Adults to study at Starkweather

After operating 57 years as an elementary school, Starkweather will close its doors this month and open in the fall as an adult learning center.

The building no longer is being used as an elementary school because of declining enrollment in grades kindergarten through six of Plymouth-Canton Community

The decision to close Starkweather was made this past year by the school board which Monday night voted 7-0 to allow the building to be used by the adult education department.

Most of the adult education programs are offered in the evening hours at Plymouth Canton High School when the building is not needed by high schoolers.

That approach, however, excluded from participation in adult ed most adults who worked evening or late afternoon shifts.

Starkweather now will be used by the community education department to offer daytime programs to adults.

The school board approved the use after the conversion cost had been reduced by some $40,000.

Administrators expect that the added income to the district will more than offset the costs.

EARLIER, a number of suggestions had been made on how best to use the building, including using it as a center for preschool and early elementary programs such as PLUS and IPSEP.

The idea of using it for adult ed always had appeal with administrators and board members, though, because of income-producing potential.

The major obstacle had been lack of parking facilities because Starkweather, as an elementary building, provided parking spaces basically for staff only. The cost of providing parking spaces to adults who might use the center was a stumbling block for some board members.

The administration decided to widen from one to two lanes the entrance to the parking area, and to put an asphalt surface only on the entrance drive — not the parking lot

Based on present planning, the parking lot would provide spaces for some 100 cars. There will be expense of rough grading and providing drainage, said Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business and finance.

By not paving the parking lot, Hoedel said, the parking-lot costs were reduced by $27,000, from $100,000 to $73,000. Another $17,000 was trimmed from earlier cost estimates prepared by the adult ed department.

The net result is a cost reduction, Hoedel said, which will eliminate the earlier projected deficit of $44,000 for the first year's operation

SUPERINTENDENT Dr. John M. Hoben said he felt an adult education center was the most viable alternative for using Starkweather as it would produce revenue.

If Starkweather has to be boarded up, Hoben said, then it cannot reopen without meeting city and state building codes which would require putting in an elevator and other costly renovations.

Realistically, Hoben said, if that were to happen Starkweather would be sold instead of being reopened by the district

Hoedel noted that elementary enrollment (grades K-6) will decline before next fall by some 200 students. The middle-school enrollment will drop by about 90 students, he added, and high-school enrollment will rise by some 93 students. The net result will be a loss of almost 200 students.

The administration projects an increase in the adult education full-time equivalent (FTA) count from 526 to 626. The increase of 100, based on present state formulas, is expected to produce income of $254,000.

Hoben said that was a conservative estimate and that the adult ed center in Starkweather next year could produce as much as an additional $300,000.

Larry Masteller, director of community education, hopes to have the program started by Sept. 1. He will begin making changes in the building as soon as the current school

The switch will result in a change in office locations for Beverly Marshall, head of the Instructional Skills program for staff development, and for Cheryl Johnson, director of the talented and gifted (TAG) program.

Parents urge smoking ban

Petitions containing signatures of about 960 people were presented Monday night asking the school board to implement a total ban on smoking at the high schools.

Murlene Bruton was the spokesman for the group of parents asking the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education to eliminate the designated smoking areas at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP).

The board has asked the CEP administrators to discuss the issue at their meeting this week and make a recommendation to the superintendent.

Most of the trustees seemed willing to have a committee appointed to study the request over the summer. A majority, though, appeared unwilling to consider an outright ban for this fall when school opens.

BRUTON MAINTAINED that a number of students younger than age 18 are smoking at the CEP and that the laws against youth 17 and younger smoking are not being enforced.

"We may not eliminate smoking by students but we can eliminate the place," she said. "There are a number of students at the high schools who want smoking to stop. We should work this summer for a solution to stop this abuse in the fall.

"We hope you will work with us, and not turn your back and say this problem is unsolveable." She expressed dismay that the penalty for students smoking at the middle school level is "only a three-day suspension."

Later in the meeting while discussing a substance abuse policy Trustee E.J. McClendon commented that tobacco is an illicit substance for any student younger than 18 and should be included in any policy dealing with substance abuse at the elementary, middle and high school levels.

Noting that health education instruction has been cut back, though, McClendon said it would be ironic to avoid teaching students about the harmful effects of smoking and then institute penalties against students who smoke.

TRUSTEE TOM YACK said he was grateful Bruton and her group not only came to the board with its concern but also were willing to help find a solu-

"I hope Mrs. Bruton will be received with open arms by the administration and that a group of some kind will be formed to look at this concern."

Yack suggested that possibly the new parent group at the CEP organized this past school year may want to get involved in looking at the request. Agreeing that tobacco is an abused substance, Yack also suggested that representatives of the district's substance abuse committees should be involved.

Superintendent John Hoben said it would be very difficult to police a smoking ban at the CEP. "When we had a 'no smoking' policy at the high school, the smokers migrated to the bathrooms and to all the nooks and crannies in the building, and it was a greater problem then."

One problem, said Hoben, is that the courts won't enforce the "no smoking" laws. The superintendent suggested Bruton's group may be able to help convince the police and courts to adopt a different stance toward students who smoke. He added that it's difficult for the schools to determine which students are 18.

Yack agreed with McClendon that maybe tobacco should be included specifically in the district's policies on substance abuse, adding that maybe the schools could use a "Parents on Patrol" approach.

Glenn Schroeder, board president, said a smoking ban definitely belongs at the elementary and middle school levels but would be difficult to enforce at the high school level.

