School study group ready

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

For the last year-and-a-half, voters in the Plymouth-Canton Community School district have been saying no to higher taxes that would support schools.

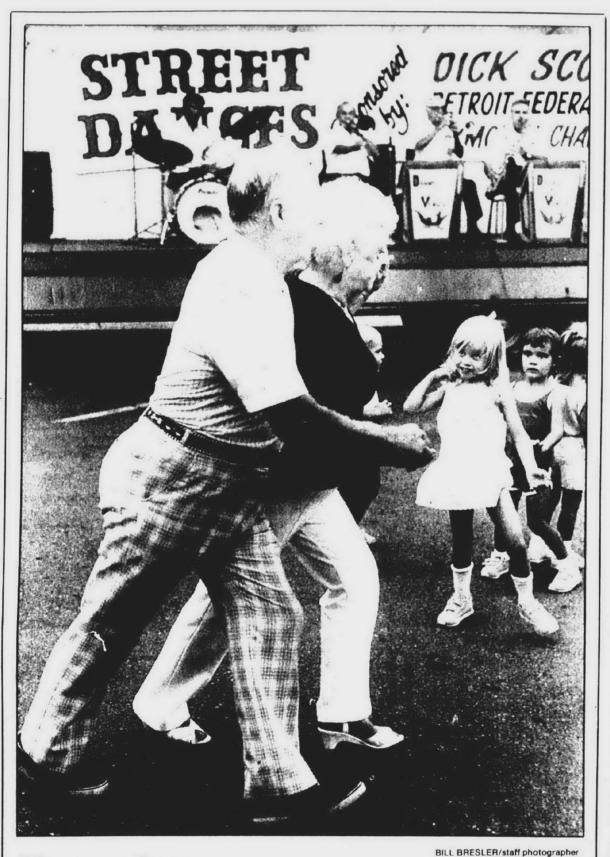

The board of education appointed a committee to find out why, and the group is in the process of gathering information from the community.

"We're very ready to move forward with this," said Pam Nuttall, one of 14 members of the core committee

The group, called the Community Researching Educational Workings Committee or CREW, is made up of parents and educators. It has been asked by the school board to "identify alternate ways to better utilize and improve strengths" in the district, and "provide alternate solutions and recommendations to overcome our weaknesses.

CREW will begin its research by surveying the community to "get their input as to how they feel about the schools," Nuttall said.

ONCE CONCERNS have been identified, CREW will work with subcommittees to come up with solu-

The authority responsible for sending sewage from Plymouth, Canton and Northville townships to be treated in Ypsilanti is now considering the matter of solid waste.

The Western Township Utilities Authority was formed by the three communities to enter into an agreement with the Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority. Once a sewer line is built to link the communities to YCUA's treatment facility, the authority will start sending sewage there instead of to the Detroit plant.

Now WTUA is turning its attention to garbage.

"THE WTUA is formulated in such a way . . . that it could handle it (solid waste) in a similar fashion to how we will handle the sewage,'

said Maurice Breen, Plymouth Township supervisor and chairman of WTUA

One of the things officials must consider is a report from the Wayne County Solid Waste Planning Committee. The report, due out in final form within the next 30 days, will outline ways in which communities can reduce their solid waste production

Most solid waste currently goes to landfills, but communities throughout the country are seeking other options as landfills reach capacity.

Before taking any action, the WTUA is going to review the county report

"The WTUA has the authority to pursue solid waste disposal, which could be recycling, landfill, separation, incineration or all of the above," said James Poole, Canton Township supervisor.

tions to those problems. The committee has a list of about 20 people willing to serve on subcommittees, Nuttall said

CREW committee members were chosen because they expressed concern about the schools. As a result of the failure of tax hikes - the most recent being the June defeat of a Headlee override that would have raised $3.8 million for the district several staff and programming cuts have been instituted in the district.

Some committee members said when the reality of those cutbacks became clear, they decided to get more involved with finding solutions to the district's problems.

support an appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court regarding the constitutionality of sobriety check lanes.

"The constitutionality question has to be put to rest," said Plymouth police Chief Richard Myers. "Let's get the constitutionality out of the way first, then the other issue such as cost-effectiveness and how effective it is in reducing drunk driving can be dealt with.

Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley has filed an appeal with the state Supreme Court to revive the use of random roadblocks to catch drunk drivers

Kelley asked the justices to review an Aug. 1 decision of the state Court of Appeals. The appeals judges ruled the sobriety check lanes were uncon-unreasonable search and seizure.

"Gov. Blanchard and I have reviewed this matter and concluded that an issue of this importance should be considered by the Michigan Supreme Court," Kelley said. Blanchard 'called for sobriety check lanes in 1986 and named a committee to draft a program. After initial use of sobriety check lanes in the Saginaw area, opponents, including some state lawmakers, filed suit and won a Wayne County Circuit Court ruling blocking them.

THE SUPREME Court can refuse to even consider the case, officials said.

Police issue 82 tickets to 'cruisers'

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

Plymouth police broke ticket-writing records for the second weekend in a row in pursuit of cruisers.

Some 82 tickets were issued to young people whose weekend socializing habits involve driving up and down the city's main thoroughfares. The charges ranged from speeding to urinating in public.

Police beefed up patrols on Friday and Saturday in anticipation of traffic snarls and trespassing violations. There were four temporary officers on patrol, four regular department employees who were working overtime and the three officers normally scheduled for duty during those shifts.

"All in all it was a busy weekend, but we were pleased that the amount of alcohol violations was down in comparison with last week." said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager

On the weekend of Aug. 12-14, 81 tickets were issued. Some 16 young people were charged with violating alcohol laws at that time

Last weekend, nine alcohol-related citations were issued. Eight minors were charged with possession of alcohol, and one person was cited for allegedly consuming alcohol in public.

CITY OFFICIALS had considered setting up barricades on Main Street to establish one lane of traffic in each direction and limit drivers from entering parking lots. But establishing "the zone," as it has been dubbed, was deemed unnecessary.

"I think continuing with the high visibility of police officers has the needed effect," said Sincock

Officers took the usual steps to control traffic: They enforced the law banning left turns from southbound Main Street onto Ann Arbor Road and closed Penniman Avenue along the north side of Kellogg Park.

Additionally, they prohibited right turns from Ann Arbor Road onto northbound Main and northbound Harvey Friday night.

'It was an inconvenience to some of our residents, but it certainly wasn't as much an inconvenience as the full zone would be," Sincock said.

MOST OF the CREW members are people who have been involved in the schools in other volunteer capacities, Nuttall said.

"This is a different involvement," she said. "We are actually learning about the administration and how they are making the decisions for your kids."

Older adults have a representative on the committee in Ray Buckman. Buckman, a retiree, does not have children in the school system. But he said senior citizens do keep abreast of the doings in the district.

"I have talked to a number of re-. and they all are very tirees much interested in it from the standpoint of getting laws passed so that there will be equalization of money going (from the state) into each school district," Buckman said.

It is "unfair" that some school districts get more state aid than others, Buckman said, and he has been working with the offices of state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, and state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, on legislation to balance the inequity.

Downtown dancers take to the streets

Just because it's called "Dancing in the Streets" doesn't mean you have to get out there and hoof it.

Big band music sounds just as good relaxing in a lawn chair as it does spinning and moving to the beat on the street.

For the past five years, the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, Dick Scott Buick and the Detroit Federation of Musicians have sponsored the Friday night activity in downtown Plymouth.

'Usually it attracts a couple hundred people," said Mary O'Connell Roehr, executive director of the chamber. "It was first started to get people to stay downtown later on Friday evenings with their family."

"Some people just sit there and watch the performance," Roehr said. "It's about 50-50 between watchers and doers.

The $7,000 cost is picked up by the sponsors and the performances run from the last Friday in June to the last Friday in August.

The dances last 90 minutes and start at 7:30 p.m.

"It increases the image of the community," Roehr said "It's a safe, fun activity people can do in their own hometown. We have found that it has been a success and we hope to be sponsoring it for a long time.

Plymouth stores also have lost some of their sales to new stores in the area. Patricia Mee, owner of Sacks of Forest Avenue, said whenever a new store opens, customers flock to it.

'You can never make a second impression," she said.

According to Roehr it is important for store owners to be aware of the competition and to figure out how to best compete.

As a member of the small-business and retail committee, Mee said the best way for store owners to succeed is to promote their own stores without depending completely on town sales. She also advises that stores keep consistent business hours.

The Y's diet-busting cuisine has attracted thousands of customers over the years, among them former Detroit Lion and movie actor Alex Karras and his wife, actress Susan Clark. ("I asked Karras how he liked it, and he said 'Great,'" recalled Holmes.)

ACCEPTING THE presidency has meant sacrifice not only for Holmes, but for his wife, Joyce, and children Karen, 19, and David, 17.

"Up until we got call waiting, they weren't too thrilled," said Holmes of Karen and David.

"Teens do have a phone surgically implanted in their ears. It's the reason we got call waiting. I knew that once I accepted the position it was time for call waiting.

All the hours Holmes and the 15member fall festival board have invested - more than 4,000 - have been worth it, Holmes said.

"I enjoy volunteer work because of the people I get to work with. These are positive people. They're willing to give of themselves, and they're fun to be around."

There's lots in store for festival-val aimed at families. Folks can come down, have something to eat, be entertained, socialize with friends and have a good time.

"For people outside Plymouth, come look us over. We're all very proud of Plymouth. It's a great place to live. We like to show it off to people, and to that end, we try and put on the best possible festival," Holmes said.

For the first time, a radio station (Ypsilanti's WSDS) will broadcast from the festival.

HOLMES' INVOLVEMENT with Fall Festival is just one of the things that makes him good company.

Holmes, who was raised near Marine City, drove a tractor by age 7.

You grow up quick when you live on a farm," he said. "Tinkering with things always interested me. A tractor, mower, cultivator - something was always broken."

Holmes took his talents to electronic trade school, and later to several labs and the radio observatory at the University of Michigan.

"It was the most interesting job I ever had," said Holmes of his observatory post.

"Most of the objects we looked at were extra-galactic, outside the Milky Way," he said.

Holmes, a senior engineering technician for U-M, did data gathering for graduate students, and designed electronic circuits and equipment for the radio telescope.

AS A RESEARCH technician with ERIM, Holmes, retired from U-M, builds radar equipment.

ERIM was affiliated with the University of Michigan until 1972 when students protested U-M's involvement with defense work. Today it's a private, non-profit research and development institute that deals with electronics technology, computer science, optics, and remote sensing devices.

It performs work for the U.S. military, the space industry, universities and the private sector.

Holmes' late father, George Holmes, was a combat photographer in World War II. He created the film "Battle Babies," a movie about war orphans and a 2-year-old boy from Okinawa in particular. The Japanese recently did a sequel to "Battle Babies" - government property Ken Holmes and his brothers and sisters have never seen.

But that's a another story for another time.

In the meantime, Holmes hopes "everyone enjoys our festival."

There's a Meijer's three miles down the road at Eight Mile and five miles the other way in Canton. I love the store. I shop there all the time. But I still don't think this is the best use of the land

What the group really wanted was a YMCA at the location to service Plymouth, Canton and Northville, but Potochick's research revealed that the organization was interested only if a site was donated. A park was the homeowner's second choice.

The township board delayed the rezoning decision until after a special election in November 1987 (prompted by the protesters) which asked homeowners whether property taxes should be raised to buy the land for a township park. The ques-

According to Meijer's timetable, the proposed 195,000-square-foot Plymouth Township store could be operating in another 18 months. But planning director James Anulewicz says no site plan has been submitted

"UNFORTUNATELY WE'D ALL like to freeze frame where we are in time," Anulewicz said. "But that isn't likely to happen. Fifteen or 20 years ago, we were rural. Today we're suburban, there's no question."

He said the township is on a SEVERAL OF US felt that they chartered course of paced development

> "With each development, we look for a number of objectives. This dential but with an understanding of the need to service those people with commercial development and have a workplace nearby - some office

The overall plan calls for the area south of the expressway and west of Sheldon Road to remain residential only. The work environment is north of the freeway between M-14 and Five Mile - extending in a westerly direction from Livonia's industrial corridor along Schoolcraft, Anulewicz said. There has been one consolation to Lake Pointe homeowners. Developers looking at sites on Haggerty between Schoolcraft and Five Mile have consulted the group about plans.

"I have a feeling the township steered them in our direction," Potochick said. "At least we've won the right to be recognized."

Luckier in its fight, at least for the time being, are residents of Westland and surrounding communities who banded together earlier this year to block an effort by Westland city officials to create an 18-hole golf course in a section of the William P. Holliday nature preserve.

The course was proposed for 118 acres of wetlands in the preserve north of Warren and west of Hix, raising the ire of environmentalists. A grass roots campaign aimed at stopping further erosion of the county's park system was mounted.

The protest group, calling itself the Holliday Nature Preserve Association, attracted 140 citizens to a meeting in Livonia in late March to plot strategy to defeat the plan. Westland Mayor Charles Griffin, saying the course would be the best way to make sure commercialization doesn't overtake the area, couldn't sway the opposition.

Griffin launched an advisory committee headed by recreation director

Ficano: Budget undermines jail

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Wayne County's jail can't operate efficiently because the county executive won't give it the money, sheriff Robert Ficano said Wednesday morning.

Ficano took the offensive in a dispute between himself and county executive Edward McNamara over which official should operate. the

The sheriff alleged McNamara has deliberately underfinanced the jail, failed to adequately staff the facility and negotiated wage increases with jail worker unions while failing to add more money to the jail budg-

"THE JAIL budget is purposefully under-funded to deliberately curtail and deny the sheriff the necessary tools to do the job," Ficano said.

Ficano alleged the county executive:

• Approved a 1987-88 jail budget based on 1,500 inmates - 200 below the traditional jail average.

• Failed to fill an average 100 jail positions, prompting excessive overtime payments.

