Stepping out

Students enrolled in the Steppingstone Center for the Potentially Gifted will have to travel a little bit more for their education.

The center has moved from its Northville Township site, just north of the Plymouth area, to a new home in Farmington Hills.

"We have been anticipating expansion, and this move will help us accomplish our goals," said Kiyo Morse, director of the center. "Although our school has a new address, its location is still convenient for area families."

The new location is at the Mercy Center Building, 28600 11

10-percent hike in Breen's budget

By Doug Funke

A general fund budget with revenues and expenditures of $4.9 million a 10-percent increase over 1988 budget projections - has been proposed for next year by Plymouth

Township Supervisor Maurice Breen. Breen proposes reducing the township's property tax rate to offset increases in property values so that home and business owners wouldn't have to pay more taxes for municipal services increases, he estimated, are pay increases due police officers and fringe benefits for all employees.

The additional revenue would come primarily from increases in state shared revenues, building permit fees and interest income, Breen projected.

The township board, of which Breen is a member, will adopt a 1989 budget after a series of study sessions and a formal hearing - all open to the public.

A copy of the proposed budget is available for inspection in the clerk's office during business hours. The township's budget year begins

THE BUDGET prepared by Breen calls for no increases in personnel. "It will maintain services just where they are," he said. However, many budget changes

Primary sources of expenditure are likely when the new township board convenes after the November election. Breen said.

"In all candor, we will be amending this ('89) budget more than normal," Breen said. "It's a technical budget at this point to meet legal requirements. The new board will wrestle with it and make changes.

"Revenues are fairly accurate. Expenditures are a minimum figure.

"WHAT IS NOT here is a five-year gapital improvement program," Breen said. "I propose we will add one or two people here and there in general administration.'

He declined to elaborate. Breen also suggested that an increase in trash collection fees on the order of 50 cents to $1 per month may be needed sometime next year as a reserve fund gradually dwin-

Some 80 percent of township residents now pay $4 per month for solid waste disposal, Breen said.

MAJOR REVENUE sources, according to the supervisor's projections, are:

• Local property taxes - $1.6 million.

• State revenue sharing - $1.3 million.

 Building permits and fees – $422,000.

• Trash collection and disposal fees - $290,000.

Interest income − $250,000

· Reimbursement of fines from 35th District Court - $225,000.

Major expenditures, according to Breen, are:

• Police department wages (15 full-time and 12 part-time sworn officers), plus clerical staff and items like auto expenses and equipment maintenance - $822,000.

• Fire department wages (16 full-time firefighters and 17 parttime volunteers), plus items like equipment maintenance and clothing allowance - $818,000.

• Police/fire/DPW dispatching center - $252,000.

Survey for PTO group approved by board

By Doug Funke staff writer

Active members of parent/teacher organizations in the Plymouth-Canton schools will be asked for their views of how things are going in the district in a survey authorized by the board of education.

The questionnaire, compiled by Richard Egli, assistant to the superintendent for community relations, will be distributed to about 600 people at PTO meetings and coffees over the next couple of weeks.

Results are expected by October, said David Artley, board president.

"We're looking to get a feel from people most active in the school district," Artley said. "We'd just like to see where those folks are and where they want us to concentrate efforts." The survey of PTO members is distinct from a survey being considered by a separate group, Community Researching Educational Workings. CREW is probing the district at the request of the board. The school board has solidified several goals and objectives for the current academic year. Artley identified them as:

Festival to cause snarl for cruisers

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

City officials are looking forward to a kind of fringe benefit of the Plymouth Fall Festival.

The event, which starts Thursday and runs through Sunday, usually causes a decrease in the number of young people who cruise the streets on weekend nights.

"It kind of messes things up for the cruisers," said Paul Sincock, the assistant to the city manager and publicity chairman of the annual event. "It confuses them. It's very difficult to drive around town when this is in effect.'

4 men arrested in connection with robbery; $900 recovered

staff writer

Four men were arrested Wednesday in connection with a robbery of gas station employees and customers at gunpoint in Canton and Novi by Plymouth Township and Plymouth police shortly after the incidents.

The robbers, who were black, stole cash and other goods from white men, but refused to steal from two black customers, according to Canton police reports.

Police recovered more than $900 cash, 89 cartons of cigarettes, a radio, watch and a blue-steel automatic gun, said Dave Boljesic, Canton police information officer.

INFORMATION ABOUT a robbery at a Novi gas station was broadcast on police radio frequencies shortly before midnight Wednesday. Armed robbers stole cash, several boxes of cigarettes in cartons and a large radio from the Novi station, a Canton police report said. At 12:28 a.m. armed robbers reportedly held up the Union 76 gas station at Ford and Haggerty. An employee and his friend were inside the gas station when two men entered.

Friend says Machacek admitted to murder

staff writer

On the fourth and fifth days of testimony in the trial of Christopher Machacek, accused of murdering Mary Hulbert, 13, of Canton Township, juvenile friends and relatives of the Ypsilanti Township teen told of the circumstances and events of Dec. 30, 1986 - the day Hulbert disappeared, and the months that followed.

Tina Beauchamp, a 16-year-old who met Machacek while both were housed in the Washtenaw Juvenile Detention Center, testified that Machacek admitted killing Mary Anne

The youths were ordered to stand trial as adults by Washtenaw Probate Judge Judith Wood. They were 16 at the time of Hulbert's death.

According to juvenile court testimony. Hulbert thought she was pregnant by Machacek. The youths told police they took Hulbert to a field in Superior Township. They intended to induce a miscarriage, frightening the girl by firing rifles into the air. They blamed each other for the slay-

"It talked a lot about their being drunk and messed up when it happened. Chris felt bad, he felt guilty. He was trying to have Steve take the blame for what happened."

Beauchamp testified that she never delivered the letters to Stamper. She said she last saw the incriminating letter when Stamper's attorney visited Flint. Police and attorneys involved in the case have been unable to produce the letter.

DEFENSE ATTORNEY Richard Digon asked Beauchamp whether she recalled telling police that Machacek had said, "We killed someone." Beauchamp said yes.

Marc McKenzie, Machacek's 17year-old cousin, testified that he ate dinner with Machacek Dec. 30. Hulbert disappeared the afternoon of Dec. 30. Machacek was living with his cousin's family at the time.

McKenzie said he remembered Machacek saying, "Everyone should wash their hands" before dinner.

After Deborah Hulbert visited the McKenzie residence looking for her rectly saying he did it," testified daughter, Machacek told McKenzie Stamper he "didn't think Mary would be going back home," McKenzie said.

Prosecutor Robert Cooper asked McKenzie whether he remembered testifying in juvenile court that Machacek held his hand in the shape of a gun and said, "Bang, bang," when asked about Hulbert's whereabouts.

"I recall him making a statement and pointing," said McKenzie. McKenzie's mother, Diana

SANDRA SCHMANDT, an Ypsilanti High 11th grader who dated Machacek, testified that she was watching TV at Machacek's house the afternoon of Dec. 30 when the phone rang

"I picked up the phone (an extension) in a bedroom, just to see who was on the phone," testified Schmandt.

"I heard a girl's voice. Chris told me to hang up." Schmandt later asked Machacek who it was. "He said Mary," said Schmandt. According to juvenile court testimony, Hulbert called Machacek that afternoon to tell him she thought she was pregnant by him. Machacek and Stamper went into the bathroom to talk after hanging up, Schmandt

"Then they said they were going to leave. They said they'd be back in half an hour or 45 minutes.'

Schmandt said she was at the house at dinner time when the boys returned.

ME, AFRAID to fly? Naw Well, once or twice maybe. That was after that "Airport" movie hit the screen in the late 1970s.

You remember, the one where Van Heflin played that nervous goofball with the strange satchel. He went into the john, pulled the switch, blew a hole in the fuselage through which he fell to his doom, and endangered the airliner for hours before Dean Martin crash-landed in a snow-

Trouble is, we have to travel up I-75. I call I-75 "Maniacs' Alley.

You read about I-75 this week. Two cars were racing and may have caused an accident that resulted in the death of Edgar Venney of Madison Heights, a 58-year-old occupant of another car.

It's not fair to guess at which, if any, were tailgating. But one would be derelict in not reporting that following a quarter-car length behind another vehicle at 75 mph is an honored custom on Maniacs' Alley.

They taught us to allow one car length of distance for every 10 mph. That means 51/2 car lengths if you're going the 55 mph speed limit on urban freeways, which almost no one does around metropolitan Detroit.

METRO DETROIT drivers are the rudest I've ever encountered.

On this summer's convention beat, I've added two more cities to my list of traffic experiences.

Atlanta traffic is fast, far above the posted limit, but it moves smoothly. Everyone goes the same speed. You see no racing, little tailgating, no darting in and out and using the shoulder as a passing lane.

Ditto New Orleans.

Job blues Layoffs are never pleasant

EMPLOYEE LAYOFFS have a manager. been in the news recently, as decisions about two Detroit daily newspapers move from government boardrooms to federal courtrooms.

Layoffs are also an issue in the auto industry as assembly plants close, never to reopen, and the state is forced to look to new types of industry to make up the loss. The problem has even prompted federal legislation forcing employers to give notice before closing a plant.

But the issue of layoffs has hit the news industry hard, and given people in all sorts of jobs cause to think.

Even though many lives are in limbo awaiting court action, how employers handle layoffs has generated much discussion. It was even debated on local radio talk shows.

Just how should employers handle a layoff? What should be said, and who should do it?

Should it be a manager and friend, or a stranger from a relocation firm or home office?

IN THIS job I "carry my lunch pail to work," so to speak, but I have walked the other side of the fence as I played an integral part in giving more than 100 employees their notice, over several years. That's not said proudly, but realistically.

And no one should kid themselves it's painful for everyone involved, from the employees who get their pink slips all the way up to the managers who wield the ax.

I WOULD guess that all managers get a bad feeling in the pit of the stomach, every time.

There's no kind way to tell employees they have to hit the streets, uproot their lives and look for another source of income. No matter how much a company cushions the blow with relocation services or job training, it still hurts.

And it affects not only the pocketbook, but a person's self-esteem.

TODAY'S JOB counselors say the days of lifelong employment are gone, and a person should expect to have several jobs in a lifetime, possibly in different careers. Although that seems apparent, it hasn't become a reality to some.

People get comfortable, especially if they enjoy their jobs. They want to believe it can last forever, or at least until they retire.

The fact is, many jobs just don't last anymore. We shouldn't expect it, nor should we let a layoff or job change send us a negative message.

We also need to turn around the old, worn out "you owe me" routine. We are all owed respect, benefits and a paycheck which are linked to our jobs. But after the job's over, no debt remains except what we owe to ourselves.

