Schools fear asbestos law will be costly

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

Superintendent John Hoben is looking at the gloomy prospect of having to "buy moon suits and respirators" in order to comply with a recently passed asbestos law. The federal Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act requires school districts to inspect all schools for friable (flaking) asbestos. Formerly used as a fire retardant in buildings, friable asbestos is believed to cause lung cancer.

Plymouth-Canton schools expect it will cost $120,000 to do the inspection and draft a management plan.

'This discounts the inspections we had in 1980 and 1982," said Hoben. "All schools are being compelled to go back and inspect bricks and moring or building materials that may have friable asbestos.

"We think it's rather extreme." The district already has spent more than $300,000 removing asbes-

There will be labor peace through 1990 among administrators, educational aides, food service and custodial workers, technicians and engineers in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Contract agreements were approved unanimously by the Plymouth-Canton school board Monday. Still negotiating are transportation workers and secretaries.

"All the settlements reflect generally a 7-percent increase," said Norm Kee, assistant superintendent for employee relations.

Kee was unable to provide contract specifics.

"Some groups received a percentage that can't even be figured because of things they chose to buy out of the settlements," said Kee.

With the exception of the aides' agreement, which is retroactive, all the contracts take effect in July. The aides, who were working under a contract extension, ratified a settlement retroactive to July 1, 1987.

"I believe one of the more significant aspects of all these ratifications is that they all go through June 30, 1990," said trustee Dean Swartzwelter.

"With some of the tough situations we may face in the next couple three years . . . I'm pleased and gratified we're going to be working as a team as far as labor relations. Maybe we can solve a few of our financial problems."

Vet encouraged by pet awareness

Finding the right kind of animal to suit specific human lifestyles is the biggest challenge facing families who want to open their hearts and homes to pets.

People seem to be meeting the challenge, too.

That's the view of Mary Beth Leininger, a veterinarian for 21 years - 17 in Plymouth. She is past president of the Michigan Veterinary Medical Association.

"More people are getting more sophisticated in the decision-making process when they bring home a pet," Leininger said.

"We get several calls a week . . how to go about choosing pets. We allow people to borrow books, read what to expect."

DIFFERENT BREEDS of dogs have different life expectancies, temperaments and care requirements. Cats generally require less attention than dogs.

"You have to be realistic with animals," she said. Leininger also sees another positive trend. Parents seem less willing to bring baby chicks and bunnies home to small children, especially at this time of year.

'Let's face it. What they go home to is death in most situations," she

"What parents want to teach children is to be gentle and responsible. What they wind up teaching is animals are disposable and for your own pleasure." Leininger aspired to become a veterinarian from a very early age.

When I was 7, I wanted to be a nun. At 71/2, I wanted to be a vet," she said. "Most professions, the hallmark is it's almost a calling.

"NO ANIMAL comes in by himself. Not only do you have to be comfortable with animals, you also have to like people," she said.

really hard to fathom, especially when we're in a position with the budget like we are It'll cost us $120,000 even to prove we don't have asbestos, or are not capable of complying with the law.

Richard Egli, district community relations director, anticipated that many districts "would choose to ignore" the law, as compliance with federal legislation "tends to be eased

Districts violating the law face a fine of up to $5,000. While the federal government has allocated some money for asbestos removal, most funding has to come from districts' own budgets.

"THEY SHOULD get at all public buildings," he said.

The law is the brainchild of U.S. Rep. James Florio, D-New Jersey. His press secretary, John Shure, "We agree other buildings should be done. But schools are the starting place.

Florio soon will introduce legislation addressing asbestos problems in all governmental buildings, Shure

"Obviously, the point of the bill is to make schools safe," he added.

'It's possible school districts feel it is too much, because they've already complied or are doing so. But we have a dangerous situation, and we have to make sure schools every-Hoedel questioned whether the where are safe. Non-friable asbestos government should be singling out has to be inspected. to be removed.

Schools are being tackled first 'because that's where youngsters are. There's actually more of a danger for youngsters because they breathe in more of it.

"It's conceivable that an adult might already die of something else by the time they get this (lung cancer). But a youngster 10 years old could die of lung cancer by age 30. Illnesses can take years to show up."

Shure said the Environmental Protection Agency should be doing more to help schools.

"We're finding that the EPA is not doing enough. They ought to be providing schools with the resources, information and funding that they need. They should be preparing lists of (asbestos removal) contractors who are qualified."

Veterinarians go to professional school for four years beyond an associate's or bachelor's degree. Leininger graduated from Purdue University, where she met her husband, Steve, also a vet in practice

Leininger likened the work of a veterinarian to a pediatrician trying to diagnose and treat an infant

"Amazingly enough, animals relay information very clearly in non-verbal ways. As vets, we're taught to look for signs. Owners don't realize how important to me their (animal's) history is.

PEOPLE WHO fail to immunize and license their dogs because they believe it's just another way for the government to tap their pocketbooks make a big mistake, Leininger said.

"I don't think they know why it's important," she said. "What they re trying to do is make sure there's a buffer of protection between wild

A license also can identify a dog if found after it gets loose.

Cats should be vaccinated against rables too, Leininger advises. Historically, licensing of cats hasn't been required and now the medical issue has been clouded by

We try not to make choices for people." Leininger said. "We try to explain all options. If it's terminal, we can only do so much for a pet.

What a lot of people will say is, What would you do if it were your pet" I take that very seriously.

Most people, I think, are very accepting It's still very difficult to put an animal to sleep knowing one minute he's alive, the next minute he's not

The aides' union, now known as the Plymouth-Canton Para-Professional Association, MEA-NEA Local No. 3, was granted an improved benefit package.

The 130-member employee group will receive partial health and dental coverage. They previously had no dental coverage.

Food service workers, who number 70 to 75, were granted 7-percent increases for each year, and a basic vision policy.

The district's 125 custodial and maintenance workers received 7percent increases, but opted to use part of one year's raise to buy a new long-term disability policy.

All three contracts provide for onthe-job training, something that pleased Ligato.

On a recent day with a hint of early spring, John Arbanas got more than he bargained for while tending to routine yard work.

Arbanas, 59, of Garden City, was attacked by a neighbor's unlicensed pit bull terrier, suffering two puncture wounds to his right forearm before successfully fending off the animal and retreating into his house.

A RASH of attacks on people across Michigan, ranging from toddlers to senior citizens, has the state Legislature mulling several bills on stricter control of vicious animals. But some communities, including Livonia, are adopting their own ordi-

Tencza also feels there is a need for stronger control of vicious animals. But he doesn't want to see one breed, like pit bulls, singled out.

"Pit bulls are considered a macho type of dog. Some are bred as fighters, but I haven't come across that in my experience. That could go with any breed."

Garden City, which does not have specific local ordinance, controls dogs like most other communities, requiring they be licensed, receive shots to protect against rabies, and be properly secured on their owner's property or on a leash at all other Animals running free are sent home with a warning to the owners, Tencza said. Tickets may be issued in chronic problem cases. If an owner can't be found, the animal is taken to the local dog pound.

That may seem like a lot to ask but it could be standard on a homeowner's insurance policy," said Livonia city attorney Harry Tatigian

A vicious dog is defined as one that has bit a person at least once, according to the proposed Livonia ordinance.

The new regulation would also require owners to display warning signs on the premises and a similar sign on the dog's pen or kennel. Designated dangerous dogs would be securely leashed and muzzled when off the owner's property.

The ordinance would also ban dog fighting or training dogs to attack humans or domestic animals.

A vicious attack by three English bull terriers against three members of a Livonia family (including two young boys) early last December precipitated the local ordinance, according to Livonia animal control officer Thomas Burger.

The attack on the family brought it to a head," said Burger.

A legislative committee of the city council has scheduled an April meeting to discuss the ordinance.

Plymouth Township is in the process of reviewing all of its local ordinances, and rules banning the keeping of vicious animals as pets will be addressed, according to deputy police chief Chip Snider. Action is expected next month.

In Canton Township, there is no local ordinance governing the control of vicious animals, according to animal control officer John Swalley. But dogs must be confined to their own yard and animal control offi- in that incident.

Exactly one year ago, two pit bull terriers attacked and severely mauled a 55-year-old township man in front of his Grand River vacuum repair shop. He was bitten on the face, arms and legs before being rescued by a passing motorist who beat back the dogs with an ax handle.

The victim underwent three operations and 16 days hospitalization. The dogs were destroyed and for a time, township officials discussed a plan to ban pit bull terriers. That effort fizzled.

Prior to the pit bull attack, an 11year-old Redford girl fell and broke her hip while being chased by a German shepherd while on the way to her school bus stop. She spent a month in traction at Botsford General Hospital.

Critics have charged Mack's bill with being too specific to be enforced. Bullard's proposal has been called too vague by its detractors.

Three hearings took place across Michigan recently. A Livonia family victims of a December attack by pit bull terriers - testified at one hearing earlier this month, urging better control.

"We feel a breed specific bill is impossible," said Stacie Smith, a staff worker in Bullard's office.

'Any solution focused on pit bulls is too narrowly focused, short sighted and ineffective. Other breeds can be trained to attack on command. The primary intent of (Bullard's) legislation is to focus on all dogs."

McNamara seeks solid waste cuts

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Wayne County communities would have to cut their garbage output by 75 percent before the year 2000 under a solid waste disposal plan proposed Tuesday by county executive Edward McNamara.

The plan requires communities to massively cut their solid waste output if they plan on continuing to use county landfills.

