting citizens, distributing literature and discussing the issues, much more than he has. Given that, a question of his commitment comes into play. How much effort would he put into the supervisor's job?

EDITOR'S NOTE: The endorsements on these pages are the collective opinions of The Community Crier's editorial staff and are designed to offer further information for voters going to the polls Tuesday.

Interviews, literature, public appearances, public records, others' views and other contacts with candidates are all used by Crier staffers to assess the candidates. The information was then debated at length by staff members.

But an endorsement is not as valuable as an informed voter's individual assessment made by studying the issues and meeting the candidates personally.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

A true outsider, Kathleen Keen-McCarthy, is the candidate most free from political trappings, a real point in her favor. Her commitment to the campaign is evident. She is open to citizens' input, would be tough when she needs to be, and demonstrates an in-depth knowledge of the issues.

Experience is the problem. Keen-McCarthy has never held political office before. Two years ago, out of the blue, she ran for a seat in the Michigan House of Representatives. Her business experience should be judged on its merits, but aren't qualifications enough for such a move. They make her an excellent candidate for other local offices. If she had sought a board of trustees seat, they could not be questioned. But supervisor? -- She would seem to have tried to jump a stepping stone or two.

Her candidacy has been a refreshing note, however, and should encourage everyone to get involved in the political process.

The final candidate, township board of trustees member John Stewart, is too unstable to perform the duties of supervisor. He over-reacts to opponents (or those he perceives as his opponents), and would not command much respect.

Stewart knows the issues, and isn't afraid of a fight. However, dealing well with those who disagree with him is not his strong point. If he became supervisor, what response would he give township department heads, board members or citizens (at least, those who do not belong to the group backing him) who question his actions?

On the board four years, Stewart is a Johnny-come-lately on the mistakes the board has made. His attacks on board decisions have come since he has become a candidate. On the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA), Fire Station No. 3, joint services, and other issues, he has had ample opportunity to display leadership -- what has he done? He's had the chance to make a difference, and didn't use it.

While there's one candidate who comes fairly close (Boak), and another who might be a viable choice with more experience (Keen-McCarthy), McIlhargey stands out as the best Republican for Plymouth Township.

Curmi, Mueller, Arnold and Griffith right for Board

Seven candidates, two incumbents and five challengers -- all Republicans -- are facing off for the four open seats on the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees. The winners on Tuesday have no Democratic or independent challenges come November, and so Aug. 4 is D-Day.

A new board will be elected this year: three of its current seven members have elected to retire. One is running for supervisor, and won't stay on the board if he loses. Two are up for re-election in a season when the mood is anti-incumbent.

This then is a year for change and leading the pack in the trustee race are four strong candidates.

Charles Curmi is one of them. While he has limited political experience, he has a wealth of attributes in other areas. A succinct and thoughtful speaker, he presents his innovative and intelligent ideas well. His perspective on the board, as a business professional involved in research and design, would be a welcome one. He has done his homework in this campaign; he would in all likelihood do the same on the board.

Another candidate who has demonstrated her commitment is K.C. Mueller. Former owner of her own business and a current realtor, she has experience in budgeting procedures. A veteran of other local campaigns, she has lost and yet stayed involved in local politics. She has put effort into studying the issues in the campaign. On the board, she would be flexible enough to listen to all points of view yet firm enough to take an independent stand.

Long involved in local Republican politics, Kay Arnold also deserves a seat on the board. Although she lacks polish in expressing her views, her business experience would be a valuable resource for the board. She has long been accessible to the concerns of citizens when participating in local causes, and would continue that if elected.

Ron Griffith deserves a seat as well. He is honest and cool-headed, experienced with township issues, and genuinely committed to community service. He has proved a tempering force on a board split by personalities and politics. Re-election would give him the chance to become an elder statesman for the board.

The remaining candidates bring a myriad of good qualities, but do not measure up to these four.

Carol Davis, a veteran of the Plymouth Canton Community Schools board of education and a current member of the Plymouth District Library Board, has ample political experience. She did not distinguish herself in either post, however, and in this race offers less insight on the issues facing the township than other candidates.

Businessperson Joseph Van Esley comes across as honest and amiable, but doesn't communicate his ideas well, one of the crucial aspects of a board member. His grasp of the issues doesn't match that of some other candidates, and in discussing them, like Davis, he tends to follow rather than lead.

