Supervisors may ask for county split

By Diane Gale staff writer

Did you hear the one about part of Wayne County splitting off and becoming its own county?

Mention the idea and laughs are bound to follow.

But the Wayne County Association of Township Supervisors is serious about asking state legislators to prepare a bill calling for western Wayne County communities to form a separate county.

The idea surfaced at a recent association meeting. Canton Supervisor James Poole, association secretary, said he was directed to "explore the possibilities" of breaking away.

WHEN ASKED WHAT kind of chance the proposal has of passing, Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen said "none."

"It's a statement," Breen added. "It's an expression of total frustration with the system. We are serious to the point of asking legislators to

HURSDAY seemed to be another successful opening for Plymouth Fall Festival. although those involved are still counting receipts and subtracting expenses to determine how well they really did.

On Thursday night the Plymouth BPW Bingo was the main activity at The Gathering while youngsters enjoyed the carnival games at Growth Works and kiddie rides on Penniman Avenue and shoppers browsed at the Oddfellows flea market.

Friday the Plymouth Lions served fish under The Gathering - orange roughy, fries, slaw, roll, butter, etc. and at the Cultural Center the Plymouth Symphony League opened the doors for its Antique Mart. More games, more rides, flea market, and lots of booths

Thursday night the sounds of German music opened the festivities at the band shell followed by the CEP Singsations/ Main Street Cloggers, and Plymouth Community Band. Among Friday night's well-known entertainers were Just Me and the Boys, the Canton Kitchen Band, and Canton Wheels Square Dance Club.

While there was some rain and black clouds Thursday and Friday the weather wasn't really a spoiler the first two days. The Fall Festival was soon half over and few serious complaints were heard.

"I thought that very definitely there wasn't enough attention to the out-county communities," Brown said last week. "And even in Lansing, the consideration for funds were overshadowed by Detroit.

"I also had a problem because when you said Wayne County and you said Detroit, legislators considered them synonymous. If they spent money on Detroit, that was Wayne County.

There were a "couple of public hearings" held on the issue, but "there were other issues that needed more attention." The bill was set aside and forgotten.

Bingo!

Game is big winner at city's fall festival

HURSDAY seemed to be another successful opening for Plymouth Fall Festival. although those involved are still counting receipts and subtracting expenses to determine how well they really did.

On Thursday night the Plymouth BPW Bingo was the main activity at The Gathering while youngsters enjoyed the carnival games at Growth Works and kiddie rides on Penniman Avenue and shoppers browsed at the Oddfellows flea market.

Friday the Plymouth Lions served fish under The Gathering - orange roughy, fries, slaw, roli, butter, etc. and at the Cultural Center the Plymouth Symphony League opened the doors for its Antique Mart. More games, more rides, flea market, and lots of booths

Thursday night the sounds of German music opened the festivities at the band shell followed by the CEP Singsations, Main Street Cloggers, and Plymouth Community Band. Among Friday night's well-known entertainers were Just Me and the Boys, the Canton Kitchen Band, and Canton Wheels Square Dance Club.

While there was some rain and black clouds Thursday and Friday the weather wasn't really a spoiler the first two days. The Fall Festival was soon half over and few serious complaints were heard.

corn roast for the past several years attempted downtown and attracted up to 1,300 people,' Hudson explained. "This is the first time we have asked the entire community to join in for a townwide festival. We're anticipating at least 3,000 people."

The Plymouth Mail in August 1960 was quoting a Sam Hudson who was 27 years younger, had not yet begun to lose his hair and happened to be the Plymouth Rotary Club's presi-

"Plymouth's first annual Fall Festival - hopefully a minor league Edinborough Festival featuring art, drama and music - will be held Sunday, September 11," the Mail reported. "The festival, springing from an annual chicken barbecue and corn roast sponsored by the Plymouth Rotary Club, will be staged in Kellogg

A FEW WEEKS later, on Sept. 14, three days after the festival, the Mail gave the results:

"A bunch of sore-backed, sunburned Rotarians folded up the tables, put out the fires and dragged themselves home - confident that they had successfully put on one of "We have held the barbecue and the biggest shindigs of its kind ever

> "A traction steam engine owned by Wilford Bunyea was brought in from which live steam was used to cook the corn. Other corn was roasted over charcoal. Blasts from the steam engine gave the crowd a sound they had not heard for a long time - since the steam locomotive disappeared.

As the Mail implied, the success of Plymouth's first Fall Festival was due to the 82 members of the Rotary Club whose talents, brainpower and musclepower made it work.

If one were to single out a few for special mention, however, it would be Frank Arlen, Wayne Dunlap, Wilfred Bunyea and Ken Harrison.

ARLEN, who agreed to be general chairman, went at the job like a time-study and efficiency expert.

past and present

He and I had visited Manchester, Michigan's large and successful barbecue to pick up a few ideas, but Arlen introduced some thoughts of his own. He "automated" our serving line and improved the cooking techniques at the charcoal pits.

Arlen checked and double-checked all of the things that had to be done in such a painstaking fashion that I thought the board of directors who were serving as committee chairman would revolt. They didn't, and I believe that it was due to Frank's tight rein that the event was such a huge success.

While Frank Arlen was riding herd on barbecue logistics, another member of the club, Wayne Dunlap, applied himself to the "festival" aspect of the outing.

Our aim was to encourage cultural activities in the community, so we at the dedication of an addition to invited organizations of that nature to participate with us on the first Sunday. It was Dunlap - director of music at the high school, and conductor of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra - who got all of these groups together.

Wayne got the Three Cities Art Club to display paintings and other art work in the park; the Plymouth Theatre Guild to stage a one-act play, "The Mad Hatter's Tea Party"; and the Plymouth Historical Society to show pictures and documents from the city's past.

As a precaution against rain, all of these displays and events were covered with colorfully striped parachute silk tents which I believe were army surplus.

At 3 p.m., the Plymouth High School Band, which had performed Our aim was to encourage cultural activities in the community, so we invited organizations of that nature to participate with us on the first Sunday.

the Post Office, marched to the park and gave a concert. Nat Sibbold was master of ceremonies. Throughout the afternoon, Margaret Wilson's Penn Theatre showed old-time, onereel comedies at 10 cents admission.

WILFORD BUNYEA'S traction steam engine, parked near the barbecue pits (on Chuck Finlan's parking lot where the Plymouth Gathering is now located, next to the theater) made a big hit with the crowd.

Periodically, when things slowed down on the serving line and more customers were desired, one of the Rotarians would shout, "Give her another toot, Wilford!" and the area for miles around would echo to the engine's shrill blast.

It is unfortunate that the continually rising cost of insurance has made the appearance of the Bunyea steam engine at the festival a thing of the past.

I recall that Ken Harrison, who joined the club in 1954, was the top ticket seller. We charged $1.50 for adults and $1 for children. The special price for children was eliminated in following years when it dawned on the committee that the children ate more than the adults.

As the Mail reported, we sold 2,750 dinners - more than double the number served on any previous occasion. But attendance at the park was estimated at 3,500. Among those who attended from out of town were Rotary district governor Charles A. Bell and Mrs. Bell, who came from Windsor

Western Wayne County Commissioners hope the state Legislature will help balance next year's county budget. They're keeping their fingers

They hope the state Legislature will approve up to $9 million in tax and fee increases sought by county executive Edward McNamara to balance the budget. But their assessments on whether it will happen are

"Our fate is pretty much in the hands of the state Legislature," commissioner Susan Heintz, R-Northville, said. "And let's face it, outstate legislators haven't exactly been friendly to Wayne County in past

McNamara said the $229 million budget could be balanced if legislators approve a 25 percent parking tax at Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport. The tax would raise $5-$6 million, he said.

A surcharge on police department traffic tickets, also awaiting the state legislature's approval, would add an estimated $3 million.

"There's a lot of iffy things," commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, cost the state any money I'm sure

MACK SAID the county commission seeks an "honest" budget.

"For the past four years, we've had budgets where our revenue was greatly over-exaggerated and our expenditures were greatly under-exaggerated," he said. "We can't afford that any more."

