Plymouth-bred Russell Kirk, 70, was among 38 Americans honored by President Reagan at the White House recently. The conservative author and syndicated columnist was awarded a Presidential Citizens Medal recognizing outstanding service to the country in a private ceremony at the White House.

Also honored were Detroit financier Max Fisher and U.S. Sens. Bob Dole, Strom Thurmond and U.S. Rep. Robert Michael.

Taking delivery

The Plymouth-Canton Community school district is the lucky recipient of a new Cadillac and GMC Suburban truck. The vehicles arrived compliments of General Motors' Livonia Engine Plant and GMC Truck Division.

"This will greatly improve the hands-on experiences that our students need in acquiring technical skills so necessary in their pursuit of careers in the automotive industry," said Harold Gaertner, director of vocational-technical education.

Unfortunately, students won't be able to borrow the keys. The vehicles aren't licensed. After the truck and car are used, they'll be scrapped.

Extra miler

Betty Kitti, secretary to area coordinator Kenneth Jacobs at Canton High School, was presented the "Extra Miler" award recently by Dean Swartzwelder, Plymouth-Canton School Board vice president. Kitti began working for the school district in 1973 as a substitute educational aide.

Swartzwelder cited her by reading a mock want ad for a super secretary. He commented on her organization, clerical skills, cheerfulness and her ability to deal with all kinds of people.

Kitti will receive a framed "Extra Miler" certificate, a pin of the flag of learning and liberty and a dinner certificate for two donated by the Mayflower Hotel, Plymouth.

Sign update

What will it be — 32 or 18 square feet? Or maybe something in between. We're talking signs here and what lies ahead in the city of Plymouth.

New standards have been proposed by the planning commission. The city commission will delve into those recommendations at a study meeting after its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 6, at city hall, 201 S. Main.

Low pressure

If you turn on your water faucet and only a trickle comes out, don't fret.

City of Plymouth residents might experience low water pressure 11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 4, through 8 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 5, due to the City of Detroit undertaking major repairs at the sub-station at Eight Mile and Inkster roads.

If you have any questions, call the city at 453-7737.

Literacy push

The Community Literacy Council is sponsoring a special tutor training workshop for volunteers who are interested in helping teach English to adults and children from other countries.

The training will take place 6:30-9:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 13, and Wednesday, Feb. 15, at Starkweather Center in Plymouth. All materials and training are free.

For more information, call Sharon Streat, 451-6555.

Warrants sought in rest stop arrests

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Michigan State Police are seeking warrants for 15 men arrested for solicitation of homosexual activity at the I-275 rest stop near Cherry Hill in Canton Township.

Arrests, made Wednesday and Thursday, were part of a sting operation conducted in Canton and at rest stops on I-94 in Van Buren Township and I-96 in Novi.

About 20 undercover officers from the Northville and Ypsilanti state police posts made 41 arrests.

Those arrested are from Canton, Westland, Livonia, Southfield, West Bloomfield, Dearborn, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Taylor, Belleville, Inkster, Romulus and Southgate. Residents of Indiana, Illinois, Utah, Nebraska, Florida, North Carolina and Ohio also were given citations.

OFFICERS CONFISCATED two semitrailer trucks from the I-94 rest stop valued at $350,000. The trucks, seized under the nuisance abatement act, have been returned to their owners.

State police acted in response to "numerous calls from travelers and families who are harassed at the rest stops by prostitutes and homosexuals," said Trooper Ernest Bucks.

Det. Sgt. Dean Sanderson said those arrested in Canton included several truck drivers, a Ford Motor Co. engineer, a salesman, an unemployed researcher, a construction worker, mechanic, warehouse employee and a vice president for a marketing firm.

ALSO ARRESTED were an unemployed auto worker from Inkster who rode his daughter's bicycle to the rest stop, a medical lab technician, and a truck driving school student. The men ranged in age from their early 20s to late 50s, Sanderson said.

Their names were withheld until warrants are issued.

Solicitation for sexual activities is a 90-day misdemeanor.

"This is an ongoing problem that seems to be getting worse. We want to put an end to this. Rest stops will no longer be places for illegal activity of this nature," said Det. Lt. Donald Hoder.

"We do intend to use the nuisance abatement act to confiscate vehicles wherever possible. That way we can get their attention and make an impact," said Det. Sgt. Norman Maxwell.

THE LAW has been used in Detroit, where police have seized the cars and trucks of men soliciting prostitutes. Vehicles can be confiscated if the drivers own them and if the drivers are engaging in or soliciting sex for money.

Man injured in wreck during alleged chase

By Doug Funke
staff writer

A 26-year-old Walled Lake man, injured after his vehicle rammed two cars while he was allegedly fleeing Plymouth Township police late Wednesday, was reported in guarded condition Friday at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia.

The man was arrested by police after a 3½-minute chase when his vehicle struck a car on Farmer Street and sent it more than 100 feet across Sheldon Road, police said.

The man wasn't wearing a seat belt and sustained a head laceration, police reported.

The two teens in the vehicle hit by the man's car at Sheldon also weren't wearing seat belts, but weren't seriously injured, police said.

Earlier in the pursuit, the man rammed a car that had pulled out of the way on Starkweather at Farmer in the city of Plymouth, police reported. That driver, who was wearing a seat belt, wasn't seriously injured.

POLICE OBTAINED a search warrant to draw blood samples from the man after he was apprehended.

Carl Berry, police chief, declined to comment on the blood samples or man's driving record.

Officer Eric Anderson-Smith reported that he spotted a man driving erratically on westbound Five Mile near Bradner at about 9:55 p.m. He reported clocking the vehicle's speed, with radar, at 53 mph.

Anderson-Smith reported following at speeds of 30 to 45 mph.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

A man was arrested after his truck hit a car on Farmer Street and sent it more than 100 feet across Sheldon.

Anderson-Smith said he activated his flashers immediately when starting the pursuit, then turned on his siren near the Plymouth Hilton on Northville Road south of Five Mile.

THE PURSUIT followed on Northville Road to Starkweather, Starkweather to Farmer and on Farmer to nearly Sheldon.

During the pursuit, the man drove through a red traffic signal, a yellow traffic signal and two stop signs without stopping, Anderson-Smith reported.

The suspect vehicle also made several attempts to cut him off, An-

Anderson-Smith reported. Berry said Anderson-Smith learned that the driver wasn't wanted on outstanding warrants during the pursuit. The officer didn't violate departmental policy in continuing the chase.

"What do you do — let him go?" Berry said. "There's always the possibility he's going to get home safe, but he might take someone out head on. You never know."

"You've got a guy in this instance all over the roadway," Berry said. "There weren't major speeds involved. The officer had his overhead lights and siren activated."

Complaints prompt action plan

Subdivision immediately east of the plant.

The most recent uprising followed the release last December of a noise study conducted last summer jointly funded by the township and Howmet.

A sound engineer concluded that noise coming from Howmet is equal to but not greater than other background noise in the general area contributed by traffic, airplanes, trains and other business activity.

HOMEOWNERS rejected that conclusion, cast doubt on the validity of the study and continue to complain about "noise from the facility, noxious emissions and storage activity on the premises."

About 70 people signed a letter asking for the township to intercede on their behalf.

"We want to have some time during the day when we can have peace and quiet," said Maria Mathews, spokeswoman for the residents. "We want some relief."

James Anulewicz, township planning director, wrote to Howmet officials last week asking them to respond to the complaints and some specific recommendations made by the consultant in the noise study.

Anulewicz asked for "a written action plan giving specific actions that Howmet will take and specific time frames for beginning and ending such actions."

Ron Hitzel, Howmet plant manager, said he intends to respond to the complaints, but doesn't expect to present an action plan with timetables.

"There's no easy solution," he said. "Action plans, time lines say you have a solution."

