

Re-Elect Fischer, Mrs. Hulsing; Approve Schoolcraft Issue

A meager 895 votes were cast Monday as Plymouth Community School District electors cast ballots to return two incumbents to positions on the school board and approve Schoolcraft College's bonding proposal by a better than four to one margin.

In the balloting for the school board, board president Gerald J. Fischer led the field with 715 votes. He was followed by school board secretary Mrs. Kenneth Hulsing with 628 votes.

Mrs. Harland B. Smith of Plymouth, running for the first time, polled 315 votes.

FISCHER'S total included 279 votes from Precinct One, Plymouth High School; 162 votes from Precinct Two, Gallimore School; 101 votes from Precinct Three, Plymouth Township Hall; and 173 votes from Precinct Four, Starkweather School.

Voting for Mrs. Hulsing included 249 from Precinct One, 145 from Precinct Two, 91 from Precinct Three and 143 from Precinct Four.

Mrs. Smith got 104 votes in Precinct One, 74 in Precinct Two, 41 in Precinct Three and 96 in Precinct Four.

Yes votes for the bonding proposition included 243 at Precinct One, 146 at Precinct Two, 94 at Precinct Three and 167 at Precinct Four. No votes included 52 at One, 49 at Two, 15 at Three and 33 at Precinct Four.

The college proposal also gained approval in all of the other participating school districts within the Northwest Wayne County Community College District.

PASSAGE of the proposal virtually assures construction of at least four new buildings for Schoolcraft College, due to open in August at its campus at Seven Mile and Haggerty Roads.

With voter approval, Schoolcraft College is now expected to issue bonds for an additional $1,250,000. This amount, coupled with $1,550,000 in state and Federal funds, is expected to provide for $2.8 million of additional building at the school.

Expected to be built with the funds are an additional classroom building, a student center, a technical and vocational education building and physical education facilities.

The funds come as a windfall to the school because enrollment applications had surged to nearly 1,600 by May 20. Originally, trustees had planned for 1,000 students for the first year and 1,900 for the second year.

BIDS WERE opened for the City of Plymouth's reservoir and water distribution projects in the city hall Thursday, but the lowest bids were nearly $108,000 above estimated cost of the projects. Commissioners voted Monday to reject all bids. Seated, left to right, at the Thursday bid

Outline Disadvantages of Detroit Water Purchase

Would you be willing to shell out over twice what you're paying at present for water that's about 50 per cent softer than Plymouth's? A rise in rates as high as 120 per cent is what City Commissioner and Wayne County Supervisor Arch Vallier predicted it would cost Plymouthites if the city were to accept water from the City of Detroit now.

Vallier, speaking at the Chamber of Commerce sponsored Businessmen's Forum, held Thursday noon at Hillside Inn, spelled out his opposition to Detroit water at the present time for nearly 40 persons at the meeting.

"THE CITY of Plymouth," he noted, "is either blessed or cursed with an adequate supply of water." There would be no question about Detroit water, he pointed out, if the city's supply was inadequate.

"If we didn't have water," he said, "we would have to go to Detroit with our hat in our hand." Other areas do not have a choice, but Plymouth does, Vallier commented.

He admitted that Detroit water had the advantage of being softer, but Vallier seemed to feel that its disadvantage carried more weight. Among them are high cost, warmth in summertime and what Vallier termed "a river taste."

HE SAID the chances of Plymouth getting water drawn from Lake Huron were slim and claimed the Detroit water sent to Plymouth would be taken from the vicinity of Belle Isle or another location on "the polluted side of the river."

High chlorine content would give the water a characteristic taste, Vallier said.

Plymouth's water has the advantage of being relatively cheap and the City has complete control over the supply. Its main liability is hardness. Coming from deep wells, Plymouth water maintains a constant temperature. It is the only supply of uncontaminated

Turn Down Bids on City's Reservoir, Water Projects

With the lowest bidders projects. Commissioners voted to re-advertise for bids on June 13 and 20, with new bids to be opened on June 24.

ANOTHER 30-day extension on the program will be requested from the Home, Housing and Finance Administration offices in Chicago, a move that a spokesman for HHFA has indicated would be approved.

The extension request is made necessary for the city to qualify for Federal grants of $259,600 on the projects. In addition, the projects will be broken up into four separate contracts: One for reservoir construction, one for a building at the reservoir site to house telemetering equipment, another for the water main project and a fourth for service line installation.

Engineers have indicated to city officials that high bids were probably submitted because most contractors are busy with spring building and didn't take time to examine the job thoroughly.

They have pointed out that a savings of $9,000 can be realized on the reservoir building. Granting of the request for extension will advance the starting date for the project to July 29.

Set Plans for Second V-Day

Plans are underway in the Plymouth Community for the area's second V-Day, to be held at Plymouth Elementary Schools this Sunday, June 14. That's when Operation Sugar Cube is expected to go off smoothly and efficiently for the second time.

The "V" is for vaccine — anti-polio vaccine which will be fed on sugar cubes to an estimated 15,000 persons in the Plymouth Community. They are expected to be part of 2.5 million who will take the vaccine in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties.

The first dose of vaccine was administered to 14,565 Plymouthites in April. The second dose is essential for full protection against dread poliomyelitis.

PLANS FOR the second feeding are going forward rapidly, according to Superintendent of Schools Russell Isbister and Health Officer Lee E. Feldkamp, M.D. Essentially, they are the same as those for the April feeding with Isbister and Dr. Feldkamp activating their own forces for the event.

As in April, the vaccine will be given on a sugar cube. It's pleasant tasting and children take it easily. A donation of 50 cents per dose is requested, but no one will be turned away for lack of funds.

Sponsor Memorial Funds For Slain School Teacher

Grieved at the loss of their teacher, and wondering what they could do, both students and faculty members of the Plymouth Community School District joined together last week in sponsoring separate memorial funds for Gary Albert Smock, Plymouth Junior High West Science teacher, murdered near Kalamazoo May 29.

Parents have joined with their offspring in the effort — contributing as much as $25 each to the fund. Money is still coming in for the funds, one sponsored by students and the other by faculty members.

Friends of the slain school teacher indicated that he would prefer a living memorial, rather than flowers, and suggested a fund be set up for a scholarship in his name. Checks for the two funds will be turned over to Mrs. Smock tomorrow (Wednesday).

LAST Wednesday, the date of funeral services for the quiet, unassuming teacher, a memorial service was held at Junior High West.

The Rev. J. Clifford Thor of the Riverside Church of God, the church in which Smock was a youth leader, spoke briefly over the school's public address system. Brief tributes were also paid by faculty member John Canon and one of

Launch Arson Check

An arson investigation got underway in Plymouth this week following two fires behind stores located around the city's downtown central parking lot.

Both blazes appear to have been set during the early morning hours.

Firemen were summoned Wednesday at 3:50 a.m. to a fire burning behind Graham's at 846 W. Ann Arbor Trail. On Friday, they were called out at 3:54 a.m. to put out a blaze behind Kades' Store at 868 W. Ann Arbor Trail.

HEAT FROM the fire behind Kades' was severe enough to damage an electrical meter box, blister the paint on the building and shatter a plate glass window.

Deputy Fire Chief Charles Groth said the fire came close to spreading into the store building. He said the fires could result in a charge of arson — a felony punishable by a maximum of 10 years in prison.

Storeowners have been storing boxes, paper and trash in metal barrels and on the ground immediately behind their buildings. Concerned, city officials have been investigating the cost of securing a large, portable metal trash container for the lot.

The situation has been compounded by persons who use the area to dump trash during the weekend.

AN ARSON investigation was being conducted by the Plymouth Fire Department this week following two fires behind stores located adjacent to the City's Central-Parking Lot. Hugh Jarvis, of Hugh Jarvis Gifts, left, and Isadore E. Kades inspect a shattered plate glass window and a damaged meter box behind Kades Store at 868 W. Ann Arbor Tr.

STORE OWNERS have been storing empty cartons and paper in the rear of their stores in the central parking lot. Last week two fires in two days broke out in boxes and open trash containers behind the stores. The City of Plymouth is investigating installation costs for a portable metal trash container at a central location in the area.