While a limited number of new landfills will be built, the plan would from 75 percent reduction, Mack prevent communities from using said. Tax breaks and other benefits them unless they filed a solid waste reduction plan with the county by Jan. 1, 1991.

Incineration and recycling is the key to reducing waste, McNamara said. While the county would assist, communities would have to develop their own waste disposal plans.

"HOW THEY do it is up to them," McNamara said.

New incinerators may have to be built. Capacity in the controversial Detroit Incinerator and the soon-tobe-reopened Central Wayne Incinjob, McNamara said. He estimated the combined in the combined incinerator space would only accomplish 20 percent of the needed reduction. McNamara unveiled the plan to Wayne County mayors Tuesday night. He said he was unaware of any opposition from the mayors.

The regulations would apply to all Wayne County cities and townships, as well as to New York and New Jersey. Both states ship waste to Michigan landfills.

Counties are required under state law to develop and implement solid waste removal plans.

"WE'RE GOING to take action to reduce our dependence on landfills," said county commissioner Milton ounty landfills.

> Though the county adopted a solid waste management plan in 1984, McNamara pronounced the earlier plan "a failure."

That plan called also called for an increase in incineration and recycling but didn't provide as stringent a requirement upon individual com-munities. Instead, it called on communities to "continually evaluate their long term solid waste disposal options and give consideration to the formation of cooperative community arrangements for disposal."

The plan, McNamara said, only achieved a 3 percent reduction in solid waste since its implementation.

The plan requires approval of the county commission and two-thirds of the county's 43 cities and townships. State law requires counties to adopt solid waste disposal plans.

Responding to pressure from Detroit-area Catholics and Irish-Americans, state Sen. Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, held a much-delayed hearing on the MacBride Principles last week.

Nichols, whose district includes Rochester, Rochester Hills and Oakland Township, chairs the Senate Judiciary Committee where the bill had been stalled since May Supported by Gov. James Blanchard, the legislation passed the House 97-0 last spring.

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, said the Senate Republican leadership was told by the U.S. State Department that the bill would undermine foreign policy.

The MacBride Principles, similar to South Africa's Sullivan Principles, are guidelines designed to end employment discrimination in Northern Ireland They call for the public advertising of jobs, hiring members of and equal access to training programs.

Call Democratic headquarters in Lansing at 1-517-371-5410 and ask for a delcaration of candidacy form. Fill it out and return it to the state chairman by 5 p.m. on April 9 if you want to run from a congressional district.

For an at-large post, file by 5 p.m. April 30.

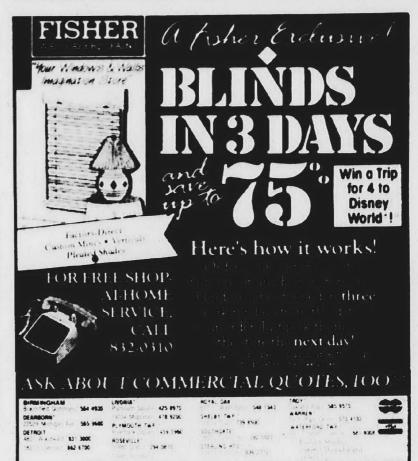

Your "declaration of candidacy" must give your full name, a pledge of support for a presidential candidate (unless you are filing uncommitted), your address, a statement that you are either a registered voter or will be registered by Nov. 9 and a declaration of where you intend to compete (congressional district or at-large).

EACH PRESIDENTIAL campaign will receive a list of candidates supporting that campaign.

The campaigns have the right to approve candidates for both district and at-large delegate slots. They must approve at least three men for each male delegate position and three women for each female delegate position they have been allocated. District conventions on May 7 will choose between them.

Delegates aren't legally bound to vote for their candidates, either on the first ballot or any other time. In fact, Gephardt Monday dropped out of the race. But the fact that they have been screened by the campaigns indicates some degree of loy-

War against drugs wins Jesse big vote

THE MYSTIFIED, who wonder why Jesse Jackson is winning, should come out from under their rocks.

They should have been in middle America Michigan when Jesse Jackson was cheered by the students at Southfield High or as he talked with the kids at Bloomfield Hills Lahser.

They may have learned a lesson that many of those students already know. They may have learned the lesson that many people of my postwar generation share with them

The story, with some variation, goes like this.

In what seems like yesterday, I had a friend who was young, healthy, handsome and athletic.

HE HAD the whole wide world in his hands, as the song of that time said. Whatever he wanted, he could have had. People looked at my friend as a leader for the future, a person who would make his mark and leave this world a better place. No good reason could be found to believe otherwise. But that friend has been dead now for almost 20 years. The sight of his once healthy body, withering scene that sears my memory.

We were at a party, seeing each other for the first time in two years. I was shocked. This once promising person was a junkie, a heroin addict and rather proud of his state.

that issue. And we have grasped, he opted, instead, for the lethal world of drugs. A few weeks later, he was dead from a heroin overdose. His words to me, "I can handle it," have haunted me ever since. I've hated drug abuse and the profits made from it to this day. Now, that many years ago, few folks were attuned to drug abuse, real drug abuse - the kind that de-

OUR COUNTRY'S leaders really didn't pay much attention. They and shook their fingers at the marijuanawasting away from drugs, is the smoking crowd of the '60s. They told us that "hard" drugs were a problem reserved for the ghetto.

And what many political analysts leader who is willing to address that issue. And we don't care if that leader is black, white, yellow or brown. And that is the concern Jackson addresses and the other candidates have completely missed. This country has survived and prospered in spite of more than 200 years of free trade and trade embargoes, wars and communists, fascists and fanatics.

But our country, like my longdead friend, is slowly withering away in the face of the illegal drugs that overwhelm us.

Many in my generation know it and see it. Many in the next know it even better.

And that's why Jesse Jackson is winning

For those of us in the know, his color is very incidental. His cause is supremely consequential.

Child abuse

Money for prevention is short

TONEY DEVOTED to the prevention of child abuse is shamefully inadequate in this state. We urge our legislators to ensure permanent and consistent financing for child abuse prevention programs in the state budget. We urge legislators to acknowledge that the prevention of child abuse is as important to the state's quality of life as are improved roads, more prisons and economic development. We support the designation of April as "National Child Abuse Prevention Month. We call on legislators and taxpayers to use this designation as yet another vehicle for spotlighting the serious problem and obvious need for secure and permanent financing.

OUR STATE budget reflects a "wait until it happens" attitude. Approximately $1 billion is spent annually picking up the pieces of children's broken lives through the corrections department and protective and mental health services.

Our legislators have offered no consistent direct contributions in the state budget to prevent abuse before it happens.

A meager $1.2 million was provided to the Children's Trust Fund last year through the Michigan Income Tax form's contribution box to provide educational, prevention and intervention programs for the state's parents and children.

With a reported 45,000 cases of child abuse in Michigan last year, that simply is not enough.

As the originator of the CTF check-off box, state Rep. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, so aptly puts it: "In my book, we are paying a large portion of our $6 billion state budget for picking up the pieces of child abuse. There is such a demand for financing for after-the-fact problems."

THE CHILDREN in this state who suffer injury, molestation and neglect at the hands of parents they are told to love and trust deserve more

The grief and shock of child abuse is no secret. Each notorious case brings the grotesque problem to the forefront.

But there's a good chance the 45,000 reported incidents of child abuse last year could have been We support CTF and its work in 'providing

The check-off box and private direct charitable contributions are the only financial means available through the state to prevent abuse before it happens.

In a society where a child is abused every 15 seconds, we definitely need much more.

No longer can the malignancy of family violence remain behind the protective locked doors of the family home.

NO LONGER can we close our eyes and our pocketbooks to a problem that is marring our present and future generations. The abused child of today will almost certainly become the abuser Statistics bear out that claim. Ask state corrections officials. More than 85 percent of the inmates at Jackson State Prison were abused or neglected as children. The fact is abuse is not an isolated result of poverty or ignorance. In the so-called best of homes, you will find sexually, physically and emotionally abused children.

The facts are that the best way to prevent abuse is education. But education costs money. Too many parents don't know how to be parents. Too many parents unleash their anger and stress on their children. And too many children carry the guilt and behavioral patterns into their fu-

Don't send me brochure

Last week, I received a mailed brochure from Omnicom Cable Television about their amnesty program for those who were stealing cable services. In the brochure it described their hi-tech methods for locating these people. Since that time I have seen and heard other information concerning their problem. My problem is that I do not or have not considered obtaining their services legally or illegally and resent that brochure being sent to my home. I think that if Omnicom wants to keep its business growing by adding new customers, they had better find a new PR company. Since they say they have the capability to ferret out these "cable crooks," wouldn't it have been just as easy to discover these people and then send them the brochure?

Reconsider your action

To the editor:

This letter is written in the belief that the people of Plymouth, and the people of Our Lady of Good Counsel parish in particular, should be aware of what is going on on Penniman Av-

Last summer our neighbors on the north, at 197 Arthur, had their house for sale but failed to secure a buyer. After it was taken off the market they were approached by a certain real estate salesman who left them with the impression that he represented "a European corporation" interested in buying their house. A deal was made. There upon the salesman approached the owner of the property on our east side saying, in effect, your property has a high value now but what would it be worth with a parking lot in back? Would you like to sell while it is still

Now we find that the salesman was really representing Our Lady of Good Counsel Church and the purpose is to build a parking lot which will wrap around two sides of our We can understand that Our Lady of Good Counsel may need additional parking. After all, we have endured the traffic problems arising from Our Lady of Good Counsel Church and School for years without complaint. What we don't understand is the callous disregard for the welfare of the neighborhood and the devious and underhanded methods employed.

