St. Joe will build project

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Construction will begin in March on the Huron Arbor Corp.'s $2.8-million medical facility at the corner of Harvey and Ann Arbor Trail.

Officials from the Sisters of Mercy Health Corp., owner of the Huron Arbor Corp. and St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor, confirmed last week that the facility will be built in Plymouth.

Although reports of the hospital's intent to build here were made during the yearlong planning stage, the hospital's announcement Thursday was the first confirmation of the project.

The project will be tied into the $1-million parking deck being built in the Central Parking Lot by the city, Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and the Municipal Building Authority.

The combined $3.8-million project was orchestrated by Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper and William Fileti, business development officer for the hospital.

The hospital was interested in building a facility in the Plymouth-Canton area due to the large number of residents already using medical services at St. Joseph, Fileti said.

OFFICIALS FROM the hospital looked at other sites, including some land in Canton Township, but decided on Plymouth for a number of reasons, he said.

"It is less a question of why Plymouth versus other communities. Plymouth was ripe for the project, and there was a good reception of the idea from the community leaders," Fileti said.

Discussion of building an outpatient center in this area started when the hospital's Huron Valley Ambulance company initiated an emergency medical service in the city.

Although that ambulance arrangement was short lived (the city switched to Botsford Hospital's Community EMS service), talks continued about the medical facility, Graper said.

"It really was more a matter of a full-service city versus a township," Graper said. "However, we would have totally supported putting the project in another community if this site could not have worked out."

The 23,000-square-foot facility will feature office space for private practice physicians in medicine, surgery, obstetrics/gynecology, psychiatry and other specialty and sub-specialty areas.

'It is less a question of why Plymouth vs. other communities. Plymouth was ripe for the project, and there was a good reception of the idea from the community leaders.'

—William Fileti
project coordinator

"The important factor for area residents is that it will offer a wide range of medical and mental health programs through St. Joseph Hospital and Mercywood Hospital without having to go to Ann Arbor or other locales," said Dr. David McCubrey, medical coordinator for the new facility.

The two-story facility will be built on land which the city had to acquire and sell to the hospital. The land deals, for the Gas & Go property and the Plymouth Veterinary Hospital, will be completed by Jan. 7, Graper said.

THE GAS station property was bought from the Boron Oil Co., while the veterinary clinic property is being acquired through a deal with owners Mary Beth and Steven Leininger.

Under that agreement, the city will build a new vet clinic for the Leiningers at the corner of Wing and Deer. The city will be reimbursed by the hospital for all costs associated with acquiring both parcels of land, Graper said.

The Huron Arbor clinic has been designed by the Ann Arbor architectural firm of Hobbs and Black. The same firm has been retained to design the adjacent municipal parking deck.

The medical clinic will feature a "traditional design, residential in style, with a gabled roof and bay windows," according to designer Rick Hall.

"There will be a pedestrian entrance on Ann Arbor Trail and a covered carport entry on Harvey Street," Hall said.

Adjacent to the Harvey Street entrance a ground-level parking lot of more than 50 spaces will provide patient parking. The Huron Arbor Corp. will lease that parking area from the city, with the option to buy.

The leased land, currently the entrance area for the Central Parking Lot, will provide the clinic with space to expand, Graper said.

Although that land is in a flood plain, he said paper work is being completed for a waiver to build there.

Surviving a post-murder holiday

By M.B. Dillon Ward
staff writer

As Don Faber prepared to face Christmas with his two motherless children, he knew his friends were "not about to let us spend very much time alone."

"We'll get through. We're spending the holidays with both our families. We've got a tree, and lots of presents. And Nancy will be there — she'll be with us," he said.

Faber lost his wife Nancy, a speech therapist with Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, in a random murder last month. The mother of Allison, 10, and Michael, 4, Faber was found slumped over the steering wheel of her Ford Fairmont on Nov. 22, near Kroger's in Ann Arbor where she'd been shopping. Her purse, containing $2, and checkbook were missing. Faber suffered a bullet wound to the neck and died three days later.

Despite the offering of a $14,000 reward by several companies and individuals for information leading to a conviction in the case, police had no substantive leads until last week.

A breakthrough came when Mabelle Pearson, 17, of Ypsilanti called police and began talking about the shooting. Police said they suspected Pearson somehow was involved in the crime and obtained a voluntary confession from her Dec. 21.

Pearson, who has no previous criminal record, was arraigned in 15th District Court on charges of murder, armed robbery and possession of a firearm. She is being held without bond at Washtenaw County Jail. A preliminary exam is set for 9 a.m. tomorrow before District Judge S. J. Elden.

Ann Arbor police said they questioned and released a man Wednesday who knows Pearson. Officers refuse to say whether he is a suspect or a witness, or if he is the male friend with whom Pearson shares an apartment. They still are investigating the possibility the woman had an accomplice.

DON FABER, chief editorial writer and columnist with the Ann Arbor News, learned of the development from a News reporter. Several staff reporters knew both Fabers and "have been through an emotional ringer" covering the story, he said.

"I shared the piece of news with Nancy's parents while cautioning them not to get their hopes up too high, as I did myself," Faber said.

"Things really broke the next day when Police Chief (William Corbett) called and said, in effect, that they'd solved the case — that they had a confession."

Many of Faber's questions remain unresolved, however.

"The police seem to have the goods on (Pearson) all right, but the story is incomplete. Some blanks are on record that police are theorizing about and hoping to fill. Some things just don't add up," said Faber, who since the tragedy has experienced "good days and some bad days."

"I think I knew Nancy Faber as well as anyone, and I just don't think that Nancy would let herself be conned at night into giving a stranger a ride to a project only 200 yards down the road." Police say Pearson asked Faber for a lift to a nearby public housing complex.

"As one woman (appealing to) another woman with a fairly persuasive sob story, Pearson might have had her effect on Nancy," he added.

Faber, who says his wife "loved the (Plymouth-Canton) community and her work," credits the police with painstaking, extremely careful work, tipsters and citizens for all their help, and people "from a wide area for their outpouring of support. It really showed me that people really care," he said.

Students learn about Christmas

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

"I'll be home for Christmas, if only in my dreams," say the nostalgic words of a popular holiday song.

A small group of teen foreign exchange students will be nourishing memories of Christmas celebrations back home, while enjoying typical American festivities with their host families.

Several in the Youth For Understanding exchange program gathered recently at the home of Henrietta McDonald of Canton to reminisce about holiday customs. The youths are living in Canton, Westland, Livonia and Northville and attending local high schools.

Carsten Kuehtopp, a 17-year-old youth from Berlin, is looking forward to phoning his relatives at Christmas.