Nonetheless, Mack called the proposed budget a "remarkable achievement.'

"That the county executive can propose a budget that even comes close to being balanced is a remarkable achievement, given our debts."

The county is developing plan to pay back as much as $100 million owed the state, mostly for indigent health care services.

Commissioners said the statemandated indigent health care program was the biggest budget drain "Our ability to become solvent rests in our ability to cap indigent health care," Heintz said.

McNamara proposed paying no more than $15 million for indiment health care services - half as much as spent this year - but was criticized for saying he would cut selected health care payments even further if the tax and fee increases weren't approved What this leads up to is more problems for the poor." Beard said. 'I don't think it's right to balance the budget on the backs of the poor." The budget is now in the hands of the county auditor general From there, it will pass to the ways and means committee, where public hearings will be held, before appearing before the full county commis-

Plane club, recyclers reach agreement

It looks like there'll be happy landings for a model airplane club and garbage recyclers who've been at odds over the use of some Canton property.

At least for now, both Canton Recycling and the Flying Pilgrims will be permitted to use 10 acres of land owned by the township

For a nominal fee, Canton has allowed the Pilgrims to fly their planes on the site, off Lilley south of the Conrail tracks, where the club has constructed a runway

Canton Recycling recently petitioned the township to let it operate on the site - a plan that sounded good to trustees.

To appease both parties, the board established a committee

TUESDAY, THE committee announced a compromise.

the flying club are not mutually exclusive operations on the site," said David Nicholson, committee spokesman and director of Canton's community and economic development department. The two have agreed to co-exist on the site at least for the next year or two

The committee decided that "all parties involved will immediately begin searching for a new permanent home for the flying club." Ni cholson said "At the point in time that the new location is found for the flying club. Canton Recycling will provide a new air strip and access drive for that site "

The Flying Pilgrims won't be forced to relocate until "an accept able alternate location is found and improved. The board approved the plan

Local legislators balk at sales tax hike

By Tom Henderson staff writer

Local Republican politicians say they cannot support a report by House Republicans in Lansing that calls for an increase in the state sales tax to finance public education.

They say, and western Wayne County school officials agree, that the proposal, which would cut property taxes and raise the state income tax from 4 to 6 percent, doesn't have much of a chance of becoming law.

"I'm not going to bet my life savings on any proposal that has a salestax increase," said Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia. "The people of Michigan don't want any new taxes. We know

"I'm not very enthusiastic about it," said Sen. Robert Geake, a Republican whose district includes Redford, Livonia, Plymouth and Canton. "It's another tax-base sharing program and would hurt those districts with high SEVs (state equalized valuation).

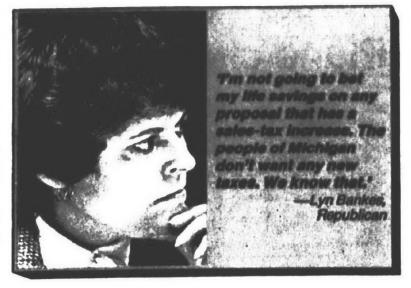

"I really don't believe this proposal will get off the ground," said Geake. "High-SEV districts are not willing to give up their property tax base, and school districts are not willing to go to state funding, which means state control . I don't expect major modifications in tax funding this year. I doubt if the Democrats are even taking it seriously."

ONE OF those Democrats is Rep. John Bennett of Redford. "I know those fellows on the task force and I have a lot of respect for them, but I don't think it's viable. No. 1, it says they're going to increase the sales tax from 4 to 6 percent, and the last time that was voted on it got 27 percent positive and the rest negative.

The other problem I have is if this tax proposal passes, the taxpayers of Michigan will suffer a loss of $350 million a year (in federal income tax deductions).'

Property taxes are federally deductible; sales taxes are not.

Bennett said that even if he had no disagreements with the proposal, he said it would fail in a statewide referendum because "I don't think the taxpayers out there trust the Legis-shift from property taxes to sales taxes, but agreed that such a proposal would be defeated in the required statewide vote.

Said Dr. Kenneth Erickson, superintentent of the Redford Union schools: "We are a property-poor SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS district. Of the 565 districts in the were divided in their opinion of a state, we rank 505th in per-pupil wealth. So, anything that reduces the reliance on property taxes, we feel is good for Redford Union . . . It's a step toward equalizing funding. The property tax system is stable but it produces gross inequities."

Erickson said he doubted voters would pass a sale-tax hike. And he said a drawback with a system fundbuy as much and revenues go down."

Dr. John Hoben of the Plymouth-Canton schools is opposed to a salestax system. "I have strong feelings that the sales tax is an unfair tax. The property tax is the best vehicle for equity. I agree that property taxes are getting up there, but with a sales tax, a person who makes $4,000 pays the same as a person who makes $100,000.

"I think something has to be done. They have to come up with a plan with an equitable distribution of funds, but I don't know how they're going to do it. They have to bring the have-nots up to the haves."

"Anything that would improve funding, we'd have to take a long look at," said Dr. Dennis O'Neill, superintendent of the Wayne-Westland schools. "All the emphasis lately seems to be on switching from a property tax to a sales tax. But with the new federal laws, there's no longer a tax deduction for sales tax-

"And another thing: In all the proposals I've seen, none of them have addressed the cost of doing business.

ed by sales taxes was that it wasn't The cost of doing business in stable. "In hard times, people don't southeastern Michigan is much highsoutheastern Michigan is much higher than up north.'

James Carli, superintendent of the Livonia schools, said it has been hard getting specifics on the various reform proposals that have come out of Lansing. "All educators have been waiting with bated breath to see the meat on the bones," he said. "I describe them as being in the concept

'They're floating trial balloons to get a reaction to them and then changing the direction of the balloon.

Dr. Jan Jacobs, superintendent of South Redford schools, said any proposal to raise the sales tax was sure to fail in a vote. "That's my gut reaction. It's not just conjecture. It's been put to the people a number of times . . . It's just not viable.

Hoben had a proposal of his own for saving cash that could be diverted to schools. "I think we should go to a part-time Legislature. For example, in Texas the Legislature meets for six months every two years, and they get by. I think you can save a heck of a lot of money that way. Of course, it will never happen.

says plan will close school funding gap

By Tom Henderson staff writer

A task force of House Republicans in Lansing has recommended cutting property taxes and raising the state income tax from 4 to 6 percent to finance public schools.

The task force said Michigan taxpayers would receive a property tax break of $1.77 billion under the plan, and that it would close the gap between rich and poor school districts.

The plan would lower local school millage rates from a statewide average of 32 mills to a guaranteed level of 16 mills. Local districts could raise the 16-mill rate by a maximum of 4 mills or levy a 0.5 percent income tax to raise extra revenue for the schools, subject to voter approv-

Fifty of the richest school districts, such as Bloomfield Hills, Grosse Pointe, Birmingham and Southfield, would be allowed to tax County schools were included in that

"We think we have something to sell to both the rich and the poor,' said Rep. Paul Wartner, R-Portage and co-chair of the House GOP task force that prepared the proposal.

THE IDEA TO SHIFT the individual tax burden from property taxes to sales taxes is not a new one. At least two lawmakers have already released similar plans and a 40member state Board of Education commission is working on its own proposal, which parallels the GOP plan in many ways.

The proposal's effect would vary widely across the state, cutting millage rates by more than half in some areas and only by a fifth in others.

According to Wartner, local millage cuts would be: in Garden City from 30.5 currently to 19.1; in Livonia from 35.2 to 17.5; in Plymouth at a higher rate. No western Wayne Canton from 36 to 16; in Redford Union from 37 to 16; in South Redford from 33.1 to 18.5; and in Wayne-Westland from 40.7 to 19.3. No figures were available for Clarence-

School districts with less than $2,750 to spend on each student would receive $300 more per student each year until they reached the base level, which would be tied to growth in the Gross National Prod-

The plan also would establish the state Account for Education trust fund, or SAFE, to protect and administer the increased school revenues provided when the sales tax increases to 6 percent.