The noise consultant recommended that Howmet consider:

- Resurfacing its driveway, parking lot and storage areas to eliminate rattling noise produced by small fork-lift trucks.

• Minimizing material handling outside the plant with forklifts, especially at night.

• Banning all truck engine idling on the premises any time the outdoor temperature exceeds 50 degrees.

• Enclosing the outdoor storage area.

• Establishing alternative routes for large delivery trucks at the west end of the plant and relocating the loading docks.

ANULEWICZ REQUESTED a response by Feb. 15. The township board is expected to take up the matter Feb. 28.

"We have to look at how it will affect business and what the cost will be and will it really answer the problem?" Hitzel said of the recommendations.

Hitzel said he sympathizes with the homeowners. The subdivision was there before the plant was built in the mid '60s, he said.

"There should never be industry that close to homes," Hitzel said. "It's done. We're stuck."

"We've got to work together to find a solution, and these people have to get more than they're getting. We shouldn't stop trying to do better than we are today," he said.

"I know we're not going to get zero noise," Mathews said. "Some improvement is better than none."

The noise study last summer also revealed that the township's noise ordinance is outdated. That's also under review.

Warrants sought for 15 in arrests emphasis the next time we conduct these operations. We feel it will be a main deterrent."

Complaints have come from families, travelers and even elderly women, Maxwell said.

"One gentleman reported that he came in to the restroom, was going to go to the bathroom and a man began blowing kisses at him. We had a 77-year-old lady propositioned," said Maxwell.

"WE'VE ARRESTED a chiropractor, a podiatrist, a seventh grade teacher, a Ford engineer, an insurance salesman, laid off GM and Ford workers, truck drivers, engineers, an engineer with Detroit Edison," he added.

Sanderson, approached several times while working undercover at the Canton rest stop, said "The disturbing thing to me is that with all the media attention about AIDS, you'd think people would know unsafe sex is going to kill you."

"But not once did any of these males ever say they wanted to engage in safe sex. They're seeking anonymous, blatant activity — quick, easy sex. It's occurring in vehicles and buildings in full view of everyone."

PEOPLE ARRESTED at rest stops in the future will be jailed if they can't pay a $100 bond on the spot, said Sanderson.

"If you don't have the full amount, we aren't going to take you to an automatic money teller," he said. "It's embarrassing to have to call your family asking for money."

Officers came across a national magazine for traveling gay people that rates rest stops according to the availability of homosexual opportunity, Sanderson said.

"All the rest stops in southeastern Michigan received four stars. People in other states are well aware of activity in these rest areas. What does that say for the state?"

"People expect that rest stops are safe, clean and secure. We're going to see that that end is met."

An inspection of the tower is set for spring.

Water tower to get cleaning, inspection

Plymouth Township's 400,000-gallon elevated water tank on Wilcox Road next to Fire Station No. 2 will receive an inspection and cleaning this spring.

"It's steel. Steel and water get rust," said Paul Jones, public services director for the township.

"If there are too many pits, you set up a program for repairing, mostly by welding," Jones said. "Then you paint to protect steel."

The tank will be drained, inspected and then repaired, if necessary. Cost of a cleaning and inspection is estimated at $1,700.

The tank provides a reserve of water for periods of high demand. Water, which periodically is introduced into lines serving the township, doesn't stagnate in the tank, Jones said.

The tank was last inspected in 1987 and last painted in 1981, he said. It's worth about $500,000.

Students show mettle in recycling

A can-do attitude at Bird Elementary School last week brought out the message about the need to recycle as a method for saving natural resources.

Carol Breed's class collected 3,400 tin and aluminum cans during a recycling project launched at the start of the year.

In an effort to learn more about recycling needs and a crisis in landfill space, a group of students went to a Wayne County meeting on solid waste management.

And last Friday County Executive Edward McNamara paid a visit to the classroom. His gift was a proclamation applauding the students for their recycling efforts.

The students entertained their parents, McNamara and other county officials with a play, "We CAN help." The first act was on overpackaging; the second act was titled "Michael recycling and his pollution solutions;" the third act was about Mother Earth; and the fourth act was titled "Itsy, Bitsy Choices."

The idea for the recycling project started when Breed's daughter returned as an exchange student from Germany.

"When she came home she was very enthused," Breed said. "I started doing it . . . and when school started I started our class in it. They just love it, they bring cans in every morning. The parents take turns in going to the recycling center."

Condominium project worries school officials

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

A condominium project being built on the boundary of the Plymouth-Canton and Northville school districts has area school officials concerned about the potential loss of more than $2 million in annual tax revenue.

A recent amendment to Michigan's school code permits condominium associations with property in two districts to join one of them if a two-thirds majority of the association approves.

The Country Club Village of Northville is under construction on what is now Dun Rovin Golf Course on Haggerty between Five Mile and Six Mile in Northville Township. A portion of the development is in the Plymouth-Canton district.

Condominiums and single-family homes priced at $180,000 and up will surround a nine-hole golf course.

THERE WILL BE 684 units in all. "I know the builder has inquired of Northville schools about the possibility of being annexed," said Plymouth-Canton Superintendent John Hoben. "I imagine they're trying to sell the condos on the basis that kids would attend schools in the Northville system as opposed to Plymouth."

State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, cosponsored the bill, introduced by State Rep. Susan Grimes Munsell, R-Fowlerville.

Plymouth-Canton school officials have made cutbacks in the wake of several failed millage requests the past few years.

As of next year, the district expects it will no longer be eligible for financial aid from the state. Based on the current school aid formula, the district won't qualify for funding due to a large increase in its local property values.

HOBEN ISN'T happy about Kosteva's support of the bill.

The amendment allows another district "to take your SEV (state equalized valuation) away. That means we could go out and rob South Lyon or somebody else. It just seems to be a poor piece of legislation," said Hoben.

"It's particularly disturbing to have one of our own legislators supporting it. We hate to give up any of our tax base, particularly if we're going out of formula."

Kosteva said "the district boundary went right through the condo project. There was no means under state law by which the boundary could be changed through a complex."

"This simply states that since the property is commonly owned, once you receive a two-thirds favorable vote from the owners of a condo complex, the boundary can be changed."

Under the law, the condominium association must petition the Wayne County Intermediate School District if it wishes to switch school districts.

"AS OF YET, we haven't heard anything" from the association, said Daniel Manthe, associate superintendent of the intermediate school district. "If they're interested, a petition must be presented to the district. The district then makes contact with each of the districts involved to determine the effect upon each of them."

"A hearing is held by the intermediate school district at which time the public is notified and the opportunity is given to each school district, plus any of the individual citizens who are involved or interested, to respond."

"It's way too early to make any evaluation on this. It's a brand new issue," Manthe said.

RAY HOEDEL, associate superintendent for business, would oppose the redistricting.

"If they (the condominium association) ever did petition, the intermediate school district would consult us to see if we mind, and of course we do. They (the intermediate school district) would say no, and that would be the end of it."

"We are hurting so badly we just wouldn't give it up because of the best interests of the district. We can use any help we can get in SEV growth."

"We keep cutting here and there and sooner or later, we're going to have (to) start bringing things back, lower the class sizes and so on in the district."

Nearly 16,000 students attend Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. The district's budget totals $55 million.

Communities react to county jail site news

By Wayne Pool
staff writer

One area leader is relieved his community probably won't be home to the new Wayne County Jail, while another isn't overly concerned the new jail might be placed in his community's back yard.

Hamtramck, Highland Park and Romulus have surfaced as potential sites for the new jail, county officials confirmed.

The number of potential sites was greeted with a sigh of relief from Westland Mayor Charles Griffin.

"IT'S DEFINITELY good news for us," Griffin said. "That many sites means we've been bumped down the totem pole."

The new jail would be placed in Westland, county executive Edward McNamara said, unless another site could be found.

Though the two Romulus sites under consideration are in the Van Born/Hannan Road area, just south-east of the Canton Township border, township supervisor Thomas Yack said he wasn't especially concerned about the sites.

