Schools proclaim summer tax a success

By Kallie Bila staff writer

With 93 percent of the summer taxes collected, and more than $700,000 worth of savings, Plymouth-Canton Community School's dual tax collection has been deemed a success by its orga-

"There were some bugs," said Richard Egli, administrative assistant for community relations, "but it was well worthwhile for the district."

The primary benefit from the dual property tax collection was the elimination of the need to borrow large sums of money, Egli said.

Instead of the $16 million borrowed last year, only $6 million was needed this year because half of the property taxes were collected July through mid- ant director of finance.

Egli said the percentage of taxes collected was "actually better than we anticipated. It was about the same as in the winter.'

Winter tax bills went out to residents Dec. 15 and are due by Feb. 15. A total of 23,000 bills were sent out in July.

Although less money was available to invest because less was borrowed, Egli said there is a greater possibility of investing on a daily basis because of the additional collection in the sum-

Also, because the school district collected taxes in three of the six communities, they had use of the money immediately, said Diane Barnes, assist-

After the 1st and 15th of the month, a local governmental unit has 10 business days in which to turn the money over to the school district, a factor that would obviously slow investment possibilities. Barnes said.

THE SUMMER TAX collection also saved the taxpayers one-half mill because money was levied early, in time for the October payment on the debt levy, Barnes said.

Through the First of America Bank-Plymouth, school district officials collected taxes this summer in Canton, Plymouth and Northville townships. while the city of Plymouth, Salem Township and Northville Township collected the taxes themselves.

Raymond K. Hoedel, assistant superintendent of business for the district, said he is pleased with the collection of $16.4 million of the $18.2 million that should be collected in taxes for the school district.

Among the factors Hoedel attributed to the success of the summer collection was the good communication process.

Overall, people were extremely receptive to the summer tax collection, Egli said, adding there were a few "bugs" due to the newness of the pro-

Even though a four-page pamphlet was distributed to residents along with their July billing, Egli said some taxpayers did not understand the new tax bill, or were unaware of it.

Also, there were several "clerical errors" in which some property value estimates were incorrect, and the school district could not immediately correct those assesments. However, Egli said no major problems arose.

"Initially some people were upset; they didn't like it until they under-stood," he said. "Then many said it was just good management and they won-dered why we didn't do it sooner."

BARNES SAID there have been additional residents paying the summer tax within the past few weeks, since the December billing has been sent out and they realized they had only half their

When they saw their bill, they saw how low it was. They knew something was wrong," she said

Barnes added that 13,000 of the bill recipients are making mortgage payments in which taxes are collected in an escrow account and so their tax payments probably were not affected by the summer tax collection.

Some 44 percent of the school districts in Wayne County also have a dual tax collection process, and Plymouth-Canton will continue with its next year,

'We had good response because when people understood this, they realized the benefits," he said. "People are happy now because their bill isn't so

Bitter weather bites Plymouth

Low temperatures take toll on cars, water mains

The bitter cold weather that has gripped most of the nation during the past few days is continuing to wreak havoc in the Plymouth-Canton area.

The sub-zero temperatures, coupled with wind chill factors dipping as low as minus 50 degrees, have caused a va-riety of problems in the local area, in-cluding water main breaks, stalled cars

Canton firefighters worked for more than an hour Friday to extinguish a shed fire at 44754 Michigan Ave. The fire was caused by overloaded portable heaters being used to keep a water pump from freezing, according to Fire Chief Mel Paulun.

The Canton Fire Department also responded to two minor fires last week: a garage fire on Glencove Court caused by fireplace ashes being placed in an improper container, and a chimney fire on Gordon Street.

'We really thank God there wasn't

Like Canton, the Plymouth and Plymouth Township fire departments are thankful, but for a different reason. Neither department reported any

To keep the good record going, Plymouth Township Fire Chief Larry Groth advises homeowners to remove dried-out Christmas trees. If the tree has dried-out needles, it could become a fire hazard, he said.

Homeowners also should keep an eye on their furnaces during the cold spell, according to Capt. Bob Degen of the Plymouth Fire Department.

To prevent fires, the furnance filters should be cleaned along with the burners inside the furnance, he said. And with snow in the forecasts, De-gen reminds residents to help keep fire

THE COLD WEATHER has brought good and bad news to local police departments. The freezing temperatures are being cited for a drop in crime, and an increase in assists to motorists, according to Canton Sgt. Alex Wilson. Local police have been keeping an ing to the weather," said Plymouth Police Chief Ralph White.

The Plymouth department transported an increased number of stranded motorists during the holiday weekend, White said.

'We're aware of the situation, and that's why we keep an eye open for them. In this type of weather we will not pass a stalled car that is occupied,"

However, just getting the car started proved to be a problem for many motorists. The wait for a tow truck in this area averaged between two and five hours during the weekend.

Alberts Automotive, providing AAA emergency road service in the Plymouth area, reports answering some 250 calls over a two-day period.

tanks filled with quality products, check the battery and anti-freeze and get a tune-up.

The majority of the starting problems Swatosh encountered were the result of improper maintenance. THE BITTER COLD also is being blamed for an increased number of water main breaks, according to Tom Wolfe, assistant supervisor of the Plymouth DPW. The Plymouth DPW repaired four breaks between Thursday and Tuesday. All of the breaks were caused by the record cold temperatures, Wolfe said.

Timely reminders to bundle up have kept the number of frostbite cases at a minimum, according to Ann Schreckengost, emergency room nurse at Oakwood Hospital's Canton Center.

As of Tuesday, the clinic had treated

Schreckengost advises people to dress properly for the cold and watch for symptoms of frostbite. Those symptoms include whiteness of the skin and pain, she said.

If frostbite occurs, she recommends gradual warming of the affected areas with warm water. Exposed areas of skin are prone to frostbite, as well as

Don't let another New Year's Eve slip by and leave you stranded in front of your television set, struggling to keep your eyes focused on Times Square and the silver ball.

Several area restaurants and taverns are offering big doings for the evening but suggest you plan ahead and make reservations.

The Plymouth Hilton Hotel has party tickets available for $75 which include dinner for two, four drink tickets, dancing and live entertainment. A champagne toast at midnight is also part of the package. A cash bar will be open throughout the evening.

The Hilton overnight stay is full, but reservations for the party can be made in person at the main desk at 14707 Northville Road.

The Plymouth Landing restaurant, 340 N. Main, is holding open house with no cover charge or minimum. Dinner will be on a first come, first served basis. The regular menu will be simplified although many items will still be offered. Hours are 4 p.m. to 4 a.m.

The Mayflower Hotel, 827 W. Ann Arbor Trail, will be serving dinner in their main dining room by reservation only. Prices range from $8.95 to $14.95.

Across the street at the Mayflower Meeting House a buffet will be offered from 7-7:30 p.m. and again from 9-9:30 p.m. for $12.95. A jazz pianist will per-form (included in the price) at the 9 p.m. serving only. The Mayflower buffet will have a cash bar.

Regular dinner and prices are at the Ann Arbor Road House in Plymouth. Reservations will be taken for 5-8 p.m. seatings; after that dinners will be on a first come, first served basis. The Road House, 47660 Ann Arbor Road, will be open until 4 a.m.

Jim Mather's Mr. Steak, on the corner of Ford and Sheldon in Canton, will be open until midnight. No reservations are needed to dine. They will be offering a Steak Oscar meal for $9.95 just finished its annual Red Kettle fund-raising drive. About 450 area families will receive holiday-meal food baskets, about the same number as last In addition, Salvation Army staff and volunteers have packed and delivered gifts of candy, fruit, toiletries and small clothing items to 2,900 people living in area nursing homes, psychiatric facilities and prisons in the western suburbs.

Each month, the Salvation Army branch distributes an average of 100 food baskets, helps people apply for home-heating grants and distributes government surplus cheese, milk and butter to low-income families.

MOST OF the clients are unemployed people who have exhausted their benefits, or young, unskilled or year that we would like to meet," Harfoot said. Both Bill and Sue have deep ties to the Salvation Army, with affiliation dating for several generations.

Harfoot, a former Detroit high school math teacher, decided several years ago to obtain training to become an ordained officer in the Salvation Army. The couple received their training together in Chicago and moved to western Wayne County eight years ago. They work as a team. Both hold the rank, or title, of captain

For both of us, it has been our church home for our entire lives," Harfoot said. "Being a Salvation Army officer is much like being called clergy it's viewed as a calling, a religious commitment."

ONE OF Harfoot's long-term goals is to spearhead some "character-building" projects, such as scouting and day and week camps. 'From my point of view, we haven't done our job if we have just given food," Harfoot said. "If we aren't alert to ways we can help them in other ways, we are not doing our job. His hope - one he sees fulfilled quite often - is for formerly needy people to get back on their feet and start giving time and money to help others.

Meanwhile, Harfoot finds it exciting working with volunteers, service clubs and people who want to help others.

We see the generous side of the community," Harfoot said. "The community is rather exciting. In one day, I could be involved with some of the wealthiest people in town, and in the same day be involved with some of the Oakland Circuit Judge George La Plata dismissed contempt of court charges against nine of the "Williams 53" anti-nuclear demonstrators Tues-

"This court is not satisfied with the evidence shown here that the defendants knew they were in violation of the injunction," La Plata said.

This court notes that State Police trooper (Debbie) Lapp testified that the injunction was posted and there was talk of the injunction at the Sunday meeting and that it was announced with a bullhorn at Williams twice. But the court is not certain that the nine defendants acknowledged the injunc-

Williams International had prosecuted the contempt charge as a civil case, in addition to the trespassing and conspiracy charges filed by Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson.

Luther Lincoln—a founding father—kin of Abraham

Sometimes the old dreams are forgotten and the dreamers fade away. But there is one we should remember. A long, long time ago in 1825 there was a young man in our tow. named Luther Lincoln - a brave and hopeful man with a dear wife and two children.

I have chosen to resurrect Luther Lincoln because I think he is worthy of our remembrance. He should be remembered in this place because he helped to build it. He was one of the founding fathers of our town. And what is even more, I think, he should be remembered because he was a human being with a mind and spirit unlike any

LUTHER LINCOLN of Plymouth, Mich., 1825, was not unlike his greatgrandfather Thomas Lincoln (1635) of Bare Cove, Plymouth Colony,

Both Lincolns were millers and farmers and both were not afraid to challenge the unknown. They were seekers, these Lincolns, always looking for a better place - over the rainbow.

Before we begin the saga of Lincoln let us try to understand his "roots" those intangible forces which can shape a man or a woman - a person. These forces are his heritage and sometimes they may govern his life and determine his destiny. So it was with Luther Lin-

There were Lincolns in Norfolk from time immemorial and their name was variously spelled. Among the variants are: Lenckhome, Lencome, Linckhorn, Linckhone, Linckorn, Lincoll, Limcolm, Lincolne, Lincon, Lincorne, Linckcolm, Linckhornew, Linkok, Lyncolm, Linkornen, Lyncolne, and Lynkon.

The Lincoln name was a common name. Some of them were said to have been descendants of a distinguished family of Lincoln. Elizabeth de Clinton, the Duchess of Lincoln, took a particular interest in the Plymouth Colony, and her chaplain planned to accompany the Pilgrims to America. However that may be, our interests are with plain Thomas Lincoln, miller and farmer, of the area of Hingham, Norfolk, England.

THOMAS CAME to America in 1633 or 1634 (authorities differ on the exact date) with his wife, two children, many neighbors and friends and Lincoln rela-

They risked their lives and all they possessed in a leaky, old ship which barely made it past the rocks in Charleston's harbor. But any harbor was better than the turmoil and trouble they left behind them in England.