"I expect to be thinking about my family in Germany," said Kuehtopp, who lives with Mr. and Mrs. James Verkéennis in Westland and attends John Glenn High School.

AS DESCRIBED by the students, families in Europe celebrate Christmas with a combination of religious and secular activities. There are plenty of parties, good food and gifts. Celebration starts in December and extends into January.

"The big Christmas day for every child is the evening of (Dec.) 24th," Kuehtopp said. "We have a real tree and real candles."

"The children are supposed to go into their rooms and be quiet," he continued. "(Parents) light the candles, bells ring and the children run into the room and find their presents."

Axel Skielka, 16, also from Germany, is living with his American "parents," Henrietta McDonald and her husband Alden in Canton. He attends Plymouth Canton High School.

Skielka enjoys giving presents, but he is disturbed about the heavy commercial overtones associated with the holidays. "Shouldn't generosity be a year-round custom?" he wonders.

IN HOLLAND and Germany, the feast of St. Nicholas (Dec. 5-6) is a time for children to place their shoes before the fireplace at bedtime in hopes of finding small gifts in the shoes upon awakening.

Holiday parades are popular in Holland, said Manita Overweg, who celebrated her 19th birthday last week. She is living with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Williams of Livonia and attending Churchill High School.

Holland, on the North Sea, has many canals. "Sinter Klaus arrives in a boat. He gives away bags of candy," according to Overweg.

ANOTHER POPULAR custom described by the teens is the lighting of candles each week to signify the progression of the Advent season, the month preceding Christmas. Also widespread are Advent calendars, with doors or pockets which open and reveal holiday messages or sweets tucked inside.

Lights and candles play a prominent role in Sweden, a far northern country which is dark most of the winter months.

Maria Tamayo, 17, of Stockholm attends Plymouth Salem High School and lives with Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bourlier of Canton.

A map in Wayne Wiltse's Livonia home shows the distance he has made radio contact. Each pin on the map stands for a contact made by Wiltse.

Making waves

Amateur radio operators reach out and touch people all over the world

By Mary Klemic, staff writer

Amateur radio operator Wayne Wiltse recalls the time he spoke with "Curt" over his set.

"He was in an airplane," said Wiltse, a Livonia resident. "He told me his name was Curt. We had a nice chat for about 10 to 15 minutes. Later, I looked up his call letters and found out he was Gen. Curtis LeMay, the head of the Strategic Air Command."

Anything can happen when Wiltse and fellow "hams" talk to each other on their sets, going by their first names and call letters.

"I'VE HAD many, many enjoyable moments," said Redford resident Dale Irvine, who has contacted 270 countries in his 45 years as an amateur operator. "I've made a lot of friends throughout the world."

"You get one of the Russians to talk with you about your life at home here," he said. "They ask for information on the prices of food. It's all of general interest to them. The Asian countries are enjoyable, too."

Wiltse and Irvine are two of an estimated 415,000 amateur radio operators, or hams, in this country and 1.5 million around the world. They have something in common with King Hussein of Jordan, Arthur Godfrey and Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin, all of whom are or were amateur radio operators.

Media attention has focused on hams recently because of the invasion of Grenada. For a time, amateur operators monitoring transmissions from the island were the only sources of information about the fate of American students and the progress of the invasion.

"I did hear an astronaut (on the last space shuttle)," Irvine said. "He was giving altitude and speed and general information."

"I did hear an astronaut (on the last space shuttle)," Irvine said. "He was giving altitude and speed and general information."

The hobby is rewarding in a number of ways, amateur operators say. Amateur radio operators have relayed emergency information and helped at community events. Volunteers in the "Skywarn" program work with the National Weather Service to spot and watch the progress of severe weather.

"The hobby is as broad as one wants to make it," said Wiltse, who has taught a class in the subject in Redford. "We can communicate by voice, Morse code, teletype or television. We have our own satellites in orbit. We can talk to foreign countries or next door."

BEFORE THEY can be licensed by the Federal Communications Commission, the would-be operators must pass

BEFORE THEY can be licensed by the Federal Communications Commission, the would-be operators must pass

By their call signs, you shall know them

Amateur radio is totally separate from citizens band (CB) radio, and its purpose is different as well. Some of the differences between the two are:

- There are license requirements for amateur radio, involving technical, code and regulatory examinations.

Just one corner in Wayne Wiltse's home shows how involved he is with amateur radio. Wiltse, who has taught classes in the subject, has spoken with Gen. Curtis LeMay and listened to the launching of Sputnik in the 28 years he has been an amateur radio operator, or "ham."

A tower stands silent guard outside Wiltse's home, which belies the almost constant activity taking place inside over Wiltse's radio.

Cards such as these, the last courtesy of a contact between two amateur radio operators, confirm the contact. Wiltse has collected cards from all over the world.

a technical written exam and be able to demonstrate that they can send and receive Morse code at a rate of at least five words a minute.

The operators are licensed at different levels. A novice license requires a rudimentary knowledge of electronics and the ability to send and receive Morse code at the rate of five words a minute. The next step, a technician, calls for a more complex technical exam.

The next level, a general class license, requires the same written exam as the technician level but also the ability to send and receive Morse code at a rate of at least 13 words a minute. For an advance class license, the operator must take a more technical exam. The extra class license is given to those who pass a difficult written exam and have a code speed of at least 20 words a minute.

"You gain more privileges with each class," said Wiltse, who teaches novice classes. "The novice can only send Morse code. The technician can send voice only on a limited basis. You can do everything that's legal at the extra class level."

For information on becoming an amateur radio operator, write the American Radio Relay League, 225 Main St., Newington, Connecticut 06111.

There isn't any examination for CB radio.

- Amateur radio operators are identified by a call sign assigned by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). The sign must be used on the air for identification. On CB radio, a nickname or "handle" identification is used.
- The ham's call sign consists of a one- or two-letter prefix, which indicates the country, a single numeral, to indicate the region, and a one-, two- or three-letter individual suffix. "W1AW" is an example of a call sign. There is no call sign in citizens band radio.
- The frequencies for amateur radio vary, depending upon the level of examination passed by the operator. With amateur radio, there is a broad range of frequencies throughout the entire radio spectrum that is internationally allocated. CB radio consists of only one band, with 40 channel capabilities. It is allocated by the United States.
- Ham radio range is worldwide, limited only by radio conditions. The range for CB is local, and contacts are forbidden in excess of 150 miles.
- The mode of communication for the ham operator includes voice, Morse code, television, ground and satellite repeater stations and computer-data exchanges. With citizens band, the only modes of communication are voice and one way remote control devices.
- Hobby communications, scientific experimentation and public service are the uses permitted for amateur radio. No experimentation is allowed for CB radio. Uses permitted for CB radio are business and casual conversation and public service.