A parking lot as proposed, extending from Penniman Avenue northward along the west side of Arthur, will have a damaging effect not only on our block but also on the residences along Penniman opposite the church and, perhaps, on the whole

It appears to us that there are other possible solutions that would be less damaging to the neighborhood and certainly less damaging to the house in which we have lived for 31 years, in which our son died and in which we had expected to spend our remaining years.

We appeal to the people of Our Lady of Good Counsel parish to urge their leaders to reconsider the course they are taking.

Keep your dogs quiet

To the editor:

Now that spring is here and soon our windows will be open, I would like to say something to dog owners that live in a subdivision. Please remember how close your neighbors

There is nothing more irritating than a dog that is outside and constantly barks at things all day long. Please consider your neighbor out in his backyard enjoying the outdoors, napping children, or people who work afternoons and are sleeping.

Your dog can literally ruin someone's summer. As a dog-owner myself I know that a dog cannot be kept completely silent during warm weather, but I do take my neighbor into consideration. It would be wonderful if my neighbors would do the

Confessions of a reporter's son

SOMEONE'S BEEN FOOLING with Mother Nature. The butterflyto-be has gone through the egg stage and smack dab in the middle of the larva stage has decided it's time to be a pupa. For those who don't remember high school biology, that's the equivalent of the teenage years in the insect world.

Yes, the 10-year-old kid is bugging his mother.

"Halt," I've been telling the would-be butterfly. "You're trying to metamorphose too fast. Forget puberty for now. I haven't yet dealt with the pre-pubescent stage." Or words to that effect. True to form for his coveted age group, he isn't

The change was almost overnight, but it certainly wasn't physical. He looks like the normal 10-year-old I remember. Shorter and slighter than most of his companions, height of 54 inches nearly equal in numbers to weight in pounds. But his hands and hair are cleaner now and there are other notable differences, but we'll

It started about six weeks ago:

"I probably shouldn't be telling you this," the 10-year-old said, "but I'm thinking of going with a girl."

"WHERE ARE YOU going?" was my reaction, a normal reaction I thought. It caused a raising of eyebrows and rolling of eyes on the head of the fifth grader.

'You don't understand anything." he said - for the first time, but certainly not the last time. It's become his rallying cry.

That's the price you pay when you're a reporter's child, I told him. You never know when you're grist for the mill. Off the record? There's no such thing to a reporter/mother.

TO GET BACK to the story: For two weeks I received daily progress reports. I saw the note he passed her, now kept in his wallet next to her picture. On one side in his handwriting, "Will you go with me.?"

In her handwriting on the reverse side, the reply, "Yes." Communication obviously is not an art lost to the younger generation.

The daily reports continued. "We held hands during the movie at school today . . . She called me after school today . . . Today we had a tornado drill. I got to put my head down next to her.

Keep in mind that this is the same kid that put his hands over his eyes a few months ago during a movie kissing scene, charging, "Oooh, mushy!"

From past experience I know this is all perfectly normal behavior for a 13- or 14-year-old, but not for one several years younger. I realize that it's been nearly eight years since I last had a 10-year-old but it seems to me the the rate of development has rapidly accelerated from the pre-teen of the turn of the decade to the pre-teen of the late '80s. Either that or the 10-year-old's older brothers were cases of arrested development, late bloomers.

"Don't worry," the brothers keep advising on their trips home from college. "He's OK."

I WASN'T REALLY worried. I rather enjoyed the fact that he had decided to bathe and brush his teeth tric.

daily and comb his hair hourly. Suddenly the kid who never cared what he covered his body with was into "in" clothes. "In" clothes this month, apparently, are jeans without knees. The more strings hanging from them

I wasn't really worried until he started locking the bedroom door. Why would a 10-year-old lock the door of the bedroom, the same bedroom previously occupied by college-age brothers?

I gave him the "little pig, little pig, let me come in" routine, banging on the door, threatening. He opened the door claiming he was doing "nothing." The light bulb went on. At the first opportunity I asked his brother to inventory his magazine collection, Sports Illustrated swimsuit issues and worse. The owner found they were missing from the top shelf of the closet and were in with the youngster's Mad magazines. They were repossessed and trashed.

The kid says I'm ruining his social life. I discourage phone calls and refuse to drop him off at movie theaters and remove him from in front of the mirror if he's there for more than 15 minutes. I find myself frequently shouting at the top of my lungs, "I am bigger than you. I am older than you. I am still in charge here. That's why!"

IN THE LATEST go round, he charged child abuse, and threatened to sue. He couldn't find even one of the only three pairs of jeans he ever wears. All were faded, very faded, with saucer-sized holes in the knees. I had thrown them all out and replaced them with five new pairs of very clean, very neat, very blue

"Do you know how long it will take to get these in the right shape?" he cried.

He cried? I cried. Do you know how long it will take until this one is off to college? Seven years, six months and numerous days. I hope

Jesse motivates teens

HE CAME as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Before he left, the Rev. Jesse Jackson became the students' history teacher, counselor and

The candidate's recent morning appearance was a union twice blessed, blessed for Jackson who got in and out of town before the rest of the pack, and blessed for the 1,550 suburban high school students who, in absorbing his message, became a part of history.

The students were not alone in basking in his light. Teachers and administrators reported a warm glow that lasted throughout the day. Sometimes with surprise, all remarked about how Jackson, though obviously campaigning, geared the bulk of his talk to the needs of his student audience.

HERE WAS A candidate who gave more than he likely got from that appearance, who did more than nibble a fruit or shake a hand to win votes.

For many of the total 1,700 in that audience, Jackson didn't need to become president to have an impact on

Ask the more than 100 students who gathered in front of the podium in response to Jackson's request that those who use substances "make your choice today."

It was a gimmick, no question, but one in which Jackson carefully minded his charges. First he warned photographers to avoid shooting faces; then he repeatedly ordered the students to face him so none could be identified by a camera.

Who could question motives after witnessing the students' response to questions about drugs and guns?

'Hope is in the brains rather than dope in the veins.' Jackson told them. He challenged students to make school's free of both drugs and guns.

There was no mistaking Jackson's genuine joy over seeing the student body, blacks and whites seated together in an arrangement the students may have taken for granted. This was the best payoff from the civil rights struggle of 23 years ago, he said.

"I am somebody," the candidate asked them to repeat. "Respect me, protect me, never neglect me."

Regardless of what happens in the election, there isn't much more that a person can give a teen other than enough self-respect and determination to last a lifetime.

TUDENTS AT Lowell Middle School did some celebrating the morning of Thursday, March 24.

The students participated in the school's first "Reading and Writing" celebration.

The event was held to highlight 'March Is Reading Month' in Michigan. Authors, reporters, writers, storytellers and others talked with the middle school students about the importance of reading and writing.

"They may not see the skills of reading and writing as necessary,' said Mary Uhl, a teacher at Lowell and East middle schools.

Uhl was co-chairwoman of the "Reading and Writing" celebration. She worked with co-chairwoman Marge Kucher and with members of a planning committee.

"This year, I went all out and got a committee to help me," Uhl said. The program was made possible with the financial assistance of the Plymouth Community Arts Council, which provided a $700 grant.

THE STUDENT council provided financial support for the program; school improvement funds were also used.

The event was held to expose students to different kinds of writing, Uhl said.

And to recognize some of the writers in the area." All of the students at Lowell par-

Although the students read and speak English quite well, there's still a culture shock when they first arrive in this country. Things look different in the U.S.

What Are Your Chances OF ACQUIRING CATARACTS?

Excellent! First let me say that of all the major eye problems, cataracts are the least to fear, and through modern treatment, over 95% of cataract patients can experience improved vision.

The number of adults who have cataracts is astounding. It's kind of like counting the number of adults with grey hair. The natural lens of the eye, usually crystal clear at birth, becomes hazy over time until less and less light passes through to the retina. This is a progressive process like grey hair. The cells in the natural lens of the eye grow towards its center, until by age 60 over 60% of adults will have opacities or imperfections in the lenses within their eyes. These opacities are what is called a cataract. Most eye doctors don't call them cataracts until they interfere with vision. For this reason some patients are upset when their eye doctor discovers a "baby" cataract when only twelve months ago during an annual eye examination the patient's eyes were perfect and the doctor said everything looked healthy. Some patients remark, "Why didn't the doctor tell me I was developing a cataract?" Actually the doctor could see a cloudiness developing within the lens of the eye, but he didn't want to alarm his patient, since cloudy cataracts are a normal part of growing old, just like grey hair. Nobody is astounded by the announcement that their hair is turning silver, and neither should they be alarmed over the discovery of a cataract. If we live long enough, grey hair and cataracts will develop. Most of the time we don't need to do anything about our grey hair, nor our cataracts. Only when poor vision from cataracts cannot be corrected with glasses and interferes with daily activities do we need to do anything about them. Then they are removed and replaced with a clear artificial lens. Do you have questions about cataracts? Call our eye center today.

finds themselves squeezing into fit their current church home.

This Sunday, that church home will be the site of a special children's service. This family survives with a special love every Friday. Another letter from the other granddaughter every Monday. Color photos in each letter almost every week. Two phone calls each week from the daughter and the mother of the two granddaughters. Eight dozen cookies whenever an empty tin is returned by mail. The grandparents live in the Detroit area. Their only family lives in the deep South.

