TWO PRIME INDUSTRIAL locations are being developed by Jack Cook on Mill St. between Ann Arbor Road and Ann Arbor Trail, in Plymouth Township. Cook's buildings are up for rent — one has 16,000 square feet, the other 32,000 square feet. Both will be done in the near future, one in about four weeks, the other in about eight. Cook, who is the president of National Concrete Products on Mill, is building the two industrial structures with private capital; he undertook a similar project when he built the plant presently occupied by Welduction, immediately adjacent to these two buildings. Here Cook, and Township Supervisor Jack McEwen look over the new building.

DR. BRADNER REPORTS:

College views year's growth

Dr. Eric Bradner, president of this area's fledgling Schoolcraft College, is a quick, eager and friendly man. He apparently views his ever-increasing problems with calm; he's a man who looks you directly in the eye, and answers your questions with some of his own.

Kiwanians mix pancakes for Festival

By JOHN HERB
Fall Festival Publicity Chairman

Take 300 lbs. of flour, 48 gallons of syrup, 25 lbs. of butter and 475 lbs. of sausage — mix well, add 90 hard-working Kiwanians and you have a very tasty and successful pancake breakfast. That's what visitors will find at the Plymouth Fall Festival Saturday, Sept. 11.

Starting at 7 a.m. that day and continuing until 7 p.m., the Plymouth Kiwanis Club will be serving pancakes and sausage to a crowd of over 2000. As in past years, this event will be held in the Masonic Temple, adjacent to Kellogg Park, in downtown Plymouth.

Over the years, the Plymouth Kiwanis Club has contributed much to the Plymouth Community. These contributions have been made possible by activities such as the pancake breakfast — a contribution coming from the efforts of Kiwanis members who will be flipping thousands of pancakes Saturday, Sept. 11.

In fact, Saturday is a day filled with activities for all ages. In the morning, while the pancakes fry in a never ending stream in the Masonic Temple, children will be parading their pets in Plymouth's central parking lot.

have rated the first year a success. August 30, the second year in the life of the College will begin.

"You can only build one college in a life time," Bradner commented recently. "If I can retire and say I built a college, I will be satisfied."

This is a deadly serious statement from Bradner. At the outset, local college-bound youths tagged the new Schoolcraft College, "Haggerty High" because of its location on Hagerty Road in Livonia.

BUT AFTER a year the name has faded from popularity. Schoolcraft sweat-shirts are worn with pride and more than one freshman thinking Schoolcraft College was a glorified high school has gone home with a 'D' on his report card.

Bradner of course has heard the 'Haggerty High' slur. "I heard the disrespectful attitude talked around. But too many kids came here and found they had to work, or get out."

Bradner said his biggest problem at the moment was "welding well qualified instructors into a faculty."

He recognizes that it takes more than the sheer acquirement of good, well-educated minds to make a college faculty.

Board says no, no, no to Jenkins on school money moves

The Plymouth Community School Board wrestled with finances Monday night as board member Robert Jenkins staged a fruitless one-man battle for a multi-purpose room on the new Lake Pointe elementary school.

The special meeting had been urged by Jenkins earlier in the month to review school finances.

The Board agreed to set next year's tax rate at 26.95 mills, levied across the District's $113,212,280 assessed valuation.

A month ago Jenkins hit at board plans for leaving the $90,000 multi-purpose room out of elementary school No. 7, proposed for Lake Pointe. At that time he had called for the dropping of the room a "reduction of our educational services."

SUPERINTENDENT of Schools Russell Isbister had also commented on the matter, and pointed out that the indoor physical education had been definitely curtailed.

Monday, Jenkins proposed several budgetary shuffles and a moderate one-mill tax boost to pay for the deficit in school building funds. All his proposals died for a lack of a second.

Jenkins has been outspoken in his criticism of the Board's financing policies. Jenkins said at one point in the meeting: "We are in trouble. The days when we are not in trouble are long past."

Here's a rundown on Jenkins' motions, which came after a lengthy review of Board plans for 1966 and 1967: "There is still no multi-purpose room," Jenkins said, "I'm concerned with stage building; we don't have the use of the schools, and we suffer in increased costs. This is a decrease; I'd like to see us keep pace with planning."

Gerald Fischer, board president, said, "Well, our obligation is to set millage at 26.95."

"Our moral obligation is to provide educational facilities. We need to be educational-minded more than finance-minded," Jenkins replied.

At this point Jenkins moved a one-mill tax boost to "provide for complete and total educational service." The motion died, with no second.

Tom Foley seeks Circuit judgeship

One Plymouth lawyer, Thomas J. Foley, is in the Sept. 14 primary race for the four circuit court judgeships in the Third Judicial District.

Foley is one of 46 who have filed for the primary, which will narrow the field to eight. The Nov. 2 election will cut the field to four, the number needed to fill the newly created posts. Foley resides with his wife and son at 11785 Priscilla Lane.

The 44-year-old lawyer has thus far waged a vigorous campaign; his petitions were signed by over 6,000 people, three times the requirement. Commenting on his candidacy last week, Foley said: "I think that it is important that they (Plymouthites) have a person who can represent out-county interests, someone familiar with out-county problems."

