1986 crime statistics mixed

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Burglaries in Plymouth Township last year increased by 15 percent but thefts decreased by 22 percent.

In the city of Plymouth, criminal mischief increased 49 percent while burglary declined by 75 percent.

The 1986 crime statistics were provided by Carl Berry, police chief in Plymouth Township, and Richard Myers, police chief in the city of Plymouth.

Criminal mischief in the township — which includes vandalism, malicious destruction of property and suspicious persons — would appear to have increased 87 percent from 362 incidents in 1985 to 674 last year.

However, Berry said that result is a statistical aberration and resulted from different record-keeping systems used by the city during the first half of 1985 and the township the last half of that year and all of 1986.

IN THE township during 1986

- Burglary increased to 176 incidents from 153.
- Auto theft increased to 91 incidents from 84.
- Larceny decreased to 500 incidents from 642.
- Assaults of all types decreased to 61 incidents from 67.

Criminal mischief — including only vandalism and MDOP — rose in the city from 157 incidents in 1985 to 234 last year.

Also in the city during 1986:

- Assaults increased to 60 incidents from 57.
- Burglary decreased to 44 incidents from 178.
- Larceny fell to 293 incidents from 341.
- Auto theft decreased to 25 incidents from 28.

Only a handful of robberies and criminal sexual episodes were reported in each community. No homicides were recorded.

Neither the city nor township had pockets where a particular crime was prevalent, the chiefs said.

Care must be taken when comparing statistics between communities.

Demographics vary significantly between the city and township of Plymouth. Also, record-keeping methods differ between departments.

MYERS attributed the astonishing decrease in city burglaries to three factors.

"Number one, in 1985 and early '86, we got some convictions on burglars who were responsible for a large percentage. They're off the street.

"Another factor is getting out of the alarm business and enforcing our false alarm ordinance," Myers added.

Better alarms are going in and when police do respond to alarms, they're more likely to catch someone in the act, the chief said.

Crime prevention programs have had an effect, Myers said, but one that can't readily be determined.

The drop in larcenies probably goes hand-in-hand with the decrease in burglaries — "again, identifying a couple of people who were responsible for a lot of 'em," Myers said.

Crooks seek opportunity

By Doug Funke

Opportunity.

That's all someone bent on criminal activity needs to accomplish the deed.

All too often crime victims provide opportunity through ignorance or inattentiveness, police say.

Yes, some people still leave their cars unattended with keys in the ignition. Kids leave their bicycles or toys out front overnight. Darkened houses with open garage doors send out the obvious message that no one's inside.

HAPPY NEW YEAR:

You thought celebration of the New Year was behind us. The celebration of the Chinese New Year will be observed tonight at the Pagoda Inn, 44515 Ann Arbor Road at Sheldon, Plymouth. Besides a feast of Chinese food, the Chinese New Year celebration features a kung-fu performer and a dragon dance, featuring the colorful Oriental costumes, beginning at 6:30 p.m. In case you missed it, 1987 is the Year of the Hare.

A HEALTHY SHOT:

Growth Works, which operates an alternative education program for youth in Plymouth-Canton, received an $18,000 shot in the arm Monday night. The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education allocated the sum to remedy a budget shortfall in Growth Works' Learning Options program.

Learning Options offers daytime education in basic subjects to about 40 middle and high school students who have difficulty achieving in a typical school environment. Budgeted this year for the program was $156,085 — money raised from the local school district, the Plymouth Community Fund/United Way, Wayne County, and other sources.

Superintendent John Hoben, a member of Growth Works' board, was reluctant to bring the request to trustees but called the program a fine one that "gives kids who can't cope with the rigors of regular school the special, individualized attention they need."

ON OVERTIME:

The public is welcome to join Plymouth-Canton school board members and administrators at a workshop Friday at the Holiday Inn at Six Mile and Newburgh, Livonia.

On the agenda during the 4:30-9:30 p.m. session will be district goals, the upcoming school election, the construction and renovation of school buildings, and boundaries.

Former mayor returns to action

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Joe Bida never dreamed he'd live this long.

"For some unknown reason, I thought I was going to die young. So I never spent more than 10 years in one place."

Plymouth's former mayor, now a Canton resident, has seldom been bored on the job. He's done everything from flipping hamburgers for 25 cents an hour to manning a cherry picker for the Marines.

Right now, he's a custodian for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

In 1980, he left Plymouth and Leo Calhoun Ford for a four-year stint on an Illinois oil field Calhoun owned.

Miranda

Police disagree on challenge to ruling

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

In a move area police and civil libertarians are calling misguided, U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III is seeking to overturn the Miranda rule requiring police to read suspects their legal rights.

A Justice Department report prepared for Meese says challenging the 21-year-old decision is "essential."

"Overturning Miranda would be among the most important achievements of this administration," the report says. The Miranda rule, it adds, is "a derelict on the waters of the law," the New York Times reported.

The attorney general has said Miranda hampers criminal investigations and prevents police from obtaining confessions from suspects.

Police chiefs here disagree. Miranda has "made for much more humane and professional investigative police techniques," said Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers. "Rather than just say it's a bad thing, let's throw it out, I say let's take another look at police departments' ability to police themselves and see if we can't be entrusted with more."

The Miranda rule requiring police to inform suspects of their right to remain silent and to legal counsel became federal law in 1966 "when we used to beat confessions out of people," said Myers.

"One of the reasons it came about was because police abused their power. Miranda has raised the consciousness of police. We have to police ourselves also."

Myers didn't rule out change entirely.

"I'd prefer a good faith exception to an outright pitching of the Miranda right. I think the feeling of Meese, and of myself to an extent, is that maybe it's time to take a look at it. Instead of coming up with prohibitions, take a look at the spirit of the Constitution," he added.

CANTON POLICE Chief John Santomauro said, "Generally, Miranda warnings have not hindered criminal investigations. Where we have run into problems is with what I call abstract opinions resulting from Miranda."

"I think there is a need for police to advise persons of their rights constitutionally. But beyond that persons have a right to decide whether to waive those rights or to remain silent."

Carl Berry, Plymouth Township

police chief, said Miranda "has created some hindrance. We've lived with Miranda for a lot of years, and it has made a difference in that the individual has been somewhat protected."

"I don't think it's made a big difference in investigations and confessions," the chief added.

"No matter what the faults are within our judicial system, we still are working with the philosophy that people are innocent until proven guilty. That upholds our Constitution and the system we work under."

HOWARD SIMON, executive director of the Michigan American Civil Liberties Union, called Meese "a straight-A student in the 'Dirty Harry School of Criminal Justice.'"

"The most absurd thing the attorney general has said is that there is something to worry about when the police are required to inform American citizens of their constitutional rights," said Simon.

The ACLU has collected close to 250,000 petition signatures calling for the removal of Meese from office. It plans to present them soon to President Reagan, Simon said.

Monday night some 200 persons representing the ACLU, N.O.W., and the NAACP demonstrated to protest Meese's appearance for a commencement speech in the Rackham Auditorium for the Detroit College of Law.

"People may get the impression that these kinds of decisions, that have professionalized the work of police, somehow are responsible for the crime rate, when an infinitesimally small percentage of cases ever involve these kinds of issues," Simon said.

"The main problem is that police can catch only a small percentage of those people who commit crimes. If you can envision a huge funnel and you compare the number of crimes committed, reported and the number for which suspects are apprehended, charged and punishments imposed, the whole thing funnels down to a smaller and smaller group."

"We don't have a problem with crime because police inform suspects of their rights, or because police can't seize evidence without a warrant."

"The attorney general frankly is an ideological hatchet man, not a legal scholar. It is a disgrace that somebody like Ed Meese is the chief law enforcement officer of this country."

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Industrial accident takes life

A 47-year-old Westland man was killed Tuesday afternoon in an industrial accident at Stahl Manufacturing Co. on Junction, Plymouth.

Ronald Darrow, pinned under a hi-lo while attempting to move a large grate, was pronounced dead at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia, at 2 p.m. less than an hour after the accident occurred.

Death was caused by multiple injuries, said an investigator for the Wayne County Medical Examiner.

A witness told police that Darrow was attempting to move the grate by chaining it to the forks of the hi-lo and extending the forks as high as they would go. The extension made the hi-lo top-heavy and it began to fall on its side.

Darrow attempted to jump off, the witness told police, but the roll bar surrounding the driver's compartment struck him in the head.

A second hi-lo had been used to lift the first vehicle off Darrow before the fire department arrived. He was unconscious and not breathing when rescue personnel arrived.

Attempts to revive Darrow with cardiopulmonary resuscitation failed.

Funeral arrangements, as of Wednesday morning, were incomplete.

Former mayor returns to active duty

"I regret I left here because I could have been retired by now," said Bida, 64. "We all get old."

Bida and fellow northerners weren't all that warmly received in Mount Vernon, Ill. "Down there, they resent city folks, especially Yankees," said Bida, who supervised oil field operations.

"They're still hepped up on the South."

BIDA'S BULGING scrapbooks are testimony to a colorful past.

Military duty in the 1940s took the Chadsey High School graduate to Dunedin, Fla., Paris Island, Guam, Guadalcanal and Okinawa. Bida recruited and trained, maintained amphibious tractors, boxed and played baseball.

"The Marines made a man out of me. They taught men respect. I can remember having to climb a tree and sing like birds with just our shorts on for talking. That's no fun without pants," said the Pennsylvania-born Bida, whose dad died in a coal mining accident when Bida was a year old.

A tantrum-throwing Judy Garland, crooner Bing Crosby, Bob Crosby's jazz-playing Bobcats and baseball's American All-Stars made wartime in the South Pacific bearable for Bida.

Bida met Enos "Country" Slaughter of St. Louis' Gas House Gang, Cleveland manager Lou Boudreau, now Chicago Cubs broadcaster, and Joe Gordon of the Yankees. He had a try out with the major leagues himself once.

Bida had a mean fastball, and a lack of control that "at times had a lot of 'em scared," he smiled. But before Bida could prove that to the Cleveland Indians, bad luck intervened. "Two Greek policemen" caught Bida with a drinking, underage Canadian friend. After they booked the young athlete, pitcher Chubby Dean came through.

"Chubby had an automobile and we bailed him out," recalled Bida. The team owners did not come through.

"Roger Peckinpaugh told me goodbye," said Bida.

Enter Cupid: "I worked for a dry cleaning business in Garden City. I used to pick cleaning up from the Kubie farm on Merriman Road. Irene and I started going out, and next thing we know, we're hitched."

BIDA WORKED his way up from Garden City DPW laborer to supervisor. He later became Plymouth DPW director.

"Ken Vogras (Plymouth's current DPW director) was the first employee I hired," recalled Bida, who's been active with numerous service organizations.

After someone in the Box Bar told Bida "you couldn't run for dogcatcher" he ran for city commission in 1973. He led the balloting.

In 1976, Bida was selected "Bicentennial Mayor."

The defeat of a senior citizen housing referendum was "the most regrettable thing that happened," recalled the father of three and grandfather of four.

One of Bida's funniest experiences as mayor involved Citizens for Open and Responsible Planning.

CORP representatives "used to come up and antagonize me. I knew they'd get to me, so I went to the county and asked the clerk if their name was recorded. I paid $3 and became the owner of the name CORP.

"When they came out to a meeting I told them, 'You're never to use this name again because I own it.'"

As mayor, Bida married 40 couples. He says he'd like to know how many are still married.

LEAVING PLYMOUTH taught Bida to appreciate it.

"I don't think there's another place in the country where someone can be so active and accepted," said the veteran Jaycee, VFW and Little League officer.

Plymouth's chicken-flying contest was lots of fun "until they got caught by the Humane Society."

"Contestants used to put their chickens in a mailbox. They'd pop them out with a plunger, and the one that went the furthest won."

Bida has enjoyed his association with co-workers at Farrand School.

"It's a different atmosphere after working in management for 17 years. But I haven't had anything thrown in my car or anything."

What's in the cards for Bida?

The newly appointed homeowners' association treasurer isn't ruling out a run for Canton supervisor.

"I like the satisfaction of making people happy and seeing that everyone has a chance to do what they want to do. I've always liked people and giving more than receiving."

1986 statistics show mixed results

The increase in criminal mischief can be attributed in great part to the gathering of young people last summer.

"It's just a reflection of very large activity in the downtown area," Myers said.

"I'm not going to point the finger at one group. Any time you have 1,000 cars coming to town with nothing to do and the opportunity is there, someone is going to do something."

LAST YEAR was the first full year the township's police department was in operation. City officers responded to most emergencies in the first half of 1985.

The township logs more type of criminal mischief activity than the city, Berry said. That skews comparative 1985-86 reports.

"You'd think, 'My God, there's a tremendous amount of vandalism in the township.' It's not true."

Berry addressed other numbers.

"I can give you an idea why some of these larcenies are down and I think it's a good program. Police officers and community service officers when they go through neighborhoods at night, will stop and advise people if their doors are open."

While burglaries are up, the increase isn't that much when taking into account the growth in the township over the same period, Berry said.

"The police department is doing its job and carrying out assigned goals — neighborhood patrol, traffic enforcement and response time."

Berry said officers put more than 300,000 miles on police vehicles last year, issued 8,296 traffic tickets and responded to calls on average in "well under five minutes."

measures require only a little attention, police maintain.

"A LOT of larcenies that occur — snowblowers, bicycles, lawnmowers — by simply closing the door removes opportunity for crime," said Carl Berry, police chief in Plymouth Township.

If merely closing a garage or storage shed provides some protection just think how much more peace of mind can be had by locking doors.

"Most of residential vandalism could be avoided if people parked their cars in the garage or driveway rather than on the streets," said Richard Myers, police chief in the city of Plymouth.

Some people go as far as parking their cars in the garage, locking the cars, locking the garage, then closing and locking the backyard gate at night. It only takes a minute and provides triple security.

LIGHTING is another good deterrent.

"Did you ever notice how beautiful neighborhoods look lighted up devil's night?" Myers asked. "Devil's night isn't the only night people are out to vandalize or break in."

Exterior illumination — porch lights, side lights and garage lights — and interior lighting sometimes activated by timers also are promoted as crime prevention devices by Detroit Edison.

"Always give your home the appearance of activity," Berry advised.

City (453-8600) and township (453-3869) police departments will conduct free home and business security inspections, then make specific recommendations if so requested.

Officers also are available to help organize neighborhood watch programs.

Engraving tools are provided by police free so property owners can mark their valuables.

ONE OF the best crime prevention measures, police say, is an awareness of what's going on around you and a willingness to get involved.

Hindsight is always 20/20.

"Any suspicious activity in the neighborhood, pick up the phone and give us a call immediately," Berry said. "If it appears to be nothing, it could be something. You just don't know. Let us make that decision."

Community theater group shines Spotlight on talent

By Leonard Poger
staff writer

The Spotlight Players, a suburban community theater group, has the same problem of single, professional women over 35 — a shortage of eligible men.

That was the situation when director Russell Holderness held tryouts recently and found five women competing for one role with no one volunteering for the two male roles in the Neil Simon comedy, "Star Spangled Girl."

Holderness said he would contact other community theater groups to find other actors for the production scheduled for the first two weekends in May.

Actually, the only man on hand for the audition was Kevin Kozlowski who is a Spotlight Players' board of directors member for business and production.

Kozlowski, 23, of Westland, has appeared in two other Spotlight Players shows in the past year, "No Sex Please — We're British" and "Harvey."

Among the women trying out for the only female role was Helen DeJulio, a Westland resident and an English teacher at Franklin Junior High School in the Wayne-Westland school district who has been in several recent Spotlight Players productions.

OTHERS WHO auditioned were Mary Jo Cabello of Canton Township, also in other shows of the Westland-Wayne theater group; Cheryl Frosti of Plymouth, auditioning for her first role; Terri Deschaw of Plymouth, whose background includes attending a commercial acting workshop; and Holly Hissong of Canton who appeared previously in three Plymouth Theatre Guild shows and one Spotlight Players show.

Despite his youthfulness, Holderness, 23, has been a Spotlight Players member for four years, appearing in "Arsenic and Old Lace," "God" and "Company of Wayward Saints."

He was the assistant director for the theater group's production of "Harvey" last fall.

Off stage, Holderness is a special education teacher at Kettering Elementary School in the Wayne-Westland school district.

His assistant director is Margaret Myers, active in the theater group for part of the past 25 years, and a psychiatric social worker with a private clinic in Farmington Hills.

other roommate is the one Sophie eventually falls for.

THE PRODUCER for the upcoming comedy is Rosemary Moorehead, who has been in numerous roles on stage and off for the Spotlight Players since 1962. In private life, she is the office manager for Spicer Tool Co., Plymouth.

The director said the Neil Simon comedy, written nearly 20 years, will be changed a little to eliminate such dated lines such as "Does LBJ take LSD?"

Holderness said the story is about Sophie, a young Arkansas woman who moves into a San Francisco house next to two young men.

Two roommates, who write for a political magazine, are involved. One falls in love with Sophie but the KOZLOWSKI, who has performed in high school and college shows as well as the Spotlight Players, said the theater group is doing several new things to promote the upcoming show.

One is to sponsor a "mayors' night" on opening night, May 1, with the Westland and Wayne mayors invited as special guests of the theater group.

Kozlowski, who also is designing the set for the show, added there will be a Sunday, May 10, performance for Mother's Day.

The production also will be moved to the larger Wayne Memorial High School auditorium from the John Glenn High School auditorium.

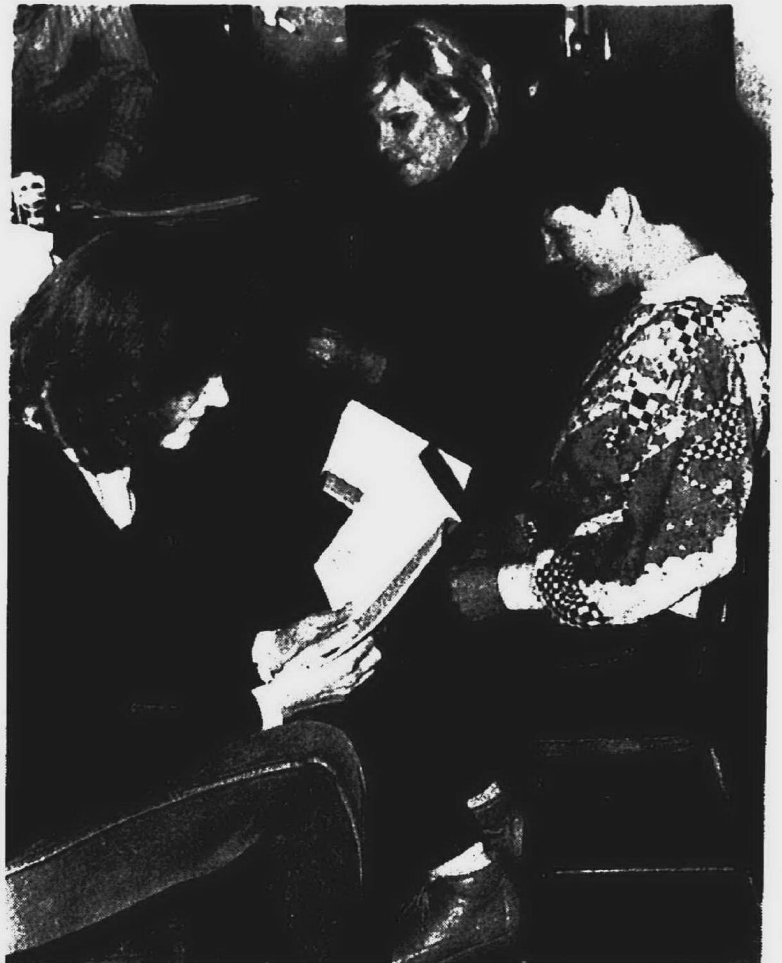

Holly Hissong of Canton Township auditioned for a role in the Spotlight Players' upcoming production of "Star Spangled Girl."

Duo pianists to appear with Plymouth Symphony

Duo pianists will be the featured artists at the next concert of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Dai Uk Lee and Yong Hi Moon will be the guest artists for the orchestra's Sunday, Feb. 8, concert that will begin at 3 p.m. in the auditorium of Novi High School, 10 Mile at Taft.

Natives of Korea, the husband-wife piano duo will travel to Novi with director Leon Gregorian and the orchestra for the symphony's fourth concert in its 1986-87 season.

They have played two-piano and four-hand recitals in such cities as Baltimore, Washington, Cleveland, and Los Angeles.

THE DUO played the Korean premiere of the Bartok "Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion" and next year will play the Mozart "Two Piano Concerto" there with Lee conducting.

Both Moon and Lee were honored by the Koran government in 1975 with an invitation to participate in a special tour commemorating the 30th anniversary of the Korean Liberation.

Besides having played extensively throughout Europe and the United States, Yong Hi Moon has appeared with the Tokyo, Osaka and Seoul Philharmonic orchestras and the Korean National Orchestra.

Moon graduated with top honors from Vienna Academy where she studied with Dieter Weber. She also has studied Maria Curcio in London and with Gyorgy Sebok at Indiana University, and participated in master classes given by Wilhelm Kempff and Leon Fleisher.

Until her recent move to Michigan, she was a member of the preparatory department faculty at Peabody Institute.

LEE HAS made numerous appearances throughout the United States as solo recitalist, chamber music player, and orchestral soloist.

A scholarship enabled him to attend the Juillard School where he studied with Sasha Gorodnitzki, Rosina Lhevinne and Martin Canin. He later continued his studies with Gyorgy Sebok and Leon Fleisher.

Lee also pursued studies in conducting with Frederik Fraunsnitz and Herbert Blomstedt, and has conducted such orchestras as the American Symphony and the Korean Philharmonic Orchestra. He currently is a member of the music faculty at Michigan State University.

Tickets for this concert will be available at the box office Sunday or at Beitner Jewelry on Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, at Arnoldt Williams Music on Canton Center Road, Canton, or at Hammell Music Inc. on Middlebelt, Livonia. Single concert tickets are $6 for adults, $3.50 for senior citizens and full-time college students, and free for students 12th grade and under.

The Feb. 8 concert is made possible through sponsorship of the Unisys Corp., a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, and the Plymouth Symphony League.

LEE AND MOON will be performing "Concerto in D

Dai Uk Lee and Yong Hi Moon

minor for Two Pianos and Orchestra" during the first half of the concert.

The concerto by Francis Poulenc was commissioned by Princess Edmond de Polignac in 1932. Poulenc completed the score in less than three months. The first performance took place Sept. 5, 1932, at the International Music Festival in Venice.

Poulenc was the youngest member of Les Six, a group of French composers who formed after World War I. The aim of Les Six was to bring music to the everyday world, which they attempted with satire, burlesques of vaudeville routines, circus, music hall tunes, and American jazz.

Although Polenc was not taken as seriously as others in the groups, such as Milhaud and Honegger, his music held humor and melodic charm, and he actually turned out the most individualistic music. His piano works, songs, piano concertos, the organ concerto, and large-scale religious works all have lasting power.

The concert, which will end at about 4:25 p.m., will open with Overture to "La Forza del Destino" by Verdi. After intermission, the orchestra will open to Adagio for Strings by Barber and the concert will close with The Pines of Rome by Respighi.

Salem captures computer title

Plymouth Salem High School has captured a first place in a state-wide computer competition.

Salem High School beat out Livonia Franklin High to win first place in the 10th annual Computer Contest finals sponsored by the University of Detroit on Sunday, Jan. 25.