In every visit to their home, I include in my prayer a thanksgiving for the care their daughter and granddaughters express to this older couple. I often see generous and sustaining expressions of care and regard for parents and grandparents. Seldom have I seen it as constant and extensive as in this family. The family has not always been as distant from one another. There were years nearly two decades ago. where the family was in close proximity. Their daughter had married and lived in a neighboring community. The births of granddaughters were family celebrations. Then came the tragic death of their son inlaw, and daughter and granddaughters moved into their home. For nearly two years, grandparents were more like parents. Marriage created a second home, this time miles distant to the south.

WHAT IS the bond in this family? Suffering can bind people together The loss for one experienced by others will forge that bond of grief and memory which time can only diffuse, never remove. Suffering remembers life. Suffering builds a new association of experience and hope. Is this the weld for this care of fami-

There are other clues of family bonds. Pastoral visits will include

A letter from one granddaughter conversations of past events, and comparisons with current. Father and mother always attended daughter's school programs. They enjoyed her friends, and always encouraged even late evening calls for transportation home. I have never heard one word of complaint. They delighted in their life together.

The passing years have given their mark of time. Even though both have exceeded three score years and 10, and by reason of strength have moved toward fourscore, Grandmother has suffered several strokes. Grandfather cooks and cleans. However, tea is always served in china cups, and we never use anything but linen napkins. There is integrity and dignity to life, they care for each other, and there is a care for others.

A LETTER each Friday from one granddaughter and her family. A letter each Monday from the other granddaughter and her family. Two phone calls each from their daughter at specific times as regular as the days themselves. Cookies on a regular schedule (we enjoy them at tea), and other occasional packages. Gifts of life graciously given. Gifts of life graciously received.

Family love can explain this. The kind of love that is forged when each regards the other as a gift of life to be cherished and esteemed. The kind of love that counts not the cost but the opportunity to support and sustain. The kind of love that delights in the arrival of each new day as an unfolding of continuing grace. This kind of family love is not cheap, but ' this family would never want life to unfold in any other way. The Rev. Lloyd Buss is pastor at Abiding Presence Lutheran Church in Rochester.

Directory assistance for a foreign connection

By Mary Rodrique

Got a product to sell but need a market? Looking for foreign-made merchandise'

In either case, Paul Crunk may be your man

The Livonia-based businessman specializes in international trade. Crunk has a line into just about every market worldwide, with products ranging from food to textiles to tools and everything in between.

I can help people interested in buying from foreign manufacturers or selling to foreign manufacturers," he said

Crunk's Merriman Road apartment serves as his base of operation. His office features a wall of bookcases holding the latest directories from Taiwan, Korea and 20 other countries. Trade books range from thin monthly magazines specializing in automotive parts, equipment and machinery to chunky books chock full of information about a myriad of manufacturers.

The Taiwan Yellow Pages, for example, lists not only the company name, address, and phone number, but also the president's name, telephone number for document facsimile transmission, how long the firm has been in business, and a detailed listing of what they import and ex-

After five years in the trade directories business. Crunk claims he has retained exclusive rights to sell the directories in North America agreements worked out with each individual publisher. He earns a commission on the books he sells.

PEOPLE BUYING the books range from housewives thinking of going into business, maybe selling tablecloths and linens in flea markets, all the way to businessmen who want to cut out the middle man," Crunk said.

"If you want to start your own business, this could do it. I've had manufacturers' reps buy these because they want to represent some companies.

"It covers all manufacturers and suppliers from A to Z," Crunk said.

People come here and look through the books, it gives them a whole head full of ideas.

Savings is the motivator behind the idea of eliminating the middle man. Crunk leafed through one catalog and came to a page full of pictures of eelskin handbags made in Korea. Bought directly from the

ALTHOUGH TAIWAN and Korea Middle East, China, Japan, Denmark, Barbados, Germany, Greece, Hong Kong, India, Indochina, Mexico, and the Philippines.

Also stocked are listings for Singapore, Switzerland, a book of cluster listings for 32 European nations, the International Food and Beverage Guide, a Swiss watch directory, the Taiwan Yellow Pages Monthly (a more condensed version of the mammoth Yellow Pages), Taiwan Trade Monthly, Importers Directory, a book on how to do business with Taiwan, a Turkey major directory, Turkey general import/export directory, Turkey industrial and trade directory, a travel importers trade directory and a Yugoslavian directo-ry. All are updated every year.

What Crunk doesn't have in stock takes three weeks to order.

He says the commission he earns provides a livable wage. His office used to be located in the Livonia pavillion at Seven Mile and Middlebelt but became too costly (rent plus telex and phone bills came to $2,500 monthly, he said.)

Crunk says he is currently looking for sales agents, particularly in other parts of the country, to sell the directories. He is also working out plans to sell at least the more popular directories at 7-Eleven stores and B. Dalton bookstores. The Taiwan Trade Monthly will sell for $4.58 a copy on newsstands.

While the emphasis to date is primarily for the business community. Crunk is working with publishers to produce a consumers catalog based on Korean and Taiwanese goods.

The consumer catalog is going through research in Taiwan and Korea," he said.

Crunk warns anyone who buys a directory to make initial contact to the manufacturer by letter - not telephone. And he provides sample copies of letters to send that will ensure the best response. "If you call, they will still tell you to make a written request," he said. Crunk himself has imported grass whips and chain saws, as well as band and stage lighting equipment.

Leafing randomly through the catalogs, the choices are many: auto parts, tools, electronic items, machinery, bicycles, toys, novelties such as smokeless ashtrays and dust collectors, baby furniture, exercise equipment, and clothes.

You write to the manufacturer. They send you a full color catalog with a detailed price list by sea and air," Crunk explained.

Crunk can be reached at Detroit International Inc., P.O. Box 9108, Livonia 48151. A sample copy of the Taiwan Yellow Pages Monthly plus brochures and a price list for other directories is available for $7. Or call Crunk at 478-9432.

Solving woes of ailing businesses

Multi Financial Services, a Birmingham-based financial services and management firm, has increased its annual revenues 40 percent since 1983 by turning more than 90 percent of the failing companies it advises into moneymakers.

The company's turnaround management services comprised 60 percent of its $1.5 million 1987 revenues, derived from firms with annual sales of $2 million to $200 million.

Fees range from $75-$200 an hour to between 1 percent and 10 percent of a client's annual revenues, depending on difficulty of turnaround.

High costs, slow cash flow and persistent calls from creditors put Denis Moore in a bind. His company, Moore Flame Cutting of Sterling Heights, a manufacturer or steel plates, was about to go broke when a white knight galloped to its rescue.

With aid from Multi Financial Sevices, Moore was able to stem costs with tighter inventory control, obtain capital and work out a less stringent payables plan. This enabled the maker of plates for steel and paper mills and the automotive and coal-mining industries to avoid closing his doors for good.

"We would not have made it without Multi; right now we're going through some tough times, but with what I've learned we should do OK," Moore said. "Multi set up a payables plan with our creditors, brought money into the company and taught us how to watch our cost-to-income

There are also disadvantages to joint ownership of property

Since jointly owned assets automatically pass to the surviving spouse, the survivor is more likely to end up with more than $600,000 if the couple owns all assets jointly. This could result in higher estate taxes upon the death of the surviving spouse who would not enjoy the luxury of marital deduction.

The disadvantage of joint ownership is especially noticeable where it is used as a substitute for a valid will. If the couple dies in an auto accident and there is not will, the entire property will be distributed by the estate according to the rigid, unalterable rules.

The company I work for has discontinued its retirement plan, and I will receive a lump sum payment of about $8,000. I would like to roll this amount over into an IRA, to avoid paying income tax at that time.

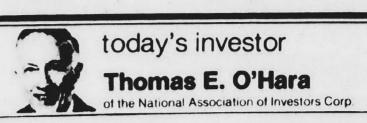

What I would like to do is take the money and buy Exxon common stock and have the dividends be automatically reinvested in additional shares. Will the dividends be tax free to me until such time as I retire, and would I be able to invest additional Pace, two well-known names in Detroit television, are now tackling the Hollywood scene, with some success.

They have moved their base of operations to Los Angeles but have a third partner, their financial one, in the Detroit area. He is Southfield entrepreneur Dick Kughn, president of

"We're new guys on the block," Clemmer said during a recent visit to the offices of the Observer & Eccentric. Pace arrived later, to join him in the interview, where they discussed how their move to Los Angeles has helped them develop TV and film projects.

THEIR FIRST production is a mini-series they are co-producing with Lorimar (where "Dallas" and "Falconcrest" are produced). The series, which will run in two-hour segments two nights on CBS, is about the 1925 murder trial of Dr. Ossian Sweet, a black doctor in Detroit who was defended by Clarence Darrow.

Not long ago, metropolitan Detroiters had an opportunity to see a drama about this same trial, in an original play presented locally (Arthur Beer did the play at the University of Detroit), but Clemmer said that play was not their inspiration. 'We had started research the previous year," he said.

Briefly retelling the story, Clemmer said it's about a 30-yearold black doctor who wanted a nicer home than Paradise Valley and moved into a white area. Racial threats led him to ask his brothers and friends to help him defend the house. Weapons were smuggled in, and when whites rushed the house, the blacks opened fire, killing and in-

"Darrow came out of retirement to take the case," he said. The famous defense lawyer had just finished the Leopold-Loeb trial and the Scopes Monkey Trial. "Darrow called it the single most important DESCRIBING THE plot implications, Clemmer said, "It's coming to terms on an intimate black and white drama, as well as a largescale social drama."

"We originally took it to PBS, but they already had a Darrow project. They were doing the life of Darrow." Clemmer and Pace were told by a contact that Lorimar was looking for something special. The partners' project proved to be what Lorimar

"You're going to hear they're not open to quality drama anymore, they (producers) just want slash and trash," said Clemmer, who is grateful that isn't true.

