Plymouth Township's growth ! and population outburst is reflected in the latest report from the Detroit Metropolitan area Regional Planning Commission which shows a 32 per cent gain in population from April, 1960 through July, 1965 with an increase of 502 dwellings in the past year.

The report shows the Township had a total population of 8,364 in April 1960 and 11,000 in 1965, including inmates in Detroit House of Correction.

Building Inspector Matt Mc-Lellan issued 506 home building permits during 1965 including 238 single dwelling and 268 for multiple units while four homes were razed for the net total of 502.

During the same period, the City of Plymouth issued 147 home permits and showed a growth of 19 per cent in population with an increase of 1,634 over the 8,766 of April 1950 for a total of 10,400 in July 1965.

The calendar year 1965 marks the fourth consecutive year in which the number of units permitted for construction in the Detroit area exceeded that of the previous year.

A total of 35,119 units were authorized during 1965 against 29,168 in 1964. This is a gain of 5,951 or 20.4 per cent. The 1965 activity was the highest total recorded in 10 years.

All counties in the region registered substantial gains over 1964. Oakland showed the greatest increase in both number and percent, authorizing 3,424 more units than last year for a 39.2 per cent climb.

The gains in the remaining counties (Macomb, Washtenaw and Wayne) varied between nine and 14 per cent and 300 to 1,100 units.

In comparing the individual 1965 county totals with those in the Area Commission ledger, Washtenaw's 1965 total was the highest ever, Oakland's since 1954, Macomb's since 1955 and Wayne's since 1959.

Of the region's 156 units of government, 73 permitted

State, Plymouth Officers Nab Seven In Arson Ring

With the arrest of six youths and a teenaged girl, State Police and Plymouth Police and Fire officials believe they have cleaned up an arson ring accused of setting fire to five cars and a large trailer-truck dating back to July 17, 1965.

The seven have addresses in Plymouth, Livonia and Wayne, according to reports from Detective Sgt. Orville Rouse, of the Fire Marshal's division of the State Police Post in Redford.

It was a lengthy investi-gation by Rouse, Fire Chief George Schoenn-man and Patrolman Carl Berry, of Plymouth, that resulted in charges being filed against the youths.

Rouse and Schoenn-man indicated the investigation is being continued with the expectation of solving many of the barn and car fires that have past several months. Many of the fires have been branded as arson by State Police and local fire officials and the two investigators hope to clear up many of the blazes within a short time.

The seven youths and charges against each include:

Karen Robinson, 19, 11414 Auburndale, Livonia, conspiracy to commit arson.

Ronald Fellows, 19, of 40555 Palmer, Wayne, conspiracy to commit arson and burning personal property over $50.

Larry Duty, 19, of 1344 Sheldon, Plymouth, conspiracy to commit arson.

George Bartz, Jr., 19. of 46950 Maben Road, Plymouth, burning personal property over $50.

Allen Nairn, 19, of 1298 Sheridan, Plymouth, burning personal property under $50.

Douglas Breed, 19, of 1476 Penniman, Plymouth, burning personal property under $50.

Michael Wagner, 19, of 13961 Ridgewood Drive, Plymouth, burning personal property under $50.

Rouse said the charges came from fires to automobiles in Plymouth, Nankin, Livonia, Salem Township and two in Canton Township.

The investigators said the probe stemmed from a fire on Feb. 7 when it is alleged that some of the group set fire to a 1963 convertible owned by Nairn parked in front of his

Wilson New - For People Who Like to Play Favorites

People whose favorite songs date back a few years tend to listen to today's hits with a deaf ear. That's not surprising, for we have a direct, personal relationship with our favorite things. What is surprising — and pleasantly so — is when a manufacturer takes into account our personal favorites when inventing something new.

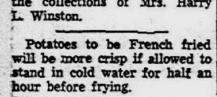

When Kodak devised the Super 8 film format, they invented a projector to take the old-vs-new problem in stride-the KODAK INSTAMATIC M80 Movie Projector. A simple switch on the M80 lets you show either regular 8mm or Super 8 movies. And you get added enjoyment from either Super 8 or regular 8mm. Because the KODAK INSTAMATIC M80 Movie Projector has 7 different projection speeds. Three forward, three reverse, plus brilliant still projection. Speeds that let you add comic rapid-action effects whenever you want. Or enjoy screening any part of your movie in slow-motion. Here's one projector that delivers new entertainment from your favorite films, and lets you enjoy all-around better quality of new Super 8 films, too.