"We haven't heard too much about it, except through the newspapers," Yack said. "Personally, I don't think it would have a definite effect upon Canton. We wouldn't have offered a site for the jail, but I suppose we should be glad someone did. It is something that's needed."

'It's definitely good news for us. That many sites means we've been bumped down the totem pole.'

— Charles Griffin,
Westland mayor

Romulus, however, appears to be the least likely site among the three communities.

The jail would go to the "community that expressed the most interest," McNamara said. Both Highland Park and Hamtramck have expressed more interest than has Romulus, at least at this point, he added. Of the three communities, McNamara said Highland Park has expressed the most interest.

The Westland site, at Michigan and Merriman, once housed a state mental hospital. City officials have long sought commercial development on the site.

"We've always felt the site had more value that way than as a jail," Griffin said.

A JAIL site is expected to be announced before Saturday, April 1, McNamara said. The jail is expected to open its doors within 18 months after that date.

The new jail will be built with the 1-mill jail tax approved by county voters last August. The new jail is intended for misdemeanor offenders, including drunk drivers, welfare and alimony cheats and other non-violent criminals.

Misdemeanor offenders currently aren't held at the downtown county jail due to a lack of space.

In related news, the county has entered into a one-year contract with Alpena County for additional jail space.

Ten misdemeanor offenders have already been sent to the Alpena jail, 250 miles north of Detroit, according to a spokeswoman for Sheriff Robert Ficano.

Wayne County prisoners will ultimately occupy 32 beds at the 68-bed Alpena jail. The county is paying $40 per day for each prisoner.

The prisoners sent to Alpena were originally sentenced to perform community service projects, the spokeswoman said, but failed to show for work.

A special sheriff's unit has been assigned to arrest such no shows.

Entries sought in humane society photo contest

Photographers are encouraged to enter photos of their pets in the second annual Michigan Humane Society Photo Contest.

The contest benefits the humane society's emergency rescue division.

Photos may be entered in four categories: pets, pets and people, farm animals and wildlife. A $3 entry fee must accompany each photo.

Only prints 5 by 7 inches to 11 by 14 inches may be entered. Entries must contain the name, address and telephone number of the photographer. All photos become humane society property and may be used in society promotions.

graphic quality, composition and ability to capture the animal's nature, beauty or relationship with other subjects.

There will be a grand prize and first, second, third and honorable mention prizes in each category.

Winning entries will be published in the "MHS News" this summer. They will also be exhibited at the Fisher Building, Detroit, from April 29 through May 15.

All prizes, including two Minolta 35mm camera outfits, have been donated by City Camera, Dearborn.

Additional information, including a list of prizes, is available by calling 872-3400.

There is evidence that diet and cancer are related. Follow these modifications in your daily diet to reduce chances of getting cancer

1. Eat more high fiber foods such as fruits and vegetables and whole grain cereals.
2. Include dark green and deep yellow fruits and vegetables rich in vitamins A and C.
3. Include cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts, kohlrabi and cauliflower.
4. Be moderate in consumption of salt-cured, smoked, and nitrite-cured foods.
5. Cut down on total fat intake from animal sources and fats and oils.
6. Avoid obesity.
7. Be moderate in consumption of alcoholic beverages.

No one faces cancer alone.

Grapefruit won't make you skinny

I just came back from a short visit at Momma's. When I offered to take her and Dad out to dinner at their favorite restaurant (the Sign of the Beecarver), I was interrupted with the classic New Year's phrase, "Sorry, we're on our diets."

When questioned about what type of a diet they were "on," I was told about this miracle diet that was passed along on a Xeroxed sheet of paper from Uncle Bill that had the follower eating grapefruit before every meal.

Momma couldn't believe the results — she had lost more than six pounds in just two days! (Sounds like they were weighing themselves on the carpet again.)

So, the thought came to me to do a little research and check out if grapefruit really was the dietetic panacea that Momma thinks.

Sorry, Momma.

SEEMS THAT the old grapefruit has an uncertain history that may have had its beginnings as a "bud sport" or mutation from some other type of citrus tree.

It was first noticed in Barbados in 1750 when it was called the "small shaddock" because it bore a resemblance to the pumello or shaddock, which was brought to Barbados from Indonesia by a Captain Shaddock of the English East India Company.

The name "grapefruit" was first used in Jamaica in 1814. It is thought the name arose because the trees bore large clusters of fruit that resembled clusters of grapes. It was first planted in Florida but didn't become a successful commercial crop until the 1880s.

NOW FOR the bad news . . .

There is no scientific documentation on record that shows the consumption of grapefruit prior, with or after meals will enhance weight reduction.

Yes, it is true that grapefruit is low in calories and is a good source of fiber. In its fresh state, grapefruit has excellent amounts of pectin, potassium, vitamin C and other vitamin-like substances.

But as the "magic potion" label that Momma has bestowed upon it to lose weight — well, that has yet to be proven. Granted, if you only eat grapefruit, you will experience weight loss. Same goes for Southern Comfort Manhattans.

As far as Momma's claim that eating grapefruit before meals will make her lose weight, that is a distinct possibility. Grapefruit, as with any other fruit (or juice), will serve to fill you up faster. Therefore, you eat lesser quantities of foods (presumably speaking, of course).

But that magical potion that "burns off the fat" even while you sleep?

Sorry, Momma.

WHATEVER YOU DO, please don't stop eating grapefruit. As quoted earlier, it is an excellent source of vitamins and nutrients and is especially loaded with vitamin C. Just don't expect two grapefruit per day to be the missing link in helping you shed those little love handles that mysteriously appeared during the holidays.

Sorry, Momma.

Breakfast — it's a biggie

By Charlene Mitchell
special writer

Calorie counters and cholesterol worriers may not want to face this fact, but the big, hearty breakfast is back in vogue.

This isn't to say that fresh fruit, yogurt and low-calorie health foods are losing ground, but for some hearty appetites only a filling breakfast will start the day off right.

Area eateries specializing in early-morning menus are conscious of the fact that a lot of us are concerned about not putting on extra pounds, and have adjusted their recipes accordingly.

Bode's in Plymouth has been serving 5 a.m. breakfast for nearly 18 years. Only in the last couple of years has the owner-chef, Richard Meacham, been asked to cut back on some of the butter and salt.

"Lately, they ask if we use real eggs," said Meacham, who took over the longtime restaurant in 1979.

"So far, they do want real eggs, not the imitation kind, but we do have six regular breakfast customers who eat just the whites."

Meacham said that scrambled egg whites or an omelette made without the yolk do look a little strange, but they're a lot lighter.

Let's get back to what this story is all about. The big tummy-warming breakfast that may be a bit heavy on the calorie count, but is mm-mm-good all the way to the last bite.

At Bode's it's the restaurant's famous corned beef hash served up in a heaping pile alongside two farm fresh eggs with toast and coffee.

At the popular Birmingham Cafe it's big bowls of Quaker oats topped with butter, raisins, fresh cream, cinnamon and brown sugar. A stack of toast on the side, and maybe even a side of bacon and eggs to go along with it.

If that sounds like a lot of food for a sunrise appetite, it is, but some early birds say it's the only way to go.

"Our customers are a real mix of different kinds of people," said Phil Ostach, owner-chef of the Birmingham Cafe. "Some just come in for coffee, but others like to eat a very full breakfast early in the morning before work, but they don't want to cook it themselves."

Running neck and neck with oatmeal, the gold medal of breakfasts at the Birmingham Cafe is what the chef calls "the ultimate omelette." At a glance this omelette looks more like it is made to feed a group rather than one individual, and often two people will split it.

"It's a big omelette, but it's full of all kinds of very healthy things," said Ostach, whose commanding physique tells you that he didn't grow up eating diet foods.