We must fulfill our own lives. If we wait for someone else to accomplish that for us, it won't happen.

There are a multitude of opportunities - even here in Michigan for anyone with the motivation to seek them out.

Trainor should read her Bible

To the editor:

This is in reply to the editorial by Catherine Trainor on Aug. 18.

I was very offended, to say the least, at this blasphemous article about Christ.

First of all, we have the Constitutional right as Christians to object to the film, "The Last Temptation of Christ" just as much as you have the right to go see it. That's democracy in action - not censorship.

There are actually some of us concerned citizens that care what happens to our society and sees the moral decline and ultimately the decline of society in whole.

Secondly, to her comment of Christ having impure sexual thoughts: It's obvious this lady has no conception of the holiness of God. He was blameless and sinless until the day he was crucified. (Isaiah 53, I Peter 1:18,19).

Sexual union is a gift he has given us as married couples to express oneness and love for each other. (Prov. 5; Song of Solomon).

I suggest this woman get her facts straight and read the Bible before writing such an off-the-wall and blasphemous article.

Arthritis is not to be endured; it needs your manage-

For example: arthritis has flares. These episodes are unexpected, possibly prolonged, will likely re-occur, and respond just partially to medication. Only by managing the arthritis car you minimize the damage these disruptions cause.

Management means that you have a response planned for times when your condition suddenly worsens. The plan comprises more than taking additional medication, but includes means of extra rest, ways of undertaking self care, and alternatives for transportation to home and doctor's office.

Management also means guiding family and friends to help you in a manner consistent with their ability to render aid.

Finally, management includes developing the ability to discuss with your doctor in a straight-forward manner the physical, emotional, financial, and personal stress that the arthritis is causing you.

Managing is not doing what you are told, or accepting your fate. Managing means fitting yourself, with arthritis, into the lives of others, who do not have Fame is what you make of it. For Westland's Rob Kantner, being named an honorary citizen of Belleville and receiving the key to the city from Mayor Glen Silvenis is enough - for now.

(The Belleville honors came about after the southwestern Wayne County town received national exposure via Kantner's detective novels. His hero, private eye Ben Perkins, lives and works in Belleville.)

And Bantam has signed Kantner to a new contract. "Apparently, they're happy with my sales,' Kantner said.

To be able to continue writing is his real reward, according to Kantner.

'You always worry about running dry on ideas, but it usually works out alright," the author said. "I know an idea when I see it. The trick is to ask yourself 'Is there a crime in here?' "

"I think in terms of my mechanics, my pacing, it's getting a little bit easier," the author said. Kantner's books are replete with

"There's always a possibility I'll be able to make a living as a novelist only," Kantner said. "Most of the

With Leonard, William Kienzle and others, southeastern Michigan has become a hotbed for crime fiction. Kantner has a few theories, but really isn't sure about why Detroit seems to be the new mystery Mecca.

The city's reputation for crime may or may not play a part, he said. More likely, it's the expanding popularity of crime fiction coupled with the publishing world's revelation that New York and Los Angeles don't have a lock on all the talent.

Kantner's expanding career seems to be proof positive for that theory

NSULINISMOTA CURE FOR DIABETES.

There is no cure for diabetes. At least not right now. And until there is, millions of people have to live with the disease.

If you think that's easy, imagine living on a diet every day of your life; constantly monitoring your blood sugar level; and taking insulin injections several times a day.

But as hard as that sounds, not taking care of your diabetes makes it much worse. Because diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death. Insulin is not a cure. But until we find one, it's all we have.

Money not power at heart of jail dispute says sheriff

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Wayne County's jail dispute is 'an economic issue," according to Sheriff Robert Ficano.

The issue stems more from money matters than from a power struggle between himself and county Executive Edward McNamara over jail control, Ficano said.

"It's an economic issue, it's nothing about control," Ficano said.

Ficano's comments came during taping of "Spotlight on the News," a local public affairs television program. The program was scheduled to be broadcast Sunday on WXYZ-TV, Channel 7.

McNamara filed a motion in Wayne County Circuit Court last month to have the jail placed under his department's control. Ficano vowed to fight the motion.

WHILE BOTH sides have agreed to let the county commission medi-ate the dispute, Ficano said he wouldn't back down from a court fight, if mediation fails.

Thomasvilli Galliry

'If he (McNamara) forces the issue and it goes to court, we'll be prepared," Ficano said.

'It's interesting that you see the same dispute arising out in Oakland County," he said. "You're seeing that the sheriff out there is having difficulties with the county executive.

IN OTHER comments:

Ficano said jail conditions had vastly improved since a 1971 inmate lawsuit, even though an independent jail monitor found many of the same problems still exist.

"When the inmates first brought the lawsuit and they said there were inhumane conditions there probably were at that time," Ficano said.

Disputes over such issues as

"What they're fighting over is whether we can provide them tennis shoes so that they can play basketball. To come in and say the conditions are such that they have to be remedied is a smoke screen."

FICANO ALSO disputed McNamara's claim that the jail and sheriff's department wasn't being fiscally responsible.

We've reduced the cost of housing an inmate from $90 a day to $52 a day right now, if you check our overtime we're $500,000 less than we were at this time last year," Ficano said.

McNamara had said he was concerned about the sheriff's department debt, which he tabbed at "$1.8 million and growing." Keeping county budgets balanced, McNamara said, is necessary under the county's debt reduction agreement with the state.

McNamara has suggested creating a county department of corrections to oversee the jail. Ficano, citing his experience in lobbying legislators, said such a move wouldn't work. Being an elected official, Ficano said, gave him an advantage in seeking the state Legislature's permission to have two prisoners housed in each county

"By me going up to the Legislature as an elected official it had a much greater impact on them than going up as an appointed department head," Ficano said. "It gave me the footing to push double-bunking through the Legislature."

Dukakis works for labor's vote

staff writer

John F. Kennedy's famous Labor Day appearance at the Detroit plaza now bearing his name marked the beginning of his 1960 presidential campaign.

But times have changed for Democrats. When Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis followed in Kennedy's footsteps Monday, the 1988 campaign was already in full swing.

And Dukakis was campaigning hard for union households squarely in Kennedy's pocket in 1960.

While the media spotlight has been turned on Macomb County's so-called "Reagan Democrats," Dukakis must also change more than a few minds among western Wayne County voters as well.

Western Wayne — including union households - marched in lockstep with the 1984 Reagan victory parade. Reagan vote totals parts of in this traditionally Democratic area even exceeded the president's national landslide.

percent of Livonia votes, captured three out of five cast in the Westland/Garden City area and helped sweep Redford Township GOP candidates into local office for the first time in 16 years.

That, Dukakis staffers say, is ancient history. Armed with polls showing large numbers of conservative Democrats returning to the fold, state Dukakis staff members believe they will be as successful with area voters as Walter Mondale was unsuccessful

Dukakis is a different candidate,"

Mark Fox said. "The key is going to be the 'non-transferability' of Ronald Reagan's popularity to George Bush. We've seen polls showing seven out of 10 Reagan Democrats supporting to Dukakis as former Reagan voters.

Since that upset, Michigan has figured prominantly in Dukakis election plans.

The Labor Day appearance marked the governor's fourth trip to Michigan since last month's Democratic Party convention. Vice presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen and Dukakis' mother and son have also made Michigan appearances.

"IF YOU look back, Michigan is a Reagan received a whopping 72 state that figures in nearly every winning Democratic presidential campaign," Fox said.

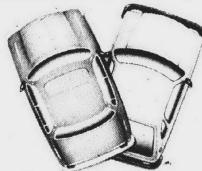

It is also a state that hasn't gone Democratic in 20 years. Changing that trend, Fox said, depends upon a strategy that concedes no area of the state to Bush.

When the governor appeared in Grand Rapids (Aug. 24) the press all wanted to know what he was doing in a Republican area like western Michigan," Fox said. "But we're conceding nothing."

That indicates Dukakis isn't just after Reagan Democrats, but at "IT'S A different year and Mike least some Reagan Republicans as

Wanted: new stove from Santa

I know that I'm writing this about three months too early but I recently came across the ultimate Christmas present.

I've been writing to you now for the last 35 years, making sure never to request something too outrageous, too dangerous, too expensive. You have always been very generous and, as of this year, have brought me everything I ever asked for, with the exception of a '69 fire-engine-red Lamborghini and a hair transplant that surely would have made me look like Tom Selleck.

This year, however, you can make it real easy on yourself by just ringing me one thing:

What is an AGA, you ask?

AGA is short for an Amalgamate Gas Accumulation stove that has recently been introduced to the Northern Hemisphere. It's really not a new toy, having been invented in the early '20s by Swedish Nobel Prize Laureate Dr. Gustaf Dalen. It is a totally hand-assembled, cast-iron, enamel-finished cooking center (dare I call it a stove?) that does everything a regular stove will do, only better. Much better

JUST HOW GOOD can one stove be, you

This little gem has four ovens: a roasting oven for those delectable legs-of-lamb and stuffed geese; a baking oven for your favorite tortes, Mamma's apple pies and cookies for Jessica's preschool class; a simmering oven that will slow cook and keep foods from drying out; and even a warming oven that will keep plates hot and will hold a plum pudding for you, no matter how late you get here.

Add to that two top burner plates that boil, simmer, stew and everything else four normal burners would (but in the size of only

Now, Santa, I know this sounds too good to be true, but the informational brochures say that the AGA "never makes mistakes" because there are no controls, knobs, dials or fancy gadgets to screw up with. The AGA is always "on" and ready to produce when you are. That, of course, leaves little room for error and more time to "play" while cooling.

So, Santa, I'm writing to you extra-early this year because I know this is a rather hefty request. It takes almost 10 weeks just to order one, and then you need a trained AGA installer to unpack the four crates weighing more than 1,300 pounds, to assemble and hook up the little beauty.

Santa, this year you can keep the Tupperware and put a hold on the polyester slacks that match my golf bag. All I really want for Christmas is an AGA. The normal package price includes sales tax, installation, freight, handling and even a free set of cookware. Oh, and by the way, it sells for $8,576.

Your friend, Chef Larry

P.S. In the event that you deliver it early and avoid the Christmas rush, I'll have a plate of your favorite cookies in the warming oven and a pot of steaming hot chocolate waiting for you.

Ruth Traison, Sheri Devries' grandmother (left), Sheri and Jeffrey Devries and son Daniel, gather at family meal with traditional menu, including braided egg bread called challah, for Rosh Hashana, at the Devries home in West Bloomfield.

