Main Street offenders pleading guilty

By Doug Funke staff writer

Most young people ticketed this summer for loitering, trespassing and cruising-related traffic offenses in downtown Plymouth are pleading guilty during pre-trial hearings in 35th District Court.

Only one in the last batch of 15 insisted on a trial, said City Attorney Ron Lowe.

At least two dozen defendants have accepted terms which include court costs ranging $50-100, two to five days of community ser- costs.

vice work and a six-month to oneyear "probation" period, he said. In return, charges will be dismissed if those accepting plea arrangements aren't arrested or ticketed by police for the time the matter is under advisement.

Judge James Garber said he's taken about a half dozen guilty pleas so far.

"I deferred sentence for six months and required, depending on the nature of the case, two or three days work detail and $50 court

"IT'S NOT on their record and at guilty from upholding their ends of the end of six months, if all has gone well, the case will be dismissed," Garber added.

Those in court-mandated community service program pay $20-30 per day supervision costs. "We're not particularly interested in giving a youngster a criminal record that's going to be a stigma," Garber said. "But on the other hand, if they are guilty they must know they did something wrong and some punishment will be extracted."

Extenuating circumstances, it appears, won't get people who plead plea bargains. Special arrangements were made to allow two young men to finish their community service work days before they were to enter the Navy, Garber said.

Constitutionally, judges can't mete out stiffer penalties to individuals because they choose to go to trial and are found guilty than to those who plead guilty without a trial. However, Garber noted, "The more a judge tends to find out about a situation, there might be things to exacerbate it. LOWE SAID he probably will begin asking for longer "probation" periods — a year rather than six months — in future cases after having conversations with Judge John MacDonald.

74 Pages

"The nature of the offense occurs during the summer," Lowe said. "To put someone on probation during the winter doesn't really indicate to the judge whether they want to keep their nose clean."

Those who want to plead guilty to more serious charges - inciting to riot, hindering an officer, disorderly conduct - can expect to receive an offer that includes $100 court costs and three-to-five community service days through the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, Lowe said. All plea arrangements are subject to final approval by a judge. Garber said he considers such factors as nature of an offense, whether any physical force was used and any mitigating circumstances.

"All this is so general and generic," Lowe said of plea arrangements. "We're trying to cut a first offender a break. My attitude is they have to have something to happen to them, but I don't want to start a criminal record.

Trip to China proves to be real eye-opener

By Mary Klemic staff writer

Corn on the cob and granola bars helped form a chain of friendship thousands of miles long between students and people living in mainland China.

A 52-member group, including 19 students of Livonia Stephenson High's Global Education program, parents, teachers and officials (among them Plymouth Township supervisor Maurice Breen and Mary Breen, former Stevenson assistant principal), spent three weeks in China in July

During that time, the American visitors were treated as celebrities. They were honored in speeches and official banquets. They toured schools, opened a playground, flew abroad as well as to visit mosques, on a military jet and met opera star Luciano Pavarotti. They made such a favorable impression that letters about going to China four years ago from their new Chinese friends were already waiting for them when they arrived home.

The Chinese were interested in talking with the students, said Jonathan Swift, director of Global Education. "The moment they met it was just fantastic.

"They would say, 'You Americans are paranoid about communism. Why are you so afraid of this?' For them, the party is just a way of life, " I'd like to go back in about 10 years. My guess is it's going to be very heavily westernized."

THE GLOBAL Education program, nine years old, features such subjects as comparative government, world literature and humanities. The 175 students in the program have the opportunity to travel Buddhist shrines and other places.

People in the program talked when a teacher from China was visiting in the area. Last year, the matter came up again in conversations with Wing Yee, who runs a restaurant on Six Mile in Livonia. Suddenly, a passage to China didn't seem so impossible.

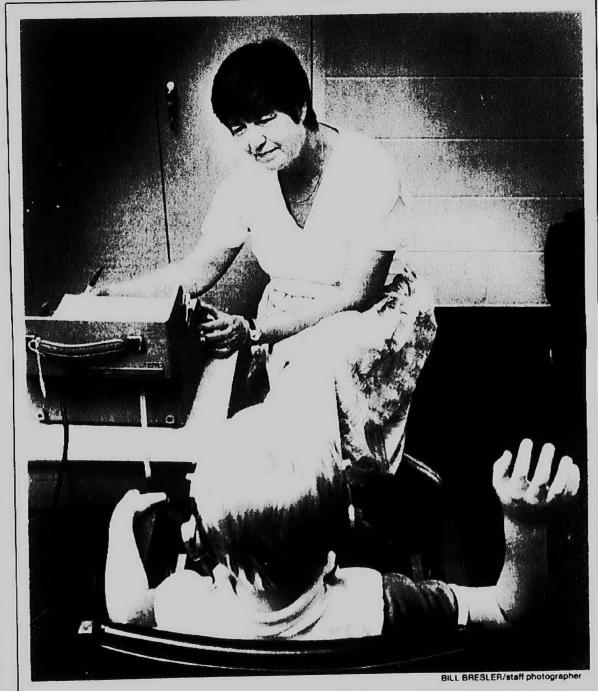

"There were two things that we wanted to do," Swift said. "One was to go and see the school in Shanghai. The second was to go to Wing Yee's birthplace because he has been a great benefactor of the town."

The travelers took part in a number of orientation sessions before they left for China, meeting at least once a month for six months. During that time they learned about language, money, what to buy and sell, protocol, food and their itinerary.

For example, the Americans learned that giving personal items a magazine, a granola snack bar or a stamp - means more in China than a gift that was specially purchased. The Americans gave their Chinese friends little "grab bags" of such items.

IN CHINA, the group was always followed by government guides who were eager to make a good impres-

China, including planning for tours, Swift said. "They were told this was a very important group, that these people were the future of America," he said. "What they saw of China would color their views for the rest of their life." The group's first stop was Beijing, formerly known as Peking. The Americans asked if they could visit a house. This threw their guides off at first. But the guides peeked through holes in the walls that surrounded the houses and finally showed their guests a house where a woman was cooking in the yard.

"They were so nice," Swift said. "Our kids poked around in the differ-

All trees ordered will be planted on city property — the area between the sidewalk and the curb. Anyone wanting trees should call the public works department office at 453-7737. A tree request form will be sent stating what type of tree will be planted in front of the purchaser's home. The deadline for all requests is Nov. 1, 1986.

La Danse of Canton had two dancers enrolled in the program.

ARMY BENEFITS: Lisa Boland, marketing director of Omnicom Cablevision, recently presented $4,030 to Capt. Larry Manzella of the Plymouth Salvation Army Corps. The money came from the station's spring promotion when it donated $10 of each $25 installation fee collected to the Salvation Army. That promotion was repeated last month with the Muscular Dystrophy Association being the benefactor.

'This could not have come at a better time," said Manzella, explaining it would be used to send more local kids to camp this year

SYMPHONY GIFT:

Ford Motor Co. kicked off the 41st season of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra with a $1,000 check to sponsor the first concert of the season to be on Oct. 17. Dick Marshall, chairman of the community relations committee of Ford's, presented the check at the Ford-Sheldon Plant to Clara Camp, president of the Plymouth Symphony Society.

One of Kari Miller's duties as a nurse in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools is giving hearing tests.

Health mission Role of school nurse expands

In the world of public education, changing in recent years due to improved technology and teaching methods, a school nurse's job stays much the same.

Well, sort of.

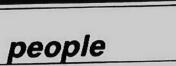

"I don't see myself as the bandaid lady," says Kari Miller, a registered nurse, one of five employed by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. "I really see myself as an advocate for children."

A University of Michigan graduate, Miller worked two years and then taught child psychiatric nursing at Wayne State University for another two years before taking time out to raise a family of three.

A Livonia native, Miller and her family - husband John is a manager with a local car dealer - have lived 20 years in Plymouth. Active with the Plymouth, Northville, Canton, Novi League of Women Voters for the past 15 years, she joined the Plymouth-Canton schools as a nurse in 1979.

Of her experience in the child psychiatric field, Miller says, "Obviously, that's very helpful. You always look at a child's behavior."

FOR EXAMPLE, a child suffering from a chronic illness may need help in coping with it. "You'd look at how he handles it; how his parents handle it," Miller said.

Each of the district's five nurses oversees 2,300-3,000 children attending a group of schools. Miller oversees Bird, Smith, Allen and Tanger elementaries and West Middle School. "I'm generally at each school two half-days a week; I'm on call for emergencies."

In recent years, the district's school nurses spend more time visiting classes. "We do a lot of health education; I love to go into classrooms," Miller said. Kids usually respond. "You're a new face. You bring a different perspective into the classroom."

Miller often discusses nutrition and prevention of sickness with elementary and middle school students. "They can choose to eat things that are better than others. There are things they oan do to help their parents."

She also discusses "taking care of eyes, ears, caring for their bodies.

MILLER SAID that on occasion, children are referred to the school district's clothing bank, or the Salvation Army. "You'll see kids coming to school when the weather turns bad who don't have appropriate clothing," she explained.

"Nurses often get requests to do that things are unusual. . .sometimes a family needs direction," Miller added. 'We try to maximize a child's opportunity to succeed in school."

Miller said she also has spoken with teachers to help them understand a child's health-related problems, such as hearing problems.

School nurses also oversee hearing and vision screening sessions for kids. "We get a lot of referrals from teachers, parents."

In the last two years, the school district also has provided scoleosis screening.

As for possible future changes, Miller said, "I'd like to do more in terms of classroom work."

Ice fest gets state grant for 'Symphony on Ice'

Even though it's less than they hoped for, Plymouth city officials are happy to accept a $5,000 grant from the state Department of Commerce to help commemorate Michigan's 150th anniversary of admission to the union.

The city will use the money for a Symphony on Ice display at next year's Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular, said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager.

The sesquicentennial ice carving in Kellogg Park reportedly will consist of 30 musicians accentuated with lights and taped music.

The commerce department made $300,000 available in chunks up to $10,000 each for communities throughout the state to celebrate the sesquicentennial in unique ways.

Local matching funds aren't required.

The city may have to scale down original plans because the grant is only half as much as anticipated.

Preliminary plans called for using water from all of the Great Lakes bordering Michigan for ice blocks. It was initially estimated that 200 ice blocks each weighing 400 pounds would be used.

Unlikely partners made for winning combination

By Teri Banas staff writer

Who would have thought that when Dave Katz found himself seated next to Mike Duggan on a bus ride four years ago'it was -as they say in the movies - the start of a beautiful relationship, at least in politics.

The pair met in 1982 during a bus trip to the City-County Build-ing that launched Edward McNamara's unsuccessful first campaign for county executive.

From that point on, they forged a partnership that grew into the driving force behind McNamara's successful bid for the Democratic nomination last month. (The Democratic nomination is tantamount to election in Wayne County.)

Today, both are being considered for key positions in the McNamara administration next year.

SAID MCNAMARA of the pair, "Dave is a real solid person," and ⁴Mike is most trusted and astute.

"They're both 28 going on 45 from an experience standpoint." Katz, who works as McNamara's administrative assistant in Livonia, and Duggan, a lawyer for Wayne County, rose from the ranks of campaign volunteers four years ago to become McNamara's chief fund-raising organizer and campaign manager, respectively, in 1986. Together, they mapped a successful campaign strategy and raised more than $425,000, twice as much as any other candidate.

"IF IT WERE not for either of them, I don't think I would have run (again)," said the Livonia mayor. "You need their kind of intelligence and drive to succeed.'

Besides Katz' "finesse" at fundraising, McNamara said it was Duggan's research that convinced McNamara to give the ceo bid a second shot. In a research paper he titled "The' Second Time Around," Duggan analyzed the 1982's campaign's weaknesses, community by community, showing McNamara how a "white, suburban mayor could do it.

Although they make a good team, the pair are opposites in personality and style.

While both are described as industrious, hard-working and com-mitted to their candidate, Duggan is considered the planner and organizer.

In contrast, Katz is easy-going, yet a tenatious fund-raising, and likes to stay behind the scenes.

"He (Katz) does not let up on people until they say yes, but he does it in such a nice way. That's an affribute I haven't quite gotten the hang of," Duggan said.

"I like to stay in the background, just part of the team. I don't like to upstage anyone," says Katz.

Conversely, Duggan is often spotted rushing through the City-County offices, books under arm and shirt-tail flying.

