Maribeth Carroll, a teacher at Plymouth Salem High School, is going back to school.

The English teacher has been named a 1988 National Fellow for Independent Study in the Humanities

The fellowship provides selected high school teachers with a $2,800 stipend for fulltime summer independent study. An additional $200 is awarded to be spent on books for the school's library.

The Council of Basic Education sponsors the honor. The goal of the program is to have teachers take an in-depth look at the humanities and then pass on this knowledge in the classroom.

Poll workers

Did you ever want to see how an election works from the inside?

Consider becoming a poll worker in Plymouth Township for the Aug. 2 primary election or the Nov. 8 general election. Applicants must be registered voters and township residents, clerk Esther Hulsing said.

Figure on working from 6 a.m. to 9 or 10 p.m. election day at one of the 13 precincts in the township. Poll workers sign in voters, then bring computer ballots to township hall for counting at the end of the day. Poll workers are paid $50-55 for their efforts.

If interested, contact Hulsing 8 .m. to 4 p.m. weekdays at township hall, 42350 Ann Arbor Road at Lilley, or by telephone, 453-3840.

Biz awards

Do you know of a business person in Plymouth or Plymouth Township who deserves a pat on the back or a little extra recognition?

The Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce has a way for you to make those feelings public.

The chamber is sponsoring the 1988 Business People of the Year Awards.

Awards will be given in three categories - commercial/ manufacturing, retail and professional. Judging will be based on a personal data sheet that should demonstrate an ability to overcome hardships; creativity and imagination in products or services; professional and community involvement; and business history.

Judging will take place in the fall and the awards will be presented Oct. 27.

For more information about the award program, call the chamber, 453-1540.

Plenty of water, but grass fires are everywhere

By Doug Funke staff writer

Plymouth Township firefighters extinguished more grass fires be-tween June 1 and July 4 than all of last year.

Twenty-nine grass fires were doused during that 34-day period compared to 28 during all of 1987, according to Fire Chief Larry Groth.

Other than emergency rescue runs, township firefighters have recently spent more time on grass fires than any other activity, Groth Careless disposal of cigarettes and matches, fireworks and rekindlings were responsible for most of the grass fires in which a cause could be determined.

A cause couldn't be pinpointed about half the time.

"Everyone in the community must be extremely cautious," warned Groth, as the drought of '88 continued late last week

PEOPLE STILL flick cigarettes and matches out car windows having no idea where they'll end up, Groth said. "They're doing it every day."

Precautions in what normally would be harmless situations also are in order, Groth advised.

"They want to be careful about pulling automobiles onto grassy areas because catalytic converters can cause fires due to extreme heat," the chief said.

And people using charcoal grills should be aware that "all it takes is one spark to ignite dry grass below," Groth said

The best thing to do is use the grill on a driveway off the grass altogether, Groth said. If that isn't possible, at least wet the grass over which the grill will be placed, he said.

Township firefighters responded to three grass fires on four separate occasions this year - June 17, 29 and 30 and July 2.

FIREFIGHTERS battling grass fires must wear the same protective equipment - coat, boots, gloves and helmet — as for any other fire response. That's in addition to their regular duty uniforms.

"It's very miserable," Groth said. Neither Plymouth Township nor Plymouth has experienced water pressure problems this year, said Thomas Hollis, water and sewer su-

Board chief seeking better communication

By Doug Funke staff writer

David Artley says he wants to continue improving lines of communication with the community as he begins his second consecutive year as president of the Plymouth-Canton school board.

Artley, who presided over the school board last year during an emotional period of budget cuts, was unanimously re-elected president by his colleagues.

The president chairs meetings and can set the tone for interaction among board members and between the board and other segments of the community.

'We took some steps on the road to improving communications and we're going to take more this year," Artley said. "We're going to get out to hear what people say, what they want and what they expect."

Artley, 43, is development officer for a non-profit social services agency. He has served on the school board for five years.

ARTLEY EXPECTS to see much more community involvement in school affairs this year.

"You're going to have a lot of people affected by cuts, and obviously they're going to share those concerns," Artley said. Board members and administrators have to do a better job letting people know what's happening in the schools, he said.

"The board is going to get out and promote things that we do well spending per pupil, for example," Artley said. "We get a good return on our money.

"You have a reading program where we're perceived as a leader in Michigan. We have a lot of kids who

Little vehicles offer big thrills to crowd ROAR

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

The race car hits a side railing, flips over several times and lands off the course. No one could possibly survive the crash, but then no one could have fit in the driver's seat in the first place.

The cars are only about a foot long and weight about 31 ounces. This is radio operated auto racing, and Plymouth was the site last weekend of the national championships.

You've never heard of radio operated auto racing or ROAR? Many people may not be aware of the sport, but the competition drew 210 people from all over the United States and Canada.

Officials estimate that there are 20,000 ROAR members nationwide. And the winner of last weekend's races will advance to the world championship in Holland.

John Thawley of Birmingham is president of the local ROAR club, which hosted this year's competition. On Friday afternoon, he was doing trackside commentary as the little cars raced around a carpeted track in the main ballroom of the Plymouth Hilton.

"GOOD LEAD by the number eight car," he said into a microphone. "Numbers five and six are battling it out.

The cars in this particular heat aren't racing each other. They have a specific amount of time to complete as many laps as possible. When things calmed down a bit, Thawley had a chance to explain the basics of

"It's nothing to have well over $1,000 invested in a car," he said. "There's some extremely sophisticated equipment.'

On the surface, the cars look anything but sophisticated. They run on six little batteries and have a radio receiver that is not much bigger than the batteries. There are plastic wheels covered with thin rubber tires, and each car has the obligatory bright paint job.

But the little vehicles are also equipped with steering units and speed control devices. They also carry transponders, which tell a computer mounted over the track how many laps each car has made.

THE "DRIVERS" stand on the side of the track holding the controls. That device looks like a hand drill with an antenna. The car can reach speeds of up to 40 miles per hour on the straightaways, Thawley said.

Thawley said a novice can start out by spending less than $500, but "like any form of car racing, speed costs money.'

In addition to the races scheduled throughout the four-day championship, there were seminars on things like batteries and motors.

Although Lansing, East Lansing and Flint recently increased fines for illegally parking in handicapped spots to as much as $100, law enforcement officers in the Plymouth/ Canton area feel that current fines are sufficient deterrent to would-be violators.

We enforce it vigorously on public property, on streets and public parking lots," said Commander Michael Gardner of the Plymouth po-

"On private lots, we only go in on complaints."

Unauthorized vehicles parking in handicapped spots face a $30 fine, which increases to $40 if not paid in

"From what I've seen, if a car is parked (in a handicapped spot) with no sticker or (special) plate, they generally get a ticket. It's a serious problem for a handicapped person with no place to park."

Canton Township fines offenders handicapper space," said Tom Dori-$30, which increases to $45 after 20 days if the fine is still unpaid.

"WE ENFORCE on public and private property without regard. The law says we can go in and enforce the ordinance on private property," said Lt. Alex Wilson of Canton's public safety department.

Chief Carl Berry of the Plymouth Township force said violators are fined $25 and enforcement is equal on public and private lots and roads.

'Some local places are not marking their handicapped zones properly. If the marking is on the pavement only and it snows, if a sign is defaced or faded from the sun," he said. "The spots must be distinguished by blue

"It's a combination of problems. We enforce it routinely."

Officials who are increasing enforcement measures say the move is part of an effort to keep handicapped spots available for those who need them.

"There's been a lot of abuse of ty, East Lansing city manager. "Little by little, the abuse is getting more and more."

The fine for illegally parking in a handicapped space in Lansing will increase to $75 from $35 on July 1, police said. The fine goes up to $85 if not paid in two weeks and jumps to $100 if the ticket is not paid in four weeks, police said.

In Flint, the fine has doubled to $100, and, starting Wednesday, the cost of getting a ticket for the offense in East Lansing will be $50, a $30 increase.

Dority said raising the fine is one way to combat the problem of duckin drivers. But Flint is doing more than just raising the fine.

A volunteer force of 50 people is being trained to ticket cars illegally parked in the blue-marked spots, said Lt. Sid Baker, traffic commander of the Flint Police Department. The volunteers will begin work Aug.

programs find temporary

The Plymouth YMCA has found a home for its programs - at least temporarily.

The organization has rented a state-owned building off Sheldon Road in Plymouth Township, where it will hold day camp, fitness classes and a preschool program. In the past, the YMCA has had to use various schools for its programming.

"We hope that this stabilizes the programming, and we can build on " said interim director Joanne McCarthy.

The YMCA will retain its Plymouth office, in a house behind Plymouth City Hall.

The rented facilities include a gym and some classrooms, McCarthy said. She said the state used to use the building as a school for people who are mentally retarded.

The setting is temporary because the YMCA plans to build a permanent facility. It's building foundation committee is working on that project and looking into land deals, McCarthy said.

GM cars are popular - especially with thieves. Insurance studies show that if a small-time thief is after a radio, Volkswagens likely will be the target, both for the quality of the AM-FM receivers and for their ease of removal.

But if the thief is looking for a car to strip down into parts or to sell to a chop shop, then GM is easily the favorite target.

According to State Police Lt. Chris Hogan, unit commander of the Western Wayne Auto Theft Task Force, the top 32 car models stolen in the United States last year were all GM

Early in June, the task force made raid at a gravel pit at I-275 and Ecorse Road, just south of Canton,. and recovered 19 allegedly stolen trucks worth a total of some $750,000. Arrested was the Detroit owner of a gravel-hauling truck

The task force has recovered 85 vehicles worth some $1.6 million and has made 43 arrests involving 81, felony charges.