Getting the project off the ground was difficult. "The real test was selling the writer," Clemmer said. They managed to get Hollywood's Joel Oliansky, "a highly respected writer. Once he was committed, CBS went for the deal."

Clemmer said he and Pace have been in and out of Detroit several times, doing research on the production. Helping them is researcher Susie Levin of Southfield, who was an intern working with Clemmer when he was at the WJBK-TV show "PM Magazine."

"NOW JOEL is writing the script, which will take several months. He will direct and we hope to have a summer shoot," Clemmer said. Some weeks later, Pace said by phone that the script was delayed, due to the Writer's Guild strike.

Part of the mini-series will be shot in New York, but Clemmer said some film has been shot of the historical area - the Garland-Charlevoix area on Detroit's east side here the racial confrontation occurred.

He wasn't ready to announce the cast. "We have a very good idea who The Sweet trial is known in aca- will be portraying the 68-year-old

"If you're going to be in the Hollywood game, you have to be out there," Clemmer emphasized. "If you're happy with what you're doing, you're happy no matter where you are."

Every time he is in Detroit, winning TV and feature film writer Clemmer visits Detroit Country Day Kathryn Montgomery willerdo the School in Beverly Hills, where he used to teach English, direct drama and coach football. He sees Don Craig, who is an old friend there, as well as other teachers and students. 'I came back for a 10th reunion for the class of '77 - a lot of kids who were especially close to me.' Burning fuels produce changes that create acid rain acid rain program presentation at school. Can you explain what acid

A. Acid rain, acid deposition and acid precipitation are names for the same changes that occur in the atmosphere when fossil fuels are burned.

Sulfur and nitrogen bound up in these fossil fuels are the two factors causing acid rain and the resulting environmental damage.

Sulfur is emitted into the air from smokestacks in its gaseous form becomes absorbed in surface waters and land and the vegetation through the leaves and root system

This process of acidification is called "dry deposition" because the deposits occur in gaseous form or as small dry particles

Wet deposition is the result of another chemical change to the sulfur dioxide as it leaves the smokestacks. Some of the sulfur dioxide is oxidized by atmospheric oxygen and becomes sulfuric acid (H2S04).

Sulfuric acid does not exist in a gaseous form. It can only occur as sulfur dioxide (S02). Eventually it small particles or in solution with clouds or rain dropiets

Eventually this acid solution comes down with the precipitation rain, snow, fog, sleet, hail - and it literally rains acid.

oxide Like sulfur dioxide, these oxides can be either dry deposited or the nitrogen oxide (NO2) can be combined with moisture in the air and converted into nitric acid (HN03) and be wet deposited.

When these two chemicals are dissolved in water, they appear primarily as sulfate and hydrogen ions, or nitrate and hydrogen ions

A hydrogen ion is a hydrogen atom that has lost its electron negative charge) and becomes a positively charged ion or cation.

In the end, acidification is the reions get into circulation.

Acidity is measured by the concentration of hydrogen ions in the solution. Acid lakes and soil are the result of the repeated process in which the concentration of hydrogen ions has steadily increased. This excess of hydrogen ions causes chemical and biological processes that also affect the ions of other substances

Naturally occuring metals that are important plant nutrients, such as potassium (K plus), magnesium (Mg2 plus) and calcium (Ca2plus) are leached out of the ground by the hydrogen ions and lost to the vegetation in the acidic area.

As the ecosystem's balance shifts with the loss of these metals, heavy metals like cadmium, mercury and large amounts causing injury to water, soil and living organisms.

THE ASTONISHING fact about acid rain is not the sudden concern about the problem, but that the problem has only just begun to be addressed by governments.

Smokestacks have been belching out these harmful emissions since the 19th century. There has been a well documented body of knowledge about the problems resulting from these emissions and the resulting acid rain in Europe since 1907.

Widows offer best advice for other widows

My husband died a year ago. After 37 years of married life, I was suddenly alone.

I can barely remember the funeral and the first two weeks following his death. During this time, I was fortunate enough to have the help and support of my family and a good friend, who also is a widow.

Now that I am beginning to see my way clear to a life without my husband, I would like to help others who are newly widowed.

Could you tell me where to start, who to contact, what to read, etc.? Thank you.

Dear Mrs. G.: In the early stages of being widowed, you really were fortuante to have not only your family, who were suffering the loss along with you, but also the help and support of another

Chiefs poised for more track success

BILL BRESLER/staff photographe

Tricia Carney (left) and Heather Miller exchange congratulations after finishing second and first, respectively, in the 100yard dash. Both are returning members of Canton's team.

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

The reputation Plymouth Canton has earned in recent years as a power in girls track shows no sign of let-

The Chiefs return a host of individual talent, with all-stater Angie Miller heading the list, and could be on the verge of their most successful season yet. Canton has won the Western Division dual-meet championship the last three years and is among the favorites to win in '88. The Western Lakes title eluded the Chiefs last year when North Farmington put it all together at the league meet and edged Canton, 73-

But that honor as well could belong to the Chiefs in the months ahead if they have the kind of season some area track observers predict for Canton.

"WE'VE GOT AS much talent as we've ever had, and we're working hard to maintain the tradition we've started the last three years," coach George Przygodski said.

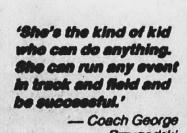

"The idea is to keep up the intensity. If we do that, we could have a good year. We do have a talented team.

When one thinks of Canton girls track, Miller's name quickly comes to mind. As a junior, she was league, regional and state champ in the high jump, winning the latter meet by reaching a height of 5-6.

"I just can't say enough about her," Przygodski said. "She's an incredible talent.'

Miller is so good in the high jump, however, it's easy to overlook her ability in other areas. Observerland's female track athlete of the year for '87 is the defending WLAA champion in the 400-meter dash, too. She was second in the area with a time of 1:00.4.

"She wants to give more to the program on the track," Przygodski said. "She wants to improve in the 400 and add to what she's done in the high jump.

"SHE'S THE KIND of kid who can do anything. She can run any event in track and field and be successful.

'But she's so good in the high jump," he added, "you have to start limiting what she does running, so she can (high) jump where she's capable of.

In addition to Miller, there are many others who complement her and make the Chiefs a well-rounded

Four others who will play key roles are seniors Tricia Carney, Heather Miller and Sherry Figurski and junior Cindy Spessard, all of whom are veterans of the sport, too.

Carney was second only to Miller in the 400 at the WLAA meet, and she also runs the 200 dash and re-

Heather Miller, a key member of Canton's division-winning girls basketball team, is one of the team's top sprinters and long jumpers. She was among Observerland's top 10 in the 100-meter dash last year.

"SHE'LL BE ONE of the leaders said. "She's a real competitor and great leader.

"She brings the same attitude she had on the basketball court onto the track. She's a leader anywhere she Figurski and Spessard are two reasons the Chiefs will strong in the distance events. Both were key members of Przygodski's cross country team that won the league championship and qualified for state last

Adrienne Clark won't have to worry about being alone in a strange place when she begins her freshman year at Drake University next fall

Clark, who gave a verbal commit ment to the women's basketball program at the Des Moines (Iowa) school last week, knows she already has a friend on campus

Clark is the second Farmington Hills Mercy player to be successfully recruited by Drake in as many ears, and she will join former high school teammate Yvette Maison on the Lady Bulldogs roster.

That was a big factor," Clark said. "It helped out a lot since we're cause, as a high tempo team, they both good friends. That was like icing on the cake.

Yvette was home the past week. and I asked her if she thought I'd be able to fit in She said it would be good for me to go there DRAKE'S COACHES, (head table coach) Susan Yow and (assistant) Sue Doran spotted Clark when they were recruiting Maison. They saw Maison play at a summer camp prior to her senior year and, while watching terest but not made a definite com-Mercy games and tapes that season, noticed Clark, also,

> I thought it would be best for me to have a little responsibility of my own and be an individual. My mother thought it would be best for me to go away, to see how it is out there."

The Drake coaches view Clark as the offer from a school that is far a player with sound fundamentals who will work her way into the program and lineup gradually instead of being expected to have an immediate impact. The Lady Bulldogs are recruiting three guards to beef up that part of their roster, according to what Clark was told.

"I'm just so proud of her, because she entered the (Mercy) program without any experience in organized basketball," Baker said.

She entered Mercy for the academic advantages, but obviously, from the day she entered basketball, she had some natural talents.

'It's a real credit to her that she put herself in the position to be considered for an athletic scholarship,"

AS THE HIGH school coach of two players sought after by Drake, Baker has been impressed by the way Yow and Doran went about their recruiting objective. In the case of Clark, they dealt with her one on one instead of through Mai-

Clark also set two school records last season in the district tournament, scoring 32 points against Detroit Henry Ford and making 12 steals against Detroit Western. She shot 50 percent from the floor and 77 percent at the free-throw line during her senior year.

Hoop hysteria makes believer out of scribe

Brad Emons, a colleague who works out of our office in Livonia, constantly promotes the virtues of college basketball. He attends as many games as he can, and although he's never been to a Final Four, he has been to countless NCAA tournament games.

A well-known hoop hysteric, Emons emphatically extolls the talent and intensity of college basketball. The atmosphere, he proclaims, is

I'm a hockey nut at heart. He knows that

But now I understand what Brad's been talking about all these years. Now I know why, after working all night Friday, he picks up and drives four, five, six hours to catch some collegiate cage clash in Indianapolis or Cincinnati on Saturday College tournament basketball, indeed, is exciting.

