Tied in a Knot

Describes the way you feel when you are struggling with an attack of cholera morbus or cramp colic. Renne's Pain-Killing Magic Oil unties the knot and quickly gives relief. It does the same work when rubbed into the skin to relieve rheumatism, sprains, lame back or stiff neck. It's a wonderful remedy for internal or external use. Price 25 cts. Sold by Jones, the Druggist, and Beyer's Pharmacy.

The Promised New Waiting Room Again

Editor Mail:

What is the matter of our Common Council that they don't get after the D. U. R. and compel them to put up a neat brick depot, as their representatives promised to do, when here, begging hard for the privilege of putting in a Y, about two years ago? It is shameful the way the D. U. R. has violated the above agreement and our citizens ought to take the matter up at once and urge the city fathers to get right after this octopus.

INDIGNANT CITIZEN.

Dies at Hospital.

Mrs. William Bentley, who was taken to St. Mary's hospital, died last Friday morning. She had been in poor health for the past two years, her condition growing so serious that it was deemed advisable to take her to the hospital for treatment. The remains were brought to Plymouth for burial, the funeral taking place Sunday afternoon, services being conducted in the Baptist church by Rev. W. W. DesAutels.

Mrs. Bentley was born in Williamston in November, 1849, and was married to Wm. Bentley in 1870. She had lived in Plymouth for over forty years, and united with the Baptist church in 1896.

A Big Head

Is of two kinds. The kind that comes from sick headache, torpid liver and biliousness, however, is curable. Does your head feel dizzy at times with spells of blind staggers and ringing noises in the ears? These are symptoms of a diseased liver and a clogged state of the bowels. The remedy is Dr. Herriek's Sugar-Coated Pills. They are mild, easy to take and clean you out beautifully. Try them. Price 25 cts. Sold by Jones, the Druggist, and Beyer's Pharmacy.

MONEY, PUT IT IN THE BANK and save it.

There is not a mechanic, clerk or laborer who does not to-day make more money than did the philanthropist, R. T. Crane, of the Crane Company of Chicago, who each year now gives a Christmas present of a quarter of a million dollars or more to his employees. He saved and banked his money when a young man. If you bank only fifty cents a day ($15 a month) for ten years, this amount and the interest will amount to over TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS ($227.73).

Let OUR Bank be YOUR Bank. We pay three per cent interest.

FEEL NEED OF EDUCATION

Schoolhouse Conditions in China Pictured by a Chinese Lad, Who Deplores Crowded Schools.

Li Hong, a young boy, who is studying in a Christian mission school in Kityang, 25 miles above Swatow, China, has written a pathetic letter to American friends of his country...

"Did you ever hear of anything like this in your fine country—56 growing, active boys, huddled into one small house of eight rooms, eating, sleeping and living in these rooms—and worse yet, 30 other small boys, for whom there is no room, studying in the chapel and sleeping on the hard benches on which they sit all day?"

"Because of your fine public school system you think you are more appreciative of learning than any other people in the world. But for real devotion to education for learning's sake, you cannot find China's equal."

"You think you are sacrificing to give your children an education when you do without a few luxuries and your children go without a few pleasures; but you never go without rice, and your children do not have to sleep on wooden benches."

"Our white teacher, with tears pouring down his cheeks, begged some of us older boys to go home and make room for the new boys who were coming. But we told him we wanted to be educated and learn about Christianity, and we promised to study hard and sleep in the chapel. Now more boys are coming from the primary school and there is no room for them."

"It is so everywhere. At Chaoyung, the second largest city in South China, where 300,000 people live, the teacher there says they used to have to advertise for pupils, but now they have to keep as still as mice about the school, because they have not room for all the children that want to come."

When the Fork Was New.

If fingers were made before forks, forks were made before spoons. Tom Corryat, when passing through Italy in the year 1611, "observed a custom that is not used in any other country that I saw in my travels; neither do I think that any other nation in Christendom doth use it, but only Italy. The Italian, and also most strangers that are commorant in Italy, do always at their meals use a little fork when they cut their meat. For while with their knife, which they hold in one hand, they cut out the meat of the dish, they fasten their fork, which they hold in their other hand, upon the same dish, so that whatsoever he be that sitting in the company of any other at meat should unadvisedly touch the dish of meat with his fingers from which all at the table do cut, he will give occasion of offense unto the company as having transgressed the laws of good manners, in so much that for his error he shall be at the least browbeaten if not reprehended in words."

Where?

A lady who gave herself great airs of importance, on being introduced to a gentleman, said, with a show of much indifference, "I think I have seen you somewhere."

Incubators in Eastern Lands.

Hatching the eggs by means of artificial heat has been practiced in China and Egypt from prehistoric times. In the latter country there still exist ancient egg hatcheries or "mamala" that have been in continuous use in the same family for many generations. These incubators consist of large brick ovens that will hold about thirty thousand to sixty thousand eggs at a time. The fire is built inside the oven and is watched carefully for ten days, after which no additional heat is necessary. The method of building the fires and maintaining them so as to preserve the right temperature is a trade secret that is jealously guarded and usually kept in the family.

Disobedient Porter.

Senator John W. Kern says he recently chanced upon the most unobedient Pullman porter that he has ever seen in his travels. He inquired of the porter who was reading: "What town's this we're getting into?" "Don't know, sah," replied the porter, without bothering to look up from his book. "Ah ain't looked out the window yet."

No Danger.

Post—Your rich uncle was set upon by a bull.

Parker—Where?

Post—At his country place.

Parker—Good!

Post—That doctor is something of a cynic.

As to how?

Post—He says when a man has a malady it's a disease, and when a woman has it it's a complaint.

FERRIS AND HELME ARE CANDIDATES

MR. WOOD WITHDRAWS, GIVING PROFESSOR FERRIS A CLEAR FIELD FOR DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION.

EXPLAINS WHY HIS NAME WAS TO HAVE BEEN USED.

Mr. Ferris Was Candidate Eight Years Ago and Made a Strong Run Against Warner, but Was Defeated.

Woodbridge N. Ferris received a call at his home in Big Rapids Wednesday afternoon from a delegation of original Woodrow Wilson Democrats from southwestern Michigan, headed by Wm. F. McKnight, of Grand Rapids. The committee urged him to consent to have petitions circulated for his nomination for governor on the Democratic ticket at the August primaries. Mr. Ferris says: "It will be a large inconvenience for me to be a candidate. The sacrifices of my private interests that it means to me is not small. But, I am willing to make the sacrifice if it is going to help Gov. Wilson in Michigan. The Michigan democracy owes it to our national candidate to make sacrifices. Had another than Gov. Wilson been nominated at Baltimore, I would not for a moment consider being a candidate."

Eight years ago Prof. Ferris was the Democratic nominee for governor and stumped the state, his main argument being for a comprehensive primary nominations law. There was then no state primary law. Fred M. Warner was running on the Republican ticket for a first term, and he had the hearty support of his party's state organization. Warner and the organization were then only lukewarm on the primary proposition. On election day Col. Roosevelt carried Michigan for president by a majority of 204,387, but Warner's majority over Ferris was but 60,228.

Edwin O. Wood, member of the democratic national committee for Michigan, today telegraphed the secretary of state that he was not a candidate for governor, and requested that no petitions for him be filed.

Mr. Wood says he was at no time a candidate for the nomination for governor, and only consented to the use of his name when called out at the national committee meeting at Chicago Monday and informed by telephone that Judge Yaple was disqualified by the state constitution, which prohibits a circuit judge from holding public office for one year after leaving the bench, and that no definite acceptance was at hand from any source with only eleven days left in which to file petitions.

Under these conditions, he said the ticket must be filed and that if there was any fear that the head of the ticket was likely to be vacant, his name could be used, but under no other circumstance, and that if any worthy democrat would make the race, Mr. Wood's name would be withdrawn forthwith.

James W. Helme, who will be a candidate for attorney-general, in a formal statement, says: "The progressive Democrats met at Big Rapids and prevailed upon Prof. Ferris to allow his name to go on the primary ballot for governor. He said at the time that he would suggest me as a good running mate, so there will be a petition circulated for me for nomination for lieutenant-governor with Mr. Ferris representing the progressive wing as opposed to Wood and McDonald representing the reactionaries."

Some Phone Companies Cannot Sell Out.

The supreme court, in an opinion handed down held that a telephone company organized for services between its members, but not for profit and unincorporated, has no right to sell out its business, despite the fact that a majority of the stockholders so vote.

The decision was handed down in the case of the minority stockholders of a farmer's mutual telephone company of Waldron, Hillsdale county, against the Hillsdale County Telephone Co.

35,528 Autos Are Licensed in State.

Automobiles are still much more popular in cities than in the villages and rural districts of the state, according to figures given out by Secretary of State Martindale.

Of 35,528 licenses issued this year, only 14,295 are credited to the villages and country, while Detroit alone has 9,696, with 2,001 credited to Grand Rapids, and 966 to Lansing.

A new and modern building will be erected for the Hancock Copper Journal.

Rev. Fr. Jodocy will found a Belgian colony near Chaison in the upper peninsula. It is expected that 40 families, direct from Belgium, will locate there this fall.