Since 1972, Michigan voters have rejected seven different proposals promising some form of school finance reform, and local school administrators and legislators say voters will reject any plan calling for an increase in the sales tax (see re-

The Republicans promoting the new plan said their polling data indicated the time is right for another proposal.

State treasurer Robert Bowman called the GOP plan a "shift-shaft," ignoring the fact that replacing property taxes with a higher sales tax would force Michigan taxpayers to pay $350 million more in federal income taxes because of lost deductions.

"It results in a federal income tax increase on Michigan citizens," Bow-

Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, said: 'I don't like to be on the same side of any issue as Bob Bowman, but on this one I am. The people of Michigan don't want any new taxes . The bottom line is: How does it affect Livonia? We all want property tax relief, but at what expense?'

To become law, the task force's recommendation would have to be assigned to a House committee, then come out of committee, be passed in both the house and senate, then pass a statewide referendum on a constitutional amendment.

Banks said the plan had no chance of passage as it stands. "Ninteen eighty-eight is a house election year. I am never politically motivated, but some of my colleagues are," she said with a laugh.

"If you're campaigning for a sales-tax increase, and those opposed are campaigning against it as a shift-shaft, who's going to win?"

WARTNER SAID political realities made it necessary to grant exemptions on tax limits to 50 districts. "It's a realistic task force." he said. "They were grandfathered in to get viable reform. We had to satisfy various interest groups, including the wealthy districts. "No way could we take a district spending $6,000 a pupil and tell them that overnight you can only spend $3,000 . . . You'd be destroying these systems, and that's not our intent."

How about capping off your summer with a sorbet? Sensational yet surprisingly simple, icy, cool and almost sensual, an assortment of sorbets on a serving dish is a rainbow of colors to behold. They range from pale to powerful, with flavors varying from subtle to smashing. They are all delicious.

Sorbets are French sherbets lacking cream. Usually just plain old blends of fresh fruit, sugar and ice, they can be made with either fruit or vegetables and enjoyed as a palate cleanser to remove the taste and memory of the previous d. a or as a cooling dessert - light yet bursting with flavor.

At a recent dinner party, yours truly enjoyed a vegetable sorbet as a first course in lieu of a chilled summer soup. Needless to say, sorbets' versatility is as refreshing as their taste and color.

SORBETS CAN be of great assistance to the calorie watcher as they are made with relatively little sugar and no cream (or fat). Compare that to sorbet's cousin, ice cream.

There is no need to invest in sophisticated machinery like the big bucks Italian Minigel sorbet machine that uses freon instead of ice and salt. Simple ice cream freezers work well and will produce a product with virtually no graininess, as will a simple wooden spoon. Mixing the melange of ingredients in a clean, empty coffee can and freezing in your refrigerator will begin the process, but allow your food processor to get rid of the lumps and make for a light. smooth product guaranteed to melt in your

Of course, something so simple does come with a few catches. Sorbets have a tendency to crystallize easily in the freezer, losing their smoothness, so it is recommended that they be made as needed. If you find yourself "in the groove" and preparing different flavors and varieties, they are best stored in those "burpable" plastic containers that seal out as much of the surrounding air as possible.

DO NOT allow the product to stay out of the freezer for extended periods because it es have a tendency to melt quickly, and when melting occurs, miniscule ice crystals form, once again, depriving the sorbet of

For this reason, sorbets don't make very good cones and are best savored in prefrosted bowls. You will notice however, that sorbets made with fresh fruit and/or liqueurs are best enjoyed not completely frozen, but allowed to soften for just a few minutes before eating. This will intensify their flavors when the chill is removed.

I went to a housewarming party last weekend for some very good friends who. needless to say, have just about everything. Laying in bed, thinking of an appropriate housewarming gift, I came across the idea to buy a small, one-quart hand cranked DONVIER ice cream maker (it was on sale) and include a quart of homemade readymade syrup, a bag of fresh pitted sweet cherries and a printed recipe for cherry sor-

We ended up making the concoction during the Tigers' game, and everyone enjoyed a refreshing scoop of the mixture. Of course, it helped having the outside temperature hovering about 90 degrees.

Enjoy these recipes and let me know what you think and if you have experimented with a favorite sorbet. Bon Appetit!

Prime time to get those juicy apples for cooking

Nothing heralds a glorious Michigan autumn like a bite from a crisp. juicy apple picked fresh from a nearby orchard.

Is any fruit more popular, hardy or versatile than the apple? It is easily obtained, stores well for long periods of time and can be featured in mouth-watering pies and cobblers, applesauce, salads, muffins and nut

MANY PEOPLE are unaware that Michigan ranks among the top three producers of apples. Although some 15 varieties are grown, around eight varieties predominate, including Jonathan, McIntosh and Spy.

The top Michigan variety is the Red Delicious, said Pat Burke, office manager for the Michigan Apple Committee. The organization represents apple growers. It is based in DeWitt, near Lansing

Michigan's fruit belt is in the western area of the state, between Belding and Grand Rapids, Burke said. These high, hilly regions are around 800 feet above sea level, making them less vulnerable to damaging frost.

when isita crime turn 187

Of course turning 18 isn't a crime at all. However, turning 18 without registering with Selective Service is.

That's why we need your help. We need parents to tell their sons to register with Selective Service within a month of turning 18. And we need teachers, friends, employers and others who can influence these young men to reinforce the message.

Why? Because, for one reason, it's the law. But in addition to risking prosecution by not registering, your son or young friend is disqualifying himself from eligibility for federal student loans, federal employment and job training programs.

A public service message of this publication and Selective Service System

America's future security depends upon today's young men registering with Selective Service on time. Having a complete registration list saves our country six vital weeks in mobilizing its manpower should Congress ever declare a national emergency.

All of today's 18-year-olds and all of tomorrow's 18-year-olds must be informed about the registration requirement. You can help. Ask a young man you know if he is registered.

Dena Head scored 35 points, but it wasn't enough to prevent a Plymouth Salem loss in the first round of the Great Lakes Invi-

Ladywood upsets Rocks

By Brad Emons staff writer

Dena Head's 35-point performance was a work of art, but Livonia Ladywood's 52-49 victory over Plymouth Salem was a masterpiece in the first round of the Great Lakes Invitational Girls Basketball Tournament Thursday at UM-Dearborn's

The victory put Ladywood in Saturday's Great Lakes finals for the third time in four years. The Blazers earned the right to meet Catholic League nemesis Dearborn Divine Child, which won the opener of the double-header against defending champion Detroit DePorres, 48-46.

Three Ladywood players scored in double figures to offset Head's career-high effort.

Yvonne Barnett, a 5-foot-5 junior guard, gave Salem fits. She finished with 18 points. Nancy Wagner, a 6-foot senior forward, and Katie McNulty, a 6-2 senior center, added 17 and 14, respectively.

"YVONNE WAS JUST outstanding," said an elated Ladywood coach Ed Kavanaugh. "She was awesome in our last game against Traverse City (a 59-32 win) and tonight it seemed she had wings on her feet. She made some nice cuts to the basket and she threw in that 'baby' hook (shot). She just did a great job out there."

Ladywood began to open things up once Salem's veteran forward Keri McBride picked up her third foul with 31 seconds left in the first quarter.

girls basketball

The Blazers opened up an 18-14 first-period lead and took a 28-21 advantage into the lockerroom at halftime

In the third quarter, Ladywood mounted a 13point lead as Wagner tallied eight of her 17 during But Barnett went to the bench late in the third quarter with her fourth foul, giving Head the green light.

The 5-foot-10 senior practically carried the Rocks on her back, scoring 33 of her team's final 35 points, including 24 of 26 in the second half

SALEM CUT LEAD to 42-37 after three quarters and got within a bucket, 49-47, with 1:12 left on a steal and layup by Head.