Make Ahead HOLIDAY BUFFET Lets Hostess Enjoy The Party

Fun. It's the whole point in having a party during the holidays. And it should be fun and enjoyable for you, the hostess, as well.

With the help of these easy and delicious make ahead recipes, you'll be out of the kitchen and enjoying your party in no time.

This easy to create Vegetable Holiday Tree is an alternative to the relish tray and serves as a festive centerpiece, too. Start with a Styrofoam cone and secure a layer of leaf lettuce or spinach to the cone with toothpicks. Now simply decorate the tree by attaching your favorite raw vegetables with toothpicks.

Guests will enjoy selecting vegetables from the tree and dipping them in Get-Togethers Cheese Spreads. A cream cheese base is used for two spreads—one is spicy and the other is onion and garlic flavored. Prepare them the day before the party. Then refrigerate them in ready to serve air-tight containers until party time. These two spreads are great on crackers, too.

Who could resist hors d'oeuvres of Fried Won Tons or Chick'N Wrap-Ups? All but the cooking of these two snacks can be done prior to the party. Marinate the chicken strips the day before in soy sauce or Italian salad dressing. Then just roll them up, wrap in bacon, place in a covered baking dish and refrigerate. Thirty minutes before the guests arrive, bake the Chick'N Wrap-Ups and fry the prepared ahead Won Tons. Serve them hot with tangy Savory Sweet and Sour Dressing.

A taco flavored Mexican Munch recipe featuring a variety of crunchy items like potato sticks, shredded corn squares, French-fried onions and peanuts is a zesty change from chips. The recipe can be made a few weeks before the party, suggests Tupperware Educational Services, and it will stay fresh and crisp if stored in an air-tight sealed container. You may want to make a double batch and have on hand for impromptu gatherings at your home during the holidays or to package in individual containers as gifts.

To complete your buffet table, try this holiday Topaz Punch. The sherbet ring mold can be made a few days before the party. Come party time, unmold the frozen sherbet ring, add premixed punch base and white grape juice.

And there you have it—an easy to prepare holiday party that guests will think you spent hours in the kitchen creating.

FRIED WON TONS

- 1 cup cooked diced pork
- 1/2 cup bean sprouts, coarsely chopped
- 1/2 cup minced water chestnuts
- 1/4 cup chopped green onions
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 2 drops sesame oil
- ground red pepper to taste
- 1 16-ounce package won ton skins

Mix all ingredients except the won ton skins. In center of each won ton skin place one teaspoon filling. Moisten edges of the skin with water, fold opposite corners together, forming a triangle, then seal edges. Bring the two points together, moisten and seal. Deep fry won tons, a few at a time, until golden brown. Makes 48 won tons. Serve with Savory Sweet and Sour Dressing.

CHICK'N WRAP-UPS

- 1 cup soy sauce (may substitute Italian salad dressing)
- 4 green onions, minced
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 6 boned and skinned chicken breasts
- 12 bacon strips
- 24 toothpicks

In a small mixing bowl, combine soy sauce, green onions and pepper. Slice each chicken breast into 4 strips. Place chicken strips in a Season Serve marinating container and pour soy sauce mixture over the strips. Seal; refrigerate overnight. Invert container occasionally.

Slice bacon strips in half. Remove chicken strips from marinating container. Roll up each chicken strip with half slice of bacon. Secure with toothpick. Place Chick'N Wrap-Ups in baking dish. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes or until done. Makes 24 Chick'N Wrap-Ups. Serve hot with Savory Sweet and Sour Dressing.

SAVORY SWEET AND SOUR DRESSING

- 1 can condensed tomato soup
- 1 cup salad oil
- 3/4 cup vinegar
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon each salt and pepper

Place all ingredients in blender container, cover and process until smooth. Chill thoroughly before serving, preferably 24 hours. Makes about 4 cups dressing. Use as a dip for Fried Won Tons and Chick'N Wrap-ups.

GET-TOGETHERS CHEESE SPREADS

- 1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 tablespoons pimiento, diced
- 1 tablespoon chili sauce
- 1/3 cup cream style cottage cheese, drained
- 1/8 teaspoon onion salt
- 1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 cup snipped parsley

In a 1-quart mixing bowl, beat cream cheese and lemon juice until fluffy. Divide into two portions; into one portion, stir Parmesan cheese, pimiento and chili sauce. To second portion add cottage cheese, onion salt and garlic powder; beat until nearly smooth. Stir in parsley. Makes 2 spreads; 3/4 cup each. Store in sealed containers in refrigerator until serving time. Serve along with raw vegetables and crackers.

MEXICAN MUNCH

- 1 3-ounce can French-fried onions
- 2 cups bite-size shredded corn squares
- 3/4 cup Spanish peanuts
- 1 4-ounce can potato sticks
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 of a 1 1/8-ounce package taco seasoning mix

In a 13x9x2-inch baking pan, combine onions, cereal, peanuts and potato sticks. Melt butter or margarine over low heat; drizzle over mixture in baking pan and stir well. Sprinkle seasoning mix evenly over mixture, mixing well. Bake in 300° oven for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Allow to cool and store in air-tight sealed container. Makes about 7 cups.

TOPAZ PUNCH

- 1/2 cup red maraschino cherries
- 1/2 cup green maraschino cherries
- 5 cups softened lemon sherbet
- 1 6-ounce can frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
- 1 6-ounce can frozen lemonade concentrate, thawed
- 1 quart water
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 2 bottles (24-ounces each) white grape juice

Arrange red and green maraschino cherries in the bottom of a jello ring mold. Spoon softened lemon sherbet over cherries, pressing to make a firm ring. Cover mold ring with an air-tight seal; place in coldest part of freezer until very firm.

To make punch base, combine orange juice concentrate, lemonade concentrate, water and sugar in a 48-ounce container with liquid-tight seal. Apply seal; shake gently until sugar is dissolved. Store in refrigerator.

Shortly before serving time, remove jello ring mold from freezer. While still sealed, immerse in warm water for 20 to 30 seconds. Inside a large punch bowl, remove the seal from mold, invert and release frozen sherbet ring. Pour chilled punch base from 48-ounce container into punch bowl. Slowly add grape juice and stir very gently until blended. Makes about 20, 5-ounce servings.

STAN'S BONUS COUPON

Be a friend, serve non-alcoholic drinks, too

This holiday season is drawing to a close, but the biggest of all celebrations — New Year's Eve — is still ahead.