Battle Creek's campaign for pure milk has put the largest creamery in the city to the wall. The creamery is valued at $13,000 and the liabilities are but $9,000. The loss of the creditors will be small.

The Valley Home Telephone Co. was granted authority by the state railroad commission to issue $1,000,000 for the purpose of extending the system.

To test the theory of artificial rain-making, 4,500 pounds of dynamite was discharged by a committee of the Battle Creek Industrial association at Level Park, west of Battle Creek. The dynamiting was started in the middle of the forenoon, and soon after nightfall one of the worst wind and rain storms of the season hit the city. The weather observer scoffs at the idea that rain can be produced by artificial means.

GAMBLERS RAISE FUND

$250,000 Raised for Defense in New York Murder Case.

A fund of $250,000 has been raised to defend the gamblers and gang fighters, accused of being agents of the police system in the killing of Herman Rosenthal in New York. While this fund is being collected by their opponents, the police are sending broadcast descriptions of men suspected of the actual crime. Their search has narrowed down to five men:

Whitey Lewis, gambler and gun fighter, alleged by the police to be one of the actual slayers of Rosenthal, reported to be in Chicago.

Harry Harowitz, alias "Gib the Blood," gun fighter and follower of "Big Back" Zelig; declared to be one of the slayers.

"Lefty" Boewey, gun man and gangster, supposed to be one of the slayers.

"Dago Frank," right name undisclosed, also suspected of the actual crime.

Samuel Schepps, gambler, now missing, supposed to be one of the men in the gray car in which the assassins escaped.

The police are also trying to secure a confession from Louis Weber, owner of the gambling den where the assassins met before killing Rosenthal. It was rumored that he was ready to tell all he knew.

Weber's decision to inform on his accomplices was hastened, it is said, by a visit made to him in the Tombs by his young wife. She urged him to accept District Attorney Whitman's offer of immunity for his confession.

Killing of Rosenthal Was Rehearsed.

A country wide search for slayers of Herman Rosenthal, the New York gambler, is on. The names of the gunmen who shot and killed the gambler have been known to the police officials through a grilling third degree given several prisoners now in custody in connection with the case.

The band of gunmen that were engaged in the killing after it had been carefully rehearsed in an uptown gambling house are believed to have fled within a day or two, having been convinced that the "police system" will not be able to protect them.

Parcels Post Bill.

After a dispute of more than two months the senate committee on post-offices and post roads Saturday reached an agreement on the postoffice appropriation bill.

The parcels post provision, the principal matter in dispute, was finally thrashed out by Senator Bourne and Senator Bristow of Kansas. The result was a compromise.

The bill retains Senator Bourne's scheme for a division of the country into zones within which rates for the transmission of parcels shall be the same.

Canal Nears Completion.

More than seven-eighths of the excavation work on the Panama canal has been completed. June 1, according to the canal record, 2,053,815 cubic yards, or less than one-eighth of the total amount of earth and rock to be taken out of the canal route, remained to be excavated. At the rate the great steam shovels are working, this can be done in time to have the waterway ready for opening on schedule, January 1, 1915.

Col. Roosevelt to Visit Saginaw.

Col. Roosevelt will visit Saginaw during the latter part of October according to a telegram which was received by the progressive Republicans, from Senator Dixon, the Roosevelt manager.

John E. Ferris, a journal publisher of Saginaw, announced his candidacy for state senator on the progressive Republican ticket. He has never before been actively concerned in politics.

TELEGRAPH NOTES.

The members of the Michigan Retail Clothiers' association will hold their annual convention in Kalamazoo August 21 to 23.

The Portage township board is advertising for the sale of $25,000 bonds authorized by the electors for the building of the Otter Lake road.

Judge John S. McDonald sustained a dislocated shoulder and other painful injuries in an automobile accident in Grand Rapids. The judge was cranking his machine when it suddenly leaped forward and ran him down.

Cladya Snyder, eight, was thrown from a row boat into St. Clair river and drowned when one of several little girls on shore jerked a rope that was attached to the boat. Two physicians were immediately summoned, but were unable to resuscitate her.

Miss Beatrice Darby and Daniel T. Vreese, both of Flint, were married in Alpena by Rev. Dean Hastings, of Trinity church. The people were enjoying an outing at Grand lake and decided it was better to get married now than later.

That farming, even in the eastern states, when conducted on a small scale, is far more profitable than most industrial enterprises, is shown by a report to the state department of agriculture on the farms owned by the state and operated in connection with various state institutions. One of the farms connected with the Rome Custodial institution shows an annual profit of 23.2 per cent.

The Iowa Fair association is planning a boosting campaign for Aug. 7 and 8, and has closed a deal for Lincoln Beachey and his Curtis flying machine as an attraction. The regular fair comes the last of September.

Beginning Monday next, 1,500 uniformed boy scouts, with the co-operation of the street cleaning department and the department of health, will undertake the work of clearing bits of paper, garbage and refuse from the streets of the east side, and other congested neighborhoods of New York city. The work was suggested by the treatment house commission.

CADILLAC WEEK IN DETROIT

100,000 SEE FIREWORKS DISPLAY ON BELLE ISLE MONDAY, THE OPENING NIGHT.

VISION OF THE VOYAGERS PRODUCED IN FIRE.

Cadillac, Impersonated by Andrew H. Green, Jr., Arrived in Detroit Tuesday Afternoon.

While thousands looked on, awed by the wonder of it and thrilled by its beauty, now in profound stillness, then midst a deafening din of applauding voices, screaming whistles, shrieking horns, and clanging bells, the vision of Cadillac's voyagers, in colors of living flame, was thrown on the heavens above Belle Isle, Monday night, in the most spectacular and brilliant display of fireworks ever produced in the city of Detroit.

Staged as the opening event of the greatest celebration in the city's history, the arts of nature combined with the skill of man, aided by ideal weather conditions, to make it a most fitting and worthy prelude to the program of spectacular display that will commemorate the notable feat of Detroit's founder 211 years ago.

Heralded by a solitary sky rocket that shot suddenly hissing and sputtering high into the blackness of the heavens, its course marked by a brilliant crimson line across the sky, and its end by the shower of colored stars that burst from its head, a whole battery of aerial bombs discharged their fiery missiles, beginning a fusillade that lasted without pause or interruption for an hour.

Escorted by virtually all the military and naval forces of Detroit, the Sieur de La Mothe Cadillac, impersonated by Andrew H. Green, Jr., of the Solvay Process Co., and accompanied by a retinue of sun-tanned caudomien and two missionary priests, known in commercial life as James L. Lee of the Fink Manufacturing Co. and Joseph Mack of the Mack Printing Co., arrived in Detroit Tuesday afternoon, launching the most impressive of the historical pageants arranged to celebrate the city's 211th birthday.

On his arrival at the foot of Third street, after being escorted down from Lake St. Clair by a great fleet of boats, he was met by Lieut. Gov. Ross and the governor's staff, the 150 counts of Cadillac, soldiers from Fort Wayne, marines from the revenue cutters Tuscarora and Morrell, with cavalry and police, and conducted in state through the streets to the reviewing stand in Grand Circus park.

At Grand Circus park Cadillac was met by a tribe of Indians, the chief of which presented him with a pipe of peace. He was then formally welcomed and presented with a scroll containing the record of Detroit's progress for the past 12 months. This scroll was inclosed in a copper box, to be deposited in the vaults of the city hall, to be opened in 100 years.

A feature of the scene before the reviewing stand was the presentation to W. E. Blaine of a Studebaker car in recognition of his having suggested the name "Cadillac."

Woodward and Jefferson avenues, lined for miles by dense masses of people, visitors and residents, who watched the automobile parade Tuesday afternoon and historical pageant in the evening.

The Industrial Parade of Wednesday night, besides being two hours late, contained a score or more of hoists, most of them really beautiful in design, elaborate in detail and of great cost.

Mitchell Given Niné Months.

John Mitchell, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, today was sentenced in the District of Columbia supreme court to nine months' imprisonment for contempt of court growing out of the Bucks Stove & Range Co. case. An appeal was taken and $4,000 bail furnished to abide by the decision of the upper court.

In the same case President Samuel Gompers recently was sentenced to one year and Secretary Frank Morrison to six months.

Mr. Mitchell was not in court, but sent a written statement waiving his right to be present. He was to have been sentenced last week, but Justice Wright then declined to pass sentence because he objected to the form of waiver submitted for Mr. Mitchell.

Mikado's Condition Much Improved.

The bulletins issued from the palace in Tokio by the court physicians reporting the improved condition in the health of Mutsuhito, the emperor of Japan, have been received with satisfaction throughout the capital. The stock market improved generally as a result of the satisfactory news.

The Phipps Psychiatric clinic of Johns Hopkins hospital will treat "blues" as a mental affection, holding it to be a mild form of insanity.

Crazed by drink, Carl Anderson, a laborer, undertook to "shoot up" the town of Menominee, and was arrested by Policeman Van Doozer for personal risk. Arrangements were made to return him to his home in Sweden.

Lieut. Preusser, a German military aviator, was killed in Leipzig as he was making a landing after a flight. The machine turned over twice after it struck the ground, the airman being caught beneath the engine.