• Awarded raises to AFSCME and other jail unions without adjusting the budget.

The only finger Ed McNamara should be pointing is at himself," Ficano said.

McNamara has filed a motion in Wayne County Circuit Court to wrest control of the jail from Ficano, alleging the jail isn't being operated efficiently.

McNamara, however, said all county departments have been under-financed due to the county's ongoing budget difficulties.

The successful executive is one who can live within his limits.'

> Edward McNamara county executive

'The jail budget is purposefully underfunded.'

Robert Ficano county sheriff

"Everybody's under-funded," McNamara said. "The successful executive is one who can live within his limits."

"This all goes back with our agreement with the state." McNamara added, referring to a December 1987 agreement designed to end county debt. "We promised the state we'd balance our books and here we have a department that's $2 million in debt. What we're saying is if you can't do it, we'll do it for you.' The wage increases, McNamara said, were implemented too recently to have much impact on this year's jail budget.

McNAMARA FILED a motion in Wayne County Circuit Court last week to have the executive's branch take over jail operations.

The motion was filed because of cost overruns, particularly involving overtime for jail guards and because jail conditions haven't improved since 1971, McNamara Administration officials.

Jail operations have traditionally been the responsibility of the sheriff, an independently elected county officer. McNamara, however, announced plans for a county corrections department that would be part of the executive's branch.

The issue is expected to appear Aug. 29 before chief Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman.

McNamara filed his motion under a 1971 lawsuit brought by jail inmates. That same lawsuit prompted the 1-mill county jail tax approved by voters earlier this month. In addition to deciding the fate of McNamara's proposed corrections department, a ruling on the motion would also determine whether McNamara or Ficano assumes responsibility for building the new jail.

But the city has committed zero funds to obtaining a consultant. Contacted late last week, Gillies indicated he didn't want to stir up a new hornet's nest by commenting on the Issue

"I'd just like to say we're still evaluating the site. Let's just leave it at that," he said.

SLOW GROWTH PLANS, intended to keep open spaces, relieve congestion and preserve a certain quality of life, work in a number of ways.

Two Oakland County communities, Rochester Hills and West Bloomfield Township, are considering slow growth or controlled growth programs.

The Rochester Hills City Council has commissioned a study of ordinances that would preserve the city's 7,000 acres of undeveloped land. It has not been completed. In West Bloomfield Township, there has been a moratorium on approval of new development since March. We suffer from overdevelopment," said Dorothy McIntosh, township supervisor.

Developers, however, maintain the policies are unfairly restrictive. Some of the things being advocated amount to total confiscation of people's property," said Herman Frankel, a local builder.

Nobody is suggesting that we should solve the problems of the world at the expense of our own families.

But, when we give less to charitable causes than we spend on frozen dinners and designer jeans, something is out of balance.

Suppose that, instead of the one or two percent most of us are giving now, we all raised our contribution level to five percent. Based on current income figures, we'd generate more than $175 billion for the causes we say we care about. The homeless. The environment. Religion. And the arts. Just to name a few.

So look at your own giving. And see if you can't find a way to do just a little more.

That minor change in your family budget could be the start of some major changes in your family's world.

Dems to pick state ed ticket

Michigan Democrats will gather in Detroit's Cobo Hall this weekend to nominate education board candidates for their Nov. 8 ticket.

Their nominees will face some incumbent Republicans who were swept in with President Ronald Reagan eight years ago. Two University of Michigan Board of Regents, one from each party, have their terms expire this year. They are Deane Baker, Republican builder from Ann Arbor, and Nellie Varner, Democratic businesswoman from Detroit.

Two Democrats known to be seeking the party's second nomination are Tom Lewand, Royal Oak area lawyer and close associate of Gov.

James Blanchard; and Gerald Dunn former state senator, former regent and currently a lobbyist for suburban K-12 school districts. The board currently has a 5-3 Democratic majority Pat Wilson, a Blanchard appointee to the Michigan State University Board of Trustees, won't seek election. Tom Reed, Republican incumbent, is running again. Democrats hold a 5-3 majority.

Murray Jackson, current chairman of the Wayne State University Board of Governors and a Democrat, will run again. So will Republican incumbent Richard Van Dusen, a Birmingham lawyer. One known Democratic candidate is Christine Koch, a district aide to U.S. Rep. David Bonior of Mount Clemens.

Two state Board of Education posts open this year are both held by Republicans - Norman O. Stock-meyer Sr. of Westland and Dr. Edmund Vandette of Houghton. That over 25 years ago. A $5 fee to defray the costs of targets, benches, sand bags, spotting scopes and range and parking lot upkeep is necessary. In return shooters will be offered expert assistance to help them zero-in their firearms, make adjustments to their sights/scopes and generally prepare their firearms for use in the coming hunting seasons. The foremost concern of the trained range officers is safety. Many of the range officers on duty

Rifles and shotguns may be sighted-in seven days a week. Hand guns may only be sighted in on weekends. Shooters must provide their own ammunition, preferably the same kind with which they will hunt.

Shooters are urged to dress in clothing similar to that in which they will hunt. These two tips will help in zeroing in their firearms. Generally mid-week days are less crowded than weekend days.

Rouge's fans cross fingers on bond issue

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Part Have

Rouge cleanup boosters and Wayne County officials are keeping their eyes on a proposed $800 million state bond issue that could be shot down or given new life this week.

The bond issue would help finance environmental cleanup projects; including the Rouge River, and provide money for county parks - but only if state legislators decide to put it on the November ballot.

A House-Senate conference committee is expected to meet today to decide whether to pass the bill along to the full Legislature.

County officials are pulling for the bill to be kept alive.

We're supporting the thing," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said.

At the same time, environmental heavy cutbacks during recent county specialist James Rogers of the financial difficulties.

- A Contractor A Contractor

Southeast Michigan Council of Gov-ernments said "it's pretty clear" those supporting the Rouge cleanup also support the bond issue.

THE MAIN thing is that it would re-establish the state revolving (environmental) fund," Rogers said. Reestablishing that financing source was a major recommendation in SEMCOG's recent 20-year action plan for eliminating Rouge pollution. Currently, two proposals are under debate. The first would sell $660 million in bonds for environmental cleanup, improved handling of solid waste and clean water efforts - potentially including the Rouge River. The second would involve a $140 million bond sale with proceeds to be divided evenly between state and local parks - potentially including the Wayne County Parks, subject to

While no official projections have been made, Rogers estimated the Rouge cleanup could receive some $4.5 million from the bond issue.

We really don't have any true projections, but based upon what southeastern Michigan traditionally has received from state construction bond issues and based upon the size of the Rouge project, I'd say we'd get about one-sixth of $75 million," Rogers said.

Rouge supporters said they envision a state revolving fund created by a $365 million federal grant and $75 million in matching state money. At that, state financing would be a drop in the bucket. The estimated

698-2081

Rouge cleanup cost is a minimum $900 million over the next 20 years with loan payments on local bonds potentially doubling that figure

A dispute between Democrats and Republicans over whether cleanup workers should be paid prevailing union wages has kept the issue off the ballot to date.

IF CONFERENCE members reach agreement, state lawmakers would be called back from vacation to give final blessing to the matter.

Under the state Constitution, the issue must receive two-thirds approval by Sept. 9. The state House and Senate aren't scheduled to resume sessions until Sept. 14.

Sen. Vernon Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, chairman of the Senate natural resources and environmental affairs committee, said the issue of prevailing wage would not be addressed directly in the bond legislation.

Under existing policy, the prevailing wage applies to all state projects except those that use federal money or when the state makes a grant or loan to a local unit of government or a private entity.

Ehlers said the agreement calls for the Blanchard administration to ed to this story.

provide separate documentation assuring Republicans that the policy would not be extended to projects now exempt from the prevailing wage.

It's Police Academy I for Schoolcraft College

After months of planning - and campaigning - Schoolcraft was given permission to establish a police training center at its Radcliff Center in Garden City.

The academy, Schoolcraft's first, was approved by the Michigan Law Enforcement Officers Training Council last month.

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano and a number of area police chiefs lobbied hard for the site. A coalition of area legislators, including state Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, also pushed for the western Wayne County academy.

There were concerns the new academy would draw students away from existing academies in Oakland and Macomb counties. Boosters downplayed those concerns, however, saying the goal was to expand the number of police officer candidates, not take students away from other academies Academy classes will begin during spring term 1989. They will run for 12 weeks. Classes will be offered two to four times per year. Police departments throughout Michigan increasingly seek officers with college or community college training, law enforcement officials said.

It will take at least $13,000, primarily for renovating a college locker room, to get the academy running, Schoolcraft officials said. Addi-The training council, empowered tional renovations may also be necessary. Academy staffing would cost an estimated $35,000 per year.

An advisory board has been created to oversee academy activities. Its members include Chief William Crayk of Livonia, chairman, and chairman. # Monuments Policy should be set in stone LYMOUTH MAY BE known as the "City of homes" but it may have to add a new moniker - "City of Monuments.

There's the Plymouth Rock war memorial, the Gathering, various city parks named after service organizations and the fountain and brick walkways in Kellogg Park.

The only problem is the city does not have any guidelines or policy to determine where monuments should be placed or what type of monuments should be allowed on city property.

The lack of any standards has resurfaced after a group known as the Plymouth Vietnam Veter: ans Association announced plans for a monument honoring soldiers killed in the Korean and Vietnam wars

The PVVA would like to construct the monument in Kellogg Park.

THE CITY is studying the idea with the final decision resting in the hands of the city commis-

The peace pole didn't last too long in Plym-

College trust

Any decision on a monument should be based on a set of standards approved by the city commission spelling out exactly what is allowed and what is prohibited.

SION

Instead of dealing with these issues on a piecemeal basis, the city needs to establish some sort of guidelines on how to deal with similar requests

Any decision on a monument should be based on a set of standards approved by the city commission spelling out clactly what is allowed and what is prohibited.

This is not the first time something like the has cropped up in Plymouth

Last year, a woode prace pole was placed near the Plymouth Roch nonument fust outside Kellogg Park

Some confusion existed after the poor take was erected. Organizers of the nuclear distances ment rally thought the peace bole was a set remain permanently on the site

Some city officials thought it vis a temporary structure.

Unfortunately, that conflict fidled to produce some sort of policy

The peace pole was taken from the park and the issue died.

However, the request by the PVVA has put the spotlight back on this governmental omission.

This request should spur the city to create a task force or committee to study the question. and come up with some guidelines before a final decision is reached on the PVVA request.

A monument lasts forever. Future generations should have faith that these "monumental" decisions were not arbitrary but based on guidelines and sound principles.

Like Headlee, most Americans want the embarrassment to go away

This isn't a partisan issue as some claim. Most Americans, whatever their political persuasion, didn't want to have anything to do with a war they just didn't understand.

And nobody holds it against these guys who were trying to find a way to survive a grisly period in American history - not even a combat veteran of the Vietnam war.

THE BEEF with Dan Quayle is his hypecrisy, laden with a thick coat of arrogance.

Nobody would mind if the Republican vice presidential candidate got up and said, "I joined the National Guard to save my skin. I had something to offer this country in the future. I didn't want to jeopardize it in for Vietnam vets and has opposed a war which was no threat to my country.

Peace of mind for some parents

GOV. JAMES BLANCHARD and his financial whiz kid, state Treasurer Robert Bowman, struck a rich vein with the pay-now, study-later prepaid college tuition plan.

The plan, known formally as the Michigan Education Trust, promises that an investment today will result in guaranteed tuition in the future to any of Michigan's public universities and community colleges.

The public response has been impressive. In a five-day enrollment period, 82,495 people sent in $25 along with application forms. Although these people aren't committed to participating (contracts will be sent out by Labor Day and must be returned in 60-90 days), no one else can enter the program until the next enrollment period, which could be a year away.

THERE ARE a number of reasons for the public interest: People recognize both the value of education and its steadily increasing cost; the plan seems like a tax-wise investment to those who can afford it; although the state spent nothing on advertising, the plan got loads of free publicity through newspapers and television.

Amid all this hoopla surrounding the plan, some are waving cautionary flags. Some skeptics suggest the state is overplaying its hand, that the trust fund investments cannot be assured of outdistancing tuition increases and that the legislation that created the trust did not require the state general fund to make up any deficits should the fund's investments fall short.

Some take a different tack. They say that in order to ensure the fund's solvency, the state government will browbeat universities into keeping tuition rates artificially low, thereby jeopardizing the quality of education in the state. Indeed, Oakland University this year cut a proposed 20-percent tuition increase in half as a result of Gov. Blanchard's encouragement.

Several other universities followed suit. Ironically, others suggest tuitions will grow faster than necessary because the trust fund becomes a third-party source for money.

Right or wrong, the large public involvement in the fund makes it likely that the state legislators would bow to public pressure and make up any deficits.

ALTHOUGH SOME of the criticism is rejected by fund spokesmen as the wailing of disgruntled financial consultants worried about lost commissions, many of the questions are legitimate and deserve the straightforward answers provided recently by Bowman and others.

Still, it should be clear in all residents' minds just exactly what the Michigan Education Trust is all about. It is a chance for peace of mind for parents who want to ensure that tuition costs will not prevent their children from attending the college of their choice.

That's it, clear and simple. It is not a guarantee that money invested now will do better than money invested in other vehicles. It is theoretically possible that tuition rates might increase annually by just 5 percent during the next 20 years. In such case, the trust will not refund the difference between tuition costs and the value of the investment. Nor should it. The fund is not a way to make money; it is a way to cover future tuition costs.

LIKEWISE, PRUDENT investors may believe they can do better on their own, particularly if they would have to borrow to meet the fund's payment. Why not invest monthly and make interest rather than borrow and pay interest? It's a valid approach for those who feel comfortable with their investment skills.