THE TASK force, and others like it in Oakland and Macomb counties, help explain a drop in car theft in Michigan, Hogan said

According to state police figures, auto thefts have dropped in the state in each of the last four years, from some 78,000 in 1984 to 68,000 last year. Nationally, car thefts have risen 5 percent annually.

'That's significant. No other state has been able to duplicate what Michigan has done," Hogan said. Despite declining numbers, auto theft in the state is a huge business. Hogan estimated the average car

MYOFASCIAL PAIN SYNDROME

The term myofacial describes a common rheumatological condition. The diagnosis of myofascial pain means that the origin of your discomfort is in the muscles (myo) and tendons (fascial), and not in the bones and joints. Myofascial pain syndrome has much in common with fibromyalgia. However, syndrome, broad muscle groups are involved. Thus, in the fibromyalgic shoulder, your pain is likely to be centered in the middle of the scapula. In myofascial syndrome the discomfort is broadly over in fibromyalgia the pain centers around trigger point sites. In myofascial pain the shoulder area, generally encompassing all of the trapezius muscle. The cause of myofascial pain is unknown. Tension plays a part, but the role of other inciting agents has not been clarified. Treatment is similar to that in fibromyalgia: heat, exercCse, and medication to assist you in reaching stage IV sleep. However, in myofascial syndrome, injection of trigger points does not enter into the treatment plan.

The long term outlook in myofascial syndrome is good: you can expect recovery in 18 months - 5 years.

Stress inducer

'Shorty' reviews land of giants

A salesperson told me they just aren't making shoes in my size anymore "People are just getting taller there are some really big women that come in here, another veteran shoe pusher told me several months

Those of you who know me, know I'm about 5-2, eyes of blue. But I'm nor trekled at the prospect of having my size 5 shoes custom made. Shopping used to be a stress reliever for

Now, it's a stress inducer. You realize, this all boils down to the hassles of being shorter-than-av-

I thought this might change with time, but that hasn't been the case. Whether it's buying shoes, or just dealing with other, everyday things, we shorties always get a slightly different view of the world.

TAKE THE woman I met at an area movie theater on a recent Sunday afternoon. We were both going to see "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" She was in a big hurry for the no-salt popcorn and something to wet her whistle. This professional had elbows like sharpened razor blades as she worked her way to the counter.

Until she looked me in the eye, I believe she thought she was shoving her elbows into the ribs of someone considerably younger. Probably closer in age, she thought, to the 12year-old who was waiting in front of Well, excuse me for being short.

I've learned to accept the frustrations of alterations, friends using my head as an armrest, and a 20-yearold sibling who calls me her "little sister." I now look up to my six-foottall younger brother, who I was once able to tackle and pin to the floor while baby-sitting.

Now, he just smiles down at me and pats me on the head.

THERE ARE, of course, advantages to being less-than-average in height. You're closer to the sink, can bend down and touch your toes easily and can wear high heels without worrying about how tall it will make you - because you'll still be short.

There's always enough material from shortening a skirt or pants to make an accessory belt.

You learn to be assertive when the situation calls for it, or you get left behind in the dust.

But being short makes it tough to get away from the little nicknames everybody loves to love. Over the years, mine have included shorty, lota and midget, among others. Ah, such is the life of a short person.

Everybody's got a beef about one thing or another, and I guess being short is just a cross I have to bear.

As much could be written about the tribulations of being tall, and I would be happy to include it all, but my editor asked that I keep this

"HERE IS A town of 5,000 that has a city planning commission!

The town the surprised author of a planning study that appeared in 1944 was talking about was the city of Plymouth.

The study was undertaken at the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills when Eliel Saarinen, an authority on city planning, was in residence there. The author of the article, published in Pencil Points magazine in February 1944, was a former Cranbrook student, J. Davidson Stephen.

With the winding down of World War II, city planners were once more looking to the future. The Cranbrook study was part of a community planning survey of Detroit, with Plymouth included as part of the greater Detroit metropolitan district.

Of all of the suburbs, little Plymouth was chosen "because it is typical of the industrial sections of the Detroit area and because its location, highways, rail communications, water power and terrain offer interesting problems for the planner."

AFTER THE war, said the author, an immense amount of construction would take place in and around cities and towns. He warned of the danger of building in the wrong places in places where the existence of new structures would be an obstacle to necessary changes in streets or create overcrowding and traffic congestion.

Plymouth in 1940 had a population of only 5,360 and the township numbered only 2,270. Daisy Manufacturing Co. was still part of the local industrial scene, and Burroughs had built its plant in the township in

But the big influx of industry that followed World War II (Evans Products Co., Barnes-Gibson-Raymond, and Whitman and Barnes) had not yet occurred. It was apparent, however, that the Cranbrook planners anticipated the movement of many industrial plants from Detroit to Plymouth in the near future and were warning the city fathers to be prepared.

Noting that data used in the study were furnished by the city planning commission, the article went on to say that Plymouth was out of the beaten track of traffic, "but its community pride has led it to recognize the need for city planning. It wants to retain its identity as a separate community.

THE AUTHOR summed up the factors that made Plymouth an interesting town to study. It was an industrial town and had been selected as a new location by industries now in Detroit. The roads seemed to terminate at Plymouth or be routed onto other roads in the vicinity of Plymouth.

It was on a river (a branch of the Rouge) that furnished power for small factories built under the Ford Motor Co.'s village industry plan. It had its own "blighted areas which have led to the formation of a city planning commission." (The blight was on South Mill Street where a number of sub-standard houses existed in an area zoned industrial).

The Cranbrook plan envisioned the building of a new high school on land then owned by the city north of the existing high school (the facility was later built at Canton Center and Joy roads). It was to have a large stadium, an outdoor swimming pool, tennis courts, and a small municipal auditorium for musical productions by the schools or community musical

THE MOST surprising part of the study, viewed in today's light when Plymouth still has fewer than 10,000 people, is the prediction that the city alone would have a population of 90,000 in 1990, and require a living area of 4,792 acres or 7.5 square miles (compared with its present area of 2.7 miles). The Cranbrook planners apparently figured that more industry would move out of Detroit to Plymouth than actually

The railroad lines within the present city limits were to be moved to a new location, parallel with Schoolcraft Road and crossing the Rouge on a new railroad bridge south of Five Mile. (That would have solved our Main Street crossing problem but getting the railroad to do it might have been as difficult as obtaining an overpass or underpass is today).

Why give Hoben raise?

Boy, what a zap to pick up the Observer and on the front page we see Dr. Hoben and an article rating him and giving him a raise!

I don't care how good a job Dr. Hoben did or does, with all the controversy over the rollback, how insensitive to give him a raise and then proclaim it loudly about the community. How does this improve community relations (Dick Egli)? How nice it would have been to read an article proclaiming the good deeds of Dr. Hoben followed by a statement that the Board felt he deserved a raise tion denied the increase. The community might have felt good and cheered the decision.

I know you are all sitting there saying, "The community is not upset, band doesn't take a raise unless his no one called or wrote." You are employees get one. Story to help keep drunks off the roads

I read with interest the article that was in the June 27 issue of your paper about the family of a convicted drunk driver that is trying to raise money to appeal the convic-

Five years ago I sustained a head injury when a drunk driver ran a red light and crashed into the car in which my husband, kids and I were driving. I was comatose for a month. I still have hemiparesis, double vision, seizures, etc. I have a nurse, cannot drive and continue with physical therapy, etc. My life has undoubtedly changed more drastically than the drunk's; his life was back to normal when he got out of jail after serving six months (no time off for good behavior).

Just because the drunk has watched a lot of people go home who've committed lots worse crimes than she did" is no reason for that killer to go free. It may be that the drunk is depressed, but how does she think the victim's family is coping? Really!

I believe an article like your newspaper printed will probably do more to keep drunks off the road than a hundred "no alcohol" fund-raisers. Keep up the good work

Help teach accountability

To the editor:

I am writing this letter in response to the article on June 27 in the Observer written by M.B. Dillon concerning the family trying to raise funds for the legal costs for drunk driver Hillier.

I realize that the family is trying to do all that is possible to help their daughter, but the greatest help they can give her is to teach her to be accountable for her actions. Ultimately they may be saving her life in the future.

While she is in Coldwater prison they should request that she be referred to alcohol counseling in order that she get more in touch with her problem of alcohol and hopefully realize that she is responsible for whatever actions she performs and learn how to control her behavior with alcohol.

As for the attorney fees - a nominal payment should be set up and the daughter herself, when released should be required by law to set a percentage of all earnings aside to fulfill the obligation. Mrs. Middlebrook might do better to have a benefit for the family of Darcus Aumann who died innocently who had no choice - who was a victim unjustly stolen from this earth by the violation of a drunk driver. Hopefully others will reflect upon this accident and realize that "harmless drinking" can and, in fact, often does result in manslaughter and even though it was "unintentional," that never brings the victim back to

Plans for enhanced 911 emergency telephone service that most western Wayne County communities are slated to receive next spring, "are right on schedule," according to officials of a county consortium.

The Conference of Western Wayne (CWW), a group composed of the chief elected officials from 17 western Wayne County municipalities, announced Friday that the target date of March 1989 will be Conference members include the cities Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth, and Westland, and the townships of Canton, Plymouth and Redford, as well as other suburban communities.

The enhanced system will improve upon the basic 911 service, which gives local callers direct access to police, fire and emergency medical services by dialing the three-digit number.

The new "enhanced" system will help speed response time by automatically displaying on a screen the address and telephone number of the person calling, said Ann Bollin, executive director of CWW.

Also, once the new 911 is dialed, the proper department for the caller's jurisdiction is notified, compared to the current "rerouting, Bollin added.

This will be the first 911 emergency service for most of the CWW communities, said Bollin, whose group has been trying to get the service for its members since 1984.

Currently Livonia, Plymouth, Wayne and Northville Township have basic 911 service.