If you have a library of favorite 8mm films you love to show, this projector is something to see. A demonstration will convince you that the new quality of Super 8 films and the personal enjoyment of your favorite 8mm films belong in the same show.

If there is anything more magical or more removed from workaday living than interviewing Lana Turner we haven't discovered it yet.

Monday Lana came to town and the press gathered in the East Room of the Sheraton Cadillac Hotel to greet her. There was no long drawn out delay or pretentious entrance, just a light tapping of heels, a scent of a dainty floral perfume and she was among us. She is the most beautiful person I have seen, and one of the nicest. Her long golden hair was coifed about her head and she wore a beige silk ribbon knit suit, collared and cuffed in beige mink. Her grooming is flawless.

She is very alive in her manner of speaking, her sapphire eyes flash, and she flings her hands wide open to illustrate a point. If anyone expected that her glamorous appearance was the cover-up for a passive mind, they were sadly disappointed.

She is a very intelligent person and can discuss her business and its different aspects in a very forthright manner.

When she was asked if the stars didn't have a better deal today than they did formerly, she said, "Yes. Formerly we had to do just as we were told. Today we can select our own stories, our own leading men, we get percentages and we can express our approval or disapproval of a story." Her new movie "Madame X" is one of her favorites. "It is fascinating to watch this characterization," she said. "Madame's gradual deterioration over the years is appalling. The character was totally engrossing. Instead of a lightning Jekell and Hyde change, the manner in which it happens makes the audience feel they are actually a part of her life." (Madame X tells the story of a woman who marries into an aristocratic family and bears a child. After a tragic and illicit affair, she is banished from the home and her top drawer social position. She goes down the ladder to the derelicts in Paris and Living director, said their recriminals living in small-time Mexican hotels.)

We asked her what she considered the outstanding secret of glamour. "Good grooming" she said promptly. number entered. They included "Next cleanliness, and the use of perfume." "Not an such glamorous titles as "Douoverpowering scent", she said, "but a light floral odor."

This led her to a discussion of her pet peeve." I feel that theatrical people owe the public some illusion of glamour. I can't abide the "sweatshirt crowd" who just don't care about the impression they make on people."

She is looking forward to her next movie but confesses that of the many plays she has read, none have appealed to her. "I can't stand the "sick" themes of today, she said firmly, "the movies are for entertainment". She would like to do a mystery play with William Holden, whom she has admired for a long time.

At this time former Gov. Williams came into the Lana's allure. She is a very feminine person and completely lady-like in her speech and tastes. She likes things to be pleasant, and in good taste. She won't abide smut or pictures of the finalists will be crudeness and once walked out on a choice part because of the director's oafishness.

More than this, she really cares what her public thinks. She got up early, early, in the morning to look like a picture for the press, and she listened attentively to everyones opinions.

2-Yr. Colleges Improve Liaison Between Industry, Schools

continuing and growing need ledge of, production machinery, and selling fine products," said

ST. LOUIS, Mo .- By educat- | facture. But we also have a who have skill in, and know- tion out of making, assembling | Providing young Americans our nation's schools, he noted, | proach is not inconsistent with | and direct the forces at work ing the next generation and expanding educational opportunities for present day generations, community colleges can provide all Americans with the educational flexibility needed to meet the challenging, changing times in which we live, a Ford Motor Company executive said.

Educators attending the annual convention of the American Association of Junior Colleges were told by Paul F. Lorenz, Ford Motor Company vice president and Lincoln-Murcury Division general manager, that the challenge America faces is whether two-year colleges can provide in adequate numbers the technicians and semi-professional workers needed by our expanding economy.

Providing America with people who are not afraid to work with their hands, who will not apologize for technical competence, who will serve the needs of others with dignity, and who are not afraid of "plain, old - fashioned hard work," is a major job of the nation's junior colleges, Mr. Lorenz said.

A further responsibility of community colleges, he said, is to improve the liaison between local educational institutions and local industry.

Lorenz noted that the automobile industry already has moved in this direction. He cited as one illustration announcement by the Ford Motor Company Fund of a scholarship to encourage students to enter the field of automotive technology.

The Ford Motor Company Fund, an educational, scientific and charitable organization financed by contributions from Ford Motor Company, will provide 100 two - year scholarships this year to children of company dealership employes for study of automotive technology at qualified community colleges.

A second example is the new Charles H. Patterson Technical Building at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn, where a highly sophisticated technical training laboratory, equal to those in any industrial engineering center, has been equipped through the cooperation of automobile manufacturers.