"We got a little too tentative in the third quarter," Kavanaugh said. "We made some lazy passes and our off-people were not moving to the ball. Our point-guard was stranded out there Ladywood then held on, protecting the advantage as point-guard Ann Marie Thomas made a free throw after getting fouled with 31 seconds left. She gave the Blazers a 50-47 cushion.

But Salem answered on its next possession, a Head layup with nine seconds left to make it 50-

49, but Barnett got behind the pressing Rocks' defense and put the game away with a layup of her own with only two seconds remaining.

"I thought early in the game we didn't play with any intensity or enthusiasm," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "I like the way we played in the second half. I liked the desire and aggressiveness.

"It's too bad we didn't have a minute or two left because maybe we could have won.

"BUT IF YOU LET a team like Ladywood get ahead it's tough to come back. They're difficult to play when they're ahead. You leave yourself susceptible to the back door (plays)."

It became apparent more and more as the game wore on that the unselfish Head had to shoulder more of the scoring load. She scored only two points in the first quarter.

but made several nice passes that her teammates failed to convert. We had a lot of good shots and sometimes that happens," Thomann said. "The shots just wouldn't Salem's spunky point-guard, Jill Estey, was the only other Salem player to score a hoop after the first quarter. Head had the remaining points.

"We changed our defenses around and used a variety of things," Kavanaugh said. "But we didn't prepare anything special for Dena. We tried to prepare our team for the things they do best. 'Head has been good for a long time."

And Ladywood has been good for a long time as well, particularly in the Great Lakes Tournament.

Canton starts fast, fades in loss to Trojans

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Plymouth Canton's girls basketball team looked like world-beaters Thursday in the first quarter of its first-round game with Traverse City in the Mercy Hoops Classic.

The Chiefs put on an impressive show, racing to a 19-7 lead over the Trojans, who are considered by some to have one of the top 10 teams in

But Canton's star gradually faded, Traverse City got progressively better and the Chiefs ended up taking a 44-32 defeat after a mystifying col-

The difference between the opening period and the last three was like night and day as Canton managed just six field goals and 12 points the rest of the way.

Traverse City solved Canton's press and also tightened its defense to prevent the Chiefs from ducking inside for layups

Plus, Canton's shooters went cold at the start of the second quarter. The Chiefs were 6-of-33 from that point on, and Canton's lack of a perimeter attack only compounded the problem since its quickness had been nullified.

"I THINK the bottom line is when

What happened, too, we stopped coming to get the ball and let Traverse City dictate the tempo of the game. We stopped helping each other on the court and tried doing too much as individuals."

Susan Ferko's free throw made it 20-9 early in the second quarter, but the Chiefs got only two field goals on outside shots by Amanda Bell after that as the Trojans cut the difference to 24-18 at the half.

The Chiefs were moving and working hard on offense to open the middle in the third quarter, and Heather Miller's layup kept Canton in front, 28-21. But Traverse City scored 10 unanswered points to take its first lead, though the Chiefs stayed within one at the end, 31-30, on a basket by Ferko.

The Chiefs, however, missed on their first 14 shot attempts of the final period, and Traverse City put the

Rockets dominate Canton

By Dan O'Meara staff, writer

Anybody familiar with Westland John Glenn football knows it has a powerful rushing attack and a defense that can smother opponents.

The Rockets did all of that Friday night, but they also showed they can throw the ball effectively as Glenn overwhelmed Plymouth Canton 49-7.

Senior quarterback Clint Straub passed for three touchdowns while completing seven of 11 passes for 97 yards. He also scored one himself on a 1-yard sneak.

We like to think we're a team that has the ability to pass," Glenn coach Chuck Gordon said. "We're very confident in Clint's abilities."

PAT PETTIT made TD catches of 1 and 22 yards, and Eric Thornton hauled in the other from 6 yards out.

While the Rockets, 2-0, used the pass to put the ball in the end zone, it was their bread-and-butter ground game that punished Canton's defense and set up the scoring plays.

Kevin Wilson rushed for 137 yards on 19 carries, including a 43-yard sprint for six points, before Gordon called off his starters late in the third quarter. On the ground, Glenn outgained the Chiefs 286-31

'I think the running game was good, and a lot of that credit has to go to the offensive line," Gordon said. "(The Chiefs) do a lot of things on defense, a lot of stunting, and our guys picked them up."

FOR A brief moment, it looked as if Canton was primed to give the Rockets the good fight its fans had

Salem crushes Western

Gee, what a player. Okay, so it's a silly pun. But Plymouth Salem defensive back Andy Gee drove Walled Lake Western silly Friday night. The senior picked off three passes, returning one 30 yards for a touchdown, and fell on a fumble that set up the pivotal score in the Rocks' 34-19 victory at Western.

Gee's second-quarter interception return put Salem ahead to stay, 20-14. The Rocks (now 2-0) scored first on a 1-yard plunge by Garrett Bowie. Brian Storm, who booted four-of-five placements, made it 7-0.

Western pulled to within 7-6 on a 5-yard run by Pat Conway, then went ahead on a 23-yard Greg Hysell-to-Jim Atwell pass. Another Hysell-to-Atwell pass was good for a two-point conversion and a 14-7 Warrior lead - and the game was still in the first quarter.

Salem answered immediately, marching 69 yards for the TD, which quarterback Steve Holt scored on a 13-yard run. Storm's placement tied it. Gee followed with his TD (Storm missed the kick), but just before halftime Western got on the board again when a muffed Salem punt set up Pierre Engling's 27-yard field goal, making it 20-17.

THE ROCKS scored twice in the third quarter, the first on a 65-yard drive, capped by Holt's 1-yard sneak. A 16-yard run by Storm and a 20yarder by Holt got the drive started.

The Warriors' attempt to answer ended when Gee recovered a fumble at the Western 21. Bowie busted in for the TD from 7 yards out, increasing Salem's lead to 34-17. A fourthquarter safety after a bad pitchout by the Rocks accounted for Western's only second-half points.

"We had two real nice drives," said Salem coach Tom Moshimer.

in girls swimming this fall, according to coach Chuck Olson, but the Rocks aced their first test Thursday

Salem opened the season by trouncing Ypsilanti 126-45 in the loser's pool with Heather Bunch and Sarah Andrews leading the way with three first places apiece

The schedule promises to get tougher as the Rocks, 8-6 in dual meets and sixth in the Western Lakes Activities Association last year, head into another competitive league season

Our girls league is so deep and difficult, to get into the top six is very good," Olson said.

We're going to have to swim better, because the league has gotten better We'll have plenty of challenges

Bunch, one of five seniors on the team, won the 50-yard freestyle (28.0) and backstroke (1:13.1) Thursday and combined with Erin Olson, Andrews and Jodi Thomas to capture the medley relay

Andrews also won the butterfly (1:11.8) and teamed with Dawn Sheik, Stacie Anderson and Tracy Meszaros for a Salem victory in the freestyle relay (4:15.4).

Sheik was the 200 freestyle winner (2:15.1), Susan Wooters accumulated the most diving points with 143.3, Katie Vesnaugh won the 500 freestyle (6 12.5) and Olson prevailed in the breaststroke (1.17.2).

"I don't think we're going to scare anyone with the times we had tonight," coach Olson said, "but if we keep working and stay together we should have a pretty good team going for us.

swimming

Bunch and Olson are holdovers from last year's medley relay team that qualified for state, as are Meszaros and Sheik in the freestyle relay, giving the Rocks a nucleus with which to build.

Bunch, senior Jennifer Barr and Meszaros are tri-captains and have a wide-range of abilities, Olson said Kris Kangas (freestyle) and Debbie Fry (diving) are the other seniors.

Sheik, Olson, Anderson, Vesnaugh, Andrews, JoJo Wiklund, Wooters, Kacy Ranka and Nicole Gillig comprise the junior swimmers, and Olson hopes sophomores Tammy Hickey, Lisa Brown and Andrea Alex will help.

We have good-size junior and sophomore classes." Olson said. "We had good swims (Thursday) out of girls who didn't score a lot of points last year, and a year makes a lot of difference."