Holiday foods symbolic

By Anne Lehmann special writer

OR MOST PEOPLE, September heralds the beginning of fall — but for Jews around the world, the 12th and 13th of this month marks the beginning of the year 5749 in the Jewish calendar. Rosh Hashana, which translated from Hebrew, literally means "head of the year," is a time for reflecting on the year past and planning hopefully for the future. Families get together for elaborate repasts filled with foods that symbolically reflect the spirit of the holiday. For example, challah, a braided egg bread that is traditionally eaten every Friday night as part of the weekly Sabbath meal, is round and laced with raisins. The circular shape is a reminder of the cyclical nature of life with its new beginnings. The raisins are a way of adding additional sweetness to the soft chewy bread, as an expression of hope for a sweet and happy year. The challah is dipped in honey as are apple slices, again symbolizing the hope for a sweet year to come.

REBBETZIN Chaya Sara Silberberg of Congregation Bais Chabad in West Bloomfield, says many people mold their challahs into such unique shapes as "a crown to signify the acceptance of God's kingship anew; a key, to unlock all the blessings of the year; and a ladder, to ascend to greater spiritual heights."

"For us it's a time for family and another opportunity to eat," says West Bloomfield resident Sheri Devries. Though most of her family (spanning four generations) lives in Detroit, Devries says, "Everyone really makes a point of making it to the Rosh Hashana get-together."

Devries and her husband, Jeffrey, a pediatrician, are expecting their second child in January. This year she already has begun preparing for the more than 25 guests she plans to have sitting at her dinner table during Rosh Hashana. "The truth is, I use a lot of old family favorites, and then I freeze as much as I can. I leave as little as possible for last minute," she says. Generally, the side dishes and desserts are what take center stage on Rosh Hashana. "We usually have a roast or a stuffed turkey, and I build a variety of side dishes, many of which are sweet, from Tzimmes, a sweet, sliced-carrot dish, is a common favorite, symbolizing the hope for a sweet year. Additionally, the golden-coin-shaped vegetables express the hope for a year of financial securi-

"The Spice and Spirit of Kosher Jewish Cooking," compiled by the Lubavitch Women's Organization, says, "The head of a fish is usually eaten, signifying our hope to be the 'head,' outstanding in righteousness." Also, round farfel, or egg barley, is sometimes eaten because of its round shape

Interestingly, on the second night of the holiday, at least one fruit, not sampled in the season, is usually eaten. The novelty of the item helps to recall the newness of the year. Often the new fruit is a pomegranate, because this is one of the fruits for which Israel is well known and also because it is said to contain 613 seeds, equal to the total number of commandments in the Torah. Aside from the many themes of the holiday, observant Jews follow dietary laws that prohibit them from eating and mixing certain foods. "Being kosher nowadays," says Devries, "is really easy."

"EVEN THOUGH you are not allowed to mix meat and milk, there are new products on the market that make almost anything possible,"she adds. One of Devries' deceptively rich specialties is a chocolate mousse cake. "It's relatively easy to make and tastes like it's made with fresh cream,"

"For me desserts are a big part of holiday cooking," says Devries. "I suppose part of it is that during my college years we'd all get together over the holiday for dessert and coffee. So I was always big into baking special Rosh Hashana treats.

And what better way to start the New Year than with the lingering taste of something sweet.

Kids can make lunches they tote

By Nechama Bakst special writer

Here's a senario that's likely to occur once the routine of having the kids back in school becomes familiar.

At 8 a.m. on a typical school morning, you watch the school bus wind its way down the street, and a familiar shriek pierces "Mom, you forgot my lunch!" Again. Not to worry, says food consultant Peg Watson, who recently demonstrated a bagful of innovative tips and gimmicks for brown bag lunches at Jacobson's Kitchen and Gourmet Shop in Not only did Watson provide lunchtime ideas for Mom to use, but she also suggested how children can help prepare the

Some 30 kids sat cross-legged on mats and noshed on nutritious snacks prepared by Watson and Jacobson's sales promotion manager Jean Cote, as part of Jacobson's recent Back to School Week. Watson let fall an array of techniques and recipes designed to replace and enhance traditional-style sandwiches.

Her only criteria for a brown bag lunch is that it include the basic nutritious fillers: protein, a vegetable or fruit, beverage, dessert and an optional surprise.

HER DELIGHTFUL creations are quick and easy, which is not unusual because they are especially designed so that children can prepare them.

Although Watson herself, a grandmotherly woman with a kind smile, "couldn't even boil water" until after she was married, she is a firm believer of "kids in the kitchen," even children as young as 2 years of age.

Watson has written articles on cooking for kids and has appeared on Channel 13's "Kids' Beat."

She is understanding of parents who hesitate to let youngsters 'make a mess" in the kitchen, but she believes cooking is a good learning experience from which most children can benefit. "It helps them with math, helps them with chemistry, helps them with creativity and with culture," Watson said. "If you eat Mexican or Chinese food, it's an opportunity to learn" about those places. "And if you mix anything together, it's just like a formula."

Watson set guidelines for children of different ages. From ages 2 to 6, she said, children should be able to stir and add ingredients, begin to measure, and use a vegetable peeler and melon baller after instruction.

Rub the dough across a coarse grater to form pieces the size of barley. Or finely chop the dough using a food processor fitted with the steel blade. If the farfel is sticky, toss it with a bit more flour. Then spread it on a dish towel to dry until you are ready to cook it. (If desired, the farfel may be dried completely and stored in an airtight container.)

Post player puts Canton over Salem

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Susan Ferko, like the rest of her Plymouth Canton basketball teammates, started slowly in Thursday's season opener, but she was cruising by the end of the night.

The 5-foot-11 junior sparked a last-quarter surge that carried the Chiefs to a 50-46 victory over rival Plymouth Salem, pacing the winners with 19 points from her post po-

Canton, a veteran ballclub that's expected to contend for the Western Lakes Activities Association title again, had trouble finishing its offense early in the game. The Chiefs were able to get the ball inside to Ferko and forward Candi Jones, but the shots weren't

In contrast, the Chiefs were racking up points in the final quarter as they pulled away from Salem. Ferko, who had eight in the finale, scored six straight to stretch Canton's lead to 45-36, and Jones made it an 11point difference with 31/2 minutes left.

"Basically, I wasn't on balance," said Ferko of the early going. In the fourth quarter, "We were thinking about who needed to have the ball at the right time. We wanted to take control and play our tempo game.

THE ROCKS rallied to make it a fourpoint ballgame behind the outside shooting of senior Jill Estey, who made her '88 debut with a game-high 24 points.

The 5-foot-4 guard, the lone returning starter from last year's championship team, kept Salem in the game with her impressive

"Getting off to a good start like she did really gave her confidence," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "Now our job is to make sure the team rises up and competes at the level she's competing.

Canton, which lost all four meetings with the Rocks last year and has been runner-up to Salem in the last three WLAA championship games, found the victory gratifying.

'It's a little bit satisfying," junior Jenny Russell admitted. "We were trying not to think of it as Salem, but one game toward

"We wanted to work hard and, for once, show people we're better than the crosscampus rival. It will give us an edge going into the next game.'

THOUGH THE Chiefs had trouble converting at the start, Salem kept sending Canton to the foul line. Despite being 11-of-20 in the first half, the Chiefs used their freethrow edge to hold a slim lead at intermis-

'It was rough in that we didn't score," Canton coach Rob Neu said. "Our No. 1 priority in this game was to establish inside play. Although we didn't score the buckets, they got a lot of fouls.'

The Rocks, who survived a potentially bad foul situation, had their biggest moment when they ran off the first eight points of the second period to build a 20-13 lead.

"I was very pleased with the character of our team - the intensity and willingness to stand in there and do battle in the heat of the game," Thomann said.

The Chiefs got back in it by scoring the next six points and taking a 23-22 lead on Stacey Thompson's layup. Ferko gave Canton its halftime margin

"Our adjustment was simple," Neu said. 'We must rebound on the defensive glass.

Once we established that, it eliminated their second chances.

ESTEY'S PERIMETER marksmanship had the underdog Rocks staying even in a neck-and-neck contest until Michelle Fortier pulled the plug in the third quarter.

Her outside shot broke a 29-29 tie, and she added another long-range basket that helped send the Chiefs into a 37-31 lead. It was shortly after that Ferko started taking the ball to the hoop.

Fortier finished with eight points, Thompson 10 and Jones nine.

"When Michelle started pulling up and hitting those jumpers, that reopened the mid-dle," Neu said. "When we turned her loose, she became a big factor. She's a great play-

Canton mistakes leave door open for Monroe

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Plymouth Canton's football past was too much a part of its present

The Chiefs, beginning a new season with hope of achieving their first winning record, got off to the wrong start as they dropped the season opener to Monroe, 6-3.

The fact was Canton did more to give the game away than the visiting Trojans did to win it. If the Chiefs hope to be above .500 eight weeks from now, it will be necessary to overcome the self-inflicted wounds that have stifled its aspirations in past years.

"Not to take anything away from (Monroe), but we beat ourselves,' said Canton coach Bob Khoenle after the Chiefs turned the ball over six KHOENLE COMPARED the season opener to several games a year touchdown to go ahead and the ago in which the outcome could have been different, possibly leading to pass from Jason Dembny to Aaron that first winning season.

"Just remember this game at the end of the season," he said. "Here's one we could have and should have

"That's been the story at Canton for too many years: could have and

The Chiefs showed real promise, however. Khoenle wasn't just softening the blow when he said his team played well. In contrast to the cold facts of the stat sheet, a first-hand account supports that view.

Canton's defense, led by end Brian Bartlett, played superbly and stopped a big, strong Monroe team that got high marks in preseason as-"The kids played really well, but sessments. The offense, with fullback Jim Young as the star, moved were driving, driving, driving and the ball well, but two of the four fumbles halted lengthy drives.

some games to get some confidence," Khoenle said. "We've got to stop doing these things that prevent us from winning.

"It would have given us such a boost if we had won this game."

The scoreless stalemate continued until the final play of the third quarter when Canton's Bob Quinn kicked a 42-yard field goal.

Scott Swartzwelter recovered a Monroe fumble at the opponent's 26yard line, but three negative-yardage plays stalled Canton's drive at the 24.

"We called timeout intentionally so we'd have the wind at our back, but we had a whole quarter to go," Khoenle said.

A penalty pushed the Chiefs deep into their own end, and the forthcoming punt gave Monroe the ball at the Canton 30 midway in the final

AFTER BEING shut off by a veteran defense to that time, the Trojans needed just five plays to finally reach the end zone with 4:12 to play. Little Rod Purkey, a 5-foot-8 tailback, charged over the right side football season-opener at Trenton Friday, it seemed the long ride there would be an even longer one coming back.

