Parade on tap; liability settled

By Kevin Brown staff writer

The Memorial Day Parade, once in jeopardy due to a question of insurance liability risk, is on.

Plymouth city comissioners approved the sponsorship of the parade by the VFW and American Legion at the Tuesday commission meeting This measure allows the city to cover the parade under its $10 million insurance umbrella.

The VFW Mayflower-Lt. Gamble Post 6695 has in recent years organized the parade along with American Legion Passage-Gayde Post 391. But when the city was directed by its insurance carrier to ask the VFW to sign a waiver absolving Plymouth of hability responsibility, the VFW refused citing financial risk - putting the parade in question.

THE CITY request was sparked by a situation in Michigan in which liability insurance has become increasingly difficult to obtain, explained Carol Stone, insurance risk manager for the city.

While accepting insurance liability for the Memorial Day Parade, the measure approved by the city commission states that the city also accepts liability for 45 other special events scheduled throughout the year. That resolution states that all such events approved by the city commission will be sponsored by the

The resolution further stipulates that approval will be revoked and the event canceled if the guidelines established by (Michigan Municipal) Risk Management and the city's special event committee are not adhered to," Stone wrote.

Traditionally, Memorial Day ceremonies in Kellogg Park include laying a floral wreath, playing "Taps," a rifle volley, presenting the colors, recitation of "In Flanders Field," and sometimes a guest

The parade will begin at Central Middle School and end up at Kellogg Park for the ceremonies.

MEANWHILE, the Plymouth Jaycees Fourth of July fireworks display, also considered in jeopardy due to a similar insurance liability problem, should take place after all, said Charles Lowe Jr., a Jaycees spokesman.

Lowe said Jaycees' costs to insure the fireworks display in Plymouth Township Park, formerly an estimated $5,000, should drop to "under $1,000" for $1 million in liability insurance coverage.

Lowe said he and Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen have agreed to a plan in which the township would assume additional liability through the township insurance carrier - a plan yet to be approved by the township.

Lowe said the Jaycees still are seeking donations to fund both the fireworks display and the Fourth of July parade in Plymouth. According to the resolution approved by the city, parade liability is covered by the city's insurance carrier.

Marvin and Helen Mettetal talk about the airport started by his father in 1939.

Looking up!

Couple makes business at Mettetal Airport fly

By Kevin Brown staff writer

It gets pretty quiet at Mettetal Airport on a rainy weekday after-

Even the robins are groundbound pecking for worms on runway grass near the low-slung beige building that houses TV-news helicopters, mechanical work and the small office from where Marvin and Helen Mettetal run the 47year-old airport

But a flight school, flying clubs and light-freight hauling, coupled with business and pleasure aircraft traffic can push arrivals and departures to as many as 180 per day.

And Marvin Mettetal said that while the airport is only half as busy as it was in the late 1960s, its because of the danger of them peak years, business should grow thanks to development in the I-275 corridor

Heading east on Joy Road, one spots the airport just east of Lilley. The Braniff Flying Club started the airport," Mettetal recalls, as his father who owned a farm at the site "got tired of farming" and had runways graded in 1939.

THE FLIGHT school geared up to train a new crop of aviators at the onset of World War II, flight clubs flourished, and the airport

During the war, the airport also was used for storage of observation aircraft manufactured by the Stinson Co. near Detroit.

"They couldn't keep them there blowing up (by foreign enemies)." Mettetal recalls. "They had them stacked up all over the place. When the war ended, we had 140 of them. They flew them all out in a couple Flight school business kept the airport busy after the war.

"We had the biggest flight school in Michigan in the '60s," Mettetal said, adding the airport was one of the busiest in the state then. "It was just the coming and going of small business aircraft, which is beginning to come back now.

Mettetal said that when several Plymouth companies relocated in the early 1970s, airport business

"I tried like hell to sell it for years," Mettetal said. Some airport business was lost due to insurance requirements specifying a 3,600foot runway length.

But with future growth indicated area construction is up and Mettetal said American Yazaki has asked Canton Township to allow lengthening the runway - Mettetal said he's not trying to sell the property any more.

Mettetal said he hopes to lengthen the runway and use a section of land at the corner of Joy and Lilley, depending on approval of state government.

Rest stop arrests continue

By Diane Gale staff writer

Michigan State Police arrested 20 men in a recent crackdown on alleged homosexual activities at I-275 rest stops in Canton and Van Buren

"They go from rest area to rest area," said Lt. John Shewell of the Ypsilanti State Police post. The arrests were made in response to complaints from cleaning crews and people using the rest stops, he said.

Public telephones at the rest stops 'are ringing off the hook." Shewell said, adding that callers often arrange to meet at other locations.

Twelve of the men were arrested on the evening and morning of May 15 and 16 by officers from the Ypsilanti State Police post.

The 12 men, who have not yet been arraigned, are a 26-year-old Canton salesman a 40-year-old Westl salesman, a 33-year-old Westland data processor, a 41-year-old Troy company manager, a 53-year-old Van Wert, Ohio, oral surgeon, a 29year-old Ann Arbor salesman, a 55vear-old Melvindale dispatcher, a 43-year-old Adrian musician, a 35 year-old Ann Arbor company supervisor, a 42-year-old Romulus company supervisor, a 41-year-old Paw Paw lineman, and a 46-year-old Northville draftsman.

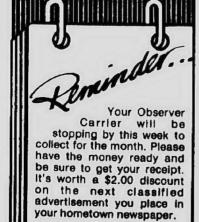

THE MEN were arrested on charges of disorderly person and lewd or obscene conduct in a public place, Shewell said.

The charge is a misdemeanor which carries a maximum 90 days in jail and a $500 fine. State Police have requested warrants from the Wayne County Prosecutor's office.

During a separate raid on April 21 another eight men were arrested, including three in Canton. They are Mark S. Campbell, 38, an unemployed Wayne resident and James E. Michael, 28, a salesperson who lives in Southfield. Both were arraigned in Plymouth's 35th District Court on charges of gross indecency between two males, which is a felony that carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison.

HE GARBAGE wasn't spun into a cocoon of gold but some discards earlier this year did result in a cocoon

One day last February Andy Newland's mother told him to throw some eggs out in the woods because they were getting old. He placed the eggs down and later on he and his brother went to check on them to see if anything had eaten them

When Andy and his brother went back they discovered a cocoon on a tree limb. They ran to a garage to get a tool and a coffee can. Armed with a putty knife, they returned to the cocoon.

When they took the cocoon to their mother, she was worried about keeping it with their new puppy so she fixed up an aquarium. Andy brought it to school the next day to show his third-grade class at Isbister Elementary School, which was studying na-

The aquarium was placed on a window ledge to get some sun, and to be watched.

The class had almost forgotten it when at 10:15 a.m. on May 6 Paul Tebben noticed something moving under its cocoon. "Sure enough, it was on its way out," says Kathy Harends, teacher.

'He had been working all this time and we had been ignoring him. We were all so excited.'

The students got a book from the library and discovered the life which just left the cocoon was a Cerepia moth - the largest moth in the eastern North American states.

"We can't wait to learn more about him. We all feel like parents, and are anxious to do the right thing

He enters the office holding a small part of a troublesome toilet he's been fixing, as "The Young and the Restless" plays on a portable TV. The airport owner, who contracted flight operations to a private firm in the early '70s, now performs general maintenance.

Recently, a new heating system was installed in the hangars and taxiways were resurfaced. Mettetal said both should last "about 20 years.

Typically, planes leaving Mettetal Airport fly to cities 200 to 300 miles away - Cincinnati or Columbus, Ohio, West Virginia,

The Mettetals are proud of the airport safety record - no one has ever been killed in a plane crash. But there have been a few close calls. Mettetal said that years ago, several attorneys and their hunting dogs bound for Point Pelee, Ontario, suffered spinal compression when their plane hit the runway hard due to too much weight centered in the plane's tail section.

In 1970, an airport flight path was shifted when more than 200 petition signatures were collected from homeowners complaining of noise from aircraft. The Mettetals say they've only received one complaint in the last five to six years.

The office door opens, and a pilot steps out of the drizzle to chat with the couple. He says something that makes them laugh. Several pilots have been using the airport for years, Mettetal said.

Once-forgotten delegate now wooed by politicans

staff writer

They have been known as the unsung heroes of party politics.

The organizers of neighborhood fund-raisers and kaffee klatsches, they are elected officials, yet few know that outside of their neighbors.

Yet, the influence that Republican precinct delegates carry is becoming heightened in Michigan these days with changes in the political process now emphasizing the "grassroots."

Evidence of that has become apparent in recent months with numerous visits to Michigan communities by U.S. presidential hopefuls for

ON TUESDAY at 4 p.m., a filing deadline will assure who will be listed as a precinct delegate candidate on the state's Aug. 5 primary ballot. Nominating petitions, signed by 15 registered voters, are due at county election bureaus.

At least among Republican voters, the process is an important first step toward the 1988 presidential contest. This process of selecting delegates has not been used by either party since 1972, and was changed because of dissatisfaction in the outcome of the 1983 GOP Michigan primary, said state party chairman Spencer Abraham in a press release.

What the rule changes will mean is that delegates elected in August will have a direct influence on the party's presidential choice in 1988 because they select the national convention delegates, explained state GOP spokesperson Dennis Petros-

During presidential races in the 1970s, those delegates were selected "as a result of a percentage of the vote in the presidential primary.

But when the state Legislature abolished presidential primaries in Michigan in 1983, we opted to return That way they know how things to the system that was in place up to means that presidential hopefuls will born, Ron Stockton, who has taught have to reach Michigan early in the campaign to affect enough "like-minded" delegates to send to the state convention.

And that's already happened in Michigan.

One week ago, national TV evangelist Pat Robertson held a GOP rally in Detroit's Cobo Hall to supposedly "test the waters" for his own presidential attempt while just two weeks ago New York Congressman Jack Kemp and the son of vice president George Bush both attended a suburban Canton Township rally to plump for supporters.

Pat Wierzbicki, director of the GOP Headquarters in Oakland County, agreed

The whole process has just been moved up two years. Normally, recruiting precinct delegates would have started in January or February 1988. But Michigan is now the first,' she said in explaining the interest among presidential hopefuls.

WIERZBICKI SAID there's been a noticeable increase in inquiries into becoming delegates in the last few

And she attributes it to the early visits by presidential hopefuls. Along with that has been lobbying from such groups as the Fund for American's Future and the Michigan Opportunity Society, both of which already have full-time field workers and administrators working in Mich-

In Oakland County, she said, there are 547 precincts, and most delegates are recruited by city-township directors acting as liaisons to the county organizers and the 49 communities in Oakland County.

Wierzbicki said activity at the precinct level is tantamount to "earning your stripes" in the party structure and seeking elective office. "Starting at the grassroots and working up. work and how to run a campaign."

A political science professor with ACCORDING TO Petroskey, this the University of Michigan - Dearpresidential delegate selection, says this process of selecting delegates is one way to get the effect of a "closed primary" where "Democrats vote for Democrats and Republicans vote for Repulicans."

HE GAVE as an example the political catastrophe of the 1972 Michigan primary when Democrat George Wallace was staunchly opposed by organized Democrats yet was carried in the Democratic primary because of Republican votes.

According to Stockton, the change in the selection process has meant that potential presidential hopefuls will have to work hard at organizing and winning support at the grassroots or precinct level, and rely less on last-minute media manipula-

In the Democratic Primary this August, precinct delegates will also be selected, but the National Democratic Party Committee's rules of 1984 call for a different method of selecting final presidential convention delegates. The Democratic Party selected the caucus structure for its presidential primaries.

Those who are selected from the Democratic ballot this August will serve as delegates to an upcoming county convention and subsequent state convention to select the party's nominees to local offices like secretary of state, attorney general, Michigan Supreme Court, and university boards and the State Board of Edu-

BUT IN 1988 there will be a different plan for selecting delegates to the national presidential convention, said Democratic state chairperson

"Statewide 5-10,000 are selected. They're still our grassroots contact with the public at large."

Area attorneys in race for circuit judgeships

By Teri Banas staff writer

Three western Wayne County attorneys have joined the race for Wayne County Circuit Court.

They are: James P. Ryan of Canton Township, Livonia attorney and former Redford Township Supervisor Patrick J. McDonald and Livonia Magistrate Sean P. Kavanagh.

The candidates are seeking vacancies caused by retirments of incumbent judges. In the August primary, voters will pick six candidates to appear on the November ballot. Three judges will be elected in November.

Ryan, 35, is making his first bid for elective office. A resident of Canton Township's Mayfair Subdivision, he is a law partner with the Plymouth firm of Millar, Weinberg, Necker, Johnson, Wagern and Clark.

years and worked for the firm since neys in Michigan who drafted prograduating from Wayne State University Law School.

"I think the court could use me. I have strong listening and writing skills and I'm ready," said Ryan, a 1969 graduate of Livonia's Bentley High School.

RYAN SAID his work in a general law practice has prepared him for the docket in Wayne County.

"The position itself has a caseload that works out to be 49 percent in family-law related issues, 35 percent in general civil cases like auto accidents and lawsuits, 5 percent in appeals from the district courts and state agencies and only 6 percent in criminal law," he said.

Ryan has worked extensively with the Michigan State Bar Association, particularly with its Family Law Council, and as a member of its Friend of the Court Form Committee and the bar's Plain English Committee.

As a member of the Family Law He has been an attorney nine Council, Ryan was one of two attorposed legislation rewriting Michigan's laws on spouse abuse. The work was later introduced by Lansing state Rep. Debbie Stabenow and adopted by the Legislature in 1978 with changes following in 1979 and

He is a member of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association and the Suburban Bar Association of Western Wayne County.

RYAN, WHOSE name is similar to that of a currently serving Wayne County Circuit judge, said he's not related to anyone who has served in public office.

"I'm not just running on my name but because I think I'm qualified," he said. "But I'm not naive. In my case people will benefit from it because I am qualified."

Kavanagh, a Livonia resident and Redford Township native, has been employed with Livonia attorney John Carney for 2 ½ years. Kavan-agh, 27, graduated from the Detroit College of Law in 1883.

In his law practice, he has concentrated in real estate work and probate law with some criminal case work, he said.

Kavanagh said he is seeking the job, which pays $74,888, because "I could make a stronger contribution as a judge than as a lawyer."

In addition, he said he found appealing the chance to be more influential as a judge than in either of his two occupations.

And referring to his relative youth, he said: "Age is no barrier as far as I'm concerned. The major contributing factors are common sense, energy, knowledge of the law, and last is life experience."

Kavanagh graduated from Red-ford Union High School in 1976.

He is a member of the Livonia Bar Association, the State Bar Association and the Irish American Incorporated Society.

McDONALD, 39, is making his second try at the elected office. In a 1980 circuit court election, in which three candidates were elected, McDonald finished fourth in a field

He said he is seeking the job again because his experience in government and his legal background would offer a helpful blending of talents on the circuit bench.

"I'd like to think like anyone involved in public life that I could make some changes there," he said.

"It would be both an education to be a judge and always something nice to say I've had an opportunity to do. I feel I'd gain something as well from that experience," he added.

McDONALD, a Livonia resident. has been an attorney for 14 years. He now shares an office on Middlebelt in Livonia but previously had an office in Redford Township.

McDonald was supervisor of Redford Township between 1974-78 and was an outspoken proponent of cityhood for the township.

He said he is presently not active in politics. McDonald is a member of the Michigan State Bar Association, the Irish Lawyers Association and St. Valentine Church in Redford Township.

Two other candidates from this area have declared their interest in the county court. They are Harry Tatigian, Livonia's city attorney, and Greg Stempien, a Northville resident who practices law in Livonia.

Retiring from the bench this year are judges Richard Dunn, Thomas Roumell and Arthur Bowman.

The filing deadline is June 3.

Toxics pose Lakes threat

By Penny Wright special writer

"The need for education about toxic substances is unbelievably critical," said John Gannon, acting director of the International Joint Commission, to members of the East Michigan Environmenttal Action Council (EMEAC).

Gannon spoke at EMEAC's 16th annual meeting held at the Cranbrook Institute of Science in Bloomfield Hills. In a speech entitled, "Toxics in the Great Lakes," Gannon updated the audience about the efforts his commission and other governmental bodies were expending to rid the Great Lakes of harmful chemicals.

"WE HAVE a success story on phosphorus control. We've spent $8 billion on this problem and have seen a decline in eutrophication (nutrient enrichment) in the lakes," said Gan-

"Toxic pollution in the Great Lakes is the biggest problem now." Gannon noted that 39 out of 42 known trouble areas in the Great Lakes have toxic substance prob-

Toxic substances have been defined as those chemicals which, when released into the environment, or if changed by chemical, physical and biochemical processes after release, could be detrimental to natural ecosystems or to human health. Toxic substances found in the Great Lakes and considered harmful to human health include: certain pesticide chemicals, PCBs, PBBs and such toxic metals as mercury, lead and cadmium.