The 1600s were not the most auspicious time to look for peace in this world. The interminable Thirty Year War was grinding away on the continent and England was wrestling with the intolerable tyranny of the Tudors. The high-handed policies of King James inspired the Pilgrims to look for a new life in a free land and so the Plymouth colony was born.

James died in 1625 and his son and heir, Charles I, continued his father's policies and added a few nuances of his own. Charles, whose greed knew no bounds, thought little of finding devious ways of stealing from the public. He was blessed with his father's inflated notion of royal power and raised money by various means. He even went so far as to revise obsolete feudal laws so that he might collect from all who disobeyed. And he forced wealthy people to apply for a knighthood so that he could charge them exorbitant fees for their titles. He forced judges to increase fines and to arrest people on trumpedup criminal charges.

Then Charles levied taxes on ships and shipping - an outrage to every Englishman. He tried to force the Episcopal system of church government upon the Puritans and the Scotch Presbyterians. The result of all this was armed rebellion and the outbreak of civil war. January 30, 1649, was the end of the road for King Charles. Oliver Cromwell witnessed his execution on a common jail stand in front of his old Whitehall Palace. All England rejoiced except for a few diehard loyalists and their minions.

But long before this welcome event occurred the Lincolns of Norfolk had fled their familiar fields to seek peace in America. Thomas Lincoln and his family were in the vanguard of a group which left Hingham in the summer of

The Lincolns were a respectable, middle class family and the baptismal and property records of Hingham testify to this. They must have been pleased to have on board their ship the young Rev. Peter Hobart who was an intellectual, a scholar and a civic leader in the community. He graduated from the University of Cambridge in 1625. There were opportunities for Hobart even in Charles' England, but he preferred the company of his townsmen and the freedom of America.

In June 1635 we find Hobart living in

Helen Gilbert

Charleston, Mass., and preparing to join the Lincolns and others of his old Hingham group at Bare Cove on the south of Massachusetts Bay. (Bare Cove was so-called because the rocks on shore were exposed at low tide). Under Hobart's leadership, Thomas Lincoln and his friends drew for home lots on Sept. 18, 1635.

There were 26 lots drawn and Thomas Lincoln was lucky in the draw. Granted an excellent location for a house lot and five acres for a farm and mill on the river, his land was near Main Street which today is called South Street. Later he added considerable acreage to his holdings.

Thomas Lincoln, highly regarded by the settlers, was a successful miller. Bare Cove became Hingham because Thomas Lincoln and Rev. Hobart and others wanted to remember their old which was strongly fortified, was regarded as a safe place to be in event of another Indian raid. But the town did have an adequate blockhouse and a volunteer militia.

The town had four Thomas Lincoln's whom they distinguished by occupation: Thomas, the weaver; Thomas, the miller; Thomas, the husbandman; Thomas, the cooper. All were related. So Hingham has many Lincolns today.

Thomas and his second wife, Elizabeth Harvey Streit (widow of Francis Streit) had seven children. Among them was Thomas Jr. who was baptized by the Rev. Hobart on Feb. 6, 1637.

PERHAPS TO MEET the needs of his growing family, or perhaps as the result of some local dispute, Thomas moved his family and mill to Taunton before 1650. His will states that he was home in England. And the Lincoln mill, 80 in 1683, the year he died in Taunton. But he is not forgotten.

The town of Hingham, Plymouth Colony, has a lovely old Lincoln Street that leads down to the area where the mill used to be, and near there is a charming old house open to the public. It has been owned and lived in by nine generations of Lincolns beginning with Perez who settled in Hingham in 1633.

Another distinguished house in this old town is that of Samuel Lincoln, ancestor of Abraham. It was erected in 1807 and designed by Charles Bullfinch, a noted colonial architect. These places are well worth seeing. Another place I enjoyed is at 19 Lincoln Street, part of the "Ordinary," an ancient pub built in 1650. While you are there, look at the nearby cemetery which is the resting place for many Lincolns including Governor Levi, and old General Benjamin Lincoln of Revolutionary War fame. So there always will be Lincoln memorabilia in Hingham, but we must follow our genealogical train a few miles to the southwest and the town of Taunton and its nearby town of Norton. That is where we will find Luther Lincoln and his family.

F.W. HUTT'S HISTORY History of Bristol County states that the Lincolns (Thomas Sr. and Jr.) were among 35 persons who paid in 1652 some 12 shillings each to have the right to all future divisions in Taunton. The money was for public use and to "Extinguish" Indian titles

Another old story, widely believed, is that King Philip (Massasoit's son) and some sachems of his tribe met at Lincoln's mill in 1675 and passed the peace pipe. But it was to no avail. King Philip's War was one of the bloodiest of that savage era.

Space and time limit our genealogical survey of the Lincoln family. We do know that President Abraham Lincoln descended from this family through Samuel and Mordecai, cousins of our Thomas Lincoln Sr. Abraham's geneal-

Miss Alice Wyman Lincoln of Medford, Mass. was an authority on the Thomas branch of the family and she traced Luther's descent as follows:

(1) Thomas Sr. (whose story has been outlined); his second wife, Elizabeth Harvey was the mother of Thomas Jr. (2) Thomas Jr. married Mary Austin and raised a large family in Taunton of whom (3)son Jonah or Jonathan, who died Jan. 15, 1773 and left a son, (4) Luther who married Rachel Ma comber, Feb. 9, 1792 in Berkley; they had, among others, a son (5) Luthe, Jr., who was born Oct. 19, 1794 and was baptized May 19, 1803. This is our Luther Lincoln of Plymouth, Grand Rapids, and Lincoln Lake.

There is a record in Volume 22 of the New England Historic and Genealogical Record which states that Keziah Williams of Taunton married Luther Lincoln of Norton. The date of the marriage is not given. But because of other evidence and place, as well as the names, I feel certain that she is Lincoln's wife. The Lincolns named their daughter Keziah. Her mother's genealogy is clearly stated, going back to the Piercet Eddy and Williams families.

Used car dealers lose 1st tax appeal

By Margaret Neubacher staff writer

Used car dealers have lost round one of their fight against two state laws designed to increase new-car sales.

Oakland Circuit Court Judge Hilda Gage last week denied dealers an injunction to block two amendments to the sales tax laws, slated to take effect

THE LAWS will apply the state sales tax only to the difference between the value of the trade-in car and the new

Under the new laws, a person trading in a car valued at $4,000 and buying a new car with a sticker price of $10,000 would pay tax on the $6,000 difference. In such a case, the 4-percent sales tax would be $240.

In the past, the buyer would have paid $400 sales tax on the full price of the new model, regardless of whether he had traded in his old car.

Gage told the used car dealers that further hearings in the case are possible. But she added, "I think your activities are better directed at the Legisla-

"THIS WAS a hasty effort," said Steve Slankster of the Committee for a Fair Used Car Trade-In Law. "We were working with the Legislature in Lansing to get things changed. But the session ran out before things were resolved, so we quickly filed suit for injunctive relief."

The used car dealers' attorney, Thomas McGinnis of Birmingham, said he will make an emergency appeal to the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The committee is counting on the swiftness of an "emergency appeal" to force a decision from the appeals court before the laws can take effect.

Slankster said the used car dealers will continue their fight in Lansing as well. They are working to have Senate Bill 491 brought up for a vote. This bill would create a voucher system method of providing a tax benefit to people who sell their cars to used car dealers.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY general Richard Roesch, representing the state, held little hope for the success of an emergency appeal.

"The Legislature can tax professions as they like," Roesch said. "For example, they don't tax the retail sale of le-when almost everything is 10% to 40% off regular prices.

At Workbench, we don't have lots of storewide sales. Just one a year. But it's a dilly. Because we mark down all our best stuff. Not just a few things. Not even just a lot of things. But almost everything. And mark down is all we do. Because, unlike a lot of other places, we don't bring in so-called specials or things no one wants or that were over-priced in the first place. At Workbench we just go through the store with our red pencil and slash prices. Which means that right now you'll find Workbench's best at 10% to 40% less than you'd expect to pay.

That's right, 10% to 40% off on butcher block tables, upholstery. storage systems, bookcases, carts, music benches, desks and chair after chair after chair. Even the already reduced "Foreign Policy" prices on most of our imports have been further price cut for this sale.

Of course, there are a few things currently oversold that we can't put on sale. But, odds are, the great things you've been promising vourself to get are here.

Is there a catch? Only time. Because we have only one storewide sale a year. So hurry.

Because if you wait too long, you'll have to wait a whole year for our sale to come around again. And that's more time than anyone should spend waiting to spend less.

The house doctor calls

Energy auditor does work on the spot

Second of two articles
By Penny Wright
special writer

Most doctors treat patients with bandages, pills and hypodermic syr-

Dell Schott cures his ailing patients with shots of caulking compound, bands of weather-stripping, and selected doses of insulation.

Schott is a new breed of energy conservation professional called a "house doctor." His mission is to go into a "sick," heat-leaking house, diagnose how the heat is escaping and administer on-the-spot cures.

The house doctor concept provides a new alternative to the widely available utility home energy audits.

"THE MAIN difference between the utility company energy audit and our visit is that we deal in remedies," said Schott, who is with Princeton Energy Partners in Troy.

Remedies , may include sealing plumbing pipe penetrations, furnace tuneups, and installation of such energy saving devices as set-back thermostats and flue dampers.

"We want to avoid giving homeowners a list of things to do," Schott emphasized. "We do the work to assure the ducing energy bills? quality of repairs and the energy sav-

The house doctor approach to home energy conservation was hatched in the early '70s by a Princeton University re- average size home — in two years or search team. Its studies revealed a big difference between theoretical models of a home's heat loss and what actually was being wasted.

The solution: Send a specially trained team equipped with the latest heat-sensing gear into a home and maximize energy savings.

"THE SPECIALIZED equipment allows me to find areas of heat loss overlooked by other audits," Schott said.

Typically, Schott will use a large fan, called a "blower door," to depressurize the house. Then, aided by an infrared viewer that senses surface temperaviewer that senses surface temperatures, he will locate cracks and insulation bypasses which allow outside air to infiltrate the house.

"Due to the nature of the construc-tion, houses in this area will lead threequarters to one air change per hour," he said. In layman's terms, it means nearly all the volume of air in a house would be exchanged with new air every

According to Schott, these air infiltration losses account for 40 percent of the heating bill. His efforts are concentrated on plugging these air leaks or "shell tightening."

HOW EFFECTIVE is the visit in re-

"In most cases, we can save 15 to 25 ercent of the total utility bill," said Schott. "Generally, the savings pay back the cost — $450 to $500 for an

A key element to the house doctor approach is completing the conserva-tion work during the visit.

Another version of this work-type home energy audit is offered by the Ecology Center in Ann Arbor. And the concept is spreading to county govern-

Record gas sendout—CP

Subfreezing temperatures during the Christmas holiday weekend gave Consumers Power Co. a new 12-month peak for gas sendout, the second such record in three days.

During the 24-hour period ended at 9 p.m., Dec. 26, the company dispatched 2.185-billion cubic feet of gas to its 1.1-million gas customers. Gas sendout is typically measured in 24-hour periods.

The previous 12-month high was established three days earlier, during the one-day period ending at 3 p.m. Dec. 23. However, Consumers Power's gas control superintendent, Marvin L. Gertz, said that the actual record changed several times during the long weekend.