FOLEY has been a practicing attorney for 15 years. He spent six years as a Wayne County Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, under then Chief Assistant Prosecutor Ralph Garber. Garber is a Township trustee.

"I started with the prosecutor. For two years I tried all the State Supreme Court cases Wayne County had. Literally speaking I was in the Supreme Court all the time. This is really where I got my foundation for practice."

Days in the prosecutor's office were hectic, Foley recalls.

"I actually had days with four juries out at one time." Foley has compiled a good record as an attorney; for example, he's been on both sides of the fence in murder cases, and hasn't lost either way.

New courses, building for industrial arts

Plymouth High School's new $300,000 industrial arts building will be put to use for the first time next week. It will end years of using cramped facilities for welding and drafting.

And, two important additions have been included in the curriculum by the construction of the new building — auto mechanics and electronics.

Michael Kohut, long-time air line mechanic who now holds both a B.S. and a Masters in Industrial Arts from Eastern Michigan University, will teach the auto course.

His enthusiasm for the new class is contagious.

"I think they can leave here with a salable skill... very qualified and I think they can get a job," Kohut said in a recent interview.

"Many of the students will come in here with the idea this is a hot rod shop. We've got to knock this out of their heads right away."

THE CLASS will be very practical and business like. Students will be required to work under strict supervision, with work orders and formal schedules.

Kohut said his class will stress fundamental auto maintenance, both theory and practice.

"We'll spend a lot of time on electronics. Most mechanics are very weak in instruments. It doesn't take much to pick up a ratchet and take off a few nuts and bolts."

Kohut brings several years experience as a power plant mechanic for Eastern Airlines to his job. He has attended General Motors training center in engine tune-up, and the Delco-Remy school. In WW II and Korea he was a combat photographer.

Included in the course will be instruction in ignitions, test equipment, wheel balancing, minor welding techniques, brakes, valves, fuel systems — even air conditioning.

NEW TO PHS this year is a course in auto mechanics, taught by Michael Kohut. Here he examines an engine from the Ford Motor Company donated for use by the class; the new course will be taught in the soon-to-open industrial arts building, built by the Burger Construction Company, of Plymouth.

New car, TV stolen from Calhoun Ford

Almost $900 worth of equipment and a '65 Ford Mustang belonging to a customer were taken from the Leo Calhoun Ford agency on Main St. sometime Tuesday morning, Aug. 31.

According to Assistant Police Chief Loren Johnson, the thieves pried the lock to the parts room and forced their way in. However, he said, the building itself was locked and there were no signs of forced entry and no fingerprints. Whoever entered the building, he said, must have had a key.

Stolen from the parts room were a Philco portable TV, a calculator, a typewriter and a hand grinder. The thief also helped himself to a customer's burgundy Mustang.

AT FORUM:

Commission to air plans for City

The popular Businessmen's Forum, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will begin a new season of programs when they hear from City fathers on "Future Plans for the City of Plymouth."

The meeting is scheduled for noon Thursday, Sept. 2.

The subject will be discussed by new City Manager Richard D. Blodgett, Mayor James Houk, Public Safety Director Kenneth Fisher and several City commissioners.

The group will form a panel, and will discuss the City's present urban renewal program, its recently proposed one, the police department, and senior citizens' housing.

They will be open to questions from the floor.

The meetings have been moved from Hillside Inn to the Mayflower Hotel, the Miles Standish Room.

It's work . . . it's fun . . . it's wet . . . for YMCA youths

(Editor's note: Several YMCA youths have been taking part in a summer camping and work program under the direction of two adults, Tom Workman, and Tony Monte, (both of whom work for the Plymouth Schools), and Dale Livingston, a college student. Here, in their own words, is what the boys did.)

The group traveled by bus which was donated to them earlier in the year. Upon arrival in camp they were divided into two groups. Dale Livingston was assigned to Group 1 and Tony Monte was in charge of Group 2.

Group 1 left Roscommon by the South Branch River and from there they paddled down to the AuSable River which took most of the day. Late in the afternoon they found a suitable camp site and pulled the canoes to shore. This was a perfect spot because it was a high sandy hill, sheltered by pine trees and covered with grass.

All the boys got their gear out of the boats, pitched tents and started gathering wood. All the wet articles were hung on low branches of the trees to dry out.

Dale Livingston was the cook and he appointed an assistant at each meal. They all enjoyed dinner and, after swapping stories around the camp fire, retired early, about 10 p.m.

At 6:30 a.m. the next morning two boys who had been previously appointed, gathered fire wood and started the fire which felt good because it had been cool during the night and there was a heavy dew on the ground. At 7 a.m. the rest of the campers arose and rolled up their sleeping bags and took care of all their personal gear. They washed up in the river, packed the canoes and were ready for a hearty breakfast of pancakes and bacon.

After cleaning up the camp site they started paddling down river again and reached McMaster's Bridge where there is a store. They went shopping and waited for Mr. Workman. When he did not show up they left a note on the bridge and continued down stream to the next bridge, ate lunch there and met Mr. Workman at this spot.

They were given their food and supplies for the second day.

It was such a beautiful night and the stars were shining so brightly that they decided to sleep on the ground and did not set up their tents.