Flavored pizza crusts have 'edge in taste'

By Arlene Funke
special writer

Bite into the crunchy pizza crust and savor the smooth, buttery flavor of fresh parmesan cheese.

You're tasting one of the flavored crusts available at the Hungry Howie's pizza chain, headquartered in Livonia.

"I think the flavored crust adds a nice touch," said Steven Jackson, 34, president of Hungry Howie's. "I don't know of anyone else who's doing it."

Hungry Howie's takes a basic pizza and fancies up the crust with the customer's choice of seven flavors, or seasonings: plain, sesame seed, buttered, buttered parmesan cheese, poppy seed, rye and garlic.

Each bite of the warm and spicy crust is packed with flavor. There is no extra charge for the special crusts, which Hungry Howie's calls "the edge in taste."

The flavors have been available for around two years. In the fiercely competitive pizza market, it's a way of stepping away from the pack, according to Jackson, a 1973 graduate of Garden City East High School.

"WE WANTED to find the market areas that weren't overly developed and then utilize these opportunities to the fullest," Jackson said. "It's a nice niche for us. There was a time period when every customer said, 'What's a flavored crust?'"

Hungry Howie's was founded in the Detroit area in 1973 and currently has 142 stores in six states — Michigan, Florida, California, Colorado, Georgia and North Carolina. There are 45 stores in the metro Detroit area. Franchising began in 1982.

The chain has no sit-down restaurants. All are carry-out or delivery service. Pizzas are two-for-one price. A family of four can dine for around $10.

"At first we were the typical mom and pop shops," specializing in pizza and submarine sandwiches, Jackson said.

COMPANY OFFICIALS are local people, many with several years' experience with other pizza companies or fast-food restaurants.

Jackson, a Farmington Hills resident, scrapped his plans to become an elementary school teacher when he discovered the pizza business.

He dropped out of Eastern Michigan University in his senior year and teamed up with Jim Hearn, a former Dearborn Heights man who now oversees the Hungry Howie's operations in Florida.

The company's director of franchise is Al Abdou, 28, of Northville. He grew up in Redford and Farmington, graduating in 1978 from Farmington High School.

JIM SMITH, 26, of Westland trains new franchisees and employees. Much of the training takes place in the Hungry Howie's store in Redford.

"Most of the customers don't know about the flavored crust," said Smith, as he slathered tomato sauce on the unbaked pizza and tossed on onions, green pepper and Italian sausage.

"But it's making a big surge," Smith said.

Employees are trained to suggest the flavors when orders are taken, he said. Periodic taste tests also are aimed at increasing customer awareness.

According to Smith, the pizzas are "dressed" with the usual ingredients before flavors are added along the edge.

THE SESAME seed flavor is one of the more popular varieties, Smith said. First, water is sprinkled lightly onto the perimeter of the unbaked crust. Then the seeds are dusted on. The water holds them in place.

The pizza is whisked into a conveyor oven, set at 450 degrees. The baking rack moves along slowly. The pie emerges, six minutes later, golden-brown, deliciously fragrant and ready to eat.

The buttered and buttered parmesan cheese flavors are added after baking so they will melt into the warm crust.

"IT DEPENDS on location, but the buttered cheese and sesame seed are generally our most popular flavors," Smith said.

Hungry Howie's is just one of several locally based pizza chains. Little Caesars of Farmington Hills is moving to downtown Detroit, and Domino's is based near Ann Arbor.

Abdou calls the local market the "proving grounds" for acceptance. Jackson said metro Detroit is, "bar none, the most competitive in the country."

"Pizza is becoming more popular all over the country," he said. "It's a good food and it's a nutritious product."

Big breakfasts return to favor

"People like good food and most of our breakfast customers go on binges now and then. Even the health-conscious people love my omelettes — and, no, the mixture of cheeses is not the low-calorie kind."

Ostach and his wife, Patti, begin their day in the kitchen around 4 a.m. getting the tables set, putting the coffee on and preparing the mixture for the dozens of "ultimate omelettes" they will serve each morning.

One customer who confessed eating there at least four days a week called the cozy restaurant "The London Chop House" of Birmingham, only cheaper. His comments got a lot of laughs from the folks who were waiting in line that particular morning.

None seemed bothered with the five-minute or so delay. They knew by the wonderful aroma coming from the kitchen that it was worth the wait.

"Their food is just so good," said Lillie Farmer of Southfield, who works at a nearby office building. "I usually stop in here a couple of mornings a week because I like to have a homemade breakfast and good conversation with people I meet in here."

LIKE BODE'S, the Birmingham Cafe is quickly developing into the "in" spot to eat, and meet. But both owners say it's the good food that keeps customers coming back.

Recently, World Wrestling Federation champ George "Animal" Steele had breakfast at Bode's.

"He ate a tremendous pile of sliced corned beef, perhaps a pound of it, with several eggs," said the chef, who was disappointed that the muscle man didn't opt for the corned beef hash instead.

"We make our own hash and that's what we're famous for. People from all over come here for breakfast, and 80 percent of them are regular customers," Meacham said.

IN FARMINGTON HILLS, Andy's Cafe (formerly Sunrise Cafe) is a breakfast stop with a following of dedicated customers.

Attracting hungry folks from West Bloomfield, Farmington Hills and Southfield, owner-chef Andy Illich brags about his homemade oat bran muffins, which he says sell out each morning.

"The muffins are tasty and they're healthy," Illich said.

They go great with his Egg

Beaters omelette, he said.

"Around here, a lot of ladies come in for breakfast, and many of them are very slim and worried about their weight," he said.

Illich said he makes more omelettes from (artificial) Egg Beaters, or with only egg whites, than regular omelettes.

Also favored by the early risers are regular and Belgian waffles topped with homemade fruit sauce, which is cooked right on the premises.

"We have fresh hot apple topping, blueberry and cherry. Some people like a big scoop of ice cream to really make it a heavy meal," Illich said.

That's heavy all right, but just the idea of having so many good things to choose from is enough to make even the strictest dieter's mouth water.

1 fistful chopped fresh tomatoes
Have omelette skillet hot. Melt 1 tablespoon butter, and let veggies cook for about 1½ minutes, stirring continuously. Let soften, but keep slightly crunchy. Pour egg mixture over the omelette and let cook another 60 seconds or so. Add ½ cup of blended cheeses that have been melted in microwave for 20 seconds. Use combination of American, Swiss and cheddar. After cheese is melted, pour it onto eggs and fold in half, turnover style. Ready to serve.

The "Birmingham Omelette," also on menu, uses only broccoli, and customer selects from any combination of cheeses, which include American, Swiss, cheddar, feta, cream cheese or Monterey Jack.

Try something different by cooking with fennel

This year can be as exciting or as dull, as romantic or as lonely, as you want to make it.

One thing you can do to get off to a good start is to perk up your menus with items you haven't tried before. Be daring, and get out of that rut you've been in.

Most Americans have become acquainted with fennel seeds. Their anise-seed-like flavor is commonly used to season Italian sausage, meatballs and other foods. But fewer cooks are familiar with the fennel bulb, and many don't even recognize it when they come across it in the produce department.

If you haven't tried using it as a vegetable, you've been missing out on a good thing. In Italy, fennel is the symbol of flattery and the emblem of heroism, and is believed to have an aphrodisiac effect on those who consume it.

Any plant claimed to make you brave, glib and sexy is certainly worth trying, wouldn't you say?

Almost all of the fennel plant is edible — the seeds, the stalk, the leaves and the bulb. The bulb is delicious sliced and served raw in salads, like celery, or cooked in any number of ways. Use the stems as you would asparagus, and the leaves to add flavor to soups and salads.

Here are a few fennel recipes you might like to try.

FENNEL AND GREEN BEAN SALAD

- 2 pounds fresh green beans
- 2 tablespoons mustard
- ¾ cup good olive oil
- 3 tablespoons freshly chopped parsley
- 3 large fennel bulbs
- 6 tablespoons lemon juice
- 3 tablespoons basil or chives
- salt and pepper to taste

Trim the beans, and blanch for five to seven minutes in boiling salted water. Drain, and rinse with cold water.