The prize, a $1,000 scholarship to U-D, will be presented to a student at the school at a later date.

Plymouth Canton High, also a finalist, placed 14 out of 17 finalists.

The semi-finalist competition was held at U-D the previous weekend.

Teams were judged on the number of problems completed accurately and the speed in which they were solved.

Coach for the Salem team is Tom Cotner, computer programming and math teacher. Team members were seniors Mark Peterson and Blaine Groves, and juniors Jim Lamb and Mark Schang.

"This is our first win, although we have made the finals twice in our four tries," Cotner said.

Plymouth Canton High's coach is Ron Carlson, a computer programming teacher. Carlson, a former math teacher, was a key person in establishing the computer instruction program at the Centennial Educational Park. Team members were Anoop Gupta, Mark Bessey, Mark Augstyn, and Aravin Bali, all seniors.

Task force eyes plan to create more jobs

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

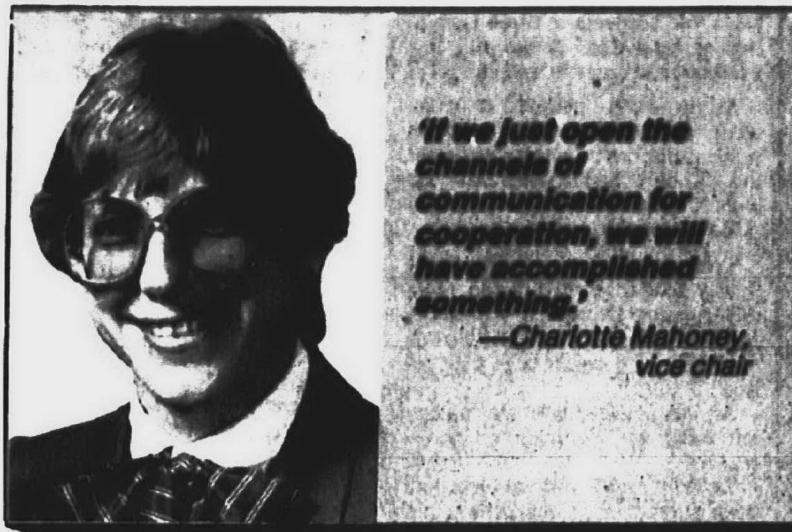

Pledging "action now," county executive Edward McNamara launched an ambitious economic development partnership this week aimed at creating more jobs and expanding industry in Wayne County.

Before a crowd of several hundred dignitaries and business representatives from both the public and private sectors, McNamara announced the formation of the Task Force for Jobs and Economic Development.

Charlotte "Charlie" Mahoney of Livonia, on executive loan from Detroit Edison for six months to serve as vice chairman of the task force, said the primary objective is "to weave a thread of coordination and cooperation."

Hundreds of community leaders and those involved in economic development will be asked to participate in the partnership. The goal, Mahoney said, is to coordinate countywide efforts under a single umbrella, not to "duplicate or recreate existing efforts."

"If we just open the channels of communication for cooperation, we will have accomplished something,"

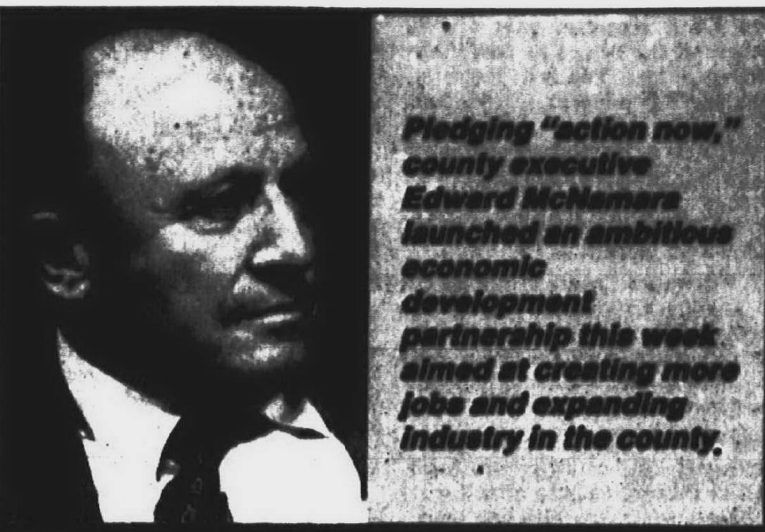

Mahoney added.

THE EIGHT members of the task force steering committee — selected for their backgrounds in economic development — put finishing touches earlier this week on a schedule to launch the action McNamara said he wants "to see happen fast."

On Feb. 9, more than 120 people from businesses and corporations, community organizations and governmental agencies will begin participating in four-hour, "problem seeking" sessions.

The sessions will be led by programmers from CRSS, Inc., a Texas-based planning firm that specializes in problem-solving analysis and strategic planning. The results of these sessions will establish task force strategy.

A sampling of those who will be participating in the sessions include

Terry Carroll, Garden City director of community development and administrative services; Barry Hawthorne, executive director of Private Industry Corp. in Livonia; attorney Sharon Snodgrass with Krandle, Creighton, Snodgrass and Mier in Livonia and Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen.

McNamara said he drew on his former record as Livonia mayor for the task force. He said business and industry pay 50 percent of Livonia property taxes, making the tax rate the lowest of any large city in the state.

DENNIS KOONS of Livonia, vice-president of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce and a member of the steering committee, said one of the principle by-products of the task force will be an improved "packaging" or image of Wayne County.

Koons, an architect of the chamber's business attraction and expansion council that combines economic development efforts in seven Michigan counties, said such goals are possible when efforts are pooled.

Ford, Levin get high liberal rating from lobby group

AP — Michigan's two senators and four of the state's 18 U.S. representatives earned ratings of at least 90 out of a possible 100 last year from a public interest group that lobbies for liberal positions.

More than half of Michigan's congressional delegation voted more liberally on selected issues than the congressional average in 1986, Americans for Democratic Action said.

In its annual report released earlier this month, ADA gave Democratic Sens. Donald Riegle and Carl Levin respective ratings of 95 and 90.

The group's ratings were based on 20 Senate votes on issues including budget priorities, tax overhaul, abortion, aid to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua, the "Star Wars" defense system, nuclear testing and sanctions against the apartheid government of South Africa.

The House scores reflected ADA's analysis of 20 votes on issues including gun control, spending priorities, abortion, immigration reform, trade legislation, aid to the Contra rebels, "Star Wars," nuclear testing and South African sanctions.

THE AVERAGE House score was 46 and the average Senate score was 44.

Here are the ratings for area U.S.

Reps keep committee chairs

State representatives from the Observer area retained their committee chairs for the next two years in the Michigan House of Representatives.

All committees are headed by Democrats because the party has a 64-46 advantage.

Education: Rep. William Keith, Garden City.

Elections: Rep. Maxine Berman, Southfield.

Senior Citizens and Retirement: Rep. Justine Barns, Westland.

State Rep. Mary Brown, D-Kalamazoo has been named to chair the Insurance Committee for the next two years. She succeeds retired Rep. Matthew McNeely.

In another change announced Thursday, a new committee was established to handle legislation on the Constitution, Interstate and Federal Relations. Freshman Rep. Ken DeBeaussiaert, D-New Baltimore, will head that panel.

OTHER COMMITTEE chairs are:

Agriculture and Forestry Committee: Rep. Thomas Hickner, Bay City.

Appropriations Committee: Rep. Dominic Jacobetti, Negaunee.

Civil Rights: Rep. Ethel Terrell, Highland Park.

Colleges and Universities: Rep. Burton Leland, Detroit.

Conservation and Environment: Rep. Thomas Scott, Flint.

Corrections: Rep. Floyd Clack, Flint.

Economic Development and Energy: Rep. Virgil Smith, Detroit.

House Oversight: Rep. Lewis Dodak, Montrose.

Judiciary: Rep. Perry Bullard, Ann Arbor.

Labor: Rep. Juanita Watkins, Detroit.

Liquor Control: Rep. Stanley Stopczynski, Detroit.

Marine Affairs and Port Development: Rep. Vincent Porreca, Trenton.

Mental Health: Rep. Debbie Stabenow, Lansing.

Military and Veterans' Affairs: Rep. Robert DeMars, Lincoln Park.

representatives in descending order: Sander Levin, D-Southfield, whose district includes Redford Township, 85; William Ford, D-Taylor, whose district includes Westland, Canton and Garden City and part of Livonia, 80; Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, whose district includes part of Livonia, 45.

Director Ann Lewis said the ratings report indicates that the "pendulum of American politics" is on the move. Candidates with higher ADA voting records did better in the November 1986 elections than lower-rated opponents, she noted.

In the House, Michigan legislators getting the highest liberal ratings, each with 95, were Reps. Dale Kildee of Flint, George Crockett of Detroit and David Bonior of Mount Clemens. Rep. Howard Wolpe of Lansing scored 90. All are Democrats.

Here are the ADA ratings for other Michigan members of the House: John Conyers, D-Detroit, 85; Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, whose district includes part of Troy, 85; Bob Traxler, D-Ray City, 80; John Dingell, D-Trenton, 75; Bob Carr, D-East Lansing, 70.

Also Paul Henry, R-Grand Rapids, 40; Robert Davis, R-Gaylord, 35; Bill Schuette, R-Sanford, 10; William Broomfield, R-Birmingham, 10; Guy Vander Jagt, R-Luther, 0; and former Rep. Mark Siljander, R-Taree Rivers, 0.

Cops chase, get suspect

By Diane Gale
staff writer

An armed robbery suspect took Washtenaw County sheriffs on a hellish chase that ended in Canton.

The ordeal included a multiple car accident involving a sheriff's patrol car.

After the accident the suspect fled on foot, broke into a dentist's office, stole the doctor's car and was finally stopped by Washtenaw County sheriffs in a shopping mall on Canton Center and Ford Road.

Joseph L. Lewis, 34, was arraigned Jan. 27 in Ann Arbor's 14A District Court before Judge Thomas Shea on two counts of armed robbery and one count of unlawfully driving away an automobile.

His address is unknown but police believe he lived in the Detroit area. He is being held in Washtenaw County Jail on a $100,000 bond or 10 percent.

LEWIS IS suspected of an armed robbery at the Total Gas Station on Carpenter and Packard roads in Pittsfield Township at 1 p.m. Jan. 23.

Police said the station attendant was struck with the snub end of the revolver. The suspect fled in a silver Toyota, which was later found to be stolen from Detroit.

A Washtenaw County Sheriff deputy spotted the Toyota travelling north on U.S. 23 near Geddes Road. The deputy continued the chase until the suspect exited on Plymouth Road travelling east.

He tried to stop the Toyota when it ran a red light on Plymouth Road east of Dixboro causing a multi-car accident, which included the deputy's car. Victims were taken to the hospital, treated and released, said a sheriff's department press release.

injured and began running in a residential area.

Deputy Larry Clemons was also injured and chased the suspect until he could no longer run.

The suspect entered Dr. Robert Argenta's dentist office on the 5000 block of Plymouth Road in Superior Township. With a weapon in hand he forced the doctor to hand over the keys to his 1983 silver Buick.

A plain-clothed sheriff's deputy spotted the Buick and followed the suspect on Plymouth Road toward Wayne County. The chase continued to eastbound Ford Road where the speed reached up to 90 mph. Police reported the suspect was driving erratically.

Sheriff's forced the suspect to stop in a shopping mall at Canton Center and Ford roads.

A preliminary examination to determine if there's enough evidence to hold a trial will be Jan. 4 in Ann Arbor's 14A District Court.

Police seek burglars

Plymouth Police say they have leads and suspects in three burglaries of businesses in the city last weekend and early this week.

All three were believed to be the work of the same people "based on information we're getting and picking up here and there," said Lt. Robert Commire.

Two people apparently were nearly caught at about 6 a.m. Monday running through a warehouse at Classic Container on Mill Street, according to a report filed with police.

An employee heard the escape but didn't get a glimpse of the intruders.

Several desks and cabinets had been ransacked in the offices but nothing was taken. Entry was gained by removing a board from an overhead door.

Police reported finding two sets of footprints made with athletic shoes in the snow to and from nearby railroad tracks. Fingerprints were lifted at the scene.

A BREAKING and entering also occurred at Master Tech Coatings on Hamilton, ostensibly between 6 p.m. Sunday and 6:30 a.m. Monday, according to police accounts.

A door had been pried, police indicated.

Several vending machines in the lunchroom were attacked and about $125 was taken, Commire said. Several offices were ransacked.

Bolt cutters and a screwdriver were recovered at the scene. Fingerprints also were processed.

A small amount of petty cash was missing from a cash drawer following a burglary at A&W on Ann Arbor Road, Commire said.

That break-in occurred between 9:35 p.m. Monday and 4:40 a.m. Tuesday.

A passerby alerted an officer on patrol to a suspicious man dressed in black clothing lurking behind a nearby car wash. Subsequent investigation revealed the burglary at the eatery.

No suspicious person was seen by police.

The drive-in window at A&W had been broken, police reported. Several meat lockers were open, as was the manager's office.

A flashlight was left on the counter and small duffel bag containing a couple of CB radios was found near the building.

House OKs highway bill

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes during the week ending Jan. 23.

HOUSE

HIGHWAY BILL - By a vote of 401 for and 20 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 2) authorizing nearly $92 billion over five years for federal highway construction and mass transit programs.

The measure drew wide support as a source of jobs. It would complete the interstate highway system, begun three decades ago.

Among its most disputed provisions, the bill retains the 55 mph speed limit on interstates, funds scores of "demonstration projects" denounced as pork barrel by the administration, and contains highway beautification language that environmentalists view as too favorable to the billboard lobby.

Roll Call Report

Supporter Glenn Anderson, D-Calif., said the legislation "will assure the completion of the greatest public works project this country has ever undertaken."

Opponent Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., objected that proposed changes in the formula for allocating federal highway money "are unfair and would hurt many rural states like North Dakota."

Members voting yes supported the bill.

Voting yes: Carl Pursel, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Saender Levin, D-Southfield, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

SENATE

CLEAN WATER SUBSTITUTE - By a vote of 17 for and 82 against, the Senate rejected an administration-backed alternative to sweeping clean water legislation that was under floor debate.

After casting aside the substitute, the Senate overwhelmingly approved a $20 billion, nine-year extension of the Clean Water Act.

The bill (HR 1) was sent to the White House and the first 100th Congress showdown between Capitol Hill and President Reagan, who last year vetoed the same legislation. Reagan was considering another veto even though he clearly lacked enough House and Senate votes to sustain it.

His substitute set spending for new sewage treatment facilities at $12 billion rather than the $18 billion eventually approved by the Senate, and sought to eliminate new anti-pollution programs such as expanded federal controls on farm and urban water runoff.

Bob Dole, R-Kansas, who sponsored the substitute, said the bill was a budget-buster and injected the federal government into local land-use planning.

George Mitchell, D-Maine, said "the president proposes to spend in one year on foreign aid almost as much as Congress proposes to spend in nine years to keep American waters clean."

Senators voting yes supported the Administration substitute.

Voting no: Carl Levin, Donald Riegle.

Volunteers sought for nuclear waste site

Does any community want to volunteer to host a low-level radioactive waste management facility?

There are incentives: a $40-million, 20-year compensation package for a midwest community.

"Federal legislation said that cities in South Carolina, Nevada and Washington do not have to accept low-level radioactive waste materials from other states any more after Jan. 1, 1993," said Beverly McAninch, chair of the Michigan Radioactive Waste Control Committee, a unit of the Michigan Department of Public Health.

"That means we now need to find the best possible way to take care of waste materials we are generating," said McAninch, former mayor of Plymouth.

HER PANEL hosted a meeting Wednesday on Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus. It was one of six held around Michigan. Others were in Lansing, Saginaw, Gaylord, Marquette and Grand Rapids.

The regional educational presentations were designed to bring together elected officials, key staff, media and community and civic leaders to explore the numerous issues involved in hosting a facility.

The incentive plan was developed by the Midwest Interstate Low Level Radioactive Waste Compact Commission to encourage a community to volunteer.

Besides Michigan, other states in the compact are Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin.

PROPOSED INCENTIVES include new jobs and payroll, volume tax, sales and business taxes, funding for operating a local monitoring committee and local public works improvements.

"Citizens need to know that low-level radioactive waste is not high-level waste," said McAninch.

She said most low-level waste materials are produced by:

- Nuclear power plants, from resins, filters and maintenance materials.
- Hospitals, for various diagnoses and treatment.
- Industry, for testing and production purposes.
- Scientific laboratories.

EXCLUDED from this facility, she said, would be such high-level waste materials as spent nuclear reactor fuel, byproducts from reprocessing spent nuclear fuel and producing nuclear weapons, and as residues from uranium mining and milling.

Copies of the draft of the full plan are on file at the Michigan Department of Public Health and 11 libraries around the state.

WATERBED WORLD

Hit the floor at dawn.
 Breezed through breakfast.
 Stretched out for cartoons.
 Skateboarded for an hour.
 Bicycled for two more.
 Swam.
 Played with the dog.
 Bounced up the stairs.
 And stretched out on a waterbed for another night of perfect sleep.

Discover what millions of growing American spines already know. Flotation sleep means healthy, proper alignment for every bone in your body.

Life is more satisfying on a waterbed.

Pursell takes over new committee role

U.S. Rep. Carl D. Pursell, R-Plymouth, has changed one of his committee assignments.

He will be serving on the Appropriation Committee's energy and water development subcommittee. He will no longer serve on the committee's transportation subcommittee.

Pursell said he switched assignments to broaden the influence of Michigan's Congressional Delegation. Another Michigan representative, Robert Carr, also serves on the transportation subcommittee.

Pursell said he could best serve the interests of his district and the state by not having two Michigan congressmen on the same subcommittee.

Pursell said his decision to switch assignments was partly made possible because he served on a House committee which handed out Congressional assignments. Pursell represented Michigan's Republicans on the committee.

"It was an honor and privilege to be selected to represent Michigan's Republicans," Pursell said. "Although the work tends to be fast-paced and time-consuming, serving on the committee was a good leadership experience — working with the elder statesmen from across the nation."

Pursell will maintain his other subcommittee seat on the labor, health and human services and education subcommittee.

Smokers in Senate puff away

With a new state law prohibiting smoking in most public places, some people who don't smoke are burned up about a policy allowing senators who smoke to puff away during session.

Although smoking is banned from the House floor and most other Capitol rooms, Senate leaders have designated about half the chamber as a smoking area.

Linda Martin, spokeswoman for the American Lung Association in Lansing, said the Senate is circumventing the anti-smoking law. She noted the House has banned smoking, and asked "Why not the Senate? To do otherwise is not in keeping with the intent and spirit of the law."

By way of explanation, Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, face-tiously offered, "The House must be more progressive than the Senate."

Geake, whose 6th Senate District includes Canton and Plymouth, quickly added, "You won't hear me say that very often."

SIX OF SEVEN smoking senators sit inside the designated smoking area.

The seventh — Sen. John Kelly, D-Detroit, sits just outside the area but smokes anyway. A couple of others light up occasionally.

The state's new anti-smoking law was sponsored by Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Southfield. It permits bodies to designate areas where smoking is permitted.

Geake, who voted for the Clean

Indoor Air Act, was co-sponsor of SB 196.

"I have fought long and hard for the rights of non-smokers. While this law is a compromise from the original Clean Indoor Air proposal, it nevertheless puts into law the notion that in public places smoking is prohibited unless specifically permitted."

"This concept emphasizes that smoking without regard to the interests and desires of others is not socially responsible behavior," Geake added.

GEAKE SAID the designated area in the Senate chamber complies with the state law. The non-smoking area is closest to air vents and fans.

Geake added he would be willing to support a complete ban on smoking in the Senate but is doubtful there is enough support for such a ban.

"This does not create a very positive public image to see smoke coming out of the desks of members at work," said Faxon, who has long battled smoking.

The smoking area is an irregularly shaped area on the Senate floor that includes more non-smokers than smokers, while excluding Kelly's desk. Because it includes 18 of the 38 desks, two-thirds of the senators inside the area are non-smokers.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Assumes presidency

Dr. Mary Beth Leininger, Plymouth veterinarian, has been inducted as president of the Michigan Veterinary Medical Association in East Lansing. Leininger, who owns the Plymouth Veterinary Hospital at Wing and Deer in Plymouth with her husband Dr. Steven Leininger, is the first woman officer in that organization's 150-year history. In her inaugural address, Leininger said her goal for the year will be to influence members to greater service in their profession by working in association activities. Leininger is a director of the Community Federal Credit Union in Plymouth and belongs to various professional associations.

Thieves target area automobiles

A 1986 Pontiac Trans Am reported stolen from a parking lot across from the Plymouth Hilton was subsequently recovered in Detroit minus tires, radio, battery and license plate.

The owner of the car told police he locked it, then went into the hotel on Northville Road between 5:45 and 6:10 p.m. Sunday. The vehicle was gone when he returned.

A maroon 1987 Buick Regal was stolen last weekend from Dick Scott Buick on Ann Arbor Road, according to a report filed with city police.

The stolen vehicle apparently wasn't the first choice of the thief. Another new Buick at the dealership was found to have damage to its steering column.

It was later discovered that two wheels and tires valued at $822 were taken from a third vehicle and four wire wheel covers worth $450 were missing from a fourth car.

Four wire wheel covers valued at $252 were reported stolen from a car at the Plymouth Elks on Ann Arbor Road. Several similar incidents have been reported there in recent weeks.

FRED E. CRISSEY

A memorial service for Mr. Crissey, 82, of Gulfport, Fla., was held recently at Woodlawn Memorial Gardens in St. Petersburg, Fla., with local arrangements by Lambert-Vermeulen Funeral Home, Plymouth. Memorial contributions may be given to the Fred E. Crissey Memorial Scholarship Fund, 20833 Southfield Road, Southfield 48075.

Mr. Crissey, who died Jan. 22 in Plymouth, was born in Rochester, N.Y. A former professional musician, he began his career with Guy Lombardo in 1925 and later was a featured saxophonist with Ted Weems, Gene Goldkette, and Jimmy Dorsey.

After settling in Detroit, Mr. Crissey played with local orchestras and was a staff musician at WXYZ Radio. He formed his own orchestra and for many years was the featured attraction at Northwood Inn. He became the secretary of the Detroit Federation of Musicians in 1961, a position which he held until retiring in 1973.

After retirement, he continued to be involved in the musician's union, serving as the secretary of the Clearwater, Fla., local. He joined the Florida orchestra, the "New Yorkers," in 1975 and played with this band when it was featured the popular "New Yorkers."

Mr. Crissey was a lifetime member of the Detroit Federation of Musicians Local 5, the New York Federation of Musicians Local 802, and the St. Petersburg Federation of Musicians Local 427.

He started the Musicians Pension Plan in Michigan in about 1973 and served on the board of directors of the Detroit Federation of Musicians from 1940 until he was elected secretary in 1961. Mr. Crissey was inducted into the Detroit Musicians Hall of Fame in 1975.

Survivors include his son, Fred K. Crissey of Plymouth; and eight grandchildren.

SHAUN M. BEACHAM

Funeral services for infant Beacham, age 17 days, were held recently in Lambert-Vermeulen Funeral Home with burial at United Memorial Gardens. Officiating was the Rev. Mark Barnes.

Shaun, who died Jan. 24 in Mott's Children hospital, is survived by parents, Lorraine and Christopher Beacham of Canton; brother, Christopher; and grandparents, Bessie and Charles Beacham of Troy, Violet and Dave Jacobs of Florida.