Bollin said CWW is in the process of obtaining bids to install equipment in the 17 communities. Each community must pay for installation, she said.

Michigan law allows the maintenance fees to be passed on to the public by charging telephone subscribers. Bollin said consumers will see an increase of 25 cents on their monthly bills for the first five years. After that, consumers will pay 20 cents per month.

Cost for the system is estimated at $25,000-$30,000 for communities that can use some of their present equipment, and $50,000 for those starting from scratch.

Detroit is scheduled to replace its basic service with enhanced 911 by October. Bollin said, with all of Oakland County following in November.

Communities that border Oakland County will be on line from one to two months earlier than March, because of tie-ins to cities in Oakland which already have the system, said Bollin.

Panel scales down workfare plan

AP - Young welfare recipients in six Michigan counties - including Wayne and Oakland - will be able to volunteer for minimum-wage jobs rebuilding urban neighborhoods this fall, under a scaled-down workfare program approved by a House-Senate panel.

The $9 million pilot program falls far short of Gov. James Blanchard's call earlier this year for a $30 million proposal to require all of the state's 7,000 young, single welfare recipients to work.

But it was hailed Friday by state Social Services Director C. Patrick Babcock as a good start toward a much larger, mandatory program.

This is going to be a dramatic change in services and opportunities for kids," Babcock said.

Schoolcraft offers 2-day piano teachers workshop

Schoolcraft College will offer a two-day piano workshop on the music of Robert Schumann from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, July 19 and 20.

The conference will focus on Schumann's lesser-known compositions and will be taught by four staff members from the school's piano department. Workshop faculty includes Elvina Truman Pearce, a nationally known artist-teacher associated with the piano pedagogy department at Northwestern University; Dr. Charles Fisher, chairman of the pi-

Michigan; Dr. Louis Nagel, associate professor of the piano at the U-M, and Donald Morelock, head of the piano department at Schoolcraft.

Cost is $25 for one session and $35 for both. Advance registration must be received by July 13, or participants can register the day of the workshop for an additional $5.

The workshop will be held in the-Liberal Arts Building. The college is on Haggerty between Six and Seven Mile roads in Livonia.

For more information call the college at 591-6400, Ext. 410.

BEGINNING OCT. 1, the Michigan Neighborhood Corps will offer minimum-wage jobs to 1,100 general assistance recipients who are between ages 18 and 20. The young people will receive state-paid medical benefits and be required to work 40 hours a week helping community groups rebuild neighborhoods.

Wayne County will have 450 jobs and an expected 1,665 potential applicants. Oakland County is allocated 100 jobs and has 123 potential applicants ages 18-20.

Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, who chaired the conference committee, said trying the program on a voluntary basis will save costs and give policymakers a chance to see if

The workfare plan is part of the DSS budget, which is scheduled for final committee action Tuesday

INTERESTED welfare recipients would have to commit to the program for one year. If they failed to show up for work, they would be given a second chance to stay in the program or face a three-month loss of welfare benefits.

The slimmed-down proposal represents a compromise between the Republican-controlled Senate, which sought a mandatory program for all general-assistance recipients and the House, which preferred a voluntary approach

Not all members on the House Senate conference committee: however, were confident the plan would

Rep. Joe Young Sr., D-Detroit, characterized the Blanchard administration's push for workfare as a public relations ploy to make voters think the governor is trying to get lazy people off welfare.

Going wild although it isn't rice

I like to live on the wild side. I go crazy on the Wild Mouse ride at Boblo. I have a large bed of wildflowers. And I love wild rice.

"Wild" rice has no resemblance to ordinary white or brown rice in either taste, appearance or the methods by which it is grown."

It is actually "annual grass," which grows in single stems, five to 10 feet tall, with panicles some two feet long. The husks are an inch long, containing long slender grains, which are a dark slate color when ripe.

The plants are adaptable to quiet water two to eight feet deep, preferably the edges of ponds, lakes or flood river plains of rivers with mud bottoms.

Early in June, the shoots appear above the water. They mature about August and the grain is ready for gathering in August and September.

ALTHOUGH WILD rice can be found in many parts of North America, it is produced in greatest quantities in the lake regions of northern Minnesota and southern Canada. The cold northern winters are a necessary part of the reproductive cycle of wild rice.

After the seeds have ripened in the fall and dropped into the mud at the bottom of the lake, they must lay dormant through the cold winter before they can germinate again in the spring.

Less than 20 percent of the ripened seeds are obtained for food. The unharvested rice drops into the water and re-seeds the area for next year.

EVEN THOUGH wild rice is abundant and readily available on supermarket shelves, it is estimated that less than 3 percent of the American public has tried wild rice.

It has a distinct recognition as a "gourmet" product. Many consumers are shocked at what seems to be a high price tag.

Wildly fluctuating retail prices that have existed because of poor crops tend to give the product an expensive status.

It is a known marketing fact that the public looks at wild rice as if it is buying steak. When one pound of steak is purchased, one pound is consumed.

This is not the case with wild rice, as it cooks up to produce almost four times its dry weight. What this means in household terms is that one pound of wild rice will cook up to serve more than 20 people.

The best thing yours truly likes about any kind of rice is that there is never any waste. You cook up what you need, and if you end up with more left over than anticipated, it can be easily utilized in different dishes.

Add some meat and a chopped onion and an egg, mix and you have meatloaf, add a few beaten eggs and some beansprouts and fry up as egg foo yung.

One half cup of uncooked wild rice has more than 11 grams of protein, less than ½ gram of fat and more than 62 grams of carbohydrates. It's loaded with phosphorous, potassium calcium and niacin.

So don't just throw it at weddings this summer. Cook up some wild rice and say, "Hey, that's nice." Bon appetit!

Old ways, new ideas both good for kebabs

By Ariene Funke special writer

D FARHAT OF LIVONIA is a shish kebab traditionalist.

Just chunks of young lamb, threaded onto a skewer with onions and mild peppers and seared quickly over an outside grill.

Judy Bodner of Plymouth Township likes variety in her kebabs. She combines beef, chicken, shrimp and pork chops with veggies.

Shish kebab — meat cooked on a skewer — is tailormade for summer menus. Paired with vegetables or fruits, the meal has endless possibilities.

Marinating the meat is optional, depending on personal choice and tenderness of the meat.

"I NEVER DO marinate it," said Farhat, 62, a retired engineer of Lebanese extraction. "Just salt and pepper. The real purist doesn't marinate."

Shish kebab is a highly popular Middle Eastern dish traditionally prepared with young lamb. It can be the delicious star of a meal that is completed with rice, salad and, perhaps, a slab of flat, chewy Arabic pita bread.

Farhat's father, who came to the United States from Lebanon in 1914, was a chef at the old Fort Shelby Hotel in Detroit. He passed along many of his secrets to his son.

Today, Farhat and his wife Betty enjoy preparing shish kebabs for family gatherings. They serve the kebabs with tabbouleh, an Arabic salad made with cracked bulgar wheat and flavored with parsley, tomatoes, onions and mint.

"The best is spring lamb," Farhat said. "You don't have to marinate that because it is very tender."

Farhat, who buys his lamb from International Market in Livonia, prefers the leg portion from a yearling — a year-old lamb — because it is a little redder meat. He allows one-third pound of meat per serving. A marinade of olive oil and spices will enhance older cuts of meat, Farhat said.

"SHISH KEBAB cooks fast," he warned. "I cook lamb approximately seven minutes. You have to watch it. Turn after five minutes. You can eat (lamb) on the rare-to-medium-rare side and it is very juicy and tender."

Although lamb is the traditional shish kebab meat, there are many devotees of chicken, beef and fish kebabs.

Bodner likes to make up 'her own kebabs from chunks of sirloin, peeled raw shrimp, boneless chicken breast and boneless butterfly pork chops.

"I cut them into bite-sized pieces and marinate overnight," said Bodner, 29, an X-ray technician supervisor at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn.

Bodner's marinade is adapted from a Good Housekeeping cookbook. It blends soy sauce, brown sugar, vinegar, pineapple juice and spices. She alternates the meats with green pepper, onions and cherry tomatoes and grills the kebabs for seven minutes on each side.

AT BOB'S FARM Market of Westland, which specializes in fresh meats, fish and produce, most customers buy precut, marinated kebabs, owner Bob Harding Sirloin of beef, soaked in Italian salad dressing, or boneless breast of chicken marinated in teriyaki sauce, are the kebab choices. Few customers request lamb, Harding said.

"The marinade breaks down the fat tissue," said Harding, 39, a Westland resident. "It ensures that you get real tender meat and it gives it a good flavor."

Walled Lake that specializes in all-natural vinaigrettes they created. By Anne R. Lehmann special writer

Julie Stumbaugh and Barbara Klaserner represent a unique breed of women making a difference in the business world today — displaced homemakers turned creative and successful entrepreneurs.

The pair are co-owners and copresidents of Jabars Complements, a small gourmet food company that produces uniquely flavored handbottled vinegars. Based in Walled Lake, this growing company opened its doors in November and has been a steady supplier to Jacobson's and Nino Salvaggio's Strawberry Hills Farms of Farmington Hills ever since.

After years spent raising kids and helping with family businesses, these women found themselves alone and unskilled for any particular type of work. Like many women of their generation, career took a back seat to family. When circumstances threw them into sink-or-swim situations, swim they did.

Independently, they each enrolled in a state-funded class designed to help displaced homemakers identify their skills and needs. Both agree, however, that the best thing that came out of taking the class was meeting each other. "Our eyes met See recipes, Page 2 and it was instant friendship," says Klaserner.

THESE WARM, animated and chatty women make you think more of down-home than gourmet, but gourmet is what their products are.

