

VOL. XXXVIII, No. 52

PLYMOUTH, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1926

$1.50 PER YEAR

TAXPAYERS OF DISTRICT NO. 1, FR. WILL VOTE ON NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

Special Meeting Has Been Called at the High School Building Monday, Nov. 22.

Taxpayers Are Asked for a Bond Issue of $148,000 to Build New Building in North Village.

The Plymouth school election occurs Monday, November 22, as per notice elsewhere in this issue. It is very desirable that all taxpayers vote upon this proposition. The demand for a northside school is imperative. The high school at the present time is congested and needs badly the classrooms in the central building, which are now used for grade work. The grade rooms in our present building are full and will be congested by the close of the year.

PLYMOUTH AND WAYNE CLASH TODAY.

At 3:30 p. m. today, Plymouth High school meets Wayne at the Tourist Camp in what promises to be the best foot ball game of the present season. The game will have added interest because it will have direct bearing on the foot ball championship of the Suburban League. Northville leads the league at present, having played out its schedule with four games won and one lost, having dropped the contest with Dearborn. Wayne and Plymouth have each won three games and lost only to Northville, so that the winners of today's game will be tied with Northville. The deciding game will be played next week, and the team that wins today should have the edge.

The Plymouth boys deserve the support of your attendance at the game today. The Fernvale game last week, when they made a touchdown by line plunges through a much heavier adversary, showed that the team had punch, and interest is keen among the players as is evident by the way they plowed through the mud in the scrimmage. Wednesday, Coach Vage is optimistic, and the mass-meeting Wednesday showed a high enthusiasm among the students as well. If the men and women of Plymouth show interest at all approaching theirs, we will have the largest attendance of the season at the Tourist Camp today. Remember the time, 3:30 p. m.; and the price, 50c.

PLYMOUTH BOY WILL MAKE TRIP AROUND WORLD.

Alfred Strusen of this village, who joined Fisher's orchestra at the Grand Hotel, Mackinac Island, last September, and is now playing at the Gorge club at French Lick Springs, Indiana, one of the country's finest fall and spring resorts, has contracted to play with Fisher's orchestra on their world tour on the steamer Belgiamund. The steamer leaves New York City, December 14th, and returns April 24.

On their return the orchestra will play the spring season at French Lick Springs, Indiana.

MRS. MARY A. MILLER PASSES AWAY.

Mary A. LeMunyon was born Sept. 30, 1834, at Manchester, Ontario county, New York. She was the daughter of John and Mary LeMunyon, and came with her parents to Michigan in 1851. After living at Marshall two years the family moved to Plymouth.

In 1858 she was married to Marcus Swift Miller, who was called home in 1917. To this union four children were born: Mrs. Gertrude Blackwood, of Charlevoix, Mich.; Mrs. Waldron Clark, who many years ago was the first to break the family circle; Owen L. Miller, of Indianapolis, and Margaret Miller, who has devoted her life to her parents. Three grandchildren also survive her.

For nearly fifty years Mrs. Miller lived on the old Miller farm just west of Plymouth. She is the youngest and the last of eleven children. In 1873 she joined the Baptist church of Plymouth, of which her husband had long been a member. Through long, busy years she lived a beautiful Christian life, beloved by her neighbors and a large circle of friends.

Good Bye!

DEATH OF CHARLES E. SHEARER.

Charles E. Shearer, son of the late Fabian and Anna Shearer, was born at Plymouth, Michigan, March 25, 1862, and departed this life, November 12, 1926, after a complicated illness of three months, his death occurring in the same house in which he was born.

In 1892 he was married to Miss Mary Outhwaite, of New Boston. To this union was born a daughter, Mrs. P. A. Nash, of Plymouth.

ROSEDALE GARDENS VOTES NEW SCHOOL.

Rosedale Gardens, on the Plymouth road, has been offered a school and playground site of 20 lots by the owners, Sheldon Sons, which was accepted by the voters of the district at a special election held early in the month.

The voters by a large majority approved the plan of a $45,000 bond issue on the district in Livonia township for the erection of a modern type of school on the half mile street, Pennbrook, to the south of Plymouth road.

A HANDSOME STORE FRONT.

The handsome new front of Woodworth's Bazaar has been completed and it is one of the finest business fronts in town and a great credit to the progressive spirit of R. P. Woodworth, the owner of the store. In celebration of the opening of the door of the new front, Mr. Woodworth announces in his ad. on another page of this paper, some extra special bargains in honor of the occasion. Be sure and read it.

AUCTION SALE DECLARED OFF.

The auction sale of E. C. Smith, advertised on another page of this paper, to take place Friday, November 26th, has been declared off by the owner.

COPY EARLY NEXT WEEK

Advertisers, correspondents and others are reminded that next week is Thanksgiving week, and that we must have copy in early. Please remember this.

FIRST DEBATE TONIGHT.

Plymouth's first State League debate will take place this Friday evening, November 19, at 7:30 o'clock in Plymouth High school auditorium. The opponent is Hazel Park High school of Royal Oak, whose team consists of Gordon Salton, Lenore Lovejoy and Rowena Salton.

The question is, "Resolved, that the United States government should own the coal mines," a subject which is of interest to every coal purchaser in Plymouth.

Plymouth has the affirmative side and will be represented by Franklin Atkinson, Josephine Schmidt and Wilbur Murphy.

Tickets 25 cents. This will probably be your only chance to hear our debating team until after Christmas, so plan to hear the debate Friday evening. Monday the Plymouth team had a practice debate with Northwestern High school of Detroit, and Wednesday afternoon they met the team from Ann Arbor High school.

"THE QUARTERBACK"

A special feature picture is announced for the Thanksgiving program at the Penniman-Allyn theatre Wednesday and Thursday, November 24-25. The feature picture is Richard Dix in "The Quarterback." This is a great picture and no one should miss it.

GIVING THANKS

This is a big country and a great one. The year fast drawing to a close has brought much sorrow and mental suffering to many sections. Floods and hurricanes and mine disasters have been chronicled as a part of the year's history. Many sad chapters have been written into the story of the twelve months.