HARRY H. GERST

Funeral services for Mr. Gerst, 82, of Plymouth were held recently in Schrader Funeral Home, Plymouth, with burial at Riverside Cemetery, Plymouth. Officiating was the Rev. Frederick Vosburg. Memorial contributions may be made to the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth.

Mr. Gerst, who died Jan. 23 in Novi, was born in Canton Township and was a lifelong resident of the Plymouth-Canton community. He retired in 1966 from the Wayne County Road Commission where he had been a carpenter. He had worked with the road commission since 1929. A 1921 Plymouth High School graduate, he was a member of the Plymouth Rock Lodge No. 47, F&AM (serving as master in 1967), a member of the Order of Eastern Star 115 in Plymouth, and a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Survivors include wife, Elsa; daughter, Nancy Schoultz of Northville; son, Gerald of Plymouth; sister, Flora Thorman of Plymouth; six grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

MARY B. SNEDDON

Funeral services for Mrs. Sneddon, 93, of Plymouth were held recently in Schrader Funeral Home with the Rev. Phillip Rodgers Magee officiating.

Mrs. Sneddon, who died Jan. 22 in Livonia, was born in Scotland. A homemaker, she came to the Plymouth community from Detroit in 1974. She is survived by a son, Charles of Plymouth, and two grandsons.

OLIVE J. HOLLOWOOD

Funeral services for Mrs. Hollowood, 82, were held recently in the Harry J. Will Funeral Home in Livonia with burial at Parkview Cemetery, Livonia. Officiating was the Rev. Robert C. Seltz.

Mrs. Hollowood, who died Jan. 20, had worked in the cafeteria of Livonia Bentley High School. She was a member of Livonia Senior Citizens. Survivors include sons, Thomas and James, both of Plymouth; two sisters; six grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

GEORGE M. KUNKEL

Funeral services for Mr. Kunkel, 74, of Cambridge Township near Brooklyn, Mich., were held recently in Braun Bros. Funeral Home in Brooklyn with burial at Lenawee Hills Memorial Gardens. Officiating were Lt. Stephen and Pat Woodbury.

Mr. Kunkel, who died in St. Joseph Hospital, was a former resident of Plymouth. A life member of Plymouth Masonic Lodge No. 47, he once served as supervisor of Van Buren Township.

Survivors include wife, Ruby; sons, Larry of Clinton and Donald of Traverse City; brother, Harry of Canton; sister, Jean Herringhausen of Canton; 10 grandchildren; and 3 great-grandchildren.

Time running out to act

ONE OF THE major problems facing Wayne County is solid waste disposal — or, plainly put, garbage.

In fact, too much garbage. Every American gets rid of 5.5 pounds of garbage a day, or 1,500 pounds of trash a year.

The problem is that we are running out of space to dump our garbage. Landfills are being filled and we aren't building new landfills.

Landfills are like prisons. We need 'em, but nobody wants one in their community.

As a result, Wayne County is expected to lose its last landfill within five years. And when our garbage has to be trucked out of the county to be disposed, the costs will rise markedly. (Right now, 99 percent of the garbage generated in Macomb County is hauled and dumped at Wayne County landfills.)

In 1985 it cost $6 a ton to haul trash to a local landfill. Last year the cost doubled to $12 a ton and will rise this year. (In Boston it costs $95 a ton to haul trash to a disposal site.)

Already we are paying a pretty penny to dump our trash, and that bill is getting higher each year. The city of Plymouth has received a major rate increase from the company hired to haul away its garbage. In Canton the costs have risen from $200,000 a few years ago to $600,000 annually on its way to $1 million, possibly within two years. Plymouth Township is experiencing similar rate increases.

THE DEPARTMENT of Natural Resources and the Wayne County Health Department have identified as a high target for landfills the area from Novi to Monroe. The Plymouth-Canton area is prime because of its high clay soil content.

A proposal made recently to locate a landfill in Canton was met with local resistance and was voted down by the township board. The request, however, is still alive as the petitioner has taken the next step in gaining approval. That procedure provides that if 87 percent of the 43 communities in Wayne County vote in favor of locating the landfill here then Canton gets the landfill — period.

The shortage of existing landfills has been discussed among heads of government in Plymouth-Canton and by western Wayne governmental leaders. There has been some preliminary (almost wishful thinking) discussion about forming an authority to finance, build and maintain an incinerator as Westland, Garden City, Inkster and Dearborn Heights have done.

AN INCINERATOR authority needs to be explored.

An incinerator is more costly than a landfill operation. An incinerator operation still requires a landfill as not all trash can burn and ashes still have to be disposed of. But given the rising costs of landfill, the economics of incineration keep getting better. It takes a few years, however, to put together an authority, sell the idea to the voters, and arrange financing and construction. The best time to start a study was two years ago.

But an incinerator authority will not be the only solution to the problem of solid waste disposal. Detroit, for instance, is looking at an incineration plant that would be able to burn less than 20 percent of the garbage generated in Wayne County. It is becoming increasingly clear that there is a need for a landfill operation to be located nearby.

The solid waste disposal problem is being discussed by regional agencies, county government and local groups such as the Conference of Western Wayne. More intense discussions between Graper, Poole and Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen on the topic might be fruitful.

We may not want to wait on the state, region or county to come up with the best answer. Cooperation between Canton, Plymouth and Northville on waste disposal certainly needs to be explored.

Child deserves both parents

THE IMAGE never quite goes away — a lone figure sits in a cell, jailed for wanting to see his child.

The scenario is always the same, a desperate father, wanting only to see his child, takes a step that is unconscionable — kidnapping.

You see, many of the children in this country who are classified as missing, really aren't missing at all. They're with a non-custodial parent. And in this country, non-custodial means dad 90 percent of the time.

In America we have become a family divided. But if the family as an institution is to remain strong, adults must stop turning on one another — even after they are divorced.

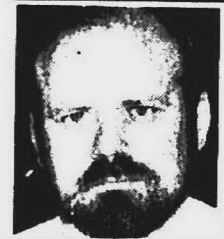

IN THE COMING weeks and months you will be reading about a court case taken on by the Women Lawyers Association of Michigan.

It involves an Oakland County couple who are in dispute over the amount paid for child support. We should leave the merits or demerits of that case up to the courts, where it belongs.

But while the court mulls over its options, there are some other matters the Women Lawyers Association should think about when presenting its case.

Most importantly, shared custody should be the norm, rather than the exception. Each parent should be responsible for raising a child, both economically and sociologically.

Divorced parents are still parents — obligated to raising their children. This should not be an issue of men against women.

Steve Barnaby

Most divorced couples want to remain parents. But the laws of the land make it difficult, if not impossible.

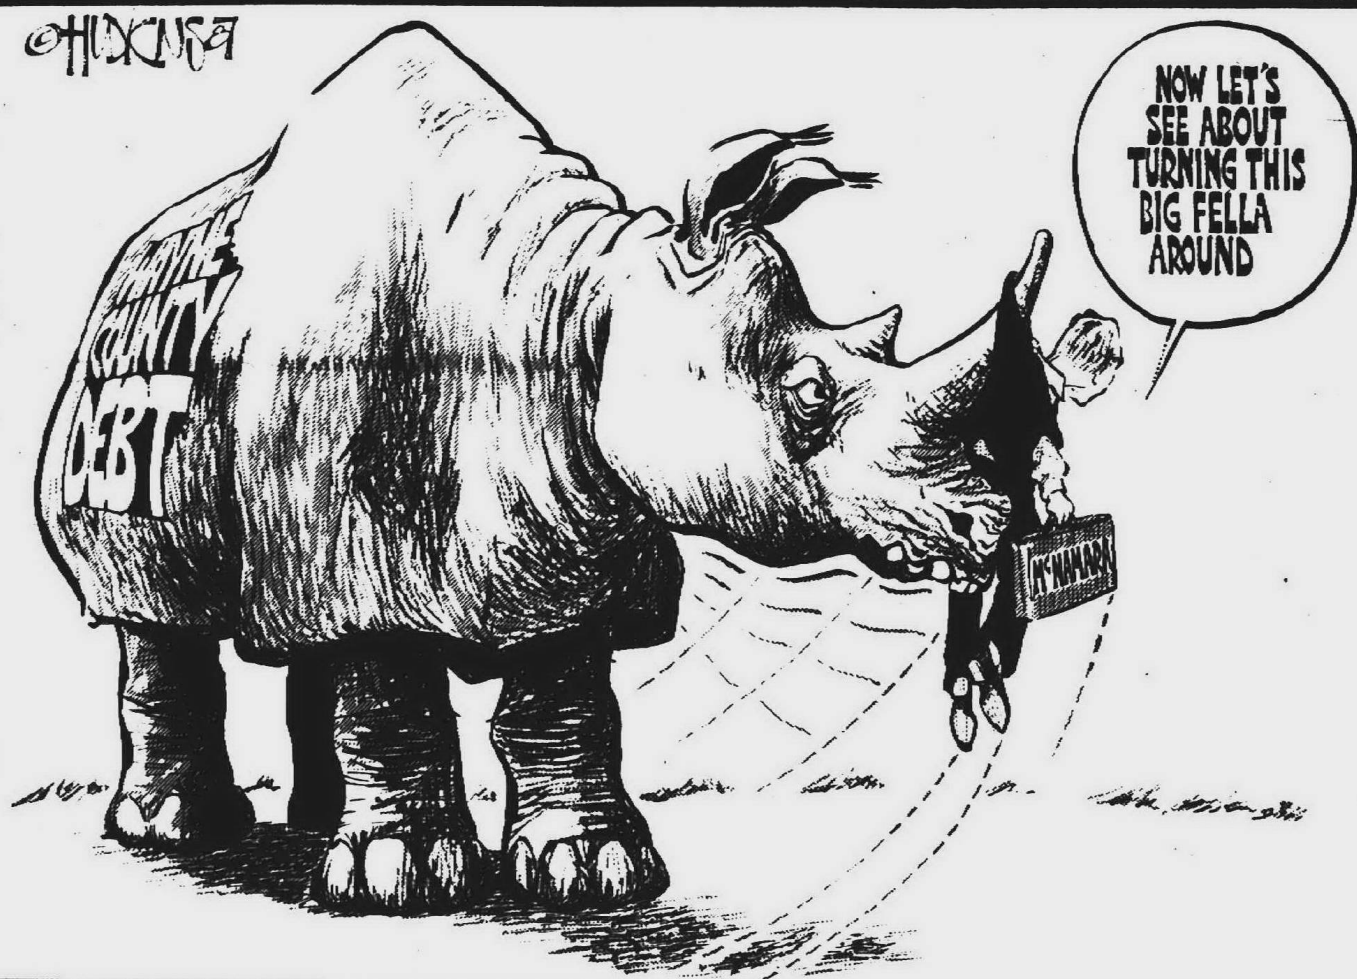

NON-CUSTODIAL parents who "kidnap" their children, are people who have reached wits end, frustrated by a legal system that offers them nothing.

No matter what the courts mandate about visitation rights, a non-custodial parent is at the mercy of a non-responsive system.

While the laws are, and rightfully so, stringent about payment of child support, the system is nearly impotent in doing anything to ensure the rights of non-custodial parents to see their child.

It usually takes years to resolve visitation disputes. By the time the court has ruled, the child is alienated, grown and off to start his or her own life without much regard for either parent.

Neither do the laws provide any assurance that child support payments are being spent on the child — certainly a necessity if it's the child's welfare about which we are concerned.

Libertarians back with chicken soup

YEARS AGO there was a Borscht Belt comedienne whose remedy for everything was chicken soup. Colds, flu, gout, change of life, a broken leg — take chicken soup.

Her hilarious routine came to mind as I read the Libertarian Party's announcement that it is collecting signatures to get on the 1988 ballot.

The Libertarians have run Ed Clark for president, Dick Jacobs for governor, and Virginia Cropsey for various offices. They campaigned hard, answered League of Women Voters questionnaires, sought interviews and bought ads — but finished so poorly that they couldn't be readmitted automatically to the list of bona fide Michigan political parties without a fresh batch of petition signatures.

LIKE THE comedienne of chicken soup fame, the Libertarians have the same solution for every political problem — less government.

On the civil rights side, they are every bit as liberal as the ACLU, insisting government shouldn't intrude into people's lives and liberties. Also like the liberals, they oppose militarism and American intervention into the affairs of other nations.

On the economic side, they are ultra-conservative, fighting for tax cuts, lower domestic spending, reduced government regulation, elimination of most social services programs, including welfare. In 1982, Jacobs went to the extreme of proposing to sell Michigan's state parks to private enterprise.

Whether Libertarians were running for the White House or register of deeds, they echoed the same themes in almost the same words. In a way, they are the flip side of the National Education Association, whose remedy for everything is fatter paychecks for unionized teachers.

AS A NEWSMAN, I found the Libertarians fun to cover.

All their speeches were of a high intellectual character, with none of the rantings you sometimes hear from the other parties. Their audiences were uniformly polite and asked intelligent questions.

And they asked basic questions: Why should government do this or that? They focused on priorities.

It was quite obvious the Libertarians are well educated and even well read. One could disagree with any or all of their platform, but Libertarians were always logically consistent.

AND YET, as I said, they fared dismally at the polls — 15,000 votes statewide, half of 1 percent in the 1982 election. Oddball radicals have done better.

It's difficult for news media, Leagues of Women Voters, Civic Searchlight and other voter service groups to justify including the Libertarians in their interviews. They took up a horrendous amount of space and time in proportion to the support the voters ultimately gave them.

Well, the Libertarians are around again. They'll be canvassing the metro Detroit region of Michigan, plus 23 other states, for your petition signature to get on the '88 ballot.

I have no recommendation. I'm just trying to give you both sides so you can make up your own mind.

It's your business whether you want to eat political chicken soup 21 times a week.

Activist stands a lonesome vigil

FOR A COUNTRY whose population only equals that of Wayne and Oakland counties, Nicaragua generates a disproportionate share of publicity.

But too little attention is given to the people of Nicaragua who don't care as much about capitalism vs. communism as they do about feeding their children and staying out of the crossfire.

Carol Peyser has lived with such Nicaraguans. Granted, her two-week journey to Nicaragua hardly makes her an expert, but she's better informed than the majority of us who could quote the Dow Jones quicker than naming Nicaragua's capital.

Nicaragua is a long way from Peyser's home near 14 Mile and Southfield Road. And activism is a long way from the life that led Peyser to a group leader's job at the Oakland County Medical Care Facility.

But she talked to a friend about a nun who was murdered by an El Salvadoran death squad. Her growing interest in Central America led her to the Witness for Peace program, which organizes volunteers to monitor activities in Nicaragua. Peyser returned from her trip Dec. 1.

"THE THING that hits me the most is the first-hand image of poverty," she said during an interview this week. "It's a place of being poor 24 hours a day."

Nicaraguan families spend little time reading Consumers Report stories about the best value in home video cameras. Most of the day's energy is spent putting often meager meals on the table.

That bothers some people who feel

Rich Perlberg

Central American soil is sufficient to feed its people.

Peyser feels part of the fault is that Central Americans have been encouraged to grow crops such as coffee, sugar and cotton. These are cash crops but not enough cash returns to the farmers who would do better growing rice, beans, corn and other edible crops. She feels the ruling Sandinistas could meet their goal of a self-sufficient agriculture by the year 2000 if the superpowers would quit meddling. That includes U.S. support of Contra rebels.

PEYSER KNOWS that her efforts, such as protesting against U.S. Attorney Edwin Meese in Detroit Monday night, are minuscule compared to the size of the U.S. government which, with the help of her tax money, takes a decidedly different approach to Central America. "I know," she says. "It sometimes drives me crazy. I keep my peace. I have a story to tell."

She worries that American policy will lead to an unwanted import — body bags of American soldiers.

"The Nicaraguans have had a taste of freedom, and they know what it means," she says. "They prize their freedom, and they will fight to the death to defend it."

Negotiating one more compromise with age

NEVER HAVE I considered myself a hypochondriac, a person suffering from an unnatural anxiety about personal health — sometimes to the degree of creating imaginary illnesses. Even on those mornings when I had to shake myself to get the heart started, it was my conviction that a couple of aspirin plus time itself was cure enough.

Now I find that the body beautiful may not be such a temple against creeping decrepitude as pretended through seven decades, although I do differentiate between disease per se and the wear and tear that cause body parts to wear out.

In the initial category, life is expected to bring measles, mumps, chicken pox, an occasional common cold and even a broken bone now and then. Sure, I've gone that route, but I still have an appendix, tonsils, gall bladder, etc., with never a suspicion of an ulcer or runaway blood pressure.

Spectacles have been a facial adornment for half a century. A pinched sciatic nerve was in payment for the best 3-wood shot I ever clouted on a golf course, but prescribed exercises have kept me away from back surgery. And the collapsed lung and heart attack of a few years ago quite likely can be traced to a career of self-inflicted dissipation.

Fred DeLano

NOTHING IN that list has proved fatal, nor has a dentist's creation of upper and lower dentures. The outside shell of this carcass still looks about the same even though my value to the ultimate organ donor list may be minimal.

I'll tell you a quick story of how this philosophical sneer toward pill boxes developed. To do it, I must quote a paragraph from Ian Fleming's 007 thriller, "Dr. No." This is what that vile, evil character said to James Bond:

"The killers came in the night. They tortured me. I would not say where the gold was, so they cut off my hands to show that the corpse was that of a thief, and they shot me through the heart and went away. But they did not know something. I am the one man in a million who has his heart on the right side of his body. I lived."

So did I, without the theatrics of hidden gold. It is an oddity (the word I prefer to "deformity") which develops in the womb, of course. It astounds doctors, and back in my day it was considered probable that a misplaced heart would assure death during infancy.

If "Dr. No" and I both can beat odds like that, I doubt if the mere hearing aid for which I am to be fitted tomorrow will cause much of a problem. It's simply one more sign of advancing age, parallel to declining powers of memory, and because I search for a reason to laugh in every situation let me steal a yarn from Judd Arnett. He used it in his Free Press column Aug. 3:

"THE STORY is told of Tim and Maggie who were at home one summer's eve and he said, 'Maggie, old dear, wouldn't it be nice to have some ice cream?'"

"Oh, it would be lovely," she replied. "Indeed," he said. "So I think I'll walk to the store and get a pint of vanilla."

"That is the best idea you have had all week, Timothy," she enthused. "You wait a minute and I'll write it down."

"You don't have to write it down," he replied. "Heaven's to Betsy, Maggie, I can remember to get a pint of vanilla ice cream. And while I'm at the store I might as well get some chocolate sauce, and we can have a chocolate sundae."

"Timothy," she murmured, "what a wonderful man you are. Just one more thing: while you're at the store, why don't you get a small can of peanuts, and then we can have what we used to call a Tin Roof. Remember the Tin Roof, Timothy, with vanilla ice cream, chocolate sauce and peanuts for topping?"

"Indeed I do," Timothy replied. "But you'd better let me write it all down," Maggie warned.

"Naw," he said. "I can remember vanilla ice cream, chocolate sauce and peanuts. I have everything fixed in my mind."

"Maggie put small dishes and spoons on a tray, then tuned in her favorite television program. She forgot about Timothy and his errand."

"He returned just as the program ended and put a dozen eggs in the middle of the kitchen table. Maggie looked at the eggs, and then at Timothy, and she said, 'Dear, you forgot to bring the bacon...'"

Elston family bids farewell

To the editor:

With mixed emotions we share these thoughts expressing our thanks and gratitude for 37 years of happy and joyous association with the people of the Plymouth community. It is that association that will be missed as we move to Anderson, Ind.

We feel compelled to express a warm and loving thanks to the many people who have touched our lives and made them full and complete.

Plymouth has been a fine environment for our family. The schools, the volunteers who assisted us in our respective positions, teachers and supportive friends who gave so much to make this a beautiful and respected community... for this we are grateful.

The privilege of serving the students of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools has been rewarding beyond words.

Our participation in civic organizations, such as the garden clubs, Plymouth Kiwanis, etc., has been fulfilling and made us better servants because of this association.

Plymouth will always be very special to us and we are proud of our leaders in the schools, city and township who have stayed current with the times to make it so special.

New craze consumes dad & sons

I don't know about the rest of you but a new craze has hit our home and hit hard.

A mother's experience tells me that all too soon this new game will be relegated to the closet to join all those Transformers, Star Wars paraphernalia, and Atari cassettes layered with dust.

But, for now, the word that puts a sparkle in the eyes of my 10- and 12-year-old sons — and even 39-year-old hubby — is "Nintendo."

IF YOU HAVEN'T heard of it yet, you probably don't have kids, or to be more specific, boys between the ages of 10 and 40.

Nintendo, in case you're wondering, is similar to Atari in that you hook it up to your television and use different cartridges to play games. The main difference, as my 10-year-old son explained it to me, is "it's got great graphics, Mom."

I didn't even know what graphics were when I was 10 years old. These kids are too sophisticated for their own good.

Unfortunately, before Christmas, I was completely unaware of this new wonder. My oversight resulted in Santa spending big bucks on the wrong things (poor Santa — he tries so hard to please).

The day after Christmas we came to find that jolly Old St. Nick had left Nintendo at practically every home in the neighborhood except our's.

Nancy Walls Smith

One of you ladies should have told me. You know that I'm walking around in a cloud most of the time. I need all the help I can get on what's hot and what's not. Nintendo is hot.

Our 10-year-old, Jim, asked if he could purchase the game with his own money. This seemed a good idea since I didn't have any left. We withdrew the appropriate sum from his savings account, then Jim and I went in search of this wondrous treasure. His face was glowing with that look of joyous expectation that makes a mom feel good about seeing her kid so happy.

UNFORTUNATELY, after hitting three toy stores, we realized this search was not going to be easy.

The areas in the stores where the games had been looked as though riots had broken out and much looting and pillaging had occurred. There were a few empty cartridge boxes left haphazardly strewn around an otherwise barren display.

I had visions of pre-Christmas shoppers pushing, shoving and biting each other to get at this marvelous game. This was the only thing that could explain the looks of vacant futility in the eyes of each sales clerk I talked with. I thought people only looked at you that way if you asked for a Cabbage Patch Doll. I'm so out of it.

I was determined not to disappoint my son who was staking half his life savings in this venture.

TO MAKE A long story medium-sized, we came home, let our fingers do the walking and finally found a Nintendo — perhaps the last one in the metropolitan area.

This all occurred about three weeks ago. For three weeks, my sons have said little more than "Hi, Mom," when they get home from school and "goodnight" before they go to bed. During the interim, they're glued to that dang game.

They let hubby play sometimes but only after he whimpers and begs. It's not a pretty sight.

After the kids go to bed, hubby is a happy man. He has the game to himself. That's when he looks at me with those sexy eyes and says, "Hey, hon, you want to watch me play Nintendo?" And they say romance is dead. Hat

Support for appliance bill grows — slowly

By Penny Wright
special writer

"Government regulations cannot do a perfect job for everybody," said Joe Green, owner of D & G Heating and Cooling in Livonia. "There are trade-offs with every piece of legislation."

He referred to the National Appliance Energy Conservation bill, which received unanimous congressional support last year but was pocket-vetoed by President Reagan in the fall.

The bill was reintroduced in Congress Jan 6.

THE APPLIANCE bill (S 83-HR 87) sets tougher minimum energy efficiency standards for a broad range of heating and cooling appliances, including refrigerator-freezers, furnaces, clothes dryers, air-conditioners and dishwashers.