"Colder-than-normal temperatures, coupled with commercial and industrial activity, helped give us the new record on the 23rd," Gertz said. "But the numbers kept climbing throughout the weekend, despite the absence of large industrial loads."

Gertz said that gas supplies remain adequate to meet the rise in consumer demand for natural gas.

Observer & Eccentric NEWSPAPERS

By Margaret Neubache staff writer

Aspiring lawyers in Michigan are checked for good character and moral fitness before they are allowed to practice law in the state. The check is run, according to Southfield attorney Sheldon Larky, because the bar demands high standards of conduct from its members.

Yet since 1980, of the 4,500 potential lawyers the bar has checked, only two have been denied permission to take the bar exam because of their character or moral fitness, reported Dennis Donahue, chairman of the State Board of Law Examiners.

"I'd say 99.5 percent of the recommendations we get are favorable," Donahue said.

LARKY IS of 10 attorneys who volunteer their time to serve on the State Bar Character and Fitness Committee, Chaired by Troy attorney Robert Rosenfeld, the committee oversees behavior re-quirements of potential State Bar members by reviewing their applications to take the bar exam.

The board of law examiners is an arm of the Michigan Supreme Court and is independent of the State Bar Association, its principle task is to administer the State Bar seram. Admission to the State Bar to practice law requires passing the

The board hears recommendations from the State Bar Character and Fitness Committee, but it makes the final decisions regarding the exam applications. People denied by the board of examiners may appeal only to the state Supreme Court.

"We could easily gon year or two before we get a recommendation to dehy an applicant admission. Often the committee will recommend that the person wait a year or so to take the exam instead of flatly denying them the opportunity," Donahue said.

ACCORDING TO to bar procedure, law students applying for the exam submit an affidavit disclos-ing information which may have a bearing on their future performance as an attorney.

"The application asks if they've ever been a defendant, involved in a lawsuit, convicted of a crime, or had financial problems," Larky said.

"The applicant must submit fingergrints and the names of several character references. All of the information is checked out by our investigators." June McCollough, a former Lansing police offi-cer, is one of two investigators hired by the bar to scruntinize the applications. "The fingerprints are run down by the Michigan State Police and the FBI. We usually get our nega-tive information from these checks or from what the applicant has listed on their affidavit," McCollough said.

"We gather as much information as possible on applicants whose background involves matters of questionable behavior or criminal convictions. Then we pass the information along for review by one of the 10 local par committees for character and moral fitness."

AN APPLICANT called before a local committee may bring tharacter witnesses or an attorney.

If the character or moral fitness of the applicant is still in question, the application is passed to the state committee, said McCollough, who sits in on "The state committee meets once a month," McCollough said. "They have subpoena power to bring witnesses before them and place the burden on the applicant to overcome any negative findings by the investigators."

But according to Donahue, a state statute aimed at all professional character and moral fitness committees directs that persons should be judged by their "present abilities" to discharge the responsibilities of the profession. Donahue believes this has an indirect affect on what action the state bar committee may take — and may explain, in part, why nearly all applicants are accepted.

LARKY DISAGREES. "The way we gauge present fitness is by a person's past. Information about their past is considered now.

"A person is presumed to be not fit if they have been caught cheating on the bar exam, convicted of a heinous crime, spouse abuse or failure to pay child support." child support."

Donahue said approximately 1,500 persons apply to take the bar exam every year. The state committee reviews about 150 of those applications.

"There are times when we shouldn't arbitrarily reject a candidate because of his past. There may be mitigating circumstances," Ronsenfeld said.

"We don't want to present persons the house

"We don't want to prevent persons who have made mistakes in the past, but later reformed, from practicing law. A criminal record doesn't mean automatic rejection, but applicants who fail to disclose a criminal record have increased the likelihood that they will be rejected," he added. \

The committee will do advance character and fitness reviews for anyone who is attending or has been admitted to a law school in Michigan, Rosen-

McCOLLOUGH SAID very little of her time is spent on these kinds of advance investigations, but she feels the idea is a good one.

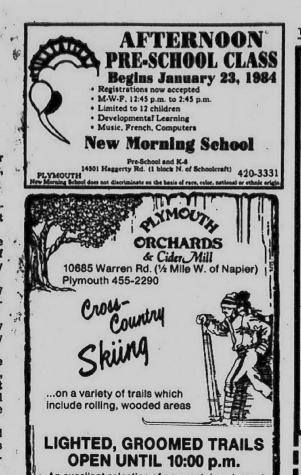

"I think the committee has a difficult decision turning down someone who has spent three years in law school.'

Larky said he enjoys his work on the committee, despite the regular evening meetings and volunteer time involved. "I feel I am performing a valuable service for the public and the bar association."

'1984'

T'S ALMOST here. 1984. The most famous and nervously anticipated year since 1000 AD, which, at the time, was expected to bring the end of the world.

George Orwell (1903-50), a British novelist and political essayist, made the year famous in his novel "1984." It was an example not of Utopia, the perfect society, but of a negative Utopia. And because Orwell picked a specific year when he wrote the book in 1948, his novel has been more memorable than such similar works as "We" and "Brave New World."

Orwell's tale is about a Londoner named Winston Smith, 39, who rewrites historical documents in the Ministry of Truth's Department of Records. Smith rebels, both politically and in a romantic fling with Julia. His rebellions are discovered. Before being vaporized, he is brainwashed into loving Big Brother, the Stalinesque chief of state and symbol of the Party.

Well, how true were Orwell's series of warnings and predictions?

Orwell correct on surveillance

ORWELL'S CHIEF claim to fame as a prognosticator rests on his warning that television could be not only a method of spreading information but a means of sur-

Ordinary Party members in "1984" could never switch off the camera watching their apartments, and inner Party members could turn it off for only 30 minutes. Even in the countryside, microphones everywhere allowed the Thought Police to keep tabs on people.

Modern stores are loaded with surveillance cameras. A few years ago there was a celebrated case in the metro area where department store "security" people even watched women in dressing rooms.

Public buildings such as the Federal Building and Frank Murphy Hall of Justice in Detroit have security checks for weapons and metallic objects before one can enter. Airport terminals have had such measures for years. Chiefly, they are a reaction to bombings and shootings. On balance, they are probably as protective of the public as they are onerous.

THE MOST annoying security precautions, however, occur not at governmental establishments, which Orwell dealt with, but at private sector establishments. The guards at apartment and condominium complexes are well known. The security system at an office building like Detroit Edison's downtown headquarters is nothing short of obnoxious. And industrial espionage is a booming industry.

It's true, cable television can enable a householder to have sensor devices linked to TV cables. When one isn't at home, cable TV can be used to scan the home every few seconds for intruders.

Yet the critical point is that the private citizen hires it done and pays for it voluntarily; Big Brother doesn't require it.

Technologically, Orwell's predictions have come true. In practice, however, the American citizen is still wonderfully free to live his own life in his own home.

IT IS ALMOST commonplace to credit Orwell with exposing the manipulation of language through doublespeak. He wrote at a time when our government was changing the name of the War Department to the Defense Department and when retailers were urging us to save money by spending it. It continues today as advocates of unilateral disarmament call themselves the Peace Movement.

Again, the point is that government alone does not manipulate the language. The private sector — and even social groups such as teen-agers — redefine words to suit their own interests.

Today's brand of doublethink is a pain to those of us who are language purists, but hardly a threat to human freedom.

. . . but off on bomb, bigness, economy

ORWELL WROTE at a time when bigness was "in." Cities, companies, machines, bombs, office buildings — bigger was automatically assumed to be better. He carried the trend to its logical conclusion in constructing his world of "1984."

And it hasn't turned out that way.
Orwell wrote of three supernations:
Oceania, which included the Americas and the United Kingdom plus South Africa; Eurasia, which comprised the northern part of the land mass from Portugal to the Bering Sea; and Eastasia, including China,
Japan and the Far East.

SINCE THE 1960s, fragmentation, not supernations, has been the rule.

Africa has become a Babel of tiny states. Great Britain has been threatened by a Scottish nationalist movement eager to hang onto North Sea oil. Canada undergoes tremendous stresses between Quebec and the western provinces. Pakistan fell apart, and Nigeria almost did.

Fragmentation continues in southeastern Michigan. After a wave of school consolidations in the 1940s and '50s, the propensity of people to hang onto tiny units of government exerted itself more strongly than ever. Rochester and Avon Township, Farmington and Farmington Hills, Northville city and township, Plymouth city and township, the balkanized multiplicity of governments around Birmingham and Royal Oak — all attest that the trend to bigness which Orwell assumed would continue indefinitely is dormant or dead.

We are unable to put together a regional system to handle water and sewerage services. The regional parks authority, founded in 1940, has given up trying to get more millage since then. SEMTA, the regional transportation system, is falling apart before our eyes because it can't win approval of any kind of local tax mechanisms.

IN ECONOMICS, Orwell went entirely awry. His economic system was based on the thinking of the 1930s, which held that consumption could never equal production without all sorts of governmental programs to stimulate consumer demand.

Orwell predicted the supernations would absorb excess production by engaging in perpetual, limited wars. "The problem was how to keep the wheels of industry turning without increasing the real wealth of the world. Goods must be produced, but they need not be distributed. And in practice, the only way of achieving this was by continuous warfare," he wrote.

In America, at least, no one is talking about underconsumption any more except possibly a few old UAW zealots. Modern America is overconsuming and underinvesting, with the lowest rate of personal savings in the industrialized world, economists say.

And the national defense budget is smaller as a percentage of our gross national product than in the early 1960s.

Orwell saw the supernations fighting wars for the labor power of northern Africa and southern Asia — "a bottomless reserve of cheap labor." It hasn't occurred.

But he wrote not a word about the battle for resources of the last 20 years — the oil and natural gas of the Middle East and Latin America, the industrial metals of South Africa, the key waterways of Suez. Panama, Gibraltar and the St. Lawrence.

THE SOCIETY Orwell envisioned frowned on marriage and sex except for reproduction. Party members' energies were to be channeled into patriotic fervor and hate-the-enemy rallies.

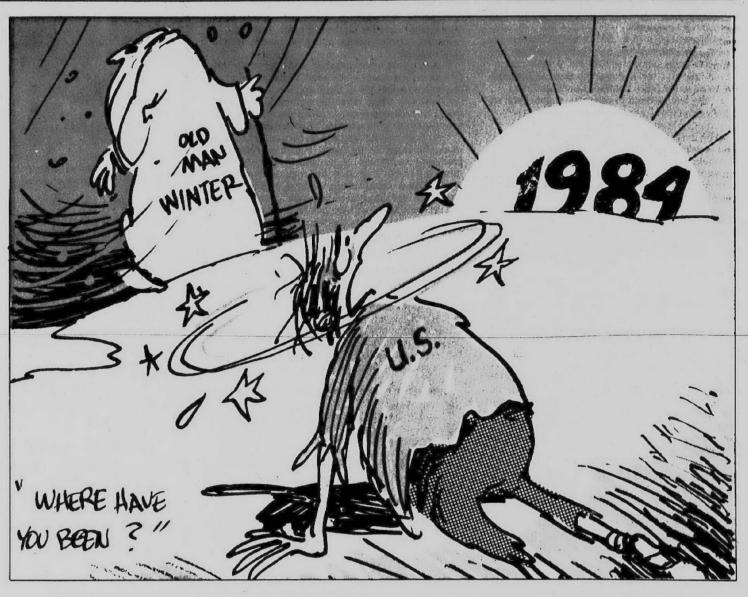

Instead, today's permissive society tolerates almost any kind of non-marital sex, branding it an "alternative lifestyle."

