HOLIDAY

Are you intrigued by ornaments of Swedish straw? Would a pine cone workshop turn you on?

Does reviving the 17th century craft of quilling make your heart beat a little faster?

If so, a roomy garret above the movie theater on Main Street in Northville is a place you ought to visit. Called The Eves Art Forum, it serves as a vehicle for display of handicrafts from as far away as Grosse Pointe and as near by as Plymouth. In addition, classes in a variety of arts and crafts are offered.

The creation of Fran DeMott and Nancy van Buren, the Eves Art Forum is now mobilizing for Christmas workshops and gifts.

'We sort of go with the season," smiling, personable Fran DeMott declared. "This summer we offered classes for children and teens who were out of school. For September, the ladies were interested in long range classes. Now that the holiday season is almost here, the women want one or two day workshops that will start Them on their way."

THE EVES' WORKSHOPS are somewhat out of the ordinary. Mary Whiteford, of Farmington, will conduct a session on gift making which includes tinsel painting and quilling. Tinsel painting, according to the Art Forum experts, is painting on glass backed with foil to give an illuminated effect.

Quilling, these same experts report, was the art of 17th century nuns. Paper that gives a filigreed effect is used to make framed pictures and free hanging decora-

A workshop built around decorating your home for the holidays using natural, materials will be led by Bess Decker of Garden City. She will show how everyday items can be turned into eye catching and elegant decorations with emphasis on the simple, natural and in-Williamsburg decorations, as only the "Williamsburg ladies" -- Pat Bentley and Janet Wood -- can explain, are yet another holiday offering. Using authentic Williamsburg materials - magnolia leaves, boxwood and natural colored soft fruit -- heirloom decorations can be made.

How to fashion swags, table decorations and wreaths out of pine cones will be taught by Jo Krause of Northville. And the technique of working with straw and Finnish split wood to make traditional, natural straw ornaments will be shown by Mildred Webb of Southfield.

Most workshops run about four hours, according to The Eves' owners. "It's a bring a sandwigh, very informal atmosphere," Fran said. "We all have a lot of fun." One-day workshops cost anywhere from $3 to $8 plus supplies, depending on the subject and length.

BUT CHRISTMAS WORKSHOPS are only a small sampling of the scope and variety of classes conducted at The Eves on an ongoing basis.

Painting -- oil, acrylic and watercolor -- crewel embrofdery, macrame, weaving and rug hooking are a few of the offerings. Others in vue d'optique, moulage, quilting, candle making and gourmet cooking are available.

"We hope to extend our selections even further," the optimistic Fran explained. "We have offered bridge classes to both teenagers and adults. We are going to introduce a balletics exercise course. In the future we foresee lessons on the recorder and guitar. And if there's enough interest, we may even get into art lectures and art appreciation classes.'

"The sky's really the limit."

UPON ENTERING their street level, bright red door and completing a journey up long, steep stairs, the unsuspecting browser will be astonished at the array of crafts on display. . . illuminated on even the darkest day by seven skylights.

"We display crafts of all kinds on consignment," Fran readily explained. "We have a jury of knowledgeable people, and if it finds an item suitable, we work out a percentage agreement with the crafter.

"What's really amazing," her cohort Nancy interjected, "is the number of people who have found us."

Tastefully arranged on the walls of the maze of rooms which make up their enterprise are handcrafted leather belts, a whole assortment of macrame owls, rag dolls of all kinds ranging from the traditional Ann and Andy -- completely washable, according to Nancy -- to a doll with a head at both bottom and top, depending on which way her skirt flops.

Corn-husk wreaths, decoupage items and rings fashioned from the handles of silver spoons are but a small fraction of the collection.

Christmas The Eves

The Eves will take orders for knitted and crocheted items including sweaters, infant sets, shawls, caps and mittens. And if you are-looking for a really meaningful gift, pen and ink sketches of your home, family or favorite hometown spot can be commissioned.

HOW THE EVES got together is a story of letting impulse and intuition call the shots.

Fran had recently returned from four years in England where she found a greater appreciation of arts and crafts. "Men there will go to a noontime theater club. or spend their lunch hours browsing through art galleries," she reported.

"The whole slower lifestyle came through to us. Back in the United States, I got homesick for the kind of life I had grown used to in England.

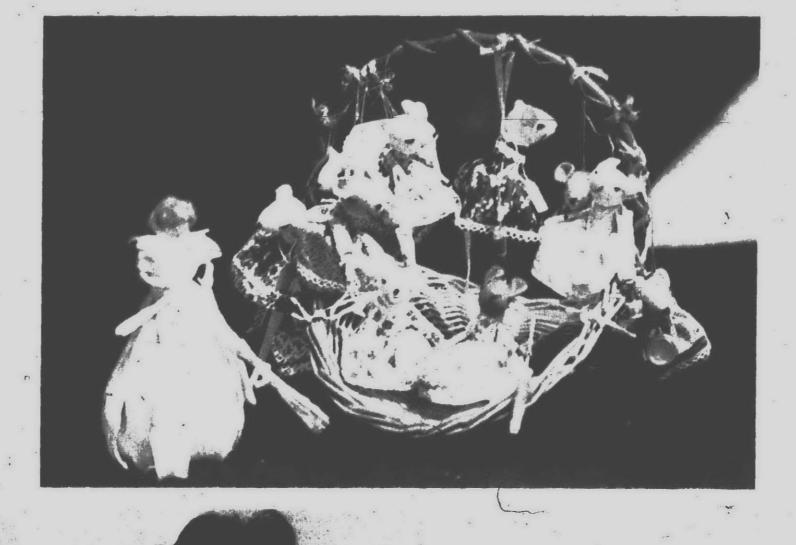

"I mentioned this one day to Kathy Hughes, a former Northville resident, and told her I'd like to open some kind of crafts place. She told me she had always wanted to open an art gallery and that a friend of hers was also interested -- that, of course, was Nancy.

"Within a week, we had signed the papers and rented a place. I never did anything so fast in my life."

(Since The Eves opened last May, Kathy's husband was transferred to Paris; the separate art gallery no Cleaning out their new home became a job in itself. "It had been used only for storage for 10 years," Fran said. "It was a mess.

the place down. Next, paint, wallpaper and modern lighting helped to give the warm atmosphere The Eves were in search of. Carpeting and furniture taken from their homes, sometimes at the expense of their families' comfort, and completed the decorating.

THEIR HUSBANDS, whom Fran and Nancy affectionately refer to as "the Adams," are very much behind their endeavor. "They think it's just great -- laughable but great. They remind us that our part-time project has turned very much into a full time one."

The two women spoke of a recent trip into northern Michigan with their husbands "to see the fall colors. It was a vacation, but when we saw the milkweed pods and pine cones, we just had to stop and gather them for our Christmas workshops.

The warm coffee, tea and cookies of The Eves has drawn the nicest people up the stairs of their Northville location to their rooms at the top.

Nancy gives credit to the instructors they have gathered. "Those who teach here are so exceptional! They are all the same kind of vibrant, interested people.'

As their arts and crafts project has grown, the inevitable has happened: Nancy and Fran find themselves spending too much time on "the books."

. "As soon as we can afford one, a bookkeeper will be here," Nancy declared vehemently. "We get a lot of giggles out of the books, but I miss being in closer contact with what's going on.'