At present the U.S. Department of Energy sets appliance efficiency levels without legislative backing. Several individual states have passed their own standards.

Green has mixed feelings about the bill.

"Yes, it is good for consumers to have federal standards. People do not always know or care about energy efficiency, and they can get cheated by poorly manufactured products that can't produce the savings claimed," he said.

"On the other hand, standards are not good for the consumer when the law doesn't take into consideration how or where the appliance will be used."

Green said a standard for appliance efficiency for the whole country may not fit the needs of a particular region.

"In our part of the country, an inefficient furnace sometimes works better in an older home than one of the best energy saving types."

COST TRADE-OFFS are also an issue with the new bill.

While proponents acknowledge tougher federal standards could raise prices of appliances, they say the resulting net energy savings and reduction in energy imports will offset higher prices.

Researchers at Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory in Berkeley, Calif., have found the energy efficiency of the average new household appliance is well below the best unit available, and even further below the level of performance that is technically achievable and economic.

Studies at the laboratory show an individual may realize modest energy savings using the most efficient appliances available, but the total cost savings for all such appliances is impressive.

One year of electric appliance sales represents the amount of energy produced by six large 1000-MW baseload power plants. The researchers contend the equation would drop to two power plants if all new appliances were as efficient as the best projected 1990s technology.

UNTIL RECENTLY, appliance manufacturers have resisted tighter federal standards. They say the standards were often unrealistic and too costly to be practical.

Their resistance crumpled after six states (excluding Michigan) enacted minimum appliance standards. Eleven more states have moved to pass tighter standards.

Speaking in New York last week, Joe McGuire of the Airconditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI), a Virginia-based organization representing manufacturers of heating and cooling equipment, said appliance manufacturers were seeking federal standards to avoid the confusion of basing production on meeting different state standards.

Without federal standards, he said, "appliance manufacturers cannot take advantage of long production runs and the national distribution system to keep costs down."

BOB NELSON, director of Regulatory and Consumer Affairs for the Michigan Public Service Commission (PSC), expressed a similar view. "We feel that if 50 states enact minimum appliance standards, the public would have to bear exorbitant costs."

According to Nelson, the higher appliance costs that may follow from tightening federal standards will be offset by personal energy savings.

"The current lull in the energy crisis does little to diminish the importance of saving energy. The energy problem is bound to heat up again. It is just a matter of time before we have to conserve again."

PSC supports the appliance act and has urged Michigan legislators to co-sponsor the bill.

"We would like quick action on this bill. The longer we continue having different appliance efficiency standards, the more costly it will be for the consumer."

Golden years often short on gold Reality hits hard report concludes

Working for a better future

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Ideally, retirement years are supposed to be a time for rest and relaxation.

Those "golden years" — following decades of heavy-duty responsibilities on the home front and in the workplace — are supposed to be pleasant ones.

Yet for many, the reality falls far short of that ideal. Older women in particular are likely to find themselves in dire financial straits.

According to U.S. Census data, 71 percent of the elderly poor are women. Even women who do not fall below the poverty line earn less than do men of the same age.

Women aged 45 to 49, for example, had a median income of $9,443 in 1984, compared to $25,094 for men that age. For those age 65 and older, the figures were approximately $6,000 for women and more than $10,000 for men.

That information is included in a report to the Michigan Legislature on older women's issues, prepared by the Task Force on Older Women's Issues of the Michigan Women's Commission.

In 1985, the legislature directed the Michigan Women's Commission to study three areas:

- Older women's access to employment and training programs.
- Their access to health insurance.
- Adequacy and structure of pension systems for older women.

THE TASK FORCE assembled to study those issues included more than 30 people from both the public and private sectors. Members of the task force were men and women representing a variety of occupations, ages, ethnic groups and geographic locations.

The task force held five hearings throughout the state, including a May 8, 1986, hearing in Canton Township. Other hearings were held in Detroit, Grayling, Lansing and Marquette.

Among those presenting testimony at the May 8 hearing in Canton was Virginia Nicoll of the Farmington chapter of the Older Women's League. Nicoll, now past president of that organization, served on the Task Force on Older Women's Issues.

"I think we did an excellent job," Nicoll said of the work of the task force. A number of those serving on the task force had been involved in those issues prior to serving. Their knowledge and experience were helpful," she said.

The Older Women's League is interested in the concept of "earnings sharing" as it relates to Social Security credit, according to Nicoll.

YEARS OF homemaking and taking care of ailing relatives lead to serious financial problems for women, particularly for those who are divorced.

"That's one of the chief reasons for low Social Security benefits among women alone," Nicoll said.

Benefits received are based on the 35 years of the worker's highest earnings. The bulk of women 65 and older depend on Social Security for their income, Nicoll said.

The concept of earnings sharing involves pooling all money brought into the marriage through earnings by both spouses. That money would then be split, with each spouse receiving credit for one-half.

The Older Women's League will concentrate this year on pushing to have the concept incorporated into the Social Security program, Nicoll said. The organization's Washington, D.C. office will lobby to see the concept enacted.

Last year, the focus in Congress was on tax law changes. This year, however, OWL will push for those changes in Social Security, Nicoll said.

A lifelong bias against women in the workplace works to their disadvantage in their later years, according to Nicoll. Women are concentrated in sales, service and clerical jobs with lower salaries and minimal or non-existent pension benefits.

"It's due to lifelong bias and discrimination against women."

TODAY'S HIGHER cost of living means that more women are in the workforce. Even those with husbands earning substantial salaries often need that second income.

"We hope that there will not be that pool of poverty-stricken women" in the future, Nicoll said.

Although the Social Security system is actuarially sound, the "graying of America" will nevertheless present problems in years to come, she said. Problems in medical care and benefits will surface as the "baby boom" generation ages.

The task force report examines some of the problems women face under the Medicaid and Medicare programs. Limitations of those programs can lead to older women living in poverty.

The Older Women's League is concerned about the status of women with the responsibility of caring for their husbands in the men's final years. Such women often find themselves in poor health and with minimal resources to survive.

Financial and physical support for such women is essential, Nicoll said.

"That's a problem that's not going to go away."

Developing a national policy on retirement income — including direct pension credit for years of homemaking and care-taking — is essential, according to Nicoll. Although motherhood is spoken of in laudatory, sentimental terms, the reality is that public policy doesn't support it.

OTHER INDUSTRIALIZED nations, however, do provide for women who have children. The U.S. is one of the few such countries with no pension credit for homemakers, Nicoll said.

"They're more concerned with the domestic life," she said of those countries.

The recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling upholding a California law requiring maternity leave to be provided was a step in the right direction, Nicoll said. She would like to see such leave extended to both parents.

OWL is also concerned about provisions allowing homemakers to establish individual retirement accounts independent of a spouse's earnings. The organization is also interested in revising tax laws to allow maximum annual contributions to IRAs of $2,000 for homemakers, the same amount set for wage earners.

The Older Women's League also advocates extension of pension benefits to part-time and seasonal workers, Nicoll said. The development of "pension portability" — allowing a worker to carry a pension from one job to another — and reduced time requirements for vesting are also concerns.

Women are more likely to spend part of their adult years caring for children. They're also more likely to move when required to do so by a husband's career — and thus find themselves with reduced pension benefits in their later years.

The task force report on older women's issues contains a number of recommendations related to the three areas task force members examined.

Those three areas were access of older women to employment and training programs, access to health insurance and adequacy and structure of pension systems for older women.

The report notes that women experience aging differently than men do. U.S. society, for example, considers women to be old long before men of the same age are viewed as being old.

Television newscasters provide a perfect example of that difference, according to the report. Women the age of Walter Cronkite aren't a common sight on television.

Women experience work-related age discrimination as early as 40 or even 35, according to the report, which also includes information on the economic problems of mid-life women.

OLDER WOMEN are also more likely to be unmarried and living alone, the report notes. Women live seven years longer than men do, on the average, but must make do with smaller incomes spread out over a greater life span.

According to U.S. Census data, the 1984 median income of women 65 and older was $6,020, only $1,020 above the poverty level. The comparable figure for men was $10,450.

Older women are overly represented in the ranks of the elderly poor, making up 71 percent of that group, the report notes.

The historical role of women in U.S. society leads to financial problems for older women. Attitudes, tradition, law, economics, education and business practices have worked to the economic disadvantage of most women.

SEX STEREOTYPING and discrimination have led to women being grouped into certain job categories. The job categories are those with lower salaries and minimal or non-existent pension benefits.

Women have also been limited in their ability to obtain the money and skills needed to start their own businesses, the report notes.

The aging of the "baby boom" generation will cause the ranks of the elderly to grow, the report notes. "We should address their needs now, before they become even more overwhelming."

"There is direct interdependence among the issues of job training, employment opportunity, retirement income and affordability of health-care coverage," the report states. "All must be addressed if the state's social policy is to have a significant positive impact on women in poverty and allow them to become self-sufficient."

TASK FORCE members recommended that appropriate agencies and departments step up their efforts to eliminate employment discrimination based on age, race and gender.

"Full labor force participation on the part of midlife and older women should be actively promoted, and the business community, labor unions and the general public should be educated regarding the problems these women face in the workplace," the report states.

The task force report also recommends that the Michigan Job Training Coordinating Council continue to work with education and training programs "to remove barriers which

THE FEDERAL government doesn't even have statistics on women drawing pension benefits on their own as wage earners, according to Nicoll.

"We do not know how many women are drawing pension benefits" based on their own years in the workforce. Estimates of that are approximately 1 percent, she said.

The task force report also recommends that occupational guidance counseling in Michigan schools, colleges and universities be sex-neutral. It's important for educators to recognize the roots of sex-based discrimination, Nicoll said, and to avoid stereotyping in such counseling.

Often, women have been brought up with the notion that it's simply not polite to talk about money.

"You'd be surprised at the ignorance," Nicoll said. Even bright, achieving women are often ignorant of the realities of retirement income.

The Older Women's League's Virginia Nicoll (standing) was among those giving testimony at the May 8, 1986, task force hearing in Canton Township.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

"Love, unfortunately, does not put food on the table."

Among those age 65 and older, women earn approximately 58 percent of what men do — comparable to the percentages for younger men and women still in the workforce. Only approximately 20 percent of older women receive income from a pension, either on their own as retired workers or as spouses.

Low wages translate into low retirement benefits.

"It's no accident," Nicoll said.

Minority women in particular are more likely to end up living in poverty.

Black women are five times more likely than white men to live in poverty in old age, Nicoll said.

"That's the double whammy." Discrimination based both on gender and on race creates overwhelming financial difficulties for minority older women.

Report calls for changes to help women may limit participation by these women and to enable more of them to enter the labor force in above minimum-wage jobs and compete for higher-level jobs."

The state should also continue to work toward the elimination of gender-based wage discrimination in the public and private sectors, according to the report. Occupational guidance counseling of girls and women in Michigan's schools, colleges and universities should be sex-neutral.

The U.S. must recognize and address the circumstances and financial contributions of women who are primary caregivers of families, ac-ording to the report. "By reducing or foregoing their own outside employment, the Social Security and pension systems will affect women in unique ways."

Members of the task force recommended that the federal government provide incentives to employers to lower pension vesting requirements, offer portable pensions and increase pension coverage, along with eliminating Social Security integration.

DEVELOPMENT of a national system to provide pension credit for homemakers is also crucial, according to the report.

"In addition, the federal government should take steps to make sure that women, handicappers and minority group members are included in pension coverage and that these groups are assured equal treatment in pension plans."

As women move into more skilled and managerial jobs in the heavy industrial sector and into more male-dominated occupations, their access to health care will presumably also increase.

The U.S. has, however, lost a number of jobs in heavy industry in recent years. Such jobs had provided relatively high compensation and comprehensive health care benefits, the report states.

More recently, however, job growth has been concentrated in the service sector.

"Unless government continues to provide financial incentives and unions encourage employers in the service sector to provide health benefits to workers, there will continue to be gaps and variations in health care plans based on income and type of employment," the report states.

"The task force believes that while this report outlines several measures to increase women's access to health care coverage, the ultimate way to eliminate barriers to such access is for Congress to pass legislation to establish a comprehensive health system which guarantees that everyone will have access to a basic level of care."

Tracking progress takes time

By Julie Brown
staff writer

In her work, state Rep. Justine Barns gets first-hand knowledge of the financial problems of older women.

"Part of it is being alone," said Barns, D-Westland. Older women living alone have difficulty getting the services they need.

Some provisions for retirees are already in place, said Barns, one of several Michigan legislators to serve on the Task Force on Older Women's Issues. Others were state Sen. John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, and Rep. Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak.

The retirement program for public school employees, for example, has made it more attractive for those employees to retire.

"They had negotiated contracts." Others, however, haven't been as fortunate.

Many older women rely on Social Security as their only source of income, Barns said. That income isn't sufficient for many to enjoy even a modest standard of living.

"We need to do more for displaced homemakers."

SUCH WOMEN find themselves alone in their middle or later years due to death, divorce or separation from the person on whom they had been dependent. With minimal job skills and no current work experience, those women often end up living in poverty.

The difficulties of older women at home alone are also an issue, according to Barns.

"Those are the real issues to me." Health concerns of older women are also an issue.

"We're living longer," Barns said. "Quite often, the health care is not there for what they need."

Some older women are living in convalescent homes when they don't really need to, she said. A lack of other caretaking services, however, means that too many of those women end up in such homes.

Barns said she didn't have as much time as she would have liked to participate in the work of the Task Force on Older Women's Issues.

The staff help available to assemble the report was also insufficient, according to the state representative.

"That's a bureaucratic problem."

Barns was recently appointed to serve as chairwoman of the Senior Citizens and Retirement Committee. She's interested in seeing what the consensus will be among committee members a few months down the road.

"We have to accommodate the majority."

TRACKING THE recommendations in the report and seeing what's done with those recommendations is necessary, she said.

"There's always that political strategy."

Earlene Neal is also interested in keeping track of the report's recommendations. Neal, director of programs for the Michigan Women's Commission, coordinated the work of the task force.

"I'm real pleased with the content," Neal said. "Now, hopefully, something can get done."

With the time and the resources the task force had, the report is a good, comprehensive one, she said. Reaction to it has been positive.

"In fact, we haven't gotten any negative reaction."

State legislators are interested in the issues raised in the report, according to Neal.

"They're obviously interested or they wouldn't have asked us to do the report in the first place."

Copies of the report on older women's issues are available from the Michigan Women's Commission, 611 W. Ottawa St., P.O. Box 30026, Lansing, Mich. 48909. For additional information, call (517) 373-2884.

Ending the cycle of substance abuse

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Children whose parents are chemically dependent have a tough time of it.

The children may blame themselves for their parents' alcoholism or drug addiction. Youngsters may feel they're all alone in the world and may not understand that others their age have the same problems.

The "Jekyll and Hyde" behavior of their parents can leave such children confused and angry. Such children are at a greater risk to become substance abusers.

The "Children in Focus" program offered by The Knopf Co. is designed to help those youngsters.

"A lot of it is modelling a different way of interacting with adults," said Jeanne Knopf-DeRoche, president of the company.

The company, with offices in Plymouth, provides training and consulting services. The "Children in Focus" project is funded by Southeastern Michigan Substance Abuse Services.

THE FUNDING has allowed the training and consulting company to run groups for children in areas of Wayne County outside of Detroit. The company also provides other services, including training for educators and parents, assessment of treatment programs and work with employees in life-family value issues.

Plans are under way for Judith Darlington, social worker/substance abuse specialist at Plymouth Family Service, to work on the "Children in Focus" program. Plymouth Family Service is a Plymouth Community Fund agency.

Darlington attended a workshop with Judy Brooks of The Knopf Co. Brooks runs the groups for youngsters, with group size averaging eight children.

"I was very interested in this model and providing this service for the community," Darlington said. Assisting in running the group is the best way to get the necessary training, she said.

The group for children ages 5-10 will probably begin meeting in February, with sessions held at the Knopf offices, 1126 S. Main St. in Plymouth. A parents' meeting is planned for the first session of the eight-week program.

The group will meet once a week, with each session lasting 1 1/2 hours. Price is $10 per child to cover materials.

THE SESSIONS focus on children's needs, providing support as they learn to cope with the stresses they face. A variety of activities are used, including stories, movies and games.

"It's not like a class where they're just getting information," said Knopf-DeRoche, who has a master's degree in guidance and counseling from Oakland University. "If the kids aren't enjoying coming to session, we miss the boat up front."

In any classroom, about 20-25 percent of the children will live with a chemically dependent adult, Knopf-DeRoche said. In many communities, however, the attitude persists that the problem doesn't exist locally.

"There are myths around a lot of different communities on why it isn't us," she said.

Children from more well-to-do families are often taught not to talk about what goes on in families. Such teaching makes helping children of chemically dependent parents more difficult.

Knopf-DeRoche also advocates having support groups for such children in the schools. Such groups aren't yet found in many schools, she said.

"It's really the schools that have the best opportunity." Work with such children concentrates on prevention and breaking the cycle of chemical dependency, Knopf-DeRoche said.

"You know who the next generation of addicts are going to be." Genetic predisposition and environmental factors make it more likely that such children will become substance abusers.

MORE AND MORE treatment facilities are recognizing the need to treat chemical dependency as a family problem, according to Family Service's Darlington. Programs designed to help children are becoming more common in such facilities.

"That's been a very vital part, I believe."

Alatot, associated with Alcoholics Anonymous, provides help for some youngsters from chemically dependent families, Knopf-DeRoche said. It isn't found in all areas, however.

"It's not around like AA is." Groups for spouses and older children from chemically dependent families — Alanon and Alateen — are more common than Alatot is.

Often children from chemically dependent families don't know that it's OK to ask for help, Knopf-DeRoche said. Programs such as "Children in Focus" are designed to let children know it's all right to seek help.

For additional information on the "Children in Focus" group, call Plymouth Family Service, 453-0890.

Spotlight Players will hold a dinner theater benefit 7 p.m. Saturday, March 28, at the New Hawthorn Valley Country Club, Merriman and Warren in Westland. The show will be three one-act comedies. Ticket price is $30 per person, with the event limited to 100 people. Attire is semi-formal. Proceeds from the benefit performance will go toward the building and general funds of the Spotlight Players. For additional information, call 729-6453 or 481-9431 (8 a.m. to 4 p.m.).

Hay-Sawyer

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hay of Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Ann, to William George Sawyer of Farmington Hills. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Gertrude L. Sawyer of Farmington Hills, formerly of Dearborn, and the late Gordon T. Sawyer.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. She is employed by the R.L. Polk Co.

Her fiancé is a graduate of Catholic Central High School and of Wayne State University. He is employed by the R.L. Polk Co.

An early May wedding is planned in Dearborn.

Plans set for trip to China

Madonna College's International Experience-China will be offered this spring.

The trip will leave Monday, July 20, and return Monday, Aug. 3, from Detroit Metro Airport. The cost is $2,995, which includes air fare, hotels, all scheduled tours and two meals daily.

For more information, call Plymouth residents Robert A. or Sarah C. Smith at the college at 591-5085 or home at 455-0977. A passport is required, and the Smiths will assist tour members in obtaining it. College credit is available but not included in the price.

The tour will stop in Hong Kong before going to the Republic of China. Stops there will include Shanghai, Xian (the site of the Terra Cotta Warriors archeological dig), Peking and the Great Wall of China. The trip will conclude with a visit to Honolulu, Hawaii.

Arts Council plans auction

The Plymouth Community Arts Council will present an auction, "Your Heart's Desire," Saturday, Feb. 7. The auction will be held in the showroom of Don Massey Cadillac on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth.

The doors will open at 7:30 p.m. to tables of silent auction items.

Those items will include crafts, gift certificates, filled baskets, candy and flowers for Valentine's Day, paintings and others. A booklet is being prepared with descriptions of the items, to make shopping easier and more entertaining.

The live auction will follow with Fred Hill and L. John Miller as the auctioneers. They will offer such items as a plane trip, glider rides, condo vacations, art work, hand-knit sweaters, several parties (including a mystery dinner party), dinners out and tickets to various functions.

Many of the auction items have been donated by businesses and friends of the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

A Schoolcraft College chef will provide an assortment of hors d'oeuvres for the evening. Centennial Educational Park students of Carey Gary's will provide desserts.

MUSICIANS AND mimes will provide the evening's entertainment.

The "Your Heart's Desire" auction is one of the major fund-raising events for the Plymouth Community Arts Council, a non-profit agency. During the past school year, the organization was able to:

- Award $3,000 to talented area students;

- Grant $6,000 to assist teachers in creating innovative projects;

- Donate $10,000 (profits from Peter Rockwell's exhibit) to the play sculpture in Plymouth Township Park;

- Contribute $3,730 for amateur and professional performances for local students;

- Give $1,900 to commission an original composition for the Centennial Educational Park Symphony Band;

- Support the Plymouth Symphony's July Fourth concert with financial assistance of $300;

- Organize and finance the Music in the Park program.

Those donations were made in addition to the ongoing projects of the PCAC. The organization promotes the arts through the Picture Lady, Sculptor Lady and Music Lady programs in local schools.

THE PCAC also manages the Art Rental Gallery (located upstairs at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth), created and markets a post card series and offers arts classes for children.

The organization also arranges arts and humanities trips for its membership and sponsors The Center for Creative Studies adult art education classes.

Tickets for the "Your Heart's Desire" auction are $12.50 per person. Tickets are on sale at Me and Mr. Jones in the Mayflower Hotel in downtown Plymouth.

A Special Place

Concerned sons and daughters know there comes a time when an elderly parent is getting a little slower in step and needs a little more support and supervision. A nursing home is out of the question. Too expensive. Too much care and confinement. Now there is a gracious alternative - the luxurious Plymouth Inn, an assisted-living facility.

Opening in January of 1987, this magnificent 50 room facility will be the first of its kind in the community. Designed for those elderly who are basically independent who can bathe, dress and feed themselves yet need some encouragement and motivation. The Plymouth Inn meets their needs, budget and lifestyle. It's a special place.

The Plymouth Inn provides 3 delicious meals, graciously served in a beautifully appointed dining room. Spacious mini-suites or deluxe semi-private accommodations overlook tranquil landscaped grounds. Extensive social programs and varied recreational opportunities keep minds involved and stimulated. A game room. Chapel. Beauty parlour. Many quiet cozy corners. The latest in fire and safety protection. All this and more await those who select the Plymouth Inn.

Call today. Arrange to visit our special place. Make it yours. It's here in Plymouth - just 30 minutes from everywhere.

Traveling can draw cultures together

THE PHRASE caught my attention: "Travel is the ultimate freedom." For months I have thought about this idea. Americans, with their dollars, restlessness and strong traditions to travel, would be very upset if they were denied this opportunity.

My understanding of life is that for every freedom there is a matching responsibility. Long ago I determined that when I traveled to another country I would do everything in my power to avoid being an "ugly American."

I have run into some of these Americans who when traveling act in such a way that I would like either to disown them or pretend I am Canadian. This ugliness runs all the way from expecting things to be just like they are at home, complaining about dirt, etc. to putting down the people who are hosting them.

There are other responsibilities that go along with the freedom to travel. Above all these are connected with the idea that you are a guest. I have often apologized for the fact that we are seldom taught languages in our education. Throughout our travel in other countries we have been treated with respect and care.