About three hours later, they were awakened by a crack of thunder and they all scurried for the large shelter nearby. One group of campers had already found protection there and lit a large campfire in the fire place so that it was warm and dry in spite of the heavy rain.

The next morning they loaded the canoes after breakfast and went down river to the Mio Dam.

The wind was blowing hard and there were white caps on the lake so the boys took their ponchos and made sails and they coasted across to the dam.

They had to portage around the dam and then to McKinley Bridge, down stream. The puller in at this bridge and met Mr. Workman.

They packed their gear into the bus and placed the canoes on the carrier, and were driven to Mr. Wood's farm to spend the next three days working. They cut the tops out of white pines because they were diseased. They also cut and trimmed the sides of the road wandering up to the farm.

At night they listened to ghost stories around the campfire and studied the constellations.

Sunday proved to be a rainy day and though they started to work several times, the down pour was so heavy that they were not able to accomplish much outside. They had a good breakfast and about 1:30 Mr.

Wood invited all the boys in for a chicken dinner in the large farm house.

They had chicken, corn on the cob, fresh apple sauce with ginger bread and home-made ice cream which the Wood's had churned in their old-fashioned ice cream freezer.

After this king's feast, the boys went back to the bunk house and Mr. Workman told them stories of the Chippewa Indians who once lived and thrived in the same woods where the boys were staying.

Report from YMCA Group 2, Tony Monte in charge:

The first two and a half days were spent clearing brush, dead, wind blown trees and stacking the wood. The boys worked all day and ate hearty meals. Each camp unit was self-sufficient and did cooking and took care of its own gear. The boys were assigned two to a tent.

They learned to help one another and to work well together. They were instructed in proper use of ax and how to work with it, with careful supervision. After dinner they played football to practice for the refereed game on Sunday.

They ate three good meals a day with fresh milk and a balanced diet. They stressed camp cleanliness.

There were no complaints about doing dishes and chores. All pitched in and got the work done.

Although they had beautiful weather to do their work, it rained for the rest of the time while they were canoeing down the river.

They did not gripe about this. Eric Morton was Mr. Monte's right hand man and his brother, Steve Morton, kept everyone laughing no matter how wet it was or how miserable. He really kept their spirits up.

The distance traveled on this trip down the river was about 90 miles and they really roughed it.

Although they had bad weather, they had the satisfaction of beating the other team in football, 18-6.

The boys were counseled in learning how to develop leadership and given special attention; all took their responsibility and carried it out. One boy lost at a game and did dishes for four days straight without any complaints.

It was a first canoe trip for some of the boys and it taught them how to care for themselves, to be independent, and although no one learned on the other, they did help each other when needed.

No one got sick and they were proud of the fact that they had earned their camping trip by working.

The only mishap was caused by a bee stinging one of the leaders.

WHITE WATER brings a tipped over canoe, but great fun for YMCA boys on their journeys north in Michigan. This snapshot was taken at an outing earlier in the year

NEW HEAD FOOTBALL COACH John McFall ran his team through opening day drills Monday, and introduced two new assistant coaches, Pat Montagano (left) and Frank Fisher. Fisher will be a JV coach under Paul Cummings, and Pat Montagano will coach the ends for McFall. The season opens at Northville, Sept. 17.

Dick Simmons paces Flat Rock Figure 8 competition

Joy Fair of Pontiac and Dick Simmons of Plymouth, setting the pace in late model and Figure 8 competition at Flat Rock Speedway this season, return Saturday night to take on a growing number of challengers.

Both boosted their point advantages recently by chalking up victory in their respective feature events.

Fair took advantage of a spinout by Danny Byrd to grab the lead and win while Byrd watched from his stalled car in the infield.

Simmons, defending Figure 8 champion, "owns" the course so far, as other drivers are concerned. He has chalked up 10 victories so far this season.

More and more new cars and new drivers appear each week to make competition even keener but the top drivers manage to elude them.

Promoter John Marcum staged his annual Disc Jockey Race recently. It featured platter spinners from radio stations in the Greater Detroit area and the DJ's drove Figure 8 cars on the regular quarter-mile course.

A 25-lap race for late model drivers and a 15-lap race on the Figure 8 course are regular features on the program. Trials begin at 7:30, the first event at 8:30 p.m.

Closed lot parking solution temporary

Temporary steps toward easing downtown parking snags were taken last week by the Plymouth City Commission; but that's all they were — temporary.

Someone once said that government can never be creative. But the temporary step suggested by Commissioner George Hudson showed signs of creativity.

The snags in the central parking lot (behind Kresge's) have been caused by all day parkers. Customers, on busy shopping days, have been forced to park elsewhere in the City's hodge-podge of parking lots.

Employees fill the lot early in the morning. As many as 90 cars have been counted in the lot before 9 a.m. Employers report only moderate success in getting employees to park in other lots.

Hudson's suggestion: Close the lot from 7 to 9 a.m. when employees fill it up. The idea caught the fancy of some Commissioners, at least as a quick way of finding out if there is enough room for downtown Plymouth's almost 1,000 strong work-force.