I attended my first NCAA basketball tournament games over the weekend. I hope it won't be my last. As Emons says, it is a fantastic experience.

The talent is amazing. The action is fast. The atmosphere is tin-

Allow me to offer a few impressions of the Midwest Regional Tournament hosted by the University of Detroit over the weekend at the Pontiac Silverdome.

• Danny Manning is an awesome player. He scored every way imaginable in Friday evening's victory over Vanderbilt. He was just as entertaining in Sunday's championship game against arch rival Kansas State. And, from a spectator's point of view, he seems to be a genuine good sport. Vandy center Will Perdue had fouled out with a few minutes left in Friday's game. When Manning came out of the game, he went over to the Vandy bench and shaked Purdue's hand. It seemed to be a sincere gesture of good sportsmanship. • How did Kansas State ever beat Purdue? The Boilermakers, behind the outstanding shooting of Everette Stephens, looked unstoppable in the first half against K-State. But they fell apart in the second and the Wildcats were able to pull the upset. K-State simply did not have enough left for Kansas on Sunday. State's Mitch Richmond, however, is a superb talent and a possible sleeper in the NBA draft

• There's no place like Dome. That was the theme Sunday as Kansas met Kansas State in the regional championship game. The fans the few who made the long trip from the heartland of America were wild in their enthusiasm. In another show of sportsmanship, both sides rooted for each other Friday night in their separate games. That was quite a sight. Would Michigan and Michigan State fans do

• I got to chat with a few localites who attended the weekend's festivities. Cranbrook boys basketball coach Robert Rogers was in his glory as Kansas - his pre-tournament favorite - won and moved into the elite 'Final Four.' Rochester girls basketball coach Tom Hawes was an interested spectator during Thursday's practice rounds. And Birmingham Country Club assistant golf pro Jeff Roth eschewed a few rounds on the links to take in some hardcourt action.

Finally, how did Purdue ever lose?

POOLING AROUND: The McDermott Masters Midwest 9 Ball Championship will be held April 6-10 at the Troy Hilton Hotel. The women will compete on April 6 for the Midwest Women's title. The winners will be given a paid entry to stay over and compete in the 64field men's tournament. It should be interesting watching the women compete for the men's Midwestern championship. Paul Roberts, a Bloomfield Hills Andover graduate who now works out of Los Angeles for Roberts and Company promotions, is back in town doing publicity work for the tournament. Roberts says billiards is the number eight participant sport in the country, according to a recent Gallup poll. General admission tournament tickets are $7.50.

Area players lift U-M

The University of Michigan baseball team is on a roll, due in part to the play of three former area standouts.

The Wolverines have won 10 straight games, and are 11-5 entering play

Tom Brock, a senior right fielder from Garden City and a Dearborn Divine Child graduate, is hitting .429 and is tied for the team lead in home runs with three. He is second on the team with 14 RBI. Brock's two-out, eighth-inning pinch hit three-run homer Sunday capped a doubleheader sweep for Michigan over Ball State.

In six games last week, Brock hit safely in nine of 15 plate appearances. Greg Haeger, a freshman first-baseman/pitcher from Redford Catholic Central, is fifth on the team in batting at .349. He has two homers and nine RBI. Haeger has one game-winning RBI.

Haeger, an all-state pitcher for the Class A state-champion Shamrocks, has not performed on the mound for Michigan. He has completed 103 fielding Orchard Lake St. Mary graduate Mike Ignasiak, a first-team All-Big Ten choice last spring as a junior, is enjoying another fine campaign.

Ignasiak, third on U-M's career list with 226 strikeouts, has a 3-1 record and an ERA of 2.05. He has a career record of 26-11.

Veteran trackmen help Salem deal with losses

By Dan O'Moore staff writer

At Plymouth Salem, it's not a question of rebuilding the boys track team but restructuring it.

Coach Gary Balconi must contend with the same preseason challenge every coach has to face.

The headache is trying to replace graduated stars, but relief comes through realizing there are an equal number of standouts still in the fold

The Rocks lost one of the school's all-time best trackmen when Brian Neuhardt used up his eligibility last year. He was an excellent sprinter and anchor-leg runner in relays.

'If we kept it close, Brian usually brought home the baton," Balconi said.

Other departed cogs include distance runner Kevin Jones, high jumper Doug Soho, hurdlers Chris Hill and Jeff Armstrong and long jumper Shawn Hunter. Hill was the Western Lakes champ in the low hurdles, and Hunter exceeded 22 feet in the long jump.

"THE LONG JUMP and high jump are places we need to fill most drastically," said Balconi, adding there are 92 boys out for track.

Salem has enough proven talent coming back, however, that it should field another competitive team in what is a competitive league.

In the field events, senior Jay Blaylock is the leader among the throwers after taking a top-10 finish in the discus at last year's state meet.

Senior Romolo Maura also worked hard in the off season and is looking forward to a good year, Balconi said, and senior Kurt Feller is possibly the next best among a dedicated group of specialists.

Salem was the Lakes Division champ in cross country last fall, and many of the members of coach Geoff Baker's team also run track, giving the Rocks a solid core of distance runners.

"All the kids off the cross country team are out for track." Balconi said. "Geoff Baker does an excellent job of developing the cross country team, and that's certainly to the track team's advantage."

SENIOR DOUG Vergari placed 13th in the state in cross country, and fellow seniors Bill Atwell and Alan Rye and junior Scott Stryker are products of that team who will make Salem strong in the long runs. Balconi also sees potential in sophomores Brendon Masterson and Mike Barretta.

At the opposite end of the spectrum, seniors LaMarchial Crayton and Garrett Bowie are the top sprinters. Crayton, also the No. 1 long jumper, specializes in the 100-meter dash, Bowie the 200.

Sophomore Jeff Wright tied Neuhardt's freshman record in the 200 last year, and seniors Greg Pahl, Rick Najarian and Dennis Reynolds and junior J.P. LaRoche are additional sprinters. Bowie, Crayton, Pahl and LaRoche are experienced relay runners. The latter gets stronger as the season goes on, according to Balconi, since LaRoche gets a late start due to the length of the hockey season. "The relays are a matter of putting all those kids together in the right combination," Balconi said.

A key objective will be to rebuild the 1600 relay team, of which Neuhardt and Hill were members. LaRoche is a good place start after he ran the best split time at the state meet last year.

SALEM, WITH well-balanced performances, won the Elks and Observerland Relays last year. The Rocks will have the opportunity to defend their titles on Saturday, April 16, and Saturday, May 7, respectively.

'I wouldn't begin to guess if we have that kind of strength," said Balconi of the prospect of doing so in the annual Observerland meet. "You have to be strong all over the track and be healthy that day."

While the Rocks lost Hill in the hurdles, the experience and ability of seniors Keith Smith and Mike Park in the high and intermediate events give Salem a position of strength with which to begin. The low hurdles no longer exist since the height has been raised from 30 inches to 36 this year, prompting the change in terminology to intermediate. The high hurdles remain at 39 inches. Salem's season gets an early start this Saturday when it travels to East Lansing for the Spartan Relays. Easter vacation begins Friday, however, and Balconi will take a limited contingent of about a dozen athletes.

"We look forward to doing well in our heats," Balconi said. "It will give the kids who've been training during the winter a chance to compete.

Salem's boys track team will be counting on dles this spring. Smith is one of the Rocks' vetsenior Keith Smith to score points in the hur- eran athletes the Raiders will count on to perform well in their areas of specialization. Johnson, a sprinter and long jumper, stands out in the 400 meters, though he can run anything from the 200 to 800.

He will help in the relays and has turned in an early-season split time of 51.8 in the quarter. Johnson had a season best of 19-8 in the long jump a year has the physical tools to be a decent shot putter. He has the potential to be in COHEN IS NORTH'S jack-of-all-trades, according to Jones. He can run the sprint events, throw the shot put or carry the baton on a relay team.

'He's one of those kids who's fun to coach, because he'll do anything he's asked to do," Jones said. "Originally, he ran track because he thought it would help his football (career), but he's one who is always there.'

Harnden is the key man in the distance events, specializing in the 1600. He was ill during the winter, however, and only recently resumed training. "Hopefully, by the time we get to the middle of the season, he'll be back pretty close to form," Jones said. "I thought Tom had the potential to run

The year was 1978 and the team was Orchard Lake St. Mary's, coached by Bob Shoemaker. It was a well-oiled machine, this state Class D

I can still reel off the names of the five starters: Evaristo Perez, the 6-foot-7 Dominican kid in the middle, Jim Paciorek (Mr. Everything) and Barry Bugaj (the shooter) at the forwards; David Kay (the ball-handler) and Gregg Williamson (what a leaper at 5-8) at the guards.

That team was special to me because they were so enjoyable to watch.

dunks by Parish Hickman, the shot-blocking of Da Juan Smith, the penetrating drives of Dwayne Kelley, the steady play of Eric Emanuel (the ultimate role player) and the emergence of sophomore Shawn Respert as fifth cog in the Borgess wheel.

This team impressed me because they did it without one of their best players, Cordell Robinson, who transferred to Detroit Mackenzie before the season began for reasons that still escape me. But coach Mike Fusco was prophetic: "We'll be a good team, with or without him."

He was so right. THIS BORGESS TEAM, upset by Warren De-LaSalle in the Catholic League finals, never got a rematch with PSL champion Detroit Southwest-

Dropping down to Class B because of falling enrollment, the Spartans never got a shot at Detroit Cooley either, another PSL team that had beaten them at the district a year earlier.

But this Borgess team, in my opinion, could have played with the PSL's best.

