Cash settlement offered on Supersewer

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

Plymouth and Canton townships have accepted a more than $600,000 out-of-court settlement on a portion of their ongoing Supersewer lawsuit.

The eight communities involved in the South Huron Valley Wastewater system offered to pay the money in exchange for being dropped from a lawsuit filed last year by the two townships.

"I'm extremely happy with the way things are going. I am happy the people down south have finally realized we were treated unfairly when Supersewer was split," said Canton Supervisor James Poole

The two townships filed the lawsuit against the South Huron communities (mostly downriver), the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the City of Detroit and Wayne County after a governor's task force decided to split Supersewer into a north and south project in July 1983.

The south communities have agreed to reimburse Plymouth and Canton townships for all the Final Interim Financing Agreement (FIFA) money they paid for designing the abandoned Supersewer project - $142,000 to Plymouth Township and $475,000 to Canton.

We are getting reimbursed and we are not going to drop our lawsuit against the DNR and Detroit," Poole said

BOTH TOWNSHIP boards met in closed sessions Tuesday night to discuss the proposed settlement.

"Through all the deposition taking and mish-mash, an offer was made,' said Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen.

Although the lawsuit was scheduled to begin at the end of October, the settlement with the southern communities will push the trial date back to March 1, 1985. The communities have until then to repay the FIFA money.

"The agreement is likely to include language obligating all the participants in any future North Huron Valley project to repay $700,000 to the South Huron Valley communities, which represents that value received by the north communities during the planning of the south project," said Brian James, attorney for Plymouth Township. "This $700,000, if repaid, would be included in the cost of any future North Huron Valley project," James said.

Federal Enviromental Protection Agency (EPA) grant funding was approved this year for the south project but the lawsuit prohibited the sale of construction bonds.

The north project, however, was de-nied EPA funding this year - cutting all chances of receiving 75-percent EPA grants. Many believe the north project is out of the question now, with EPA funding reduced to a maximum of 55 percent.

BESIDES SEEKING reimbursement for the FIFA money, the townships' lawsuit likely will address the reasoning behind the project split.

We've just about found the smoking gun," Poole said. "When we get done with this lawsuit it will make Vista look like a Sunday School picnic, this will spread across the state and all the way to Washington.

This whole thing has been an absolute conspiracy. We have been lied to, we have been coerced because of the threats of sewer bans if we didn't go along," he said.

'Now, as we get closer to the target, we see that there was a conspiracy. The mayor of Detroit, some people in Washington and some people in Lansing decided they were going to kick us out to keep the good paying sewer customers going to Detroit. "We want a sewer system. We're not out there to defeat anyone, we only want parity," Poole said. Breen said Plymouth Township will place its $142,000 back into the water and sewer fund because that is where the FIFA money was taken from. Poole wasn't certain what will be done with Canton's share of the settlement

"It can be used to build roads, or playgrounds, or any number of things,' he said. "But it may be best to put it there and hang onto it for awhile.

"I'm just happy if we get it back. I was criticized by some for suing.

"We've paid almost a half-million dollars and I find that we have no toilets, no pipes, no sewers, no nothing. For all the money we paid we could have studied China and Tibet too," Poole said.

Soccer parents make field goal

A protest was lodged Monday night by soccer players and parents concerning the refusal of high school officials to allow soccer to be played on the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) athlet-

A large number of Plymouth Canton High soccer boosters appeared Monday before the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education to protest what they viewed as favored treatment toward football and shortchanging soccer as a varsity Spokespersons included parents Billie Whiteley, Bob Crain, Linda Gasparet, and student Tim Mueller, cocaptain of the Chiefs soccer team.

Among other requests, the group asked permission to play its last home game Tuesday on the CEP athletic field. Superintendent John Hoben promised to expedite an administrative study of the request in an attempt to get an answer back to the group by Monday.

who are not allowed to play their home games on their school's athletic field." Whiteley said soccer parents would work with the administration to cover the costs of use of the field and stadi-

Crain noted that soccer as a varsity sport is not rated very highly by the CEP athletic department and is not getting equity in use of facilities. Crain pointed out that this year more than 5,000 students in Plymouth-Canton have signed up for soccer. In addition, said Crain, some 700 basketball players have signed up for Junior Basketball leagues while only 180 football players are registered.

"Soccer is not getting an appropriate billing."

Crain added that soccer parents have purchased the players red shirts, white shorts, red sweatsuits and paid for half the cost of the jerseys while the district has only paid for half the jersey cost.

The percussion session put in some extra hours after school this week to liven up their beat for Saturday's competition.

Undefeated CEP band eyes title

The Michigan Competing Band Di-rectors' Association (MCBDA) state competition will be held Saturday at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) stadium.

The opening ceremony will be at 11 a.m. at the stadium on Canton Center Road just south of Joy in Canton. Flight III and II competitions will be held all morning and afternoon with the topnotch bands competing in Flight I beginning 4 p.m.

This is the third year in a row Plymouth-Canton has hosted the state competition.

The awards ceremony for Flight I will be about 9:30 p.m. The Plymouth CEP Marching Band will be competing in Flight I with an appearance scheduled at 8:45 p.m.

Tickets are $4 each for the morning and afternoon flights, and $4 for the evening flight if purchased at the door. Tickets may be purchased in advance at $3.50 each at the Trading Post or Sideways.

Bands entered in Flight I along with Plymouth-Canton are Clarkston, Eisenhower, Ithaca, Southgate Anderson, Westland John Glenn, Bridgeport, Lakeview, Clio, Southfield, Durand, and Wyoming Park.

12:45-4 p.m., will include Andover, rand and Lakeview. Other strong bands Dondero, Flint Southwestern, Trenton, Linden, Petosky, Chesening, Montrose, West Bloomfield, Flint Powers, Oxford, and Flushing.

Flight III bands, which will perform 11:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., include Spirit of Windsor, Flint Bentley, St. Charles, Bishop Foley, and Bad Axe.

Plymouth CEP, which enters Saturday's competition after going undefeated all season, will be performing music from the Flintstones, Night in Tunisia, and music from the Broadway show "Cats." Based on past competitions, Plymouth is expected to place first in Flight II bands, which will perform its flight but will be challenged by Du-in Flight I include Southgate and John Glenn.

The flights are determined by size of band, as follows: Flight I, 111 members or more; Flight II, 71-110; and Flight III, 70 members and below.

The bands are judged as follows: music effect, 20 points; music field, 15 points; music ensemble, 15 points; visual effect (including color guard), 20 points; visual field, 10 points; visual ensemble, 10 points; and percussion, 10 points, for a total of 100 points possible.

About 10,000 people are expected CEP Band Boosters will be serving refreshments throughout the competition.

The parents said they had made repeated requests to use the CEP athletic field and were turned down by the athletic director and principals of both high schools. They particularly objected that the freshman football squad and junior varsity football squad had been allowed to use the CEP field while such use had been denied the school's varsity soccer team.

"AT PRESENT, equal opportunity for both boys and girls varsity soccer at the CEP does not exist," said Whitely

"At this time it is not our objective to list all the inequities. Some are more obvious than others, such as the addition of freshman football when some sports at the C.E.P. do not even have junior varsity teams.

"Our objective is to make a strong request for the use of the high school athletic field and stadium for all home games for both Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem girls and boys varsity soccer games.

"It is our feeling that a varsity sport should take precedence over all junior varsity or freshman activities. As parents of varsity soccer players," added Whiteley, "we have heard other school soccer teams and their coaches complain about having to play on such a poor facility as we have at the CEP.

"The CEP soccer teams are the only teams in the Western Lakes Conference coach John Neff of Livonia Churchill who, among other comments, said it was a bad situation not to separate the players from the spectators at the fields used by the CEP soccer teams. Neff wrote that soccer is not particularly rough on a field as it is played all over the field during game action, as opposed to football where action is concentrated in one location for each play.

Trustee David Artley said a study of facilities for soccer is under way and some options will be suggested soon, possibly including spending money to improve the CEP soccer fields. Artley commented, though, that he didn't feel it was likely that the soccer teams would get use of the CEP stadium this season

Trustee Les Walker asked if use of the stadium this season could be looked at. Hoben answered he would expedite the administrative studies and try to get back to the soccer boosters by Monday.

Soccer was added as a varsity sport about four years ago. At that time, Whiteley was among parents spearheading the group appearing before the board promoting soccer

Parents of Canton High soccer play-ers commented that the field they play on is alleged to be a Salem High soccer field loaned to Canton for use, although Artley said it was a CEP soccer field to be used by both teams and belonging to neither.

Faulty gun sets assault victim free

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

A 28-year-old Livonia man is alive today because the revolver aimed at him last Thursday night failed to fire when the trigger was pulled.

Following a verbal confrontation inside Plaza Bowling Lanes, 42001 Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township, the man was assaulted in the parking lot about 9:30 Thursday night, according to police reports.

One of the assailants produced the gun and pulled the trigger twice but the gun failed to fire, police said.

Marvin L. Jenkins, 29, of Livonia was arrested later Thursday night in connection with the incident.

Jenkins stood mute Friday in 35th District Court to charges of attempted murder, attempted robbery and two counts of firearm felony. Judge James Garber entered an innocent plea and set bond at $100,000.

Jenkins is being held in the Wayne County Jail pending a preliminary exam set for today.

ACCORDING TO police, the Livonia man was in the bar area of the bowling alley when he exchanged words with several men.

Shortly after the exchange a friend of the Livonia man, a Plymouth Township man, arrived and the two went outside. The other men followed.

In the parking lot, words again were exchanged and one subject pulled the gun, possibly a .22- or .32-caliber revolver, from his waist band and pulled the trigger.

When the gun failed to fire, the Livonia man ran inside yelling for someone to call police. The armed man held the Plymouth Township man at bay with the gun and demanded his wallet.

The Plymouth Township man said he didn't have a wallet. Thinking the gun was either unloaded or broken, the Plymouth Township man shoved the gunman's arm away and walked inside. Police arrested Jenkins about 90 minutes later at the bowling alley, according to Lt. Robert Commire.

Although the man didn't have a gun at the time of the arrest, Commire said police found live ammunition inside his car and believe the gun most likely was loaded and malfunctioned during the assault.

Attempted murder and attempted robbery carry a maximum penalty of life in prison upon conviction, while firearm felony carries a mandatory two-year sentence.

Congressional candidates exchange verbal blows

By Diane Gale staff writer

An election forum featuring candidates for U.S. representative in the 2nd District turned into a verbal sparring match last week.

Libertarian James Hudler, Democrat Mike McCauley, and seven-year incumbent Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, attacked each other's potential effectiveness at a candidates night sponsored by Livonia and Plymouth-Canton branches of the League of Women Voters

The candidates are vying to represent the 2nd District which includes part of Livonia and Plymouth and Northville in western Wayne County.

The candidates traded verbal barbs before a sparse audience composed mostly of Plymouth Canton High School students - most of whom are not old enough to vote - who were in attendance for a history class assignment. McCauley, of Salem Township, is a social studies teacher at Canton High.

PURSELL EMPHASIZED the importance of experience in politics, and cited McCauley's voting record, which he implied was inadequate.

McCauley called Pursell's voting record inconsistent and his tenure in Congress ineffective.

Hudler blamed both the Republican and Democratic parties for the country's deficits and other problems.

On McCauley's voting record, Pursell pointed out that McCauley voted in only 7 of 10 elections since he moved to Plymouth in 1979.

The biggest one election McCauley missed was on a 10.36 renewal millage. In Plymouth that's equated to $1 million dollars a mill, which is $10 million to the local school budget in Plymouth the district he teaches political science in," Pursell said.

Noting he's earned professional respect from his colleagues, Pursell said, he was chosen congressional whip for the midwest region. He also stressed the importance of "political savvy." He implied McCauley was young and inexperienced.

McCauley countered: "How is Carl Pursell like Michigan weather?" "All you haveto do is wait five minutes and he will change."

McCauley, a teacher at Canton High since 1971, cited incidents where Pursell's voting record seemed to contradict itself.

"One month he is in favor of the nu-clear freeze amendment," McCauley said.. "And, the next month he votes in favor of the MX missle system."

"He says he's in favor of teachers, and yet he voted against over $18 bil-lion of education legislation," McCauley said.

The only law Pursell has passed in the last two years is the national St. Lawrence Seaway Day, McCauley said.

HUDLER SAID education should be "a totally private affair" without governmental intervention.

"I shake in my boots when I hear Mr. McCauley say, "fair taxes,"" Hudler said.

He also suggested initiating a lottery to finance the country's military force, which would lower the budget deficit.

The Libertarian Party stands for less taxes with their eventual elimination, a non-interventionist foreign policy, and we believe the United States should become a giant Switzerland where we wouldn't interfere with the affairs of other countries," said Hudler, a medical technologist at Chelsea Community Hospital

"I think we should withdraw all our troops from foreign soil. I don't think there is any reason why we should be the defender of the world," he said.

PURSELL SAID he supports strengthening the country's conventional weapon system and conducting "bi-

Davis recalls the thrills of 16 years on the bench

By W.W. Edgar staff writer

When 35th District Judge Dunbar Davis cleans his desk off and walks into retirement he will take with him many fond memories.

And not all of them will be recollections of his 16 years on the bench where, he admits, he has enjoyed many interesting and unforgettable moments.

What were the great thrills he will take with him?

the fact that I am leaving with a healthy body and the strength to enjoy the remaining years of my life. And I also will forever recall the thrill that was mine on the day they dedicated the Hall of Justice in my name. Naturally, that was an unforgettable moment.

"Of course if you would want the biggest thrill of my life, that came years ago when I was a student at Earlham College in Richmond, Ind.

"As part of our studies a speech contest had been arranged and I entered. It

"Well, naturally the biggest thrill is was something new, but interesting. a fact that I am leaving with a And I managed to survive with four others in the finals.

> "AS I look back now to that day in 1934 I still can't believe it, but I won the contest.

> "Then, in the afternoon, I played baseball and hit a home run that won the ballgame. Imagine that - two victories in two starts.

> 'My aunt had been in the audience that saw and heard me win the speech contest, and now she saw me hit a ho great day for me and her."

Gazing around the room at all the mementoes on the walls, Judge Davis recalled that his aunt helped arrange a dinner at the country club that evening. "It was a grand way to close one of the greatest thrills of my life - and what memories it brings back after all these years.'

Speaking that big day he recalled another great thrill. And his came with a two-minute speech.

"It was one of my first attempts," he mer that won the ballgame. It was a recalled, "and we were supposed to speak on our home town.

> "I GOT started alright. But when I got into the middle of it I got stuck. I sort of choked and had to sit down. I still feel the pangs of that disappointment. But it is a thrill now to recall it.

"But that embarrassing moment helped me. When I regained my feelings I vowed that such a moment never would happen again. I vowed that I would lick the trouble. And I did."

Chuckling at the recollection of these fond memories, Judge Davis made an honest confession.

'You know, I really don't want to leave the judgeship. I really like it and have enjoyed it. But I am thrilled that I am leaving in good health. I will still be able to continue my exercising moments each day. I will be able to play tennis which' I like to do. And who knows, I may still have many enjoyable moments that will become fond memories as I travel the remainder of life's journey.'

Through his many years of service, the judge has gained the respect of the communities he served. In fact, the building which houses the 35th District Court bears his name - the Dunbar Davis Hall of Justice.

Davis graduated from the University of Michigan School of Law in 1938 and practiced as a local attorney until 1967, when he became a municipal judge. He served as municipal judge from 1967 to 1969

In 1969 Davis was elected district judge and has served in that capacity ever since.

Besides serving as judge, Davis has been involved in many community events, clubs and organizations. He has served as a Plymouth City Commissioner and occasionaly sits on the Wayne County Friday night's party started early for Davis and his wife Martha. They were driven to the Plymouth Cultural Center in a limousine, courtesy of the court employees.

At the dinner, Davis received proclamations from the five communities serviced by the court -Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton, Northville and Northville Township. He also was honored with a lifetime membership in the American Legion and received recognition from the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, the State of Michigan and the United States House of Representatives.

Davis also received a letter from President Reagan thanking him for his service and congratulating him on retirement.

After all the festivities ended, the Davises were driven home in a white Rolls Royce, again courtesy of the court employees.

Thursday, October 25, 1984 O&E

Also attending Friday night's dinner for Davis was his colleague at the 35th District Court, Judge James Garber. The dinner honored Davis for his many years of service on and off the bench.

More than 200 people were at the Plymouth Cultural Center Friday night to recognize Davis and watch as he received proclamations and letters of congratulations. Standing to watch the festivities are Lorraine and Al Matthews, Plymouth's Acting Fire Chief.

Two vie for district court seat

ROBERT E. GREENSTEIN 46, Canton; 23year law practice; elected supervisor, trustee, Canton; judge, Canton; chief court probation officer; founded Canton Police Department, first police chief; state-certified police officer, board member, First Step, county spouse abuse prevention program.

1. A district court, because of its local and neighborhood nature, should offer night court to provide the working person with a judicial hearing without losing a full day's pay; the judge should take the bench, and cases should be scheduled on a staggered basis.

2. The closing of a courtroom to the public or the suppression of a case, given the constitutional protections which are enjoyed in this country, can only and should only be accomplished in the rarest of cases, perhaps when dealing with juveniles as witnesses in cases of a sexual nature.