The lot would be ostensibly closed for cleaning. Work-bound employees would be forced to park in other lots, most of them within one or two blocks walking distance. Employees will be disadvantaged to some extent by not being able to park at the back door of their work.

The closing of the lot will be tried on a temporary basis, mostly to see if there is room for the cars elsewhere. Maps with available lots will be passed out to all employees affected, indicating where to park.

Commissioner James McKeon didn't like the idea, and apparently felt the matter could be handled in a more business-like manner. "We're better than that," he commented.

He probably meant that a survey by the City's management of all available parking, and the number of parkers would bring the same results, but would take longer.

But then that would have been uncreative, and government has so little chance for this kind of maneuver.

Despite Hudson's coup d'etat, something more than a shuffling of downtown parkers is needed:

- (1) The City should undertake a study of parking revenue surces. Most municipalities reach a point where downtown parking must be paid for by the shopper and the worker. Shopping center parking is paid for by the center organization, and the merchants involved. There is no such thing as free parking.
- (2) The idea of a gate and a parking ticket is sound. If the merchants so wish, they can reimburse the shopper; many other merchants in other cities have done it.
- (3) Inequities have existed for some time in downtown parking, and they should be considered. A handful of merchants have provided parking on their own for their employees and their customers; in addition they have contributed to the central parking lot.
- (4) The idea of a ramp for the central lot, and more parking lots should not be considered until a revenue source has been determined, and put into effect.
- (5) Finally, a current survey of parking and parkers should be undertaken under the auspices of the City government.

America's preoccupation with sophisticated nuances of public relations becomes agonizingly apparent when one opens the mail in a newspaper office.

There are "news releases," good and bad, from every conceivable occupational segment — all more or less competently aimed at improving that wispy, intangible wraith-like thing called "image."

They come from such diverse groups as religious institutions and the distilled spirits industry, doctors, lawyers and dentists and labor organizations.

From booze to baptism, professional image polishing to pipe wrenches, they all seek one thing:

Free publicity.

It is particularly enlightening to observe a given group's reaction when, for one reason or another, they have received what may be construed as "bad press."

Here is a current case in point.

For those of you who have been on group tours of Siberia during the past week or two, let us say — for the sake of background — that Wayne County Sheriff Peter L. Buback has been having his share of minor problems.

If the sheriff himself has suffered no loss of prestige, the atmosphere surrounding the department as a whole has been doing a bit less than coming up roses, and sunshine and flowers and stuff like that.

It has almost been downright messy.

Now, given a nasty situation, what better way to shine up the ol' image than with overtones of things sacred? The recipe follows:

Take a happy priest in a grim jail room. Add transparent paper, "stained glass" windows, carpeting and an altar. Mix well with sermons, hymns, masses and The Salvation Army. When well done, frost with the sheriff and his wife.

Presto! The ecumenical glitter and ecclesiastical dazzle of the resulting press release may well knock your eyes out.

"Fr. Paul J. Hickey," the release begins, "is a very happy man with his 'new' chapel in the Wayne County Jail.

"Each Sunday for years the priest . . . performed the ritual in a grim room at the jail."

In contrast, however, to the former grimness of the jail's old facilities, the news story paints this angelic picture:

" . . . The chapel has been completely renovated. Transparent paper 'stained glass' windows were pasted on the panes. Interested groups . . . donated carpeting and an imposing altar. The room," the release concludes triumphantly, "now looks church-like."

Not only that, the whole darned jail must seem church-like, since the news story points out:

"The inmates hear sermons and religious songs seven days and seven nights a week, mostly from jail corridors. The Salvation Army is among the many groups offering spiritual programs."

And the whole thing is wrapped up in a poignant final paragraph which includes a burst of eloquence from the sheriff himself.

"Sheriff Peter L. Buback and his wife found three old fruit crates being used for an altar in the Chapel of the Wayne County Jail when Mr. Buback first became sheriff. Mr. and Mrs. Buback and their friends have been working for several months to create this new chapel. "A handsome chapel, complete with pews, now offers an appealing and church-like place for County Jail prisoners to worship and attend Mass," said the Sheriff."

I'm overwhelmed.

How refreshing it is to learn that the department is vitally concerned with the spiritual welfare of prisoners, if not staff members.

And how pleasant to learn that the orange crates have given way to more appropriate spiritual furniture.

Fix-up activities in the Wayne County Sheriff's Department apparently extend well beyond the temporal realm of traffic violations.

Shall we pray?

No pay, but good return

A nearby institution is seeking volunteers for their operations.

Plymouth State Home, a hospital for mentally retarded children, will radically expand its facilities in the next six months. Presently about 300 volunteers serve at the hospital but 900 will be needed in six to eight months.

These people must come from this area if the hospital is to do an effective job.

If you expect to spend time socializing and arranging parties, don't apply. A volunteer is trained in the general mental retardation picture, in the staff and buildings at the Home and in hospital procedures. They are expected to be neat, on time, in uniform, professional and pleasant . . . in short, it's a job — with no pay, at least in dollars.

In addition to normal requirements, others are added to the volunteer job — supreme patience and understanding. The mentally retarded child needs the same kind of firm and friendly treatment any child needs.

