Graham, McClendon win school board race

Barbara Graham and E.J. McClendon used different styles to finish first and second, respectively. Monday in the race for two seats on the Plymouth-Canton school board.

Graham ran a highly visible campaign with signs and slick brochures. Citizens for Better Education, a group that objects to some movies and books used as teaching materials in the district, provided money and workers to get Graham elected. McClendon, who had served on the board for three terms, campaigned more actively for the Headlee Amendment override than he did in his own behalf.

Graham tallied 1,840 votes, McClendon, 1,766. Graham placed first in seven precincts and McClendon finished first in six precincts and among absentee voters.

Mary Dahn finished third with 1,272 votes. She topped the field in the only other precinct up for grabs.

"We feel we're getting a backup. It chokes the intersection down there," Myers said.

Motorists would have to go directly through the intersection on Main toward Joy Road or else turn right onto Ann Arbor Road. Barricades would go up as needed, probably sometime after 9 p.m.,

"THERE MAY BE additional prohibited left turns along the Main corridor," he added.

Traffic was especially heavy last Saturday in downtown Plymouth.

Summerlike weather brings out cruisers

"This was our most significant weekend of cruising of spring and summer to date," Sincock said.

Police issued upward of 50 tickets at least 15 for alcohol-related offenses, Sincock said.

Those included seven for minors in possession, five for open intoxicants in a motor vehicle and three for drunk driving.

"It was warm. We had a lot of walkers on streets and a lot of traffic. It was the last weekend of school for seniors. They had just got out," Sincock said.

"It was busy - no doubt about that," Myers added, attributing the increase in traffic volume to people just wanting to be outdoors.

TRESPASSING and loitering didn't seem to be major problems last weekend except at a couple of pizza parlors, Sincock said. Some neighbors complained about noise.

Sincock said he'd be working with those businesses to make them aware of how to deal better with crowds of young people in their parking lots.

Myers said he doesn't know what to expect as far as cruising goes when all students in the community get out of school for the summer.

"I made no speeches. I had no coffees. I had no fliers, no ads. I took the position people know me, by and large, in the community and they know where I stand on the issues. Why should I go out and confuse them?" McClendon said.

Walker attributed his defeat in great part to the large number of candidates who split up the electorate appealing for votes.

"I ran a campaign I felt was appropriate," Walker said.

He doesn't know whether he'll seek a seat on the school board again.

"I hate to speculate on what-ifs," Walker said.

David Artley, board president, said he doesn't know what effect Graham will have on the board.

Graduation isn't a "vacation from learning," it's "the beginning of our next phase of life."

That's how Minh Tran Quach, the featured speaker at Sunday's Salem High School commencement, described the event that began with speeches and handshakes and culminated in a school party that lasted until the wee hours of the next morn-

Salem and its neighbor, Canton High School, held separate commencement ceremonies Sunday in Ann Arbor's Hill Auditorium. The 1988 classes represent the largest group ever to graduate from either of the schools. Some 696 students graduated from Salem, while 606 got diplomas from Canton.

Both schools had held contests to determine which of the graduates would be the featured speaker at their respective ceremonies.

Evan Yeung, who graduated at the top of his class at Canton High, told his classmates that "instead of doing math and science problems from a textbook, we will have to struggle with the problems of the real world, which is far less forgiving than the hardest teacher.'

He also reminded them they will help shape the future.

WE WILL be the ones to help decide whether or not institutions such as South Africa and apartheid, starvation in third-world countries and political oppression and torture in the world will exist to be passed on to the next generation," said Yeung.

THE PRINCIPALS of both school reported that the ceremonies werk off with no hitches.

Of all the graduations I have been through, I think this one went off the smoothest." Salem principal Gerald Ostoin said of the 5 p.m. commencement. "I don't view graduation as an event I think it should be more solemn, more thoughtful." He said Sunday's ceremony fit that bill!

But while community leaders call prisoner transfers a big headache, they haven't exactly endorsed the idea of a new jail tax. Caution is the watchword as community leaders discuss the proposed tax.

I think it's a good idea to seek a jail millage, but that doesn't necessarily mean I'd support it or oppose it," Redford Township supervisor James Kelly said. "I'd like to see more information before making up my mind."

Westland Mayor Charles "Trav" Griffin expressed similar sentiments. Griffin, president of the Conference of Western Wayne, said the 17-community group would wait for recommendations from a county commission-appointed jail task force before issuing any endorsement of

"Our director, Ann Bollin, is a member of the task force," Griffin said. "And we want more information, not just on the money but on how it will be spent."

Writing on the conference's behalf, Bollin called any endorsement 'premature" in a June 8 letter to to support anything that would add task force chairman James Holley.

Commission splits on need for new jail tax

Millage would raise $20 million

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Wayne County voters will be asked to support a new 1-mill jail tax during the Aug. 2 primary.

County commissioners approved ballot wording late Tuesday afternoon and sent the issue to county clerk's office had told commissioners ballot wording had to be approved by Tuesday for the item to be included on the primary ballot.

At the same time, commissioners withdrew a renewal request for a 1mill general operating tax. That millage doesn't expire until 1990. Renewal will be sought at a later time, commissioners said.

The tax would be used to increase county jail space. People living in homes with a market value of $75,000 would pay $37.50 a year more if the tax is approved. The new tax would raise an estimated $20 million a year for the county, according to executive's office and commission estimates.

One-tenth of jail tax revenue would be reserved for a work training institution for juvenile offenders. McNamara, Sheriff Robert Ficano and Chief Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman were present during the vote. All three men endorsed the tax increase request. Among local commissioners, Richard Manning, D-Redford Township, and Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, voted against putting the issue on the August ballot.

"WE APPOINTED a citizens taskforce to look at this thing, and I'm still awaiting their recommendation," Manning said. "Right now, I don't have enough information and neither do the people in my district." Manning's district includes all of

Redford Township. Heintz, whose district includes Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, said last week she wouldn't support any tax increase proposal for the jail. Commissioners Milton Mack, D-Wayne and Kay Beard, D-Inkster, supported the ballot issue. Both commissioners differed, however, on whether 1 mill was enough. Beard, who represents Garden City, called for a 1.5 mill increase. "(Last time) we passed a millage large enough to build but not to operate," she said, referring to money used to build the four-year-old Andrew C. Baird Detention Facility in downtown Detroit. Mack, who represents Canton Township, said any proposal seeking more than 1 mill would likely be rejected by voters.

— Richard Manning Redford Township

"ONE MILL can be sold (to voters,)" he said. "Put an additional half-mill on the ballot, and we could find that we'll end up with nothing."

The proposal passed 10-4. Others voting in favor included: Arthur Blackwell, Curt Boller, Jackie Currie, George Cushingberry, Bernard Kilpatrick, William O'Neil, Edward Plawicki and commission chairman Arthur Carter. Commissioners David Cavanagh and Clarence Young joined with Heintz and Manning in voting no. Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara called for a 1-mill jail tax June 6. The county commissionappointed jail task force had been meeting since the beginning of the Space for an estimated 1,070 additional inmates is needed to prevent early releases, McNamara said.

McNamara proposed building a new jail, with space for 840 prisoners, adding space for 230 additional prisoners at the county jail and adding 40 additional beds at the county youth home.

The proposal is based on accelerated dockets in the Wayne County Circuit Court and Detroit Recorders Court.

"We're estimating moving cases through the courts in 90 days," McNamara said. Former chief recorder's judge

Samuel Gardner is heading up a study of court dockets. McNamara said his office was "absolutely" interested in other jail reforms, including expanding work release programs.

Schools will pay for special ed - one way or another

Whether voters approve a tax increase for special education or not, local school districts are required by Michigan law to provide programs for handicapped students.

If there is not enough money to pay for the programs, school districts will have to dip into general budgets to pay for them, according to Dr. Phyliss Robinson of the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

In response to an expected $9 million special education deficit this school year, the intermediate district has proposed a 1-mill tax increase to make the programs self supporting.

Voters will decide the issue, the first such request since 1974, Aug. 2. If approved, the new tax will generate an additional $19 million annually - double the amount now available - to educate the handicapped, students who are severely impaired as well as those with less severe impairments. The new tax would be levied with the December 1988 property tax bills in talking with people, I feel it has a very good chance of passing. These are special kids. People perceive their education as an obligatory thing," Robinson said.

INTERMEDIATE DISTRICT officials are mounting a publicity campaign to educate voters and encourage passage.

The largest hurdle facing us is misinformation, about what the intermediate district is and who these children are," Robinson said.

The district does not provide direct services to students. Rather Wayne County Intermediate School District assists local districts in dispensing education, according to Robinson.

Handicapped students, including the relatively small number with severe or multiple impairments and the more numerous who have more moderate disabilities, attend educational centers based upon the type of disability.

These centers include students from many districts, thereby reducing costs to individual districts who would otherwise have to provide

Garden City schools, for example, provides a center for autistic students who live both in the district and elsewhere. Livonia Public schools has centers for visually impaired and trainable mentally retarded students. Redford Union hosts programs for emotionally impaired and hearing impaired pupils. Wayne-Westland schools has seven different centers.

The host district bills other districts for the cost of educating students from the user districts.

Since 1982, such charges have increased steadily as the cost of providing special education has increased, according to Dr. Kenneth Erickson, superintendent of Redford Union schools

"THERE IS not enough money now to support center programs or local district (special education) programs. Everyone would gain if the measure is approved," Erickson

Erickson is president-elect of the Wayne County Association of Superintendents. Because some association members are lukewarm in their group has not formally endorsed the millage proposal

We agreed the issue should be placed before voters. We will look more carefully at it the closer we get to the election," Erickson said.

The Wayne County Friends of Handicapped Kids, a grass roots organization of parents, educators and friends who support passage of the tax, was recently formed under the auspices of the intermediate district.

The Friends purpose is to educate citizens, according to Robinson, who said the intermediate district has information on the issue. Taylor school superintendent Jerry Montecillo chairs the organization.

Robinson remains optimistic the tax increase will be approved by vot-

We have a number of things in our favor, including the fact that Wayne County is the most populated county in the state and has the largest number of handicapped students. But of the 53 intermediate school districts in the state, we have the second lowest tax rate for special education," she said.

'There is not enough money now to support center programs or local district (special education) programs. Everyone would gain if the measure (1-mill tax increase) is approved.

Officially, the U.S. Census will be taken April 1 of 1990.

In practice, the headcount of America's 50 states and territories takes 21/2 years of preparation and two more years of analysis.

"Our undercount has been declining," said a pleased Ross Forbes, a 26-year veteran of the decennial count. He is assistant manager of the center, a satellite of the downtown Detroit headquarters, where a permanent staff conducts continuing surveys on health, income, jobs and crime.

In Michigan, governmental officials are particularly anxious for an accurate count because congressional representation depends on the census, according to spokeswoman

THE EXPECTATION is that Michigan will lose two of its 18 U.S. representatives after the 1990 census. The state lost one after the 1980

apportionment also depend on census numbers

BECAUSE 95 percent of Americans will reply to the census by mail, the bureau must have accurate addresses and maps Those facts are stored on computer tape and updated, updated, updated. Two or three shifts of geographers, computer specialists and clerical people will do this work.

The census folks are conscious not only of public relations but local governmental relations. Population figures are translated into congressional and legislative representation - and into a horde of federal grant programs. There have been lawsuits over alleged undercounting in the "Local communities will have a chance to do local reviews," Forbes said of the maps and lists. Each enumerator will be responsible for a mapped area with about 400 housing units in it.

When it's done, the census work will be stored on summary computer tapes in state college libraries. Individuals' answers are confidential, but the demographic material is a boon to commerce.

Give him a Father's Day gift close to his heart!

Show dad how much you care this Father's Day with a heart-wise gift: a blood cholesterol test. Having his cholesterol level tested is the first step toward ensuring a healthier heart.

What is cholesterol?

Cholesterol is a fatty substance found in your body tissues and blood. Significant amounts of it come from the foods you eat, and the rest is produced by your body. High total cholesterol levels can lead to heart disease and heart attacks-and these high levels tend to run in families.

Cholesterol tests

Blood cholesterol tests are available now through June 25 at McAuley Urgent Care in Canton. The test takes just five minutes and the cost is only $5 ($4 with this ad). Nutritionists and other health professionals from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor will be on hand to give you suggestions for becoming "heart healthy."

A Father's Day gift

Bring dad in for a cholesterol testand have yours checked, too. And as our way of saying Happy Father's Day, all dads get a free cholesterol test on Saturday, June 18.

Candidates must stay in touch

OW THAT VOTERS have gone to the polls, the two successful school board candidates can get busy immersing themselves in the budget and other edu-

But that does not let the other 13 candidates off the hook. Just because they lost does not mean they should disappear from sight.

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools needs all the help it can get. Finding ways to encourage these 13 candidates to remain involved should be a high priority as the new board of education sets its agenda for the 1988-89 school year

The large number of candidates and the third defeat of the Headlee override show that residents are not content with the business-as-usual approach exhibited by school officials

A SCHOOL district is only as good as the people it represents. And if the people do not get involved and remain involved, the students, schools and community suffer.

One unsuccessful candidate, Mark Beauchene, said running for the board opened his eyes to the schools and community

"I really wish everyone in the community would run because there is a lot to learn." Beauchene said. "We can't be afraid to ask people what they think. I have been amazed at what

That kind of communication is definitely needed, and his attitude should be adopted by the newly elected members and those already sitting on the board.

One of Beauchene's suggestions was the creation of citizen committees to assist the school board in the decision-making process.