Lorenz made it clear that he was not "recommending that junior colleges be turned into vocational training camps." But, he pointed to the danger of "a real tendency that community colleges and other educational institutions may fail to steer students into the terminal or occupational training programs in which they have an interest and in which they can become most productive citizens.

"Your schools should be proud of their vocational orientation and should not succumb to mere academic status-seeking in the purely abstract fields at the expense of technical education," Lorenz declared. He urged the educators to direct the attention of their students to job opportunities in local industry.

The automobile executive said a nationwide spot survey of Lincoln - Mercury dealers emphasized "the big and challenging jobs awaiting the skilled and well-educated man." Key survey results were the following:

More than half the dealers surveyed had supported a community college in some tangible way, primarily through donation of automotive equipment for service technician training, and all expressed strong interest in junior colleges.

Ninety-seven per cent said they were eager to find and to hire junior college graduates.

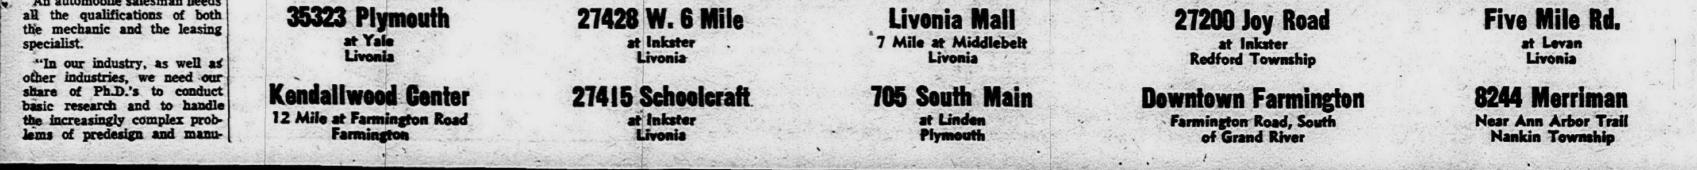

Nine out of 10 had never received a job application from a junior college graduate, although they were in need of qualified employes.

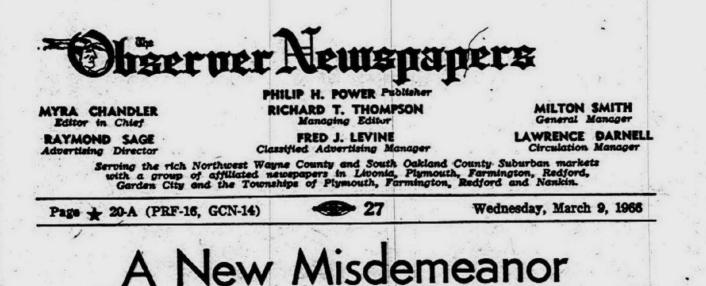

Lorenz outlined the abundant opportunities for young twoyear college graduates in automotive retailing. The se jobs, as service technicians, parts specialists and salesmen, require great skill and intelligence, he said, listing representative examples:

It takes not only skilled men to design today's complex products, but equal and sometimes greater skill to service and repair them. An automobile mechanic needs a working knowledge of thermo-dynamics, hydraulics, and electrical engineering.

A car leasing specialist needs to be a financial expert with a working knowledge of economics, accounting and tax laws.

An automobile salesman needs the qualifications of both

This warning may be too late for some drivers but after Feb. 28 any operator of a motor vehicle driving without possession of a certificate of insurance can be found guilty of a misdemeanor.

Not only is a certificate of insurance necessary to purchase license plates but it also must be in the possession of the driver just as an operators license and certificate of registration must be. Section IV of the Uninsured Motorists Act declares:

"The owner or operator of a motor vehicle who operates or permits its operation upon the highways of this state shall produce, upon the request of any peace officer, evidence that the vehicle is an insured motor vehicle, or that the uninsured motor vehicle fee has been paid."

Section III indicates that any person failing to produce such evidence when requested to do so for within a reasonable time is guilty of a misdemeanor.

If you are stopped by a police officer and asked for a proof of insurance of a receipt for $35, and are unable to furnish such documents, a ticket can legally be awarded. If you possess the necessary documents but left it home, you must appear with such proof and may face a day off work to prove your innocence. If you have no proof of insurance, and have not paid the $35 fee, your driver's license can be suspended or revoked.

So don't throw away your certificate of insurance. According to the Secretary of State, it is as necessary as a driver's license or certificate of registration to legally operate an automobile.

A Mayor Tangles With I-96

THE EXPRESSWAY PLAN . . . . along Ten and Eleven Mile Roads in Oakland and Macomb Counties, after nine years of wrangling, has been cancelled by the State Highway Department and they are now looking for a new route.