The robust vinegars are made with the finest ingredients including fruits, berries, wine and herbs and are poured into wide-mouth clear glass bottles with a simple elegant gold neckband.

Vinegar flavors include peach, raspberry, cherry and blackberry wine, as well as cranberry and lemon/lime. Cost is around $4.75 to $7 per bottle. They are marketed as all-natural, made without preservatives and low in calories (26 per one-ounce serving).

"With our vinegars," says Stumbaugh, "you first taste the fruit, then the wine and the vinegar." The products are distinctive, full bodied and, as Stumbaugh adds, "really to be used as a flavoring device, to complement and bring out the best in food."

Barbecue aficionados will revel in these tasty discoveries as the vinegars make wonderful meat and fish marinades and enhance any barbecue accompaniment, either in salad or, better yet, in a side dish of peach rice.

SO HOW DID two nice women decide to start a business built on vinegars? "We were inspired by a relative's creativity with food and decided to experiment on our own," says Stumbaugh. "We recognized that there is a market for gourmet specialty items, and by putting our heads together, we were able to come up with what we thought were pretty terrific vinegar recipes."

Still, besides developing recipes, these women do everything from marketing to scrubbing the mixing bowls and pots. "If it needs doing, we 'does' it," says Klaserner.

Experimenting resulted in a line

Experimenting resulted in a line of vinegars as well as a name for the company. "Jabars is a combination of Julie Anne and Barbara, and the complement part came in because we felt that is what our products do," Klaserner said.

So how's business? They agree it's going great and is expanding. As a matter of fact, on the office floor is a sample box headed for Blooming-dale's in New York. "People have been very enthusiastic about our products and have encouraged us to try marketing it nationally," says Stumbaugh

Healthy tips for those over 50

Eating Well When You Just Can't Eat the Way You Used to" by Jane Weston Wilson. $12.95 paperback original. Workman Publishing, New York, 1988.

It's not very often that a cookbook is marketed for a specific age group but the subtitle of Jane Weston Wilson's "Eating Well When You Just Can't Eat the Way You Used To" is 'The Over 50 Cookbook" and that's too bad.

I'm sure you'll agree most of us just can't eat the way we used to, regardless of our age.

This recently published paperback is chockfull of nutritional advice and information to guide any fast-food addict toward a healthy diet.

The book's rationale, Wilson explains, is "to show you how to form new eating habits for life; the right kind of feasting as a new way of life." Her food philosophy is "to feast (lightly) every day yet maintain a healthy and weight controlling diet," and many of her menus suggest just that, with emphasis on the "lightly."

WILSON HAS BEEN owner of New York's Party Box catering service for 17 years. She is food spokeswoman for "In the Bag" on PBS' "Modern Maturity" and also is a columnist for both the Santa Fe Reporter and the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner.

The first 107 pages of this 500page cookbook discuss topics such as "Ten Great Low Calorie Vegetables and Thirty Ways to Fix Them, "How to Diet and Not Notice It" and "Eating Well As a Single Person." In chapter four, "Streamlined Preparation," Wilson suggests time-saving techniques in the kitchen, which most professional cooks learn on the job but seldom reveal in cookbooks.

Recipes that follow are all low in fat, salt and sugar. Corn-Potato Mushroom Chowder is a hearty soup without cream or milk. Artichokes Stuffed with Bulgur and Golden Raisins is a good alternative to a favorite dish, which often is filled with a rich bread/cheese stuffing or topped with egg-enriched hollandaise sauce.

Many of the recipes make 2-4 servings, which can easily be doubled to feed a larger family. To those of you who have never had to give up the great luxuries of life such as veal jus sauces or chocolate ganache fillings, cutting back on sugar and fat is

There are about 20 fruit desserts in the book, such as Mexican Bread pudding made with apples, pears, pine nuts and bread, to help ease the pain. Psst! The last chapter, "Special Splurge Desserts," although only six pages long, uses the good stuff.

In a medium-size bowl, with an electric beater or a hand mixer, beat the eggs for 3 minutes. Add the beaten eggs to the artichoke mixture along with the seasonings and pulse on and off just to blend. Add the cheese, and pulse on and off until smooth but textured. The mixture will be thick.

Spread the mixture evenly in the prepared pan.

Bake in the preheated 350-degree oven for 20-25 minutes or until a tester inserted into the center comes out clean. Transfer to a rack and

With paper toweling, pat the sur-2 cups (8 ounces) shredded cheddar face to remove excess "fat" from the cheese.

Sky drama: star will disappear behind moon will begin at about 9.58 p.m. July 16 when the unlighted edge of the moon passes in front of Regulus.

This can be observed with the naked eye, although your view will be improved with binoculars. Just make yourself comfortable in a lawn chair, face west and watch.

The disappearance of a bright star behind the moon is very abrupt and dramatic Scientists learned the moon had no atmosphere, long before any probes In fact, only the moon and the sun landed on its surface, by observing occultations such as this.

If the moon had an appreciable atmosphere, any object it occulted would fade from view slowly. With no atmosphere to interfere, the object about to be occulted remains visible until it is blocked by the edge of the moon itself.

Regulus will reappear, of course.

The moon's occultation of a star the Earth Eventually Regulus is uncovered, and the occultation is over We will not be able to witness the reappearance because the moon will have set by that time.

> THE PLANET Venus reaches its maximum brightness on the morning of July 19. Venus reflects the light of the sun.

Because Venus is close to the sun, and we are close to Venus, it reflects a tremendous amount of light at us. itself are brighter. Venus is so bright that it can even cast a shadow. If you hope to see your shadow in

'Venus light," you should be out in the country, away from other light, where it is very dark

The moon is approaching the star Spica (SPY ca) on the evening of July 21. Spica, the brightest star in the constellation Virgo, is above and The moon continues to orbit around to the left of the moon. On the following night the moon, at first-quarter phase, has passed Spica.

The moon moves from Virgo, through Libra July 23, and into Scorpius on the 24th. The bright star very close to the left of the moon is Antares (an TAR ees), the "heart" of the scorpion. You might think that another occultation is imminent, but that is not the case. The moon comes within 0.6 degree of Antares, at 1 a.m. on the 25th, but no closer.

LOOK FOR Saturn to the moon's upper right on the evening of July 26. Saturn's rings are tilted almost 27 degrees with respect to the Earth and are very easy to see through even a small telescope.

The most they can ever be tilted is 28 degrees, so they are very well displayed for our viewing enjoyment.

The S. Delta Aquarid meteor shower will reach its maximum on the morning of July 25. This shower is named for the constellation Aquarius, from which the meteors ("falling stars") appear to radiate.

Aquarius will be moving from the southeast to southwest from midnight to sunrise. This is not one of the better meteor showers; a patient observer can expect to see an average of only 20 meteors per hour. Unfortunately, the nearly full moon will be in the sky and the light it scatters will make seeing the fainter meteors more difficult.

Full moon occurs at 11:25 p.m. July 28. The moon, fully lighted by the sun, will rise in the southeast as the sun sets in the northwest, be visible all night and set as the sun rises. An excellent aid for learning constellations and keeping up to date with the sky is the monthly "Sky Calendar." A one-year subscription for $6 is available from Abrams Planetarium, Michigan State University, East Lansing

Clutch-hitting Elks stomp on Redford

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Pitching and defense are the two constants for the Plymouth-Canton

Elks baseball team. Therefore, when the bats are booming, it's time to take cover.

The Elks supported starter Chris Kennedy's strong pitching with 10 hits, which included timely pokes from Dan Niemiec, Jamie Sisler and Ron Barlow, in a 10-3 rout Thursday of first-place Redford Union.

This is the best we've hit the ball." Elks coach Mark LaPointe "The pitching has been outstanding, and you win with pitching and defense.

In avenging an earlier loss, the Elks tightened the race in the Redford Connie Mack League. Plymouth-Canton, 10-3, is only percentage points behind RU, which slipped to 9-

"IT WAS VITAL," LaPointe said. "If we don't win this one, we probably don't stand a chance of winning the league.

"Our kids were very determined to win this game, because they knew if we didn't we'd be in rough shape. But now we're right there.

As for the always-dependable part of the Elks' game, Kennedy was the standout, allowing only John Burdick's third-inning single before departing with a 6-0 lead after four Kennedy faced 15 batters, walking three and striking out two. Unlike RU, two Elks errors in the second inning caused no damage. Shortstop Kevin Learned relayed to third sacker Mikio Tanaka for an inning-ending putout on Tim Wojak after an errant pickoff attempt. "Chris Kennedy has been an out- ground ball that resulted in the third standing pitcher since April," La-Pointe said. "He hasn't been blown out of a game all year

'We've had the pitching all summer. In the three games we lost, we gave it to them.

RU STARTER Darryl Guest didn't fare as well as Kennedy, however. The five errors his defense made behind were costly, especially the three that occurred during a decisive second inning.

'We didn't come in with our heads in the ballgame," RU coach Bill Lezotte said. "The mistakes we made hurt us, but the pitcher pitched a pretty good game.

Guest allowed eight hits and was charged for nine runs in the 43/3 innings he worked, but a walk and two infield errors loaded the bases in the second and set the table for the Elks' clutch hitting.

Sisler singled home the first run, and another scored on Tanaka's error. But the big blow was yet to Dan Niemiec, who moved back to this area with his family after spending the last five years in Buffalo, smashed a three-run double that hit a fence post in left-center field.

"Normally, we haven't been (making errors)," Lezotte said. "Whether it was the heat or not I don't know.

"THEN (GUEST) got tired, and when he got tired he hung some balls up there.

Given a 5-0 lead. Kennedy cruised through the next two innings, giving way to Scott Browne in the fifth. He gave up two hits and a run on abases-loaded walk to Kevin Walker.