And Beauchene should not leave it up to the current administration to implement that idea. He should keep plugging away to make the schools more responsive and open to the commu-

Finding ways to encourage these 13 candidates to remain involved should be a high priority as the new board of education sets its agenda for the 1988-89 school year.

OTHER CANDIDATES also have a variety of skills and abilities to offer to the school system.

Some mentioned the need for more educationbusiness partnerships aimed at improving relations between these two important segments of

Other candidates stressed the need to improve vocational and computer education programs. Still others pushed for better math and science

Hopefully, these are not just ideas presented during an election only to die when that particular candidate loses.

Residents cannot afford to sit back and wait

If people are committed enough to run for the board, that commitment should continue even if they don't gain a seat.

Students and the schools are too important an issue to let ideas and involvement disappear after June 13.

That is why candidates have to continually push the school board and administration to look at new programs and consider alternatives to the way things have always been done.

And the only way to do that is to remain involved and active in the schools long after all the votes are counted.

YOU'VE gotta wonder what the folks in Lansing have against kids. Maybe they've decided to singlehandedly take on the zero population cause as their own baby.

Just kind of makes you wonder after last week when both houses of Michigan Legislature overwhelmingly passed bills to forbid surrogate parenting.

Whether you agree or disagree with surrogate parenting is hardly the issue. We all have our opinion. But Carol McCloud, a secretary here at the newspaper, put the real focus on the debate when she remarked, "Do we really want the Legislature to decide for us?

Surrogating, of course, is a bigger than usual issue in these parts since the king of surrogate matchmaking, Noel Keane, maintains his offices in metro Detroit. Keane has paired some 225 couples with a surrogate to carry their child.

The most famous match ended in the New Jersey "Baby M" case when surrogate Mary Beth Whitehead decided she wanted to keep the child. She lost. But the case brought national attention to the issue of pregnan-

Little or no correlation existed between political ideology and how legislators voted on this issue. In the state Senate Farmington Hills' Jack Faxon, a well-known Democratic liberal, paired up with none other than Northville Republican Robert Geake, a conservative, to make up two of the three nay votes in the upper house.

Now that's got to be a first. The house matches were just as strange. Conservative Republican Sandy Brotherton of Farmington paired with liberal Democrat Max-

Fireworks

Tougher safety rules needed

IT IS DIFFICULT to separate the Fourth of July and fireworks. Colorful, majestic, booming displays seemingly cascade from the heavens to the delight and glee of adults and children alike. But the fireworks are not just beautiful, they are also high explosive shells that are propelled by the force of gunpowder. They are dangerous and require extreme caution.

Yet in Michigan, it can be argued that the laws governing the use of firecrackers such as cherry bombs and M-80s are more restrictive than those governing major fireworks shows. In reality there are no restrictions other than those placed by individual communities when preparing for a Fourth of July show

A BILL introduced by Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, would change that, Dillingham, who lives in Livingston County to the west, first introduced similar legislation when he was in the House. His action came after a teenager was killed when a Brighton fireworks shell misfired and landed in a crowd. The tragic irony of the death was that the girl was attending the show because her father had convinced her that a municipal show was safer than an unregulated and illegal fireworks display planned by a neighbor.

Dillingham's bill (SB 183) is a start in that it

Fireworks are colorful, majestic and danger ous. But there are no restrictions other than those placed by individual communities when preparing for a Fourth of July show.

encourages standards and would require those who shoot fireworks to pass a test administered by the Michigan State Police. But it does not go nearly far enough and, what's worse, it seems as though the bill is getting little serious attention.

Stringent measures are needed for several reasons: the safety of those attending fireworks displays; the safety of those shooting off the fireworks; and the continuation of an American tradition dating to the birth of the nation. If fireworks are not safe, insurance costs alone will continue to thin the ranks of fireworks displays.

A MAJOR problem is the experience of those firing the shells. Some companies that run fireworks shows provide comprehensive training; but since the bulk of fireworks displays comes only once a year, there is always the danger that inexperienced help are answering a cattle call for employment.

A test by itself is not sufficient. Such a test is required in Ohio and is disdained by some major companies there, including American Fireworks, which is in charge of the July Fourth display from the Detroit River. A spokesman there tells of a woman who had never fired off a shell but who still scored 95 percent on the test. Book learning just isn't enough, he said.

A state fireworks law needs to set specific standards that define at least these items: quality of shells, pyrotechnic training for those running the show, direction of shells, trajectory of shells, and location and distance of audience. The law also needs to ensure that those firing the shells have practical experience and can judge competently such changing factors as wind conditions.

There also needs to be clearcut directions for when a show should be suspended. The shell that killed the girl in Brighton was the second shell to misfire that night. Finally, there needs to be reliable record-keeping centered in the state's Fire Marshal office. Right now it is difficult if not impossible to track down fireworks-related injuries. Fireworks are rightfully enjoyed by many as a celebration of the nation's birth. The state Legislature needs to move promptly to ensure that the celebration does not carry unnecessary risks.

'We salute' soccer team

This letter was written to fulfill a promise made to members of the Canton High School girls varsity soccer team at the end of their season last year. The promise was to send a follow-up letter to the papers at the end of their successful 1988 season - and what a season it turned out to be. These girls came back this year to win the state championship, and finally, hopefully, they have earned the respect that was their due last year.

To become champions, the team had to walk the road to success, and a difficult road it is. Too often coaches, players and parents get caught up in the "numbers" game, emphasizing individual statistics, and forgetting that it takes an entire team to win, or lose a game.

The girls had to learn that teamwork makes winners. They had to learn to encourage and support each team member, and to absorb the wins and losses as a team. Then, at this point, success begins to become

There is also an enormous amount of hard work and dedication that is encountered along this road of champions. But in the end, the long hours of practice, sweat, tears, frustrations, disappointments, and the comebacks are rewarded at the end of the road. When the teamwork can bring a team to this point, success is inevitable. Such was the road that varsity soccer team traveled. So, once again, I say congratulations to this "upstart" team of the year, and to their coach, Don Smith. The 1988 Canton High School girls varsity soccer team should be very proud of their accomplishments. They have reached a pinnacle and brought back to the Plymouth-Canton school district a state championship soccer title for the second year. They have proved to themselves, and to others, that Canton High School soccer will be a force to be reckoned with in the years to come.

Thanks for your support

To the editor:

In early May issues of the Plymouth and Canton Observer, you covered the death of my daughter, Julie Monte. As a result of your extensive coverage, many gestures of support and love have been extended to my son Craig and I. I have sent out hundreds of cards but I am afraid that numerous individuals may have been forgotten.

I am hoping that you can help my by publishing a small column in your "From the Readers" section of your Plymouth and Canton Observer Edi-

A special note of thanks to the community and the Plymouth-Canton schools for their outpouring of love and support through the recent death of my daughter, Julie Monte. I am sure that I have been remiss in acknowledging all instances of support and kindness . . . for that, I apologize. Every gesture has been most appreciated.

Purse return shows good

To the editor:

On returning home from shopping at Kroger's at Ford and Sheldon roads store on Tuesday morning June 7th, I realized that I had left my purse in the grocery cart in the parking lot. I returned to Kroger's to see if it had been found, but I was not very hopeful. What a happy surprise to find that it had been turned in in-

In these times, when you hear so many bad things happening, I wanted to focus on something good a person did. I do not know the name of the lady responsible for finding my purse. Will Detroit get its 2nd pro basketball crown?

FOR SEVERAL days, I racked my brain trying to think of the name of the one previous Detroit professional basketball team which had won a world championship. Then it dawned on me to call the local star of the club, one of the finest gentlemen ever to play basketball and coach at the University of Detroit, Bob Cal-

The team was the Detroit Eagles. The year was 1941. And it was the world championship because the Chicago Herald & American, which was the sponsor of the 16-team tournament in Chicago Stadium, said so. Who could quarrel?

If you are among the thousands at the Silverdome tonight, or the nation's millions who watch on television as the Pistons meet the Lakers, turn the clock back 47 years.

Dutch Dehnert from New York coached the Eagles, who played their home games in the Naval Armory on East Jefferson, near the Belle Isle bridge. Starters were Calihan, U-D's first All-American and who played for the Titans 1937-40; Ed Sadowski and Jack Ahearn from Seton Hall; Jerry Bush of St. John's; and Buddy Jeannette from Washington & Jefferson.

WHENEVER they attracted a crowd of more than 2,500 at the Armory, it was a big night, as it was anywhere in the old National Basketball League. Then the Eagles did just what we want the Pistons to do. In the Chicago tournament of 16 teams they posted four successive onepoint victories over Indianapolis, the New York Renaissance, Harlem Glob Trotters and Oshkosh. The Eagles ruled what then was the basektball world.

Calihan recalls pocketing his fantastic salary of $175 per month, buying Virginia's engagement ring with the championship bonus of $100, and soon entering the Navy after a small Pacific incident referred to as Pearl

I have known Bob for 33 years, have worked and traveled with him, and hope others will join me in wishing him a happy birthday when he reaches 70 on Aug. 2. The "hardwood," as sports writers used to call it before they discovered the word parquet, has taken its toll.

HE CONFESSES that with the help of a cane he has two speeds left, 'slow and stop." After nine major operations, Bob has two plastic knees, two plastic hips, and one plastic shoulder, but has learned to live in constant pain. So who said basketball is a non-contact sport?

It's not an idea that would attract many to a testimonial banquet, but somewhere there should be a tribute to the pioneers who gave Detroit pro basketball teams like the Detroit Eagles, Detroit Falcons and Detroit Gems, and guys like King Boring, Cincy Sachs, Morrie Winston and, oh, yes, Fred Zollner. Plus coaches like Joel Mason, Calihan and all the high school corps, George DuFour and so many others.

Zollner, Calihan and Sachs all are in the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame for the leadership they provided in a metropolitan area that was indifferent to basketball - even the major league brand - for many years. Joe Falls wrote in his Detroit News column June 4, "The Pistons were the laughing stock of the league for years.

Well, maybe they were. But they didn't draw those laughs for lack of effort, and the people who helped keep things alive between the time Zollner moved his franchise here from Fort Wayne in 1957 and the team's appearance in the championship playoffs of 1988 deserve more than a kick in the rump.

Zollner didn't live to see the success the Pistons are enjoying under the ownership of Bill Davidson, but his faith in Detroit fans now has been justified. In the October 1957 issue of Detroit Skyliner, which called itself "the magazine of downtown Detroit," editor S. Richard Uday quoted Zollner as saying:

"We'll be striving to give Detroit a winner. We're presenting a major league product in a city which is major league all the way. Certainly we don't hope for miracles right away. but we do hope for the support of the fans once they see what we have to

I opt for a pole, secure in the knowledge that the Birmingham authorities are so busy keeping residents off residential streets that they won't have time to look for law-breaking basketball nets.

(I should explain For a glorious time earlier this year, the City of Birmingham was enforcing an ordinance that prevented basketball backboards to be attached to freestanding poles -- not to be

Now the city police under city commission direction are writing tickets to people who are willfully, knowingly and purposefully driving through their neighborhoods on the way to and from work. After July 4th, the city is adopting a height ordinance that will limit ice cream cones to single scoops. I would write more about this, but the city requires a zoning waiver for excessive use of parentheses.

But back to the backboard, which serves as monumental evidence to the art of marital compromise For years my wife has stressed her concern for my physical well-being by giving me gifts that suggest ex-

Even though she will be pelted by the unrelenting sound of a basketball bouncing on the driveway, my wife will be very happy. She wants me to exercise because she thinks it will make me healthier and she says she wants me around for a long time.

If I've got any sort of head on my shoulders, every time I shoot that basketball I'll keep my eye on the rim - and my mind on the fact that I'm a very lucky man

Oakwood Vs. Cancer

Eat, drink and exercise your way to health and decreased cancer risk.

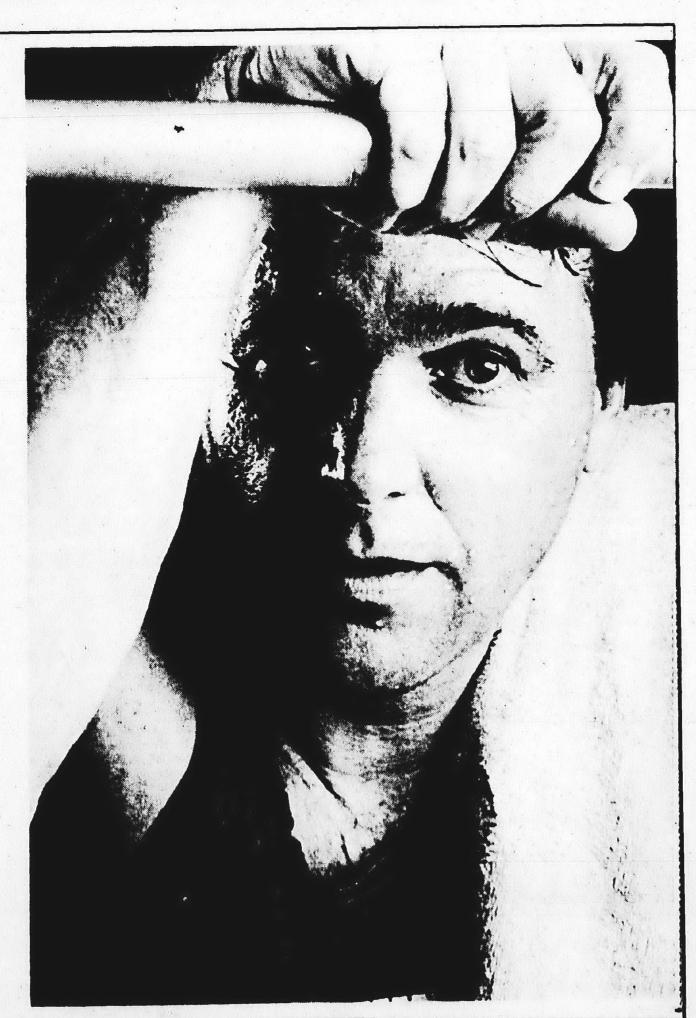

In just 90 minutes, you can learn more about yourself and how to take control of your health-and your future. Simply attend "Taking Control." an American Cancer Society educational program sponsored by Oakwood Hospital. It's an intensive session that introduces you to the foods, activities and habits that are known to reduce the risk of cancer. You'll learn specific foods to avoid, as well as foods that enhance health. And we will outline specific ways to achieve a healthier lifestyle. Exercise, alcohol, smoking, even getting a better tan are discussed in a new and enlightened manner. Do yourself a favor. Call 278-5151 to register for this free presentation on "Taking Control."