After having been officially and legally "Columbia college" for more than 125 years, the institution is at last to have its name changed to Columbia university, according to a motion filed with the state supreme court in New York. The appellation "The trustees of Columbia college in the city of New York" will be succeeded by "The trustees of Columbia university in the city of New York."

STANLEY REPORT READY

Two Old Parties Will Announce Campaign Doctrine on Trusts.

The Stanley steel committee designated to investigate the United States Steel Corporation is ready to report to the house of representatives.

The Democratic majority on the committee will incorporate in their majority report what is to serve through the coming campaign as the Democratic doctrine relating to corporations.

Representative H. Olin Young, of Ishpeming, Mich., advocates what is to stand as the Republican doctrine on trusts.

Supreme court has sustained the court in the case of Carl Tessmer, convicted of pulling the tongue of his horse out by the roots. Tessmer will probably be sentenced this week.

There was 2,852 deaths reported to the secretary of state during June. This is an increase of 251 over June in 1911. Tuberculosis in its many forms was the principal cause of deaths. There were 5,770 births during June, an increase of 127 over the preceding month.

The Middle-Aged Woman.

Of the many ways in which the middle-aged woman may vary the effect of her afternoon gowns none is simpler than the use of a collar and cuffs of white voile edged with scalloping and embroidery in a floral design. Another change may be the frock set of white chiffon with border of black malines, and still another is the one of black net hemstitched with silver thread. Some of these collars are so long in front that they terminate only at the waist line, where they cross in surprise effect and are tucked away under the girdle. An excellent model of this sort is of light blue lawn embroidered with black dots, and a second is of white agate trimmed with tiny folds of broadcloth, alternating with sponge.

Too Eager.

Fred Poyner, a Chicago dentist, was recently at a banquet given by the Dental association.

He said: "On one side is the right of things and on the other is wrong; sometimes the difference between the two is slight. As the following story shows: A gypsy upon release from jail met a friend. 'What were you in for?' asked the friend.

"I found a horse," the gypsy replied. "Found a horse? Nonsense! They would never put you in jail for finding a horse."

Voice of Conscience.

A western Kentucky negro was in jail awaiting trial for stealing a calf. His wife called to see him. On her way out the jailer, whose name was Grady, halted her.

"Mandy," he inquired, "have you got a lawyer for Jim?" "No, sah," said his wife. "Ef Jim was guilty I'd git him a lawyer right away; but he tells me he ain't guilty, and so, of cose, I ain't aimin' to hire none."

"Mr. Grady," came a voice from the cells above, "you tell dat nigger woman down ther, to git a lawyer—and git a dam' good one, too!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Excellent Plan.

"I see," said Mrs. De Jones, while Mrs. Van Tyle was calling, "that you have a Chinese chauffeur. Do you find him satisfactory?"

"He's perfectly fine," said Mrs. Van

SYNOPSIS.

Lieut. Harry Mallory is ordered to the Philippines. He and Marjorie Newton decide to elope, but wreck of taxicab prevents their seeing minister on the way to the train. Transcontinental train is taking on passengers. Porter has a lively time with an Englishman and Ira Lathrop, a Yankee business man. The elopers have an exciting time getting to the train. "Little Jimmie" Wellington, bound for Reno to get a divorce, boards train in maudlin condition. Later Mrs. Jimmie appears. She is also bound for Reno with same object. Likewise Mrs. Sammy Whitcomb. Letter blames Mrs. Jimmie for her marital troubles. Classmates of Mallory decorate bridal berth. Rev. and Mrs. Temple start on a vacation. They decide to cut loose and Temple removes evidence of his calling Marjorie decides to let Mallory proceed alone, but train starts while they are lost in farewell. Passengers join Mallory's classmates in giving couple wedding blessing. Marjorie is distracted. Ira Lathrop, woman-hating bachelor, discovers an old sweetheart, Anne Gattie, a fellow passenger. Mallory vainly hunts for a preacher among the passengers.

CHAPTER XIII.

Hostilities Begin.

During Mallory's absence, Marjorie had met with a little adventure of her own. Ira Lathrop finished his encounter with Anne Gattie shortly after Mallory set out stalking clergyman. In the mingled confusion of finding his one romantic flame still glowing on a vestal altar, and of shocking her with an escape of profanity, he backed away from her presence, and sank into his own berth. He realized that he was not alone. Somebody was alongside. He turned to find the great tear-spent eyes of Marjorie staring at him. He rose with a recrudescence of his woman-hating wrath, and dashing up the aisle, found the porter just returning from the baggage car. He seized the black factotum and growled: "Say, porter, there's a woman in my berth."

The porter checked, incredulous: "Woman in yo' berth?" "Yes—get her out." "Yassah," the porter nodded, and advanced on Marjorie with a gentle, "Scuse me, missus—yo' berth is numba one."

"I don't care," snapped Marjorie. "I won't take it." "But this un belongs to that gentleman." "He can have mine—ours—Mr. Mallory's," cried Marjorie, pointing to the white-ribbed tent in the farther end of the car. Then she gripped the arms of the seat, as if defying eviction. The porter stared at her in helpless chagrin. Then he shuffled back and murmured: "I reckon you'd betta put her out."

Lathrop withered the coward with one contemptuous look, and strode down the aisle with a determined grimace. He took his ticket from his pocket as a clinching proof of his title, and thrust it out at Marjorie. She gave it one indifferent glance, and then her eyes and mouth puckered, as if she had munched a green persimmon, and a long low wail like a distant engine-whistle, stole from her lips. Ira Lathrop stared at her in blank wrath, doddered irresolutely, and roared: "Agh, let her have it!"

The porter smiled triumphantly, and said: "She says you kin have her berth." He pointed at the bridal arbor. Lathrop almost exploded at the idea. Now he felt a hand on his shoulder, and turned to see Little Jimmie Wellington, emerging from his berth with an enormous smile. "Say, Pop, have you seen lovely rickshaw? Stick around till she pops." But Lathrop swung away to the smoking room. Little Jimmie turned to the jovial negro: "Porter, porter." "I'm right by you." "What time a'you say we get to Reno?" "Maw'nin' of the fo'th day, sah." "Well, call me just before we roll in."

turbing atmosphere of divorce. She was dreaming already with her eyes open, and she sank into number six in a lotus-eater's reverie. Mrs. Wellington gathered certain things together and took up her handbag, to return to the Women's Room, just as Mrs. Whitcomb came forth from the curtains of her own berth, where she had made certain preliminaries to disrobing, and put on a light, decidedly neglige negligee. The two women collided in the aisle, whirled on one another, as women do when they jostle, recognized each other with wild stares of amazement, set their teeth, and made a simultaneous dash along the corridor, shoulder wrestling with shoulder. They reached the door marked "Women" at the same instant, and as neither would have dreamed of offering the other a courtesy, they squeezed through together in a Kilkeny jumble.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Dormitory on Wheels. Of all the shocking institutions in human history, the sleeping car is the most shocking—or would be, if we were not so used to it. There can be no doubt that we are the most moral nation on earth, for we admit it ourselves. Perhaps we prove it, too, by the Arcadian prosperity of these two-story hotels on wheels, where miscellaneous travelers dwell in complete promiscuity, and sleep almost side by side, in apartments, or compartments, separated only by a plank and a curtain, and guarded only by one sleepy negro.

After the fashion of the famous country whose inhabitants earned a meager subsistence by taking in each other's washing, so in Sleeping Carpathia we attain a meager respectability by everybody's chaperoning everybody else. So topsy-turvid, indeed, are our notions, once we are aboard a train, that the staterooms alone are regarded with suspicion; we question the motives of those who must have a room to themselves!—a room with a real door! that locks!

And, now, on this sleeping car, prettily named "Snowdrop," scenes were enacting that would have thrown our great-grandmothers into fits—scenes which, if we found them in France, or Japan, we should view with alarm as almost unmentionable evidence of the moral obliquity of those nations. But this was our own country—the part of it which admits that it is the best part—the morallest part, the staunch middle west. This was Illinois. Yet dozens of cars were beholding similar immodesties in chastest Illinois, and all over the map, thousands of people, in hundreds of cars, were permitting total strangers to view preparations which have always, hitherto, been reserved for the most intimate and legalized relations.

The porter was deftly transforming the day-coach into a narrow lane entirely surrounded by draperies. Behind most of the portieres, fluttering in the lightest breeze, and perilously following the hasty passer-by, homely offices were being enacted. The population of this little town was going to bed. The porter was putting them to sleep as if they were children in a nursery, and he a black mammy. The frail walls of little sanctuaries were bulging with the bodies of people disrobing in the aisle, with nothing between them and the beholder's eye but a clinging curtain that explained what it did not reveal. From apertures here and there disembodied feet were protruding and mysterious hands were removing shoes and other things.

Women in risky attire were scooting to one end of the car, and men in shirt sleeves, or less, were hastening to the other. When Mallory returned to the "Snowdrop," his ear was greeted by the thud of dropping shoes. He found Marjorie being rapidly immured, like Poe's prisoner, in a jail of closing walls.