There are, however, special considerations. Mental retardation is not an illness or a disease, but an impairment of the learning process. Thus, work with a child of slow intellect takes a person long on patience.

Those seeking the kinds of rewards offered can expect to work in patient care, or therapy areas.

A recruitment coffee hour will be held on Sept. 14 at the home.

Nothing is sadder than a child that can never live a full life, and nothing can be more rewarding than giving of yourself to help such a person.

Do it if you can. It brings more returns than bridge, and more self respect than PTA teas.

Campaign to explain C of C's vital role

The Plymouth Chamber of Commerce is planning a series of advertisements and newspaper releases to explain the role of the Chamber in the community.

The Chamber works with civic organizations and service clubs. They also participate in Symphony, Junior Chamber of Commerce and Fall Festival activities.

A Change In View

There's nothing like a new perspective to change your attitude toward life. When Junior is bored, he simply stands on his head for a new slant at things. The floor flips to the ceiling, with tables and chairs hanging from it, and people walk upside-down. At least that's the way it looks to him. It is a good idea to gain a different perspective—to step back and get a new slant on things around you. But you don't have to stand on your head to do it. Instead identify yourself with a church. Take your family and go regularly to worship. You will find a new perspective. Genuine values will keep their importance; unimportant things will diminish. Today's life will be happier; tomorrow's full of hope. Nothing is upside-down, but everything claims its rightful place when you view life with the faith of a Christian.

School board says no

ating to the building and site sinking fund; that is, transfer tax power from the operation of the schools to the building fund millages.

Mrs. Esther Hulsing asked if the Board could afford it. Fischer replied: "Not in my view. It's dangerous in view of the requirements for next year. I would prefer to stick with the basic plan."

"That doesn't give us a multi-purpose room," Jenkins said.

"Nope," Fischer replied. Melvin Blunk, Superintendent in charge of school business, felt the shuffle would mean the Board couldn't live within its present budget. Jenkins continued his push for funds for the multi-purpose room:

"It's not where the $100,000 goes as far as I'm concerned, four classrooms could go. You just don't build a house without a kitchen." Continuing,

"THE AREA is fast-growing and I don't think it should be penalized because it's fast-growing."

Mrs. Hulsing noted that other schools had gone through it in Plymouth.

"I don't like it either. I'm not happy we're not building a complete building," she said.

"There are means available to us," Jenkins replied. "There is no opportunity for us on elementary school No. 7 in time for fall, 1966, beyond tonight. I'm sorry about this; there are ways open to us; then all of a sudden we should get so concerned about plans."

"I don't know what you mean about all of a sudden," Fischer said. "I've been on the school board for five years, and we've been planning all along. The community school district can go down hill real fast if we don't have the confidence of the people. I'm interested in keeping that confidence."

Fischer then said he was open to board action; Robert Soth commented: "I'm happy with the way it's presented here, Gerry."

"I see no reason to jockey figures," was Carl Schultze's comment. At this point Jenkins moved a .9 mill shuffle from operating to the operating to the building and site fund. His motion died for a lack of a second.

"Is the president allowed to make a motion?" Fischer asked, indicating some displeasure. He was told "no" by Russell Isbister.

"What do you want me to move, Gerry?", Soth asked. The Board acted upon the 26.95 millage, agreed to move building funds allotted to boiler rehabilitation to operating, and agreed to re-open the study of finances after bids on the present projects are in, and enrollments are determined.

The Board discussed ways of raising funds for the multi-purpose room, including a .25 shuffle of millage, and installment payment on school sites.

The Board reviewed tax limitations open to them, which ranged from a 35 decrease to a raise up to 31.5 mills.

Budgets were examined closely, and building projects, their priority as yet not established, were gone over. They include: Elementary school No. 8 ($615,000), six new rooms at the high school ($180,000), Allen kindergarten ($29,730), Gallimore addition ($135,000) and Bird ($132,000).

OTHER financial matters considered:

The extremely high construction market, which, for example, pushed the cost of the multi-purpose room under discussion from $90,000 to $115,000 in three months. Costs are up in some case 35% from a year and a half ago. The 1964 five-year building plans which has been accelerated for completion in 1967.

Club, the pet show will attract every conceivable type of pet. And, after the last pancake has been eaten, Kellogg Park will echo to the sound of the caller as the people enjoy an old fashioned square dance beginning at 8 p.m.

To take care of the appetites created by square dancing, the Junior Chamber of Commerce will operate a chuck wagon featuring 1/4 lb. charcoal broiled hamburgers.

KNOWN IN the Plymouth Community as the "Dynamic JayCees," this organization has received national recognition for their aggressive contributions to the community.

In addition to the chuck wagon, the JayCees will also serve a charcoal broiled rib dinner starting at 7:30 p.m. This will be a pre-sale affair and limited to 200. Members of the JayCees should be contacted for tickets.

Opening Thursday evening, Sept. 9, and running through Sunday, Sept. 12, this year's festival will include many unusual and interesting activities. Among these will be an "Old Fashioned Garden" Show put on by the Plymouth Branch of the National Farm & Garden Club.

Featuring a wide array of floral arrangements, the show will be held in the Leo Calhoun Ford Agency in Plymouth. A one-day affair, the show will be open Sunday, Sept. 12 from 12 noon to 8 p.m.

noted some of the problems the College faces.