Plymouth Canton graduated some talented swimmers and divers from a team that was 8-2 and fourth in the WLAA last year, and the Chiefs are in a rebuilding stage, according to coach Hooker Wellman.

Canton lost league diving champion Lisa De-Joung, as well as Kelly Daily and Lynn Packard, who were third and 11th in WLAA diving. Julie Cox, who was state-ranked in the breaststroke for two years, also is gone.

But the Chiefs do have enough talent that other coaches mention them as a team to watch.

seniors and freestyle swimmers, are the captains and will provide the leadership, Wellman said.

Canton has two top-notch talents in sophomores Nicole Drake and Cassie Cummins, who will probably score the majority of points.

Drake has yet to compete at the high school level, but is one of the state's best AAU swimmers. Her 500 freestyle time would place her in the top six among prep tankers, Wellman

Cummins, who placed 11th in the individual medley at last year's state meet, set freshman records in everything except diving and the 50 freestyle. She also established varsity standards in the IM, 200 freestyle and backstroke.

The key to the team's success, however, will be junior Jean McLenaghan and sophomores Kristy Brugar and Kelly Rische, Wellman said. All are multi-purpose swimmers and will be needed to complement the others.

'That's what makes them so valuable - the fact they can swim any number of events," Wellman said. "Those are the three hardest-working kids in practice, and if they can stay away from injuries they can help us.

"We need to have kids who can swim with Drake and Cummins, and these are the ones who can do that.

Amy Van Buhler (junior) could help cushion the diving losses, and Wellman is counting on Sarah Schmitz (junior), Val Gildhaus (sophomore) and Wiltrout (freshman) to supply team

No loss, no gain for Wayne State

HAT WAS DECIDED last Friday in Wayne State University's Alumni

Football junkies called it a victory for their side. After a week of politicking, the university's board of governors voted to keep football.

The board had received a recommendation from the administration to discontinue the sport It had received a recommendation from a special task force, created a year ago to review the school's intercollegiate athletic programs, to add 8.4 football scholarships.

st as ot ry

The board rejected both. It voted for status quo.

In other words, WSU will continue to play football. It will remain a member of the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

But it will also be stuck at its present level of funding, which allows for $146,000

WSU grants 11.6 scholarships. Northern Michigan and Grand Valley State offer the NCAA Division II limit of 45. Saginaw Valley State has 43 and Hillsdale 41. Ferris State is closest to WSU in number of football scholarships. Ferris hands out 34.5.

ADMINISTRATION OFFICIALS felt the money poured into the football program could be better spent on other phases of athletics.

Could it? This isn't the first time WSU football has been threatened with extinction. In 1982 it was cancelled, only to be saved by supporters' promises of fundraising efforts to supplement the program.

This is a difficult dilenma, not just for WSU but for intercollegiate football on a smaller scale. WSU president David Adamany was right when he said, after the motion to retain football carried by a 6-2 vote, that he was tired of the "arms race of intercollegiate athletics."

Football is the most expensive program to fund. It is the largest in number of players needed. Of course, at a University of Michigan or Michigan State, football is a major moneymaker.

just isn't so. Few GLIAC schools if any - consistently turn a profit.

As board members Mildred Jeffrey and Michael Einheuser put it, if missioner is Vern Norris - yes, the WSU wasn't willing to commit to keeping up with their league rivals (and the comparison in scholarship levels clearly indicates it isn't), then the program should be dropped.

SOME CLARIFICATION is necessary here. WSU would not need as much scholarship money as other GLIAC schools. The Tartars can for now. field a complete, competitive team of players who live at home and ows, brandishing his blade.

Twenty - maybe 25 - scholarships would be more than enough for WSU. But where is the money going to come from, for a sport which rarely attracts more than a few hundred fans to its Saturday afternoon games?

Fundraising can bring in some of it, maybe even all of it. But it isn't a consistent source of income. There are only two ways to ensure WSU's football future: Either get a firm commitment for additional dollars from the administration, or put a strong enough product on the field that will put people in the stands.

Steve Gregor, WSU's senior defensive captain from Livonia, knows the team's future could be in his and his teammates' hands. "Right now, we're under the microscope," he acknowledged. "We have to produce this season. We have to show the university we will work hard.

Mere words cannot express the plans for the Marcel Marceau World Centre for Mime.

But that's OK. Sometimes the words get in the way.

"What's not said is often the most important thing in life," said Brian Trim, executive director for the venture, which just formed last fall but ambitiously hopes to open its first phase - a 500-seat theater - near Ann Ar-

The center would be the home base for a touring company of American mimes directed by Marceau. When not on tour, the company would conduct seminars. A prototype seminar earlier this summer at nearby Ann Arbor Huron High School drew students from "10 to 71," said Trim.

world headquarters In the next room, former Ann Arbor mayor Lou Belcher, now president and CEO of the World Center for Mime, is on the phone, trying to convince local government officials that Marcel Marceau's vision does not include raping the rural countryside of Washtenaw County

Trim, sensitive to neighbor's concerns, said Domino's owner Thomas Monaghan has been a generous benefactor to the dream since he and Marceau were introduced by the mime's friend and former University of Michigan regent Eugene Power.

But Trim quickly stresses that broad-based private and government support has been forthcoming - and is necessary - for a venture that could cost in the tens of millions of dollars.

TRIM'S OFFICE is a short distance away from the U-M campus where he was a 1980 political science graduate. But his route to Domino's Farms was anything but direct. While studying at Trinity College in Dublin, Trim became intrigued with mime, which led him to Paris and Marceau. Later, Marceau asked him to join the Ann Arbor project.

"I understand his vision," said

The vision of mime - theater without dialogue — is as old as acting. Mime actors were standards in ancient Greek and Roman dramas and can be found in almost any culture, said Trim. Siming in America. reached a peak with such silent screen giants as Buster Keaton and Charlie Chaplin, faded with the advent of talking movies. It could be argued that without Marceau's universal appeal, the art of mime would be little more than a curiosity in this country. The Marcel Marceau World Centre for Mime, then, is seen as assurance that mime will always have a voice.

"Mime goes right to the essence, the truth, of drama," said Trim, "whether it is the simple beauty of breathing a flower or as complicated as a trial.

"In mime there are no limits, no frontiers. It's as big as the imagination."

And the imagination at the world center is boundless.

The public is more conscious of what it is eating and more sophisticated. The restaurant industry has expanded in the Detroit area, and competition can be stiff among chefs or graduates of two local culinary arts programs.

Most graduates can get a job "if that person is any good," said Kevin Enright, a chef-instructor at Oakland Community College (OCC). Enright, a graduate of the culinary arts program at Schoolcraft College, is also head of OCC's chef-apprentice program. Apprentice students are selected to learn under chefs at area restaurants working with the school.

The glamor and creativity are appealing, he said. Working chefs say the hours are long, and the job not as glamorous as it seems.

The majority of graduates go to work in restaurants, hotels and clubs. Fewer go into food service at institutions such as hospitals or into the catering business, Enright said.

"If I was coming out of school now, I'd find a lot more quality restaurants to go to," Enright said.

The students at OCC are a variety of ages, some older, some contemplating career changes, he said.

Does the mere word "symphony" conjure up a vision of elaborately dressed women and tuxedo-clad men nodding appreciatively at music you could never understand?

Does the idea of attending the symphony sound intimidating and somewhat stuffy?

It doesn't need to be that way Attending a concert performance of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, which opens its regular 1987-88 classical season Thursday, is not as forbidding as you might think.

AUDIENCES of the Detroit Symphony are diverse, and concert-goers can be comfortable without wearing a black tie or a long gown. In fact, the audience often has jean-clad college students intermixed with more formally dressed series ticket-hold-

First, Smith advises you to look for familiar names as far as composers are concerned.

Your best bet is to find a recognizable name," Smith said. For example, the predominant work scheduled to be performed in the Nov. 21 concert is Beethoven's piano concerto No. 3. Beethoven, no doubt, is a composer familiar to most everyone.