The final candidate, Abe Munfakh, has served on the board since 1984. He is experienced and intelligent, and knows the issues. However, serious questions about his judgment mar his bid to retain his seat. Munfakh is a fine person, and has done many good things while on the board. But it is time for him to step down -- it is best for him and best for the township.

Curmi, Mueller, Arnold and Griffith represent the best of a diverse field of candidates for township trustee. Their presence on the board will inject a much-needed combination of new outlooks and veteran leadership to township government.

Best of GOP candidates for Canton board

Shefferly, Burdziak, Panos, McLaughlin

Four years after what some observers saw as a vicious election campaign -- one characterized by personal attacks and the forming of political cliques -- the Canton Board of Trustees has become one of the most stable in the entire The Plymouth-Canton Community.

Of the original board members elected in 1988 only Robert Shefferly remains, however. Hank Whalen passed away not long after being elected and was replaced by Phil LaJoy. Last year John Preniczky left the community and was replaced by John Burdziak.

Now Shefferly, LaJoy and Burdziak are all seeking reelection, or election for the first time. They are being challenged by newcomers Melissa McLaughlin, Jim Panos and Katherine Tyree-Rorbacher. The winners will face two Democrats, John Cleaver and Stuart Schuch, this November.

Without a doubt Shefferly is the best Republican candidate for the job. A say-what-he-means-guy, Shefferly has developed into the elder statesman of the board, and a trustee not afraid to ask the tough questions or oppose the rest of the board on an issue he feels strongly about.

While he may be a little "sleepy" at times, Shefferly also has a real working knowledge of the issues, being a member both of the trustee board and the township planning commission. He takes the lead in questioning the administration and even if people don't always agree with him, they walk away from a debate with Shefferly feeling good about the community and about his role of trustee.

The other candidates who should be supported in the Republican primary this year are Burdziak, Panos and McLaughlin.

Burdziak, like Shefferly, is strong on getting to the heart of an issue and asking the right questions. He has similar experiences -- a former planning commission, zoning board of appeals and Canton DDA member -- and has been involved in the community at a grassroots level (as a Goodfellows, for example).

Both McLaughlin and Panos have something new to offer the community.

Panos has a strong working knowledge, due to his experience as director of public works in Romulus, of the importance of servicing the residents and not just representing them as one of seven votes.

Panos is a genuine nice guy with a real concern for what happens in his community. He has strong knowledge of the issues and can articulate his views. The only concern over Panos is the possibility that he would put too much emphasis on DPW-type issues and neglect his role as overall overseer of township government.

McLaughlin's interests, on the other hand, have centered on saving the historic and rural character of Canton, causes that deserve a top priority in a community so overwhelmed lately by a flood of new housing developments.

Her long time community involvement extends beyond just those issues as well. She also has direct leadership experience being a current member of the township planning commission.

As for LaJoy, he too was appointed to the board, but unlike Burdziak has remained a shadow tucked in a cocoon, not coming out of his shell until earlier this year. Until then LaJoy has been the quiet man of the board, leading some to wonder whether he truly understands the job.

In his defense, LaJoy is certainly knowledgeable on most issues in Canton. He has made it a point to take on the cable question and some of the recreation concerns in the township. He also has been involved in the community for many years, helping to start the Memorial Day soccer tournament.

But LaJoy carries more baggage than any other candidate, especially if one believes he answers to Tom Yack more than he does to the citizens of Canton.

The final candidate in the Republican primary, Tyree-Rorbacher, is not a serious contender and should be ignored at the polls Tuesday.

In the primary vote for Shefferly, Burdziak, Panos and McLaughlin.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

Massengill for Twp. clerk

The race for Plymouth Township clerk, will be decided this Tuesday as the two candidates on the primary ballot are Republicans.

But picking the right candidate poses a difficult choice for voters: both candidates are capable, qualified and honest. Either Denise Radtke or Marilyn Massengill, vying to replace retiring Clerk Esther Hulsing, would do the job well. Their strengths lie in different areas, however.

Both take a tough stance against tax increases, favor stricter bidding procedures for professional services hired by the Western Townships Utilities Authority (WTUA) Both would pursue the idea of joint services with the City of Plymouth -- but only if it would benefit the township.

With their stands on the issues so close, the matter rests on a choice of administrative or policy experience.

Massengill, Hulsing's administrative assistant for the last seven years, has a total of 23 years in township offices. She has the working knowledge of administrative procedures the clerk oversees, and has proven she can work well with township to retiring U.S. Congressman Carl Pursell, Radtke's forte is policy. Her experience with the issues and working relationship with government officials at the local, state and federal levels would make her a strong member of the board.