"WE NEED to have a better handle on where toxic substances come from and what effects they might have on the ecosystem of the entire Great Lakes basin," said Gannon.

He noted some 63,000 man-made chemical products are on the market and about 1,000 new compounds are being developed each year. "If we continue to track the environmental effects of one chemical at a time, we will never get ahead."

Gannon called for increased scientific research, along with more citizen involvemnet in environmental watch-dogging and development of remedial action plans.

He ended his talk expressing belief in the concept of "planetary trust."

Job help is only as far as nearest college

Are you frustrated that your current job doesn't match your potential or interests? Are you looking for help in selecting the right college major? Or are you concerned about making the most productive use of your retirement years?

Individuals who need a little help with career counseling can turn to area colleges for help.

Schoolcraft, Oakland Community College and Oakland University all offer testing and counseling geared for people seeking to establish themselves in a satisfying job.

TESTS include the Strong-Campbell interest inventory, which will compare an individual's interests with those of successful individuals in various fields. The premise is that a person will be happiest in a field where colleagues share the same in-

The Meyers-Brigs test can tell a person about his work personality and what work environment will be best for him.

Computer exercises are also available to help clients set priorities on their values and interests.

The process of exploring new careers isn't easy, cautions Judy Hoppin, a career counselor at Oakland University's Continuum Center. Neither she nor any other counselor can wave a magic wand and put an indi-vidual into an ideal field. It takes a lot of digging and thought.

ONCE CLIENTS receive data from the tests, Hoppin meets with them to interpret the data and to suggest jobs and fields that might fit the individual. Then she encourages them to do "informational interviewing" - testing out job matches by interviewing people who hold jobs in those areas.

Often the experts find that people thinking about switching careers actually like their jobs but need a different environment or industry.

While Hoppin provides support and helps clients make decisions, she notes that only the individual can make the final decision about what job he will pursue.

John Bergman, a counselor at Oakland Community College's Or-chard Ridge campus, said that tests and computer exercises should be viewed only as tools. They help individuals determine "who they are and where they're going."

The process may also vary in length, he said. It can take "six months to 20 years," depending on the individual.

A BENEFIT of going to career counseling is the gaining of a professional listener. Dr. Jean Pike and counselor Bill Heise of Schoolcraft College note that some clients need support pinpointing why they are unhappy with what they are doing. Of-ten they find that people thinking about switching careers actually like their jobs but need a different environment or industry.

Hoppin asks her clients "Why do you want to change your job now?"

The answer often indicates whether it is the job or other personal mat-ters that are prompting the change. Oakland University and Schoolcraft also offer specific programs to help. The continuum center at OU offers workshops that cover topics ranging from how to write an effective resume to how to interview for a job. A series called "Careers in Transition" helps jobholders seek out the optimal job for them.

SCHOOLCRAFT targets displaced homemakers and the unemployed. Through grants from the U.S.Department of Labor, the college has scholarships available for training in nursing, secretarial skills and weld-

A Rochester woman who pre-ferred not to be identified said she went to Oakland University for help in rewriting her resume. She wanted the finished product to reflect her training in therapeutic recreation and to help her gain a position as a consumer service representative in private industry. Hoppin helped her rewrite the resume to highlight how her current interests and skills could be an asset in a new field.

Washington and Gist follow long trail home wrote in his journal, "They took our Gist tells it like it really was). Indians into private council, and gave them several presents.'

Two days later George Washington wrote in his journal: "The Commandant (Legardeur de St. Pierre) ordered a plentiful store of Liquor, Provisions, etc., to be put on Board our Canoe . . . he was exerting every artifice which he could invent to set our own Indians at Variance with us, to prevent their going till after our Departure. Presents, Rewards, and every Thing which could be suggested by him or his Officers.

Washington concluded with: "I can't say that ever in my Life I suffered so much Anxiety as I did in this Affair." (His use of capital letters throughout the journal seems to be a common practice in many 18th century diaries. It is a way of emphasis and clarification which is not considered to be correct usage today).

This tells us that Washington and Gist both were fully aware of present dangers and reasonably certain that they could not easily find their way out of the wilderness without the aid and guidance of their Indians: The Seneca Half King, or Monakaduta, and his two aging henchmen, chiefs White Thunder and Jeskakake. (See Observer, May 8). They must have known that almost all of the other Indians on this side of the Ohio were in the pay of the French, and British bribes could not sway their allegiance.

WASHINGTON DEVOTES many pages of his journal to the hardships suffered on the return journey.

At the beginning of the long trail homeward he wrote: "We had a tedious and very fatiguing passage down the Creek . . . Several Times we had like to have been stabbed against rocks; and many Times were obliged all Hands to get out and remain in the Water Half an Hour or more, getting over Shoals. At one Place the Ice lodged and made it impassable to go by water . .

Of this situation Gist wrote: "The Indians and three French Canoes overtook us here and the people of one French canoe that was Lost (in a wreck) . . . the creek began to be very low and we were forced to get out, to keep our canoes from oversetting, the water freezing to our clothes; and we had the pleasure of seeing the French overset and their brandy and wine floating in the creek. We run by them and left them

On Dec. 31, 1753, Christopher Gist to shift for themselves." (Once again

On Dec. 22 they arrived back in Venango. Washington estimated that it had taken six days to travel about 130 miles. Six days of tortuous trails and snowy, icy creeks - dangerous portages through unknown territory. It almost seemed like a miracle when once again they saw the golden silks of the French fleur di lis floating in the breeze above the trail.

And once again the former commandant of d'Etroit, Sieur de Chabert, greeted them and made them welcome. Chabert knew better than Washington how to play the diplomatic game, but the young 21-yearold major of the Virginia Militia was a fast learner.

AFTER FORT VENANGO the weather changed abruptly.

There was a deep snow on the roads and the horses grew weaker as they faced the winter winds. Major Washington convinced Gist that they shoudl take the shortest path and go on foot through the woods. He left

Jacob Van Braan in charge of the group and they were to make their way the best they could. The horses were to be abandoned if they could not carry the load and the men were to follow the river to the crossing at Forks (Pittsburgh).

Washington and Gist dressed themselves in Indian walking dress, hip-length skin leggings, with a belt at the waist. The major wrote: "I took my necessary papers, pulled off my Cloaths; and tied myself up in an Indian match coat. Then with Gun in Hand and Pack on my Back in which were my Papers and Provisions, I set out with Mr. Gist, fitted in the same Manner."

Listen as Gist tells the story. He

"The Major desired me to set out on foot, and leave our company as the creeks were frozen and our horses could make but little headway. Indeed, I was unwilling he should un-dertake such a travel, who had never been used to walking before this time. But as he insisted on it, I set out with our packs and we travelled eighteen miles. That night the Major was much fatigued. It was very cold; all the small runs were frozen. We could hardly get water to drink. We met an Indian that I thought we had seen at Venango . . . This fellow called me by my Indian name, and pretended to be glad to see me. He asked us several questions, as how we came to travel on foot, when did we leave Venango, where we parted with our horses, etc . .

Gist continued, "Major Washington insisted on travelling on to the nearest way to the forks of Allegheny. We asked the Indian if he could go with us, and show us the nearst way. The Indian seemd very glad and ready to go with us. Upon which we set out, and the Indian took the Major's pack. We travelled very brisk for eight or ten miles, when the Major's feet grew very sore, and he very weary, and the Indians steered too much north-eastwardly. The Major desired to encamp, to which the Indian asked to carry his gun. But he refused that, and then the Indian grew churlish, and pressed us to keep on, telling us that there were Ottawa Indians in these woods, and they would scalp us if we lay out, but to go to his cabin, and we would be his diary with: "I thought very ill of the fellow, but did not care to let the Major know I mistrusted him. But he soon mistrusted him as much as I . . . "We went two miles further; then the Major said he woull stay at the next water. But before we came to water, we came to a clear meadow; it was very light, and snow on the ground. The Indian made a stop, turned about; the Major saw him point a gun toward us and fire.

GIST CONCLUDED this portion of

"Said the major, 'Are you shot?' 'No,' said I. Upon which the Indian ran forward to a big standing oak, and to loading his gun; but we were soon with him. I would have killed him, but the Major would not suffer me to kill him. The Major I always stood by the guns; we made him (the Indian) make a fire for us by a little run, as if we intended to sleep there.

"I said to the Major, 'As you will not have him killed, we must get him away and then we must travel all

Track bill passes House, streaking for wire

Legislation aimed at improving Michigan's horse racing/betting industry was approved this week and has been sent to Gov. James Blanch-

The Senate bill, which originated in March 1985, extends drug and alcohol testing to more race track employees, reduces the state's take on paramutuel betting from 6 to 4.5 percent and allows for simulcasting of out-of-state races.

Supporters say the bill will clean up Michigan's horse racing image and the quality of races, spur track attendance and eventually increase the amount of money the state col-lects off paramutual betting.

Hertel gets $25,000

John Hertel's candidacy for Wayne County executive got a $25,000 boost from the Detroit Police Officers Association recently.

DPOA president Tom Schneider presented the Harper Woods Democrat with a check for that amount at a Hertel fund-raiser at the Polish Century Club in Detroit.

The $35-a-ticket party was hosted by four police unions: the DPOA. the Michigan Fraternal Order of Police, the Detroit Lieutenants and Sergeants Association and the Michigan Association of Police.

Tuttle miffed by Lucas act

You can't always count on your friends, or so learned Elaine Tuttle, Livonia's city treasurer and a GOP hopeful for the county commission seat in the 10th District.

Tuttle was somewhat miffed to read in the Observer recently that County Executive William Lucas, was endorsing Northville's Susan Heintz in the commission race, over herself.

Tuttle and Heinz are Republicans, as is Lucas.

"I'm sure he wasn't told I was in the race," said Tuttle, adding the whole thing must be some kind of misunderstanding. "Yes, I don't think they told him I was running at all."

Tuttle, who had been supporting Lucas in his bid for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, said she ran into Lucas at a private, home party in Northville but decided not to approach him about it because it wouldn't have been "polite" at the semi-social gathering. Heintz was also in attendance that night.

But she says the whole thing leaves her in a tough spot, left deciding whether she should continue supporting him.

who supports someone you're running against," she said.

Meanwhile, Heintz said, "I called him and asked him myself if he would endorse me and he said he would. I've got a copy of his confirmation letter to prove it."

Tuttle said that it was somewhat foolish to make an endorsement in the primary.

The commission seat, which covers the communities of Livonia, Plymouth and Northville, is held by Livonian Mary Dumas, the only Republican on the 15-member board of commissioners.

Dumas has not yet decided if she plans to seek the office for another two-year term.

Against mall decision

To the editor: Following a public hearing at a planning commission meeting of May 12, 1986, the commission voted to recommend an amendment to a consent judgement involving Moceri, et. al. This consent agreement governs the use of about 200 acres including the Mayfair Village subdi-

The amendment would permit a shopping center known as Coventry Commons East to be located on the southeast corner of Joy and Morton Taylor Roads, which property is currently limited by the consent judgement to "low volume" recreational

By this action I believe the commission (with the exception of Richard Anderson) has shown the following characteristics which are undersirable in any group of public ser-

1. Lack of prudence. According to David Berry, township attorney, it is not clear who are the parties to the consent judgement of Moceri, et. al. The courts are in the process of deciding if the individual property holders in Mayfair Village are party to the judgement.

By recommending an amendment to the judgement prior to the court's determination that the county has the authority to make such a unilateral change, the commission has placed Canton in financial jeopardy. Should the homeowners be found party to the judgement the township could face suits for any loss in property values.

2. Lack of foresight. The portion of Joy near Morton Taylor and Lilly is already overtaxed with traffic. Further, there are several small shopping areas already in this area. By voting to place another "strip-mall" in this location, the commission has supported one of two potential problems. The success of the mall would lead to severe traffic flow problems. Alternatively, if the mall should fail, an unsightly "ghost-town" would result and degrade the overall image of Canton.

3. Lack of concern for citizens of Canton. During the public hearing of

May 12, 1986, approximately 25 individuals spoke concerning the amendment to the consent judgement. Of these, only one, the developer's attorney, spoke in favor of the change. Further, several letters were received an entered in the minutes, all of which opposed the amendment.

Concerns voiced included increased traffic and crime, decreased property values, safety and the essential change in the nature of the neighborhood caused by placing a strip-mall in the middle of it. Rather than addressing these concerns the commission discussed a point which was not at issue (the extension of Morton-Taylor Road) and then, with the exception of Anderson, voted for the amendment without further

Even though protection of my neighborhood was contained in my deed (to which the consent judgement was attached), the planning commission has chosen to try to destroy it. I pity the next subdivision they set their sights upon.

As for those of us in Mayfair Village, our only recourse is to hope the Board of those of us in Mayfair Village, our only recourse is to hope the Board of Trustees acts in a responsible manner and rejects the proposed amendment to this Consent Judgement. Whatever their vote, you may rest assured that the residents of Mayfair Village and adjacent subdivisions will remember it come elec-

Fish needing more helpers

To the editor:

WALLPAPER & BLIND SALE

I am a "fish," but I don't swim.

I am a member of FISH, an organization dedicated to helping people with problems: transportation to the doctor, child care, housework, yard work, errands, companionship.

FISH members have helping hands and happy hearts for the sick, the sad, the lonely, the poor. Today FISH desperately needs new members, particularly people who will drive clients. The Plymouth-Canton community has a responsibilility to FISH is not an aggressive organization. We won't twist arms, but I do want to twist your emotions. Somebody needs a ride to a clinic, perhaps the widow on your street. And there may be a young mother who needs food stamps tomorrow. There is a retired man whose leg won't make the walk to the dentist anymore. There are as many needs as there are stop signs in town.

The current members of FISH are doing a great job. They are juggling family and work responsibilities and often taking FISH assignments twice a month, and some generous souls give assistance to others every week.

Even so, many calls come into our answering service, and there are times we have to disappoint needy people because a driver is not available. We also need "Fish of the Day" help for arranging rides.

I'm not inviting your charity but the justice you owe to another human being. It's an invitation that demands a response. Are you adult enough for meeting the commitment? Have I hooked you yet? If so call FISH at 453-1110 or call me, Jeanne, at 455-6278.

Jeanne Vicini, Plymouth

A holiday for prayer and peace

ON MONDAY, Memorial Day will be observed throughout most of the United States. A few Southern states are still reluctant to celebrate a day that was instituted in 1868 by the president of the Grand Army of the Republic to commemorate the deaths of those who had died in the Civil War.

Memorial Day started off as Decoration Day when Gen. John A. Logan declared that May 30 would be a day to 'decorate with flowers the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the late rebellion.'

The custom of placing flowers on the graves of those who died in the Civil War started two years earlier in Water-

Until 1971, Memorial Day was May 30. Congress changed the traditional observance to the fourth Monday in May in deference to the political clout of federal employees who wanted a long weekend rather than a day off at some point during the week.

Although some cities regularly conduct Memorial Day parades, the holiday has tended to become little more than a day off from work, a day to do the anhual garage cleaning, or get caught up on the yard work.

Driving through our peaceful neighborhoods and tree-lined streets on Memorial Day seeing our neighbors out enjoying the sun, it will be hard to imagine that anything could blast beyond recognition our tranquil communities or our peaceful lives.

Yet, there is the stark evidence behind us - the millions of war dead, the history of war, the miscalculations and the plots and schemes, which led to continents engulfed in war. And now, also, Chernobyl.

Memorial Day should be a day to stop and think and to dedicate ourselves once again to peace and prayer.

Shall schools pay cash or borrow?

N MONDAY, June 9, residents of Plymouth-Canton Commuinity Schools will be going to the polls to elect members to the school board and to vote on a bond issue of $13 million.

Ten residents are running for three school board seats - 'two four-year terms and one two-year term. The bond issue involves giving the school district permission to borrow $13 million for 15 years and levy millage annually to pay off the debt.

The debt retirement millage will vary from year to year as the value of property increases or decreases, but will be in the area of one mill or $1 per $1,000 state equalized valuation (SEV). For the owner of a $100,000 house the debt retirement millage would cost about $50 a year.

NOW IS A GOOD time for residents to review what the bond issue entails.

The district will borrow $13 million, which will be invested for awhile and generate interest income of $1,033,000. That will give the school board an estimated total of $14,033,000 to spend on new construction, site improvements, renovations and instructional equip-

The total project will involve almost $6.5 million in construction, some $3 million in renovations, and about $4 million in instructional equipmenttechnology update.

The process of deciding what to include in the bond issue started in the fall of 1984 when staff members and administrators evaluated needs at each building. From June to November 1985 a citizens committee reviewed the requests, which then went to the school board in December 1985 for approval, given in March 1986.