Some of the loudest objectors are having second thoughts. They are now faced with the possibility of no expressway to serve their communities. Pleasant Ridge, an area 1/72 the size of Livonia, has once again thwarted read construction through its one-half square mile area.

Amidst the lamenting and tearing of garments by both the Highway Department and the officials in these communities, one single fact stands out. Neither the Highway Department nor the communities involved were able to solve their differences.

Livonia's experience with the Highway Department has not been a happy one either. Four years ago, when we were first informed of their route location through Livonia, we objected strenuously to the slicing off of our western boundary. The community college district was not even in existence at that time.

We suggested Livonia's western boundary or a route along Newburgh or Wayne Roads which, at that time, were not developed. The City of Livonia has agreed with the State Highway Department regarding the Schoolcraft routing of the I-96 expressway as far as Levan Road. West of Levan in the interchange area and north on I-275, we have serious disagreements with the Highway Department. The industrial plants in Livonia and Plymouth Township are just beginning to realize that the Highway Department plans no entrance and exit ramps to serve these high traffic generators. The exits are three miles apart in these areas. Can you imagine the traffic coming off from the Schoolcraft expressway at Madonna College headed toward all of the plants between Levan Road and the city of Plymouth?

for its rapid development in a manner which will not be detrimental to our future.

I have had our Engineering Department prepare detailed plans showing an urban expressway with service drives, cross-overs and entrances and exits at every mile along Haggerty Road. Under our plan, Hawthorne Center and Schoolcraft College will be adequately served by a service drive and entrance and exit ramps to their facilities.

The Schoolcraft College administration building will be 242 feet from the expressway traffic lanes and Hawthorne Center will be 329 feet from the road. The officials of Schoolcraft and Hawthorne Center are justified in their refusal to accept the Haggerty Road plans of the Highway Department. Livonia's proposal, we hope, will answer the very valid objections of these vital community facilities.

. . A Quote — "The most necessary requirement that evil may triumph is for good men to remain silent."

This was underlined in a book belonging to Paul Chandler as one of his favorite quotes. I reread it this week.

But, do you know, I do believe the average citizen doesn't want the boat to be rocked. The guy that waves his arms, rants and raves over waste and spending, graft and injustice, isn't winning any popularity contests in our world of today. It's the soft, smooth-talker who seems to appeal to the voter — the one that shakes them up the least — who gets the nod, not the guy who lays it on the line.

I love politics — the planning, campaigning, signs, speeches, rallies, meetings, coffees — it's all stimulating. You never come out of a campaign without learning about issues, life, people. It is most educational.

But then there is always the fellow who is fighting for the office for influence or to make a dishonest buck.

Do you know who elects these ever-present pests? The voter who stays home, who doesn't care.

Believe me, fellow citizens, this type has its followers: special interest groups, people who survive on the favor of others.

Government shouldn't be like this. Candidates can have ego, be long-winded, boring, self-centered, and wild-eyed, but they should have burning inside them a dedication to serve so strongly, that come hell or high water, famine, flood, threat of illness or divorce, they want to serve in politics.

One name that stands out above all others that was like this was Adlai Stevenson - another was Wendell Wilkie, and on a more personal basis, my late husband, Paul Chandler.

It is an insult to honest men in politics, men of integrity, that the other can wear the banner of politician.

I talked to a man the other day who travels the told The Observer that they teacher with over 25 years ex- breadth of our state in a capacity that rubs elbows with Both are dedicated to law and order and run seminars through the state for police officers.

Jerry spent about an hour in the office with me and honestly some of my "frosted" hair turned absolutely gray. The skull-duggery in areas our state is enough to turn me into the Carrie Nation of Western Wayne County . . . either that or make me run to Jamaica and forget the entire mess. The decision remains to be made. In my business both are tempting.

But Jerry agreed with me, we have to create an interest in voters to get out and support men with good records, who are high principled. People have to begin to show that they care.

This is the Highway Department's only planned exit before Hines Park in Plymouth Township. North and south their planned exits are Ann Arbor Road and Six Mile Road, a distance of three and one-half miles.

The Highway Department has been adamant in its position. They have refused to consider any of the points made by the City of Livonia. It is no wonder, with this attitude, that they fail to reach a compromise with the cities in Oakland and Macomb Counties. I hope that the action taken by the State Highway Commissioners will cause the Highway Department staff to be more receptive to the needs of the communities through which their expressways must Dass.