But the fact that it is a great country is shown by the optimism of its people as they reach the season of Thanksgiving. They have gathered the year's harvest, and it has been bountiful. Here and there crops failed, but other channels of activity made up for financial losses. Nature strikes a pretty even balance the world over, and the law of averages still prevails. Today the people of this country show their greatness by their willingness to accept with patient resignation the sorrows that have come to them through the year, and to look to the blessings which, after all, far outweigh them. They have come to the end of the harvest season with thankful hearts. They know enough of conditions in other lands to realize that even the deplorable natural events of the year are but little consequence when measured with the unrest and unhappiness prevailing in other parts of the world. It is to return thanks for the blessings that are ours and to hope for improved conditions in other parts of the world that we approach the annual day of Thanksgiving.

Only the pessimist finds reason for ignoring this day. Let us add to the things for which we are thankful the absence of pessimism in and around Plymouth. Our people appreciate the manifold blessings that have come to them, of that we are quite sure. Good health, the greatest of all blessings, has been theirs. Peace and contentment, the power to work and honest tasks to do, will not be lost sight of. We speak for the community as a whole when we say that in every heart there is much to be thankful for and that sincere tributes to the one who has guided and directed them in the path of happiness and prosperity are not going to be withheld.

May the prayers of thankfulness of the people of this entire community be heard. And may their pathways on through the years to come be brightened by the sunshine of Peace and Happiness and Prosperity.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS AND YOU

Annual Red Cross Enrollment Campaign in Plymouth from November 19th to November 24th Inclusive.

The annual Red Cross membership campaign, as usual, will be conducted in Plymouth commencing today, Friday, November 19, and ending Wednesday, November 24. Booths in charge of workers will be established in the Plymouth United Savings Bank and the First National Bank, and also in the branch bank and the Beyer Pharmacy in north village. The booths will be open from 8:30 a. m. to 3:00 p. m. It is hoped that there will be a ready response upon the part of our citizens to renew their memberships in the few days allotted to the campaign in Plymouth. Plymouth has always responded to the call of the Red Cross, and that she will do again there is not a doubt. It only costs $1.00 to renew your membership. Do it today.

Looking Into the Future—Some representatives of the National Safety Conference, recently held in Detroit, were with us on a beautiful drive which they took into the county, visiting Plymouth and the surrounding country. Safety and Plymouth, it says the thought in travels itself upon the reader, what is being done in Plymouth for safety? Should you ask the writer to suggest one of the important things you are doing, she would say without hesitation, your baby clinics! You, through your membership in the Red Cross, have made it possible during the year just past to hold a baby clinic the second Wednesday of each month from two to four p. m. in your High school building. The physician in charge is a baby specialist and understands the delicate mechanism of your baby and young child, just as the machinist understands the machinery of your automobile. A car whose motor is not thoroughly in tune may run along without much difficulty for a time, but a long motor trip may unexpectedly reveal its unfitness for the trip. So it is with the child, minor defects may not seriously hinder its progress for a time, but unless its machinery is kept in tune as it travels along from day to day, sooner or later on its long run through life it becomes apparent that in one way or another that child is not "safe."

As superior adults we may hold widely different opinions on disease, its cause and its prevention, but there is one thing upon which we are all agreed, about which our eyes if they are open cannot deceive us, and that is that all children do not show the same growth development. There are some rosy-cheeked babies, while others are pale and listless. There are some who laugh and cry, while others are cross and fretful. Some little legs are straight and strong, some are crooked and weak.

What is Plymouth doing about this, you ask? Here is the answer to your question: Forty-six babies under one year—four from one to two years, and eleven from two to five, made two hundred and fifteen visits to the monthly baby clinics during the past year. Upon the advice of the clinician, forty-three babies were taken to the school, where they were given toxin antidote by the local physicians who were engaged in a campaign to make the children of Plymouth safe from diphtheria.

Your Red Cross membership this year will help to keep the doors of your baby clinic open to mothers who wish by regularity in examinations, by weighing, by measuring and by securing advice on the right kind of foods for children, to watch the growth of their little ones. These clinics are established with education in the care of babies and young children as a basis. Sick babies should be taken to your physician.

As Plymouth grows and as one new family after another establishes a home in and near the village, it becomes increasingly difficult to know one's neighbors and to give them personal assistance. Each new family moving into the community brings with it a chance for happiness, for success, for the realization of high hope and ambition—there is on the other hand the possibility that some of these families may meet with sorrow, failure, and finally discouragement and despair. When your neighbor's problem becomes too much for him to solve without assistance from the outside, someone who can see beyond the temporary alleviation of suffering must be there to help. One of the most discouraging and at the same time most delicate things we do is to help in the adjustment of human difficulties. It is hard to account either publicly or to one's self for

PROCLAMATION

"Thanksgiving Enrollment."

I, Harry C. Robinson, President of the Village of Plymouth, hereby call to the attention of the people of our villages the effort which is to be made throughout the State of Michigan and in our community during the week of Thanksgiving, beginning next Monday, November twenty-second, in behalf of crippled children.

While in some sections of the state, notably our own, work for crippled children has been in progress and has been well done; in other portions very little or nothing at all has yet been accomplished. As a state, we are taking good care of almost every other unfortunate, but adequate provision has not yet been made for the registration, examination, treatment, care and education of our crippled children. The object of the "Thanksgiving Enrollment" is to enlist your sympathy and support in a movement which will correct this condition.

WOMEN DRIVERS

The Plymouth auto driver who is constantly declaring that the fair sex can't drive as well as men are due for an argument according to the head of a large motor car company. He said to a Chicago newspaper man a few days ago, "Woman dictates the color of cars and the type of upholstery, and she has come to know as much about keeping out of accidents and getting through traffic as the average male driver. It has about reached the point where she dominates the auto world, because she either picks out the car that is going to be purchased, or the man who purchases one picks it to suit her. They say that in all lines of trades and professions there are only 37 in the world that women have not mastered. Driving an auto is not one of the things she hasn't conquered yet. And the man who argues that she can't drive safely really hasn't enough evidence to warrant such an assertion."