Another good idea in the fight against cancer: regular checkups with your physician. Early detection results in more effective and less radical treatment of most forms of cancer. Oakwood's oncology capabilities include state-of-the-art diagnostic tools-CT Scan, nuclear medicine, mammography, ultrasound, laboratory test, chemical analysis and microscopic exams. If treatment is required, we offer advanced surgery, radiation therapy and chemotherapy.

RADUATION DAY had a special meaning this year for Plymouth resident Barbara Runstrom.

Runstrom's 18-year-old twins, Lisa and Jamie, participated in Sunday's Plymouth Salem High School commencement, held at Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor. That wasn't the only graduation ceremony Runstrom attended in recent days.

Her own graduation ceremony was held the evening of Tuesday, June 7, at the Plymouth Salem High School auditorium. Runstrom, 42, was among those participating in the graduation and awards ceremony for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools adult education.

The brand-new high school graduate received her diploma from Salem a few days before Lisa and Jamie did. She hadn't given much thought to that, however.

"It doesn't mean anything," she said. "I'm just grateful to be graduating.

Runstrom works as a clerk-typist in the purchasing department for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. In addition to the twins, she and her husband, Robert, have a 21year-old son. He lives in Germany where he is serving with the U.S.

IN HER YOUNGER days, Barbara Runstrom attended high school in Martin, Tenn. She finished the 10th grade and started the 11th before she left school.

"I had to quit and work on the farm." Doing that wasn't uncommon in the community where she lived: some other students in her class also left school to work on the farm. "And it wasn't anything unusual." More recently, Runstrom had been years.

ANTON RESIDENT Jerry Bourlier appreciates the help he received in learning how to read.

Bourlier decided the time had come to return the favor. He volunteered to become a tutor, helping other students work on their reading and writing skills.

It is a good feeling, to be able to read. It really is."

Bourlier, 41, started out as a Plymouth-Canton Community Education student, taking classes in Starkweather Center's Learning Center in Plymouth. He is still a student there.

"I'd graduated from high school," he said. "I just couldn't Bourlier received his diploma from Brighton High School in 1966. "I had a third grade reading level, after all that. So I just gave up and never read anything." For years, Bourlier was able to bluff his way through life. His wife, Carole, was the only other person who knew he couldn't read. As a truck driver, he was able to conceal it from his employer.

BOURLIER'S WIFE suggested he start taking classes at the Learning Center. Bourlier had in earlier years tried to take other classes, but found those were not suitable Bourlier initially dropped out of the classes at the Learning Center, but went back the next year. He started working with a tutor, Cindy Tinker, a Community Literacy Council volunteer.

Tinker and Bourlier worked on reading and writing skills. They are no longer working together, but Tinker attended last week's graduation and awards ceremony for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' adult education.

At the Tuesday, June 7, ceremony, Bourlier received a special award. An award was also given to Julie Brown, Suburban Life editor for the Observer Newspapers of Plymouth and Canton.

The ceremony, held at the Plymouth Salem High School auditorium, included the presentation of diplomas to high school graduates. This year's graduating class included 63 students, most of whom participated in the ceremony.

GED recipients were also honored at the ceremony, as were students in the medical assistant, medical lab assistant, dental assistant and pharmacy assistant programs. Two scholarships from the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women, were presented to graduates during the

"THAT AWARD means more to me than my high school diploma," said Bourlier, who spoke during the awards ceremony.

"I was really proud of him," Carole said after the ceremony. Bourlier had tried to return to school a couple of times, but had not continued his studies.

'So I just gave up and never read anything."

Bourlier's tutor, Cindy Tinker, is also proud of what he has accomplished. She decided to volunteer as a tutor after seeing a TV program on illiteracy on Channel 56.

Bourlier wanted to learn to read. Tinker found. "That was the fun thing about teaching Jerry, because he was so motivated."

Bourlier found that one-on-one assistance was a big help as he worked on reading skills. After going through the tutor training program, he then began volunteer-"Why not teach someone else?"

Later, Bourlier was able to get his journeyman's card as a maintenance welder. When he was doing structural steel layout for buildings, he'd make up his own specs. "It worked, and I got through life

THE BOURLIERS have two sons: Jeff, 19, and Todd, 17. Jerry Bourlier kept his lack of reading skills hidden from his sons.

When his sons were younger, they would ask Bourlier what a certain word was. He would tell them "go see your mother.

Home care takes patience question we have received regarding in-home patient care. It is our hope these general principals will be of assistance to all of our readers.

Caring for someone at home can be a rewarding and fulfilling experience. Unfortunately, at times, it can also become frustrating and perhaps even overwhelming.

How successfully needs are met for a person who have a terminal illness rarely depends on the extent of the involvement of the patient, family, and those administering health care. A willingness on the part of all to work cooperatively toward an improved quality of life for the patient and family can result in a mutually rewarding experience.

This is an intricate part of the philosophy of the Hospice concept of LISTED BELOW are some of the more common problems that caregivers may experience when caring for someone at home.

• Personal Care - Most people enjoy a tub bath or shower for as long as it is physically possible. Unless there is great pain on movement, one should not resort to a bed bath too soon. Be sure to check the water temperature for safety and the patient has assistance if needed to prevent falls. Many times a small skid-proof stool can be placed in a shower or tub to assist those inidividuals who are unable to stand or sit in a tub. A bath can be refreshing as well as a help to maintain cleanliness. Because a complete bath can be very tiring to the patient, it is not necessary to bathe every day. A simple sponge bath is appropriate when it is necessary to avoid pulling and to a comfortable working level. Bring all necessary bath supplies to the bedside to save time and steps. Start with the face and wash and dry each area, keeping the patient covered to prevent chills. Be sure to change the water frequently since it cools rapidly. After bathing it is helpful to apply a lotion or cream without alcohol to prevent drying.

· Nutrition is another important component when caring for a patient in the home. Many patients need to be on special diets, so each individual should follow the recommendation of their personal physician.

In general, many patients may experience the loss of appetite or the oss of a physiological desire to eat. Small frequent feedings may be more palatable than three large meals during the day. A diet high in protein and calories, especially if the patient has lost a large amount of weight, should be encouraged unless contraindicted.

Encourage fluids, six to eight glasses a day including water, juices and tea. However, avoid too many fluids with meals, which tend to produce a feeling of fullness. Encourage eating food slowly and at regular meal hours. Take advantage of the fact that breakfast is usually the meal when the appetite is at the highest level. If pain is present, administer medications to provide freedom from pain at mealtime. Utilize nutritional supplements, serve cold and sip slowly. Also encourage plenty of vegetables, fruit and bran unless contraindicated.

Good nutrition helps maintain strength, fight off infection, and helps prevent tissue breakdown. Protein, fat and carbohydrates provide the body with calories. Calories from carbohydrates and fats provide energy while protein calories are needed for growth and tissue repair. Maintaining good nutrition is important. Unfortunately, at some point in the disease progression, the patient's appetite will diminish; and there is very little that can be done to alter that. This is not a failure on the part of the caregiver - family or professional.

• Exercise is an important part of feeling as well as possible during an illness. Even when a patient is very ill, small amounts of careful exercise can keep the muscles toned and spirits up. If a patient is unable to do any exercises on his/her own, range of motion exercise, which exercises the joints, may need to be done for the patient.

Some general rules to remember when exercising include: Don't try to do too much exercising at any one time; exercise a short amount of time daily, no long sessions; go slowly, don't strain. Remember, the patient can't expect to be as active as prior to the disease.

Daily activities can be a part of exercise. Encourage the patient to stretch when sitting up, raise their arms when eating, and move their legs while lying in bed.

When a patient is confined to bed and no longer able to move on their own, it is important to turn them from side to side every two hours.

This helps to prevent pressure sores. stimulate appetite and prevent comstipation. Use pillows to maintain the patient's position and for com-

· Medications that are prescribed for each individual should be taken according to physicians orders. The patient or caregiver needs to know the name of the medication, why it was prescribed and what common side effects can be expected. The patient or caregiver needs to be aware if the prescriptions are to be refilled and check with their physician before discontinuing any drugs. One of the common side effects of narcotics is constipation. and a stool softener should be administered on a regular basis to prevent constipation.

It is important to remember to include the patient regarding decisions for care. Mutual agreement between all parties involved in care promote a more harmonious relationship and a less stressful environment.

Individuals who have questions or concerns of a general nature may write or call the Hospice office for these issues to be addressed in future columns. Hospice Services of Western Wayne County Inc., 6701 Harrison, Garden City 48135 522-4244.

around the house, giving Runstrom a chance to study

JUGGLING THE demands of job, family and school was a challenge. There were times when Runstrom didn't really want to study.

'I didn't want to do homework that night, but I knew I had to."

For two years, Runstrom spent each Sunday morning studying. rather than reading the newspaper. She also studied at other times throughout each week.

While she was in school, Runstrom thought about what field she'd like to pursue, and decided she'd like to become a secretary or clerk-typist. She talked to Elizabeth Barker, job placement coordinator for Plymouth-Canton Community Education.

Runstrom heard about a co-op job in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' administrative office. She started work there, and then heard about a permanent job that was

Sanders-Redmyer

Jody Lynn Redmyer and David Scott Sanders were married June 4 at the Centerville United Methodist Church in Centerville, Ind. The Rev. Marvin S. Singleton performed the ceremony. A family blessing was given by the bride's uncle, the Rev. Thomas A. Wickersham

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John D. Redmyer of Plymouth and Dr. and Mrs. Fred V. Sanders of Oaktown, Ind.

The bride will transfer from Pur due University to Ohio University at Athens, and will complete her degree in electrical engineering. Her husband is a graduate of Purdue University, where he received a degree in electrical engineering. He will be employed by DuPont in Parkersburg, W. Va.

Lori Overturf was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Robin Harman and Laura Redmyer.

Brother of the bridegroom Brian Sanders was the best man. The groomsmen were Kent Utt and John Moranski. The ushers were Erik Anderson, Michael McKinley and Tom Thompson.

For her wedding, the bride wore a full-length satin gown with a cathedral train edged in scalloped Venetian lace. The bodice featured a sweetheart neckline and was embroidered with lace appliques, seed pearls and sequins. The sleeves were

Some health plans are like hospital gowns: They never cover as much as you wish they would.

When it comes to health care, traditional medical insurance leaves a lot to be desired. Because they only cover a portion of your costs. Health Alliance Plan, on the other hand, is much more comprehensive. We offer complete coverage for virtually everything from pediatries to geriatries. And this extensive medical coverage is available from over 1.600 physicians at 23 medical centers. 18 hospitals and hundreds of individual doctor's office locations.

To find out how you can become a member, call 872-8100. You'll learn why Health Alliance Plan is such a great way to cover your medical needs. And that's the naked truth.

Religion warrants more coverage

Recently, there was a discussion on Channel 56 about how religion is reported in the media. One of the experts on the subject admitted that religion is down at the bottom of the is down at the bottom with educa-

I have come to accept this fact. Religion is not particularly newsworthy. The doings of the local garden club will be featured instead of a program of support for those

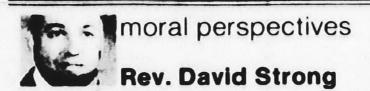

The goings-on of the electronic preachers are overemphasized. If the pope visits our town, this is reassociated with reporting items of individual churches and denominations. However, I am uneasy with the fact that two of the most significant issues in life, education and religion, are of little interest to the media.

The experts on the program presented on Channel 56 agreed that the basic issue is money. There is big money to report and broadcast sports, little or none to cover educatracts viewers

One good illustration of the point s how we see the media covering the 1,000-year anniversary of Christianity in Russia. There will be many list in importance for the media. "It things that could be of interest in this year of celebration. The whole subject of the place of religion in a hostile, Marxist environment is fascinating to me. Yet the media has largely ignored the topic. One article has appeared in a daily newspaper.

IN JANUARY, I attended a special Russian Orthodox service celebrating the 1,000 years of the "The Baptism of Russia." People told me that there had been no story about it ported. I understand the problems in the newspaper and probably would not be following the event.

In some ways, the media presents a hostile environment to religion and education. The media represents the interests of money, not the concerns of the citizens. One person has predicted that the revival of religion in the last part of the 20th century will be the least reported phenomenon of the time.

media is to sell itself. We do live in a capitalist society. I often remember the remark that was made many years ago about General Motors. General Motors is in the business of making money, not making cars."