YET, HE is considered extremely adept at dealing in complex legal issues. As an assistant corporation counsel he has han-

McNamara calls them an "odd couple" in personal habits. "Dave is neat and orderly while Mike is kind of a slob, but he doesn't care. Somewhere in that little house of his (Duggan's) are the 80,000, 90,000 (drain ballot proposal) peti-tion signatures we collected," he

Jobless rate decreased in most of state

Unemployment declined in all but two of Michigan's 12 major labor market areas during July, said Richard Simmons Jr., director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

The Detroit and Flint areas, however, reported increases in their July jobless rates because of large-scale model changeover layoffs in local automotive plants.

In the Detroit area, unemploy-ment rose in July to 9.1 percent from 8.7 percent in June. The Flint area jobless rate climbed to 11.3 percent from 10.7 percent in June.

MOST OF the state's major labor market areas followed the statewide trend in July with drops in their jobless rates.

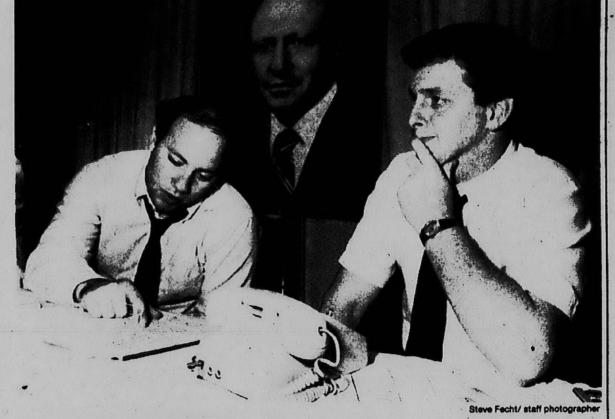

As MESC reported earlier, Michigan's July unemployment rate fell to 9.2 percent from 9.4 percent in June. The number of jobless workers declined by 4,000 to 411,000. Such plus factors as seasonal em-ployment growth in local service, retail trade and construction industries was greater than the minus factors - an increase in summer jobseekers, scattered auto lavoffs and summer layoffs among employees in schools.

In addition, summer youth employment programs contributed toward the July decline in unemployment.

THE UPPER Peninsula had the THE UPPER Peninsula had the largest drop, as its jobless rate fell from 13.5 percent in June to 11.5 percent in July. Nevertheless, the 15-county UP had the highest jobless rate among the 12 areas. Ann Arbor had the lowest rate at 5.6 percent.

County Dems ready to battle for Blanchard

By Teri Banas staff writer

A quiet building of solidarity, a mending of the ranks, is taking place within the Democratic Party in Wayne County these days as party workers get behind incumbent James Blanchard and a predicted close race for the governor's office this November.

At a rally called last week by Edward McNamara, Democratic nominee for Wayne County executive, an estimated 750 party stalwarts came together in Allen Park to pledge support for Blanchard.

Party regulars say the rally, tagged as an organizational meeting, was significant because it was the first time that party membership, traditionally fused around local Congressional precinct groups, appeared to make a unified stand.

Joining McNamara were several of last month's unsuccessful candidates for county executive including sheriff Robert Ficano, county com-missioner Sam Turner, D-Detroit, and workers for county commissioner John Hertel, D-Harper Woods. Also attending were Michigan Democratic Party chairman Rick Weiner and Michigan Supreme Court Justice Dennis Archer, who is up for election in November.

A MEMBER of McNamara's transition team, David Katz, said "It's a good time for us to help. The point of this is to network our people with Blanchard's people. Blanchard knows it's going to be a tough election and he needs all of our help. We're going to do what we can to help him.'

That "help" translates into organizing some of the 1,000 planned "homecoming parties" that will serve to raise funds (an estimated $300 a party) statewide for Blanchard's campaign on Sept. 20. Besides that, volunteers were located to place political signs at strategic spots as well as to man 75-100 phone lines at a party office site near Southfield's Northland Mall.

Ficano, whose own campaign staff along with McNamara's have met privately with Blanchard, said Michigan's historically close elections makes this year's unity call critical.

"We have to pull together. Anyone who thinks this isn't going to be a close election is kidding them-selves," Ficano said. "Michigan has always been an independent state (in contests for governor)." Said McNamara: "Blanchard needs a grassroots organization in Wayne County and we've got one in place. I feel very strongly if the elec-tion were held today Blanchard would win. But anyone who discounts (GOP gubernatorial nominee) Bill Lucas' appeal as an underdog candidate is in trouble. The guy may not be a quality administrator, but he has charisma. They (the public) see him as a John Wayne charac-

Party chairman Weiner predicted Blanchard would wage " a very aggressive campaign on his record and vision for Michigan's future. We see nothing from the Republican candidate in writing (on that)."

HE SAID Blanchard would probably campaign on the state's lowered unemployment rate, the increase in business start-ups and the impact of the Michigan Strategic Fund. "That's a marked contrast to the Wayne County executive who can't demonstrate any experience in creating jobs," he said.

"Our unemployment rate is below where it was a year ago and our job growth in 12 months has been nearly percent above the national average," said state Commerce Department director Doug Ross. "The number of new businesses in the past year is accelerating and breaking records in Michigan.

Orville Tungate, chairman of the 2nd district Wayne County organization, predicts the governor's race won't be a "walk-away." Still to be determined, he said, will be the draw that Bill Lucas, a Democrat-turned-Republican, will have on Black Detroit precincts where Democrats tra-Tungate said Lucas was a popular vote-getter in western Wayne County in his 1982 county executive campaign and as in campaigns for sher-iff before that. He could do even better among the communities of western Wayne County, many of which vote Republican, under his new par-ty label, Tungate said.

Democratic legislators will also take an personal interest in the race as there are 110 House seats and 38 Senate seats open this fall.

DEMOCRATIC incumbent James Kostepa of Canton Township sees both candidates as "articulate, organized with "a strong ability to get their message out to the people. They're relatively close in the political spectrum, toward the middle."

Kosteva said Blanchard "deserves a lot of support" for rebuilding the state's infrastructure and improving business opportunities.

Eastern Michigan University is taking steps to develop a national teacher job registry - a pool of quali-fied instructors looking for employment - that area school districts can dip into when the teacher shortage hit

That was among the recommendations outlined by a 26-member spe-cial panel to the university's Board of Regents last week.

The report, "Time for Action," offered 13 "creative strategies" for responding to a perceived upcoming shortage caused by attractive early retirement packages, low pay, limited career growth and a profession plagued by lack of respect.

Joyce Fouts, the commission's executive director, said the national teacher registry, would screen applicants and draw on the best classroom talent available nationwide, thereby easing a local school district's search for teachers when the crunch happens here. Local school districts, she said, already are find-ing it difficult to fill teaching positions, particularly in math and science.

FOUTS, DIRECTOR of curriculum development for the Wayne County Intermediate School District, predicted the regents will likely approve this phase of the study and implement it soon, possibly in a month, with with other suggestions to follow

William Simmons, chairman of sense of abandonment.

Educator shortage prompts year-long study for remedies

the college board, was unavailable for comment.

Prompting the year-long study at EMU are declining enrollments in the school of education. EMU is considered the nation's fourth largest producer of teachers. In addition, state officials are predicting Michigan will lose 19 percent of its teachers and 52 percent of its school ad-ministrators within three years, largely because of the 1985 school retirement act.

Other suggestions outlined in the "Time for Action" report included:

 An exit test for graduating students in the school of education.

"Any professional these days has to pass a test, whether it's a bar exam, or for a real estate license," said Fouts. "If we want the salaries we want, we're going to have to be accountable.'

• An induction program for new-ly graduated teachers.

Teachers facing their first assign-ment often feel isolated and abandoned when left in charge of a classroom of students for the first time, said Fouts. Many decline asking for help to avoid the impression of being unable to handle the job, she said.

National statistics show a startling 40 percent of new teachers leave the field within three years and Fouts reasons it's because of this

Similar to an "internship" found in many other professions, an induction program should offer the support and experience of "master" teach-ers. EMU would be prepared to or-ganize a program whereby a school master teacher, coupled with an EMU educator, would offer team EMU educator, would offer team counseling for each new teacher entering a local school system, she said.

• EMU should offer a "Quality Assurance Guarantee" for each student it graduates from the school of education.

"It's almost like a warranty program," she said. Under this program, EMU would stand by the quality of its graduates, pledging to come into the new graduate's place of employ-ment to offer professional guidance if the teacher was having difficulty in the classroom.

She envisions this could take two or three years to implement.

• Establishing EMU satellite centers in community colleges to allow a student "dual enrollment possibilities ' consider teaching as a career," she said. Nationally, up to half of today's report noted. "(In the Detroit area) Oakland University is the only university that has a school of education and Wayne State is the only university with a school of education in Wayne County," she said. "(A satellite center on a two-year community college) would be a nice marketing device to recruit teachers.'

• A suggested experimental pro-gram to prepare people from other professions for a career change into education. In the high-demand areas of math and science, a program could be prepared to field candidates from business and industry. Fouts said there needs to be a teacher certification program available that doesn't require someone to return to college for a long period of time.

FOUTS, who has been an educator for 16 years, beginning as a high school government teacher in St. Clair Shores, said: "We've gone from a glut in education, too many teachers, to the pendulum swinging to having too few. Now we have to turn it around. We need teachers again."

Though family sizes are shrinking, Fouts noted that student populations are shifting to among the very young and the elderly. Today, there are ex-panding teaching opportunities in day-care centers, latchkey programs

Awareness: first step to improved public education else, change seems to be a constant. It was just a few years ago that our school systems were reeling from the population shifts that caused plummeting school enrollments. Teacher layoffs were commonplace. Career counselors warned students about trying to become teachers. School systems saw their young teachers leaving for other fields. The teaching staffs of most districts got older, and the replacements weren't being trained.

Now the pendulum is swinging the other way. School districts are gaining students. In Redford Township, the two school districts in that community had increases in the school populations for the first time in 20 years.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS are predicting now that in the next few years, they will have trouble finding competent teachers to handle the increased number of students. The effects of the scare that kept college students from going into education still haven't worn off.

In the meantime, entire new fields have opened up to attract those who, in the past, might have relished a teaching career.

For many years, teaching was considered an ideal job for women. The avenues for advancement in corporate life or private business were neither open nor easily traveled. The barriers have been falling, however, and a career in industry and business seems much more attractive to many women than a lifetime of dealing with children.

At the same time, there is a deep concern that our school systems aren't serving us well, that our children are not getting the education they should be receiving.

IN A NATIONAL poll conducted by pollster Lou Harris, just half of 1,513 adults and 202 top executives gave public education a passing grade.

EDUCATION, as in everything that the educational system is not equipping students to move into a complex economy demanding more sophisticated skills than ever before. There is a question of whether our school sytems are keeping up with the changes caused by ever-accelerating technological improvements.

Of particular concern is the shortage of top-flight mathematics and science teachers. It is difficult to keep skilled teachers at $20,000 to $30,000 a year when they know they can double their income in the private sector.

Larry Chunovich, president of the Michigan Education Association, thinks one way to attract people into becoming and staying teachers is to pay them more. His union is advocating salaries by 1990 of $30,000 for starting teachers and $60,000 for teachers with master's degrees and 10 years of experience.

HIGHER PAY may be part of the answer, but there are other facets of the problems in education that need to be addressed.

Public awareness of the problems is the most important ingredient in any search for solutions. Providing career teachers with respect and security -psychological security as much as måterial security - is important. Perhaps we ought to pay mathematics and science teachers more if we want to keep qualified teachers in those ranks.

The more discussion we have on these issues and the more light that the school districts can focus on their problems, the better we will be able to decide how education can be improved.

The school districts must pay more attention to the general public; dealing just with an elected board of education as representatives of the public is not enough

And we all must pay more attention to what is going on in our school districts. Any improvement in education will depend on how well we do pay at-

Party laws miss the mark

PARTY LAWS — it's time for folks to take another look.

About 18 months ago, Farmington Hills became the first suburban Detroit government to pass this now ever-sopopular ordinance.

The intent sounded good, anyway. "Let's nail those nasty adults who are spoon-feeding our children alcohol,' said supporters.

"Sure, why not? Anything to please our constituents, " said the politicians. City after city followed Farmington Hills' suit.

The reaction in municipal police stations is less-than-enthusiastic. Police officials quietly grimace, smile at their well-meaning city fathers and mothers and dutifully go about their business.

eventually flicker out.

They cite a few "adults" to show they are doing their job and then wait for the furor to die down. And with these kinds of ordinances, the flame always does

Whether it be Birmingham, Farmington Hills or Garden City, the ordinances read about the same. Adults allowing minors to consume alcoholic beverages at house parties can be zapped with a fine, usually $500 and an optional 90-day stay in the county jail. The city of Livonia and Redford Township are considering similar ordinances.