She was unspeakably ill at ease, and by the irony of custom, the one person on whom she depended for protection was the one person whose contiguity was most alarming—and all for lack of a brief dialogue, with a clergyman, as the tertium quid. When Mallory's careworn face appeared round the edge of the partition now erected between her and the abode of Dr. and Mrs. Temple, Marjorie uttered a gasp, and asked with all anxiety: "Did you find a minister?" Perhaps the Recording Angel overlooked Mallory's answer: "Not a damn minister." When he dropped at Marjorie's side she edged away from him, pleading: "Oh, what shall we do?" He answered demially and ineffectively: "We'll have to go on pretending to be—just friends." "But everybody thinks we're married."

"That's so!" he admitted, with the imbecility of fatigued hope. They sat a while listening to the porter stipping sheets into place and thumping pillows into cases, a few doors down the street. He would be ready for them at any moment. Something must be done, but what? what?

CHAPTER XV.

A Premature Divorce. Suddenly Marjorie's heart gave a leap of joy. She was having another idea. "I'll tell you, Harry. We'll pretend to quarrel, and then—"

eyes and her voice: "Can you suggest anything better?" "No, but—" "Then, we'll have to quarrel, darling." He yielded, for lack of a better idea: "All right, beloved. How shall we begin?"

On close approach, the idea did seem rather impossible to her. "How could I ever quarrel with you, my love?" she cooed. He gazed at her with a rush of lovely tenderness: "And how could I ever speak crossly to you?" "We never shall have a harsh word, shall we?" she resolved. "Never!" he seconded. So that resolution passed the house unanimously. They held hands in luxury a while, then she began again: "Still, we must pretend. You start it, love."

"No, you start it," he pleaded. "You ought to," she beamed. "You got me into this mess." The word slipped out. Mallory started: "Mess! How is it my fault? Good Lord, are you going to begin chucking it up?" "Well, you must admit, darling," Marjorie urged, "that you've bungled everything pretty badly."

It was so undeniable that he could only groan: "And I suppose I'll bear this till my dying day, dearest." Marjorie had a little temper all her own. So she defended it: "If you are so afraid of my temper, love, perhaps you'd better call it all off before it's too late." "I didn't say anything about your temper, sweetheart," Mallory insisted. "You did, too, honey. You said I'd chuck this up till your dying day. As if I had such a disposition! You can stay here." She rose to her feet. He pressed her back with a decisive motion, and demanded: "Where are you going?"

"Up in the baggage car with Snowzeleums," she sniffled. "He's the only one that doesn't find fault with me." Mallory was stung to action by this crisis: "Wait," he said. He leaned out and motioned down the aisle. "Porter! Wait a moment, darling, Porter!"

The porter arrived with a half-folded blanket in his hands, and his usual "Yassah!" Beckoning him closer, Mallory mumbled in a low tone: "Is there an extra berth on this car?" The porter's eyes seemed to rebuke his ears. "Does you want this upper made up?" "No—of course not." "Ex—excuse me, I thought—" "Don't you dare to think!" Mallory thundered. "Isn't there another lower berth?"

The porter breathed hard, and gave this bridal couple up as a riddle that followed no known rules. He went to find the sleeping car conductor, and returned with the information that the diagram showed nobody assigned to number three. "Then I'll take number three," said Mallory, poking money at the porter. And still the porter could not understand. "Now, lemme onderstan' you-all," he stammered. "Does you both move over to numba three, or does yo—yo' lady remain heah, while jest you preambulate?" "Just I preambulate, you black hound!" Mallory answered, in a threatening tone. The porter could understand that, at least, and he bristled away with a meek: "Yessah. Numba three is yours, sah."

The troubled features of the baffled porter cleared up as by magic when he arrived at number three, for there he found his tyrant and tormentor, the English invader. He remembered how indignantly Mr. Wedgewood had refused to show his ticket, how cocksure he was of his number, how he had leased the porter's services as a sort of private nurse, and had paid no advance royalties.

Palace Where Wagner Died. Apropos of the return from her chateau in Styria of the Duchesse della Grazia to her palace in Venice, a Paris contemporary gives an interesting account of Vendramin, which is not only one of the most beautiful residences on the canal, but it is closely associated with the history of the city of the doges. It was built in 1441. German princes occupied it at first. Then it passed into the possession of the duke of Mantua, who purchased it for 50,000 ducats of gold. It was the scene of great social events under the Archduke Charles Ferdinand of Austria and his wife, Anne de Medicis, in 1652, and through them the palace has come into the possession of the present owners through marriage. It was here that Richard Wagner died in 1883. The desk at which he wrote "Tristan und Isolde" is carefully preserved. Some years ago a plaque was affixed to the palace showing its connection with the great composer. Speaking Conscientiously. Senator La Follette during his recent visit to Philadelphia said to a reporter, apropos of a flagrant piece of hypocrisy: "Why, the man's as bad as a Newport groom I heard of the other day. This groom stood beside his master while a veterinary examined a costly colt. The veterinary, at the end of his examination, pronounced the colt incurable and took leave. Then the master, sighing heavily, turned to the groom and said: "Well, James, what am I to do with the poor beast now?" "Conscientiously speaking, sir," the groom replied, "I think you'd better part with him now to another gentleman, sir."

WOLVERINE NEWS BREVITIES

Grand Rapids.—Willard E. Nye, keeper of a roadhouse, was convicted of illegal liquor selling. This is the second conviction within two weeks of tavern keepers in the county for such violation. Nye will appeal the case to the supreme court, the court deferring sentence. But one roadhouse is now operating in Kent county.

Ann Arbor.—The University Y. M. C. A. has bought the property at the corner of State and Washington streets, owned by the Wesleyan guild, for $15,000. This was the last parcel of land needed by the Y. M. C. A. to complete the site for its new $150,000 clubhouse, which will contain dormitories for 75 students.

Marquette.—Rev. Father J. G. Pinten, rector of St. Peter's cathedral and who recently was appointed vicar general of the diocese of Sault Ste. Marie and Marquette, has been designated as a domestic prelate by Pope Pius.

Coldwater.—Edwin P. Fox, a resident of Coldwater since the close of the Civil war, dropped dead of apoplexy. He was a Civil war soldier, but only sixty-two years old, having enlisted just before the close of the war.

Ashley.—Eight business buildings were destroyed, causing a loss of over $25,000. The fire started in the clothing store of Earl Derry and spread rapidly.

Coldwater.—Mrs. Caroline Bartlett Crane of Kalamazoo spoke to the women of Coldwater upon the woman suffrage question and spoke from the court house steps to about 400, this being the opening of the women suffrage campaign in Branch county.

Hillsdale.—Alvin Willson gave several thousand people a severe shock when he crashed through a fence at the race track with a three-wheeled contrivance operated by a propeller like an aeroplane. He was swinging into the stretch and turned too quickly.

Kalamazoo.—George Rix, aged seventy years, a Lawton man who came to Kalamazoo to see the races, was hit by an automobile driven by Claude Felkner of Three Rivers and dangerously injured.

Jackson.—James Rapsher, who was run down by an automobile driven by William J. Stanfield of the fire department, died in the City hospital from his injuries.

Lansing.—A pretty romance culminated when William E. Morgan and Miss Helen E. Baker were married. The acquaintance of the couple began two years ago, when he rescued her from Pine lake into which she had been precipitated by a capsizing canoe. The young man plunged into the water and swam several hundred feet to where Miss Baker was in a desperate battle with the waves. Her escort was clinging to the canoe and did not offer her any assistance.

Evart.—Two men from southern Michigan are dragging the lakes of Osceola with nets for the purpose of securing turtles. The supply of turtles suitable for food in the lakes of the southern part of the state has been nearly exhausted. These men ship this meat in great quantities and unless some step is taken in the near future to protect the turtle it will soon be exterminated hereabouts.

Jackson.—John Trowbridge, a convict who escaped from the prison farm, returned to the prison voluntarily. He told Warden Simpson that he slept out of doors and that he awakened to a realization of his foolishness and desired to be sent back to the farm. Trowbridge came from Ionia January 29, last, on a two to ten years' sentence for assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than the crime of murder.

Ann Arbor.—Citizens will have an opportunity on August 27 to vote on the question of whether the city shall build a detention hospital and accept the offer of the University of Michigan to maintain it. The regents have agreed that if the city would contribute $25,000 for a building the university would undertake to equip it and furnish medical attendance.

Battle Creek.—"No more bathing in Gogucac lake," this was the edict of the board of public works. Lake Gogucac is the source of the city's water supply and from one to 1,000 persons bathe in the placid waters daily throughout the summer. The board figures that this practice contaminates the water and that it must be stopped.

Lansing.—Governor Osborn has discarded his crutches and is able to walk with the use of a cane. He has had a specially-built shoe for his injured foot. It is unlikely that the governor will attend the meeting of the Progressives under the Oaks, as he left for Newberry asylum in the upper peninsula. He was in Coldwater inspecting the school there. He intends to inspect all of the 16 state institutions personally. The trip to Newberry will not permit him to return in time for the Jackson meeting, it is thought.

SPLENDID OUTLOOK FOR CROPS IN WESTERN CANADA

RELIABLE INFORMATION FROM THE GRAIN FIELDS SHOW THAT THE PROSPECTS ARE GOOD.