Union Voices Opposition To School Salary Plan

Following an hour-long discussion, a motion concerning wage increases for employees was tabled by Plymouth Community School Board, at their regular meeting June 8 in the Administration building, until additional information can be obtained. Approximately 10 school employees were present.

Robert Ross, business manager of the International Union of Operating Engineers Local 522 of Detroit, told the board that school district's maintenance men would seek state mediation if the school board could not come up with better increases than those proposed by the board's employee relations committee.

Included in employee relations committee chairman Robert Utter's recommendations for classified personnel was a provision for time and a half for overtime for maintenance and custodial men on Saturdays and Sundays when approved by the Building and Grounds Supervisor, and increases of seven cents an hour for head maintenance men and night supervisors, six cents an hour for specialists including boiler operators and general maintenance and five cents an hour for custodians.

OTHER recommendations of the committee called for seven cents an hour increases for mechanics, assistant mechanics, bus drivers, secretarial-clerical and cafeteria personnel.

Ross told the board that the largest portion of overtime was not worked on Saturdays and Sundays but when someone was ill so the overtime provision suggested by the board would not benefit many of the men. He added that the entire membership had rejected the committee's recommendation for the increases and had signed a petition asking for state mediation if necessary.

The cost of living is increasing and other areas have given corresponding wage increases, Ross told the board.

She was thoroughly indoctrinated by the Nazis and her father helped them get started in Munich. Her experiences in Germany taught her there's a great need for love of fellow man. Mrs. Teachout said, adding that this was one of the reasons she adopted her hobby of collecting Christian literature to send to persons lacking reading material.

She repairs Bibles and other literature and has sent the material to 16 English speaking countries. There is a great demand for Sunday School literature and particularly for colored pictures, she added.

The church did survive in Nazi Germany but youth groups were suppressed. Long hours were spent drilling the school children so they would jump and yell "Heil Hitler" properly. As a child she was beat on the hands once for failing to properly proclaim the slogan, Mrs. Teachout related.

Anyone having old Christian literature, colored pictures or Christmas cards may send them to Mrs. Floyd Teachout, Route 1, Hudsonville, Mich., and she will forward the material where it is needed.

BASEBALL ENDS ON HAPPY NOTE; PLYMOUTH NIPS NORTHVILLE, 2-1

Baseball's 1964 edition ended last Monday for Plymouth High School on a satisfactory note as they edged Northville 2-1 behind the strong hurling of Fred Higgs and Dave Troutman.

The victory, which pushed their final season mark to 8-7, was accomplished without the aid of the Rock seniors. Coach Mike Hogan, pleased over three straight wins prior to the contest, decided to free his graduates and go with the underclassmen, including many recruits from the junior varsity.

Netters Drop State Finals

Plymouth High School found the road rough in the State Tennis Match last week as they ended their 1964 season with a pair of defeats.

After winning the Regionals two weeks ago, Coach Jim Stevens' squad of Rocks fell to defeat in the doubles by a 6-3, 6-1 score. Jim Bruff and Clark Raven felt the sting of Holland Christian in that match.

Dave Tidwell ended a fine year for Plymouth by dropping his singles match 6-2, 6-2 to Rick Schultz.

as Plymouth utilized tight pitching and daring steal of home plate to down their opponents. Higgs went the first three innings before running into trouble in the fourth and calling in Troutman to put out the fire.

TROUTMAN came in with runners on first and second and no one out and the score tied 1-1. He wild pitched the

Rock Junior Varsity Finishes With Five Game Win Streak

The Plymouth High Junior Varsity had to go nine innings but managed to score a 4-3 triumph over Northville last Monday to end their season with a five game winning streak and an overall seven win, five loss record.

Daring base running by Jack "Spider" Robertson provided the margin for victory in the bottom of the ninth as Coach John Close's squad ended their season on a happy note. Robertson, who had been knocked out of the box in the fourth frame, came back to haunt his adversaries by walking, stealing second and third bases, and coming home on Paul Carlson's third hit of the contest.

TIGHT RELIEF hurling by Dave Nunez gave the Rocks mound support until they could rally from a 3-0 deficit in the fifth inning. Jerry Norquist started on the hill for the Rocks and was removed when he ran into trouble in the second frame. Two walks and a hit batsman brought in Jack Robertson, who lasted until Nunez came out in the fourth. The combined hurlers gave up just one hit to Northville.

Nunez fanned nine in his long stint and did not give up runners to scoring position, but returned to form long enough to fan the next batter, force one to pop to third base, and have a third roll an easy grounder back to the mound.

The winning run came home in the bottom of the fifth when Glen Heinrich singled, stole second, and went to third on an infield out. Stribley walked to set up a unique situation and proceeded to steal second with Heinrich coming home on the throw to second.

Plymouth went ahead 1-0 in the first inning when Bob Gotro walked, stole second, and came home on Mike Klinkhammer's clutch bingle.

Northville's unearned run in the fourth inning knotted the score momentarily, until the crafty baserunning of the fifth inning helped end the year with a four game winning string.

Outline Disadvantages of Detroit Water

water in Wayne County, Vallier said.
Even the difficulty of hardness may not be insurmountable, according to the city commissioner.
"It may be possible to put in a complete softening system and still maintain rates cheaper than Detroit's," he said. City fathers are presently studying cost figures related to the installation and operation of softening facilities.

IN NEGOTIATIONS with the City of Detroit over the past year, Vallier said Plymouth has held out for the right to keep its own supply connected with the system for emergency use—a point that Detroit water authorities would probably permit.
But, he said, Detroit Water Board personnel have balked at a portion of Plymouth's proposed water contract which would permit no rate adjustments except in direct proportion to Detroit rate changes to its users. The only rate Plymouth has been offered, he said, is a flat one of 19.7 cents.

NO progress has been made in securing a discount from Detroit for storage of water in Plymouth's new reservoir.
"At first," Vallier said, "Detroit said we didn't need a reservoir. Now they want to build it for us. They know Plymouth will ask for a rate reduction for storage." Similar concessions have been granted by Detroit to other communities.
Because the city's water tank located behind the Presbyterian Church is deteriorating and because water pressure is ominously low in the northwestern area of the City of Plymouth, commissioners decided by a 6-1 vote to go ahead with construction of a new reservoir and water system improvements.
IF CONDITIONS become more favorable in the future, Vallier said, the City of Plymouth could still hook into the Detroit water system.
Another factor in favor of new reservoir construction, he pointed out, was the elimination of hydraulic surges from Detroit lines. The tremendous pressures generated by a surge would blow the city's ground system out of the ground, according to Vallier.
The surges are caused when pumps are shut down and then resume operations.

In Michigan... at a picnic, beer is a natural

When you're relaxing at your favorite outdoor beauty spot with friends or family, and your thirst whetted by fresh air and exercise—that's the ideal time for a cool, refreshing glass of beer. In fact, you can name your recreation—swimming, hiking, or just watching TV—and chances are nothing in the world fits it quite as well as beer.

Your familiar glass of beer is also a pleasurable reminder that we live in a land of personal freedom—and that our right to enjoy beer and ale, if we so desire, is just one, but an important one, of those personal freedoms.

In Michigan...beer goes with fun, with relaxation

(Continued from Page One) the late teacher's students. The Smock case was climaxed last Friday when police arrested a 19-year-old youth who confessed to five murders, including the school-teacher's.

THE YOUTH, Larry Lee Ranes, told officers he still had Smock's body in his car trunk when he shot and killed an Elkhart, Ind., gas station attendant.

Officers said Ranes, who lived alone, also told them he had committed "at least three other murders." The others were believed to include a Southfield airman, fatally wounded in a service station robbery near Battle Creek April 6, another in Las Vegas, Nev. and a third somewhere in Florida.

Police said Ranes was hitchhiking west on M-43 in Kalamazoo late Friday afternoon, May 29 and was picked up by Smock who was returning to Allegan to pick up his wife from her mother's home.