Trustee Dave Artley also referred to the difficulty of enforcing a total smoking ban, saying "there will be an uprising from the kids." While not expressing opposition to a ban, Artley said, "I would have difficulty kicking a kid out of school for smoking a cigarette, but for some reason would kick a student out for smoking a joint. It's a different kind of high. I think we would be challenged in court. I think your challenged is to motivate public opinion."

Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter said the issue was discussed at the last parent's coffee at the CEP, and it was agreed that there was no use having a policy unless it could be enforced.

Bruton said she felt something could be done if parents and administrators worked together. "We need something that is consistent, in grades K-12. And we can't just give something a try for nine months, but must try for at least two or three years. There will be problems, but anything worthwhile is worthworking toward."

Yack said, "Not that many years ago smoking in high school just was not tolerated. We have devoted our energies over time with dealing with substances considered to be more dangerous habits. Maybe it's time to reclaim this is-

Hoben said that attempts are made to keep minors from smoking at the CEP, including up to a 3-day suspension.

A discussion followed about how easy it was for students to buy cigarettes at party stores and maybe something should be done about that first.

Army couple take on new post

By Marie Chestney staff writer

There's a changing of the guard this week at the Salvation Army in Plymouth.

Bill and Sue Harfoot, who have served as co-commanders for the Plymouth-Canton area since 1976 and who have seen the Army grow from a small building on Fairground to new, larger quarters at 9451 S. Main, are leaving Plymouth June 26 for an assignment in Aurora, Ill.

An open house will be held 3:30-5 p.m. Sunday at the church to say good-bye to the couple, who are both 35, both ordained ministers, and both captains in the Army.

The Harfoots' successors are Larry and Jean Manzella of Warren. Army commanders are appointed by church leaders. "We don't choose our congregation, nor does the congregation choose us," said Bill Harfoot.

The Harfoots said they have "nothing but good to say about Plymouth."

"It's a caring community with a lot of willing workers. Those who have resources are willing to get involved. We've had little difficulty rallying the resources to address a particular problem."

THE AURORA church will be the Harfoot's second mission.

They have led the Plymouth congregation since Bill's graduation from the Salvation Army training school in Chicago eight years ago.

During their eight years here, the couple have witnessed many changes and savored many successes.

Foremost among the changes was the move in 1983 from the cramped Fairground church to the headquarters building and community center in a remodelled old Baptist church. The new church, with 75 members and 2,500 local families on its mailing list, has a gymnasium, chapel and extra large pantries. The old Baptist church is now a fellowship hall and kitchen.

"We're glad we got to spend a year here in the new building," said Harfoot.

WITHIN THOSE eight years, the cocommanders have also helped launch a summer day camp in Canton, a senior citizens' Christmas dinner, two scouting-type programs at the church, a licensed nursery for preschoolers and an expanded community outreach program with a full-time staff person aiding families who need assistance.

The couple said they felt an extra sense of accomplishment when they helped influence two local couples to go through training to become Salvation Army officers.

The mission of the Salvation Army is to meet the practical as well as spiritual needs of people, The Harfoots served the Plymouth area during the recent recession, a time when the church's families-in-need list grew from 75 families a month to 150.

"With the recession, our outreach boomed," Harfoot said. "It's starting to slow down now."

The church still serves as a local distribution point for free government surplus food. About 800 families come once a month to the church for the surplus food.

If the Harfoots had stayed in Plymouth, they said they would have worked on expanding the summer day camp program, the after-school neighborhood outreach program which serves area youngsters, and the senior cities sens' outreach program.

The Salvation Army functions as a short-term assistance agency. The church works with community groups, the Goodfellows and several area churches.

Graduates tackle task of choosing a college

By Margaret Neubacher staff writer

Thirteen years of school, that's 2340 days, or some 14,040 hours, finally paid off for graduating Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton High School seniors.

They were honored with diplomas in commencement ceremonies last week.

Ten 1984 high school graduates were interviewed by the Observer. Their outlook on the future gives some hint as to what this next generation is all about.

College plans are uppermost in everyone's mind - choosing where to go is a big decision.

Pam Burton, 17, a Plymouth-Canton graduate, can easily pick and choose where she wants to go, with her 3.8 grade-point average.

She was accepted at several prestigious schools, among them U-M, Harvard and the University of Chicago, where she was offered a full scholarship.

"I chose Brown, in Rhode Island, because of their graduation requirements." Burton said

She plans to study both history and language, and eventually go to law school. "I don't know that I want to be a lawyer, but it's good background. The skills law school teaches you are very important analytically.' Burton also has a Rotary Scholarship to study in Zimbabwe, Africa, for a

"I'm struggling with my parents who don't want me to go. They think I'll be maimed or killed. They have a different concept of Zimbabwe.

"I wanted to go to Europe, but when they got my application not that many countries were left," said Burton.

TAMI BUDLONG, 17, a Canton graduate, knew from the start she wanted a small college.

"I chose Alma, (a private college in Alma, Mich.) because as an honors student I can combine foreign language and math. I'm thinking about international business as a career." said Budlong, "or maybe accounting. I could use French in correspondences. I think it would be easier to get a job if I had a language.'

Budlong considered going to Purdue to study engineering.