ANOTHER TAX CUT

Washington City dispatches say the administration is preparing for another tax cut, that another slice is going to be taken off of income assessments as soon as congress convenes. The opposition party is also out with a statement that the new tax cut will not benefit the man who isn't making more than $5,000, and that it will start a fight for cutting taxes in such a way that the little fellow will be benefitted as well as the big one. It looks like it is going to be a warm fight, and since it promises to lift a few tax burdens before it is over, the warmer it is the better all of us will like it. We don't take much stock in political fights. But when it is a fight over which party is going to cut the biggest lump off of tax burdens, then we're highly interested. We would not advise Plymouth people to become too hopeful, however. Too many of these threatened tax reduction fights have turned out to be nothing more than wind-jamming contests. We hope the one now promised will be genuine, but it isn't a good idea to spend any extra money now on the strength of how much the politicians are going to save you in tax payments next year.

HELP OUR CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

"Help us a dollar's worth."
This appeal comes from thirteen thousand crippled children in Michigan, pleading for normal bodies and health.
For more than five years the Michigan Society for Crippled Children, with headquarters in Ann Arbor, has been attacking the problem. It has held clinics in several counties, conducted house to house surveys to locate children with bone deformities, attempted to educate the public in the understanding that most of the unfortunate children are crippled by causes that are preventable. It has now come to appreciate the problem as one that can best be handled locally, with such central support as will make individual effort most effective.

Thanksgiving week the society will appeal to the men and women of Michigan to enable it to move in an aggressive manner a movement that will place the state among the first in recognizing that the cripple needs help. Organization by counties has been started all over Michigan. Late this month these groups will hold enrollment and every person in the state is invited to join his county society for crippled children. The membership fee is one dollar, one-half of which will be spent right at home. The remainder will be used to finance the cost of indispensable help from the central office.
Join the movement. Help a dollar's worth. Enroll the family. A crippled child can be restored completely to normal health and usefulness in a majority of cases if found and treated correctly before he grows too old. If neglected he becomes an undruggable charge upon others all his life.
Unite with your neighbors in this cause.

CANNED FOODS WEEK.

Michigan folks should have more than a passing interest in Canned Foods Week, which began November 10, and will conclude Saturday, November 20. We should have this interest because it is right here in Michigan that some of the finest fruits and vegetables in the world are caught while in full flavor and preserved for future consumption.

We should also be interested in this special week, as it serves to call our attention to an industry which is peculiarly of Michigan, and which should have our endorsement as an industrial factor that is already bringing greater prosperity to hundreds of rural districts in the state.

The canning industry in most instances represents the leading industry in many rural cities and villages, and while it is not a year-around industry, yet millions of dollars are being distributed annually to growers and workers. The canning industry is growing every year. A glance at the display in your grocer's window will be a revelation in the number of fruits and vegetables that are now grown on Michigan farms, ripened in a Michigan sun, and through the canner brought to your table at a surprisingly low cost.

Woman Had Reason to Know About Coyotes

If there is one thing more than another that we dislike to have happen to us, it is to meet a cynical woman. We don't mind meeting a cynical man because most men don't know any better than to be that way. But when a woman is cynical it seems to us that she has stepped wholly out of her character, as the actors say.

The way it happened was that we had stopped at a little ranch on a high road to get some water for Henry. It was the middle of a hot day and Henry had been tearing along for many miles at a pretty good clip. So we thought another little drink wouldn't do him any harm, as the saying is.

And at the ranch was a woman who was in a bad humor. And the reason she was in a bad humor was that the coyotes had been killing her chickens. She showed us the place where these raids had taken place, and we wondered how it could be, because the roosts for the chickens were too high for the coyotes to reach.

She then explained to us that the way the coyotes did it was to keep walking very rapidly in circles around the chickens until the chickens got so dizzy looking at them that they fell off the roost. And then the rest was easy for the outcast thieves in gray.

It is just the way I got caught myself, said the woman. This no-account man that I married kept coveting around me until he got me dizzy watching him, and then he caught me. He must have learned it from the coyotes, she said.

Well, sir, as we jogged along the high road this thing that the woman said bothered us so that we couldn't think of anything else. But we were glad that we didn't see the man. Because any man who would act like a coyote to trap a woman is no man at all and we would walk ten miles out of our way, any time, to avoid meeting him.—John Steven McGroarty in Los Angeles Times.

Bobbie Knew

Little Bobbie's mother took him to Sunday school every Sunday. She also taught a Sunday school class, and during this time Bobbie was left in the Junior department. On this particular Sunday his mother had several occasions to pass through the Junior department and on each occasion she noticed that one or more of the little boys would be crying, but Bobbie was always sitting up in his little red chair like a little man.

On arriving home Bobbie's mother said, "Dear, I was surely proud of you today; you didn't cry at all and so many of the other children were crying."

She noticed that Bobbie hung his head, then she asked, "Why were they crying?"

"'Cause I've pinched them," truthfully answered little Bobbie.

Blocked by Butterflies

Blocked by a cloud of butterflies was the experience of three travelers in a light automobile in Ceylon recently.

The butterflies descended with smothering impact, says Popular Mechanics, producing the sensation of having been struck by a cotton hammer, according to one of the party who described the "attack." The wheels of the auto skidded and with difficulty made headway through the thousands of tiny bodies which covered the car and its occupants, forcing the men to shield their faces. The stifling encounter lasted seven minutes, when the butterfly legions were left behind. Millions of the insects gather in close formations such as this during migration.

Prize Babies of the Past

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright)

"MISS LORIMER, pray be seated," said George Taylor, the city editor, with mock ceremony. "That chair has only three good legs, but if you are careful it will do you no harm."

Myrtle Lorimer sitting cautiously on the wobbly chair in the city editor's small cubicle tried to hide a smile. "You are unkind to make fun of me," she complained.

"Here's the trick," Taylor said. "Next week is to be 'Boost Torenton week.' Among other things that the celebration committee is going to pull is a baby contest. Old gag, but every one likes that sort of thing. Now, I want a page or maybe two devoted to baby contests of the past. Twenty-five years ago they had their first baby contest here in Torenton, the chairman of the celebration committee was telling me, and I want you to find out the names of the prize babies. Trace them down and get an interview. Give 'em a big boost—show the world that prize babies in Torenton make good. Get photographs—baby photographs and up-to-date photographs."

George Taylor looked up and saw to his surprise that Myrtle Lorimer was looking both annoyed and embarrassed. "I'd rather not—" she stammered.

"What next?" he asked with ill-hidden annoyance, then coaxingly, "you know, girl, that sort of stuff is just your line. No one on the staff could do it half so well. I didn't expect you'd pull any temperamental stuff when I asked you."