Mike Sulak worked the final two innings, but he had a rough start before striking out four of the last six

Base hits by Wojak, who has impressed LaPointe enough that he calls the RU catcher the best hitter in the league, and Chris Wrezka combined with back-to-back errors that betrayed Plymouth-Canton's otherwise solid defense allowed both runners to score.

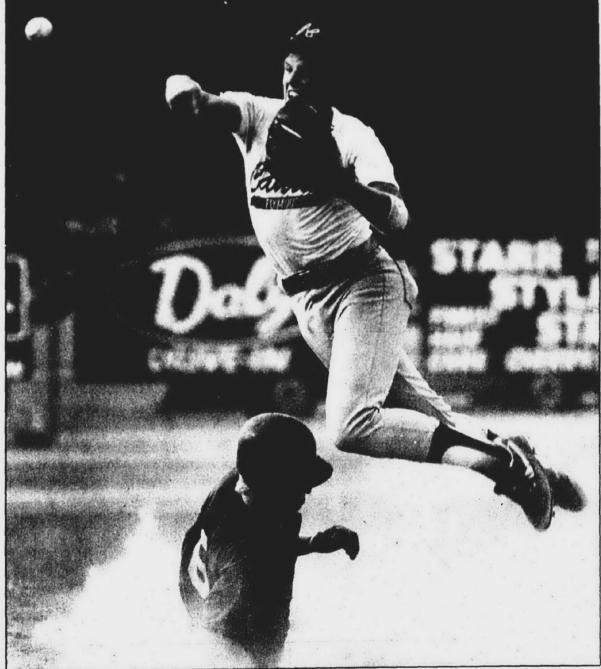

RU had six hits, but none did any damage. None came with runners in scoring position, and nobody got an RBI swinging the bat.

In its defense, RU was missing two of its top players, Joe Delfgauw and Dave Urban. The former was on vacation with his family, and the latter's absence was unexplained.

'It wasn't there tonight," said Lezotte of the RU offense. "We couldn't put everything together."

Holzer Ford keeps victory streak alive

Second place Tom Holzer Ford of Northville ran its unbeaten streak to six Wednesday, scoring a 14-4 (mercy rule) victory over host Wendy's of Ann Arbor in a Livonia Collegiate Baseball League game.

The winners unleashed a 13-hit attack.

Holzer exploded for 10 runs in the second inning, highlighted by a grand slam homer off the bat of Keith Dutkiewicz, who went 2-for-4 on the day.

Paul Newitt also had a big day for Holzer, going 3-for-4 with two RBI and three runs scored. Other players with two hits included Rick Tavormina, formerly of Westland John Glenn High now at the University of Detroit, along with George Hampton.

Third baseman Scott Peterson collected three walks to run his season total to 25, tops in the LCBL.

Mike Salach, the winning pitcher, ran his season record to 2-0. In five innings of work, he scattered five hits, struck out three and walked two.

WALTER'S APPLIANCE left with a losing feeling despite a 6-6 tie against cellar-dweller South Lyon Londo in a game played Wednesday at Londo had lost 17 straight before earning the deadlock in a game called because of two-hour, 45-minute time limit.

Londo built a 5-6 advantage through five innings before Walter's ral-

John Stoitsiadis tagged a solo homer in the sixth to cut the deficit to four. Walter's then exploded for five runs in the top of the seventh with Stoitsiadis clubbing a three-run double, Rick Karcher adding an RBI triple and Mickey Karcher contributing an RBI single to give the Livo-nians a one-run cushion.

But Londo forced the tie by scoring a run off Walter's reliever Ivan Kotch in the bottom of the inning. (Walter's is now 8-9-1 on the season.)

Pitcher Steve Owens started for Walter's, allowing four runs over four innings. He was the victim of of a two-run homer off the bat of Londo's Mike Hoorn. Rob Knapp then worked two innings before giving way to Walter's out-hit Londo, 7-4, with Stoitsladis and Karcher leading the FIRST PLACE Little Cassars of Livonia had little trouble Wednesday with Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury, recording an 11-3 victory at Ford Field.

Shawn Usarski was the winning pitcher despite giving up 10 walks. Hims Park starter Jeff Lyle took the loss as the Plymouth-Canton team slipped deeper into third place, two games behind Tom Holser.

Star-gazing Livonia standouts want repeat win

By Brad Emons staff writer

The Livonia Collegiate Baseball League may be facing an uphill struggle Wednesday then it takes on the Detroit Adray stars in the annual all-star exhibition game at Tiger Stadium.

Game time is 9:30 a.m. (admission is free). Following that game, Detroit will take on the Lansing-area All-

Last year the LCBL All-Stars surprised Detroit, generally regarded as the tougher league, 4-0. The Detroit Adray All-Stars are considered better because the league does not require any residency requirements, whereas the LCBL teams must carry eight residents on John Moraitis, manager of first place Livonia Little Caesars, will lead the LCBL All-Stars for the third straight year.

"Our pitching last year was not bad," he said. "I don't think it's quite as good this year. In fact, we were a little lucky to beat them last year.

"Detroit is a much better team this year. They're playing with one team this year instead of two."

In last year's game, the Detroit Adray League All-Stars were divided among two squads, one going against Livonia and the others used to play Lansing.

THIS YEAR the Detroit Adray All-Stars will not be Starters from Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury of Plymouth-Canton include first baseman Chris Sisler and outfielder Tony Aiken, formerly of Canton High.

The Walter's Appliance team of Livonia boasts a pair of starters, two known more for their football prowess: shortstop Brian Smolinski, ex-Farmington Harrison High standout now playing wide receiver at Michigan State; and Livonia Churchill High product John Stoitsiadis, a defensive back with Mid-American Conference and California Bowl champion Eastern Michigan.

Tom Holzer Ford of Northville boasts starters Scott Peterson, a third baseman, and outfielder Keith Dutkiewicz. (See complete LCBL roster.)

CAESARS WILL send four pitchers to Tiger Stadium including former Redford Thurston High standout Chris Kloc. Hines Park's Derek Darkowski, who played at Canton High, and Walter's Joe Mackiewicz, a member of the 1987 state Class A champion Redford Catholic Central High team, were also named to the pitching

The Detroit Adray League All-Stars also have some familiar names from Observerland.

Detroit starters include first baseman Lance Sullivan of first place Adray Appliance and shortstop Steve Waite of Adray Photo.

Sullivan, who played at Churchill High, was a top hitting freshman at the University of Detroit this spring. Waite, meanwhile, is a Canton High product now playing EMU.

Doug Martin, a pitcher, and Greg Haeger, a first baseman/pitcher, have been reunited. They were teammates on that 1987 state champion CC squad.

Martin, who won nine games as a freshman at EMU, plays for Photo, while Haeger is a member of the University of Michigan's Adray Sound squad.

Southfield-Lathrup grad Chris Gagin, now at U-M, was also named as a reserve infielder.

Fund-raising high priority for S'craft AD

By C.J. Risak staff writer

With the first half of his first year as only the second athletic director in Schoolcraft College history behind him, it seems Ed Kavanaugh is most

Of course, a big reason for that is who was in charge last year — no one. Louis Reibling, SC's dean of instruction, assumed the title temporarily after Marv Gans, the school's only previous AD, was reassigned in July, 1987.

The position remained vacant until Kavanaugh took over in January. Much was lost in the transition, including the annual fund-raising dinner, a major athletic department moneymaker.

Kavanaugh, who was Livonia Ladywood's AD and was a highly successful basketball coach at both Ladywood and SC, came on board at SC too late to save the dinner. But fund raising remains a major part of his part-time AD's

"The dinner dance will be back this year," Kavanaugh vowed Thursday. "And we've got some other ideas we're working on."

HE DIDN'T want to elaborate on any of those ideas because, at present,

Schoolcraft sports

that's all they are - ideas. But the way athletic funds are doled out has been one of the changes implemented by Kavanaugh.

"It's not any different than it was before. Funds haven't been cut," he insisted. "The school gives each coach a certain amount of money for scholarships. If coaches are satisfied with that, fine."

The money allocated by the school accounts for about 45 percent of the maximum scholarship money allowable in each sport. In other words, the soccer team can — by NJCAA rules — give 15 full tuition scholarships (but no more than 15 soccer players can be on scholarship, whether full or partial). The cost of about seven of those would be provided by the school.

Any further scholarship money must come from athletic department fund raisers. In the past, the soccer teams never had to worry about raising

"So far, we've never been held back (on scholarship money)," said SC mens soccer coach Van Dimitriou. "It's never been a problem for either team

OF COURSE, that system didn't sit real well with coaches who contributed to the athletic fund by staging camps or other moneymakers at SC. Their justifiable argument was, "Why should I contribute to a fund to benefit other Kavanaugh changed that by making each coach of each sport responsible for his own fund raising. So now, for example, whatever money volleyball coach Tom Teeters raises through his volleyball camp goes into a volleyball general fund. The money can be used for scholarships or as a supplement for other costs, such as travel expenses.

"I see all the coaches really digging because they want to provide for their athletes," said Teeters. "All the Schoolcraft coaches are very concerned about their athletes.' The change was necessitated by school administration officials, who made it clear they would not cover any further cost overruns. In other words, no spending what isn't in the budget.

Susan McCarty

Don't let all those bells and whistles confuse you. In fact, ignore

A stationary bike is a safe, effective way to get in shape. There are many types of bikes on the market today which, of course, adds to the confusion You've mentioned a rowing bike. That is a bike using arms in a rotating motion as a pedal along with leg pedals. Be careful not to buy a bike with rotating arms that move automatically with your leg pedals. If, while you pedal, the bars move without you, your upper body will not benefit - neither tone nor add to your aerobic strength. You need tension on your handle bars to benefit properly.