"It's too specific and too big, I can always go there for graduate school,

Budlong explained. Rich Bardelli, 17, another Canton graduate, was apprehensive about leaving high school. "I was nervous, but now that everything is set with college and my grades are OK, I feel pretty good." Bardelli plans to commute to Eastern Michigan, where he will study computer-aided design or computer business. He may transfer to Lawrence Institute of Technology later.

Canton grad Tim Rainey, 18, has decided to work before going to college.

For the next two years he'll report to Uncle Sam, as an enlistee in the U.S.

"Going into the army will give me a lot of discipline and more maturity," said Rainey, who hopes to be sent over-

"Secondly, I passed the test for financial aid and will get $15,200 to pay for college, and I'll be earning $600 a month in salary.

Rainey would like to attend Ferris State and study optometry when he re-

"I think I'll be set in the way of money, there are very few jobs around where you can make this kind of money," Rainey adds.

"When I first told my parents they were shocked, but not as shocked as I thought they'd be."

THE THREAT of war does cross Rainey's mind.

"No one hates war more than a soldier. If it breaks out he's the one to go. I would say I keep up with what's going on in the world more than I used to Consensus among the graduates was that marriage should be put off till after college and careers were started.

'No kids or marriage til my career is established," said Lisa Rohde, 17, a Canton graduate. "I need to define my identity more before I share my life with someone else."

Rohde, an only child, will be attending U-M this fall.

Canton graduate Jeff Boright, 18, would like to get married.

"I'm not the kind of person who wants to run around, I don't drink and would like to share my sorrow and joy with someone," Boright said. "I would like to have money and be of responsibility on a young couple, I

KAY McKINSRY, 18, a Salem graduate, has some valid concerns about marriage. Living through her parent's divorce gave her a close-up look at what's involved in a life-time commit-

"I think people should have a lot of experiences before they get married. They should live on their own, away from their parents," McKinsry said.

"When they get married they should delay having children, and get to know each other for a while.

"A divorce is hard on children," she

McKinsry will attend Eastern Michigan this fall.

Rich Bardelli, 17, a Plymouth-Canton graduate, forsees himself marrying a career woman, but not necessarily by

"I think that's the way it'll be. Women will work because young couples need the money," said Bardelli.

Michelle Schoenneman, 17, a Salem graduate, can foresee marriage for herself, but not kids.

"Kids aren't my thing," Schoenne-

She bases her decision on extensive baby-sitting experience in the past couple years. The threat of nuclear war concerns only concern with the future.

"I think I'll be around for a while people are smart enough not to blow each other up," Bardelli said. "I worry about the price of gas, and there no being enough food."

"I WORRY about language," said Burton. "The lies, misnomers and euphemisms the government uses to relate to the people and the media are anesthetizing people from recognizing what we're really doing in places like Central America. These issues need to be faced," Burton urged. Karen Hekins, 18, a Salem graduate, has more immediate concerns.

"I worry whether or not I'll get a job when I graduate," said Hekins, who'll study computers and business at Michigan State this fall.

Looking back on their high-school experiences, each of the graduates had some advice for those following in their footsteps.

KEN WRIGHT, 17, a Salem graduate, has lived by the philosophy that he'll do the best he can in whatever situation he finds himself.

"I would recommend that philosophy to a freshman," Wright said.
"High school has been really good. I wish I had another semester to take all the classes I want - there are some really good ones."

Plymouth had street cars for almost 30 years

Among America's favorites of the past were the newspaper cartoons by Fontaine Fox in which he depicted human nature as seen on a trolley car in the small town of Toonerville.

For 29 years, Plymouth had its own version of the Toonerville Trolley. A street-car line ran through the village from 1898 to 1927. The first reference I have found to it was in the minutes of the common council on March 29, 1898.

On that day, when George A. Starkweather was village president, the council had its first reading of an ordinance pertaining to the proposed street-car line. A committee of three, consisting of Starkweather and two other trustees, was formed to obtain further information and legal advice before the ordinance was passed.

The committee made its report in May. A discussion followed about voting a franchise to the Detroit, Plymouth and Northville Railway to construct, maintain and operate a streetcar line through Plymouth. Although it was called the DP and N in 1898, the company was either affiliated with the Detroit United Railway, or was later acquired by that firm.

I say that because most Plymouth residents of that period remember the line as the DUR, and an advertisement in the May 21, 1915, issue of the Plymouth Mail, announcing trolley times from Plymouth to Detroit and to Northville, was signed by the Detroit United Railway.

That company, based in Detroit, had a stormy time in the 1890s when Mayor (later Governor) Hazen Pingree attacked it for not bearing its fair share of Detroit's taxes. Detroit acquired ownership of the line in 1922.

PRIOR TO PASSING the street car ordinance in Plymouth, village trustees made many amendments.

One specified that the power house to operate the railway should be located within the village limits; another stipulated the degree of angle at which the rail ties were to be laid. And another made it clear that the street car company was to pay the village for whatever expenses it incurred in "procuring and granting" the ordinance. The village later billed the company $54.15.

The council voted to ask the company to issue one-thousand mile books, for use by any number of persons designated by the purchaser, at a cost of one cent per mile. For whatever reason, this motion was withdrawn a week

The proposed route of the street car was spelled out at the May 20 meeting. It was to enter Plymouth on Ann Arbor Street at the east, run westerly in the center of the street to Sutton Street (now Penniman Avenue), pass along the north side of Plymouth Green (now Kellogg Park), turn right on South Main and go northeasterly to Mill Street. It was to go along the center of Mill Street to the northerly limits of the village. This route is shown on the 1904 map on page 3 of my "Pictorial History of Plymouth.'

past and present

ALTHOUGH THE MINUTES do not mention it, the line actually originated in Detroit and went to Wayne.