Orwell had expected a full scale atomic war between the supernations during the 1950s, and on this point was of course totally wrong. Yet he was strangely prophetic when he predicted that no nuclear bombs would be used after the 1950s.

The opportunity to wipe out hundreds of millions of the enemy never comes in "1984," not because such a war is too horrible to contemplate but because Orwell's supernations become so militarily cautious that they are psychologically incapable of delivering the knockout blow.

On that final point, we can all hope George Orwell was a prophet.

- Tim Richard editorial page editor

'Newspeak' hits home towns

GEORGE ORWELL'S fictional "1984" has come true in some ways for those who study changes in institutional and political vocabularies.

Orwell wrote of the Big Brother government's use of "newspeak." The plan was to change the vocabulary so that thoughts which the Party considered unfavorable to itself would be impossible.

Today much of that vocabulary trickery is evident in local government and business. The words are standard English, but their meanings have been twisted or obscured.

For example, companies used to have "employment" offices where workers would ask questions about their paycheck deductions. Later they were retitled "personnel," and now have become "human resources" offices.

PUBLIC EDUCATION is a gold mine for phrases which tend to give an opposite impression of the truth.

Home economics classes have nothing to do with buying and selling homes. The term is a polite way of describing sewing and cooking classes. Now they are called "home and family living" and cover a wider variety of domestic problems.

We used to get book and movie projectors from the school "library." But now the books and audiovisual equipment are in the "media center" or "instructional materials center."

Students who had problems were put in the "special education department" while those with high IQs or skills were in the talented and gifted programs.

Educators now classify all of those students as "exceptional."

School district business managers long have given boards of education a periodic update on the budget, where the money was coming from and where it was going.

The administration and board talk about "budget alternatives" when they really mean slashes in spending to offset the governor's latest "executive order." Translated, it means a cut in state aid to the local district.

CHURCH PEOPLE have tried to keep up with Orwell's newspeak.

There is a "Jews for Jesus" which reminds us of the "Democrats for Nixon" in the 1972 presidential election.

About the time Orwell published "1984," Congress changed the name of the War Department to the "Defense Department."

More recently, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare became the Department of "Health and Human Services." Welfare, it seems, is a bad word.

During the Vietnam War, the military said its air force was "engaged in protective reaction," meaning its pilots were firing back at enemy planes.

City governments are falling into line with newspeak.

Ditch diggers and road workers became first the 'public works department' and more recently "the public services department."

In the wonderful world of television news, riots became "civil disorders," and announcers reading weather reports became "meteorologists."

State prosecutors used to charge suspects with murder. In the publicized Vincent Chin beating death, the feds got into the act. But since they can't make a murder charge, the defendants are charged with "violating Chin's civil rights."

In merchandizing, clothes for the overweight or heavy women were dropped and overnight became clothes for the "full-figured woman."

Another year of big changes

IN A COMPARATIVELY few hours, we will be welcoming a new year, and as the bells toll the start of another chapter in life, a big question arises:

What kind of year will it be?

From coast to coast and in every community, the entry of 1984 is being met with mixed emotions.

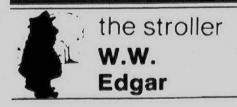

On one hand, there are signs of a revived economy and the so-called "good times" will be back with us before another 12 months pass.

On the other hand, there are the skeptics who are looking upon the coming year with trepidation. They see the age of robots changing the entire way of life and leaving more and more people unemployed.

During the past fortnight, The Stroller has been a listener on both sides. While he usually is optimistic, the arguments were solid on each side of the question.

SITTING WITH a group of World War II veterans the other afternoon, the question of what will 1984 bring came up. One of the oldtimers, who is proud of his country and the fact that he saw service, was unusally pessimistic.

"What are we going to do," he asked, "when the robots take over most of men's work? There will be more and more idle, and we may have harder times than we thought possible."

Across the table, another veteran spoke up and pointed out that we are going to build more automobiles than ever, "so there should be work for all of us."

"Who is going to buy them when there will be so many people out of work because of these robots? And now we have computers, and they will take more and more folks out of employment," said the first.

It seemed like a good rebuttal, but he soon got an answer.

"YOU MAY see a complete change in working habits," the original veteran said. "They'll build the automobiles, but the eight-hour day may be a thing of the past.

"Chances are the manufacturers will divide the work. And on the share-andshare-alike basis, we will see the birth of a four-hour day."

This settled the arguments — at least there was no rebuttal to the four-hour-day proposal.

It did show that the entry of the new year is being met with mixed feelings, and workers across the country are anxiously awaiting the new year just to see what happens.

With all the new equipment on the market and more still to come, one thing is certain: It will be an interesting year. And there is no telling what we will see before the old man with the scythe makes another trip.

ONE OF THE latest, and most fascinating, has to do with payment of your monthly bills.

Now you can pay all of your bills by calling your bank. Once the connection is made, you give your name and your account number. Then you tell them what bills are to be paid and to whom. Each of these is recorded and paid, and you will be given your up-to-date balance.

The bank will charge 15 cents for each bill. The theory is that by paying your bills through the bank, you will be saving a great deal of walking and postage.

But as The Stroller read the workings of this new plan, he had to smile a bit. He likes to stroll, and the walk to the post office fills the bill very nicely. And he is only saving a nickle by paying bills through the bank.

This is just one of the things we can be looking forward to, so you can see that 1984, when it gets here, will be both exciting and interesting.

What's 'computer literacy?'

"Computer literacy is an essential outcome of contemporary education. Each student should acquire an understanding of the versatility and limitations of the computer through first-hand experience in a variety of fields." So stated the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

"Computer literacy, like virtue, means different things to different people." That's thw word from Robert E. Golden, director of personal computing at Rochester Institute of Technology.

At Golden's school, computer literacy means: the ability to program, the ability to use specific applications such as word processing and the acquisition of general knowledge about computers.

THERE ARE many definitions of computer literacy, but generally they include the following

Removal of fear, anxiety or intimidation from

Knowledge of what a computer can and can-not do, its capabilities and limitations.

· Awareness of the number of opportunities in computer-related occupations.

Crucial in all computer literacy training is the requirement for "hands-on" experience.

COMPUTER LITERACY will soon be taught as a subject throughout the educational system.

Components of computer literacy already exist in most elementary and secondary schools, preschools and many colleges and universities. Harvard now requires graduates to demonstrate the ability to write a simple computer program.

Other colleges require a specific level of computer literacy for graduation. At several engineering and technical colleges, students are required to own a personal computer and show competency.

The demand for computer literacy in technical and business professions is expected. Most persons employed or in training for these occupations embrace computer education.

Computer literacy for non-technical fields and for the general population is less enthusiastically supported. However, the needs and benefits to our society cannot be underestimated, both in the short

WHATEVER METHOD is used to obtain computer literacy, the following major topics should be considered in any program.

5. Applications in society — Each student should be made aware that there is hardly any occupation not affected by a computer. Students should investigate the effect computers have on personal life, now and in the future. The effect the computer will have upon future career choices is another topic not to be overlooked.

6. Possible threats — The student should also be presented the concept of computer crime. What types of computer crime exist now? How can they occur? How do they affect the individual? What can be done to control it?

YOU CAN obtain computer literacy in a wide variety of ways.

You can take a course at a community college. You can enroll in a course in an adult education program at a local high school.

Several retail computer stores offer short courses which may be useful. In addition, many of the competencies listed above can be met by simply reading on the subject in one of the numerous books available in the library or local bookstore.

Counselors not recruiters

I would like to offer some clarification and perhaps provide some additional background regarding the article, "Matchmaking her avocation."

The statement that the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) guidance and counseling department is concerned only with a small group of provincial schools, to the detriment of all others, is quite absurd. Counselors, by their very job description and professional standards, must not be involved in the recruiting effort. We cannot concentrate on one particular type of college or group of colleges.

Thousands of hours have been spent with students giving them information and advice about hundreds of postgraduate opportunities and institutions. Furthermore, there is an awesome tivity which must be processed each year. This includes many letters of recommendation for admission and schol-

Plymouth (sic) participates very actively in the largest "College Night" program in the state. Sponsored by Schoolcraft College, this yearly event features all types of colleges and universities, private and public, in-state as well as out-of-state. It has been extremely successful in bringing information to students and parents. In addition, dozens of these representatives visit our high schools yearly to talk individually with students.

The rate for students going on to college upon graduation from Plymouth Canton High School is approximately 52 percent, which is very close to the national average. Therein lies an additional concern. Some years ago our department was accused by a local district board of education member of spending too much time on the collegebound student; we were called "college brokers." I think that we have become very sensitive to the needs and problems of the large number of students who do not go on to college and/or do not really know what they want to do. This all takes a great deal of time.

In regard to the CEP Perspective (student newspaper) doing an article on inadequate college counseling services, I was told that there was enough evidence to the contrary that there was no need for such an article to be published. Indeed, our department has conducted numerous surveys among graduating classes; the evaluative comments as to the quality and quantity of services offeered were overwhelmingly

Also, there is no question about the need for feedback from the community in general regarding the services we offer. Unless we hear from parents and other concerned residents, neither we nor the Board of Education has enough valid points of reference to evaluate programs and effect changes if war-

However, unjustified and unsophisticated criticism of an entire department produces nothing positive. It doesn't help the public understand the scope and limitations of available services nor does it help students have confidence in the adults who are supposed to be providing these services.

PAT COLLINS, 1981 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, is home for the holidays. Pat is a junior at Dartmouth but he didn't come from New Hampshire for Christmas. He came from London, England, where he attended the London School of Economics and Government for the fall semester. Pat was one of 15 Dartmouth students — all government majors to go to London. Eighty students applied for the foreign study term. He said they lived in an old hotel in the Bayswater district of London. A heavy class schedule limited travel. but he did go to Scotland for four days in October and to Amsterdam for a weekend.

He was shopping in Harrod's just two days before the bomb went off in front of the store. Pat said, "We didn't see any terrorist activity while we were in London. Although every once in a while, when we were riding on the underground, the car would not stop at our station because of a bomb threat or because someone had found a strange package."

LONDON was not Pat's first experience in foreign study. He spent the spring term, April through June, studying Spanish in Mexico. He stayed with a Mexican family, a mother and her two nephews, in Pueblo. The Dartmouth students were accompanied by a professor from the college, and they also had lectures by area professors in a municipal building.

Pat said the first couple of weeks were tough. He had studied Spanish in high school and had 10 weeks at

"You do catch on, but at first, they seem to be talking so fast. Pueblo is 12 hours south of the border, and everyone speaks Spanish. It's not like the large cities where many people speak English."

Pat was active in drama during his four years at Plymouth Sclem, especially the all-schools musicals. He said he has continued his interest in vocal music as a member of the Glee Club and has done some solo work. He received Firestone and Dartmouth scholarships when he graduated from high school.

He'll be home until March 23. "I'm taking 10 weeks off. I have three terms to go before I graduate." He would like to go on to law school, or business school, but law school is his first choice.

He is the son of Rosemary Collins of Plymouth, who had her whole family at home for Christmas.

THE JUNIOR POOL

League, sponsored by the Mayflower-Lt. Gamble Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary, ended the winter season by taking third place in district competition. It was the first season for the local league co-chaired by Randy Blackford and Ruth Salisbury. Floyd Riley and Al Lorenz assisted.

The junior league is open to all 10- to 15-year-olds, both boys and girls. Members of the team are Cliff Blackford, Joni Gregor, Laura Grimes, Tim Lorenz, Mike McDonald, Lisa Runstrom, Jeff Talaske, Junior Talaske, Michael O'Hara and Pat McManaman.