If possible, Smith suggests borrowing the work you will hear from your local library and listening to it before going to the concert. This will help you know what to expect. He also recommends reading a bit about

"Having heard the work and having a slight comfort level with the orical background on this particular performer" will benefit a firsttime concert-goer, according to

A SECOND STEP in selecting a concert you will enjoy is to stick with concerts under the baton of the local conductor, Gunther Herbig. The conductor is the person who will interpret the piece of music being performed, and because Herbig has ny since the 1984-85 season, he is familiar with this audience.

"It is, if you will, an opportunity to satisfy your curiosity about the 'living' part of the concert," Smith said. "You can check him (Herbig) out."

Smith said that if a concert-goer is comfortable with these three elements - the main composer, the conductor and the soloist - he or The third step for a beginning she will likely enjoy the performance. The only unknown element then might be a lesser-known composer also on the program.

"The maestro (Herbig) tries to have a balance on every program," Smith said, "combining the relativegleaned from the program audience ly familiar with something very

We try to serve the various factions of the community at their different listening levels."

SMITH ENCOURAGES those who have never attended a symphony concert to try it this year.

"Even the most sophisticated in the audience will go away with a less-than-settled feeling that they understood what was going on the entire concert," Smith said.

He suggests that first-timers try to absorb the sound of the symphony without getting distracted by visual elements

"At some point." Smith said, firsttime concert-goers should "just sit and close their eyes . . . close it all and take it all in through the ears. This is helpful."

First-timers might be wise to stick to concerts under the baton of DSO conductor Gunther Herbig, who is familiar with the local audience.

He added that audience members are welcome backstage after the program if they wish to make a comment to either the conductor or the

In addition to the classical works, there are several other programs scheduled that might be particularly attractive for a newcomer to the symphony

The new Sunday afternoon series - the Sunday Sampler - is a good one for the first-time concert-goer It offers five concerts in Orchestra Hall geared for the family Each concert will be preceded by a narration explaining the music about to be performed. Those purchasing the series will get a sixth concert free - a visiting performance by the Grand Rapids Symphony

ANOTHER GOOD place for a symphony newcomer to start is with the Christmas Holiday Festival offerings such as "The Nutcracker" and "The Messiah." as well as a singalong of holiday favorites

The pops series of concerts uses symphonic music as a backdrop and is an important component of the Detroit Symphony's schedule, according to Smith.

In addition, there is the Young People's Concert Series which uses outside attractions, such as the New Christy Minstrels, for educational elements. It generally appeals to those through junior high age

Another avenue for those interested in classical music is the Detroit Symphony Civic Orchestra, a group of area high school and college students in preprofessional training Dr Leslie B. The coffee series of classical music is offered on Friday mornings. It tends to appeal to an older audience. to those who would prefer coming to the symphony in a group and possibly making a day of the outing, according to Smith.

The chamber music performances at Orchestra Hall are not recommended by Smith for symphony newcomers. Chamber music involves smaller groups of musicians and tends to attract the more sophisticated listeners. A final musical option offered by the DSO is the Great Performers series which this year showcases the talents of four exceptional performers in three separate concerts -Mstislav Rostropovich Sept. 20, Pinchas Zukerman Nov. 22 and Vładimir Ashkenazy and Lynn Harrell May 5.

The Detroit Symphony performs on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, Friday mornings and Sunday afternoons, though each concert is not offered at each possible performance time

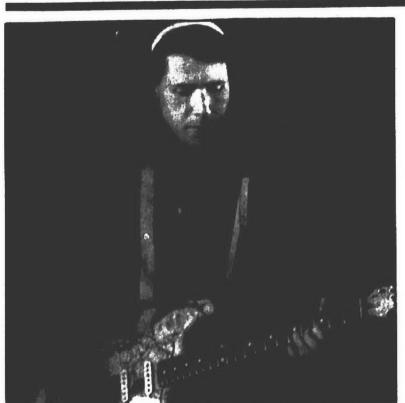

TICKETS for all concerts are sold singly or on a series basis, except for the Holiday Festival (Christmas). which is sold on a single-performance basis only

Series tickets do not involve every performance the entire season, but ather selected performances combined in several different configurations. Somewhere between photography and printmaking lies an art form known as cliche-verre, which is as old as photography itself. Sue Hirtzel, artist and instructor at Wayne State University, will discuss cliche-verre at the next meeting of the Michigan Photographic Historical Society. She will show slides and examples from her own work as well as that of other printmakers working in cliche-verre

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Meteor Photographic Co. in Troy. The Michigan Photographic Historical Society, founded in 1972, offers its members the chance to learn more about the history of photography, including theory, equipment, processes, techniques, images and photographers.

A "Tom Jones Feast" is not a healthy helping of tunes by the crooner who gave us "What's New. Pussycat?" and "It's Not Unusual." No, it's a fund-raiser designed to benefit the Attic Theatre. Oct. 10, at the Detroit Athletic Club Along with dinner and dancing the evening will feature a performance by nightclub singer and actress Miche Braden, who appeared in such Attic performances as "Ma Rainey's Black Bottom," "A . . . My Name Is Alice" and "The 1940s Radio Hour."

The "Tom Jones Feast" appropriately precedes the Attic's second play of the 1987-88 season, "Tom Jones," an adaption by John Morrison of Henry Fielding's classic novel. The play will open Oct. 28. Tickets for the benefit include valet parking and two complimentary tickets to any of the Attic's plays during the season.

Research's goal: a better condom

AP - With the advent of AIDS. researchers and condom manufacturers are trying to build a better condom.

Currently only two materials, lamb intestines and latex, make usable condoms. But viruses can pass through pores in the intestines, and latex melts when exposed to petroleum-based lubricants.

Dr. John Sullivan of the University of Massachusetts Medical School in Worchester is working on a model that contains spermicide and virus killer that can act as a sealant if the condom breaks.

A year ago Mentor Co. of Minneapolis came out with a condom containing an adhesive that helps it retain fluids.

New Jersey-based Ansell is touting its LifeStyles extra-strength condom, which the company said is made of a 25 percent stronger type of latex.

Spotting what's hot

Here's what's new and now on the retail scene, as seen by Alan Teitel, Bloomfield Townshipbased forecaster of fashion trends in the making. The following 10 items currently head up the

1. Polo

Move over, Prince Charles. This equestrian sport, once considered the exclusive domain of the upper crust, is becoming the newest in popular spectator sports. Celebrity watchers will be chomping at the bit as celebs take to the fields in a sport that combines riding with croquet and soccer. Tally ho!

2. Liz Claiborne

Though hemlines are getting shorter this year, everybody is long on Liz, who's added a menswear line to her vast fashion empire. Fortune magazine named her company the No. 2 "Most Admired Corporation in America," ahead of IBM, Shell Oil and Dow Jones. Who says you can't have fun with your clothes on?

3. Dinosaurs

It's back to the Stone Age for kids of all ages in the coming months, as these overgrown lizards are making a comeback. Even a recent Newsweek cover story spotlighted their reviving popularity. The continuing popularity of the "Flintstones" TV show and Godzilla movies among the younger generation ensures that these prehistoric predators will be with us for a long time to come. So hop aboard the time machine and wish our giant friends a hearty "yabba dabba DOO!"

4. Mickey Mouse

Slap on your mouse ears and gather round, Mouseketeers! The in-crowd has a new pet animal. Shirts and T-shirts featuring this perennial Disney favorite are sure to be a hit with the trendies. Soon everyone will ing along M-I-C (See the vuppies flock to Mickey!) K-E-Y (Why? Because they love him!) M-O-U-S-E.

5. Bass-Weejun-Shoes

Put away those Argyle socks. These classic loafers, worn today with or without socks in the style popularized by preppies, add an air of casual assurance to wearing attire of all kinds, even the traditional suit

6. Condo-size Dogs

These miniature mutts, 25 pounds or under, are cuddly as can be and sized for cramped condo living. Man's best friend becomes the perfect companion for the condo crowd, in a size that fits any lifestyle.