The $6.5 million in new construction includes $4.5 million for a new elementary school in Canton for 650 students, an addition of six classrooms to Gallimore School in Canton and construction of a storage-maintenance building.

The renovations include almost $1.7 million for Central Middle School for such things as installation of an elevator, barrier-free access, classroom improvements, and renovation of the heating, plumbing and electrical. Other renovations will be acoustical treatment for Eriksson, Field and Hulsing elementaries, replacement of the heating system at Pioneer Middle, and an addition to the Board of Education offices on S. Harvey.

The renovations also include improvements at WSDP-FM (the student radio station), the auditorium/stage at Plymouth Salem High, and the pool bleachers at Salem.

Site improvements include a new drive/passing lane at Plymouth Canton High, additional parking at Centennial Educational Park, resurfacing the track at CEP, improve the bleachers at Salem and Central Middle, and paving projects throughout the district.

THE EDUCATIONAL equipment purchases, including buses, will total some $4.1 million.

The instructional equipment is divided into $565,000 for elementary, $858,000 for middle school, $852,000 for high school, and $600,000 for computers at all levels.

Some $1.3 million also will be spent for bus replacement and to buy additonal buses (25 buses and 17 vans).

More than a quarter of a million will be spent on computers for elementary schools and some $120,000 for the middle schools. The $230,000 for the high schools involves updating computer equipment for the instruction of design, art, drafting, math, business education, industrial education and computer labs.

The elementary instructional equipment is varied but includes such items as: audiovisual, $60,000; teacher storage, $55,000; classroom furniture, $34,000; book replacement, $72,000 ($6,000 per school); flooring, $130,000; science instructional equipment, $85,000 (about $7,000 per school); and office equipment, $55,000; maps and globes will be replaced at all schools for

Middle school instructional items include: language arts, social studies, $13,000; media centers, $409,000; science equipment, $86,000; Skills for Living, $51,000; music instructional equipment, $75,000; industrial education equipment, $50,00. The social studies items include wall maps and globes. Also included is replacement of typewriters and student furniture, coin-operated copiers, books, audiovisual

The high school list includes: auditorium-cafeteria seats and equipment, $105,000; athletic equipment, $44,000; business equipment (electronic ty writers, word processors), $158,000; industrial and vocational education, $278,000; media center books, $175,000; Science equipment, $36,000; Skills for Living equipment, $30,000.

The above list is what voters should evaluate. Are the expenditures of the sort that is worth investing about one mill a year? That, basically, is the decision to be made.

Graduation—dream come true

INTO EACH LIFE, so the sages tell us, comes one great moment. It is a moment filled with pride and emotion, and at times causes a huge lump in the throat. And the memory of such a moment never is forgotten.

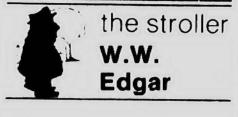

That was the kind of moment The Stroller experienced last Sunday when he was escorted to the platform at Schoolcraft College and presented an honorary associate of arts degree something he often had dreamed of but never thought would come true.

As he stood there listening to the citation being read to his family, relatives and a host of friends, he couldn't help thinking of the many frustrations, disappointments and moments of sadness he had experienced on the way to the big moment when Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell, board Chairman Harry Greenleaf and Trustee Rosina Raymond made the presentation.

FROM THE DAY The Stroller was born, more than eight decades ago, his father had planned a college education for him. He had visioned his son graduating from Penn State and going on to great things.

At the time, he was a sickly man and eked out a living with a small lunch room back in the Dutch Country. And he took pride in his son being a good stu-

But misfortune struck. He became victim of what was called "hasty consumption." When mother was left alone with five children, she often said, "There goes your college education."

She worked and worked to see that The Stroller got the kind of education available in the grade schools. Then, when he had been in high school only three months, she called her boy aside and advised him she no longer could carry on without help. He would have to leave school.

Dreams of a great education faded.

THESE THOUGHTS came back as The Stroller stood on the platform at

Along the way, he had been honored several years ago when he was given an honorary high school diploma at Garden City West. That was a big moment. At last he had received a diploma, thanks to the work of Prinicpal James Nilan. But it was still a far cry from college.

Then a few days ago came the call from Schoolcraft College, an institution he had helped to make possible, that he was to be accorded an honorary degree.

Just the thought of it generated a feeling of emotion, and it caused cold chills to run up and down his spine. At last he was going to get a college cita-

As he was given the much-prized resolution, the moments of frustration and disappointments of his youth gave way to the joy of being recognized by an institution of higher learning.

AND HE WONDERED - and felt certain — that his father and mother, now long gone, were looking down on the ceremony and feeling proud that their boy, who didn't finish his first year of high school, was being honored by a

They say you can't take anything with you when you leave this vale of tears, but the memory of that moment at Schoolcraft will be taken by The Stroller beyond any grave.

Eddie Edgar died Sunday at the age of 88. He wrote his Stroller column for 22 years at the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. Edgar was proud of his honorary degree received from Schoolcraft and the high school diploma he was awarded by Garden City West High School. This column, one of our favorites, serves as a fitting tribute to Eddie Edgar or as he was affectionately known, "The Stroller."

I-696 construction awakes Rip Van Winkle

WHEN THE FINAL saga of Interstate 696 ultimately is written, a chapter should be devoted to the tale behind the scheduled publication in today's Wall Street Journal of a 2-by-6 legal notice which has been purchased to aid in tracking down any unknown heirs of philanthropists Horace H. and Mary

This is the third and final insertion of the notice and is running in all Journal editions, coast to coast. It was sanctioned by Oakland County Circuit Court, will be paid for by the state of Michigan, and was placed by Attorney Thomas H. Healy of Plymouth, who is a special assistant attorney general pertaining to land taken in condemnation.

The tab for the three insertions amounts to $19,000 and change. The fact that the Journal accepted the advertisment on credit speaks well for Lansing's current financial reputation.

Even if your name is Rip Van Winkle and you have been asleep for 20 years, you can remember when arguments started about the specific route of the to traffic from beginning to end before proposed I-696 corridor.

IT WAS the 7.9 mile center section through Southfield, Lathrup Village, Royal Oak Township, Oak Park, Huntington Woods, Pleasant Ridge, Royal Oak and Ferndale, joining I-75 in Hazel Park, that caused the uproar and brought a multitude of legal roadblocks.

Rip, you may not believe it, but construction actually is in progress and Robert Tiura, I-696 ombudsman for the Michigan Department of Transportation, tells me that all segments will be completed and the entire highway open 1989 wears out its welcome.

So what's this thing about the Rackham estate?

Horace and wife, Mary, pioneer investors in the automotive industry, steered much of their fortune into philanthropic avenues, included being a chunk of land deeded on Nov. 4, 1924, to the city of Detroit for a public golf course on 10 Mile Road.

As I got the story from Healy, some wise legal mind saw to it that the deed included a provision which would return the land to "the grantors, heirs and assignees" if it ever were used for any-

WHO COULD know that six decades later there would be 8.5 acres in the southwest corner at 10 Mile and Scotia across which the state of Michigan would like to stretch a high-speed freeway? And what was a freeway, anyway? Or high-speed? What that legal mind might have realized was the value of $640,000 which is what the state has offered for the parcel in 1986.

The Rackhams were childless, and that has complicated matters. Focus of the search for heirs has been on the descendants of sisters and brothers in an ever-expanding range, for succeeding progeny have scattered to the four winds across the entire nation. That's why Judge Fred M. Mester approved the Wall Street Journal as a national tool for use in the search.

The quest is for "unknown and unrepresented" heirs of Horcace H. Rackham, Mary A. Rackham, Charles Bussey, Myra Bussey, Bryson Dexter Horton, Mable Patterson, Zera Horton Patterson and Wadsworth Warren.

SOME HAVE been located and Healy says there has been fine cooperation by those persons and their legal represent-atives in trailing others. But unless they are made known by June 30, their right to any part of the compensation will be terminated.

Those who do surface will have the right to contest the state's offer, and can even ask for a jury trial in an effort to get a higher price if they choose. Meanwhile, the stakes remain those 640 big ones, with Judge Mester's signature needed on the final document.

I understand that in such legal matters, the closer you nest to the main trunk of the family tree the more financial eggs you hatch. What a pity my only Uncle Horace was thrice removed through a half-brother to my maternal grandmother and was named Weese, not Rackham.

Consider vote

To the editor:

Like the Observer, I believe that it is the duty of every citizen to cast an informed vote. I do not know of many people who are more convinced than I of the importance of every single vote. I have voted in an election where one candidate was elected by five votes.

I have been involved in campaigns since elementary school when I first distributed literature in my neighborhood. I registered to vote at age 18 and cast my first ballot in the 1972 presidential election. Since that time I have made it a point to register and to vote wherever I reside, in all levels of elections. Though I only lived in East Islip, N.Y., for eight months, I registered and voted in the school election held in June 1975.

Custom Styles and Colors

I have only been registered in the Plymouth-Canton school district since October 1985 because I moved to Plymouth the last week of August and the law requires a 30 day residency before registering. I then voted in the November general election.

Unfortunately, unexpected circumstances can arise which necessitate a change in one's plans to vote in a particular election. When a schedule conflict is foreseen, I vote absentee (as I have done in past elections).

A candidate's voting record should certainly be considered in evaluating a candidate for public office. But to eliminate any candidate from consideration solely on the basis of their voting record is both shallow and simplistic. This is especially true in a mobile society, when only the current local record is considered.

John M. Voymas,

Jaycees can't do it all alone

To the editor:

Once upon a time, the Plymouth Jaycees were able to present the Plymouth community with a parade and fireworks show paid for with funds generously donated by the community. For 25 years these gallant and fearless knights have fought to raise money for this annual community celebration.

Alas, as time passed increasing costs and decreasing support forced these modern-day crusaders to pay for the event out of their own coffers. The minimum cost for this year's event will be a staggering $14,000, including $6-7,000 of mandatory insurance premiums.

Obviously, the Plymouth Jaycees can no longer bear this burden alone. The costs far exceed its ability to fund. However, repeated pleas for financial assistance have gone largely unnot-

Contributions received this year will come from largely the same sources. Central Distributors (Budwieser) has agreed to support the cause, at least to the same extent as last year and possibly more. K Mart Corporation also has made a very generous donation.

But most other companies doing business in the community have not been heard from. Only one-third of the necessary funds have been collected. If sufficient funds are not raised soon, there will be no Fourth of July celebration. There will be no happy ending to this tale without community support.

Fred Eagle, President 1986-1987, Plymouth Jaycees

Area reps all vote against Saudi arms sale

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll-call votes during the week ending May 9. HOUSE

ARMS TO SAUDI ARABIA - The House approved, 356 for and 62 against, a resolution (HJ Res 589) blocking the administration's planned $354 million sale of missiles to Saudi Arabia.

This followed an equally emphatic Senate vote (below) against the sale, and it sent the measure to President Reagan for his promised veto. Sale foes said the wide congressional margins of disapproval indicate a presidential veto would fail, making this the first major arms sale ever thwarted by

The transaction calls for the Saudis to pay cash for 1,700 Sidewinder air-to-air missiles, 100 Harpoon anti-ship missiles, and 800 Stingers, a shoulder-mounted surface-to-air missile system.

Members who supported the resolution of disapproval said sending more arms to the Middle East would destabilize the region, and that the portable Stinger could be used by terrorists. They criticized Saudi Arabia as a fickle ally that condemned the recent American attack on Libya.

Opponents said the resolution undercut President Reagan and was a slap at a vital U.S. ally in the world's most volatile area. They argued Saudi Arabia needs to be strengthened militarily now that Iran is winning its war against Iraq and becoming more menacing to moderate Arab states in Members voting yes wanted to block the Saudi arms sale.

Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield. William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

SUPPLEMENTAL BILL - By a vote of 242 for and 132 against, the House passd and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 4515) to increase federal spending by $1.7 billion during the current fiscal year.

This extra appropriations bill supplements regular fiscal 1986 spending bills that already are law.

As is usually the case with so-called "urgent supplemental' bills, this one benefitted scores of narrow-interest programs throughout the government. Supporters said it funded many vital programs, while Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., recently characterized it as a "great, bursting barrel of rancid pork."

In part, the fiscal 1986 measure provides $50 million in economnic aid to Northern Ireland, $702 million for upgrading security at U.S. facilities abroad, $363 million for Veterans Administration benefit programs, $330 million for disaster relief, $340 million to the Internal Revenue Service, $35.5 million for the Coast Guard, and $71.6 million for salaries and expenses of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, $14.5 million for the Board of International Broadcasting and $20 million for the Women, Infants, Children (WIC) nutrition pro-

Members voting yes supported the $1.7 billion spending bill.

Voting yes: Hertel, William Ford, Levin. Voting no: Pursell, Broomfield.

DEFERRAL ISSUE - By a vote of 163 for and 224 against, the House rejected an amendment to retain the "deferral" authority by which a president can decline to spend appropriated funds in a given fiscal President Reagan and most Republicans favored the amendment, while most Democrats opposed it. The vote left intact language in the fiscal 1986 supplemental appropriations bill (HR 4515; above) to prevent Reagan from excuting certain deferrals this year.

Reagan has deferred a total of $5.3 billion, including $500 million for community block grants to cities, $2.7 bilion for lowincome housing and $600 million for housing the handicapped and the elderly.

This was a constitutional issue as well as a routine dispute over spending levels and priorities.

Under a 1974 law designed to keep presidents from illegally impounding, or refusing to spend, money approved by Congress, a presidential deferral could have been overridden by either the House of Senate.

In 1983, however, the U.S. Supreme Court in its "Chadha" decision declared one-house vetoes unconstitutional. Critics say that decision has tilted the delicately balanced 1974 anti-impoundment toward the White House, giving presidents too much power to thwart the spending prerogatives of the legislative branch.

Members voting no wanted Reagan to release the $5.3 billion in fiscal 1986 appropriations he is refusing to spend.

Voting yes: Broomfield. Voting no: Pursell, Hertel, William Ford, Levin.

SENATE

SAUDI ARMS SALE - The Senate passed, 73 for and 22 against, a resolution (SJ Res 316) blocking the administration's proposed sale of $354 million worth of Stinger, Harpoon and Sidewinder missiles to Saudi Arabia.

President Reagan has vowed to veto the resolution, which later was passed by the House (above) and sent to the White House. However, the wide margin by which it cleared Congress indicated both chambers would muster the two-thirds majority needed to override a presidential veto.

While foes of the sale rated the resolution of disapproval as veto-proof, many members who supported it this time around are likely to support Reagan's expected veto, in order to please as many constituencies as

Resolution backer Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., complained that "the Saudis have kept on financing the PLO, an organization dedicated to the destruction of Isreal, and parts of which engage in terrorism against Isreal, Western Europe and the United States."

Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who supported the arms sale, said "if Saudi Arabia is to play a constructive role in resisting (Islam-ic) radicalism and defending against the Russian threat, we must support her legiti-mate defense needs."-Senators voting yes were opposed to the $354 million arms sale. Voting yes: Carl Levin, Donald Riegle.

STINGERS - By a vote of 63 for and 34 against, th Senate tabled (killed) an amendment making it virtually imposible for the administration to provide Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to American-backed rebel forces that are fighting Soviet-backed regimes in Afghanistan and Angola.

The amendment was proposed to a sweeping military reorganization bill (S 2295) that later was passed on a non-record vote and sent to conference with the House. Many senators voting to table it did so because they thought it had no place as part of legislation dealing with the U.S. military command structure.

The amendment sought to require that rebels receiving the Stinger use protective measures such as storage in steel vaults to safeguard the weapon against theft by terrorists. One person can operate the shoul-der-mounted Stinger, which has a range of up to five miles at 4,500 feet altitude.

Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who voted to table the amendment, alluded to the hit-and-run tactics used by guerillas and said "the very safeguards that are in this legislation . are not applicable in any kind of hypothetical guerilla warfare, certainly not involving an adversary like the Soviet Union."

H, THE WRITING life! Breathes there a would-be writer who hasn't been stirred by visions of hobnobbing with the likes of a Mailer or a Michener, a Welty or a Walk-

(Or, closer to home, a Leonard, a Luedtke, a Keinzle or a Coughlin?) And, after all, what is a writer? Nothing more than a person who writes. Seems simple enough: You put thoughts into words, the words become inkstains on paper, and before you know it, you've got some-

"I could do that," the reader cries, tossing aside a paperback representing months or even years of work by an author. And maybe the reader is right - the jury is still out on whether the talent or sheer tenacity makes the writer.