3. As a judge, I believe there is a great importance in establishing and maintaining regular working hours which should be minimally those working hours that the court itself is open. Beyond that normal time, a district judge must be available to perform weddings, address organizations, schools and other gatherings.

4. Sentencing guidelines are helpful both to the court and to attorneys. However strict the guidelines might be drawn, it is imperative that those guidelines remain only guidelines and not mandatory with certain exceptions. The human element must not be lost in the sentencing process.

JOHN E. MacDONALD, 49, Northville. University of Michigan and Wayne State University Law School, BA and LLB; in private law practice. Elected supervisor of Northville Township; past president of Kiwanis and Chamber of Commerce; received distinguished service award from Northville Jaycees.

1. I would concentrate my efforts on streamlining the civil side of the docket in the district court.

2. I cannot think of any circumstances where I would close a courtroom to the public and/or suppress a case unless the administration of justice was being hindered.

District Court judge

The following Voters Guide on the 35th District Court has been provided by the League of Women Voters.

District courts have exclusive jurisdiction over civil cases up to $10,000 and minor criminal cases. A district court may cover one to a dozen communities. The 35th covers five municipalities.

Candidates were asked to submit their biographies in 35 words or less and to answer the following questions in 50 words or less:

1. What practical and specific ideas do you have for improving the flow of work through the court?

2. Under what circumstances would you ever close a courtroom to the public and/or suppress a case?

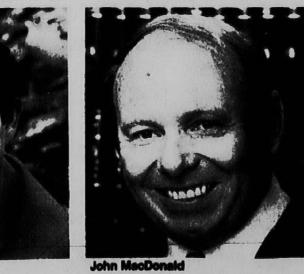

3. As judge, what working hours would you keep on a daily, weekly and monthly basis?

4. Should the state Legislature adopt more restrictive sentences guidelines by statute?

3. The working hours I would keep are those maintained currently by the court, which are from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. with the understanding, of course, that if a trial runs beyond 4:30 p.m. we would keep the trial going a reasonable length of time.

Robert Greenstein

4. I would make the sentencing guidelines somewhat more restrictive than those currently mandated by the Supreme Court. However, you must give judges some latitude in making sentince as no two individ-uals can be treated quite the same.

State's prehistoric past found in today's museums

some early Detroit landmarks" (see Observer, Oct. 11) there have been inquiries as to where Indian relics may be found in this area.

Most of our prehistoric past is gone, but there are a few outstanding pieces of the old cultures in local museums.

Begin your search at Fort Wayne. It is almost as much of a collection of Indian artifacts as it is a military showcase.

The fort is at 6325 W. Jefferson, only three blocks south of I-75. It is closed on Monday and Tuesday. Call 297-9360 before you go.

EARLY ARCHEOLOGISTS, including John Blois, Henry Gillman and Bela Hubbard, explored two mounds on the grounds of Fort Wayne in the 1870s.

Some of what they found is on display within the museum. Probably the most beautiful artifact ever unearthed there is the lovely pottery vessel shown on the cover of the September 1981 issue of the Michigan History magazine.

Since the publication of "A guide to The Aboriginal Research Club of Detroit unearthed this prehistoric masterpiece in 1944. It was found at the Fort Wayne Mound, and dates from 750 A.D. a part of the Hopewell period.

A short trip across the bridge, or through the tunnel, to Canada and then about 15 miles south to Amhertsberg will bring you into the Fort Malden Historic Park area.

Like Fort Wayne, it is one of the most interesing places near here and well worth your time. I was impressed with the Chief Tecumseh relics as well as a number of rare military momentoes of the War of 1812. It also tells you that history, like beauty, sometimes is in the eyes of the beholder. For instance, Simon McGirty, who is labeled a traitor in some of our early history books, is enshrined as a hero at Fort Malden.

RETURNING TO Detroit, let's not overlook the splendid collection of Indian artifacts at the Detroit Institute of Arts on Woodward

And right across the street is one of the greatest little museums in our area for this period of history - the Detroit Historical Museum at the corner of Woodward and Kirby. After this survey, let's speed out I-94 to the Dearborn exit. Overshadowed by its world famous neighbor, Greenfield Village, the museums of the City of Dearborn have some outstanding early relics of primitive life along the Rouge. They are particularly significant to us because some of them pertain to the Indians of the Plymouth area. Perhaps Chief Tonquish or someone in his brave, little band carried that emblem, or smoked that peace pipe. Look about you! You will be surprised at what Dearborn has found.

One of the major collections of primitive relics in the state is to be found at the Exhibits Museum of National History at the University of Michigan. It is four floors of marvelous artifacts located at 1109n Geddes (at the corner of Washtenaw and Geddes Roads) in Ann Arbor. It is open seven days a week from 9-5 except Sunday when it is opne from 1-5 p.m. Don't miss it. It is simply fabulous

ANOTHER MAJOR collection of Michigan's Indian treasures is to be found in the Natural History Museum of the City of Grand Rapids.

Early Hopewell mounds, known in this area as the Norton Mound site, are clearly visible along the river here. Some of them have never been excavated. Other Hopewell mounds may be found in the Muskegon area, and they also have significant collections on display.

The old records in the Michigan Pioneer and History Collection state that there was an important school for Shaman (Indian medicine men) at Grand Rapids. Archeologists uncovered by accident the main building of this school which had been well preserved because it was partially enclosed in a small mound. There the paraphernalia of the secret rituals were carefully stored.

Today, some of this collection is in the museum at Grand Rapids. In my book, Tonquish Tales, I described the old Shaman of the Tonquish and the initiation ceremony for Chief Tongah who is said to have succeeded Tonquish. Perhaps the old Shaman learned his trade in Grand Rapids.

Readers who wish to explore this subject in some depth are advised to study John R. Halsey's excellent work "The Springwells Mound Group of Wayne County, Michigan." It is Anthro-pology Paper No. 32, published in 1968 by the University of Michigan's Museum of Anthropology. John R. Halsey is director of archeology for the state. His writing is eminently readable, relevant and sound.

I also would recommend Charles Cleland's "A Brief History of Michigan Indians," and James E. Fitting's "The Archaeology of Michigan: A Guide to the Prehistory of the Great Lakes Region." This was published by the Cranbrook Institute of Science which also has an excellent collection of early artifacts.

To obtain a complete bibliography of the collections in our state write the Michigan History Division, Department of State, Lansing, Michigan 48918. As far as I know there is no charge for this information.

When I was in Lansing last week Dr. Halsey gave me a sample copy, and I would dole it out to you piece by piece but we left the Fox Indians last August trying to destroy the Fort. As far as I know are still there. It is time we returned to Fort Detroit and the "War with the Foxes." Stay tuned.

City, township gathering views on police study

Police attitude surveys were mailed this week to about 500 Plymouth residents and/or business owners, and Plymouth Township residents discussed police services at a public hearing Monday night.

The mailed surveys are part of a study being conducted for the city by Bartell & Bartell.

The township's public hearing is part of a similar review of service being performed by a committee working with police consultant Robert Parsons.

Recommendations resulting from the studies will be used by the respec-tive governments to decide whether to continue a $460,000-a-year contract whereby the township purchases services from the city.

"WE THOUGHT this would be a better cross-sampling than a public hearing, but it's not statistically something you can hang your hat on," City Manager Henry Graper said of the surveys.

"The questions on the survey repre-sent some of the areas we feel we need to address," Graper said.

Recipients were selected randomly and represent a wide range of residents and business owners, said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager.

"The individual surveys will be confidential and will only be seen by Bartell & Bartell. The city will only get the final results. The surveys are mailed directly back to Bartell & Bartell," Sincock said.

"The whole thing's their's. We just facilitated the mailing; Bartell & Bartell did all the questions," he said.

Survey recipients have been asked to survey recipients have been asked to return the completed form, which in-cludes 12 questions, by Nov. 2. The fi-nal results, along with recommenda-tions from Bartell & Bartell are expected to be presented at the Tuesday, Nov. 13, City Commission meeting.

MONDAY NIGHT'S public hearing was conducted by the township committee appointed to work with Parsons in reviewing police services.

About 25 residents attended the hearing, including several who represented their homeowners group. The purpose of the hearing was to provide public input into the study. The major concerns raised included traffic enforcement in subdivisions, police visability throughout the community, and emergency response times. Recommendations from the Parsons study are expected to be presented to the township board sometime in midto-late November, according to Township Supervisor Maurice Breen.

The intergovernmental contract for shared police services expires next

(P)5A

Among the options open to both governments are: to renew the contract after negotiating the price; turning police services over to a police authority elected or appointed by both communi-ties; or abandoning the contract.

In the event the contract isn't renewed, the township could seek services from another agency or start its own department, while the 19-man city department would face severe cutbacks including seven to eight layoffs.

MacKinnon to celebrate 40th year in priesthood

By W.W. Edgar staff writer

When the Rev. Kenneth MacKinnon, pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church on Penniman Avenue in Plymouth, was ordained on Feb. 24. 1945, he took a solemn vow to care for his parishners - large or small, rich or poor.

Now with the 40th anniversary of that day approaching, he is keeping his pledge by asking that the 40th anniversary celebration be held on Nov. II, 1984. And his wishes are being granted. "If we would attempt to celebrate on the details of the anniv the regular day," he said, "we might run into snow and ice and all sorts of wintry weather. That wouldn't be fair to the parishioners and friends, some of whom would be traveling miles to attend the services. So, it was only nice to switch the date.

'It will be a great day for me and it should be for them, too, so we can't let weather stand in the way. It will be a day I can't forget and I want the visi-

Fr. MacKinnon didn't relate any of the details of the anniversary other than to confirm that friends are arranging a dinner and some other features of the anniversary. WHEN TOLD that the date (Nov. 11)

he selected is the date of the original Armistice Day, he smiled and cautioned, "That also is the day the Pilgrims landed at Watertown, Mass.

'History tells us that was in November and they didn't get to Plymouth until Dec. 6."

Fr. MacKinnon, now 65 years old, was born on Detroit's East Side - one of three boys in the family. He attended St. Charles Borromei and later went to Sacred Heart Seminary where he studied theology and was ordained.

Following his ordination Rev. MacK-innon served at three different churches and spent several years teaching in the schools.

He finally was assigned to Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth on Jan. 10, 1973.

AS HE LOOKS back over the 40 years he has served in the priesthood, he recalls many interesting moments.

"First," he said, "I enjoy being a priest. It is a fine way to spend a day and it gives you a chance to serve every day of your life. I like that and it offers many chances to be of service in the community.

"Of course, my greatest day was the day I was ordained and I'll have another thrilling time on the day of my 40th anniversary." He is a member of the Plymouth Rotary Club which gives him a chance to be of additional service and he always is available when someone needs a helping hand.

He has enjoyed his 12 years in Plym-outh and is fond of the people and the manner in which the city has progressed during his stay.

"It is a fine place to live," he said, "and my days here have been well worthwhile. Now, I hope the weather will be ideal on Nov. Il when we celebrate my 40th anniversary before the official date that comes when the ground could be covered with snow and

MacDonald, Greenstein eye district judge's spot

On Tuesday, Nov. 6, voters in Canton, Northville and Plymouth will be electing a judge to a six-year term on the 35th District Court bench to replace the retiring Dunbar Davis of Plymouth.

Whoever is elected will serve alongside the remaining district judge, James Garber of Plymouth Township, which will mean that for the first time in the history of the 35th District the court will have a judge who is not a Plymouth resident.

The candidates who survived the August primary and now face each other in the final run-off are Robert Greenstein of Canton and John Mac-Donald of Northville.

To help inform its readers on the positions of each, the Observer asked five questions. The answers of the two judicial candidates are reprinted below.

QUESTION: What qualities should an effective district judge possess, and how do you fit that set of criteria? (100 words or less).

Greenstein: "An effective judge is one whose knowledge of himself, the law, trial practices and the court functions make it possible to be courteous, - attentive, and impartial while conduct-Ing the court in a dignified and Inthreatening atmosphere. Such knowledge enables litigants, win or lose, to leave court with strong feelings of a fair hearing.

"I believe I have attained the matu-"rity to be an observer, to listen without self consciousness or concern about gaining the approval of others which might influence a fair judgment. I hold as most significant the court's integrity and the rights of individuals, including -victims, which it serves.'

MacDonald: "An effective district judge should possess the qualities of legal experience, integrity and an ability to make prompt and fair decisions. He should be a person who knows the community and has been involved in the community and a person who values family life. I have had more than 23 years of private law experience and feel that I am qualified to serve as district judge as I have represented both plaintiffs and defendants at all levels of the court system in Michigan, including several appearances before the Supreme Court of Michigan. I have served on the 35th District Court Advisory Board and thus am familiar with various personnel problems, budgets of the court, and the other day-to-day operations of the court."

QUESTION: What are your greatest strengths? How would they enhance court operations? What are your weaknesses? How would you work to overcome them? (200 words or less) MacDonald: I believe that my greatest strengths are that I have the most knowledge about the district court and or less).

election '84

the communities that it serves. I would ask that people review my past record of public service as elected Northville Township trustee and supervisor and my participation on the advisory board for hte 35th District Court. I believe that fact that more than 65 lawyers who practice in this area support me is a substantial recommendation for my candidacy as they are the individuals who actually know the candidate. In addition, I have received the endorsements of most of the civic and political leaders of the communities invoved in the district. I believe that this helps enhance my position as a judge because those individuals have respect for me and respect my decision-making.

"Without sounding self-righteous I do not believe I have any major weaknesses; however, all of us have to continue to work on certain areas of our personality and the way we conduct ourselves. I would be constantly working towards being a fair-minded individual and listening to both sides of any issue that would come before me." Greenstein: "My strengths are directly derived from two sources: From the love and support of two almost-fully-grown daughters from .whom, as their primary caretaker, I have learned a strong sense of responsibility and compassion; and from intense personal experience in many facets of the law and government which few people are able to claim: 23 years of active trial law practice interrupted by some years spent as township judge, fulltime supervisor, chief court probation officer, certified police officer, chief of police, honors graduate of Criminal Justice Institute, trustee, chairman of Federal Block Grant Commission, Board of Directors First Step Spouse Abuse Prevention Organization, and charter member 35th District Court Oversight Committee.

"Further strength comes from an ability to speak well and be well understood, from a lifetime of grievance settlment and not being "beholden" to any person, group, or party.

'My weaknessess are also derived from 'being there.' I am overly-sensitive and react sharply to victims suffering - victimization of senior citizens and children, spouse abuse, reoccurring drunk driving, and invasion of a person's home. I will continue to pay attention to these sensitivities as long as I live.

QUESTION: For what reasons are you seeking the office of district judge? What are your career goals? (50 words

Robert Greenstein

Greenstein: I have achieved the maturity, experience and knowledge to see all sides of an issue and am no longer interested in representing only one side as a trial advocate. I believe, after taking inventory of my life experiences, that I can best serve my community and myself as district judge.'

MacDonald: "I am seeking the office of district judge because I believe that I have the background, experience and temperment to perform well in this well-respected 35th District Court. My only career goal at the present time is to be one of the most effective fairminded judges of the 35th Disrict Court and to continue to maintain the well-respected position that the 35th District Court currently enjoys." QUESTION: How closely have your studied your opponent? Why should voters select you over him to serve as district judge? (75 words or less). MacDonald: I have studied my opponent very carefully and while I have no animosity toward him as an individual I believe that one must look at his past conduct in the different positions that he has held over the years. I believe that I would, as a public servant, have a more judicious approach to the posi-tion of the 35th District Court than my opponent.

"As previously stated I have served as supervisor of a township, trustee of a township, president of Kiwanis Club, president of the Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the board of the Wayne County Economic Development Corporation (EDC), member of the Ward Presbyterian Church, and other numerous activities which I believe demonstrate my interest as an individual not only in the legal profession but in the community as a whole."

Greenstein: "I have clearly and continuously throughout this campaign stressed my specific areas of legal expertise and police, judicial and probation experience. The other candidate has not.

"I have clearly refused to use local officials or attorney endorsements to avoid even the appearance of obliga-tion. The other candidate has not.

"I have reported all income and ex-pense of my judicial campaign as required by law. The other candidate did

"I am running for the judgeship, not against the other candidate.

The & Cla. Reinstyling

QUESTION: What single most important change would you make to improve operation of the 35th District Court? (100 words or less).

Greenstein: "I would greatly enlarge the court's work program, especially in the area of drunk driving. The law obligates the convicted offender to pay for supervision of a community work program, usually on weekends, and usually cleaning the streets, parks and subdivisions

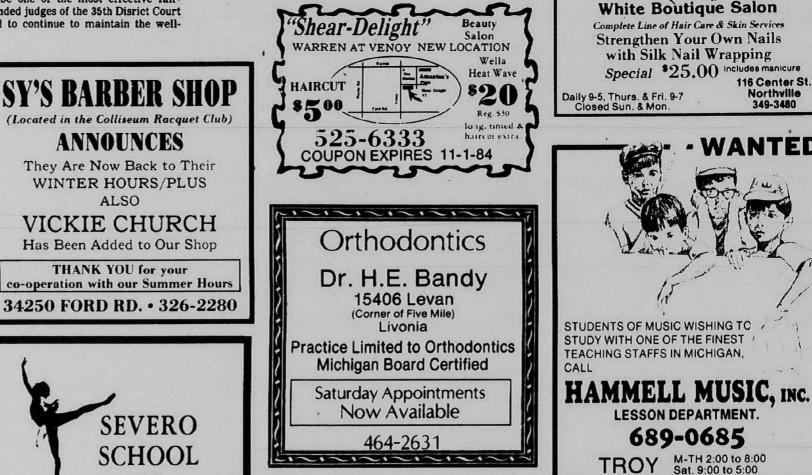

"This no-cost program is, for a judge, welcome alternative to a jail sentence for the first offender, especially considering the real possibility of assault and sexual assault in our jails. This program would give the offender many hours to consider the transgression, be a value to the community, and may be a real deterrent to the future offender."