7. Grapefruit Juice

Maybe Cagney had the right idea when he picked up that grapefruit in "Public Enemy No. 1." Research has shown that grapefruit speeds up weight loss, paving the way for a slew of grapefruit diets. This sour citrus has become the fruit du jour for dieters everywhere, so pucker up and slim down.

8. Florida

No longer the sole province of senior citizens and drug dealers, the Sunshine State has become the pointof-destination for the in-crowd. Lots of folks are flocking to sun-drenched Florida for golf and tennis weekends year round. Life's a beach . . . in Florida!

9. Shaving Brushes

It was good enough for Grandpa, and now it's back at the height of fashion. Shaving with a brush and shaving soap, rather than boring old shave cream, adds a feeling of luxury to that otherwise tedious morning ritual, so lather up!

10. Fresh Flowers

You don't need to get married or die for fresh flowers anymore. They are brightening every day in every way. From the vestibule to the boudoir, fresh floway. From the plain daisy to the exotic orchid are paving the way for a brighter day. Bought from corner vendors and local supermarkets to florist shops, they are affordable and available — rain or shine.

Dear Joan:

A friend of mine has been given an overseas assignment by the company he works for He will be gone for about six months to a year. What would be an appropriate gift for him? S.S. Farmington Hills

One of the best gifts you can give a colleague is a standard medical kit Finding a drugstore in a foreign city is difficult enough: finding one open during an emergency is downright impossible. A standard kit would contain aspirin, a decongestant inhaler, throat lozenger, a gentle laxative, antacid and small bandages. These are all over-the-counter items, and when one needs such items in a foreign country it is nice to find it in a gift packed by a friend.

Another gift, although time-consuming for the giver, is a gift of research. This would involve preparing a notebook filled with information on the country articles clipped from recent publications, a list of top government officials obtainable through that country's consulate), national holidays, major museums and cultural institu-

AN AD for the Casio system shows a mother huddled with two little girls - all smiles - over a table laden with birthday cake and gifts. Someone, presumably dad, has captured the scene in his viewfinder. So far, not much different than the standard way of snapping photos. But that's where the similarity

The next picture shows the happy group on a TV screen, looking a lot like a slide projector image. The video floppy disk will permanently store the still-life picture. An optional video printer allows the user to plug the camera into the unit for the final step, a sharp, clear picture to paste in the scrapbook.

Such a system could make blurred or otherwise unsatisfactory shots obsolete because the user can edit his own work. Anyone who has ever lost vacation, graduation or other special event pictures because of poor quality film, prints lost by a commercial developer, or just plain lousy picture taking can appreciate this system.

Easdon foresees appliance stores offering video disk camera owners the service of a printer to reproduce individual frames at a cost comparable to commercial film developing.

"This technology will eliminate slide projectors and the buying of film." Easdon predicts. "It's called the age of imagery

"The (still video camera) system can enable newsrooms to take quality color prints directly off a video

Filmless photography is expected to have a profound impact on every facet of the publishing and graphic arts industry.

Slipped discs: Rock 'n' roll's worst albums

It seems everybody's writing about their favorite music albums these days.

Rolling Stone magazine started the ball rolling by naming its version of the 100 best albums of the past 20 years. Others have followed.

But anybody can tell you the Beatles' "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band," "Rubber Soul" or Pink Floyd's "Dark Side of the Moon" is the most wonderful, fabulous, marvelous album of all time. We wanted to know about the real stink-o stuff.

So we assigned Street Scene music experts Wayne Peal and Larry O'Connor to dig through their massive collections and nearby cutout bins to come up with the 10 absolutely worst albums of all time. They held nothing back. PEAL'S LIST:

1. "The Return of Bruno" - Bruce Willis, 1987. Yeah, I know this is a recent one, but boy, is it bad. Willis is amusing enough oozing his way through episodes of "Moonlighting," his hit television series. Truth to tell, the cable special with various rock stars eulogizing Bruno, his mysterious alter ego, wasn't half bad either. But this is clearly the most soulless soul music ever recorded. Why a record company - Motown yet! would want to preserve this junk escapes me Then again, hundreds of thousands of people bought it - no doubt paying the way for such future classics as weatherman Willard Scott's "Songs from the Shower."

2. "Never Mind the Bollocks, Here's the Sex Pistols" - Sex Pistols, 1977 I'll confess: This one is on the list only because Rolling Stone critics ranked this the second best album of the past 20 years. Who are they kidding? Has anybody really listened to this stuff since 1977? Did anybody other than rock critics even listen to it then?

stand" - The Knack, 1980. What, "My Sharona" wasn't bad enough? These would-be Beatles hit a new low with this, their second album. Rumor has it Capitol Records was so embarrassed it wouldn't even let the millions of unsold copies go cutout. Maybe they took them to a toxic Not a word about Barry Manilow, waste dump. "Baby Talks Dirty" was the alleged hit, but then "baby" probably heard the album.

4. "I'm in You" - Peter Frampton, 1977. Just one year earlier Frampton was rock's golden boy, poised to rule in airwaves for years to come. So this limp, wimpy set may have been the worst miscalculation since Napoleon decided to go snow skiing in Moscow. Not only did it kill Frampton's career, it nearly killed Farrah Fawcett's career just because she looked like him.

5. "Klaatu" - Klaatu, 1977. If we seem to be stuck in a time warp, it's only because there were so many truly dreadful albums released that year. This was one of the worst. Rumors these guys were the newly back-together Beatles kept music fans hopping for most of that spring. Then a few misguided souls actually bought the album. Yeah, these guys are the Beatles all right - if John, Paul, George and Ringo were captured by space aliens and then lobotomized. I don't believe it either. But I still think the Osmonds are clones.

"Grease" - movie soundtrack, 1978. It's easy enough to dump on John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John. So I won't. Their songs are the highlights of this overblown tworecord set. Imagine what the rest sounds like. Of course, this baby sold millions. You tell me why.

7. "The Ethel Merman Disco Album" - I swear I heard it on CKLW in 1979. A nightmare come true. Merman, one of the most inflexible of the old singers, tries vainly to come to grips with the new beat. As convincing as Donna Summer in "Annie Get Your Gun." Maybe this was a dream. Or a joke. For Merman's sake, I sure hope so.

8. "Got Live if You Want It"-3. "But the Little Girls Under- Rolling Stones, 1966. At last, a clinker from the "golden" '60s. It might not be so bad if you could - buzz, crackle, scream - HEAR the band - buzz, crackle, scream.

> 9. "Now and Then" - The Carpenters, 1973. Look, I've been nice.

Englebert or the rest of the easy-listening crowd. But when they bring their leisure-suit mentality to rock 'n' roll classics like "Please Mr. Postman," I can keep my silence no longer. (Extra demerit: These guys actually covered — get this — a Klaatu song! It's "Calling Occupants of Interplanetary Craft" and possibly the worst song ever put to vinyl.)

10. "London Town" - Paul McCartney and Wings, 1978. This should have been a classic. McCartney got down to the same basic lineup - his wife, Linda, and steadfast guitarist Denny Laine - that produced the terrific "Band on the Run" a couple of years earlier. He followed the same formula, too, holing himself up in an exotic locale - this time the Bahamas - and taking plenty of time to write and record. So what did we get: songs about a man with a "rozzer on his foot, toot, toot." This is what happens to people who have too much money.

O'CONNOR'S LIST:

1. "Face Dances" - The Who, 1981. This album had one of the most high-powered rock 'n' roll acts sounding like a sniveling bunch of wimps. Don't believe me? Just listen to such sugar-coated numbers as "Don't Let Go of the Coat" and "Cache Cache." Rumor has it that WHAM! really recorded the album.

2. Take Your Pick - Any album from the following: Ozzy Osbourne, Def Leppard, Judas Priest, Iron Maiden, the Scorpions, Metallica, Motley Crue, Quiet Riot . . . am I missing anybody? Just typing their names make my ears hurt. Notice, though, Van Halen wasn't mentioned here. Not all heavy metal bands should be bound and gagged and put Just the ones who think their music This eclectic collection of garbage is really art.