At the US-131 freeway overpass, the officers said, Ranes pulled out his pistol, robbed Smock and forced him into the trunk of the car.

THEN, THEY said, he drove around on side roads for a short time but stopped "because that guy was making so much noise in the back."

The officers said Ranes told them he fired twice at Smock when the teacher tried to rise as Ranes was binding his hands with clothesline he found in the car.

One shot missed and the other struck Smock in the head, Ranes said.

Then, officers said, Ranes told them he drove to Elkhart, Ind., on US-131 and the service station attendant "a robbery there before returning to Kalamazoo."

Ranes said he abandoned the car with Smock's body still in the trunk, about 8 a.m. on the freeway west of Kalamazoo.

State Police found the car Memorial Day afternoon and discovered Smock's body after they had the car towed to the Paw Paw post and had a key made to unlock the trunk.

Last week, Rane's court-appointed attorney said he would seek psychiatric tests for the youth.

Junior Rotary Group Sponsors Meeting Friday

Last week's Plymouth Rotary meeting was run entirely by Plymouth's Junior Rotarians. The Junior Rotarians are students at Plymouth High School that are invited to attend the regular Rotary meetings for one month.

The object is to teach them the ideals and services of Rotary.

The Junior Rotarians that ran the meeting were: Tom Blunk as president; John Park introduced the guests and visitors; Donald Sutherland, Jr., was acting sergeant at arms.

Terry Holt introduced the speakers; Richard Dingley spoke about the Industrial Arts program at the High School; Tom Wimsatt represented the college bound students and in his speech emphasized the importance of the basic ideals of Rotary and their use as a guide for man's future.

Set Plans

(Continued from Page One) The vaccine stations will be at the same places as in April. They will open at 11 a.m. The closing time is 4 p.m.

SCHOOL personnel — teachers, principals, supervisory employes, maintenance employes — again will play a major role in the feeding. The campaign is sponsored by the medical societies of the three counties. Both medical and osteopathic physicians, nurses, pharmacists, and others in addition to school personnel are donating their time and effort to make it as big a success as the first V-Day.

Dr. Francis P. Rhoades, Wayne County Medical Society drive chairman, stressed the need for taking the second dose of vaccine, but added that since the dose is identical to the first, a person could take it as the first dose and then get the second dose from a private physician the required eight weeks later.

PLYMOUTH drive personnel were pleased with the way the first feeding went in April. To eliminate the few problems they did encounter, minor changes were made in the plans to smooth out the upcoming operation.

There will be 443 feeding stations in Wayne County — 91 in Oakland and 96 in Macomb.

Vaccine will be dispensed in Plymouth at Bird, Allen, Farrand, Gallimore, Smith and Starkweather Schools.

Ernest Roe

(Continued from Page One) and at the urging of his daughter, Mr. Roe moved into the Mayflower Hotel in June, 1947. He refused to leave Plymouth and move in with one of his daughters, saying this his home and friends were in Plymouth and that he would not consider leaving Plymouth until he got "old."

Sam Spicer

(Continued from Page One) the son of Horatio A. and Louisa Seaman Spicer. Following graduation from Plymouth High School in 1896, Mr. Spicer taught school at Stark and Cooper Schools. He gave up teaching in favor of a job on the railroad which offered better pay — $28 per month, working 12 hours a day, seven days a week. During this time he worked in the Plymouth-Romulus area, Kansas City, Mo., and Barstow, Calif.

On Dec. 4, 1901, he married Alma Murray and within a year he quit his railroad job to take over farming on the Hiram Murray farm on the Wayne-Washtenaw County line (now Napier Rd.) in Canton Township. He worked this 270 acre farm until the spring of 1925 when he moved into the new home he had built on his home farm on Ann Arbor Tr.

Playing an integral part in the formation of the Wayne County Farm Bureau and bringing extension service to Wayne County, Mr. Spicer served as treasurer of Plymouth Township for 18 years and was associated with Giles Real Estate as a salesman for a number of years.

He had been a member of Plymouth Grange for the past 55 years and was a member of the County, State and National Grange. He was a charter member of the Plymouth Historical Society, honorary member of the Ex-Servicemen's Club and belonged to the Senior Citizens, and was affiliated with the Methodist Church.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Jesse F. (Louise) Tritten and Mrs. Louis J. (Betty) Norman; three sisters, Mrs. William Pitts, of Hollywood, Calif.; Mrs. William Wakely, of Miami, Fla., and Mrs. Herbert Mason, of Plainfield, Ind., a brother, Frank, of Hillsdale, and four grandchildren, Norman and Dale Tritten and David and Marilyn Norman.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Alma, and a sister, Mabel I. Spicer.

Funeral services were held Monday, June 8, at Schrader Funeral Home with Rev. Melbourne Johnson officiating. Interment was in Riverside Cemetery.

Canton Church Slates Meetings

Canton Baptist Church, 44205 Ford Rd., will hold special meetings June 14-21 at 7:30 p.m. Evangelist Frank Swift, Jr., of Hopewell, Va., will speak each evening and Larry H. Ellis, of Charlottesville, Va., will lead the singing and present special music at each of the meetings. Both men will visit families in the community during the week of June 7.

The meetings are open to the public.

Former president of King Air Rifle Co. and pioneer for W. Markham, founder of Markham Air Rifle Co., predecessor of Daisy Air Rifle Co. Mr. Roe was a familiar sight to Plymouth residents, young and old, as he walked an average of two miles a day, until about two years ago.

After 44 years with Markham, Mr. Roe sold his interest to Daisy Air Rifle Co. in 1930.

In addition to his service to Markham, Mr. Roe along with Charles Bennett and Edward Hough, was active in the formation of the Mayflower Hotel and in the re-establishment of the Plymouth United Savings Bank, (now the National Bank of Detroit) of which he was a trustee.

Former member of the Kiwanis Club and Knights of Pythias, he was an active member of the advisory committee of the National Bank of Detroit, until his death, missing only a few of the monthly meetings over the years.

Mr. Roe is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Shawley, of Mt. Kisco, N.Y., Mrs. H. C. (Merle) Smith, of Dearborn, and Mrs. H. A. (Illa) Fritch, of Oxford; five grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held last Friday, June 5, at Schrader Funeral Home, with Rev. Melbourne Johnson officiating. Interment was in Riverside Cemetery.

CONTROL: Destroy the grubs by treating the lawn and shrub beds with 5 lbs. of 5% chlordane dust or 10 oz. of 40% emulsion per 1,000 sq. feet watered in. To kill the adult beetles, use a combination of 2 Tbl. of 50% Wettable DDT and 2 tsp. 50% Malathion emulsion in one gallon of water. Spray at 5 day intervals. (50% Wettable Methoxychlor may be substituted for the DDT) Thoroughly cover all affected plants. Finish Final Plans For Fourth Parade

TO ATTEND MEETING

Tuesday, June 9, 1964

THE PLYMOUTH MAIL 7

Plans continued to roll forward for Plymouth's annual Fourth of July celebration this week after city commissioners granted permission

ANOTHER landmark began its disappearance from the Plymouth scene as workmen began to wreck the old brick smoke stack at the DSI Corp. plant in Plymouth. The stack topped a power house which, years ago when the plant was owned by the Daisy Air Rifle Company, generated all electrical power for the City of Plymouth. The power house was discontinued as a source of electricity after Detroit Edison came to Plymouth.

O.E.S. Highlights

Plymouth Chapter No. 115, O.E.S. will hold their annual picnic June 16, instead of the special meeting. The picnic will be at 6:30 p.m. at the usual place in the park. Following the picnic home movies will be shown at the home of Worthy Matron Elizabeth Holmes.

On Sunday, June 28 a potluck dinner - co-sponsored by Plymouth Rock Lodge and O.E.S. will be held at the Masonic Home at Alma, Mich. We will leave the Masonic Temple in Plymouth at 10 a.m. Please bring a dish to pass and your own table service. All members are invited to attend. This will conclude the activities until fall.

Your Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron wish for each of you a happy and safe vacation. We shall look forward to seeing you in September.

last week for Jay Cees to hold their Independence Day carnival on the city's industrial park property across from the Burroughs Corp. plant.