But that brings us back again to the fund's purpose. It provides for tuition (not for room and board or books), and it provides for peace of mind for parents who may plan to invest for their children's education but who, for any number of reasons, may not always be true to their goals.

The biggest question for those who participate is how well can the state live up to its part of the bargain. There are no absolute guarantees in the financial world, but the annual actuarial reviews should prevent the fund from getting dangerously out of kilter. Right or wrong, the large public involvement in the fund makes it likely that the state legislators would bow to public pressure and make up any deficits.

The real question shouldn't be: How well will the trust perform? It should do the job as advertised.

The real question is twofold: How will the state make sure that all levels of education are adequately financed, and how will youngsters afford college whose parents cannot afford the trust?

Let's face it. Nobody saw much honor in their kid being blown apart in a forgotten rice paddy. Most everybody wanted their child to go to college, get a job, have a family and do a little better than the generation before.

Let's face another fact. Nobody joined the National Guard in 1969 so they could go to Vietnam. Sure, a relative handful of Guardsman did go. But you can bet, few had planned it that way.

Train gates need action

To the editor:

I am new to the Plymouth area and have just read Mrs. McDaniels' letter in your paper regarding the tragic train accident a short time ago. I also feel compelled to write.

Mrs. McDaniels' letter left me with a sickening feeling of "she got what she deserved. Think about the poor railroad employees." I don't know the young woman who was injured and I agree she made a mistake - as have probably 90 percent of the drivers in the Plymouth area. Tragically, she got caught. How many of us have been just lucky not

Mrs. McDaniels understands that going around the gates is a "traffic violation." How many times has the railroad "cried wolf" with the gates? Is there no law against the capricious way they tie up traffic for the motorists, whose business is just maybe as important as theirs?

Is there a law against pulling enough cars to make up three trains and tying up the crossings for 15-plus minutes? (I understand the law allows five minutes.) We all know that the bottom line is the deciding factor

Very shortly after that terrifying accident I crossed the tracks on Sheldon near the Ford plant and a very long train (I clocked it at 14 minutes) had traffic (two lanes in both directions) backed up for about four blocks.

By the time I realized that the law was being violated it was too late to, as Mrs. McDaniels puts it, "choose an alternate route." After that very long train passed the gates stayed down for several minutes and all four lanes of four-block-long cars and big trucks went around the gates. According to Mrs. McDaniels, "those gates were down for a rea-son" — think about it.

On several occasions since that time I have run into similar situations.

I am sure the young woman's family is grateful to Mrs. McDaniels' husband for aiding her in this terrible accident. I pray it helped her.

I think all of us would be grateful if these railroad people would conduct their business so that these accidents needn't happen at all.

Police funds 'adequate'

To the editor:

Dear Plymouth Township Business Person

I recently was informed that the Plymouth Township Police Officers Association was intending to contact business' in our community. I have also been informed that this "fundraising" will be conducted by a contractual group called "Telco.

The purpose of this letter is simply to inform you that our police department is adequately funded out of tax money paid by you. The budget provides funds for all aspects of the operation including booklets about how to prevent crime. I know that our business and professional people constantly are requested to contribute funds for various projects. This is why we have the Plymouth Community United Way. I urge your par-ticipation in the United Way as a method to discourage these types of solicitations.

Finally, Plymouth Township does not encourage our employees to solicit businesses by phone or in person for projects that are not governmental functions.

points of view Golfer resumes game

IT'S SOMETIMES curious how motivation is stirred among humans. Take my friend, Jack, for instance. A 65-year-old native of Scotland, he has decided to take up golf again after a lapse of many years. The laxative was one line which appeared in the Detroit Free Press two weeks ago

In its sports section quickie called "Lists," the edition of the Morning Friendly in question gave the elapsed years since back-to-back victories had been posted in the worlds four major golf tournaments.

One line jumped out at Jack. It read. "PGA 50 years, Denny Shute (1936-37)" and it rekindled my friend's desire to see if he can still hit 'em straight down the middle.

There's something you should be told about this one-time lightweight boxer. In the tradition of the Scots, he's a wee bit penurious. Truth be known, he's a real bargain hunter, a devotee of garage sales with scads of trivia stacked on shelves in his own garage to verify his astute shopping sense of the writers' strike. For instance:

THAT'S HOW he became acquainted with Shute the name, not Shute the man. Quite likely, back in the '30s when Denny was reigning PGA champion. Soctty couldn't have distinguished between a Shute and a shoat.

through bifocals Fred DeLano fied advertisement in the dear, departed Detroit Times offering a full set of registered golf clubs for sale for only $25, he had to take a look. As is his wont, he coaxed the seller into including a golf bag and pullcart in the package, no sales tax added.

Then his purchase stood 35 years gathering dust in a corner of his basement

Over milk shakes, he showed me the clipping from the Free Press that confirmed Denny Shute's triumphs and confessed that he had conned some poor widow into letting him have nine irons and four woods. all properly registered and bearing the insignia, "Denny Shute, Personal Model," for 25 bucks. An autographed Lloyd Mangrum putter also was in the same bag, and it just might be the one I saw Mangrum win the Los Angeles Open with many years ago. I offered Jack 75 cents, and he answered, "$75.

donate his vintage set of sticks, once he had polished them up, to some local charity for auction, or merely display. That is now under dubious advisement

I DID test the clubs. They have metal shafts and have a nice feel, a good heft. For 50 cents at some garage sale or another, Jack had purchased a golf ball swivel device which is good for practice purposes and he has it pegged down in his back yard.

1 promised this delightful man, long retired, that I would not use his full name, address, or phone number, in this column lest golfdom's historians descend upon him en masse. And I have not.

But after I have honed my own game a bit, following current illness, I do intend to try and talk him into a match. You see, there are two ways of enjoying golf. The formal manner is the stuff you see on television, such as the recent 1988 national PGA tournament won by Jeff Sluman over the Oak Tree Golf Club course at Edmond, Okla.

Most of us don't play it that efficiently and so we resort to vocal exaggerations which grow in their retelling over the years just as the fish that got away grows in size when the tale is retold by an angler. I have a hunch Jack will excel in the latter

How to streamline boring convention

I TOLD you so. Twice.

Eight years ago I advanced the notion, and was unanimously hooted down, that national political conventions could be conducted in a day and a half, max, and that four-day conventions were a throwback to the 19th century.

The two presidential nominees were decided months in advance.

The platform? The Democrats' was badly written, deliberately, and no one reads it. In New Orleans, I couldn't even find a copy of the GOP's book-length missive.

The speeches? Jeanne Kirkpatrick was the only orator at either convention who dealt with a single topic. Otherwise, every orator skimmed over every topic, treating nothing in depth. This newspaper's Roll Call Report tells you more about national issues in one week than eight days of national conventions in prime time told you.

YOU THE PEOPLE responded accordingly

You rented movies in record numbers. You got bored with Republican orators chanting "family values" 11.000 times an hour; ditto with Democrats and the homeless. You weren't impressed by the staged demonstrations. You told pollsters it was silly for all three commercial networks to cover the same things.

The networks caught on, scaling back from gavel-to-gavel coverage in favor of two hours a night.

THE INTELLECTUAL level of news coverage hit an all-time low: a two-thirds page feature on C-Span's anchorwoman; features on what TV crews did for amusement; CNN's interview of a go-go dancer in New Orleans' French Quarter; the restaurant flap between GOP national committeeman Pete Secchia and Livonia's own Elaine Donnelly.

There just weren't four days worth of news.

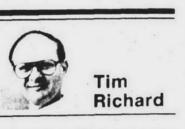

MY SECOND modest proposal, revealed in this space Aug. 4, was that ... best in the country. The rest think Bush should select three to five ac- they are. Give 'em something meaty ceptable finalists for veep, then let the convention choose between 'em. Ditto with Dukakis and the Democrats.

There are 2,200 to 4,000 elected delegates. Tap their brains, gut feelings and experience!

There are 13,000 news people covering a four-day TV show with a predictable climax and sinking ratings. Some of those news people are the to cover.

One national paper reported that Bush operative Jim Baker floated Sen. Dan Quayle's name to The New York Times a week early, hoping the trial balloon technique would elicit any negative response. It didn't work

Republican delegates would have had three weeks to scrutinize a handful of names. The Quayle thing would either have turned out to be a dud, or it would have sunk him long before he became No. 2 on the ticket. Speaking of the eastern seabord networks, many Americans think they have a double standard: no complaint about granting amnesty to males who skedaddled to Canada or Sweden, but dump all over Quayle, who at least wore his country's uniform in the National Guard.

Reporters have to cover something. And if the genuises who advise Dukakis and Bush don't provide an honest battle for them to cover, the media will pick up trivia and blast it to the skies

Remember who told you so. Cut the conventions to 11/2 days and let If Bush had followed my advice. the delegates pick the veep

It doesn't mean that much, said the superintendent, noting that only 15 percent of the public voted the last time the issue was defeated. That discredits the vote, he says.

He should think again. Unless, of course, he is ready to reject all millage increases in which fewer than a majority voted. And is he prepared to tell school board members that they are meaningless since they were elected with fewer than 15 percent of the vote, as is often the case in Troy?

There, a shopping mall developer put from $200 to $500 in cash in five envelopes and gave them to a township employee who in turn gave them to five candidates in the August primary race. Fortunately, the candidates realized it is illegal for cash contributions to exceed $20 so they refused the money. The builder claimed ignorance of the law and said he didn't remember which candidates were to receive his money. The employee said he didn't know what was in the envelopes.

Bob Hall and Bob Biallas would like to make the woods safer for all hunters.

"I've seen too many people in the woods that I think really should have taken a course," said Biallas, a Canton resident. "You see it in the woods, you see it at the shooting range.

Young hunters aren't the only ones who need to learn about hunting safety, he added. Often, more experienced hunters have developed bad habits that need to be changed.

Biallas and Hall were the instructors for a hunter safety class, offered last week by the Auxiliary of Mayflower-Lt. Gamble Post No. 6695, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The class was for people age 12 and older.

Both Biallas and Hall, a Livonia resident, trained through the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to be hunter safety instructors. They are also certified through the National Rifle Association as firearms instructors.

BOTH MEN belong to the Washtenaw Sportsman's Club in Ypsilanti. They work at the Ford Motor Co. Transmission and Chassis Division in Livonia, where Hall is an instrumentation technician and Biallas is an engineering technologist.

The men also have a small sporting goods business, ArrowLead, that operates out of Biallas's home. They sell firearms and archery equipment, and believe it's important to teach people how to use that equipment properly. Biallas, 37, has been hunting since his early teenage years. He knows that careless hunting can lead to injuries and even to deaths.

Heart attacks are one hazard of hunting. Hunters may be overexcited and overdressed, Biallas said. They may have heart attacks while trying to drag animals out of the woods.

"People do have heart attacks." Proper physical conditioning can do a lot to reduce the likelihood of a heart attack occurring.

Occasionally, hunters will get hurt while they're cleaning their guns in camp. Those guns may go off. In his camps, Biallas stresses that guns should be empty in camp.

"The camp I run, alcohol and guns don't mix." He knows that alcohol abuse and misuse on a hunting trip can lead to tragedy.

"I just don't like alcohol in that situation."

KEEPING ACCIDENTS from happening was the goal Hall and Biallas had in mind during last week's hunter safety program at the VFW Hall in Plymouth.

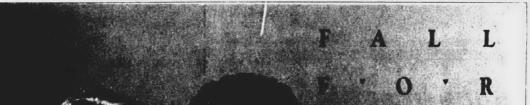

'The safe hunter doesn't make the news," Hall said. He views volunteering to teach hunting safety as his contribution to the sport.

'I'm an extremist when it comes to the rules," Hall said, adding that he would turn in his own father if he were breaking the rules. Hall, 35, has been hunting since his early teenage days. Before that, he went on hunting trips with his father.

Last week's class covered a variety of topics, including hunter re-

More than 50 walkers of all ages participated, with proceeds from the event supporting the committee. The walk was the kickoff event for "Read Better Week," Aug. 21-27. Walkers had the choice of one-, three- or five-mile walks.

'We expected just a few more people here today, but this isn't all that bad," said John Schwartz of Canton, committee chairman, Proceeds from the "Fun Walk for Literacy" will be used to cover such things as printing and promotion costs, he said. The Sunday afternoon event was designed to increase awareness of illiteracy.

"It's certainly a pressing problem," said Schwartz, who has a business, Schwartz's Greenhouse in Canton.

He and his fellow committee members are working on the ongoing "Read Better" campaign.

REACHING ADULT non-readers or those with minimal reading skills isn't easy, Schwartz said. The people committee members are trying to reach can't read well if at all, so it is difficult for fliers or newspaper stories about illiteracy to reach them. As the United States continues to compete in manufacturing with other countries, reading and writing skills become even more important, Schwartz said. These days, stronger reading and writing skills are needed on the job at factories and elsewhere.

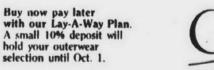

"How in the heck can you compete on a commercial level?" Schwartz said

THE 15-MEMBER committee has been hard at work, Schwartz said. Members have many talents and extensive contacts, and have been able to do a lot to help increase awareness of illiteracy.

"It's really a good committee." The committee includes Rotarians, representatives of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools and of the Canton Public Library, business people, Community Literacy Council members and others.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS don't have to worry about organizing a program to help adult non-readers;

Firearm use calls for caution

These 10 commandments of firearm safety are included in the "Hunter Safety Education Handbook" of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

• Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun.

• Watch that muzzle! Be able to control the direction of the muzzle even if you should stumble.

• Be sure the barrel and action are clear of obstructions and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying • Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger, know identifying features of the game you hunt

• Unload guns when not in use Take down or have actions open. guns should be carried in cases to the shooting area.

• Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; avoid all horseplay with a firearm. • Never climb a fence or tree or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle

• Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or water; at target practice, be sure your backstop is adequate.

 Store guns and ammunition separately beyond the reach of children and careless adults.