This is an ordinance that really never accomplishes what it was meant to do: nail adults, real adults.

You see in our society we've got two *kinds of adults:

• The regular old-fashioned type

And while it's one thing to play tough with lawbreakers, it's quite another to hang a criminal rap on a kid who isn't always mature enough to make sound judgments.

With all the talk of adult-teens being more mature than they used to be, they still do dumb things. And no teen should have to suffer a criminal record for making a bad call. Discipline sure, but not a criminal record.

If advocates of anti-teen drinking are looking for bad guys, they certainly can look for better targets than teens.

A MORE SERIOUS target would be those party store owners who continually turn their backs when underage consumers step up to the counter with a

Prosperity, poverty exist side by side

"ONE NATION, indivisible" my eye.

Economically, the United States of America is a series of regions. More often than not, one region is bleeding while another doesn't feel a thing.

That isn't conventional wisdom. Conventional wisdom says we're all interlocked; if your area is ailing, my area soon will be affected.

Not so

WHAT PROMPTS these musings was a recent trip to the mountains of Wyoming

Now, the last trip to Wyoming was in 1981, when Michigan had 20-percent unemployment and the cowboy state was rolling in wealth generated by a 17-percent tax on coal, oil and natural gas.

On the car radio, we heard people at a city council meeting arguing about whether to spend the surplus revenues on the library or the fire department. A relative on staff at the University of Wyoming said trustees, heavily representing landowners, were voting money for a new agriculture building or something like that, simply because the money was there.

Residents paid no income tax - just a 3-percent sales tax and property taxes that were $400 on a 1,800-squarefoot home.

TODAY, WYOMING is suffering. One reason is that oil prices are down as the OPEC international oil cartel disintegrates. Another reason is that the beef market is shot.

Somewhere I remember reading that Wyoming has twice as many sheep as cows, but the sheep interests aren't ottering a peep of complaint. Cattle canchers, however, are staying awake state and federal treasuries.)

"Today there's a lid on state spending. Pay scales are frozen. Staffs are being

With just 500,000 people in an immense area, Wyoming is losing population. We heard stories of folks turning over their house keys to the mortgage company and moving out of the state. The bottom is dropping out of the real estate market.

Sound familiar? Just like Michigan in 1979-83. But now Michigan is doing fine, thanks to the Reagan-Blanchard-Murphy prosperity; the real estate market is so strong that renters in Oakland County, our high-tech capital, are talking about rent controls.

THE SAME phenomenon can be seen closer to home.

For 20 years, I've been hearing the cognoscenti say that if Detroit decays, it will spread to the suburbs. Well, it hasn't happened. Half of Detroit's population is on some kind of governmental assistance, and it hasn't spread here.

A more dramatic case is the Twin Cities. Take the I-94 business route through Benton Harbor, where more than half the people are on welfare and one-third of the population has skedaddled, and you can fire a cannon down Main Street at noon on Saturday and not hit anyone. A mile away, State Street in St. Joseph is bustling.

The point of all this is that America's 7-percent unemployment figure is a statistical myth - kind of like averaging the household incomes of Bloom-field Hills and Royal Oak Township. No one fits the average.

Our nation's economic thinking would be more sensible if we stopped issuing national income figures and issued a set of five or nine regional figures. Prosperity and poverty can exist side by side and they do.

IF SUMMER HAS to end, a placid, sunny Labor Day weekend seems the best way to see it go.

Somewhere among the volleyball games, cookouts and lawn chores, we found time to sit outside and enjoy the view at our backyard aviary, an unexpected bonus to the home we bought at the edge of a pond, an unlikely idyllic setting only a curve in the road away from busy Grand River Avenue.

Sunday, a rare visitor returned. Sheltered by the draping willows on the far, undeveloped side of the pond, a blue heron stood motionless, often visible only because of its watery reflection since it nearly disappeared into the wild growth behind it.

Once it looped the pond in search of more fertile feeding grounds; suspicious of the encroaching civilization, the heron returned to its more isolated environment.

Now it was preoccupied, looking skyward at two strange, colorful contraptions, lazily lofting and buzzing overhead. We watched the heron eye the ultralight aircraft and reflected for a moment on how good life can be.

A YEAR AGO on a similar day not three miles from where we sat, the good life turned instantly and irrevocably sour for a family that, when it awoke, had no reason to believe that a nightmare was brooding.

After a hard morning of early afternoon chores, 13-year-old Shawn Moore hopped a bike for a familiar mile-long ride to a convenience store for a well-earned slug of cold pop. like you and I.

• Kid adults - those persons who are adults only in the eyes of the law but are children (teens) in the eyes of sociologists and parents.

While the intent was to nail the real adults, it is the kid adults who are taking the gas on this ordinance. An 18year-old has a party while mom and dad are in Florida; a 17-year-old drops by, pops a wine cooler just as the police drive by and shazaam - one 18-yearold ends up with a criminal record.

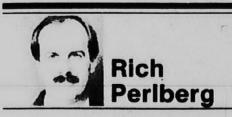

six-pack.

And you'd better believe it happens all the time. Those teens out there having house parties aren't making the brew in the bathtub. They're driving down to the corner store and buying the stuff.

The police know that's where the problem rests. You should too.

Certainly parents should be responsible. But no ordinance, law or constitutional amendment can legislate a responsible person into being.

Safety-a feeling short-lived

Like the heron searching the shores and skies for refuge. Shawn's neighbors have learned that a truly safe haven is as transient as a pastoral reflection in a pond at summer's end.

On his way home, on the shoulder of a well-traveled road, mere yards from a busy expressway, he was abducted. Those who saw were too far away to help. Those close enough were unaware of the tragedy unfolding.

Two weeks later, after intense publicity and a statewide manhunt, the family awoke to the news that the nightmare was not going to go away.

YESTERDAY, IN A 19th-century Howell courthouse, jury selection began for the trial of a Livonia man, 26-yearold Ronald Bailey, who has been charged with the boy's murder. That the trial begins so close to the anniversary date of the crime is but one of the ironies of this story.

The suspect is likely to use an insanity defense. The state has to argue that he was sane, although the same state validated his mental illness a decade ago when a judge ordered psychiatric care rather than prison for a teenaged Bailey after a brutal crime.

Was Bailey cured or worsened by his treatment? He claims now that one of the doctors at the Northville facility, Jose Tombo, coerced him into a homosexual affair. Tombo denies the allegation.

SOME HAVE WONDERED if Bailey can get a fair trial in Livingston County, where the crime poked holes in the belief that a rural life somehow shields one from such horror stories.

Life goes on. Parents perhaps keep a closer eye on their children, but the reins gradually have loosened. Children; resilient as they are, still believe that such abductions cannot happen to them. Life also goes on for the Moore family, although the crime still affects their daily life. Scott Moore, Shawn's lawstudent brother who became the family spokesman to protect his parents from media glare, has returned to his studies: He is engaged to be married, although the ceremony had to be delayed because of the trial.

Still the Moore family, like the com-munity where it lives, gradually is re-: turning to normal. Yet something is dif-ferent. Like the heron searching the shores and skies for refuge, Shawn's neighbors have learned that a truly safe, haven is as transient as a pastoral re-flection in a pond at summer's end.

Early retirement brings new opportunities

RON BOWLING celebrated his 49th birthday Sunday with mixed emotions. It was the first time in his adult life that he had been out of a job, a curious facet of the "30 and out' industrial philosophy that can bring pensioned retirement in the prime of life.

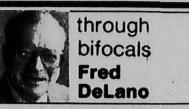

"It hasn't sunk into me yet what's ahead," Ron admitted to me last week on the eve of his final work day as a millwright in the same General Motors plant where he took a job fresh out of high school in 1956.

"I'll probably jump out of bed, start getting ready to go to work, then suddenly realize, oh, oh, it's done.

that Aug. 28 would mark the last time he would report for the midnight shift, the last time the time card would be punched, and that after farewells to coworkers he could lug his tool box home for keeps.

AND WHILE the words, "I've retired," may have a pleasant ring among envious friends, the daily habit of going to work will be hard to break. However, even though Bowling says he has made no specific plans, this is not a man who is likely to sit in a rocking chair twiddling his thumbs as life rolls onward.

To the contrary, Ron is a friendly Bowling had known for some time 275-pounder who is one of an increasing breed determined to re-route skills and energy into new avenues rather than get all his exercise taking a monthly pension check to the bank.

Raised in the mountains of southeast Kentucky where the scenery is easier to praise than cultivate, Bowling didn't have to look beyond his father and two older brothers to understand the tortourous toil working the coal mines meant.

On the spur of the moment, with a Hellier High School diploma in hand, he asked a vacationing cousin who was about to return to a job in Detroit if he could ride along.

"I was so homesick that first day here that if I'd had transportation I'd have gone back home right then," Ron recalled. 'The next day things started to change."

Just that fast the youngster from Pikeville found work. It was in what we knew then as the Chevrolet Spring and Bumper Plant. Eventually Bowling became a skilled tradesman by successfully completing work-related courses at Schoolcraft College, for which GM paid the tuition, and Ron concedes this was a turning point in his life, leading to better money and a better job.

As a member of UAW Local 262, it became necessary three time to participate in strikes called by the union and he was asked bluntly, "Have they been worth it?"

"A STRIKE is never worth it," was the immediate answer. "You don't get anywhere with a strike, but sometimes you have to do it. No one wins, but the union has been of great benefit. We couldn't get by without it."

Then he added, "I never pursued a job anywhere else because I was happy where I was. I wouldn't trade it. I believe in doing a job I can stake my name on and take pride in saying, 'I did that.' I can't stand sloppy work. Most of our people are like that and want to do a good job."

Along the way Ron married his sweetheart from Virginia and they now have four children, two sons and two daughters, ranging in age from 14 to 27. Speaking of the two grandchildren who are preschoolers, he said laughingly, They sure do know how to get to grandpa."

THERE ARE a couple of acres up near Harrison in northern Michigan : where the Bowlings built a two-bedroom cottage that will get attention in the weeks ahead, particularly when the bow hunting season opens. Also, said Ron, "There's a lot of Michigan we haven't seen, but plan to see, especially around Houghton and Hancock in the upper peninsular. This is the time to do it. Drummond Island too."

Well, I guess he's entitled to relax a little bit. But in the process there also is going to be strenuous effort to lose at least 50 pounds from that portly frame." "I'm not afraid of the future," said

Ron Bowling, who know that at this age there still has to be one.

Board games teach reading and other things grade schooler can be fun. You can choose a game both of you enjoy.

Parents are no longer limited to "Candyland" and "Chutes and Ladders," especially after a child has started reading. In fact, playing games with printed rules can be a fine way to teach reading.

Who has greater incentive to read: a child sitting in a classroom or a child trying to find out whether his character has been eaten by a lion?

A parent can be available to interpret . the rules — especially for children who are not yet good readers. But reading rules can give a chance for an otherwise poor reader to tell his parents something important (such as whether Dad's character was eaten by a lion).

THE TYPE of game you play depends on your tastes. A game can teach, a game can entertain and a game can build. A parent and child playing a game are working together, which is not that common with both parents bringing in a paycheck.

You and your child aren't limited to games based on TV shows or games that have been around 50 years. If you don't like one game, there is another that is fun for most members of the family. Many modern board games have pages of rules, but many of the PLAYING BOARD games with your rules can be ignored. After all, they are games, not life.

If your child has trouble losing, playing a chance-dependent game such as "Sorry" with a parent may not be fun. If he doesn't mind losing, there's the marvelously silly "Snit's Revenge." "Snit's Revenge" has a wonderful background that leads to "in" jokes such as the mock ferocious "Watch out or I'll get you with my prolobosinator."

IF YOU like silly (we do), there's also "The Awful Green Things from Outer Space." Both are by TSR. Both are also reasonably priced.

A fine game - although more expensive — is "Tales of the Arabian Nights" by West End Games. This game is almost a role-playing game in the Middle East of the Thousand and One Nights. Although it can be played alone, the game is more fun with a couple kids and an adult. And if you want to throw in asides about the current Middle East, that would only seem appropriate.

If your interest is the outdoors, try "Yellowstone" or "Outdoor Survival" by Avalon Hill. Neither are much for a competitive 14-year-old, but "Yellowstone" can teach an elementary-schoolage child about the vagarities of life for the animals. "Outdoor Survival" is aimed toward teaching survival skills.

THESE GAMES assume the ability to read. Unfortunately, most games for children who cannot read are chance dependent - a big drawback. Not only are games of chance boring (I've sat through too many games of Uncle Wiggley), but a child can lose badly despite having played properly.