MacDonald: "The single most important change that I would make in improving the operation of trhe 35th District Court would be to streamline the civil docket. Currently the civil docket is not moving as rapidily and/or orderly as it should. I would set specific dates for discovery, pre-trial, and the ultimate trial so that the people could get their day in court as soon as possible.

'Local control' challenger eyes State Board

By Tim Richard staff writer

10A(P,C)

"I'm a local control person," said Cherry Jacobus.

It's the theme of her Republican candidacy for the State Board of Education. It's the answer she gives to many questions, such as teacher evaluation, merit pay, curriculum and reducing the number of school districts.

Like GOP running mate Dorothy Beardmore of Rochester, Jacobus points out that she has two terms of experience on a local kindergartenthrough-12th-grade school board.

In contrast, the Democratic incumbents are a Michigan State University administrator (Gumecindo Salas) and a Northern Michigan University professor (John Watanen Jr.)

BORN IN BIRMINGHAM 48 years ago, Cherry Jacobus, daughter of a Presbyterian minister, earned a nursing degree from the University of Michigan, married lawyer Phil Jacobus of Plymouth and settled with him in western Michigan to raise four children.

She spent eight years on the East

Grand Rapids Board of Education, two as president. She got acquainted with the legislative process through the Michigan Association of School Boards and the Governor's Educational Block Grant Committee.

Mary Jane Schildberg, a former Garden City school board president who is supporting her, thinks Jacobus' experience is needed in Lansing. Hosting a coffee in her home recently, Schildberg said:

"My feeling is that a lot of problems of K-12 education would have been put on the front burner if there had been on a person on the State Board with K-12 background.'

"WE WENT through the declining enrollment crisis where we closed schools," said Jacobus. "We negotiated contracts with teachers six times. We went through buying computers. We dealt with the financial crisis (state aid cuts during the recession)."

At the September Republican State Convention, she easily won a nomination with strong support from the western Michigan contingent.

"Geographically," she said, "we would like to have one member from election '84 western Michigan, even though we (State Board members) don't vote regionally. There are two from the Upper Peninsula, two from Lansing and four from this area (metropolitan Detroit).

The Republican team argues that only one of the eight current State Board members has any kindergarten through 12th grade board experience, and that isn't recent.

HER GARDEN City audience was made up largely of board members, administrators and teachers from the suburban schools. Sample questions and answers:

• On the Reagan Administration's push for income tax credits for tuition paid to private schools: "I am opposed to tuition tax credits. If that income is lost, if the money comes out of someplace, it's going to come out of public education. Tuition tax credits are the tip of the iceberg."

 On consolidating school districts: She would hesitate to mandate such a policy, preferring other methods of helping school districts too small to offer full curriculms. "We're doing more program sharing — in languages, voca-tional center. We're finding some good results.

• On merit pay for teachers: "Teachers are very uncomfortable with it. Who does it (evaluating)? How? They're very skittish ... Merit pay means you have the money to give merit pay."

• On whether the State Board should set guidelines for merit pay: "I don't want to see a lot of ties that bind from the top. The state should set policy but not mandate."

SEVERAL QUESTIONS from teachers revolved around those who had lost their jobs through enrollment shrinkage but had enough seniority to "bump" younger teachers in other subject areas. Should they have to be recertified?

"In our small district," Jacobus said, "We found in a middle school a physical ed teacher who had to be reassigned. He 'bumped' someone and found himself in science, where he hadn't been in 25 years. This teacher had had a science minor in college.

"I have no problem with released time (for teacher retraining). They should be willing to take some courses. I'm not wed to any one proposal." Jacobus was asked about the desire of the "higher education lobby" to see those displaced teachers go back to college for retraining.

"I have to prove to the hospital (where she works part time in the emergency room) all the time that I can do CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) - every six months. I'm not going to lay on someone else what I'm not willing to do myself," she said.

"But I'm very concerned about state mandates. I'm a local control person. Re-training could be in-service. It doesn't have to be higher education."

OTHER QUESTIONS and answers: • On the voting record of Barbara Roberts Mason, a State Board member who is on the staff of the MEA: "I have not felt" her votes were pro-union. But Jacobus noted some unionists had objected to attending an educational fair at the non-union Amway Grand Plaza Hotel in Grand Rapids.

• On state curriculum guidelines: "The more guidelines and more regulations we set up, the more staff persons you have (in Lansing) and the longer it takes to get something through the bureaucracy. I would lean toward not passing the regulations unless it's abso-

Intely necessary." • On the roles of teachers and parents: "I have a brother who is a special education teacher (in another state) who left because he couldn't teach a class after lunch - the students were 'stoned.' . . . Our board set out a parent and student responsibility code." The important agents of education are "parents first, teachers second."

Jacobus predicted: "We'll hear more about teaching at home in the future."

John MacDonald choice for judge

NOV. 6, voters will elect John E. MacDonald or Robert Greenstein to fill the office soon to be vacated by retiring 35th District Judge Dunbar Davis. Having carefully examined the qualifications of both, the Observer endorses the candidacy of John E. Mac-Donald.

12A(P)

Supervisor of Northville Township with more than 23 years legal experience, MacDonald has earned the "preferred, well-qualified" rating given him by Civic Searchlight, a voters' group that rates candidates and finds Greenstein "wellqualified."

MacDonald possesses numerous attributes necessary to serve effectively as district judge. Sound judicial temperament heads the list. In order to carefully listen to and weigh both sides of an issue regardless of whom the proponents might be, an even temperament is essential.

· People from all walks of life with diverse value systems, backgrounds and levels of education are daily visitors to District Court. Good judges must be able to empathize with all defendants, plaintiffs and victims while exercising firmness and drawing from wide legal knowledge to render decisions.

MacDonald appears somewhat uncomfortable blowing his own horn, exhorting voters to "talk with attorneys we've dealt with to evaluate my opponent and me."

While it would be nice to hear more from MacDonald, proficiency on the bench doesn't necessarily follow proficiency on the campaign trail.

From what the Observer can ascertain, MacDonald would display a manner closely mirroring that of Davis, whose skill, humility, good nature, politeness, patience, level-headedness and kindness have graced the community for many years. Indications are MacDonald is an intelligent, even-keeled, tolerant, caring and stable person who upholds traditional values encompassing family, faith and community. Residents can be assured they would be treated fairly before him, regardless of their personal histories.

His broad-based community support points to the supposition he would make a good judge who would instigate few surprises. Becoming district judge would seem a natural and logical progression in the career of John MacDonald, who has represented both defendants and plaintiffs at all levels of the Michigan judicial system.

We believe MacDonald - well-versed in District Court operations by virtue of having tried cases there and having served on the District Court advisory board - has the integrity and intelligence to serve as a committed and dedicated member of the bench. MacDonald has a proven record of community service. It's evident he has the needed educational and professional background, the ability to think through issues and come to new conclusions, and a fitting demeanor. Mac-Donald is perceptive, honest and decisive.

No doubt he would serve as a skilled mediator and educator in the court system. All these qualifications would serve him well as judge in the 35th District.

Residents of Canton, Plymouth and Northville townships, and the cities of Plymouth and Northville could respect and be proud of John MacDonald if elected district judge.

- Observer Newspapers

Gerald Law is best suited for the House

A CLEAR CHOICE awaits Plymouth-Canton voters in the 36th House District of the Michigan Legislature - incumbent Republican Gerald Law of Plymouth Township.

The Observer did not endorse the freshman legislator two years ago when he first ran for state representative in the newly apportioned 36th which includes all of Plymouth, parts of Northville, and half of Canton Township. At that time, we felt his Democratic opponent had more legislative experience and would be more effective representing constituents. Law was elected two years ago and became the first representative for the 36th which previously was split and represented by Roy Smith and Tom Brown. In 1984, however, Law clearly has more experience and represents the best choice for Plymouth-Canton residents. His Democratic opponent is a small businessman with a degree in political science with some involvement in politics, but has not held an elective office which would give him experience in the legislative process. Law, a corporate attorney by trade, has a master's degree in finance besides his schooling in law. He has served on the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees in addition to his two years in Lansing. While in the House he has served as vice chairman of the Committee on City Government, and as a member of the state affairs, insurance, and urban affairs committees.

The Observer endorses Law as the most

The art of winning gracefully

FOR YEARS, we have been taught to be good losers. It was stressed to us from childhood that we never should make alibis in defeat, but to take it gracefully with the pledge to do better next time.

There are several great examples that come to mind. For instance, on the rainy night in Philadelphia when Jack Dempsey lost his heavyweight title to Gene Tunney, he was asked what had gone wrong. It was an opportunity to make a good excuse. Instead, Dempsey just shook his head and very seriously said:

"I just forgot to duck."

No excuses. No alibis. Just the reaction of a good loser.

It became the fashion that, as soon as the game had ended, the students and folks in the stands would race for the goal posts and tear them down.

In an effort to stop this — and to save money - the universities installed steel goalposts. Furthermore, they put up screens behind them to keep kicked foot-

The time has come when we must teach . . . how to accept victory with respect instead of with riotous parties.

Who were they? Where did they come from? There is an old saying that an idle brain is the devil's workshop. Maybe the cause lies in that direction. There are many unemployed in Detroit and the suburbs. Maybe this is where the idea was orn experienced and best qualified candidate for 36th District representative. While doing so, though, we urge him to be more representative of his entire district. He remains too conservative for many city of Plymouth residents and for even more Canton residents; he needs to become more moderate in his outlook. This move toward the middle would not only help him incorporate more of his constituents but also make him more effective as a bipartisan leader in Lansing.

We strongly support Law's contention, however, that education in Michigan must be assigned a fixed portion of the state's general fund and not be "the final budgetbalancing appropriation." We applaud Law as he works toward assigning a top priority in state spending to state aid to public schools.

We urge voters to return Gerald Law to the House in the 36th District.

It was much the same when Joe Louis recovered from his knockout at the fists of Max Schmeling. When he reported the morning after with a swollen face, puffed eyes and the other marks of a beating, Louis was asked what in the world had happened. He answered simply:

"He fight me sideways."

You see, Louis never had fought a fellow who boxed from a crouch, and this puzzled Joe. But it was no alibi.

FOR YEARS on the football fields of the country's leading universities, where things should be at their peak, came the first signs that we should learn how to act in victory.

balls from going into the crowds.

AND NOW THAT the fans have gone berserk when the Detroit Tigers won not only the American League pennant but the World Series, it is time to start reteaching "How to Win Gracefully."

While Detroit now should be hailed as the home of the baseball champions, it is being looked upon across the country as the home of riots - even in victory.

Thousands gathered there without tickets before the game, just to wait for the finish. What prompted the great clash at Michigan and Trumbull after the game is still a mystery.

First, the fans inside the stadium tore up the sod in the outfield, for what reason no one knows

Next, according to police, three women were raped, a man was killed and several automobiles were overturned and set afire right next to the stadium.

THE TIME has come when we must teach not only how to be a good loser but also how to accept victory with respect instead of with riotous parties.

Now that this horrible acceptance of the Tigers' victory has come to light, it is time that we start teaching "the respect of winning."

For Wayne Commission we endorse Mary Dumas

Among the decisions voters will make on Nov. 6 is the election of a county commissioner to represent the 10th District of Livonia and the Plymouth and Northville areas.

Our choice is incumbent Mary Dumas, a Republican.

The recommendation is based on our knowledge of the experience and record of Dumas and her Democratic opponent, Laura Toy, responses the candidates gave to questionnaires and answers they gave at election forums and during interviews.

Dumas, who has represented this area since 1972, is a tenacious politician. She is outspoken - almost to a fault. She is, however, a knowledgeable and hardworking commissioner for residents of this area.

Commissioner Dumas currently serves as the chair of the county commission's public safety and judiciary committee. She also is a member of the audit committee, and internal affairs committee.

DUMAS WAS a strong proponent of county reform. She supported and campaigned for the new charter which established the office of county executive. She understands government and knows the necessity of maintaining a check and balance between the executive and legislative branches.

The choice in the 10th District may be somewhat confusing for voters who mere-ly look at the candidate's position on issues. On most of the major issues involving county government, Dumas and her opponent share similar views. However, what Toy advocates, Dumas has done. For example, Dumas voted for a proposal to do away with a separate elected drain commissioner and realign the duties under the county public works department.

We find no compelling reason to suggest replacing the incumbent at this time and, in our judgment, Dumas' knowledge and experience give her an edge in this race.

We are hopeful that residents of this area will keep a close watch on the activities of the county commission during the next two years to ensure that we get the best representation and management of county tax dollars possible.

Ignoring handicap is costly

ALBERT EINSTEIN had a learning disability. So did Agatha Christie, Winston Churchill, Thomas Edison, Nelson Rockefeller, Hans Christian Anderson and Gen. George Patton.

So do Bruce Jenner and Lindsay Wagner

All the above overcame their handicaps to achieve success and recognition. So can others if helped in time.

About eight million Americans have learning disabilities, including 3 to 5 percent of the school age population. Learning disabilities affect one of six families in the U.S.

Learning disabilities are complex and elusive handicaps, often referred to as the "invisible handicap" because they are not easily recognizable by laymen and sometimes escape the attention of professionals.

What is common to all forms of LD is that they interfere with the ability of normally intelligent people to understand and to perform in the world around them.

A LEARNING DISABLED person might experience all or some of the fol-lowing problems:

• Difficulty thinking in an orderly, logical way and distinguishing between two similar concepts.

 Difficulty understanding and acting upon verbal commands.

· Difficulty with learning basic academic subjects such as reading, writing, mathematics and spelling. Common are students who are good readers but do not comprehend what is read, or who can perform math by rote but don't understand logic behind the calculations.

• Difficulty finding their way or remembering where they left their belongings

Difficulty judging time and distance.
Difficulty completing tasks.

 Difficulty in judging other people's emotions and attitudes.

• Difficulty remembering specific facts presented a short time before.

Difficulty controlling behavior.

Learning disabilities do not come and go. They are lifelong handicaps. However LD students can be helped, and many are, through compensatory training to reach their full potential.

A SERIOUS consequence of learning disabilities is that the young people who suffer from them do poorly in school unless they are helped.

LD youngsters, especially if undiagnosed, tend to drop out of school and fall into a range of anti-social behaviors. Research has discovered a strong correlation between learning disabilities and juvenile delinquency. It is clear that unless the pattern of anti-social behavior is broken early, the final result too often is an adult life of dependency on society.

But delinquency and prison are not the only social costs of learning disabilities. People with LD tend to have low self-images which are reinforced by others daily. All too often the mental abuse suffered by an LD person is even more degrading than the handicap itself.

This does not have to be the ending, though. A study designed by the American Association of Children with Learning Disabilities (ACLD) found that as few as 55 hours of proper instruction led to dramatic academic improvement. After only 35 hours the tendency toward delinquent behavior fell sharply.

Gov. Blanchard has declared October to be Learning Disabilities Month. The Mich-igan Association for Children and Adults with Learning Disabilities (MACLD) invites the public to contact them at Michigan ACLD, 20777 Randall, Farmington 48024 or call 471-0790 for further information about their 18 chapters.

Your understanding will help the learning disabled understand themselves and their world much better.

awmakers vote for center

Here's how area House members and Senators were recorded on major roll call votes in the closing days of the 98th Congress.

HOUSE

South Africa - By a vote of 269 for and 62 against, the House insisted that any new law controlling sensitive exports include a ban on U.S. banks loaning to the South African government.

The house previously included such a ban n its version of the Export Administration Act. But the Senate excluded sanctions against South Africa when it approved the U.S. banks have been loaning to the proapartheid South African government at a ate of $388 million annually.

The effect of this vote was to return the conference report on the Export Adminisration Act to the Senate, which allowed the hill to die with the 98th Congress.

Members voting yes wanted a ban on U.S. bank loans to the South African government to be part of the Export Administration Act. Voting yes: Hertel, William Ford, Levin, Broomfield. Not voting: Pursell.

Kennedy Center - The House approved, 66 for and 163 against, a measure enabling the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts to remain solvent.

The rescue plan was included in the $470 billion catchall appropriations bill for fiscal 1985 (HJ Res 648) that later was signed by President Reagan.

Washington's Kennedy Center will be forgiven $33 million in interest it owes the Treasury as well as furture interest on government bonds that financed its creation in the early 1960's.

It will be allowed to retire its debt by 2017 through principl payments of $200,000 annually Supporter Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, said 'England, Germany, all of the great Western cultures subsidize the arts. We aought to do more, not less."

Opponent Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., called this "the first black-tie raid on the public Treasury.

Members voting yes favored the rescue plan

rolicall report

Voting yes: William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield. Voting no: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper

Woods. Not voting: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Federal Trade Commission - By a vote of 36 for and 298 against, the House rejected a provision to weaken the Federal Trade Commission's power to bring anti-trust actions against local governments.