The edge in the clerk's race goes to the person who can keep things running smoothly -- Massengill. She has paid her dues, knows the job and deserves the chance to serve.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

What a waste!

The recent forums held by the Crier with numerous candidates for offices in state, local and national government brought to light some rather ridiculous expenditures in order to win elections.

There were a few candidates who did not spend more money than most reporters make in a year, but they were few and far between. Those candidates with a more realistic spending pattern are also (not coincidentally) the ones who will most likely fail to win the elections.

This spending matter brings up a serious failing of the political system in the United States. Instead of representing the average citizens of this area, these candidates stand more for the type of slick "politicians" of which this country is supposedly tired.

While these candidates throw around thousands of dollars for endless signs and literature to pollute our minds and environment, they pledge to support the views of their constituents.

A person working two shifts to make ends meet is in favor of spending enormous sums for candidates to backstab and degrade each other. The citizens are interested in making informed decisions based on facts rather than the hearsay circulated by numerous politicians.

Although political candidates obviously have the right to spend their money however they want, it is quite disheartening that many don't control their spending.

Instead of wasting thousands of dollars telling the world how wonderful and caring they are, why don't these candidates spend some more time and money helping out the "little" people that will be deciding these elections.

Community opinions

It's between Vorva and Goss

Vorva is best choice for 20th District

Although there are four candidates running for state representative in the 20th District Republican Primary on Tuesday, the real race is between two of the candidates, Georgina Goss and Jerry Vorva.

Goss is the current 36th District State Representative, elected last year in a special election by 267 votes over Vorva and is a former Northville Township supervisor and clerk. Vorva is a Plymouth City Commissioner and a 10-year police officer in the City of Plymouth before joining the political world.

Ronald Ambrose and Robert Bernard are both inexperienced in the political arena and show it in the way they have presented themselves throughout the campaign. Bernard seems to be basing his campaign primarily on his pro-life stance while Ambrose does not have the outgoing personality that is frequently needed to get things accomplished.

Vorva's strong points are his independence and willingness to take a stand on the issues. Although he can be over-dramatic at times, Vorva fights for what he believes in.

Vorva is a strong proponent of accountability for legislators, supports a blended tax system for education, wants to eliminate wasteful spending in the state government, is strongly pro-choice, and believes education and job training are the top issues in Michigan.

Goss' strong points are her years of experience dealing with state officials and her commitment to education.

Kirchgatter gets our nod

For years the Canton treasurer's department has been a ship without a captain. Even before the recent chaotic reign of Gerald Brown, residents were taken advantage of by several township treasurers more interested in their own career and image than serving the community.

But this year's election campaign has clearly produced candidates who want to change all that and bring some order and stability to the job of treasurer and to the finance department.

The two Republican candidates on the Aug. 4 primary ballot for treasurer, Elaine Kirchgatter and Tim McCurley, are seeking their party's spot on the November ballot to face Democrat Bruce Phillips.

Both Kirchgatter and McCurley show a real grasp of the issues confronting the community. While Kirchgatter is a respected veteran policy maker, McCurley has hands on administrative experience, experience that may suit him well for the role of treasurer.

Even with that said, though, the nod in the Canton treasurer's primary still has to go to Kirchgatter, a trusted and valuable member of the board for the past four years.

Kirchgatter has stood against the rest of the board these past four years, stands that could have left her isolated, but instead earned her the respect of many in the community and made her a better leader.

She is also highly versed on the role of treasurer within the framework of the board of trustees and the various issues confronting the community.

McCurley, a strong administrator, lacks the policy experience to play the role of treasurer beyond just that of running a staff.

Right now Canton needs a strong treasurer, one who township residents can feel will represent them both on the board and be there to direct the day-to-day workings of the department.

In the Republican primary, Kirchgatter is the best choice as a candidate for that role.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

Goss strongly supports eliminating tax based sharing, believes in scaling down the state government, is pro-choice, and sees school funding and property tax relief as the main concerns for the state in the future.

The positions of these two candidates on the issues are quite similar, the main difference is the passion behind their convictions.

While Goss takes a somewhat "wishy-washy" approach to certain issues, riding the fence at times, Vorva leaves no doubt as to his feelings on matters. He has shown that he will not change his position on issues and will stand alone if necessary to prove his point. Goss often seems to waffle on issues and may end up voting as the governor wishes.