Although chance-dependent, "Source of the Nile" by Avalon Hill is a favorite of mine. It accepts from two to six players easily.

The game has a ton of rules, but many can be ignored because the background is Africa around 1820 and you have a decent feel for what can happen. Not so for the Middle Earth-based games such as "Dungeons and Dragons". or the military "Battle of the Bulge."

While many modern board games are expensive ($15-$25), they can be found. at garage sales. They also make good. holiday presents, from child to parent. or vise versa.

7E HAD some of our red oak trees in the yard trimmed the other day. Branches were brushing the TV antenna, and some large limbs were completely dead. So we decided to alter the squirrels' runways slightly and to add to our winter wood supply

Oak is a long-burning wood and will provide heat for us this winter. A black cherry tree that fell last summer during a storm has been curing for a year now and will be ready for burning this winter, too.

While we cleaned up the small branches and leaves that fell during the trimming, I was amazed at the number of galls that had formed on the leaves. One leaf, only six inches long, had 38 peasize galls on it.

nature

GALLS COME in various shapes and sizes, but all result from an irritation to the plant, usually caused by an insect.

These galls are called oak pill galls, probably because of their size and number. A midge, which generally looks like a mosquito with busy antennae, laid its egg on the oak leaf. In response to this irritation, the plant formed a hard, reddish, pea-sized structure around the egg. This will provide protection for the developing lar-

There are about 1,500 insects that cause galls in North America, 800 of which can be found on oak trees alone. These oak pill galls are only one of several galls that can be seen on oak trees in southeast Michigan.

Oak apple galls are the most conspicuous because of their golfball size. they, too, are found on the leaves of oak trees, but some galls are also produced on the branches of oak trees.

WHILE CUTTING the grass a week or so ago, I noticed another oak gall on the ground that must have broken off its leaf.

This one was the red-banded bullet gall. It was marble-sized and marked like a watermelon, but with a red background. A small wasp caused this plant growth.

Not much is know about the life histories of the insects which cause many galls. Some galls are of interest to science because of their tumerous, cancer-like growth.

If you examine leaves of oaks, hickory, elm, goldenrod and many more, you will see how common galls really are.

those who already have chosen a company to compare their costs and services with those offered by the other companies."

The deregulation of the nation's telephone industry obliges millions of Michigan customers to choose a "dial 1" long-distance company. If no choice is made, one is assigned. The Federal Communications Commission ordered the deregulation to ensure equal market access for new companies, which now compete for long-distance customers.

Illiteracy Helping the adult non-reader

By Julie Brown staff writer

DULTS WHO are learning how to read can't really be expected to enjoy the antics of Dick, Jane and Baby Sally.

There are, however, a few publishers who have begun to recognize the need for high-interest, low-level readers for adults. Those readers deal with such topics as divorce and alcoholism.

The readers are among materials used by the Community Literacy Council and Plymouth-Canton Community Education in helping adults learn to read or improve their reading and writing skills.

Plymouth-Canton Community Education provides free adult basic education classes. Community Literacy Council volunteers work with area residents on a one-onone basis, helping them develop reading and writing skills.

The programs are designed to reach Plymouth-Canton residents and residents of nearby communities who lack adequate reading and writing skills.

"There are people who are waiting and willing to work with them," said Canton resident Carolyn Burns, president of the Community Literacy Council.

RESIDENCY IN the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district is not a prerequisite. Some illiterate and semi-literate adults, in fact, prefer seeking help outside of their own community, due to the anonymity such aid provides.

The Community Literacy Council was formed in August 1985. Throughout the 1985-86 school year, volunteer tutors worked with area residents, helping them improve their reading and writing skills.

The fall plans of the local literacy organization include being more active, in conjunction with a national initiative targeting illiteracy. Project Literacy U.S. (PLUS) will feature broadcasts and community service support by the ABC and PBS television networks, designed to combat adult illiteracy.

Hours for the event will be noon to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 6-The museum is at 155 S. Main St., Plymouth

'We've always had craft people here before," museum director Bar- clude the general store, the car-

'We've done the other for I don't know how many years."

Margaret Kidston has coordinated much of the work on this year's Fall Festival event, the museum director

There will be a few crafters downstairs at the museum, Saunders said, along with the Historical Society members who will explain what's in the museum.

Those working on this year's Fall Festival event at the museum are hoping it will draw a good-sized crowd.

'We'll accommodate the people that are on the street and want to go through," Saunders said. With this year's event taking a new approach, it's difficult to predict how successful it will be.

'We always hope we'll get people through," she said. "We hope we get a good crowd."

It's never too late to learn to read, write

Help is available locally for illiterate and semi-literate adults, according to Mary Kay Frey, adult basic education teacher for Plymouth-Canton community education department.

The local literacy organization has planned a "Literacy Luncheon" for noon Monday, Sept. 8, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer St., Plymouth. Price of the luncheon is $4, payable at the door.

The luncheon is designed to make community members familiar with the work of Plymouth-Canton Community Education and the Community Literacy Council. It is being held on World Literacy Day, as declared by UNESCO, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

In addition to the luncheon, tutor training sessions will be held 6:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 9, Thursday, Sept. 11, and Tuesday, Sept. 16. The training sessions will be held in Room 104 of the Starkweather Center, 550 N. Holbrook, Plymouth.

POTENTIAL TUTORS must attend all three nights. To register, call 451-6555.

In addition to working with adults who are illiterate and semi-literate, those involved in the local efforts are trying to remove the stigma associated with illiteracy.

A number of referrals to Plymouth-Canton Community Education and the Community Literacy Council are made by family members and friends of illiterate or semi-literate adults.

Changes in the workplace have made it necessary for many illiterate and semi-literate adults to improve their reading skills.

There's just a higher level of basic skills needed to do jobs," said Sharon Strean, assistant director of Plymouth-Canton Community Education, a service of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Reading skills aren't the only ones needed these days in the workforce; many employees are now required to file written reports as part of their job duties

"They do need those skills, they do have to be able to read and write," said Mary Kay Frey, adult basic education teacher for Plymouth-Canton Community Education.

The foreign-born are also being targeted by the Plymouth-Canton efforts. English classes for the foreignborn are offered at all levels from beginner to advanced.

TO HELP IN reaching the foreign-born, fliers printed in Korean, Hindi, Arabic and Chinese are being distributed. Those languages were chosen on the basis of public school enrollment within the Plymouth-Canton district

Plymouth-Canton Community Education's Sharon Strean has been pleased with the community's response to the local literacy efforts.

teracy efforts have been pleased 6-10 p.m. Monday through Thursday. with the response from the business community and others.

'They're saying 'What can I do to help?' So there's a real cooperation and commitment within the community," said Burns, who also serves as Michigan literacy coordinator for the Lutheran Church Women.

Starkweather Center has been developed over the summer months, with a number of features designed to help adults improve their reading, writing and math skills.

The facility now allows for more visual and aural types of learning, including computer-aided instruction in reading, math, spelling and vocabulary enrichment.

'We've expanded it to include more types of learning styles," said Frey, the adult basic education teacher.

Current plans are to have the adult learning center open 9 a.m. to Those involved with the local li-1 p.m. Monday through Friday and 451-6555.

Those hours may be expanded, according to Strean.

IN ADDITION to the work at the Starkweather Center, an outreach program is held at the Howmet Corp. Metal Products Division on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth. On-The adult learning center at the site training in basic skills is provided for employees.

A program is also based at the Ford Motor Co. plant on Sheldon Road in Plymouth. That program is held in conjunction with a national development and training center, a joint project of the automaker and the United Auto Workers.

Currently, the Ford Motor Co. program is based in portable classrooms at the Sheldon Road site. Plans are under way, however, to build a learning facility at the plant. "It's right in the works now," Strean said.

Human rights policy inconsistent

FOR QUITE some time, I have wondered about the apparent inconsistency in our national policy. On the one hand we take a hardline stance toward the government of Ni-caragua because of its civil rights violations.

At the same time, we are content to offer little more than weak verbal protest against gross violations in South Africa. But perhaps our approach is more consistent than it might appear.

If we presume that human rights is the issue - and who would not like to believe that? - then indeed we are-inconsistent. But take another look and a very common thread begins to show itself.

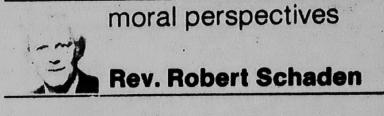

There is one vast and glaring difference between many of lands south of our borders and South Africa. Those in both Central and South America have been progressively making noise about systematic exploitation. They have learned to resent corporations from the north taking over their natural resources.

HELLO, AGRIBUSINESS; goodbye, small-time farmer. Some gratitude may have been felt by the few It would seem that our consistency lies in a determination to get what we want regardless of the cost to faceless inhabitants of other lands.

for jobs provided, but resentment by the many over the issue of being cheap labor for otherwise big spenders is quickly gracious in catering to the needs and fancies of multinational corporations.

It has been a good place for our money interests. If there is another plus for this nation which makes daily news in its violent denial of human rights, it lies in its stance against communism. Certainly they are more in our camp on that one than Ortega who has nowhere else to go for help but to Moscow.

Children are quick to form their allegiances and to draw their battle lines based on who will deliver what they want. We expect that from children who are somewhat narcissistic and those who don't are not. by nature.

Thursday, September 4, 1986 O&E

Unfortunately, however, this same tendency is showing itself as the basis for much of our national policy. But the policy makers are not chil-dren. They are the so-called responsible adults who have flags of freedom, who give speeches on the importance of the individual and who praise the sympbolism of Lady Liberty.

It would seem that our consistency lies in a determination to get what we want regardless of the cost to faceless inhabitants of other lands. We want a place to practice the craft of capital expansion and we want friends who will put down communism. It is evidently coming to pass that those nations willing to fall into such a line are the good guys

OUR WILLINGNESS to prop up the Shah in Iran and Marcos in the Philippines for so long are but two examples. It seems that only too much egg on our national face is enough to move us to a position that can be considered morally accept-able on the yardstick of a concern for human rights.

The egg is continuing to run. But if that is what it takes to move us to a position of national integrity then so be it. Sometimes those narcissistic children of whom we spoke can only be moved by a spanking. It seems that not only our antagonists but an evergrowing list of our allies are beginning to put us over their knee. It would be good if we could learn without such humility. tion, but as it stands we do not even seem ready to learn from it.

Jocks in workplace

Pro athletes test skills in new fields

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Marty Pavelich's Canton office looks anything but like a sporting goods resale house.

No hockey sticks, trophies or pictures adorn the bare paneled walls. Pavelich doesn't even use a hockey puck for a paperweight.

In fact, anyone but a well-tutored hockey fan might not even know that Pavelich was a member of four Detroit Red Wing Stanley Cup championship teams. That suits Pavelich just fine. He'd rather talk business anyhow, thank you.

But for a lot of former professional athletes turned professionals in the business world, that's easier said than done. Sometimes business associates only want to talk sports.

AND SOMETIMES all the former athlete can do is talk sports. They think the name on their calling card card is the only business smarts they need.

They don't last long.

Still, the Detroit-area has proved to be fertile ground for former athletes who've been successful in business.

For example, Bing Steel, owned by former Detroit Piston great Dave Bing, is one the top black-owned busi-nesses in the country. Mexican Industries in Detroit, operated by former Detroit Tiger pitcher Hank Aguirre, was selected as the top minority business in the Midwest region.

Also there's former Tiger catcher Bill Freehan with Freehan-Bocci & Co., along with countless Red Wing, Tigers, Lions and Pistons luminaries working as salesmen or manufacturer's representatives.

ALONG WITH a number of success stories, there's the classic story of the sports figurehead barely able to count the paper clips, let alone sell them.

"I've heard of ex-jocks walking into a purchasing de-partment and they think, 'Here's this dumb jock, what's he trying to sell us now," said Aguirre, who lives in Lathrup Village. "And it's only because in some cases, that's what they are - dumb jocks."

But that's not to say former athletes don't take advantage of their names. Quite the contrary.

Many aren't too proud to admit it might have been their name that helped seal a deal. But in the end, they had to deliever.

"The name and face recognition help," said Dexter Bussey, a former Detroit Lions running back. "People, whether they need the service or not, come in to see Dexter Bussey.

Bussey owns a Mail Boxes Etc. USA franchise in Bloomfield Hills, which sells postal, business and communications services. He, like a lot of pro athletes today, jumped into business before he retired in 1985, buying the franchise in 1983.

He also works as a sales representative for Consultant System Programers in Troy.