Myrtle laughed, but it was a cheerless little laugh. "Don't you see how hard it would be for me?" she asked. "I'm just twenty-five years and a half old. I was entered in that baby contest—and I was one of the prize babies."

"Not at all," cried George Taylor, waxing interested. "You don't have to sign the article. All you have to do is to tell the story and get interviews. You can get a dandy interview with yourself—give yourself a good boost and that's good publicity for the paper."

"Oh, but Mr. Taylor," protested Myrtle with tears welling into her pretty gray eyes. "If you only knew how I hate to do it."

"Well, if you're going to put your own personal feelings ahead of the good of the Banner then you're not the sort of newspaper woman I thought you were," said George.

Myrtle blinked back a tear or two and gave George Taylor a quick glance that he did not soon forget. "You are my superior, Mr. Taylor," she said. "You know I could never be guilty of insubordination—to you—but—it's hard."

Nothing in Myrtle's life had been any harder than that assignment. But Mr. Taylor had said she was showing the right spirit. She wanted his approval—wanted it as she had seldom wanted anything in her life. She spent the next day getting the interview with herself in condition, digging out old baby pictures and having a new picture taken. She showed the result of her work to George Taylor. His praise made it all worth while.

They met the next night, not at the office, but at the quiet hotel restaurant where they had agreed to meet. George Taylor thought he had never seen Myrtle looking half so pretty as she did when he saw her waiting for him in the hotel lobby. But then he had never seen her away from the newspaper offices.

"You weren't late. I was early," she told him to relieve any possible concern. "I was so impatient to—see you."

"That's good of you," stammered George. "But you couldn't have been half so impatient as I have been—"

"Wait till I tell you," laughed Myrtle. Then they made their way into the quiet, old-fashioned dining room where they could talk in quiet without the jazz of a more modern establishment. They had taken their places opposite each other and had agreed on the bill of fare.

"You see I traced the identity of the other prize baby today," she said. "It was just a matter of looking over the old files of newspapers. The Banner wasn't in existence then and I had to go into the vaults to get the old files of the Standard. But I found the right papers, and saw a most amusing account of myself at six months. There were two prizes—one for a girl and one for a boy. The boy was nine months old and his name was—George Taylor."

For a full minute George Taylor sat looking at Myrtle Lorimer across the table. Then he chuckled.

"Let's call it all off," he said at length. "I know I'm a coward. I'm not showing the right spirit, and you did. But I never could stand the ragging I'd get if I should be played up as a prize baby. It would be different with a girl. But we won't either of us appear. We'll think of some other scheme. No, it wouldn't do, Myrtle—it wouldn't do at all—to have our pictures played up that way—you and I—when—when some time—soon, I hope—our names might be mentioned in some other connection. You know, I mean—"

"What do you mean?" smiled Myrtle. "I mean I love you, Myrtle," said George. "I want you to marry me—and you know you said you couldn't be guilty of insubordination."

"Not to you," said Myrtle.

Good Defensive Weapon

An antimashers' device, which looks like a wrist watch and can knock out an assailant by means of a low amperage electric shock of 1,000 volts, has been invented in Germany. Thin wires connect it with a tiny battery and induction coil carried in an inside pocket of a dress or the coat pocket of a man. When needed the wearer presses a button, swings at the bad man so as to touch his body and the fight is over.

A Real Thanksgiving in 1926 . . .

You have much more to be thankful for than our brave, hardy ancestors, who at the end of their harvest gave thanks for the bounties that had been bestowed upon them . . . and established our national day of Thanksgiving.

To us of today, their bounties would be meager, indeed. The benefits and splendid advantages for a more full and satisfying life have been brought to rich and poor, alike, by the great progress of a great nation.

We should be thankful!

Don't Sing—Sing, the Command

By DOROTHY MAPES

BOB WILLARD settled himself as comfortably as was possible under the circumstances, among the numerous cushions left beside him for that purpose. He had had a pretty nasty skid on greasy roads and would have to lie up in his studio for a number of weeks yet.

The capable little nurse who came in daily to care for him had ridged up the place so thoroughly that he hardly recognized his own studio. She treated him as if he were a mighty infant and stayed on duty until the return of Willard's roommate, Jim Wilson.

Willard glanced at the clock and shivered. It was nearing the hour when the girl who had moved into the studio adjoining his own would sit down at the piano and for one solid hour drive him nearly mad with her singing.

The girl next door seemed possessed with a special mania. She scrubbed through her songs as if fearful of giving one single tone of its value.

When she finished her noise this day, he determined to follow up the idea that had been prodding him for some time and when his nurse was out he hobbled painfully into the hall and pressed a note under the door of the girl's studio.

Returning from the kitchen where she had been preparing a light lunch Gladys Veener picked up the squared paper in her hall and took it into the studio. Her face, when she read it, reflected a hotch-potch of emotions.

"In the studio next to you, separated only by a thin wall, is one who has been badly smashed in a motor accident and is compelled to stay in his studio for some few weeks yet. May he ask, as a great favor, that when you are singing you slow up a bit."

So in justice to the man next door Gladys admitted her singing must be pretty faulty and determined not to sing another note within hearing of the annoyed stranger.

Consequently, after a few days in which Willard had listened in vain for the voice, it annoyed him more than ever that she did not sing. He felt conscience-stricken. He had robbed a human being of her pleasure of self-expression and if he had not been in such a state of invalidism the unpleasant situation would never have happened.

So when Gladys returned home after a short walk she found a second note under her door and some sheets of music. The emotions crossing her lovely face were again a hotch-potch but with far less annoyance in the mixture.

"If you don't sing those songs before 12 o'clock today I shall be forced to make arrangements to be taken to some hospital as I will not deprive you of your singing. You are no sport and haven't played the game. Being an invalid I thought I had the right to ask a very small favor. Bob Willard, P. S. I would far rather remain in my studio."

Gladys smiled and looked over the several songs he had sent her. They were all carefully marked as to expression. Gladys realized intuitively that Willard was a man of his word. She certainly would not be responsible for forcing him out of his own home. She walked slowly toward the piano, her heart beating a trifle quickly.

Tidily, she played the introduction to one of the songs and in the next room Willard gave a sigh of relief.

