No More Polar-Bear Baths for G. I. Johnny

When G. I. Johnny comes marching home from Alaska, it's a cinch bet that he'll make a perfect five-point landing in a hot tub. A HOT tub, mind you, and what's more, it'll take more than a sergeant's whistle to get him out of it.

That magical blue flame—GAS—is going to make Johnny's Home of Tomorrow a true castle of comfort and in it, he'll find that hot-water is supplied in modern, automatic style. — ready when he is, — as hot as he likes it, — and as much as he wants, — for himself and all his family. — for dishwashing, laundering and every cleaning job. He'll find that the postwar automatic, efficient gas keeps hot-water crystal-pure and free from rust in a tough, rugged, time-defying tank. It's worth putting in your postwar list!

 GAS IS A VITAL WAR FUEL. DON'T WASTE IT ***

Today... Gas and your automatic Gas water heater manufacturer are in the War! Yes, they're busy helping to make the things our fighting forces need. But when the war is over you can count on them again to bring you the enjoyment, comfort and convenience of dependable, low-cost hot-water service.

High School Students of Today Are Brighter Than Average 25 Yrs. Ago

Records Provide Interesting Data About Boys and Girls of Today

Despite reports to the contrary, high school youngsters throughout the nation, and in Plymouth in particular, are superior mentally and in their general attitude than were the youngsters of the same age 25 years ago.

This is the statement of Claude Dykhouse, principal of the high school, who has the records and the figures to prove his point.

For instance, there was a report current in Plymouth to the effect that the school work in Plymouth has deteriorated during the past year or two of war, but there is no confirmation of that report.

There is more absence in the high school, but most of the absenteeism is directly traceable to working parents. Some of the youngsters are kept out of school on occasion by working mothers in order that the older youngsters may take care of the younger ones. There are a few instances in which high school youngsters of working parents are flaunting their lack of supervision, but these are decidedly in the minority, and there is no apparent reason to blame the youth for the situation. The blame almost invariably rests on the parents.

Records show that there has been no change in the "I.Q." of high school youngsters during the past 25 years. But the very fact that there has been no change is itself a boost for the youngsters; for high school enrollment has more than trebled in percentage in that period of time.

Twenty-five years ago, only 15 per cent of the children of high school age went to high school, and the majority of that 15 per cent was destined for college. Thus the cream of the crop were those in school. Today, there are more than 80 per cent of the youngsters of high school age attending classes. And yet the "I.Q." stays the same.

Twenty-five years ago, the courses were entirely classical in their concept. Latin, Greek, mathematics, history and English were the principal courses, with a little music and art thrown in for culture. In some schools courses in mechanical drawing and manual arts were thrown in, but manual arts only taught the youngsters how to make a good cedar chest or a hall tree.

Today the school teaches machine shop work, and domestic science, and Mr. Dykhouse calls the youngsters who are taking these courses artists in every sense of the word. In many respects the youth who can turn out a perfect piece of work with a lathe, a drill press or any of the other machines in the school, is more of an artist than the youth who can draw or do any of the other myriad of things which are taught in the school, and certainly the girl who can turn out a good salad, or a good meat loaf, or good biscuits, is a culinary artist.

There are those people, says Mr. Dykhouse, who believe that because the student of 25 years ago did homework by the hour, that today's student should do the same.

But, he points out, that conditions today are not the same. The boy who is learning to be a good machinist doesn't have the homework to do. The boy who is spending part of his time in apprentice training as a baker or butcher, or what not, does not have the homework to do.

The boy or girl who is heading for a college course does just as much studying as the youngster of 25 years ago, and perhaps more. Certainly he does more reading. He is better informed on world affairs. He can spell better, read better and figure better than his predecessor.

The number of youngsters on the honor roll is now about the same as it always has been. The number failing is about the same. And that about takes care of the school work problem itself, except as Mr. Dykhouse points out: The school is educating all types of youngsters. They are the ones who 100 years from now will be our business leaders, our clergymen, our butchers and bakers and of the war, and what the future holds for them.

But considering the war, the students are unusually stable in their emotions.

Mr. Dykhouse thinks modern invention and modern living are largely responsible for the attitude of the public toward the high school youngster. It used to be that there were chores to do around a home.

There was coal to carry in, but now it is dumped into the basement. There were ashes to carry out, and there are still a few, but the boy can't carry out the oil smoke. We have vacuum cleaners to do the sweeping, and oil mops to do the dusting. Things can be done quicker and easier, which leaves the youngster with leisure time.