"I USED TO THINK that good writing came from an inborn, innate talent," said West Bloomfield writer Bettie Cannon, a past president of Detroit Women Writers. "but I've seen too many cases of people who were so passionate about wanting to write, they just didn't quit until, by golly, they had

A case in point might be Julia Grice, the prolific author of a dozen historical romances who just recently returned from a nationwide publicity tour to promote her latest book. "How to Find Romance After

Grice began writing some 20 years ago, and wrote six full-length novels - all unpublished - "with two small kids underfoot" before she finally hit the jackpot in 1979 with her first book, "Lovefire."

"I guess I'm just the eternal optimist," the 45-year-old Rochester writer says. "I just know I could write a good book. I don't look back on those failed books as a waste of time. That was my apprentice-

THEN THERE'S ROBERT C. Wilson, 35-year-old author of two Michigan-based bestsellers. "Crooked Tree" and "Icefire." Wilson, who lives in Redford, had never written a word of fiction, outside of a required college composition class, when he took a leave from his job as an attorney in the Wayne County Prosecutor's office in the fall of 1976 to hole up in his parent's cabin up north - to begin

'I guess my advice to them would be to realize that dreamy-eyed talent just isn't enough. It takes a lot of hard work and disappointment. Sometimes you say to yourself, 'I don't have to do this — I have some other things to do' — ' but the true writer knows deep inside that there's something in you . . .that you'd be more miserable not writing than you ever were writing."

> -Bettie Cannon Detroit Women Writers past president

"I knew there would be bears in my story and that it would take place in the northern Michigan woods, but it wasn't until I came across an old Ottawa Indian legend about the bearwalk - where bears could be inhabited by human entities - that the whole thing came together. Then it was, 'what if this happened?' and 'what if that happened?'"

Wilson's is one of the few instant success stories. He sent a couple of chapters and an outline of his first draft of "Crooked Tree" to an agent, "just to see if the thing was worth going on with.'

The agent took it on and sold it to G.P. Putnam's Sons, who also published "Icefire" and have an option on Wilson't third novel, still at least a year away from being completed.

CANNON, THE author of "All About Franklin," the history of Franklin Village and a freelance writer whose works are frequently published in area newspapers, grew up in a writing family.

Her mother and grandmother wrote stores and poetry and one of her uncles was Don Whiteheard, Pulitzer-prize-winning Associated Press war correspondent and the author of 10 books. Another uncle was the editor of "the only newspaper in Harlan County, Ky.

Cannon says, "growing up with them, writing just seemed within the realm of possibility. At 14, I had written two novels with the Winds' revisited, as I re-

Still, she didn't begin writing "in earnest" until some 20 years ago when Cannon was in her mid-40s.

"I took a correspondence course from an 80-year-old instructor at the University of Kansas. I was so nervous when I sent her my writing the first anybody had seen for a long time. I was thrilled when she wrote back. 'You have not been idle as a writer.' What she meant was that, though I hadn't been writing, I had been observing — and it seems I had developed a good ear for dia-

CANNON RECENTLY completed "The Rainsingers," a young adult novel set during the Depression years. Two of the novel's chapters have been published in the University of Northern Kentucky's Journal of Kentucky Studies.

It is currently making the publisher's rounds and Cannon says, "I got a rejection letter the other day that was so full of praise, I had to read it over again to make sure it was a rejection. I didn't know whether to be depressed or elated."

If there is a dirtier word to a writer than "rejection," these three writers would be hard put to find

For most the hardest part of being a writer is putting up with rejections," said Grice, "especially when your living depends on suc-

But things have a way of turning around. "Take last year," Grice said, "it was the cold dead of winter and I hadn't sold a book for was really feeling low. Little did I know that before the year was over not only would I have sold a book but I'd be touring the country talking about it which, next to writing it, is my fa-

Wilson says, about rejections, 'Sure, rejections are tough - but there are no easy parts to writing. The writing process itself is one series of tortures after another.'

That's not to say there's no pleasure involved, he is quick to add.

"The enjoyment comes when you've finished something - a section or a chapter - and you realize that it not only crystalizes exactly what you wanted to say, but that you've done it in what you think is a good, literary fashion. There's no feeling like it. You accomplished what you set out to do and you did it well."

STILL, TO SOME, rejections can be devastating. "After a couple of them, sometimes perfectly good writers just stop trying, Cannon observed.

"Intellecturally, they know that rejections are necessary evils, but emotionally it just hurts too much.

"I guess my advice to them would be to realize that dreamyeyed talent just ish't enough. It takes a lot of hard work and disappointment. Sometimes you say to yourself, I don't have to do this - I have other things to do - but the true writer knows deep inside that there's something in you . . . that you'd be more miserable not writing than you ever were writing."

And what advice would they give to the beginning writer?

"I'd tell them 'Just get started and never look back," " said Wilson. "Don't worry about the quality or grammar at first - just tell the Grice says, "Never give up and never be ashamed of your failures. The most important things about me are my failures. They made me

And Cannon says, "I guess I'd give the advice my uncle used to always give, Apply the seat of your pants to the chair and stay there until you're finished."

Recently mystery writer William Kienzle spoke in Livonia and had this comment to make to beginning writers:

"The average yearly income of a writer, according to a recent study, is about $4,000," he said. "So, if you have a book published, you'd better have a good job, too - unless the book is picked up by book clubs, published in paperback, in foreign languages, or movie rights are

For collectors, the hotel will host an antique decoy display and sale. Headquarters for all the events will be the Hotel Doherty in downtown

WITH ONE OF his painting, Perrish has placed third this year in the Michigan Duck Stamp Competition after finishing second in 1985. He finished in the top 30, of 1,200 entries, at this year's Federal Duck Stamp competition.

For his carving, he took a first place in species in the World Competition and second best in the marsh duck competition. Last year, he took best of show in his professional class entry at Point Mouillee Midwest Decoy Competition and second best of show at the Canadian National Decoy (amateur division) and best of show in the Mid Atlantic Waterfowl Festival Show (professional) in Ver Beech, Va.

Perrish has the advantage of being both a painter and a carver. "For me, painting the duck is like being on the home stretch," he smiled. For the non-painting carvers, it's a different story. Once the carving is done, some of the hardest work is still ahead for them.

A NATIVE Detroiter who grew up in Allen Park, Perrish now lives in Livonia. After attending the University of Michigan and the Center of Creative Studies, Perrish has spent the last 12 years in the field of commercial and fine art.

From layout and design to painting commissioned portraits and murals, he finds himself most at home painting or carving wildlife. An avid sportsman, he become interested in carving decoys after taking an adult education class in carving with his

From the very beginning, his attention to detail and subtle use of color has captured the judges' eyes.

CURRENTLY, PERRISH is employed in the art department of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. Before that, he was in business for himself as a commercial artist. The long hours and not having any time for himself prompted him to take the

Shell game teaches life lesson

YOU REMEMBER my New Year's column, I resolved that this year I would take my family on a nice vacation. Well, just two weeks ago my whole family and I were walking along the beautiful beach of Long Boat Key, Fla. Looking like tourists, we walked the shoreline looking for shells around the breaking waves. The touristy look, I might add, included looking as white as Casper the Ghost. In just an hour or two, we all had a seemingly nice assortment of shells. By this time, too, we had shed our Casper look for one that looked more like the Red Lobster.

The next morning I happened to be admiring our collection of shells when an obvious "pro" sauntered by. In her hands was a collection of "keepers" that made me take a second look at what we had collected. Sure, ours were a little chipped. Sure ours were a little pitted and even a little little. But in our eyes and by our standards, our shells were just as pretty.

I LATER WARNED MY family not to look at shells in the souvenir shops. But kids never listen and within minutes of entering the first store, we all saw a sand dollar as big as a saucer and for only 89 cents. Now, if I was shell hunting and "found" that sand dollar, I would probably, in shock, fall stiff into the pounding surf and never again be seen.

Upon returning to our condo, I took an even longer look at our collection of shells. Running my fingers through the pile of shells. I thought: "These are not the best found around here. They are certainly worthless compared to the ones you can buy Why should we even bother with them?

So often new artists or students of art look at their own work with the same reservations that I had when I viewed our shells. New or struggling students of art may think that their art is mediocre relative to work of others and that their art is worthless when compared to what can be purchased.

BUT THE THING TO KEEP in mind is that the "worth" of your art is in the "work" of your art and what can be learned in the effort. One definition of the word work is defined as "mental or physical effort to achieve an objective or result.

I remember years ago when as a young adult my art had apparently reached a plateau. Quite discouraged with myself, I wrote in one of sketchbooks. "I find it much more encouraging to look at how far I have come and to where I am headed than to look at where I am today.

That backwards glance and the hope for the future helped me to do the work and learn the lessons of the plateau. I learned quickly that just in the effort I was gaining technical skills and that alone made my art more valuable

Also, I decided that the opinion of someone else as to the worth of your work is only their opinion and should have little effect on the estimation of yourself.

REMEMBER, WHETHER YOU ARE climbing up a mountain or feel abandoned on the plateau, the worth of art is often the hard work of art. So instead of comparing your art to the that of other artists, try comparing your last work of art to the one you previously finished and judge its worth by the hopeful

By the way, I sorted through our mound of ho-hum shells and picked out the prettiest one that each of us had found. Then I took my watercolors down to the beach and immortalized our mediocre shells in a watercolor painting. To be honest, when I painted the shells. I prettied them up a little. OK, maybe I prettied them up a whole bunch

Getting into the swim of things

By Julie Brown staff writer

HE INSTRUCTOR'S words of encouragement help draw the children across the surface of the pool at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

They keep going until they're safely across to the other side. Upon reaching their destination, pride in their accomplishments is written clearly across the youngsters' faces.

These children may not ever make it to the Olympics as competitors. They will, however, learn the basics of swimming in the classes offered by the Plymouth Community Family YMCA.

"Basically, we're trying to teach them how to kick and stroke in the water," said Jean Pritchard, the instructor. "What I'm looking for is the ability to move through the water on their front and on their back, and safety."

THE SAFETY instruction includes teaching children not to run by the pool and not to go into the pool without an instructor or parent nearby. Getting into and out of the pool safely is also covered.

Area youngsters can start learning to swim at an early age in the classes offered by the Plymouth Community Family YMCA. Children as young as 6 months old participate in the parent-tot class.

Older children — generally ages 3 to 5 — participate in the "Pre-Tadpole" class, a transitional class in which children work in the water with their parents for part of the program.

"They worked with their parents up to this week," said Pritchard, a Canton resident who has taught swimming for close to 20 years, including approximately three at the local YMCA.

Encouragement and advice from instructor Jean Pritchard help Adam Forney, a Canton resident, as he works on his swimming skills. Adam is one of a number of local youngsters taking swimming lessons offered by the Plymouth Community Family YMCA.

Canton's Kevin Summers surveys the pool's surface at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

Lake of Plymouth, who gets some help from her mom, Kathy. The Plymouth Community Family YMCA offers parent-tot classes, with some of the participants as young as 6 months.

The pool at the Plymouth Hilton Inn is the site for the swimming lessons.

s the Star Wars defense program the modern-day version of the Emperor's New Clothes?

That question and others were explored during the second annual Peace in the Nuclear Age Symposium last Thursday at Madonna College in Livonia. The symposium was sponsored by the Livonia-based Peace Resource Center of Western Wayne County.

Speakers covered the issues of Star Wars (Stategic Defense Initiative) as strategic defense, the economics of defense spending and the tactics of resistance to war.

THE STAR Wars segment featured Dr. Dan Axelrod, associate professor of biophysics at the University of Michigan and co-author of "To Win a Nuclear War: The Pentagon's Secret Strategy.'

Axelrod maintained that the term

'Star Wars was not meant for a defensive system at all," he said. He contends that Star Wars would prove most strategically useful to back up a threat.

What the U.S. wants to do is to be able to threaten a first strike," Axel-

CONCURRING with Axelrod was Capt. James T. Bush, U.S. Navy-retired. Bush, a former nuclear submarine commander, now serves on the staff of Congressmen Pat Schroeder, a Democrat from Colorado. Bush has been active in writing legislation, such as House of Representatives Bill 3442, to eliminate nuclear test-

He said the SDI system would be set up to attack Soviet missiles four times during their flight: as they are launched, as they deploy their multiwarheads, as they near their targets or as they reach the target site.

Since the missiles carry nuclear

Strategic Defense Initiative is a mis- warheads, the system would have to be 100 percent effective, Bush said. Yet both Axelrod and Bush said this would not be possible.

Bush said SDI also is extremely vulnerable to attack. The SDI's complex system of lasers in space could be overwhelmed, underflown or outfoxed, Bush said.

To overwhelm SDI, the Soviets might double their number of warheads beyond SDI's capability. To underfly the system, submarinelaunched Cruise missiles could fly low and be undetected. Dummy rockets and decoy warheads could

IF THE Soviets didn't destroy SDI, computer malfunctioning could do the job for them, Bush said. Congressional testimony has verified that to destroy a missile in its booster stage requires a split-second decision. Hence, computer control would be essential, increasing the possibility of system breakdowns.

Bush said that while SDI constitutes a defensive strategy, it would it also is an illusion the nuclear war because it "poses a very threatening gesture to the Soviet Union.

"In order to destroy missiles in boost phase, the U.S. has to attack the Soviet Union," he said. And to protect SDI, the United States would need to increase production of offensive weapons, he said.

Providing a similar view of Star Wars was Dr. Robert Bowman, quoted in "Don't Arm the Stars," a pamphlet that was distributed during the symposium. A retired U.S. Air Force colonel, Bowman is president of the Institute for Space and Security Studies and former director of Air Force Star Wars research.

Bowman has stated, "Star Wars would be the ultimate hair-trigger

THE SPEAKERS maintained that can be survived. Referring to the four phases of Star Wars defense, Bush said, "In the terminal phase, the government is talking about defending missile sites. They do not speak of defending cities because that is not politically feasible."

The Rev. Peter Dougherty suggested Americans adopt a new "feminist" perspective on world problems. Dougherty is a priest in the Lansing diocese who founded Christian Faith and Resistance Community in response to the manufacture of the Cruise missile engine at Williams International in Walled Lake.

"We have to become feminists in our whole understanding," Dougherty said. "I am convinced it is the women who will save the world. We can't save the world out of fear primarily. We have to humanize the "Women are going to be the ones to stop this macho attitude about how we perceive reality. So it necessitates a feminist attitude. We must learn to nurture life, not destroy it." Agreeing with him was a mother of five who attended the symposium, Cynthia Hirami, 57, of Livonia. She has been involved in the peace movement for four years. "As mothers, we better support the young men who are speaking out," she said. "We have a real obligation. "I think we could stop a war if the women got out on the street and said, 'You aren't going to take my husband or son.' I think the women have to realize what their potential is. I think we can reinforce each other."

During the symposium there was a Children's Peace Parade and display of student's posters and other creative artwork with a message of peace to adults.

Paul Howard, a sixth grader at Gesu School in Detroit, read his message to the symposium: "As president, I would not spend so much money on the military, only enough to keep it going. It would be a major policy of mine to allocate more money to eliminate poverty in the United ETTING WOMEN to admit they have substance abuse problems is no easy task.

'There's a lot more shame in our culture for a woman to have a chemical dependency problem," said Judith Darlington, substance abuse specialist for Plymouth Family Service.

That shame isn't the only difficulty in getting women into treatment, she said. Child care represents another obstacle for many women, as do economic difficulties.

While only one out of 10 wives divorces a chemically dependent husband, Darlington said, only one in 10 husbands stays with a chemically dependent wife.

"So she's often divorced."

Substance abuse among women isn't confined to a specific age group or socioeconomic class. "Chemical dependency knows no boundaries. It's in all areas." Finding those women with substance abuse problems and getting them into treatment is Darlington's goal in her work with Plymouth

Family Service, a Plymouth Community Fund agency. She has been with the Plymouth agency for approximately two months, coming from Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County in Wyandotte. The Plymouth agency's staff had cally dependent adults weren't readily available. Getting those services set up is one of the agency's goals. "We're just really getting things off the ground at this point," Darlfound that local services for chemi-

"There are some AA groups that women are finding help in," Darlington said. "They of course admit women, but there are a lot of groups women don't feel comfortable in."

The Women for Sobriety organization was founded to help fill that

One thing that Darlington has found in her work is that the physical deterioration associated with alcohol abuse occurs much more rapidly in women than it does in men.

That difference is due to the fact that women generally weigh less than men and that their systems absorb alcohol differently. Hormonal differences are also a factor.

"It makes it even more of an issue, really, to let women know there's help available."

Women are also likely to be crossaddicted, having substance abuse problems involving both alcohol and other drugs. Their access to moodaltering prescription drugs, such as Valium, contributes to that cross-ad-

"That's changing," she said, "with more and more physicians becoming aware of addiction. But it's still

"It's tough getting the groups going, and I knew it would be," Darlington said. "We were hoping to have them going by now."