Cut fennel bulbs in half, and remove the cores. Then slice thinly, crosswise.

Mix with green beans, and pile into a large bowl.

In another bowl, mix together the mustard, lemon juice and olive oil, and salt and pepper to taste. Pour over vegetables, add herbs and toss well.

Refrigerate to marinate, until ready to serve.

FENNEL AND CUCUMBER SALAD

- 1 cucumber, thinly sliced
- 2 fennel bulbs, sliced, and cut into match-like strips
- ½ teaspoon fresh or dried chopped mint
- 2-3 hard-boiled eggs, sliced or diced

kitchen witch

Gundella

- salt and pepper to taste
- 6 thinly sliced radishes
- ¼ cup olive oil
- 1 clove garlic (finely minced)
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Mix together vegetables, and chill until ready to use.

Combine lemon juice, olive oil, mint, garlic and salt and pepper. Blend well, and toss the dressing with the vegetables. Garnish with hard-boiled eggs.

SWISS FENNEL SALAD

- 2 medium fennel bulbs
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 5 tablespoons dry white wine
- ¾ cup walnuts (chopped)
- 2 medium apples, one red, and one yellow or green
- ¼ cup walnut oil (see note)
- salt and pepper to taste

Trim and core the fennel bulbs. Slice thin, and cut into julienne strips, two or three inches long.

Core, but do not peel, the apples, and cut into julienne strips the same as the fennel.

Mix fennel and apples together in a bowl, and toss with lemon juice, wine, salt, pepper and walnut oil.

Place on salad plates, and sprinkle with chopped walnuts. Garnish with fennel sprigs, if desired.

Note: Most kitchen specialty shops and even some drugstores carry walnut oil. (Do not confuse it with the small, quarter-ounce, highly concentrated bottles used for candy making.) If you have not tried walnut oil before, I would suggest that you may want to use only ¼ of a cup, blended with an equal amount of light vegetable oil, until you get used to its very assertive flavor. Keep walnut oil refrigerated, as it spoils easily.

Hospice helped him care for dying wife

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Robert Tatalovich of Livonia is a man of his word. Which is why, when doctors told him in December that Wilma's 3½-year fight against cancer was nearly over, he brought his wife home from the hospital to die.

Because death wasn't imminent, Medicaid regulations prevented her from staying at the hospital, and Tatalovich wasn't about to put her in a nursing home. So, despite being 68 and hobbled by a recent hip replacement, which caused him to lose 50 pounds, Tatalovich decided to tend to his wife's constant needs, himself. "I took her for better or worse," he said of their marriage 25 years ago.

Thanks to help from Angela Hospice, he stayed at her side during the last painful month. Wilma came home two days before Christmas. A week ago Sunday, she died in his arms. Wednesday, he buried her in her favorite quilt. (She'd made it, herself, and years ago someone had offered her $200 for it. "I'll take it to my grave before I sell it," she'd said.)

"Hospice was great. You couldn't ask for a better group of people to come in and help," said Tatalovich, a Livonia resident who was a barber for 30 years at the Gentlemen's Barber Shop on Farmington Road.

"They helped from stem to stern. Without them, I don't know what I'd have done. I was desperate; I didn't know what to do. And that Sister Giovanni (director of Angela) — words wouldn't describe her. What a wonderful person."

WITH OR WITHOUT hospice

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Robert Tatalovich holds a photograph of him and his late wife, Wilma. Doctors told him in December that Wilma's 3½-year fight against cancer was nearly over and with the help of hospice he cared for her at home.

care, Tatalovich was by-God determined to keep his wife with him. Angela Hospice, a grandson who moved in, neighbors and volunteers from the Livonia Seniors made it bearable.

"She thought we were going to put her some place and get rid of her," said Tatalovich, talking through tears and occasional sobs. "I said, 'You're going to come home with me.' The doctor didn't think I could handle it, but I wasn't going to put her in no nursing home. I said, 'As much as I'm hurting with this hip, I'm not going to let you go.'"

"I had to do it. That's all there was to it: She was my wife. So, I dug in and went to it."

Even with visiting nurses and other hospice services, the final month was an ordeal. Wilma's cancer had gone from her kidney to her liver to her brain, and pain was constant. But it was an ordeal that Tatalovich was not going to let her face alone.

"Every night I'd go to bed crying, and pray a miracle would come. But we knew it wouldn't come. It was horrible, what she went through. I don't wish that on any husband. But I want to tell husbands out there: Don't hide your wife away, whatever you do. Walk away and say, 'I'll see you tomorrow?' That'll never work. If it was me, she would have been there. That's the kind of lady she was."

The hospice's doctor, William Conley, stopped by frequently to check on Wilma. "Make sure you put in there what a great job Dr. Conley did," said Tatalovich.

And when Wilma died, Sister Giovanni was there within moments to call police, clean up, console Tatalovich. "She just came in and ran things, just took over. What a wonderful bunch of workers."

More terminally ill trade hospitals for hospice care

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Local experts agree with national studies that show more and more terminally ill patients are deciding to stop fight-it-to-the-bitter-end hospital treatment and are instead choosing hospice care and death at home.

"Absolutely," said Carolyn Fitzpatrick-Cassin, executive director of the Hospice of Southeastern Michigan in Southfield. "We're seeing a big increase in referrals, from physicians, hospitals and by word of mouth. Physicians are much more willing now to not treat cancer patients as aggressively, to let patients make more of their decisions."

"More and more, people are choosing home care. We're very much in a state of growth," said Nora Anderson, director of Hospice Services of Western Wayne County in Garden City. "People prefer dying at home to dying in a hospital, though it's not for everyone. It's an alternative."

"It's a way of having the patient die with dignity," said Sister Mary Giovanni, director of Madonna College's Angela Hospice in Livonia. "You really can manage the patient at home. You don't have to warehouse them in nursing homes."

Angela Hospice had 52 clients in 1988, a record. All but one died at home. Hospice Services of Western Wayne County helped about 60 patients in 1988, up from about 25 in 1987, according to Anderson. And the Hospice of Southeastern Michigan had a patient load of 1,174 in 1988, the biggest ever and up from 924 in 1987.

HOSPICE CARE has long been a regular part of the treatment of the terminally ill in much of the world.

After years of resistance by the medical establishment in this country, its supporters say it has finally caught on.

"We had to educate doctors that we weren't taking patients away," said Anderson. She said there used to be an adversarial relationship between many hospitals and hospices, "but it's changing. Our best asset is the physician who refers patients to us. We're part of the team."

"Hospitals in this area are very supportive," said Fitzpatrick-Cassin. "The biggest catalyst for that happening is physicians themselves becoming more educated of hospice care," said Sister Giovanni.

Hospice clients are those who are terminally ill and expected to live six months or less. The hospice has available on-call nurses, doctors, social workers and clergy, and helps coordinate volunteer help from senior-citizen and other groups. And all hospices are tied to one or more local hospitals so that acute in-patient treatment is available when needed.

A primary care giver at the home — usually the spouse — is one of the few requirements.

Recent Medicare/Medicaid legislation restricted the time terminally ill patients can stay in hospitals if death is not imminent. The option for care, say hospice supporters, usually is either a nursing home at great expense, or hospice care, much of which is usually covered by insurance.

Hospice supporters say that the hospice is not, despite certain perceptions, a form of passive euthanasia. "Dying with an IV pole in your arm is not a goal of what your final days should be like," said Fitzpatrick-Cassin.

"The reality is that the disease is winning, and the hospice can't change that," said Anderson. "It's not that we hasten death. It's that we don't have the power to prevent it."