3. "Blondes Have More Fun" -Rod Stewart, 1978. The man who gave us classics like "Maggie May" and "Every Picture Tells a Story" sold out and went disco on us. "Do Ya Think I'm Sexy?" asks the maintrack off this vinyl equivalent of sludge. No, Rod, we think this album stinks.

4. "Raging Moon" - Roger Daltrey, 1986. Give it up, Roger. Without Pete Townshend, you're better off singing at weddings. Daltrey doesn't even have the decency to write his own material. Instead, he butchers songs penned by Bryan Adams, John Parr and Townshend on this throwaway. .

5. "Kilroy Was Here" - Styx. For most, it would be hard to single out any one of this band's albums as being particularly bad. They're all really stinkeroo. But this has got to be the absolute worst of the worst of the dreaded corporate rock period, including anything by Foreigner, Kansas, Journey, the Babys and Boston. Not only did corporate rock leave a black hole in music history second only to the disco debacle, people got so sick of it that it opened the door for another British invasion with the likes of Duran, Duran, Culture Club and WHAM!. Nice going, guys.

6. "Cher/Greatest Hits"- Cher, 1974. Pulleessee. Bad enough we had to listen to this Vic Tanny Annie and that ex-husband of hers whine through such less-than-classics like, "I've Got You Babe." But somewhere or somehow, Cher got the notion to go it alone. So only two albums into her solo career, she decided to release a greatest hits package no less. You figure it out.

7. "Sucking in the Seventies" -Rolling Stones, 1978. Maybe Keith Richards had pending attorney fees resulting from his drug bust in Toronto. Or, perhaps Mick Jagger needed some cash in the divorce settlement with Bianca. There has to be some reason this album was un-on a floating barge to Antarctica. loaded on the record-buying public. starts off with a live recording of "When the Whip Comes Down," which sounds like it was dubbed in a cement mixer. From there, it gets > 8. "National Breakout" - Romantics, 1980. Hey, it's hard to pick on homegrown talent, but this second album by the leather-clad lads almost made them an unwelcome lot even in Hamtramck. This album was so bad, it took the band nearly four years to recover before "In the Heat" rejuvenated its career.

9. "Bachman Turner Overdrive 2" Bachman Turner Overdrive, 1973. Maybe this shouldn't be picked as one of the worst albums of all time. After all this laid BTO to rest for good, and we all should be thankful for that.

10. "Q: Are We Not Men? A: We Are Devo" - Devo, 1978. We have George Lucas and "Star Wars" to thank for the birth of this spaced-out group. If "Whip It" wasn't bad enough, these neo-nerds had the audacity to cover such numbers as "Satisfaction" and "Secret Agent Man."

Note: Peal says if he could add an 11th album it would be "Screaming Lord Sutch and His Heavy Friends, an unmitigated disaster from 1970. Sutch, a real-life English lord, must have spent millions to hire such luminaries as Led Zeppelin's Jimmy Page, John Bonham and John Paul Jones as well as Jeff Beck and Jimi Hendrix Experience bassist Noel Redding. He still can't sing.

O'Connor says almost any album on his list could be bumped for the expected solo debut of Andrew Ridgely, late of WHAM!. He's the guy who stood around while George Michael wrote, sang and produced all of the WHAM! hits. As such, Ridgely's contribution to rock history is already inestimable.

designing ways Eve Garvin

Making its debut today is a new column, Designing Ways, written by interior designer Eve Garvin, who recently returned to this area after several years in Sarasota, Fla., where she established the Lawrence Institute of Interior Design. Prior to her move to Florida, Garvin's work has been featured in this newspaper as well as newspapers in other cities.

Not completely satisfied with the retirement style of living Florida offered, Garvin has returned to the area and is ready to assist readers with their interior design problems. Her assistance will range from answering a specific design question to directing you to the source to achieve "your" look. WANT TO take this opportunity to welcome you, the reader. What I am going to do is tell you what always worked for me in doing interior

The first thing to remember is that a house is not meant to be a showplace. It should not stop you dead in your tracks when you first walk in. Models are set up to do just that. A home should possess a charming livability - it should make your guests feel comfortable when they first walk in and even more at ease each time they return.

For those of you who enjoy the challenge of being creative, I will be here to assist you. I will be happy to advise you how, where and why. I will be on the "beat" covering local sources which include every aspect of home furnishings

A. Architectural detail can be achieved by using wood trim, i.e. crown moulding. However, if that is too costly, substitute with a wallpaper border, picking up the colors in the room. An even less costly way is to create your own border by buying a wallpaper by the roll. Your paper hanger (or you) can then cut six-inch strips suitable for a border. Bear in mind that the the paper has to be suitable for that purpose. For example, a tone on

A. Try texturing your walls. This can be accomplished by adding a drywall compound to the paint. You can create a trowel look, a stucco or strie I have consulted with a painter who advises me that you can purchase a texture powder for this purpose.

Colonial goes Classic with galleries

1937, Detroit's Colonial House Furniture opens its doors to a public who knew just what it wanted - wing chairs, cannonball headboard, cherry highboys, gateleg tables, block front chests.

Before long, Colonial House be-came one of the best known Early American retailers in Detroit. Its sales of Pennsylvania House (a manufacturer of Early American furniture) skyrocketed past even J.L.

Colonial House was a speciality store. People looked at the sign out front and knew what they would find inside. Those were the years when 50 percent of furniture sales were in Early American or Traditional.

In 1977, Colonial House enshrined its biggest selling line, Pennsylvania House, by establishing something called a gallery. The move, ironically, signaled the end of Colonial House Furniture and the beginning of a whole new way of furniture re-

"TEN YEARS AGO the idea of a gallery (an area in a store highlighting the furniture of one manufacturer and arranged in dining, living room and bedroom settings) was very innovative," said Mike Nichols, general manager of Classic Interiors, the store that for 44 years was Colonial House.

'We were, in essence, the first gallery for Pennsylvania House, and one of the first galleries anywhere."

At about the same time he was establishing this Early American gallery, Nichols noted the beginning of a consumer shift away from colonial furniture. "We started to see tremendous gains in contemporary furniture and then, in the last five or six years, the term eclectic came into furniture design. People began to mix contemporary with their tradi-

It was this consumer shift to a wider mix of styles that prompted the name change from Colonial House to Classic Interiors. "It was our desire to capture a larger share of the market, plus the fact that some of the major firms in the counthe end of 1986. Within four years

Galleries, at a minimum of $100,000 each, are an investment that more and more retailers are making in their best selling lines. According to a survey in "Furniture Today," a furniture trade magazine, 2,400 galleries were in place in furniture stores across the United States by

Classic Interiors recently opened a Thomasville gallery which provides a broader range of decorating styles, from country French to oriental, pecan to streamlined oak. The Thomasville Gallery has over 30 room settings within its designated gallery space. Blue floral wallpaper coordinates with a similiarly patterned sofa and rug; burgundy walls snug around a burgundy striped sofa and chair; dhurrie rugs, oriental vases, floral arrangements, brass horns, original art lend a distinctive ambience to each room.

There is some Early American here, as in the light pine, "Replicas 1800" group, but the Thomasville Gallery is a giant step beyond the store's strict colonial beginnings.

Decisions on further galleries are still pending and many manufacturers are under consideration, according to Nichols, confirming his com-mitment to middle and higher priced furniture which offers "not only quality but a mix of decorating

he New Breed

"I never saw anything like it. Handsome distinctive buildings on terraced land, full of intriguing angles and architectural detail. A complete change from that old 'row-house' look.

Every apartment has its own private entrance, unusual layout, and surprising extras like a washer and dryer, vertical blinds, full kitchen with dishwasher, and plenty of closet and storage space.

Some even have cathedral ceilings, oversize patio, and a large eat-in kitchen.

I look out onto lush woods and ponds . . . a jogging path . . . swimming . . . tennis . . . and a comfortable clubhouse with exercise and aerobic rooms.

It's not just a place to live; it's a place I love coming home to. You'll see what I mean."