Jay Cees, expecting the largest crowd in the history of the Fourth celebration, completed final details for a parade that will include Michigan Governor George Romney and 17th District Representative Martha W. Griffiths.

The parade will start promptly at 1:30 p.m. from the corner of N. Union and Main St., according to parade chairman Ron Coosaia. Participating units will be lined up back to Penniman Avenue, he said.

UNITS calling in for a position in the parade will be sent a map of the lineup area, a position list and a set of parade instructions. All units will enter Union St. from Penniman and proceed directly to their spots which will be marked by numbered cards.

Fire equipment from the City of Plymouth and Plymouth and Canton Townships will be assembled in the Kroger Co. parking lot. In addition, Coosaia noted, all antique cars will be lined up in the parking lot and fed into the parade as needed.

Persons wishing to enter horses are welcome. A place will be set aside in the parking lot where all horse trailers can be parked. Riders will wait in the parking lot and will be the last group down Main St., Coosaia said.

NO CANDY may be thrown from floats, according to a new rule instituted by Jay Cees this year. Coosaia said Junior Chamber members have had too many close calls with children darting into the street to pick up candy. Candy may be distributed along the parade route by persons on foot.

Following the governor's arrival at 1:15, he will be taken directly to the assembly area. Leading the procession down Main St. will be the State Champion VFW color guard, directed by Hal Young.

Governor Romney will follow, walking the entire length of the route. Youngsters will be permitted to shake the Governor's hand. Romney will be followed by Rep. Martha Griffiths, riding in the JayCees's replica of a 1903 Oldsmobile.

Behind Mrs. Griffiths will come Mayor Wernette and Supervisor Roy Lindsay of Plymouth Township.

Trophies will be given for the best commercial and organizational floats and the best military and organizational marching groups. Judges for the parade include Bill Lyons, Kiwanis; Phil Tormohlen, Lions; Richard Merriam, Optimists; School Board President Gerald Fischer; Township Clerk John D. McEwen; City Commissioner James Jabara and City Attorney Edward F. Draugelis.

PLANS HAVE been made to have the old K of C hall on Union open, beginning at 12:30 p.m., for persons needing to change clothes.

Coosaia requested Union St. residents to park their cars off the street between 12 noon and 2 p.m. on the Fourth.

"This," he said, "will cut down on confusion and make it easier to line up the parade." Recreation director Herbert Woolweaver is making plans for youngsters who wish to dress in costume, decorate their bikes and enter the parade.

Interested youngsters should contact the recreation department group leader in their area.

Groups interested in entering the parade should contact Coosaia at GL 3-9478 as soon as possible.

The Rev. Norman Berg, of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Richard Scharf, teacher in the Lutheran Day School, and Walter Schultz, St. Peter's lay representative, will attend the 82nd convention of the Michigan District, Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod. The convention to be held in Saginaw begins Monday, June 15.

OPEN-HOUSING COVENANT
Sponsored by the Plymouth Community Human Relations Assembly

I BELIEVE that the inalienable rights designated in the Bill of Rights should be assured to all Americans; that all persons in America should be entitled to equal opportunities in education, housing, and occupation without restrictions based on race, religion, or national origin. It is important for all persons who believe this to support each other and the legally constituted authorities in keeping such restrictions from our community. While these rights and opportunities are assured by the new Michigan constitution as administered by the Michigan Civil Rights Commission, to be meaningful they must have the earnest and enduring support of the citizenry. Therefore, I PLEDGE MYSELF to welcome to my neighborhood any responsible person of whatever race, religion, or national origin; and I will work with him to build, improve, and maintain a community which is good for all.

I understand that the Plymouth Community Human Relations Assembly may or may not publish my name together with not less than one hundred other names sometime in the future.

Signatures: _____ Address: _____

NOTE: Nearly 400 persons have signed the open housing covenant, above, sponsored by the Plymouth Community Human Relations Assembly, a non-official group interested in human relations. At the request of an assembly spokesman, The Plymouth Mail publishes the covenant as a public service. Persons interested in signing it may do so and send it to Housing Committee Chairman John Groiz, 923 Penniman Ave., Plymouth.

Northville Players Slate Final Play

Northville Players Guild will close out its premiere season of Sidney Jones' musical comedy "The Geisha," June 25, 26 and 27. Mrs. Carolyn Oldford, of Plymouth, a member of the guild's board of directors, has been cast in the principal roll of Molly Seamore. Mrs. Oldford starred earlier in the guild's November bill of one-act plays.

"The Geisha," with libretto by Owen Hall and lyrics by Harry Greenbank, is being directed by Dr. Hans Kolbe, Northville Players' resident director.

Performances are slated the nights of June 25, 26 and 27 at 8:30 in the Northville High School auditorium. Tickets can be reserved by phoning FI 9-0955. They will also be sold at the box office the night of each performance.

Comical, romantic entanglements that disrupt the serenity of Japan's Teahouse of Ten Thousand Joys furnish the story for the musical.

Sharing the cast billing with Mrs. Oldford are Tom Williams, Jim Drew, Gino Farrah, John Hyde, Betty Stern, Betty Sellers, Geraldine Mills, Gwenlaurie Karr, Mary Welch and Sharon Mazanec, Northville; Tom and Joyce Griffin, Livonia; Sylvia Longfield, Ann Arbor; and Georgie Richards, Novi.

Refrigerator Cookies
Now's the time to put in a supply of rolls or cookie dough in the refrigerator. They can be sliced and baked with no notice and served with frosted beverages, fruit or alone just as a snack.

Use lard as the fat of your choice when making this type of cookie so it will be "short" and tender. Lard has the greatest shortening power of any fat. Since it's also 97 per cent digestible, lard is also a smart choice for any food item which is as popular for eating as cookies!

TREASURES FROM Plymouth Pantries

STIRRING HER "Boeuf Bourguignon" (Burgundy Beef), is Mrs. Bruce Goodsite, of 999 Penniman Ave. Mrs. Goodsite, a new Plymouth resident, suggests serving French bread and a salad with the beef.

A delightful recipe that can be prepared long before your guests arrive is one for "Boeuf Bourguignon" suggested by Mrs. Bruce Goodsite, of 999 Penniman Ave. "I just love Plymouth," Mrs. Goodsite exclaimed. The Goodsites and their three children, Robert, 12 years old; Betsy, five, and Amy, three, moved to Plymouth from Livonia in September.

In the summer, Mrs. Goodsite says she enjoys being around the water, in the winter she likes to "hole up" to read. She belongs to the Newcomers Club but hasn't joined any other clubs yet.

French bread and a salad will compliment the "Boeuf Bourguignon," Mrs. Goodsite suggests.

BOEUF BOURGUIGNON (Burgundy Beef)
1/2 C. beef bouillon
1 C. dry red wine
1/2 to 1 lb. fresh mushrooms
2 lbs. lean beef (chuck)
2 Tbl. bacon drippings
1 1/2 Tbl. flour
10 sm. or 5 med. onions
Marjoram
Thyme
Salt
Pepper

Peel and slice onions and fry them in the bacon drippings until brown using a heavy skillet. Then remove to a separate dish. Cut lean beef into one inch cubes and saute in same drippings, adding more fat, if necessary. When cubes of beef are browned on all sides, sprinkle over them 1 1/2 Tbl. of flour, generous pinch each of salt, brown, of Bay City.

Then add 1/2 cup beef bouillon to contents of the skillet, and 1 C. red wine. Stir well for a moment, then let simmer as slowly as possible for 3 1/2 hours. The liquid may cook away, so add more bouillon and wine (in the proportion of one part stock to two parts wine) as necessary to keep beef barely covered.

After the mixture has cooked 3 1/2 hours, return the brown onions to skillet and mushrooms. Stir everything together and then cook for 3/4 hour longer. Again, it may be necessary to add more stock and wine. The sauce should be thick and dark brown.

W. D. Browns Wed 50 Years

Marking their 50th wedding anniversary, on June 17, will be Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Brown, of Sheridan Ave.