 Avoid alcoholic beverages and other mood-altering drugs before and during shooting.

datory safety classes have been a help; the use of hunter orange clothing has also helped reduce the number of accidental shootings.

"It's really taking off," Biallas said of hunting safety efforts. He would like to see schools become more involved in safety programs. During last week's class at the VFW Hall, participants learned about black powder and muzzleloading. They also learned about bow hunting.

Hall's wife Barbara, a registered nurse, talked to the class about first aid. Participants learned about modern firearms, including shotguns, rifles and handguns.

Wildlife identification/management, game care and basic survival rules were also covered. In the class, Hall and Biallas used the 'Hunter Safety Education Handbook" of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Although their class had a serious message, Hall and Biallas weren't opposed to the use of a little humor. As hunting partners, they have stories to tell about each other.

During a class session at the VFW Hall last week, Hall joked about "accidentally" shooting Biallas's less-than-effective compasses on hunting trips.

'We joke a little bit," Hall said. Helen Sidman, a Canton resident and VFW Auxiliary member, was pleased with last week's class.

"They really keep the children interested," said Sidman, who is safety chairwoman and a senior

SCHWARTZ WAS busy Sunday afternoon at Griffin Park; he had walked four miles and was ready to walk one more.

'They're all doing real well out there.

Walkers didn't seem to have too much trouble finishing; they got some help from Ronald McDonald, who took the first steps during the "Fun Walk for Literacy. Carolyn Burns of Canton was also participating in the walk Sunday afternoon. She is president of the Community Literacy Council, an organization that provides volunteer tutors and works to make people more aware of illiteracy problems. "It's fun," Burns said of the event.

"A beautiful day. We were concerned. We could have had rain or 102 degrees."

PRIZES WERE given to the youngest and oldest walkers. Walkers ranged in age from 4 to 74, Burns said.

Other prizes were also given away, including a 10-speed bike. Area merchants donated a variety of certificates and prizes.

"We've had families walking," Burns said. "Some people are running. And I really give them credit, because it is warm out there.

The presence of music helped cheer the walkers on. A public address system was set up at the park in Canton. Participants walked to the sound of marches, fight songs and other upbeat selections.

There were a few red faces at the walk, Burns said, "but so far everyone's stayed healthy."

Plymouth-Canton area readers look for a variety of summer reading choices. Some prefer fiction. while others choose non-fiction. Some set their sights on completing home improvement projects, while others prefer to spend their time engrossed in a good novel.

Current best sellers are popular at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth, according to Pam Rawlinson, assistant director

'Always, the best sellers are popular. Mysteries, too, go out a lot in the summer.

Among the popular choices this summer at the library are Tom Clancy's "Cardinal of the Kremlin" and James Michener's "Alaska." The new Victoria Holt novel, "India Fan," is also popular with library patrons Danielle Steel's books are perennial favorites, Rawlinson said. Steel has a new book, "Zoya," a popular choice among area readers.

"The Duchess of Windsor" by Charles Higham and Lee Iacocca's "Talking Straight" also top the check-out list. "Rock Star" by Jackie Collins is frequently requested.

MANY OF THE same books are popular at the Canton Public Library, according to Carol Kuchta, head of reference. Danielle Steel's "Zoya" is frequently requested there. "All her books are popular," she added

Robert Ludlum's novel about terrorists, "The Icarus Agenda," is also finding favor among readers at the Canton Public Library, Kuchta said. "He writes sort of in the espionage vein.

"Timothy's Game" by Lawrence Saunders is also popular, she said. That fictional book is about a Wall Street scam.

Detroit-area author Elmore Leonard's "Freaky Deaky" is popular at the Canton Public Library. Other popular choices include: "Talking Straight" by Lee Iacocca; "Alaska" by James Michener; "Natalie and

R.J." by Warren Harris, a book about Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner, and "A Brief History of Time" by Stephen W. Hawking, a book about the theory of the universe

"Light summer reading," Kuchta said with a laugh.

Robert Kowalski's "The Eight-Week Cholesterol Cure" is also frequently requested at the Canton library. That popular book tells readers how to lower their blood cholesterol without using drugs, Kuchta said.

There are others, but those are some of the ones that are going out a

AT BOTH area libraries, some summer readers come in with home improvement projects in mind. At the beginning of the summer, there were many requests for books on gardening and patios, the Dunning-Hough Library's Rawlinson said. Books on installing and maintaining a swimming pool are also requested.

Home improvement books - such as those telling how to build a deck are requested at the Canton Public Library, Kuchta said. Patrons also look for other books designed to help them improve their homes and gardens.

"Landscaping more than gardening, I'd say, 'said Kuchta.

At the Dunning-Hough Library, there are many summertime requests for renewals on some of the lengthier books, Rawlinson said. Patrons can renew books up to five times, provided those books haven't been requested by other patrons. Renewals aren't available on the popular best sellers; readers can check out those books for either two or three weeks at a time

"I still think the fiction is the predominant request" in the summer, Rawlinson said.

Fiction titles are popular among adult readers year-round at the Canton Public Library, Kuchta said. Authors such as Danielle Steel are popular throughout the year.

"They're just popular authors in general," she said. Younger library patrons tend to read more for pleasure in the summer, rather than for their classes, she said.

SOME ADULT patrons at the Canton Public Library look for something lengthy to read on a trip or at the beach, Kuchta said. Not all Plymouth-Canton readers get their reading material at the local libraries; some visit area bookstores as well.

'Tom Clancy books are going real well," said Lynda Lockhart, a sales clerk at the Book Break on Ford Road in Canton. Clancy's "Cardinal of the Kremlin" is a popular choice at the book store.

A new novel by Judith Krantz, 'Till We Meet Again," is popular at the store. Barbara Taylor Bradford's "To Be the Best," also a hardcover novel, is also selling well.

"And of course, Lee Iacocca always sells well." The Chrysler chairman's "Talking Straight" is selling well at the Book Break.

"Masquerade" by Lowell Cauffiel is popular at the Book Break, Lockhart said. That book tells the story of the murder of Dr. Alan Canty, a Detroit-area psychologist.

Paperbacks are also selling well, Lockhart said. Among popular paperback choices are: "Fallen Hearts" by V.C. Andrews; "Team Yankee" by Harold Coyle, a book about World War III; and "Hot Flashes" by Barbara Raskin.

James Michener's "Legacy" is now available in paperback and is selling well, she said.

Variety is also what readers are looking for at Little Professor on the Park, on Main Street in downtown Plymouth.

T.S. Eliot's "Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats" and "Victorian Posy" are among the popular choices. Tom Clancy's books and books about tea are also selling well.

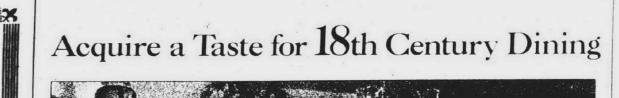

Other popular choices include: Anne Morrow Lindbergh's "Gift From the Sea," Stephen W. Hawking's "A Brief History of Time," Charles Higham's "The Duchess of Windsor," and Barbara Taylor Bradford's "To Be the Best."

Mary Cortese looks at "Love in the Time of Cholera" by Gabriel Garcia Marquez. She was looking for books at the Metro News Center in Canton.

Some church leaders are convinced that today's churches are too busy looking after their own congregations to care about those on the outside who need them most

That was the word from a four-day evangelism conference held last week in Rosemont, Ill. Some 3,000 Protestants and Catholics turned out in record attendance to discuss efforts and commitments being made to spread the gospel to non-regular church-goers.

We do almost nothing for the truly 'unchurched,' " said the Rev. Alvin A. Illig, director of the Washington, D.C.-based Paulist National Catholic Evangelization Association.

"UNCHURCHED" MEANS only going to church on holidays or for weddings or funerals, Illig said at the conference

"Oh, you mean the C and E's," said Rev. David

Church of Livonia's Newburg United Methodist Church. "They're the Christmas and Easter goers."

Not enough is being done to reach those people and others who don't attend services at all, he said.

"That is more difficult work to do, but an essential part of the church," he said. "Sometimes it's easy to put that on the back burner."

IT IS hard to reach people on the "outside" if they don't believe in God in the first place, said the Rev. Donald Sanborn, head of St. Pius X Chapel in Redford Township, where traditional Latin is spoken at the Masses

'So many people today live their lives as though God doesn't exist," he said. "What they're doing is practicing practical atheism, whether they admit it or not."

In the duty to convert "as many souls as possible," the church posts religious billboards and has members advertise door to door, Sanborn said. But it is discouraging to have doors slammed in faces, he said.

God is the only one who can remedy the situation," Sanborn said. "A provincial act like a war or depression is the only thing that will turn people around. The reason they don't go to church now is because they're too distracted with the world to care.'

AS A Southern Baptist church, "it is our duty to evangelize," said the Rev Ray E. Babb, pastor of the Merriman Road Baptist Church in Garden City.

That task isn't easy - "People aren't saying 'Come visit me because I want to go to church," " Babb said.

His members are active with their own advertising. personal visits; trips to nursing homes and food closets, he said.

"I don't know that we are any better at spreading the word of God than any other denomination, but we do have the largest number of career missionaries of any non-Catholic group," he said.

According to Babb, Southern Baptists have thousands of missionaries throughout this country and some 3,500 posted in 110 foreign countries.

We try to do everything we can," he said

THERE IS no doubt in the mind of the Rev. Paavo Frusti of Westland's Salem Evangelical Lutheran Church that all churches should be more aggressive.

We should reach out more, no question, but many times we're not warmly received." he said. "And also, sometimes we Christians are a little shy about sharing the gospel. That's human nature, we don't want to 'impose.' Really, only a certain portion of the congregation has that gift to share.'

But sharing is what it is all about, Frusti said. In his eyes, reaching others is where true faith begins for both the reached and the reacher.

We're trying to equip our members to become ambassadors to people in the community.

"One doesn't fully grasp the meaning of faith until one is involved in sharing it with others.

that leads to failure

Chesterton said that pessimism these gifts, they will atrophy You do may be compared to opium - it is generally a poison; it is sometimes a medicine; it is never a food.

There are people whose food is pessimism, for whom gloom is their daily bread. They break down our courage; they darken our skies; they diminish the worthwhileness of life. It is difficult to guard ourselves against these habitual, automatic pessimists who always discourage any enterprise, who always say, "It won't work.

One of the saddest sights in life is a young person, pessimistic about his future, defeated in his heart before the battle has even begun.

TOO MANY young people in America today think they have no chance to build a better world, or at least are disinclined to try. Many have great abilities and unusually promising opportunities, but shy away from the acceptance of responsibility and the challenge of socially useful work. A discouraged older person is pathetic, but a discouraged youth is a veritable tragedy.

What can we say to a pessimistic youth? We might address him or her in this way

"Do you think that this world is in a perilous state - beset by misery, befouled by industrial pollution, depleted by an ever-increasing population, profaned by injustice and cruelty, and plunging headlong on a mad race to annihilation?

'You are right, this is not much of a world, but it is the only world you have. Good or bad, you will have to cope with it. In the not-too-distant future all our institutions, all our enterprises will be in the hands of your generation. Is your despair a good preparation for that?

'You have strength, intelligence, and vitality. But if you do not use not think you have a good opportunity, but you will never know until you try

"Life is never a sure thing. It wasn't for any generation before you. And it will not be 100 years from now. Life is always a game in which one ventures. Invest your strength and energy. A chance of success is all that a human being ever received.

I do not know whether we could thus cheer up the youthful pessimist. but we would undoubtedly feel better after our exhortation.

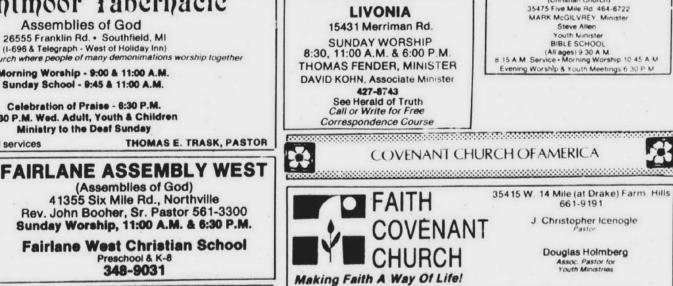

IN MIDDLE life, a different note of sadness enters our lives. In youth, we always have the feeling that we are immortal, that death is not for us. As we grow older, the conviction begins to steal in our consciousness that the impending shadow will reach us too. We realize that we are not going to live forever.

For some, then, every pain, every new ache seems to be a premonition of something serious and, indeed, terminal. We recover after a while, but the first reaction is pessimism and depression. That, too, is foolish, dangerous to ourselves and saddening to those who live with us.

To our pessimistic older friend we would say, "Do not do yourself harm, Do not make the mind a foe of the body, increasing its discomfort, anticipating what should not be anticipated, substituting for realistic concern unrealistic anxiety."

One of Scripture's greatest commandments to youth, to middle age and even to the twilight of life is the mandate, "Be strong and of good courage.

Economics to determine solar energy's fate

By Philip A. Sherman staff writer

In the longest, hottest summer on record, solar power and othersources of energy from renewable resources may be making a comeback

Their resurrection, much like their near demise, will be a result of pure economics, marketing and simple business sense, according to three area energy experts.

Conservationists aren't hoisting the solar flag this time. Their leagues now are replete with drought-stricken farmers, heatstroked residents of the South and Midwest and riverboat captains watching their steamship wells crank mud along the Mississippi.

Their concern: the greenhouse effect. Since the beginning of the Industrial Revolution, the United States has added 25 percent more carbon dioxide and other pollutants to the air, according to Richard Chadwick, a Birmingham architect and president of the Michigan Solar Energy Association.