Rocks knock off Trenton in football opener

A defeat can have that affect on transportation. But fortunately for the Rocks, who were facing that lengthy ride home accompanied by coach Tom Moshimer and his staff, a game lasts four quarters. And Salem finally awoke in the last quarter to trip Trenton 20-12, transforming their bus ride into a pleasure

It was hardly a thing of beauty, this victory. "I'll tell ya, I'm just happy to have a win over a good football team," said Moshimer. "They're one of the better teams we're going on turnovers in the second quarter, Brian Schultz racing 28 yards with a recovered fumble to give Salem a 6-0 lead (the extra point snap was fumbled) and Jeff Neckel tying it by returning a blocked punt 35 yards for a Trenton touchdown with just 39 seconds left in the half (the extra point kick was blocked by Mike

Problem was, until that fourth quarter Sa-

THE TROJANS then took control in the third quarter, marching 74 yards on 16 plays. Neckel scored his second TD of the game, plunging 1 yard, but the two-point conversion run failed, so Trenton led just 12-6. 'After Trenton scored, I would have taken bets they'd jam it down our throats," said Moshimer. To that point, he had seen little from his offense to make him believe anything ruined any rhythm Salem might have estab-

Then something happened in the final quarter. Moshimer's young offensive line, his biggest concern entering the season, started opening some holes and junior quarterback Ryan Johnson rallied his team with a couple of big

"We lost everyone on our offensive line (from last year) and it showed," said Moshimer. "We need a lot - A LOT - of work up there. We came back in the fourth quarter and played better. I think some of our coaches talked to the, uh, 'children.'

WHATEVER THEY said, it worked. With 9:33 left to play, Johnson capped a 67-yard drive with a 30-yard touchdown pass to Schultz. Don Nichols' placement put Salem on top for good, 13-12.

Johnson then scored an insurance TD, diving in from a yard out, with 6:03 to go. Nichols again added the extra point kick. The Rocks recovered a fumble at Trenton's 28 to set up the score. After losing 10 yards on a holding penalty, Johnson passed 31 yards to Don Parrish to the 4-yard line.

Johnson finished with four completions in six passes for 87 yards, with one intercepted, and rushed 17 times for 63 yards. Schultz also enjoyed a solid game, catching a touchdown pass, returning a fumble for another TD and intercepting a pass.

Salem had 192 total yards on offense to Trenton's 166. The Trojans had two fumbles

The 'difference' disbands; SC star forwards move on ship caliber, on a national scale, requires certain elements most essentially, talent.

Schoolcraft College's womens soccer team rose to the top of the NJCAA a year ago with what appeared to be the bare minimum. The Lady Ocelots had a handful of good, solid players and some pass-

Several members of that cast were thrust into alien roles - a forward (Amy Weber) was in the goal, a midfielder (Jennifer Belhart) was at sweeper, another midfielder (Lisa Hysko) was at defender. A lack of depth made coach Nick O'Shea's task more difficult.

What made O'Shea's job easier and what catapulted SC from ordinary to championship contender was what he called his "three aces in the hole:" Jennifer Huegli, Jennifer Flowers and Mary Kay

EXCEPTIONALLY SKILLED soccer players are rare, even in the offense.

AKING IT to champion- soccer-rich Livonia. Huegli, Flowers and Hussey are three of the best - not just from Livonia, but the state. When O'Shea managed to land all three to fill his forward line, he knew his team had a shot at the NJCAA crown. His "aces" were that good.

How good? Here's Michigan State soccer coach Joe Baum's assessment: "What a forward line that was. They might not be quite as good as you'd find on a North Carolina or George Mason or Colorado, but those are all Top 10 teams (in the NCAA's Division I). They would be a top-20 forward line, certainly.

"We would have jumped for joy to have a line like that."

As it turned out, Baum had cause for joy anyway - he signed perhaps the best talent of the three in Huegli. She'll begin her Spartan career as a junior and as a starter, switching from left wing to left midfield where Baum thinks "she'll be able to handle the ball more, and she'll still be able to get into talent, we could play her anywhere. She's definitely one of the top three players on our team. We're so happy to have her — she has tremendous skills.

It took Huegli a while to decide to accept a partial scholarship at MSU. Planning to major in education, she also considered attending Eastern Michigan and giving up collegiate soccer.

Playing the game had already taken the Livonia Churchill graduate to Barry University in Miami, Fla., where she started every game as a freshman. A combination of factors brought her back to Livonia, to Schoolcraft and to O'Shea, who had already signed Flowers and Hussey. Huegli was the final piece in SC's championship puzzle.

"THAT WAS one of the best teams I ever played on," she said, "because it was really just an average team, but we had a lot of suc-

Defense no longer weak point on S'craft's squad

By C.J. Risak staff writer

A year ago, Schoolcraft College womens soccer coach Nick O'Shea faced a major problem. He had scorers, he knew; what he didn't have was a proven defense. So O'Shea started shuffling, moving midfielders Lisa Hysko and Jennifer Belhart to outside defender and sweeper, respectively, and sticking former forward Amy Weber into goal. With Jennifer Huegli, Jennifer Flowers and Mary Kay Hussey doing the bulk of the scoring, the revamped Lady Ocelots rolled all the way to an NJCAA championship.

That was 1987, though. And although Belhart, Hysko and outside defender Sharyl Acitelli return, Weber is gone and — what's more devastating - so is the entire front

It leaves immense holes for O'Shea to fill. Huegli and Flowers accounted for 37 goals and were junior college All-Americans, and both they and Hussey were named to the NJCAA all-tournament team. Replacing them would be impossible. So what's O'Shea planning? "I'm not trying to replace them," he replied. "I'm going to try and improve the whole team, defensively and offensively."

IMPROVING THE DEFENSE is certain, considering the talent O'Shea has signed. Indeed, last year's weakness is this year's

"Last year, I made midfielders into defenders," he said. "This year, I've got so many defenders I'm going to have to move some up to midfield and forward." His new recruits include the top two prep sweepers in Observerland last spring — Livonia Churchill's Kellie Davis and Plymouth Canton's Lori Stoecklein. With Belhart back, that gives O'Shea three sweepers, or

At the moment O'Shea is trying Davis at center mid. Stoecklein may move to outside defender and Hysko to stopper, replacing the graduated Kelly Churchill.

O'Shea also recruited outside defender Rosemary Hally, another Churchill grad and all-Observer performer. So in a scrimmage last week, O'Shea moved Acitelli up to outside midfield.

NOT THAT the midfield isn't loaded, too. Churchill's Dawn Gabriel, an all-Observer choice and one of the top players in the area last spring, will play outside mid. Maureen Frampus returns (she started on the outside in '87), while newcomer Wendy Howell fills the attacking midfield position. The forward positions could be a trouble spot. Joan Arndt, who ran track at Livonia Ladywood instead of playing soccer, is solid in one spot. Converted defender Gina Carozzo,

The Rocks hit Brighton early and often, building a 4-0 lead after 30 minutes of action Salem remained in front for a 5-2 victory

Coach Ken Johnson's troops played better than I thought they would." He added the Bulldogs had eight seniors in their starting lineup.

It seemed every player they announced was a senior," said Johnson, deepening his voice to imitate the public address announcer. "'So-andso, senior' so-and-so, senior! so-and-

They were big and strong, but we were quick and had good passing,"

Greg Christensen paced the Rocks with two goals, both coming in the four-goal barrage that started the game, and one assist.

Matt Gold, a fellow midfielder, notched a goal in between Christen-sen's scores, both of which were achieved on headers with assists from Billy Joker and Marc Lipke.

A lot of set plays worked," Johnson observed.

Donovan Nichols, the stopper, made it 4-0 when he scored via a direct free kick from 25 yards out. Paul Brown got the Bulldogs on the scoreboard before halftime.

Jeff Van DerMergle cut Salem's lead in half at the 58-minute mark, but Chris Olson, on a crossing pass from Joe Tippman, added an insurance goal for the Rocks.

Matt Tudor played the first 65 minutes in goal for Salem, and Derek Olson completed the game.

Monroe's Lorenzo Clark tackles Jason Riggs and forces a fumble in the opening quarter of the non-league opener.

• SOCCER CAR WASH

Plymouth Salem's boys soccer team will have a pledge-per-car car wash from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 18, behind the high school. No more than 150 cars will be washed. To make a pledge, call 397-0668 or 981-4296.

• PUNT, PASS, KICK

Canton Parks and Recreation Department will sponsor its annual Punt, Pass and Kick Contest for boys and girls, age 8-13, at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 1, at Griffin Park.

Registration begins at 9:30 a.m. that day. Each participant will try one punt, pass and kick, and his/her efforts will be judged on distance and accuracy

Awards will be given to the top finisher in all six age groups. The winners will represent Canton Township in regional competition later in October

No football shoes (cleats) will be allowed, only tennis shoes. Call 397-5110 for information.

The Chiefs gave the ball up on an interception with 2:53 remaining, but they still weren't through. Canton might have pulled out a victory if not for the most costly penalty of the night.

Dembny passed to Adkins over the middle, and the 6-foot-4 receiver galloped up the left sideline for a 64-yard gain to the Monroe 2. Adkins, however, was declared offsides and the play was called back.

The 6-foot, 175-pound Young made the biggest impression among offensive players. He ripped the Monroe defense for huge gains time and again, finishing with 174 yards on 25 carries.

"He's a good back, but we can only run him so long," Khoenle said. "He's a good runner, but we

WITH THE TEAM heavily skilled along the back line and in midfield, O'Shea plans to go to more of a controlled passing game down one side of the field and then reverse it to the other." So can SC repeat?

"It's going to take a while to develop," said O'Shea. "With more passes, there's more chances for mistakes. I'm asking them to do more than any high school team, but they have the talent. What we want to do is force the other team to play more defense."

The Lady Ocelots won't have much time to develop. They open at Western Michigan Sept. 14, but the real test comes three weeks later in Monroe, N.Y. when they face three of the top five teams in the NJCAA in a three-day span: Monroe CC, Farmingdale CC and Nassau CC.

That weekend will go a long way in determining SC's repeat hopes.

The Alcocks, with a surprise contribution from freshman Dave Weaver. turned back the Hawks in the season-opening dual meet for both teams

Dan shot 38 for the nine-hole round and Dennis 42. Weaver was sandwiched between the transfers from Texas with 41. Brian Fennelly and Mark Bodley added scores of 43 and 45 for Salem.

"I was pretty happy," Wilson said. "I expected us to be 205 or under. That's not too bad for the first match.

Harrison was led by another brother combination, Mike and Tim Story. Mike shot 47 and Tim 49.