Cliff and Mike won the playoffs in November and will enter the district tournaments Saturday, Jan. 14. Award day was Dec. 17 with individual trophies awarded as well as the third-place trophy.

COMMUNITY CHORUS members, their families, friends and fans gathered Christmas Eve to watch and hear the chorus on their television sets. For the members of the chorus, it was a change of pace to be the audience — to see themselves as others see them in concert. The chorus sang on a PM Magazine hourlong Christmas special, 7-8 p.m. on Channel 2. I thoroughly enjoyed the whole thing, although they do sound better in person. It was interesting to pick out the various chorus members, although the camera scanned a little too fast to point them out to the rest of the family. And I would have preferred just a little more focus on the accompanists. They looked great and they sounded great. It's just too bad that the studio was not large enough to accommodate the whole group.

As society changes, Scouting adapts up in 1984, local Brownie troop leader, Verna George, thought it might be interesting to go over an old Girl Scout Handbook and see how time has changed Scouting.

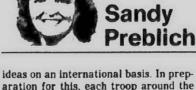

There seems to be no end to the changes. Take for instance, the types of things you would have to do to earn badges. Can you imagine this today? One requirement for earning a badge was to catch a run-away horse. Oh sure, a cinch, right? Maybe for the west-end Cantonites, but lately the horses in the subdivisions pretty much keep to their own yard.

getting gruesome); and then, cook him to perfection. Is this the Girl Scouting we all know and love?

But change they must and here we are in 1983 with a badge perhaps a little more up my aley - computers. I said a "little," I never said "right" up my alley. On it goes, some badges pretty close to the same, and some drastically altered, but the basic reasoning is the same. Early on, girls had a system we adults are just beginning to build, "networking," sharing what we know with others

aration for this, each troop around the world is to find a service project that can be useful on a global basis

After much reading and research, Verna George, brave leader of Brownie Troop 326, decided on collecting old eyeglasses for distribution around the world. She found a company called New Eyes for the Needy that collects and distributes the used glasses all over the world.

In an effort to make it as simple as possible for you to donate, they have arranged for three drop-off points for your used glasses. Starting with the generous sponsor of Troop 326, Bob Jeanotte Pontiac, a couple of other likely places have kindly agreed to collect your discards - Pearle Vision Center on Ford and Mayflower Optical in Plymouth.

You may elect to just hand them over to one of the Brownies in Troop 326, if you know one personally. So may I take this opportunity to introduce you to Julie George, Sara Browalski, Melissa Callegari, Laura Bevilacqua, Becky Hoon, Lynn MacLeod, Bridget O'Donnell, Rachel Rees and Erin

The girls would like me to point out that this service will not cost you a penny. You don't have to donate a can of corn, buy candy, or cookies or anything. This time they want only your junk, something sitting in your top drawer taking up space.

A nice change of pace for a holidayweary community.

Troop 326 will be assisted by other Scout troops in the Canton-Plymouth area. Their project is due to be concluded by the end of January, so don't delay, get out your oldies but goodles. Keep the best pair for yourself, to paint or use as a spare, and finally do something useful with the others. Let's face it, that's why you have been saving them for so long, right? After all, you never know when you might need them. Well, you need them now. So if you have some, share some.

I have been told that one Brownie. Julie George, really has the right spirit. She has written to President Reagan and asked him if he would like to contribute any of his used glasses to their effort for global unity. She has been watching his news conferences carefully, along with the mail box, but as yet has not received a reply

LAST WEEK I asked you if you knew where else Canton was becoming a household word.

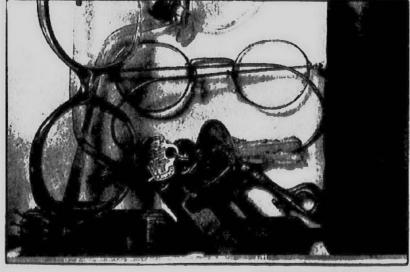

Well, I'll explain. Many of you may have heard of a recent innovation in television viewing called "The Cube." This system allows the audience at home to participate in various programs in any number of ways. For example, during a survey you can answer pushing a button on a special cube provided to those viewers subscribing to 'The Cube."

Warner Amex Cable Communications of Cincinnati Inc. was the first company to use the cube. Here is where our fame has blossomed. Suzanne Skubick, community affairs and program director for Omnicom, recently was invited to be a guest speaker at a conference at Warner Amex. Suzanne was asked to talk about "Creative Community Programming." She took along samples of the programs we produce right here in Canton using residents of Canton and Plymouth.

As Suzanne made her presentation, they taped it and are rerunning the entire series of the conference workshops in Cincinnati on Cable Public Access Channel 10. Suzanne says she used portions of many of our home-grown programs to show the many ways cable can be used other than sitting in a studio. She showed how to record the community and the many people and activities that make each community special - Canton Country Festival, Canton Five Mile Run, Canton International Soccer Tournament, the many clubs and service organizations and their annual events.

It's quite an honor for the director of programming, her staff, Omnicom, and Canton to have been recognized by such. a prominent cable company for their achievements. There were six different workshops and our presentation will air again this evening at 6:30 p.m. So if you read this early, and you know someone in Cincinnati, you might give them a call and tell them to try to catch your little community, maybe even YOU, on their cable Channel 10 tonight

Historic tours to start

The historical church tours sponsored by the Detroit Historical Society will begin Jan. 9.

The opening tour will include a visit to St. Paul's Cathedral at Woodward and Hancock. This will be followed by a stop at the Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church on E. Warren at St. Antoine. After that, stops will be at the First Congregational Church at Woodward and Forest, the Cass Community Methodist Church at Cass and Selden and St. Leo Roman Catholic Church at Grand River and 14th Street.

Since a limited number of tickets are available, advance prepaid reservations are necessary. Telephone reservations cannot be accepted. Checks should be made payable to the Detroit Historical Society and mailed to the Detroit Historical Society, 5401 Woodward, Detroit 48202.

The tours are a joint venture of the historical society, historical museum in cooperation with the National Society of Colonial Dames of America. The tours are geared to emphasizing the vi-tal importance of maintaining historic churches as visible reminders of Detroit's cultural heritage.

The tours begin at 10:15 a.m. at the museum and continue to 3:30 p.m. Luncheon at one of the churches on tour is included in the ticket price of $6 for members and $7.50 for non-mem-

Children's problems deserve response

Holiday family gatherings flood us with nostalgic memories of childhood combined with dreamy hopes for to-day's children. A touch of reality stretches the mind out to think of the future for all children. Current facts are disturbing.

A report on infant death from the United Nations Childrens Fund is both sad and challenging. The number of deaths of children each year in Third World countries is equivalent to all the under-5 population in our country. These 15-million deaths annually could be cut in half with low-cost remedies. Relatively few are deaths from exotic illnessess requiring complex medical treatment. One third of these children die from dehydration caused by simple diarrhea. Oral rehydration techniques can be taught to health care workers and parents. Preventing half the annual child deaths would be a revolution in child survival.

Closer to home, America's children are on our hearts. Again the facts are sad. The poverty rate for children in the U.S. is about 50-percent higher than moral perspectives

Rev. Charles Erickson

for the population as a whole. More than a million children a year are becoming poor. We keep slashing state and federal budgets which could change the picture. Twenty-four states have reduced funds for training childcare workers. Thirty-three states have lowered child-care standards. Twenty states have made it harder for mothers in school or training programs to quali-fy for financial aid for their children. Reductions in aid for dependent children are rampant.

THE PERCENTAGE of income going to income tax has doubled in the past five years for families below the poverty level. Hunger and malnourishment grow. Tests show intelligence diminishment and brain damage from lack of proper nourishment. Current policies perpetuate the problem of rearing generations of people who do not have the ability to earn a living.

Psychological realities among deprived people compound social prob-lems. Since 1926 research has been beyond debate that depriving young children of caring warmth results in illness and retardation. We worry about substance abuse and inability to establish relationships among adolescents when the cause lies back in early childhood.

We are naive to think personal prob-lems in deprived individuals will be solved by lectures, moralistic advice or increased policing. Will power in victims doesn't dent deep problems caused by social policies regarding children. It is in our self-interest to save money in the long run by investing now in nutrition and parental care for

We are people who hail any instant fix. We give generously in a crisis. Amazing support flows for a problem which makes headlines. We fall miser-ably in facing massive problems and long-term analysis.

Children on our hearts this season deserve responses which must be institutional and governmental. The UN report says religious agencies can promise a future for millions of children if we express care in tangible support. Elected leaders in state and nation can change the outlook for America's children if we convince them compassion is good sense. Both our discretionary giving and our tax money should follow our hearts to insure a functional future for today's children.

Mission team carries out lofty dream

"For this task," Strong said, "the boy was paid 50 cents for the four-mile round trip."

At the building site, materials were gathered from the surrounding terrain. Water again was a problem. To make the mortar, water had to be carried a half-mile on the heads of the women. Gravel was carried the same way - on the heads of about 20 women.

HAITIANS WHO helped with the building were paid a small amount. Thirty-five-pound cement blocks were carried up the mountain for 10 cents. Sixteen-foot rafters were also carried on the workers' heads up the twisting path to the construction

"The people we met in Haiti have a humor and good outlook on life which is amazing considering their poverty." The per capita income is less than $90 a year. It is one of the poorest nations in the world.

THE TEAM WAS made up of a variety of people: three were nurses, two ministers, a housewife and a builder by professions. One man worked for the Labor Relations Board, one at the Ford Motor Co., another for Michigan Bell and another for an electronics firm.

The team theme was "One in the Spirit," a theme which was emblazoned on special T-shirts the group wore. And by the time they left, it was pretty evident by feelings shared by the Livonia group and their Haitian friends.

So successful was the trip that another one is planned for next year with the Chileses heading it up again. And they've already began preliminary planning that includes having the Livonia Holidome save soap scraps that will be taken with them for the next mission trip.

Sometimes life can be like that. You work, raise a family, go on vacations, see your friends, join clubs — yet something is lacking. You may want this or that, but this or that proves not to be 'it.'
One day some people talked to Jesus about their need for food and clothing, and all that those things symbolized. He said it's a matter of perspective. Seek first things first. Don't mistake luxuries for necessities. Only in Him is Life whole and complete. He came to show us how Life fitte whole and complete. He came to show us how Life fits

Blessed are the changes.

Bishop Moses Anderson officiated at rites recently at St. Maurice Catholic Church, 32765 Lyndon, Livonia, marking the renovation of the church interior. Changes include altar relocation, new carpeting, pews, indirect lighting and the addition of air conditioning. Founded in June 1960, the church's present pastor is Rev. Thomas J. Cain, who was the founding pastor. The Oblate Sisters of Providence conduct the school of religion. Photo above shows the placement of new pews in a semi-circular arrangement around the altar. This means that a block of the company's securities are in this country in the hands of a trust company, and it has issued certificates of interest in this block of securities. This enables trading to be done in this country without securities being transferred in and out of the country. If this is not done, the actual physical problems of dealing overseas and the potential problems of a regulatory nature make the handling of transactions expensive and time con-

One man who specializes in the business tells me that the first step the buyer of a penny stock should try to determine is whether the issuer really intends to try to develop a business or is just interested in selling the stock. Since, he says, in a great many cases, the stock is sold and the money is spent by the sellers, without a serious at-tempt to get a business going. He con-fines his recommendations to the issues promoted by men with a good record of successful development.

If you do buy a penny stock and get to the point where you have a profit, it's probably a good idea to sell it.