Chadwick and other experts are saying that cushion of pollution now floats somewhere between six and 12 miles above. That layer traps heat and is causing a gradual warming that already is partially responsible for creating the hottest summer on record (the last time so many 90-degree days were strung together in the metro-Detroit area was in 1934) and they've (scientists and architects) been talking about that (greenhouse) for 15 or 20 years," said Chadwick, project architect for-DesRosiers Architects in Birmingham. "Because of the tremendous economic costs of making the changes necessary, no one wants to face that reality

Chadwick was referring to moving off the fossil-fuel energy system now in place. While he thinks that's necessary, he doesn't think a complete shift is likely.

"That's a very serious problem Richard Chadwick: "All of our philosophy, education and talk that really counts." In the background is Chadwick's solar about preserving the environment means nothing. It's the dollar house.

> All of our philosophy, education and helping people become comfortable talk about preserving the environwith fossil fuel, Chadwick said. With ment means nothing. It's the dollar the end of the Federal Residential that really counts," he said. Renewable Energy Equipment Cred-

At that time, the passive Economics played an important system he purchased cost $10,000. (A use a machine to capture solar energy and channel it as needed.) Through tax credits, he said he ended up paying $4,000 for his system, which he uses for 70 to 80 percent of the heating needs for his 1,400-square-foot house. Chadwick said his annual heating bill is $150-

$200 To Chadwick, all this means one thing: When industry can figure out a way to make a profit equivalent to reaps by using fossil fuel, the system will change.

To Debra Rowe, the "shysters" almost snuffed out the viability of solar energy systems by selling poorquality equipment at high prices in a door-to-door fashion that didn't inspire consumer confidence.

Rowe, with a bachelor's degree from Yale and a master's from the University of Michigan, is working on her doctorate while running the Ultimate Energy Technical Pro-gram at the Auburn Hills campus of Oakland Community College.

"Every shyster and his brother got into solar energy. The honest company had a hard time competing with the shysters," she said. "And the marketing of solar was left to doorto-door sales people. Marketing costs would make systems substantially higher, by 50 percent to 100 percent," Rowe added.

Rowe is positive poor marketing tactics gave solar a bad name, and Chadwick's figures bear her out. When his Michigan Solar Energy Association was running strong in the early '80s, it had more than 700 members. Today Chadwick said membership has dropped to 100, with much of the drop attributable to people leaving the field because it wasn't economically viable.

Regulation is the key, she said.

"Everybody hooks up to the utility company. To convert to solar, they deal with a non-regulated industry. There were no regulations to maintain the integrity of the solar industry as it grew." Rowe added.

Despite the lack of regulation, Rowe "has trained hundreds of people through the energy technology program" at OCC. She said more than a third are homeowners who, for their mid-term exam are required to build a working solar collector. They can take them home, hook them up and watch them work.

Janice Means, a professional engineer and consulting engineer at Energy Technology Consultants in Royal Oak, also teaches classes in solar feasibility and energy management as a part-time instructor at Southfield's Lawrence Institute of Technology

She, too, thinks the end of tax credits and the fashion in which the "unscrupulous overcharged" for solar equipment hurt the industry, but also thinks Americans have short memories

"People forget about waiting in line for gas. Energy costs have decreased recently, but people have gotten used to paying higher rates."

It could well be the cluck heard around metropolitan Detroit.

Four men with combined experience in restaurant and fast food management are taking on the "king" of fried chicken with a new franchise operation.

Brothers Gus, Eugene and Steve Kasapis, of Ram's Horn Restaurant fame, and Larry Slater have opened the first of their fast food chicken outlets, Fryday's Chicken, in Livonia.

Fryday's is the new kid on the block to take on the likes of nationally known Kentucky Fried Chicken. But it's taking on the Colonel in a different way.

"We knew Kentucky Fried Chicken was the king, and to come into the market we realized we had to offer something different," said Slater, a Canton Township resident. "We think the convenience of free delivery is our niche.

'We realized there was a market niche - delivery that wasn't being satisfied and that there should be an alternative to pizza.

Fryday's opened its first company store on Seven

'We think the convenience of free delivery is our niche.'

Chadwick installed a system while

Mile just west of Farmington last month after some 18 months of preparation. The foursome onted to open the pilot store in Livonia because it fit the demographics for the service-oriented business - age group, family size and dual incomes.

The store is done in patriotic red, white and blue and sports a chicken, dressed in a bellhop uniform, as its logo. It occupies a 1,200-square-foot store front in a small strip mall, small in comparison to other fast food businesses that take up 3,000 square feet of space, Slater said

BUT THE size is what helps Friday's offer free delivery, he added.

"A fast food real estate agent would tell you this isn't an 'A' location; it's not at an intersection." Slater said. "But because the rent is lower and expenses less,

taxing time for scholars

Tax reform has started pulling at the purse strings of those students lucky enough to receive a college scholarship or fellowship. Come next tax season, many of these students may find themselves unexpectedly owing substantial funds to the IRS. If you are a scholarship or fellowship recipient, the Michigan Association of CPAs advises you to find out whether you will have to report this year's payments as taxable income.

Your first task is figuring out whether your grant actually qualified as a scholarship or fellowship. Sounds easy, doesn't it? Well, take a look at the definition in the IRS publication on scholarships and fellowships and think again. To simplify, a scholarship is basically any amount given to a student for the purpose of obtaining an education at a university or college, while a fellowship generally aids a person pursuing a specific study or research project.

But under tax law, not all scholarship and fellowship payments receive equal tax treatment. Depending on the date you received the grant and on the type of services, if any, you perform for the grantor, you may have to include part or all of the money in your taxable income.

IF YOUR SCHOLARSHIP and fellowship was awarded before Aug. 17, tions, are income and do not qualify 1986, count yourself lucky. The tax as either scholarships or fellowships.

practically speaking

many provisions that may reduce your tax liability.

If you are a candidate for a degree, you may exclude from your taxable income the basic scholarship or fellowship grant, including the value of room and board. In addition, you may exclude any grant funds specifically designated for travel, research, clerical help and equipment. But be warned, you must actually spend these amounts for the purpose of the grant within (or shortly after) the term of the grant or else the funds may become taxable.

On the other hand, you generally must report as income any grant payments that you receive in exchange for past, present or future employment services, or for research that mainly benefits the grantor of the award. (An exception is made in certain cases where the services are required of all candidates for the degree.)

As far as the IRS is concerned, payments to medical interns or residents, certain social service agency interns and others in similar positreatment remains basically the The "payment for services" rule also same as in the past — including applies to grants that require a student to work for outside employers. An example of this situation would be a university grant that requires a journalism student to work as a regular staff employee of a local newspaper

IF YOU ARE NOT a candidate for a degree, you may still be eligible for certain tax benefits if your grant was made before Aug. 17, 1986. Under these circumstances, you may exclude from your taxable income any amount received for such expenses as travel, research, clerical help or equipment.

In addition, you can exclude up to $300 a month for each month in which you receive scholarship or fellowship payments. You may claim the $300-a-month exclusion for a period of 36 months, consecutive or not. But once you exceed the 36month limit, you must include in your gross income all amounts you receive under the grant, including funds designated for qualified expenses

To complicate matters somewhat, the $300-a-month exclusion only applies if the grantor of the scholarship or fellowship is a tax-exempt, nonprofit organization operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes, testing for public safety, prevention of cruelty to children or animals or fostering national or in-

we're able to take that money and put it into a delivery system and menu prices that are very competitive

Fryday's total sales have been "fine" since opening, according to Slater, but the businessmen have had to change the focus of their advertising campaigns to educate customers about the free delivery service.

We came to the realization that Kentucky Fried Chicken conditioned the consumer to come in and pick up their chicken," Slater said. "We realized we had to educate people that we have a delivery service, so we changed the focus of our advertising from product to service and product in that order.'

It's worked, he added. Deliveries have gone from 20 percent of the business after it opened to 50 percent of sales. Slater expects deliveries will be 80 percent of the business by the fall.

But while its niche is free delivery, Fryday's also is stressing the quality of its product.

The store offers both fried chicken and roasted chicken, salads, mashed potatoes and gravy, desserts and beverages. The foursome decided to offer the rotisserie-cooked chicken to "upgrade the image" of fowl as fast food, Slater said.

"Deep fried chicken is more popular, so we have to look on roasted chicken as a new product introduction." Slater said. "We're starting to see repeat customers once they've tried it."

WHILE THE Kasapis have the restaurant knowhow, Slater has the fast food experience. Before teaming up with the brothers to open Fryday's, he worked as a district manager for Taco Bell and Kentucky Fried Chicken and as a director of operations for a Burger King franchise in the area.

"IT'S NOT TRUE," replied CP spokesman Dan Bishop in the utility's Jackson headquarters.

Everything except "initial but modest startup costs such as printing and mailing" will be charged against the program.

Under the plan, a participating homeowner will pay a flat $49 for a guarantee that CP will repair covered furnace parts without charge. The guarantee is good for 24 hours a day, seven days a week, said Bishop. "We fully expect it will be a mon-

Bishop said CP was given permission by the Michigan Public Service Commission, three-member watchdog over utilities. "It's permissible, legal and appropriate," he added.

MichCon and gas utilities in Port Huron and Adrian already have begun the program, Bishop said.

McCOURT SAID,"They would lead you to believe they'll make money and keep rates down.

We had a conference with Consumers and MichCon, and we're convinced not all the costs are allocated to this program," he said, adding that a professor from Iowa will be asked to uncover the true costs in order to prove a hidden subsidy

The name Ferrari meant driving at the limit

Sportswriter Enzo Ferrari gave up covering soccer matches in 1920 to race cars for Alfa Romeo, but it wasn't until 27 years later, at age 49, that the first race car bearing his name was pushed onto the track at Piacenza, Italy. The engine was singularly small, about the size of a Volkswagen's, with a dozen cylinders, each sized to be comfortable in a model airplane.

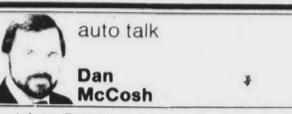

So it began. Later would come the victories. Eight world constructors championships, nine Formula One champions. And the cars: the 166 MM, the 250 MM Berlinetta, the 250 GT . properly, all bright red, with black prancing horses.

MASTERPIECES OF engineering, they somehow managed to sub-metal with an uncommon sense of form - leaving the driver or spectator grasping for some way to define the sound or the emotion they managed to evoke with their rite of passage

Instinctively, Ferrari knew that to win on a race track took a man willing to constantly risk his life on the edge of disaster, so he built cars that nearly matched the stature of his drivers. The effect was a kind of awesome risk, not only for the driver but of beautifully crafted objects, flying at the brink of disaster, a sight as compelling as watching a rare piece of porcelain teeter on the edge of a shelf.

Ferrari and his cars burned into the world's consciousness as few ever have. As Ford came to symboljugate the mechanicals and the sheet ize the strength and excesses of less obsessive than he was.

heavy industry, Ferrari came to embody the dream of the fast car - the ultimate one-man parade created by driving an exotic, astonishing car down the street.

FERRARI WAS ALSO arrogant, prideful, aristocratic and sometimes even disdainful of the drivers who took the horrible risks. He had a single-minded obsession with winning and wanted little to do with those Americans, typified by Henry Ford II, seemed to feel a combination of envy and disdain for the remnants of European aristocracy the Ferrari racing team represented When Ford couldn't buy him, he beat him with the efforts of Carrol Shelby in a homemade coupe.

But Ferrari also came to represent something of a resurrected Europe, particularly after World War II. Racing, particularly racing in Italy, was an incredible statement of extravagant leisure in an impover- of sensuality that matched its power ished country. Still, the fierce bravado of the drivers - and the even more fierce patriotism that Ferrari managed to evoke - seemed to be received as a kind of hope for the future by the huge crowds that mobbed the racetracks.

Thursday August 25, 1988 O&E

EVEN FOR people who would never see one of his cars, Ferrari came to symbolize a kind of defiance of a mechanized society. In an industry that is too huge for an individual to dominate. Ferrari dominated.

With automotive engineering done by faceless legions. Ferrari found personal expression in sheet metal and engines. In the functional machine that freed farmers from drudgery and mobilized most of the western world, he discovered a kind

THE IMPACT of those striking red cars would never be quite as strong as it was in postwar Europe. Automobiles merged and blended, with all becoming blander in the process, subduing the contrast that was so intense when the bright red wisps stood against lumbering behemoths on the highway.

Ferrari went from hero to icon from symbol to status symbol, and the finest cars started collecting dust in museums, no longer teetering on the edge. When Enzo Ferrari died quietly at the age of 90 in his home in Milano, Italy, two weeks ago, only his name seemed safe for history.

Jacket etiquette has not relaxed

The office staff I work with recently had a discussion on jacket etiquette in business. Some say all the rules of when to wear a jacket have relaxed; I say they haven't. Who is right?

T.M. Royal Oak

You are.

Here's how it works: If you are working without your jacket in the office, and you go to see the big boss, put on your jacket. The same goes, of course, if an outside client or customer comes into your office or anyone of importance from the outside. It's a sign of deference.

A women who has doffed her jacket in the office should put it on again in the very same circumstances that govern when a man should put his on again.

An additional tip on short sleeves for men: A man who often works without his jacket in an office should never wear short-sleeved shirts. The latter are meant never to be seen. Long-sleeved shirts look much better, even when they are rolled up to the elbows in the heat.

Dear Joan:

I have recently been let go from my job. This is embarrassing and awkward. How can I handle this situation with dignity?

R.M. Birmingham in the kitchen.

The way to have everyone on your side is to show your colleagues you are turning your energies toward finding a new job. Don't lament and complain about what has happened to you.

In other words, don't bend everyone's ear about what a rotten deal the company gave you. If you discuss the steps you are taking to find another position and ask your colleagues for tips, they will consider you the noble one and the company the ignoble one.

Don't be sulky or negative every time they see you in the halls during craft, Livonia 48150.

the interim period when you have the use of a free office. Take the positive view that you are looking hard, that you will find something even better than what you had at this company, and that you'd appreciate "any tips" anyone has.