Leotards, tank tops: High-tech 'marriage'

By Judith Doner Berne

Monday, September 5, 1988 O&E

The slim, leotard-clad females file in through the south door. The muscled, tank-topped males move in through the north entrance.

It's the newest marriage in town as the body-builders of Powerhouse Gym and the aerobic exercisers from Fitnesse are now side-by-side in a new, high tech, mirrored and upbeat storefront in Hunter's Square, Orchard Lake Road south of 14 Mile in Farmington Hills.

But each partner — as in many modern marriages — is retaining his/her maiden names and economic independence. And, at least so far, the "families" that each has brought to the marriage are eyeing each other with cau-

"WE PEAKED in our gym. I've always loved aerobics," said Jill Amsel, who with her husband Larry has operated the Powerhouse franchise for a year. So they recently moved to the larger quarters from another Orchard Lake Road shopping center, two miles south. She took classes at all the local studios and health clubs offering aerobics, "shopping" for the one she wanted to be her

"By going in together, they'd get more people and we'd get more people," said Helaine Keller, who owns Fitnesse with partner Andrea Bernstein. Fitnesse abandoned its smaller studio on Northwestern Highway earlier this month to expand its space and share quarters - and hopefully clientele - with Powerhouse.

HOWEVER THE separate doors are symbolic of the fact they are "two separate businesses in the same space," Keller, a Birmingham resident, said. "We are not Fitnesse, which also has a studio in Birmingham's 555 building, counts females as 80 percent of its clientele. Coincidentally, about 80 percent of Powerhouse's mem-

'We've wanted more men," Keller says, and the newest Fitnesse routines have reflected more intensity and er movements. They have also actively sought more male instructors

'We've made our aerobic workouts a little more masculine, cut out the fluff, getting to things that really work," adds Bernstein, a Southfield resident. "They're a little more resistance oriented."

AS FOR AMSEL, who lives in Farmington Hills, "We wanted to give the opportunity for our customers to have something else to do.

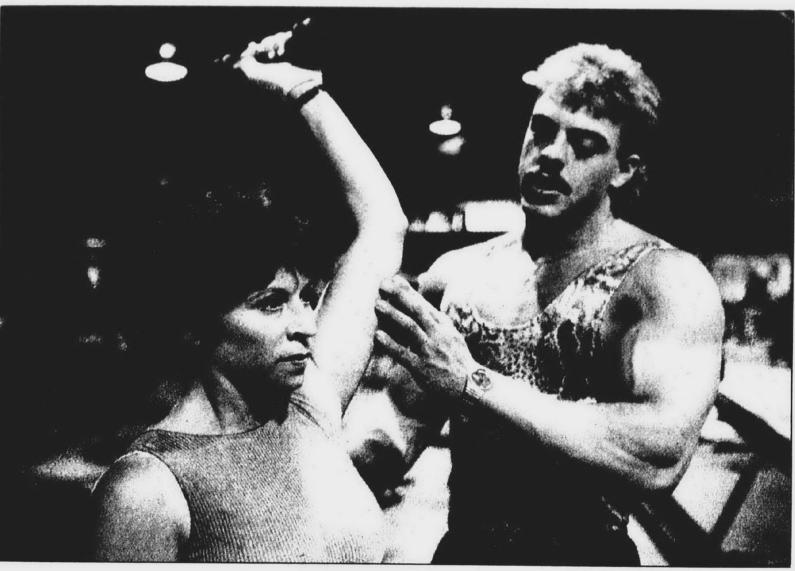

Owners of both businesses are out to dispel some myths. They hope that through education and proximity more body builders will incorporate aerobics and more aerobic exercisers will take up weights.

"In terms of physiology, aside from socially and psy-chologically, they go hand in hand," Keller says. Women "are afraid they'll 'bulk up' ", Keller said. They won't they don't have the physiology. At the same time, body builders are afraid they'll lose their bulk. They won't they'll gain agility and muscle flexibilty and lose fat."

ALTHOUGH THE exposure to more members of the opposite sex while exercising will appeal to some, owners of both businesses are adamant that heavy-duty, no-frills exercise is the main reason for coming to Fitnesse/ Powerhouse, that those who are more social may be happier at the health clubs.

"I wanted a place for peple to come to work out and not feel they have to wear makeup," said Amsel.

'We're exercise - no frills - a hard sophisticated workout," Keller agreed. "We're all here for the same reason. There is more of that social opportunity, but it's not blatant.

Don Frazier helps novice weight lifter Honora Levy of Bloomfield Hills with her weight training program. Frazier operates a service called Body By You out of the Powerhouse Gym.

Look before you stretch

"Body building is coming out of the closet now," said Jill Amsel, of Powerhouse Gym.

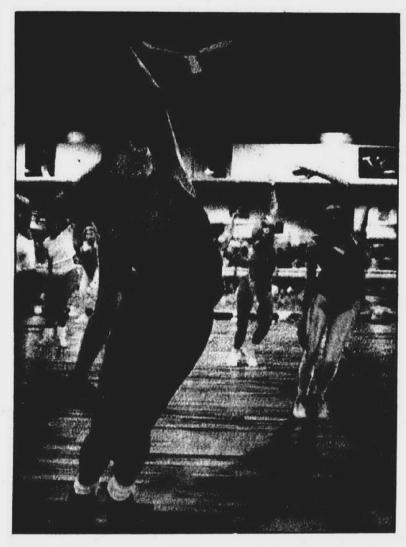

"Everything will peak, but aerobics are here to stay," said Andrea Bernstein of Fitnesse.

For the newcomer to body building, most area gyms offer weight and streamlining machines, exercise cycles, moving stairs - and supervision on how to use the equipment according to your ambition and physique. And new machines are coming out all the time.

As for aerobics, classes vary from the original jumping-style aerobics to low-impact to what some believe are "the aerobics of the future" hi/lo - which combines the two. As for stretching and toning your body, classes may give an overall workout or be devoted to lower body or abdominals (abics). Body building and aerobics are offered throughout the Observer & Eccentric communities at gymnasiums and studios, private sports and health clubs, Y's and community education programs.

Whatever you do, Bernstein advised, "Find out what you like to do and stick with it.'

Helaine Keller, co-owner of Fitnesse, puts her class through a tough aerobics workout.

The Gauley is one of the few rivers outfitters schedule for fall white-water trips, because that's when the U.S. Corps of Engineers lets water out of the dam. We were there in early October, just before the colors changed but in time for a couple of cold, snappy Fall rafters appear to be in uniform, as everyone dons wetsuits, wool sweaters and helmets for the trip.

The Gauley River covers 26 miles of sandstone cliffs and forests of poplar, mountain ash, conifers, hemlock, red oak and white pine.

Throw in the raw guitar sound like the MC-5 or the Rolling Stones. Add some diverse lyrics in the spirit of Jim Carroll or Patti Smith.

Maybe include a dash of irony, a la the Ramones, for a bit of spice.

Of course, trying this in the kitchen will cause a considerable mess. On stage, though, you'll have the straight-ahead rock'n'roll thunder of Jimmie Bones and the Grave Robbers.

But Art Lyzak of Lili's 21 had no idea of what he was getting a few weeks back when he booked the five-member group into the Hamtramck club. Another band had canceled at the last minute, leaving the former member of the Motor City Mutants scurrying for another group.

All Lyzak had was a video of Jimmie Bones and the Grave Robbers. He gave the little-heardof group a call.

Much to his surprise, the place was packed and Bones and his Grave Robbers shook the house with a no-holds-barred approach to

"They just play good, straight-ahead rock'n'roll," Lyzak said.

It's a straight-ahead sound that's was honed in only nine months time. The band formed out of a series of jam sessions with lead singer Jimmie Bones and Dominic LaMarra.

THE BARE-BONES approach is certainly not new in rock'n'roll circles. Both Bones and LaMarra are well aware of that.

Both are confident that they're own trademarks of vivid writing and hard-driving style will make them known.

"As far as writing goes, I try to write from a personal perspective," said Bones, whose singing style is marked by a low, resonant voice. "Or I'll take a story that someone has told me and write a song about that.

"I try to write a little deeper relative to a sound that is able to catch people's attention." Let's not get too scientific, though. For whatever reason, it works. Jimmie Bones and the Grave Robbers, more than anything, are a sum total of what's transpired in music for the past 20 years. Rhythm and blues, shades of punk and heavy metal can LaMarra sees the meshing of different musical genres, between the hard rock influences of the '70s and the new music crowd of the 1980s. Guns N' Roses and the Smithereens are some of the examples to be cited

'That's something you hear in the newer bands coming out now . . . more of that grinding guitar sound," LaMarra said. "The bands are coming back to the middle of the mainstream."

LaMarra honed his skills in The Reputations, a highly regarded Detroit band. He learned the importance of breaking the mode of standard hard rock drum rhythms, instead taking a more upbeat approach.

JIMMIE BONES played in a number of local rock'n'roll outfits, including the commercial heavy metal sounding Jack Black and Miller's Killers (obviously, Bones has developed a knack for being in well-named bands).

From those experiences, the game plan is clear for Jimmie Bones and the Grave Robbers. The want to play a selective number of dates locally, avoiding saturation. Also, they would like to make regular rounds on the outstate college circuit.

'We want to keep writing," Dominic said. "It all boils down to your writing.

Already, the group has shown some depth with socially relevant "All In the Cards," which deals with contrasts between the daily life of the rich and the homeless. Yet the band also produces the punchy tunes, "Tough Girl," that leave people running to the dance floor.

The name of the band itself will more than likely pique the interest of the non-local rock variety. "It was probably a combination of too much beer and watching the Three Stooges,'

Sunday radio show has new 'dimension'

staff writer

When tuning into WDET-FM 102 from 10 p.m. to midnight, the question is whether this is a radio show or merely a conversation between two friends during lunch.

With Martin Bandyke and Ralph Valdez, the answer tends to

An informal air surrounds their show, "Dimension." The casual nature of this two-hour program is what, perhaps, sets "Dimension" apart from other new music shows on Sunday night.

"We approach it like we're having friends over to the house, and we're playing music for them,' said Bandyke, who has hosted "Dimension" with Valdez for nearly six years.

Chances are you won't know what to make of "Dimension" at first. A steady stream of new music from up-and-coming bands, like the Pixies, Throwing Muses and Wire, is featured without the standard deejay rap.

Instead, Bandyke and Valdez fill idle air time by talking about the latest film at the Michigan Theater in Ann Arbor or the new exhibit at the Detroit Institute of Arts. Sometimes they engage in a Siskel-Ebert debate over the merits of a record just played.

Surprisingly, they manage to pull it off without coming off as a pair of hoity-toity intellectual cosmopolites.