This occurred during debate on a bill (HR 6027) that immunizes cities and municipal units from paying damage awards when they lose anti-trust suits. In future cases, judges can grant only injunctive relief.

The bill was sent to President Reagan.

Supporter Martin Sabo, D-Minn., charged the FTC with "stupidity" in challenging taxicab regulations in Minneapolis and New Orleans.

Opponent Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y., said the FTC should be permitted to "exercise its normal statutory responsibilities to enforce compliance with our anti-trust laws.

Members voting no wanted the FTC to be able to file anti-trust suits against local governments.

Voting no: Hertel, William Ford, Levin, Broomfield. Not voting: Pursell.

SENATE

Debt - By a vote of 37 for and 30 against, the Senate gave final congressional approval to a measure (HJ Res 654) raising the national debt ceiling from $1,573 trillion to $1,824 trillion.

The new borrowing limit is expected to suffice until fiscal 1985 ends next Sept. 30. The House averted a record vote when it approved the new ceiling.

Without the higher limit, the Treasury would have been unable to borrow to pay the government's bills. It was within $25 million of its borrowing authority when the Senate voted.

Senators voting yes favored the higher lebt ceiling. Voting no: Donald Riegle, D-Mich. Not voting: Carl Levin, D-Mich.

Freeze - By a vote of 30 for and 61 against, the Senate refused to table (kill) an amendment in behalf of freezing fiscal 1986 federal spending at 1985 levels. This occurred during debate on raising the debt ceiling to $1,824 trillion (above).

The amendment provided that a record vote on freezing 1986 spending would be held next year, as part of the next vote on raising the debt ceiling. It later was shelved on procedural grounds.

Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who voted to kill the amendment, said "I am not prepared to freeze defense spending today at $292.8 billion without a full discussion of what that really means."

Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., called a spending freeze "the unique opportunity for Democrats to finally demonstrate fiscal discipline" and repudiate President Reagan's claim that "we are the party of tax and spend.

Senators voting no favored freezing 1986 spending at 1985 levels.

Voting no: Levin, Riegle.

Federal Trade Commission - By a vote of 56 for and 42 against, the Senate adopted an amendment restoring the Federal Trade Commission's power to bring anti-trust suits against local governments.

As before, the agency could seek injunctive relief but not financial damages.

The provision was attached to a bill to protect municipal units against paying damage awards in anti-trust suits filed against them (see House vote above)

Supporter Warren Rudman, R-N.H., said the FTC should be able to counter "egregious interference in the free market process" on any level of government. Opponent Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., called the FTC a "national nanny" that is "not accountable to anyone."

Senators voting no were opposed to the FTC suing cities for alleged anti-competitive practices.

Voting yes: Riegle Voting no: Levin.

American Heart Association

Michigan Association for

HETHER THE LISTS are kept on stray scraps of paper or inside a home computer, soon they'll be consulted. Soon, names will be scratched out or added. Soon, the amount of stamps in the household will be deemed insufficient for the task ahead.

And perhaps, one night not too many weeks from now, someone in the family will sit down at the table, perhaps after the dinner dishes have been cleared, and begin the task of sending holiday greetings to people who have touched their lives. Maybe Santas for the youngsters. An inspirational verse to the older members of the family. A humorous note to that old college friend. Sometimes, cards exchanged during the holidays are the only way to share the season with friends and relatives who no longer live nearby. At a time when families and friends remember those who are far from them, it's just as appropriate to keep in mind service groups and organizations that help others throughout the year.

As in the past, the Observer & Eccentric is publishing a sampler of holiday cards issued by non-profit organizations. Not only do these cards spread the hopes and joy of the season, but they show that the sender has taken to heart the month's spirit. The wish for "Peace on earth, good will to men" can become real.

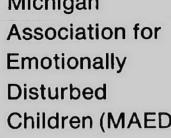

Fanciful Santas and nostalgic scenes on these cards are but one indication of the countless number of people who devote their time helping others fight disease or who campaign to change social conditions they abhor.

Whether you tend toward the traditional or the modern, the serious or the whimsical, we're sure you'll find a card in this collection.

This is the first installment of charity cards. As the holiday season approaches, we'll continue to publish cards offered by non-profit organizations throughout the area.

Other cards sold by organizations throughout the area can be perused at the O&E's Birmingham and Livonia offices.

Details on ordering the cards pictured here and information about other styles offered by these organizations can be found on Page 2B.

Ken rescues adult Trivial Pursuit team

A new crop of drivers is out on the road and joining the crowd is Lori Karpinski.

She'll begin terrorizing the roads this weekend, so stay home. I'm only kidding, Lori. Actually, Lori celebrated her birthday this past weekend with friends and family. We all are looking forward to sending her to the store for those last-minute items, and running our younger children here and there so we don't have to anymore. Perhaps this phase accounts for any drop in grade levels that appears around the age of 16. It's little trips here and there that keep the poor darlings from their homework.

Helping Lori ring in the big "16" were Harold and Dorothy Ray, Bill and Julia Serafin, Frank and Ethel Booza, Tom and Christine Sarnecki, Nancy Hester, the whole Preblich clan. A few of Lori's nearest and dearest friends, Kathy Hoover, Tracy Pijanowski, Laurie McCarthy, Laura Setlock and Christine Tervo were there and, naturally, the in-house family - Mom and Dad or Judy and Rick, brother Rick, and sister Kristin and the always welcome grandma Virginia Karpinski.

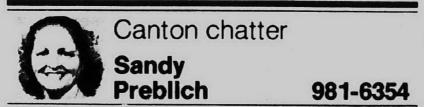

Lori did pretty well with clothes, jewelry, makeup, nail polish, perfumes, Anyway, there we were, half a house stationery, record albums, and the always-needed cash from aunts and uncles. You know, all the basics for the happy life of a teen-ager, along with a couple of the extra touches that only a parent can provide - like a gold initial and chain, a dozen roses, and a '76 yellow Pinto, which soon may be pink to match the fuzzy pink dice her friend bought her.

Actually, the car is what most parents see as a preventative insurance policy. It keeps the child from driving the famliy car. Clever we old folks.

After the buffet dinner and the beautiful cake with a huge red heart and pink roses, the party broke up. It was poker in the kitchen, TV in the family room, and a serious game of Trivial Pursuit in the living room. If I had known there was going to be a test I would have studied.

Twelve adults and children, against "The Teen-agers" - all six of them! Eventually, three of them had to leave. And, finally, a chance for us to catch up as, fortunately for us, my husband Ken wandered into the living room. We were kind enough to accept him on our side. After all, he wasn't a teen-ager, (besides I've played with him before).

against three teen-agers.

It was tough, but we've lived longer, had more education, read much more, had four times as many people on our team, and besides, we had Ken. So, naturally we won!

I must confess, we didn't exactly smear them, and Lori did end up with an Excedrin headache waiting for our answers. But what the heck . . . it was a great party Happy Sweet 16, Lori.

WE HAVE ANOTHER award-winning Cantonite.

I have always known we are special and as I keep telling you (after one of you tells me) we have the awards to prove it. Most recently was the award given to Jean Golchuk at the annual convention of the Michigan Association #### of Realtors in Westin Hotel in the Ren-Cen. As the theme of this convention they chose "In Sight Of Excellence." Jean was awarded "Realtor-Associate of the Year," an award which requires being nominated by your peers.

As is often true with talented people, they spread themselves around and serve in many areas. Jean is no exception. She not only belongs to all the various associations that any good realtor must belong to, but she keeps busy with Boy Scouts, as a counselor for swimming, CPR training, chairperson for entire Tonquish District "Good Food Turn," a food drive, and various activities. She is also active in St. Theodore's Catholic Church in Westland, where she serves as a lector.

She has put in plenty of time teaching various courses to other realtors, such as energy efficiency, orientation

Actually, she has three sons to thank. Adam, a Plymouth Salem graduate, is now in college in Adrian studying to be a chiropractor. His brothers, Gary at St. Alphonse and Michael at St. Sabina, both wrestle, drumming up business for their big brother the future chiropractor!

Jean says she never quits learning or teaching for that matter. An employee of Century 21 Taylor and Associates, Jean wants to thank all of her former customers, and says she's looking forward to serving even more.

I ASKED Jean if she had any encouraging words for our community.

She said, "Homes are moving if prices are right. The average market time is 60 days and you can get a mortgage as low as 9%,

As a long-term goal, she hopes to one day be a broker and licensed for sydication and bond sales. In the short run, she is really looking forward to the new office on Canton Center Road just enorth of Oakwood Hospital. SPEAKING of good news for the township, a congratulations is in order for the determined homeowners around four different subdivisions, and all the residents of Canton, I might add.

Many of you have been calling everyone and anyone to get sidewalks around your subs on the main roads. Someone finally thought to check into agreements with your builders many years back. And, it seems, many of these were to be put in by the builder. As a matter of fact, it was discovered that Sunflower was to have a couple of tennis courts, too.

All this was presented to the builders by our township, showing agreements dating back to 1973. And guess what? With no cost to any taxpayers, you're getting your sidewalks!

If you live in Brookside, Cavalier, 🐇 Mayfair or Sunflower, put on a happy face. Your prayers have been answered and sidewalks either have been started or will be soon! Perhaps this will make homes in Canton even easier to sell.

NEXT WEEK , a five-generation reunion!

Anything happening in your neighborhood? Call me.

Synagogue marks 25th anniversary

Livonia Jewish Congregation will celebrate its 25th anniversary at a Chai Dinner Sunday at the synagogue, 31840 Seven Mile.

Chai means life and takes on a special meaning for the 25th silver anniversary for the close-knit congregation wherein community involvement has been a way of life since its official orboard of directors was held. Shabbot and high holy day services continued to be conducted in various locations in the area for several years. These temporary locations included a farmhouse on Seven Mile in Livonia and a building on Six Mile. The location for the past several years has been in the former Maly and Samuel Cohn Building at 31840

Over the years, a number of congregation members have been active in community affairs, including serving on the planning of the Livonia Prayer Breakfast, working with scouting groups and serving on the Commission for the Aging.

The congregation maintains a Sunday school that goes from kindergarten chaplain.

A WOMEN'S AUXILIARY serves the congregation in many ways, including serving Friday night and Saturday morning and succoth kiddushes.

Special activities involving the entire congregation include conducting weekly bingo games at the Wayne Ford Civic League Hall.

ganization in 1959.

It all began a year earlier when 10 men met in a Clarenceville elementary school to organize lay Friday night services. The first services were held in various homes in the area with the first high holy day service being conducted in Botsford Inn.

Official organization came in 1959 when an election of officers and a Seven Mile, Livonia

THE CONGREGATION prides itself on being "like one happy family even though we reside in Livonia, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Northville, Redford Township, Novi, Canton, Westland, Oak Park, Southfield, Lathrup Village, Walled Lake, Whitmore Lake, West Bloomfield and Detroit," said spokeswoman Phyllis Joyce Scherman.

through confirmation. Students are prepared for their bar and bat mitzvahs by the congregation's rabbi, Martin Gordon.

Rabbi Gordon officiates at all Shabbot services ( Friday, 8 p.m., and Saturday, 9 a.m.) all holiday services, bar and bat mitzvah services, hospital visits, weekly nursing home visits. He is also the Livonia Police Department

The congregation was saddened to learn, however, that early this week vandals had painted racial slurs on the synagogue's exterior.

But it only deepened the meaning of the event -a Chai dinner - that will highlight the festivities. Chai means life - and life will continue for the only full-time synagogue in western Wayne County.

Crossroads has plays — will travel

Crossroads Productions Ltd., the Redford-based professional touring theater company, is offering 18 different touring productions and special ser-vices for its sixth season which began July 1.

The shows, according to president and excutive producer Donald V. Calamia are all entertaining, educational and affordable. "Crossroads is making available to people throughout Michigan a wide variety of professionally produced, high quality traveling shows and educational services. From mime to dance, Shakespeare to Aesop, serious dramas to musical revues, Crossroads has developed a season that has something of interest for everyone at a price they can definitely afford."

For children, the company's Family Classics Series includes such returning favorites as "Hansel and Gretel" and the musical "Little Red Riding Hood." Joining them are new productions of "Aesop's Fables," "Cinderella," a new musical version of "Mother Goose," and an exciting play that looks at some of America's most favorite tall tales.

"Golliwhoppers."

THE CONTEMPORY Social Dramas, a series of original plays that deal with current social issues that face today's teenagers, were written and developed in cooperation with no-table organizations and individuals highly regarded in their respective fields

Returning this season is the critically praised program dealing with teen alcohol abuse, "One for the Road: Case No. 9177." The play, which was pro-duced in conjunction with Brighton

Hospital, was written exclusively for Crossroads as part of a trilogy by the famed television playwright Irving Vendig, the creator of daytime drama's "The Edge of Night."

The programs are ideal for school assemblies, libraries, business and church programs, civic and social events, fund-raising activities, and for just plain entertainment.

Complete information on these and all of Crossroads' activities can be obtained by calling (313) 537-4860.

Religious rhetoric confuses the issues

As we listen to the speeches of cam-paign '84, religious rhetoric continues to be one of the common denominators.

Observers might conclude that to vote for one candidate is to vote for God and to vote for another is to vote against God. Which is, of course, determined by one's position on this or that issue

But as religious as the rhetoric may sound, one is left to wonder what any of it has to do with a loving God. To authoritatively attach God's name to a particular party of candidate seems more often than not to be an exercise in arrogance. Attempts at divine endorsement lead to little more than unjustified condemnations and outlandish generalizations.

There are, for example those who suggest by innuendo that all of one par-ty is against peace. Others claim that all of another party is against peace. Others claim that all of another party are against children in the womb. In the meantime neither appear to be very consistent. Again, the rhetoric confuses the issue whatever it is.

ARMS BECOME THE "way to peace" and the abortion issue become and issue "of choice." God, of course, is claimed by everyone. Regardless of the issue, the rhetoric continues to confuse the reality. If arms are the way to peace, when why not arm every Ameri-can and we will be able to speak from strength On the other hand, if choice is the concern, then we should not legislate no smoking sections and certain-ly not speed limits because some may have good reasons for going fast. Perhaps if we could let go of our need to play God and to judge the integrity of anyone with an opposing view, we might have room in our vision to see destruction for what it is, regard-less of method or rationale. Then to-gether we could build a world that might have something to do with the ry opposing view to come down the po-litical pike. God whose name gets tacked onto eve-

It is not difficult to understand why some politicians, campaign managers, some politicians, campaign managers, and speech writers spout the religious rhetoric so readily. The reason is obvi-ous — it works. But question is, "Why does it work so well?" Perhaps part of the reason is that we the voters are quicker to reach for the slogans and ready answers of religion than we are to struggle with the challenge of faith.

THE RESULT IS that religion often has nothing to do with the divine. In fact, atrocities of various kinds have been carried out under the banner of religion throughout human history, our own not withstanding. I sometimes wonder if Abraham, Jesus, or Mohammed could identify with much of what is done in their respective names

The situation is not unlike that of a parent suggesting that Gold's love depends on eating spinach. Perhaps we are still children in regard to some things. At least we do seem to still buy the spinach speech when it is offered from the podium. And because it seems to work so well that same speech in one a term more times before election day. Regardless of who makes the speech, we might do well to ignore the rhotoric and listen to the God who speaks in open hearts. The only alternative is to tack his name on anything that is made to sound religious. The situation is not unlike that of a

St. Maarten: bounty of beaches

Almost 1 per square mile

ST. MAARTEN - - In most vacation spots, the question, "Which way to the beach?" elicits a simple response. Not so in St. Maarten.

Here, on this 37-square-mile Caribbean hideaway, the question invariably generates another, "What kind of beach are you looking for?" With three dozen beaches ringing the island, visitors have a wide range of choices.

There are long, looping scarves of white sand that seem to stretch on and on to the shimmering horizon. Beaches just big enough for two nestle between rocky headlands.

At Cupecoy Bay, coral cliffs overhang the talcum-soft sand. At lawn Beach, sea grape trees with eaves like paper fans edge the strand.

And, according to a centuries-old tradition known as "The Queen's Walk," St. Maarten's shoreline is the property of the Dutch crown.

AS A RESULT, all beaches are open o everyone. For visitors this means exloring the island roads and byways with a sense of discovery.

A sandy track meandering through the palms may lead to a secluded beach that seems unchanged since Christopher Columbus first sighted it nearly five centuries ago. A path zigzagging down a low cliff may end in a bathing spot not much larger than a beach blanket.

The gentle crescent of sand that curves along Mullet Bay reflects St. Maarten's "forget your cares" way of life. The low, yellow-roofed buildings of the Sheraton Mullet Bay Resort and Casino, set back from the Mullet Bay beach, lend a Mediterranean air ot the setting.

Mullet Bay's Watersports Center is located on the beach and provides more active beachgoers with boats and boards for sailing and windsurfing.

BEACH BUFFS with a taste for people-watching may opt for the Great Bay Beach, a few steps from Front Street in Philipsubrg, St. Maarten's captial village.

Great Bay itself is dotted with sleek yachts on which holiday-makers loll beneath billowing awnings. Nearby, brightly-painted island cargo boats rock at anchor, their crews busily engaged in loading and unloading everything from bananas to bedsprings. Several hotels line the beach - St.

Maarten Beach Club, Holland House, The Seaview - comfortable and convenient home bases for vacationers who want to be close to the action.