Both Vorva and Goss have proven they can deal well with constituents, but Vorva will be much more likely to go against the flow of the entrenched Lansing legislators and will be able to effectively encourage some of the changes necessary to get this state back on its feet.

Vote for Vorva on Tuesday.

Whyman tops in primary

The Republican primary race for the 21st State House leaves voters a difficult decision as the two candidates, Dan Calabrese and Deborah Whyman, are quite similar on the issues -- the main criteria for distinguishing who will best represent the interests and desires of the Canton residents.

The winner will then face longtime Democrat James Kosteva in November.

Neither Calabrese nor Whyman have held public office previously, although each has some experience with dealing with the public -- Calabrese worked as an assistant to Canton Supervisor Tom Yack and Whyman ran unsuccessfully last year in the special election for the then 36th State House District.

Although Calabrese may appear more refined and articulate at times than Whyman, she has a better grasp of the issues that concern Canton residents and will be a much better representative of the people.

Calabrese seems to be more concerned with furthering his own political ambitions than he is with the problems and issues facing the citizens of Canton.

Although Whyman is not a perfect candidate, she is definitely the best to represent the views of the Canton citizens in the Republican primary and to face James Kosteva in November.

Vote for Whyman Tuesday.

Voters: perform your duty

It's time to make a statement.

Get out and vote during the Aug. 4 primaries!

This year, three of these races are not "just primaries" or preliminaries to the "real" election in November, they will decide which individuals will represent your community in the next several years.

The Plymouth Township clerk and trustee races will be decided Tuesday as well as the 20th District State House seat.

Although the other races will not be decided until after the fall elections, the importance of the primaries should not be overlooked. For a number of these candidates, there will be no tomorrow following Tuesday, and it is important for the often apathetic voters of this area to keep this in mind.

Get off the couch and go vote!

Steele best choice in 13th GOP primary

The six GOP candidates running for Congress in the 13th District represent a broad spectrum of backgrounds and political beliefs.

Two educators – one is also a career politician, two business owners, a business executive, and a stock handler make the field.

Out of this group, one candidate has taken a bold, refreshing stance on the current issues.

William Steele, running under the slogan, 'your best choice for change', represents a fresh alternative to a fat, disconnected Congress.

His belief in "adopting a federal tax structure that is more in line with those in virtually every other industrialized nation," represents his belief that a change needs to be made.

Steele wants to stop taxing people for working, saving and investing in this country's businesses and industries by eliminating the federal income tax, capital gains tax and taxes on corporate profits.

Instead, Steele supports the creation of federal consumption taxes like a goods and services tax (GST) and a value-added tax (VAT).

Steele, like the other candidates, supports a balanced budget amendment, another proposal that needs support in Congress.

His experience as an economic analyst for the State of Michigan and budgetary knowledge makes Steele the best candidate.

Elect Downes in 10th District

It's out with the old and in with the new in the 10th Wayne County District.

The Wayne County Commission needs a new face who will bring energy and enthusiasm to the job, and Patrick Downes is the most qualified candidate for the Aug. 4 primary.

Downes displays a good understanding of the issues, and shows a sincere desire to serve the people of the district.

Although his campaign mainly involved taking shots at incumbent Maurice Breen, there is no reason to blame him. He has run his "I am an outsider campaign" well. His "virgin" status regarding political office has worked to his advantage.

Breen himself admitted that he had made himself a target for attack.

Downes did what any challenger would do and went for the throat. But he now needs to put that behind him and "concentrate on the public wheel." He must follow through with his campaign promises and continue to support improved relations with the City of Detroit, controlling crime and making Wayne County economically healthy through lower taxes and better services.

Thaddeus McCotter showed strong candidate qualities and knew the issues, but he failed to show a definite commitment in his campaign. Self confidence is important, but over confidence can be mistaken for arrogance.

Breen, by far, has more experience than any of his challengers. He has climbed the ladder of public service, and has a good knowledge of how government operates, but along the way, he threw into question his concern for his constituency.

After more than 22 years of public service, Breen has separated himself from the community – he is out of touch.

As for Clayton Stacey, he was the only candidate who said he would support the half-mill ballot proposal for health services, but he did not effectively deal with the issues at hand, and his campaign lacked substance and direction.