The agency staff wants to be sure there are enough women involved to make the experience worthwhile.

Group treatment is generally the most effective for substance abuse problems, she said.

'It's reinforcement and some support, finding out they're not the only person that has faced that kind of problem. That's one of the reasons AA works so well."

The Plymouth agency also hopes to establish an aftercare program for people who have been through inpatient treatment. That program would be primarily for men, with treatment provided by Jeff Smith, family therapist.

"We'll see what the need is out there,"she said.

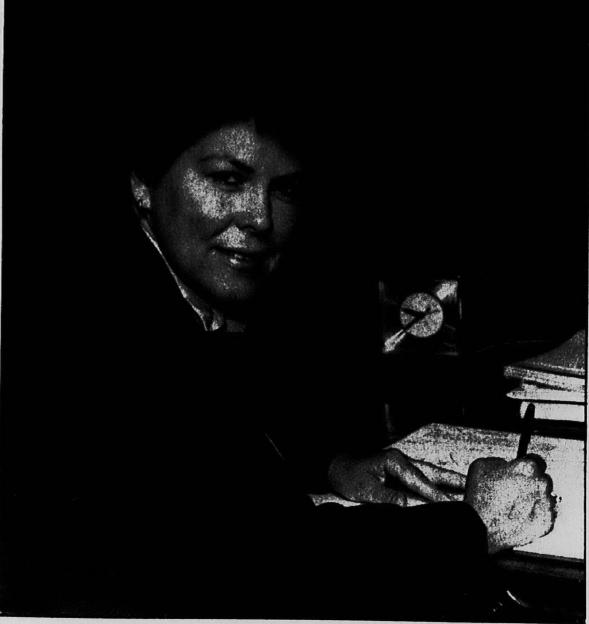

Agency staffers are also concentrating on establishing a good referral network, both for inpatient and for outpatient care.

"Part of the problem is getting people to the appropriate service." Staffers also hope eventually to establish a group for chemically dependent older adults. PROVIDING EVALUATION services for small businesses without employee assistance programs is another goal. "It's been shown that is really devastating for small companies," Darlington said of substance abuse among employees. "That is an area we are going to do. But one thing at

The current classes meet at the Plymouth Hilton Inn pool. The summer classes, however, will be held in backyard pools, the instructor said.

Chernobyl draws world closer

I HAVE followed the Chernobyl particles over a greater area of Eunuclear accident with close attention. Among all of the bad news related to this nuclear accident, one item gave me a feeling of satisfac-

Western Europe has banned the importation of food from the Soviet bloc until May 31. I felt satisfaction, not because I wanted the other side to lose, but because the seriousness about nuclear radiation is being Soviet leader Gorbachev, in his first television and radio address regarding the accident, said, "The accident at Chernobyl showed again what an abyss will open if nuclear war befalls mankind." I wish that our American and our free World Leaders were saying the same thing.

THE NATURE of the weather in Chernobyl during the explosion and fire was such that the dangerous cloud rose high in the air. Had there been a wind, the radiation would have blown more upon the area of the reactor. Many more people would have died.

The dispersion of the radioactive rope and even over North America is a more fortunate warning. It is a small warning of what could happen. We have learned to live with the bomb. We should not allow ourselves to do so. We must have a new resolve to find other solutions to the terrifying threat of nuclear war.

On the one hand we threaten the Russians with nuclear missiles and on the other hand we offer to send help to save lives threatened by this radiation.

THERE IS a deep stream of humanity in the American and Russian people that responds to tragedy felt by the other side. Year by year we are bound ever closer together. I know that people in Eastern Europe were shocked by the tragedy of the Challenger accident.

As painful as they are, such accidents may serve to remind us of the dangers of the path we are pursuing and of the manner in which we are being drawn together.

Hopefully, compassion and new options through which we can settle our differences will be the results.

The Methodist Bishops went one step further than the Roman Catholic position. The Methodist Bishops condemn all nuclear weapons, including the possession or development of nuclear arms.

This is a difficult position for it does not show us the way our nation and the free west are to pursue. How else can we protect ourselves? We don't know!

Like Albert Schweitzer, the Bishops have faced the realization that nuclear war is far worse a fate than anything else we can imagine.
The Chernobyl accident gives us a small whiff of that fate.

Let us hope and pray for a summit meeting of our leaders that will truly pave the way to new, less terrifying results. Let us heed the warning signals, by which God would guide us toward peace.

Our Lady of Fatima statue to be at churches

Day of prayer planned

PRAYER Day for World Peace will be Wednesday at the Madonna College Chapel in Livonia.

The special day will include the visitation of the Pilgrim Virgin Statue of Our Lady of Fatima.

Beginning at 8 a.m., the day will include a Mass, holy hour, and confessions and will conclude with prayer at 1:45 p.m.

The chapel is in the college Residence Building, 14221 Levan.

The statue also will appear at several local churches. It will be at St. John Bosco, 12170 Beech Daly, Redford, from 7:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday, May 30; St. Valentine, 14841 Beech Daly, Redford, 3:30-9 p.m. Friday, May 30; and at St. Colette, 17600 Newburgh, Livonia, from 9:30 a.m. to noon, Saturday, May 31. Last Monday the statue was at St. Raphael the Archangel in Garden City. .

The statue represents the appearance almost 70 years ago of the Virgin Mary to three children in Fatima, Portugal. The statue's visit to the Detroit area is sponsored by the worldwide Apostolate

For more information, call the Marion Center at 841-3377.

church bulletin

• ST. ANDREW EPISCOPAL

Tim and Darla Jack will bring their gospel music ministry to St. Andrew Episcopal Church in Livonia at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 28. They have appeared on such national television programs as "The Jim and Tammy Baker Show," the "700 Club," and their continual ministry with the Trinity Broadcast Network. St. Andrew Church is at 16360 Hubbard, off Five Mile, between Merriman and Farmington roads. For more information, call the church office at 421-8451.

BETHEL BAPTIST TEMPLE

Sunday-school and church-planting specialist Dr. James Norwood will be the guest speaker at 10 and 11 a.m. services Sunday, May 25, at Bethel Baptist Temple, 29475 W. Six Mile, Livonia. For more information, call 525-3664 or 261-9276. GRACE LUTHERAN

Dorothy Brown of Livonia will be honored at her retirement after 35 years in the teaching ministry. The occasion will be marked with a special worship service at 3 p.m. Sun-day, June 1, at St. Paul Lutheran Church, 20805 Middlebelt, Farmington Hills. A dinner and program in her honor will follow at 5:30 p.m. at Grace Lutheran Church, 25630 Grand River, Redford. Don Kell, educational administrative assistant for the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, Michigan District, will be the featured speaker. A scrapbook of letters from former students and coworkers will be presented to Brown. Before coming to St. Paul, where she taught first grade for 15 years, she taught for 13 years at Faith Luther-an School in Livonia.

Madonna courses cover spirituality

A series called Spirituality: The Wellsprings of Life is scheduled to take place in July at Madonna College.

The first program in the series will feature the Rev. John Powell, author, television lecturer and professor of theology at Loyola University. He will discuss 10 steps that lead to the discovery of peace and

Other programs with different lecturers will cover such topics as grief, scripture and sacrament, subtance abuse, and St. Francis - how "one small man found strength in life's true wellspring."

The institute will take place Monday through Friday, July 7-11, and can be taken for college credit.

Two additional college courses can be taken Monday through Friday, July 14-18. They are Introduction to Scripture: Illustrations from the Old Testament and Praying the Scriptures.

For more information, call Sister Ann Stamm, Madonna College religious studies chairwoman, at 591-

The Michigan Lutheran Teacher of the Year in 1980, Brown founded and directed St. Paul's Bucket Brigade, a volunteer tutoring program. She is a member of the Lutheran Education Association and Department of Early Childhood Education, Detroit Puppeteers' Guild, Michigan Association of Childhood Learning Disabilities and Wayne County Reading Council. She and her husband. Ralph, who taught for 45 years, have lived in Livonia for 41 years and have raised four children.

• PRINCE OF PEACE LUTHERAN

Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Westland will offer a touch of Papua, New Guinea, with its Aukee Mission Festival at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, May 31. Parishioners will be dressed in native costumes, sample authentic foods and sing native church songs. There also will be native crafts, pictures and slides of Aukee missionary work on display. The church is at 37775 Palmer, just west of Newburgh. Donations of $1 will be taken. The event is open to the public. For more information, call 722-1735.

The program marks a deeper commitment by church members to supporting Prince of Peace congregation members Dr. Waino and Sylvia Aukee, who are serving as missionaries at the Balob Teachers College in Papua. Dr. Aukee, a teacher and administrator in Wayne-Westland Schools for 31 years, is lecturer/principal of Balob College. This year marks the 100th anniversary of the Lutheran Church in Papua. Sylvia Aukee will be hostess to a group of Americans who will be touring the country and the mission fields.

WARD PRESBYTERIAN

The Rev. John B. Crimmins will be installed as associate pastor of Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia in ceremonies at 7 p.m. Sunday, May 25. Crimmins was Ward's assistant minister of pastoral care from June 1984 to September 1985. He then accepted the duties of minister of evangelism. His duties include pastoral oversight and encouragement of visitors to the church, development and implementation of programs of outreach in cooperation with the Evangelism Committee of Session, and the teaching of membership/information classes. He also teaches the Couples Class on Sunday mornings.

• ST. MARTHA

A seminar on "The Pastor, the Parish and Mental Health" took place recently at St. Martha Catholic Church in Dearborn. Sponsored by Oakwood Hospital's Pastoral Care Department, the conference was designed to help church workers understand the nature of mental illness and its effect on patients and their families. Among those presenting the program were Livonia residents the Rev. Donald H. Grandahl, staff chaplain to the mental health and medical patient care units at Oakwood, and Sandra Lemelin, psychiatric clinical nurse specialist.

Skin-cancer exam offered at church

A free skin-cancer-screening examination will be taken from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday, May 28.

The screening will be offered at St. Andrew Episcopal Church, 16360 Hubbard, Livonia. It is sponsored by the Michigan Dermatological Society and the American Cancer Society

Dermatologists will make a painless, visual examination of exposed skin areas. The program also will offer free brochures that discuss sunburn, wrinkles, premature aging and skin cancer, which strikes more than 400,000 Americans annually.

Skin Cancer Detection and Prevention Day is part of National Older Americans Melanoma/Skin Cancer Detection and Prevention Week, May 26 through June 1. But people of any age may undergo the free ex-

An authentic American hero - the detective

Dick. Peeper. Snooper. Sleuth.

No matter what he is called, the hard-boiled detective, or private eye, is an American institution, as native as jazz, as recognizable as Mickey Mouse, as appealing as apple pie, as durable as the game of baseball," according to Dr. David Geherin of Eastern Michigan University.

A professor in the department of English language and literature, Geherin is author of a new book, "The American Private Eye - The Image in Fiction." For it, he has been nominated for an Edgar Award tive is cloaked in many disguises and popularized through a variety of media - pulp magazines, novels, radio dramas, films and television series. He has become one of the most familiar figures in American cultural mythology.

TELEVISION detective series such as "Remington Steele," "Murder She Wrote," "Hardcastle and McCormick," "Black's Magic," "Rockford Files," and "Mike Hammer" have experienced a great deal of popularity and success. But Geherin says this type of story has always been popular and interest has never waned.

"Mysteries in one form or another have always been popular. Ever since the first private eye stories began in the 1920s, this type of writing has been very popular, in magazines, in movies. Even though there have been changes, one type of mystery might be more popular in one year than another type. There is and always has been a large audience for mysteries.

'A private eye is the type of hero that women in their hearts wish they had married and men in their hearts wish they were really like."

> - author David Geherin Eastern Michigan University

He added, "One reason is that the private eye hero is an authentic American hero.

"The romanticism with the actual American hero, which began in the 19th century with adventurers like Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett, has evolved to include modern heroes depicted in movies such as 'One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest' and the 'Grapes of Wrath.'

'All cultures need heroes because they remind us of what we are capable of accomplishing, they satisfy our own desires for accomplishment in our lives and it makes us feel better that there are people who can

GEHERIN'S BOOK examines writers of private eye novels from the 1920s and Prohibition through the Depression, World War II, the postwar years, and in the present decade with its changing sex roles.

Private eye novels reflect the society of the times. As the times change so do the stories and the characters.

During the period of disillusionment that followed World War I, a new crop of writers came into being. Suddenly, the world was not the orderly place that it used to be where problems were always solved through the use of reason.

"World War I exposed violence and brutality," said Geherin. "The early writers created tough characters instead of those who used intellectual reasoning.

"The characters were those who had to use other means such as fists. guns, guile, shrewdness, street

WHILE TODAY'S private eye still uses the same survival skills as those of earlier years, Geherin has found that current writers depict detectives as vulnerable people, as very common men with human qualities.

"They are not perfect and are often lonely men who are unhappy in their private lives. Private eves are either single or divorced and many have a drinking problem. They are often men with personal unhappiness and problems," he added.

"One of the remarkable things about the private eye novel is that it has attracted such very good writers," Geherin said, citing Raymond Chandler who revolutionized the private eye novel with his unique style.

Chandler, a former businessman, is well known for writing the adventures of supersleuth Philip Marlow. And like many other novelists of this genre, Chandler began as a pulp

One such magazine, Black Mask, provided the first forum for the adventures of Race Williams and the Continental Op, the earliest private eye. According to Geherin, a score of other mystery pulps that soon followed its lead made it possible for men in their hearts wish they were the fledgling private eye hero to de-

Many pulp writers faded into obscurity. But a few lucky ones, like Chandler, achieved a lasting audience because their books were published in hardcover.

Geherin discusses the style, the life and the times of many notable writers and their characters. They include Mickey Spillane by Mike Hammer, Lew Archer by Ross McDonald and Dan Fortune by Michael Collins.

Geherin further points out that there are basic differences between the British detective novel and the American private eye novel. "In the British mystery, the focus is on the who dunnit?' and they are largely puzzle mysteries where the detective puts the pieces together, revealing the criminal in the end," he said.

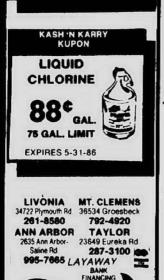

This can be seen in the popular British adventures of Sherlock Holmes and in stories by Agatha Christie.

"THE AMERICAN private eye novel is more realistic in its depiction of character, crime and society, placing the emphasis on the hero of the story," Geherin added, noting the characters are not infallible and often solve crimes through trial and

The private eye novel appeals to men and women. "The hero isn't just a macho super man, he's vulnerable, sensitive, courageous and has principles," Geherin said. "A private eye is the type of hero that women in their hearts wish they had married and

Quality of work life: loosening job rigidity

By Kevin Brown staff writer

me when I call? You ain't so big - You just tall, that's about all.' When blues singer Jimmy Reed sang these lyrics in the '50s, he spoke to workers who knew the indignity of facing the mean 'ol foreman.

Even today, workers in certain jobs, typically mass production, perform set tasks under strict rules for companies uninterested in their suggestions.

Often, output and quality have suffered as workers take little pride in a company that equates them with another tool or machine. But in some companies, this is changing.

'The basic organizational structure in industry has been for decades that management makes all the decisions and employees are told what to do and how to do it," says Irving Bluestone, retired United Auto Workers vice president. "The failure to include employees was a failure to utilize their resources."

By the late '60s in the auto industry, "There was a growing alienation taking place as the younger workers left school and experienced the autocratic behavior one finds at an auto plant," says Bluestone, now a professor of labor studies at Wayne State University.

AS AN ASSISTANT to UAW President Walter Ruether, Bluestone presented a proposal to General Motors "Big boss man, can't you hear in the late '60s. It called for worker involvement in decision making. The plan was rejected in 1970, but GM accepted the proposal in 1973 as Bluestone helped establish a National Committee to Improve the Quality of Work Life.

Today, quality of work life (QWL) programs involving managers and employees are working in major car companies, in the steel industry, at AT&T and Honeywell, and in city and state government offices.

Generally, a QWL program involves managers and employee representatives meeting regularly to solve problems and discuss goals. Where the process has been successful, companies generally report higher productivity, less absenteeism and fewer worker grievances. And workers report higher job satisfaction and more pride in their work.

Delmar "Dutch" Landen, a former director of organizational research and development for GM, left that company four years ago to sell consulting services to firms implementing QWL programs. He's also president of the Michigan Quality of Work Life Council, a non-profit educational organization which includes state management, government and labor

LANDEN SAYS that in order for those programs to succeed, management "has to accept the fact and realize that there is nothing divine about an organization (structure)."

The QWL concept caught on when manufacturers sought to improve quality and productivity in the face of stiff foreign competition. Before this, businesses generally followed the precepts of scientific management, he says.