This is the time of year when considerable anxiety is felt in all the northern agricultural districts as to the probable outcome of the growing crops. Central Canada, comprising the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, with their 16,000,000 acres of wheat, oats, barley and flax, of which 6,000,000 acres may be said to be sown to wheat alone, has become a great factor in the grain markets of the world. Besides this, government returns show that every state in the Union has representatives in these provinces, and naturally the friends of these representatives are anxious to hear of their success. It has never been said of that country that it is absolutely faultless. There are, and have been, districts that have experienced the vagaries of the weather, the same as in districts south of the boundary line between the two countries, but these are only such as are to be expected in any agricultural country. The past has proven that the agricultural possibilities of this portion of Canada are probably more attractive in every way than most countries where grain raising is the chief industry. The present year promises to be even better than past years, and in a month or six weeks it is felt there will be produced the evidence that warrants the enthusiasm of the present. Then these great broad acres will have the ripened wheat, oats, barley and flax, and the farmer, who has been looking forward to making his last payment on his big farm will be satisfied. At the time of writing, all crops give the promise of reaching the most sanguine expectations.

In the central portion of Alberta, it is said that crop conditions are more favorable than in any previous year. Heavy rains recently visited this part, and the whole of this grain growing section has been covered. Reports like the following come from all parts: "Splendid heavy rain yesterday. Crops forging ahead. Great prospects. All grains more than a week ahead of last year. Weather warm last week. Good rains last night."

From southern Alberta the reports to hand indicate sufficient rain. Crops in excellent condition. Labor scarce. Throughout Saskatchewan all grains are looking well, and there has been sufficient rain to carry them through to harvest. From all portions of Manitoba there comes an assurance of an abundant yield of all grains. Throughout southern Manitoba, where rain was needed a few weeks ago, there has lately been abundant precipitation, and that portion of the province will in all probability have a crop equal the best anticipations. A large quantity of grain was sown on the stubble in the newer west, which is never a satisfactory method of farming, and may reduce the general average.

Taken altogether, the country is now fully two weeks in advance of last year, and in all grains the acreages sown are much larger than in 1911. This means that with auspicious weather the west will have the grandest harvest in its history. Two hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat has been mentioned as an estimate of the present growing crop, and it looks now as if that guess will be none too large.

Fit Punishment. The Wicked Soul was sitting on a hot stove, drinking molten lava and fanning himself with a chunk of red hot sheetiron. "And who is the poor wretch?" asked Dante. "That," replied Satan, "is the first man who said, 'Is it hot enough for you?'"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Goodness does not more certainly make men happy than happiness makes them good.—Landon.

No thoughtful person sees liquid blue. It's a niche of blue in a large bottle of water. Ask for Red Cross Ball Blue, the blue that's all blue.

Women waste a lot of powder when the enemy isn't in sight.

Misinterpreted. William Shaw, the secretary of the famous Christian Endeavor society, said in a witty after-dinner address in Boston: "There is a little Back Bay girl who is much interested in her auntie's Christian Endeavor work. The little girl was writing a letter to her brother at Yale one day, and in the midst of the epistle she looked up and said: "'Auntie, how do you spell devil?'" "'Devil!' cried her aunt, with a shocked smile. 'Why, child, don't you know you mustn't use such a word as devil?'" "But, auntie," protested the little girl, "I want to tell brother about your Christian and devil meetings!"

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

How Mrs. Reed of Peoria, Ill., Escaped The Surgeon's Knife.

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctor said I had a tumor and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a well and healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. I am glad to tell anyone what your medicines have done for me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mount St., Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Lynch Also Avoided Operation.

Jessup, Pa.—"After the birth of my fourth child, I had severe organic inflammation. I would have such terrible pains that it did not seem as though I could stand it. This kept up for three long months, until two doctors decided that an operation was needed. "Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. JOSEPH A. LYNCH, Jessup, Pa.

Women who suffer from female ills should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of the most successful remedies the world has ever known, before submitting to a surgical operation.

Don't Persecute Your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal, harsh, unnecessary. CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver, stimulate bile, and soothe the delicate membrane of the bowels. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Sick Headaches, Indigestion, as well as hemorrhoids. SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE. Genuine must bear Signature.

DON'T CUT OUT A VARICOSE VEIN USE ABSORBINE, JR., FOR IT. A mild, safe, antiseptic, discutient, resolvent liniment, and a proven remedy for this and similar troubles.

Mr. R. C. Kellogg, Becket, Mass., before using this remedy, suffered intensely with painful and inflamed veins; they were swollen, knotted and hard. He writes: "After using one and one-half bottles of ABSORBINE, JR., the veins were reduced, inflammation and pain gone, and I have had no recurrence of the trouble during the past six years." Also removes Goitre, Painful Swellings, Wens, Cysts, Callouses, Bruises, "Black and Blue" discolorations, etc., in a pleasant manner. Price $1.00 and $2.00 a bottle at druggists or delivered. Wins an Automobile.

For some time a contest has been conducted by the Detroit Times, among the prizes being four Oakland automobiles. Mrs. Lawrence Johnson of Plymouth made up her mind she wanted one of those automobiles and entered the contest with such determination that she outstripped all competitors and led the race with 4,976,815 votes. Mrs. Johnson feels very proud of her new machine and her many friends are pleased to know that her efforts were crowned with success. Her nearest competitor outside of the city had but 2,200,000 votes.

According to Statement of Kansas City Man, "Salted" Mines Gave the Great Editor the Inspiration for Well-Known Words.
According to Isom C. Stephens, who runs a little corner grocery store in Kansas City, the famous advice of Horace Greeley to "Go West" was founded on a fake bit of persuasion in the form of a "salted" gold mine near Denver, Colo.

In the Spring of 1860 Mr. Stephens was in Denver—then a mere frontier village whose chief enterprise was gambling—at the time when Horace Greeley made the town a visit. Stephens was one of a party of six who wasted considerable effort trying to get real gold out of the identical locality where the early day promoters produced extravagant wealth before Mr. Greeley's eyes. The ruse worked admirably. It was good for several columns of the "Go west, young man" stuff right off the New York editor's trenchant pen.
Mr. Stephens, by the way, has a remarkable record as a pioneer. In four different states he "pioneered" years in advance of the railway—Michigan, Kansas, Colorado and North Dakota. Mr. Stephens was born in a log house in the woods of Michigan in 1837.
"I got the gold fever early in 1860," Mr. Stephens said. "My brother-in-law had been in Denver the year previous and had struck it rich in placer mining. We learned of excursion rates of $40 from Atchison to Denver, which were cheap in comparison with the regular rates of $100 one way.
"When we got to Denver the gold fever was running high. Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, and a member of his staff were in Denver. They sent back beautifully worded stories of the grandeur of the west, and the possibilities of getting rich. My father had been a subscriber to the New York Tribune ever since he built our log house in the Michigan clearing in 1828.
"Our party got a tip on the mines that Greeley had written about and we went up near Boulder and tried our luck. The six of us showed a gross return of $1.37 worth of gold for the week's work. Discouraged and half starved, we tramped back to Denver. Shortly after that we learned that the gold mines had been 'salted' for the purpose of arousing Mr. Greeley's enthusiasm.
"Mr. Greeley went back to New York that spring. It was the season to put ozone into the lungs of a city man and make him think there was no place like the boundless west. He left a staff writer in Denver that summer. I followed the trail back to the states the same summer. A drought had seized the land. Everything was parched and brown. It was a desolate-looking landscape. After I got back to Michigan I read the rosy accounts of the western country in the New York Tribune, but they didn't look good to me."—Kansas City Times.

WAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Goat That Leads Sheep to Slaughter

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The goat is not a beautiful animal in the face. He hasn't a sweet disposition. He isn't playful. He won't cuddle. But he has his uses.

Frank E. Essex of a local grain and milling company, who raises thousands of sheep and goats on his farm near Raytown, says a goat is the most contrivance animal ever invented. Everything goes contrary with him—like Mrs. Gummidge. But like Mrs. Gummidge he has a pretty good heart if you can get on the right side of him.

Mr. Essex has one particular goat on his place that is the best and the worst goat that ever lived. Sometimes Mr. Essex gets so all-fired mad at him that he longs to take a club and kill him. But every time he raises his hand to slay him he thinks of the many kindnesses the goat has done him, and his heart relents.

The goat, Mr. Essex admits, is not pretty to look at. He is bald, he has a wicked eye and his whiskers are full of cockleburrs. His disposition is so mean that he spends all his time thinking up things to do which his perverse mind tells him Mr. Essex doesn't want him to do.

"But, really, I hadn't ought to knock that goat," Mr. Essex said. "Sheep, you know, haven't a lick of sense. If it wasn't for that goat, I don't know how we'd ever get them into a stock car. But the goat knows how. Frankly, I don't believe he does it to help me—I think he does it because he knows the sheep are going to the packing house—to be made into broth, and it fills his wicked heart with gladness.

"Anyway, this is what he does: When the car is placed and the chute run down to the pen he takes the lead and marches up into the car, the sheep following. He marches all around the car and back to the floor, where he stops. There he places himself in such a way as to block the exit, leaving only enough room for the sheep to enter. They crowd in until the car is full, and then the goat leaps nimbly out and we shut the door.