And war or no war, youth cannot spend its time working all of the time. Youth is when a fellow or girl has one change in his life to have a good time. He should learn to work, too, but he should not have to be a drudge.

And that's the youth of today—he's better than his father in learning. He's reaching manhood early. And the school is doing everything it can to help him.

Mrs. Harold Brown returned Monday from a visit to New York City, where she visited her husband Pvt. Harold R. Brown. During her absence her son Richard stayed with his aunt, Mrs. William Smith, in Wayne.

Mrs. W. E. Hoisington of Union Street entertained her son, Allan Marriott, and family of Detroit and Mrs. Howard Marriott of this city at dinner Saturday in honor of Allan's birthday. Later they attended the theater.

Members of the Ex-Servicemen's club and the Ladies' auxiliary will be entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Gottschalk, 7854 Lilley road, Saturday evening, April 1, at a card party.

Mrs. Clayton W. Clair of Phoenix road and Mrs. John Thompson of Plymouth road were in Belmont, Ontario, last week visiting relatives of Mrs. Thompson. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Gladys Ballard, sister of Mrs. Thompson.

The Sunset circle met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Williams, Pacific avenue, Saturday evening, March 18, for a St. Patrick's party. Members of the circle are the Lee Turketts, Herbert Rorabachers, John Chaney, Lewis Straubs, Manford Beckers and the Donald Munros.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shipley of Salem were Mrs. Pearl Green and two sons, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Shipley and family of Northville, Mr. and Mrs. George Bennett and son Elmer, Mr. and Mrs. George Tanner and son Jimmie of Salem, and Miss Madeline Saner of Plymouth.

Mrs. Howard Marriott has returned from Minneapolis, Minnesota, where she visited her husband, Howard Marriott, s2/c, and Albert Newhouse, s2/c, and Mrs. Newhouse. While there they had the pleasure of meeting Tommy Tucker and his band, also Virginia Wiedler, the movie star.

A/C Joseph E. Measel Jr., USNR, stationed at Livermore, Calif., arrived Thursday evening for a week's visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Measel. Another son, James G. Measel, A. S. V-12a, USNR, of Notre Dame university, will also be home for the week-end.

The man of integrity is one who makes it his constant rule to follow the road of duty, according as truth and the voice of his conscience point it out to him.

What I Will Try to Do If Elected a Member of the City Commission

VAUGHAN H. SMITH

Much is being said by one person pertaining to my resignation as chief of police of Plymouth to accept the present temporary war-time position I now hold. She insists that I was "fired"—and I refer you to the official records to show that I resigned the position.

This matter well illustrates, however, the type of petty personalities that have characterized city affairs for several years past. I think the time has arrived to take petty, personal affairs out of our city government, and especially our elections.

I am not interested in petty affairs. I am interested in the welfare of the city where I have spent almost my entire life and where I expect to live the rest of my life.

What is there to be gained by assailing the record and character of any person? I do not believe in doing these things. I have said not one word in criticism of any person, and I will not do so. If she wants to do these things, as indicated in a circular that has been peddled around the city attacking me, that is her privilege. I will have no part in anything of that nature.

We have many important problems before our city at the present time—far more important than personalities.

TAKE PLYMOUTH OUT OF THE MUD!

One of the very first things I will try to do will be to help take Plymouth out of the mud. There are many nice streets in Plymouth that are nothing more than mud-holes every spring. I think Plymouth is too good a city, too prosperous, to permit so many of its residential streets to remain in the condition that they are. The people living on these streets are entitled to immediate consideration of this problem and, if elected, I will try to do my part to help remedy the serious street situation we have in our town. Much has been done during the past year, more can be done, and if elected, I will help by doing my part.

LET THE VOTERS DECIDE

I do not believe that the city commission should pass upon the question of liquor by the glass for the city. This is a question which should be submitted to the voters for their decision. If this question should come before the city commission, and I have no reason to believe that it will, my vote will be for the voters to decide the issue, and not the members of the city commission.

BELIEVES IN CO-OPERATION

I do not believe in bringing before the city commission petty issues. I believe that both the city commission and city officials should work in complete harmony with the citizens of our town to aid in the development of Plymouth into one of Michigan's best "CITY OF HOMES." If you think I can be of help, I will appreciate your vote.