"I DON'T like to be seen as elitist or just playing strange music," Bandyke said. "I feel we're playing music that's enjoyable and challenging at times. We're not trying to alienate listeners or be weird. Or to be obscure for the sake of being obscure.'

"I think our friendship comes across," Valdez added. "We joke and stuff without going over the top. There's a sincerity there.'

Apparently, their growing audience agrees. Requests come in from all around the metropolitan Detroit area, Bandyke said.

Bandyke and Valdez are up for the challenge. The earlier broadcast time will allow more people to listen to the show

Bandyke said "Dimension" has another edge. He works as an import buyer for Dearborn Music, thus keeping up-to-date on new releases. He also knows what peo-

Radio was a natural interest for Bandyke, who graduated from the University of Michigan in 1976 with a degree in TV, radio and film. Bandyke and Valdez played in a new wave band, Retro, together.

A friend who hosted "Dimension" at the time invited the duo down to play some music. The show, which has been on the air for 12 years, was devoted strictly to literature at the time.

Eventually, they took over as hosts. They still focus on the arts, but mix it with a liberal dose of alternative music

USED GUITARS - Marti Jones

OK. Here's one for all you hip poppickers: Who is Marti Jones? Don't know? How about a clue: Don Dixon. Any better? If you still don't know, I'm afraid it's the back of credibility class for you. Pay attention now. Marti Jones is currently being touted as one of the up and coming big stars, along with k.d. lang. This album, "Used Guitars," is her third solo project for A&M. It's here that she's starting to introduce herself through her own songs, albeit a brief introduction as there are only three originals out of 11 songs pre-The album ties a diverse range of songs together using a central theme of a conversation between two women . . . "a discussion of where love goes, what it leads to and what hap-

Jones chooses here songs from a selection of some of the strongest songwriters around, ranging from Graham Parker through John Hiatt to Janis Ian (who, with her songwriting partner Kye Fleming, is amus-ingly credited on the LP as Ian

Although she has a very strong sweet and clear voice, it is this asset that bothers me most about Marti Jones. Pure and all as it is, her vocals are not very distinctive.

If you were to try to identify one of her songs when hearing it for the first time, you would be more likely to recognize it from Don Dixon's production style (REM, Guadacanal Diary) than anything else.

This is not to say that it's a bad style, quite the contrary. As a matter of fact, it was probably a shrewd career move for Marti Jones to have married Don Dixon.

There is a definite country feel to this LP while tinged with classy nightclub edges. Reminiscent of drinking a Long Island iced tea, it is very smooth to ingest, but the contents are likely to kick you on the back of the head without warning.

This is a nicely balanced album with strong songs, and I look forward to hearing more of Marti Jones when she's away from the constraints of other songwriters.

KAREN MONSTER

Karen Monster

Karen Monster is a lean, mean, rock'n'roll machine. And Karen Monster goes to great lengths to tell us just that on this self-titled, five-song EP on Keene

Records. This is scratch-your-eyes-out hard rock that almost borders on heavy metal at times. We get heavy doses of chain-saw guitar riffs right from the get-go with the "I Got a Right" and "Get Off My Train," thus validating that the best of them. There is a natural tendency to lump Monster in the same snearing lyrical female subdivision with Chrissie Hynde. Yet Monster has a knack for putting her feelings across in a rather blunt way that certainly rivals Miss Hynde (or Mrs. Kerr, if you prefer). Take, for instance, these lines from the love-turned-sour song "I Hate Love": "Everytime I see you on the street, I want to spit/You make me sick/I want to kick your head in black and blue because you're such a saves us the trouble of playing this record backwards in search of any deep, dark hidden messages.

Monster's rock'n'roll is as nasty as

But amid the black leather, skull and crossbones image (check out the rings on her fingers) Monster clings to, there is a very talented performer/songwriter here. One can certainly see that in the introspective "Second Thoughts." Monster lets her guard down here and the results are rather enjoyable.

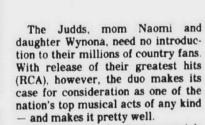

Another entry into the well-written, well-performed department is"Diggin' My Own Grave." There's a snake-like rhythm here that easily draws one into the fray. Even the crude "I Hate Love" has a certain hook that's not easy to ignore.

Yet, if Monster is going to continue to make waves, there will be a need to reconcile the issue of image and song content. She is certainly capable of delivering the goods without all the muscle-flexing.

Unlike lang, who seems content to chase after the ghost of Patsy Cline, Wynona Judd appears to want nothing so much as "female Elvis" status. "Rockin' With the Rhythm of the Rain" included here, is as fine a piece of modern day rockabilly as anyone has recorded.

Other hits, such as "Why Not Me," "Mama He's Crazy" and "Love Is Alive," are more country, less rockabilly, but just as satisfying.

Besides obvious good looks, mom Naomi also adds gorgeous harmony vocals. With "Change of Heart," she also tries her hand at songwriting. although the duo's hit-making status also allows them to pick and choose from the cream of Nashville's songwriting crop.

If the duo has a weakness, it's that they occasionally record material that's a trifle too clever, or cloying, for their own good.

Despite being a massive country hit, "Grandpa Tell Me About the Good Old Days" might just as well be a Ronald Reagan speech set to music. And only Wynona Judd's sassy delivery saves "Give a Little Love" from the scrap heap of banali-

That problem isn't the Judds alone, however. But at its best, however, country music delivers lyrics that ring true, music that draws from America's rich heritage and singers that bring absolute conviction to their task. When it comes down to that, the Judds deliver as well as anybody.

sult of lobbying by Glebe and fellow balloonists

Up, up and away

Within minutes of lift-off, the balloon clears the trees ringing the port and is climbing to its cruising altitude of 6,500 feet. At 650 feet, the ground resembles a Lionel train board. By the time it is a mile high, the view resembles an architect's scale model

As the balloon reaches the mile high marker, the greenhorns struck up a ragged chorus of the Fifth Dimension's "Up, Up and Away." Many of the words were replaced by da-dadas and the quality of the performance is a good candidate for vaudeville's rotten tomato salute. Glebe just cracks a smile.

While the view is spectacular at 6,500 feet, the thrill of ballooning doesn't hit home until you skim along at treetop level, so low you can reach out and pick the leaves from the trees and hear the children hollering as they run along waving.

One of the greenhorns remarks about feeling like Miss America. 'Smile and wave, smile and wave,' he says as he waves to a youngster, who returns the salute then turns and runs into the house, screaming come and see the balloon.

HOT AIR ballooning is a gentleman's sport so to speak. Balloonists are polite. They can't be in a big hurry because their mode of transportation depends on the fickleness of Mother Nature. They can't be rude because they depend on the good nature of farmers and property owners for places to land.

As gentle as the ascent is, landing is a completely different experience. The gondola touches the ground with a bump and if you're lucky, stays put. If not, it bounces as few times, giving into the envelope's urge to keep moving forward.

For the greenhorns, the gondola bumps and bounces three times before coming to a rest on its side. The greenhorns are stacked like so many pieces of wood, howling with laughter as they try to untangle their legs.

A slight cross wind had caught the balloon as it neared the ground, making for the bumpy landing. But vived their first hot air balloon ride and found the landing to be great

A Maori craftsman carries on the woodcarving tradition of his ancestors.

MICKY JONES

Sailing is islanders' first love

It is 16 days until the first day of spring. A water skier swings past the giant Maori canoe, parked on the shore of the Bay of Islands at the northern end of the North Island.

A few miles south, the sailboats cover the harbor at Auckland, City of Sails. The tiny blue penguins come out of the sea at Wellington only by night, but the sign is there at all times to warn motorists: Don't run over the pen-

On the South Island, the gardens at Christchurch are yellow with daffodils. There are fuzzy fawns in the deer farms, just beyond the fence from the cattle herds. New born lambs dot the pastures like globs of white wool, wobbling across spring-green grass and up the steep foothills of the Southern Alps.

How steep are the pastures of New Zealand? If you buy a leg of lamb buy the downhill leg, it's longer.

There are 60 million sheep and only three million people in New Zealand, many of them sheep farmers, so you can be sure they are talking about the spring weather this week.

But most of all, they are talking about the America Cup challenge Sept. 7-11 in San Diego. They were talking about it last September, when most Americans hadn't yet heard that New Zealander Michael Fay had challenged American Dennis Connor to a rerun.

NEW ZEALANDERS love to sail. The country consists of two narrow islands running northeast to southwest for 1,000 miles, plus a few other islands scattered about the South Pacific. It's difficult to be more than 100 miles from the sea, so the kiwis spend a lot of time on the water.

To get the picture: Take a strip of the United States from Detroit to Jacksonville, Fla., divide it in two, turn it upside down, and surround it by water. It is warm, almost tropical, at the north end of the volcanic north island; cold, pointing to the Antarctic, at the south end of the mountainous South Island. Mostly mellow in between.

There were no mammals and no people here until the Maoris paddled out of Polynesia with rats aboard their giant canoes 12 centuries ago and named the place, Aotearoa, "Land of the Long White Cloud."

Captain James Cook brought a few pigs that went wild. The whalers, seal hunters and, eventually, the settlers brought the rest, including deer, dogs, cats, rabbits, sheep, all those animals that make an Englishman feel at home. Most of them went wild, making New Zealand a hunter's paradise in 1988.

The mammal immigration wasn't so good for the flightless kiwi and moa birds, who never learned to fly because they didn't have any ground enemies. The Maori's killed off all the giant moas for food. The ground animals have now made the kiwi almost extinct, although you can still see them in protected situations.

If you tour New Zealand, you will probably fly United, Air New Zealand or Continentail airlines into Auckland, New Zealand's largest city, and drive to the geysers and hot volcanic pools around Rotorua, where Maori culture is a major tourist attraction.

MOST TOURS go from there to Christchurch on the South Island and on to the popular city of Queenstown, with day tours into Milford Sound. This is one of the most beautiful areas in the world and has lots of interesting side trips, like flying to the Tasman Glacier at Mount Cook, or helisking in the New Zealand Alps.

New Zealander John Anderson founded Contiki Tours, which specializes in tours for 18- to 35-year-old travelers worldwide, so Contiki is very popular here. You can easily drive the country on your own in a rental car or a motor home (they call them caravans). There are many caravan parks, mostly in grassy fields.

The gorgeous national parks are environmentally protected, so people camp near the entrances unless they go in on foot.

Most motels in New Zealand have kitchens. Farm stays are very popular. THC Hotels, run by the New Zealand government, are adequate to good; the THC resorts are best and chain hotels are available in many places.