It ran north on Wayne Road to Cherry Hill Road, and west on Cherrry Hill to Newburgh Road where it turned north. It went west on Ann Arbor Trail until it came to Plymouth.

Norma Cassady, who has lived all of her life in Plymouth, told me there was a pump at the corner of Newburgh Road and Ann Arbor Trail that was reputed to give fine water. She says it was the custom of the motorman of the trolley, and of some of the passengers, to dismount at the point to have a drink. Fontaine Fox would have loved

At its May 20, 1898, meeting, the village council specified that the speed of the street cars through the village limits be restricted to ten miles per hour. It also ordered that the car rails be laid in such a way that there would be no danger of wagon wheels entering the space between the rail "and the plank."

This may have been a reference to the areas where the rails crossed the board crosswalks that traversed the dirt roads at intersections. There was no street paving in Plymouth until 1908.

The council also requested that children under 6, when accompanied by parent or guardian, be permitted to ride free; that no turnouts, sidetracks, switches or turn-tables be placed on any public or private crossing; and that the charge to a passenger between Plymouth and Ypsilanti not exced 30 cents. After several public readings, the ordinance was adopted on May 25.

A photo of one of the trolley cars rounding the curve at the corner of Penniman and Main is shown on page 13 of my pictorial history. One showing the trolley going through the Phoenix

I have been told that Charlie Thumme, who later became Plymouth's chief of police, worked as a conductor of the trolley. When he left that job to become a policeman, no uniform... came with the new job, so Thumme proceeded to wear his conductor's uniform which he adapted for police duty.

The trolley waiting room in Plymouth was about where the parking lot of First Federal of Michigan now is located. Nettie Dibble wrote that the street car line through Plymouth was discontinued in the summer of 1927.

The tracks remained in the streets until they were removed by WPA workers in the 1930s. Vestiges of them still were visible among the bricks of Main Street when I arrived here in the

Roads, towns change since 'greatest day'

You never realize how fast time flies or how much things have changed until you are fortunate enough to pass your golden wedding anniversary and then look back to your wedding day.

Fifty-four years have gone by since the little lady of our house and The Stroller walked down the aisle of Metropolitan Methodist Church, Detroit. And hardly anyone is now alive who witnessed the ceremony, let alone took

IT WAS A beastly hot afternoon, but the stage was set for what was to be the greatest day of our lives. For months we had looked forward to it.

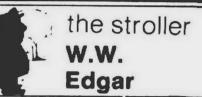

Rev; Mike Rice, then one of the most highly rated ministers in the area, was to tie the knot. Bryant Huff, a former Metropolitan Opera singer, was to do the solos and Francis McKay, the top organist in the city was sitting at the giant instrument in the main section of

ALL THESE things came to mind last Saturday, June 16, when we celebrated our 54th wedding anniversary.

And as we looked back, it seemed almost unbelieveable that we two - the Stroller and his bride - are the only survivors of that great day.

So great has been the change that we are lone survivors of our immediate family. One by one they passed on and even the passenger boat that took us across the lake is now only a memory...

Along with those losses came some great changes in our lifestyle. On that great day we were gloating over our first automobile - one of the first Model A Fords. And we had a nice little home in northwest Detroit and it was four city blocks from the end of the street car line.

What great changes have taken place. The little Ford is now long gone. And our little home is now only a photograph to us as we live out in what was called "the country."

Little did we think that wedding afternoon that we would be pioneers in switching the farmlands of Livonia into a nice city, or that each of us would have our own car. But that's what has happened in those 54 years.

Now we live in a wooded area of what was an old abandoned farm. And the old gravel road leading to it is now one of the main highways to Metropolitan Airport and the area is thriving. And at that time Plymouth was known as one of the sweet corn capitals of the country, street cars still were the main mode of travel and the early automobiles traveled a plank road into Detroit.

Times sure have changed and it is a pity that the other members of the wedding party on that great day didn't

Celebrate CALAD DAYS

Salads are nearly synonymous with the ler meals that are so popular today. Consum a side dish.

In its role as the star of a meal, the new American salad has become a showcase for a cook's greativity. While fresh produce is assential for most salads, salad ingredients can be found in almost every aisle of the supermarket. Some favorite salading redients include pasta beans; frozen or canned vegetables, cheeses and cold cuts; rice, canned tuna and e pourable salad dressing aisle provides special inspiration for saladity. There are traditional revorites such as Thousand Island and French, bacon & tomato. There's even a dressing created for salad-loving Mexican tood tans seeking a South-of-the-Border flavor: Kraft taco dressing.

The Kraft Kitchens have created a bounty of recipes to showcase fresh produce and a variety of dressings. Layered Sea Salad is an eye-catching combination of fresh produce, pasta and shrimp that is perfect for a luncheon buffet or a patio supper. Italian-style Pasta Salad Primavera reatures a combination of shell and a lineup of exciting new flavors, including buttermilk creamy dressing and phours in advance and stored unbovered in a dry place. Fill the shells with a tasty blend of ground beef seasoned with taco dressing, shredded lettuce.

Pizza doesn't have to be homemade to be good

I'm looking at the birthday card I gave my wife before she puts it away with her other mementos. It has special significance.