Monday Recreation Discontinued

When the present tournaments are played off, there will be no more recreation on Monday nights. There is a program of spring and summer sports being planned now by members of Leaders' club. This will be an outdoor program to include hiking, cook-outs, bicycle trips and baseball. In the basketball tournament Lois Vetal's team is in first place, with Merriam Russell's, Eleanor Hart's and Marjorie Bassett's teams tied for second place. Lois Vetal and Ladeema Johnson must play off their match in ping-pong tournament to decide the winner. Joanne Schuler is the consolation winner. Brassards will be awarded to the winners in the badminton at the close of the tournament. At present Delphine Bogenschutz is in first place in singles and Nancy Broman and Joan Dipboye are first in doubles.

Absent First Time in Ten Years

For the benefit of those who have not seen the familiar face of Lois Vetal about the halls of Plymouth high school for the past few days, it will be well to note this is her first absence in over 10 years. Lois attended Bartlett school for three years before coming to Plymouth and was tardy only five times and never absent. Her record here has been better. She has never been late more than four times a year, although she has depended on a ride to school every day. Besides her remarkable attendance record, she has maintained an honor average in all her school work throughout high school.

Women at Work Homemaking

What did you pack in that lunch box today? Was it something you would like to eat? Or do you fix the same thing every day? There are several "musts" in packing lunch boxes. How did that lunch box compare to them? Sandwiches are usually the main course of the packed lunch. Even though the variety of fillings is somewhat limited these days, bread is plentiful. Use a variety of breads. Something crisp—pack lettuce separately so that it won't be wilted by lunch time. It can be added to the sandwich when eaten. Slip in a few carrot sticks or other raw vegetables. If they are not eaten the first time, don't give up; keep trying. Fruit—either fresh or canned. Pack it so that it is easy to eat. Something hot—coffee or soup is first choice. Don't overlook the possibilities of chili con carne and similar dishes in the vacuum bottle occasionally. Something sweet (this is easy)—individual pies and cup cakes are old standbys. But try packing puddings or fruit gelatin once in a while. Milk—at least a half pint should be used in puddings or as a beverage. Cheese may be used instead. A surprise—not exactly necessary, but nice. Ideas for these are endless—a couple of pieces of gum, candy, salted nuts, etc. Standard equipment—salt cellar and silverware as needed. It's difficult to eat some things with fingers.—Ruth Marie Blackmore.

Hesco Spring Frolic

The theme of the Hesco dance this Friday evening, March 31, is "Spring." The gym will be decorated with umbrellas and flowers to symbolize April showers and May flowers. Mr. Stadtmiller's orchestra will play. Edith Nolte and Betty Lou Arnold are the general chairmen. Muriel Woods is in charge of refreshments. Gertrude Mulry of decorations, Kay Fisher of tickets, and Joan Miller of clean up.

Mead's Mills

There aren't many people today who can remember when Waterford was a thriving community. About 1830 this village was prosperously flourishing. Here where the modern Ford factory stands, old Mead's mill carried on a thriving trade. Yet, even though the whir of those ancient wheels has long since ceased, on a fair spring day they seem to live once more in the hum of this modern plant. And if one peeks hard enough into the dust of the intervening years, he can see a town now dead and forgotten to all but a few. Beside the mill stood the combination store and postoffice; the building, now well over a hundred years old, serves still as grocery store at the corner of Six Mile and Northville roads.

In those far-off days the happy hum of business poured from the old implement foundry, occupied with the merry ringings of blacksmiths' anvils. Each day the trains stopped at Meade's Mills (as the village was then named), bringing the mail and the latest words in news and jokes. Not far up the hill that rolls abruptly into the valley, boys and girls spent those early times getting "book learning" inside the traditional red school house; but many were the times when the irresistible lure of spring and the shallow streams impelled many feet to relax in their tingling coldness, or dream on the river banks. In later years the DPN (Detroit, Plymouth, Northville) street railway system passed through Meade's Mills, where the street cars stopped at Loud's Corners. The street-car stop was so named after Mrs. Mary Loud, who managed the store and postoffice. The car line connected Northville and Detroit via Plymouth and Meade's Mills. At one time Charles Thume, chief of police, was a conductor. The acreage which now forms the beautiful and peaceful Phoenix and Cass Benton parks, was the site for the residential quarter of Meade's Mills, part of which was a community of negro families. Today it is difficult to visualize that now forgotten village which boasted of a sash factory, a negro community, a railroad depot and a foundry.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"I was just tellin' my brother Fred this morning, Judge...there's never been a time in our lives when we got to live up to that old sayin' 'United we stand, divided we fall' more than we have to today."
"How true that is, Herb. And for the life of me, I can't figure out why, at a time like this, some folks insist on raising a question like prohibition. I can't imagine anything that would tickle our enemies more than to get us folks over here taking sides against each other, arguing about an issue like that. We've got a he-man's job on our hands to win this war and we can't be wasting our minds, our money and our strength fighting about something we tried for nearly 14 years and found couldn't work."