Dear Joan:

I do a lot of entertaining in my line of work. I grow tired of taking clients to restaurants for dinner. Is there an appropriate time to bring a client to my home for entertaining? P.G., Birmingham

Of course you may invite a client home for dinner. It is the nicest kind of compliment you could pay a colleague who is passing through town and perhaps has been on the road a long time. It is, of course, an informal way of entertaining, particularly if it is last-minute and your family is included.

But there are some rules to be followed here too. Your guest deserves a proper meal. This is no time for a pizza or a frozen dinner.

The table should be set for a guest; this means no paper napkins and plastic mats.

The bar should contain the kind of alcoholic (or soft) drink your guest prefers.

Although he will probably ask to help, the guest should not be allowed

The small children of the house should not be running under foot. It is fine to have them greet the guest and stay for a short while, but an exhausted business person should not have to suffer through a noisy, hyperactive (it's always hyperactive when the children aren't your own) evening.

Stocks should double in 5 years

I have four stocks that I have owned for some time, and they have done well. I recently received an inheritance of $90,000 and would like to invest it in common stocks.

I am aware of the goal investment clubs have of doubling their value every five years, and I would like to make my goal. I have 15 years to retirement, and if I could attain that goal with this money, I'd have a great retirement.

The magazine Better Investing publishes a feature every three months that is called the "Model Portfolio." This is a group of 12 stocks selected by the magazine's Stock Review Committee to meet the investment club goal of doubling in value from one stock market peak to the next.

That does not happen at regular five-year intervals. Sometimes it happens in three years, sometimes it takes seven or eight. But over a lifetime it does seem to work out at roughly a five-year average.

I would suggest you subscribe to mendous expansion in building plasthe magazine and consider its suggestions.

THE MOST recent portfolio contains an interesting group of stocks. The portfolio is built around a selection of both large and small companies.

The smaller companies are:

• The ALLIED Group Inc., an insurance company estimated to be capable of a price rise of 15 percent; · Ionics, a pure-water company that has been very depressed but seems to be overcoming its problems;

• Kuhlman, a company that seems to be on the verge of a tretic gasoline tanks for the auto industry;

· Paul Harris, a ladies wear merchant suffering from the general problems in that industry but still building steadily; and

• Precision Castparts, which had doubled and redoubled its sales and earnings and seems capable of continuing its expansion.

Among the larger companies are: General Cinema, the soft-drink bottler and motion-picture exhibitor. · McDonald's, probably the bestmanaged restaurant chain; and

• Ryder System, the leader in truck and other leasing programs.

Other large companies are: · Hewlett-Packard, which is in-roducing new products that are in creasing its business;

· Hospital Corp of America which is reporting greater earnings even though the health care business is in the doldrums,

· Martin Marietta, which is gain ing defense business, and

· Pfizer, which is hitting new sales and earnings records every year Those companies are all outstand

Songwriter, friend sing winningly

By Cathie Breidenbach special writer

THAT COULD INDUCE two businessmen to wear gaudy swim trunks, plastic shower caps and goggles, and to croon, in public, while being drenched in a shower? 'We did it to do something silly, just to have fun," says Richard Webber of Birmingham, who persuaded his friend, Leon Halip, also of Birmingham, to take the plunge with him in Lever Soaps' "Singin' in the Shower Contest" last June. They wón.

Aided by 12 of the most outrageous pairs of underwear they could find at Meijer's on audition day, they doused all the Detroit-area competition with a song called "You Stole My Underwear," which Richad had written in college at Northern Michigan University. At the end of September, they'll compete in Hollywood, in the national finals for the

'Singin' in the Shower Contest." When Webber and Halip get together they spark each other's fun- seize the opportunity of the all-exnybone. "His ability to be crazy onstage was just what the song need-Webber said of Halip's ed,' contribution to their winning number. The two are longtime friends and golfing buddies, and Halip often plays "a mean conga" as percussion backup at recording sessions.

'His ability to be crazy onstage was just what the song needed,' Webber says of Halip's contribution to their winning number.

OFFSTAGE, HALIP backs Webber's music with enthusiasm, finances and a knack for promotion. "Leon knows people all over town," says Webber. "He sets up meetings and makes things happen.

Webber has written more than 60 songs, and his life dream is to be a professional tunesmith. He plans to penses-paid trip to circulate tapes of his songs among artists and recording companies in California.

"It's a shot in the dark, and I'm realistic," he said. "I know there are millions of people sending tapes to these companies, but I'm just getting started marketing the material." Every little bit of exposure helps. Who knows - the "Singin' in the Shower Contest" may launch the songwriting career of J. Webber, the pen name he uses.

Despite the comic success of the song he crooned into a plumber's helper he held as a mock microphone during the damp competition, Webber writes more than just funny music. "I don't necessarily want to be remembered forever for 'You Stole My Underwear.'" He also writes songs about living and about loving. Johnny Williams played one of his songs, "Closer to You," on and off for three or four months on the radio show "Pillow Talk."

"I call them tunes," he said of his songs, "and they're not intricate, not complicated or difficult, but they're saying something. A lot of times I listen to songs on the radio and I don't know what they're saying.'

HIS MELLOW, slightly raspy voice and acoustic guitar-playing bring to mind the laid-back style of James Taylor. The simplicity of folk, the heartfelt honesty of country and the upbeat rhythms of jazzy funk characterize his songs, which range from "Cruisin' on Woodward," about an on-the-make fellow out driving, to the poignant "Michael's Door," about a friend who committed suicide, and the touching song, "Grampa" that "makes all the girls cry" and was written about his own grandfather's lonely last years.

When he's writing a new song, the melody starts percolating in his head first and he works it out on his guitar. The words and phrasing follow. "Lyrics have to go in a melody line. It's hard to do it the other way around." He grew up listening to James Taylor; Bob Dylan; Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young; and Joe Cocker. "You can feel the pain when you listen to Joe sing. My own style is more It's being in the business."

laid back than that," he said. Webber likes to tell stories in his lyrics and to explore in a non-didactic way how to live right.

'You don't get more honest than when you're writing a song." he said. 'It's scary sometimes. It tells a little bit of my future. Sometimes it catches up with me later on. A year or so later, the understanding of what I've written really comes through. It's a wonderful feeling creating something - this is all mine. Nobody else had anything to do with

At Northern Michigan University, Webber majored in music and minored in business, and he combines both in Webber Productions, an entertainment booking business he runs from his Birmingham home. "Clowns and magicians are the bread and butter of my business," he said, and added, "I don't necessarily want to be a full-fledged booking agency. It's not the booking I love.

He has fleshed out his dream of making it as a professional songwriter down to the "dreamhouse on a lake where I can write, have a little studio and be a family man" with his wife. Julie. and his two-year-old daughter, Lindsey.

"It'll be nice when I'm old," he said, reminiscing as if he already were. "sitting around the campfire with my grandkids. It'll be nice to be able to tell them, this (writing songs) is what their grandad does." Meanwhile he keeps the dream alive booking entertainment, working up an week in Marquette lounges. Ryan Johnson, the only returing full-time starter, figures to play a key role for Salem in the upcoming season. The 215pound junior will play quarterback and strong safety.

Plymouth Salem football coach Tom Moshimer hopes appearances are deceiving.

The facts sheet says the Rocks are young and inexperienced. They were decimated by graduation and return only one full-time starter in junior Ryan Johnson.

But Salem has a handful of veterans who saw action last season, and Moshimer is counting on their progress and the addition of newcomers to keep the Rocks heading in the right direction.

joyable starts we've had," Moshimer said. "So if effort and attitude are important - and I certainly believe they are - we're going to be better than we are on paper.

started in the defensive secondary as a sophomore, heads the list of important two-way players.

Rocks anticipate putting to use the 6-foot-3, 215-pound Johnson's offensive skills at quarterback this year. But Moshimer has no intention of relieving Johnson of his defensive duties at strong safety.

"I'm not concerned about it a bit," said Moshimer of playing his quarterback both ways. "I've never felt squeamish about that. Sometimes, the more you try to called signals for the JV team, which finished 5-4. A true believer in the wishbone offense, Moshimer is keeping his options open for now.

"I'm confident, though Johnson is the bigger stronger of the two, that we could use Kowalski and utilize Johnson at fullback and be just as effective," he said.

One of Salem's main assets a year

Blaylock, Romolo Maura and Keith Smith. Moshimer believes the style of offense Salem employs helps to reduce the sting from those losses.

"Any time you have a good offensive line, you have the chance to be a good football team," he said. "With bonus. the triple-option offense we run, the offensive line is not as critical as in

'For us, fullbacks and quarterbacks are the key positions. You have to have good athletes at center, quarterback and fullback.

Coach Ken Johnson is confident a bright future awaits his Plymouth Salem boys soccer team.

But therein lies the problem. How far in the future?

The Rocks, who lost seven of their 11 regulars to graduation, will be a young team, and Johnson thinks his squad could be a year away from realizing its potential.

"Next year we'll be heading for state,"

THE ROCKS have established a reputation as having one of the area's top soccer programs, and opponents might think Johnson is being too conservative in his outlook for this year.

"I feel good about this team," Johnson said. "I wouldn't be surprised if we did well.

"But we have a lot of young players, and sometimes you expect too much from them. We could take off, or it could be next year."

NICHOLS ANCHORS the defense as the stopper, and Gold, the top returning scorer with five goals and seven assists, moves from forward to join Lipke and Christensen at midfield.

The Rocks were dealt an early blow when Gold, a tri-captain along with Nichols and Lipke, suffered a broken foot in preseason practice. He is expected to be out three weeks.

the holdovers as eight of the nine become starters. The ninth, Matt Setlak, was lost to the team with a knee injury.

Senior Troy Giacherio is a defender, junior Bill Joker and Matt Gold are midfielders and sophomore Joe Tippman a forward. Joker, normally a defender, is a temporary replacement for Jeff Gold until the latter recovers.

Austin planning a net comeback

By Marty Budner staff writer

> RACY AUSTIN WAS in the midst of a clinic last week at the Detroit Tennis & Squash Club in Farmington Hills. She asked for questions.

A woman named Esther inquired about the exact details of tennis elbow. Austin didn't pretend to be a doctor, but she did have some knowledege of the subject.

After all, it was injuries which knocked her career for a loop at the tender age of 20.

One of them was tennis elbow. Assorted ailments to her shoulder, foot and back were other factors forcing her from the game for a while.

Those injuries came at a critical stage of her youthful pro career.

Austin, at 14 years, was the youngest player ever to compete at Wimbledon and the U.S. Open. Two years later Austin won the U.S. Open title and later worked her way up to a No. 1 world ranking.

Then her career was grounded like a great offensive lob. The injuries crept up one after the other to force her early retirement.

Austin, now 25, is working her way back into playing shape. She is cur-rently playing the doubles circuit and plans to play mixed doubles with partner Ken Flach at this year's U.S. Open

She is excited about her return to tennis

BUT WHILE in town last week helping to promote the Ford Sports Tennis Championships, Austin took objection to any notion that it was tennis "burnout" that caused her premature pro circuit exit. Austin said that's a common mis nomer. She said it was simply the injuries that forced the tennis sabatical "People love to put me in that (burnout) category. I just had injuries," emphasized Austin. "It had nothing to do with my age. "The only thing that I look back on is that I didn't give myself enough time (to heal) when I had the injuries," she said. "Because I was so young I'd always bounce back before (I was ready), and I didn't listen to my body. I kept playing when I was injured.

The Observer & Eccentric area is rich with youthful tennis talent. Three Oakland County schools, for instance - Birmingham Brother Rice, Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook and Detroit Country Day - won state titles last spring in their respective classes.

A pair of young female tennis stars - Rochester's Amy Frazier and Livonia's Carrie Cunningham are gaining attention from the pros. Austin has heard of them both. And neither of them have yet graduated from high school.

Those are just a couple examples. Young talent is plentiful.

WHAT ADVICE does Austin offer such serious young tennis players who entertain thoughts of attaining the pro circuit? "The first thing you have to do is listen to your body," she maintains. "You have to give yourself time. At

The midfield positions will be the strength of this Salem team, Johnson said The Rocks are most experienced there with Lipke (3 goals, 3 assists). Christensen (3 goals), Joker and Matt Gold starting the season there

Salem will use a 4-4-2 lineup with one less forward to capitalize on its depth in the middle, which includes newcomers are sophomores Andy Cosenza, Joe Nunez and Todd LaJoy.

"EACH MIDFIELDER will take a turn pushing through." Johnson said. We have the players to do it this year

"Usually, you have a solid 10 (field players), but we have more depth and may not have to rely on the same group

Salem lost all-area player Denny Reynolds, who had eight of his 13 goals in the playoffs, from the forward line. Tippman, who led the JV team in scoring before going up to the varsity late in the year, and juniors Chris Olson and Jason Santos will rotate at those positions.

Nichols and Giacherio will be joined on defense by 6-foot-4 sophomore Jake Baker, who will play sweeper in place of Joker. The other defender will come from a group that includes junior Scott Carey and sophomores Ryan Fitzgerald, Brad Fisch and Chris LaJoy.

A key area will be goaltending where the Rocks must survive without all-stater O'Malley. Junior Matt Tudor, the former JV netminder and a less demonstrative personality, inherits that job with support from sophomore Derek Olson.

"(TUDOR) IS A good goalie, but we'll miss O'Malley's animalism his leadership, shouting and throwing the ball out," Johnson said. "He was ahead of his time.

"But (Tudor) will do his job. We won't miss it as far as stopping the ball," he added.

Despite the team's youth, Johnson has a no-nonsense group at his disposal. However, there is a difference between the uninhibited enthusiasm of the current squad and last year's veteran team.

We have a lot of speed," Johnson said. "Now, if I can get them to settle down and play a good passing game, we'll be alright."

that stage, when you're that young, you only think of that week or that month, you don't think of the long term of something. When you're older you somehow do, and you feel a little smarter about that aspect.