I would like to see stories written about the 1,000 anniversary of Christianity in Russia. I would like to see stories written about the Hindu, Moslem and Buddhist places of worship appearing around the Detroit area. I would like to read a story about how recent immigrants from the Middle East mix their religion and culture with this American culture. I would like to read a story about the developments in the Ecureligious practice. What about the conference that brought together Jew, Christian and Arab-Moslems in the Detroit area? I would like to see better coverage of community service programs provided by the local congregations

IN ALL OF this I am pessimistic. The dollars simply are not in this area. Sports will still prevail in at least a ratio of 100 to 1. The gap may even widen until the day that more people turn off the television and quit taking a newspaper. If this happens, it may reflect the fact that the media has come to reflect not life, but itself and its sources of income. I hope this does not happen.

Ukrainians in this area are celebrating 1,000 years of Christianity. They celebrate while those in their homeland cannot.

A millennium pageant in Hamtramck recently kicked off the festivities. A parade featured historical representations of Ukrainian Christian life in 988, including Great Prince Vladimir, who brought Christianity to the Ukraine by calling for the mass baptism of its citizens.

The pageant was highlighted by the re-enactment of the birth of Ukrainian Christianity 1,000 years ago. The pageant was financed by personal contributions from members of the Ukrainian community, numbering 70,000 in Michigan.

"In a sense, this is a bittersweet celebration," said Dr. Paul Dzul, cochairman of the Metropolitan Detroit Ukrainian Millennium Council in a written statement. "The bitter part comes from the persecuted state of Ukrainian Christians by the Soviet government in Ukraine and our millennium in the birthplace of Ukrainian Christianity.

"But the sweet element is that Ukrainian Christianity is alive and can look forward to a bright future, thanks to the religious freedom provided in the United States and other parts of the free world." There are a number of Ukrainian Catholic churches, like Our Lady of Perpetual Help in Dearborn Heights, in the area as well as Ukrainian Orthodox churches. Those in the area include St. Mary's in Southfield. There is a Ukrainian Baptist church,

EYE FACTS Cataract Surgery:

How Do You Decide?

Lawrence M. Loewenthal, M.D. Director, Vision Institute of Michigan Board Certified Ophthalmologist

Only 1% of all cataract surgeries performed at Vision Institute of Michigan are emergency cases. Based on today's standard of care and modern technology, a cataract may be removed whenever an individual patient desires improved vision...an improvement that corrective lenses alone will not provide. The determination of this need will vary from person to person.

If a patient can comfortably manage his or her daily activities with their present level of vision, then no surgery need be done. If, however, you are in a profession that requires good vision, you will likely choose to have your cataract removed at an earlier point than others would find necessary

If it has been determined that a cataract is causing your visual problems, you have two choices:

First, you may choose to to do nothing, and simply wait until your vision decreases to the point of interfering with your daily activities and independence.

OR, if you have already reached that point, you may choose to have the cataract removed.

Except for the 1% emergency cataract removals, we feel that cataract surgery is always elective, and leave the choice and timing of the surgery up to the patient.

If anyone tells you that your cataract must be removed, and if your vision is acceptable to you. a medical need should exist and be explained to you. If not, we urge you to get a second ophthalmologist's opinion.

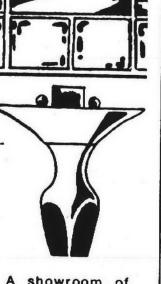

In the case of elective surgery, we do not feel it necessary to seek a compulsory second opinion, or have mandated vision loss requirements. Each of us is unique, and our daily activity and vision needs are different. Your goal should be to maintain your right to an independent lifestyle.

When, and if, you elect vision improvement through surgery, it is natural to be concerned about the upcoming procedure. Cataract surgery is one of the safest, most effective medical operations performed today. Although it is a very delicate procedure, the results are exceptionally good in most patients. We urge you to have a complete discussion with your ophthalmologist to fully understand cataracts and available treatments so that you can make an informed decision

Networking: business' favorite 'contact' sport

By Mary DiPaolo

Conferences, phone calls, travel, lectures, grapevines, mutual friends, business events.

What do they have in common? All represent opportunities to make connections. In today's age of information, meeting new people has become business America's favorite "contact" sport both inside and out of the workplace.

Andrea Harris, president of the National Association of Women Business Owners, defines networking as "a lifestyle that allows a person to cultivate relationships that will benefit both parties over time."

In her book, "Is Your Net-Work-A Complete Guide to Building Contacts and Career Visibility," Ann Boe explains that networking takes the form of new exposures, friends, advice, information, leads, moral support, referrals and business. 'An individual who attends an industry conference and leaves with 100 business cards isn't being very smart when it comes to building on a new or existing network," Boe says. "It's like trying to learn how to swim, but never going any further than putting on a bathing suit and sticking your toe in the water. Exchanging business cards is part of the process, but it doesn't mean anything if that's where one starts and

SO HOW DO YOU begin to make the most of opportunities to net-

"It all starts with the inner self," says Kay Britten, a communications and presentations consultant from West Bloomfield. "If you don't think very much of yourself or what you have to offer, neither will anyone else. If a person lacks self-esteem, then they may want to work on building the right support network to overcome that problem area before

Jody Spronen, executive director of the Farmington-Farmington Hills Chamber of Commerce and Farmington Hills mayor, agrees with Brit-

"Our chamber regularly hosts business after-hours mixers," she ... and there's nothing more distressing than seeing people who don't do anything but stand in the corner all evening.

"It's best to think of yourself as a host, rather than a guest," said Char-lene Manuel, president of Success Development Corp. in Detroit and networking workshop coordinator. "If no one is coming up to speak with you, then it's your responsibility to make the first move.

Seasoned networking advocates recommend that successful networking begins by knowing what you want to accomplish.

"I may agree to speak at a business function because the audience may consist of potential employees, customers or industry peers," Brit-ten explains. "You can't expect to stumble across the right information or contact person if you don't know what you're looking for in the first place.

John Landis, management consultant and sales trainer with Symbiosis Inc., agrees. "Networking without specific goals in mind is like agreeing to marry someone just because they asked.

Cathy Szul had the beginnings of a setwork but didn't know it.

"As a secretary, I would talk to cerity and patience." these people about once a week. It wasn't until I made the decision to, change careers and get into real estate that I began realizing how important my network was in helping me find the right position."

Szul is now working for a client of her former employer.

AS EASY AS networking can be in some situations, rejection still is a concern among many business professionals - and for good reason. Some contacts are understandably wary of giving advice.

"I'm so tired of people running up to me and trying to fit an hour's worth of need into two minutes," one consultant said. "I'm certainly not going to offer 'best friend' advice or referrals when I don't know the person from Adam.'

In situations where there is the opportunity to meet someone who is well known or an expert in their field, some guidelines should be observed, according to author Boe.

"Although it's important to meet new people, rejection does happen but it's neither fatal nor contagious." She reminds people to be flexible when asking for information, a re-

ATTENDING THE right events allows both the novice and active networker to match personal and professional needs. At a recent chamber mixer, Charles Mitchell and Gary DeGeorge of Select Communications shared their networking

"We just opened our second location in the area two weeks ago, and we know how important it is to let others know that we're here." De-George said. "Why spend so much time and effort on paid advertising when being here is the best form of advertising there is," Mitchell adds.

Irv Kessler, Globe Furniture Rentals board vice chairman, gave his views on networking.

'We are very actively involved with real estate management and builder associations. They often sponsor table-top trade shows which provide us with the perfect opportunity to display our programs and services for a nominal fee," Kessler

Keeping track of scheduled activities on a regular basis is also recommended. "Local newspapers and business publications typically have a calendar section that lists what is going on and when," Britten said. Reviewing upcoming seminars, lectures and conferences on a weekly basis will ensure that one doesn't pass up a good opportunity to net-

Stop spending, start saving for long term

By Alan Ferrara and Dan Boyce staff writers

"Look ahead . . . the future you save may be your own."

Like many couples, this month's profiled family had done a little saving, a little planning, and a fairly substantial amount of spending. Don and Jean Patton have a comfortable home in Troy, a lot on a lake in northern Michigan, two cars, a motorcycle, a camper, a baby grand piano, three small boats . . . and a number of debts. Fortunately, at this point the debts are manageable in size (see Financial Position chart).

Don, 41, is a sales representative for an automotive supplier; Jean, 40, is a teacher. Together they earned $70,000 last year, and it should approach $75,000 this year. Don's income fluctuates somewhat, but business has been quite good recently. They have two children, ages 8 and 11, whom they plan to send to col-

Our experts believe they are in a position where they will be able to meet their major financial goals if they chart their future financial course carefully. By reorienting their spending from "things" to more important longterm goals, they should be able to put their children through college, retire comfortably, and build a recreational house on their lake lot.

Attorney Alan Ferrara, a partner at Couzens-Lansky, suggests they examine some of their financial planning basics first. "I'm particularly concerned that if Don were to become disabled or die prematurely, the family would have to reduce their expectations and standard of living dramatically. Don's $100,000 term life policy would not go very far toward replacing his future potential income.

Expert sees danger in better car handling

One of the federal government's top highway safety researchers has taken a swipe at technological developments that improve cornering and braking, saying they may lead to overconfidence on the part of the Driver response to improved handling - improved stability that's available through active suspension systems - is something that hasn't been carefully examined," said Michael M. Finkelstein, associate administrator for research and development for the National Highway Traffic Administration, in a recent issue of Automotive News

The "active suspension" he is referring to is one of the few genuinely new technical developments curcouples a fast-acting computer to high-speed hydraulics system to anticipate the impact of bumps on the road, and levels out the corners. At least a dozen manufacturers are working to develop it into an affordable option. The work is being led by Lotus Engineering, now a subsidiary of General Motors

One example of overconfidence as a result of the changes. Finkelstein said, would be speeding on a rough road that appears smooth. Another high-tech device that puts the field of view of the speedometer squarely in the driver's field of vision, which will be on the market in a couple of months, is also suspect. It could be distracting, he said, despite the fact that the system was developed origirently on the automotive horizon. It nally for the pilots of jet aircraft so that they wouldn't be "distracted" while landing.

RADAR BRAKING, a system that GM also is working on to prevent rear-end collisions on the freeways, could also lead to "overconfidence." Finkelstein added.

I'd have to say the general philosophy espoused by Finkelstein is the most regressive opinion I've heard in a lot of years, something I remember reading about in my studies of the industrial revolution, when antitechnology groups formed to protect back-breaking manual labor against the onslaught of the machine age.

Following the line of reasoning to its logical conclusion, we would eliminate hydraulic brakes, radial tires, seat belts, safety glass, and of course, airbags - all of which greatly increase the confidence of the average driver as well.

Aside from the obvious danger of reversing the current interest in improved technology that improves a driver's control of the car, the philosophy that underlies Finkelstein's remarks underscore a real problem with government safety legislation

We've been sidetracked from a series of laws that required improvements in structural integrity, shorter stopping distances, lower emissions and driver protection. It's not a wellknown fact that at least some of the Big Three actually require higher standards than federal law requires today, and in some areas are pushing for even further improvement.

Finkelstein's remarks indicate that NHTSA may never have formed a basic concept of what consititutes a "safe" car, but has been content to take potshots at whatever the auto industry is doing in the field of safety and performance, on the grounds that the government must remain a critic, rather than set basic standards of performance.

To me, the last thing the auto industry needs is to reverse today's intense interest in developing cars that stop more quickly and corner with more stability while providing a comfortable ride. That the manufacturers finally see a potential consumer interest in such matters should be applauded, not chastised.

Dan McCosh is the automotive editor of Popular Science.

Families advised to start saving for long

'Jean's life insurance picture is even more critical. Though she has the larger income of the two, she has only $58,000 of insurance coverage - about enough to replace her income for just 112 years.

FERRARA SUGGESTS a minimum of $250,000 life insurance for each and recommends that Don purchase a personal longterm disability policy. He adds that they might consider structuring their life insur ance as a combination of term and universal life.

A second major weakness noted by Ferrara is the lack of any estate plan. "If a joint death occurs, do they really want the state to name a guardian for their children? Are they comfortable with the probate court overseeing the investment of their estate? Is their intent to have the children receive their entire inheritance at age 18?

"If the answer to any of these questions is 'no,' they should see an attorney to draw up a will and a trust. The trust would provide for the management of assets upon a joint death and establish a more appropriate time for distributions to the children.

Certified financial planner Dan Boyce of the Center for Financial Planning in Birmingham addresses the question of meeting their long-term goals. Their three stated goals in order of importance are:

- Build home on lake property by 1990 ($65,000)
- Start college funding plan ($20,000) • Continue retirement funding (amount

"My suspicion is that if they continue their current spending patterns while building the second home, the college funding and retirement funding will suffer," Boyce fore the horse."

BOYCE SUGGESTS that Jean continue funding her tax-sheltered annuity at the $250-per-month rate. As an automatic payroll deduction, it is convenient, and it provides tax savings. Given their other goals and resources, Boyce thinks that this is an appropriate level of retirement savings for

Secondly, they should start the college fund immediately at a rate of 5 percent of their incomes - $200-$300 per month. "It will be much easier if they start now rather than waiting four or five years," Boyce ex-

Lastly, they should take advantage of their existing home equity line of credit to pay off the auto loans, the bank loan, the department stores and the credit cards. This results in two benefits: it consolidates several loans into one lower-interest loan and the interest becomes fully deductible. The only drawback to the home equity loan consolidation, according to Boyce, is the tendency to let the other debt build right back up.