The Browns were married in Detroit in 1914. Brown was employed in the Plymouth office of the National Bank of Detroit.

Their four children will help them celebrate the anniversary Saturday, June 13 in Royal Oak. Then on June 17 Brown says he plans to take his wife to dinner alone.

Their children are Mrs. Robert Stetson, of Lansing, Mrs. Alan Frickie, of Royal Oak, Mrs. Robert Johnson, of Fairfax, Va., and Warner Brown, of Bay City.

Pidgeon plays a comically distraught father who very reluctantly allows his oldest daughter to leave their home in California to go to Hawthorne College for women, in the East.

The action shifts from California to New England as father and daughter muddle through the problems of their separation. The play was written by Phoebe and Henry Ephron and will be directed by Malcolm Black.

On June 23-28 Kathy Nolan (of TV's Real McCoys) and Roger (77 Sunset Strip) Smith will star in "Sunday in New York." Miss Nolan will play a girl who despairs of ever finding a husband in her home town of Albany, N.Y. and comes to New York City to enlist her brother's help. HIS THIRD CADILLAC... HIS FIRST NEW ONE

This man is enjoying his first brand-new Cadillac—after becoming acquainted with the car's unsurpassed value by twice buying used Cadillacs.

He learned that a late model used Cadillac gave him more standard equipment and engineering advancements than most new cars.

First of all, while Cadillac's styling was continually refined, it never lost the clean, dignified look that says Cadillac and Cadillac alone. The smooth, quiet performance and complete reliability of his used Cadillac was a constant source of enjoyment. Then, too, he and his family enjoyed luxury and comfort to a degree reserved exclusively for Cadillac owners.

The pride of ownership of so distinctive a car was a never-ending pleasure, for he had the satisfaction—always—of knowing he drove the finest.

When it came time to trade his previously owned Cadillac for a later model, he found its value had held remarkably high... and returned a substantial part of his original investment.

So what could be more natural—or wise—than to make the eventual move to a new Cadillac?

New or used, there is no finer motoring investment than a Cadillac. And new or used, your authorized dealer has one to fit any budget. There's never been a better time to invest in the finest of them all.

Kiwanis Hears Lt. Governor W. Gemperline

Immediate Past President Walt Gemperline spoke on the subject "To Become Involved Or Not To Become Involved." At the Memorial Day Services in Kellogg Park, Carl Cederberg spoke about the recent example of people who were so reluctant to become involved that they watched murder and rape on the sidewalks of New York without turning a hand to change the course of those events. Gemperline said, we must be concerned about what happens and not break faith with the values of the past.

We must continually struggle with apathy, complacency and indifference. We must promote a better understanding of business for our young people, he said. The Junior Achievement program is an excellent start. "Build America Today — Our Hope And Challenge For Tomorrow."

Gemperline has visited 57 clubs this year to date in his official duty as Lt. Governor of the Sixth Division.

The Plymouth Kiwanis Club had a 100% month in April for attendance and achievement in projects and reports. Kiwanian Jim Houk brought two guests, Neil Peterson of Royal Oak and Henry Muselli of Cleveland, Ohio. Kiwanian Duane Sheldon brought two guests, Chuck Reno and Neil McNabney. Kiwanian Bill Sempliner removed the bids from Robert Taylor and Robert Emerson, who have completed four meetings as Baby Kiwanians.

On Sunday, June 14, all Kiwanians are urged to take their oral polio vaccine and then to visit Wen Miller's Kiwanidzevous at 13928 Ridgewood Drive from 1 p.m. on. A. E. Van Ornum will be program chairman on June 16 with the subject "Union Pacific."

Release Local Library Results In State Survey

Of 764 Plymouthies queried in a recent Michigan State Library survey, 529 Dunning-Hough Library users were students, 101 represented business and industry and 134 were housewives.

The canvass was part of a Michigan State Library-sponsored survey of Michigan libraries during the week of Feb. 10-15. Dunning-Hough was one of 271 participating libraries.

The survey counted circulation of books only and made no effort to measure the use of reference and other special services.

DUNNING-HOUGH Library users checked "personal" in 459 cases explaining their use of the library and 473 reported uses for school.

In the state, more women than men borrowed books by a 60-40 ratio. Patrons six to 18 years of age were most numerous, followed by the 22-40 age group. The next group was 41-50, then 18-21 and the 51 and older category. The smallest group was the four to six year old pre-schoolers.

The Plymouth library percentages closely followed the state pattern. About 74 per cent of the library users in Michigan were able to find what they wanted during the survey week.

Chips from the Rock

A special edition of the Rogers, Arkansas News crossed my desk last week and it was most interesting in view of the fact that its total content was devoted to the dedication of the new Rogers-Hough Memorial Library.

A grant far in excess of $100,000 from the Hough-Kimble Foundation which is administered by former Plymouthite Cass S. Hough made the beautiful new library possible, the paper said.

This is the third library made possible by the charities of these former Plymouthites; the Dunning-Hough library in Plymouth, The Cleary College library in Ypsilanti and now the new one in Rogers.

The news stated the grants were made because Mr. Edward C. Hough cherished and valued education as much as he did action and he gained this love for learning the hard way for Edward Hough was, in part, a self educated man, never having attended college.

Plumbing and heating contractor Don Lightfoot provided some thought provoking information for our young people regarding the opportunities in agriculture. Turned farmer himself with some 600 acres of corn already planted and some 70,000 melon plants under cultivation he, through his brother Elmer Lightfoot, Agricultural Education Consultant for the Michigan Department of Public Instruction, gave us the following facts.

Since this is graduation time and our young people will be making decisions on their future avocations it is my opinion that agriculture may provide a field which is being greatly overlooked.

As a matter of fact, Gerald Fischer, president of the Plymouth Board of Education, provided me with a copy of the 1964 Ford Almanac which, in an article, says . . . "Agri-business jobs paying $6,000 to $10,000 a year are going begging for applicants. College students still don't realize farming isn't all playing. Colleges are having difficulty in beginning to fill all of the jobs in agricultural management, processing, sales, finance, government and even foreign assignments."

According to the Almanac there will be a need for 20,000 more agricultural scientists by 1970 to feed the nation's population . . . 40% more than we have today.

Agriculture is a major industry and Michigan enjoys a position among the top 12 to 15 states in total food production. We can boast of two major aspects relating to agriculture. One, no other state has as much diversification in food production ranking in the top 10 states in as many as 26 different crop, fruit and livestock enterprises, including the basic one of milk corn and wheat.

Secondly, Michigan's unique location is in the middle of two thirds of the nation's population in a radius of 700 miles or less.

Recently the editor of the magazine Prairie Farmer had this to say, "We will always need competent men to run our farms. The shrink in number of farms will continue a little longer, but there is no shrink in the quantity and quality of farming. In fact, it must continue to expand. As farm boys and farm girls are exposed to a greater choice of vocation, through education and travel, it will grow less and less likely that there will be a son or son-in-law to take over the family farm."

"So properly trained and ambitious young men will be in increasing demand to take over our farms. They will find financial backers because the owners of our land, whoever they may be, will have to look for reliable operators. A large portion of these operators will become owners. So let's dispel some of this unwarranted gloom about the future of farming."

Michigan State University, this year, has three jobs for every agricultural graduate and this is about the average nationally, they say. As another example, it is pointed out that in 1963 Michigan faced the job of competing with all other states to secure teachers of vocational agriculture for our 226 high schools. When the schools opened last September eight of them were unable to fill these openings which left many of our students stranded for an occupational training program.

This year the situation points to an even larger number of unfilled teaching positions even though several men have already been recruited from other states.

Says Mr. Lightfoot, "If we continue to show how the one farm operator feeds 31 including himself, we will be doing a great disservice to our national and state welfare in years to come. If we do not emphasize the larger number of urban based, or off-farm "agriculturists" as being the key to our success in food production, we will continue to have jobs going begging and find ourselves unable to hire competent help for highly specialized services."

"We have already gone through 24 years of discouraging youth from entering agriculture and today our qualified farm operators are gradually reaching a higher average age, which, incidentally, is now over 50 years."