On the white cover is five-sixths of a pizza, with green pepper and ground beef the most visible, that looks good enough to finish. The red lettering says, 'In the Great Pizza of Life . . ." Inside, the message continues, "YOU deserve the biggest slice."

When we eat pizza, I usually end up with the biggest slices. Most often, they are homemade. But I am happy to report that since I issued a blistering indictment of the state of pizza on the restaurant and supermarket fronts several years ago, conditions have improved dramatically.

That's reflected in a recent study that shows pizzerias outnumber hamburger joints: 9.9 percent of U.S. restaurants are pizza parlors, compared to 8.7 percent for burger places. Pizza sales in American eateries over the past five years have stolen some of the spotlight from the battle-of-the-burger giants: up to 155 percent.

My wife took me for pizza at one of those nationwide chains and I must confess it was good. I liked the healthy portion of cheese even though the price was steep.

Even frozen pizzas have improved. I prefer the extra toppings kind. There's one featuring a pan with vents that I plan to try. If the pizza is a flop, I can use the pan when I make mine from

There is a pretty fair hot-roll mix at the grocery store that makes it a breeze to prepare pizza shells.

I still prefer my sauce. But now I let it sit in the refrigerator overnight. The results are worth the wait.

¼ tsp. dried oregano ¼ tsp. dried basil ¼ tsp. crushed red pepper add onion and garlic and cook until onion is limp, not browned. Add toma-toes and rest of ingredients, bring to boil, reduce heat to medium and cook 5 to 10 minutes, stirring. Let cool and re-frigerate overnight. # Mild turmeric makes fine eating

If the black-and-white photo of this delicious bread were in color you'd be able to see what a beautiful golden hue it has.

How does it get that way, you ask? Saffron? If it were saffron it would have an unusual flavor and the bread would seem worth its weight in gold.

No, the spice in this recipe is turmeric. This is the root which gives curry powder and the yellower hot dog mustards their color. Turmeric adds some flavor as well, but it isn't distinctive. The orange-colored turmeric root is a member of the ginger family and is used in the preparation of vegetable pickles, corn relish and baked goods.

Which brings us back to the bread. Golden Turmeric Bread makes fine eating spread with lots of softened butter or margarine, and its onion and caraway flavors make it a natural for sandwiches from vegetable-cream cheese to turkey-tomato.

Our second recipe, Chicken with Golden Rice, is a grand Spanish-tasting dish. It looks like Arroz Con Pollo, it tastes like Arroz Con Pollo (sans saffron). Fine enough for company, this skillet-casserole contains chicken parts, ham cubes, sweet red pepper strips and turmeric rice seasoned with instant minced onion and garlic and oregano. Sprinkle with toasted slivered almonds just before serving.
GOLDEN TURMERIC BREAD

3 thsp. instant minced onion Warm water (105-115 F)

2 pkgs. active dry yeast 1 cup milk

1 tbsp. sugar 1 thsp. salt

4 tsp. caraway seed, divided

1/4 tsp. ground turmeric 1/4 tsp. ground white pepper

2 thsp. vegetable oil

About 5 % cups all-purpose flour (unsifted) I egg white, beaten

In a small bowl combine minced onion and 3 tablespoons water; set aside for 10 minutes to soften. In the bowl of an electric mixer place 1 cup warm water and yeast; stir until dissolved. Stir in milk, sugar, salt, 3 teaspoons of the caraway seed, turmeric, white pepper and oil. Gradually beat in 3 cups of the flour. Remove dough to a lightly floured board. Gradually knead in 21/2 cups flour. Knead until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes, stirring in additional flour, if necessary. Place dough in a lightly greased bowl. Turn dough so greased surface is on top. Cover lightly and let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk, about 25 minutes. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Brush tops of bread with egg white; sprinkle with remaining 1 teaspoon caraway seed. Bake until bread sounds hollow when tapped lightly about 25 minutes. Cool on racks. Yield: two 8-inch rounds

CHICKEN WITH GOLDEN RICE

2 thsp. vegetable oil 3 lbs. chicken parts

1 cup ham cubes

2 thsp. instant minced onion 1 tsp. instant minced garlic

1 tsp. salt

¼ tsp. turmeric

¼ tsp. oregano leaves, crushed ¼ tsp. ground black pepper

2% cups water

1 cup long grain rice (uncooked) 2 cups sweet red pepper strips 2 thsp. slivered almonds, toasted

In a large skillet heat oil until hot. Add chicken.

Saute until browned on all sides. Add ham, onion, garlic, salt, turmeric, oregano, black pepper and water. Bring to a boll. Reduce heat and simmer covered for 20 minutes. Add rice. Simmer covered for 15 minutes. Add red pepper. Simmer covered until chicken, rice and pepper are tender, about 5 minutes. Sprinkle with almonds. YIELD: 4 portions.

*To toast almonds place on a baking pan in a preheated 350 degree oven until golden, 3 to 5 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Dream-dessert tips

Tender tea breads, moist and chewy cookies and high, handsome cakes - this is the stuff dessert dreams are made of. And here are tips to make those dreams come true:

• Plan ahead. Before starting, read the recipe thoroughly and make sure you have all ingredients and equipment needed. Do any advance prepara-tion required. Remember, baking in many ways is a science, and the best results come from following a recipe carefully.

Use shiny metal pans, or those with a non-stick finish. If you use glass baking equipment, lower the oven temperature by 25 degrees.