At "Antoine's," a few steps from Phi-lipsburg's "Little Pier," diners exclaim about both the imaginative menu and the panoramic view of sea and sky. Snorkelers find Dawn Beach the perfect setting-off point for exploring the reefs that lie just off-shore. Below the surface, the views are a breathtaking as those on land.

BUTTERFLY fish, bright as flowers, dart among coral branches; sea fans, delicate as lace, wave in the gentle currents.

Lazily swimming through the placid Caribbean waters, snorkelers enter a world that is memmerizing in its silent beauty. Back on land, there's always time for a refreshing drink and perhaps a snack at the Dining Room of the Dawn Beach Hotel whose louvred windows overlook the beach.

Equally evocative is Simpson Bay beach, a long parenthesis of sugar-white sand set between a picturesque fishing village and the murmuring sea. Bright blue nets festoon many of the fishermen's doorways and sturdy boats, red, yellow, green, are drawn up along the shoreline.

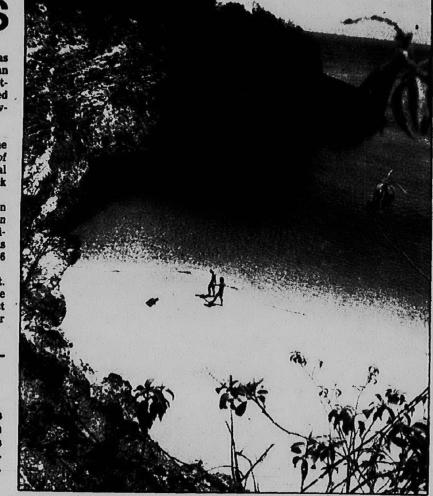

"Mary's Boon," which bills itself as "The Little Inn on the Big Beach," is an airy West Indian-style complex of cottages whose gingerbread-trimmed verandas are perfect spots for observing the passing scene.

FOR AL FRESCO dining beside the sea, "Felix's" at the opposite end of Simpson Bay beach offers continental cuisine in a Provencal setting of thick stone walls and cone-shaped roofs.

Life is unhurried and unpressured on tropical St. Maarten. So much so, in fact, visitors may find the most diffi-cult part of their St. Maarten holiday is deciding just which of the island's 36 superb beaches is their favorite.

For further information about St. Maarten's year-round pleasures, write the St. Maarten Tourist Office, 25 West 39th Street, New York, NY 10018, or call (212) 840-6655.

St. Maarten has 37 square miles and 36 beaches in Carribean waters. This romantic beach is nestled in a gentle cove approached by a trail through jungle paims.

travel notes

I recently attended a travel trade reception hosted by the Detroit office of the Canadian Government Office of Tourism. Your travel agent was probably there, snacking on cheese and wine, browsing among the dozens of tables spread out like an information network around the large room.

That's one of the places where travel professionals get their up-to-date information, so that they can help you plan your vacation. Travel trade marketplaces, trade publications like Travel Weekly, familiarization tours, those are all "insider" ways of gathering travel information.

You can be sure that your travel agent also reads both the editorial material and the advertising on newspa-per travel pages published weekly, here and in the daily papers. They also read travel magazines such as Travel and Leisure, Travel Holiday, the National Geographic Traveler, Geo and others.

You may not be a travel professional, you may not have access to some of those sources of information, but you too can keep yourself up-to-date by plugging into regular sources of information.

IF YOU subscribe to travel magazines, keep a clipping file. You needn't clip every story but you should clip the table of contents before you throw the magazine away so that you can find an article later in the library if necessary. The May 1984 issue of Travel and Leisure Magazine included a survey of readers who had taken tours, both in North America and abroad. If you are considering a tour, the rating of tour companies might interest you.

IF YOU READ the travel pages, you know that the travel film series opened in the Detroit area this nonth. The World Adventure Series, which was the first travel film-lecture series in the country, launched its 1984-85 season with a program by Lowell Thomas Jr., Oct. 14.

The World Adventure Series takes you to various parts of the world every Sunday afternoon at the Detroit Institute of Arts and one Thursday morning a month. Call 832-2730 for a schedule.

you should be at the art institute this Sunday, Oct. 28, when Clay Francisco shows "Americans in Paris." If you are exploring the world but haven't picked a destination, go to several and see what pleases you. Travel film lectures are also given regularly in other parts of the metro-politan area. You'll find them at Oakland Community College Highland Lakes Campus in Union Lake (360-3041), at the Plymouth Kiwanis series at Plymouth-Salem High School (455-5100), at the Westfield Center in Trenton (657-7303) and other places. If you "plugged in" you also knew that the Automobile Club of Michigan held its first consumer travel show last Sunday, Oct. 21, at the Michigan Inn in Southfield. Like most such shows, it included several dozen exhibitors representing cruise lines, tour companies, airlines and other travel retailers.

sure I've been there and checked all those details out. But that doesn't mean the information isn't useful.

Like you, I use it according to my need, which might depend on whether I've been there recently or whether I've been there at all.

I've never been to Las Vegas, for example, unlike many Detroit travelers, so I was just familiarizing myself with the information when Las Vegas brought its demonstration gambling tables and a glamorous showgirl to the Michigan Inn this fall.

The Las Vegas marketplace was jammed with travel agents, partly because the city uses glitz to attract professionals, just as they use glitz to attract travelers. I was surprised to learn that Detroit is Las Vegas' number one source of charter travelers.

Your friendly travel agent knows that, and knows how to buy your charter trip from a wholesaler who sells space on a large regualarly scheduled airline, or sometimes even charters a plane. Those wholesalers were there at the Las Vegas reception, each out-discounting the other to attract your travel agents' attention.

All of these are great sources of information for your travel file. Keep a file and you will be much better informed the next time you walk into the office of the traveler's best friend, your travel agent.

Greenock Mills, a saw mill and flour mill, were built between 1836 and 1840. The mills were the hub of the Rushton community which later expanded to include a post office, general store, creamery, and a flag stop on the Grand Trunk Railroad. A wind storm destroyed the saw mill in 1902.

The grist mill, with its rugged 12 X 12 oak posts and beam construction, survived until 1971 when a fire destroyed the upper two floors. The current structure of similar design was rebuilt by the present owners, George and Sidonia De Angelis, utilizing much of the original materials.

Doors open for Justice Boyle

By Teri Banas staff writer

10B(P,C)

Justice Patricia J. Boyle recalled the first time a "door opened for me" and she found her first professional job after graduation from the Wayne State University Law School. At a time when work was scarce in the legal profession, she started her career as a legal research assistant for a federal judge in Detroit.

Twenty years later another door opened for Boyle when Gov. James Blanchard appointed her to the Michigan State Supreme Court, filling a vacancy created by the death of Justice Blair Moody Jr. in early 1983.

For Boyle, who was then a federal judge, accepting the Blanchard appointment meant giving up a lifetime presidential appointment in the U.S. Federal District Court.

The decision to accept Blanchard's offer thrust her into the position of running for election this November for the six-year seat.

A nominee of the Democratic party, her opponent is longtime political veteran and former U.S. Sen. Robert Griffin.

Boyle, whose own experiences as a pared to her opponent's, brought her campaign to Livonia this week, one week after GOP nominee Griffin addressed the Livonia Chamber of Commerce Political Action Committee. BOYLE had requested the same audience before the local chamber PAC. but said she was rejected. Instead, she arrived in Livonia this week at the invitation of Mayor Edward McNamara.

Curiously, Boyle has earned the reputation of a conservative judge who has been honored by such groups as the Police Officers Association of Michigan Women of the Year" for 1983), the Michigan Jaycees and by her own profession when in a newspaper poll of prosecuting and defense attorneys she was ranked the best of 20 judges in the Detroit Recorder's Court.

Taking time out from the sweep through the City Hall complex Monday, Boyle responded to questions posed by the Observer on the partisanship of the court, her opponent and the method of electing judges.

Boyle discarded the notion of partisan politics affecting the court's decisions, saying she has seen no evidence of that. "My experience on the court and of the 50 decisions we've issued (in that time) is that there's not campainger have been limited as com- been a single one divided on party

IN VOTING, the public often misunderstands the nature of the non-partisan position of judicial candidates. It's understandable, she said, because while the candidates run under neither party affiliation, the parties do nominate particular candidates. The misunderstanding sometimes costs votes when voters pull a party lever at the ballot box but fail to know the judges fall under the non-partisan section of the ballot and that these votes must be made independent of pulling either party lever.

Boyle also said she believes the headon nature of the high court race, which as opposed to an open-field system pits two individuals against one another for one job, helps the electorate learn about these often overlooked judicial races. "It sharpens the focus, the ability to make a comparison (when two candidates are involved)," she said.

Play to win — by 21

A FRACASSA IS not the happiest coach around these days, and it's not all because his team lost to Warren De La Salle three weeks ago.

The head coach of Brother Rice finds himself in a very uncomfortable position. If he wants to qualify for the Catholic League Prep Bowl as the Central Division representative, De La Salle must lose Saturday and the Warriors must get the nod through the league's tie-breaker system.

If Catholic Central upsets De La Salle this weekend and Rice beats Bishop Borgress, then the Warriors, Shamrocks and Pilots will be tied with 4-1 league records.

The Catholic League then will look at the winning-point margins between the three deadlocked teams, with the maximum spread being 21 points.

I've talked to enough people about the rule including the Catholic League director of physical education, Walt Bazylewicz — to make my head spin. It looks like a Catholic Central win over De La Salle by less than 21 points would send Rice to the Prep Bowl because the Warriors beat CC by 21, the Pilots only beat Rice by three and the Shamrocks will have beaten De La Salle by less than 21. Got it?

A De La Salle win by any margin would make it all academic as the Pilots would win the title with a 5-0 record.

HOWEVER, IF CC beats De La Salle by 21 points, then the tie still hasn't been broken because Rice and Catholic Central both won by 21. Because a tie still exists, all three teams will match point spreads against common opponents, and the team with the greatest margin of victory (again with 21 points the maximum allowed) would be the league representative in the Prep Bowl.

Against common foes, Rice has the upper hand because the Warriors defeated Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher and Notre Dame by at least 21. De LaSalle and Catholic Central each edged Gallagher, both in double overtime. In league wins, Rice has won three games by at least 21, De La Salle has two wins by that margin and CC has one.

The way I see it, any CC win over De La Salle would give Rice the berth. If De La Salle loses by 20 or less, Rice goes. If De La Salle loses by 21 or more and they have to look at the common opponents, Rice still goes because it will have at least three 21-point wins, while CC and De La Salle will only have two.

If Rice gets the bowl berth, then the agony may be worth it to Fracassa. But it isn't now.

AFTER BROTHER Rice topped Catholic Central in the Boys' Bowl – getting the final 21-point

Rocks stave off Spartan charge

By Chris McCosky staff writer

It was a rout, then it was in serious doubt. But, in the end, the Plymouth Salem girls basketball team defeated Livonia Stevenson, as it always seems to do. The score this time was 53-48.

"This is our last chance to beat Salem," said Stevenson's Mary Kay Hussey before Tuesday's contest. Hussey and her fellow seniors have not been on a basketball team that has bested Salem. "Just once I'd like to know what it feels like to beat them."

Hussey did everything she could to help the Spartans experience a victory over the Rocks. She led her team back from a 19-point halftime deficit. She and teammate Joan Frysinger had the Spartans within two points with just 55 seconds left to play.

But in the end, the Rocks again prevailed.

"I didn't feel like we were intimidated by Salem tonight," said Stevenson coach Wayne Henry. "I felt we played against their basketball team tonight. Not their tradition."

IN THE first half, Stevenson didn't play at all. The Rocks' man-to-man pressure defense had the Spartans completely befuddled — not to mention frustrated and nearly buried in their own gym.

"I have seen this Salem team do this so many times this season," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "They just come out and make every play. They do everything right."

The Bocks forced 21 Spartan turnovers in the first half. That. plus a domination of both the offensive and detensive boards, led to Salem's 33-14 half-time lead.

"I don't," said Henry when asked to explain his team's poor start. "We played our best basketball of the season last Thursday (against Farmington). We looked so sharp. I guess we expected the same kind of performance."

Henry made a key adjustment between halves. He moved Hussey to point guard. This did several things. It immediately increased Stevenson's intensity on defense. Hussey also seemed to bring the helter-skelter offense under control.

"Hussey really gave us some problems," Thomann said. "We did not have enough quickness at the point to deal with her. Plus, she really played the passing lanes. It seemed like she had a magnet in her hands and got to every ball we threw."

HUSSEY MADE two steals and forced three other turnovers early in the third quarter. She also scored eight points in the quarter. By the time the quarter expired, Stevenson was within eight.

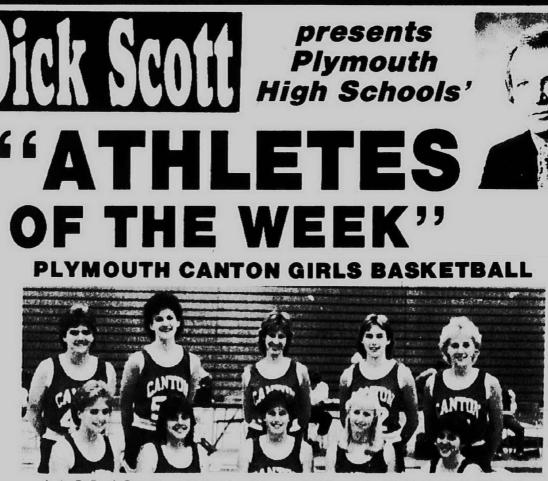

"We didn't deal well with their pressure," Thomann said. "It's like we start thinking 'When is the pressure going to start getting to us' instead of just going out and dealing with it."

(P,C)1C

Mary Beth Weast scores two of her 14 points against Stevenson.

margin of victory on a field goal with 5:32 to play — Fracassa looked around at anyone who would listen and explained he didn't want to pad the score.

The same thing happened Saturday at Grosse Pointe South against Bishop Gallagher. Rice had the game won, 29-13, in the closing seconds, but the Lancers, who had just shut down a Rice scoring threat, tried a pass with less than 10 seconds to play.

Rice tackle Mike Lodish came up with the football, and with one tick left on the clock, the Warriors had another chance. They capitalized with six points to take a 22-point victory.

Late in the game, a shout came from the Gallagher stands: "Pour it on, Fracassa."

Afterward, words were exchanged between Fracassa and Gallagher coach George Sahadi, with an inference to the Rice coach's intelligence quotient.

"I feel bad," Fracassa told me afterward. "I'm not the type of person to pour it on, but I have to do what you have to do."

All Fracassa is doing is playing by the rules. It's all over if De La Salle wins Saturday, but in the meantime, Fracassa has to make sure his team has a chance to get into the league's playoffs.

SAHADI WAS A bit miffed after Saturday's game. He didn't believe Rice needed any more points.

"Al didn't need 21 points against us," he said. "They're so far ahead, six more points wouldn't make no difference anyway. If he wanted it that bad he should have told me during the (last) timeout. We would have stood still and let them walk into the end zone."

Catholic Central coach Tom Mach has mixed feelings on scoring late in a game to give his team a 21-point margin of victory.

"I don't know," he said with a laugh. "I imagine if I was in that situation I might have to. We had the opportunity earlier in the season against Borgess. We had the ball with a 19-point lead on the 5-yard line with a minute to go, and we had a decision to make — kick the field goal, go for the touchdown or run the clock out.

"We just ran the clock out. It might've been dumb, but I just don't believe in putting it to a team, although I don't think teams would hesitate putting it to me," Mach added with another laugh. "It would be a decision in my own conscience, and I wouldn't put it to a team. That's not my way."

Obviously, running up the score isn't a smart tactic in sports. But when the ground rules are set — with 21 being the magic number — then the score counts.

Winning isn't supposed to mean everything in sports. But it does mean something or there wouldn't be playoffs or scoreboards. Fracassa can't be blamed for trying to win by 21 points. He didn't make the rules — he's just playing by them. The Plymouth Canton girls basketball team used a 14-4 burst in the second quarter to chalk up a nonleague victory Tuesday over host Redford Union, 42-27.

The Eagles, who have lost a number of heartbreakers this year, didn't have to worry about a close contest going down the stretch in the final quarter.

"We were in striking distance until about four minutes left," Plymouth coach Jeff Cook said. "It was not a well-played game by us."

Kim Allen led Plymouth with 12 points and Debbie Van Hoose added 10.

It was the Spartans' fourth straight WLSL title and the third straight victory over Bentley, which is 11-4-3 for the year.

DeLaSalle rips Borgess; Shamrocks zip Irish, 35-0

The schedule doesn't get any easier for the Redford Bishop Borgess football squad.

The Spartans absorbed a 35-14 Central Division loss Saturday to unbeaten Warren DeLaSalle (7-0), one of the state's top-ranked teams.

This Saturday, Borgess (4-3) travels to meet another powerhouse, Birmingham Brother Rice (6-1). The game will be played at Birmingham Seaholm High School. Game time is 8 p.m.

"The biggest thing is we have to do is stop Rice's passing game," said Borgess coach Gary Cook. They're the best they've been offensively since I've been in the league (five years).

The Spartans couldn't stop DeLaSalle's vaunted running attack as 6-foot-2, 210-pound junior fullback Allen Jefferson rushed for 166 yards and four touchdowns. His backfield teammate, Eric Ford, added 94 yards rushing and one TD.