THERE IS a deeper level of responsibility for the travelers that connects with the spiritual. I have had a high regard for those who travel with a purpose: to bridge the boundaries of life. Especially is it important that this be done between the American and Soviet peoples.

There are groups such as the Fellowship of Reconciliation and People to People, who specialize in such contacts. More people of both worlds need to participate in such contacts. A friend who took such a tour to Russia carried many photos with him, which he left with his hosts. He encouraged the families in the Soviet Union to write to these people and so begin a correspondence.

There is a responsibility for spiritually oriented people to bridge the gap between rich and poor, white and non-white. I find it difficult to relate to people in a country such as Haiti where there is much poverty. I can only say, "We are here not because we are rich and many here are poor, but because we are Christians. Your acceptance of us, and your hospitality to us is a great gift to us."

The biblical phrase "God so loved the world" can take on a new meaning when we have gone out and made friends with people quite different from us. Teilhard de Chardin believes that the universe is moving toward greater unity. He states that this is the central will of God, a movement toward unity of spirit. If we agree with him, we can be an exciting part of this movement of all the universe.

Proper planning can prevent elder abuse

Dear Jo:
After reading your column on elderly abuse some weeks ago, the question I have is, what steps can we (the elders) take to prevent this tragic situation?

Mrs. D.M.,
Hamilton Reader

Dear Mrs. M.:

The problem of elderly abuse is extremely complex in that the abuse is not primarily physical but can be psychological and financial, and involve neglect. Therefore in order to avoid being a victim, an older person has to actively consider the potentiality of the problem and take definite steps to prevent abuse.

To best answer your question, I will quote from a recently published book on elderly abuse, ("Elder Abuse and Neglect," Springer, 1986, by Mary Joy Quinn and Susan K. Tomita). When addressing prevention they suggest the following:

"Plan for the possibility of disability by seeking out an attorney, possibly one that specializes in probate law, who can advise you about powers of attorney, guardianships or conservatorships, natural death acts, and 'living wills.'

"Consider nominating co-conservators or co-guardians so more than one person knows your affairs and can take action if something goes amiss in the administration of your assets or personal care.

"Make a will and review it annually, but do not revise it lightly.

"Be wary about deeding your house or willing your house or other assets to anyone who promises to 'keep you out of a nursing home' or take care of you 'at home' if you become disabled.

"Be careful when asked to sign anything. Go the extra step and have gerontology

A. Jolayne
Farrell

someone you trust review the document.

"Be sure that you are thoroughly familiar with your financial status and know how to handle your assets. This is particularly important for older women who are especially vulnerable to abuse.

"Arrange for direct deposit of pension checks or any other regular payments.

"Do not rely solely on family for your social life or for care if you have health problems. Continually cultivate friends of all ages so there are always people around who are concerned about you.

"If an adult child, particularly one who has led a troubled life, wants to return home to live with you, think it over carefully. Be especially careful if your family has a history of violent behavior or drug/alcohol abuse. Instead, consider supporting the child in his or her own apartment.

"If there has been alienation from family or friends, make peace to the extent possible — not only because it is a healing thing to do, but because it creates a climate of concern for you."

Mrs. M., I hope these suggestions will be helpful to you and other readers who are interested in preventing difficult situations that can lead to abuse. Thank you for your letter.

Take care in picking day care

AP — Working parents often don't know how to find good day care for their preschoolers, state officials said last week in unveiling a campaign to help their hunt.

"Choose day care as carefully as your child would" is the slogan given the new program by the Department of Social Services, which licenses 13,000 day-care providers in the state.

"The decision to make a choice about day care is probably one of the most important decisions we as parents ever make," C. Patrick Babcock, the agency's director, told a news conference.

One of the agency's goals is to help parents find a day-care center that does more than sit youngsters in front of a television, Babcock said.

THE DEPARTMENT is giving away pamphlets that provide a blueprint for comparing day-care centers.

Parents are advised to:

- Check play areas, nap areas and bathrooms to make sure all are clean and are large enough for the number of children under care there.
- Make sure cleaning supplies and medicines are locked up or kept out of the reach of children.
- Check whether stairs are protected by gates.
- Examine the play areas. Yards should not be cluttered with junk and should be protected from busy streets.
- Check procedures used for emergencies.
- Watch the atmosphere of the day-care center. Are adults calm and gentle? Are parents encouraged to visit? Is there a consistent schedule for the children? Are there planned activities?
- Inquire about the center's policy regarding sick children.
- Find out exactly what food the children are given.

LISTS OF licensed facilities are available at local DSS offices and from local child care coordinating councils.

Babcock said the state also is trying to find the unlicensed day-care homes — he estimated there could be as many as 80,000 in Michigan — and get them registered with the state.

To get a license, the homes would have to be examined by a state inspector to show the homes are safe, Babcock said.

"I think the net result will be to improve the quality of care in those providers as we achieve a more enlightened consumer," he said.

Michael Murphy, Gov. James Blanchard's child advocate, said a new initiative for helping preschoolers will be included in the State of the State message Feb. 4.

He said Blanchard will call for a statewide program to provide quality preschool for children born into poverty.

"What we're going to be proposing is a preschool initiative for 4-year-olds at risk," he said. "The other part of the package is to expand day-care services" for recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children who enroll in school or a job-training program.

The administration wants to make up for federal cuts to the Head Start program, Murphy said.

"We don't have a dollar figure yet," he added.

Tour will provide glimpse of China

Madonna College's International Experience-China will be offered this spring.

The trip will leave Monday, July 20, and return Monday, Aug. 3, from Detroit Metro Airport. The cost is $8,995, which includes air fare, hotels, all scheduled tours and two meals daily.

For more information, call Plymouth residents Robert A. or Sarah C. Smith at the college at 591-5085 or home at 455-0977. A passport is required, and the Smiths will assist tour members in obtaining it. College credit is available but not included in the price.

The tour will stop in Hong Kong before going to the Republic of China.

est rates to purchase that new home you've always wanted.

You can apply for a new mortgage loan at any of our conveniently located branch offices. Loan approvals usually take only 3-4 weeks.

Stop by and talk to one of our mortgage counselors about a new mortgage that will be just right for you.

Or it's a great time to refinance your present mortgage.

Even if you already own a home, you can take advantage of our low mortgage interest rates by refinancing your current loan. Chances are that we can save you thousands of dollars in interest and lower your monthly payment!

Here's an example of how much someone who obtained a 30-year loan for $50,000.00 at 12% (12.41% APR) interest in September of 1985 could save by refinancing that loan with a new 15-year loan at Standard Federal today.

The homeowners in this example had monthly principal and interest payments of $514.31. If they continue to pay on that loan until it matures, they will pay an additional $126,671.64 in interest. However, by obtaining a 15-year fixed rate loan now at 9.00% (9.50% APR) they will save $85,605.53 in interest. What's more, they will be able to pay off

	Current 30-Year Loan	New 15-Year Loan
Interest rate	12% (12.41% APR)	9.00% (9.50% APR)
Unpaid Balance on $50,000 loan (as of January 1987)	$49,736.69	$49,736.69
Monthly payment	$514.31	$504.46
Interest yet to be paid	$126,671.64	$41,066.11
Last payment due	August 2015	January 2002

*All of the annual percentage rates in the above example are estimated based on a $50,000.00 loan with a down payment of at least 20%. The term of the loan and all of the normal prepaid finance charges (including a 2% loan discount fee) were taken into consideration in calculating these annual percentage rates.

their mortgage 12 years sooner, and their monthly payment on the new 15-year loan will actually be $9.85 less than the payment on their old 30-year loan.

If these same homeowners wanted to reduce their monthly principal and interest payments even more, they could obtain a 30-year loan from Standard Federal at 9.50% (9.84% APR). In this case, they would reduce their monthly payments by $96.10 and still save $25,852.73 in interest over the remaining term of their new loan.

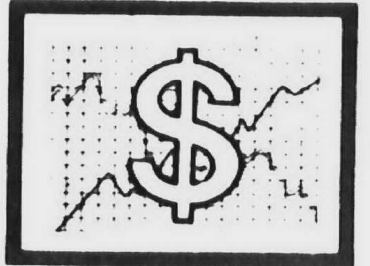

The interest rates shown above are subject to change. So, now is the time! Stop in at any Standard Federal office and talk to one of our mortgage counselors to see just how much you can save.

Foreign relocation stirs debate

By Rebecca Haynes
staff writer

Foreign relocation is a controversial topic in the business world.

When the manufacture of products is moved to another country, jobs are lost here. But such a move may allow the company to stay in business and save U.S. jobs in the long run.

"When you're competing in a world market you have to do what you have to do to stay competitive," said Joel Rosenberg, director of administration for the Troy-based Van Dresser Corp. "Isn't it better to lose a few jobs than to lose a whole company?"

Rosenberg recently attended a conference in Acapulco, Mexico, organized to bring businesses to that country. Many businesses are being lured south of the border to take advantage of cheap labor.

"Mexico is unique because it's in North America, but it has the economy of a Third World nation," he said. "Their economy is worsening to the point of a crisis situation, so the Mexican government is pursuing any help it can get, and these conferences are one way of doing that."

Rosenberg said he attended the Acapulco conference for educational purposes and to stay on top of the latest in the industry.

"We don't have any plans to go into Mexico," he said. "With the type of business we operate it wouldn't be cost-effective for us to do so."

VAN DRESSER Corp., which has been in existence for 58 years, produces interior trim panels for automobiles and operates five plants in the United States and Canada. It employs 12,000 workers and operates in excess of $130 million each year, and is currently seeking a site for an additional plant in the mid-South.

"The type of businesses that see any cost savings by moving a plant to a foreign country are those that are very labor intensive," Rosenberg said. "Our company simply isn't labor intensive enough for a move like this to make any difference."

Because workers in many foreign countries aren't organized, they receive none of the benefits of American workers who may do the same job. And the rate of pay is much lower.

As a result, companies that employ a large number of manual laborers may realize a significant cost savings to relocate.

Pressure from large companies, such as the big auto makers who have set up operations in Mexico, also can sway the smaller suppliers to locate there.

"A company can't just say, 'That looks like a nice spot to manufacture our product,' and set up shop," Rosenberg said. "There are a lot of factors involved when looking for a specific location."

IN THE PAST, automakers stored a large number of parts in the factory, and their suppliers made infrequent shipments of large orders.

Today, companies work under a "just in time" system, he said. This means instead of storing weeks of supplies, suppliers ship just enough to last for a few hours of production.

"This can mean many shipments a day," Rosenberg said. "You can't be thousands of miles away from the assembly plants or it's too difficult to maintain this type of a relationship. It's why we have plants in different parts of the country."

There are significant problems that must be overcome for an American business to operate successfully in a foreign country.

"It's not like deciding to set up shop in another city or state," he said. "There are a lot of cultural problems that prohibit a smooth transaction."

"The language is different so communication and training become a problem," he said. "Often the pace of work is slower, and there's usually a high employee turnover."

Shipping and freight expense can be another major problem.

Joel Rosenberg

"The labor may be cheap, but usually there are added freight costs and the costs associated with sending goods back and forth over a (international) border," Rosenberg said. "Oftentimes freight can be the most expensive part of the process."

Controversy surrounded the Acapulco conference, originally sponsored by the U.S. Department of Commerce, after legislation was passed prohibiting the use of taxpayer money for such purposes (see related story). This legislation prohibits the federal government for the next year from spending money for any programs designed to take American businesses out of the country.

Despite the U.S. government pull-out, Rosenberg said the conference was well organized and included speakers on "everything a business needs to know" to set up there. Fabex of Farmington Hills and Deco Grand of Bloomfield Hills also sent representatives to the conference. Neither returned numerous phone calls.

"You can't fault Mexico for trying to better its situation," Rosenberg said. "For a lot of businesses it's a viable option."

Job loss least of our worries?

By Rebecca Haynes
staff writer

Aside from the loss of U.S. jobs, the push to lure American businesses to Mexico and other foreign countries may have other repercussions.

"It's not just an issue for the auto workers, but for the country in general," said Frank Joyce, UAW spokesman. "If we lack the capabilities to design and manufacture here, from refrigerators to automobiles, haven't we lost something in the process?"

Joyce said the auto industry's portion of the trade deficit has grown steadily and continues to rise.

"At least a third of the U.S. trade deficit is auto related, and things are not getting any better," he said. "The approach we're currently advocating is the passage of trade legislation that will address the issues of quotas and unfair trade practices."

Although other countries have local content laws that require businesses to use a certain percentage of locally made products in the manufacturing process, no such rules exist here.

"We have nothing that compels our manufacturers to use U.S. parts or products," Joyce said. "The passage of trade legislation would help to make things much more equitable."

"It really makes us vulnerable when we rely on other countries for services or products," he said. "Critics say we're evolving into a service economy, but if we continue to lose manufacturing jobs, with what money are people going to buy these services?"

JOYCE SAID the UAW directly attributes the falling of the real wage and standard of living within the middle class to the decline in the manufacturing segment of the country.

The UAW officially protested a recent seminar held in Mexico to promote that country as a place for American businesses. The conference was originally sponsored by the U.S. Department of Commerce, which had to withdraw its participation because of legislation passed over this protest.

U.S. Rep. Bob Carr, D-East Lansing, was instrumental in pushing through the legislation, which prohibits the government from sponsoring such conferences over the next year.

A spokesman from his office said Carr supported the legislation because the seminars, which encourage businesses to take jobs elsewhere, are not proper use of U.S. tax dollars.

The UAW's complaint with the seminar was similar.

"How can we argue at another country's efforts for economic development?" Joyce said. "It's one thing that Mexico wants to attract business, but it's another that our government is willing to help them do so with our taxpayers' money."

ALTHOUGH AMERICAN companies may save money by using cheap foreign labor, Joyce said the cycle only helps to keep the wage structure low and depresses wages on a worldwide basis.

"It comes down to a very simple question," he said.

"Yes, there's a global economy, but is the direction of the global economy going to be to take down our standard of living as well? We need to help increase the worldwide standard of living, not help keep it low."

Joyce said the UAW does what it can to address these issues during contract negotiations with smaller shops as well as the large auto makers, but added that legislation is needed to fully address the problems.

Although a piece of trade legislation passed last year in the house, it was stalled in the senate. No other trade or local content legislation is currently on the house agenda, Carr's spokesman said, adding it's still too early in the session to predict when the issue might be addressed.

Learn to identify buying trends

How important is understanding customer buying behavior as part of market planning for small business?

Simply stated, buying behavior focuses on the "who, what, where, when, why and how" associated with customers' decision to buy. The ability to understand and predict behavioral buying patterns is critical for any business owner or manager expecting to enjoy long-term success in an ever-changing market. Recognizing these trends assists the market planning effort by identifying customer needs and wants that the business may or may not be satisfying on a regular basis. While demographic data are helpful when used to identify who is buying or may buy in a geographical area, its usefulness in forecasting more specific behavioral trends is limited.

In his book, "Practical Marketing for Your Small Retail Business," William Brannen suggests that the business owner view the customer as a problem solver. As such, the customer is influenced by both internal focus: small business

and external forces prior to resolving his "customer problems" and making decisions to buy. Internal forces include the individual's personality, attitudes, perceptions, motives and learning skills. External forces affecting purchase behavior include family, social class, reference groups and cultural influences.

Together these forces shape how an individual carries out the "problem-solving process" as a consumer. Depending on the product or service being offered, the consumer's acceptance of it as a new idea or concept, and his or her learning skills, the consumer's problem-solving process may be either extensive, limited or routinized in nature. This process is carried out regardless if your customers include other retailers, wholesalers or industrial buyers.

The most successful retailers will tell you that understanding buying behavior is an ongoing process. Many business owners conduct their own research (via customer surveys) along with using professional judgment and intuition to reliably predict consumer buying trends. Unfortunately, there are those who primarily rely on "best guess" statistics, rather than taking full advantage of the available options in collecting accurate behavioral trend data.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based small business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Focus: The Small Business Environment."

The most successful retailers will tell you that understanding buying behavior is an ongoing process.

Expansion continues

Once again congratulations are in order. Notwithstanding pessimistic predictions, the current economic expansion has achieved another milestone — its fourth birthday.

As a result, the upswing has moved into third place in terms of post-war longevity, and that includes the 106-month expansion that encompassed the Vietnam War.

Compared with peacetime expansions only, the current upswing is now the second longest and rapidly closing in on the longest, the 58-month expansion that took place in the last half of the 1970s.

What, then, do all these observations mean for 1987? The answer, up front, would appear to be optimistic. However, the crystal ball is still cloudy.

The trade deficit is an important uncertainty. The trade deficit may have peaked, but it is unclear how rapidly it will diminish, since the dollar is not as weak as is generally supposed.

If the deficit remains large and the goods-producing sector stays weak, this weakness will begin to affect strong sectors.

Another uncertainty is the Gramm-Rudman Deficit Reduction Act. The problem is that the target for fiscal year 1986, which ended Sept. 30, 1986, was overshot by a wide margin, as the budget deficit came in at $220 billion.

In view of this, it does not seem likely that the target for the current fiscal year, a deficit of $144 billion with a $10 billion leeway, will be met.

Banking Is One Of Life's Necessities.
The Experience Should Be A Good One.

You flip a switch and the lights go on.

Start your car and go your way.

Day in and day out, so long as things work like they should, you never give them a second thought.

It's the same with banking.

You, along with the rest of us, fully expect your bank to work right. The first time. And every time.

From our point of view, that isn't an unfair expectation.

In fact, living up to that is the best explanation of how and why we run First of America Bank the way we run it.

So in nearly 200 communities across the Midwest, our bankers are reminded that, even though they're part of a major bank company, they should play a major role in the community.

They're encouraged to make loan decisions locally. Which has made us one of the region's biggest lenders.

They're given all the resources of a big bank company to draw on, so they can offer customers a more resourceful bank.

And, since our bankers are asked to handle customer matters on a local level, they're as accountable to you as they are to their bank.

It's made us not only one of the Midwest's biggest bank companies.

It's made us one of its most dependable companies. Something that's as good for you as it is for us.

FIRST OF AMERICA
We're Community Banks First.

How the tax law changed

Having trouble keeping this year's tax changes straight? Here's a recap of some of the major income tax changes affecting families:

- In 1986, there were 15 brackets, ranging 11-50 percent. In 1987, that number will be reduced to five, ranging 11-38.5 percent.
- Each taxpayer and each dependent in 1986 could take an exemption of $1,060. In 1987, that amount rises to $1,900. Each dependent over 5 years old must have a Social Security number in 1987.
- Single deductions will be reduced from $2,480 in 1986 to $2,450 in 1987. Joint deductions will increase from $3,670 in 1986 to $3,760 in 1987. The deduction for single heads of households will drop from $2,480 in 1986 to $2,450 in 1987.
- Two-earner deductions, which depended on income, had a top value of $3,000 in 1986. In 1987, it will be zero.
- Interest paid on home mortgages will continue as deductions. Consumer interest will be gradually phased out as a deduction. In 1987, 65 percent will be deductible. State and local income taxes will be deductible but general sales-tax will not.
- Charitable contributions are deductible to itemizers and non-itemizers in 1986. In 1987, only item-practically speaking

- Itemizers will be able to claim them.
- Medical expenses are deductible if the amount exceeds 5 percent of adjusted gross income. In 1987, that amount increases to 7.5 percent of adjusted gross income.
- Business expenses, union dues, tax return preparation, professional journals and the like are deductible for 1986. In 1987, these miscellaneous expenses may be deducted only if the amount exceeds 2 percent of adjusted gross income.
- Tax credits for child care remain unchanged. Tax credits for political contributions will be eliminated in 1987.
- In 1986, low-income parents may get a refund of up to $550. In 1987, that amount will increase to a maximum of $800. Phasing out begins when income reaches $6,500 and credit is completely lost when income hits $13,500.

If you've been putting money aside for your children's education, here are some changes you should be aware of. The Uniform Gift to Minors law changes. In 1986, if income-producing assets are transferred to a minor child, those income earnings are taxed at the child's marginal rate. In 1987, the first $500 of unearned income isn't subject to tax. The second $500 is taxable at the child's rate. Income over $1,000 of children under 14 years old will be taxed at the parent's marginal tax rate.

Insider's guide to state skiing

If you are an accomplished skier, you have already skied the slopes at the Boynes and probably in the Upper Peninsula. You can tell me more about skiing than I can tell you.

If you are a first-timer like me, you have got a long way to go before you need to know more than how to snowplough down a gentle hill.

But there are thousands of you out there who have skied the slopes around Detroit and would like to take a next step. I am definitely not a good source of this information, but I researched it for you and here is what I found.

First, how does Michigan fit into the ski picture of North America? The White Book of Ski Areas in the United States and Canada lists four U.S. areas: West, North Central, South and Northeast; two Canadian areas, west and east; and Helicopter/Snowcat Skiing in the United States and Canada.

THE MAPS in this book astound me. There is, apparently, some kind of downhill skiing in every state except Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida and South Carolina; and in every Canadian province.

Obviously we need more winnowing out than that to get a true picture. I had a perfect opportunity to do that during a recent press trip to Boyne County with members of the Midwest Ski Writers Association.

1-of-a-kind traveler
Iris Jones
contributing travel editor

One afternoon I cornered a group of them at the Eagle's Nest, a short-order restaurant and fireside lounge at the top of the Hemlock slope, at Boyne Mountain Resort, Boyne Falls. I learned that Michigan has 800,000 skiers, 650,000 downhill and 150,000 cross country.

There are 50-51 downhill areas, the second largest number of any state in the U.S. I checked that in my White Book: Wisconsin had 47 places listed, Michigan 45, Colorado and California 37 each.

"Where are the best ski hills?" That caused a flurry of indignation among the ski writers in the Eagle's Nest. It depends on the kind of ski experience you are looking for. Powder? Long runs? Volume? Unique conditions?

JIM SILBER of the Charlevoix County Press: "There are three or four ski centers in North America. In the U.S., there is the Midwest; the mountains from New Mexico to the Rockies, which have big hills, high verticals, wide runs.

A skier goes airborne (left) on the slick slopes at Boyne Mountain. Caberfae (above) is known for its short runs among skiing bluebloods, but a new 490-foot hill could change that image.

"The eastern slopes are like the Midwest only they are more vertical. The Far West has heavier snow. If you want powder skiing, go to Utah."

Generally speaking, 60 percent of the skiing is intermediate, 30 percent advanced and 10 percent beginner. Jim also told me that many of the Western skiers are from the Midwest; that they are accustomed to short runs, so even on a long slope they will ski down about 1,000 feet and stop for a while.

I asked the ski writers to give me an insider's view of Michigan ski resorts. The consensus, from the advanced skier's point of view, was: Don't ski the slopes around Detroit unless you have to; Boyne Mountain, Boyne Highlands and Nubs Nob are the premier places for skiing in the Lower Peninsula; the best places in the Upper Peninsula are Indianhead at Wakefield, Marquette Mountain in Marquette, Big Powderhorn and Blackjack at Bessemer.

"Hey guys, you left out a lot of places." Well, said they: Sugar Loaf at Cedar is pretty good, it hasn't done as well as some because its a little too far from Traverse City. Shanty Creek has 350-foot verticals, its sister resort has 375-foot verticals, they are excellent for night skiing, but people go more for the plush resorts than for the advanced skiing.

Caberfae is close to the southern Michigan population areas, has short runs. It hasn't been taken too seriously by "real skiers," but the new 490-foot hill, recently built, may change that.