Unfortunately, if this year is anything like previous years, a number of us won't be here to make or break New Year's resolutions — we will have become either a dead drunk-driver or a drunk driver's victim.

According to the Automobile Club of Michigan, alcohol is a contributing factor in more than half of all fatal traffic accidents in Michigan. And, during year-end holidays, eight out of 10 motorists will drink, then drive.

If you are planning a party, AAA recommends that you be "First a Friend, Then a Host."

Among things you can do is play Detect-A-Drunk games, offer alcohol-absorbent hors d'oeuvres and serve alcohol-free drinks. In addition, don't insist that guests drink alcoholic beverages. If they say "No, thank you," be gracious and offer something else. Another good idea is to set up the bar away from the party room so guests have to work a little for a refill.

If you haven't had time to stop by AAA to pick up a copy of "The great Pretenders Mixing Guide," here are a few of the prize-winning recipes from Detroit-area bartenders. Tops on the list is the winner of the Golden Stirrer Award, Jimmy Williams of the Money

Tree in Detroit. His recipe, The Rose, is a low-cal, no-fat, no-cholesterol drink with an unusual taste.

THE ROSE

- 1 oz fruit juice (orange, lemon, grapefruit, cranberry or papaya)
- 3 oz Savino's lemon fruit ice or lemon sherbet
- 3 oz Savino's boysenberry fruit ice or a berry-flavored sherbet
- Prickley pear
- Pineapple slices

Put pineapple in a tall glass, add fruit ice or sherbet, then juice. Top with a rose, made by peeling the peel in one long piece, then twirling the peel into the flower's shape. Prepare quantities in advance by freezing the mixture. Thaw five minutes before serving.

HOT BUTTERED RUMLESS

- Recipe by Richard Fox, Machus Red Fox, Birmingham
- 1 lb brown sugar
 - 3/4 lb unsalted butter
 - 1 tsp ground cloves
 - 1 tsp cinnamon
 - 1/2 tsp nutmeg
 - 1/4 tsp mace
 - 1/4 tsp ginger
 - Hot water
 - Whole cloves or cinnamon stick

Mix first seven ingredients. For each serving, add one heaping tablespoon of mixture to very hot water in a 12-oz mug or brandy snifter. Stir briskly. Garnish with whole cloves or cinnamon stick.

BANANA WHAT???

- Recipe by Tino Delsitmore, Fonte D'Amore, Livonia
- 1 ripe banana
 - 1 tsp sugar
 - Dash of bitters
 - Dash of non-alcoholic vanilla extract
 - 3 oz cold milk
 - 1/4 oz Coco Lopez cream of coconut
 - 2 oz pina colada Itallina ice
 - 1/2 scoop crushed ice
 - Pineapple slice
 - Maraschino cherry
 - Whipped cream

Blend first eight ingredients for 30 seconds to a minute. Garnish with pineapple, cherry and whipped cream.

HOLI-BERRY

- Recipe by Grace Spillane, Amantea Restaurant, Garden City
- 3 scoops french vanilla ice cream
 - 1/4 c. mixture of equal parts non-alcoholic pina colada mix and pineapple juice
 - 1 jigger soda water
 - 2 scoops fresh frozen strawberries
 - Whipped cream
 - Mint leaf

Blend first four ingredients until smooth. Garnish with whipped cream and mint leaf.

Holiday Greetings
May the spirit of the first Christmas inspire you with hope and love.

Ellie Graham

A NOTE FROM Mary Jane West-Eberhard in Costa Rica was delivered by her father, Earl West. Mary Jane, an entomologist, was in town because of a speaking engagement in Detroit and at that time read the Nov. 7 issue of the Observer.

She wrote in response to The View column:

"In your column 'The View,' Monday, Nov. 7, 1983, you printed a letter written more than a year before (Sept. 30, 1982), recounting to my parents some observations I made while traveling to Europe through the Caribbean area (Nicaragua and Cuba). I am concerned that my description of the very active Nicaragua-Cuba-Russia connection, being printed soon after the U.S. action in Grenada, may have given some readers the impression that I intended to justify military intervention in this part of the world.

"On the contrary, it seems to me that the massive scholarship program for disadvantaged youth to study in Russia shows by example what the U.S. might try doing in order to avoid having to use troops in these countries.

"While the Cubans and Russians are teaching literally thousands of young people how to fix tractors and grow rice via prestigious and exciting fellowships abroad, the U.S. offers only 14 scholarships per year to Costa Rican students. And these will go to highly qualified, relatively well-educated young people — not disadvantaged ones.

"Ironically, the Russian aid program seems more 'democratic' (socially just) than ours. Such aid programs need not involve political propaganda. They win support and loyalty simply by offering opportunity for which the recipient is forever grateful.

"We are comparatively passive in dealing with the masses of working people benefited by such programs — and then surprised when they are easily organized to oppose those we support (who, partly thanks to our aid, are seldom in danger of becoming 'disadvantaged')."

"Of course these are complex and difficult problems, not dealt with in a letter home or in this sequel. But there are ways of helping the truly disadvantaged without using guns and I find it embarrassing, as an enthusiastic (though not uncritical) U.S. citizen living in this beleaguered part of the world, that the Russians have been better at discovering them than we have."

GARLENE DAVIS of Canton won the grand prize given in conjunction with the grand opening of First of America bank office in Canton. Garlene's prize was a Commodore 64 personal computer complete with color monitor and disk drive.

The first prize winner was Edward Brambs of Livonia, who received a Marantz stereo radio. Carolyn Westfall of Plymouth, second-prize winner, won the Minolta Disc camera.

Patricia S. Travis, manager of the new office on the corner of Joy and Sheldon, announced the winners after a three-week open house. She expressed appreciation to all in the community who joined in the celebration.

IRV MILLIGAN, newly elected president of the Plymouth Township Senior Citizens organization, lives next door to the Friendship Station, the club's meeting place. Irv and his wife, Anna, have lived there for 29 years.

Their house and the Friendship Station are on the land that once was Irv's grandfather's farm. George and Meta Dingman, Irv's grandparents, had a big barn, chicken house and other outbuildings where their house and the seniors' clubhouse now stand. George Dingman was Wayne County drain commissioner for many years.

When the old farm house burned down, the property was sold to the Church of Jesus Christ Latter-day Saints for a church. Irv and Anna built their house next door, in what used to be a corn field.

The church building became a field office when I-275 was under construction. When they moved out, the building belonged to Plymouth Township. The township turned the building over to its senior citizens as a meeting place. And the same old pine trees that were in front of the Dingman house are still there.