"Jefferson will only get better," said Borgess coach Gary Cook. "The scary thing was that he was the fastest guy on the field."

Borgess trailed by only six at the half, 20-14, as Marlon Montgomery scored on a 7-yard run in the first quarter followed by a 13-yard scoring pass from junior Mike Ritchie to Gordie Pacheco.

But DeLaSalle took advantage of three Borgess fumbles, all inside the Spartans' 30, to score touchdowns

"It was frustrating," said Cook. "We felt we were in the game until the last couple of minutes. If not for the turnovers, it would have been interesting."

Montgomery was Borgess' leading rusher with 85 yards in 12 carries. Junior Mike Stewart added 59 yards in 10 attempts.

According to Cook, it looks as if All-Observer tailback Fred Owens is out for the year with a knee injury His back-up, Marion Pittman, is also through for the season.

CATHOLIC CENTRAL 35, NOTRE DAME 0: Sophomore running back Tim Lafferty rushed for 117 yards in 13 carries Saturday to lead Redford Catholic Central (5-2, 3-1) past Harper Woods Notre Dame in a Central Division game played at Clarenceville High School.

CC. which plays Saturday at DeLaSalle, increased its record to 5-2 overall, 3-1 in the Central Division.

The Shamrocks opened the scoring on quarterback Todd Thomas' 25-yard TD pass to Ron Wandzel. The two later teamed up for another score, this time a 32-yard football

Lafferty added a 2-yard TD run and Tom Bridenstine chipped in with a 43-yard scoring dash. CC tallied its other TD when Eric Hetke blocked a punt that was recovered by Chuck Crespi in the ND end zone. The CC defense was also stubborn, limiting the Fighting

Irish to three first downs, all in the second half

ST. AGATHA 7, ST. MARY'S 3: Redford St. Agatha (4-3, 2-2) won the C-Bracket tussle against St. Mary's thanks to Kevin Bell's 2-yard TD run in the third quarter Saturday afternoon in Orchard Lake.

John Marnon recovered a fumble to set up the 35-yard Aggie scoring drive. Quarterback D.C. Minor, who enjoyed his best outing of the year, kept the drive alive with a key 18-yard pass to Pat Wilson

Minor hit 5-of-7 passes for 67 yards (all to Wilson). Bell added 87 yards in 21 carries. Agatha outgained OLSM in total yardage, 183-84, but lost four fumbles in the first half, one leading to a 27-yard Jim Fredal field goal in first quarter.

Agatha stopped the Eaglets' final scoring threat with 21/2 minutes to go when senior tackle Pat Algeyer made a crushing hit to cause a fumble that John Zachman recovered.

The Aggies then ran out the clock as Minor completed three keys passes down the stretch.

"Our defense keeps us in every game," said Agatha coach John Goddard, "but offensively we seem to selfdestruct."

The Aggies will have to stay away from mistakes this week as they tackle unbeaten Pontiac Catholic.

REDFORD UNION 19, FRANKLIN 0: Redford Union took advantage of Livonia Franklin mistakes to post a Northwest Suburban League win Saturday afternoon.

The visiting Panthers (2-5, 2-3) were held to a meager 104 yards total offense, but scored three TDs, two by Don Angel on runs of 2 and 4 yards. Fullback Mario Picano also scored a late TD for RU on a 8-yard trap play. Angel, one of the area's leading rushers, was held to 40 yards. "Our defense did a fine job," said Franklin coach Armand Vigna. "They played a real nice ball game.

"But we blew three (scoring) chances early and then we never threatened '

The Spartans also pulled off a six-point play in Back came the Spartans. First Amy Rozman scored. Then Faith Zammit. Then Hussey forced a turnover and scored. Hussey was fouled and hit one of two free throws. But, Frysinger rebounded and that third quarter. It started with a Hussey basket. "That's a travel ref," said Salem assistant coach

Ray Franzen. The referee responded by slapping a technical foul on the Salem bench Frysinger sank both free throws. Lisa Bokovoy, making her first start in two weeks, then hit another hoop off the technical foul possession.

That sparked an action-filled and aggressive fourth quarter.

Frysinger hit three straight hoops to begin the final quarter and Stevenson was suddenly within three points.

SALEM, A gritty team when its back is up against the wall, responded with eight straight points. Kendra Hostynski came off the bench to deliver four of the points.

Fran Whittaker converted her steal and coast-tocoast drive into two points to put the Rocks up 50scored. Stevenson was again within two, 50-48, with 55 seconds left.

Each team made a turnover and Salem called timeout. The plan was simple. Run the clock down and make Stevenson foul.

They did. First Kristen Hostynski hit one of two free throws. Then Mary Beth Weast drained two. Ballgame

"I'm going to make the same statement I have made many times," said Thomann. "Our team has the resiliency to come through when the pressure is on. We made the big plays when we had to to win the basketball game.

Weast led the Rocks (9-1 in the Western Lakes, 12-2 overall) with 14 points. Freshman Dena Head had 12. The Hostynski sisters contributed 17 points between them - Kristen had nine and Kendra eight.

Frysinger (14), Hussey (13) and Bokovoy (12) led the Spartans (6-4, 9-4).

Falcons capture league meet

By Chris McCosky staff writer

All right. The Farmington High School boys cross country team was supposed to win the Western Lakes league meet Tuesday.

No question. The Falcons had swept through the dual-meet season unbeaten and virtually untested.

But, to beat your nearest competitor by 88 points in a 10-team conference meet is, well, awesome.

But that's just what the Falcons accomplished at Cass Benton Tuesday. Farmington garnered five of the first seven places (the top seven earning allleague honors) and six of the first 10.

They finished with 19 team points. Second place Walled Lake Central had 107. Walled Lake Western was third (121), Northville fourth (131) and Plymouth Salem fifth (133).

Farmington Harrison (171) was eighth and Plymouth Canton (197) ninth.

"I EXPECTED us to win," said Farmington coach Jerry Young. "But, not by that much."

Young wanted to applaud his seniors, and for good reason.

"Our seniors deserve a lot of credit," Young said of seniors Bruce Kerr and Dave Dunneback. "They were never one and two, but they worked hard and they gave help and encouragement to the younger kids. I can't stress enough how important those seniors were to our program."

Dunneback finished fifth Tuesday with a 16:59 and Kerr placed eighth (17:08)

The bread-winners for the Falcons were a pair of talented sophomores. Chris Inch (16:35) and Al Stebbins (16:44) went one-two for Farmington.

Bryan Lawton (16:57) placed fourth and Bruce Kratt (17:05) placed seventh. Winning the league was Young's initial goal this season. Next up: the state meet "I'll tell you, it feels great to be a good team. I'm very happy to have this type of season. Now, I hope we keep it rolling and qualify for the state meet," Young said.

The regional meet is this weekend.

THERE WERE some startling occurences in the girls meet. Livonia Stevenson, buoyed by a strong dual-meet season, was expected to carry the league meet as well.

If anyone was going to challenge Stevenson, it would be Plymouth Salem. Nope.

Surprising Livonia Churchill took the meet with 89 points. Northville was second (94), Stevenson third (100) and Salem fourth (102).

The first to cross the finish line was no surprise. Farmington Harrison's Lauri Runk took first in 20:05. Teammate Jenny Anderson (20:54) placed sixth, but Harrison was a distant eighth in team points.

Salem's Denise Durrer (20:23) was he temptation is strong to use this ce to launch another attack on the ecilic high school football playoff tem devised by the Michigan High ool Athletic Association (MHSAA).

fter all, is there a topic more pertit, more at the heart of high school tball?

is absolutely absurd to crown a te champion through a playoff systhat excludes from competition consensus No. 1 team in the state perhaps three or four other teams rank in the top 10.

happened last year in two of the classes and it is very likely to hapagain this year.

armington Harrison, ladies and tleman, will most likely be on the ide looking in when the state offs commence - the very same rison team that is 7-0 winning its nes by margins of 42-plus points; the same Harrison team that is ked No. 1 by every polling body in state; the very same Harrison team is ranked among the top teams in erica; the very same Harrison team was ranked No. 1 in the state last and didn't qualify for the state offs.

UT, THERE'S more injustice to playoff fiasco. North Farmington lso 7-0 and it ranks behind even rison in the computer rankings in overstocked Region III.

ere are still six unbeaten teams in on III: Warren DeLaSalle, Sterling Heights Stevenson, Birmingham Seaholm, Southfield-Lathrup, North and Harrison. Only two of those six will qualify. Right now, Stevenson and Seaholm are in the driver's seat with just two weeks left.

Yes, the temptation is indeed strong to fire away at the injustice of this system. But, what's the use. Attacks have been made on the MHSAA since the playoff format was initiated back in 1975. The MHSAA simply turns the deaf ear on them. Attacks are basically a waste of time.

And that is the most frustrating thing about the whole damn mess. Your prognosticators turned in impressive performances last week. Emons went 11-1 and McCosky 10-2. Both have season records of 61-23. Week No. 8 features the anti-climactic Western Lakes conference championship game between Farmington High and Harrison. Two key Catholic League games are also on the card. Bishop Borgess-Brother Rice and Catholic Central-DeLaSalle.

LIV. FRANKIN at DEARBORN (4 p.m. Friday): The Patriots (3-4) have sud-denly become inoffensive — that is, they can't seem to move the football. They have lost three of their last four games. Meanwhile, Dearborn has lost but twice this sea-

Picks - Dearborn rolls, McCosky and Emons agree

WOODHAVEN at GARDEN CITY (7:30 p.m. Friday): Garden City, ranked No. 5 in Observerland, continues to play impressive football despite a rash of injuries and a rugged schedule. The Cougars (5-2) had a bit of a breather last week with Redford Thurston. Woodhaven (3-3) is coming off a 35-28 loss to Ortonville Brandon. Picks - Got to be the Cougars' night, both agree.

JOHN GLENN at HIGHLAND PARK (3 p.m. Friday): The frustrations continue for Westland John Glenn. Not many figured the Rockets to be 4-3 at this stage of the season. Highland Park (5-2) has been averaging better than 30 points in its last five games Picks - Highland Parkers leave Glenn at .500, says McCosky. Emons goes with Glenn.

N. FARMINGTON at WAT. KETTERING (7:30 p.m. Friday): Jim O'Leary's band of Raiders started the season cautiously optimistic, yet with some serious doubts. Seven victories and an NSL title later, the doubts have been erased. This is one powerful football unit. Kettering (2-5)

grid predictions

Thursday, October 25, 1984 O&E

beat Lake Shore 21-8 last week. Picks - No letdowns, please. Raiders roll - a unanimous choice

WAT. MOTT at REDFORD UNION (7:30 p.m. Friday): Redford Union finally got win No. 2 last week, but it was hardly convincing. Waterford Mott has only won once this year.

Picks - RU takes this non-league contest two votes

LIV. STEVENSON at NORTH-VILLE (7:30 p.m. Friday): One of the sad jokes of the aforementioned playoff system is that Northville (6-1), a team that Harrison beat 42-0, has a good chance of making the playoffs. To get there, though, they must get by an unpredictable Stevenson team (5-2). The Spartans beat Lakes Division champ Farmington last week, remember.

Picks - Northville keeps the drive alive, both agree.

LIV. BENTLEY at LIV. CHURCH-ILL (7:30 p.m. Friday): Bentley (4-3) stunned Walled Lake Central in overtime last week, while Churchill-Stoitsiadis (2-5) ran roughshod over Walled Lake Western. Quarterback John Stoitsiadis is perhaps the most dangerous one-man offensive attack this side of Harrison's John Miller. Bentley, too, can score points. The scoreboard will take the biggest beating here. Picks — A toss up, really. McCosky likes Churchill, but Emons likes the Bulldogs.

W.L. CENTRAL at PLY. CANTON (7:30 p.m. Friday): Call this the Frustration Bowl. Canton's 2-5 record could be (should have been) 5-2. Walled Lake Central was the pre-seaon pick to win the Lakes Di-vision. Then its quarterback got hurt. The Vikings are 3-4 and playing out the string. Picks - The frustration stays with the Chiefs, Central wins. Emons picks Canton.

PLY. SALEM vs. W.L. WESTERN (7:30 p.m. Friday at W.L. Central): Salem's 52-14 loss to Northville was the worst beating a Tom Moshimer team has suffered in recent memory. The Rocks (2-5) will be out to atone against Western (1-6). Picks - It's unanimous, Salem explodes.

FARMINGTON at FARM. HARRI-SON (1 p.m. Saturday): Flashback: Week two of the 1984 prep football season. Harri-son crunches the Falcons 42-0. Now it's week eight and the same two teams are battling for the Western Lakes crown. Regardthing for the western lakes crown. Regar-less of who wins, the statement is clear. The Farmington Public School District, which divides its populace into three parts, four if you add the number of students lost to private schools, is phenomenally wealthy in football talent. Farmington, Harrison and North Farmington have all won titles this Picks - The Hawks win their third straight WLAA crown, both agree.

CLARENCEVILLE at COUNTRY DAY (1 p.m. Saturday): Detroit Country Day (7-0) is the class of the Metro Conference. DCD has yielded but 14 points all season. Clarenceville (4-3) is coming off a victory against Lutheran East.

Picks - McCosky and Emons, always will-ing to go out on a limb, take DCD.

ROMULUS at RED. THURSTON (2) p.m. Saturday): Romulus (2-5) was pummeled by Marysville last week 35-0. Thurston (0-7) was pummeled by Garden City. If Thurston is going to get a win, this better be the week. Picks - The Eagles stay winless, both agree CATHOLIC CENTRAL vs. De-LaSALLE (8 p.m. Saturday at Roseville Memorial Park): This is a crucial game in both Region III and the Catholic League. CC (3-1, 5-2) needs to win big to stay in the league race. Warren DeLaSalle (4-0, 7-0) needs to win to maintain its lead in the league and keep its playoff hopes alive. Picks - Sorry Harrison and North, no upset here. DeLaSalle marches to the Prep Bowl. both say.

For Donnie Andersen, who finished second overall in last week's Detroit Free Press Marathon, it's time to rest.

A pair of nagging cramps doomed the 31-year-old Garden City native, who held the lead until the 23-mile mark before being passed by Loren Bandt, the eventual winner. Bandt crossed the line first in 2 hours, 23 minutes and 40 seconds. Andersen's time was 2:24:48.

"That was my race for the year," said Andersen, a member of the Racquets Unlimited Racing Team of Livonia. "I was keying for that. I competed more than 30 times this year. This is it. "But I plan to peak again for it next year."

Andersen said he was more prepared for this year's FP Marathon than any of the previous 14 he had run.

And everything was going according to plan for Andersen, who was clipping along at a 5:20 per mile pace until he encountered difficulty at the 20-mile mark.

"I HAD ESTABLISHED a concrete goal," said the ex-GC West High standout. "I wanted to run a 2:22:00, but physiologically I couldn't keep my pace.

"At 20 miles, I vomited twice. I began to lose fluids. I started to dehydrate and cramping.

"I had been nursing a weak right hamstring for three months and then my left calf (muscle) started cramping. I could feel a charley horse coming on so I had to slow down to finish. I went down to a seven minute (per mile) pace. It was really discouraging."

Clipping along at the 5:20 pace, Andersen was able to stay up with pre-race favorite Gary Reffit of Ypsilanti, who fell apart at the 21-mile mark. Reffitt settled for 13th place.

"It was cool - 65 degrees - but the high humidity fooled people," said An-dersen. "It really made matters worse. This is the first marathon where I had the cramping thing. It's just one of those things."

ALTHOUGH DISAPPOINTED that he didn't win, Andersen said he was "tickled to death" with second place.

"The effort was close to a personal record performance," he said. "I'm real satisfied.

"I would have never dreamed that in the Free Press Marathon, with 4,000 runners, that it would be won in 2:23:40

Andersen also finished second in the Free Press event back in 1974, just after he had left Hillsdale College where he gained All-American honors in track and cross country. That year he ran a 2:22. He also ran a 2:22 at the U.S. Olympic Trials in 1976.

Because of the training base I had set for myself, this was the first marathon that I've been fully prepared for," Andersen said. "I would have been disappointed with anything over 2:25."

It was only a year ago that Andersen moved to Traverse City because of his thirst for "hang gliding and clean air." "I love to hang glide and this is the place to be," he said. "There are a lot of spots here. And I love the outdoors, the hunting and the fishing. "They also have a lot of beautiful wilderness trails to run through."

AS FAR AS other area runners were concerned, Andersen's Racquets Unlimited teammate, John Grabowski of Orchard Lake, finished 26th overall with a time of 2:35:57. Rex Perrine of Westland, 39th overall, won the men's 45-49 age group with a time of 2:37:50. RU's David Emery was second in that class with a time of 2:42:17. Art Kitze, formerly of Garden City, was 40th overall in 2:37:50 and George Hudock of Westland, ex-Livo-nia Franklin and Schoolcraft College standout, was 43rd in 2:38:29. On the women's side, Kathryn Cur-tiss of Livonia was second in the 20-24 age group with a time of 3:04:55.

LIONS GO 1-1-1

The Plymouth-Canton Lions junior league football team did a little bit of everything Sunday against the Romulus Flyers. They won, lost and tied.

After the freshmen Lions lost a 19-0 decision, the junior varsity played to a 12-12 tie. Brain Wukie and Karl Wukie accounted for the Lions' scores.