Sampling 'kiwi' life in the Southern Alps

Tourists tip pints, tell tales at tavern

By Iris Sanderson Jones contributing travel editor

QUEENSTOWN, N.Z.: They are all here, jammed against the old wooden bar and around the tables. The Shotover jet boat drivers, the girls who work in the Mount Cook Airline office, the guides who lead track tours to Milford Sound, the skiers trusting their luck to the melting spring slopes of The Remarkables.

It's like this year round at Eichardt's Tavern on the water-front of Queenstown, the tourist center of the South Island. The gold miners gathered in this tavern a century ago to brag about their strikes, when the Shotover River was the richest gold mine in the world.

Now, tourists from New Zealand, Australia and the United States belly up to the bar, swapping tales about hiking the Milford Track or outlasting the last weary dancer at the Penthouse, the disco upstairs.

Aussies used to be 50 percent of the New Zealand tourist trade, and you can still hear their "G'day mate," but the rest of the world is here now, too. American tourists have increased 20 percent. Airplane safety regulations are spoken in English and Japanese.

Albert Eichardt built his hotel in 1871 after winning a gold nugget in a raffle at the infamous Royal Oak Hotel in nearby Arrowtown. You can still wander the restored Arrowtown streets, and you'll find the crazy, wonderful Royal Oak Hotel.

THE EICHARDT was the heart of Queenstown during all those years when no roads ran into the mountains and everything came by steamship down Lake Wakatipu. The TSS Earnslaw, Lady of the Lake, is the only old coalburning steamship left now, and most of the beer drinkers here and in the lounge bar across the hall have ridden her into Frankton Arm or across the lake to Mount Nicholas Sheep Station to see the sheep shearing.

Streets of smart shops surround the tavern door now, selling Paua shells, carved Maori clubs, greenstone jewelry and expensive hand-knitted designer sweaters to the skiers who pay the rent in the winter months of July and August and to the summer crowds of December and January.

It takes a while to get used to hearing a Kiwi say things like "the best time to come is in the autumn months of April and May," but this is the southern hemisphere and seasons are reversed.

New Zealand has the best helicopter skiing in the world. We really loved taking the fixed-wing ski planes to Tasman Glacier on Mount Cook and skiing down!

I had met Bev and Tom Kauza of Bloomfield Hills standing on the 7,000-foot Tasman Glacier, amid the mountain grandeur of Mount Cook National Park on my way to Queenstown. Mount Cook, between Queenstown and Christchurch, is the highest peak in New Zealand at 12,349 feet. They were touring the South Pacific.

Most of the tourists on Mount Cook were on either the South Pacific tour, with quick stops at Auckland, Rotorus on the North Island, Queenstown, Christchurch and Milford Sound on the South Island, or they came to have a longer, more strenuous vacation, especially on the Milford Track, known to hiking insiders as one of the finest walking tracks in the world.

YOU HAVE to reserve months ahead to be either an independent "freedom walker" or to join the five-day, four-night escorted tour from Te Anau near Fiordland National Park to Milford Sound.

You cruise to the head of Lake Te Anau and do the first flat mile of the track, climb steep switchback trails to the 3,400-foot McKinnon Pass, across the high plateau grass and on through Arthur Valley and around Lake Ada to Milford Sound. Definitely not for strollers like me.

That's the hard way to get to Milford Sound, the only way for centuries except the way that Captain Cook came — by sea. Most of us go in by car or bus through the magnificent scenery of Fiordland National Park. Any way you go it's worth the effort to stand at the heart of the sound and see the glaciated peaks drop into the fiord or to cruise the sound to the edge of the Tasman Sea.

You can take a tour or a seaplane to Milford Sound from Queenstown. There are several other tracks out of the Queenstown, but most of us are content to exercise our elbows at Eichardt's Tavern or down the street in Queenstown Bar; eat pizza between the stone walls of The Cow or eat Mutton Bird at Roaring Megs; ride the gondola car up the steep slope to Bob's Peak for a top-of-the-world view of town;

visit the beautiful public gardens overlooking the harbor and town; or play golf on one of the two peninsulas jutting into the lake.

DRIVING downhill to the dock and watching the red boats leaving their wake between gorge walls, you might think about enjoying a view of the adjoining mountains, but the time you have rounded the first curve of river you know better.

The guides, who wrap you in orange life vests and hoods that tie up around your head, are trained to accentuate the experience, so when the jet boat takes off from the dock and heads towards the sharp edge of the nearest rock wall at 50 miles per hour, you scream with fear and delight, just like you do when you take that first long drop on a roller coaster.

North island place for culture

The best place to experience Maori life and culture is in the town of Rotorua on the North Island, especially at the Whakarewarewa Thermal Reserve.

You can tour the New Zealand Maori Arts and Crafts Institute and a complete Maori village, set in a thermal plain full of hot springs, steam and geysers.

Traditional Maori carvings are created for viewing and for sale and can be seen in use on the grounds. Several thermal areas are worth day trips out of the

Some Rotorua hotels offer the Hangi, a Maori feast and concert. You will be introduced to the dances so reminiscent of South Pacific life, the dance postures in which the tongue is used to express hostility or friendliness and the gentle sense of humor of the Maori.

organizing

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Q. Does attitude have much to do with organizing? I tend to put off my work because I dread it.

A. Attitude has everything to do with organizing. In fact, attitude has a lot to do with success in life - in career, relationships, accomplishments and even in health.

Have you ever known a person who seems to drag through life? The sun is shining, it's a beautiful day and Mr. Negative will find something to grumble about.

My best friend and neighbor in another city used a strange expression. She'd say, "I just quick picked up the toys" or "I just quick ran some errands." Nothing was a burden to Carol, her house was always immaculate without seeming effort, and she was a joy to be around.

Another neighbor was the opposite, Ms. Negative just "had" to get the vacuuming done, but she'd delay it for days. When she finally did get around to it, she'd drag out the vacuum and then find a dozen excuses not to get the job done. Mrs. Negative's home was never neat or clean, and she was frankly not much fun to be around.

Listen to your Self-Talk. Do you constantly make excuses? The pessimist says, "I don't have time," the optimist, "I can just quick do that." The pessimist, "It can't be done"; the optimist, "I can find a way." Pessimist: "That's a dirty job"; optimist: "Working up a sweat will be good for me." Pessimist: "Why should I pick up that litter?" optimist: "Someone has to do it." Pessimist: "I dread writing checks"; optimist: "I'll do it now while I have time." Pessimist: "What a problem!": optimist: "no

While not all optimists are well ordered, or vice versa, it seems people with control over their lives have a more affirmative attitude about their work. In observing them carefully, notice how they clean up after themselves almost automatically, without effort. They will show you a picture, for instance, and, instead of excusing themselves with, "I'll put it away later," they simply replace it without missing a beat. They just naturally put tools away when they are finished, hardly realizing they are doing it.

Altitude (height of success) can be determined by attitude. Many people have a positive attitude on the job vecause they know promotions depend on it, but are contrary about organizing at home. When things get into disarray, they become even more negative about restoring order, convincing themselves it is an overwhelming task. Instead of dreading work, consider it a challenge you can control.

condo queries Robert M. Meisner

Q.Our condominium is experiencing several construction defects in the common elements of the condominum. The board is perplexed as to what to do. Having met with the developer several times but getting no satisfactory response, they are concerned about the cost that might be incurred in pursuing litigation and are somewhat apprehensive about initiating any proceedings. As a member of the board, I feel they have an obligation to do so. Do you have an opinion?

A. Generally speak-ing, the board of directors of the association has the responsibility to ensure that the developer has delivered the common elements of the condominium in a workmanlike and proper fashion. To the extent that the developer has not done so, the board of directors has the responsibility to pursue the developer to ensure that it meets its legal and contractual responsibilities to the association and its members in a manner which, if pursued, could result in the institution of legal proceedings.

The association should consult with an experienced condominium-litigator in regard to the various theories or avenues available to the association in regard to dealing with the developer. Sometimes the mere presence of an experienced condominium lawyer on behalf of the association will cause certain developers to come to the negotiating table in an effort to resolve the matter amicably for fear of the ramifications of litiga-

OST REVIEWS of Blue Heron Pointe condominiums focus on the ambitious wetlands preserve being created in a reclaimed Northville gravel pit, and justly so. But the domestic preserves being built for Blue Heron's human inhabitants are equally impressive.

For starters, the words "spacious" and "gracious" come to mind on a walk-through of the Blue Heron models. And the use of recessed and arch windows in gables creates a welcome light and openness.

One enters from the private courtyard through a glasspaneled, solid oak door, hand-carved in Charlevoix. Most of the rest of the house is visible from here, including a generous view of the 18-acre lake the condos back up to.

The lavish use of oak and European ceramic tile throughout gives the feel of a country manor. Indeed, many of the prints gracing the walls were country and hunt scenes, in tune with the builder's theme.

We wanted to stay traditional, to reflect the unique character of Northville," said Earl La Fave, partner with his brother, Steven, and Dennis Park in Beck Developers, builders of Blue Heron. "This is a quaint, quiet place; we wanted to create a feeling of community within the com-

The condos come in two styles with lots of options and leeway for buyers to make minor floor plan changes so long as they don't interfere with the structure, La Fave

THE "SUNSEEKER," Blue Herons' two bedroom-two bath ranch, boasted oak tongue-and-groove flooring as a standard feature for the kitchen. Amish-built, solid oak cabinets were also standard, as were top-of-the-line G.E.

Floor plan changes could include an optional loft, to add another bedroom and 600 square feet to the ranch's 1,800square-foot area.

The model's lower level was also finished, adding another two rooms and bath to the walk-out "entertainment" area (with wet bar). This option could add another 1,000 square feet for an overall total of more than 4,000 square feet of living space in the ranch. Choice of either option would also add $25,000 to the ranch's base price of

TWO-BEDROOM COLONIAL MODELS start at $206,000 and also have a couple of variations in floor plans. The balcony loft overlooking the living room could be finished off as a third bedroom with a large walk-in closet. The master bedroom has its own private bathroom with separate glass-doored shower stalls, a standard feature in

An enticing feature of the "Skylight" colonial model was the doorwall to the deck off the formal dining room, overlooking the lake. Besides self-storing screens, which were in place in time, permitting a cool breeze to waft through, a show card listed as standard "a breath of fresh air."

While the builders hope the beach-front community will foster neighborliness and an open lifestyle, the staggered walls between units will still allow for privacy.

Billed as "a lake community," Blue Heron Pointe will have non-motorized boating, fishing, swimming and other water sports in the spring-fed lake. But the big draw will be the two-mile boardwalk, with paths and observation points around the wetlands preserve.