THE ONLY HILL in the Lower Peninsula rated by the Federation Internationale de Ski is Boyne Mountain, part of the Boyne USA Resorts, at Boyne Falls. There are others in the U.P.

My next stop was at a table where a lone Michigan skier sat, one of those hardy types who has skied every hill in Michigan and most outside of it. Where would he recommend that skiers go in Michigan? He agreed to talk if he could do so anonymously.

"If you are a novice or even an intermediate, don't go to Boyne Mountain, even though it is the best known. For advance skiers it's great; the most difficult run is Hemlock.

"Otherwise, consider Boyne Highlands, which has more variety. It's challenging but good for both intermediates and beginners. Lift tickets are interchangeable between the two Boyne resorts.

"The Homestead at Glen Arbor is a world-class resort and has a unique setting. Sugar Loaf is fun, and the best ski run is Awful Awful." That's the name folks, and about how I feel when I look down a long ski run: Awful, Awful.

"Caberfae is the oldest ski resort in the state, is excellent for short run skiers and has a new 490-foot vertical, the South Peak.

"FAMILIES would love Crystal Mountain, which is run by a family, the Pet Ritz pie family. Cannonsburg is well run but they get the bulk of Chicago group travel, so it's too crowded.

"Nubs Nob has the biggest snowmaking gun in the world and is run by Jim Dilworth, the best snowmaking man in the world."

That's the best I can do for you where-should-I-go skiers. If you have any comments to make, or would like to add to the list, write me a letter. Don't expect to hear from me for a few weeks, however. I am on my way to Whistler Mountain, near Vancouver, British Columbia, which has the longest vertical ski drop in North America, 6,000 feet.

I'll send you a picture from the BOTTOM of the chair lift.

1st cross country lesson

By Iris Jones
special writer

I have just finished my first cross-country ski lesson and I am lying on a couch in Room 127 at Boyne Mountain Resort listening to my hot blood circulate.

We met our instructor Lou Awodey "on the flat beside the duck pond," as instructed. The ducks that normally float the pond in the summer were huddled on a little patch of open water near the resort shops, possibly in the expectation that I would ski right into their cold wet home. I made a resolution not to point the tips of my rented skis in the pond's direction.

Lou was obviously born on cross-country skis, but it is equally obvious that he knows about beginners like me. He was informative but gentle as we learned to A) put on the skis and B) stand up. He showed us how to turn around and then we got into the real thing — skiing step by step toward the patch of green grass that was sure to stop us dead in our tracks.

The snow that had fallen two nights before was thawing and heavy. I watched the duck pond out of the corner of my eye as I went, following in his tracks as recommended, and trying to remember to bend my knees.

My problem was that whenever the skis started going out from under me I stood up, stuck out my arms and locked my knees to keep my balance — exactly what you are not supposed to do — and Lou hadn't told me how to fall yet.

(Rear-end first and don't try to catch yourself with your hands, in case any of you are already on skis and are using this as a primer.)

Micky did very well, in fact he didn't fall until the very last minute of the lesson, just after he had congratulated himself for not doing so. I fell several times and we spent half the lesson trying to get me up.

It is Monday today. Skiers that crowded the slopes Saturday and Sunday are gone and the midweek skiers aren't here yet. The red and blue jackets are still going up the ten chair lifts and down the 17 slopes, and they still stop at the top of Hemlock to eat hamburgers and hot dogs around the roaring fire at the Eagle's Nest. But mostly we've got the resort to ourselves.

As Lou led us to a nearby rise and began to explain how to go down-slope without falling, a new adult ski class began behind us and six adorable little kids started taking lessons nearby. They didn't seem to have any trouble, but then their legs were made of rubber.

These resorts are very popular among families so there are a lot of kids on the slopes. I have to keep my eyes closed riding up the chair lift so I am flabbergasted when some five-year-old yardape swings off the chair and leaps straight downhill, swooping and turning like a veteran.

One of these days I will write a column from up there, but in the meantime it is all I can do to stay upright on cross country skis. And if I fall, I have much less distance to go before I stop.

IN TODAY'S JOB MARKET EMPLOYERS WANT MORE THAN THE SAME OLD B.S.

Every year, over a million new college graduates put on their new blue suits and go job hunting. All of them have degrees. Most of them have hearty handshakes. But very few have what employers want most — practical work experience. That's why there's a nationwide program called Cooperative Education. It allows students to alternate studies at the college of their choice with paid, practical work experience in the career of their choice. So Co-op Education students graduate with more than a degree. They have practical knowledge. And a competitive advantage in today's crowded job market. And that sure beats trying to B.S. your way into a job.

Recycling can bring savings

Q1 take my recyclable materials to the Birmingham Recycling Center. But can large-scale recycling really save money?

A. Despite the current lack of markets for recycled goods, one report compiled in Seattle says "yes."

Seattle's solid waste utility project manager devised what is believed to be the first formula for calculating the actual money saved by recycling the household waste stream.

Her formula showed disposal savings by avoiding or reducing costs in these areas: disposal, transportation, environmental and resource depletion.

At present, Seattle recycles 22 percent or 162,000 tons of its commercial residential waste stream. At $6.50 per ton, Seattle's savings in disposal costs were $1 million last year.

Transportation cost savings (by not transporting it to the landfill), at $7.72 per ton, were $1.25 million.

Besides these primary operating costs, the environmental cost savings must be figured, both present and future. Landfills must be checked and maintained for 20 to 30 years after they are closed, so future liability costs from accidents should be figured into the cost analysis of disposal.

Another environmental cost is that of the unrecovered resources. The Seattle report estimates the cost per ton of the recycled materials at $20-34, or about $3.25 million per year. Unknown environmental costs include the development of future sources of raw materials to replace the materials not recycled.

Finally, there's the "heirloom" cost. This refers to the inability to use the land of a closed landfill site for any purpose for 20 to 30 years or more into the future.

A RECENT survey by the Michigan DNR estimates that disposal fees average $13-15 per ton of solid waste and the overall cost per ton of landfilling when all of the above four elements are figured amounts to at least $50 per ton.

Michigan accumulates 9 1/2 million tons of solid waste annually, and 85 percent is currently dumped in landfills.

This Seattle study clearly shows the benefits of recycling programs, both financially and environmentally. The only criticism of the study was that the figures are too low.

Supporting recycling efforts on an individual and communitywide level appears to be one way to curb rising cost for everyone.

Mike Hale played a big part in Salem's OT win against Canton Tuesday. He scored 10 of his 12 points in the final quarter and overtime period.

Sensational Salem survives Chiefs in OT

By Brad Emons staff writer

In one of the most exciting basketball games ever played at Centennial Educational Park, Plymouth Salem held on to beat neighbor Plymouth Canton, 64-63, thanks to a pair of Bryan Kearis free throws with only three seconds left in overtime.

Underdog Canton, playing at home, fell behind by as many as 11 points in the opening quarter, but gradually chipped away and sent the game into overtime when 6-foot-3 sophomore Brian Paupore drilled a jumper from the corner with only 13 seconds left in regulation time to make it 55-51.

Salem had one final crack to win it in regulation, but the Rocks missed their attempt and time expired as the two teams scrambled underneath the basket for the rebound.

Salem's Mike Hale scored the first basket in three-minute overtime, but Canton's Tyrone Reeves, who played a key role in the stretch drive, answered with a basket of his own to make it 57-51.

Salem's 6-foot-7 center, Rick Taylor, who led all scorers with 25 points, then converted a three-point play with 1:39 left to put the Rocks ahead, 60-57.

BUT REEVES cut the deficit to one, 60-59, with a drive to the hoop. At the 58-second mark, Hale scored again, giving Salem a three-point cushion. Teammate Tony Moore came up with a steal, only to have the darting Reeves make one of his own, scoring a layup with only 30 seconds left to make it a one-point game again.

Kearis was then fouled 10 seconds later, but the crafty 5-foot-8 guard made a critical mistake. His free throw was disallowed when he stepped on the line, a lane violation that nullified a point, giving Canton the ball.

That opened the door for Reeves, who slashed through a pair of Salem defenders, drawing a foul with only eight seconds remaining.

After a Salem timeout, the 5-10 senior calmly sank a pair of free throws, giving Canton their first and only lead of the night, 63-62.

KEARIS THEN charged down the floor and made up for his previous blunder, drawing a foul called on Roger Trice with three seconds remaining.

Kearis, although frozen at the line by a pair of Canton timeouts, hit nothing but net to win it for Salem. (He finished with 10 points, while Hale added 12.)

Canton, then rushed the ball up the floor, but Reeves' desperation shot just inside midcourt stripe fell short, ending the suspense.

"Canton is explosive," said Salem coach Bob Brodie. "I compare them to University of Michigan from the standpoint that they can explode at any time."

"I told our kids after the game that we've been in a lot of close games and I felt we've kept our poise in the close games. That comes with having confidence."

Canton coach Tom Niemi, whose team fell to 6-6 overall and 5-4 in the Western Lakes Conference's Western Division (now tied for first with Farmington Harrison), had nothing but praise for his club.

"I'm proud of the kids," he said. "This could have gone either way. It was a fine high school basketball game. We've come off some illness, but we came ready to play. We've had this kind of effort all year."

Trice, a 6-foot junior, led Canton with 19 points, including 12 in the final quarter, making a few spin-rama moves reminiscent of the Detroit Pistons' Vinnie Johnson.

PAUPORE ADDED 16, showing a fine touch from the outside. Reeves, meanwhile, added 10. Mike Lasota contributed eight off the bench and had a key steal near the end of regulation.

"We had to fight back, but it was a tremendous defensive effort," said Niemi. "I thought we showed poise, patience and we were aggressive on defense."

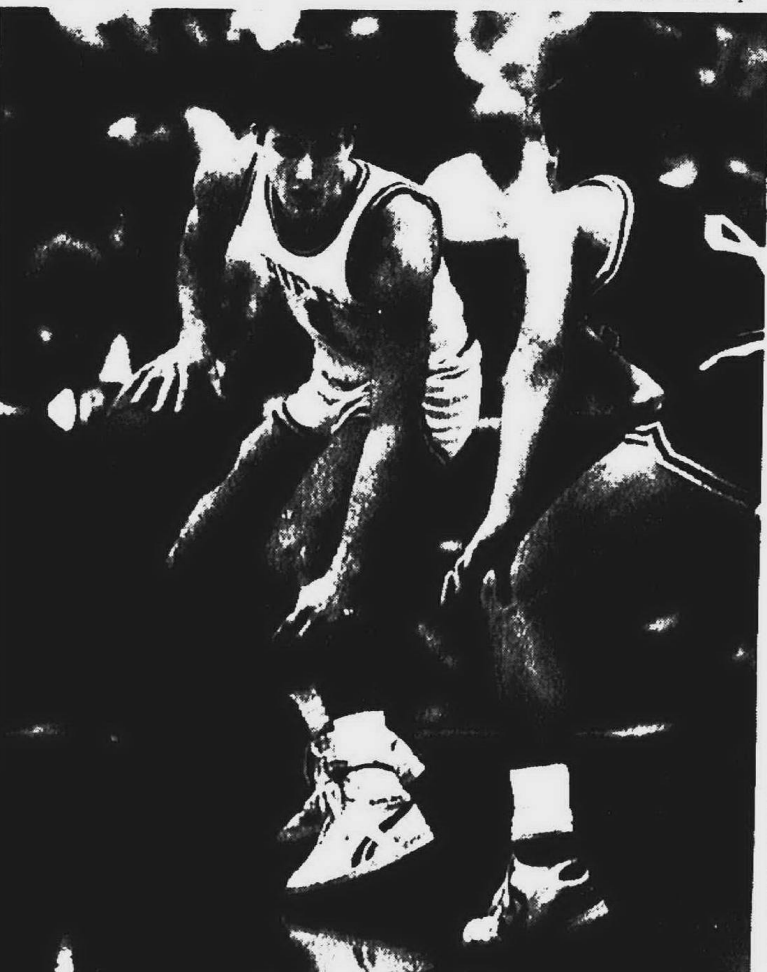

The win was a big one for Salem, now 10-2 overall and 8-1 in Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Conference (one game behind Westland John Glenn).

"I was really concerned about this one and now I'm concerned about going over to Walled Lake Central (on Friday) — that's like lion's den over there," said Brodie. "I hope with this game that we've gained some maturity and we'll learn. Last year we lost games to teams that we should have beaten."

Confronted most of the night by a tenacious full-court press, Salem was able to withstand the Canton's pressure and find its huge front line, led by Taylor, a transfer from East Lansing who seems to have found himself during the past week or so.

"RICK IS GETTING" better with each game," said the Salem coach. "The first two or three games this season, he was coming off some sickness and it took him awhile, but he was here as a freshman and I coached him on the JV. He has shooting ability and now we've allowed him to move out on the perimeter."

While Salem travels Friday to Central, Canton will be hosting Walled Lake Western.

Mother says Mann was sexually harassed during stay at Plymouth Canton

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Barbara Mann, mother of former Plymouth Canton student Rachel Mann, said Tuesday that the recent investigation of the Ann Arbor Pioneer girls cross country program, which ultimately led to the team's forfeiture of the state Class A championship, was the result of ill will toward Pioneer coach Bryan Westfield "among certain parties."

She said that her daughter, who was ruled athletically ineligible by the Ann Arbor school district, was deemed eligible by both Pioneer principal Milo White and assistant superintendent of schools Wiley Brownlee prior to the start of the cross country season.

She also said her daughter was subject to "sexual harassment" while at Canton.

Mann, who had initially refused to speak to the media, decided to release a statement Tuesday afternoon because "there were a lot of things happening behind the scenes and that the people of the Plymouth-Canton community have only heard one side of the story," she said.

Mann cleared the statement with her lawyer, Marian Fapel, before releasing it. The Manns have retained Fapel presumably to challenge the school district's ruling that Rachel Mann was ineligible. Barbara Mann would not comment on the legal issue, and Fapel couldn't be reached for comment.

"RACHEL MANN fled the Plymouth-Canton school district as a result of being subjected to what we believe was sexual harassment and intentional infliction of emotional and intellectual distress from a member of the Plymouth-Canton school district," said Barbara Mann.

Mann would not identify person nor say whether she was speaking about a student, teacher or coach.

George Pryzgodski, Rachel Mann's former coach at Plymouth Canton High School and the only person from the Canton district close to the situation available for comment late Tuesday night, said: "I don't know what she's talking about or who she's talking about." He refused to comment further on the charges until advised by the school's administration.

Mann said that Rachel and her father, Dustin Mann, moved in with friends in the Ann Arbor Pioneer school district last summer while waiting for their Canton home to be sold.

Barbara Mann said that she was told by members of the Ann Arbor school district to register Rachel at Pioneer. Rachel was granted an academic waiver to attend Pioneer, and her name was twice submitted to the school's athletic eligibility list. Both times, Pioneer officials ruled Rachel eligible, she said.

"Dr. Brownlee claimed he was at fault for not ruling Rachel ineligible at the time," Barbara Mann said.

She added that the school investigated Rachel's eligibility twice. Both times Rachel was ruled eligible. "After the two other attempts failed, they came up with that rule about living with only one family member. We believe that Rachel was eligible," she said.

THE MICHIGAN High School Athletic Association confirmed Pioneer's ruling that Rachel Mann was ineligible.

Jack Roberts, executive director of the MHSAA said, "She (Rachel) did not move into the Ann Arbor Pioneer attendance area with persons she had been living with. She had a brief residence with one parent in the home of a friend in the Pioneer district. When they did establish a permanent residence in the Ann Arbor district, it was in the (Ann Arbor) Huron attendance area."

Barbara Mann said the repeated investigations were "an effort by certain parties to hurt Rachel and Bryan Westfield."

"Bryan Westfield would have never run Rachel in a meet if he thought there was any question of her being ineligible," Mann said.

She said that Rachel Mann ran for the Ann Arbor Track Club (which is coached by Westfield) for four weeks during the summer. She said that was the only contact Rachel had with Westfield before cross country season.

"This man (Westfield) does nothing for himself," Barbara Mann said. "Everything he does, he does for the children. He is always for the underdog. He has used his own finances to help underprivileged kids have a chance. To see this kind of man get torn down is sad. He should be praised."

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK ONE YEAR AGO

Tom Niemi wouldn't pass for being a jockey, but the Plymouth Canton basketball coach whipped his towel and prodded his team past rival Plymouth Salem in a battle to the wire Tuesday night, 42-40.

Salem missed sending the game into overtime, failing to capitalize on three consecutive shots in the frantic final seconds.

Canton had to rally for the victory after watching a nine-point advantage midway through the final quarter.

Athletic Association in regards to that."

To vault or not to vault is becoming a hot topic of debate throughout Michigan's high school track and field community.

Officially, five leagues have canceled the pole vault event: the Catholic League, the Detroit Public School League, the Macomb-Oakland Athletic Conference, the Southeastern Michigan Athletic Association and the Central Michigan League. That involves approximately 100 teams according to William Bupp, associate director of the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

Unofficially, several other leagues and individual teams are considering cancelling the event. The Western Lakes Activities Association is one. Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton will no longer compete in the pole vault event. Teams forfeiting the event will lose nine points in dual meets and up to 30 points in the league meet.

As many as five other WLAAs schools, including Walled Lake Western, Walled Lake Central and Westland John Glenn, are considering dropping the event.

The reason: operating a pole vault team is both expensive and a safety risk.

RECENTLY, THE MHSAA has mandated that schools, as a safety precaution, extend the length of their pole vault pits both in front and in back. This, according to several area school officials, would cost anywhere from $3,500 to $5,000. To construct a brand new pit would cost $5,000 to $8,500. The cost of fiberglass poles has also increased. A new pole can cost from $200 to $300.

This is the third time since 1979 that the MHSAA, in conjunction with the national federation of high school athletics, has ordered improvements in pole vault facilities across the state.

"The event has simply outpriced itself," said Salem track coach Gary Balconi. "It was a very difficult decision for us to make. We have had an excellent tradition at Salem. We've had some outstanding vaulters. It's just hard to justify spending that kind of money on one event. We have to look at it in the long term, and we decided we would not compete anymore."

John Fundukian, athletic director of the Walled Lake schools, will recommend to his district that the event be cancelled.

"Our district's position has not been determined, but my personal position is that the event has reached a point where it is irresponsible to continue it. I have written the Michigan High School

FUNDUKIAN SAID the Western Lakes conference will continue to sponsor the event, and it is up to the individual schools to decide whether to field a pole vault team.

"The league has already discussed this. Their position is consistent with all other decisions it has made. They will eliminate the event from the league if the event is eliminated by the Michigan High School Athletic Association."

But the state association isn't likely to eliminate the event.

"Our representative council, on Nov. 5, went on record saying they will continue the pole vault event in Michigan," said Bupp. "I can't imagine any reason for them to discontinue it."

Nor can Farmington Public Schools AD Ron Holland. Farmington, Farmington Harrison and North Farmington will compete in the pole vault event.

"It's costly if you haven't kept your pits up to code," Holland said. "We're going to go with it (pole vault). We're basically up to code. We will have to add the extensions in the front. We have very good people at the three schools who have worked very hard to keep those pits in shape."

Holland said he roughly estimates a $700 expense at each school to comply with the state's mandate.

THE THREE Livonia schools have yet to decide the issue. Sources at both Stevenson and Churchill indicated that it was likely the three schools would continue sponsoring a pole vaulting program.

The Western Lakes athletic directors met yesterday, presumably to discuss the pole vault issue.

The Catholic League's decision to cancel the pole vault event came almost immediately after the MHSAA mandate.

"Our problem is, with a few exceptions, we don't own our own tracks," said league director Walt Bazylewicz. "We rely on public school facilities. The risk of liability is too much. If we use a facility that is not up to code, we are just as liable as they would be. It really complicates things for us."

SAFETY IS the key to the entire issue. To guard against risk of injury, the MHSAA keeps upgrading the facilities. To guard against product liability, manufacturers of poles and vaulting apparatus have upgraded their products and thus their prices.

"Physically, of all the events, it's far and away the most dangerous," Salem's Balconi said.

Said Fundukian: "You have to be concerned with the progression of the athlete. The junior highs have very few pole vault programs, if any. You are introducing a youngster to the event as a ninth grader. There is a big difference between a 105-pound seventh grader and a ninth grader who can bench-press 220 pounds.

"The real issues here are of safety and expense. You have to ask yourself, as an educator, where else do you spend $8,000-$9,000 on three or four kids? And you have to ask, is the event inherently safe? I can't say that it is."

Marian wins CEP crown

Birmingham Marian, ranked No. 2 in the state by the Michigan High School Volleyball Coaches Association, won its fourth tournament of the season Saturday and ran its win streak to 31 straight.

The Mustangs knocked off Garden City, 15-7, 15-12, to win the third annual Plymouth Invitational Volleyball Tournament at Salem and Canton high schools.

Marian didn't yield a game throughout the tourney. The Mustangs dusted Brighton in the semifinals, 15-4, 15-6. They whipped a solid Walled Lake Western team in the quarterfinals 15-9, 15-9, and they were 8-0 in pool play.

In the other semifinal match, Garden City beat Saline 15-12, 15-6.

Plymouth Salem, who escaped pool play with a 5-3 record, was ousted by Brighton in the quarterfinals, 15-6, 15-7.

Garden City's Nikki Stubbs was named the tournament's most valuable player. She slammed 53 spikes with 34 aces. GC's Mary Hebert and Salem's Denice Tackett were named to the all-tournament team.

Other area teams competing were Canton (0-8 in pool), Redford Union (0-8) and Livonia Franklin (3-5).

PLYMOUTH SALEM won a three-set thriller against Western Lakes foe Farmington Monday, 11-15, 18-16, 15-7.

The Rocks trailed 14-9 in game two.

"I told them they had better start moving their feet or this would be it," Salem coach Betty Smith said. "We came back like a totally different team."

Jessica Handley (16 serves with 10 aces), Denice Tackett (10 of 11 serves and six kill spikes), Sarah Dupret (nine kill spikes) and Aimee Hayden (eight of 10 serves) were the standouts for Salem.

The Rocks are 4-6 on the season.

Hot shots

The Plymouth Elks Lodge No. 1780 will be represented by six sharpshooters at the district round of the annual Elks Hoop Shoot contest Jan. 31 at Farmington High School.

Michael Horning and Alex Roney of Northville, Daniel Wroblewski and David Donaldson of Canton, and Lana Boroditsch and Susie Atchinson of Plymouth qualified for the district round by winning their respective age divisions at the local competition Jan. 10 at Plymouth Salem.

More than 3 million youths from across the country participated in the Hoop Shoot contest last year.

The state competition will take place in February, with regional and national tournaments following in March and April.

A Junior A showdown between Plymouth's Hennessey Engineers and Detroit Compuware turned ugly last Friday night. Twelve players were ejected for fighting.

CC takes title at Mount Clemens

Both the Redford Catholic Central and Garden City wrestling teams proved again over the weekend to be tournament tough.

CC traveled Saturday to the Mount Clemens Invitational and finished first against a strong 17-team field, scoring 159 points, seven better than second-place Hazel Park. It was the Shamrocks' seventh tournament title in eight tries this season.

Davison was third with 105 1/2 and Plymouth Salem was sixth with 93.

Meanwhile, Saturday at the eight-team Royal Oak Invitational, another Observerland team, Garden City, walked off with its fourth tourney crown of the year. The Cougars edged Clarkston in the battle for first, 150 1/2-148 1/2.