Also, if you have to bend forward in order to work your upper body on a bike, this will put your back

Dear Myrna: I'm confused by all into a very injury-prone position. It is called "forward flexion" bikes. Can you help? What's the extremely difficult position for your lumbar spine area.

Hand rowing while biking can distribute your aerobic workload more evenly. It will get to your target heart rate sooner and hold you there longer

I recommend working at your target heart rate for at least 20 minutes, four times per week. If you have trouble elevating to your target heart rate on a bike, use enough resistance, both upper body and lower. It works!

Truly, you do not need the stateof-the-art bike to benefit sufficient-

"LAST YEAR, the school covered us even though we finished with a deficit," said SC womens soccer coach Nick O'Shea. "This year, the school said it won't cover it.

O'Shea guided the Lady Ocelots to an NJCAA championship, the first such title in SC history. But the pricetag was high, with several full scholarships and a heavy travel budget (trips to New York, St. Louis and Trenton, New Jersey).

O'Shea and his team didn't have to raise the money to cover the deficit last year. This year, they will. That's why the team is sponsoring a car wash at the school from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. July 23.

The money generated by the car wash will be for the womens soccer team budget only. And with another season of long trips ahead — with an absence of junior college varsity womens programs in this or any neighboring state, SC must go on the road to play quality opponents — the money will be needed.

So it's no surprise that, when asking O'Shea what new recruits or opponents he has lined up, his reply always ends with, "Of course, it depends on how the car wash goes.'

No matter what the season or occasion, hair is always an important consideration in deciding what we want to look like. Summer sun and humidity can often make styling - and keeping "the look" - nearly impossible. That's why local beauty experts advise easy cuts and no-fuss hair for sticky summer weather.

It's no surprise then to learn that wash-andwear styles are very much "in," along with dec-orative scarves, ornaments to hold hair in place and disguise the frizzies that so often are the price we pay for frequent dips in the pool to keep cool.

From shower to pool or beach, it can take just minutes to look your very best - providing, of course, you have a head start.

According to Dan Soller, owner of Daniel J Salon in Farmington Hills, that includes a good cut and lots of conditioning. "Women are always shocked to see how much better their everyday

"Split ends are definitely a no-no if you want your hair looking good. And with the hot weather, a lot of moisture is baked out of your hair, so conditioning is essential - even on oily hair."

Local stylists agree that fashions have everything to do with how women and men style their

"More fitted clothing seems to be hot right now, and it will be even more popular this fall," noted Soller. "It only makes sense that the tailored clothing demands hair styles that are closer to the head."

According to hair stylist Tony Colorite, owner of LeLook Salon in Bloomfield Hills, the '30s look is returning for fall.

"It's much like the Bogart and Gable era where styles suit the face. I'm doing a lot of styles that look like caps, close to the heard with lots of sweeping direction rather than the fluffy blown-dry look."

Also, like fashion, color and length of hair is dictated by hemlines, fabric textures and even structure of clothing.

structure of clothing.

"The wrong hair with the right clothes can be a disaster," comments Soller. The general feeling for summer/fall '88 is that hair, makeup and even nail color - has to be perfect.

Layers create a casual look that easily transforms into a sleek controlled look for more formal occasions. Styled by Shay at

Here's a sampling of what local beauty experts have to say about summer hair fashions and grooming accessories:

• "There's a very heavy emphasis on corals and peaches this year from blushes to lips to nails" — Sharon Reed, owner of Bloomfies Face and Body, Farmington Hills.

• "French manicures with pale pink sheer top coat, or bright corals with high gloss finish." Suzanne Clark, nail technician, Daniel J

 "More emphasis on good, strong color and short looks." — Tony Colorite, owner, LeLook Salon, Bloomfield Hills.

Boys Town still thriving at 50

By Iris Sanderson Jones

contributing travel editor Micky Rooney is scheduled to be in Boys Town, Nebraska this week to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the movie that made Boys Town famous. You have probably seen the movie on late-night television, but you may not know that the real Boys Town is still a thriving campus for homeless and abused boys and girls just outside of Omaha.

Former Plymouth residents Randy and Deborah Parker are just part of the Michigan connection to this celebrated village, established in 1917 by Father Edward Flanagan and now home to 500 boys and girls. The Parkers, who have now moved on to another organization for children in North Carolina, were one of the Family Teaching Couples who are parents to the boys and girls in beautiful private homes on the campus.

A project called Boys Town USA has also established accredited family sites in other parts of the U.S. Two accredited Michigan sites are the Northern Regional Teaching Family Site, which has six homes and 29 children in Traverse City, and the Lake Superior Regional Training Site, which has six homes and 36 children in Marquette.

Backbeat with a message from S. Africa's Savuka

Singing about problems in South Africa is not new. A South African singing about the problems of South Africa - now that's new.

Meet Johnny Clegg & Savuka, a multiracial band that packs its message with a fusion of African rhythms and Western pop.

The sound is like no other. Then again, the band's lead singer, Johnny Clegg, is not exactly a Pieter Botha chip-off-the-white-block South Afrikaaner

When most kids his age were trooping off to school in shorts and knee socks to learn the governmentespoused virtues of apartheid, Clegg was palling around with Zulu street musicians at 14.

At 17, Clegg was totally immersed in the Zulu culture, learning the language. Today at 34, he can read. write and speak the Zulu Tanguage fluently and performs many of the tribe's dances.

To a lot of people in South Africa, he's communicating something

"I'm a bit of a controversial figure with moderates and right-wingers obviously," said Clegg in a telephone conversation from Johannesburg. "For young people and progressive people, I'm deemed as providing alternative symbols to the apartheid

PAUL SIMON'S "Graceland" LP had most people doing backflips, praising the collaboration between white and black artists in South Africa. But Clegg formed the multiracial band Juluka back in 1975.

Juluka enjoyed relative success in its 10-year history. (The group disbanded when Clegg's partner, Sipho Mchunu, quit to go back to being a

The group had a hit in Britain in

In the United States, though, Juluka couldn't make a beachhead. Both of their albums on Warner Bros. sold

With Savuka (which means "we have risen" in Zulu), Clegg is understandably more optimistic.

At the moment, we seemed to be having pockets of support on the West Coast," Clegg said. "It's not a terrible amount. I think it's going to break from that type of scene.

Johnny Clegg (center) and Savuka are bringing South African music to Detroit and the rest of the United States.

'Graceland' has opened the doors for multiracial collaborations.

Simon's "Graceland" has made people here receptive to African music. Clegg said he expects to build a cult audience at the very least, possibly going as far as garnering a medium-range following on this his first tour of the U.S.

In other places, Johnny Clegg & Savuka are already a popular commodity. The group has performed at the Montreux Jazz Festival and recently opened for David Bowie in France before 80,000 people. French record buyers have purchased more than 700,000 of the band's records.

Johnny Clegg & Savuka shoot from the hip. Apartheid is not glossed over in their music.

THIS HASN'T exactly left the group on the government's top-10 list. Some of Savuka's songs have been restricted or censored from government-run radio.

"I take legal advice on certain issues," Clegg said. "I know where it's easier to be prosecuted or arrested. I attack the wind."

Amazingly enough, Johnny Clegg & Savuka have built a strong following in South Africa. The group has found plays at desegregated clubs, universities and at political rallies.

What's happened is there's a belt, a progressive belt, going through South Africa from Johannesburg south," Clegg said. "North of Johannesburg, there's really no places to play. And north of Pretoria there's really no places that desegregated."

The music scene is quite diverse in South Africa, according to Clegg. Fusions of reggae and township jive are popular. Country and western is big with white audiences.

Clegg said the rock and roll scene is very small, but intense. Which might also describe Johnny Clegg & Savuka's presence in the U.S.

Johnny Clegg & Savuka will appear Tuesday, July 12, at the Pine Knob Music Theater in Clarkston. For ticket information, call 625-

REVIEWS

WILD STREAK - Hank Williams, Jr.

If you're a country music hater, like many yankee folk, I suggest you never see Hank Williams Jr. live.

Because son, when 'ol Hank pulls out that electric guitar and starts cranking out the rock riffs, you're going to be confused.

Hank's rock-showlike performances help make clear a simple fact obscured for years - country can be cool. And ol' Hank has shown that country can be a brother to rock, not its nerdy cousin.

At some shows, Hank even plays a few classic Robert Johnson blues tunes on solo guitar. Trivia buffs will-recall that the last big act to do that live was those rockin' Rolling Stones. And 'ol Bocephus has written some great songs — "Stoned at the Jukebox," "Family Tradition (about getting stoned and rowdy like daddy Hank Sr.)," "All My Rowdy Friends Have Settled Down," and "A Country Boy Can Survive."

But in recent years, Hank Jr.'s songwriting has come down a notch. Such is the case on his new album

"Wild Streak" (Curb).

It opens with the title song. It's not exactly country, unless your idea of country is screaming guitars, pounding drums, and Hank Jr. wailing at the top of his voice. But to paraphrase a Merle Haggard hit, it's not country, but it's not bad either.

Side one is marked by several strong rockers, while the second side plays host to several so-so rockers. Oddly enough, there are no classictype country numbers on the album. And that's a shame, because 'ol Hank is so good at singing country.

It's a decent album, but no one song seems destined for inclusion among Hank Jr.'s best. Still, 'ol Hank does entertain, with the occasional reference to his rowdy old man, and even more references to Hank's favorite pastime - sippin' bourbon and making out with long-legged females. - Kevin Brown

TOO MUCH AIN'T ENOUGH

— Seduce

Hand it to Miles Copeland of I.R.S. When he decided to add heavy metal artists to his eclectic label, he didn't go out and sign a bunch of posers in spandex from the beaches of Califor-

Copeland went to the heartland of heavy metal. And where better to find heavy metal bands than in the industrial ports of Cleveland, with Shok Paris, and now Detroit, with Seduce's "Too Much Ain't Enough" (I.R.S.) is as blue collar as metal gets. The Detroit threesome manages to achieve their goal of being melodic while still using plenty of ear-splitting guitar. Seduce does little to betray the headbanging sound.