• Use the right shortening for the job. Cake batter made with butter is hard to blend and the cake comes out heavier and flatter than one made • Don't overcrowd the oven. If you are baking three cake layers, arrange them so no pan is directly over another. Also, don't use a cookie sheet that is too large for the oven. Allow two inches on all sides to permit heat circulation. Often, baked foods must cool a bit before being removed from pans. Don't be impatient — follow directions so the food leaves the pan easily without

Put these tips to work on your next baking project — you'll be pleased with the results.

They're planning a "Homecoming Sundae" 1-5 p.m. Sunday at the Plymouth Children's Co-op Nursery. Present and past members, their families and friends, are invited to the ice cream social on the lawn of the old red school house on Warren Road at Haggerty. The school will be open for reminisc-

The nursery has been in the former Hough School since September 1963.

It was in March 1961 that eight mothers met to discuss the possibility of forming a cooperative nursery in Plymouth. It was a year later that Mimi Settles found housing for the group in the basement of the Salvation Army building. Doris Sponseller was the teacher. There were 21 member families and classes met Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The sessions stopped after 10 weeks because a license was denied. The fire marshal found the facility below standards. But the constitution had been accepted and signed by the charter members, who had voted unanimously to join the Huron Valley Council of Coop-

THE PLYMOUTH group inherited some equipment when a Brighton nur-sery disbanded. When the effects were divided, the local nursery got an indoor metal climber, a teeter-totter board and triangles, a clothes rack and a ba-sic record library.

The city gave them permission to use the Community Building with the stipu-lation that the members bring it up to code. The city supplied the paint and materials and the member families the manpower. They covered empty beer cases for seats and storage for small

A pistol club shared the building and before each session, the mothers swept up the gun powder and casings. At the end of the day, all the nursery equipment had to be stored in a corner.

When the Sponsellers moved away, Carol Guregian was hired as the new teacher. A Tuesday-Thursday session was added in January 1963 with Jan-Lucchettl as teacher. The Senior Citizens of Plymouth made stools for the children, costumes and doll clothes.

The search for new quarters contis ne search for new quarters contin-ued. Jeanette Hopkins, who was teach-ing the Tuesday-Thursday sensions, suggested looking for an old country school house. And finally, Hough-School, which had been used for storage, was leased to the nursery. Every body went to work.

Fathers also had an opportunity to attend sessions with their children. Parents discovered that both mother and child dealt with home situations with more maturity and effectiveness. Mothers had more free time to deal with other children and other interests. Eating, sleeping and sibling rivalry problems were solved or alleviated.

Most importantly, parents had an op-portunity to see their child more objec-tively. They realized problems and situations are common to their age group. For 22 years, mothers have

No doubt, the state's best

staff writer

NE THING'S CERTAIN: These All-Stars are all stars. Check the stats. Five schools in the Observer coverage area finished among the top 10 state rankings in girls' soccer: Livonia's Stevenson, Churchill and Bentley, Plymouth Canton and Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy.

Of the 12 members of the All-Observer girls' soccer first team, four were selected by coaches to the All-State first squad. Two others were picked to the All-State second team and three more received honorable men-

NOT THAT the All-State team consists of the state's best. Considering just six players from the Western Lakes Activities Association were among the 32 chosen to the first and second teams - when five WLAA teams were ranked in the top 10 in the final coaches' poll - it becomes apparent some very talented players were

As Livonia Stevenson coach Norene Divens explained: "This is not an All-Select state team. This is an All-Representative state team."

Which means each conference is limited to five players on the first two teams (coaches made an allowance to the WLAA's superiority by granting it

Put bluntly, take the All-Observer's first and second teams and match them against the rest of the state's best prep players and see who wins.

I know who I'd bet on. Here are the reasons why.

FIRST TEAM

Mary Kay Hussey, forward, Livonia Stevenson: Hussey's statistics are overshadowed by just one foreboding factor: she's only a junior, which can not be viewed optimistically by opposing

A first-team All-State striker, Hussey merely collected 40 goals and 28 assists in 22 games, bringing her career totals to 82 goals and 50 assists. Even more impressive were her 11 gamewinning tallies.

Divens' comments about her star are equally noteworthy: "Tremendous growth as a player, excellent soccer sense; definitely one of the top players in the state; has very strong skills and has the ability to concentrate; is extremely determined and aggressive."

all-area soccer

Lisa Rigstad, forward, Livonia Bentley: For the last four years, one name has topped the scoring list for Livonia Bentley: Rigstad. The senior striker poured in 24 goals and added 10 assists this season, to bring her career total to 109 goals.

"Her greatest asset is putting the ball into the net," said Bentley coach Paul Scicluna. "She's a steady performer and one of the team leaders."

Rigstad earned All-State second team honors. She was a first team choice a year ago and received honorable mention as a sophomore.

Lisa Russell, forward, Plymouth Canton: Russell is only a junior but she is a soccer veteran, playing on an under 16 state select team and gaining international experience by playing in a tournament in Sweden with the FLiP Rowdies (which the Rowdies won) last

"Lisa is a very smart, experienced soccer player - a team leader," is Canton coach Mike Morgan's appraisel. An All-WLAA selection and All-State honorable mention, Russell collected 21 goals and eight assists for the 10th-

Jennifer Huegli, forward, Livonia Churchill: What makes Huegli so outstanding, according to coach Ed Dudek, is "a great left foot and a good right

Huegli used both those feet to notch 12 goals and 15 assists, bringing her career stats to 32 goals and 37 assists and she's only a sophomore. She was picked to the All-Western Division team in the WLAA and, adds Dudek: "She gives 100 percent all the time . . . I am looking for bigger and better things to come in the future."