All of us in Livonia city government know how important it is to have the expressway network serve our area. We will continue to work primaries and let every candidate have his supposed fair chance. In many cases, this is not an advantage. this move.

Sometimes a candidate, with no governing ability, and with a opportunistic axe to grind may be backed by monied interests, and therefore leave the more worthy candidate behind.

The most important issue, to our way of thinking is that in the suburbs, for instance, where the area where be prominently one party or the other, it is the primary winner who will be the victor. Few people realize the importance of the primary, outside of the parties involved but if you doubt that the primary winner of the preferred party is the victor, check the records. and you will find this to be true.

Another point is that the parties in (usually behind the scene), do ignore the rule and many pick out candidates in the primary and back them. This is a sporadic type of thing and in many cases leads to more confusion.

We feel that if a person has proved their value to the party in worthwhile service and seems to be a laudable candidate, that party leaders should endorse him, and give the reasons why they made this particular choice.

This would help the voters. The candidate may not be a familar figure and this could help them make their choice in that all too important primary.

Throughout the recent, regular high school basketball season. North Farmington was a disappointment.

Picked as a threat to Birmingham Groves for the Northwest Suburban League laurels, the Raiders stumbled through game after game.

When the campaign ended, North Farmington showed only three victories against 13 defeats.

But the second part of the 1965-66 season began last week with the district Class A tournament . . . at North Farmington.

"Forget what's happened so far," coach Dick Wilson told his North Farmington charges. "You're a much better team."

Wilson was right.

The Raiders went storming through the district. First the Raiders spurted in the closing seconds to knock off Milford, 62-59. Next came another showdown

Items penned on our shirt cuffs:

Over at Middlebelt and Schoolcraft roads, the Detroit Race Course stands idle these days. It hasn't operated since late in October.

The same holds true across town at Hazel Park. The doors and gates there have been clamped shut, too, for many months.

Meantime, across the river in Windsor, the new trotting oval is doing a big business. Folks are betting over two million bucks a week.

All of which is very nice . . . to let our Canadian cousins prosper.

But, why at our expense?

East Easy For Livonia Quintet

The form sheet held up. It was Bentley over the field, as most expected, in the Class A district basketball tournament at Franklin.

Thus, after missing out a year ago, the Livonians regained the top and added another district trophy to their already illustrious array by kayoing Garden Citiy East, 66-53, in the championship game Saturday night.

Now Bentley has returned to Franklin for the regionals where the field was to include North Farmington, U. of D. High and Fordson.

The regional final is booked for Friday night with the winner advancing into next Wednesday nights quarter finals.

"Credit our bench for his victory," happy George Fefles, the Bentley coach, explained after the Bentley team had turned back Garden City East.

Fefles in particular was referring to Mike MacCauley and Larry Grimm who bounced into the action as reserves in the second period and helped put Bentley well into the lead.

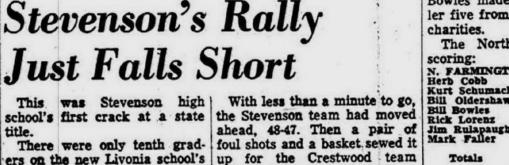

Bentley had taken an 18-16 edge after the first period but with McCauley scoring seven points and Grimm six the Bentley margin soared to 41-30 at. the intermission.

Bentley made it 55-42 after three periods before Paul Kightlinger paced an onrushing East team that pulled to within six points (59-53) with three minutes left.

Garden City had a golden chance to cut the lead even more by receiving an "one and one" foul situation. But the opportunity fizzled and Fred Matevia and McCauley pumped in a few quickies for Bentley and the issue was settled. "We played well," said Bentley coach Fefles.

"We are now installing instant banking equipment at many major institutions," he stated, "This computer takes the information from the teller, relays it to the central control and then has the answers back to the teller within seconds. It is so accurate that it can tell the bank employee whether an account is overdrawn or not."

He indicated that computers have made it possible for the general manager of a plant to sit in a swivel chair and get all the information to conduct business within minutes.

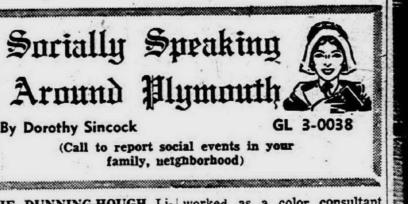

"With the modern equipment, in 1965. we can study inventory, production, costs and the like without leaving the office and without the necessity of calling a meet- bick. Clifford Manwaring, Eding of the top executives," he sad. "That's what computers Starr and George Chute. have and are doing to business and Burroughs is playing a major role in making this possible."