There were some sad faces Saturday when Borgess lost to Grand Rapids South Christian in the state finals.

It wasn't a game Borgess blew, although some may point to the eight-point lead that evaporated in the fourth quarter

Mr. Basketball, Matt Steigenga, was most responsible for their defeat. He is simply the most impressive player I've seen since Earvin John

But the most impressive thing I saw in this Borgess team was the way they matured, especially at state tournament time.

THEY HANDLED their final defeat with class - no pouting, crying or dropping of trophies. They congratulated their victors and took their medicine like men.

This Borgess team is in the same class with Bob Shoemaker's 1978 club.

These guys I'll never forget.

Thanks, fellas, for many enjoyable times. You'll be missed.

The Redford AA midget hockey team (16-17 year-olds) reached the finals before falling to South Boston, 7-3, in the championship game of the National Tournament Sunday at the Aksarben Arena in Omaha, Neb.

Eight teams from the across the country competed for the coveted title.

In the final, South Boston jumped out to a 2-0 first period lead before Redford's Rich Kendall (Thurston High), on an assist from Joe Gaffney (Thurston), cut the deficit to one at the 1:29 mark. But South Boston scored three unanswered goals before Keith Kirby (Thurston), on assists from Bob Bates (Thurston) and Geoff Wilson (Thurston), closed out the second period scoring to make it 5-2.

South Boston scored twice in the third period and Kendall notched his second of the day, from Mike D'Antonio and Tim Pilut (Bishop Borgess), to end the scoring. Redford lost despite outshooting its opponent, 27-18.

On Friday, Redford opened the tournament with a 3-1 loss to Binghamton, N.Y. as Nick Renzi (Plymouth Salem) scored the lone goal from Kendall and Lyle Fegert.

REDFORD BOUNCED back to defeat Portland (Ore.) in a second round game Friday, 13-5.

Redford led 5-2 after one period and only 7-5 after two before outscoring the Oregonians, 6-1 in the final period.

Pilut led the scoring assault with four goals and three assists. D'Antonio and Kendall added two each, while Kirby and Bingham each tallied one goal and four assists. Fegert, Mark Davidson (Thurston) and Matt Megregian also scored goals in the Redford

On Saturday, Redford outlasted South Boston, 6-5, as Kendall scored the winning goal from Fegert and Davidson with only 1:54 left.

Pilut had the hat trick for the winners, while Bingham and Renzi completed the Redford scoring. Goalie Howie Schoenfeldt (Thurston), with help from defenseman Jim Ford, kicked away 24 shots. The win created a three way tie between Redford, Binghamton and South Boston in the American Division, but Redford and South Boston each advanced based on the tie-breaker format based on goals for and goals against.

THAT PUT Redford in the semifinals Sunday against defending national champion Team Toledo.

Undaunted, Redford skated to a thrilling 3-2 victory, tallying three straight goals in the final period as Pilut notched the gamewinner from Bingham with 7:55 remaining after Kendall and Bingham opened the third period with goals to knot the score at 2-

Redford, coached by Kirk Hunter, finished its banner season with a 43-14-1 record.

But that doesn't mean there are less talented players among Observerland's four schools.

The choices for the first and second team slots were difficult, considering all four teams combined for an overall season record of 60-25-7.

Gordie Wilson, forward, Livonia Stevenson: A senior winger, Wilson tallied a total of 31 goals and 33 assists. He led the SPHL in scoring en route to all-league and all-state honors. In the All-Stater Game, played March 20, he racked up two goals and two assists.

'Gordie is a big, strong, tough winger," said Stevenson coach Matt Mulcahy. "For a big guy he is also a good skater."

Larry Bsharah, forward, Redford CC: A senior all-stater, Bsharah's best attributes were his willingness to go in the corners and dig out the puck. Coach Jack Gumbleton called him "a Bill Baffy, defense, Redford CC: Made the All-Area squad last year as a junior. By far the area's best defenseman, the senior all-stater scored 10 goals and 16

"Bill had both offensive and defensive skills," said Gumbleton. "He made it hard to get the puck away from him."

Tim Siedlaczek, defense, Livonia Churchill: The Chargers' assistant captain enjoyed a banner senior season. He had three goals and 17 assists.

He sacrificed for the team, according to coach Rudy Varvari. Tim was a good hitter and was intense," said the Churchill coach. "He was willing to move up to forward, if needed.

Cooper elementary students Crystal West, Kellie June, Lynette Roback, Chris Koenig and Andrew Boudreau are routed into the museum by instructor Delores Mehringer. The museum - a restored firehouse — offered three floors of scientific fun - far more than the 11/2 hour trip could accommodate.

Museum magic

LL THIRD-GRADERS forever should go - not once but twice and as many times as possible. That's how Cooper Elementary School instructor Linda Bozgan feels about field trips to the Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum. In agreement is her colleague Delores Mehringer. The pair recently took a class of 8- and 9-year-olds to the museum where science becomes fun as well as informative because children can actively participate in all the experiments themselves. "They mean it when they say hands-on. And that doesn't happen too often in many educational settings. Often children aren't allowed to touch," the two teachers

"THE KIDS ARE practically worn out at the end of the trip,' Bozgan smiles, "there are so many activities to do in the short 1 1/2 hours we're there."

What is so neat about the museum," said Bozgan, "is that the experiments are conducted with things the youngsters can readily find around the house. Nothing exotic that would deter them

And that's exactly what the folks at the museum have in mind, and that's why the schedule changes so often. Each month or so there is a different program emphasis. When the Cooper students visited, the spotlight was on the inside story of light, color and rainbows, in addition to the regular offerings.

Currently, the museum is featuring a temporary new exhibit, "Everyday Life in China." Some of the hands-on activities include games, calligraphy and clothing to try on. Another museum offering, until April 10, is "Tops," developed by Bernie Zubrowski of the Boston Children's Museum. It helps youngsters learn about the law of physics as they have fun playing with childhood toys.

Oakway's 'Belshazzar' meets demanding criteria

By Mary Jane Doerr special writer

THE OAKWAY Symphony Orchestra, soon to be renamed the Livonia Symphony, pulled out all stops, so to speak, Sunday in a blockbuster program featuring the demanding 1931 William Walton oratorio, "Belshazzar's Feast."

In Farmington's Harrison High School, the 200-member Ward Presbyterian Church choir of Livonia, led by the competent bass Steve Morscheck, was powerful enough to carry over the raucous tempos and raw harmonies in the orchestration of this contemporary work. The piece has moments of calm and melodic tunes that are interspersed between the dramatically interesting volatile

Under the direction of conductor Francesco DiBlasi, the symphony seemed to glory in this array of dissonance and fury.

"Belshazzar's Feast" is taken from the libretto of Osbert Sitwell and centers upon the story in Chap-ter 5 of Daniel, and parts of Isaiah and Psalms. Historically, Belshazzar is Nebuchadnezzar II, King of Babylon in the sixth century B.C. during the Jewish dispersion.

Walton was 29 at the time he composed this work, reputed to be one of his finest. It placed him among England's great composers of this century. Later, in 1953, he composed the "Crown Imperial" for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II.

IN THE ABSENCE OF program notes and a lack of biographies of either soloist Morscheck or conductor of Ward's choir, Dr. Jerry Smith, who trained the choir for this performance, nothing is known of the musical background of the performers. (Unless, of course, members of the audience were members of Ward's congregation.) Obviously, the orchestra spent more time on the exceedingly difficult number than it did on the Easter portion of "Messiah" by Handel, which was performed during the first half of the program. The performance revealed some faulty entrances and some untuned strin Smith's change of tempo in concert could not have been better.

"Hallelujah Chorus" was dramatically effective, but not acceptable.

The well-trained Ward choir was very familiar with the selections from the famous Handel oratorio, which according to Oakway's vice president David Wassenar, was the inspiration for the Walton Oratorio. As a choir, the group has a vigorous

Mistakes become learning experiences

"tendencies to error." Believe me, I am qualified to talk about this subject because I tend to make errors

I remember a student once asked me, "How did you ever learn all this make-up or men with beards, you about art?" and I quickly replied, Oh, easy. I have made lots of mistakes, but tried learning something from each one of them." I guess you can ease the pain of mistakes by calling them "learning experiences."

But at some point in your art experience, mistakes become a plain ol' pain in the neck. The better way to learn from mistakes is when you learn from the mistakes of others. And since so many of us tend to make similar mistakes, it would be most beneficial to list some of them.

One of my most published goofs was a cartoon that I did for a magazine. The cartoon was of a big crowd of people, some of whom were holding up signs. I carefully drew the first row of people head to foot. Then I began drawing just the shoulders and heads of everyone behind them.

This cartoon was published nationally and in 14 foreign countries. I was so proud. I quickly opened it up to find my cartoon and gasped when I found it - I had forgotten to draw the legs and feet of all of the rest of the crowd. I just stood there and got real hot. I guess you could call it an international blush!

BUT I'LL TELL you one thing, I always counted my heads and feet from that day on. Later that year, one of my marker renderings was chosen to be in a Pantone calendar.

On one of the other months, an artist drew a chorus line; there were six legs kicking high, six legs touching the ground. Six ruffled skirts showing six rear ends, but wait . . . there were only five heads. Believe me, I know how the artist felt. So in keeping with my "tendencies to error" topic, let's continue. Before I finish anatomy (from the last article), let me state that I could write a book on errors in anatomy and many of them are from my own experiences. I am here merely men-

Smiling mouths seldom turn up at the corners. We think they do so we massive chins and very square muzdraw them turning up when in reali- zles.