Annette Ruggiero, midfielder, Farmington Hills Mercy: "First to get to practice and the last to leave; great skills in all aspects of the game; without her, Mercy would not have enjoyed the success it did," are all Gene Fogel's descriptions of Ruggiero.

No one could argue with Ruggiero's immense talents. The junior led the Marlins with 22 goals and 21 assists, making Mercy's inaugral soccer season a highly successful one. The Marlins won the Catholic League championship and were ranked seventh in the state.

Ruggiero earned first team All-State and All-Catholic honors. She is also a member of the National Honor Society (3.86 grade point) and an All-State hon-

Dorene Dudek, midfielder, Livonia Churchill: Dudek possessed all the qualities a midfielder needed. According to her coach and father, Ed Dudek, Dorene had "excellent endurance which allowed her to wear down opponents. She heads the ball very well. She worked as hard in practice as in orable mention in basketball.

Dudek, a senior, had a goal or an assist (or both) in 16 of 19 games. An All-State first teamer for the second consecutive year, she finished with 12 goals and 20 assists for a three-year career total of 37 goals and 57 assists.

Kim Paterson, midfielder, Livonia Bentley: Paterson played just half the season at midfield, which is why Scicluna referred to her as his "field general" Paterson played everywhere.

As a striker, she scored 14 goals and added 11 assists. As a sweeperback, she contributed strong defense. "She knows how the game is to be played," said Sci-best passer in the league. She has more know-how on how the game should be played than anyone I've seen."

Paterson, just a sophomore, received All-State honorable mention.

Sue Bartram, defender, Farmington: Bartram began playing soccer as a 9year-old and just never stopped. The senior started for Farmington at midfield as a freshman and remained there until this season, when coach and father Ed Bartram switched her to sweeperback.

But soccer for Sue doesn't end with the conclusion of the prep season. For the past five years she's played yearround. She played all 18 games for the Falcons this year and was the team captain and MVP. But MVP honors are nothing new for Bartram: she's claimed that honor for three straight Bartram was All-State honorable mention and has received All-League accolades for the last three seasons.

Sheri Wolfe, defender, Livonia Bentley: Wolfe, a junior, scored two goals and collected five assists for the Bulldogs this season. Which says something about her style.

"She can get the ball out of the danger zone faster than anyone I've seen," said Scicluna. "I've seen her carry the

Mercy's Gene Fogel is Coach of Year pick

There were several outstanding can-didates for Observerland Girls Soccer Coach of the Year.

Livonia Stevenson coach Noreen Divens took her club to the state finals again this season. Livonia Bentley coach Paul Scicluna and Livonia Churchill coach Ed Dudek had teams ranked high in the state. Plymouth Canton's Mike Morgan took a dying program, revived it, and finished No. 10 in the state.

But one coaches' accomplishments slightly overshadowed the others.

THERE WAS no soccer team at Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy High School last year. Suddenly, the powers that be at the school decided to onsor one for 1984. They hired Gene Fogel, a newscaster at WJR radio who

It was a tremendous choice. Fogel took a team from scratch and molded them into the first-ever Catholic League champions. The Marlins placed No. 8 in the state with a 14-4 record.

The team lost two of its first three matches, then went on to win 12 of their last 13, 11 in a row.

"That is one great coach," said Birmingham Marian coach Terry Dilworth after Mercy had defeated his team in the Catholic League championship. "The job he did this year with a first-year team was just super. I've never seen anything like it."

One such incident involved Maurice Hunter, two-time tourney champ. Hunter, a transplanted Detroiter living in Hollywood, Calif., was visibly upset because he was not among the top eight eeds in the tourney.
"I should have been seeded No. 1,"

AAU squad gears for nationals

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Amidst the euphoria was a brief flash of panic.

Ed Kavanaugh's Metro AAU girls basketball team defeated a powerful Michigan team Sunday June 3 to earn a trip to the National Junior Olympic Basketball Tournament in Clovis, N.M.

It was a happy scene. Char Govan, a junior at Ladywood High School, was being hugged and congratulated by her teammates. Her 32 points spurred the Metro team to an unexpected 88-82 win in the state AAU championship.

Then the panic set in. "I hear the Metro team won't be able to go to the nationals," said a member of the Michigan team.

"What?" was the stunned response.

THE NATIONAL tournament was scheduled for the week of July 13-20, the exact same week that Kavanaugh had set for his Schoolcraft College giris basketball

Girls Basketball Camp - a seemingly unresolvable conflict.

Kavanaugh was unruffled. "We're going. Don't worry about that," he said.

The following Monday, Kavanaugh, the young energetic coach of both Ladywood and Schoolcraft womens' teams, began making arrangements. One week later, the conflict was re-

"We're going to have the camp July 23-25 and we're going to extend it one hour each day. It'll run from 9 a.m. to 3

No problem.

Meanwhile, Kavanaugh wrapped up his national tourney roster. Unable to make the trip to Clovis were Metro team members Bev White of Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy and Karen MacDonald of Melvindale.

Joining the team are three players from the Michigan team. Lisa Harvey, an all-state guard from Benton Harbor who scored 17 points in the AAU state championship, Alayna McGee, from Flint Northwestern and the sister of Pam and Paula McGee of USC fame. and Angle Middleton from Detroit Murray-Wright.