Canton Museum marks its second Christmas

By Elinor Graham
staff writer

The Canton Historical Museum is decorated for the holidays with bright bows, greens and an old-fashioned Christmas tree. Members of the Apple Run branch of the Woman's National Farm & Garden Association are responsible for the festive decor.

The museum on Canton Center Road at Proctor is marking its second Christmas, and the old school house probably never looked better. It opened officially Dec. 5, 1982 and has hosted 1,200 visitors since then.

Special exhibits for the Christmas season include a Victorian doll house and a collection of dolls from around the world. Both belong to Madelyn Bastian, a Canton resident. The dolls are arranged on the big old square grand piano at the back of the museum with an assortment of antique toys.

FOR MEMBERS of the Canton Historical Society, the spic and span museum is the result of a longtime dream, persistence and cooperation. The school district gave them the building in 1977. Three years later, in 1980, the new roof was a major first step in the renovation.

Dorothy West and Bart Berg say that without the assistance of the community, especially the Canton Rotary and Lions clubs, the museum still would be a dream.

"The Lions Club had been meeting in the building for five years, and they were a big help. And the Newcomers Club helped," said West.

"The Rotary club not only gave us financial assistance, but they helped physically," said Berg. They are still supporting the project with their annual rummage sale, held in conjunction with the society's bedding plant sale in the spring.

THE MUSEUM IS OPEN 1-3 p.m. Tuesdays and 1-4 p.m. Saturdays.

Visitors will discover that Canton had its own post office as early as 1840. Old letters and post cards on display reveal that the post office changed locations over the years.

A glass showcase contains 21 stuffed birds from the turn of the century. Some of birds, natural to the area at that time, rarely are seen today. Woodcock, American quail, bluebird, ash-throated fly-catcher, magnolia warbler and bunting are uncommon in Canton Township in the 1980s.

Old school desks and benches, township records, clothing, furniture, farm tools and accessories of pioneer life are preserved in the museum. Historical Society members are on hand to add interesting anecdotes and sidelights to the displays.

Bart Berg sits at the old schoolmaster's desk and recalls the years of work and planning that went into turning the old school into a historical museum.

Dorothy West tells of the old post offices in general stores that served the Canton community off-and-on from 1940. Old postcards and letters display the old postmarks.

A 'Community' College

Schoolcraft's athletic programs reach out for everyone

As Schoolcraft College's athletic director, Marv Gans, not only oversees the school's sports programs but tries to lure members of the community to take advantage of the facilities.

By C.J. Rieak
staff writer

Define "community college." A school that provides higher education for the members of nearby communities.

At Schoolcraft College, the community college concept has been carried a bit farther. Besides filling classroom needs, school administrators are also aiming to meet the fitness demands of surrounding communities.

How? By providing a place for local high schools to hold tournaments in various sports; by allowing members of the community not enrolled in the school access to Schoolcraft's athletic facilities; and by giving local sports groups a place to stage their programs.

That is but a few of the community-oriented affairs Schoolcraft College hosts — in addition to its own sports teams.

"IT'S PRETTY MUCH year-round," said Schoolcraft athletic director Marv Gans. "The community college serves as a partner to local businesses and the community. This is something that comes right down from the president (Dick McDowell). He's very interested in reaching out to the community."

"If there's something the community thinks we can do, they should contact us."

Which perfectly represents Gans' interpretation of "reaching out to the community." However you define community college, there's no doubt that at Schoolcraft there are far more outside community-related activities than there are at similar institutions.

Specific examples include:

- Soccer, volleyball, men's gymnastics and wrestling tournaments and clinics.
- Boxing shows for local fighters.
- The AAU All-Star basketball tournament.
- Sunday Health Club, open to all members of the community.
- Clinics in racquetball, paddleball and swimming officiating.

- AAU swimming.
- Fencing.
- Countless fitness classes open to the public.

OTHER COMMUNITY COLLEGES offer some of these activities, but none to the extent that Schoolcraft does.

"None have the total concept that we have," Gans said, adding that the policy extends throughout the school. "Other schools may do one or two things and do them well, but they don't have the variety we have."

Staging high school events on the Schoolcraft campus does two things beneficial for the school: It makes the public aware of what the school has to offer, and it helps in athletic recruiting.

In the past year, Schoolcraft has won the Eastern Conference men's basketball title and state and regional crowns in men's soccer. The soccer team had the help of Dan O'Shea, the youngest of three brothers to play soccer at Schoolcraft. Older brother Nick starred at Oakland University last season.

"We've got to be doing something right when we get three brothers, one after the other," Gans said. "That's got to tell you something."

BUT THE COMMUNITY development policy isn't limited to high schools. The Sunday Health Club, for example, runs from noon to 4 p.m. The winter session starts Jan. 8 and continues until April 15.

For $20, members can enjoy 13 Sundays playing basketball, volleyball, badminton, paddleball, handball and racquetball; they can swim, lift weights, jog; and they can use the gymnastic equipment, saunas and locker rooms.

The Community Health/Fitness Program is open to anyone 18 and over. The $45 cost allows members to use the weight room, saunas and locker rooms, and gymnasiums Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. until 9:45 p.m. The

Bulldog volleyball reaps a twin harvest

Kelley's a big smash among Georgia fans

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Wherever Karen Kelley plays volleyball, success follows.

That's the way it was when she starred for Livonia Stevenson High School, Schoolcraft Community College and now the University of Georgia.

The 5-foot-11 junior was murder once again when she took the floor this season.

Kelley led the Lady Bulldogs in three statistical categories including kills per match (15.6), hitting efficiency (.317) and blocks per match (4.21). She was also second in service aces, fourth in digs and fourth in assists.

Kelley was named to the All-Southeastern Conference team and helped Georgia to a 22-9 regular season record and a fourth place finish in the SEC. She was one of two junior college transfers from Schoolcraft to play for the Lady Bulldogs. The other was Nancy Hughes.

"Karen completely dominated the net and is well deserving of the awards that came to her this season," said Georgia coach Sid Feldman, who spotted Kelley a couple of years back at a junior AAU tourney in Chicago.

KELLEY, who earned NJCAA All-American honors at Schoolcraft, entertained some 20 offers after leading the Ocelots to a second-place finish in the nationals.

"Sid talked to me for over a year," Kelley explained. "He was honest, open and the players were friendly and fun to be around."

"My first impression was good." But Kelley said it couldn't have happened without the help of her high school coach, Lee Cagle, and her junior college coach, Mike O'Toole.

"Cagle really taught me how to play," said Kelley, who started her volleyball career at Bryant Junior High. "And at Schoolcraft we had a good group, and O'Toole was a good coach to play under."