And while he listened Gladys struggled to master faulty rendition and to give full value to tone and expression. She succeeded wonderfully well. Perhaps that unknown listener had keyed her up. When she finished she colored brilliantly for an echo of applause reached her.

Each day she sang and gradually gained such control of her voice and temperamental nature as to give Willard infinite pleasure.

Then one day she and Willard's nurse met on the landing and Gladys smiled. "And how is your patient?" she asked shyly.

"Getting—along famously—now. Wouldn't you like to come in and meet him. He gets a bit fed up about this time of the day."

A second later she was standing beside Willard's couch and he was holding her hand in a firm grip. He had essayed to rise but she held him back. Nurse drew a chair up and Gladys sat down and the three of them smiled as if something very wonderful was happening.

When a week later nurse broke the news that she must go to another case Gladys promptly said she would bring in Willard's lunch each day if they thought it quite proper. It would save having in a stranger.

Willard beamed happily.

"It would be far more proper if you went through a little ceremony with me first. Nurse will be the maid of honor and I'll get Wilson to come up at noon and be my best man. And some day later, when I can carry luggage about, we'll go on a bit of a honeymoon and—"

"Who was it that asked someone to slow up a bit?" questioned Gladys with a laugh. "I thought speed drove him into a fever and—"

"He blushed hotly for Willard had dragged her into his arms while the nurse just stood by and laughed. "Besides—you said I was no sport."

"Then prove that I was wrong."

"I certainly won't let you say it again," said Gladys.

Returning from the kitchen where she had been preparing a light lunch Gladys Veener picked up the squared paper in her hall and took it into the studio. Her face, when she read it, reflected a hotch-potch of emotions.

LOCAL OFFICIALS ATTEND CONFERENCE

Village President Harry C. Robinson, Chief of Police George Springer, Raymond Bachelard, local secretary of the Detroit Automobile club, and R. E. Parkatt attended the opening session of the Michigan Conference on Street and Highway Safety, in the Statler hotel, Monday.

Dr. A. J. Jacoby, director of the psychiatric clinic of recorder's court, presented a summary of intensive researches conducted by the clinic into the characteristics and qualifications of drivers who were found to be a menace, and outlined a test which he said should be applied to all applicants for licenses.

The conference was called pursuant to a resolution passed at the national highway meeting in Washington a year ago. As a result of the national conference, which was attended by many Michigan delegates, 206 cities and villages in the state have adopted uniform traffic ordinances, similar to the regulations just put into effect in Detroit.

CREDIT BUREAU BANQUET

The Plymouth and Northville Credit Bureau held a banquet at the Park Hotel, Northville, Wednesday evening, with about fifty present. Following a splendid dinner, an interesting program was carried out. Harry S. Lee, president of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, presided over the meeting in his usual pleasing manner.

Among the speakers were Oliver Goldsmith, of Plymouth, who spoke about the benefits of a credit bureau, H. V. Chaffee, credit manager of Ernst Kern Co., of Detroit, and state chairman of the Retail Credit Committee of the National Association, who was the principal speaker of the evening. Miss Marie Johnson, secretary of the local credit bureau, made a short talk. Other members from Plymouth and Northville took part in a general discussion of the credit bureau activities pro and con.

An informal organization of the credit bureau was formulated, more of which will be said in these columns later.

The meeting Wednesday evening was a decided success, and much enjoyed by those present.

The Greater OAKLAND SIX ENGINE

Rides on Rubber Drives thru Rubber

"Smoother and quieter than any car I have ever driven"—such is the verdict of owners of the Greater Oakland Six, with Rubber-Silenced Chassis. A vital reason for its velvety performance is a new and exclusive engineering principle—the Oakland Six engine rides on rubber and drives through rubber. Rubber engine supports absorb any vibration in the frame due to torque reaction of the engine, while a rubber-silenced drive erases all body rumbles and vibrations from the rear wheels, drive shaft and transmission.

Drive the Greater Oakland Six—and experience a smoothness and quietness of operation never before achieved. Oakland Six, $1025 to $1295. Pontiac Six, companion to Oakland Six, $825 to $895. Bodies by Fisher. All prices ex-factory. Easy to pay on the General Motors Time Payment Plan.

WELL KNOWN P. M. CONDUCTOR RETIRES.

Conductor Joseph Hooper, who has been running trains on the Pere Marquette Railroad for almost fifty years, and who has become one of the most widely known conductors on the whole system, has given up the job and taken a crossing watchman's job in his home city, Grand Rapids.

"Joe" Hooper is 78 years of age and entered the employ of the Detroit, Lansing and Lake Michigan Railroad in 1872 as a brakeman. He has the distinction of having charge of the first train to be operated over the extension of the line between Grand Ledge and Grand Rapids. Trains were heated with wood stoves and lighted with tallow candles when he started as conductor.

In the early days when everyone traveled by train, many Brighton people, in fact nearly every patron of the road, knew Hooper well.—Brighton Argus.

Mr. Hooper was also well known to many Plymouth people, especially in the days when everybody went to Detroit on the Pere Marquette trains.

Then for about thirty-five years, he lived on his farm northeast of Northville, and came to Plymouth about eight years ago.

Today's Reflections

The reins of government are powerful, but they don't help the farmer's crops very much.

It's almost as hard in the average Plymouth home to get the children to go to bed as it is to get father to go to church on Sunday.

Time heals wounds, and after a few years fighting nations forgive everybody except the nations that fought for them.

The covered wagon just had to pass on. It got so slow that it never ran over anybody.

For getting around from one place to another, Shank's mare is getting to be a relic around Plymouth.

After they had wondered for several thousand years how to fix their hair, the women finally decided to cut it off.

Several small islands around the coast of Alaska have disappeared. Maybe the Japanese came over and got them.

Any Plymouth boy who is thinking of getting married can save himself a lot of worry by getting the idea out of his head that he is going to live any happier with his wife than other men live with theirs.

"Who owns the air?" asks a New York editor. Well, congress seems to hold claim to a big part of it.

How many Plymouth people can remember the days when a fellow could buy a ticket in the Louisiana lottery without being set down as a gambler?

An Arkansas hunter looked down a rifle barrel. He will recover, but he will never look the same again.