"If you could see the wicked gram in his eye when he has thus trapped his trusting followers and saved his own skin you would appreciate how nearly human is his duplicity.

"Some time when I am vexed with him I suppose I shall shut the door on him and let him go to his deserts. If I don't get his goat sooner or later he will get mine."

Expected Spanking, Acclaimed Hero

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—The troubled conscience of Harold Isaac, twelve years old, of 23 Bartlett avenue, led him to make a confession to his mother the other day. He fully expected to be spanked. Instead, he was acclaimed a hero.

Harold went over to Linwood park, ten miles from here, on the annual picnic of the St. Nicholas church. Before he left his mother admonished him not to go near the water. He gave his solemn promise.

The youngster is an expert in the water and later in the afternoon he left the picnic grounds and strolled about to Bargaintown lake. Several of his boy chums were disputing in the water. Harold, although he cast longing eyes at the cool water, remembered his mother's warning and his promise. He sat down on the bank as near the water as he could without touching it, resolved not to violate the promise.

A few minutes later, George Kloris, a boy of twelve and his particular "pal," got into deep water and could not make land, despite his game fight. He started to drift away and the other youngsters, badly frightened when they saw he was drowning, scampered ashore, grabbed their clothes and started on a run to summon help.

The drowning boy called to Harold to save him.

Then he could stand it no longer. He kicked off his shoes, plunged and battled for ten minutes and had just succeeded in dragging the unconscious form ashore when some of the other boys returned. Then he led the work of resuscitation and was finally rewarded. George opened his eyes and gradually became himself once more and by the time Harold's clothes had dried he was almost recovered. Right there young Isaac made every one of his chums swear that they would not tell about his plunge in the water. They promised and kept "mum." But finally the youngster's conscience troubled him, and he could hold in no longer. He told his mother he had been in the water, and stopped there ready to take his punishment. But young Kloris overheard the confession and told the real story. Now Harold is the happiest kid in town.

Eat? Wasted Time, Say Keep Wellers

CLEVELAND, O.—Why eat? Members of the Keep Well club, who told their experiences at a foodless picnic the other day in Wade park, declared a man can go without nourishment for thirty days and feel like a bear cat, and that it is simple and delightful to exist for eight months on a daily ration of eight quarts of milk.

The club members advise any one with a stomachache to quit eating for awhile. It is fun after three days, declared Dr. C. M. Swingle, who has tried it.

How to be strong as a bull moose and still eat nothing was told at the picnic by A. G. Freeman, who once went without food for eighteen days straight. S. P. Brooks is the milk diet fiend.

If you backslide, you may do as some of the Keep-Wellers do, and de-your a hearty lunch. The menu might be:

- One peanut.
- One orange.
- One lettuce leaf.

"Once I went eight months without nourishment except eight quarts of milk a day," said Brooks. "I gained forty pounds. Since then I have lived on milk for varying periods. Now I am taking two quarts a day, in the morning and evening. The only other nourishment I receive is at 11 o'clock in the morning, when I eat a light lunch of nuts and occasionally an orange. But on Saturday I omit the lunch, because Sunday is a day of rest."

Swingle said that it is easy to go without food for short periods. He said that after the first three days the appetite leaves. He advised, however, that anything but a short fast should be taken under the direction of a physician.

"I went without food for eleven days and could carry a market basket without being tempted to eat," said Swingle.

Swingle said milk and lemons is a diet that is good for tuberculars, under the direction of a physician.

Cat Shatters Governor's Resolution

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Gov. Thomas R. Marshall's resolution to spend July 4 behind the locked doors of his offices in the statehouse was shattered early in the morning on account of the governor's admiration for "Tom," a big, black cat, the capitol mascot.

Tom was not responsible directly for the governor's throwing open the doors of his executive offices. A friend of the Democratic nominee for the vice-presidency, knowing that the cat was admired by the governor, imitated the sound of a cat scratching against the door of the private office until Marshall was greeted by a crowd of late arrivals from the Baltimore convention. They gained access to the room to congratulate the governor by imitating the scratching of a cat when head knocking had failed.

The governor was engaged in dictating his decisions on the numerous petitions for pardons, when a crowd began to congregate at the doors of the executive offices. Frequent poundings and shouted requests for entrance were unheeded.

The crowd was asked to remain quiet. The governor, seated at his desk, with large pile of congratulatory telegrams and letters before him, became aware of the silence in the corridors and believed the crowd had dispersed. Then came the gentle scratching as if of claws against wood, and the governor, desiring the presence of Tom in the room, threw open the doors, only to be greeted by the masses and laughter of more than a score of his hooded admirers.

Titus Oates, Conspiracy Inventor

THIS is the story of a liar whose lies caused the death of many innocent people and convulsed a whole kingdom. He was a shriveled, oily fellow, Titus Oates by name. Oates was TITUS OATES the son of an English weaver. He began life as a Baptist clergyman, was driven out of his church for perjury and became a chaplain in the British navy. He was dismissed from this service for gross misconduct and went to study for the priesthood in a Jesuit college. Here he was found to be vicious, hypocritical and worthless, and was expelled in disgrace. Thus in 1678, at the age of fifty-nine, he was cast upon the world to pick up a living by his wits. Already he had been branded as a blackguard, but now his real career of deadly mischief was beginning.

Hating the Jesuits for their just condemnation of him, he went to Charles II, king of England, and invented a story of a Jesuit plot to murder the king and to start a general massacre. His tale was an absolute lie from first to last, and it was so awkwardly devised that the king in a few careless questions exposed it as not only false but utterly absurd.

Oates was not discouraged. Failing to convince Charles of the falsehood, he went before a magistrate named Godfrey and publicly took oath that his charges were true. The government and the people at large seemed to forget that Oates had already been convicted of perjury and that his whole life was that of a man whose word was not to be credited. Panic struck statesmen and populace alike. They believed their king's life was really threatened. No proofs to the contrary nor appeals to their sanity could check this belief. The nation was made with excitement. Charles alone—the supposed plot's intended victim—remained calm and laughed at the entire affair as a hoax.

Nearly 2,000 innocent persons were arrested on Oates' false testimony as members of the conspiracy. Brave, honest, loyal Englishmen were tried and unjustly put to death on the same ridiculous charge. A reign of terror set in. No one's life seemed safe when a convicted perjurer could swear it away. Plain citizens and high nobles alike swelled the ranks of victims. Oates received a large income from the government and had a suite of rooms in the palace.

Then, as the turmoil began to die down, Oates tried to revive it, by the most atrocious charge of all. He accused the queen—a meek, pious, gentle little woman whom her husband had neglected and ill-treated—of conspiring to poison King Charles. The public once more howled with fury. Parliament tried to force the queen to leave court. Charles had the decency to put a stop to this tale by declaring his wife innocent.

Later, when Charles II died and his brother, James II, came to the throne, Oates was convicted of perjury. A strange sentence was passed upon him. For state reasons it was deemed best not to execute this "conspiracy inventor" who had caused so many better men to die. Instead, it was decided to put him to death in another fashion. He was sentenced to pay a heavy fine, then to be clapped into the pillory (a rude wooden contrivance in which a captive's head and hands were fastened, while he was kept standing for hours exposed to public view), to receive a whipping, and then to be imprisoned for life, being taken from his cell five times a year to be pilloried again. As Oates was sixty-five years old, it was thought the terrific beating would kill him.

But he was tough. He received 1,700 lashes of the whip and was so mangled that he had to be dragged back to prison on a sledge. In spite of this treatment he recovered.

Three years later, in 1688, when James II was deposed and William of Orange became king of England, one of William's earliest acts was to pardon Oates and to give him a royal pension of $1,500 a year.

It is hard to understand how any monarch, in the light of Oates' crimes, could have issued such pardon and pension. Yet the fact remains. The old perjurer lived on in comfort (vainly trying to stir up new plots now and then) for the next 17 years, dying in 1705 at the age of eighty-six.

Blackbeard, Pirate "for Revenue Only"

IN a Virginia family a gruesome heirloom is still cherished. It is a huge drinking cup, barred with silver and resting on a silver base. The cup itself is made of a polished human skull. BLACKBEARD the skull of Blackbeard, the pirate. Nor was Blackbeard's head less fantastic in life than it is in death. He wore an immense beard, jet black, braided and tied into a dozen fantastic strands. And each strand was fastened with a gaudy ribbon. To add to his ferociously ludicrous appearance he had all his teeth blackened and filed to a sharp point. But though in dress and shape he looked like a comic opera brigand, there the comic opera element ended. He was a shrewd business man—a pirate "for revenue only."

Blackbeard's real name was Edward Teach (or "Thatch"). He was born in England in the last part of the seventeenth century, and is said to have shipped as a youth aboard a privateer vessel bound for the West Indies during the war of the "Spanish Succession" Privateering in those days was not very different from piracy. It was almost as profitable and it had the advantage of being strictly legal.