AT THE OTHER end of the spectrum is Pavelich, who with Red Wing teammates Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay, did something unheard of in the late 1950s. The trio got involved with their own business.

At the time, anything besides playing hockey was considered a distraction and was generally frowned upon by management.

Howe eventually went on to his own business ven-tures. Pavelich and Lindsay in 1962 started an automotive manufacturing plant.

Pavelich fondly recalls he and Lindsay working as salesmen during the day and as foremen in the plant at night. Neither had any formal business schooling.

'You have to learn through time," said Pavelich, who sold Lindsay & Pavelich five years ago. He still works out of the office as a salesman. "I was always interested in different plants. I was never too proud to ask a question.

Indirectly sports does provide some preparation for the business world.

"It helps you to be competitive," said Aguirre. "Baseball teaches you how to act under critical situations. It definitely helps you in the business world."

IT'S STILL a transition. For one, many athletes are used to working only five hours a day.

They find coming in at 7 a.m. and selling for eight hours a day isn't easy.

"The difficult transition is the commitment you have to make," Pavelich said. "You're out there like a rookie again. You have to learn about the business world."

'Most often a professional athlete's life structure is very well protected," Bussey said. ".... all of a sudden they have to do things themselves. 'After you play professional football, you realize, 'I'm

10 years behind. And some customers attempt to keep the former athletes in the past, talking only about their exploits on the playing field. It's a necessary part of the job. "That happens quite often," Bussey said. "It's up to me to excuse myself in a subtle manner. It doesn't bother me. I think I owe my customers some company.'

"I never start it," Pavelich said. "Once in awhile they want to talk hockey. People still get back to business.

there like a rookie again. You have to learn about the business world."

Small business 'flexes muscle' at conference

By Penny Wright

But Pearl Holfterty, accountant and parner with Plante & Moran, Southfield, was disapppointed that the preservation of the Small Business Administration as an independent agency did not place higher on the list of recommendations.

'We are not just a flash in the pan. As the largest employer group in the nation, we are determined to get the attention we deserve. If Congress and the administration want to increase jobs in this country, they should be talking to us.'

With recommendations ranging from liability insurance reform to a phase-out of farm price supports, small business raised a big voice at the recent White House Conference on Small Business.

Local members of the 61-person Michigan delegation attending the conference said the mission was accomplished with an amazing display of political commitment and intensity.

'Small business people united as a political force during the conference," said Richard Francis, director of merchant banking with Carleton Ward & Co., Birmingham. "Small buiness seldom gets the chance to flex its political muscle in unison. It was very exciting

'I'm already getting calls from around the country about strategies for passing legislation that address the final recommendations. I predict 80 percent of the recommendations will be implemented.

Liability insurance reform headed the list of final recommendations. Geared to stop the "national hemorrhaging of small business," the legislation delegates called for addresses civil justice reform, federal standards for product, professional and commercial liability, and increased availability and affordability of liability insurance

"The number 13 rank doesn't reflect the importance of retaining the agency as an independent federal department," Holferty said.

She said the SBA issue, a major bone of contention between the administration and small-business people was confused by a competing resolution offered by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

We need a voice for small business at the top levels of government, and we resent efforts to downgrade the issue

"Many of us are planning to go back to Washington at our own expense to testify before committee hearings for passage of these recommendations," Morton said. He also reported that for the first time in the history of the White House conferences, an ethnic minority caucus was formed.

"The concept is healthy and reflects the increase of minorities in small business.

Livonia business owner Jeanne Paluzzi of JGP Marketing Group International found the conference an energizing experience and strongly urged other small cal business organizations or the Small Business Association of Michigan. We need activists," she said.

Paluzzi said Japan, Norway and the Netherlands had observers at the conference. "They are trying to learn how to deal with small business issues in their own country and how to stimulate more entrepreneurs."

PEARL LIPNER, co-chair of the Michigan delegation and owner of Melange Limited of Southfield was pleased with the efforts of the state's delegates.

"Our people were incredibly professional and gave a tremendous amount of time to these important issues. We plan to press our own state legislators for action."

We are not just a flash in the pan," said Don Nemes of Nemes, Allen & Lefko, Birmingham. "As the largest employer group in the nation, we are determined to get the attention we deserve. If Congress and the administration want to increase jobs in this country, they should be talking to us.

Nemes said many delegates would like more frequent White House conferences. He also said Michigan dele-gates have pressed both gubernatorial candidates for a state conference on small business.

Liability insurance reform leads recommendations

Delegates attending the White House Conference on Small Business Aug. 17-21 agreed on 60 recommendations. Here are the top 10:

1. Liability insurance reform including a faultbased standard of liability; limit non-economic damages to $250,000; limit attorneys' contingency fees; Impose a statute of limitations; establish a uniform standard of fault; promote the establishment of joint underwriting associations and assigned risk pools; promote tax deductible self-insurance; require complete financial disclosures by the insurance industry.

2. No government-mandated employee benefits such as employer-paid health benefits, parental leave and disability leave.

3. Protection against "unfair" competition including prohibiting non-profit, tax-exempt business from using advantages such as postal rates in selling products and services offered by small business; prohibit government organizations from performing commercial services.

4. Federal deficit reduction and a balanced budget by correction of the Gramm-Redman-Hollings Act, assage of a balanced budget amendment and presdential budgetary line-item veto power.

5. Creation of a cabinet level department of international trade.

6. Advancement of entrepreneurial education by the federal government.

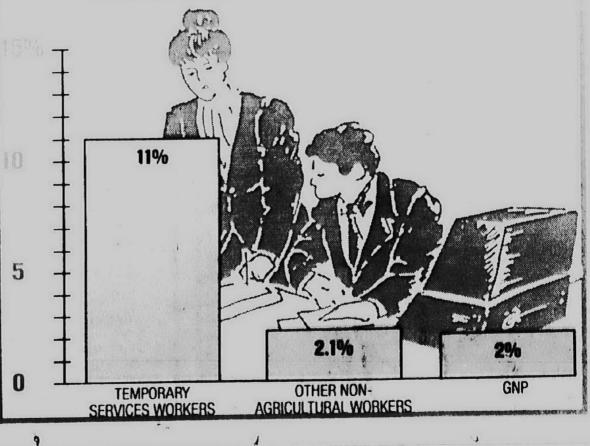

7. Congressional repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act and Service Contract Act. According to Nation's Business magazine, Davis-Bacon requires almost all federal constructiaon contractors to pay local union wage scales

8. Reform the Social Security system by removing all non-retirement programs from Social Security and paying them from the general fund; bring all workers under the Social Security system; freeze FICA contribution wage base and tax rate at 1986 level; cap automatic indexing and cost of living adjustments; fund a presidential commission to develop long-range alternatives to the present system.

9. Enact Senate Bill 2760 with the Kasten-Lugar-Kassebaum amendment to provide uniform fault defenses and the Pressler amendment eliminating joint and several liability.

10. Internal Revenue Service reform, subjecting the agency to judicial review and making it accountable for all costs incurred by taxpayers as a result of IRS errors.

because the chart was inadvertantly omitted when it first appeared last month.

In recent months, refinancing has accounted for a third of all mortgages. It's little wonder I'm constantly asked by my clients if they should refinance their mortgage now.

What's the attraction?

Say you financed your $60,000 mortgage when the rates were 12 percent. By refinancing it for $70,000 at 10 percent, you will have $10,000 in your pocket, and your monthly payments will remain the same

If you are paying a mortgage rate of, say, 16 percent, by refinancing at, say, 9 percent, you can slash your monthly payments, put extra cash in your pocket, or build up equity at a faster rate.

Is it that good?

Not quite. For any refinancing to be attractive, it must meet the Two-Two-Two test. Simply stated, refinancing will probably work if you have been in your house for at least two years, if your interest is at least two points over the current rate, and if you are considering living in your house for at least two more years. Of course, meeting this test is a necessary but not a sufficient condition for total success in your refinancing effort.

Will the real cost stand up?

The mortgage rate quoted by a financial institution is, of course, very confusing. The accompanying chart shows that the total initial cost of refinancing can run into thousands of dollars, thereby wiping out part of the gain associated with refinancing.

Another way of looking at the real financing cost is to remember that a 10.875-percent mortgage rate may be equivalent to an annual percentage rate of 11.309 percent.

The points tacked on to your initial cost (called loan discount) cannot be fully taken as an itemized de-

This rule should be remembered in deciding if it is better to add points merely to reduce the fixed mort- vestments around.

stead, they must be amortized over the life of the mortgage. An interesting way of looking at points is to think of them as an investment, not cost. That way, refinancing can be one of the best in-

HOW TO DO A LITTLE

WN

(R.W.G-11C)#

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning. Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

Observer & Eccentric

Pick up your free Garage Sale folder in our office when you place your ad! (Contains two signs, two arrows, a handy ledger, 14 tips for a successful sale and nine tips for a successful ad)

Rocks stay hopeful despite losing Hill

By Chris McCosky staff writer

The fire was back in Tom Moshimer's eyes. It had been missing the last couple of years.

When he talked of his 1986 Plymouth Salem football team, he said things like, "I'm enjoying this so far" and "We going to be a good football team." He hadn't said things like that in a couple of years.

Tom Moshimer was genuinely optimistic. He hadn't been that in a couple of years.

That was two weeks ago.

Since then, his team has lost its No. 1 quarterback. Senior Chris Hill Moshimer said Holt may have a broke his leg in last week's preseason scrimmage and isn't expected to return this season.

For a moment, a bit of the old gloom returned to Tom Moshimer's voice.

"Sure, it's tough. He was a good wishbone quarterback. If he was just a hand-off quarterback, we could replace him with no problem. But he was solid option quarterback.

"And it's really too bad for Chris, too. He was a great kid, a real hard worker. And a leader. It seems like it always happens to those kinds of kids

THERE WAS a pause. Then the Tom Moshimer of two weeks ago began speaking.

'I'll tell you what, though, I'm confident the two juniors will do the job for us

Steve Holt and Kurt Britnell will assume the quarterbacking duties. slight edge coming into Friday's season opener at Trenton. But both will probably see action.

We will be a better team than the last two years," said Moshimer, whose teams posted 3-6 records in 1984 and 1985. "We've improved in all aspects."

The leading cause for the Rocks' optimism is senior co-captain Joe Jouppi. At 6-2, 205, Jouppi is a punishing player on both sides of the line of scrimmage.

"Jouppi is a major college player," Moshimer said. "He runs hard; he's a great blocker, and he's a terror on defense. We can't even run our drills at him in practice. He destroys everything that comes his way.

Joining Jouppi in the backfield likely will be senior sprinter Brian Neuhardt. Juniors Doug Prater and Garrett Bowie will also see action.

At fullback, senior's Jerry Sumner and Leonard Bowe will share time. Jeff Armstrong is the probable starting wide receiver, with Andy Gee, Kevin Cousino and Lee Erickson all vying for the tight end job.

PERHAPS THE area of greatest improvement for Salem is the offensive line. Senior Kurt Urban (6-1, 185) will anchor it. Dave Frigerio (5-11, 175), Adam Aldrin (5-11, 175), Jim Lamb (5-7, 160), Romolo Maura (6-2, 210), John Lazarowicz (5-11, 201), Al Kim (6-0, 175), Jay Blaylock (6-0, 195) and Richard Johnson (6-4, 240) are all battling for playing time. We're not any bigger than before, but the players we have are more familiar with our system. They shouldn't make as many mistake as last year," Moshimer said.

Steve Genyk, who had his ups and downs last year, returns as Canton's No. 1 quarterback.

Chiefs seek a new attitude

Khoenle puts faith in senior class

By Chris McCosky staff writer

On paper, the 1986 version of the Plymouth Canton football team looks pretty solid.

But Canton always seems to look like a good team on paper. The truth is the Chiefs have not been a good team on the field in recent years the worst being last season's 0-9 fiasco.

The impoverished past is the first problem new head coach Bot Khoenle must address.

'We have a good nucleus of play ers, and they are working very hard. But we have to have an attitude change here," Khoenle said. "The kids have to start thinking more positive. They have to start believing in themselves. We have a horrible defeatist attitude here, and we must get over that. We have to learn to go out there and compete aggressively. Of course, that's something that's easy to talk about and hard to overcome."

should be one of the team's strengths. Quarterback Steve Genyk saw action last year. He'll be joined Khoenle is high on Trice. "He's very quick and he can be a gamebreaker for us.

Seniors Todd Wood, John Migyanka, Jeff Krolicki and junior Steve Fleming are vying for offensive end spots

"We've got good kids at the skill positions," Khoenle said. "They have got to produce for us if we are going to be successful."