McBride finds niche at last

By Chris McCosky staff writer

> TIKE McBRIDE HAS to wonder what it takes to get a little recognition.

McBride was a threeyear starter on the Plymouth Salem basketball team. He was an outstanding scorer, an aggressive rebounder, a solid defensive player and, most importantly, a classic "team" player.

In his senior year, 1981-82, he averaged 15 points and six rebounds per game for a team that won league and district titles and was eventually ousted from the state tournament by a Detroit Southwestern team lead by Antoine Joubert in the regionals.

"Mike was like Mr. Consistency for us," said Salem assistant coach Bob Blohm. "He did a lot of nice things for us. He was a good inside player, could hit the 15- to 17-foot jump shot, played tremendous defense and became an outstanding rebounder."

YET, UPON graduation in 1982, only two colleges had expressed an interest in the 6-foot-3, 190-pound small forward: Olivet and Albion.

McBride was disallusioned, if not

"I had hoped to go somewhere bigger than a MIAA (Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association) school. I thought I could play at like, Hillsdale, Saginaw Valley or Grand Valley, places like that," McBride said.

He asked his high school coach, Fred Thomann, to do some asking around to for Albion's junior varsity team. He various colleges. Thomann got Mc- hadn't really worked out much in the sults were somewhat humiliating for McBride.

"I wasn't really impressed by what they told me," McBride said. "They didn't seem real interested. The coach said he wouldn't cut me as long as I was good enough to make the team."

McBride was close to saying so long to basketball. Here was a player that was a major contributer to one of the top-ranked high school teams in the state. He was named to All-Area, allleague, all-suburban, all-metro and AMONG HIS high school highlights was a 34-point performance against Livonia Franklin. He once hit a 21-foot jumper at the buzzer to defeat rival Plymouth Canton.

"I had a lot of fun," McBride said of his high school days. "Fred (Thomann) is a great teacher of the game. I got tremendous experience playing under Yet, this consistent scorer-rebounder, this solid, fundamental athlete, this 3.0 student, was overlooked by all but two colleges.

"I don't think I was thought of as being really an outstanding player. I wasn't like the Judge (Joubert)," Mc-Bride said. "But I thought, as far as this area goes, I was one of the top players. I thought there would be more people interested, but there wasn't.

"I don't know why. I'm not real quick, that was one problem. I don't have outstanding size and my stats weren't all that outstanding.

But, anyone who saw Salem play, especially in 1981-82, knew that McBride was a key man in Thomann's system of play and that system didn't always accentuate individual talents.

AFTER THE GRAND VALLEY visit, McBride said he put a stop to looking for a school to go to. "I had a lot of friends and my parents had a lot of friends at Albion. I just figured I'd go there, not really thinking about basketball too much, and let whatever happens happen," he said.

What happened was McBride started Bride a visit to Grand Valley. The re- summer, so his performance, in his own words, "wasn't as good as it could Then, out of the blue, came a call from Albion track coach Dave Egnatuk. McBride had been a successful runner for the Rocks, specializing in the 440-yard dash. Egnatuk asked him to come out for the team.

McBride obliged. He was a major contributor in Albion's undefeated league championship season last spring. It was the fifth straight league title for the Briton runners. McBride was a member of the Briton's league

'I don't think I was thought of as being really an 'outstanding' player. . . But I thought, as far as this area goes, I was one of the top players. I thought there would be more people interested, but there - Mike McBride, champion mile relay team and he also lettered in the quarter mile.

THE TRACK EXPERIENCE rekindled McBride's competitive spirit. He came to basketball camp in great shape, both physically and mentally. He earned a spot on the varsity cage team and is trying to work his way into a starting role.

The major stumbling block for Mc-Bride now is sophomore Dwayne Johnson from Saginaw. As a freshman, Johnson started and led the varsity Britons in scoring and was ninth in the league with a 14.3-points-per-game average. McBride plays behind Johnson. Still, McBride has had his moments during this young season. In very limited playing time, he has averaged eight points and almost five rebounds per game. His shooting proficiency has been phenomenal, hitting 20 of 29 shots from the floor.

McBride was at his best last week against Concordia College of Ann Arbor. McBride entered a fairly close game in the first half. Twenty minutes later, he had tallied 18 points and pulled down 10 rebounds leading the Britons (3-3) to a rout.

YET, McBRIDE still lingers in anonymity on the Briton bench. In the game prior to Concordia, an Albion loss to Wabash, McBride didn't get off the bench. The coach, Mike Turner, said nothing to him afterward. Again, nothing was said to him after his 18-point performance against Concordia. No congratulations, no pat on the back, nothing. "I really don't know what to think. I just want to play. Fil do all I can do to help the team. I'm not going to make a big deal about not playing. I don't want to cause problems," he said.

Rocks face rebuilding net season

By Chris McCosky

Jeanne Martin realizes her Plymouth Salem volleyball team could be in for a long season.

Last year, the Rocks were 8-3, second in the Lakes Division and third overall in the Western Lakes Athletic Association. Three key setters have graduated, leaving Martin with three sophomores to fill the void. And in Martin's 6-2 offense, the setter position is vital.

"We are real young. It's going to be interesting. I'm not making any predictions. It could be a tough year," she said.

Martin said she will be counting on her seniors to carry a major share of the load. They are Shelly Staszel, Kelly Bemiss, Chris Radzik and Sarah Wallman.

"THE SENIORS are going to have to carry us until the sophomores start getting into the flow."

The three sophomores vying for the setter spots are Lisa Madis, Karen Marciniak and Julie Tortora. Leanne Beckert, another sophomore, and junior Sue Carlson will also be counted on to contribute.

Martin said her team is strong in the areas of serving (thanks to the expertise of Marciniak, among others), passing and hitting. Again, it's the responsibility of the sophomore setters to bring to-

"It comes down to the sophomores. They have to do the setting. They just have to get to the ball and then get back on defense. There are so many things for them to do," said Martin. "They are working hard and I'm seeing improvement. But they are still very young and have a tendency to run into each other now and then."

Martin thinks the WLAA will be a very competetive league this year. She said that Walled Lake Central, Farmington, Livonia Churchill and, of course, Livonia Stevenson will be the top teams. "I don't think we will win the league," Martin said. "But I think that if we work hard, and play hard, we will have the opportunities to win some games. Salem opens the season Wednesday, Jan. 4, at Farmington Harrison.

Editor's note: Because our numerous phone calls and messages to Canton coach Peggy Moore were not returned, a preview of the Chiefs' volleyball team could not be included. We hope it will appear in Tuesday's Observer.

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

On October 4, 1963, with 3 conference games left to go, the Plymouth football team defeated Redford Union 26-7 to maintain 1st place in the Suburban Six League. Coach Mike Hoben's team was out in front early in the game due to the superb offensive playing of fullback Dave Agnew. 4 interceptions by Plymouth hurt Redford Union. The closing touchdown came on a seven yard dash by the Rocks' left halfback, Roger Toby.

College hockey is back in town.

The Great Lakes Invitational hockey tournament, held at Joe Louis Arena, ually showcases some of the top College talent in the Midwest.

This year is no exception. And a number of the stars are Wayne County

The University of Michigan, Michigan State, Michigan Tech and Northern Michigan will battle each other today and tomorrow to determine bragging

And Detroit area fans will get a chance to see some of their hometown boys in action.

REPRESENTING THE western suburbs in the tournament are Livonia's Mike Donnelly (Michigan State) and Paul Kobylarz (University of Michigan), Redford's Jeff Eisley (Michigan State) and Plymouth's Don McSween (Michigan State).

Michigan State, which has won the tournament the past two years, appears to be the solid favorite to repeat. The Spartans are currently third in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association (CCHA) with an 11-5 record (14-6 overall) and have beaten their three tournament opponents five out of six games this year. (They split with the WolveMuch of the team's success can be attributed to the contributions of Eisley, Donnelly and McSween.

Eisley, a senior defenseman who got most of his early hockey experience playing with the Detroit Junior Wings, has had another outstanding season for

A graduate of Redford Thurston, he doesn't consider himself an "offensive" defenseman, but leads all Spartan blueliners in scoring and stands fifth on the team list with 20 points on four goals and 17 assists.

"I'M HAVING a pretty good season so far," he said. "I have a lot more confidence now. I already have more points this season than I had all last year. My strong point has been moving the puck and getting it out of our own end."

Eisley likes Michigan State's chances in the tournament.

"Coming into the Great Lakes Tournament, we're looking pretty good," he said. "We've had a couple mental letdowns lately, but the guys will be ready. We have a young team, but the veterans will make sure we're pre-

"All the teams in the tournament are good teams, and any one of them could win. But we would be very disappointed if we didn't win it."

"We're 5-1 against these teams this ear," he said. "I think we can beat any team if we play our game.

"We have four solid lines. We wear down most of the teams we play. But we have to stay out of the penalty box."

DONNELLY HAD A fine season as a freshman, tallying 20 points on seven goals and 13 assists. But he feels he is a much better all-around player this

"My whole game has improved — mostly on defense," he said. "I have a lot more confidence and I'm getting more ice time." Donnelly has already equaled last season's output in goals and has added four assists. "We are really looking forward to the tournament," he said. "It gives the people in Detroit the chance to see how exciting college hockey is." For first-year player McSween, it will be his first chance to show Detroit, area fans his skills.

It will be the first time I've played in Joe Louis Arena," he said. "It will different looking up at the fans rather than sitting in the stands and watch-McSween has had a successful "rookie" season so far, contributing four goals and 11 assists.

"It's gone very well for me, much better than I expected," he said. "I've picked up a few new skills this year, especially positioning and moving the puck out of our zone."

McSWEEN LIKES the exposure the Great Lakes tournament gives college hockey in the Detroit area.

"College hockey is an exciting brand of hockey," he said. "It's fast and interesting to watch, similar to pro hockey. For many, it's (the tournament) the only chance to see college hockey in this area."

The Spartans are an aggressive, hard-hitting club, a style that fits McSween well.

The Spartans sound unbeatable, but the Wolverines, led by junior forward Kobylarz, should not be overlooked.

"Michigan State and Michigan Tech are the favorites," he said, "but I think we have a good chance to win it."

"It took us awhile to jell this season because of our inexperience. We had to get used to each other. But lately we've been playing consistently well."

The Wolverines, who are tied for fifth in the CCHA with Michigan Tech at 7-7 (11-9 overall), have been hit with a rash of injuries to key players. But they've managed to hold together, coming on strong in recent weeks.

"INJURIES HAVE HURT hurt the team and we've had to play with inexperienced players," Kobylarz said. "But we've been playing well despite the injuries. We're doing as well as can be

He has still managed five points (two goals, three assists) in those games, and currently ranks third on the Wolverines in career goals by an active player.

A former all-stater at Redford Catholic Central, Kobylarz always had outstanding performances in the Great Lakes Invitational and was nominated CCHA Player of the Week for his part in the 1980-81 tournament.

"After I got hurt, it was hard to get back in the groove," he said. "But I feel like I'm playing better with every

Preseason over, now we play for keeps

staff writer

The "preseason" is over.

Not that the contests prior-to the holiday break didn't count. But for most coaches, that's the time to test your team's members, evaluate them, prepare them for the league season.

With the season's first phase completed, what are Oakland University's chances in the various upcoming campaigns? Here's a capsulized look at three Pioneer teams and what to expect in the next two months. Women's swimming and wrestling will be examined in Monday's editions.
MEN'S BASKETBALL

So far, so good? How about better than expected? That might be a more accurate assessment of OU's men cagers, who have won six of eight games going into Classic in Bridgeport, Conn.