According to scientific management, Landen explains, a telephone operator's efficiency was not measured by how successfully she communicated with a customer. Rather, she was evaluated by how briefly she dealt with a caller

In the auto industry, "having the product was more important than how good the product was," says Landen. "Back in the late '60s, what did you compare an American car to? This was not only true of the auto companies, it was true of much of Americar industry.

guidelines to its divisions for developing QWL programs: Assess employee talents and use them where possible in decision making, make jobs more challenging through use of new methods and technology, create a work place where employees want to contribute to company goals, and insist that management groups both accept and solicit employee contributions

Bluestone says QWL programs at some plants have shown marked success, while others "have limped along." Landen says a big stumbling block is convincing middle and lower managers - traditionally disciplinarians — of the concept's potential.

IN MARCH 1981, the city of Southfield began implementing its own QWL plan. Donald Michaelson, city personnel director, says it was suggested by a former GM employee who joined the city staff. "You're talking to an evangelist - I really Today, GM provides these general believe in the process," Michaelson it with the union leaders in various organizations. Their reaction was positive," he recalls.

Still, union leaders were wary of giving up freedoms under the plan. And managers were concerned that they might be compromising their right to manage. "The line man could feel it was a means of end-running them," Michaelson offers.

And because those seeking to implement the concept embrace language like "resource management," "maximizing potential" and "coordinators-facilitators," some in mangement, Michealson says, thought the QWL idea was a lot of "mumbo jum-

WHILE IT'S taken time, the QWL concept is working in Southfield, Michaelson says.

"What it's done is improve our communication, our trust. There was one year when management and labor didn't communicate, except through grievances," he says. To demonstrate, Michaelson says the number of worker grievances has fallen from 20-30 per year before QWL to no more than three per year

"Before, if you saw a problem coming along requiring disciplinary action, you'd let it happen, then go through the grievance process," says Michaelson. "Now if I see a potential

"We started initially by discussing picking up the phone and calling Ed (Turnquist, union local president) and saying, 'Let's talk about this.'"

Michaelson says it took two years for the concept to begin working well. "It's been more accepted the more we deal with it. It was a dramatic change from the old school."

Bluestone says implementing a QWL program has failed when top management wasn't strongly committed. "The chief focus of the process is to create increased job satisfaction. It's not a productivity gimmick," says Bluestone.

ON THE OTHER hand, GM spokesman John Mueller said the effectiveness of QWL programs lessens when workers "blur the lines" between a QWL program and the grievance process.

To those planning to adopt a QWL program, Michaelson offers advice: 'Be sure it's an open process; keep middle managers informed and your line supervisors. For management, an easy pitfall to get into is ignoring some middle management people."

In evaluating the QWL concept's success in industry to date, Bluestone, said, "Overall, I'd say it continues to grow and will continue to grow.

Five years since implementing the program, Michaelson says, "We've got a long way to go. But no one I think would go back to the old way."

'Having the product was more important than how good the product was. Back in the late '60s, what did you compare an American car to? This was not only true of the auto companies, it was true of much of American industry.'

Federal contracts worth pursuing in spite of red tape

Chichester works at the Business Development Center at Schoolcraft College. He has about 100 local clients, half of them actively bidding on government jobs. They include small manufacturing firms, hightechnology companies, architects, engineers, even attorneys and accountants.

"GOVERNMENT USES the services of all kinds of consultants and independent contractors," he said. 'I'll work with anybody."

government is buying.

"Most firms that try to do government work get frustrated and give up. They shouldn't. There is lots of money to be made on government contracts," Chichester said.

He cites a couple of success stories. A small machine shop in Livonia has been receiving contracts valued at $5,000 to $10,000. A Detroit battery manufacturer virtually launched its business on a $100,000 contract.

Why deal with the government? Chichester cited two major benefits. "People in federal government hardly know you, so they don't take it personally when you don't bid on a job. That's not always the case in the private sector. But an even better reason is that the government always has the money to pay you."

Business owners wanting to explore government contracts may reach Chichester at 591-6400.

Timing service can help long-term investor

Part III

Some of our clients are pros when it comes to managing their own investment portfolios. Most people, however, have neither the expertise nor the patience to handle their own investments.

For them, I strongly recommend the use of a professional timing service. Today, I will reproduce an earlier column on the concept of timing services mutual funds, like the stock market, fluctuate on a day-to-day basis. Upon closer analysis we find that, over the long haul, a growth mutual fund can behave in one of the four ways dem-

Possible results

Obviously, a timing service is helpless in Cases 3 and 4.

Case 2 timed, because it would serve no useful purpose to go in and out of an upward-bound mutual fund. Only Case 1 lends itself to timing service

An illustration

It should now be clear that use of a timing service constitutes a longterm strategy. For a timing service to produce results superior to that which would be expected under Case 2. the market must experience several wide gyrations, so the timing service can get in and out of the It is a commonplace that growth market to take advantage of low prices prevailing at the respective market troughs.

Here is how it works. When the market approaches the peak, the timing service liquidates your mutual fund investment and parks it temporarily in a money market fund.

The timing service then withdraws the money from the money market fund and fully invests in the mutual fund. This step can result in a sizeable improvement in investment returns, as is demonstrated in the following hypothetical illustra-

In this case, the results are phenomenal. Over a two-year period, ABC mutual fund has stagnated, since the beginning and the ending price is exactly the same ($10). A buy-and-hold strategy would, therefore, be a complete failure.

Copy machine scam targets small business

Some unsuspecting businesses appear to be getting duped by some out-state copy machine supply com-

When Fuller questioned Main Distribution Center's office, she said they became abusive.

They cussed away at us," said Fuller, who's a partner in the 10month old business. "We told them we were returning the stuff. They said they wouldn't accept it."

Fuller and her partner Carole Lewis were told they would be charged shelf space for the returned merchandise.

Wilkinson has heard similar complaints from other area small businesses, which have been overcharged for toner by suppliers located in California. She first came across the scam after one of the companies in Culver City, Calif., Interstate Distribution Center, was confused with Interstate Photo Copying Service.

The Community House in Birmingham was charged $149 for two bottles of toner by Interstate Distribution Center for their Sharp copier. Jennie Casio of the Community "TO THE BEST of my knowledge, they (the photo copy suppliers) have a Watts line," said Wilkinson, who lives in Bloomfield Hills. "They'll call up a secretary and say, 'I was in your office the other day. That's a neat copy machine you have. What type is it? Where did you get it from?'"

Then, according to Wilkinson, they call back a few days later. They tell the secretary that the price of toner is going to go up soon and they should place an order before it does. The secretary, thinking of saving the company money, orders the toner at the inflated price.

Fuller recounted a similar story A person from Main Distribution Center called and said they were in charge of her account and urged her to order a case of toner before the price rose.

A general inquiry was made to Main Distribution Center's office in Los Angeles, asking what the price was for a case of toner for Canon PC copier (the same type at Communication Specialists). A person said

Makers taste Michigan wines

Michigan's wineries get together. It takes something special. And that "something special" happened earlier this week.

Ten representatives of Michigan's wine industry gathered to honor Michigan in its week, pour their wines and generally converse with guests, at the Lord Fox restaurant in Ann Arbor. Driving force behind this aggregation was Partners in Wine of that city, the occasion designed to illustrate the growing quality of our local wines.

Representatives came from the three corners of the industry: the older, southwest section west of Paw Paw, and the Traverse Bay area, as well as the southeast with Oakland County's sole winery, all to honor the industry in this year before our sesquicentennial.

There is a divided spirit among them. There are those who advocate that the future can best be realized by using only vinifera grapes to make wine, the kind used generally in the great regions of France, Germany, Italy and California.

SOME OF THESE grapes can be, and have been, grown successfully in this refrigerator in which we live. Vinifera grapes are not particularly winter hardy and they also require more sun and heat to ripen than our sometimes-too-brief summers grant us.

Another group argues that we should grow hybrid grapes, those that dependably produce decent, if not great, wines. They carry such rather unfamiliar names as Seyval, Vidal, Baco Noir, Chancellor and many more. The position goes that we should grow and use those grapes that do reasonably well, even though they are not the equal of vinifera.

It is encouraging that the scourge of past decades, the native labrusca grapes varietals, are for the most part no longer in general use. That issue is put away finally with the evolving tastes of wine drinkers.

But which course is the better? That was the hidden agenda behind much of the conversation at the Lord Fox. The answer was not easily evident.

Guided by Stan Howell from the Horticultural Department of Michigan State University, discussions were held during the event, on this and other matters both vinicultural and viticultural.

Advocates for vinifera wines. which generally means only Char-donnay and Riesling, are Leelanau Ltd., Tabor Hills and Chateau Grand Traverse. Indeed, the first of these poured its initial release of estate-grown Chardonnay, the

BUT IT IS determined to expand these, along with a matching plot of Pinot Noir, using both eventually to produce sparkling wines. In 1984, birds wiped out the entire Pi-not Noir crop and a third of the Chardonnay, showing that birds in the Bay area may have cast their votes for grape preferences, at any

The other group, the hybrid growers, are no less strong in their beliefs as well as their winemaking skills. These include Boskydel, Good Harbor, Mawby and Seven Lakes. Probably the most preferred white varietal among this group is the Vignoles. From it both Boskydel and Mawby make wines of remarkable, high character.

Seyval is also popular, and the Aurore from Seven Lakes is a wine not to be missed if one is taking an assessment of the merits of the two kinds of grapes.

"I'm convinced we can make superior wines from these hybrids," said Chris Guest of Seven Lakes. The previously tiny winery is now undergoing expansion in both the field and at the winery. "We get good tonnage here in Oakland County (Holly area) and our sales are catching on."

Guest's wines will be shown at an October event at the Novi Sheraton, at which time he will display the one of which he is to date most proud, a 1986 Seyval.

BERNIE RINKE at Boskydel has varied the woods he has used to age his recent Vignoles, the 1984 showing very well at the event.

And Larry Mawby's Vignoles, which in 1984 produced both a regular and a reserve, are both fine wines, showing complexity and firm fruit structure.

Good Humor does a good deal of blending to produce its Proprietor's Reserve, and it may be the class of the field.

The event was a tough one for a red wine drinker, but such is the nature of viticulture in Michigan. One excpetion, the only red served that day, was St. Julian. That winery is currently marketing three Village wines: red, white and blush. Consensus of many in the audience was these are superior wines, all three, the last two being complex blends and the red being essentially Baco Noir.

Michigan wines showed well at the Lord Fox and representatives in attendance agreed that we should all support these wines more than we do.

Timing is right on target for 'Rosary Murders'

By Victoria Diaz special writer

HOOTING OF "The Rosary Murders," which began April 7 at Detroit's Holy Redeemer Church, is about to wind down - right on schedule.

If post-production work goes as planned, the movie, based on the book by Southfield author William Kienzle, and with a screenplay by Birmingham's Elmore Leonard, will have its world premiere in Detroit come October.

As filming slowly comes to a halt, the production office at Holy Redeemer one recent afternoon is still a hodge-podge of old tables, folding chairs, pots of coffee, constantly ringing telephones and extremely busy people.
Actor Charles Durning, dressed in Everyman's tan windbreaker and nondescript dark trousers, stands in an anteroom, serenading no one in particular in sonorous tones that may well be audible as far away as Grosse Pointe.

OCCASIONALLY, he emerges from the room to take a phone call (once from producer-director Steven Spielberg), or to chat with a visitor, looking as he often does on-screen amiable and a little rumpled.

After some time, producer Bobby Laurel appears at the door of the office. He is not wearing a silk suit, a monogrammed shirt, or a diamondstudded, gold watch. Also, he is not smoking a cigar.

Instead, he looks a little like he might be headed for a golf game lat-er. But right now he is carrying a briefcase and looking pretty much like everybody else — distracted.

He does not remain in the office very long. In fact, he never sits down (actually, nobody seems to) but stands near the door, talking with an assistant for only a few minutes before he rushes out, heading for the stairs and his private office on the third floor.

On the quieter third floor of the old auditorium building at Holy Redeemer is a room where film is edited, a room where the results of the day's shooting is viewed, and where there is a large, high-ceilinged costume room, filled to bursting with movable racks of clothing. Also, down the hall is the private office of Laurel, suburban Redford's No. One movie producer.

IN THE OFFICE, there's definitely no rich, wood paneling on the walls, no cushy carpet on the floor, and no magnificent executive desk.

There is, however, Bobby Laurel, Holy Redeemer '56 (and then known as Bobby Lessnau), seated at a table in an old armchair, eating candies out of a Styrofoam cup and going through the contents of the everpresent briefcase - removing notes, letters, a business card and a paperback copy of "The Rosary Murders." A "Say Yes to Michigan" T-shirt has been tossed over the back of the armchair and several multicolored rosaries are on a nearby table.

"We're looking at those to see what we want to use in one of the shots," Laurel says.

It is 3 in the afternoon and Laurel, 48, is about halfway through his day. He looks tired but only a little and claims that 12-16-18-hour days are something he's almost grown used to since filming began.

The work, however, may be just beginning.

We're shooting pretty much on schedule," says the rookie producer. "But we've put together a very rigorous, tough, post-production schedule almost unheard of."

IF THE POST-PRODUCTION schedule can't be met by October, Laurel says he will hold the picture back until the first of the year, in order to avoid competing with blockbuster Christmas releases.

"There's no way I could compete with big-budget pictures," says Laurel, whose budget reportedly is around $2-5 million. "Not that I couldn't compete with them creatively, but because (my picture) would be taken out of theaters in order to move 'bigger' pictures in."

While the post-production schedule may be tough, Laurel believes it will be met.

"After all," he says, leaning back in the old armchair, "everybody said we could never do what we've just

Laurel, a Redford resident for 15 years, began securing all local backing for the set-in-Detroit murder mystery shortly after buying movie

Choosing to shoot the picture in the Detroit area for economic reasons, Laurel says he wanted to shoot specifically in and around Holy Redeemer, not only because he was familiar with the neighborhood (the youngest of 10 children, he grew up at the corner of Junction and W. Vernor), but because he hopes the movie may play some part in a renaissance of that neighborhood.

"THE HERITAGE is here," he says. "Holy Redeemer was once a very proud institution. We were an athletic powerhouse. We graduated students who went on to become doctors, judges, attorneys. I mean it when I say that, along with making the movie, we're just as committed to seeing this institution come back to where it once was.'

All in all, community support has been "extremely helpful," Laurel says. "With the exception of one thing, it's been so far, so good for everybody."

The "exception" Laurel refers to is a lawsuit filed this month by longtime friend Kienzle, in an attempt to obtain a copy of the script. Kienzle, whose contract does not stipulate script approval, sued Laurel amid recent news reports that Holy Redeemer pastor the Rev. Joseph

"He says his reason for doing it is because Father Koesler is his bread and butter. Well, I can tell you, my friend, that, at this point, he is my meat and potatoes. For me not to keep (Koesler) the 'Colombo of the collar' would be defeating my own purpose. Why would I do that?

But, in any case, we want to do a quality motion picture here. We want to do something with class and something that we can all be proud of. And we've all worked long and hard to do that.

Shortly, after packing up the briefcase again, he's off to look in on filming and to keep another appointment. But not before making a brief visit to the editing room, checking in at the still-busy production office and advising an inquiring visitor about the best route to take in order to reach a suburban destination.

"I take the back ways," he says, standing on the front steps of the old auditorium building and explaining details of the route he takes home to Redford each night.

Somehow, when he says that, you're not surprised.

"Yankee Doodle Dandy" (1942), 8 p.m. Friday on Ch. 50. Origi-nally 126 minutes. TV time slot: 150 minutes.

For years James Cagney made his reputation playing a little tough guy with a chip on his shoulder. But Cagney always thought of himself as a song and dance man. He loved dancing more than acting but rarely got a chance to show his prowess. When he did, it was full speed ahead with one of the classic film performances of all time and an Oscar winner at that. Cagney is all energy as composer-entertainer George M. Cohan in one of the most enjoyable and lavish film biographies ever made. It's Cagney's show and we're in very good hands. The songs may have dated but the appeal never will. My mother thanks you, my father thanks you and I thank you, Mr. Cagney. Rating: $3.80.

"The Right Stuff" (1983), 9 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 7. Originally 193 minutes. TV time slot: 240 minutes over two nights.

This movie is right on target but the audience didn't understand what they were seeing. Director Philip Kaufman made a film true to the spirit of Tom Wolfe's great book on the Mercury astronauts and their forebears, the test pilots. The movie and book are part talltale legend and part comedy. The movie makes explicit what is only implicit in the book, but that was necessary to tie together the two related stories - the heroic exploits of pilot Chuck Yeager (played with stoic brilliance by Sam Shepard) and the adventures of the first astronauts. Some of the comedy is too broad, especially a ludicrous portrayal of Lyndon Johnson, but much of it works very well without being demeaning to the spirit and valor of the astronauts. As in the book, however, Yeager is the true hero under whose shadow and in whose legend the astronauts walk. In addition to Shepard, Dennis Quaid as Gordon Cooper, Ed Harris as John Glenn and Fred Ward as Gus Grissom are excellent.