Seduce runs the gamut, giving doses of speed metal at times and switching to slower, rhythmic tunes. And the group does it by avoiding the cliches of heavy metal. Songs about girls and being on the road, thankfully, are at a minimum here.

Even the non-heavy metal maven might be surprised at the substance in some of the songs. In "Watchin," there are images of inner-city life, people picking in garbage and kids getting shot.

"Any Time Or Place," a raw rhythmic rocker, has the makings for a great chant. This should go over well in concert hall venues. The tune, like many of the songs on this album, uses the hooks of pop music and slams it home with heavy metal

David Black's guitar work is exceptional here as is Mark Andrews' vocal work. Andrews' rough tone makes him seem like a junior Steven Tyler at times.

But the raw feel of this album will make it stand on its own in heavy metal circles.

SHADOW MAN - Johnny Clegg & Savuka

Before there was Paul Simon's "Graceland," there was Johnny Clegg & Juluka. And now there's Johnny Clegg & Savuka.

So anyone thinking Clegg is merely trying to jump on the bandwagon, of collaboration between black and white artists in South Africa is way off base. Clegg and Juluka date back to 1975. The group disbanded and Clegg, who is an honorary white Zulu, has picked up again with a new band Savuka.

The difference between Juluka and Savuka is that the latter is far more political in its music. The strife and confusion of living in the apartheid society of South Africa can be heard in "Shadow Man," Johnny Clegg & Savuka's second album on Capitol.

Yet "Shadow Man" is certainly not an album of despair. If anything, it's an uplifting experience.

Clegg & Savuka use African rhythms and gift wrap it with Western pop styles. The end result electrifying, and very accessable to the music ear.

A cornucopia of instruments are used here, a thundering bass, a host of percussion and soaring saxophone. The temptation to try to identify every instrument in each song is hard to resist.

Also, it's quite easy to be smitten by the unique reggae-like rhythms heard throughout. And Clegg definitely has a voice that can be distinquished from the rest of the pop

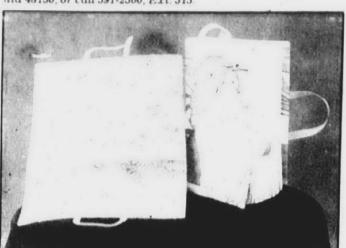

The real question, though, is whether this music will appeal to mainstream tastes remains to be seen. There are plenty of songs here, "Talk To The People" and "Take My Heart Away," which could easily find their way on Top-40 radio. By itself, "Shadow Man" is a musical masterpiece.

STREET WISE-

Fair play

Yes, the Ann Arbor art fair is probably the top summer showcase for painters, sculptors and southeastern Michigan artists in all

But the annual fair, which hits Ann Arbor Wednesday, July 20, and runs through Saturday, July 23, also boasts an incredible array of art for the ears, as well as the eyes.

This year's entertainment will take place on three outdoor stages spread across the University of Michigan campus.

The Graceful Arch will be at the corner of East and South University streets, alongside the West Engineering Building. The stage will feature entertainment from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday-Friday and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday

The Liberty Plaza stage will play host to small ensembles and performing groups between noon and 3 p.m. each day. The stage will be at Liberty and Division.

The festival's Main Stage, new this year, will be at the intersection of Main and Liberty. Main Stage Events are scheduled continuously for 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday-Friday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Home tours

Summer tours of Meadow Brook Hall, the home built by auto heiress Matilda Dodge Wilson, have a new twist this year - tour guides.

The trained guides will be available daily at the 100-room mansion on the Rochester campus of Oakland University. In previous years, the guides were only available by reservation for large groups.

The guides, who will work Monday-Saturday, will outline the history of the home and its occupants, give descriptions of each room and its furnishings and answer guests' questions throughout the tour.

Hall hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., with the last tour leaving at 3:45 p.m. Sunday tours, without guides, may be taken 1-5 p.m.

Luncheon and light snacks are available in the mansion's tea room and other dining rooms 11:30 a.m. to p.m. Monday-Friday. Buffet dinners are served Sundays in the Christopher Wren dining room.

Tour admission is $4 and $2 for children under 13. Parking is free.

For information, call Meadow (jazz), pianist Margaret Hetherman Brook Hall, 370-3140.

Transfer time

The Manhattan Transfer will offer two nights of "Vocalese"at the Meadow Brook Music Festival 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

The Grammy award-winning vocal group has scored big hits during the past two decades with "Boy from New York City," "Birdland" and 'Killer Joe.

Their latest album, "Vocalese," was hailed by jazz fans and critics. For tickets or information, call the box office, 377-2010.

The Glenlivet Scotch Scramble, with proceeds going to the non-profit organization's Michigan chapter, is scheduled for noon at the Travis Pointe Country Club in Ann Arbor.

The Glenlivet Scotch folks and the Kidney Foundation have teamed up to offer a whole series of amateur tournaments across the country this year and there are still openings for the local event.

A new car, four airline tickets to the destination of your choice and other prizes will be awarded.

Golfers will play "scramble" style with each four-person team having a handicap of 45. Entry fee is $150, which includes a post-tournament banquet. To register for the tourney or for information, call toll-free (800) 482-1455.

Summer stock

For those of you who think the umpteenth revival of "Cats" at the Fisher Theater is the only thing cooking on local stages this summer. LISTEN UP

From the Attic Theater's production of "Lady Dayat Emerson's Bar and Grill," to presentations of "The Sound of Music," "Cabaret," and "The Odd Couple" at the Thunder Bay Theater in Alpena, professional summer theater is alive and well in Michigan.

You'll probably even be able to plan your summer sojourn up north around a bevy of live stage shows.

And oh yes, "Cats" is at the Fisher again, through July 31.

How can one tell? Especially one whose nautical experience has been limited to playing battleship in the bathtub. Well for one, there's no place to buy any popcorn.

And two, the good ship Boblo doesn't have the artillery to leave the city of Wyandotte in a pile of rubble. Enough said.

Now anyone can board a frigate when it's docked. The real challenge rattled and rolled up the ladder, is boarding it while the sucker is Cmdr. J.Adam Lopez was there to moving at 24 knots.

The plan of attack included taking a ride from Belle Isle on a United States Coast Guard boat and meeting up with the vessel near Amherst-

All the excitement at the remodeled Detroit Zoo doesn't seem to faze this feline resident.

Animals, visitors will enjoy 'new' Detroit Zoo

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

Redford Township's Jimmy O'Brien, then a fifth grader on his class trip, made sure Theresa Coffey was seated next to him on the train at the Detroit Zoo.

Just before the rumbling little train entered the tunnel, he turned to his sweetheart and said, "Pucker Coffey, now married to someone living near the zoo in Royal Oak, well remembers the Our Lady of Loretto School outing. "He didn't try a thing. It wasn't dark enough," she said.

The zoo still is a place for romance, and for reveling in the wonder of nature's magnificent creatures. Plus, it's just plain fun. And you don't have to be a kid to enjoy vourself

'We still have a reputation as a cheap date," said zoo director Steve Graham. "We have young couples, senior citizens, students - there's practically no market we don't

IF THE zoo has locked horns with some lean years of late, it's making quite a comeback.

Greeting visitors are a colorfully painted, illuminated water tower and an attractive, new $12 million entrance, with rippling flags and nocost parking in a brick deck.

Admission to the zoo, celebrating its 60th anniversary, is $5 for patrons 13 and older and $3.50 for senior citizens. Through Aug. 29, admission is free for all children. The zoo is open all year, most days from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. With I-696 under construction right next to the park, getting to the zoo can be a bit of a hassle. But by Labor Day, 1989, the freeway will be completed. The zoo will have its own

"This way, people will be able to come to the zoo without ever leaving the freeway," Graham said.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Also scheduled for completion by September of next year is a $6 million chimp house. The 4 1/2-acre, jungle-like habitat will occupy the site of the old ape house.

DON'T BE SURPRISED if you hear squeals of delight coming from the renovated penguinarium. The popular, three-sided exhibit is one of the few places in the world where you can peer through glass to see penguins swimming underwater.

And Detroit's is the only zoo in the country that houses' elf-like Blue penguins from Australia and New Zealand. It's amazing to see these rounded, "tuxedoed" birds lumber along the rocks like stodgy old men, then dive into a pool where they become the picture of grace and speed, sleekly undulating through and over the wa-

Feedings, at 10:30 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. daily, are a treat to watch. There's a pecking order in the penguin population. To see who's boss, notice who eats first.

You might catch human moms smiling and elbowing their husbands in the penguinarium. One of the signs says that male and female penguins take turns incubating their eggs over six weeks feet, keeping it warm by covering the egg with a bulging apron of skin and feathers.

IF WHINING KIDS and testy parents get to you in the indoor exhibits, take a stroll through some of the zoo's open, landscaped areas. Buy yourself a praline pecan ice cream cone and saunter down a winding, tree-lined walkway. Follow the wooden fence past gardens, wild flowers and over brooks and ponds. A new brick wall surrounding the zoo does a pretty good job of keeping outside noise to a minimum. Picnic tables in open spaces welcome the weary. It's okay to bring in your own food and beverages (excluding alcohol), so plan a picnic if you're in the mood. If exotic African birds excite you, follow the painted penguin prints from the Penguinarium to the Bird House. The walls may need a coat of paint, but the Bird House occupants create a riot of color and a pageant of sound. You'll see wading flocks of orange and black flamingos so beautiful you'll wonder how plastic flamingos ever became gag gifts.