"For some reason and somehow we are failing through our schools and state offices to get this message across to our youth and our efforts are not sufficiently effective to one day save us from what could be a most serious catastrophe," he concludes.

If you have a graduate in your family that is uncertain about his future vocation it might be wise to have him explore this field. Michigan State University will be more than glad to discuss this with any young person or his parents.

PHOTORIAL A PICTURE IS WORTH A THOUSAND WORDS

POLIO CLINIC

The Grim Pilgrim

By DAVE WILEY

It was with a distinct sense of refreshment that, last week, I read my way through a letter submitted to The Plymouth Mail by a local teen-ager. For the teens, in recent weeks, have been receiving an inordinate amount of bad press; and they seldom get an opportunity to level a replying blast at the adult world.

Because the letter was so outspoken, I suggested to the writer that it be cleared with parents. Apparently it didn't make muster; because a phone call came requesting omission of the note.

Perhaps it was too penetrating, the insight too clear, the idealism too much a parent for the adult world. Referring to Memorial Day ceremonies, the youngster wrote:

"It made me sick when I saw the lines of hypocrites that lined the streets and met in the park to salute our flag. . . with liberty and justice for all." All that is, except the Negroes, the Jews, the immigrants, the poor.

"What the citizens of Plymouth need is a . . . trip into the slums . . . they need their skin darkened and to take a trip through the South. No, better still, they should take a trip through the Christian, All-American community of Plymouth."

Decrying the pre-occupation of many of us with material goods, the writer slashed at those whose main goal is fat next year's new car, and those who achieve a life-estate of satisfaction by chronic contribution to funds and charities.

Among other things at which the youngster took aim were small election turnouts and the amount we spend on armaments while much of the world suffers from malnutrition. Even other teen-agers took a few lumps in the letter:

"But what is even more wonderful, is that the future looks almost as rosy as the present. The high quality trash that our schools put out have such high grades. How eager they are to go to college so they can get high paying jobs and live even better than their parents (which is hard to believe)."

"And, of course, they do not have any of their parents' racial bias. No, not the children of Plymouth."

"Good," I thought as I read the letter. As long as there is idealism of such a shining nature, as long as one or two or more younger persons are sufficiently angry, as long as they are willing to strike out at greed and prejudice and adult hypocrisy, there is hope.

For this nation and its communities — the Plymouths that lie scattered across its breadth — will only prosper in the truest, intangible sense, in direct proportion to the degree of awareness possessed by its youth.

We need their insight, their skepticism, their burning conviction that all is not well.

The unshuffled eye of youth will tell us that much of our world is distorted by hate and selfishness. They, I am sure, would tell you that hate lay behind the actions of the warped pair who fired a shotgun blast into a group of Negro picnickers in Hines Park recently.

They would say hate drove another to kill five juniors, including Plymouth Junior High West Science Teacher Gary Smock.

And, that like it or not, hate was the basic reason a twisted little man snuffed out the life of this nation's chief executive last November — a tragedy that our young people have, thankfully, unlike many adults, not forgotten.

Hate, hate, hate.

Really an innocuous sounding word, isn't it? But many teens will tell you that hate, rather than love, makes the world go round. And they will lay much of the blame at the feet of their elders, recognizing that they have done their part to perpetuate the loathsome climate that surrounds much of life.

They have seen their parents, if Republican, rant against Democrats; if labor, rail against business; if Protestant, ridicule the Catholic; if liberal, berate the conservative; if white, hate the black; and if black, deprecate the white.

And then Junior is expected to go to Sunday School and sing, "red and yellow, black and white — all are precious in His sight . . ." The trouble with kids is that they believe the words. When they salute the flag, they mean it.

When they sing The Star Spangled Banner, it's significant.

They haven't become sophisticated enough to know that the words, the phrases, are merely symbolic.

God knows, I hope they never do.

Thanks very much both to you and Randy for the fine story you carried in The Mail regarding my Rotary talk. Our Plymouth friends have been unfailingly kind through the years, and I have no hesitation in saying that there is no finer place for good family living in Wayne County than Plymouth.

SPLENDID IDEAS

The Plymouth Mail
Attention: Mr. Dave Wiley,
Managing Editor

Dear Dave:

This is the only manner to begin this note for if I were writing to Sterling, it is the way I would address him. (Last week's editorial) "We intend to keep it that way" is fine and the splendid ideas and ideals certainly are a reflection of the community the "Mail" represents.

We were once a part of that community and will probably continue to long to return, in spite of trying to make Rogers a replica of Plymouth. Yes, Rogers, Arkansas, the new home of the Daisys and the Daisy Family, of which we are a part.

Enclosed is our check for another year subscription. We will be in Michigan in August for our annual trek and Clinic at MSU.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Albert M. Horvath

Plymouth Community Loses a Friend

The passing of Sam Spicer is a distinct loss to the Plymouth Community but more especially to the residents of Plymouth Township. In all of the thirty some years we have known Mr. Spicer, we can say there has never been a more dedicated servant to this community and its many associations or to the many people that he served.

His interest in the Grange, the Plymouth Historical Society and the many facets of Township offices and their problems were not only done on a basis of time but substantiated with financial backing as well. Dedicated servants such as this are few and far between.

His early youth and later years were dedicated to the land, the people and the area in which he lived and it was with this association that he became a partner with such other interested and devoted workers as Charles Rathburn, Norman Miller, Roy Lindsay and Elizabeth Holmes, some of whom are continuing this wonderful service today.

His fine family, which also have devoted a lifetime of service to this area, should also be complimented for their many efforts which we are sure were inspired by the sincere and proven ambitions of this man.

If you had a problem in which he could help he was there and if you had a job in which he could help, he was there. Plymouth has lost a sincere friend and we are deeply sorry.

Action is Needed to Avert Tragedy

While The Plymouth Mail has probably been the most vocal and consistent voice in the community about the advantages of Plymouth stores and the services and goods they offer, a persistent problem has now reached the stage where we feel compelled to speak out about it.

The city's central parking lot has long been a thorn in the side of city public works and public safety personnel; and now it appears that merchants themselves have reason to fear a situation that exists there.

We refer to trash disposal, or the lack of it.

Because there is no central point for disposal of cartons and boxes, no area large enough for the businessmen that surround the lot to deposit refuse in oil drums and cans behind their store buildings.

Stored overnight, the refuse is more apt than not to blow around and litter the parking lot. The situation has been further compounded by persons who have adopted the site as their own private dump during weekends.

But, last week, what has been a simple clean-up problem took on a more sinister aspect.

On Wednesday about 3:45 a.m., someone apparently tossed a match into a pile of refuse, igniting a potentially dangerous fire. The act was repeated Friday and the resulting flames scorched the rear of two stores, broke the stock window of one and, only by a stroke of luck, failed to result in a costly fire in Plymouth's central business district.

Presently, the city's Superintendent of Public Works, Joseph Bida, has a large, portable, metal trash container on order for trial. The container could be situated in a central location at the lot, would be large enough to accommodate refuse from all stores and could be emptied easily and quickly.

It would eliminate the probability of a fire at the rear of one of the stores.

The Plymouth Mail thinks merchants surrounding the city's central parking lot should bend over backwards to help secure trash disposal equipment of this type. They should, if necessary, be willing to bear a portion of the cost themselves.

Only fast, competent work by the Plymouth Fire Department prevented tragedy last week. We want to see any chance for that tragedy removed — once and for all.

Karl Starkweather Talks About the Late Ernie Roe

The following is a digest of a conversation held between Karl Starkweather and the now late Ernest Roe at the Mayflower Hotel on Friday, February 1, 1963. With this talk additional facts about the Plymouth of an earlier day, as well as about the personal lives of both Roe and Starkweather, are now brought to light. This entire conversation had been re-nacted before members of the Plymouth Historical Society on Thursday evening, February 14th, of that same year.

During this re-enactment, while Starkweather had acted the part of himself, Frank Henderson assumed the part of Mr. Roe. It seems that Mr. Roe had not cared to act out his own part himself, nor even to attend the meetings. He was otherwise co-operative, however, except that he had not wished to have the original conversation tape recorded. He was very willing to talk, but seemed to be shy at the thought of a microphone being around.