Rating: $3.75.

Cruise on the Rhine is a vacationer's find

T IS A COOL spring morning on the Rhine River in Germany. The tourist season hasn't really started yet so there are not many people here with me on the riverfront at Linz am Rhein.

A few of my fellow passengers have strolled into Linz to photograph the half-timbered buildings in the Sunday morning light, or to attend services in the medieval church, but most are just finishing breakfast on the KD cruise ship Italia, moored nearby amid a row of international flags.

Iris Jones

Most of the activity is on the river itself, where long low freight barges make a constant moving foreground between the picturesque villages that line both banks of the Rhine.

The Rhine is similar in width and style to the Detroit River, wider in the north, narrower in the south, but the boats have a different look because these ships don't go out into the rough weather of the Great Lakes, or down a seaway to the ocean, as our Salties and Lakers do.

RHINE HOLIDAY boats cruise the whole 600 mile stretch of the Rhine River from Basel, Switzerland, just downriver from Lake Constance, through the river cities of Germany and the Netherlands to Rotterdam near the North Sea.

I am with a press group taking a taste of a Rhine cruise along part of that route, from Dusseldorf to Mannheim in Germany.

This gives us a morning in Cologne, a few days in the popular Middle Rhine area, a bus detour down part of the Mosel River and a good look at the famous castles that top every hill along what is known as the Romantic Rhine.

There are several cruise lines on various parts of the Rhine, but most of the docks in Germany are for the KD German Rhine Line, largest and oldest passenger cruise line on the Rhine, which has been cruising the river under various names for 150

KD HAS EIGHT cabin ships sailing various itineraries up and down either the Rhine or the Mosel rivers, with special cruises to explore such things as the Holland tulins or the German wine cellars.

The cruises are either first class or Europa class; the main difference seems to be that first class gives you five courses for lunch and dinner. while the Europa class only gives you three.

Cruise ships like this are pleasant and comfortable but basic. They are not like Caribbean cruise lines, although most KD ships have small swimming pools aboard. The Italia is 341 feet long and carries up to 192 passengers in 96 cabins. The rooms are compact, reminiscent of a sail boat: a small shower and toilet, washbasin tucked behind a cupboard door, a small table beside the window and two single beds a day couch that wears a thin mattress at night and a single bed that pulls down from the wall.

THERE ARE three public areas where we spend our on-board time: a large glass-walled lounge for drinking, snacking, reading and socializing while the river scenery goes by, a large open sundeck, and a large dining room, also well-windowed for the view.

The food is excellent. It is of course included in the price of your ticket, but add the cost of wine and drinks to your budget. You should also be prepared to spend about $60 a week on tips, usually given in one lump sum at the end of the trip.

This has been the coldest spring in more than a century, but summer cruisers should find pleasant warm weather and occasional summer rain on the Rhine, as the Romans, Celts. Franks, Vikings and World War II warriors did before them.

Most of the major cities on the west bank - known here as the "left - were founded by the Romans. The Romans brought Christianity to Europe, so many of today's beautiful cathedrals, like the stun-

Cologne (in German its Koln), Koblenz, Gernsheim (with a side trip to Heidelberg), Koenigswinter, Speyer, the wine villages of Boppard and Rudesheim, and the castle towns of Braubach and Oberwelel.

There are also 50 sailings on the Mosel River, especially the most scenic stretch between Koblenz and Trier, which cost $175 to $209 for two days and $244 to $261 for three days. If they fit the rest of your travel schedule, you might also want to explore special cruises such as the waterways of Holland, a floating wine seminar, or a special five-country cruise that includes Antwerp in Belgium. If you can't do the whole Rhine River cruise, you can also buy a portion of it under certain circumstances.

Our river

How we polluted the Rouge, how we can reclaim it

"It is with rivers as it is with people: The greatest are not always the most agreeable nor the best to live with."

Henry Van Dyke, "Little Rivers"

The Rouge River is our river. It flows through our communities, through our parks, through our back yards.

Recent studies call the Rouge River the dirtiest waterway in Michigan, and perhaps the worst in the entire Great Lakes Region. It has been assigned the status of a Class "A" Area of Concern by the International Joint Commission on the Great Lakes Basin. Downriver sections of the waterway, thick and smelly, are considered health threatening.

The continued pollution of the 125 miles of the Rouge and its tributaries affects our communities. Consequently, any effort to clean up the Rouge also must involve our communities.

ON THURSDAY, May 29, the 12 Observer & Eccentric Newspapers will publish a special all-news section devoted exclusively to the Rouge River.

We will explore all facets of the river basin. We'll look at the geological forces that created the river, the men and women who settled along its banks, and the modern manufacturers who've altered its course.

Other reports will examine the pollution in Rouge and the wideranging plans for staunching the flow of pollutants and reclaiming the Rouge for recreational uses.

OUR TAX DOLLARS AS SCRUPULOUSLY AS THEY COLLECT THEM.

Last year, the federal government collected over $300 billion in personal income taxes.

Money that was used to take care of the needy. To run the country. And to protect it. But that's not all it was used for.

LAST OF THE BIG-TIME SPENDERS

Your taxes also went to pay $435 for a $7 hammer. $7,417 for a 1-cent pin. And $511 for a 60-cen light bulb.

In a single year, the government gives away over $5 billion in benefit payments. Totally by mistake.

And the government not managing its money properly costs taxpayers over $2 billion every year.

These incidents of inefficiency and mismanagement are so vast they could fill a book. (To be exact, they fill over 21,000 pages of documents in the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control.) Yet as wasteful as they are, they're not the problem, just the symptoms.

The problem is a system of inefficient government procedures and practices that allows them to happen. Out-dated policies and controls that are out of control and threatening the interests of all Americans.

IS AMERICA GOING TO WASTE AWAY?

America is staring straight down the barrel of a financial disaster. The federal deficit is closing in on $200 billion a year. The national debt has already reached an unimaginable $1.8 trillion.

One of our only chances to head off disaster is to stop wasting our tax dollars.

That's why we formed Citizens Against Government Waste.

WHO AND WHAT IS CITIZENS AGAINST GOVERNMENT WASTE?

Citizens Against Government Waste is a non-profit educational foundation made up of concerned citizens. Democrats, Republicans, Conservatives, Liberals.

Taxpayers just like you, who are extremely concerned with how their tax money is being mismanaged.

To that end, we've established a toll-free phone number: 1-800-USA-DEBT. By calling it, you can receive information that will give you a better understanding of the real magnitude and consequences of government waste. And what you can actually do about it.

So call, or write us at 1511 K Street, N.W., Suite 540, Washington, D.C. 20005. Please.

Because our country can't afford this. And neither can you.

Junior A icers eye Plymouth as potential home

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Is Plymouth going to get a Junior A hockey club?

It's a possibility, according to Les Vita, the general manager of the Hennessey Engineers of the North American Junior Hockey League.

We're talking to Plymouth this week," said Vita, who is moving the club from Redford. "Their rink is pretty loaded (with activity). We've narrowed the choices down to Eddie Edgar Arena in Livonia, Lincoln Park, Allen Park, Ecorse and Plymouth Vita said the move out of the Redford Arena was forced by rising costs. The Engineers were paying up to $85 an hour to play games at Redford, according to Vita. He said other ice rinks were asking from $50 to $65 an hour. The team needs a minimum of seven hours of ice time per week.

The Plymouth Cultural Center ice can be rented for $60 an hour according to assistant parks and recreation director Tom Willette.

"It cost the owner $38,000 to run the club last year," Vita said. "You have to draw the line some place."

The St. Clair Shores-based Falcons, winners of the NAJHL, spent more than $50,000 last year

Vita also said that Hennessey was committed to sponsoring the Engineers next season.

IT IS VERY likely that the Engineers will move into one of the downriver rinks. Hennessey Engineering, the sponsor of the team, is located in the downriver area.

"It's simply a matter of where the owner wants to spend his money," said Hugh Melvin, an official both with the Engineers and the league. "He has his business downriver. I'm sure it's nothing against Redford.

Vita expects to make his decision within a month.

Meanwhile, the Engineers have named A.J. Baker as their head coach. He replaces Bobby Daniels who coached the team to a secondpace finish last year.

Baker has been involved with junior and amateur hockey for many years. He initiated the popular Midwest Summer Hockey League, which is housed at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

He was the team's assistant coach last year

All work, no play?

State acts on grid, soccer playoffs

T HAS always been my impression that these annumeetings of the Michigan High School Athletic Association's Representative Council were akin to a Shriner's convention - you know, bunch of good old boys and girls celebrating the close of another school year

They always huddle for a weekend up north somewhere at a lodge or resort hotel. This year they went up to Spring Lake - I don't know where Spring Lake is but it sounds nice.

By "they," I refer to the 19-member council, a group of school administrators, principals and coaches who legislate the MHSAA. Also along this year were six MHSAA staff members, including lame-duck grand poohbah Vern Norris.

In most years, very little business is conducted at the annual meeting. Just routine items, budgets, staff reports and maybe a slight rule change.

The gang basically threw itself a year-end party.

This was clearly not the case this year

The council took care of some serious business this year, the result of which will be felt in the prep sports community beginning next fall

THE MOST-publicized of the council's actions was the ruling on the state football playoffs.

Yes, the playoff format will include 64 teams, 16 in each enrollment class. But beginning in the fall of 1987. the first football game of the season will be played prior to Labor Day. This will allow the scheduling of an additional playoff date.

The council had considered using the ninth game of the season as the first playoff date or playing two playoff games in one week.

"I didn't like the idea of disrupting the nine-game schedule or playing two games in a week," said Plymouth Salem coach Tom Moshimer. "This is the only an-

That seems to be the consensus among area coaches. The only worry was having enough practice time. The council will allow teams to practice the week of Aug. 10 (pads optional). The first official week of practice begins Aug 17. No pads will be allowed the first three days of that week.

What it comes down to is 10 extra days of conditioning," said Walt Bazylewicz, director of the Catholic League and council member. "No one can say we're rushing teams into the season without enough time to

BAZYLEWICZ ALSO asked the council to reconsider the national rule forcing basketball coaches to remain seated throughout games lest they be slapped with a

Chris McCosky

Alas, coaches, keep the seat belts. The council tossed out Bazylewicz's motion

Several changes were made in soccer

First, and most important, players red-carded (booted from the game) will have to sit out the next game, regardless if it is a regular season or tournament match.

Currently, if a player is red-carded, the suspension lasts only until the end of that game. Thus, if a player draws the card with two seconds left in the match, the suspension lasts two seconds. Big deal. With the new rule, players will think twice before enacting their frustrations at the end of a match.

The council made many soccer officials happy with this ruling. The hard part will be administering the penalties and keeping track of suspensions.

Also, the state soccer tournament will now be divided into classes: A, B-C and D for boys, A and B-C-D for girls. There will be districts, regionals and state finals similar to basketball. No more confusing preregional qualifiers and odd-shaped brackets.

AN INTERESTING proposal was made by representatives of the Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook-Kingswood High School regarding its hockey team.

Cranbrook asked permission to take one trip beyond the 300-mile radius allowed by the state and to be granted 26 playing dates rather than the allotted 22 games and four scrimmages.

The council listened patiently to Cranbrook's wellstated rationale, then said, "Uh, no. Next item."

There were many other changes made, like granting a medal to the third low medalist in a golf regional and allowing the top three teams in each cross country regional to qualify for state regardless of the size of the

But don't get the idea that it was all work and no play for council members.

Early in the meeting, the council granted $48.15 per day for six days to those members attending a conference in Nevada, plus a $30-a-day per diem and reimbursement for registration fees, luncheons and banquets. Oh, almost forgot — those members will receive round-trip air fare.

Have a nice trip.

Salem keeps Mangan title

Plymouth Salem's girls track team put a damper on Plymouth Canton's magical season Monday by denying the one title the Chiefs have never won.

The Rocks beat Canton 67-57 in the girls half of the Mangan Relays, ending the Chiefs' bid for an unbeaten dual meet season.

The Chiefs came into the meet ranked No. 4 in Observerland and dual meet champs of the Western Lakes Western Division. Salem had won only one of four dual meets.

"They had been running a little better than us this season and in order for us to, we had to have an allout team effort," said Salem coach Fred Thomann.

And that's exactly what the Rocks gave him.

"We just didn't match up well with them in the field events and hurdles," said Canton coach George Pryzgodski

The Rocks outscored Canton 17-1 in the hurdles and 20-12 in field

"We chopped away at a lot of that deficit, but we couldn't get all of it," the first-year Canton head coach

KAREN MARCINIAK won both the shot put (30-5) and discus (109-0) for the Rocks. Amy Johnson was also a double winner. The personable senior took the long jump (14-11) and the 110-yard high hurdles (16.6).

Dena Head scored in three events for the Rocks. She won the 100 dash (11.8), and anchored both the 440 relay (54.7) and the 880 relay (1.54.2). She teamed with Heather Harwood, Lee Zelek and Jenny Smith in the 440. Zelek, Kristen Hostynski, and Smith in the 880.

Hostynski won the 330 low hurdles for Salem in 50.1.

For the Chiefs, Tricia Carney and Marie Jarosz were the top scorers. Carney won the 220 (28.24) and 440 (1.03.4) while Jarosz won the mile (5.50.1) and 880 (2.32.8).

Jarosz and Carney teamed with Jennifer Gansler and Angie Miller to win the mile relay (4.25.5). Jarosz, Gansler. Miller and Karen Boluch won the 2-mile relay in 10:37.7.

MILLER WON the high jump (4-6) and Linda Schendel won the 2-mile (12 41.5). The Chiefs ran without the services of Rachel Mann, one of the teams top distance runners.

"When the meet got into the hurdles and sprints, Canton was in a chase situation," Thomann said. "It was a good victory for us."

Pryzgodski, though disappointed with the loss, managed to put it into perspective.

"Anything worthwhile is worth waiting for," he said of the Mangan title. "I've waited five years now, another year won't make that much difference."

Northville ousts Stevenson, 5-3

By Brad Emons staff writer

"That Championship Season," a soccer production that has been running without interruption for four years at Stevenson High School, played to its final audience Tuesday night.

Northville's Mustangs rode into brisk night and galloped away with a 5-3 victory in a regional girls semifinal match on the Spartans' home field

It was the first loss of the season for the defending state champions, who bowed out of tournament play with a 16-1-3 record.

But more significantly, it signals the first time a Stevenson team will not appear in a state final. Stevenson's boys have made four appearances, winning twice and losing twice, while the girls have won two and lost once (in 1984 to Northville).

The final curtain was evidently coming for quite some time, particularly after the Spartans lost starting goalie Elaine Zager and top scorer Lori Green, both to season-ending injuries, in a 0-0 tie with Western Lakes Soccer League champion Livonia Churchill.

"WE DIDN'T HAVE a back-up goalie this season and we tried as hard as we could," said Stevenson coach Norene Divens, whose record is 89-5-4 over the past four years. "We can't ask girls who have never played. Three of the five goals we let in, but how can we play any differently when you don't have a goalie? I'm proud of the girls and I couldn't ask for anything more."

The Spartans started with freshman Karen Carney, normally a forward, in goal. She was followed in nets by midfielders Kim Paterson and Paula Divens.

"Even though we had only 76 goals total coming into this game, we had to shoot a lot more because we knew their goalies were rusty," said Northville coach Stan Smalec, whose team is 15-1-3 overall. "When we tied Stevenson (on April 25) we scored on ourselves the first time. We had them after that, but we couldn't make the shots."

ly in the first half when Divens, saving a ball from going out of bounds, drilled a pin-point 25-yard pass to a wide open Mary Pelloni, who tapped the ball past Northville goalkeeper Tricia Ducker.

NORTHVILLE, however, tied the score at 1-1 on a goal by Jenni Schuerman.

The Spartans regained the lead at half on a goal by Dana Bokas, but advantage disappeared almost as soon as the second half opened.

At 38:26, Heather Sixt got credit for a goal that Carney mishandled.

The Mustangs then took a 3-2 lead when Julie Anger's long indirect free kick set up teammate Karen Baird for a goal.

3-all, when Pelloni broke through the Mustangs' defense after taking a pass from Maureen Sudek.

The stage then colleged for the Stevenson knotted things up again.

The stage then collapsed for the short-handed Spartans.

Northville had a goal disallowed for an offsides call, resulting in a red-card ejection to Smalec. The Northville coach, who later apolized to game officials, admitted he had used abusive language.