The varsity Lions, however, roared. Behind touchdowns from Wayne Merick, Ryan Johnson and Brian Soeder, they zipped the Flyers 18-0. The Lion defense gave up 39 total yards.

STEELERS SWEEP

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers junior league football went wild in Ypsilanti Sunday. All three units enjoyed lopsided wins.

The JV Steelers (6-0-1) won 22-6 behind a 14-point effort by Chris Decker. Decker scored two TDs and kicked a two-point extra point. The JV also got scores from Brian Dobbs on a pass from Scott Swartzwelter and a safety from Mike Plunkett.

The varsity Steelers eclipsed all scoring records in rolling up a 55-26 win. Chris Johnston and Darren DeTata were in on most of the scoring. Johnston, a halfback, hit DeTata for two long TD passes. Johnston and DeTata each scored two TDs via the run. Johnston threw a third TD pass, this one to quarterback Scott Hauncher - trick plays were on display. To cap the scoring, Steve Burlison picked up a fumble and ran it in. Danny Boyle booted three two-point extra points. The varsity Steelers are 6-0-1 and haven't lost since 1980.

Zero-coupon bonds can be part of your IRA just $484 for a bond producing $1,000 in 1990.

ANOTHER ADVANTAGE of zerocoupon bonds is that the end result of the investment is known, since the compounding rate is not affected by changes in interest rates.

For example, a person gave a $10,000 zero-coupon bond to his grandson. Actually, he bought a $10,000, 17year zero-coupon bond at a cost of only $1,982.

Another man, 42, plans to retire between his 52nd and 62nd birthdays. He bought $10,000 stripped bonds maturing 10 to 20 years ahead. During each of the ten years beginning in 1994, he will receive $10,000. The cost of these bonds was $26,776.

SOME DISADVANTAGES

You should be aware of several disadvantages of investing in zero-coupon bonds.

A bond is only as good as its issuer's creditworthiness. While there is no repayment worry with federal securities, there could be with others; some highrated bonds are insured by private groups that guarantee principal and in- In ca nationally known issuers. BECAUSE THE compounding rate is fixed, the maturity you choose will depend on your inflation outlook. If you feel inflation will remain low, you may choose to buy a long term (20-year) bond. The maturities should also be related to your personal cashflow needs.

Finally, you should carefully look for call provisions. Most bonds cannot be called or redeemed in less than 10 years, but some housing issues have special redemption calls that permit redemption in less than three years. In case of doubts, consult your CPA, investment advisor or a financial

Big brassy band swings on Mondays

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Trumpeter Johnny Trudeil and his Top Brass brighten Monday nights at Jamie's on 7 in Livonia. Trudeil's big band, one of the best known in the Detroit area, also plays backup for visiting celebrities. S MONDAY NIGHT is a dead night, eh? No one goes out for entertainment on Monday night. Right?

Wrong. At least at Jamie's on Seven in Livonia. That's where Johnny Trudell and his Top Brass has been entertaining for almost three years. With a 15-piece band and a vocalist, Trudell has found the right combination of big band sounds to survive on a night that is traditionally quiet — except for the sounds of Monday night football.

Trudell believes there's no mystery to his band's success. "We play everything from Glenn Miller to Michael Jackson," said the trumpet player, who's been a pro since the age of 13. "Our vocalist, Bart Fiori, also sings everything from Frank Sinatra to Kenny Rogers to Lionel Richie."

On a recent Monday night, the band was in top form showing its varied repertoire. Couples danced to "Tuxedo Junction," "As Time Goes By" and Duke Ellington's "Satin Doll." The band's soloists enlivened "The Theme from M.A.S.H." and Hoagy Carmichael's "Stardust."

Always, the music by Top Brass is genial swing that's never too brassy for the room. And Trudell's solos on trumpet, flugelhorn and valve trombone are models of incisive decorum.

Trudell, 45, first formed his band about 25 years ago to play at the old Roostertail supperclub. He has a world of experience with big bands. Trudell has had some of the best gigs in the city, playing behind the best entertainers to come into metro Detroit at places like db's at the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn and Meadow Brook Music Festival at Oakland University near Rochester.

He also was trumpeter in such big bands as those led by Ralph Marterie, Buddy Morrow, Tommy Dorsey, Bob Crosby and Tex Benecke.

"I think we're doing something that's unique in the United States here," Trudell said about his Monday night big band sessions at Jamie's. "They try it other places but it doesn't seem to work. I've managed to keep my band working and also provide music for people who like to go out and dance."

(Jamie's on Seven, Seven Mile and Middlebelt roads, Livonia, phone 477-9077.)

ANTON JAMES is a young songwriter, guitarist and vocalist who recently released his debut record called "Off the Cuff."

An EP, "Off the Cuff" got airplay for a while on WRIF, WABX and WLBS before the latter two stations changed their format away from progressive rock. What is progressive rock? According to a release from the James camp, it's any music well done. "Off the Cuff," which includes four tunes, seems to qualify as progressive rock. It's not easy to categorize James' music except to say that it's a blending of rock and jazz sounds that is on the whole winsome and sometimes engaging.

James has been kicking around Detroit with bands led by other musicians but got tired of playing other people's music. Leading his own band gives him greater control over the music - all of which he writes.

His live band, with musicians who do not appear on the record, will be performing Saturday night at the Old Miami, on Cass Avenue, Detroit. Among the band members are David Rollins of Livonia, Mark Edwards of Redford and Ross Smith of Farmington.

VIRTUOSO BASSIST Richard Davis will be performing at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 3, at the Detroit Institute of Arts Recital Hall.

Known for his capable work in a variety of settings — from avant-garde jazz to classical — Davis has recorded with the likes of Eric Dolphy, Dexter Gordon, Elvin Jones and Oliver Nelson. Davis is currently professor of Base

Davis is currently professor of Bass and Black Music Studies at the University of Wisconsin. He will be joined in the upcoming concert by pianist Kenn Cox, guitarist Spencer Barefield, bass Jaribu Shahid and drummer Tani Tabbal.

The concert is part of the Music at the DIA series sponsored by the Creative Arts Collective. For more information phone 832-2730.

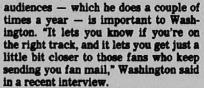

SUPERSTAR saxophonist Grover Washington Jr. is scheduled for two shows Tuesday, Oct. 30, at the Premier Center, 33970 Van Dyke, Sterling Heights.

With a new album called "Inside Moves," Washington returns to the Motor City area to do some promoting of the LP.

Although of superstar status since his 1974 "Mister Magic" album (at least six albums since then have sold in excess of 500,000 copies), Washington is one of the nice men in contemporary music.

Since becoming a monster success in the music business, he's been working on a doctorate in composition and producing the group Pieces of a Dream, the trio that often opens his shows.

But getting back in front of concert

(R,W,G-5C)*7C

Studying composition has been important in his development. Although he left hometown Buffalo to travel with the Four Clefs at age 16 and has worked with many top names in jazz and pop music since, Washington admits he still has much to learn. "Studying composition is like taking the blinders off," he said.

He thinks his musical studies will only bring about slight changes in his successful musical style, but he defers to his fans, saying they will have to judge that.

As always, he prefers his sax do the talking for him. "The music will speak for itself," he said.

For more information, call 978-3450.

ALSO COMING up is a stop by the King's Singers from England, who will appear at 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 18, at Orchestra Hall in Detroit.

The popular group that always provides outstanding vocal entertainment will be brought back to Orchestra Hall by Brethern Productions. This will be the third concert by the group in Detroit. Kathy Fischer of Brethern Productions said the previous two concerts were sold out. "This concert looks like it's headed that way, too," she said.

The best movies on TV are those shown uncut and without interruption - that's for sure.

Canada's CBET Ch. 9 comes closest, airing most movies in their entirety and with a minimum of commercial interference. The movies seldom are new or even recent, but purists take heart knowing they are at least intact.

Occasionally public TV, Ch. 56, opens its vaults and runs a movie marathon, giving air time to classic films that remain stashed away 111 months out of the year. These broadcasts are "commercial-free," too, although countless interruptions for pledge breaks more than compensate for the lack of traditional sponsors.

There can be no disagreement that there's no substitute short of cable for movies-on-TV fans who want their motion pictures screened in totality.

Yet there's another form of movie entertainment - the antithesis of uncut, uninterrupted movies - that's disappearing from the scene. It is an art form nonetheless, and, in a way, it's a shame that it's becoming a thing of the past.

That's the TV movie host.

BILL KENNEDY, Sonny Eliot, Dean Miller, Bob Hynes, Rita Bell, Conrad Patrick, Mary Morgan, Sir Graves, The Ghoul, Morgus, Svengoolie, Jim Harper, Fred Merle and others all have hosted TV movies with varying degrees of success

the presentation of movies on TV. More often, at their worst, they detracted from the movie and frequently turned viewing of a favorite film into a torturous experience.

How many times, for instance, could one tune in to "The Bride of Frankenstein" for all the right reasons - the marvelous performances, sets, musical score - only to be sidetracked by Morgus or Sir Graves in another inane comedy sketch?

On the other hand, if it weren't for the format of a Sir Graves program, "The Bride of Frankenstein" might remain buried in another of those movie vaults

By the same token you'll note that when Rita Bell's "Prize Movie" grew stale, it was retired - along with the movies it supported.

1st movement has everything

By Neil Galanter special writer

It's quite an orchestra for a community of its size. That's the impression I got after hearing the opening concert of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's 1984-85 season Sunday.

Music director and conductor Johan van der Merwe programmed the after-noon to include: Mozart's delightful Overture to "The Magic Flute," Schumann's Piano Concerto in A Minor and Sibelius' Symphony No. 5 in E Flat Major.

Brazilian pianist Caio Pagano was soloist in the Schumann Concerto. Pagano always played with a great amount of conviction and thought but at times with a touch too much force for the sunny aspect of this piece.

Especially exciting was Pagano's interpretation of the first movement. It had everything. Where drama was nec-essary, he gave it. Where poetry was needed, he fulfilled that requirement as well.

INTERESTING PEDAL effects combined with an excellent contrast of color made the cadenza the highlight of the performance. The second and third movements were also enjoyable, al-though at times Pagano tended to overemphasize the accents in the score. The orchestra was less successful in the role of accompanist. It had trouble keeping with the piano all the time, which is understandable, as this piano and orchestral writing is among the hardest of all concerti.

The interplay between the oboe and piano and between the clarinet and pi-ano was very admirable, and on the whole the concerto was effectively pleasant and sunny.

review

After intermission Van der Merwe chose quite an ambitious vehicle to close the program. The Sibelius Symphony No. 5 was completed in December of 1915. At first the composer was dissatisfied with it and made several revisions. A third and final version of the piece was finally completed in 1919, and it is that version that we hear today

The Sibelius was an excellent choice because it gave the program balance.

Van der Merwe drew detailed ensemble playing from the woodwinds, which was intensely stimulating, and the brass section helped provide thrilling and viscerally exciting climaxes throughout the score.

DURING THE sweet and loving melodies of the slow movement, the woodwinds played with extreme agility, this time with a fine balance among the pizzicati in the string section. The only problem with the string section throughout the concert was its trouble in maintaining consistent "in-tune" playing.

A most spirited and vivacious finale brought the concert to a rousing finish.

The Plymouth Symphony proved it-self to be an orchestra with a great deal of potential and accomplishment. There is a certain amount of growing and polishing to be done and for sure, this will become evident in time. For now, it is a fine credit to the communi-ty of Plymouth and I'd enerd a Surday ty of Plymouth and I'd spend a Sunday afternoon hearing the orchestra any-m.

If you're looking for a real winner, put your money on the Garden City Civic Theatre's recent production of Frank Loesser's venerable musical, "Guys and Dolls." It's a sure thing. Sub-titled "A Musical Fable of Broadway," and based on a story by Damon Runyon, the strength of "Guys and Dolls" lies not with its age-old plot (essentially, boy meets girl, boy loses girl, boy gets girl) but with its music and that is a substantial strength, indeed.

From its delightful, first-act number, "Fugue for Tinhorns" ("I've got the horse right here. His name is Paul Revere."), to its rousing finale, "Guys and Dolls," this is first-rate music that entertains. It may make you smile. It may make you cry. But it will never make you look at your wristwatch. The large cast, directed by Michael music, and most of the cast is excellent all-around. A few performers are outstanding, however, and deserve special mention.

BEGIN WITH Dave Tucker, who does more than nicely as the irrepressi-ble Nicely-Nicely Johnson. Dressed in pink trousers, red suspenders and a necktie you'll not soon forget, Tucker's Nicely-Nicely exhibits just the right amount of offhanded charm and lovable prissiness.

In the role originated on Broadway by Stubby Kaye, Tucker delivers his musical numbers with such enthusiasm and style that nobody seems to mind in the least that he's not a particularly gifted singer.

Kirk Krekeler appears to be enjoying himself thoroughly as Nathan Detroit, the quintessential Broadway tinhorn. In portraying "good old reliable Nathan," Krekeler is appropriately slick, charm-ing, fast-talking and also rakishly hand-some. In addition, he possesses a very nice singing voice.

In other roles, David Covach as Sky Masterson, Mark Byars as Harry the Horse, Carl Dumas as Big Julie from Chicago, Jeff Weber as Rusty Charlie and Jeff Adler as Benny Southstreet work together beautifully. Watching them portray Runyon's rowdy "street people" is great fun. Adler turns in an especially deft performance. If a best-of-the-best had to be chosen among this highly skilled group of per-formers, Micki Carden as Adelaide would emerge the winner. Carden is a gifted singer (her rendition of "Adelaide's Lament" is downright memorable) and a delightful comic. She can absolutely mesmerize an audience, and her brassy, lovable, funny-sad portrayal of Adelaide is nothing short of superb.

(R,W,G-7C)+9C

MAINTAINING her "Noo Yawk" accent throughout the play (something no one else seems quite able or willing to do), she delivers all her lines with such spontaneity and ease that they don't seem to be lines at all.

Artist serious about fun art

By Mary Klemic staff writer

There's a wizard and an opera singer on Barbara Wilkie's table, strange clay figures with expressions and poses that make one smile.

Wilkie herself smiles a lot, whether she's talking about those figures that she sculpted or about her other art. But make no mistake: the Redford resident is serious about her artwork.

'I want to know that I'll be able to do this all my life," Wilkie said "That to me would be outstanding. That to me would be success.

"This is my job, this is not a hobby."

WILKIE IS one of the artists who will participate in the sixth annual fall "Craft Gallery" show, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 28. Eighty-five displays of folk art and fine art will be featured.

The show will take place at Roma Hall, 32550 Cherry Hill, between Merriman and Venoy in Garden City. Admission is $1, free for children under 12. Three prizes -a wildlife pen and ink work, a quilt and a Halloween centerpiece - will be given away.

Wilkie also paints oils and makes what she describes as "earthy" pottery. All of her sculpture is made from clay and heated at 2,300 degrees Fahrenheit. The price range of her work is $1 to $40.

"The figures I call characters. I think they are comical," Wilkie said. "I don't think they should be taken seriously. People sometimes wonder if I'm serious, they don't know how to handle WILKIE DOESN'T sketch her characters first, but rather does what she calls "hands-on" work with e clay. The figures come from her magination.

"I try to make things I would want to have," she said. "Those are my standards.

"You can accumulate a lot of stuff," Wilkie adds with a laugh.

The artist may photograph the model and work from that when she paints her oil portraits. Whatever she does, Wilkie doesn't start another project until she finishes the first.

Barbara Wilkie of Redford is serious about her many artistic activities but her art shows a sense of humor.

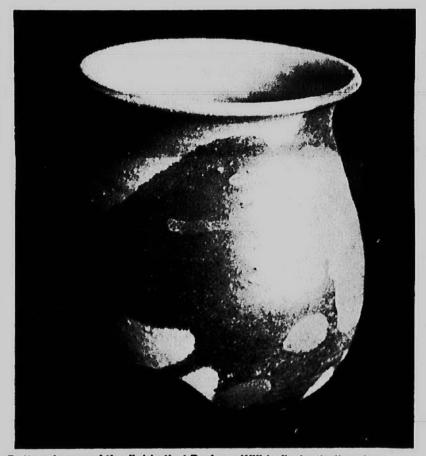

YOU CAN get an idea how serious the artist is about her work from her advice to would-be sculptors.

"Don't go into it if you don't like spending a lot of time by yourself," Wilkie said. "And I would strongly advise that you know the dangers of the chemicals you're working with. To make my glazes, I use scales, mortars and pestles. There are formulas. I stand there and think, 'Am I a chem-

This is another in a series of lessons

By David Messing special writer

Mediocrity - I'll tell you what mediocrity is; it's my diet of only one week that came to a sudden halt when I ran into an unexpected blueberry pie special at a restaurant. The waitress even tried to talk me out of it.

Mediocrity is the service I got my first week in the hospital before my back surgery. After 5 days of not aksing for a thing I finally asked a nurse for a popsicle and she said, "I'm too busy to be running for popsicles." But then again what should I expect for $350 a day, right?

You talk about mediocrity, you ought to see me at the health club. I just kind of float amongst these muscle men with sweated shirts. With grunts and snorts and sometimes groans they pump iron till their muscles bulge and their veins look like garden hoses. Oh yes, it's easy to spot me. I'm the one

artifacts

whose sweatsuit never knew sweat. And even though my wife took pride in perfectly matching the blue stripe on my tennis shoes to the color of my sweatsuit, I don't think anyone there cares.