The blackguard with the fewest scruples, least conscience and greatest store of brutal courage, craftiness and ferocity was certain of quick promotion among the sea rangers—unless he was first killed. And Blackbeard had all these qualities. He had also a daredevil manner, which (coupled with his odd dress and odder face) led many people to believe him insane. But he seems never to have been too roaring crazy to keep an eye on every "business" chance that came his way.

In 1718 peace was declared and the privateers found themselves out of work. This did not trouble Blackbeard. From privateering to piracy was the shortest kind of step. He turned pirate. For a year or so nothing was heard from him by the outside world. But in 1716 he all at once became famous—or infamous. In his armed sloop Queen Anne's Revenge (at the head of a murderous crew that feared nothing but himself) he began ravaging the Spanish Main.

Then, leaving that happy hunting ground to the freebooter folk, Blackbeard headed northward and scoured the Virginia and Carolina coasts, fighting, capturing, pillaging, burning. For two years he kept this up, eluding capture and making his name a terror to planters and sailors alike.

Then, in June, 1718, Queen Anne's Revenge was wrecked off the North Carolina coast. Blackbeard, instead of fighting on land or waiting to be captured, surrendered himself and 30 of his best men to Gov. Charles Eden of North Carolina. The pirate, in spite of his eccentricities, was a shrewd judge of human nature. He had good reason to know what manner of man Eden was. He went to the governor, secured from him a royal pardon and calmly proposed a business partnership. It was arranged between them that Blackbeard was to go back to his pleasant piratical labors and that Eden (in return for a fair percentage of the plunder) should protect him from legal interference.

This was a safe and profitable arrangement for both. For a few months it prospered finely. But such a state of affairs aroused sharp comment from the planters on whose rich estates Blackbeard was now levying a heavy toll. One local legislator, Edward Mosley, complained publicly that while Eden could easily raise an armed force to arrest honest men, he did not seem able to do anything toward capturing Blackbeard. Eden punished this plain speech by fining Mosley $500 and by prohibiting him from holding office for three years.

But the people's discontent could not be so easily silenced. The colonists, unable to stir their own governor into action, appealed to Gov. Spotswood of Virginia. Spotswood was a very different sort from the profit-loving Eden. He promptly fitted up two ships and, with Lent, Robert Maynard in command, sent them against the pirate.

The Virginia force found Blackbeard in Pamlico bay on November 18, 1718. A fierce battle ensued. Blackbeard knew what defeat would mean to him, so he ordered one of his men to stand by the powder magazine with a lighted match and to blow up friends and enemies alike at a signal from him. But the signal was not given. For in the thick of the turmoil Blackbeard and Maynard met on deck in a hand-to-hand fight. It was a duel whose fame lived long in Virginia—this deadly sword clash between a dapper young officer and a giant pirate. At length skill in swordsmanship prevailed against mere savage strength, and a blow of Maynard's cutlass stretched Blackbeard dead on his own deck. The career of America's most picturesque sea rover was at an end. The survivors of the crew surrendered. Thirteen of them were hanged. And coast dwellers and marines alike breathed easier.

Prince Henry of Reuss, who speaks superb English, laughed good-naturedly at a dinner in New York, over the account of certain officers of the German fleet.

"One of our chaplains," said the prince, "had the hardihood to preach in English, at one of your Lutheran chapels, the other day. He astonished his congregation by saying, as he rose, that he would choose for his text the words:

"And he tore his shirt." A quite audible snicker went round. The chaplain noticed it, flushed, and repeated the text in a louder voice: "And he tore his shirt." The snicker became a laugh, and the pastor rose and said: "Our good brother is quoting, of course, the familiar words: "And the door is shut."

PATHOS IN CHILDS' BRAVERY

Fortitude Shown by Little Sufferer in Hospital Touched Lady Henry Somerset.

Lady Henry Somerset, whose labors in behalf of the children of the London slums are constant and earnest, tells this affecting story of the way in which her interest in these little ones was aroused.

I was moved in that direction by the rare patience and imagination of one little boy. His example convinced me that patience was one of the qualities I needed most, and in seeking it I grew into that work.

I was in a hospital on visiting day, while the doctors were changing a plaster cast which held the crippled boy's limb. The operation was exceedingly painful, I was told. To my surprise, the little sufferer neither stirred nor winced, but made a curious buzzing sound with his mouth. After the doctors left I said to him: "How could you possibly stand it?" "That's nothing," he answered.

"Why, I just made believe that a bee was stinging me. And I kept buzzin' because I was afraid I'd forget about its being a bee if I didn't."—Youth's Companion.

Her Affections Dampened.

Portable Colony Houses

By J. O. LINTON, Instructor in Poultry Husbandry,
Michigan Agricultural College

Front View of Portable Colony House.

The use of the portable colony house has rapidly come into favor for farmers and commercial poultry plants, not only as a building for little chicks but through its other various uses. Such a house need not be expensive, but should be solid to allow for hauling and moving from place to place, many times over rough ground and subject to severe handling in turning and placing. The portable colony house should not be so large but that it can be moved with one good team, and can be drawn through the ordinary farm gates to meadows or orchard where they are to be located.

There are many different uses for the colony house, some of which may be divided up for the different seasons. In the early spring they may be used as brooding houses, being equipped with hovers or having in them indoor brooders which allow the chicks the heat of the brooder and the run of the remaining space, being entirely under cover from the severe weather, and allowing the poultryman to raise early chicks; or the house may be divided in two or more compartments and hens may be given chicks, which gives them the same advantages of being under cover during the cold or stormy weather and still have room for exercise. By cutting openings for each compartment small parks may be made which will keep the birds separate to insure best advantages in growing the young stock, but will allow the birds the run of the outdoor quarters during the pleasant days. If the birds are of one breed there may not be the desire to keep them separate for long, and they may be allowed the run of any desired area as they have a keen sense of location and readily learn to return to their own quarters.

As the season advances the chicks can do without hover or hen. These may be removed and low perches placed in the houses ten or twelve inches from the floor so that the chicks may learn to roost. As the natural tendency seems to be to seek high places for night this is very easily learned by most birds or fowls, and with the exception of one or two of the heavier breeds as the Brahmas or Cochins, birds will not need to be taught to accommodate themselves to the new conditions.

The growing chicks will need some attention to insure best results during the time they are on the range. They should always be supplied with fresh, clean water and should have grain and mash food to bring them into good strong maturity for fall business. As there will always be surplus cockerels in the flock, these may be separated just before the houses are hauled to the range, which will leave the pullets and a few cockerels to care for. The surplus may be marketed at the age of eight to twelve weeks, when, as a rule, prices are good and the birds have reached a desirable size.

For the feeding of mash to the birds on range hoppers may be devised which will hold food enough for a week or ten days without refilling. By this system not much time will be required of an attendant to scatter grain and provide fresh water for the birds each day. If there happens to be running water near the buildings this will supply the need, and in an exceptionally busy season the birds can, if necessary, have grain supply in hopper or depend on the mash ration for extra food other than that which they pick about the meadow or fields. If later in the season oats or wheat have been cut, and the field is not to be used immediately, houses may be drawn to a location where the birds can pick up the scattered grain, which saves a great deal of feeding and prevents loss which otherwise might occur. If the flocks are large enough so that laying houses are provided when the birds are returned to these houses in the fall the colony coops may be abandoned entirely until next season, or they may be used for storage rooms, hospital coops, or for the raising up of small breeding pens when it is desired to separate these from the regular flocks.

There are many different styles of these houses and the individual may have choice in style of construction. A pattern of portable house which is giving very good satisfaction at the Michigan Agricultural College is one which is made at a total cost of about $25, including labor and paint, and which will accommodate from 100 to 150 of the little chicks at the start, 100 growing chicks on range, and flocks of ten or fifteen birds in laying quarters. The house is 7 1/2 feet wide and may be made eight feet, if desired, by twelve feet long. It is built on runners four inches square, it being desirable to make these runners of some material which will be lasting and preferably will wear hard and smooth by the hauling. These runners extend lengthwise of the building and for convenience of hauling may be set in eight or ten inches from the edge of the building, although this feature is very objectionable from the fact that little chicks invariably get under the houses, causing a great deal of trouble and making it necessary to add extra blocking for the prevention of this.

If the runners are placed to the edges of the house blocking need only be done at the ends, as the runners will block front and back.

Pieces of 2x4-inch material are placed on edge for joists, four feet apart, and the floor is then laid before the frame work is constructed. The studding is then toenailed to the floor, being six feet long in front and four feet in back, and placed three feet apart; 2x4-inch pieces are used as plates.

The door in the front may be 2 feet 6 inches wide by 6 feet, and on each side of the door a nine light 8x10-inch glass window, hung at the top to swing out, may be so arranged as to allow its removal in summer, and the opening may be covered with wire netting or bars to close the house.

In the arrangement of nests and feed boxes it is advisable to make these with slanting tops, which prevents the birds from roosting or resting on them, keeping them in much cleaner condition.

The accompanying drawings will explain the construction of these houses, which may be modified if desired, to suit the tastes of the individual.

BUCKHORN

By R. J. BALDWIN,
Michigan Agricultural College

Many farmers who have had to buy imported clover and grass seeds will find new weeds appearing in the fields. Among the most common weeds obtained in this way is Buckhorn.