Included among those wins was a 70-69 triumph over Great Lakes Intercol-legiate Athletic Conference (GLIAC) rival Hillsdale, which got the Pioneers started off on the right foot in confer-

And that could be very important by season's end. OU, remember, was picked to finish sixth in the GLIAC, a prediction that now looks hasty.

So far, the Pioneers have won with offense. Their defense has been adequate, allowing 74.3 points per game and limiting opponents to .457 percent on field goal attempts.

Their offense has made the difference. OU is scoring over 83 points per game and hitting better than 55 percent of their floor shots. Through the season's first four games, OU was the second-best shooting team in the NCAA Division II.

SPARKING THAT OFFENSE are this weekend's Sacred Heart Holiday starters Mike Mohn (19.5 points), a 6-8 senior forward, and Chris Howze (19.1

analysis

points), a 6-5 sophomore swingman. Harold Davis (15.1) has been invaluable coming off the bench, and Craig Mitchell (12.5) has proven a valuable asset.

While the offense has clicked, the Pioneers' rebounding hasn't. In a loss to Northern Michigan last week they had just 18 rebounds. Before the season got underway, OU coach Lee Frederick said that rebounding would be a deciding factor in winning the GLIAC.

OU must improve on the boards if it harbors serious title hopes. In five of eight games, the leading OU rebounder failed to reach double figures. Frederick hopes that Walt Dixon, a 6-7 transfer from University of Detroit who became elgible for the Northern contest,

He should. And he'll get every chance, according to Frederick, who said Dixon will play 30 minutes a game when the conference season starts up again. The two freshmen front-court players from Surinam — Jenny Vrij and Jeffery Straal — have talent but need refining to become heavy contrib-

If Dixon can play the middle, it will free Mohn up on the outside. And he's the key in OU's offense.

The Pioneers are a few rebounds away from a shot at the GLIAC cham-

WOMEN CAGERS While things look good for OU's men's basketball team, the women Already the Lady Pioneers have lost training very hard: morning and night more games than they did all last season, struggling with a 3-5 mark. While Coach Pete Hovland was unconson, struggling with a 3-5 mark. While the GLIAC schedule won't make it any easier. OU should improve.

One reason is the coach, Sue Kruszewski, a proven success. She predicted hard times in the early going for her young squad, but decided to stick with the inexperienced lineup to get it ready for the GLIAC campaign. And her team so far is unbeaten in conference play, thanks to an 82-62 thumping of Hillsdale.

What the Lady Pioneers need is a lesson in what the men's team does so well: shooting accurately. Brenda McLean, the only returning starter, is scoring 17.6 points per game and has seemingly adjusted well to her new position at power forward.

Kim Nash, who took over for McLean at center, was in a shooting slump (30 percent from the floor) until a 28-point effort against Michigan State. The rest of the lineup — guards Maria Reynolds and Kim McCartha and forward Anya Williams - have been equally inconsistent.

That inconsistency is what Kruszewski wants to eliminate - before the start of the GLIAC schedule.

Winter travelers planning an escape Hall, a $13 million, 72,000-square-foot from frigid Michigan to seek refuge in the Florida sunshine will find a wealth of new water parks, elegant hotels and exquisite restaurants, reports the Automobile Club of Michigan.
"More than 550,000 Michiganians are expected to travel to Florida this winter, approximately 4 percent more than a year ago," said James Drury, Auto Club travel operations manager. Seventy-five percent of those travel-

Dear Friends:

I planted a tree in your name in Jerusalem today. It's not exactly a Christmas tree, although it looks like one. It is a six-inch-high umbrella pine, clinging for life on rocky hills terraced since biblical times.

The tree doesn't have your name on it, but if you ever go to Jerusalem you will find it overlooking the valley where Samson and Delilah met. In case that isn't on the map, look for the Jerusalem Peace Forest and a loo-tree grove marked with a plaque that says

That is the practical side of the green revolution, creating forests to preserve the soil, provide recreation areas and to improve the quality of life in a desert land. There is a much more sentimental side of the story, however, for both Israelis and tourists.

There is an old Jewish tradition called Tzdaka, in which people contribute to the poor or to some worthy cause when a loved one dies. For a half century, Jews have bought trees in the Holy Land in the name of those who died.

Israeli tour guide Yehuda Ackerman was born in Germany, but his uncles, who had emigrated to Palestine, planted a tree to commemorate his birth. The certificate was lost when the Nazis destroyed Jewish homes during Crystal Nacht, but the tree

Today, Ackerman is often tipped by having a tree planted in his name. No record is made of the recipient of an individual tree, but loo tree, planted as a unit, is recorded ask a garden in the Garden Book.

The Martyrs Forest in Judea is planted in memory of the 6 million Jews who died in the Holocaust, but most forests reflect happy memories; the Presidents Forest, Ben Gurion's Forest and the Moshe Davan's Forest.

An American woman, whose parents died in the Holocaust, found her own name and photograph recorded in the Golden Book - it was the only surviving memento of her family.

For most of us who plant trees in Israel, there are no such memories. We plant a tree, for ourself or a friend, because it is a small but very permanent way of remembering someone you care about.

Are you prepared to cope with Old Man Winter and cold weather emergencies?

Home economist Elaine Glasser of the Cooperathat your prepare your home, your car and yourself for the severe weather that's approaching. In the home:

· Check flashlight batteries and make sure a flashlight is stored near the phone along with important and emergency phone numbers.

· Have your chimney cleaned. Persons who burn wood need to prevent chimney fires caused by a buildup of creosote

· Have gas or oil furnaces serviced. Burners, belts, bearing and filters should be checked. Do you have a spare fuse for the blower motor, a spare fan

• Plan a winter fire escape route. Have you practiced your fire escape plan with your family recently? Can you open your storm windowns from insidse the house in case you have to make an emergency exit?

• Be cautious with portable heaters and extension caords; avoid overloaded electrical circuits.

• Do not use flammable liquids of any kind to start wood fires.

 Be able to prepare adequate food for your family that can be fixed without cooking in case you lose power in bad weather.

• Be able to drain your water system to keep it from freezing in the event of a power failure involving loss of heat.

Whistling, singing and all that jazz

A jazz whistler? Yes, indeed. There is such a thing, and I know because I heard one recently in the unlikeliest of places.

It was a snowy, cold night at Western High School in Walled Lake when I saw a show called "Jazz Night at Western." It featured jazz whistler and Concord Records recording ace Ron McCroby, who blew his brains out with the natural instrument he refers to as the "puccolo."

No slouch as a whistler, McCroby improvises on the obligatory "Whistle While you Work" as well as on more serious jazz tunes like Clifford Bown's "Joy Spring." The highlight of the serendipitous experience that night was the performances by the Walled Lake Westerners, a student pop-show group, and Vocal Point, a jazz vocal sextet.

Organized and led by Ron DeRoo, a vocal music instructor at Rochester's Oakland University, Vocal Point has drawn on the vocal jazz traditions of the Four Freshmen, the Swingle Singers, Singers Unlimited and the Manhattan Transfer to develop their own fastidious harmonies

When Vocal Point teamed with Ron McCroby and his whistle, there was some real jazz fun as McCroby's puccolo soloed over, under and through the vocal harmonies and counterpoint. Vocal Point should be heard more often.

Across Oakland County at Nicky's in Troy, The Loving Cup, a pop group that's seemingly been around for ever, is in the middle of a three-month engagement.

Although various restaurants have tried to make a go of it on the first floor of the Top Troy Building at I-75 and Big Beaver Road, Nicky's, a new, chic restaurant and lounge, seems to have hit on the right combination.

Not the least of the reasons for Nicky's 1262) through Jan. 28.

being packed every night are a careful menu, an expanded lounge area and The Loving Cup.

FRONTED BY attractive vocalist Marlene Hill, the group does Top-40 covers with an emphasis on dancing and the current pop songs that people want to hear these days.

On a recent weekend evening, Hill sang a set that included songs by Barbara Streisand, Lionel Ritchie and Irene Cara's "Flashdance. . . What a Feeling.

Since the group started in 1971, when Mar-lene Hill and keyboard player Danny Jordan got married. Loving Cup has established a loyal audience and a local circuit that includes some of the better clubs.

"I like to keep up with the new songs," Hill said between sets at Nicky's, "but sometimes I feel like Barbara Streisand has supported me

Indicating that she likes to gear her material on any given night to the crowd, she's found that at Nicky's the people like to dance and that it's more an uptempo crowd.

And that leads to the one complaint Hill has about Nicky's. "I usually sit at the bar between sets to talk to people," she said. "But here I can't because it's too crowded."

Providing the entertainment at Detroit's London Chop House, Michele Goulet and Co-lours, led by vibist, composer and talent agency head Mel Ball, is making the Chop House one of the warmest nightspots around.

Adding to the warmth of the downtown Detroit restaurant are the bright Christmas lights that decorate the ceiling. Not to worry, though, owner Lanie Pincus said, those lights won't come down until about Valentine's Day, when everyone has negotiated the worst part of the winter blahs.

When Mrs. Pincus and her husband, Max, took over the longtime eatery a few months ago, they knew that people want a chance to combine good eating with dancing and the Pincuses wanted Mel Ball and the Colours.

Watching and listening to Colours perform at the London Chop House, it's easy to see why the group is such a hit. Thanks to the leadrship of Ball, the group is a musically tight quintet and Goulet is one of the most mature and selfessed young singers around.

Her enthusiasm is contagious. She strums an imaginary guitar, strikes piano keys in the air and bounces to the music wen she's not stars of the recently released "Sudden Impact," co-star also in "The Gauntlet." There's a pattern emerging here. "Sudden Impact" is the poorest of four Dirty Harry Callahan films. "The Gauntlet" is one of the poorest films ever made. And Eastwood directed both pictures. "The Gauntlet," in fact, makes "Sudden Impact" look like "The French Connection." Could Locke be having that negative an impact on Eastwood's films? More likely, Eastwood has seen his day. Clint, tough cop movies have become passe. Pat Hingle co-stars.

Non-Western art

Course gives view of other traditions

Ralph Glenn examines an Oriental scroll, one of the many non-Western art objects he will discuss in his course at Madonna Col-

By Mary Klemic staff writer

To ancient Oriental artists, one picture may well have been worth a thousand words

For example, writings and drawings were included on the same scrolls in China, says Ralph Glenn, an instructor at Madonna College in Livonia.

Beginning in January, Glenn will conduct an overview course of the art and culture of Africa, the Near East and Asia. The 15-week course will meet Thursday evenings and will try to provide an understanding of the art and what influenced it.

THE COURSE, being offered for the first time at Madonna College, is a relevant one, according to

"Generally one hears only about art traditions of the West, that is, Europe and America," the Birmingham resident said. "This will be very informative and will help in understanding the cultures. There isn't the isolation there was previously. We are having more and more contacts with Africa and Asia all the time."

While African art is more recent, India and China can boast of having the oldest continuous art tradition on earth, Glenn says.

"It goes back 5,000 years and is still being made."

CHINESE PAINTINGS often featured landscapes, Glenn said. They were painted with ink on silk scrolls, many of them more than 100 feet long. Narratives were written in calligraphy (called shu fa by the Chinese) in sections of silk next to the Glenn unrolled a reproduction of a Chinese narrative scroll as he spoke. The scroll's artist, Wang Wei, was a famed poet of the eighth century. The drawing featured mountains and trees, and carried the old seals of persons who had seen and approved the drawing.

"They felt that color was unnecessary, that it distracted," Glenn said. "All the great painters were poets. Many were monks."