LAWRENCE ULRICH, chairman of the philosophy department at the University of Dayton, agrees that people are opting away from painful bouts of chemotherapy, radiation and other aggressive treatments in terminal cases.

"Many people don't want highly aggressive treatment," said Ulrich. "The hospice movement is populated by people who have said, 'No.'"

Ulrich said that over the past 10 to 15 years people have come to realize that some of the promises of modern technology fall short. "In other words, technology doesn't stop people from dying; it only stops them from dying at a particular time," he said.

Ulrich said that centuries ago, many people seemed to accept the inevitability of death more readily.

"There was a kind of rhythm in nature that occurred," he said. "Many times I think we've become so alienated from our bodies that we don't hear the sounds of the rhythm."

There are about 1,700 hospice groups in the United States, with an average of 20 patients per group. They save a total of $5.2 billion a year by choosing hospices, Ulrich said.

In Michigan, there are about 80 hospice programs, said Anderson.

Hospices serving Wayne County are: Angela Hospice (591-5157), Hospice Services of Western Wayne County (522-4244) and Cottage Hospice (884-8600).

Amicare Hospice-Cranbrook (858-7735), Hospice of Southeastern Michigan (559-9209) and Personalized Nursing Service (677-0511) serve both counties.

Locals' design plans to help Metro airport beautification

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Metro Airport intends to become a more beautiful, less stressful place over the next few years.

And if it does, travelers will have a pair of western Wayne residents to thank.

Nancy Watkins and Steve Alman, both of Plymouth, are drafting landscape plans designed to not only beautify the county airport, but also to make it easier for travelers to reach their destinations.

"When you're driving through the airport now, your eye goes all over the place," said Watkins, chief of planning and design for the county parks and recreation department.

"YOUR SITE lines are diverted — you see oncoming traffic, parking lots and all kinds of signs. That makes it very confusing and very stressful," Watkins said. "What we hope to do is to reduce the number of signs and use berms and plantings to improve site lines."

Under the plan, oncoming traffic lanes and parking lots will be shielded behind trees and shrubs. But plantings won't be helter skelter.

"What we're trying to do is to create a flow, something that's appealing to the eye," said landscape architect Alman, who also works for the county's parks department. "We want something that takes you gracefully through the airport."

Airport beautification is part of a far-reaching plan to handle increased passenger traffic at the Romulus airport. Two additional runways and a new south access road are also on the drawing board.

Some landscaping projects have already been completed. This summer, more than $100,000 of landscape work was completed along Rogell Drive, the airport's main access route.

Future projects include a new lighted display, including three flag poles and a new airport sign, at the airport's main entrance.

"WE WANT to give people a sense of presence," Watkins said.

And they don't intend to stop with airport roadways and entrances. Watkins, in particular, is especially keen on adding flower and plant boxes inside Metro terminals.

The idea, she said, came from a long layover in Newark Airport, while returning from an eastern trip.

"The Continental terminal there features boxed ficus trees. I got stranded there for five hours, so I had plenty of time to look around," she laughed.

The parks department became in-involved because it is the only county department with landscape architects already on its payroll, Watkins said.

The beautification project includes master plans for outdoor and indoor landscaping, as well as a plan to eliminate unnecessary signs. Apple Design Co., a Maryland-based firm specializing in airport design has been hired to draft the sign elimination plan.

Plans also call for improved maintenance, keeping landscaped areas free of litter.

Beautification obstacles that need to be overcome include poor drainage and soil and heavy sun, due to the airport's spacious, open design.

Early landscape plans were presented in a 1986 Michigan Department of Transportation report.

While indoor trees may have been inspired by Newark Airport, other ideas came from other airports, including Atlanta, New York's LaGuardia and Orlando (Fla.) International Airport.

The Orlando trip was a homecoming of sorts for Watkins, who helped develop Disney World properties there and in Japan, as an employee of the entertainment conglomerate.

CAN ARTHRITIS LEAVE?

If you have arthritis, it is natural to ask: "Will I have arthritis forever? The answer is: "not necessarily."

For example: You can develop joint swelling and pain that looks exactly like rheumatoid or lupus arthritis, and would be diagnosed as such by a specialist. However, that arthritis may be the result of a reaction to a medication such as penicillin. Take away the drug and, over time, your arthritis will disappear.

In most instances the diagnosis of your arthritis as rheumatoid, osteoarthritis, gout, or psoriatic arthritis means that you will have a condition that likely will be with you indefinitely.

Yet, at times you may develop a joint condition that even to a seasoned physician looks like a chronic arthritis, but which really is akin to the arthritis related to medication.

Thus, the more experienced a physician is, the less likely he or she is willing to tell you that you and your arthritis will have to learn to live together forever.

Canton defeats Hawks

Heather Murphy and Dawn Clifford were the top all-around gymnasts Wednesday as Plymouth Canton trounced Farmington Harrison in a Western Division meet.

The Chiefs, 3-0 against Western Lakes Activities Association teams and 4-0 overall, scored 129.55 and the Hawks 107.45.

Clifford, who won the uneven bars, balance beam and floor exercise competitions, totaled 33.8 points and Murphy, the vault winner, 33.35.

Clifford scored 8.35 on bars, 8.65 on beam and 8.75 on floor, and Murphy was second in each event with 8.15, 8.6 and 8.5 scores, respectively.

It was the other way around on vault with Murphy scoring 8.1 for first place and Clifford tying with teammate Johanna Anderson for second with 8.05 marks.

Anderson also was third on beam (7.7), fourth on bars (7.05) and floor (8.35). Kelly Fortier's 8.45 was good for third on floor, and Shannon Connell took third on bars with a 7.8.

Harrison's Jenny Rich finished fourth in the vault competition (8.0), and Michelle Doepker was fourth on beam with a 7.55.

NORTH FARMINGTON overcame a sterling performance Wednesday by Westland John Glenn gymnast Wendy Minch to gain its 11th straight dual-meet victory of the season, 132.45 to 128.35, over the host Rockets.

Minch was the all-around individual champion, winning the vault (9.4), uneven parallel bars (9.55), balance beam (9.5) and floor exercise (9.5). Teammate Deb Williams added a pair of thirds on bars (8.8) and floor (8.95), but the Rockets could come up with little else.

The Raiders, paced by Heather Kahn, proved to have more depth.

Kahn finished second in three events — vault (8.9), bars (9.0) and floor (9.0). She was also third in the beam (8.6).

Sophomore Kristin Szutarski added a third in the vault (8.6), while North teammate Rita Dunn added a second on beam (8.65).

"Kristin Szutarski has been our most consistent gymnast this year and she's kept us in a lot of meets," North coach Jeff Dwyer said. "She deserves more credit than what she's been getting."

FARMINGTON EARNED a brief rest after defeating Berkeley for its fifth victory Wednesday night.

The Falcons, who are idle until the Plymouth Invitational on Saturday, scored 126.9 points to 118.0 by the Bears.

Matmen end 5-0 in Lakes

The Plymouth Salem wrestling team won 10 of the 13 weight classes Thursday en route to a decisive 54-15 dual meet victory over visiting Walled Lake Western.

With the victory, the Rocks clinched the Lakes Division title with a 5-0 record. Salem is 21-1 overall.

Six of Salem's wins came on pins. Craig Richardson earned the first pin for the Rocks in the 112-pound class, downing Steve Glowinski at 4:08. Ken Stopa, Salem's 119 entry, took care of his opponent, Ralph Hale, in 2:58.

The rest of Salem's pins belonged to: Mike Shumate (130), who dropped Rick Chuck in 37 seconds; Ed Barlage (140), who pinned Lawrence Kerver at 5:07; Steve Burlison (160), who pinned Brian Grzyk at 3:42; and Brian Burlison (171), pinning Ed Holmes in 1:31.

Julian Sell (125) decimated Ken Brown 10-0, and Jeff Coleman (135) took care of Anthony Snider 13-10.