Our idea of a chump is the man who marries a widow and then goes down in his pocket for the price of a tombstone for her first husband.

It won't be long now before some Plymouth citizens will begin to suffer with cold at night because the extra bedquilt is being used to keep the driver warm.

STOP CHILDREN PLAYING IN THE STREETS.

Stop practice of school children playing in the street is warning broadcast by L. J. VanSchoick, safety director of the Detroit Automobile club. Many accidents are laid to this cause.

Calling upon all motorists and parents for the fullest co-operation, the Detroit Automobile club has launched a state-wide campaign to bring to an end "the dangerous practice" of children playing in the street.

"Hundreds of accidents are caused annually because children do not realize that this practice constitutes one of the gravest of highway hazards, and parents and motorists should concentrate their energies on discouraging this habit which seems to be manifesting itself on a constantly larger scale," says Mr. Van Schoick.

"The reopening of schools in all parts of the state has found an ever-growing tendency on the part of pupils everywhere to stay in the street or cross the highways at will, and the time is ripe for concerted effort to bring this practice to an abrupt end."

In the opinion of the officials of the state, county and cities, the problem calls for full co-operation on the part of parents and motorists. Neither, they declare, can afford to shirk responsibility in the matter. Teachers, too, can do much toward discouraging the child from taking such risks.

"It is a trying situation that the motorist faces when he is confronted by a child darting from the curb or roadside," says Mr. Van Schoick.

The role parents should play is in warning the child of the risk he takes in crowding out into the traffic stream. The practice should be discouraged and parents should make it their duty to see that the warning is followed strictly.

"Children are not conscious of the extremely hazardous position in which they place themselves under such circumstances," Mr. Van Schoick further states.

"It is a common sight to see youngsters of all ages forcing their way right into the middle of on-rushing traffic, just to save a few steps. They not only endanger themselves but interfere with the flow of traffic in a manner that is distinctly menacing."

"Motorists continually are being forced to swerve quickly from one traffic lane into another, and compelled to act with such celerity, it frequently is the case that they have no time to give signals, one of the most common causes of accidents. Hundreds of accidents are caused by these conditions and many of them are attended with fatal results."

School officials and teachers can do a great deal to discourage children under their care from resorting to this practice, according to the motor club officials.

M. S. C. AFTER PRIZES AT BIG STOCK SHOW

MICHIGAN ENTRIES COMPETE WITH BEST IN AMERICA—EXPECT TO REPEAT PAST VICTORIES.

One of the best strings of livestock ever exhibited by the institution will be shown by Michigan State College at The International Livestock Show in Chicago, Nov. 26 to December 4. The College has been a consistent winner at this show in the past, and the livestock this year will be watched closely.

Pervench, twice winner of grand championships at the International, will be represented in the show this year by two half sisters. These animals have already been rated as first and second in their class at the Ohio and Michigan State Fairs this year. One of them, Monetta De Rubis, was junior and grand champion at both these fairs. Maple Grove Lella, a seven year old Percheron mare who has already won a grand championship at Chicago, will revisit the scene of her triumphs. Two yearling Percheron stallions, Corbisal and Arvisal, are expected to be up at the top in their class.

Eleven head of steers will be shown in the fat steer classes. A feature of the steer show this year is the re-arrangement of classes so that the oldest animal in this section will be less than two years old. This is done to stimulate the production of animals to meet the public demand for baby beef.

Forty head of sheep, 12 of which are breeders and the remainder fat wethers, will be a part of the College display. Hogs will be shown in the fat barrow classes only. All the College fat stock in the cattle, sheep and hog classes will be sold in the auction at the close of the show.

LIBRARY NOTES.

A splendid group of eighty children, the largest number that has ever attended, gathered in the library for the story hour last Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The stories, "The Giant Who Had No Heart" and "The Bremen Town Musicians," charmingly told by Miss Zett, children's librarian of the Scripps branch library of Detroit, were thoroughly enjoyed and enthusiastically applauded. Altogether it was a very happy occasion.

Among the new books: Glasgow—Romantic Comedians; Kipling—Dobbs and Credits; Tupper—Jorgensen; Moses—Representative British Dramas; Farjeon—Green Dragon.

Johnsen—Government Ownership of Coal Mines.

Edman—Richard Kane Looks at Life.

Barrington—Exquisite Perdita.

Conington—Business Law.

Elton—Testament of Dominic Burleigh.

Faris—On the Trail of the Pioneers.

Forbes—O Gonted Lady.

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES

The Men's Class dinner on Thursday of last week proved an excellent one. The meal itself was very fine and Chairman Melburn Partridge led in an interesting program. Dr. Lucius Smith, who has spent seven years in Spanish Guinea, Africa, was present, and his talk was good. At 8:00 p. m. o'clock, we all went up to the church auditorium, where Dr. Smith delivered a lecture on the work of the medical missionary in Africa, illustrated by many slides. There were also a number of charms, brass collars and anklets, such as worn by African women. The church was well filled with people who listened attentively to the lecture and who went away with a new sense of the obligations resting upon our Christian civilization.

The event of outstanding interest this week has been the annual bazaar and chicken dinner. The women have worked enthusiastically for weeks.

MUNICIPAL NOTES
BY THE MANAGER

Our storm sewer on Forest and Carol avenues is nearly finished. The village crew has had to turn most of its attention the last week to water taps and sanitary sewer taps. A round of the streets has also been made, cleaning up leaves, etc.

The sanitary sewer on Penniman avenue is complete except for some back-filling. This street will not be in good shape to drive on for some time though, and extra care should be taken by drivers if they have to use this road.

Our experience with our village dump on the Whitbeck road has been so exasperating that the commission has authorized some new regulations pertaining to it.

Arrangements are to be made for a supervisor who will demand a written permit from the village manager's office before any dumping will be allowed. The promiscuous dumping of automobile bodies will be prohibited.

White paint lines are to be put on the Main street pavement each side of the Pere Marquette crossing to keep cars, and pedestrians also, from coming too close to the tracks while a train is passing, and also to keep autos from piling up two or three abreast. Considering the width of the pavement, one line of cars headed each way is plenty. The police will enforce this regulation.

Three new street lights were ordered by the commission Monday—one at Blanche and Harvey one at Amelia and Liberty, and one at Penniman and Auburn.