"I say there's a time and a place for everything, and this is no time or place to be doing any fightin' except the kind that's going to win the war."

Middlewood-Aldenburgh Married in Farmington

Miss Barbara Middlewood of West Point Park and Fred Oldenburgh of Northville were united in marriage at a quiet wedding Friday, March 10. Judge Leo Nye of Farmington performed the ceremony in his home in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Owens and Mrs. Nye, also of Farmington. The bride was attired in a black suit and hat, with white accessories, and she wore a white orchid. The couple was attended by Miss Vivian Kniss and John Downey of Detroit. Upon the completion of the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Oldenburgh acted as attendants for Miss Kniss and Mr. Downey for their marriage, which was then performed by Judge Nye. The new Mrs. Oldenburgh is the daughter of the late Mrs. Ethel Middlewood of the park, who was the mail carrier for many years for the Farmington postoffice. She is employed in the office of the Livonia township hall, and Mr. Oldenburgh is a member of the force at Allen and Locke's Ford service here. The young couple will make their home on Grand River in Farmington.

in Anchorage and enjoy the fine hospitality of the people there. "Thanks again for sending me The Plymouth Mail and permit me to express my deepest sympathy to the folks back home who have lost sons in this conflict. I knew many of them and went to school with them and have enjoyed many happy times with some of the boys who are coming back."

COMPLETES TRAINING AS PRECISION BOMBER

A news release from the Victorville army field in California states that Lieut. Anthony Joseph Boland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hazen Boland, 12700 Plymouth road, has successfully completed his training as a precision bombardier and graduated with a class of bombardier-navigation cadets recently. Mr. and Mrs. Boland have another son who is in the service, Bernard Edward Boland, being stationed at present in Washington, D. C.

WILLIAM J. BROSE AT MAXWELL FIELD

In a letter to "Our Boys" column, William J. Brose, who is now stationed at Maxwell field in Alabama, tells briefly of the work he is doing. He expects to be at Maxwell field three or four more weeks. He enclosed a poem, previously published in The Mail, entitled, "What Did You Do for Freedom Today."

He says that he is most grateful for copies of The Mail, and feels just as does Buck Kearney, Art Robinson, Hal Young and all the other boys in the service, about their hometown paper.

FRANCIS J. POTT GOING BACK TO FRONT

Sergt. Francis J. Pott, who was returned from somewhere overseas for a major operation, and is now at Bacon field, Fort Wayne, Indiana, where he will be stationed for a while before going back overseas. In his brief note, he states that he was brought back from overseas and sent to Jefferson barracks, near St. Louis. "Upon completion of operation and rest period, I will again be fit for action," he writes.

HE HAS BEEN TWICE AROUND THE WORLD

Robert Hadley, with the U. S. merchant marine, has just completed his second trip around the world, and on his second voyage had the pleasure of meeting his sister, Ruth Hadley, who is doing Red Cross work in Australia. Bob writes that his sister is thoroughly enjoying her work in that distant country, and like all others who are stationed there, likes that part of the world very much.

HAS TWO NOTCHES ON HIS GUN ALREADY

Mild-mannered Arthur Lockwood, who went overseas early last summer, is again back in America, but soon expects to go back to the battlefield in Europe. He was sent home because of illness, but now has passed medical tests and has been declared fit for the fighting front. "I have already two of the enemy to my credit," he writes. "I also have the pistol of one of the enemy. I want to get back and help get this war over with as quickly as possible. Permit me to send my very best wishes through The Mail to members of the Salem Congregational church and its pastor, Mrs. Stroh.

"Will you please see to it that the names of my brothers and myself who are all in the service and are Plymouth boys are on the monument in Kellogg park? "The names are Pvt. James E. Lockwood, Pvt. Arthur B. Lockwood and Sergt. R. C. Lockwood. "We not only call Plymouth our home, but we love the old town of Plymouth. We have been glad to say that we have been residents of the town for years.

"Thanks again for sending me the paper. You don't know how much good it does to get the home town newspaper. It does a soldier a lot of good."

WHEN AMERICANS DO A JOB, THEY REALLY DO IT

"This place is really a hell hole. All of the palm trees have had the tops blown off, so there is absolutely no shade on shore. The ground is dry and when you step down you sink into dust up to your ankles. There isn't a level spot on the island—it's all bomb holes and shell holes," writes Ensign Kenneth Gust of his visit to a Jap-held island after the American navy had done its job.