Tony Perkins (169) and heavy-weight Scott Breithaupt recorded wins because of voids in Central's lineup.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Eric Bunch of Salem makes his way to a third-place finish in the 500-yard freestyle Thursday night. His time was 5:15.60. Bunch also scored in the individual medley as the Rocks edged Canton 89-83. Both teams are 5-2 overall.

Hill's heroics

Anchorman lifts Salem past Chiefs

Rocks nip rival 89-83

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Mike Hill stood between possible victory and impending defeat for Plymouth Salem's swim team Thursday night.

Heading into the final leg of the freestyle relay, he found himself in the fateful position of being the only member of his team who could sway the outcome.

Hill snatched victory from the jaws of defeat with a spectacular 100-yard sprint that gave the Rocks an 89-83 victory over host Plymouth Canton in the closest meet ever contested between the two rivals.

"I'm a senior and gave it all I had," Hill said. "The fact we've never lost to them kept me going."

Salem led 81-77 going into that final event in front of a standing-room-only crowd. Canton needed to take first and third place, which would have given the Chiefs the 10 points necessary to overtake the Rocks.

AND IT LOOKED as if Canton would do just that, leading the race for first place after three legs. Hill, however, managed to do the difficult and bring the Salem quartet from behind.

"I felt unhuman," said Hill of his muscling the needed energy. "I had a time set in my head, and I just had to get there."

"I don't know what Mike's split time was, but it was pretty good," Salem coach Chuck Olson said. "That's why we put a senior captain on the end."

Hill and relay teammates Chris Caloia, Rick Steshetz and Mike Axford finished in 3:28.96. Canton took second and third with Mike Helmstadter, Jim Hartnett, Steve Geddes and Bryce Anderson going 3:30.12 in the runner-up spot.

The Rocks could have split up their top relay, putting two of their better swimmers on each team, and won the meet by taking second and third, Olson said. That would have given Salem six points and enough to hold its lead, but the Rocks bet all on being able to take first.

"Bryce Anderson is tough," said Olson, giving the Canton anchorman his due for pushing Hill to the maximum. "But, fortunately, he's a tougher flier than Mike, and Mike is a better freestyler."

"AT THE TURN, I saw he was with me," Hill said. "I've been swimming since I was real young,

Jim Hartnett of Canton shows the concentration that helped net him first place in the 100-yard backstroke. He swam 1:00.01 and pulled the Chiefs within two points with two events remaining.

and I've always had a lot of kick. It just came from within."

Hill also was part of a Salem trio that won six individual events, two each, for the Rocks. His other triumphs came in the 200 and 100 freestyles in which he posted 1:50.49 and 50.20 times.

The ever-dependable Ron Orris captured the individual medley with a pool record 2:00.23 and the breaststroke in 1:01.43. Fred Seidelman did his part by winning the 50 freestyle in 23.29 and the butterfly in 57.04.

Orris' breaststroke victory was especially key.

With the Rocks clinging to a 72-70 lead, Olson inserted him in an event he doesn't usually swim to go head-to-head with Canton's Jeff Homan, the Western Lakes Activities Association record holder. Orris won the race with a 2.03-second advantage over his opponent, helping Salem increase its margin to four points, 81-77.

"That's pretty much been my philosophy," said Olson, who said last December Orris would swim against the opposition's ace whenever possible. "It's important to win a dual meet, but constantly giving Ron that challenge is going to help him."

CANTON COACH Hooker Wellman, though he has seen Orris compete many times, nonetheless was still impressed by what the junior ace was able to do.

"I've never seen a kid move water out of his way like him," he said. "That's what he does. He doesn't just swim; he moves water."

"Our strategy was to outscore them in every event Orris was in. If you can balance him, then you have an advantage, but we weren't able to do that."

Wellman's team represented itself well, and its depth kept the Chiefs on the heels of Salem throughout the meet.

The Rocks grabbed the lead right away, winning the medley relay with Sean Fitzgerald, Mark Erickson, Orris and Seidelman swimming 1:44.16. Salem led 35-27 after Hill, Orris and Seidelman won the 200 freestyle, IM, and 50 freestyle, respectively.

But Canton's Brad Flowers was on the mark in diving, compiling 214.95 points for first place, and teammate Jon Stirling had a personal best 180.55 for second as the Chiefs pulled within 40-38.

CANTON TIED the score with its ability to take seconds and thirds in the butterfly and 100 freestyle, 47-47 and 55-55. Scott Swartzwelter and David Nevi went 1-2 in the former, and Helmstadter and Anderson did likewise in the latter.

Salem got a temporary lift when Axford won the 500 freestyle (5:15.37) by five hundredths of a second over Canton's Steve Geddes, and teammate Eric Bunch took third for a 65-61 lead.

"I gave it to Bunch, Axford and (Brett) Meik," said Olson, adding he forewarned them they wouldn't have Hill, Orris or Seidelman to lead them in that event. "I said, 'You guys are going to have to get it done.'"

"I don't think we had a bad swim tonight," he added. "For us to win, we had to swim well as a team. I don't think we could have scored any more points."

The Chiefs, however, reciprocated with Hartnett winning the backstroke in 1:00.01 and Swartzwelter finishing third, bringing Canton back within two, 72-70, with only the breaststroke and freestyle relay remaining.

Canton also received key second- and third finishes from Homan and Anderson in the IM, Helmstadter and Mitch Timberlake in the 50 freestyle and Homan and Kevin Beach in the breaststroke.

WELLMAN ADDED Anderson had a personal best in the IM as did

Rocks crush North

By Dan O'Meara

Plymouth Salem's basketball team figured it was time to stop fooling around, and the serious approach worked fine.

After a see-saw first half Friday night, Salem straightened things out at halftime and buried North Farmington in the second, 76-48.

The victory enabled the Rocks, who defeated North 84-72 three weeks ago, to clinch a share of the Lakes Division title with a 7-0 record. Observerland's No. 1-ranked team is 11-1 overall.

The Raiders, who entered the week one game behind Salem, suffered their second lopsided defeat in a row and slipped to 4-3 in the Lakes and 6-7 overall.

"THEY CONTROLLED the tempo the whole first half," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "Our kids more or less let them do it."

"When we went into the locker room at halftime, I said, 'No more changing defenses, no more trickery. We're just going to play.'"

Play they did. The Rocks scored the first 10 points and turned a one-point deficit into a 41-32 lead before North used a timeout at 5:24 in an attempt to stem the tide.

But Salem was on a roll by then and outscored the Raiders 19-4 in the third quarter. Craig Marshall, who had two key baskets to ignite the initial run, and Jeff Elliott, who pumped in a game-high 24 points, scored six apiece in the period.

"Marshall took two dribbles," Brodie said. "Then, all of a sudden, a light went on. He said 'Oh, yeah' and rocketed up the floor and took it to the basket. I said 'That's what we want.'"

THE RAIDERS were 1-of-14 from the floor in the third quarter. Matt Hoffman scored the team's only points on a free throw and 3-point basket that made it 45-36 with 4:12 remaining.

"I think that's part of the frustration," North coach Tom Negoshian said. "You take a shot and think about the miss, and that compounds it because now you're not back on defense."

The game was all but over when Salem scored the first eight points of the fourth quarter to boost its lead to 58-36.

Early in the period, Elliott tipped in a teammate's missed free throw and added one of his own when the North bench was assessed a technical when it objected to no foul being called on the rebound.

The fouls ended up being nearly even, with Salem having 19 and the Raiders 16. Many of the late calls did appear to be against the Rocks, however.

"It got to be a very physical second half, and we simply can't match up with them if it's a physical game," Negoshian said.

"WE WEREN'T scoring; we couldn't run the offense. (The Rocks) did a nice job of being physical and pushing us out. That's a credit to the defense."

"Sometimes your youngness shows up when you don't come down and run the offense," he added.