Repeating their efforts at the Catholic Central Invitational two weeks ago, Toby Heaton (heavyweight), Mitch Quint (138 pounds) and Bob Yeager (198) all won on pins to claim individual titles at Mount Clemens.

THE SHAMROCKS also gained a pair of seconds, one by Brendan Rock (132) and the other by Matt Helm (126). Salem's Dennis Dameron avenged an earlier loss to Helm this season, scoring a 4-1 overtime win in the finals.

CC's Jay Helm (112) took a third and teammate Chris Lemanski (155) was fifth to round out the Shamrocks' scoring.

Garden City's two-point victory was spearheaded by first-place finishers John Fishback (98), Tim Howell (167) and Don Giese (198).

Fishback, who recorded three pins on the day, ran his personal record to 20-10 overall and 14-2 in the 98-pound division by taking down Clarkston's Dave Wall in 1:48.

Howell, a senior, decided on Kimball's Steve Yenshaw, 6-3, to win the 167-pound crown and raise his season record to 28-2-1.

Giese, the Cougars' top wrestler recordwise, ran his mark to 32-1 with a 14-6 victory over Kimball's Dave Calo in the 198 final.

Finishing second for the Cougars was Bob Hancock (112), Kurt Benz (119) and Scott Lawson (185).

OTHER GC wrestlers scoring points included third-place finisher Jeff Stop (145), along with fourth-place finishers Dave Ferracciolo (126) and Tony Vella (155).

Following Garden City and Clarkston in the team standings were: Auburn Heights Avondale (129 1/2), Kimball (128 1/2), Flint Northwestern (87), Oak Park (65), Troy Athens (59 1/2) and Grosse Pointe South (30 1/2).

Chiefs eye division title

The Plymouth Canton wrestling team is quietly having itself a solid season.

You don't hear much about them, but the Chiefs are 5-2 and a victory at Northville Thursday, Feb. 5, will give them the Western Division championship in the Western Lakes.

Last Saturday, the Chiefs placed fifth at the 15-team Bloomfield Hills Andover Invitational. Harper Woods Notre Dame won the tourney.

Tony Callaway won the heavy-weight division in convincing style. He pinned all three of his opponents in a combined 5:20. He was named the tournament's fastest pin champion.

Matt Keeler was runner-up at 105 for Canton. Tom Flores (98) and Jim Crews (98) placed third.

Violence on ice

Junior A brawl being issue closer to home

commentary

WHEN MAYOR Raymond Flynn of Boston recently put forth a resolution that would jail perpetrators of sports violence in his city, the idea was in his class.

After all, cry the hockey purists in unison, who is a pen-pushing mayor to dictate the flow of a good hockey game? And we know what makes a good hockey game, don't we?

Why it's the swift skating, the adroit passing, the sniper-like shooting and the hard body checking, of course.

But, ah, let's not forget why we really like the sport as some people who sell the game would have us believe.

We leap out of our seats in excitement when two players throw off the gloves and duke it out. And, deep down, we jump for joy when we see a player give another "a piece of the lumber."

Who cares that it might be a cross check to the back of the head or spear to the stomach. We like it, dammit. Even Eddie Howe once said, "Hockey's a man's game."

Maybe His Honor is on to something.

BECAUSE, ONCE again, the goonery of hockey overstepped the boundaries of acceptable human behavior, let alone sportsmanship, in the civilized world.

And it's apparent that it's infecting all levels of the game. Even international hockey, once a bastion of fair play, has been degenerating. A recent bench-clearing bout between Canada and the Soviet Union in the World Junior Championships resulted in the arena lights being turned off in a feeble attempt to restore order.

The incident, in which both Canada and the USSR were expelled from the tournament, has left the game with a black eye that all the ice bags in the world won't help.

That was Czechoslovakia. This is here.

You just had to stick a nose inside the Plymouth Cultural Center Friday for a North American Junior Hockey League game between Compuware and the Hennessey Engineers.

There were more than 200 penalty minutes handed out and 12 players kicked out with game misconducts. Police were called, players were mauled, and it was a pretty sad affair for all.

FOR THOSE who don't know, the NAJHL circuit is for players ages 16-19. It allows players seeking college hockey scholarships to showcase their talents.

On this night, though, the only talent shown was the ability to spear with a stick. Which is a great skill to have if you're a potential whaler in search of Moby Dick.

To go along with the stick work, there was fighting, pushing, pulling and shoving. The game, certainly no wonder, took more than three hours to play.

Granted, it probably wasn't the usual NAJHL game. More than likely, it was just an aberration.

But it provided a great example for those involved in hockey in general, who are indifferent to its violence.

PLYMOUTH POLICE arrived between periods to investigate a stick-throwing incident involving Compuware assistant coach Gord Young and Engineer coach A.J. Baker. They were told by NAJHL commissioner Bill Hasler that it was just a regular Junior A game.

In fact, he didn't seem too upset about: A) the police having been called; B) a player having to be helped from the ice after being butt-ended; C) the number of expelled players equaling the number playing.

"These players don't hate each other," said Hasler, who is also Compuware's general manager. "They'll probably get together after the game. That's where you guys go off all wrong."

So, that's it. Finally, the violence in hockey makes sense.

It might not make for good hockey, but at least it will make for a good beer commercial.

The announcer: "You've just high sticked and cross-checked your best friend en route to victory. He smiles at you, minus the front teeth you've just knocked out. And you shake with the hand you just broke on his head."

"Here's to good friends."

LOGICAL ANSWERS are not offered from the coaches either. They usually blame the other team, the referees, the caffeine in pop or the temperature of the arena.

Never once do they consider themselves responsible for the behavior of their own players.

In fact, the only one to put Friday night's events into perspective was the mother of a player who was on the receiving end of a butt-end. She looked somewhat shaken after her son was helped off the ice.

"You can't get away with that out in the real world," she said. "You would be arrested. Why does this have to happen?"

Because the thinking is that hockey has its own world with its own rules and its own people to answer to. The law of the ice say it's OK to fight, and if necessary, to use a stick as a weapon.

That's the way it's been, and that's the way it will be. At least until something is done.

Compuware puts damper on Engineers' hopes

Detroit Compuware re-established its stronghold on the top rung of the North American Junior Hockey League last weekend.

After beating the Plymouth-based Hennessey Engineers 5-1 in a fight-filled game Friday night at the Plymouth Cultural Center, Compuware came home to Oak Park and beat the Engineers 6-2 on Sunday.

It was a galling eight-point swing for the Engineers, who had trailed Compuware by five points entering the two-game series. Instead of pulling within one, the Engineers find themselves behind nine points.

Sunday's game was frustrating for both teams. Some 15 scouts were on hand to watch the contest. Among those represented at the Compuware Arena were Michigan State, Ferris State, Army, members of the U.S. Olympic Committee and the Detroit Red Wings. What those scouts saw, though, were two teams watered down because of injuries and suspensions.

TWELVE PLAYERS, six on each side, were suspended for fighting during the Friday night war. The Engineers lost three other players during Sunday's game, two to injury and one was ejected.

Among the missing were Compuware's leading scorer Mike Boback, three of the Engineers' top guns (Larry Pilut, Leif Gustafson and Bryan Krygier) and its top two defensemen (Tom Madden and Dan Frantti).

"In no way am I using that as an excuse," Engineers coach A.J. Baker said. "If we could have capitalized on our many power-play chances both nights, it might have been a different story. I'm not saying we would have beat them, but we would have made it close and, who knows, we might have been able to scratch out a tie or maybe a win."

COMPUWARE PEPPERED goalie Dave Church with a four-goal barrage in the second period Sunday to break open a 1-1 contest. The short-staffed Engineers, who had just 10 players on the bench in the third period, couldn't mount much of an attack in the final period.

Bob Mlynarek and Jeff Smith scored the two Engineer goals.

Mlynarek has scored 12 goals in 15 games since coming to the Engineers from the St. Clair Shores Junior B team.

Compuware is now 20-5-4 in the league. The Engineers, 15-12-5, face a must-win situation Friday night. They host the second-place Falcons at the Cultural Center. Game time is 8:20 p.m.

Anglers adjusting to new guidelines

IMAGINE HAVG a 20-day head start on lleye, northern pike, saug and muskie fishing in the ver peninsula. Better yet, imag having the opportunity to catch more pink Atlantic salmon dai in addition to the regular dailymit of five. Sound too good to beuse? Well it's not.

Those are two odree major rule changes in theMichigan Department of Natur Resources' 1987 fishing licensuide which will be available adNR offices beginning in Februua.

The third major cbge is an increase in the legal nimum size limit for muskellun. The minimum size was raisecom 38 to 40 inches on Lake St. Gr and from 30 to 36 inches on Chagon Lake in Iron County.

The opening dayor walleye, muskie, northern pi and sauger fishing in the lowermsinsula has been pushed up to ril 25. This change will have tbiggest impact on walleye firmen, who now can go after eir favorite game fish at the end the spawning runs while largnumbers of fish are still in the rirs.

"WE'VE BEEN reasing our stocking of walleye'er the past few years and have lit up quite a population," said DoJester. Program Service Mager of the DNR's Fisheries Deptment. "The season will now be right after the fish have spawnbut are still in the rivers.

"The added fising activity shouldn't interfere w the natural spawning. Since weve a larger population we shou be able to stand a larger harver."

The opportunity take an additional five pink Atntic salmon was also brought abt by an increase in the populatn of the fish.

The old rule, wth refers to brook, brown, rainw and lake trout, splake, co, chinook, kokanee and pink Atntic salmon, states that fishermn may take a daily limit of five fi in any combination. (Specific strictions on various lakes and butaries are detailed in the Migam Fishing Guide.) The new r begins the same but adds that hermen may now take an additional five pink Atlantic salmon on b of the daily limit of five in combination.

"THERE HAS bn almost a population explosioof pink Atlantic salmon in Lake perior," said Jester. "Everywherpink salmon are found it's almosta boom-and-bust type of populati."

Reductions in thumbers and average size of muse has forced the DNR to increashe legal size limit. (Ontario has so raised the minimum size limion Lake St. Clair to correspond th the Michigan DNR's rule chan).

This increase shd allow the fishery more favorable reproduction and in the longrun provide larger trophy fish.

"We don't have an ute problem right now but we dn't want to wait until we did have problem to do something about it said Jester. "With this change we hoping the fish will increase in th size and population, which w make for better fishing in the fare."

Rocks garner 1st win

The Plymouth Salem gymnastics team won its first meet of the season Monday, topping Farmington Harrison 125.7-100.55.

Salem's Jackie Huff was the meet's top scorer, earning a season-high 32.0 all-around score. She placed second vault (8.5), third on uneven parallel bars (7.05), tied for second with teammate Becky Talbot on balance beam (7.7) and second on floor exercise (8.75).

Talbot, who scored 31.4 all-around, won floor with an 8.85. She placed third on vault (8.15).

Dana Holda won the vault with an impressive 8.7 score. She was second on bars (7.5). Amy Pastori, who scored 29.65 all-around, placed third on both beam (7.2) and floor (8.2). Jenny Breed scored an 8.0 on floor.

For the Hawks, Tracey Solomon won bars with a 7.8.

The Rocks, 1-2 on the season, will host Western Lakes leaders North Farmington Monday.

PLYMOUTH CANTON and Farmington, two

steadily improving teams, met Monday and each posted season-best team scores.

Canton won the meet 128.4-117.05.

Canton's Darcy Gignac had her best performance of the season scoring 33.65 all-around. She placed first on bars (8.4), second on vault (8.65), beam (8.3) and floor (8.3).

Mary Jo Charron, 31.9 all-around, placed third on vault (8.5), third on bars (7.7), third on beam (7.8) and tied for third on floor (7.9) with Maureen McLean and Farmington's Amy Frontier.

Sharon Moran won beam for Canton with an 8.5. Brenda Perry won floor with an 8.5. Jackie Daly and Frontier led the Falcons (3-4).

Livonia to host world-class lifters

By Brad Emons
staff writer

As meet director, Bud Charniga has a heavy assignment the weekend of May 2-3.

Through his efforts, Eddie Edgar Sports Arena in Livonia will be the site of the 1987 U.S. Pan American Games Weightlifting Trials, which will be held in conjunction with the U.S. Weightlifting Federation's national championships.

It will be the first weightlifting tournament ever held at Edgar, which has hosted such events as hockey, figure skating, boxing, wrestling, ethnic festivals, arts and crafts shows, and Spree concerts.

Former Olympic, Pan American and U.S. National team members will compete in 10 different weight classes, ranging from 52 kilograms (under 114½ pounds) to 110 kilograms (242 pounds and up). They will compete in two different weightlifting disciplines, the clean and jerk and snatch.

"To be honest, we got this meet almost by accident," said Charniga, former national weightlifting competitor. "The meet was originally awarded to Buffalo (N.Y.), but I found out at our last (federation) meeting that they had dropped out, so I jumped at the opportunity."

THE MEET will decide the roster for the U.S. Weightlifting Team for two events: the 10th Pan Am Games, Aug. 7-23 in Indianapolis, and the 1987 U.S. Olympic Sports Festival, July 15-26 in Raleigh-Durham, N.C. In addition, the National Championships will serve as a qualifying event for the 1987 International Weightlifting Federation Championships.

Charniga estimates 60 weightlifters will compete in the two-day event. The Holiday in Livonia will serve as meet headquarters.

The event also ties in with Charniga's mail-order business, Dynamic Fitness Equipment, which he runs out of his home.

"I sell Eliko barbell equipment which is made in Sweden," Charniga said. "Eliko is used at all the major weightlifting events — the Olympics, the World Championships and the Pan Am Games. That was part of the reason why I made a pitch to host it here. But it's just not the exposure. It's something I've always wanted to do."

CHARNIGA SAID the cost of renting Edgar Arena is $1,000, a fee he hopes to offset by selling tickets.

But there are several other projects the Livonia must complete before the competition starts.

"We're looking for a lumber company to donate wood," he said. "We need sponsors. We also have to have a scoreboard."

Those interested in donating their time or money can call Charniga, 425-2862.

Salem wins

Looks like the Plymouth Salem swim team is ready for Livonia Stevenson.

The Rocks, who face Stevenson Thursday for the Lakes Division championship, knocked off state-ranked Ann Arbor Huron Tuesday, 100-72.

Phil Bocketti won both the 200-yard freestyle (1:54.5) and the 100 free (52.5) to pace the Rocks. Kevin Tunich won diving (190.55) and Tom Johnson won the 100 butterfly (1:02.0).

The Rocks also placed second in 10 of the 13 events.

Salem is 6-1.

PLYMOUTH CANTON routed Walled Lake Western last Thursday, 102-57, to raise its record to 3-5.

Jim Hartnett won both the 200 free (2:06.6) and the 100 free (58.10). Scott Swartzwelder won the 200 individual medley (2:19.5), Justin LaBond the 50 free (25.48), Keith Corley the diving (179.6), Andy Lang the 500 free (5:39.7), Jim Riemenschneider the 100 backstroke (1:04.8) and Scott LaPointe the 100 breaststroke (1:16.7).

Don Kliest, LaPointe, Steve Geddes and LaBond won the 200 medley relay (1:58.0). LaBond, Lang, Hartnett and Mitch Timberlake won the 400 free relay (3:55.7).

Lady Ocelots defeat Alpena, move to conference top spot

First-year guard Debbie Georgevich tallied a team-high 16 points Saturday as the Schoolcraft College women's basketball team moved into a three-way tie for first place in the Eastern Conference with a 70-52 win at Alpena Community College.

The Lady Ocelots, 12-6 overall, are deadlocked for first with Oakland CC and Highland Park CC, all with 6-2 records.

Georgevich, a Center Line native, shared game-high point honors with Alpena's Stacey Medema.

Freshman center Sharon Miller (Melvindale) also played a fine all-around game for Schoolcraft, scoring 15 points to go along with nine rebounds and two blocked shots. Lori Abbas, a sophomore guard from Dearborn Fordson, added 13 points and five steals, while sophomore forward Sue Lubbe (Dearborn Divine Child) added 10 points.

The Lady Ocelots return to action Friday at home against Henry Ford CC. Game time is 6 p.m.

ALPENA 96, S'CRAFT MEN 91: Foul trouble hurt the Schoolcraft College men's basketball team Saturday as it fell to host Alpena in Eastern Conference action.

Starters Derrick Kearney (Detroit Kettering), Les English (Detroit St. Hedwig) and Phil Weiss (Howell) were all saddled on the bench with three fouls during the first half, watching the host team sink 17 free throws.

The Ocelots battled back from a 52-37 halftime deficit to pull within three, 94-91, in the final stages, but never got closer.

"We played hard, particularly in the second half," said SC first-year coach Bob Wetzel, whose team fell to 4-5 in conference play and 7-12 overall. "We just got too far behind to catch up all the way."

Despite the loss, sophomore guard Desmond Steele (Detroit Benedictine) scored 22 points and lived up to his name, recording six steals.

English contributed 21 points, a team-high nine rebounds and three blocked shots. Kearney and Zolite Stevens added 19 and 18 points, respectively.

The Schoolcraft men return to action at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Henry Ford.

Lark really is extra-special

Your traveling taster visits area eateries and rates them on a 100-point scale. Up to 30 points are awarded for ambiance, which includes general atmosphere and service; 55 points for food, and 15 points for price/value rating. A total count of 59 points or less indicates a restaurant is not recommended; 60-74 points signify from passing to good, 75-89 points designate very good with some extraordinary features and 90-100 points show that a very special dining experience awaits you.

THE LARK, 6430 Farmington Road, West Bloomfield (661-4466), describes itself as "a country inn," and the decor and standards of hospitality and service support this intention. The dining room has a rustic appearance, with attractive knickknacks and paintings, and the surroundings and staff combine to help you feel elegantly comfortable. The crisp, clean booths and tables — with white linens and very attractive place settings and service pieces — give a sense of formality in an otherwise informal setting. Tables are far enough apart so that you can enjoy your privacy. Ventilation is good, and the only complaint we had was that the dining room became too warm as the evening progressed. Dining is an experience here, and the three hours it consumes — while you consume — is very pleasant. Our reservation (a must here) was graciously and promptly honored. General Atmosphere — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 14.

Professional service — from everyone in the restaurant — is one of the reasons that the experience of dining here is so outstanding. Careful and regular attention to our needs, whether for water or whatever, added immeasurably to our enjoyment. The waiter was completely familiar with the menu, the methods of preparation and the ingredients in each dish. He truly gave us the feeling that he was there to "serve" us. As one would wish, dirty dishes and silverware are removed and replaced immediately. Each gracious touch, including the final chocolates at the end of the meal, adds to the sense of being a "guest at the inn." Service — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 15.

Dinner begins with a selection of cold appetizers, of which you can sample one or all. The duck curry, my personal favorite, was superb. There was enough curry to flavor the dish distinctly, but not so much that your taste buds were deadened. The oysters on the half shell were firm and fresh, and the snow crab also were delicious, very meaty and firm. The venison pate, served with cassis sauce, was light and good, although it tasted more like beef than game. Finally, the refreshing Barcelona salad with rice and dijon

St. Dunstan's spoofs the '60s, '70s and '80s

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

EVERY 10 YEARS or so, for the last 20 years, St. Dunstan's Guild of Cranbrook has been spoofing American life. There were musical comedy revues — each called "Anxieties" — in 1966, 1976 and now, in 1987.

Bill Everson of Birmingham, who has written for and performed in all three productions, admits that the show coming up in '87, rather than '86, is a year late. "Maybe that's one of the anxieties of the age," he said.

Several other members of St. D's have been involved in all three editions of "Anxieties," Everson pointed out. Isabel Himelhoch of Birmingham is musical director of all three. Chuck Campbell of Birmingham, who is basically a writer, is assistant directing this show and performed in the previous two.

Betsy Rote Todd of Birmingham performed in the first two and is a major writer for this one, as well as overall artistic director. Dean Warner-Hetenyi, who was involved in the 1966 and 1976 productions, writing and acting, has become a non-resident member, living in Florida.

For the new show, "She has submitted a spoof on snob dining out. We call it 'Ambience,'" Everson said. Another performer in all three revues is Phil Savage of Birmingham.

PUTTING THE shows together requires the talents not only of these longtime members but also of newer ones.

"We've got some new blood this new blood in the form of Gary Walker of Birmingham and Joe Dabbs of Bloomfield Hills," he said.

Everson, who joined St. Dunstan's back in 1959, said the cast of "Anxieties '80s" includes "young, old and in-between."

The show will be given at 9 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays, Feb. 6-7 and 13-14, at the St. Dunstan's Guild Playhouse at Cranbrook on Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills.

Reservations may be made by calling 644-0527 anytime.

Everson prepared an outline of the upcoming show, went to the St. Dunstan's board with it and was told to develop the script.

"The writing group has been on this for about a year and a half," he said. The show was previewed for the board six months ago, when songs and skits were presented.

Original music for the show is by Isabel Himelhoch and Betsy Rote-

Todd. The show will feature 15 songs, and "I hope to see them to music!" Other St. Dunstan's members also worked on songs.

THE SHOW is comprised of skits, and song/dance.

"Some are backouts and quickies, some minilaylets, satirizing or spoofing outgeneration," Everson said.

St. D's spoofs '60s, '70s, '80s

Contrasting the subjects spoofed in '66, '76 and '87 gives a feeling for many changes that have occurred in American society over the last two decades. In 1967, for example, several numbers deal with yuppies.

Going back over the playbills for the previous two shows, Everson noted, "In 1976, it was more like hippies," and in the earlier show, "The Peace Corps-type dedicated youth" was satirized.

On political issues, in 1987 "Anxieties" views international politics. There's a Ballet Russe Pas de Deux American, between Reagan and Gorbachev. In 1972, it was domestic politics, with a number called "Politickin' Rock."

"In 1966, the numbers dealt with LBJ — Johnson's Great Society. It was upbeat. How everything would be wonderful," he said.

Music in the current show includes a song, "Birmingham, Birmingham," similar to a Liza Minelli approach to "New York, New York."

"It's having fun with chic shopping," Everson said.

In 1976, there was a skit about frustrated songwriters trying to write songs associated with Detroit that would have the same grab as "I Left My Heart in San Francisco" or "Chicago," he said.

ON THE SOCIAL scene, this year's show has spoofs on the mingling singles-bar scene, the health club and dining out. In 1976, it was mostly the at-home entertaining scene, and in 1966, the monster cocktail party.

"Love and the eternal triangle is in all three shows," Everson said. As for sex, "We're far more direct today with references to sex than in 1976," and there was even less in the first show.

"In 1966 it was cute jokes, 1976 was a tongue-in-cheek, doctor's sex lecture, and in 1987, Dr. Ruth is telling it like it is," he declared.

Everson said that in 1987, there's more about business, work and career. "In 1966, we hardly covered it. It was more the home, family and social scene."

The current references to business are reflective of women working, he said.

Looking at the media side, TV talk shows and monologues about overachievers are spoofed in the new show. A TV talk show also was the subject of comedy in 1976, but going back to 1966, a newspaper advice column and radio disc jockeys were the topic of humor.

Several of the St. Dunstan's members working on the show have ties to the advertising industry.

Everson is with D'Arcy, Masius, Benton and Bowles in Bloomfield Hills, where he started as a writer and now is in account management. Chuck Campbell is with McCann-Erickson and Joe Dabbs is in advertising, as it relates to cable television. Gary Walker is an attorney who used to be an ad man.