"The official did the right thing," Smalec said. "I thought I blew the

WITH SMALEC banished to the front gate of Stevenson's stadium, Northville responded on goals by Baird and Jodi Smalec, the coach's daughter, who waved a victory fist toward her father near the darkened parking lot.

Stevenson had several golden scoring chances during the course of the 80-minute match, but seemed to shoot either high or wide.

"We had a few breaks at the beginning," said Divens. "We had some scoring opportunities, but didn't capitalize. Had we put through one or two of those shots early, it might have been a different game."

The Mustangs now advance to the Regional championship game Saturday at Plymouth Canton where they will face unbeaten Livonia Churchill (18-0-2), the only team to defeat them this season. (Game time is 2 p.m.)

Mercy takes crown

Seniors Amy Stock, Mary Beth Larabell, Kathy Clement and Mary Duwel have played soccer at Farmington Hills Mercy since the school began sponsoring the sport three years ago.

In those three years, the Marlins have finished among the state's top 10 each year, have been in the Catholic League finals each year and won the league title twice — the second coming Sunday, a 2-1 overtime win against Birmingham Marian.

There were other common threads running through those seasons, like coach Gene Fogel and two-time all-stater Annette Ruggiero, but the four seniors will leave with an impressive winning percentage.

"This year's group was really something," said Fogel. "We lost so many good players last year that I thought we'd have a struggle this year. But the kids simply refused to lose. Four times we came from behind to win or tie games. And it was a team effort. If someone was down, somebody else would always pick up the slack."

AGAINST MARIAN, Mercy survived several scares in the second half to dominate the overtime period and finally win on Julie Hale's goal with two minutes left to plant.

with two minutes left to play.

Margaret DeMattia had tied the game midway through the first half. In the second half, Marian had two golden scoring chances thwarted by goalie Stacy Nolta. Nolta made a sprawling save off a corner kick and then stoned a Marian player on a breakaway.

Reeves, Neuhardt claim regional titles

By Chris McCosky staff writer

For the Farmington boys track team, Friday's Class A regional at Hazel Park was a harkening back to the early 1970s, a time when the Falcons streaked to three straight regional championships.

Farmington placed third behind Pontiac Northern and Pontiac Central, but its 50 points were the most scored by the team in several years.

More impressively, the Falcons garnered three regional champions. Junior Al Stebbins won the 1,600meter run (4:19.9) and placed second in the 800 (1:57.7). Junior Chris Inch. won the 3,200 (9:25.2), winning by better than 200 yards.

Senior strongman Craig Petersmark won the shot put (51-1) and placed second in the discus (153-11).

Farmington coach Dave Catherman was cautiously optimistic about the chances for individual state champions.

"This year, everything is definitely up for grabs," he said. "Jerry Young (Falcon assistant coach) has been carefully managing Inch and Stebbins. But it's very difficult to concentrate on the individual goals when so many team things are going on."

The Falcons will be vying for the Western Lakes championship the Wednesday prior to the state meet (May 31 at Flint Northwestern).

NORTH FARMINGTON had to be the big surprise of the Hazel Park regional. Scott Selzer placed second in the talent-laden 100-meter dash with an 11.2. And the Raiders won the 400 relay. Marc Brown, Mark Weintraub. Chris Christman and Selzer set a school record with a

"We've had kids as quick as any one of those four before," said North coach Dave Thorne. "But we never had four like that at the same time."

Kirk Armstrong finished fourth in the 1,600 for North, but his 4:22.7 clocking earned him a berth at the state meet

FARMINGTON HILLS MERCY scored well in the girls regional at Hazel Park placing sixth. North Farmington placed seventh.

Terri Ford helped the Marlins qualify in four events. She won both the 100 (12.56) and 200 (25.22). She anchored Mercy's third-place 400 relay (51.98) and the third-place 800 relay (1:47.30). In both races she teamed with Adrienne Clark, Tonya Harbin and Adonna Amanze.

North Farmington got a secondplace from Terry Spengler in the 200 (26.13) and the third in the discus from Nancy Cothran (106-5).

Farmington's lone qualifier was Anna Quenneville. She placed third in the 800 (2:27.6)

Chelsea, Farmington Harrison's Jenny Anderson took a pair of firsts and captured two school records in the

She won the 1,600 (5:19.3) and the 3,200 (11:47.8), shattering Lauri Runk's 1984 marks in each race.

"I'll be the first to admit that I was surprised by how well she ran." said Harrison coach Mark Babcock. "She worked real hard, but I think she even surprised herself."

Tracy Solomon just missed qualifying in the high jump as her 4-11 leap tied her for fourth place.

For the Hawks' boys, Brian Soeder placed second in the high jump (6-0) and the 3,200-meter relay team of Chris Hart, Craig Mortz, Pat Runk and Chad Burgess placed second with a 8:11.4.

The Class B state meet is at Jackson Northwest High School May 31.

AT YPSILANTI, Plymouth Canton's Tyrone Reeves won the regional long jump title. His 22-3 leap is a Canton school record.

Plymouth Salem can also boast of a regional champion. Brian Neuhardt sped to the 440-yard dash title in 50.2.

In the girls race, Canton's Angie Miller qualified in the high jump with a third-best 4-10.

Salem's Karen Marciniak threw the discus 114-1, which would have been a qualifier at every other Class A regional. It placed her fifth at Ypsi and out of contention for a state bid.

Runners boil in Pitt Marathon

By Tom Henderson staff writer

To Dave Olds, his time of 2:27 in Sunday's second annual Pittsburgh Marathon "was pathetic. It's the slowest marathon I've ever done. I was just jogging the last 10 miles. I almost dropped out at least 10 times, but I decided, 'What the heck. I'll keep on going till people start passing me.'

Funny thing. Though by his standards he was just jogging along at six minutes a mile, nobody passed him. Instead, he kept passing people, eventually finishing 11th and winning $2,000 in his hometown.

It seemed more like equatorial Africa than Pennsylvania. The sun beat down relentlessly from a clear sky. The air temperature was 90 degrees with the humidity at 80 percent. The surface temperature on the black-asphalt course was 125 degrees. Runners were dropping like flies sprayed with malathion and medical workers worked furiously to cool the overheated bodies. In the medical tent, intravenous lines ran from sugar solutions in bags overhead into the arms of gray-skinned, purple-lipped athletes.

It seemed more like a death march than a run, though somehow 2,000 of the 2,600 entrants managed to finish the 26.2-mile route. What kept many of them going was the enthusiastic support of the 300,000 fans who lined the route, many of them with bags of ice, hoses, pitchers of water and orange slices.

DOUG KURTIS, a Livonia Franklin grad and a member of the Redford Road Runners who travels the world running marathons, was one of those with an IV in his arm.

"I've run some hot weather races and I came through them OK. But this? Whew! I don't know what happened. I fell apart," Kurtis said Monday from his office at Ford. "I didn't think I'd ever finish. I was walking. I was dizzy. The last mile I was doing everything I could just to

He finished in 2:42:19, nearly half an hour under his best time. Last year, he was ninth in Pittsburgh and won $1,500. This year, he was 32nd and won nothing. The first woman, Laura Fogli of Italy, finished in 2:37:04 and won $25,000; the first man, Dean Mathews, did 2:18:17 and also won $25,000.

running

"I was in the medical tent for an hour," said Kurtis, "and I thought I was all right. I got up, walked around for a minute and collapsed. They took me back in for another hour. It was the worst experience I've ever had. At 10 miles I started to feel bad. The crowd really helped out. The aid-station water got so hot you couldn't drink it, but the people along the way had cold water. I was taking water from every hand."

OLDS, AN English teacher and track coach at Cranbrook, got some enthusiastic support from four of his prep school runners. "They had a regional meet Saturday, then drove all night to get here to cheer me on. They were jumping up and down at the eight-mile mark.

That he was able to notice them, and do as well as he did, was because of his decision before the race to go slow. "We sat around before the start and decided to run for the money and nothing else," he said, meaning that personal goals as far as a good time had become irrelevant. "I got as much money with as little effort as possible."

Despite the heat and pain of race day, Olds felt great Monday. "I feel better today than after any marathon I've ever run. I ran smart. And you couldn't run hard enough to hurt your muscles."

Baseball's back at OU

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Play ball Oakland University students won't be deprived of that stirring welcome to spring come next year.

Last Tuesday, the OU board of trustees approved athletic director Paul Hartman's proposal to reinstate baseball as an intercollegiate

The approval was worded in a way that "left it open-ended," said Hartman. "Essentially, it said (we could begin playing) whenever we felt it was appropriate.

Hartman, though, made his feelings clear on when the school's first baseball season since 1980 should begin. "The reason to have sports is to have people compete," said Hartman. He added that his search for a coach has already begun with the goal to field a team next year.

THERE WAS another reason for Hartman's haste. OU dropped wrestling a month ago. That put the school under the minimum number of sports necessary to remain a member of the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Confer-

"If we didn't start (baseball) next year, we'd have to ask for a waiver," said Hartman.

The OU AD foresaw no obstacles preventing the school from restarting the sport. The field is still in good shape, and the athletic department has had several calls from prospective players already attending OU

In addition, the GLIAC schedulemakers foresaw OU's reinstatement of baseball and drew up a schedule including the Pioneers.

"We have a budget all approved," said Hartman. Which left him with one major task: "Getting a coach. We want to get one as quickly as we can so he can start recruiting and get whatever talent is left.

"We want someone with enough experience so he can build the program, and someone who knows the budgeted for one - or more - assistant coach(es). "It depends on how the new coach wants to divide it up," said Hartman.

Whoever the OU coach is, he won't be attacking his recruiting chores empty-handed. The funds that had gone toward wrestling scholarships - amounting to about two full-rides - will be appropriated by baseball and divided up into partial grants.

We'll be about in the middle of the road (in scholarships available at league schools)," said Hartman. "Some of the GLIAC schools don't give any for baseball."

Before canceling baseball along with softball — because of funding cutbacks in 1980, OU fared well in the GLIAC. Under coach Dick Dieters, the Pioneers won the title in 1978, were second in 1979 and finished third in 1980. Only twice in seven league seasons did the team suffer losing campaigns.

HARTMAN WOULD not promise a return to that level of play immediately. "We have a fiveyear plan, but you know how that goes," he said. "We're just not always able to adhere to it. It's really more of a guideline, it gives us a target."

Hartman did say that he hopes to increase scholarship money for baseball every year.

Besides needing another sport to remain in the GLIAC, Hartman reasoned the reinstatement of baseball made sense because, first, the facilities were already in existence; second, there was a good deal of community and on-campus interest; and third, it's a spring sport, a weak season for OU athlet-

"There was an absense of a strong spring sport to keep the public interest," said Hartman. OU currently offers only men's golf and men's tennis during spring.

Gene Baker to coach U.S. team

By Tom Henderson staff writer

A few years ago, Gene Baker was just a guy with some weights in his basement and an improbable dream of some day coaching the U.S. Olympic weightlifting team.

Today, Baker still coaches out of his basement, but his dream is much closer to reality. Last weekend he was named as one of two coaches for this summer's Goodwill Games in Russia, a plum coaching assignment that establishes Baker as one of the leading coaches in the country.

"If not in 1988, then 1992," Baker says of his Olympic aspirations. "And I'd like to begin developing members of the 1992 Olympic team right here in Troy."

BAKER, 37, IS an engineer in Warren, where he designs tanks for Uncle Sam. The Cold War provides him a living, so it is ironic that Baker's rise in the world of weightlifting is a result of his ties to Russia and Eastern Europe.

Baker studied Russian for two years as an undergraduate at West Point. The education came in handy in 1979 when a fellow weightlifter returned from Russia with some manuals on Russian lifting and coaching techniques. Baker translated them and began giving clinics and demonstrations in and around Canton Township, where he lived before moving to Troy three years ago.

"I was coaching a couple of kids in '79 and pretty soon, both of them were lifting more than me," said Baker, who in his heyday as state heavyweight champion could lift weights in excess of 300 pounds.

Baker coaches 13 lifters in the Troy Weightlifting Club, with up to 10 at a time able to work out of his basement gym. His best pupil is a graduate student at the University of Kansas, Al Jakubowski, who despite being coached by phone and mail was able to finish third in the nation in the light-heavyweight class last weekend at the U.S. championships in Gainesville, Fla. Jakubowski, who weighs 180 pounds, lifted 314 pounds in an event called the snatch, and he hoisted 370 pounds in the clean and

It was at the championships where Baker was named to the Goodwill team. The Games, which will be in Moscow July 16-23, are a pet project of media whiz Ted Turner and have been promoted heavily on his cable television network.

advancement through the coaching weights."

ranks. He has coached a couple of international competitions in Canada, attended symposiums in East Germany and Bulgaria and coached in the National Sports Festival in In-dianapolis in 1982.

"WEIGHTLIFTING is my hobby, or my obsession," said Baker. "I was a mediocre lifter. I never got to the national level. I tried very hard, but never had a coach, and I didn't know very much. A lot of the things I apply in my coaching come from the mistakes I made."

His mistakes coupled with the advancement made by Soviet bloc lifters and coaches. "There's very much an eastern European philosophy coming on in the United States." says Baker. "They work to get their lifters to be all-round athletes, not just lifters. We know more about nutrition. About the benefits of sleep, different exercises, warming up.'

Baker said it is the eastern Europeans who are also leading the sport away from steroids. At the 1983 Pan American Games, the U.S. team was involved in a scandal when one lifter tested positive for steroids and others left for home rather than compete and undergo testing.

"We began to realize there had to be a better way to go than steroids," says Baker. "I visited Bulgaria last year and they've gotten away from them. The dependence is beginning to go away. It can be seen worldwide. There have been very few world records since 1983, and that's because countries are making an effort to do without steroids.

"Three years ago, it was very common. I'd have 16-year-old kids asking me when they could get on steroids. Now, we think we have the methods to make you as big and strong as the people who are taking them.

According to Baker, steroids allow muscles to heal faster, resulting in harder, more frequent workouts. But most experts agree that their use can lead to kidney damage, overly aggressive personalities and hormonal imbalances.

BAKER HAS done some coaching with the kids at the Larson Middle School in Troy. "It's more just conditioning at that level. We make weightlifting lots of fun, not drudgery. Most of the kids are doing it to become better at other sports. For instance, my son, Brent, a seventh grader at Larson, improved 8 11/2 inches on the standing broad It was a continuation of Baker's jump after just one month of doing

Anglers go to school on fly fishing

In order to keep with the schools of fish, the Michigan Fly Fishing Club's Fly Fishing School starts Saturday and Sunday, June 14-15, at Waterloo Recreation Area's Mill

The cost of each daylong class. which start at 9 a.m., is $25. All equipment, supplies and lunch are included in the class fee.

Fly casting, fly tying and equipment and knots will be the sections covered. Each section features experienced anglers as instructors.

Of the three sections, the fly easting is expected to have the highest instructor-to-student ratio

"It's set up for the novice fly fisherman," said Patrick Karkanen, director of the school who lives in Livonia. "We're hoping for a one-toin the fly-casting section. Normally, flies. you get a one-to-10 ratio at some professional fly fishing schools."

THE INSTRUCTION is tailored for the individual's skill level. Each student will be allowed to progress at his/her own rate into more advanced techniques of fly fishing.

You might wonder why there is even a school for fly fishing since it looks easy enough on television.

"The guy you saw on television has probably been fly casting for many years," said Karkanen, who's been fly fishing for more than 20 years. "If you start off bad, you're going to get frustrated the rest of your life. That's what we're trying to do, get people started out fly casting the right way.

Mike Freeland, a professional fly tier, heads up the fly-tying section. Freeland will be assisted by other experienced fly tiers as students will two ratio of instructors to students have the opportunity to tie their own

For more information on the school at the Waterloo Recreation Area (off I-94 on Pierce Road, exit 157, near Chelsea), call Paula Dobos at 388-5889

AND SPEAKING of fishing, the Department of Natural Resources reports good-size pike being taken from Maceday, White and Union lakes in Oakland County. Also, Oakland County lakes are beginning to produce fair-size bluegill in shoreline waters, according to the DNR.

In Wayne County, good-size crappie are being taken from Belleville Lake. Belleville Lake is also producing some nice catches of bluegill.

White bass are reported to be plentiful in the Detroit River, especially around the Elizabeth Park area in Trenton.

Lake Erie is also producing some fine catches of walleye.

OF THE horsing-around nature, many of the state's top horses and riders converge Friday at Haverhill Farms in Walled Lake for an annual spring show, sanctioned by the American Horse Show Association, Michigan Hunter Jumper Association and the Michigan Horse Breeders Association.

The public can watch thoroughbreds display their style and ability as they maneuever over fences on the Haverhill hunt field at the threeday event.