Downes is the best candidate in the primary, and showed the commitment and knowledge to handle the job.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

Robert Geake comes in a strong second out of the field, and brings solid experience working in a legislative body to his campaign.

With more than 20 years experience in state government, there is no doubt that Geake has the credentials to do the job.

But the current climate of the nation calls for a change in government. The government needs a fresh insight into an already overburdened tax system.

Burl Adkins is definitely his own man. A self-made business owner with a commitment to sound business principals. Once you get out of the trade and export realm, Adkins fails to deliver on the issues. Adkins' unwavering stance on trade may alienate him right out of effectiveness in Congress.

University of Michigan professor Ray Tanter stands completely opposite on the trade issues compared to Adkins.

But Tanter's concentration outside the borders of this country hurt him. Tanter is a foreign political analyst. His strength lies in export and trade, but it is not enough to carry him through the primary.

Glen Kassel is open about his political beliefs, but lacks substance in his campaign.

Herbert Scott has not made himself visible enough to be considered a possible candidate.

Steele's grasp of the issues and bold new ideas outweigh any of the other candidates. He is the best candidate to represent the 13th District.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

EDITOR'S NOTE: Publisher W. Edward Wendover didn't participate in the Congressional reporting or endorsement process because of his federal political efforts.

Give edge to Cabrera

The two Republican candidates running for state representative in the 18th District – Steve Cabrera and Richard Delonis – apparently read from the same manual before deciding their position on important issues.

From that standpoint, there is almost nothing to differentiate between the two.

Both support the Engler administration's cut-and-cap proposal on taxes, schools of choice, competency testing for teachers and students, welfare reform and both oppose abortion.

Although both candidates are well qualified for the job, Cabrera edges out Delonis as a more complete candidate.

Cabrera took his campaign a step further. He was also well prepared on the issues.

There is more to just taking a stance. Successful candidates need to address issues and offer practical, sensible solutions.

Cabrera made a good attempt to do that in his campaign and succeeded.

Whom ever wins the primary should consider asking his foe to join him. Together, they could mount a good campaign against Democrat Justine Barns in November.

Although the 18th District only covers a small sliver of Canton, Cabrera is the best candidate to represent it.

Homicide a possibility Body found on Ross Street

BY ROBERT PARKER

Homicide has not been ruled out in the discovery of a body late Monday night, according to City of Plymouth Police.

The body of 38-year-old Daryl Dubuc was found in his upstairs apartment on Rose Street shortly after 11 p.m., after his roommate returned home that evening.

According to Plymouth Police Commander Michael Gardner, the body had been there for no more than three days.

Gardner said the cause of death has not been determined and results of an autopsy are still pending.

It's not believed that the cause was homicide, but police are still investigating all possibilities, Gardner said.

Dubuc's car was not at his apartment when the body was discovered, police said.

"We have information of where the car is supposed to be, but it has not been verified," Gardner said.

There are still some matters to be investigated, Gardner said.

You May Vote in Only One Partisan Section of the Ballot. Your Partisan Ballot will be rejected if you vote in more than ONE Partisan Section. After you have completed voting the Partisan Section of the Ballot, vote the Non-Partisan Ballot. Vote the Proposals (if any). DO NOT vote for more candidates than indicated under each office title.

BEFORE VOTING:

Study the various sections which appear below on this instruction ballot.

To the RIGHT of each candidate's name and the "YES" or "NO" on each proposal is a number.

These are the numbers you MUST locate on the Official Ballot Card when you are ready to vote.

Examine the Official Ballot Card. It is a computer card stapled to a foam backing. A "punching tool" is attached to the Official Ballot Card. On the face of the card is a series of numbers with a small dot above each number.

TO VOTE:

1. Remove the "Punching Tool" from the Official Ballot Card.

2. Choose the Partisan Section of the ballot on which you wish to vote.

YOU MAY VOTE FOR CANDIDATES IN ONE PARTY SECTION ONLY.

Find the number on the Official Ballot Card which corresponds to the number to the RIGHT of the name of the candidate(s) of your choice.

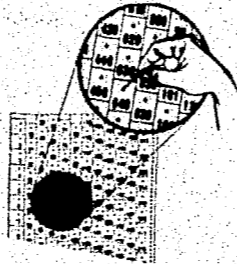

3. To vote in the Non-Partisan or Proposal Section of the ballot (if any), find the Number on the Official Ballot Card which corresponds to the Number to the right of each Candidate and the "YES" or "NO" of each proposal of your choice.