"Resist this temptation. If you can't, don't take out the home equity loan," Boyce advises. "If you decide you will pay off all credit purchases each month, my suggestion would be to take out a loan for $15,000. After paying off the debts this would leave about $2,500 as a needed addition to your cash reserves. The $2,300 in current savings is simply not sufficient to provide the cash cushion I like to see."

Another key to this loan consolidation is to continue paying the same monthly amount on the loans. "They are currently paying approximately $750 per month on those debts," Boyce said. "By paying this same $750 on their home equity loan, they

"At that time, they will have the $750 per month to use for their goal of the second home. This fits nicely with their desire to build on the lot in two years - by 1990." A monthly mortgage payment of $750 would more than pay for the $65,000 desired by them for this home.

Ferrara suggests that Don and Jean may want to work with a financial planner in fine-tuning this plan. Because it involves some changes in their spending habits, it may be important to have an objective source to help them plan and to ensure they stay on track.

Don and Jean are on the edge of being able to meet both current and future goals. If they control their tendency to emphasize immediate gratification, and if they plan carefully, they will be amply rewarded through the attainment of their financial

Woman taking a stronger role in work world

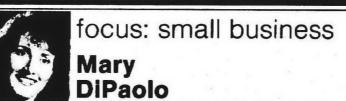

In its recent study, "The Changing Life Course of American Women, Cosmopolitan Magazine indicated that there is one fundamental demographic trend that has significantly clined - while the number of womaltered the life course of today's woman. This trend relates to the role increased dramatically. After 1960 and participation of women in the work world.

There was a gradual increase in women's labor-force participation beginning in the 1920s that was fueled primarily by young unmarried women. Up to and through 1940, there was an increase in the number of clerical jobs and a corresponding increase in the wages offered for these jobs. After 1940, older and less well-educated women dropped out to ly wages of full-time women work-

Between 1940 and 1960 the percentage of women under age 35 who were employed outside the home deen over 35 entering the labor force and continuing today, this pattern has been reversed. Now we see younger, more highly educated women entering the workforce in greater numbers. The result is that both the education and experience levels of today's female worker has begun to increase at a faster rate than those of the male labor force.

IN TERMS of earnings power, from 1960 to 1980, the average hour-ers remained at about 60 percent of male hourly wages. By 1983 the ratio had increased to 64 percent; by 1986, the ratio increased to 70 percent. Younger women are closing the gap at a much faster rate than older women, indicating the importance of higher educational levels for commanding higher wages.

This trend is expected to continue through the year 2000 as the female labor force becomes better educated levels and wages of women are catching up to those of men; today's woman is much more likely to be a "career" woman who attains an education in order to work and plans to remain in the workforce throughout most of her adult life. Research also indicated that today's women are planning their lives around a commitment, acquired early on, to work.

This new role of women in the labor force has had and is expected to have significant effects on the purchasing power and behavior of small businesses alike.

and more experienced. The skills households. The impact of women's earning on a household's demand for products and services depends on the type of household and the amount of other income available to it. For married couples where the husband is the primary wage earner or where the female heads the household, the relative contribution of women's earnings has remained unchanged. As a result, women who are married and work full time along with their spouses are a primary market now being pursued by both large and

The price decline in the U.S. began on Tuesday, Oct. 12, when the DJIA declining by 10½ percent by the end of the week. Individual day declines were large, but not record-breaking.

Following the weekend of Oct. 17-18, the U.S. stock indexes declined sharply, with the DJIA falling by 23 percent to 1738 on Monday, Oct. 19. Sharp declines followed on all other world exchanges, with the Australia and singapore exchanges falling most abruptly (by nearly 50 per-

The accompanying chart shows the magnitude of the price break in the DJIA, as well as the bumpy recovery of share prices since then. The DJIA now stands at around

The key question now is: Is the uncanny relationship between the October '87 and October '29 price movements simply the bursting of two bubbles or do they reflect similarities of the fundamental economic en-

Fundamental Vs. Technical Factors A stock price can fluctuate because of "fundamental" or "technical" factors. (For details consult Sid Mittra, Investment Analysis and Portfolio Management, Chapters 9

Fundamental factors are those that alter the present discounted value of the future earnings and, hence, the value of a stock. These factors might include rising uncertainty about the outlook for the dollar and the trade balance, uncertainty about whether the federal budget deficit would be resolved, and legislative attacks on leveraged takeovers.

Technical factors are quite different in nature. These factors consist of those that affect the price-setting processes of the market, but not necessarily the assessment of the underlying value of individual firms.

Fundamental factors have been affecting the U.S. stock market for years. These include, as mentioned, budget deficit, a weak dollar, and a sluggish recovery. It is therefore difficult to square the abrupt movements in the stock market indexes with the fundamental factors.

The story of the technical factors is different. One technical factor frequently mentioned is the behavior of portfolio insurers. Portfolio insurers provide institutional investors with 'insurance' against the value of their portfolio dipping below a specified minimum.

The insurers provide this protection by determining an appropriate balance between stock and cash in the portflio. Carrying out portfolio insurance strategies generally involves selling equity futures into falling markets.

As the market began to fall in October, portfolio insurers sold equity futures heavily, as their strategy dictated. Another practice, index arbitrage, which exploits pricing dispari-

Portfolio insurers, however, argue that their strategy is no different in concept then the stop-loss orders that have been employed routinely in the securities markets for a centu-

In addition, they argue that their sales - roughly $10 billion during the market decline - were trivial compared to the total values of shares outstanding (roughly $3 tril-

Consequently it is argued that even the technical factors did not cause the 1987 crash. Speculative Bubbles

The concept of speculative bubbles offers a third way of thinking about the October crash. A speculative bubble is a movement in the

Many economists have run statistical experiments on the nature of the October 1987 market crash in order to determine whether or not it was the result of the bursting of this speculative bubble although not conclusive, many of these statistical measures strongly suggest that the

Oct. 19, 1987, crash was indeed th bursting of a speculative bubble.

To conclude if the uncanny relationship between the October 1980 price movements and those of Octo ber 1929 movements (see accomprinying chart) is simply the result the bursting of two bubbles, then to similarity of fluctuations in the DJIA during these two periods may say very little about the similarities of the fundamental economic environments existing during these 144 time periods.

SUMMER OFFICIALLY arrives on Monday, June 20, at 11:57 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time.

On this day the sun will be rising at its farthest point north of east, have its highest altitude in the sky. and set at its farthest point north of west for the entire year.

Sunrise on June 20 is at 5:55 a.m. sun. and sunset is at 9:12 p.m., allowing for a possible 15 hours and 17 minutes of sunlight

The sun appears in different parts of the sky at different times of the year. Remember where the sun was rising back in December? It was rising far south of east and setting south of west. The days were short and cold, and we had winter.

The difference in the sun's position is not due to any movement on the part of the sun. Instead it's due to the tilt of Earth's axis of rotation.

WE ORBIT around the sun, but our axis is tilted 231/2 degrees. It just happens to be pointing toward a star named Polaris, the North Star.

In summer, when the North Pole of the earth is pointed toward Polaris, it is tiled 23 % degrees toward the sun as well. Six months later the earth is on the opposite side of the toward Polaris, but now it tilts 231/2 degrees away from the sun. Therefore, the sun appears in a different part of the sky.

The moment when the earth reaches the point in its orbit, where the North Pole is at the greatest tilt toward the sun, is the exact moment of summer. At least it is for the Northern Hemisphere.

When the North Pole is tilted toward the sun, the South Pole is tilted away from it. We may be enjoying the start of summer, but for people south of the equator, the days are short and cold, and it's the start of

If it were not for the tilt of Earth, there would be no change of seasons. If Earth's axis was straight up and Personally, I don't see how people who drive themselves to work have any energy left after dealing with all that stop and go down there. For my part, I prescribe taking SEMTA twice daily to relieve the pain of commuting.

I read my paper while one of the best drivers in Southeastern Michigan takes me where I want to go. SEMTA takes me shopping, to Greenfield Village and other fun places, too. It's

Nose to nose With the 'Elephant Show' stars

special writer

HARON, LOIS & BRAM, the children's entertainment group loved by the peanut butter crowd and their captivated parents, will open Meadow Brook Music Festival's children's concert series at 11 a.m. Saturday.

The trio's popular "Elephant Show" runs seven days a week on "Nickelodeon," the children's cable network. Nine albums by Sharon, Lois & Bram sell like blockbusters in Canada and are beginning to take off in the U.S.

'Because it's a border city, Detroit is a jump ahead of the rest of the U.S. in knowing about us," Bram Morrison said, over the phone from Toronto. "Our show has been available on CBC since it started.'

"The Elephant Show" has caught on in other cities this side of the border since it began showing on U.S. cable networks in October 1987.

Of the group's ability to pick songs kids love, Bram said, "The three of us have spent a lot of time on the floor, nose to nose with children.'

They all have children, now grown, and Bram believes their involvement with music and the children happened simultaneously. Bram has two adult children and "two and a half grandchildren," Lois has a grown son living in California and Sharon has a daughter in California and a son at a university in Canada.

Before he joined with Sharon and Lois, Bram taught sixth grade, or as they say in Canada, "grade six." He worked as an itinerant music teacher in the schools as well as performing in the Mariposa Folk Festival and touring as guitarist for Alan

BOTH SHARON and Lois ran music workshops for children in the Toronto schools before the three pooled their experience and repertoires in 1978 to produce their first album "One Elephant, Deux Elephants."

'We borrowed $20,000 from friends and family, most of whom thought they'd never see their money ever again," Bram said.

The three knew they'd struck a chord with the young crowd when only three months later they paid back their investors and had profits besides.

The Toronto-based group draws music from everywhere. Its shows and albums include a healthy selection of folk songs, a smattering of jazz, old round-the-campfire favorites, Mother Goose rhymes, rock tunes, calypso, Broadway hits and songs the entertainers remember from their childhoods - all deliv-young people and their families, open the children's concert series Saturday at Meadow Brook Music Festival. If you haven't got your tickets yet, it's too late — the show sold out nine days ered with effervescent enthusiasm.

"The most important thing in putting over a song is to show you enjoy it," Bram said. "You can't fake it. If 9-year-olds see me having fun doing 'Eensy Weensy Spider' they figure it's OK for them to do it too."

"People like doing things," he said. The group builds activities into its success formula. Fingers dance in "Thumbkin," arms swing like trunks in "One Elephant, Deux Elephants," kids shout advice to the monkey's mother, and sing along with gusto to most songs.

"Our audiences aren't passive," Bram said, with marked understate-

The group takes pride in the tremendous variety in its songs and in its arrangements

"The easy way is to put songs through the same arrangement mill and have them end up all sounding the same. We don't do that. If it's calypso, we try to make it sound the way they do it in the islands.

Bram said its arrangements vary from "one unaccompanied voice to three-part harmony with a full swing band and everything in between."

THIS YEAR the three celebrate ents. their 10th year as a group. "Luckily we're good friends," Bram said.

They like to get together with their spouses to talk about what makes the world tick and to share their love for good food. "We love to cook, to eat our cooking, and to eat other people's good cooking " When they're on tour they always "look for the good meal in town.

Nowadays when they travel, their elephant mascot comes along as part of the show. A series of accidents

The bilingual lead song in their first album One Elephant Deux Elephants," became a hit, so when they needed a name for their record company, Elephant Records seemed a logical choice

A few years back when they were doing a show in Toronto, the Toronto Dance Company had just ended a production of Babar and had baggykneed elephant costumes available. So Sharon, Lois & Bram asked to borrow a costume and a dancer as a. cute addition to one of their shows.

"It was an instant success." Bramsaid, "and we've had an elephant mascot ever since." Now everyone gives them elephants and they love.

"Our houses are full of elephant figures I've got hundreds and hundreds in my house.

They're strong intelligent gentle and friendly." Bram said in praiseof elephants. Not a bad recommendation for any creature, even one with wrinkly knees.

On Saturday morning Sharon, Lois & Bram will cavort with an elephant on the Meadow Brook stage and sing songs that make the world seem young and full of magic

Concert sells out far ahead

Tickets sold out nine days ago for the Sharon. Lois and Bram concert Meadow Brook Music Festival announced that this was the first time in festival history any concert sold out that far ahead.

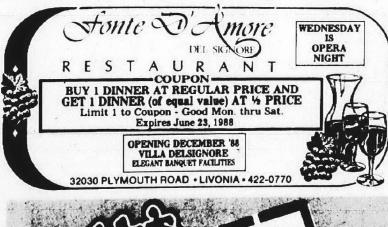

Because of the huge crowd, gates will open at 9:30 a m. instead of the usual 10 a m. for the concert at 11. Bowman's Catering will serve from 9:30 a.m. until after the concert. at Trumbull Terrance. Available will be lemonade, soft drinks, snacks for kids, and coffee and iced tea for par-

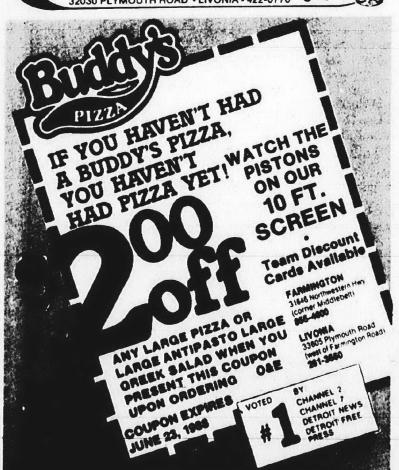

Sold out are the 2,200 Baldwin Pavilion seats and 5,300 lawn seats, for a total of 7,500 concertgoers, who will gather on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills

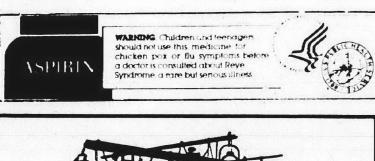

Other concerts in the children's series include the Hudson Vagabond Puppets in "Mammoth Follies." Saturday, June 25, the Piccolo Opera Company in Little Red Riding Hood," Saturday, July 23, and Bob McGrath of "Sesame Street," Saturday. Aug. 13.