According to Kelley, the Schoolcraft coach was instrumental in getting Feldman to judge her talents during the AAU tourney.

KELLEY SOON discovered that playing SEC-brand volleyball takes hard work.

The SEC rates second to the California-based leagues.

"It's a quicker game and much faster," said Kelley. "It took me awhile to get used to."

"The competition makes it that way. When you play against better talent it means so much more."

Pre-season practice began Aug. 12 for Kelley and her teammates.

"We had eight new people and four returnees on the team so we spent three weeks getting to know each other," Kelley explained. "The time we spent together was really beneficial."

During the season, the Lady Bulldogs work out seven days a week. In the off-season its five times a week because the team is preparing for the United States Volleyball Association (USVBA) tournament next spring in Seattle.

"We're supposed to even keep in shape while we're here," said Kelley, who is home for the holidays.

KELLEY, HOWEVER, said that she can't wait to return to the Athens campus.

"I really like it there," she said. "Everyone is friendly. It's more of a relaxed atmosphere. It's easier to get to know people."

Although volleyball doesn't have quite the following of football or basketball, Kelley said "we get good crowds — maybe 400 to 500 a game."

Despite a heavy commitment to volleyball, Kelley maintained a 3.3 GPA during the last quarter. She is majoring in recreational therapy.

Hughes and Georgia get along just peachy

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

It hasn't been much of a Christmas vacation for Nancy Hughes, so far, but she can hardly complain. Life's been so good the last couple of years, how could she?

"I got home at midnight and started work at 7:30 the next morning," laughs Hughes.

Home is Farmington Hills. Work is in the Hallmark shop at Twelve Oaks. The place she's home from is Georgia — the University of Georgia to be exact — where Hughes was one of the stars of the Bulldogs' recent successful volleyball season.

Hughes played volleyball and ran track at North Farmington, graduating '81. Never thinking it would lead to anything more than a couple more years of volleyball, Hughes enrolled at Schoolcraft, where a funny thing happened: the team finished eighth in the national junior college tournament her first year, then made it to the finals last year, finishing second to Scottsdale (Ariz.) Community College.

Scouts from the major universities flock to the junior college tourneys like swallows to Capistrano. Suddenly, Hughes was being courted by Clemson, Eastern Michigan, Georgia and the University of South Florida, among others.

"We're allowed five trips (to visit prospective colleges)," said Hughes, "but I only took two. I fell in love with Athens (site of the school) and knew that's where I wanted to go."

Though she has only been there since the fall, she already sounds like a southern belle. "It's not hard," she drawled. "When you get down there, everybody around, you can't understand."

DID SHE EVER picture, in her prep days, that one day she'd have a full-ride athletic scholarship from a Division I university? "Never," she said, laughing.

"In high school, our program wasn't real successful. We'd win our league, but we always got eliminated in the districts or regionals. We always lost to Karen's team."

Karen Kelley was Hughes' teammate at Schoolcraft and a current teammate at Georgia, which, thanks in part to infusion of northern blood, finished 22-9 this past fall.

"We were real young this year," explained Hughes. "I think we have a good shot next year (at a national title, won this year by Hawaii). We were on the edge of being rated in the top 20 all season. With the experience we have coming back, we have a shot to go real far."

Though some athletes feel their time in junior college was misspent, that they should have been at a major university all along, Hughes credits Schoolcraft and its coach, Mike O'Toole, with getting her into Division I.

"Mr. O'Toole put desire into my game," said Hughes. "He inspired us. If it wasn't for Schoolcraft, I wouldn't be where I am today."

HUGHES COMES from an athletic family. Mom (Bev) was a swimmer, brother Jeff, 23, played football and baseball at Amherst on a scholarship, brother Greg, 24, played baseball at Eastern Michigan, and brother Denny, 26, a Farmington Hills fireman, was a high school jock.

What about dad (Jack)? "He's turned into a true Bulldog fan," laughed Hughes. "It wasn't hard."

Hughes, who is majoring in marketing and management and keeping her fingers crossed for a possible job next summer on a cruise ship, admitted she was a bit intimidated when she went to her first Georgia practice.

"I walked in the first day, and I couldn't believe it," she said. "Here were these freshmen who were 6-1. I was on the shorter side at 5-8."

Hughes-Georgia: peachy

Nevertheless, she made the starting unit and easily led the team in assists. "I'm a setter," she added. "There are setters and hitters. The setters don't get any glory."

Though her NCAA season has ended, volleyball is far from over this year for Hughes. The entire Georgia team, coach included, plays post-season in the United States Volleyball Association. When Hughes goes back to school January 8, she will resume five-day-a-week conditioning sessions (agility drills, sprints, swimming, weights, jump roping) and two-a-week practice sessions on the volleyball court.

"We've got something like 12 USVBA tournaments through April, including the Caribbean Tournament in Miami, which is a really big one," said Hughes. "And believe it or not, the competition in the USVBA is rougher than in the NCAA."

Kelley's presence both on and off the court enabled Georgia to make great strides this season. Next year, the Lady Bulldogs hope to dethrone SEC champ Kentucky.

"We have everybody back and Kentucky is losing its top setter and hitter," said the Georgia ace. "I want to get a ring and make the NCAA tournament."

With a little more success, Kelley will realize that goal. But what happens after her collegiate career?

"I'm thinking Olympics in '88," she said.

Thurston cagers roll; Cherry Hill tops Glenn

Junior guard Scott Filipiak poured in 27 points Thursday to lift Redford Thurston to its six consecutive basketball victory without a loss, a 64-50 Alumni Night triumph over Dearborn.

The loss puts the Pioneers at 1-4. After leading by four points after one period of play, Filipiak ignited a 19-11 second quarter scoring spurt to give the Eagles a comfortable 41-29 halftime advantage. Thurston was able to protect that lead the rest of the night.

Raffi Kostegian, another junior guard, added 11 points for the winners, while 6-foot-7 Dan Starinsky contributed eight points and 11 rebounds.

Scott Wieler and Will Lianos led Dearborn with 17 and 12 points, respectively.

CHERRY HILL 65, JOHN GLENN 59: The Rockets dropped the consolation game in the Inkster Cherry Hill Holiday Tournament Thursday as the Merriman brothers, Mark and Mike, combined for 38 points.

Three Glenn players scored in double figures — Mike Baydarian (18), Jeff Hawley (14) and Ron Taig (10).

Glenn, now 4-3 overall, led 29-27 at the half, but the Spartans came storming back with a 20-14 scoring spurt in the third quarter and never looked back.

"Our big guy — Mario Grazulis — picked up his fourth foul early in the third quarter and that hurt us," said Glenn coach Gordie Davis. "They controlled the boards — that was the main thing."