4. Using the "Punching Tool" furnished (holding it flat) firmly punch out the small "black dot" on the card ABOVE the number which corresponds to the numbers to the RIGHT of the candidates and the "YES" or "NO" of each proposal according to your choice. (See sketch at right above.)

NOTE: Punch with sufficient force to be sure that the "black dot" is completely punched out of the card and into the foam backing.

5. To vote for a person whose name is not printed on this instruction ballot, write or place the Name, Office and Party of that person on the inside cover of the "Official Ballot Envelope".

6. When you have completed voting, raise (do not detach) the Official Ballot Card from foam backing and EXAMINE IT. BE SURE ALL HOLES ARE CLEANLY PUNCHED. LOOK AT THE BACK OF THE CARD AND PULL OFF ANY PARTIALLY PUNCHED

"DOTS" THAT MIGHT BE HANGING. THEN PLACE THE BALLOT CARD INSIDE THE "OFFICIAL BALLOT ENVELOPE"

RAISE THE OFFICIAL BALLOT CARD. PLACE THE OFFICIAL BALLOT ENVELOPE OVER THE CARD ONLY AS SHOWN.

Barricaded gunman Dispute causes threats

BY MIKE McGLINNEN

Canton police officers arrested an armed gunman July 29 at 10:32 p.m. after he had barricaded himself into his mobile home and held police at bay for nearly two hours.

The 36-year-old resident of the Sherwood Mobile Village in Canton had a dispute with another resident, prompting the other resident to call the police department, officers said.

When the officers arrived to discuss the incident with the man, he barricaded himself into his mobile home and threw a bag containing bottles and cans at the officers.

The whole incident apparently arose out of the man's refusal to speak with the police department.

The man then broke out a small window of his mobile home and brandished a .44 Magnum handgun at the police from inside his home, reports said.

The three Canton officers on the scene then called in the special operations team to deal with the individual. After a one hour conversation by phone with the operations team, the man agreed to surrender, according to officers.

Police recovered several long-barrel rifles from the mobile home in addition to the handgun, police stated.

There were no injuries as a result of the incident.

The Canton officers were assisted by the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, Plymouth Township Police, and City of Plymouth Police officers.

Tow contract lends to debate

BY RANDY COBLE

A "tow-of-war" is underway in Plymouth Township.

The Plymouth Township's Board of Trustees, at its July 21 meeting, seemed poised to award the township police department's towing contract, the culmination of a weeks-long bidding process.

Township Police Chief Carl Berry recommended the board select Mayflower Towing, located in Plymouth, saying their fees were lowest. He said that the police department had contacted six companies about the contract, but had received formal bids from only two. The other firm to submit a bid was B&B Towing of Plymouth.

The township's towing is currently done by the two firms on a rotating basis.

Tow-of-war over contract in Twp.

James Haverstick, owner of B&B, objected to Mayflower being considered, saying they did not meet the specifications of the bid request.

The bid request states that the company selected "will own and maintain (its) equipment." Haverstick said that Mayflower did not own its towing vehicles, and therefore could not be considered for the bid. He added that he owned all of the vehicles his firm used.

"If you put something on a piece of paper," he said, "then do it."

Haverstick said the ownership issue was important to insulate the township from liability concerns.

The owner of Mayflower Towing, Glenn Goehmann, said that it was true his company did not own its fleet of tow trucks outright, "but lots of companies lease, not own, their vehicles."

He added that his firm was fully insured, and that the township did not have to worry about any potential lawsuits.

Board members discussed whether

Family fest planned

Canton's Cornerstone Community Church will hold a family festival on Saturday, Aug. 1, from 6-8 p.m. in Heritage Park in Canton.

Christian music and entertainment will be featured, including a puppet, clowns, skits, face-painting and contemporary and gospel music.

Heritage Park is located behind the administration building on Canton Center Road in Canton.

"own" meant own, or could include leasing -- and if so, whether the contract should be rebid. After debate, the board decided to table the motion to award the bid to Mayflower until its next meeting, which will be Aug. 18.

Berry said that the township's towing system will remain on the rotating basis until a decision is made.

HOW CAN YOU BEAT A FIXED 7.9% APR?

You Can't.

Sometimes auto loan rates are not as low as they sound. Lost rebates or other hidden costs can leave you paying more in the long run.
So, shop the best price on your new car, take any available rebates, then finance it with a 7.9% loan at Community Federal Credit Union.
And you can't beat that.