YOU remember from my last - ty they most often rise to be simply article, I have been discussing straight across with a shortened upper lip.

When drawing people with clothes on, you must first draw the human figure and then add the clothes. Similarly when drawing clowns with must draw a human face then add the make-up or beard.

IN SCENERY or still life, watch for what I call the mailbox tendency. Just about every drawing of a mailbox with the door opened has one major error. Usually the door is bigger or smaller than the opening of the mailbox. Rarely does it feel that the door actually fits on the mailbox.

But it doesn't have to be just mailboxes. Does the bucket look like it's the right size for the well? Does the handle on the wicker basket really feel like it is the right size? Does the open barn door fit the doorway opening in the barn? Etc., etc.

Because of my love of animals, I could write an article on drawing every animal there is, but obviously I will be very brief and just skim the Birds usually have feet much bigger than people think and their eyes are most always round. The feathers around the eyes make them appear out of round. Wings like the feet are usually drawn too small. The eyes especially in predatory birds are very close to the beak.

WHEN DRAWING dogs or cats, it is very common to get the eyes too close together, the ears too close to the eyes and the chins too big. Fluffy dogs and cats are actually more difficult to draw.

You must show some structure under the fluff or your drawing will look like a muppet. Any animal with a muzzle can be a problem.

Artist tend to look at the muzzle as round shapes. When in fact they are round shapes built on a square foundation. The end of a muzzle is usually flat. The nostrils open somewhat frontally. The nose, however, bends over the top of the muzzle and fades quickly into the fuzzy hair of the upper muzzle. Wild cats have more angular eyes,

Don't ignore obvious subject

Did you know there's a photographic subject of great potential that is often ignored, frequently taken for granted and yet is used without exception in every photograph we take?

What I'm referring to is plain, old fashioned, all-important light. Isn't it time we gave it more respect?

Obviously, light is used to illuminate all our photographic subjects, but now let's turn the tables and use light as the subject itself. If you do, your pictures will be dramatic and exciting.

To begin with, those beautiful sunset photographs we all shoot showing the sun as a brilliantly descending fireball surrounded by a rainbow of clouds are in reality photgraphs of light as the subject. We've all been shooting sunsets for years but didn't realize we're photographing light it-

In a backlit subject showing a striking silhouette, the lighting is the direct cause of the silhouette and is therefore indirectly the subject.

What about lens flare, the usually unacceptable reflections of sunlight bouncing off the glass elements in the lens?

Of course, in most of your shots, you want to eliminate lens flare by preventing the sun from entering your camera's lens. But how about deliberately allowing some lens flare in order to add an unusual and exciting effect to your picture? In doing so, the flare, or light, becomes your subject. Here's an idea to help make light your subject. With slow speed film and a strong foreground subject, shoot pictures with the sun directly in the viewfinder. But instead of heeding the meter, use the camera's smallest aperture and fastest shutter speed. In other words, underexpose as much as you can. Also, for safety's sake, don't look at the sun through the viewfinder alongside the sun.

This "underexposing" procedure will produce absolutely sensational photographs showing the sun as a "star," the foreground subject as a dramatic silhouette, and, depending on the lens used and the time of day, some exciting lens flare. What have you really done here? You've made light of your subject.

In the photograph shown here, I've done exactly what I've just described and you can see the result.

So, begin to think in terms of using light itself as the subject. It's a fine opportunity to acquire a better understanding and appreciation of light. After all, as oils are to the painter, light is to the photographer. c1988, Monte Nagler condo queries Robert M.

Q. We are a mobile home park association where the mobile home owners are renting pads from the owner of the park. We have learned recently about the ability to condominiumize our mobile home park. Can you give us any information?

A. Part of the 1978 Condominium Act contained a provision for the condominiumizing of mobile homes and mobile home parks. It may not be possible for the association in and of itself to condominiumize the park unless it buys the land from the owner of the park itself.

Perhaps a separate entity could be formed to purchase the mobile park from the owner, where the mobile home owners could then develop their own mobile home condominium. It is, of course, an intriguing idea which will need further review and investigation by you.

NBD's new Bi-Weekly Mortgage

· Cuts 9 years off a 30-year loan.

Reduces interest costs 35.

· Builds equity almost twice as fast.

What does Bi-Weekly mean, exactly? And how does this new mortgage work? Bi-Weekly simply means you make our house payment every other week. Instead of writing out one large check once a month, you pay half every two weeks. So, rather than making 12 big monthly payments a year, you make 26 small ones every two weeks. The two extra payments make the difference, cutting about 9 years off the life of your mortgage.

The last 9 years are free? Right. This mortgage gives you the low payments of a 30-year mortgage, and is fully paid off in just 21 years. In that sense, NBD's new Bi-Weekly combines the best features of 15- and 30-year fixed rate mortgages. Because NBD requires just 10%. down, the Bi-Weekly Mortgage is perfect for first-time

Suppose I sell my home 7 years from now...will I have more equity in it? Yes. With the NBD Bi-Weekly Mortgage, you build equity in your home almost twice as fast as a conventional 30-year mortgage. So when you sell your home...or if you want to use the equity in it for any purpose...the equity will be nearly double what it would have been otherwise.

And if I keep my home for the full 21 years...how much will I save? About 35%. For many home buyers in this area, that could mean sixty to seventy-five thousand dollars. To find out how much you would save, check the table below.

NBD's new Bi-Weekly Mortgage sounds interesting. But I need more details. Just call or visit one of the NBD Mortgage Company offices listed below. Our home mortgage specialists will get you the information to get started right away.

QUESTION: One of the big benefits of owning investment property is the ability to depreciate it and treat this depreciation as a paper loss. Has the Tax Reform Act changed this in anyway?

ANSWER: Yes it has. For properties placed in service starting in 1987, the Tax Reform Act both lengthens the depreciation period and changes the rate at which the properties can be written off. Under prior rules, both commercial and residential real estate were depreciable over a 19-year period. On top of that, real estate could be written off at an accelerated rate that produced bigger deductions in the early years of ownership than in the later years.

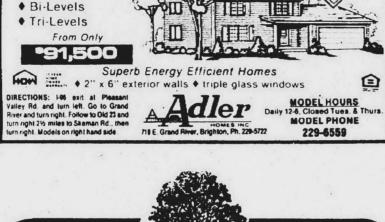

The Tax Reform Act increases the depreciation period to 271/3 years for residential rental property and 311/3 years for commercial property. Accelerated depreciation has been eliminated. Both types of property must now be written off using straight-line depreciation.

Getting them to bloom on time takes planning

ONG-RANGE planning by greenhouse growers is needed to make your gift lily bloom in time for Easter

Many of the bulbs for this year's Easter holiday were dug last fall and then given a six-week cold treatment at 35 to 40 degrees Farenheit to induce the plants to form flower buds

I'm told that the colder the temperature, the fewer leaves and flower buds the plants produce. So growers must be careful to strike just the right balance between enough cold and too much cold.

Bulbs may be chilled in their shipping crates or in their pots in a cooler or a cold frame. In a cooler, the grower has total temperature control. In a cold frame, bulbs are at the mercy of the weather.

In mid or late December, after cooling, the bulbs are brought into the greenhouse, where soil temperature is regulated at about 63 degrees.

WHEN SHOOTS EMERGE early in January, many growers interrupt the night with four hours of artificial light for a week or two.

The plants produce leaves until about the third week in January, then begin forming flower buds that will become visible when all the leaves have unfolded.

The trick in getting lilies to bloom on time is to control the speed at which leaves unfold and buds are visible. From this bud stage, it takes 30 to 35 days for flowering. To determine the visible bud date, the expert related, growers count back about 35 days from Palm Sunday. This will put most lilies in flower the week before Easter, when

weeder's guide

people are shopping for plants.

Warmer greenhouse temperatures speed up leaf unfolding time; cooler temperatures slow it. When Easter comes early, growers must raise greenhouse temperatures to push plants, a costly practice.

Some years, growers have an extra week or two to prepare plants. This can bring problems if there is an early spring. You can't slow down lilies in the greenhouse when outside weather is sunny and warm.

A LATE EASTER can cause other problems: A grower can't start another crop when lilies are taking up greenhouse space

The goal of growers watching a calendar, clock and thermostat is to produce on time a lily with as many flowers as possible, green leaves, a good shape and desirable height.

A plant considered well-shaped is wide at the bottom. narrow at the top and not too tall. Our expert doesn't like plants shaped like an ice-cream cope - wider at top than bottom, with widely spaced leaves and few flower buds, which you get from bulbs too long in cold treatment.

The grower has to do some re-figuring every year with

THE WITNESS TREE

The Witness tree is a giant, 345-year-old white oak near Donegal Presbyterian Church at Lancaster County, Pa. During a visit, bearded Joseph Brogan, innkeeper at the adjacent Cameron Estate Inn. told us the tree's history

Col. Bertram Galbraith was awakened at 4 a.m. on a summer Sunday of 1777 by a messenger from the commander in chief, telling him to prepare marching orders for the militia. The British, under the command of Gen. Howe, were moving into Philadelphia. Congress had to flee to Lancaster and move on to New York. Washington's forces were backing away toward the eventual winter of Valley Forge

Col. Alexander Lowrey, one of Galbraith's commanders, was given the orders while at Sunday worship in the 1739 church. The congregation filed out and joined hands around the oak tree, pledging allegiance to the new nation. The men then marched off to battle.

The Witness tree has lost one large limb and a few smaller ones. In 1930, tree experts treated the old oak and planted pachysandra to preserve moisture around the tree