"The College was born in 1964 when all elements—faculty, students, administration and facilities—came together for the first time. Those who witnessed the birth of this institution experienced a real thrill. For those of us who were part of the process it was a never to be forgotten experience."

lot of lab work," Kohut reported.

Kohut has spent several weeks gathering equipment for the new shop which will also include a section for sophomores and juniors, called power mechanics.

All the auto dealers in the area have agreed to donate engines for the shop; they will have both live and dead engines to use. Kohut indicated he needed old motors, starters, generators, lawn mowers—anything to work with in his class.

The beginning class in auto mechanics will involve fundamentals and reading specifications; the more advanced class will work with live engines a great deal.

Kohut's business-like approach will make the class valuable, but not too easy for the student. Kohut indicates he has no intention of making the course a loaf-time class.

Other additions to the shop included new welding facilities for Keith Baughman's welding classes, an electronics room where several thousands of dollars have been spent for new equipment, and two new drawing rooms. The machine and wood shops remain in the High School annex.

Cost of the new structure breaks down this way: Contractor's contract, plus two change orders: $263,484.40 Architect's fee: 13,175.00 Contingency: 5,000.00 Furnishings: 15,000.00 Total cost to school $296,659.40

LEECHES FOR SALE

At one time, you could buy jars of leeches at most pharmacies. That was in the days when bleeding was considered a cure for many ailments. And leeches are good bloodletters! How lucky we are to be living in this age of modern medications, with effective—and pleasant—treatments for infections and other illnesses. Remember, reliable medications are important to you—they may mean the difference between pain and comfort . . . between life and death. So, when you are ill, see your physician first. Jamming anything has long been a craze of America's youth, from telephone booths to dorm rooms. Last week the fever hit 17 Plymouth youths as they crammed into a small four-door Simca, belonging to Bernie Dominick. The crammers felt they could get a couple of more in, but screams from inside made them pile out. It was a final summer fling for the youths who gathered in Kellogg Park across from the Penn Theater Friday. A passerby watched, then counted as the car cracked and groaned, and 17 Bermuda-clad teenagers tumbled out. Plymouth teachers — man your battle stations.

Africa and me Gabon - vast, unpopulated country

by Mary Stevens 453-0950

The Salem, Federated Church of Salem held their monthly meeting of the Ladies Aid with 10 ladies present. The next meeting of the Ladies Aid will be held the fourth Thursday of September. The pot-luck luncheon will be the first for their pastor and wife. All ladies are urged to attend and give them a good welcome.

The family of Don Kreeger has moved to Loveland, Colorado. New owners of the Kreeger home are Mr. and Mrs. Leys and their three boys.

Mrs. Helen Lazor held the Taps Club meeting at her house last Tuesday. Refreshments were served.

At the all Morgan horse show held at Sabine Western Earehart won 1st and 2nd in horsemanship for 13 and under and took third in Western Pleasure and third in Western Stock division. Eddie Earehart, riding Mr. Curtis Broadwall Revell, won the Junior Saddle class and took second in Combination Class. Carrie Earehart placed second in Leal Line Class and Carl Earehart took sixth in the same class. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Earehart of Chubb Rd.

For five days we hitchhiked a total of 500 miles through Gabon. As we traveled through the country one of the most surprising observations was the small number of people we saw. Villages and even farms were few and widely scattered.

Gabon covers an area of 110,000 square miles. But there are only 550,000 people in the country. Thus there is an average of only five people per square mile.

There were two characteristics among the people we did see which differed from the people we saw in other countries.

First, many of the women smoked small clay pipes. It didn't seem to make any difference if they were walking outside their houses, the pipes were with them all the time.

THE OTHER thing was the most common heavy loads are carried on the head. But in Gabon the women had large baskets strapped to their backs in which they carry extremely heavy loads, such as wood or produce.

The low density of population over such a large country meant that finding transportation was a difficult task. We often sat beside the road for hours at a time hoping that the first vehicle which passed would pick us up.

The road we took from the central part of the country northward to the Cameroonian border was narrow and full of curves, because it passed through an extremely mountainous area.

Modern road building equipment was at work along one stretch of the road, constructing a beautiful road. Unfortunately this section of road was short.

The combination of mountains and dense tropical rain forest, however, provided spectacular scenic views along the entire route.

The boys who played little league baseball all summer and are known as the Salem Champs are going to be riding on a float in the Kiwanis Club Labor Day parade. They have won like some help from the families in making the years in India.

Volunteers there. A total of 30 such schools have been built by volunteers over the past three years in the northern and southern sections of the country.

ONE NIGHT in Gabon we slept a short distance from the equator. The house was in a region of tropical rain forest, but it was anything but hot and steaming while we were there. We curled up under blankets like hibernating bears in an effort to keep warm.

Another evening we came across a small hotel which offered hot showers. After driving all day and seeing only a few people this was a startling discovery.

Our stay in Gabon was filled with many other interesting experiences. But the peace and prosperity of Libreville, seeing the work done by Dr. Schweitzer at Lambarene, and the scenery and people of the country as a whole stand out as the most enjoyable aspects of our travels.