The manager has been authorized to give notice through these notes and to write to the users of village water outside the corporation that a doubling of the charge made for water to outside consumers is contemplated by the commission, to take effect early in the spring.

Last Friday afternoon a six-inch water main broke at the corner of Holbrook and Spring about 4 o'clock. After supper the village crew shut off the flow in that corner of town and repaired the break by working on a split sleeve. The work was finished and the water turned on again about 10 o'clock in the evening.

For some time the cemetery committee has had in mind the building of a mausoleum at River's cemetery. Manson & Abbott, of this firm, have been here with plans of a building containing from a hundred and fifty to two hundred crypts, designed by one of the most noted and competent of Ohio architectural firms. Monday evening the commission authorized the granting of an option to Manson & Abbott for land on which to build this building. This company will put on a sales campaign during the winter to sell the crypts, which will be priced from $275 to $350 each, including an allowance of $20 per crypt, which will be returned to the village as a perpetual care fund for the maintenance of the mausoleum. If this sales work is successful the building will be put up next spring. When the detailed plans are complete more publicity will be given to this project.

The manager has received an inquiry concerning a John Johnson, who came from Rochester, New York, to Plymouth early in the eighteen twenties. He had ten children, one of whom, Gilbert D. Johnson, afterwards moved to Grand Rapids. If anyone can give any information about this man will they please call the manager.

THE THEATRE

"MISS NOBODY"

Long reputed as the most fearless of screen actresses, Anna Q. Nilsson sets up a new record for daring in her new picture, "Miss Nobody," a First National release, coming Saturday, November 20, to the Pennington Allen theatre.

Disdaining to allow a "double" to enact the hazardous scenes of this play of jingo life, Miss Nilsson "rides the rods" on a speeding freight train, paces the brakeman's runaway on the top of careening cars, perches on the bounding "bumpers" and actually experiences the rigors of the brakeman's pet device for dislodging tramps clinging to the chassis of cars—the method known as "hanging a coupling iron."

Recording cameras either on top of the moving trains or on platforms projecting from the side of the cars give a graphic picture of actual dangers bravely by Miss Nilsson for the sake of realism.

Walter Pidgeon, a recruit of the year from the musical stage, makes his appearance in this film opposite Miss Nilsson. Others featured in the cast are Louise Fazenda, Arthur Stone, Mitchell Lewis and Clyde Cook.

The picture is declared to rank as Miss Nilsson's best work since "Ponjola." By coincidence Miss Nilsson's role in "Miss Nobody" is reminiscent of her role in the former picture. In both she plays the part of a man. But while in "Ponjola" she played the part of an English gentleman, in "Miss Nobody" she is seen as a hobo.

Lambert Hillyer directed "Miss Nobody," which is an adaptation of the celebrated novel, "Sheba," by Tiffany Wells.

"THE QUARTERBACK"

First experiences of any sort usually leave an impression that repetition cannot stale nor the passage of years erase. The arrival recently at Paramount's Long Island studio of Football Coach "Hurry Up" Yost to supervise the filming of gridiron games for Richard Dix's latest starring picture, "The Quarterback," revived pleasant memories for Dix and David Butler, one of the principals in the picture which Fred Newmeyer directed.

When Dix was introduced to Yost, the film star recalled the time when as a high school lad in St. Paul, Minn., he achieved the long-hoped-for feat of seeing a game in which one of the contending teams had been coached by Yost, then in charge of University of Minnesota squads. On that memorable day it became the peak of Dix's ambition to play football under the guidance of "Hurry Up." He entered the University of Minnesota upon graduation from high school, but was soon obliged to curtail his education and all pigskin activities in order to earn a livelihood.

But the requirements of "The Quarterback," which comes to the Pennington Allen theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, November 24 and 25, made the realization of a boyhood ambition possible in manhood. When he began football practice with Yost preparatory to filming the game in his latest Paramount picture, Richard experienced the thrill that comes from the realization of long deferred hopes.

David Butler, who helps Dix win the screen encounter, kicked in with a revelation all his own. He recounted a story of the first game he ever attended. The only way he could see the field was by sitting on his father's shoulders. And Yost was then playing on Leland Stanford's team. The youthful Butler became imbued with the desire to be a grid iron hero, and later entered the University of California in pursuit of higher education and football fame.

Esther Ralston, Dix's featured leading lady, never having played football, felt quite out in the cold, not having any reminiscences to contribute.

FARM INDUSTRY HAS HEAVY TAX BURDENS

LARGE PERCENTAGE OF PROFITS PAID OUT IN TAXES, ACCORDING TO M. S. C. ECONOMIST.

Corporations engaged in agriculture and allied industries, and those engaged in mining and quarrying, had all other industrial groups in the percentage of net profits paid out in taxes in 1925, according to the statement of R. Wayne Newton, research associate at Michigan State College. The statement is based upon an analysis made of the corporation tax statistics for the entire country.

Ninety-eight per cent of the net profits of 9,738 companies engaged in farming and similar lines in 1924 was paid out as federal, state or local taxes. Corporations engaged in farming and those engaged in mining have, for the three years preceding 1925, paid more taxes in proportion to their net income than any other class of corporate business. No statistics are available for the years preceding 1922.

Mr. Newton also says that farm corporations have the unenviable distinction of being the only major class of business enterprise whose taxes average higher on the unsuccessful firms than on those which realize a profit. Successful farming corporations paid out 3.1 per cent of their gross income in taxes in 1924, while unsuccessful firms in the same business paid 3.8 per cent of their gross income to the tax collectors.

Continued reliance of the states upon the property tax as the chief means of taxing agriculture is believed to be responsible in a large measure for the tax situation shown for farm companies. The property tax, it is pointed out, is based on capital values and has comparatively little direct relation to changes in current income.

CROWDS PRAISE NEW RADIO ACHIEVEMENT

Crowds attending the Ortho-sonic radio concerts at Corbett Electric Co. this week demonstrate the popularity of this new principle of radio-tone reproduction. So faithful is the reproduction of the Federal Ortho-sonic that the hearers actually feel the presence of the artists, according to Mr. Corbett.

The Ortho-sonic circuit is proving its superiority daily in these concerts, declares Mr. Corbett. Its razor edge selectivity is demonstrated in its ability to tune out nearby stations in favor of more distant programs. Its wide range and exceptional volume provides variety of entertainment in every locality.