"And we didn't have the intensity like we had the night before. We had real good defensive intensity against Wayne (a 49-40 loss). We didn't quite have that edge tonight."

CKLW field is 'Classic'

Some of the state's top basketball talent will be on display this week in the CKLW Holiday Classic at U-D's Calihan Hall.

The tournament starts at 6 p.m. Thursday with Redford Bishop Borgess (2-1) facing Sterling Heights Stevenson (3-1). The second game pits Class C power Detroit DePorres (2-0) and Southgate Aquinas (4-0) at 8 p.m.

The consolation and championship game is scheduled for 6 and 8 p.m. Friday.

Tickets are $3 per person each night.

Borgess is led by point-guard Joe Gregory and forward Gary Diekan. Sterling Heights is led by 6-foot-3 junior Jeff McCool, rated one of the top shooters in Michigan.

DePorres is led by junior point guard Negele Knight and 6-7 Ben Morton, bound for Illinois State. Aquinas guard Reggie Smith, meanwhile, comes into the game with a 34 point-per-game scoring average.

Schoolcraft reaches out

The only stipulation is that certain areas are closed during class periods.

GANS ALREADY has new horizons established for community involvement. Local businesses are next on his agenda, with a plan for corporate memberships.

"We will design programs individually for them," Gans said of the new venture. "We are working on an arrangement that will help a company do something for their employees. The company pays some, and the employees pay some."

The money these programs bring in helps defray some of the athletic department's costs. But many of the special events are break-even propositions.

Their value isn't in the money generated. Like all the community-related events at Schoolcraft, their benefit comes in keeping the community aware of what Schoolcraft has to offer.

Charity tournaments lend a helping hand

With the passing of the holiday season, the bowlers now are looking forward to charity tournaments that will run through the remainder of the season.

The largest and most important is the Bowling Charities, which is sponsored by the proprietors throughout the state and each year passes the $100,000 mark.

While that is going on statewide, there will be several large charities in the metropolitan area. Topping this list is the annual Heart Tournament, followed by the event that produces a tidy sum for the lung association and muscular dystrophy.

The bowlers dwell on their long-time slogan: "Bowlers Never Forget."

WONDERLAND: Breaking the 700 barrier, which is common in the classic, is now spreading to the other leagues. This week, the mixed league placed two members in the 700 club when Bud Gignac rolled an even 700 and Dennis Lindenmen closed with a 290 for 705.

The classic was not to be denied and matched this pair when Jim Timmerman rolled 246, 243 and 243 for 732, and Steve Miller used a 268 opener for a 703 series.

in the pocket by W. W. Edgar

MERRI-BOWL: The closest finish of the week came in the senior house league. When the final pin fell, Gary Tis was high with 663, only three pins better than Hank Crumit.

WOODLAND LANES: The annual family doubles, a feature of the holiday season, is drawing a large entry and may be the biggest ever. The trio league again furnished a close finish when Fred LaPointe set the pace with a 289 single game, which helped him to a 642. But that was four pins short of Mark Payne's 646, tops for the night. Meanwhile, in the hits and misses league, Donna Herrin showed the way with a high game of 234.

WESTLAND BOWL: Fran Derkatch led the parade in the ladies classic with a 235 game in a 625 series. Karen Tooney was next in line with a 601. In the Wednesday league, Kevin Conning set the pace with a 278 game in a 663 series. His 278 was 115 pins over his average. In the tri-city men's league, Dave Poshkat was top man with a 691.

GARDEN LANES: Barbara Smith had an easy time taking top honors in the ladies classic, when she found the range for a 633 series. Her closest rival was Marilyn Lurek, who had a 602. Andy Van Keith rolled the oddest series in quite a while when he linked games of 171, 172, 173 for 516. In the senior house league, Dave Leja showed the way with 616.

COUNTRY LANES: Dorothy Fox led the ladies' parade with a 578. She had a six-pin edge over Audrey Sirola, who closed with a 572.

Oregon does best with the pinot noir grape

The fledgling Oregon wine industry, surrounded as it is by viticultural giants to its north and south, has but one weapon: quality. In an environment often considered hostile to grape production, a small group of farmers and winemakers are gradually developing a unique, almost cottage-like collective industry.

Oregon is a state of varied climates, none of them conducive to mass production. Its yields-per-acre are astonishingly small and, in poor years, sometimes almost destructive to the growers' efforts. But, when the sun shines in certain summers and the grapes ripen as they can, wonderful things happen.

Wonderful things happen mostly to the pinot noir grape in Oregon. It is a grape with a most quixotic response to cultivation. In off years it breaks the hearts and pocketbooks of loyal burgundians. Most years it defies the efforts of all but a handful of California winemakers.

It is a question of grape maturation, getting sufficient maturity to allow the velvety fruit flavors to be realized. When they do not develop, because of clouds, overcropping or a myriad of other hazards, the wine is light and rather uninspired. When they do, pinot noir can produce some of the most elegant and esteemed wine known in this world.

THERE ARE micro-climates in the Oregon terrain that allow, in good years, all the right things to come together. In poorer years, the wine is less elegant but almost always worth drinking. These regions are now being confirmed, but it is a slow process. The industry, for all practical considerations, is but 20 years old and most of its practitioners have been there considerably less.

The most notable region to date is the area some half-hour west of Portland and then south for another 20 miles, down nearly to Salem. Some dozen wineries are there, most of them making pinot noir as their chief effort.

Among them is Eyrie Vineyards. Owner Dave Lett, the grand old man of wine

the Oregon industry, and probably its most esteemed member, began in the mid-'60s his quest to make great pinot noirs. His efforts, like all the more successful ones, are often described as "elegant" and "velvety," possessing a kind of earthy taste of the soils in which they are grown.

They are complex and alluring, not bold and dynamic or rich. The latter attributes come with very ripe pinot noir grapes, a condition neither possible nor desirable in the cold, rainy climate of Oregon. Lett's efforts are often standards by which vintages are judged.

Other area producers of merit are Adelsheim Vineyards, Elk Cove Vineyards and Poni Vineyards. (If negotiations work out, it is likely that small amounts of all four of these will be entering Michigan stores before too long. More on that later.)

SOMEWHAT LESS successful but noteworthy are the additional regional winery names of Tualatin, Shafer, Oak Knoll (also makers of excellent fruit wines), Sokol-Blosser, Knudsen-Erath and Hidden Springs (whose no-longer-available 1980 issue was among the greatest pinot noirs I have ever tasted).