Long-legged egrets whose feathers were once used to decorate ladies' hats share a tropical garden with spoon bills and spur-winged plovers. It's a spectacular display in a natural looking, open setting. THREE LAKES grace the zoo. Gaze at one, and you're likely to see white pelicans so large it seems they could carry youngsters on their backs, monkeys swinging one-handed from island trees, and red-billed ducks from South America and fuzzy baby mallards out for a swim.

Ever notice what expressive faces camels have? The two-humped, bigeved creatures look at you as if to say, 'My word. Can't' you see I'm munching?"

Want to experience fright? Visit the tiger exhibit. You can get so close that a big, striped cat and you can have eye contact. Scary. If you weighed as much as a hippo, 8,000 pounds, you probably wouldn't move too swiftly either. But these fellas sometimes are curious enough to open an eye, size you up and wiggle an ear.

If you want to get the creeps, visit the hooded vultures, and be glad you're not a carcass.

There's so much to see at the 125acre zoo it's best to make a day of it. Come early. Wear comfortable shoes, and dress for the weather. Don't forget a camera and sunglass-

If you're in need of an unusual gift or would like a souvenir, stop in the zootique on your way out. Animals are portrayed in artsy, humorous ways on everything from T-shirts and windsocks to books, posters and piggy banks.

If you haven't been to the Belle Isle Zoo for a while, live it up. For $2, a pleasant respite from the daily grind can be yours.

Belle Isle's is the only zoo in the nation with an elevated boardwalk. From spots, there's a glorious view through leafy trees of the Detroit River and the city skyline.

Underneath the wooden walkway live up to 30 species and 130 animals hailing from all parts of the globe. "A lot of our visitors are parents with small children," said Khadejah Shelby, deputy director of Detroit's Zoological Parks Department.

"Our elevated boardwalk is three quarters of a mile long, with a refreshment stand halfway around. So unlike the big zoo, it's hard to get lost. And it's less stressful for the animals (than conventional zoos).

'We have access for the handicapped, and can accommodate children in strollers."

COUPLES FREQUENT the zoo a lot, Shelby added. "A fellow can get in for $2, buy a pop and a hotdog, and have a nice date for $5 or $6. A couple can stroll, and talk, observe the animals, maybe even read and compose poetry," said Shelby, pausing in a shady spot along the walk. "You certainly can combine a trip to the zoo with a fitness walk, and nice fresh air. Even if it's hot, it's, five to 10 degrees cooler here. We

If you happen to be at the zoo at 4 p.m., you'll witness a feeding frenzy in the sea lion pool. The closer it gets to feeding time, the faster the whiskered pair swims and the more often the sleek creatures stick their heads up, looking and listening for the zookeeper with the hankered-for herring and squid.

IN LATE JULY, the zoo will be home to some new residents siamangs.

"Siamangs are an unusual ape from the gibbon family," said Shelby. "They have a throat pouch that they can puff up to the size of their head.

The hooting sounds siamangs make with their pouches can be heard for up to three miles.

Belle Isle's flamingos, whose diet of brine shrimp keeps their feathers pink, are a sight to behold. So are the scimitar-horned antelope, considered sacred in India. Graceful secretary birds prance in a way that can only be described as regal.

For more information, call 398-0900. Belle Isle's Zoo is open from May 1 - Nov. 1.

And one last thing. Thea Thomas of Grosse Pointe took her grandchildren Jeremy and Lisa to the Belle Isle Zoo recently. They highly recommend the huge slide, on the Isle just outside the zoo.

OVED THINGS become a sort of signa ture. The pleasure you find in the objects you care for lend them a special quality others sense and share

No home is ever finally completely furnished. The furniture and window dressing are really backgrounds for your personal appointments. People remember houses in terms of details and touches as well as general impressions. These touches say something about the people who live in the house. Be it an heirloom piece or a porcelain box, a large bowl of flowers - though not artistically remarkable or expensive, it creates a certain atmosphere.

In my own home, I have a collection of memorabilia sitting on a Queen Anne gateleg table. The collection of letters and photographs say something about us. Personally I enjoy reading and rereading letters that bring back to mind events gone by.

I LOVE TO SEARCH and browse when we travel. On a recent trip to New Orleans, I found a lovely antique washstand with an onyx top. I placed this in a living room where it functions as a bar.

The way to train yourself to see all the possibilities out there is to look and look. Ask questions and then look some more. At first it is bewildering. You can't see the trees for the forest. But soon you will find yourself acquiring an eye and the feeling that you can do it and that the piece is right

On the whole, I am electic. I don't have the discipline to be a true collector. I am drawn to many kinds of beauty. I don't follow any rules. I buy things because I love them and know I can make a place for them. I don't limit myself to one kind of object. If you do, sooner or later, you will find yourself collecting pieces not for their charm and beauty but for their significance. I don't care for a "house museum."

I FIND DISPLAY CASES unappealing. I prefer to scatter and group my collectables. I use odd rather than even numbers of things. Three candles rather than four clumped together. A collection of snuff bottles or paperweights on a table is interest-

Paintings should be bought for the pleasure they give rather than an investment. Your time and money yield a much more satisfying return when they are invested in searching out an unknown work you find exactly right for a particular spot.

Q. I have a carpentry workshop in my garage I know will take weeks to clean out. It is such an irritant I have to get it done, but I don't have that kind of time.

A. It's normal to feel overwhelmed when you have a big task on your hands but dreaded jobs seldom take as long as you

The husband of one of my students happily announced after work one day that "if he played his cards right" they could probably get transferred to Europe within two years. His wife panicked as she thought, "I'll never be ready on time."

People tend to overestimate the time it takes to do what they dislike and underestimate the time to do what they enjoy.

Think about what you enjoy doing. Isn't it amazing how quickly time flies by when you are relaxed and reading, talking, shopping, or involved in hobbies like building model airplines, working on a computer or painting pictures?

Conversely, cleaning out junk areas, doing paperwork or other dreaded tasks pile up because 1) we don't like to do them and 2) we overestimate the time to do them.

One man proudly proclaimed he had helped clean out the garage one Saturday (obviously a real event in their house). His wife later whispered he had spent a total of 20 minutes, but in his mind it seemed like most of the day.

Try taking baby steps. Tell yourself surely you can stand working on your shop for five or 10 minutes. If at the end of that time you are not "into" the project, allow yourself to quit, but schedule it for another specific time. One of two things will probably result: 1) You'll learn the chore is not so bad and you will complete the task more quickly than you imagined, or 2) you may begin to understand why the task has not been done be-

If you attack your workshop with the appropriate information and stick with organizing only - without getting distracted into side jobs - you can probably get it done in a short time.

Grand retreat

Area developer offers U.P. condos

By Marie McGee staff writer

> TROY dental lab owner has his own version of the classic "How Green Was My

For Ira Green, a valley is home for his "Bay View Condominum project" in the pristine area of Grand Marais on the shores of Lake Superior in the Upper Peninsula.

The valley is an important detail in his story of how he came to the decision to build condominums on the Lake Superior shoreline.

Your first look at Grand Marais comes when you come over the crest of the hill off Highway - 200 feet straight down. There it is. The view of the bay is breathtaking. You're hooked after that," said Green, who admits being "hooked" on the area since he was 17 and first went camping there.

GREEN'S ENTHUSIASM for the area and hence the condo project is shared by his wife, Barbara, who currently is manning the sales office in Grand Marais for their company, Bay View Management. Green is holding down the homefront in West Bloomfield and commutes just about every weekend

Green's plans call for the construction of 18 year-round, one- and two-bedroom units. The units will be clustered in groups of six with each having its own private entrance and deck and walk-out to the beach. The units will be staggered so to get full benefit of a view that most often includes that of a glorious sunrise over the harbor and Lake Superior.

The units face inward on the Grand Marais Bay and thus are protected from the passing storms of Lake Superior, but still offer a full view of the lake in its calmer presence. A white sand beach runs the full stretch of the property for swimming.

The one-bedroom lower unit will average

$47,900. The two-bedroom upper unit will feature a loft and will have around 1,100 square for a $57,900 price tag.

All the units will have one-by-six tongue-andgroove cedar siding with cedar shake accents, wood windows with insulated glass, steel insulated entrance doors and solid wood interior doors. Superior insulation will make them usable in the winter as well, Green noted. Or owners may choose to gent them out during that pe-

"This is the area for some of the best snowmobiling or skiing in the country," Green said.

THE UNITS "LOOK just like the condos you see in Charlevoix or Traverse - at about a third of the cost," Green added.

Green said he is not the first to build condominiums in the U.P. There are some units in Escanaba on Lake Michigan. But he is the first to build on Lake Superior, the largest and considered by many the most awesome of the Great

"It's very Cape Cod-dy," Green said of Grand Marais, with its summer population of 1,200 and 400 year-round residents. "If you're into peace and quiet, walking the beach, fishing, and just enjoying nature, this is the place. I doubt if it will ever be the trendy, touristy spots Traverse City and Harbor Springs or the Leelanau area have become.'

The reason for that, he believes, is because people are just too lazy to cross the bridge and drive another 11/2 hours. But we do have our little art colony. We also have five churches, two bars and some of the best fishing in the world."

When it comes right down to it, we're not selling condominiums," Green said. "We're selling an area - a lifestyle. If you're not into this kind of living, you won't like it here no matter how much of a bargain the units are or how well they are constructed."

For more information on the development, call Green at 362-1282.

Bloomfield Hills residents Ira and Barbara Green are so enthusiastic about Grand Marais in the Upper Peninsula they decided to build condominiums there on a small parcel of land they owned that previously had rental cabins. In all, 18 units will be built on the protected bayside of Grand Marais historic Coast Guard Point. The units were designed by architect Barry Polzin, who specializes in environmentally sound projects. Units will sell for $47,900-$57,900.