RESIDENTS WILL BE ABLE TO watch rare kingfishers and playful purple martins as well as blue herons in a habitat specially created by Beck's landscape architects to attract and support them.

The site had previously been owned by Old Northville Sand and Gravel Co., then an investor who wanted to build, according to La Fave. But the steep, eroded banks made it too expensive to build without extensive reclamation work.

Enter La Fave, who also owns an earth-moving company and a trucking company. The overlapping interests made it possible to reclaim and build on 39 of the 67 acres of the La Fave had the water on the site tested by an independent biologist and found it to be some of the purest in southeast Michigan. His cooperation with the Department of Natural Resources and Northville officials in the planning of his development won their blessings on the project.

Beck Development's reward for its efforts was having the condos snapped up even before they went on the mar-

Blue Heron's four phases will have a total of 140 cluster homes. La Fave expects phases two and three to be completed this summer.

Champion goose caller featured

EZ-Grunter call one of several to fill the air

Special guest speakers at the Michigan Hunting and Sports Show will in-

Harold Knight - Turkey, goose and deer calling - is a world champion goose caller and one of the founders of the famous Knight & Hale Game Calls. One of his most famous calls is the EZ-Grunter deer call but his famous Double Cluck goose call is one of the most sought after goose calls in the world. Listen to champion caller Harold Knight tell you how to call turkeys, geese and deer.

Bill Jordon - Camouflage clothing and hunting techniques - is the owner of Spartan/Realtree Camouflage Clothing, the fastest selling camouflage pattern in the world. Learn tricks on how to camouflage yourself successful, and how to add camo tricks to your hunting repertoire. Jordan has taken over a dozen whitetail bucks that would make the record books. His tips can help any hunter.

Dan Fitzgerald - Deer hunting is one of the state's leading taxidermists. He's also a highly rated video producer of hunting films for sportsmen like Noel Feather and Ben Rogers Lee. He is a leading big-game hunter, and some of his hunting techniques are very productive. Learn how and when and where to hunt Michigan's whitetail deer and black bear.

Richard P. Smith - Bear hunting - is a well-known outdoor writer and author of several fast-selling outdoor books. He has studied bears, and brings to the Detroit Hunting & Sports Show a wealth of knowledge to share with Michigans bear hunters. Smith's writings and photographs have appeared in Outdoor Life, The American Hunter and many other national magazines.

Mark Romanack - Waterfowl hunting - is a Michigan outdoor writer, and his specialty is waterfowl hunting. Learn the tricks the experts use to take these migratory gamebirds almost every time they go hunting. Learn where to go, when to hunt, decoy setting tactics, calling, tips on how to camouflage a blind or boat, and the other tricks needed to score on ducks

Herb Boldt - Rabbit hunting - is the Michigan outdoor writer for the Associated Press. His 50 years of rabbit hunting experience is second to none, and this is a chance to learn the special tactics used to score on cottontails and snowshoe hares. Guns and loads, hunting techniques and solid where-to go information will make this Dave Richey - Hunter safety - is the outdoor writer for The Detroit News, Michigan's largest daily newspaper. Richey is a popular MC for outdoor shows, and a gifted outdoor writer with over 6,000 sales to over 200 different magazines. In addition to his newspaper columns he is the author of 17 books on fishing and hunting, and has been a fishing and hunting guide. His seminars on deer hunting are very informative.

DNR hopes to nab turkey poachers

AP - Decoys are no strangers to hunters, who often use them to bag

But the Department of Natural Resources is turning the tables on turkey trackers - setting decoys to nab poachers.

Curt Bacon, law enforcement supervisor for the Department of Natural Resources division in the western Upper Peninsula, has put out the once-live but now very stuffed turkey, hoping to lure illegal hunters into officers' sights.

This spring, during one week of work, the dead turkey helped officers arrest seven would-be poachers. Bacon said DNR officers stationed themselves near the turkey, and armed themselves with videotape cameras in their war against poaching.

Bacon said one man emptied a .357caliber pistol at the extremely slowmoving turkey, made plump by a taxi-

"We had to repair it a couple of times," Bacon said.

Conservation officers and biologists have estimated that hundreds of thousands of deer are killed every year by poachers, but that no accurate number can be determined. There also have been reports of moose, wolf and other animals being shot and killed illegally.

DNR officials are planning to use stuffed deer and grouse this fall during hunting seasons. Last year, state officials estimated that 750,000 hunters invaded Michigan's woodlands during the firearms deer season in late No-

This year, Bacon and other officers hope to be able to bag a few poachers before they illegally bag wildlife.

Bacon said after one of the alleged poachers blasted away at the already dead bird, he inspected his kill closely.

"One gingerly got within five yards of it, bent down and stared at the bird for five or 10 seconds to see if it would move," Bacon said. "Then he made a half-circle around it and kicked it to make sure.

Oil royalties to boost state, local recreation and ecology projects

Royalties from oil and gas drilling on state land will provide $20.1 million this year for state and local recreation projects and preservation of ecologically sensitive areas throughout Michi-

The royalties were paid to the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund, which will finance or all part of 60 projects chosen from among more than 300

The largest grant, $4 million, will help the state Department of Natural Resources' Wildlife Division buy private property within game and wildlife areas in the southern Lower Peninsula and within an hour's drive of major urban areas elsewhere in Michigan.

The smallest grant, $7,900, will allow Burt Township in the Upper Peninsula's Alger County to buy one acre of land near Grand Marais, an area identified as a nesting site for the piping plover.

Other trust fund grants will be used to develop marina, boat launch and pier facilities in cities as large as Detroit and as small as Caseville on Lake Huron's Saginaw Bay.

Grants also will be used to preserve about 27 acres of dunes and wetlands in Charlevoix County; to add three undeveloped lakes to the Pere Marquette Forest in Missaukee County; and to develop an urban recreation trail along the Red Cedar and Grand rivers in Oakland County's West Bloomfield Township will use a $500,000 trust fund grant to help finance its $4.3 million purchase of 162 acres of woodlands bisected by the Rouge River. The land now is owned by a local developer.

Helpful hints for better shooting cause a spectator watching a skilled marksman can't feel the concentration of the person behind the trigger or be aware of the well-practiced techniques that the shooter is putting into use.

However, anyone willing to put forth a little effort can become a proficient marksman, regardless of size, weight, sex or athletic ability. And

The following tips for better shooting are provided by Daisy Manufacturing Co., which has taught more than seven million Americans the fundamentals of shooting.

Daisy, which manufactures firearms as well as air guns, recommends learning to shoot and practicing with an air gun.

The skills necessary to shoot BB guns and pellet rifles well are the same as those used in firearms marksmanship. But air guns don't kick or make much noise; the ammunition and guns are inexpensive, and air guns may be shot safely in the backvard or the basement if the weather is unpleasant STABILITY IS ONE of the keys to sharp shooting. Of the four standard shooting positions - standing, they squeeze the trigger.

A good shooter makes good shoot- kneeling, sitting and prone - prone ing look easy. But that's only be- is the most stable because more parts of the body are in contact with the ground. Conversely, the standing, or off-hand, position is the least stable and most challenging. For greatest accuracy and stability, try resting your gun on a sturdy platform such as a table or fence post.

How a target appears through a gun's sights varies with different types of sights, but as a general rule you should focus on the front sight rather than the rear sight or the tar-

The key to hitting the mark every time is consistency in shooting technique. Shoot groups of three-five shots at a paper bull's eye, then adjust your rear sight to compensate for groups hitting off center, rather than aiming off center to compensate for a gun that is shooting high or low.

Raising a rear sight will raise where the projectile hits. Moving it to the right will place the projectile further to the right.

Another key to shooting accurately is breath control. The act of breathing causes the gun to waiver, so most shooters gain stability by taking a deep breath, letting out about a third of it, then holding what's left while

Drought leaves ducks in decline

AP - Duck hunters will be asked to get up later, shoot fewer birds and pack up their gear several days earlier this season because of the drought and a decline of ducks and wetland habi-

The aim of new federal guidelines, which also would suspend a point system used by several states, is to cut the number of ducks killed - 9.4 million were shot down last year - by 25

"Hunting is not the cause of the current decline in duck numbers," U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Director Frank Dunkle said recently in unveiling the proposed regulations. "However, it is one influence that must be regulated when populations are low.

"The long-term health of waterfowl depends on our ability to protect and enhance the wetland habitats which sustain these creatures," he said.

The continuing drought in midcontinental North America has increased pressure on wetlands already in decline because of the spread of civilization and other factors.

Dunkle's announcement proposed guidelines for hunting seasons to be set by each state this fall. The framework is still open to public comment and will not become law until mid-Sep-

"It's been a terrible year for ducks," Fish and Wildlife spokesman Craig Reiben said. The projected fall flight of ducks in migration is 66 million the second lowest on record. The service, in cooperation with Canadian wildlife officials, wants to build up migration to 100 million. Canada already has announced a scaled-back hunt.

There are an estimated 1.5 million duck hunters in the United States.

Dunkle, in proposing the regulations, went further than the recommendations of the agency's regulations committee and addressed some concerns expressed at a public hearing earlier in the week.

He indirectly endorsed a "national hunter restraint" program announced by the pro-hunting North American Wildlife Foundation which urged hunters to buy state licenses and fed-

The duck stamps, Dunkle said, will help preserve duck breeding areas.

Dunkle did not heed pleas from Eastern and Southern states to be exempted from the hunt restrictions because birds along the Atlantic flyway migratory route are not expected to de-

Several groups, including some representing duck hunters, have proposed a no-hunt season to help build up duck populations across the United States and Canada. Some accuse the government of not imposing it because it doesn't want to lose the revenue from duck stamps.

The proposed guidelines include an elimination of hunting before sunrise. The hunt traditionally begins a halfhour before sunup. The point system, which would be eliminated across the country pending further study, had allowed hunters to shoot more of abundant species and fewer of those that are endangered. Critics of the system say it tempts dishonest hunters to throw out less common hirds so they can shoot more of those with lower point values.

The length of the season would be reduced from a maximum of 40 days to 30 days in most areas. It also would be cut back 25 percent in areas where it has been longer than 40 days.

Bag limits across the country would be reduced by one duck, generally to three per day.

Dunkle also proposed a limited season for pintail ducks, with a daily bag limit of one duck in its first seven days. After a break in the hunt, another limited hunt would be allowed in some areas, with a limit of two male pintails. The length of the second phase of the hunt would vary from

The special bonus seasons for teals and scaups would be suspended for 1988, and last year's limited ban on canvasbacks would become total.

The regular season could be set by states anytime between Oct. 8 and Jan. 8. Last year's closings ranged from Jan. 10 to Jan. 18, depending on