Tourists have not yet discovered the riches and beauty of this country. But they are there in abundance for anyone who happens to stumble upon them as we did.

From Washington

America on the moon by 1970-Project Apollo

By Congressman Weston E. Vivian

In addition to his work on general legislation before the Congress, and his work on behalf of particular concerns of his District and his constituents, every Congressman serves on at least one Committee of the House of Representatives. In my own case, I was pleased to have been elected to the Science and Astronautics Committee.

This assignment matches my own background. Until January of this year, I had been Vice President of Conduccion Corporation, an electronics research and development company based in Ann Arbor. On being elected to the Science Committee, I severed all relations with the company.

The Science Committee has as its main tasks overseeing the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the National Science Foundation. I should like to describe for you some of the long-range planning of NASA in the course of my next two reports from Washington.

To probe the unknown vastness that surrounds our planet, we already have lofted many instrumented satellites and space probes, of increasing sophistication and complexity.

OUR COUNTRY'S manned space efforts began with Project Mercury, in which we developed the spacecraft and hardware necessary to support one man in a capsule orbiting the earth.

We are now well into Project Gemini, perfecting two-man space flight, increasing the lengths of missions, and learning to maneuver in space. Most recently, during the Gemini 4 flight, you remember that Major Edward White demonstrated the ability of man to maneuver outside the spacecraft itself.

In the middle of August, Gemini 5 will further test our capabilities, with two men staying in orbit for eight days. During this time experiments will be conducted with rendezvous and docking techniques — skills that must be learned if we are to make a successful lunar landing.

The focal point of manned space flight in this decade is Project Apollo. Project Apollo means development by 1970 of a powerful launch vehicle that can send a three-man spacecraft beyond the earth's

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Werner and sons, Bruce and Carl, have moved from their home on McKinley St. to their new home in Grosse Pointe.

Friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph George gathered for dinner at the Elks' Club, followed by cocktails at their home on Evergreen Saturday evening.

Home from their Wisconsin vacation are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sarris of Beech Ct. and children, Robin, Terry, and John. The Sarris' family visited Mr. Sarris' mother in Antigo and also spent some time in Madison, Wis. and at the Wisconsin Dells.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dobel of Carol Street have returned from an Eastern vacation last Friday evening.

More returning vacationers are Mr. and Mrs. William Frank and children, Jimmy, Nan, and Bob of Linden St.

The Franks' month-long trip included Colorado Springs and Estes Park, Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leveque of Sault St. Marie, Canada, and their daughter, Pat, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Berge Mathison of Linden St. last week at their Portage Lake cottage. A "Pilot Boat Party" set the scene for the Mathisons to introduce their guests to Plymouth neighbors last Friday evening.

Who killed the art of womanhood?

Mike Ross

It all started in 1880 when Queen Elizabeth I stepped across Sir Walter Raleigh's mud-soaked cloak and into the waiting carriage. The woman never knew the full dimension of what they started but since that moment social practices of men toward women have been drastically altered. Nothing else the old queen did left an irrefragable mark, but only now, nearly four hundred years later, is beginning to be carefully scrutinized, questioned, and changed.

Before this time men were not so concerned with women's feelings or desires. Females were considered dead weights and were thought to belong in seclusion like the insane and crippled. But Elizabeth was on Britain's throne and she was determined not to live out her life as a deaf mute.

Great balls and feasts brought women into society all over Europe and social habits and patterns were established for them. Since they were presumed frail, gentle, and not too bright they had to be watched and cared for by the men folk. Hence, the years were born.

AS THE YEARS trudged on women became more a part of the man's world, but it was still unapproachably a man's world. Attitudes went from one extreme to the other, one letting women in business, the other not even permitting them to sell embroidered shirts. Wars came and wars passed and with each successive one, more and more women were pushed into the world until they no longer existed as frightened rabbits. It had been established that they were strong hard workers with stamina, drive and fire. The European and American civil wars had more than proved this.

But still, the idea of chivalry, with its base as the superiority of the male mind, still persisted. The base may have changed by 1885 but the rules hadn't. Men didn't swear in front of ladies, they opened doors for them, and tipped their hats and such.

They didn't "boast" women and business. Little did men know then that this talk hardly bored women; if anything, it intrigued them and there was a type of whisper campaign going on among them to boost some woman into finance, despite what men thought.

As the turn of the century approached, it became apparent that politics was the first target women would strike and strike they did. With all the force of a battering ram, the suffragette fever swept across Europe and into the hearts of American women. There were thousands of letters to Washington, and massive moves to give women the vote. Finally, after what seemed like a full scale siege, Washington broke and women were granted suffrage.

The ice was broken. The wall had begun to come down. The shroud of protection men had given women would never be the same and women are living to regret it.

eyes at the change in men. What about the metamorphosis women underwent? No longer are ladies ladies in the sense of the word that it was one-hundred years ago, and men realize this. But I've failed to see such a Congressional case made by men on the death of womanhood, that women have made against the so-called death of chivalry.