Lovers of fine furniture are finding the display of Federal models a revelation of the cabinet-maker's art. Authentic antique designs executed in beautifully grained walnut and mahogany illustrate the ingenious adaptations of the furniture periods to the needs of radio. Many periods including Early English and Italian Renaissance, can be found in the wide variety of Federal radio cabinets.

Concerts will continue to be held during the entire week. They are open to everyone, whether radio owners or not.

AROUND ABOUT US

Dearborn has just installed a new fire and police signal system. Plymouth will have to install such a system in the near future.

Boy members of the Howell Potato Club, backed by the Howell Rotary Club and Board of Commerce, report a yield of more than 1,200 bushels of potatoes from 60 bushels of seed in projects this year.

The will of the late Frank Jordan of Howell bequeaths $1,000 to the Howell Methodist church and a like sum to the Methodist Old People's Home at Chelsea. The beneficiaries must pay the widow 6 per cent upon the money as long as she lives.

The old Episcopal church at Dexter is being remodeled into a modern church house and community home. Kitchen, toilets, choir and primary rooms are being arranged. The plans call for a building to be so constructed that a fine church front can be added near the street making it a modern church plant.

Frank Perrin, Charles Booth and Frank Hamilton were made life members of Northville Lodge F. & A. M. at a meeting of the lodge, Monday night. Mr. Booth has been a member of the lodge for a period of 43 years; Mr. Hamilton for 42 years, and Mr. Perrin for 40 years. This makes eleven life members of the lodge—Northville Record.

L. L. Ball has added to the equipment of his photographic studio in this village, the newest thing in a studio camera, and he will soon place in his studio a handsome background plush drape, to be used in taking group photographs. He is constantly adding new devices to keep his studio up-to-the-minute in completeness.—Northville Record.

A party came out from Plymouth last week on a hunting expedition. They turned north at Malady Roche's corners on Grand River road but the gas running low the men said they would get out of the car and hunt while the Mrs. drove to the next oil station. On the way two male pheasants were fighting in the road and the Mrs. caught both with the car. Livingston Republican.

The village of Brighton has solved the question of affording fire protection to the village and to the farmers in the vicinity of the village by the purchase of a community fire truck. The farmers subscribed a share of the purchase price of the truck while the village will maintain it in addition to purchasing its share of the truck. The farmers will be entitled to the same service in time of need as the village.

Many improvements have been made at Long Lake on Grand River east of Howell the past season. Detroit Edison electric service has been secured. Over 100,000 fish have been planted in the lake; a lot of muddy shores have been made into nice beaches; a large number of new cottages have been erected, and an official water level has been established, a new dam having been completed to hold the water to that level. Credit for all this is given the Improvement Association, composed of interested resorters.

William Parmenter and his wife of Plymouth, spent the day Thursday, with their old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Milroy on the old James Boylan farm west of town. "Billy" is one of the most popular conductors on the Pere Marquette road, where he has been employed for many years. He has never forgotten the day the editor of this paper helped carry him into the depot after a freight engine ran over his foot. That was away back twenty-five years ago or more when "Billy" was a freight brakeman.—Brighton Argus.

The new First Methodist Episcopal church, which has just been completed in Dearborn at the corner of Garrison and Mason, was dedicated Sunday, November 14th. The fine new edifice which has been built at a cost of about $100,000 is within two years of celebrating its one hundredth anniversary. The present location was secured and the new church erected during the four years of the pastorate of Rev. Frank L. Eitch, now pastor of the First Church at Pontiac. Dr. H. A. Leeson, who has recently been appointed pastor of the Dearborn church, was in charge of all the dedication ceremonies.

W. E. Hastings returned Monday from a four days' trip to Fish Pointe on Saginaw Bay, and brought back nine different species of ducks for the museum at Ann Arbor. The species were very rare for Michigan. Mr. Hastings says if the presence of certain species of birds could be taken as any indication of a hard winter, we would get a "hammer" for he saw flocks of thousands of snow buntings, Lapland long spurs and northern horned larks, seen here only in extremely cold weather. He also saw buffed heads, commonly known as butter balls and golden eye ducks, commonly known as "whistlers" which like the above, have been known to appear in these localities only in very cold weather. He found three different species of wild geese—snow geese, blue geese and Canada geese—and several hundred whistling swan.—South Lyon Herald.

Picked Up About Town

Dad Plymouth says it is always best to live so that your obituary notice in the papers won't be considered good news.

A single man can't tell very much about women—and a married man is afraid to.

"Why is it," asks Dad Plymouth, that a woman regards crocheting as pleasure and darning socks as work?

The best time of life is when you are young and ambitious—and know everything.

"No woman," declares Dad Plymouth, can see how it is possible for her husband to love her if she dresses in clothes that are two or three months old."

It's my guess that 99 per cent of the girls would look as good and more of them would get married if the powder and rouge factories all closed down," asserts our good friend Dad Plymouth.

Dad Plymouth says it isn't probable that prohibition will become 100 per cent effective until stomachs can vote.

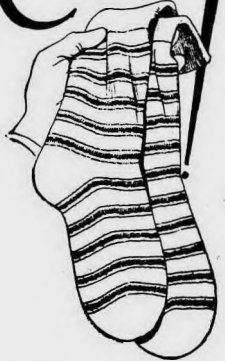

Why is it that it never takes a woman more than an hour and a half to tell her husband that she is a woman of few words.

Funny how the average Plymouth boy can hold a 110-pound girl on his lap for two hours but can't hold his baby brother for two minutes.

Five weeks to Christmas
—and time is flying

THAT one is wise who sees about the buying of his Christmas presents in good season—and it's none too soon today.

The early buyer is able to choose from a full and fresh stock; he buys more leisurely and with better judgment; and he avoids the surging crowds of late buyers.

In considering the kind of gifts you will make, don't overlook the fact that an electric household appliance—coffee percolator, toaster, waffle iron or whatnot—never fails of a welcome or ceases to keep the giver in memory.

Electric dining-table appliances are not only of great convenience in housekeeping, but are beautiful as well. They adorn the table.

We should like you to call at our office and allow us to show you how gracefully you can discharge one or more of your Christmas obligations.