The offensive line, a traditional weakness of Canton football teams, will be big, but relatively inexperienced. Glen Godfrey (6-2, 200-pound senior), Brian Gothard (6-1, 205, sen-THE OFFENSIVE backfield ior) and Wes Johnson (5-10, 185, senior) saw some action last year. Scott Browne (5-11, 180, junior), Rich Cline (5-11, 195, junior) and Jerry French (6-0, 260, junior).

AT CENTER, Shawn Koteles (6-2, 170, junior), Dave Mroczka (6-1, 195, senior) and Ken Truesdell (6-1, 240, senior) are battling for the starting job.

"These guys have the ability to be very good," Khoenle said. "It's just a matter of them finding out exactly what they are supposed to be doing."

Anchoring the defense, a traditional strength of the Canton team, will be senior linebacker Chris Rheault and senior tackle Marc Rinke.

"We expect our defense to pick up where it left off last year," Khoenle said. "Our major concern right now is offensive production. We have got to score some points."

Mike Gray, a junior, will do the place kicking, with Rod Baltes helping out on kickoffs. Mroczka will handle the punting.

"Depth is a problem for us, too. We can't afford to get anyone hurt," Khoenle said.

CC not lacking in talent

By Brad Emons staff writer

They're all gone

Eleven Redford Catholic Central football players earned college scholarships last year. Those 11 were also instrumental in CC's Catholic League title conquest and a berth in the state Class A playoffs.

But don't shed any tears for CC coach Tom Mach and his Shamrocks, who appear to have the necessary reinforcements to enjoy another good season.

The only thing standing in the way is the schedule, which includes the always murderous five-game Central Division card along with such non-league foes as 1984 Class A champion Ann Arbor Pioneer.

The Shamrocks open the season Saturday night at the Pontiac Silverdome against Flint Northwestern with a number of questions to be answered.

Can CC's defense be as good? Are the Shamrocks big enough to slug it out in the Central?

"WE'RE PRETTY much a senior team," said Mach, now in his 11th season. "The thing these seniors don't have is the two-year experience. We had a lot of good players that were not good enough to play last year.

"We're not as big and we're putting 10 new guys on defense, but we're pretty quick and we've got some good, skilled people."

The backfield is the most experienced with the return of quarterback Mark Stieve, a 6-foot-1, 180pound senior who started five games last year.

Greg Haeger (6-3, 175), who was the starter early in the season, has moved to split end, joining wide receivers Pat Rogers (6-0, 160) and Mark Grenier (6-2, 185), who played running back a year ago.

Tim Lafferty (5-10, 180), a thirdyear player, is set at tailback after an injury-plagued junior year. His running mate is veteran fullback Chris Kassa, (5-8, 185), a co-captain.

"Our backs have a year's experience, and our quarterback has four or five games under his belt," Mach said. "The line is new, which could cause us problems. We're not ready for finesse moves early in the season. We're going have to let them develop."

SENIOR TACKLE Tom Victory (6-6, 230) and tight end Matt Fras (6-2, 208), a pair of major college prospects, provide a good nucleus on the offensive line.

The other starters include tight players going both ways.

Also playing on CC's vaunted 5-2 defense will be Bob Michalik and Mackiewicz, defensive ends; Victory, tackle; Fras and Chris Michalik, linebackers; Grenier and Haeger, secondary Others moving into starting defensive slots, according to Mach, include nose guard Erik Knuth (6-21/2, 225), junior tackle Pete Dankert (6-3, 205), monster back Chris Kovath (6-2, 175) and cornerback BOb Malleck (6-0, 185).

The kicking game rests on the team," said Mach of his upcoming opponent. "They're fast and their quarterback is dangerous. They run option and he throws the ball. They have seven or eight real skilled people and they're disciplined."

A win Saturday would obviously give CC a big boost for the rest of the season.

tough to predict how we'll be until happy with our defense in the fourway scrimmage. In our league, everybody has trouble moving the ball. We hope to throw more, but it's a defensive league and there aren't any hig score

New Borgess coach puts emphasis on the defense

By Brad Emons staff writer

After a spring of watching films, Dan Henry became quite a movie critic.

Excuse the first-year Redford Bishop Borgess football coach for acting a little like Siskel and Ebert. but Henry saw some things he didn't like.

Last year Borgess finished 2-7 under Gary Cook, and there are some changes Henry hopes to make by Saturday when the Spartans take on Dearborn Edsel Ford in their season er opener.

'We've emphasized defense from the beginning," said Henry. "Last year Borgess was a decent team between the 20s, but defensively they just didn't attack things the way they should have.'

He has also tried to instill an air of discipline.

"I had to sell them on working hard every day in practice - not just showing up the day of the game," he said. "I wanted total discipline and I think they've responded well so far.'

Henry will run Michigan's 5-2 slant-angle defense.

Across the front will be nose guard Larry Green, a 5-foot-7, 150pound junior; Maurice Cummings, a 15-year-old junior Eric Emanual (6-

"He's young, but I feel real comfortable with him," said the Borgess coach. "Last year he started against Notre Dame and won 26-12. He can throw, he can run and he's a winner.'

In the backfield will be speedy junior Corey Ivey (5-7, 150) at tailback and senior fullback John Bedient (5-8, 180), a co-captain.

"We'll use a pro-I (formation), but we'll run a lot of different sets," Henry said.

THE FLANKER spots are manned by Darkins, the team's leading receiver last year, and Dan Hatty (5-10, 170). Marshall and Joiner are the tight ends.

The offensive line, a big concern for Henry, includes junior Steve Broisset (5-10, 180), Cade and Campbell at guards; Cummings and Scott Paciorka at the tackles.

"The line is inexperienced and that's where we're weak," Henry said. "Our strength is that we have good athletes at the perimeter."

Facing a tough Central Division schedule, Henry is not about to make any bold predictions.

"We're just going to try and win every game we can, but the main thing we want to do is be competitive," he said. "At the end of the game, all we want is a chance to win. That's all I can ask.

S'craft kickers tie EMU

The opener for Schoolcraft College's mens soccer team against Eastern Michigan University provided the Ocelots with just the kind of test coach Van Dimitriou was hoping for.

A tough, physical test.

A year ago, the largely inexperienced SC team might have been muscled into a loss. But Dimitriou has been stressing better defense and more physical play during this season's preseason to a team with seven starters back

The two teams battled to a scoreless tie at SC Aug. 27.

"EVEN THOUGH it was a tie, we're very pleased," said Dimitriou. 'This (EMU) team is better than almost anybody we play. They came out loaded for bear. They have some very experienced players.

We know that, at least after one game, our defense is much improved.

We dominated the game twothirds of the time. The key was that we just did not want to lose the game.

Dimitriou praised the defensive work of Scott Steiner (from Plymouth Salem), Pete Lomas (Livonia Bentley), D.J. Ward and Kevin Kurkowski (both from Livonia Stevenson). Dimitriou used 18 players in the game and was "impressed with our depth. I did not notice any dropoff in our play.

Mac's traveling act not so unusual

OU CAN ALMOST HEAR the snickering going on amongst the basketball coaching fraternity.

"What's wrong with this McIntyre kid?," they'd chime. "He doesn't know what he wants."

The John McIntyre saga took another turn last week. After leaving the University of Detroit in May, McIntyre has shopped schools at Iowa State, the University of Michigan and the University of Missouri all in the past three months.

Although he hasn't married a movie star, you'd think we were talking about John McEnroe instead.

Contrary to public innuendo, John McIntyre, the all-state basketball player who averaged 33 points per game two years ago at Redford Catholic Central, is not a crybaby, doesn't argue with officials, is well mannered and is a pretty good student.

Hailed by some media types as "biggest recruit since Dave De-Busschere with a style similar to 'Pistol' Pete Maravich," McIntyre was billed "a pioneer" by U-D coaches, administrators and alumni.

HE WAS ALSO only one of a select group of athletes from CC's storied past ever to hold a news confer- mer playing basketball and working disappointed.

ence to announce his college decision.

McIntyre made a statement that day that still rings in my ear. "I won't have to worry about wearing handcuffs in Coach (Don) Sicko's offense," he said. In what was termed a disappointing year at U-D, McIntyre felt he was wearing a ball and chain. Averaging only five points per game and shooting only 36 percent, 'Mac' felt his style was cramped and began looking elsewhere.

Mac's first intention was to enroll at Iowa State and play for Johnny Orr, but U-D provided a stumbling block, refusing to give McIntyre a written release until the NCAA looked into the matter of tampering. Given a release (by U-D) to any other school in the country except Iowa State, McIntyre announced last month that he was going to Michi-But there was a catch. McIntyre was bound to U-M only by a Big 10 letter-of-intent. And although he could not sign with any other Big 10 school, McIntyre was still open game to any other school in the country.

ALTHOUGH HE spent the sum-in Ann Arbor, McIntyre, who will have to sit out this season anyway under NCAA transfer rules, was not bound to U-M until he registered for classes (school starts today).

Enter Missouri and coach Norm Stewart.

According to John's father, Jim, the Missouri coaches wanted him bad enough to fly in twice to see him play in the Sandy Sanders Summer Basketball League.

Convinced Missouri was best suited for his style of play, Mac traveled down to Columbia last week and enrolled in classes where he will have three years of basketball eligibility remaining.

The move apparently caught Michigan coach Bill Frieder and his staff by surprise, to say the least.

Frieder was out of town on a recruiting trip and was unavailable for comment, but U-M assistant Dave Hammer indicated that Frieder was

"HIS FATHER INFORMED me and it caught us by surprise," said Hammer. "He (Jim McIntyre) said that John felt the opportunity was a little better at Missouri. The problem with a transfer like John is that

The circumstances surrounding McIntyre's transfer has led people to question his word and his integrity.

Many coaches have looked out for D's own Dick Vitale, Smokey Gaines

Vitale built U-D into a national

tor. Six months later he was well enough to coach the Detroit Pistons for six figures. Now he's making six figures with ESPN-TV, and don't be surprised to see him at CBS one day if Billy Packer ever gets the boot.

Gaines took over at U-D and built a 47-6 record in two years, but left for sunny San Diego State when ad-ministrators failed to raise his salary beyond a pitiful $32,000 per year. Gaines is now a coach and successful businessman.

IN 1978, Sicko coached a high school team, Royal Oak Shrine, to a 23-1 record, gaining Michigan Coach of the Year honors.

After a year like that, who could blame him for jumping at the opportunity to be a college assistant - the only problem was that Sicko's first go-around at U-D lasted only four months. He resigned in protest when Gaines fired another assistant, Tom Schneeman. Sicko then bounced from Kent State to Michigan, before winding back up at U-D again.

There are other famous cases: Joe Falls went from the Free Press to the News; Jacques Demers, from the St. Louis Blues to the Red Wings; Darryl Rogers, from Michigan State to Arizona State; Bill Lucas, from _aren't we all a little guilty of being Democrat to Republican; Greg selfish?

Wendt, from Duke to Detroit. The list goes on.

All these people were looking for greener pastures and more security. Who could blame them, even under the circumstances?

John McIntyre isn't the first and won't be the last unhappy freshman basketball player to transfer. As I recall, Larry Bird changed his mind four times, too: Indiana University, Northwood Institute, garbageman and Indiana State.

DON'T CLASSIFY McIntyre as selfish. Heck, I know he enjoys passing the ball more than he does shooting it.

Maybe things could have been handled a bit more smoothly in this case, but we're dealing with a 19year-old kid.

I wish John McIntyre all the best in his quest for happiness. I'm sure he realizes there's no turning back now. He'll either make it or break it with Mizzou.

College basketball, unfortunately, is a business, and McIntyre got caught in the evil game. And until the philosophy of college sports changes, it's not right to secondguess his latest move. After all,

The role of the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference may be increased by the beginning of the 1987 fall season

The current athletic directors of member schools - Hillsdale, Grand Valley State, Ferris State, Saginaw Valley State, Northwood Institute, Michigan Tech, Lake Superior State and Oakland University — will de-cide whether to allow Northern Michigan University to join their ranks at conference meetings No-

"They have made an application," said Oakland athletic director Paul

"(NMU) has been making overtures for a number of years.

"As far as I can tell, just about everyone (in the GLIAC) is in favor of it. There have been some questions an exemption has been granted because of the weather. "We don't have a spring in Mar-quette," said Heard. The academic calender is also short. NMU's winter semester ends in April, in the middle of the spring sports season.

Heard said the NCAA could revoke its exemption once the Olympic Training Center in Marquette is completed.