It was the tradition to roll up the delicate drawings and put them away, instead of keeping them on display, Glenn said.

"They couldn't stand extremes of temperature and light," he said.

AFRICAN ART was used in combination with dances, according to Glenn. He said that the Chinese and Japanese saw art as a sign of education.

"It meant education because you had to read the calligraphy," Glenn explained.

A detail of an Oriental scroll, showing in terest in nature.

African art consists mostly of ceramics, architecture and small sculptures, while Indian art involves many temples, sculptures and miniature paintings. Glenn said these paintings are brightly colored, unlike the Chinese works.

Glenn has degrees in art and history from the University of Michigan and Harvard. He also studied in India, Taiwan and Japan. The slides he will present throughout the course are ones he made while in those countries.

THE INSTRUCTOR has taught similar courses in local colleges and lectured for the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. In addition, he has lectured around the world for the U.S. Information Agency on the subject of American sculpture and painting.

Through the visual arts and literature you get to know what the people are about," he said.

The course will feature trips to the Detroit Institute of Arts and an authentic Japanese tea house in Ann Arbor. Glenn will bring in original works of art and reproductions of scroll paintings.

The course may be taken for college credit or non-credit. Call the office of continuing education at Madonna, 591-5188, for more information.

Showing feelings is a major goal

This is another in a series of lessons on art and irawing by spe cial columnist David Messing. He has taught for eight years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 18774 Middlebelt, Livonia. Messing ecourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington MI

By David P. Messing special writer

It is said that if you aim at nothing you'll hit it everytime.

A reasonable goal to aim for is expression. The term expression with regards to artwork means to show your feelings. So in the creative efforts of artistic endeavor it is important that you do not forget one of the main goals, which is expression.

But how can you show feelings when you possess no feelings? To acquire the feeling is, therefore, the primary goal before beginning any work of art. I remember one man said, "Hey I draw my fingers to the bone trying to do a simple still life, how can I express anything in a still life?"

Any group of inanimate objects can express feelings by the way they are placed, their color, condition, texture, etc. Just this week I framed a print for a customer.

Because of the artist's use of color in drawing white dishware on a white table cloth, I thought it might interest my Wednesday

Jane walked over and said, "My, doesn't that give you a quiet feeling?'

NOW IF white dishware on a white table cloth can express something, then just about anything can.

To help you learn to express and more easily acquire feelings you must do two things, consider and appreciate. The word consider means "to take thought of." Take thought of the color, texture and shape of what you are about to draw

Don't merely copy color, texture and shape, because then you are only showing your technical abilities and those who view it can only judge how close or how far you came to realism. In all those lines and shapes you really expressed nothing if you didn't coinsider what you were drawing.

Many times you are asked to draw something you don't particularly care for. Then it is difficult to "consider," because the more you take thought of the subject, the more you

Cats for example are not among my favorite subjects to draw. A cat can scratch it's claws on my new outdoor furniture, walk all over my new car, eat my pigeons and leave his calling card in little Adam's sand box, just in case I might have missed him.

If, on the other hand, a dog happens to trot three feet out of the driveway, it's time to call out the dog S.W.A.T. team and get that beast off the streets. I mean really! A cat will slice my pool cover to ribbons and then kind of smile at me as he leaps over the fence. You see, cats have no conscience.

NOW A dog is loyal and possesses an active conscience. My standard poodle is a large dog and occasionally she will steal a cookie out of Adam's hand. Without even being scolded, she will creep around with guilt all over her muzzle. (Gee, I didn't know I was going to say all that. Now that I have that off my chest let's get back to the article).

So if I am asked to draw someone's lovely cat I must learn to appreciate the animal. The word appreciate means "to become aware of the value." I must look at those beautiful eyes which sparkle with independence and study the color and softness of the fur. Try to pick out the particular colorations or patterns that distinguish this cat above all others in my customer's eyes. In fairness to my customer and trueness to myself I must gain appreciation for the subject and make ation for the subject. Then and only then are filled the crack with wax. On a completed my artwork personal expression.

When you attempt to draw anything you, in effect, get to know it. If I drew a sketch of one of my sons I would realize shapes I never

So before you begin a work of art, study the subject for color, shape and texture. "Considthe subject: ask yourself "what is the worth of this object, what does it mean to most people, what does it mean to me?" And in doing so you will, perhaps, gain an appreci-

PLACE

Works on paper by Canadian-born artist Terry Golletz make the first show for this recently opened Royal Oak Gallery. Golletz participated in a juried "New Artists Show" at Madison Square Garden in New York last year. Local artists featured among the gallery regulars include Pat Dunn Brenner, R.J. Laney, Sharlene Beck, Tamara Esner and Shirley Gower. Show continues through Jan. 10. Regular hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday, 903 N. Main, Royal Oak.

• TROY ART GALLERY

Holiday gifts are highlighted through Jan. 14. Included are original ceramics, stained-glass decorations, hand-designed totes, inlaid wooden pieces along with paintings, art posters and Japanese woodblock prints. Regular hours are 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., 755 W. Big Beaver, Suite 131, Troy. SCHWEYER-GALDO GALLERIES

'Floating Pictures," a one-woman exhibition by Francoise Gilot, will continue through Jan. 12. Gilot, an internationally known artist, is possibly best known for her popular book, "Life With Picasso." Regular hours are 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 330 Hamilton Row, Birmingham. • GALERIE DE BOICOURT

"Folk Art of Christmas" is the last major show for this gallery, which is changing focus but not location. After this, in smaller quarters in the same building, owner Eve Boicourt, specialist in folk art, textiles and books, will be doing more consulting work and more specialized shows. December hours are are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Saturday and by appointment, 250 Martin, Birmingham.

Art Nouveau and Art Deco selections along with Erte jewelry and works by R.J. Laney, David Ellis Garrett, Barb Grundeman and mixed media by Susan Thomas of Birmingham are part of a wide variety of items along with graphics, scarves and posters. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday, 251 E. Merrill, Birmingham. WOODWARD GALLERY

GALLERY BIRMINGHAM

"Prints from around the World" features works by Noyer, Zox, Bearden, Agam, Appel and Briggs along with a selection of art posters for the Olympics. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Friday, until 5 p.m. Saturday, 4338 N. Woodward (four blocks south of 14 Mile), Royal Oak.

I. IRVING FELDMAN GALLERIES New works by Charles Hinman include shaped canvases and cast paper pieces in Lucite boxes. Continues through Jan. 7. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday, Thursday until 8 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The gallery has a new address, 6917 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloom-

• DETROIT FOCUS

Clay/10 presents the first invitational group show of the season. Open to the public free of charge. The artists all teach at area universities or centers for ceramics. Continues through the year. Regular hours are noon to 6 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday, 743 Beaubien, Detroit. MEADOW BROOK ART GALLERY

Gary Bandy, originally from Ortonville, and Tom Hale, a local artist known for landscapes and watercolors of automobiles, are the guests at this third part of Meadow Brook II Invitational. Continues through Dec. 23. Hours are 1-5 p.m. Tuesday-Friday, 2-6:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and evenings when there is a Meadow Brook Theatre performance, Oakland University campus, Rochester. • GALLERY ART CENTER

Contemporary works by Mac Jamison, Dali, Appel, Calder, Chagall, Miro, Maxwell, Yamagata, Agam, Dus and Moss are on display. Hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Saturday, 18831 12 Mile, Lathrup Village.

• PEWABIC POTTERY Annual invitational Christmas show and sale continues through Jan. 10. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily, Thursdays until 9 p.m. and Sundays noon to 5 p.m., 10125 E. Jefferson, Detroit. • DETROIT ARTISTS MARKET

Annual holiday show continues through Dec. 27. Included are fashion accessories for both men and women, Christmas ornaments, leaded and etched boxes and panels and many other gift ideas. There's a show by Douglas Semivan, professor at Wayne State University and well-known printmaker, in the Upper Gallery.

Francoise Gilot may just have gotten off the plane from New York. She may have been a little hungry and possibly a bit tired, but she wanted to talk about art, that was clear.

Minutes after she arrived at Schweyer-Galdo Galleries of Birmingham for the opening of her show, she was discussing her art as if it was the first time she had ever found a listener. That puts her in the ranks of good aces, too.

Writer as well as artist and internationally recognized personality, (life with Picasso made certain of that), Gilot maintains a demanding work schedule that apparently agrees with her. In the coming year, she will have shows in California, Sydney, Australia, Bern, Paris and Chicago.

"I work constantly, that's what I always do. Now in this country for quite a while, I have to do four to five shows a year - north, south, east and west."

She said that when living in Europe she had been content to do fewer shows, but the pace of American life is faster and she moves with it.

"When I travel (which she does every year for about a month) I may do sketches. It is very important to recharge your batteries.

THIS YEAR the Gilot batteries will be recharged in India, a country she particularly enjoys because she studied Indian philosophy with an Indian master at 18 in France.

As a matter of fact, expression can supercede technical skill. One picture tightly rendered may be far inferior to a loosely sketched yet highly expressive drawing. Many times artists will comment how one quick sketch draws more attention than another tightly rendered and even photographic picture. Of course this is no mystery since the sketch was a purer stroke of expression.

Expression on demand is what is required for success in art. Many people can do well when they draw what they want to draw when they want to draw it. But expression and looseness quickly flees from them when a commission is offered them.

For hours they hunch over their artwork getting tighter and less expressive by the minute. Remember, people commission you because they like the way you draw for yourself. They may, in fact, feel cheated if you don't draw the same for them.

The way that you see and draw shades of grey.

things is your style. And if your manner or style brought customers to you, it would be a shame if you could not deliver the same to them.

So before you even begin to draw do 1. consider or take thought of what you are to draw; 2. appreciate or become aware of the value of your subject;

3. express or show your feelings; 4. be sincere in that expression;

5. allow your style to show even when it is directed for the enjoyment or requirement of others.

Question: When doing a pen and ink from a color photo I have a difficult time deciding what shades of grey to make for certain colors.

Answer: Before you try to do a pen and ink or any black-and-white picture from a full-color photo or print go to a printer and make a cheap five-cent copy of the photo. This automatically reduces all colors to their proper kind of protective shield. Gilot, herself, used the word "protective" as she spoke of them. One of the floating pictures is titled "Protection."

She said viewers have been responding enthusiastically, "and that's what I wanted to create."

She emphasized that she will never limit her output to one kind of art. That would stifle the challenge, she said. While she doesn't switch back and forth from drawing to painting to etching or other graphic media, at random, preferring to concentrate on one area at a time, she is committed to working in several media.

IT IS the blank paper, the blank canvas, she said, which presents the challenge of the unknown.

"I tell students," she said, "that even the canvas you made yesterday can be an obstacle to the one you do today. Even though you found the answer yesterday, it won't fit today."

She stressed the importance of confidence and judgment, saying that if she isn't certain about something she has done, she will put it aside and look at it

ASK YOUR REALTOR

Q. I want to sell my home and do not mind for an agent to show it. But do I have to sign a marketing agreement? Mr. McB. - Garden City.

A. Signing a marketing agreement is a protection to both the seller and to the Realtor. It spells out without a rea-sonable doubt the price and terms that you as the seller. are willing to accept on your home. This makes it easier for salespeople to relay your wishes to a buyer. A writ-ten contract leaves no room for mistakes or for misunderstandings. As a seller you do want protection, do

With a full time exclusive right to sell, an agent will put forth full effort on MLS exposure, advertising, open house, office tour and general promotion. A signed marketing agreement is best.