St. D's 'Pippin' — It's a pip

Performances of "Pippin" ended last weekend.

By Barbara Michals

special writer

Both offbeat and upbeat, "Pippin" is a joyous, whimsical musical recently presented in a stylish production by St. Dunstan's Guild of Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills.

Following a play-within-a-play format, the Leading Player (Gary Jones) of a theatrical troupe narrates the story of Pippin (Jim Andres), favorite son of King Charlemagne. The Leading Player also serves as Pippin's guide on his journey through life.

Having just completed his university studies. Pippin returns home determined to search for the meaning of life. Certain that he is destined to be extraordinary, he seeks to find his "Corner of the Sky." He seeks glory on the battlefield but becomes quickly disillusioned with the futility of war. He abandons himself to hedonistic pleasures, but his enjoyment is quickly dissipated. . Idealistic, Pippin usurps the throne and tries to create a better world, but inevitably political realities force him to repeat his father's mistakes. Eventually a widow and her small son help a very reluctant Pippin to accept the joys of ordinary life and give up his quest.

MULTITALENTED Jones does a very fine job as the Leading Player. He's full of devilish charm as he introduces the show with "Magic to Do" and sings and dances his way through Pippin's joys and disappointments. The ever-present acoustical problems of Cranbrook's lovely outdoor amphitheater had Jones in a losing battle with the orchestra in some early numbers, but he overcame the difficulties later.

With his boyish grin, Andrea is like "Morning Glow" and "Extraordinary," and he exudes ebullience

Tom Spriggs has a regal bearing and commanding stage presence that makes him a perfect Charlem-agne. Barbara Vorves is delightful as the widow, her lovely voice heard in "King of Woman" and "Love

Margie Brooks is ideal as Berthe, Pippin's peppery, sprightly granmother who voices the show's theme "It's time to start livin'," in "No Time at All." Brooks' voice is always so outstanding and the song is so joyous that one wishes for more stan-

Dianne Ryding is outrageously camp as Fastrada, Pippin's ambitious and conniving stepmother, and Tom Christopher is marvelously conceited as Pippin's half-brother Lewis.

THE SPIRITED, well-rehearsed chorus backs up the principals with excellent singing and dancing. The show's most lavish numbers, "War Is a Science" and "Glory," are very imaginatively and impressively choreographed and costumed. Makeup is fanciful and clever throughout.

Plaudits go to co-directors Debbie Cragin Broder and Karen Teegarden. Broder also served as choreographer and Teegarden as musical di-

Deadline for the Upcoming calendar is one week ahead of publication. Items must be received by Thursday to be considered for publication the following Thursday. Send to: Ethel Simmons, Entertainment Editor, the Observer & Eccentric, 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia 48150.

• CIRCUS TIME

A circus tent will be raised with the help of an elephant when the Kelly-Miller Brothers Circus comes to Ann Arbor on Friday-Sunday, June 24-26. Three shows will be presented Saturday, June 25, at 11 a.m. and 2 and 6 p.m., and Sunday, June 26, at 2. and 4:30 p.m. Admission is $4 for children under 12 and $6 for adults. Tickets are available at all Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti and Canton Kroger stores beginning June 18. Tickets also will be sold at the circus grounds Saturday-Sunday, June 25-26. The free 7:30 a.m. tent raising will be at the circus grounds at the corner of Ellsworth and Airport Boulevard, west of State Street in Ann Arbor. Spectators will be able to get a behind-the-scenes look at the circus and watch the circus crew feed the animals. Circus '88 is sponsored by Catherine McAuley Health Center. Money raised will benefit the labor and delivery unit at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

O STAR SHOWER

The "Stroh Shower of Stars" three-concert series will be held this weekend at Hart Plaza in Detroit. Some of the biggest names in oldies, rock and country music will take part in the free series during the Grand Prix weekend. The concerts begin Friday-Sunday, June 17-19, at the conclusion of race activities.

Hail to the Chiefs

Coach had state title in mind

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Canton girls soccer coach Don Smith was asked by one of his players earlier this spring what the team's goal should be for the campaign ahead.

To win the last game of the sea son," he quickly responded.

The answer brought a look of bewilderment and disappointment from the player.

"She just looked at me as if to say 'Is that all you want to do?' "Smith recalled. "I don't think she quite caught on to what I was saying."

about, and his players picked up on the idea, too, once the state tournament rolled around. Or, rather, once the Chiefs got on a roll in the state tournament.

SMITH WAS thinking about a possible state championship as early as that preseason conversation, and that is exactly the way the season

Canton won "the last game" when it defeated Livonia Churchill 2-1 by way of a shootout last Saturday and claimed the school's first state title in a team sport.

It took just two years for Smith, who has compiled a 28-5-4 record as coach, to lead the Chiefs to the pinnacle of high school success. But, then, he has a history of second-year achievements.

Smith coached his alma mater, Detroit Western, to the Public School League boys track championship in his second year there, and his under-13 Bonanza soccer team went all the way after two seasons.

While the Chiefs put it all together in 1988, they were laying the groundwork a year ago when they posted an 11-3-3 record and were beaten in overtime by Plymouth Salem, the team they succeeded as state champions, in the district final.

"I think we came of age last year, out I don't think people thought it was for real," Smith said. "It was like we had lucked out and scrapped out a few good games.

"BUT I THINK (other teams) have to realize they're going to have good games with Canton, because once you get a little tradition going kids start playing harder for you.

The Chiefs, who finished with a 17-2-1 record and nine-game winning streak, won their first five games and were ranked No. 1 in the state before losing two of the next three.

But the low point was a 1-1 tie with Liyonia Franklin in the last week of the regular season. That prevented Canton from representing the Western Division in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship game despite having the best overall record (8-1-1) in the

The Chiefs regrouped to defeat eventual WLAA champ Churchill and Livonia Stevenson in their final regular-season games and begin the streak they will carry into next sea-

"I think the girls were a little bitleague final)," Smith said. "They had something to prove.

"I'm glad we went all the way. Otherwise, they would have felt they were just lucky to get as far as they

WINNING THE state championship officially placed Canton's program on a new level and makes it an established power in what is recognized as the state's toughest soccer

soccer

Furthermore, the Chiefs can be confident in the knowledge they earned their title.

"We didn't sneak in the back door," Smith said.

Canton had to beat Salem, the defending champ, to win the district. After brushing aside Brighton, the Chiefs faced the No. 1-rated team, Kalamazoo Central, in the regional

In the semifinals, Canton avenged a 1-0 loss to Northville by beating the Mustangs by the same score. In the final, Smith's squad had to overcome a Churchill team that won the '86 crown and has been in the last three state finals.

The Salem game, which Canton won 3-2, seemed to give the Chiefs added confidence and renewed energy. They appeared to be a team with a mission after eliminating their arch rival. "THE GIRLS thought they were them. You have to beat someone to be better than them. "Salem could have done it again just as well."

just as good as them last year,"

Smith said. "We just didn't beat

Kalamazoo Central may have been caught looking past Canton, which proceeded to give them a 4-1 thumping. Smith thinks the Maroon Giants were more eager for a rematch with Salem, the team that had beaten them in a shootout last year.

"I don't think they thought we were going to be as tough as we were," he said. "When we came on the field, they looked at us like 'Well, we'll take this one easily and head on to the next one."

"That's just my feeling, that they were taking us a little for granted."

The Chiefs were the epitome of team play, winning the champion-ship without any bonafide star but with a lot of good players. An unfortunate example of such was the fact Canton didn't place anyone on the all-league team.

"I THOUGHT IT was really neat," Smith said, "because the girls had a saying: 'No stars.' Evidently, they had the same feeling, that they were going to do it as a team."

Wayne standout selected area's trackman of year

Four Wayne Memorial boys track stars secured places on the 1988 All-Observerland team.

And of the four, one has earned the status of Observerland Trackman of the Year. The honor goes to Wayne's Steve

Once a team wins a championship, it becomes a target.

When a team not only wins a championship, but completely dominates its competition, tatooing a bulls-eye on it isn't enough. The rules makers feel the need pressure - to intercede.

Which is one explanation why the Roush Racing team has failed to do this season what it has done so successfully in the past - roll up victory after victory in the SCCA Bendix Trans-Am series

ALTHOUGH THE TEAM'S chances in this Saturday's Motor City 100 Trans-Am race, a preliminary to the Detroit Grand Prix, are improved - Scott Pruett won here in 1987 - they're not what they were in previous years.

"We're doing well, but not as good as in the past," admitted David Hellweg, vice president of marketing promotions for Roush Racing of Livonia. "A lot of that has to do with rules the SCCA has put in.

And what rules are those? "They put in rules aimed directly at keeping Scott Pruett from driving our turbo car," said Hellweg.

What the SCCA did was raise the turbo car's weight requirement from 2,550 pounds to 2,700 for Pruett. A weight change that drastic would have major ramifications on the car's performance, affecting braking the most

"They're trying to keep him out of our turbo cars, so we have him driving our V-8." said Hellweg.

THE SCCA'S reasoning seems justified Last season, Pruett won seven of 12 Trans-Am races and ran away with the driver's championship, totalling 193 points to 129 for runner-up Les Lindley. His Roush teammate, Pete Halsmer, was third in the driver's standings with 121 points and collected four firsts

That gave the Roush team, managed by Lee White of West Bloomfield, 11 wins in 12 races. And it convinced SCCA officials something had to be done to slow down the team that had captured a circuit-record four consecutive manufacturers titles.

"They felt they had to do what they had to do to keep the races Roush team can re-establish itself competitive," said Hellweg.

team has done was at the last race (fourth this season) at Sears Point May 29, when Pruett was third, Lyn St. James was 11th and Deborah Gregg was 13th.

"That," said Hellweg, "was probably our best effort as a team.

THEY'LL NEED something more to defend the title Pruett captured here last year. Roush named for Jack Roush of Livonia. who heads ECS/Roush Industries and who specializes in developing racing engines - has four cars entered, all XR4Tis: Pruett's V-8 and the turbos of St. James, Gregg and, for the first time this season, Halsmer.

The toughest competition is expected to come from the Group 44 Audi Quattro team, driven by Hurley Haywood and Hans Stuck.

The Audis are going to be very tough on this course with their four-wheel drive," acknowledged Hellweg. "If we had been able to drive our turbo cars at the weight everyone else is, we would have been in victory lane. Now, it's going to be that much harder, but we're definitely going to be in

ONE OPPOSING Trans-Am driver questioned whether the Roush team was over-extended. Besides the Trans-Am circuit, Roush has a highly successful team entered in the IMSA Camel GTO (1986 record: 19 wins in 48 starts. drivers' and manufacturers' championships) and this year has entered a car in the NASCAR Winston Hellweg said that was not the case, adding that Roush himself was still in close contact with all three programs. "Even though we're doing a lot of things, he keeps a real close hand on things," said Hellweg of Roush. "And even though we're branching out into another series, it's still a V-8 engine.

"That's what Jack does so well developing engines."

What remains to be seen is if the as the Trans-Am circuit's dominant With Pruett confined to Roush's force. The next test comes Satur-

Local drivers part of Grand Prix scene, too

OME OF THE WORLD'S best race drivers are in town this weekend. They get paid a million dollars a year to drive million-dollar cars around tracks or through cities in such places as Monaco, Spain, France, Germany, Brazil, Italy, England.

For this tiny group of elite men. car racing is not sport. It's more than that; it's their livelihood. It's their job.

Others will be racing around the city's 2.5-mile circuit this weekend. Some of them are professionals, too. It is their living. They are hired to drive - and to win.

Guys like Scott Pruett of Roush Racing (of Livonia), Hans Stuck and Hurley Haywood of Group 44 Audi Quatro, Wally Dallenbach of Polyvoltac/Protofab Corvette (of Auburn Hills), and Willy T. Ribbs of F.S.I. Camaro, all of whom will run in the Motor City 100 SCCA Escort Trans-Am race Saturday.

One of that group will probably win the race. And somewhere, probably a lap or two behind, will be racers like Don Sak of West Bloomfield and Craig Bennett of South-

ON MONDAY, the four Roush Racing team Merkur XR4Tis were being fine-tuned for Saturday's race at the Jack Roush Performance Engineering plant in Livonia.

On Monday, Don Sak invited his pit crew over to his place in West Bloomfield to work in his garage on his Corvette. This will be Sak's first Trans Am allow it Get the difference? Take a walk down pit row on race day and you'll see it. Perhaps half of Saturday's field for the Motor City 100 will be serious, professional drivers whose livelihood could depend on how well they drive in this race.

The rest will be competing on a different level - a race within a race.

"I enjoy the competition," said Sak "Even though I don't win, I look at the field of cars and see who I can race with. And I get real satisfaction beating one or two of the top guys."