The accompanying cut will give some idea of the appearance of the weed. The leaves are lance-shaped and they grow in a rosette much like those of the dandelion. A characteristic of the Buckhorn is the tall, slender flower stalks, which shoot up from the center of the rosette of leaves for a foot or more. Buckhorn is a perennial which spreads only by seeds. It is a bad weed in the clover meadow, but is not to be feared on cultivated ground.

When it is found that scattering plants of Buckhorn are in the new grass seedings, no time should be lost in pulling and destroying them.

MADE BIG PROFIT FOR STATE

Purely Business Argument for the Establishment of Sanatoriums for the Tuberculous.

According to figures contained in the annual report of Dr. H. L. Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island state sanatorium, the earnings of the ex-patients of that institution during the year 1911 would amount to over $266,000. This is a sum three times as large as that spent each year for maintenance of the institution, including four per cent. interest and depreciation charges.

The actual earnings in 1911 of 170 ex-patients were obtained by Dr. Barnes. These ranged from $2 to $31 per week, the total earnings for the year amounting to $102,752. On this basis, Dr. Barnes computes the figures above given. He says, however: "While institutions for the cure of tuberculosis are good investments, there is good reason for thinking that institutions for the isolation of far-advanced cases would be still better investments."

Out of a total of 48,450 hospital days' treatment given, 39,147, or 84 per cent., were free, the treatment costing the state on an average $200 per patient. Out of 188 free cases investigated, 58 had no families and no income on admission to the sanatorium. Out of 132 patients having homes, the number in the family averaged 5.2, and the average family earnings were 5.46. In 59 cases the families had no income, and in only five cases were there any savings, none of which amounted to as much as $100.

To Protect the Flowers.

Edelweiss and other characteristic Swiss flowers are said to be in danger of total extinction because of the craze of tourists for collecting them. Women tourists especially are always anxious to take away souvenirs in the way of a plant, and do not simply pull the flowers, but dig up the plant. It is proposed to introduce a law that will prevent the buying, selling or digging of edelweiss, fire lily, Siberian spring crocus, Alpine columbine, the Daphne, Alpine violet or other national flowers.

Two Enough for Her.

He was a small boy with a dark, eager face and he was waiting at the end of the line of eight or ten persons for a chance to make his wants known to the librarian. When his turn came he inquired briefly: "Have you got 'Twenty Thousand Legs Under the Sea'?"

"No," responded the librarian a little snappishly, for she was tired, "I'm thankful to say I've only got two. They're not under the sea!"

The Giveaway.

"Jane," said her father, "how does it happen that I find four good cigars on the mantelpiece this morning? Did Henry leave them for me?"

"No; he took them out of his vest pocket to avoid breaking them last night, and I guess he forgot all about them afterwards."

The laugh that followed made her wish that she had been as careful with her speech as Henry had been with his cigars.—Detroit Free Press.

Her Error.

Mrs. Stranger—Can you tell me who that stout man is over there? He is the worst softsooper I ever met.

Dowager—Yes. He is my husband.

A Lottery.
"Is that picture one of the old masters you were telling me about?" asked Mr. Cumrox.
"Yes," replied the art dealer. "It is a genuine treasure; absolutely authentic."
"I'll buy it. I already have three just like it, and somewhere in the bunch I'm liable to hit the original."

ECZEMA CAME ON SCALP

Lebanon, O.—"My eczema started on my thigh with a small pimple. It also came on my scalp. It began to itch and I began to scratch. For eighteen or twenty years I could not tell what I passed through with that awful itching. I would scratch until the blood would soak through my underwear, and I couldn't talk to my friends on the street but I would be digging and punching that spot, until I was very much ashamed. The itching was so intense I could not sleep after once in bed and warm. I certainly suffered torment with that eczema for many years.

"I chased after everything I ever heard of, but all to no avail. I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. Imagine my delight when I applied the first dose to that awful itching fire on my leg and scalp, in less than a minute the itching on both places ceased. I got some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the second day I never had another itching spell, and Cuticura Soap and Ointment completely cured me. I was troubled with awful dandruff all over my scalp. The Cuticura Soap has cured that trouble." (Signed) L. R. Fink, Jan. 22, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

Meeting Emergencies.
Senator Dixon was condemning a piece of political deception.
"The thing was as flagrant," he said, "as the railway case."
"Two men, one of them very short, were passing through a station toward the train gates when the bigger one was heard to say:
"I've took a half ticket for ye, George. Yer so little, ye'll pass, all right."
"But," protested George, "how about my beard?" And he twiddled his chin beard nervously.
"Oh," rejoined the other, "tell 'em it's a mole."

Between Girls.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the treatment of children's complaints."

Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

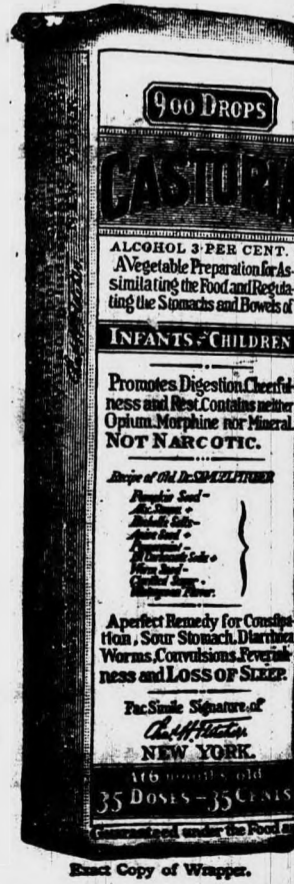

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. E. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Strange Case of Dr. X

This is a story told by a physician living in a large western city of a problem that suddenly confronted him—and of how he interpreted the ethics of his profession and acted on it.

"I was roused one night," he said, "by a telephone call. An unfamiliar voice asked me if I could attend a man who had been injured. I answered that I could if the case was urgent, but before I could ask who was calling, the speaker answered: 'All right, doctor, I'll call at your house in ten minutes with a carriage.'

"Almost before I had time to dress, the doorbell rang. I unlocked the door, and a man, wearing a long ulster, a dark hat and a pair of colored glasses, entered.

"Doctor," he said, "before we start I want to make a request. This case, as I told you, is urgent. But before we start, I must have your assurance that you will treat this visit as a confidential mission. I can't say any more, except to add that you're running no risk of any kind in helping me. And you can name your own fee."

"There was nothing about the man's appearance that appeared suspicious. He was quiet and self-possessed—there wasn't a trace of nervousness about him, and he was well dressed. The request was somewhat unusual, but, after all, nearly everything that we learn professionally is held in the strictest confidence without any definite understandings to that effect, so I thought there was no reason for refusing to make the agreement.

"I took my hat and we started. The carriage, I noticed, was a closed one. We got in, the man turned on a small electric light and then drew the blinds over the windows.

"Doctor," he said, "I'm going to ask you to take this trip without knowing where you're going. I'll assure you it's all right. I want you to blindfold yourself before we leave the carriage, until we get inside the house."

"Well, I didn't like the looks of this, but I was in and I didn't like to back out. Of course I wasn't at all afraid for my own safety. By the time the carriage stopped I didn't have the least idea what part of town we were in—we had made so many turns. I put on the blindfold, as my visitor requested, and we went up some steps and into a house.

"Upstairs, I found my patient. He had been shot twice. Revolver bullets, they were. The wounds weren't dangerous, but they were painful because they had not been treated earlier.

"I dressed them, told the woman who was there what sort of care the patient ought to have, and then told them that I'd have to see the man at least two or three times more before I could answer for his safe recovery.

"The man with the dark glasses quietly assented to this, but insisted that he should bring me at night, as he had that time. I agreed.

"The next morning the papers told of a robbery, in which a householder had been wounded, after shooting one of the burglars, who succeeded in escaping. All the facts indicated that my patient of the night before was the burglar who had been shot. I felt sure I could locate the house. The householder recovered quickly.

"The question stared at me: Did the ethics of the medical profession allow me to go to the police and tell them what I knew, or did my promise bind me to secrecy? I thought it over all day and finally decided that I had no right to say anything about the matter. I made three more trips in the same manner and finally decided that the man would get along without any more calls. All this time I watched the papers, but no trace was found of the burglars. When I made my last visit I told the man who had first called on me that my fee would be $25. He took from a large roll two $100 bills and handed them to me without a word. He drove me home and that was the last I ever saw of either of them.

"That was a good many years ago, but I've often wondered whether I did right in not violating that man's confidence."

"I don't think you did," said a member of the group. "The medical profession has no right to shield a criminal. Women and children should be given the greatest protection we can give them—the same as on a vessel at sea—but no word given a criminal is binding."

"But suppose it had turned out that the man was not the burglar in question. I believe he was, but it might have been otherwise—"

"That's true," said a third. "It was all right to keep your promise so long as you had no actual knowledge that the man was a criminal. Where you made your mistake was in making such a ridiculous agreement in the first place."

"And let a man, dangerously injured, suffer?" asked the first speaker. "Remember, when I first agreed to secrecy the case had no particularly suspicious appearance. I could cite a dozen different circumstances under which a serious accident might happen and which the persons connected with would, with a perfect right, go to great lengths to keep secret. So could either of you."

Which of the three was right?