'Once that's done, we can do anything you want to - inside," he said. But adding two more sports may not be financially feasible at present. Money would have to be taken from a current sport to fund another. NMU dropped men's swimming due to a lack of money several years ago.

away,' "Heard said. NMU's addition would give the Great Lakes calender another football-playing school. The conference currently has six. Oakland doesn't have a team, and Tech discontinued playing conference football this season, although the Huskies still field a team.

A few out-of-state colleges have made inquiries about joining the Great Lakes conference in the past, but thus far it has stuck to its all-Michigan format.

That could change in the near future. There is a movement within the conference to drop schools with dual affiliation that insist on competing in post-season play in the National Association Inter-collegiate Athletics instead of the NCAA. They are Hillsdale, Saginaw Valley and Northwood.

Should such a movement reach fruition, remaining Great Lake members would no do bt rec their decision regarding out-of-state

Prognosticators leery of prep openers

By Chris McCosky and Brad Emons staff writers

ERE WE go again. Your local experts (ahem) will again blindly attempt to predict the outcome of the area's weekly football games. Actually, the boys did a fair job last year. They combined to pick 163 correctly against 75 misses. Sports editor Chris McCosky ended a two-year losing streak with a 87-32 mark to fellow sports editor Brad Emons' 76-43.

But no sense resting on our laurels. Let's get at those '86 picks.

FRIDAY GAMES

LIV. CHURCHILL at STERLING HEIGHTS, 7:30 p.m.: Herb Osterland's Chargers began the 1985 sea-son with a narrow win against Sterling Heights. The 1986 Charg-ers look even better than last year's 6-3 team. Sterling Heights remains the weaker of the three Sterling Heights leams (Steven-son and Ford). Picks — Churchill gets off to 1-0 start again. both say

REDFORD UNION at LIV. STEVENSON, 7:30 p.m.: Good game here. Both teams have improved. RU will have a decisive size advantage, and quarterback Dave Marshall will cause problems for the Spartans' defense. Stevenson, on the other hand, has a strong line on both sides of the ball and may try to control the ball Picks - Emons and McCosky agree. might makes right; take RU.

grid predictions

PLY. SALEM at TRENTON, 7:30 p.m.: The Rocks were riding high until two weeks ago. Quarterback Chris Hill broke his leg in a scrimmage and will be out for the season. Still, the Rocks are much-improved with the emergence of major college prospect Joe Jouppi. Trenton has been picked among the state's top 25 teams. Picks - Trenton wins a close one both say

WILLOW RUN at PLY. CANTON, 7:30 p.m.: The Chiefs have a new coach in Bob Khoenle and presumably a new and refreshed attitude. But Willow Run has a legion of dy and deceptive ball carriers. Picks - Willow Runs wild on Chiefs, say the experts.

FARM. HARRISON at WEST BLOOMFIELD, 7:30 p.m.: Harrison coach John Herrington saw West Bloom field scrimmage and came away impressed, especially with jun-ior quarterback Dan ShrewIberry. The Hawks may be without their quarterback. Mark Murray has been ailing with mononucleosis. Should be an interesting game. Picks — McCosky and Emons will stay with the Hawks.

JOHN GLENN at BELLEVILLE, 7:30 p.m. if Chuck Gordon tells you his team isn't as good as last year, don't listen. The defending Western Lakes champs might be better than they were a year ago. Picks - Glenn Rockets to victory.

SATURDAY GAMES

DET. ST. HEDWIG at REDFORD THURSTON, 1 p.m.: Detroit St. Hedwig is a Class D school. Thurston w have to struggle for every win it gets this season, so it won't want to miss this golden opportunity. Plcks - Thurston wins it.

SOUTHFIELD at FARMINGTON, 1 p.m.: South-

Farmington, under new coach Dave Catherman, Is determined to show that the 1984 victory against the Jays was no fluke. Picka — McCosky picks Farmington; Emons takes Southfield.

SOUTHFIELD-LATHRUP at N. FARMING-TON, 1 p.m.: Lathrup is coming off a successful season. North Farmington is not. The Raiders have perhaps the area's best back in Scott Selzer, but an uncharacteristically untested defense. Picks - Unanimous, North wins.

LIV. FRANKLIN at DEARBORN FORDSON, 1:30 p.m.: Many prep experts, like the two Detroit daily newspapers, consider Fordson among the state's elite. No surprise there. Franklin boasts an excellent defense led by Chris Parenti but may have great difficulty scoring points. Picks — Fordson tracts a win, both say.

CLARENCEVILLE vs. RED. ST. MARY'S, 2 p.m. at Det. Benedictine: Young and talented, C'ville looks to be much better than its 1-7 record of a year ago. Gregg Buelt could be Observerland's top quarterback, no joke. Picks - C'ville starts strong BISHOP BORGESS vs. EDSEL FORD, 7:30 p.m. at GC Junior High: Dan Henry is in his first season at Borgess. He hopes to bring a more intensified defense to the always offensive-minded Spartans. Edsel graduated all-state quarterback Dan Enos. Picks — Emons picks Borgess; McCosky, in memory of Edsel grad Jim Hughes, takes the Thunderbirds.

St. AGATHA vs. DEARBORN ST. AL-PHONSUS, 7:30 p.m. at Kraft Field: The Aggles just missed making the Catholic League C-D playoffs last season. but lost most of the team to graduation. Tough road ahead. Picks - SI. Al's.

CATHOLIC CENTRAL vs. FLINT NORTHWESTERN, 8 p.m. at the Silverdome: Depending on who you talk to, CC either lost all its talent to gradu-ation or will be one of the top teams in Class A again this season. This opener will go a long way in telling the tale. Picks -Go with the Shamrocks.

Planning has already started for the trip. Applications are currently being accepted by Nazelli at 19785 Purlingbrook, Livonia 48152.

The 1987 tour will include a side trip to either Helsinki, Finland, or Leningrad, in the Soviet Union. Team members will visit homes of Swedish players to gain an understanding of the country's culture.

What makes the program unique is that players are not chosen on basis of ability alone. As Nazelli explains:

'Too often when all-stars go over as a team, all-star problems occur. I want a kid who is going to make the most of this opportunity as a learning and training experience.

The requirements for players to try out for the team are a 3.0 gradepoint average and a letter of recommendation from a past or present coach. Applications should be submitted immediately - the team will be selected by Monday, Sept. 15.

Nazelli sponsors several fund-raising events throughout the winter and spring to help YAA team members pay for the trip. For further information, call Nazelli at 477-9009.

Daly 2nd in national tourney

Daly Restaurant ended its most successful softball season by finishing second last week in the prestigious American Softball Association National Women's Fast Pitch tournament held at Currie Stadium in Midland

The Livonia team, winning six of eight games, was ousted by the San Diego Astros, who won the title for the fourth time in 11 years. The double-elimination tournament drew 24 of the top teams from across the nation.

Three players from Daly were named to the ASA All-American team including pitcher Shelly Larned, the tournament MVP. Making the second team were Garden City East High product Linda Webb, a shortstop at Central Michigan University; and Ann DeSmet, a third baseman.

In the first game, Daly defeated Lansing Pro Bowl, 5-1, as Larned flirted with a no-hitter until the top of the seventh when Kathy Liete and Rachel Dexter broke it up with backto-back doubles.

Daly scored all five of its runs in the fifth on a bloop, bases-loaded single by Lisa Parsons, a three-run double by Webb and an RBI single by DeSmet.

1984 ASA CHAMPION Arrow Butane Flame of Las Cruces, N.M., downed Daly in the second round, 3-0, as catcher Betsy Skibyak belted a two-run homer off losing pitcher Jan Boyd-Smith.

In the third game, Daly knocked down DeWyse Builders of Bay City, 5-0, as Webb collected a pair of hits and Sheryl Horvath, formerly of Livonia Ladywood High, added an RBI single, scoring former Livonia Stevenson High product Debbie Copeland.

fourth-round win over Sam's Tire of Olympia, Wash. In the top of the 14th, Webb singled, went to third on DeSmet's single and scored on a wild pitch.

Daly followed with a 4-0 triumph over the Souderton Clippers (Pa.) beind DeSmet's two-run single in the fourth and Webb's two-run double in the fifth.

Larned picked up her fourth straight win.

In game six, it was Boyd-Smith's turn to shine on the mound.

The former Plymouth Salem High and University of Michigan standout tossed a four-hitter. She got help from GC East High and University of Detroit product Sherry Kiselica, who belted a solo homer.

IN A REMATCH with Las Cruces, Larned's four-hitter, her fifth victory of the tournament, carried Daly to a 2-0 triumph. She preserved the win by pitching out of bases-loaded jam in the top of the seventh.

Catcher Lisa Waldock, who singled to lead off the third, eventually scored on DeSmet's single to account for one run. Lisa Parsons then added an RBI single in the sixth.

The win over Las Cruces set up a showdown with the undefeated Astros, who scored first when Carol Davis tripled and later crossed home on an infield throwing error.

Kiselica's RBI single in the fourth tied it 1-1, but San Diego added single runs in the sixth and seventh off Boyd-Smith to win its second straight natonal crown.

Daly, managed by Bob Thompson, recorded its best finish in the ASA Nationals, posting an overall season record of 46-10.

Bob Hurdle predicts the upcoming Oakland University volleyball season is "going to be interesting."

A description like that encompasses a wide spectrum. What it doesn't depth. "I've never had an 11-player pinpoint is if the Lady Pioneers will be good or bad.

You'd think that would be something Hurdle would know. After all, he's entering his fifth season as OU's coach. He's compiled a 100-50 dualmatch record in that span, including a school-record 33-10 last year.

And yet. Hurdle isn't sure what to expect from this season's team. Talent? Yes, the Lady Pioneers have it, according to Hurdle. But experience, the catalyst that transforms talent into victories, is missing.

OU GRADUATED four starting seniors from the 1985 team. The 1986 edition has just one senior and

Which comes with experience. The key to OU's season will be how fast they mature as a team, evolving from good back-ups and high school players into major contributors.

WHAT HURDLE does have is roster with such competition," he claimed.

Or with such youth. His tri-captains are 6-foot-2 senior middle blocker Bridget Bohnet, a part-time starter last season, and sophomores Jones and Ann Harrison, a 6-foot passing and defensive specialist.

Other potential starters - and Hurdle quickly added that this lineup could change - were freshman setter Kelly Williams; junior outside hitter Sue Lormin, a Troy Athens graduate and transfer from Utah; and junior outside hitter Noelle Graham.

Battling for playing time are freshmen Missey Ward, a Garden

That is in the hands of freshman Williams, who has already been inserted as the starting setter in Hurdle's 5-1 scheme.

When you make a decision like this, you've got to stick with it," said Hurdle. "A lot of what she learns will be on-the-job.

"I think she's going to be a great one, but she's going to have some bad days.'

The bad days are what Hurdle wants to minimize. "My biggest problem will be remembering we're so young, and we will be inconsist-ent," he said.

But he added, "I don't want to be satisfied with the thought that 'We're going to be good next year.' I want us to develop consistency. That's our No. 1 goal."

Only one full-time starter returns sophomore middle-blocker Tracey Jones, who set OU freshman kill records a year ago. Two other part-time starters are also back.

"I think we'll be better than peo-ple think," predicted Hurdle. The Lady Pioneers were picked to finish in the middle of the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (GLIAC) pack in the preseason poll, after tying for the dual meet title last year and finishing third overall.

"We had a very, very fine recruiting year. There's just not a whole lot of experience coming back. My biggest concern right now is consisten-CY.

Innovation's the key to his harp

By Louise Okrutsky staff writer

N THE U.S. pop music world of tightly programmed radio and one-syllable names, it would seem as if Andreas Vol-lenweider's ethereal, futuristic music doesn't stand a chance. Not only is difficult to pigeon-hole his music but it's performed on an instrument that generally is heard in classical concert halls and during late dinner service in some restaurants

He's taken the harp to heart, altering it to accommodate his musical vision

Vollenwieder and Friends came to Pine Knob last week as part of his Down to the Moon tour promoting his fourth North American album of the same name. At 32, he has behind him two gold albums in Europe and the distinction of having those two releases listed simultaneously on Billboard's pop, jazz and classical charts

AFTER A slow start on the U.S. concert circuit, audiences are beginning to discover the Swiss-born musician. It's beginning to become the same way as in Europe. There are children, grandparents and parents in the audience.

The way he recalls it, his attraction to the harp was instinctual. "Its character, its mentality is very friendly to me. It's a relationship not unlike a relationship with person. You learn more about a person as time goes on. They understand what you're talking about; they understand your dreams. You grow clos-

His approach to learning to play was equally instinctual. "I don't play it the right way. I just started as if naturally I would sit and play."