THERE ARE TWO major factors that keep guys like Sak and Bennett from challenging the top-runners, and the cause of both is the same

Lack of cash obviously keeps the small-time driver-owners from matching the equipment and resources of the major teams. Sak's top sponsor is Quality Construction, a Dearborn firm owned by - guess who? - Sak

The Roush team has Ford and Lincoln Mercury as its top sponsors, with others like Stroh's, 7-Eleven, Secret Deodorant, Goodyear, TRW, Folgers Coffee, Applicon Computer Programs, Mac Tools, Lens Crafters also in line.

Sak blew a good deal of his racing budget putting a new engine in his Corvette. He based the engine size on preliminary report issued by Trans-Am administrators last winter regarding engine size-to-weight ratio. When the official figures were released this spring, the ratio was different, forcing Sak to scramble to make qualifying standards.

never be a problem.

"SOME OF THESE people are very serious. That's all they do is race," said Rob Stevens of Garden City, a driver who is trying to make the transition from driver-owner to professional driver. "Others, like me, take it seriously but we have another job. It makes it difficult to compete.

He knows the differences between the top teams and the driver-owners who work out of their garages. And it isn't just money poured into better equipment. It's attitude.

Some of those guys have backup cars in their trailers at the track, Stevens said of his former Super Vee competition, the open-cockpit cars that look and perform like miniature Indv-style cars. What it means is that while driv-

Ivey's time of 22.2 in the 200 dash was Observerland's best, and he finished second at the regional in the 200. Ivey qualified for the Class B state tournament in both the 100 and 200 dashes

Carlos Horne, Wayne, 400 run: Although not joining the team until midseason. Horne's time of 49.8 in the 400 was the area's second best. He also was strong in the 200, recording a 22.7 for the area's sixth best time.

Only a sophomore, Horne was a mem-ber of the school-record 1.600 relay. which finished fourth at the Class A meet He also was a member of the Observeriand Relays long jump champion relay

"(Because) Carlos was not able to come out for track until almost mid-season, he never really got into top condition. Carlos has the ability to really excel in track."

Brandon London, Farmington, 800 run: London's 800 time of 1:55.94 gave him a fourth-place finish at the Class A meet His best 800 time of 1:53.7 came at the Oakland County Meet, where he took home the title.

A senior, London won the 800 run in the WLAA meet and figured in two relay wins at the same meet. He also cleared 6-4 in the high jump.

London joined Hearndon last weekend as one of 40 Michigan representatives in a tristate meet with Ohio and Indiana. held in Bloomington. Ind.

Craiger trailed the Farms 3-0 as the result of two costly errors, but the team stayed close behind the pitching of Scott Kennedy, who allowed one hit in five innings and struck out six.

Jason Bregni got Craiger on the scoreboard with a fourth-inning homer, and John Wiegand tied the score with a triple in the fifth.

Jason Stoops won the game with a doulbe in the seventh, scoring Kennedy. Bregni picked up the victory, holding Grosse Pointe hitless in the final two innings.

Elks claim victory in two games

Jeff Kugelman pitched a complete game and Mike Sulak belted a home run as the Plymouth-Canton Elks won their second game against no losses Monday.

Kugelman, who scattered seven hits, struck out nine and walked just three in pitching the Elks past Livonia Century 21, 6-3.

Sulak's homer was a tremendous shot, traveling 425 feet, and Dan Niemiec's off-the-wall triple was as other key hit.

Brian Paupore pitched five innings of no-hit baseball as the Elks opened Connie Mack League play with a 6-0 defeat of Michigan National Bank last Thursday.

Canton supported Paupore, who struck out four and walked only one, with four runs in the first inning, and that was all the Elks needed. Sulak and Chris Kennedy finished up.

If Smith, who has coached soccer for the last 11 years and football, basketball, track and cross country during a 26-year career in education, knew his team had the talent to make a run at the state title this year, nobody will doubt him next

Since it loses only four seniors, Canton will return most of its championship team in tact.

Smith's greatest fear, in fact, was that his team would settle for less than being No. 1 because so many were underclassmen.

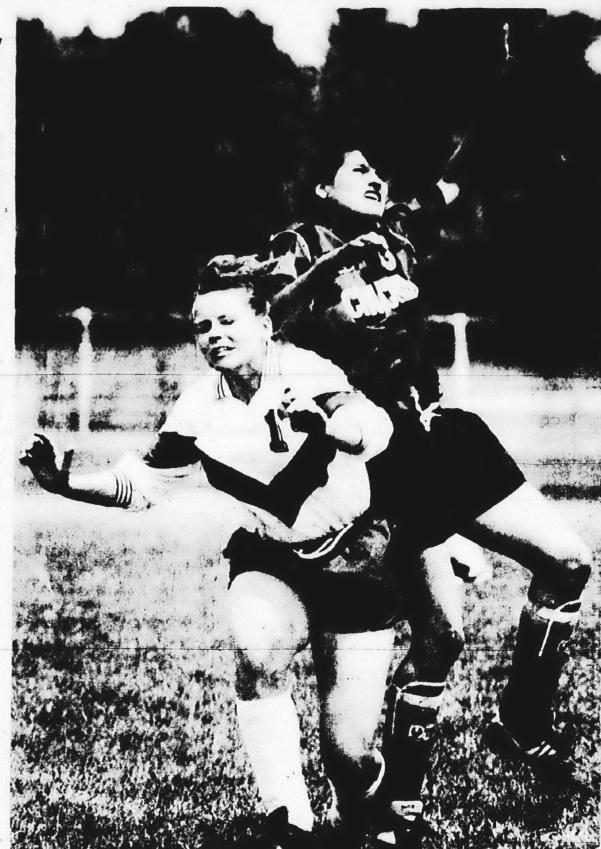

"I didn't want to hear the girls say Well, we can get it next year, Smith said "I didn't want that to slip in and it never did. They were only worried about doing the job this

Prize money at stake in Trenton road race

Summer's here and the time is right for dancing in the streets.

Or running. Or, better yet, both.

Friday night, downtown Trenton will be the site of what is generally considered the highlight of the road-racing season in the metropolitan Detroit area.

About 3,000 runners, many of them from the Observer & Eccentric areas, will converge on the downriver community to run one of two races, then dance in the street

Big prize money is at stake for ry of the run, with $1,000 going to the men and women winners in each of the 8K (4.96 miles) and onemile runs

The one-miler is at 7:30 p.m., with the longer run at 8. The 8K makes two loops through shady, scenic Elizabeth Park, finishing in downtown Trenton, near the bandstand, free food and numerous kegs

Late entry fee is $10 and includes T-shirt, races, beer, wine, the first time in the six-year histo- food and, last but most definitely not least, dancing. Registration is on Riverside Drive at St. Joseph St. downtown. For information, call 675-2220.

Mercy player earns award

Maureen Scullen, a senior at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills, received the Scholar-Athlete Award for girls soccer at the 13th Annual Operation Friendship Banquet.

The Detroit Catholic and Public School leagues are joint sponsors of the event. Scullen, who graduates from Mercy this month with a 3.85 grade-point average, was the Catholic League representative in soccer.

Scullen will enter the University of Michigan in the fall with plans to study pre-law and business. She also will compete for the U-M women's soccer team.

During the summer, she will travel to Wisconsin with an under-18 Michigan youth soccer team as part of the Olympic Development Program. The team will play against other Midwest teams.

Artist says goodbye after 35 years

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Thursday, June 16, 1988 O&E

It will seem odd to say goodbye to Johanna Haas after she's been so much a part of the metropolitan art scene for 35 years. Her highly individual colorful landscapes, village and city scenes have been in many area shows and galleries.

She's ridden the bus from her home on East Jefferson in Detroit to the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association to teach for many years. She studied at Society of Arts and Crafts and completed her bachelor's and master's degrees in art at Wayne State University.

After all that - awards and prizes and representation in a lot of public and private collections - she and her husband, Lother, will move back to their native Germany at the end of this year. Before that they'll be going back and forth to finish the paperwork for his retirement from Chrysler and find a place to live in "Munich is my favorite city with museums, galleries, opera and theater," she said. "It's three quarters of an hour from the Alps where many of my landscapes originated. Munich is the city where everybody wants to live. We have close friends

But, before all this happens, she will have "A Farewell Show" Friday, June 24 to Saturday, July 9 at Bloomfield Fine Arts, 280 N. Woodward, Birmingham. It is significant that she and Dee Gregg, who owns the gallery, went to the same high school in Frankfort-Oder, now in East Germany, but didn't meet until after they came here.

Haas said she will have about 45 paintings in the show, "It will be a conglomerate of watercolors and oils - some recent, some never shown and some people might have seen before - street scenes, scenes from the Michigan Council of the Arts office on the 12th floor (of a downtown Detroit Building), from there the city looks beautiful. I still try to catch the beauty. I can't paint ugly, that's very hard for me to do."

She said she'll also have street scenes of Indian Village and she'll also show her paintings of rooftops done both here and in Europe. She has done these rooftop scenes in Germany, Austria and Switzerland in watercolor on 400 pound paper. She is a skilled colorist who clings to realism, but is never a slave to it. She brings her own fantasy world to each painting so that becomes almost an illustration for a fairy tale.

She cherishes a quote by the great painter and colorist, Hans Hofmann: The whole world, as we experience it visually, comes to us through the mystic realm of color. Our entire being is nourished by it."

Her satisfaction in her career, she

The move back to Germany after 35 years in Detroit will bring new challenges for Johanna Hass and more time to paint and said, comes from knowing that her paintings hang in many collections and homes, "that people live with your paintings" and being juried into shows and given prizes by great artists such as Grace Hartigan and Philip Pearlstein.

"I take visible reality as the starting point, then spread color over the surface like a carpet. I strive for simplification and concentration with the aim of giving a new value to nature through the addition of the soul and the intellect."

Haas suggested that she and her husband are ready for a change. She will have more time to paint and to travel with her husband. "I'm really looking forward to it."

Her show will continue through Saturday, July 9. Reception for the artist 6-9 p.m. Friday, June 24. Regular hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, until 8 p.m. Thursday, 280 N. Woodward, Bir-

Car painting to be unveiled at Grand Prix

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

It doesn't take much for Jim Bisignano of Birmingham to move a mountain or a bridge - all in a day's work for a studio painter.

His painting of two USF&G sponsored Formula I cars at the Brazil Grand Prix earlier this year will be officially unveiled this weekend. The occasion will be a USF&G party during Detroit's Formula I race named this year the EniChem Grand Prix. The painting is the third of a series he's done for the same sponsor.

Bisignano went to Brazil to photograph the race - 17 rolls of 36 - to set the scene and have the details all in order. He is meticulous in depiction of the cars and the drivers, although he takes a poetic, artistic license with backgrounds. He wanted the mountains of Brazil in the picture to give the painting a strong identity. He's seen them, they definitely are there, but not quite at the spot where he shows them. He has spent more than three months working on the painting and a week before the unveiling was putting the

He plays classical music tapes while he works and he had the final afternoon of work set up as a three-opera task. Opera suited his mood for that very special, final day. "Music sets the energy . when you get three of those dudes (soloists) singing at the same time, you get a lot of energy." Standing beside the painting, he said, "This whole situation never existed and never will exist . . . I had to move the mountain about a quarter of a mile. For last year's painting (of the Detroit Grand Prix), I had to move the Ambassador Bridge about half a mile."

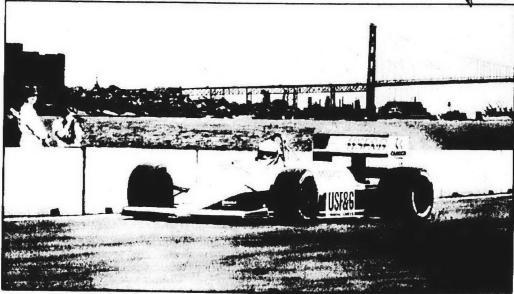

THE COMMISSION for the new painting came complete with challenges. He was to include two USF&G Formula I cars, the one with British driver Derek Warick and one with American driver Eddie Cheever - both the central subject, both equidistant from the finish line. To be sure he had done it right, he ran an imaginary line through the center of the front wheels of the Saying racing people are "very nationalistic," he pointed to the Union Jack on Warlck's helmet and the stars and stripes on Cheever's car.

Bisignano, a familiar figure on the Grand Prix circuit, will be back at the edge of the track again this weekend taking pictures to document this year's race for his now seemingly inexhaustive files.

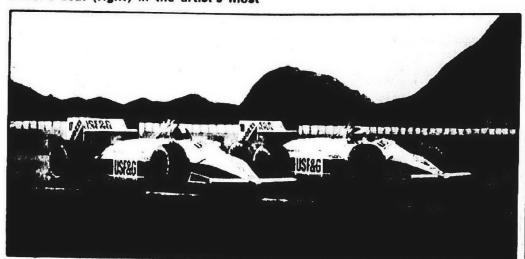

Jim Bisignano, left, and his brother, John, right, enjoy the company of many Formula One drivers such as Eddie Cheever, center, who will be racing in Detroit this weekend.

Eddie Cheever is the driver in Jim Bisignano's painting of last year's Detroit Grand Prix, above, and he is also in the driver's seat (right) in the artist's most recent painting of the Formula I Grand Prix in Brazil earlier this year. That's the one Bisignano will unveil this weekend.

Bisignano is completing two paintings of the Detroit Grand Prix winners in 1985 and 1986 for Keith Crain of Crain Communications.