"I'd give myself time. And, also, just for the parents to make sure it's fun. I always enjoyed it. This was something I always wanted to do. There are a lot of parents out there now who are pushing the kids.

"As soon as the kids have their choice they will stop if they don't enjoy it." she said. "I just think encourage them and make sure it's fun.'

Austin says everybody handles pressure differently. She insists one of the best way to achieve tennis happiness is for the parents, player and coach to work together as a team.

"Everybody has to do what they feel is best and what makes them happy," she said. "If you enjoy playing in tournaments, then you should do it. If you feel like you are playing too much . .nI don't think there's any set rule

'The only thing is that if the parents decide if their child is going to important for them to be a team.

The parents should listen to the kids and the kids should be able to talk to the parents. I know, myself, I looked up to my parents. I figured that they know best, which they did. But they also have to listen to the child and the coach.

'It's good for the long run. It's enjoying today, but every day builds up to the future," she said. "Don't take three steps up at once. Go up the ladder and get that experience. My advice to them is take things slowly. There's no hurry.

AUSTIN, A resident of Rolling Hills, Calif., paid her dues while working her way up to the pro level. She competed in all the major 12-, 14- and 16-year junior tournaments and won a record 25 national junior titles

Austin was a Wimbledon semifinalist in 1979 and 1980, and a quarterfinalist in 1981 and 1982. The young right-hander left the curcuit full time in 1983. But she did not waste her time while recuperating from injuries.

Austin debuted as a national television tennis analyst, experimented with a broadcasting career, appeared on a few TV talk shows and authored several instructional columns for Tennis Magazine.

Tennis was a big part of her life and it was difficult not being part of the circuit. That's why she's enjoying her slow fusion back into the society of professional tennis.

Just stepping out on the court I'm saying OK, I'm taking a chance," she said. "I'm risking everything I had before because I haven't played in five years and these girls have.

"But, that's OK. I'm not one to shy away from challenges," she said. "I'm looking forward to it. I'll give it my best shot and enjoy it. It's nice to

Altering body image must be from within

Dear Myrna: I am a woman in my 40s. As a child, I struggled with my weight. I have been slim now for at least 20 years and still think of myself as heavy I have never been able to get over that fat girl I once was. Do you have any suggestions? My body is slim but far from perfect

Mervl Birmingham

Oh boy do I know how you feel a bu sound like me

Only I have been slim for at least 25 years. Those chubby years are tough to get over, aren't they? It really amazes the

At my studio, I talk to many men and women with our chubby complex. Believe it or not, they are some of our most regular exercisers - five to six times a week

Your body image starts from a positive image from within We are not the only ones who have trouble differentiating between our real and imagined bodies.

A recent study surveyed 33,000 + omen and round that 75 percent of them felt "too fat." Yet when their actual heights and weights were compared with tables for desirable weight, only 25 percent weighed more than they should Thirty per ent actually registered below proper weight

Women are so concerned with their "imperfect" bodies that when asked what would make them happiest, 42 percent chose "losing weight over work success.

It has been proven that our body image gets frozen in adolescence. Those were your chubby years. This could be your problem There are so many fat adolescents walking around in their adult bodies.

You probably believe that nothing has changed. This old image you have is not something you will be able to diet and exercise away. It has to change from within.

Because society historically has placed so much value on the beauty of a woman's body, women have poorer body images than men. If you ask men about their bodies, most likely the answer is "jt's all right.

Women in our generation were raised to be looks-conscious. I think we will see a gradual change due to our more aggressive social and economical advancements. A woman's thinness has become a symbol of competency in the business world. Interesting, the striving of women for slim bodies has less to do now with being pretty than being able

You have not revealed to me if you are a homemaker, business woman or both. Why don't you analyze your own success? Why are you holding out for that 'perfect body?" None of us feel that our lives in general have to be perfect. Why our bodies?

Truly, as I have said, altering a negative body image must be from within. The stronger a women's sense of herself and personal power, the less important the body becomes.

You want to have a healthy body, right? Take care of it and work with what you've got. I'll bet it's lovely.

Remember you are a middle-aged intelligent woman - no longer that chubby teenager.

Postscript: I am sure you like where you are now, so enjoy it!

Excluded hunters first in line

UST WHEN you inought your luck had run out you receive a second chance. Free.

The Natural Resource Commission has approved an early elk hunt which will take place Oct. 25-30 on Michigan's elk range in the northern Lower Penninsula. That's the good news. The great news is that the 90 permits for the October hunt will be selected at random from the leftover permits from last year's hunt

That means all of us unsuccessful applicants last year are still eligible for a permit and we don't even have to purchase another $4 application card Successful applicants for the October hunt which is open to firearm and archery hunters, will be notitled by Sept. 15.

The each hunt will be limited to two section of the elk range where severe crop damage has taken place. There will be 55 antierless permits and another 35 hunters choice permits issued.

The regular elk hunt will remain Dec. 6-13. For that hunt, applications must be submitted no later than Sept. 15. A total of 140 permits will

And a giraffe, and a tiger, and all the other wonderful animals at the Detroit Zoo--they're yours for a night--Carrier Night. Not only do our carriers get to treat their families to an evening at the Zoo, they also have a chance to win some really neat prizes throughout the year; including a 10-speed bike. How do you get in on all this fun? Well, if you're between 11 and 14 years old, you can call one of these numbers and apply for your own route:

Wantuck hits point goal, yet still misses U.S. Diving Team

By C.J. Risak staff writer

It was a U.S. Olympic Mens Diving Team Trial without equal last week in Indianapolis. So much to offer: superb competition, perhaps the greatest diver of all time, pre-meet controversy, and a heroic, clutch effort.

Mike Wantuck, the Bloomfield Hills Andover graduate, might have wished for something more boring, less controversial, even less skillful if only it had been more personally successful.

Not that Wantuck, who won an NCAA three-meter springboard title and then graduated from Ohio State last year, had a poor meet or choked. Wantuck set a point goal for himself entering the 10-meter platform trials, a total necessary for him to achieve if he were to make the team. That total was 1,250 points. He surpassed it on his final dive Sunday. And he still didn't make the team.

WANTUCK HAD to settle for third place in the trials when his former OSU teammate, Patrick Jeffrey, edged him for the second and final spot on the team. Jeffrey finished with 1,261.71 points to Wantuck's 1,254.72 points. First place went, once again, to the world's best diver, Greg Louganis, with 1,331.19 points.

"I was really pleased with my performance." Wantuck said Monday from his home in Columbus, Ohio, as he prepared to resume his life as a law student at OSU. "I went into the meet with a goal score, and I went above it a bit. I figured I needed 1,250 points to make the team and I exceeded it.'

Wantuck had entered the meet with all sorts of goals in mind, and he achieved nearly all of them. Although he had qualified for the three-meter springboard trials, he never planned to attempt it because his best shot at making the team was on the platform, and the three-meter finals were the evening before the platform preliminaries.

SINCE BOTH prelim and final scores count toward a diver's grand total, Wantuck didn't want to jeopardize his platform chances. So he dropped out of the three-meter competition.

"From the beginning, I wanted to do my list and really put it together," he said. "And I did.

"I'm very proud of the way I went out. I just wish I would have scored seven more points and gone out after Seoul.

Although his own performance was outstanding, the results were disappointing monetheless. After the preliminary round, Wantuck was fourth, trailing Louganis, Matt Scoggin and Bruce Kimball from the University of Michigan, who was submerged by dual trials after being charged with vehicular homicide just before the diving trials started.

olympic hopefuls

was just 18 points out of first, however. "I was in great position going into the final," he said. "Eighteen points was nothing. I knew I'd have to be able to make that up to make the team

Scoggin and Kimball, whose list lacked the high degree of difficulty dives of his competitors, stumbled. But Louganis didn't, and Jeffrey came through in the clutch to enjoy his best day ever

"I had beaten him consistently all summer," said Wantuck of Jeffrey. "But this was definitely the best list Patrick had ever put together. He never had scores like that before. It was just his day.

I dove consistently and solidly, but Patrick dove spectacularly and made it. That's the ultimate. The whole idea is to have a hot day at the Olympic Trials

Of his own performance, Wantuck said, "I'm not convinced that was the best list I could have done. I am convinced that it was good enough to get a spot on the Olympic team most years. In this trials, you just had to have an extremely good day. You couldn't afford to make one mistake.

'I could have just given up and said, 'It's (Jeffrey's) day,' but I didn't. I did my list the best I could. If I had made a mistake and blown it, maybe it would be easier to accept.

HIS DIVING career is now over. Wantuck will concentrate on getting his law degree, a distraction for the moment he is grateful for. "It's a rude awakening (not making the team). It's good to be able to throw myself into something else.

Wherever Wantuck throws his efforts, he won't forget what diving has provided.

Surgeon becomes book dealer in a new life up north

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

R. JOHN ESSLINGER, formerly of Birmingham, now of Alden on the east shore of Torch Lake, won't be doing any more surgery or seeing any more patients. He officially closed his practice two years ago, not to retire to this quiet, village 25 miles northeast of Traverse City, but to become a book dealer and part owner of Talponia Books Ltd.

"I'm very proud of my 34 years in orthepedic surgery," he said. "I served on the hospital ship HOPE, I served in Toyko during the Korean War, but I've found there's a lot of fun in antique books.

"My idea for this phase of my life was not to sit around and clip took it over, they converted the main coupons. I've traveled a good deal in my life . . but the book business allows you to travel to some unusual ing presses of various sizes. places.

He moved his practice to Traverse City in 1973 and retired in 1986. After he. divorced, and Donna Bol- Frostic bought the two-ton Heidelinger, widowed, decided to marry two years ago, they discussed what other equipment and began a tedious kind of a business they would enjoy having together.

at Torch Lake when they made their decision, she said.

We decided to live here (in Al den). We wanted to do something we could do together that would allow us to travel. We decided to make our mutual interest in books it.

THEY OFFICIALLY opened Talponia Books Ltd. last Memorial Day in the old blue grist mill on the main street. In this village with a population of 900 in the winter and some 1,400 in the summer, they are dealers in antique, rare and unusual books

The grist mill has had more lives than Pouk, the black and white family cat. After a relatively brief run as a working mill, it was used by the owner of the lumber yard to store lumber and supplies.

When Donna and her first husband building to living quarters and the shed to a print shop with five print-

> HIS SON, Jack, minister turned carpenter/builder, now restoring and renovating Victorian homes in Gambier, Ohio, came to help. Her mother and stepfather, Blanche and Glen Swanson, came from Florida to pitch in as did other relatives. A charming area of book shelves, turnof-the-century furniture and accessories began to take shape.

The living quarters already had two finished loft areas. Esslinger did a lot of the planning and the work on converting the attic to guest quarters. The Swansons finished an apartment at the back where they live during the summer. They spend winters in Florida. A deck was added to the apartment, and pervised and helped build outside stairs and a deck to the attic suite. "We sat out on that deck last night until 11 p.m. listening to the sound of the stream (that runs by the mill) and watching the stars," he said.

THEIR INTERESTS meshed just as easily in the business as they did for the renovation. She has a background in English, history (Michigan State University), public relations and printing. He came with a longtime interest in the humanities. Add their mutual love of books and travel and they were ready for this kind of a business was open the bookstore." he said.

'John has been absorbing it like mad," she said. "When he retired he was ready to get into something else. He really wanted to get involved in the humanities."

THEY QUICKLY agreed that they wanted their store to have the appearance of a private library, "a nice, warm, cozy place to visit," she said.

A turn-of-the-century dining table and chairs are in the main room with the books in open shelves and glass doored bookcases on the walls. Over the table is an old-time brass chandelier. Framed antique prints are on the walls and interspersed with the books are small antique bronzes and collectibles.

A bin of old sheet music is by the shelves and in the garage is a selection of used paperbacks. The subject markers in one alcove range from Midwest history and Lincoln to Browning and Hemingway.

THE COUPLE mutually decided that children's books would be one of their areas of concentration. They turned their honeymoon to New Zealand into a book buying trip. Last winter they attended book fairs and met other antique book dealers in New York, Chicago, Naples, Fla., and Toronto.

A book dealer in Toronto mentioned the Osborne Collection of children's books at the Toronto Public Library and they subsequently spent 21/2 days enjoying it, Donna said.

"The Toronto Public Library is one of the most interesting and helpful libraries I've been in," she said.

While there, they saw original Beatrix Potter manuscripts and the first edition of "The Three Bears." If they hadn't been excited about children's literature before that, they were after.

Rather than being competitive, antique book dealers throughout the country have been helpful and encouraging, Donna said. One in Toronto even offered them her mailing list without being asked.

GENERALLY, THEIR customers are either collectors looking for rare books or "cottage readers," looking for good summer reading, often copies of classics or things they read a long time ago, Donna said. They have sold six copies of Gene Stratton Porter's "Girl of the Limberlost" this summer and could have sold more if they'd had them. They have had many requests for "Alice in Wonderland." Just recently a customer was disappointed to learn they sold "The Clansman," a book he had read and loved as a youngster, Esslinger said. "We have lots of little kids coming in." Donna said. "John's so good with little kids, he treats them like mini adults. ESSLINGER MOVED to Traverse City originally because he wanted to live and work in the area where he planned to retire. He developed a broad range of interests in preparation for retirement. He was a member of the antique car club, worked on the construction of the historic schooner, "Madeline," at the Maritime Academy Pier in Traverse City and studied the humanities.

Since moving to Alden he has become the first president of DABA (Downtown Alden Business Association), a group interested in promoting commercial development as Donna Esslinger said, "in a restrained, tasteful, constructive fashion."

Beauty survives in ancient art

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

The exotic birds on one container look like the work of an artist from the Orient. The overall abstract designs on two plates suggest a highly contemporary approach.