OTHERS ON the squad include Oberver & Eccentric standouts Sarah Basford (Mercy-University of Michigan), Allana Cummings (Troy Athens), Govan, Trish White and Emily Wagner (Ladywood), and Alyse Fortune and Rhonda Lancaster (Farmington).

Kavanaugh is no stranger to the na-tional tournament. He was invited to go last year to help coach the Michigan team. Michigan finished fifth in the na-

Kavanaugh says his team is every bit as good, and perhaps a little better, than the team that went last year.

"We have a lot more depth this year," he said. "We have a good representative group. It's a nice mixture of student-athletes. I'm looking for a lot

He's also looking for some help—financial help. The cost of the trip is $9,000. The players need sponsors. Anyone interested in making a tax-deductible donation should make out a check to the Michigan AAU Association and send it to Schoolcraft Community College in care of Ed Kavanaugh: 18600 Haggerty, Livonia 48152.

Distance runner makes sudden course change

By C.J. Risak staff writer

One month ago, Jennifer Rioux put the finishing touches on a pretty nice freshman season.

In her first year at the University of Michigan, the former Livonia Ladywood running ace lowered her best time in the 1,500 meters by 12 seconds, reached All-American status during the indoor season (she missed the outdoor standard by four-tenths of a second) and clocked the sixth-fastest 1,500 among freshman nationally.

Then she got the rug pulled out from

Her coach, Francea Goodridge, who was the main reason Rioux chose U-M, resigned. Goodridge was off to coach Wake Forest's new women's team, joining her husband, John, who had been hired to coach the Deacons' men's

"That was really a surprise," said Rioux. "My first reaction was panic."

RIOUX'S SECOND reaction came 10 days ago. She decided to follow her coach and transfer to Wake Forest.

"She wants me to continue coaching her," said Goodridge, a former middle distance runner who competed in the 1968 and 1972 Olympics. "She's never had a éoach two years in a row."

ROLAND B. THOMAS, JR., Secretary

Harold Ramis is Dr. Egon Spengler, one of three parapsychologists who goes after ghosts in the comedy "Ghostbusters."

Sigourney Weaver is the nicest thing about 'Ghostbusters'

"Ghostbusters" is off and running at the box office, eclipsing the opening weekend records of "Star Trek III." While it has some funny moments and will probably provide an enjoyable hour and three-quarters, it isn't as funny as it ought to be considering its reported $32-million cost.

Against a backdrop of some pretty spectacular special effects, three parapsychology researchers, Dr. Peter Venkman (Bill Murray), Dr. Raymod Stantz (Dan Akroyd) and Dr. Egon Spengler (Harold Ramis), are kicked off campus by the mean dean of some un-named New York university.
In the inimitable Aykroyd/Murray/Belushi "Saturday Night

Live" offhand, indifferent style that disdains audiences, the three set up business as commercial ghost exterminators. The Orkin Man never had such equipment nor such vermin.

He never had such customers either, as the ghostbusters' first client is the very attractive Dana Barrett (Sigourney Weaver), who lives in an apartment building that is the gateway for demons from another dimension.

WEAVER IS pert and most engaging as a young, symphony-orchestra performer facing the excitement, challenge and difficulties of a lovely, single girl living in New York. She also comes on strong as the sultry vamp possessed by the Sumerian demigod Gozer.

Watching her is well worth the price of admission. In fact, more of her and less of the boys wouldn't have bothered me at all.

The movie's great strength is Weaver and the supporting cast. Murray and Aykroyd lack the intensity and commitment that would have made this a non-stop laugh riot. Perhaps if John Belushi had appeared, as was the original plan, there might have been greater consistency.

As it is, every so often, just as things are picking up, Murray and rest and throw away their lines as they walk away from the audience. This on-again, off-again energy level characterizes the entire production.

As an example, down the hall from Dana Barrett lives a wimpy accountant, Louis Tully. Rick Moranis plays him very funny and intense, when he's in his own element, throwing a cut-rate party for his clients (it's tax-deductible) with generic goodies (great savings and they're just as good).

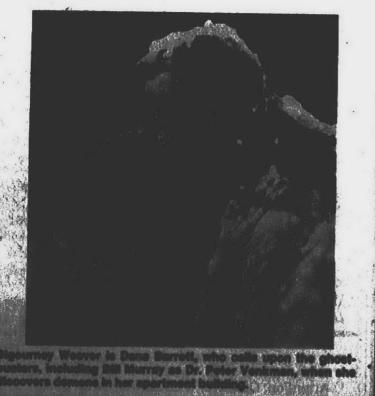

BUT, WHEN possessed by demons, he just lies there and whimpers. Then he comes across as humorless. This shift from funny nerd to humorless blob is typical of the film's offstride pac-

The ghostbusters hire Janine Melnitz (Annie Potts). She's their cute, Brooklyn, gum-chewing-and-not-as-dumb-as-she-pretends secretary with excellent timing but, unfortunately, limited lines.

William Atherton is properly intense and myopic as Walter-Peck, the man from the EPA. His name is the butt of several unworthy Murray/Akroyd jokes indicative of the level of humor and disrespect for audiences implicit in their performance.

But the special effects are very well done and there certainly is a lot of pleasure and entertainment in watching visually convincing ghosts and demons cavort. The catchy title song is already popular and most audiences will find "Ghostbusters" a pleasant