"The Japs had pillboxes built of two-foot reinforced concrete and these were pulverized by our shells and bombs," wrote Ensign Gust. "They are just a mass of broken concrete and twisted steel now. Dead Japs and parts of bodies are lying around where they had been blown out of their pillboxes and fox holes. It is really a sickening sight and the stench is indescribable. The bodies are mutilated, some fully clad and others with their clothes and parts of bodies blown away. But the Japs are beginning to know now what they walked into when they picked trouble with the U. S. They are paying and paying dearly for Bataan and Pearl Harbor. The dirty, yellow curls are not fit to live. Some of the bodies remind you of monkeys and apes. One thing that is hard to understand about their uniforms—it is hotter than Hades here, but the Japs had long underwear on. Another interesting thing is their footwear. They look like sneakers and they had a place for their big toes, like we have a place for our thumbs in our mittens," he concluded.

True honesty takes into account the claims of God as well as those of man; it renders to God the things that are God's, as well as to man the things that are man's.—C. Simmons.

Science Aids in Victory Gardens

Leo Wright Shows Benefit of Worms

Science is a wonderful thing. It has developed the airplane and the automobile and the telephone, and commercial fertilizers of all kinds, and now Leo Wright of Plymouth has used science for the development of earthworms—the common garden variety.

It was just about a year ago when all the interest was being manifested in victory gardens that Mr. Wright began his study of worms.

It doesn't sound like the most interesting business in the world, and perhaps it isn't but like everything else, it does have a definite basis of fact that earthworms are a definite help to any soil, and since they are a help to the soil, then they are a help to growing crops.

He wrote everywhere for information about worms—to the colleges and to those persons already in the worm business. He spent hours digging in all the different types of soil in this area. He collected all types of worms from the huge night crawlers to the little red earthworm.

He watched them at their work. He inquired of the colleges the exact amount of good they would do for a garden or a farm, and he came up with the following facts:

Worms will not take the place of fertilizer in a garden, but they do make the fertilizer more valuable and therefore more readily assimilated by the growing plant.

Worms reproduce rapidly, and in the course of a growing season will multiply and keep the earth stirred.

There is no record that worms will eat the roots of plants.

Worms are not naturally migratory. They stay within a few feet of where they are born.

Mr. Wright has now reached the point where he sells both the worms and the worm eggs, both for fishing and as garden helpers.

"T" Gas Coupons Will Expire Today

The Plymouth war price and rationing board pointed out this week that current "T" gasoline coupons used by trucks will expire today, March 31, and that the second quarter "T" coupons are stamped in that manner.

Thus, there can be no run over of truck gasoline coupons. All old ones must be turned in after that date and the new ones used.

The board officials warned filling stations and distributors that they must not accept unstamped coupons after that date.

File Petitions for Street Pavings

Petitions for the paving of a part of Adams street, Wing street between Harvey and Ann Arbor trail and Harvey street between Main and Wing streets were presented to the city commission at its meeting recently.

The city manager and city engineer were instructed to contact certain of the property owners on the affected streets to explain that assessments for the paving will extend beyond the assessable value of the property, and seek to determine whether or not other arrangements can be made to pay for the paving.

Officials Tighten Up on Construction

The city commission at its meeting Monday night tightened restrictions on building in Plymouth by requiring that floor joists be spaced 16 inches apart rather than the 20 inches now required.

The new restrictions will make for better-built houses, it was stated.

Investigation Finds Few Violators

William T. Pettingill, chairman of the price panel of the Plymouth war price and rationing board, reported this week that a survey of the 49 grocery and meat markets in this area of the Plymouth board revealed 99 per cent compliance with price ceilings.

Principal violation was a practice of a few meat markets in rolling rib and rump roasts prior to the time the customer buys it.

Mr. Pettingill said no ceiling price is provided for rolled roasts. Whenever a customer buys a rolled roast, he must buy it first with the bone in, after which the butcher rolls it for the customer.

Another violation discovered was a practice of certain butchers in selling a customer a piece of steak, which the customer then asks be ground. The OPA provides that in such cases the grinder must be where the customer can see it. Otherwise, OPA pointed out, there would be nothing to prevent a butcher from taking the steak behind a partition, substituting cheaper meat for it, and then reselling the steak.

However, Mr. Pettingill said, there were fewer violations in this area than in the Detroit district as a whole.

There were a minor few actual price violations.

The integrity of men is to be measured by their conduct, not by their professions.