SONGS IN the show give a hint of the entertainment that's in store. "Anxieties" opens and closes with a song called "Anxiety Blues." A chorale sings, "Thank, God, It's Friday." There's a song and dance number in a singles bar, "You Gotta Have Everything." Love songs include "Have We Met?" and "Did He Notice Me?"

"Birmingham, Birmingham" is a solo number sung by Dianne Ryding of Bloomfield Hills. A big gospel number in the show is "No Bad News," written by Barbara Brown, a member of St. Dunstan's board, who was not on the writing committee.

The show has a revolving set, to keep it fast-moving. So far, the set hasn't been revolving the way it should. One more anxiety — to be taken care of by opening night.

mustard balanced the other tastes nicely. The flat, buttered bread was flaky and inviting. The drinks were extremely generous.

As part of the dinner price, a choice of hot hors d'oeuvres follows the cold appetizers. The soup, cream of chanterelle mushroom, was sweet and delicious, but it was too strongly flavored with a salty beef stock. The pasta had mushrooms, pine nuts and Stilton cheese. At first, this dish seemed too mild — almost without flavor. But gradually, the flavor of the pine nuts became more and more evident, giving the pasta an unusual and quite enjoyable taste.

The sorbet, served before the entree, had crystallized and become too icy, perhaps indicating that it was not freshly made. Taken as a

Your traveling taster visits area eateries and rates them on a 100-point scale. Up to 30 points are awarded for ambiance, which includes general atmosphere and service; 35 points for food, and 15 points for price/value rating. whole, however, the dishes served before the entree were diverse enough to whet the appetite without dulling it. Before the Entree — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 15.

The veal chop with wild grape and honey sauce ($39) provided our only real disappointment of the meal. The veal chop was both overcooked and tough. In addition, the sauce was so subtle that we could not taste the grape flavor. Squab with green peppercorn sauce ($45), one of the evening's specials, was served medium rare as promised, but we could not detect any hint of the green peppercorn taste in the sauce. Finally, the rack of lamb Genghis Khan ($39.50) was cooked exactly as ordered and was the best of our entrees. One nice touch was that our waiter asked how many lamb chops we would like served in the portion. Of special note were the outstanding garnishes — glazed carrots, potatoes au gratin and Chinese pea pods.

A choice of dinner salads is served after the entrees, and both the hearts of palm salad and the romaine lettuce salad were unusual and refreshing. The salads, too, are attractive in their appearance as well as their tastes. Entree, Vegetables and Garnishes — 30 points maximum. Points awarded — 25.

winner. In particular, the raspberry cheesecake was very light and not overly cheesy. The lemon charlotte with lady fingers was tart and sweet and also not too heavy. A chocolate cup with chocolate mousse filling and a chocolate truffle completed the offerings and served to satisfy any possible craving for chocolate. Dessert — 10 points maximum. Points awarded — 10.

Any dinner for two that costs over $125 including tip must be exceptional to be considered a "value." Certainly, the ambiance, professional service and quantity, variety and general quality of the food was all outstanding with the few exceptions noted above. With this in mind, the restaurant is expensive but, in our opinion, worth the price for a three-hour evening dining event. Price/Value — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 14.

A Counting for Taste — 100 points maximum. Total points awarded: 98. The Lark is not the place to choose for a light, quick meal. However, it is just wonderful if you are planning an extra-special night out or want to celebrate a happy occasion. You can expect to receive — and pay for — the luxury of top service and food, and you should not be disappointed.

Chefs' special

Each of the eight team members of Michigan's 1988 Culinary Olympic Team, including team manager Milos Cihelka, will prepare a course for a special eight-course dinner to be served Sunday, Feb. 1, at the Golden Mushroom in Southfield. With accompanying wines, the meal is priced at $100 per person. The event is a fund-raiser for the World Culinary Olympics, to be held in Frankfurt, Germany, in 1988. For reservations, contact the Golden Mushroom at 559-4230.

Cihelka, chef at the Golden Mushroom, recently was awarded first place honors in the Professional Division of the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular. His prize is a round-trip ticket to Japan, to compete with the world's best carvers in February. His winning entry, created from a 440-pound block of ice, was of two mallard ducks rising from a marsh.

For the finale, a dessert cart filled with a variety of choices tempts you to eat just a little bit more. You can select some of everything or lots of anything at a cost of $6.50 per person. Each of the desserts was a

Art show goer shares secret

By Ellen E. Mason
special writer

"Van Gogh in Saint-Remy and Auvers" has attracted about 5,000 people a day since the exhibit opened to rave reviews at New York City's Metropolitan Museum of Art.

To date, more than 350,000 people have crowded into the Metropolitan to view the paintings of van Gogh's turbulent and productive last 15 months—a period which encompasses his voluntary commitment to the asylum at Saint-Remy in May 1889 to his suicide in the wheat fields of Auvers, France, in July 1890.

Museum officials expect crowds to swell each day as the show approaches its closing date of March 22.

What the museum hasn't advertised, and what it doesn't tell you unless you persist, is that every Monday, 600 or so people view the show "privately" at leisure and without massive numbers of other people jostling for prime positions in front of favored canvases.

You don't have to be a VIP or know anyone in particular to get in. Simply reserve a spot for any Monday (except Feb. 16). The museum is usually closed on Mondays. But during the van Gogh exhibition, it is open 1-3 p.m. for anyone with a reservation. Tickets are $15, instead of the usual $4.50 admittance fee for Tuesday through Sunday.

RESERVATIONS may be made by telephone (212-570-3711) or by writing to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Admissions Department, 5th Ave. at 82nd St., New York, NY 10028. To date, the museum hasn't had a sold-out Monday, because it has refused to publicize the Monday opening.

The exhibition, a magnificently mounted compilation of Van Gogh's last major works, include some of his most famous canvases, notably, "The Starry Night" and "Crows over the Wheat Field."

Perhaps, even more interesting though are the van Gogh works which are less well known, but also included in the show, "Blossoming Almond Tree" and "Rain," for example.

The show includes works gathered from museums and private collections from around the world. "View of the Church of Saint-Paul-de-Mausole, for example, is owned by actress Elizabeth Taylor.

One looks at the work, wondering why this unsigned canvas, devoid of people and rather barren in subject matter, appeals to a very public actress.

One can't help stopping and puzzling at each canvas for clues as to what went through the artist's mind as he painted first the asylum, then the asylum garden, then the grounds beyond the asylum's walls, then street scenes and then, over and over again, gardens and fields. The exhibit moves us powerfully, visually and mentally through van Gogh's last days.

An absolute must for anyone attending the show, is to rent the cassette tape tour of the exhibit for $3.

ON THE TAPE, Philippe de Montebello, director of the Metropolitan, authoritatively comments on most of the works and reads from van Gogh's letters about several of the works.

The tape can also be purchased at the end of the exhibition for use with the show's catalogue.

If you go, be sure to check your coat before buying your ticket or before ascending the great staircase. No coat check is available otherwise.

Besides avoiding the crowds, another reason to see the exhibit on Monday is a chance to see the museum on "housekeeping day." Walls are painted, fresh flowers are arranged, potted greenery is being watered and moved about.

YOU CAN PASS through many of the museum's galleries alone and unhurried. It's best to know where you're going or where you want to go, instead of asking a guard, because if you ask, chances are you'll be told the museum is closed and you cannot enter. But if you simply walk around without asking directions, you'll probably be able to go wherever you like.

In connection with the exhibition, the museum is offering a bookstore full of items. Some of the most useful, even for those who don't attend the show, are video cassettes ($34.95), audio cassettes ($7.95) and the show's catalogue ($18.50 or $24.95 all plus postage). All are available by writing to the Museum Bookstore, 5th Ave. at 82nd St., New York 10028.

Year of the rabbit starts today

Jerry Zolynsky/staff photographer

One of a pair of 19th century lanterns to be loaned for the Chinese New Year celebration in Southfield on Feb. 14 shows the beautiful "hundred children" theme designs which are painted on them. The pictures have a lot of meaning that goes beyond decoration. The lanterns, made of rhino horn, are being loaned by Virginia Hyman of Bloomfield Hills, former art dealer and author of books on Chinese rugs and art.

While there are many holidays on the Chinese calendar, none are more important than the 15 day New Year's festival.

It begins on the first day of the new moon after the sun enters Aquarius. That means that 4685, the year of the rabbit, begins today and the celebration continues through Sunday, Feb. 14.

One of the most colorful celebrations in this time of goodwill, gift-giving and visiting family and friends is the Lantern Festival or the Feast of the First Full Moon.

The Chinese American Educational and Cultural Center of Michigan is sponsoring a Chinese New Year celebration 2-5 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 14, at the Southfield Civic Center.

Two large, 19th century, rhino horn lanterns, loaned by Virginia Hyman of Bloomfield Hills, will add an aura of color, mystery and excitement to the celebration.

Hyman, collector of orientalia and former nationally known dealer, said her two lanterns probably belonged to a wealthy family because rhino horn is highly valued for its purported, medicinal properties.

Hyman said, "The process (of making the horn into semiopaque shade) came from India and Sumatra. The lanterns were a demonproof. And that came from what was painted on them as well as the light from the candle inside."

She said that in addition to warding off evil spirits, the pictures on the lanterns have many meanings. Each of the two she is loaning for the Lantern Festival and celebration are painted with the "hundred children" design.

"Each of the one hundred children is doing something that has a meaning," Hyman said. For instance, a child with a very old man's face is a form of protest.

The children, dressed in brightly colored clothing, are carrying flags, flying kites and supporting a big green and yellow paper lion on long poles. One very mysterious ceremony depicted is the transformation on a table of a child into a dragon after taking a pill.

The many other lanterns in the Southfield festival will be constructed by donors or sponsored by people making a donation of $10, $25, $50 or more.

Included in the festivities will be a Lion's Dance, classical and folk dances, demonstrations and exhibits of calligraphy, painting and folk art, films, singalongs and refreshments. Tickets are $2.50 children, $4 adults. For information, contact Southfield Parks and Recreation, 354-9603. The Civic Center is at 26000 Evergreen, Southfield.

Highlighting Israel's rich, cultural mix

By Shirlee Rose Iden
staff writer

Cryil Miles, water-colorist and designer, and Benny Schwartz, architect and artist, generations apart if years count, are together in an upcoming cultural project planned to reach thousands of metro area people.

Detroit, Miles, and Southfielder, Schwartz, are putting the finishing touches on a comprehensive exhibit on Israel at the International Institute. The show will open Sunday, Feb. 1, and continue for six months.

"The message we're trying to get across is that diverse cultures have migrated from many continents to places such as Israel," she said. "Israel is a crossroads of three continents, a passageway."

"We're trying to link Christian, Judaic, Islamic culture so that people can gain some understanding and we won't blow each other up."

A NATIVE of Boston, Miles was brought to Detroit as a 5-year-old. With her husband, Arnold, she lives in a rambling Palmer Woods home with her art, her memorabilia, and her collections.

Half a century ago or more, as a noted water-colorist, Miles exhibited her work in a show that also featured two, 20th-century masters, Picasso and Chagall. At one crossroads in her career, she decided her work was worthless because it said nothing so she set out to create art with philosophy as well as technique.

Her steadfast love of art has never waned, as evidenced by the works that grace her home, as well as the books, and the archeological artifacts.

Another deep interest of the petite, loquacious woman, is the International Institute, which she has helped since 1978.

Schwartz, whose job it is to guide people who may want to move to Israel, came to Michigan more than two years ago with his family. Sometime this summer, they will go home, but Schwartz said "not without leaving a piece of ourselves here."

Israel, a crossroads of three continents, is the focus of a comprehensive exhibit at the International Institute of Detroit.

FOR THE ISRAELI working on the Israel exhibit affords him the chance to help people understand his land, his people.

The audience for the show will be a mixed bag of youngsters, primarily non-Jewish children, who come to the institute for an in-depth ethnic experience from schools in the metro area.

"The first group will be a kindergarten class," said Jan Jeffres, spokeswoman for the International Institute.

Elizabeth Stanhope, ethnic experience coordinator for the institute, pointed out that three of the world's major religions consider Israel holy.

"In order to emphasize this, the children will work with their own map of Israel and do group work with globes. This will tie into the six display cases used as reference for the program."

Stanhope said the cases include examples of ethnic crafts, art, and literature, a timeline of Israeli history and an ancient mosaic zodiac discovered at the Bet Alpha Kibbutz in Israel which was important in determining festivals and religious holidays.

"Children will find out the similarities of Judaism, Christianity and Islam and that the places mentioned with their respective holy books actually exist," said Stanhope.

Cryil Miles, artist, and Benny Schwartz, architect, discuss the ancient mosaic zodiac found at Bet Alpha Kibbutz in Israel.

"What I would like children to get out of this, is an awareness of countries and customs outside of the U.S. They could then approach a foreign people and places with an open mind and curiosity rather than distaste. I would like children to become aware of Israel and its multi ethnic population as real rather than a news item."

Israel Ethnic Sunday will be the opener for the six-month program. A two-hour program on Israeli culture will include a short film, performances by Israeli folk dancers, and songs by Judy Goldstein, folk singer.

A traveling exhibit of posters "Children of the World Paint Jerusalem" will be on display. Michael Kerem from the Israeli consulate in Chicago, will speak.

The program begins at 3 p.m. A $3 admission fee includes Israeli refreshments.

Where would those writers be without us?

SOMETHING ELSE WE BOOK LOVERS DO (Part 2 of an occasional series)

We "discover" writers. We discover them early in their careers, then we follow them with a proprietary watchfulness and call them by their nicknames until they either die or disgrace us by giving up on writing good books.

I discovered Pat Conroy, for example, back in 1972, when he wrote "The Water is Wide," the account of his days as a teacher in a sinfully poor two-room schoolhouse on Yamacraw Island, S. C. When he came out with "The Great Santini," you bet I was proud. And now his "Prince of Tides" is on the best-seller list and winning prizes all over the place and I could just bust my buttons.

Several of my "discoveries" have, in fact, won Pulitzers — E. L. Doctorow, Eudora Welty (actually, I discovered her early in my career), and, just last year, Larry McMurtry. (I discovered him with "The Last Picture Show," and hasn't he been doing great ever since?)

was far away at the time), I "found" Whitmore Lake's Loren D. Estleman. It was in Colby, Kan., at a Ramada Inn gift shop where I found his "Mister St. John." Since I'd met Estleman once and he couldn't have been nicer, and since the book was a western and I was sort of out west, I plucked the paperback from the rack and bought it.

I finished it in Denver, where cows are cattle, and I couldn't have been prouder of my new discovery. Later, in Kearny, Neb. — the gateway to the Real West — I found Estleman's novel "This Old Bill," a story about the sad, last days of Wild Bill Hickok, and I was as thrilled as I was the day I bought my pal Larry McMurtry's "Lonesome Dove."

But I'm not always so quick on the uptake. I wasn't in on the discovery of Birmingham's Big Guy — Elmore Leonard. Several of my friends were, however, and now they get to call him "Dutch." And I don't mind telling you, I'm a little jealous.

NOW HERE'S WHAT'S NEW:

Books Abound, billed as a "quality used book store," has moved from Royal Oak to downtown Farmington. Owners Skip Rosenthal and Alice McCoy say they searched for two years and finally found the "perfect spot" at 33336 Grand River. They opened Dec. 1 and there are still bare shelves to be filled, but the shop is clean and well-lighted and soft chamber music wafts down from ceiling speakers to set the mood. Remainder tables stretch across the front and fine prints line the walls.

Ask Rosenthal about two of his "gems," and he might show them to you: a signed limited-edition (one of only 1,000 copies) of "Skeleton Crew" by Stephen King, illustrated grandly and gorily by J. K. Potter, and, also illustrated grandly and gorily, a 1912 copy of "Anglo-Saxon Leechcraft, an Historical Sketch of Early English Medicine, put out by those rascals, the AMA.

Rosenthal has thousands of books still in a warehouse, so if you want something, he just might have it. Call Books Abound, 477-8777.

The 1987 Quadra-Project calendar, published by the Detroit Literary Workshop, is a sesquicentennial special work this year. Twelve Michigan poets selected Michigan themes — from Kathleen Ripley Leo's "Winner's Circle Bar, Northville" to Alice Price's "The Pokagon Hear Geologic Time" to Patrick O'Leary's "Grand Traverse Bay" and more. Look for it at area bookstores or order by sending $4.50 to Detroit Literary Workshop, 6960 N. Lafayette, Dearborn Heights 48127.

COMING UP: Sunday Feb. 1 — Joseph Heller reads fiction at the Power Center in Ann Arbor. Tickets are $9.50, $7.50 and $5.50. Call ticket office, 763-8587.

Pianist Ruth Burczyk is orchestra's guest

Pianist Ruth Burczyk will be the guest artist for a concert with the Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 8, at West Bloomfield High School. The orchestra's regular conductor, Felix Resnick, will be on the podium for this program, "An Evening of Musical Fantasies."

Burczyk will be the soloist in Beethoven's Choral Fantasy with the orchestra and the West Bloomfield High School Mixed Choir and the Maple Chorale from Seaholm High School of Birmingham. Risa J. Sears conducts the Mixed Choir and Tom Weessies is director of the Maple Chorale.

Professional soloists, Lagratta

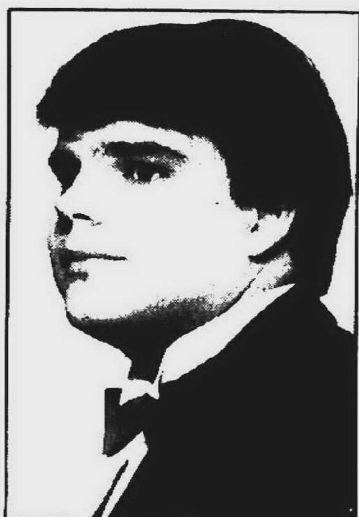

Mitchell, soprano, Rosemary DiDomizio, contralto, Steven E. Kronour, tenor, and James Gray III, bass, will be joined by two student soloists, Karla Manson, soprano, West Bloomfield High, and Alan Nealley, tenor, Seaholm.

Burczyk will perform the Hungarian Fantasy by Liszt and the orchestra will play Mendelssohn's Fingal's Cave Overture and Moussorgsky's "Night on Bald Mountain." She was recently named Teacher of the Year by the Detroit Musicians League. She is on the staff of the Adjudicators of the National Guild of Piano Teachers and begins her 12th year of the Interlochen Center for the Arts this year.

briefly speaking

● KARGUL CONCERT

Redford pianist Laura Kargul will be presented in concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 13, as part of the Music Guild Concert Series at Metropolitan United Methodist Church, Detroit.

Invited to the Tchaikovsky competition in Moscow, Kargul is recognized as a fine pianist. She began piano study at age 6 with Rebecca Froham of Detroit and made her solo debut with orchestra at 13. As a student of Leon Fleisher and Theodore Lettvin, she received her doctorate from the University of Michigan in 1985.

The church is at 8000 Woodward. There is lighted and supervised parking adjacent to the church. For more information, call 875-7407.

● MARTHA GRAHAM CONCERT

The University Musical Society of the University of Michigan will host Martha Graham and her Martha Graham Dance Company for performances on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 6-8, in the Power Center for the Performing Arts.

The great dance pioneer and innovative artist will accompany her dancers to Ann Arbor for three different programs. Tickets are $15-$18. For more information, call 764-2538.

● TANGLEWOOD AUDITIONS

Auditions will be held in Detroit for musicians interested in attending the Boston University School of Music or the 1987 summer season of the Boston University Tanglewood Institute 3-8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 20, in the Detroit Community Music School, 200 E. Kirby, Detroit.

For an appointment, call 273-6716.

● FACULTY EXHIBITION

The Sarkis Galleries at the College of Art and Design, an affiliate of the Center for Creative Studies, will present the photography faculty exhibition through Saturday, Feb. 21, in the galleries at 2435 E. Kirby, in the University Cultural Center.

Participating artists will be Carlos Diaz and John Ganis, Doug Aik-enhead, Connie Bruner, Fred Crudder, Hugh Grannum, Amy Kahn, Bill Rauhauser and Robert Viglietti. There is no admission charge. For more information, call 873-3118 during business hours.

● MUSIC APPRECIATION

Schoolcraft College's Continuing Education Division offers a new eight-session course, "Let's Go to the Symphony" 7-9 p.m. beginning Monday, Feb. 2.

Prior to trips to Orchestra Hall and Ford Auditorium to hear the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, participants will listen to and discuss the music they will hear in performance.

For fee and registration information, call 591-6400, Ext. 409.

● ISRAELI ETHNIC SUNDAY

The culture of Israel will be featured in a two-hour program at 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 1, at the International Institute, 111 E. Kirby, Detroit. Included will be a short film and performances by Hora Aviv Israeli Folk Dance Troupe and folk singer Judy Goldstein.

A traveling exhibit of posters, "Children of the World Paint Jerusalem," will be on display. Admission is $3, which includes Israeli refreshments. For more information, call 871-8600.

● H.M.S. PINAFORE

The Michigan Lyric Opera Company's production of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic operetta, "H.M.S. Pinafore" will take place on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 7 and 8, and Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 13-15, in the Marquis Theater in downtown Northville. All seats are $10. For ticket information, call 349-8110 or 531-2085 in the evening.

● AUDITIONS

Marquis Theater will hold auditions 2-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, for the theater's upcoming production of Rodgers and Hammerstein's musical, "South Pacific."

Auditions will be held at the theater, 135 E. Main, in downtown Northville. Those auditioning are asked to prepare two contrasting songs and be prepared for movement and cold readings. All positions are paid, and all roles will be cast at this time.

"South Pacific" is the Marquis Theatre's first production of 1987, following its successful production of "Annie."

"South Pacific" will begin Saturday, March 21, and run through Sunday, April 12. Roger Bean, guest artist from Wayne State's Hilberry Theater, will be the director, with Kathi Bush as choreographer.

For more information, call 349-8110 or 349-0868.

● CONTEMPORARY FOLK ART

"The Ties That Bind: Folk Art in Contemporary American Culture" is the title of the exhibition of work by 32 folk artists from throughout the country that will be on view at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum until Sunday, Feb. 22.

A mix of more than 50 sculptures,

Museum hours are 1-5 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday. Guided tours are available by advance notice. For tour information, call 646-3323.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

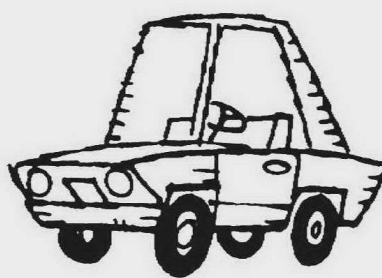

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

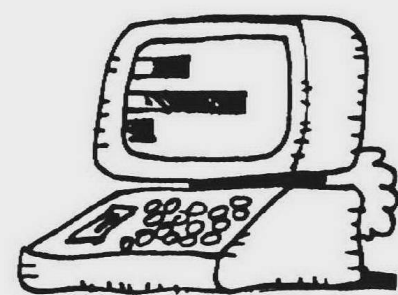

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise—is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

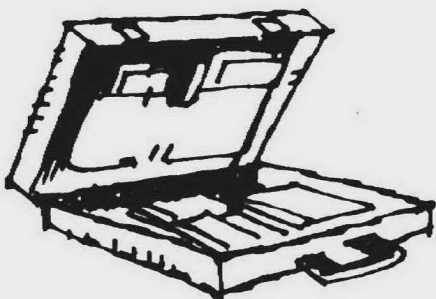

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.