Starkweather says that he had planned to continue the talks — to meet Mr. Roe under similar circumstances once again — but somehow this didn't come about. He had wished next time to talk to Mr. Roe about the old City Hall, about the hotels and the merchants in Plymouth of 75 years ago, as well as about other things. All this of course, is no longer possible. The re-enactment is as follows:

Karl: Hello again, Mr. Roe. I'm glad to see you again. I should have called back before. How are you?
Ernie: Hello, Karl! (As we shake hands.) Oh! I'm still pretty good — how's yourself?
Karl: Can't complain at all. Mr. Roe, I only hope that I'll be able to reach that same time in life that you now enjoy. Give me another twenty years and I'll make it.
Ernie: You'll make it all right. That is, if you behave yourself.

Karl: Well, I'll keep on trying to make a stab at it, Mr. Roe. But see here what I've finally brought back to you — that picture of your wife that I borrowed off you some time back. I had my brother Davis make some good copies off it for me. He's still in the commercial photographer business in Detroit.

You see, your wife, while she was Edith Burch, was my very first school teacher. She was the sweetest and most kindly school teacher I ever had. My memory of her continues green and favorable after all these years. I've always wanted to have a good picture of her and now I have one.

I still remember that first day in school. It was in the fall of 1896 — no kindergarten had yet become established in Plymouth. I really should have started in school the year before, but my mother held me back until my next younger brother was old enough to start. She wanted both of us to start at the same time and in the same grade. I was to be seven on my next birthday.

As I recall it I was then a little on the timid side. So Miss Burch had me right up there alongside her at the desk for a while — to give me comfort and extend some preliminary briefings. After I left the first grade, and after she married, she always remembered me and I always remembered her. I was about 15, I believe, when she became ill and I never saw her again.

But speaking about that year 1896. It was a presidential campaign year — the first one that I remember. Excitement was everywhere. I knew nothing about it but I could sense it. It was Bryan and McKinley. Bryan and McKinley buttons or rings came with penny stick candy during that year and all the boys and girls were wearing either one or the other. And although I had no idea what it meant — if anything — all the McKinley kids would be racing around the school-yard shouting "Sixteen rats, sixteen cats, sixteen dirty Democrats." But I want to ask about a few more things to-day, Mr. Roe, if you don't mind.

Ernie: Not at all, Karl, go right ahead.
Karl: Well, first off then, Mr. Roe, what would be the date of your birth?
Ernie: I was born right here in Plymouth — on June 17, 1870.

Karl: Oh — June 17th — that's a historic date!
Ernie: Yes — Bunker Hill.
Karl: Sure! The Battle of Bunker Hill was fought on June 17, 1775. That was over a year before the Declaration of Independence was signed. There were about 3,000 trained British soldiers in that battle but only about half that number of poorly trained Americans. That's the time, you know, when orders were given the Americans — "Don't shoot until you can see the whites of their eyes." You see, the Yanks were short on ammunition. The Britishers were less in killed and wounded were about half their number and the American loss was just about the same proportion. But my great-great-grandfather was lucky.

Ernie: What do you mean — great-great-grandfather lucky?
Karl: Well, one of my great-great-grandfathers was John Starkweather. He fought in that battle and presumably fought hard yet came through, as I understand, without a scratch. He was a sergeant in Capt. Nathan Peter's company of Connecticut Volunteers. After that he married a girl by the name of Hannah Leonard. And she was born — this same date again — on June 17, 1756. They had eleven children. All eleven lived, all eleven married, all eleven had children who in turn all married and had children of their own.

One of John's and Hannah's children, the ninth one, was the William Starkweather, who with his wife and first-born, settled in Plymouth on March 11, 1825. And so, if John and Hannah had stopped having children after they had had eight, I wouldn't be here to-day to tell you about it. Incidentally, both John and Hannah lived many long years after their eleventh and final child was born. But that June 17th date in our family was still to continue. My own mother, who was Mary Starkweather, was born on June 17, 1866. And that was the same day, incidentally, when Gen. Lewis Cass, Territorial Governor of Michigan for eighteen years, died. Then on June 17, 1894, my sister Rose was born. And now you tell me that you were born on June 17th. So then, June 17th sets up quite a date in my book. Too bad, maybe, that I wasn't born on Christmas day. Well, enough of that for a while. Now, tell me, if you will, Mr. Roe, what is the first thing you ever remembered about Plymouth?
Ernie: Oh, that would have to be, I suppose, when the first passenger train rolled into Plymouth.
Karl: Golly, how could that be, Mr. Roe? The first passenger train to have into Plymouth, I believe, occurred on April 27, 1871. It came in from the south. You would be less than one year old at that time. How could you remember that far back?
Ernie: Oh, I remember it all right. But I was too young, of course, to know anything about what it was all about. It just seems to me that a lot of people were bunched up outside somewhere and were excited about something. My mother had wheeled me in a baby carriage to where they were. I remember that I hadn't learned to walk yet. Everybody seemed to be milling around or to be waiting for something. Finally a great monster thing came into view. I had no idea as to what it was. It made a lot of noise and it was frightening. But my mother was right there and I wasn't scared. Whatever it was it left a lasting impression on me. It must have been the first railroad train.
Karl: Yes, you could be right, Mr. Roe. And that first passenger train came in from Wayne. That north and south line got started a little earlier than the east and west line.

They were two entirely separate railroad companies then. But that first passenger train was not the beginning of the regular runs. There was an initial excursion from Wayne to Plymouth and return on that day. The train was decorated with bunting and there was a functioning brass band on board. The train was full of merry makers. I'm not certain, but presumably the train stopped a little short of the then newly installed crossing frog of the two roads here. Grandfather's then densely wooded plot was near at hand and I know that he had had a well dug and a platform erected for pic-nickers coming in by train to celebrate. I can just remember the ruins of the well. A lot more could be said about when the railroads came to Plymouth but what I want to ask you now, Mr. Roe, is — can you tell me when your family first came to Plymouth?

Ernie: Yes, I can, Karl. My grandfather, who was Steven Lynn, came to Plymouth from Lyons, N.Y., in the spring of 1835. My father, Charles A. Roe, was then six months old. He grew up and went to school in Plymouth and became a carpenter — and a good one too. He did all kinds of carpentry and cabinet work for people all round here. He was doing work for W. F. Markham before Markham ever started making air rifles. Markham was making wooden tanks and cisterns in a little shop behind his home on what is now Caster street in what they called North Village. It was there that he began making his first air guns.

Karl: And when did you start working for Mr. Markham, Mr. Roe?
Ernie: Oh, I was still a youngster. That was in 1887, when I was 17.
Karl: Then how long did you work for him, Mr. Roe?
Ernie: "Oh, for always — I never had any other job. I worked for the Markham Rifle Company for 44 years, right up to the end."
Karl: And when did you become superintendent of the plant?
Ernie: That was right after Frank Polley died. I had been a foreman in the assembly room but after Polley died I was made superintendent and that was always my spot after that.

Karl: As a small boy I remember that old wooden barreled gun Markham first made. As near as I now remember that wooden barrel was about 1 1/2 inches square. It then had the four corners chamfered off's o m e w h a t. Through the center of the barrel, of course, ran that long brass tube through which the BB shots were propelled. I always wanted one of those guns but I never got one. Everybody always said that it was a good gun.
Ernie: Yes, it was a good gun. It was a single shot and it was rugged and it had a lot of power behind it. Markham named it the Chicago Air Rifle. The reason he called it the Chicago was because a Chicago firm who early saw the gun said that they would give him a big order if he'd call it that. Thousands and thousands of them were made. Markham kept on making those wooden barrel-ed guns for a long time after the steel barreled ones had begun to be manufactured.