WELL, ON THE weight machines it really bugs me the way these muscle guys flick about a hundred pounds onto the weight I had just used with considerable effort. So maybe I'm mediocre on the weights and maybe a minute and a half on the treadmill' isn't my best effort. Sure I just like to float in the pool and the sauna burns my nose hairs. But I am pretty awesome in the whirlpool. I can stay in there till I am about par-boiled. But I hate to brag.

Well if you haven't noticed after a year and a half of Artifacts, I am fascinated with the meanings of words. Learning the meanings of words takes them out of the common place and gives them depth and richness. Here is a word that is rich with meaning mediocre. Medi, meaning "half way" and ocris, meaning "stony mountain" or literally, "halfway up the mountain"

So what does mediocrity have to do with art? Well it shouldn't have any part of an artist's approach to his par-ticular art, but sad to say it often does. The accomplished artist can go through the motions and pull off a pretty decent work, but still it may only be halfway up the mountain to his best work. I feel that an artist who is capable of better work but slips into medicrity is simply unchallenged. Mediocrity is a mental and spiritual dullness that occupies the unchallenged artist. It is the boredom, often produced from the security of no risk situations. Mediocrity is usually the product of repetitious busy work. I fear mediocrity and boredom because anyone who gives in to them seeks entertainment rather than creativity. .

BEFORE I GO on, let me, as Howard Cosell would say, "re-it-erate". By the artist being unchallenged, I mean many artists draw only those particular subjects in which they do best. One award-winning still life artist said to me, "Gee, I'm thrilled to win but you know I couldn't paint my dog if my life depended on it."

After all, the many subtle curves and ruffles of an iris couldn't be much less critical than the features of an animal. It is those very subjects that do give us trouble that should challenge us the most. It is in this no-risk artwork that boredom can settle, and it is most always noticeable in the work. I also mentioned repetitious busy work can produce mediocre results.

Well, I remember this hamburger chain that used this slogan: "We make over a million hamburgers a week . . one at a time." So it is your mental and spiritual dullness that causes mediocrity and not the repetitious aspect of your art

And finally, what do I mean by the term seeking entertainment rather than creativity? Well, who more than the artist knows if he or she is halfway up the mountain. Without the push upward you come to a standstill. And it gets a little boring standing still on the side of a mountain. So just about any diversion seems entertaining and you ultimately quit in your attempts for excellence.

Let me introduce you to mediocrity's super brother which is excellence. Yes, brothers; kind of alike but quite different. One merely does the job and the other does it with purpose and spirit.

SOMETIMES I will say to a student concerning their artwork, "Gee this doesn't look good in this area," and I am surprised at their comment. "Oh, this is for my school/club/church etc. But of course it matters. You are creating a visual image that may be around a long time, regardless of whether you signed it or not.

If you don't do your best then you are not only short changing your customer but misrepresenting yourself. It doesn't matter whether you are paid a little or nothing at all. You have to do your best because it represents your total ability. Imagine you cheat someone in business. Everytime you happen to run into that person you will instantly recall all of the guilt you have brought on yourself.

This is not unlike your artwork that is mediocre. Everytime your C- work gets turned over, it makes you want to give excuses justifying its mediocre ex-istence. All of this time spent in justification would perhaps be better time spent in the pursuit of excellence. Now excellence is, of course, relative. Excellence from the teacher is much different than excellence of the student.

Since many of your customers are not critics in art they are pleased with most of what you do. So whether you are a teacher or student your product must be a good example of your particular level of excellence. Although the word excellence implies superiority as in better than anyone's artwork, it also is defined by the word virtue.

VIRTUE, AMONG its many definitions is noted as meaning strength. Perhaps strength is very helpful for my point. When you are safe within your favorite medium and subject, it may perhaps require little of yourself. The less of yourself the weaker your work will become.

No, I am not saying you must use every media and subject to be happy. But what I am saying, is that you must put one hundred of your mind, spirit and body into every work you create. If not, you cheat your viewers mis-represent your ability and worst of all run the risk of boredom and ultimate failure. So, if you feel you're stuck halfway up the mountain then shake yourself and charge upward toward relative excellence.

Superinsulation saves money on energy

How would you like to own a home with an annual utility bill of only $130? Sound too good to be true?

As unbelievable as it may seem, that low figure is correct - the home happens to be a "superinsulated, double wall construction" house.

A house of this type is currently being built in Brighton by Paul Levine and Jeffrey Tapper, partners in Grana-da Homes Inc. of West Bloomfield.

This 1,300-square-foot colonial in Fairway Trails sub has three bedrooms, bath and a half and a two car garage.

The partners hope it will be a model for many more energy efficient houses. This method of superinsulation allows homeowners to reduce their heating costs - usually by 80 to 90 percent of what it would be in homes without it," Levine explained.

According to Robert Oliver, spokesman for the Department of Energy in Washington, D.C., Levine's claim is legitimate.

"We have sponsored studies on the superinsulated homes . . . and there are cases where the comparative utility costs are only 10 percent of what they might otherwise be," said Oliver.

In addition, a study of 192 different methods of home energy conservation at the University of California/Berkelev revealed that this was the most cost-effective way to construct an energy-efficient house.

THE CONCEPT of superinsulation - regular insulation installed at several times the normal thickness, then wrapped with an air vapor barrier to make it airtight — Saskatchewan, Canada.

It then spread to Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin about five years ago, and is just gaining interest in Michigan, said Levine.

To learn about the process, he and his associates attended training in Alpena, at Universal Energy Services, the company which now acts as adviser on the building of the new model home.

The construction of a superinsulated home involves first building a double 2by-4 outside wall on the house. The walls are then filled with a minimum of R-40 fiberglas insulation ("R" represents the resistance to heat loss, and the average home has an R-11 insulation number).

Basement walls have a minimum of R-19 fiberglas, and ceilings have an R-60 minimum insulation.

After the house is insulated, the outside is wrapped with Tyvek, a material which reduces air infiltration by 30 percent, and the interior is wrapped with Tu-tuf, which keeps heat and humidity inside the home.

The end result, said Levine, is a thermos effect - the inside temperature of the home remains constant, despite outside weather factors. The home is cool in the summer and warm in the winter, he said.

ACCORDING to Oliver, this airtight construction can cause problems with air quality if appropriate measures aren't taken to control airflow.

"You have to be careful, make sure the home has adequate ventilation," he began in explained, "especially if the house utilizes gas power."

Levine has taken the necessary steps to insure appropriate ventilation, said Oliver, with the installation of an "airto-air heat exchanger," which removes old air and its moisture content from the home and replaces it with fresh air. This machine not only provides air circulation in the home, but also preserves and transfers about 80 percent of the heat in the old air to the new air. In addition to the air to heat exchanger. Levine also uses all electric heat, so there is no problem with gas fumes in the home.

The result of the exchanger and electric heat is a climate controlled home. "There is very little air infiltration, and you don't get the drafts you might in a normal house," Oliver explained. The superinsulated home is just generally more comfortable." Another attraction of the homes is the price of the construction - superinsulation adds only 5 to 7 percent to the total cost of building the house.

"On an average sized house, superinsulation would only cost about $3,000 extra." Levine said.

"At that price, it's worth the extra money, because you get back a return on your investment in only a few years," he added.

Oliver agreed, saying the superinsulated house could be very economically attractive if the added costs were kept low enough.

IN ADDITION to staying within affordable range of homes with normal insulation, the superinsulated house also looks like the rest of the homes on the block, said Levine. "These are not odd looking houses," he explained. "They can be built to a variety of specifications."

Although it's really not economically feasible to remodel old homes using this new method, Levine believes the tributes of the superinsulated home will make it the "standard house of the future."

"In building the home this way in the first place, the buyer is saving right from the start," he said.

"Quality and energy efficiency are built right into the house, you don't have to backtrack and add something on later."

Oliver agreed that this method could be very popular in the future, especially if costs are kept down and the public is made more aware about the existence of superinsulation.

In an attempt to educate the public, Levine, one of only three builders in the state currently building the new energy homes, participated in the recent Homearama, where the principles of the house were demonstrated. He has already had over 300 inquiries about the project.

He also reported that Detroit Edison and Owens Corning are endorsing the project, keeping track of energy consumption and conservation within the new home.

It is only a matter of time, he believes, before these "state of the art" homes are built everywhere.

"You get a maximum benefit, with a

Percussionists hold convention

Detroit Symphony Orchestra principal percussionist, Robert Pangborn and Salvatore Rabbio, prinicpal timpanist, will be among the featured clinicians at the 1984 Percussive Arts Society International Conference (PASIC).

It will be held Nov. 1-4 on the campus of the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Fifteen hundred jazz and rock drummers, symphonic percussionists, solo artists, and percussion ensembles from as far away as Japan and Scandinavia will perform concerts and present clinics.

The Percussive Arts Society is a worldwide organization founded in 1961. It promotes musical knowledge, encompassing the young percussion student, the teacher and the performer.

The PASIC convention will feature displays by more than 100 manufacturers, publishers and artisans from around the world.

DR. MICHAEL UDOW, professor of percussion at the School of Music of the University of Michigan, and host of the convention, has arranged for clinics and performances featuring drum set, orchestral percussion, various ensembles, ethnic percussion and much more.

Pangborn, Bloomfield Township resident, will give an hour-long Orchestral Percussion Clinic at 10 a.m. Friday. Before joining the Detroit Symphony orchestra in 1964, he was timpanist with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, mallet percussionist with the timpanist/percussionist with the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra in New York City.

Rabbio, who lives in Farmington Hills, will give a Timpani Clinic at 1 p.m. Friday. He has been principal timpanist with the Detroit Symphony Orchetra since 1958, has performed with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Boston Percussion Ensemble and was a soloist with the Boston Pops.

He directs the percussion activities at Wayne State University and has been a visiting lecturer at University of Michgan summer sessions. Among the performing groups will be the Interlochen Arts Academy Percussion Ensemsubstantial payback," he said. "There's no reason not to have the benefit of reduced energy bills."

The house is scheduled to be completed within the next two months, but the builder suggests visiting while it is still under construction to see the superinsulation process.

Anyone interested in seeing the new home can attend scheduled open-houses on Saturdays and Sundays between noon and 6 p.m., or call Levine for a private appointment.

The new home is at 702 Fairway Trails Drive, in Fairway Trails subdivision. Call Levine at 855-2646 for more information, or to schedule viewing appointments.

Bag t	he ger	aniums	inp	lasti	(
			In the second second second second

It is difficult to think that winter will be coming. The leaves are almost all failen. Just remember the enjoyment of their beauty was an early payment for raking and bagging them, now.

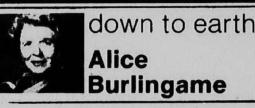

This calendar cycle puts us in the mood to repot our indoor plants. I would advise that you buy bag of humus for this purpose. You will find that many potted plants need shifting to larger containers.

NEVER repot a plant in the same or larger container which has not been washed out with warm water, plus Clorox or something like it to assure a clean receptacle.

An ideal way to do this job is with a card table. covered with several layers of newspaper, and a large bucket for rinsing out dusty pots and containers to be re-used. A scrub brush makes the job easy and if you plan to circulate in society, wear rubber gloves.

IT IS always a temptation to dig up a few geraniums and bring them in for some enjoyment. You can hold them over for another year if you prune them down after the last flower. I will admit they aren't too beautiful as the season progresses, but you can hold them over.

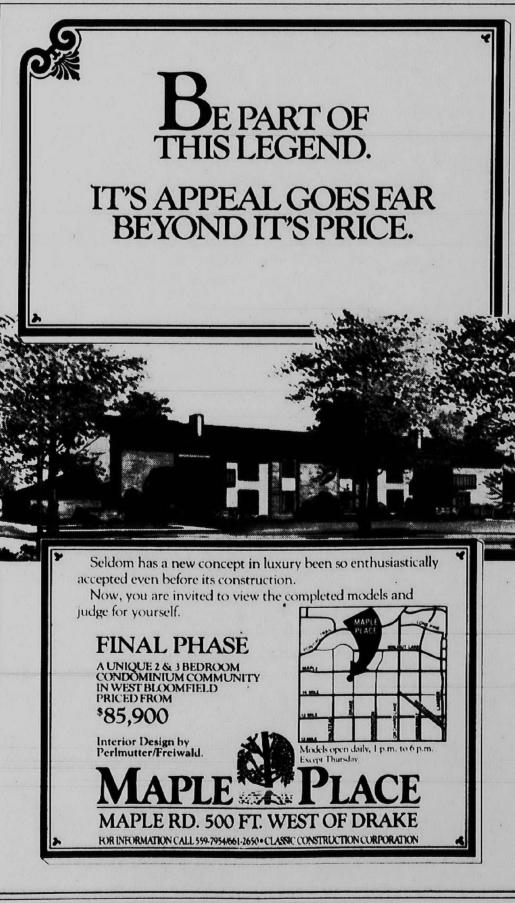

Today I heard of a new idea passed on by Ann Bryant who has had superb results by the following

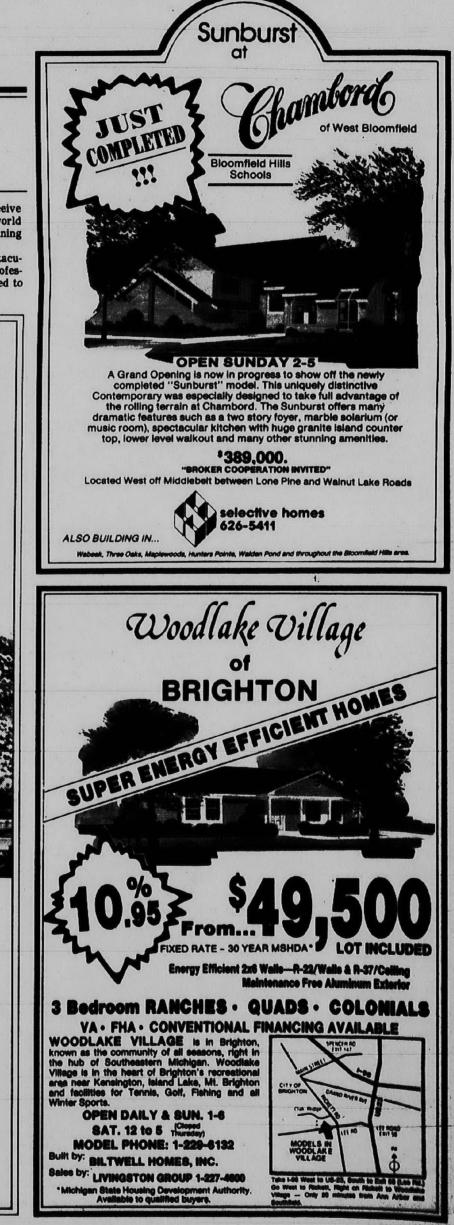

I am looking forward to a trip to the National Garden Writers Meeting in Anaheim, Calif. The wheelers and dealers will be there to sell their garden wares. The book sellers will be in evidence. We will visit and observe the flowers and vegetables of "tomorrow."

We will see seed farms which have the splendor of a beautiful Roman striped gown of many colors against a mountainous backdrop. We will receive instruction from the pruning artists of Disneyworld who create spectacular animals with their pruning shears.

There will be many gardens to visist of spectacular design on private estates. What a joyful profession it is to be a garden writer with eyes tuned to the glory of nature.

method of preserving her beautiful summer gerant ums

First secure a large dark colored plastic bags and gingerly lift the gernaiums up with a shovel, shake the dirt off the plant and remove any existing blooms. You can drop into it at least 12 plants into the bag. Now close the bag tightly and place in a storage area which is not heated, but not cold enough to freeze the contents.

In early spring you may wish to pot them up, provide a good meal of fertilizer and, by the way, cut down the total height and remove any leaves that look "weary."

Give them good soil, some fertilizer, and endearing words, and soon you will have fine plants for the next season, as reported by Ann Bryant.

I HAVE been debating about using straw in our courtyard at the end of the season, but I question who knows when it is the end of the season. I can just visualize rodents and squirrels enjoying the straw-covered beds. I guess I'll hold that idea in the question box.

Orchestra holds open rehearsals

For the first time since 1976-77 season, the De-troit Symphony Orchestra will hold a series of open rehearsals during the 1984-85 season.

Offered to students in grades 7-12, community groups, college students and senior citizens, two morning and two afternoon open rehearsals will take place in Ford Auditorium.

An important component in the Detroit Symphony's education and outreach program, open rehearsals offer students an opportunity to view the working process of a full symphony orchestra. Those attending will see the interactions of worldclass conductors, guest soloists and orchestra members, and at the same time learn what makes up a successful concert performance.

Groups interested in attending open rehearsals may contact Cecile Keith, Detroit Symphony edu-cation coordinator, at 567-9000. General admission tickets, $2, can be purchased through the Ford Auditorium box office. Special group discounts are also available.

Group leaders should send a letter listing their name, address, telephone number, name of group and number of persons wishing to attend a selected Open Rehearsal, along with a check for the total number of tickets at $2 each to: Open Rehearsals Detroit Symphony Orchestra Ford Auditorium Detroit 48226.

Tickets will be mailed out after payment is received for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday Jan. 16; 10 a.m. Thursday, March 14; or 10 a.m. Thursday, April 25. Specify date desired.