His brother, John of Breckenridge, Colo., who covers the races for ESPN, cable sports network, shares his interest and enthusiasm for the sport.

By Manon Meilgaard special writer

It isn't difficult to detect Lyn Parker's earlier career as a textile designer in her layered, sculptured and richley textured wall canvases, diptychs and wood-framed collages on

Her "Remnant Series II" is at Ilona and Gallery of Farmington Hills through June 24. Her works teem with energetic, gestural movement. On a canvas backing she applies a variety of materials - vinyl, cheese-cloth, fabric remnants - and adds layer upon layer of rhoplex, a soft, milky medium, which mixed with acrylics creates a luscious effect of dimension, gloss and color. Her canvases are both tactile and sensual; inviting to be touched. Some of the paintings consist of two or three separate, layered pieces. The surfaces suggest landscape terrain, biological themes (such as birth) or animal abstractions. Each manifests a feeling of life, nature and energy.

Although not consciously planned, certain images come to mind, and these are reflected in the evocative names. For example, there is a flowing, winged look to the threelayered, two-dimensional "Embryonic Bird," with its textured surfacce, jagged edges and glowing pastel colors.

"Has Anyone Seen My Pet Bull" has a discernible taurine quality in a vigorous collage embellished with sequins and beads. The jagged (or irregular) edge is a trade-mark feature of Parker's work.

"I'm very much a mood painter," she said. "Each piece reflects what I feel at a particular time. I'm always looking for unusual fabrics with texture and my work junk pile is full of odd remnants and found objects.'

Parker has lived in Farmington for the last 13 years. She has a degree from the Textile Design Fashion Institute of Technology in New York, a bachelor's in psychology from Kean Collee, Union, N.J., and attended the graduate program in developmental psychology at Oakland University from 1975-1976.

Her work has been exhibited at the Carol Hooberman Gallery, Birmingham, Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association and Detroit Focus Gallery

She strikes a vibrant, receptive chord when she says, "these are very physical paintings - I want the observer to encounter the weight of the painting and the physicality of the surface.

"Remnant Series II" by Lyn Parker will continue at Ilona and Gallery, through June 24, 31045 Orchard Lake Road, Hunter's Square Mall, Farmington Hills. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday, until 9 p.m. Wednesday-Friday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Lyn Parker's acrylic on canvas, 41 by 56 inches, is titled "Triangular Horse." Her show continues at Ilona and Gallery of Farmington Hills through June 24.

OD AS it might seem, two family histories in poetry form have recently come across my desk, and it seems odder still that they are both extraordinary books.

The first, "Octavia and Other Pocomes from Naomi Long Madgett, editor and publisher of Lotus Press Inc. in Detroit and professor emeritus at Eastern Michigan University (where she was professor in the Department of English Language and Literature for 16 years).

In Part One, Madgett tells the story of Octavia Cornelia Long (1885-1920), her father's sister, dead of tuberculosis three years before Naomi Cornelia Long is born. Family photos show a striking resemblance between Octavia and Naomi, and, indeed, in the prologue, Naomi writes: When as a child I wore your face, Octavia (three years returned to earth), and christened with your name, set forth on my own odyssey.

"I had no clothing of my own, only depressive hand-me-downs, frayed remnants of someone else's outgrown legacy. My father dressed me in your skin, and such a garment, woven of his fabrication of a second chance, was not discarded easily."

Through letters and imaginings. Madgett traces Octavia's life from her beginning in a middle-class black family in Texas and the Oklahoma Territory, to her graduation from the University of Kansas, to her short teaching career, to the mysterious ending of her marriage, and finally, to her slow death under appalling circumstances.

In a section called "Homing," Madgett visits Guthrie, Okla., Octa-

In Part Two, 'Other New Poems,' Madgett displays her award-winning talent in 24 tough, touching, funny poems, including 'Letting it all Hang Out" (Girdle: Don't need this noose anymore. Won't choke myself with someone else's brand of rope.)

THE SECOND POETIC family history, "An Afternoon in Waterloo Park," by former Detroiter Gerald Dumas (Wayne State University Press, softboard, $9.95), is a reprint of the highly acclaimed 1972 edition originally published by Houghlin Mifflin. Dumas is an author and writer for the "Hi and Lois" and Beetle Bailey" comic strips. He lives in Connecticut, but grew up on Detroit's east side and still visits relatives in the area.

Waterloo" begins in 1968, when Dumas returned to the family home on Dickerson Avenue to attend his mother's funeral

"I am sitting now at the dining room table

In the house where I was a boy. Here last night my mother died Upstairs, at two in the morning

On that old thin rug on the Bathroom floor. My father heard her fall.

He scrambled from his bed And went to her and held her head

Until she died Or so he hopes.

It is a bittersweet trip as the man once the boy here — leafs through photo albums and remembers his baffling boyhood; remembers life in this house, with a mother who could not be happy, no matter what.

He remembers Opa and Oma, his maternal grandparents, and his visits to their home in Conestogo, Ont. This is Opa, his German-born grandfather: "He had a long white beard, a black eve patch, five-inch heel on his right shoe, and a collection of canes. On Sundays he used his glass eye and his gold-head cane and in his black clothes went about his gardens as slowly as a king. He both frightened and fascinated children and although he had taught Greek, he seldom spoke English and never spoke to Still, Dumas discovers that Opa wrote poems - volumes of love poto a long-ago love named Marie. An unrequited love - not Oma - and Dumas wonders: "Did he want the story passed? If not, I think, these volumes would have vanished long ago.

Oma is the serene one, the mellow one who loves them all, and Dumas is startled when, as a man, he realizes that, though he had known her for 25 years, "Two weeks each summer is all I saw of her and Opa, those visits and a few they made to . And what is two times knew of her and she of me? A generation of bright moments are what I have to show. We sometimes touch those close to use more briefly than we know

At his kitchen table in the house on Dickerson, Dumas also remembers good times in Detroit. His days at St. Phillip's and his beloved, feared Carstens School.

About baseball, so much a part of Detroit's life, he says: "Strange wealthy teams would arrive in complete uniforms from unknown neighborhoods: they would be grim, talented hard to beat. Ragtag teams with no uniforms would make an appearance and they would lightheartedly inept. Most teams wore caps, any old pants, and two-color softball shirts with advertising on the backs. My first shirt said: MOE'S BIL-

Dumas evokes a complex dreamportrait of a Midwest family growing up in mid-century, and of the now-grown boy coming to terms with his childhood. And finally, in a touching epilogue written in October 1987, a month after his father's death, Gerald Dumas can say, 'That's the big picture. But the small picture is the one we gaze at most, and it is a picture of lovely and infinite variety.

(My apologies to those readers who went out searching for Elizabeth Klein's "Reconciliations" on my recommendation. Unfortunately, the book is now out of print. Try the library or a used book store. It is in both hardcover and paperback.)

Wonderland Mall invites all dog owners to enter its "No Bones About It" photo contest.

All you have to do is submit an 8-by-10-inch black and white or color photograph of your dog. Entry forms are available at the Wonderland Mall information booth. Deadline is Friday, July 1

The Humane Society will select five finalist photographs from all the entries submitted. Judging criteria will be based on the photograph's originality.

Once the five finalists have been selected, they will be on display at the information booth July 8-17. During this time, the public will vote on their favorite photo. It will cost $1 per vote and the photo that receives the most votes will win a "doggie bag" filled with treats, compliments of the Humane Society. All dollars collected from the votes will then be donated to the Humane Society

The winner will be announced Sunday, July 17. Wonderland is in Livonia at the corner of Plymouth and

Tell your Ford stories

The Henry Ford Estate-Pair Lane at The University of Michigan-Dearborn is inviting all who have memories of the auto pioneer and his family to share their remembrances at the estate beginning at noon, July 30 as part of the 125th anniversary of Henry Ford's birth.

Estate Director Donn Werling, who will host the Saturday event, says a tent will be raised on the grounds to be used as a collection center to officially record the oral histories.

Everyone is invited to share memories either if they wish," says Werling. "Favorite Ford sto-ries, songs, jokes and fiddle music, which Ford enjoyed, will be interspersed among the oral histories. And everyone who shares a firsthand experience receives a 'I knew Henry Ford' but-

• WATERCOLOR AWARDS

Five area artists are among 52 professional Michigan watercolorists who are represented in the pres-tigious 42nd Annual Michigan Water Color Society Exhibition at the Community Arts Gallery on the Wayne State University campus.

Winners from this area include Barbara Keidan, Birmingham; Ber-tha Cohen, Barbara Nigro and Claire Strasser, all of Bloomfield Hills; and Linda Mendelson, Southfield.

The exhibition is free to the public and will continue through June.

• PALETTE AND BRUSH EXHIBITION

The Palette and Brush Club's annual spring exhibition, "Kaleido-scope," is under way at the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association, Cranbrook Road near 14 Mile. The show will continue through June 18. The show is juried by Ray Frost Fleming, area artist and teacher.

O DOLLS EXHIBIT

16 Hands Gallery of Contempo-rary Crafts will host an exhibit of dolls, featuring four contemporary dollmakers: Deborah Banyas, Con-stance Harper, Steward Wilson and Georgia Landau. The exhibit continues through June 25.

Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 1-8 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. The gallery is in downtown Ann Arbor at 119 W. Washington, in the Earle Building, and across from the Old German restaurant. O ISRAELI ART

"Three Generations of Israeli Art" will be on exhibit at Gallery Yakir, 29080 Inkster, Southfield. Show hours are noon to 5 p.m. or by appointment. For more information, call 352-4290.

Landscaping a theme park

One of Florida's newer theme parks offers an unusual combination of beautifully landscaped grounds and six baseball fields. The park is in Baseball City, between Orlando and Tampa in central Florida.

The park has a western theme, including a Colorado Riders Show, many thrill rides, baseball movies, batting and pitching cages. It is formerly the home of Circus World, where 15 years ago there were only citrus trees.

Since the present owners, the publishing firm of Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, bought the 135-acre site in May 1986, more than 6,000 trees have been planted—including oaks, pines, palms, willows, dogwoods, sycamores, sweet gums and reductors.

Susan Bloodworth of Harcourt's staff says only the infield of the park's stadium diamond has artificial grass. The outfield and all the other fields have natural turf (Bermuda grass).

There are 93 beds of annual flowers along the 1¼ miles of new boardwalk, which is made of Australian jarrah wood (eucalyptus family). Bloodworth says more than 421,000 wooden screws were used to hold down the 35,000 jarrah wood boards (14½ by 2 inches) needed to construct the boardwalk.

BLOODWORTH SAYS the wood boards are resistant to fungus, fire and pests. If placed end to end, she says, the boards would reach 96 miles

The wooden boardwalk replaced hot concrete walks. Harcourt officials say the replacement cost exceeded $1 million. Near the boardwalk is a lovely garden with many types of cactuses, crowns of thorns and aloe plants

Horticulturist Paul Shaw served as my park guide He explained, "Landscaping is an interpretation of the one who does it. I like it natural, informal."

Before the changes were made, he said, "it was a hot and sterile scene. We gave it softer boardwalks, tore up concrete walks, screened the 24 amusement rides in the midway with dwarf bamboo and other plantings."

To simulate flowing water, Shaw and his crew planted Indian hawthorn, silverthorn and cleagmus near man-made ponds and fountains.

"We have added mounds, planted cool-looking iris and set in big rocks to change flat areas," he said "We did it all ourselves, me and my crew."

Shaw says the circus big top, where animals, clowns and acrobats once performed, was leveled and transformed into peaceful Park Place.

At Park Place, visitors may listen to classical music and relax among the trees, near hibiscus, ferns, ornamental grasses, irises, lilies and cardboard palms. Nearby are wrought iron bird cages, hanging baskets of asparagus ferns and herbal Swedish ivies that were fashioned by Shaw

OK, gardeners—better hop to it

By Jane Wilczewski special writer

Snakes are not needed in a garden especially mine. I believe God made a point of that in the book of Genesis. I'm sure they have their place in nature, but the insect-eating kind are usually not found in garden.

Garter snakes do have potential (ugh), if that's what you want to call it because they do eat slugs and occasionally insects. However, there just isn't room in my garden for a snake — or room for me and a snake in the same yard.

Much of a snake's diet consists of frogs and toads, and these are needed in the garden.

Toads are especially useful because they re nocturnal feeders and will eat any insects that move. Most birds eat during the day, so a good balance is provided with the useful amphibian that gets the munchies at night I know the feeling!

Toads really like small slugs that infest lawns and gardens where there's moisture. They're fond of cutworms too, that harm and kill the grass. Sad to say, toads sometimes eat earthworms, which are helpful to gardens.

Since toads generally live only four seasons, it's a good idea to encourage them and increase their number when you can The next time junior decides to go hunting for beasties under rocks, logs, or boards, teach him the benefits of this ugly character and its place in nature. You can also teach him that putting this critter in his back pocket isn't going to do the toad or himself any good. It won't help you either when he forgets about it, and you clean out his pockets before washing his pants.

NOW, IN CASE you're wondering about frogs. (I knew you were), they're helpful in gardens too. The mature tree or cricket frog will feed on the ground, tree trunk, or sitting on a leaf. Of course, they do prefer to have some water nearby. Large frogs will also live in your garden if you provide a small pond. You can increase their numbers by raising their pollywogs to maturity.

If you're able to obtain a batch with legs already developed, you can turn them loose in some moist spot in the garden, where children, providing they keep the pollywogs outside of the house, can play Raising four sons. I learned that the hard way R-I-B-B-I-T, ribb — it