South of these wineries, in the north-south ribbon of wine-growing regions that runs from Portland to Roseburg (the whole area is called the Willamette Valley), the efforts with pinot noir are less memorable. Indeed, some are rather sad. Oregon becomes warm there and other grapes are more responsive.

But before leaving the Portland area, mention must be made of the exceptional chardonnays that also are grown there. The style is light and crisp, more in the style of a macon than a white burgundy. French oak is used almost exclusively for aging and some fermentation, but in Oregon this does not result in the overly oaked wines one sees too frequently in California.

Farther down the valley, beginning about at Salem, the more successful wines are the white riesling, gewurztraminer and cabernet sauvignon. Some sauvignon blanc is also grown here, but Washington State remains today the source for most of these grapes.

Serendipity Cellars, Alpine Vineyards, Fogeron Vineyard, Hinman Vineyards, Henry Winery, Hillcrest Vineyards and Bjelland Vineyards all do good things with these grapes and bring credit to their industry. One of them even produces a zinfandel of merit, and Serendipity makes a memorable marechal foch, the red hybrid that is so popular in Michigan wineries.

BELOW ROSEBURG, the Cascade and Coast Range mountains close in and the Willamette no longer offers its lush land and protected climate. With one notable exception, there are no more Oregon wine regions below this area.

That exception, however, is a curious and fascinating one. And, due to its isolation, little is known about it in the more populous regions to the north. Just above the California border, in mountainous terrain of great beauty, two young wineries are growing and making a wide variety of varietal wines in a complex of micro-climates: cabernet, merlot, riesling, chardonnay, zinfandel and gewurztraminer.

The local growing charts suggest this region may be one for the future, when Oregon begins to realize the great potential that is now only being explored.

Because they bear lightly and are hard to grow, Oregon wines are not expensive and, presumably, never will be. Indeed, only two wineries produce anything in 1.5-liter bottles. This is all precious stuff they make, none of it coming from vast acreage as in the warm climates of central California and eastern Washington. But the promise is there for those who love Oregon's best product: quality wine.

The Red Fox offers a gourmet dinner by Master Chef Leopold and dancing to the Peter Levine Trio for $85 per couple.

Madrigal dinner

Schoolcraft College's recent series of three Christmas Madrigal Dinners was a sellout, on campus in Livonia. Festivities included serving the wassail and toasting, presentation of a real Boar's Head and a feast highlighted by roast prime ribs of beef and yorkshire pudding. The meal was prepared by the college's culinary arts students, under the direction of Master Chef Robert Breithaupt. After flaming of the figgy pudding, guests concluded the meal with English Fruit Pudding and Rum Sauce. Entertainment included harpsichord music and a concert by the Madrigal Singers.

Wassail coming

Oakway Symphony Orchestra's second Wassail will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Madonna College's Residence Hall dining room at Schoolcraft and Levan roads in Livonia. There will be entertainment and a menu featuring whole cornish hens with apple dressing and walnuts, and plum pudding. Tickets are $20 per person. For reservations, call 476-8544 or 591-5046.

Special entrees

Foxy's of Troy and Foxy's by Machus in Rochester will have nine special entrees available, in addition to their regular menus on New Year's Eve. The specials range from Baked Scallops de Jonghe at $9.95 to Steak Au Poivre at $13.50.

Bronx tenement during the Great Depression. It examines fundamental family relationships, drives, dreams and the will to survive.

Reservations are being taken for a gala New Year's Eve performance of "Awake and Sing" at 9 p.m. The show will be followed by a champagne reception with hors d'oeuvres supplied by Greektown proprietors.

the movies
Dan Greenberg

Moscow sets scene for thriller done in classic manner

"Gorky Park" is good entertainment, an exciting, fast-paced detective thriller cast in the old mold but polished with a new twist. The setting is contemporary Moscow, the characters Russian.

"Gorky Park" has all the elements of conventional detective movies. It opens with the discovery of three snow-covered corpses. As usual: no clothes, no identification. The unusual twist: no fingerprints, no faces. To prevent identification, their faces have been hacked off.

While that sounds gory, and the idea certainly is, the filming is handled in such a way (brief takes) that it isn't as gross as it sounds.

If one can be offhanded about that sort of gore, plus seven other murders, then "Gorky Park" is only moderately violent. Because of this violence, the film is rated R. Its sexual component is modest.

THE FILM IS primarily a thriller about people. Undaunted by shadowy threats from the KGB, the hero overcomes incredible odds, extensive corruption and a suspiciously indifferent girl to discover whodunit (and what they done) in the best film-detective tradition.

Naturally, the hero, militia (police) inspector Arkady Renko (William Hurt), has a trusty sidekick, Pasha (Michael Elphick). The KGB is led by the ominous Maj. Pribluda (Rikki Fulton). Like all good thrillers, "Gorky Park" has a chief prosecutor, Iamskoy (Ian Bannen), big money and a beautiful girl, Irina (Joanna Pacula), who links all the elements.

Since this is Moscow, the mysterious "foreigners" are Americans, fur importer Jack Osborne (Lee Marvin) and New York policeman William Kirwill (Brian Dennehy).

In the golden age of Hollywood, Peter Lorre would have been featured as the nasty little informer-blackmarketeer, Golodkin, very well-played by Alexei Sayle in his first feature film. As a matter of fact, the whole production smacks of Dashiell Hammett and Humphrey Bogart. The fresh, entertaining quality of "Gorky Park" comes with an assist from V.I. Lenin.

The film may picture Moscow and Russian attitudes as Western interests might have them, rather than as they really are. But "Gorky Park" does depict the corrupt underside of Soviet society not generally announced by Pravda. Its sharp dialogue is characterized by the black humor of Eastern-European, anti-Soviet political wit.

THE OMINOUS, ever-present KGB threat also is evident as a fact of Soviet life, one which leads to much of the film's tension and excitement.

Certainly the instant rebuff the producers received to their request to film in Moscow is indicative of official Soviet displeasure. The producers were undaunted and gathered sufficient information, photographs and artifacts from Russia so that their on-location shooting in Finland and Sweden is highly realistic.

Michael Apted's direction and Dennis Potter's screenplay continually propel the film forward, keeping the audience on the edge of the seat tensely awaiting the next event.

One nice touch is the use of dialect. Rather than the cumbersome, Russian-accented English, which might have turned out comic, the foreign flavor is heightened with a classy but subdued variety of British accents.

The constant bass pounding of the musical score and the realistic, richly detailed photography combine with incisive dialogue, excellent acting and directing to make "Gorky Park" an exciting two hours of film entertainment.

Detective Arkady Renko (William Hurt) and Irina are thrown together in an effort to find the killers.