Yet, these pieces and many more are part of the Pre-Columbian art exhibition at Donna Jacobs Gallery of Birmingham, which continues through September. The bowl with the birds is actually Mayan, 600-900 A.D., and the plates are Cocle, Panama, 900-1100 A.D. The abstract designs are anthropomorphic - a two-headed serpent, a lizard/man and a serpent/man.

This is Jacobs's third exhibit featuring art of the Americas before Columbus. Some of it, such as the exquisitely crafted nine-inch-high nude female figure, dates from as early as 1200 B.C. This one from Xochipala, Mexico, is, as gallery owner Donna Jacobs says, one of the most exciting in the show.

The exhibition, Jacobs said, is an attempt to show fine quality Pre-Columbian works, "not ordinary, not mundane, but to show people that Pre-Columbian art can be terribly exciting." In price as well as quality, these pieces are far from ordinary. There is one life-size figure, a hollow clay sculpture of a man in a ritual position. This sculpture, covered in black bitumen, from the Gulf Coast region of Mexico, dates from 1000-1300 A.D.

'The exhibition is an attempt to show . . . people that Pre-Columbian art can be terribly exciting.'

A green stone mask from Guerrero, Mexico, early Teotihucan style, dating from the first century B.C. to the first century A.D., was designed to be attached to a textile band and positioned over the mouth. It is a very refined, almost classic face with handsomely defined features. The open eyes were originally pyrite. This piece has been in mu-seum exhibitions in Denver and Washington.

There are a number of beautifully made and decorated lidded Mayan ceremonial bowls, sever-al have drawings on the lids that are really pictograph writing. They look a bit like contemporary comic strip illustrations.

An enchanting pair of Mayan bowls are so closely related that they must be sold as a pair. The polychrome figure and design on the outside of one is repeated on the inside of the other. These are circa 550-950 A.D. Each is purposefully indented on one side to suggest a seashell form.

A fine figure of a seated woman, Jalisco, West Mexico, a remarkable laughing boy, a highly decorated figure seated on a low stool (sign of respect) from Costa Rica, and a warrior with an elaborate headdress, black (vitrain pitch) hair with aggressive, defiant stance are among the many outstanding pieces.

The clever repetition and continuity of design, the remnants of the wonderful colors (enough to bring visions of the original glory to mind), the gentle, careful handling of the figures, especially that special "emaciated" group, the use of animal and bird forms, the skill in abstracting and in creating the shapes themselves, are all testimony to the great abilities of these very early artists.

It is an exciting show from the standpoint of history as well as art. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Q. I understand that the Tax Reform Act of 1986 has two ew provisions that affect tax preparers and association reparns for 1987 and later.

A. The two tax law changes deal with the method of accounting for uncollectible receivables (for instance, assessments due from delinquent association members). Formerly, the "rederve" method was permitted for tax purposes. Under the new method, the association must use the specific charge-off that permits a deduction for "bad debts" only if the receivable becomes wholly worthless during the taxable year.

The second provision of the Tax Reform Act requires that the balance of the tax allowance for doubtful accounts be taken into account rateably for the first four years beginning after Dec. 31, 1986. This change is meant to eliminate the past years tax benefits of bad debt deductions under the reserve method. Obviously, this is a complex provision that the association's tax accountant should be aware of. You are best advised to ensure that your tax preparer is knowledgeable as to the changes of the 1986 Act as it applies to these issues in behalf of your association

Q. I was working for a condominium association as an emloyee and seriously hurt my back by doing some maintenance chores at the condo. The association says they do not have Workman's Compensation coverage and, in any event, that I was an "independent contractor" in their mind. I was being paid on an hourly basis, and they were withholding Social Security and federal taxes. I was working only for them during this period of time. Do I have a remedy?

A. Yes, it would appear that you are entitled, at least, to benefits under the Workers Compensation statute. To the extent that the association does not have insurance, it is remiss and may ultimately have to bear the cost of your compensation benefits, assuming you can establish that the injury that you sustained was a result of your activities within the scope of your employment at the association. You are best advised to find out the exact extent of your legal rights and to attempt to resolve the matter amicably, if possible, with the association. Be sure, however, that you are correct that the association does not have insurance coverage, which seems to be highly unusual. Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney specializing in condominiums, real estate and corporate law. You are invited to submit topics which you would like to see discussed in this column, including questions about condominiums, by writing Robert M. Meisner, 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Birmingham, Mich. 48010.

Creative writing's Gordon Lishes come under fire

'D BEEN thinking about putting together a column on creative writing classes anyway when a friend in Chicago sent me an article about the marathon writing classes of Gordon Lish.

The article, "It Came from New York," by Marcia Froelke Coburn, is featured in the August issue of Chicago magazine - a magazine whose editor, by the way, is former Metropolitan Detroit mag editor Hillel Levin.

Lish is way up there as an editor and discoverer of new talent. He was the fiction editor at Esquire and is currently an editor at Alfred A. Knopf He taught writing at Columbia University until last year and now teaches privately, his classroom moving from place to place in and around New York as he cajoles his students to open up their homes to his classes.

He's "hot," as he would be the first to tell you. He's also a bit of a flim-flam man - and he might even tell you that.

FE TRAVELS AROUND the country periodically to "teach" his one-day marathon sessions to desperate, usually well-heeled people, willing to plunk down $350 for the privilege of allowing the great Gordon Lish to tell them that as writers they stink - he knows they stink, because if they didn't, he would have heard of them - but that they can save their collective lives by taking him seriously.

But there's a price they'll have to pay, beyond said $350, and that price is 12 hours of kneeling at the altar of the great one quietly, obediently, waiting a turn to read the first telling sentence of a manuscript they each clutch so that Lish can tell them what garbage it is. Some get to read two sentences before Lish cuts them off with an enraged, theatrical, "Stop! That is crap!" One or two may read fearfully, hesitantly, then breath normally again when Lish announces "Not bad." Lish is God this day.

The object is to wear these people down so that by the end of the day their nerve-endings are raw, so that their egos will ricochet from wall to wall before disappearing into the thick, surreal air above. There is only room for one ego here.

Lish has his groupies - his power and presence draw them - and almost always one or two of them are in the group. They are the "examples." They are the "writers." And the rest of the group will never get to be as good.

WHY ARE THOSE people there? Because they know that it is within Lish's power to make them stars. But would he? He tells them "no" right from the start and still they stay. They are desperate to be published writers and so are powerless to leave. They want to believe that their one shining sentence will make him see. They sit nervously reworking that first sentence, hoping, hoping .... and Lish laughs at their efforts and assures them that they will never amount to anything.

How do I know all this? Because I've been a witness, as was Marcia Froelke Coburn, the staff writer who wrote the article for Chicago. Every year Lish comes to Lake Forest, an affluent Chicago suburb. For a few years, the daylong sessions were held at Ragdale, 'he writer's, colony where I've taken up residence the past couple of springs.

As it happened, I arrived there one year on the very day Lish was in the main house conducting his session. I knew about these "workshops" already because he had conducted one the year before in Ann Arbor. Several of my friends had attended, and while most of them had been appalled by the goings-on, they believed (or wanted to believe) that it had been worth it - that he had said some things that they could take away and use.

So I wasn't really prepared for the actual venom this man spewed all over this hapless but willing group. I did not sit and listen for almost 12 hours like the playing people were forced to do. I wandered in and out, alternately fascinated and revolted by this man who had the power to hold these seemingly intelligent people in thrall.

THE FASCINATION is still with me, and so when my friend sent me a copy of the article (the lead line says, "Captain Fiction's approach to teaching has a lot in common with boot camp, est, brainwashing, and shock treatment"), I sent it on to a friend who had been a Lish victim and rushed out to find a copy of the magazine.

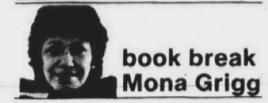

There was a reason why I needed to see the magazine, though I didn't know it at the time. The reason was Hillel Levin's Editor's Journal. "Trading on Dreams" is the title and Levin comes as close as anyone could to explaining why writers subject themselves to the Gordon Lishes of the world. During his college years he spent a good deal of time attending writing seminars. "Obviously I was not there to learn about seminars," Levin writes, "nor even about writing, for that matter. I was there to be published. Pure and simple. Along with a few dozen other gullible souls, I was convinced that the seminars were the most direct route to the book houses."

Levin explains it this way: " the desire to be published is an obsession that borders on clinical neurosis. Symptoms include participation in any sort of seminar available and incessant submissions to any person capable of putting a short story or novel into print. It doesn't matter if teacher, friend, or relative tries to discourage this frenzy. There are far too many stories about determined and misunderstood geniuses who ultimately find success through perseverance ( i.e., "No one's gonna tell me I can't write.")

There are those people who will trade on that pathetic gullibility. Witness the hundreds of classes and seminars and conferences listed in the wfiter's magazines, not to mention the hundreds throughout academia. Which one will make you a writer? The answer, of course, is none of them. They can teach you the basics and give you encouragement, but the reality is. wanting to be a writer isn't going to make you one. Just as wanting to be a plumber isn't going o make you one. And you don't have to shell out 1350 for a Gordon Lish to tell you the obvious.

. . . the desire . . . to be published is an obsession that borders on clinical neurosis. '

charity begin at home does mean it should end there.

lust because

Nobody is suggesting that we should solve the problems of the world at the expense of our own families.

But, when we give less to charitable causes than we spend on frozen dinners and designer jeans, something is out of balance.

Suppose that, instead of the one or two percent most of us are giving now, we all raised our contribution level to five percent. Based on current income figures, we'd generate more than $175 billion for the causes we say we care about. The homeless. The environment. Religion. And the arts. Just to name a few.

So look at your own giving. And see if you can't find a way to do just a little more.

That minor change in your family budget could be the start of some major changes in your family's world.

What you give is five. What you get back is immeasurable.

We're gaining on pistachios

In the short span of 10 years, California has lifted the United States from scratch to second place in world production of tasty pistachio nuts. This progress makes us less dependent on exports from Iran, the leading grower.

California harvested its first viable commercial crop in 1976 and now has 50,000 acres producing the nuts that hang in clusters like grapes.

Pistachio nuts have been around for centuries, growing wild in high deserts of the Middle East.

They apparently were first known in Turkey, Persia (now Iran), Assyria (Syria), Palestine and Lebanon. They were brought to Europe by plant fancier Lucius Vitellius, who carried seeds across the Mediterranean to Rome during the reign of Emperor Tiberius

The nuts became important in Europe in the Middle Ages and were introduced into American markets in the 1880s, sold primarily in ethnicoriented stores catering to customers with Middle Eastern, Armenian, Turkish, Italian or Greek backgrounds.

Pistachio trees were introduced to the United States in the 1920s. Most of California's trees were planted in the 1970s. The first significant crop is borne seven to 10 years after planting. Trees reach peak-bearing age in 20 years.

THE PISTACHIO IS related to the mango and cashew. It is deciduous (drops its leaves each year) and is pollinated by wind, not bees. Male trees bear pollen and females bear nuts, which are harvested in the fall.

As with some other nut trees, the pistachio is alternate-bearing, having a heavy crop one year and a light one the next.

Orchard planting ratio is one male to eight female trees.

Climate is important. Too mild winters or heavy rains during polli nation can reduce yield. Trees need at least 1,000 hours of 45-degree F temperature to bring the dormancy needed for good production.

NUT SHELLS split naturally as part of the ripening process.

When ripe, nuts have a rose-colored skin that encases and protects ivory-tinted shells.

California nuts are shaken from the tree onto catching frames by machines that clasp the trunk, and are then loaded into containers and sped to processing plants, where the skins are removed. If nuts are not hulled and dried promptly, the shells will be stained

In contrast, foreign processing starts with nuts being knocked from trees-with poles, picked from the ground and stored in burlap bags for several weeks. The skin eventually is removed by being rubbed against stones or another rough surface.

"THE CALIFORNIA industry has invested millions of dollars in equipment to process its pistachios so quickly that we can avoid staining and sell our pistachios in their natural shell," a spokesman for the California Pistachio Commission said.

'We dye, not by necessity, but to meet the needs of some consumers who prefer pistachios with red shells.

Why are some dyed red? Eastern importers began doing this to disguise blemished tan shells, the result of antiquated harvesting and processing methods used in the Middle East, I was told.

California's 1986-87 crop totaled nearly 75 million pounds.

Now is the time to clear out those closets, attics, basements and garages and make some quick cash in the process.

How do you plan a garage sale?

It's easy!

Just follow these simple guidelines:

1. Gather together the items you have for sale. Sort them into appropriate categories and price them fairly.

2. Place a classified advertisement in The Observer & Eccentric by calling one of the numbers below.

3. Hang signs throughout your neighborhood alerting residents to the upcoming sale.

4. Decide what to do with all the money you'll have after your sale!

Or, if you love to bargain-hunt and would rather shop then sell, be sure to look for our special garage sale listings every Monday and Thursday in your hometown newspaper. Observer & Eccentric classifieds make it easy to earn money and save money. Discover for yourself, today!

AFRICERT/ COMMIN

"During my first week at Franklin Park Towers, I found my apartment spacious. the service excellent and ... my neighbor, Dave."

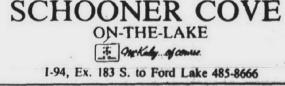

'It didn't take long to feel at home at Franklin Park. My apartment is bigger than most I had looked at, and the Southfield location is close to shopping, entertainment and major highways. After the boxes were unpacked and most everything put away, it was off to the fitness center that's where I met Dave!"

Give summer a wet kiss goodbye.

This is your invitation to waterski, windsurf, sail, canoe, swim and paddle your way through the glorious days left in the summer of '88. At the best place to do it: Schooner Cove on-the-lake. Here, watersports are an everyday way of life. Here, spacious 1 and 2-bedroom apartments with patios or balconies look out on all the beauties Mother Nature can think of. Summer, winter, spring and fall. Why not stop by and say hello. Today.