That little eight-lettered word, and third, until it existed only as a memory, not as a living practice. CHIVALRY IS NOT DEAD, and it's far from being so. True, it is battered, worn, and out-of-date, yet it still exists as long as the word does. But today's women are only looking through their first ax to chivalry, and the second, and third, until it existed only as a memory, not as a living practice.

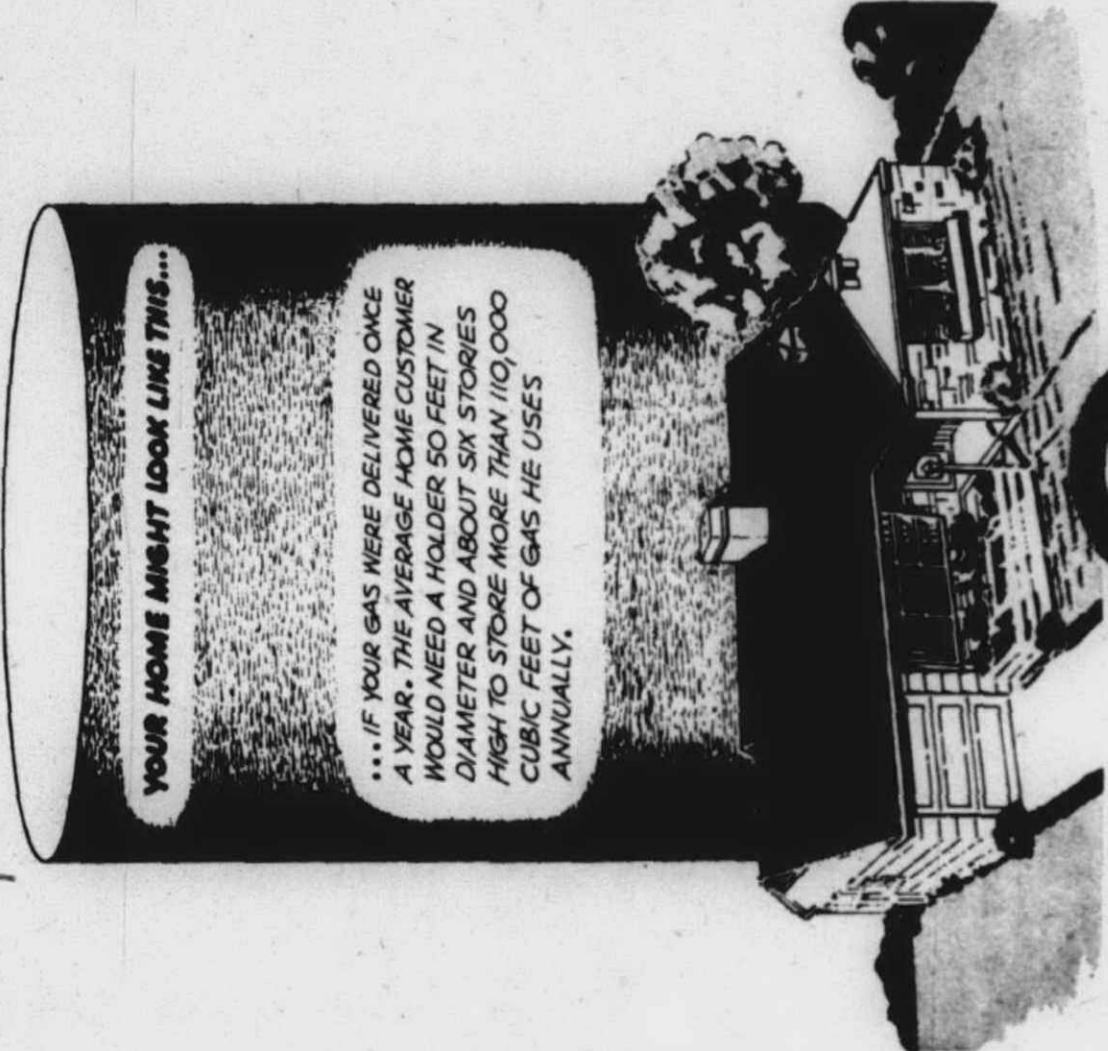

CHIVALRY IS NOT DEAD, and it's far from being so. True, it is battered, worn, and out-of-date, yet it still exists as long as the word does. But today's women are only looking through their mainly business and such. (But this can't be helped.) Females are no longer their old charming selves as they were when Scarlett O'Hara was young, and because of this men have gone cold potatoes on them.

It appears that women may never be treated as they were before. But it's their own fault.

As far as I'm concerned, the opening of doors, polite comments, and noticing new clothes is good business. (If helps relations immensely.) But it is for the good of one sex as much as it is for the other. It boosts the man's ego as much as it flatters the woman's, and that can't be all bad.

IT'S A FACT...

Arbor Croft news

One of the delights of summer is renewal of friendships and family ties. Arbor-Croft residents are having many visitors and house-guests these summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Frederick Gibbs of Packmack Lake, N. J., are houseguests at the home of their daughter, Mrs. George Johnson of Palmer Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. William Quigle and their children, Sharon and Gregg, have returned from a western vacation. The Quigles toured Grand Teton, Denver, Yellowstone, and several national park areas.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kelly and family of Fostoria, Ohio, were week-end houseguests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Fisher of Hartsoough Ave.