Karl: When did the Daisy Manufacturing Company buy out the Markham Air Rifle Company, Mr. Roe?
Ernie: That was in 1915. But it wasn't the Daisy company who purchased it. It was just Mr. Bennett and Mr. Hough as two individuals. These two Daisy men kept the plant running for a while and in just about the same way as always, but separate from the Daisy company. Then in 1931 the white works was absorbed by the Daisy itself, and moved over there, and that's when I got out — retired — after 44 years of continuous service. After Markham sold out to Bennett and Hough he went to California and there established an entirely new career in the building and real estate field.

Karl: Did you ever have any stock in the Markham company, Mr. Roe?
Ernie: Yes, I had some of the stock, and so did Frank Polley and the man he brought down from Saginaw to act as foreign sales manager. That was S. O. Hudd — Sam Hudd. Hudd was also office manager. But Hudd died in about 1915 — I think it was — and his job was then taken over by a Plymouth man, Evered Jolliffe. Evered also had some stock, as did Ed Lauffer, the treasurer. But Markham was always in control, of course, and owned most of the stock. Evered Jolliffe had come into the office in 1909 and so had had years of know-how by the time Mr. Hudd passed on. On occasion, Evered would also get out into the local sales field. Various men were always out and into their assigned territories to keep the orders coming in.
Karl: All this is very interesting to me, Mr. Roe, and you have told me things I never knew before. But all the men you have just mentioned were well known to me — I knew them all. I seem to be jumping around quite a bit but I guess that doesn't make much difference. I'd now like to get back to your father for just a minute. Did your father marry a Plymouth girl?
Ernie: Yes, he did. He married Caroline Newman. Her folks were farmers and they lived out on what is now Hagerly Highway somewhere.
Karl: Well, we could go on forever, I suppose, in going over all these old family names — that is, if we didn't drop from exhaustion in trying to do it. Every family has a story to tell, and the Newman family would have theirs, but there is something else that I especially want to know about to-day, and maybe you can tell me.

Ernie: What is that?
Karl: Well, as a small boy, I well remember that old and abandoned foundry building which stood on the present Ann Arbor Trail and just about across the street from where Saxton's garden store now is. The name — Shaffer Brothers Foundry — as I recall, was still on the building. I never knew — and never found out — just what they did there. Do you remember when that foundry was still in operation, Mr. Roe?
Ernie: Sure I do — very well. It was originally operated by A. A. Shaffer. That first "A" in his name stood for Axford but nobody ever called him that.
Karl: And where did this A. A. Shaffer live?
Ernie: Why, he lived right there alongside where the foundry was. The house still stands, that old square house right there on the west side of Penniman avenue — across from the park that is — only then it was called Sutton street. The Shaffer property faced partly on Sutton and partly on Ann Arbor but mostly on Ann Arbor.

Karl: Do you mean that house which used to be known as the Ed Lauffer house?
Ernie: Sure! Ed married Kate Shaffer. She was one of the daughters of A. A. Shaffer. A. A. had three sons and two daughters. There might have been even more — I don't remember. The three sons I remember were Alfred, George and one other. It was the sons Al and George that operated the foundry after the father retired or had passed on. After that the business was known as Shaffer Brothers.
Karl: How many employees did that foundry have, Mr. Roe?
Ernie: Oh, they never had many employees at any one time. Different molders were employed from time to time — never more than two or three at any one time. There was one molder I remember well — a man who seemed to be the mainstay — his name was Jack Brady.

Karl: What was the main product of the Shaffer foundry, Mr. Roe?
Ernie: Their main products, as near as I can remember, were plows and cultivators. There may have been some other items too. And they may have done some special work — some custom work on special orders.
Karl: Was that building erected for the purpose of a foundry, or had it been used for something else before that time?
Ernie: It was built for the purpose of a foundry. It was a one-story brick building — up close to the street. But there was a smaller and separate building, a little to one side and behind, and that was used for a machine shop. You see, after the rough castings had been produced in the foundry, they had to be machined — smoothed up. But they likely did some custom work there too — for people or farmers who brought things in to be mended or reformed.
Karl: Do you remember any other old buildings — now gone — Mr. Roe?
Ernie: Oh, yes. There was a building called Union Hall. It stood on the corner where Homer Jewell's barber shop had for so many years been located — where that new bank building is now going up. It was completely destroyed by fire in about the year 1876. A portion of the lower floor had been occupied by a photographer named Ed Marvin. Marvin's wife was a daughter of John Gunsolly. John Gunsolly had three sons — Ike, John and Burt. Another part of the lower floor of Union Hall served as a part time saloon.
Karl: What happened after the fire? Was the Hall ever rebuilt?
Ernie: Oh, no, it was never rebuilt. After the fire there was just a big hole in the ground for several years. Finally Peter Gayde bought the site and erected a good two-story brick building on it — the one that during this past year has just been torn down to make way for that new First Federal Savings building. The corner room in that Gayde Block had been occupied as a barber shop for sixty years.
Karl: Yes, I have personal knowledge of that myself, Mr. Roe. I first remember it as George Vandecar's barber shop. Homer Jewel may have learned his trade there but I don't know. I've never asked him. But I remember the place even before it was a barber shop — and of course you would too.

I remember it when it was occupied by Oliver's shoe store. That must have been around 1899 or 1900. Mr. Oliver, as I recall, was a son of the Methodist minister here at that time — a man with a long white beard. The store had just got in a special brand of mens' and boys' shoes. I had been in the store — they had been cracked up to me — and I wanted a pair of 'em very much. For several days I'd been trying to get my grandfather Starkweather to buy me a pair. The price was high — I believe around $3.00 per pair. Grandfather finally gave in, however, gave me the money and I went down there, all by my lonesome, and bought myself a pair.

They were the best pair of shoes that I'd ever had but golly — how heavy they seemed to weigh on my feet! They seemed to weigh a ton. But I said not a word about that — I was proud of them. I soon got used to the heavier than usual weight. When I came home with the shoes my grandfather, though good natured, shook his head and said "That's a lot more money than I ever had paid for a pair of shoes for me when I was your age, Karl." I was about ten.

Well, there could be a lot more things we could talk about. Mr. Roe, but I don't want to overdo my part of it nor to tire you out. If I've already done that, I'd like to ask about one more thing. I'd like to ask you if you remember anything about the big 1893 fire in downtown Plymouth?
Ernie: I'll say I remember it. I worked all night on that bucket brigade trying to put it out. Practically all of the downtown business district was destroyed. We finally did save the hotel. The situation looked so bad that word was sent to the Detroit Fire Department to come help us. They sent fire fighting apparatus out on a railroad flat car and then pumped water from the creek then flowing behind the stores. That helped in the saving of the hotel but they didn't get here in time to help much otherwise. I was asleep in bed when the fire started but soon the whole town was awake. While the bucket brigade was scooping up water in pails from the creek to fight the fire other men were doing everything they could to carry merchandise from the doomed buildings into the park across the road. The park was full of stuff which had been salvaged from the stores. Unfortunately, the Plymouth Waterworks System had not then been quite completed. The fire hydrants were all in and pipe lines laid but outside of town, somewhere between the village and that water farm, there was a small section of pipe which had not yet been connected. Whatever started that fire, Mr. Roe? Well, no one ever knew for sure. But we had a good suspicion. George Vandecar then had a barbershop at about where the Dodge drug store now is. In the basement under the shop a man was keeping a dog that had just had some pups. It was suspected that the owner of the dog had gone there after hours — late at night — to look after the mother and her pups. There were no electric lights then — only kerosene lamps and lanterns. It was presumed that this man could have been careless with his matches. He might have even tried to find his way around the basement with lighted matches. But it seems that the guy would never admit anything and there was never any definite proof that the cause rested with him.

Karl: Well, thanks, Mr. Roe, for everything that you have told me. I now know a few things about old Plymouth that I never knew before. As for Plymouth's 1893 big downtown fire, I presume you are well aware that this was the second time that the business section had been wiped out by fire. The first time was in May of 1856, when your father was 21. He was likely around at that time, the same as you were in '93. And — you'll soon be 93 yourself. Good luck now until I can see you again. In only seven more years you will be 100 while I'll only be 80. I hope that we both hold out.
Ernie: Good bye, Karl. We've had a nice time. Come back again.
Karl: I will.