To obtain his particular soft, shimmering sound, Vollenweider added electronics to the harp. He makes his own strings. The bass strings are made of silver-wound steel and electronically modified to achieve a deeper sound. The thumb and middle finger of his left, which handles the lower-range strings, are wrapped in tape to protect them from the silver.

HE'S ALLOWED the fingernails of his right hand to grow long. He adds artificial nails to keep them from breaking. In this way, he says he's able to play the high notes with a lot of staccato.

Each string has its own microphone, and a damper added to the harp keeps the notes from sustaining longer than he wants.

His music reflects his politics; he aims to express peace and harmony instead of aggression. Listeners won't be besieged by a Wagnerian thunder from him. "I don't see myself as an aggressive person. There's not reason for me to express

He supports Amnesty International and Greenpeace. "I feel close to every group trying to make the world a better place.

HIS OBSERVATIONS about his international audiences and the mark, they write about the same things. They're talking about their dreams, hopes and wishes. They're using the same words, the same letters, the same ideas. We're the same. We just sometimes forget it. Talented speechmakers makes us think we're different."

It's a world view that remains optimistic. "I'm very optimistic. We will not blow up anyway. They went so far they took us away from hope. The reality is not the fact we're blowing ourselves up.

Henny Youngman, "King of the One Liners" opened for Lou Rawls on Aug. 29 at the Meadow Brook Music Festival. Within minutes, Youngman had the crowd weeping with laughter. After 60 years in show biz, his fast, wonderful timing hasn't left him.

He still can't play the violin, but it's the perfect prop for a comedian who specializes in question and answer jokes that deal with the absurdities of modern life. Sudden forays into "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" and bits from "Fiddler on the Roof" gave the crowd time to laugh and shift gears as Youngman switched topics.

He began with: "A bomb fell on Hamtramck. It did a million dollars worth of improvement." And, "Why does the new Italian navy have glass-bottomed boats ? To see the old Italian navy."

He managed to say something about every ethnic group in the U.S. without leaving uncomfortable feelings in the air. On the contrary, jokes that should've fallen flat received rousing responses.

EXAMPLES: "My wife has a black belt in shopping. She lives in Bloomingdale's. I visit twice a week.'

And, "What's the latest dope on Wall Street ? My son."

Youngman's delivery had the Zucker picked better material. With the exception of "Tobacco Road," 'Lady Love," some clever rap - a bit of rhymed patter used as a prelude to the poignant "Love is a Hurtin' Thing" and a medly of classics toward the end of the show, Rawls sang lyrics that sounded like homilies from advice columns. "You've Only Got One Life to Live" and lines like "The sun'll come up in the morning," came across like greet-ing card verses. I also wish Rawls had made a short statement on behalf of Anheuser-Busch's program for educating underpriveleged kids instead of singing a couple of long renditions of the Budweiser jingle in the middle of the program. It's not fair to subject paying patrons to beer commercials during shows,

It was a mixed bag of a concert and this reviewer hopes the enormously talented Rawls puts his velvet voice into better music in the future. No singer can please every-

When quilting becomes a profession

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Quiltmaking, usually regarded as a hobby, is a full-time profession for Beaver Island artists, Joe Cunningham and Gwen Marston.

Thirteen of their completely handmade quilts will be the "now" half of the "Then and Now" show which opens at Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association with a preview party Sept. 12 and continues through Oct. 11. These will be paired with 13 outstanding, traditional quilts belonging to wellknown Michigan collector, Mary Schafer

The show is curated by Merry Silber of Birmingham, nationally recognized quilt authority.

Silber said she has known Marston and Cunningham since they came to see the exhibition quilts in her 1981 show at Somerset Mall of Troy. Since then they have given programs and exhibited their work at her other shows and the three collaborate on the three-day Beaver Island Quilt Retreat, now in its third year

IT WAS SILBER who invited what she calls "the hottest item on the block in the quilt world" to do contemporary interpretations of traditional quilts for the "Then and Now" show But contemporary is a misnom-

er. Marston said, "We tried to zero in on the artists' main statements on those quilts.

Quiltmakers to lecture

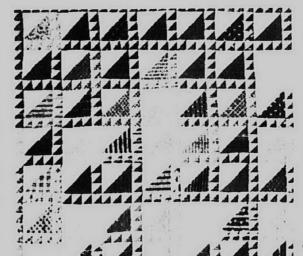

"Several," Cunningham said "look unrelated," adding as he agreed that traditional quilt designs themselves are abstracted, "ours aren't a literal interpretation. In some instances ours are more pictorial than the original."

Both said they loved the challenge that Silber gave them. "It was the hardest thing we've ever done," said Cunningham. Marston added, "Eut we had plenty of time to think about them. 'We consider it a great opportunity because we're always saying to ourselves that someday we'd like to do this or that and now, we had an excuse to do that sort of thing," he said.

And while they are contemporary quilters, they don't necessarily do contemporary quilts all the MARSTEN, IN FACT, was trained by Mennonite quilters and she taught Cunningham.

Both were professional musicians before they became part of a small group of full-time quiltmakers in the country. She was a folk musician (guitar) who taught at University of Michigan and Flint Institute of Music and he was a guitarist who did both studio and nightclub work. And while they are quilting in the second floor studio of their home in the woods and listening to music, they are also exchanging ideas on their art. Through these discussions, they have worked out the manuscripts for three books on quilting; two were sold to Dover Books and American Quiltmaker, a division of Schroeder Publishing bought the third. All three may possibly be on the stands by next vear pass the time on what might be regarded by less dedicated quilters as tedious stitching. Marston said they are seldom bored because their studio is full of quilts on frames in various stages of completion and they can always change pace right in the studio.

He added, "If we get bored, we just work faster. We can quilt at an unbelievable speed - and don't forget, there are two of us."

That unbelievable speed translates to a quilt a month, start to finish, but not 12 quilts a year because they are away giving lectures several months a year.

"A month to do a quilt is kind of startling to a lot of quiltmakers," Marston said, "but, remember, we are full time, we don't go out to work somewhere else and come home and work on quilts."

And does Cunningham, once a part of an exciting world of recording and performing before live audiences ever want to turn back? "No," he said, "I love it, but I don't know why I should so much. Maybe it's the parallels I see with music and - I don't know how to say it - but it seems to come so natural to me.

Marston and Cunningham will conduct tours of the show at 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday ($2 per person) and he will play the guitar at the preview and introduce a song he composed for the occasion.

Silber will conduct show tours 1 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Saturday during the last two weeks of the show, Sept. 29, Oct. 1,4, 6,8,11.

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

The ordinary items of our lives, things everyone takes for granted a screw, a thimble, a jello mold star in photographer Bill Rauhauser's "Object Series," which opens Thursday, Sept. 11 at Pierce Street Gallery.

Rauhauser, who has taught in the photography department at Center for Creative Studies - College of Art nd Design for 16 years, said, "The objects to me seem to define our society - from egg beater to au-tomobile - about half way between a Sears Roebuch catalog and an archeological dig. They are symbolic of whole areas - a bag, for instance, the way we buy everything - all packed up."

Calling the series an "example of straight photography," Raunhauser said, "I try to keep the lighting as simple as possible, otherwise it gets too commercial looking."

He said he works with a 4-by-5 format camera using "very simple umbrella lighting, " adding, "They're straight prints, no darkroom manipulation. The most difficult part of the whole job is finding objects that will work - as far as being exciting photographs."

A THIMBLE is one of the few exceptions to the straight, flat lighting, rule. There is a level of excitment and drama in this one, but without it, the subject would have died in the darkroom and the beauty of the finely dimpled surface would have been lost

Strangely, some of the items that should, in theory, have worked for this series, didn't. And Rauhauser can't really define why. He still can't figure out why the movie projector didn't work, it should have. "It's a great shape - form following function, but I just didn't like it."

And yet, an old, rubber boot which he found on the street and carried home, worked beautifully.

"I come home with the strangest stuff," he said.

Most tools don't work, but those

Welcome to commercial art field

I don't mind the fact that I am not a "morning person." There are a lot of us. But what bothers me is that I am not a "night person" either.

I think I truly am awake by about 11 a.m. and begin to tire around 3:15 p.m. So I guess that makes me an "eleven to three in the afternoon kind of guy," so if I am commissioned for art work, I have to work overtime. Of course I am kidding, but time is money and that is especially true in the field of art. So pricing a job is very critical. I feel a minimum fee is the best open door to negotiating a price for your work.

Let's say you quote a minimum fee of $25. To this quote there are usually three answers. The first is "Okay, I'll think about it and get back with you.'

The second response is "$25, well, that's about what I figured." This person had given some thought to the commission and is probably prepared to go another $15 or so.

odd as it sounds and is frequent. This tells you that this person wants a work of art and not just a sketch. So after that response you need

How precious is the moment when you receive your first check for art work commissioned by a complete stranger. How awesome is the moment when the check bounces.

So welcome to the commercial field of art. That is why cash is always best from customers you don't know personally.

One other famous culprit customer is the one who wants you to make changes. Changes in the finished piece are very difficult and often require half the time it took to draw the original.

What I would recommend is to do a pencil sketch and let the customer see this and ask them if there are any changes they would like made. If not, then you will be all set to finish.

Best or worst of all is the last-minute commission customer. There you are trying to organize your life and doing fine. Then, out of the clear blue, comes an "as soon as possible" commission and when you receive a down payment his problem becomes your problem. But for every corker, kook and problem customer there are 100 sincerely wonderful people who appreciate your abilities and

As your works increase in demand, you may find yourself looking for that 25th hour in the day and the eight day of the week. So you either reserve a bed in emergency and keep up the "artathon" life style, or raise your minimum fee.

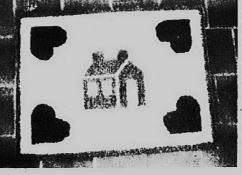

You may be pleased to find that once you increase your fee, your attitude changes. Instead of them telling you what they want you to charge, you are telling them what you must receive.

Remember, you set the mood. There are some pushy people out there, so just let them push right on past you. Stay busy with your clientele. Bend over backwards for those you like doing art for and give them your best price per job.

His forte — science's antiques

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

The Piety Hill Antique Show, which opens opens Thursday, Sept. 11, at The Community House of Birmingham for a three-day run, is getting to be as venerable as its sponsoring organization - the local DAR Chapter.

In more formal terms, that's the Piety Hill Chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution.

Although the DAR has been around for 96 years and the antique show only 36, it still commands respect.

Regular attendees regard this show as an important one because it is well-organized, of manageable size and traditionally has quality exhibitors. The interesting programs presented in the mornings before the show opens are considered a plus.

One of its longtime exhibitors, Cleon Chase, recently moved his shop to the second floor of the Merrillwood Building where dealers, Leonard Berry and May Magdalene, are located.

While Chase's particular interest is antique scientific instruments, he also has furniture, paintings, chandeliers and lots of accessories.

"I've always had an interest in this (scientific instruments). There's not a lot of us that specialize in this area and I particularly like opticals," he said explaining that includes telescopes, both hand held and on a stand, surveying instruments, microscopes and related items.

Several of the beautifully finished brass telescopes date from 1890 to 1920 which Chase said was "a wonderful period for that," adding, "a little older and they have these (leather) cases.

He touched a surveyor's compass about the size an an old-fashioned alarm clock, mounted face up in a brass bracket.

"This was the kind used to survey Western lands in the 1850s, it was very accurate.

He opened a drafting kit from about 1830 and called attention to the ivory and ebony handles and the beautifully hand-engraved numbers on the instruments. On the table beside the kit were three parallels, also used by draftsmen by an individual rather than a dentist, Chase noted how precisely the various little tools were formed and said, "Dental kits are extremely rare as are medical kits.

While talking about medical and dental equipment, he opened the glass case to pull out a small, blue and white ceramic phrenology head that was actually an inkwell, most likely for a doctor's office, since the larger heads were common fixtures there in years past.

Also on display were ship's compasses, a 1750 reflecting telescope, other telescopes ("It's better if they are signed"), 19th century brass cribbage boards, prints and paintings of animals and birds.

Chase said he makes several trips to England a year to find the scientific instruments, although he carries American made as well.

Hot time in the old town...

Chestnuts roasting on an open fire it's not. Try chicken on the BBQ and you get the flavor of things at the fall festival. And iff'n things get a mite too hot in general, you could consider the solution Juliet Simpson (below) came up with at last year's event.

Eat your heart out, Wendy's. This finger-lickin' good chicken is partly what the fall festival is all about. Ask Mark Johnson, he'll vouch for it.