While the Raiders might have thought Salem got away with having committed some fouls, the Rocks were merely playing with more determination, according to Brodie.

"It wasn't so much being physical as it was playing hard," he said. "We didn't say 'Let's put a body on them.' We just said 'Let's play with a little more intensity.'"

"We started blocking out on the glass, and we got a lot of fast breaks in that quarter."

"They kicked our butts on the boards early," he added. "Jake (Baker) and JJ (Jeff Jagacki) decided 'No more of this' and started rebounding."

HOFFMAN FINISHED with 12 points, including three triples, but Negoshian chose to rest him in the fourth quarter with the game out of hand. Chris White scored all of his team-high 13 points in the first half.

● PALACE SHOOTOUT

The Wayne County Park System will stage a free throw shooting contest, beginning with district competition the week of Feb. 22 and concluding with the finals Wednesday, March 22 during half-time of the Detroit Pistons-San Antonio Spurs basketball game at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

The entry fee is $5. Registration forms can be obtained at the Wayne County Park System, 33175 Ann Arbor Trail, Westland 48185.

The winner will receive a trip for two to the NCAA Final Four April 1-3 in Seattle.

For more information on the contest, call Vic Chlason at 261-1990.

● TEEN SKI TRIP

Canton Parks and Recreation Department will sponsor another teen ski trip to Alpine Valley Ski Area on Friday, Feb. 3.

The fee is $12 for teens with their own equipment and $18 for those without. The fee includes bus transportation, supervision and lift tickets.

The bus will leave the Canton Township Administration Building parking lot at 5 p.m. and return at 12:15 a.m.

Call 397-5110 for information.

● SOCCER SIGNUP

Canton Soccer Club parents and coaches are requested to submit their spring 1989 registration forms as soon as possible.

Completed forms and registration fees should be returned to the Township Recreation Office or may be mailed to the club at Box 87244, Canton, 48187.

Registrations will not be accepted after March 13. Fees are $30 for returning and Pee Wee players, $30 for premier and other players who did not play last fall.

● SOCCER MEETINGS

Salem High School girls in grades nine through 12 should attend a preseason meeting at 4 p.m. Monday, Feb. 6, if they are interested in playing soccer, either JV or varsity, for the Rocks this year.

The meeting will take place in Room 2703 at the high school. Call coach Ken Johnson at 397-0668 for more information.

Canton High School will have a preseason soccer meeting for girls in grades 9-12 on Tuesday, Jan. 31. The meeting is scheduled for 4 p.m. in the Phase III building. Call coach Don Smith at 459-7686 for information.

● CC SWIMMERS WIN

Redford Catholic Central captured seven of 11 events Thursday en route to a 93-76 boys swim victory over University of Detroit-Jesuit.

Recording individual wins for the Shamrocks were: Mike Patrick, diving, 156.65 points; Jim Kovach, 100-yard butterfly, 57.25; Alan Afari, 500 freestyle, 5:19.53; Troy Shumate, 100 backstroke, 59.4; Brent Jacobs, 100 breaststroke, 1:00.5.

CC also captured both relays. Hoeflein, Kovach, Jacobs and Shumate teamed up to win the 200 medley in 1:48.02, while Brian Bynda, Ken Graczyk, Hoeflein and Afari combined for first in the 400 freestyle relay in 3:36.5.

The Shamrocks return to action Friday against Catholic League rival Birmingham Brother Rice in a meet at Farmington Hills Mercy High.

Forgotten treasures Decoy collectors hunt for lost art

Decoy collectors are a rare breed of individuals. They spend much of their time traveling along lakeshores and down dusty, country roads, stopping along the way to chat with the local natives.

Occasionally, when good luck prevails, they meet someone who will let them rummage through an old boat house or barn. Sometimes they'll uncover an abandoned decoy or two, and sometimes they'll find a whole flock of decoys to sort through. They'll leave behind the undesirable ones and usually only end up with a couple of "keepers". Then a sale price is negotiated (generally under $10) and the collector will happily drive off with his quota for the day.

But sometimes, and not very often mind you, the collector will find a real gem; a decoy created by someone special or created with details that render it unique. Therein lies the adventure, the appeal, and the lure of decoy collecting.

BIRMINGHAM'S BARNEY Crandell is one of those rare individuals. An avid duck hunter, Crandell found four canvasback decoys on Wallpole Island, Lake St. Clair, in 1963 and the collector bug had bitten. Since that time, Crandell and his wife, Martha, have collected upward of 1,200 Michigan- and Ontario-made decoys.

Crandell has worked in jobs that dealt directly with people for most of his life, having retired from the public relations department at General Motors in 1980. His ability to communicate with people has added to his desire and expertise in the world of decoy collecting.

outdoors

"The nicest part of all, about collecting decoys, is meeting new and interesting people, many of whom have turned into good friends and acquaintances," explained Crandell. "Part of the fun is also finding old carvers and interviewing them. They each have their own interesting story. That makes all the looking worthwhile."

OVER THE YEARS, Crandell's adventures have led him to study the lives of many old-time carvers, some of whom lived as far back as 1860.

With all this knowledge of decoys and decoy carvers, it's not surprising that Crandell has been called upon to help several authors with books on decoy collecting. He helped write "Waterfowl Decoys of Michigan and the Lake St. Clair Region," by Clune Walsh Jr., and he wrote several chapters on the history of the Mason (decoy) Factory in the book "Mason Decoys," published by Byron Cheever.

Recently, Crandell wrote his own book, "Decoying: St. Clair to the St. Lawrence".

"I like to write and have helped some other people write books, so about six or seven years ago I decided to write one myself," Crandell said. "The book came out in November. So far it has been (selling) pretty well."

THE BOOK is full of tales of Crandell's adventures along the collecting trail. It also offers an abundance of information on past and present carvers including Joe Bedore, William Mason, John R. Wells (J.R.W.) and Tom Chambers. The book also includes close to 300 black and white photographs of some of the decoys in Crandell's collection along with nearly 100 color photos.

The book is available at several local book stores including the Hill Gallery in Birmingham, Nature's Art in Rochester, Wild Wings in Birmingham and Plymouth, Miner's in Bloomfield Hills and the Book Stall on Main in Northville.

"There are still a lot of decoys, anecdotes and stories that didn't make the book," added Crandell, with a grin. "But right now I don't have any plans for another book."

THE BOAT launch site and the shooting range may be out, but another rustic cabin and a hiking, biking and nature trail may be in. The Natural Resource Commission recently reviewed a new master plan for the Island Lake Recreation Area in Oakland and Livingston counties. The master plan will serve as a guideline for future park and recreation area development for the Island Lake Recreation Area. When adopted, the new master plan will replace the one adopted in 1974.

Since 1974, the NRC has approved the purchase of 284 acres of land to provide a buffer zone between the recreation area and the adjacent private property and 259 acres for public recreation, which includes a 36-acre spring-fed trout lake. The total approved site is now more than 4,000 acres.

PROPOSALS FOR the new master plan include building one rustic cabin, in addition to the two that have already been built; the completion of the parking expansion and to provide a picnic/toilet building, as suggested in the 1974 plan; building a hiking, biking and nature trail within the 400-foot natural river zone; and to consolidate scattered camp sites into one location, made possible by the 259-acre purchase in 1986.

Three proposals — a boat launch, a shooting range and an off-road vehicle (ORV) area — were deleted from the plan.

Further studies will be conducted by the Department of Natural Resources' Shooting Range Committee to determine if such a range should be at Island Lake. The ORV area proposal will be tabled until a statewide trails plan is developed. The boat launch proposal is no longer a consideration.

Exercise can help stop heart disease

Dear Myrna: Do doctors still believe that exercise is an important factor in preventing heart disease?

Why certainly! Your heart is a muscle. Like all muscles in the body, the heart is stronger and functions more efficiently when it is exercised. Studies show that people who are sedentary are twice as likely to develop heart disease as those who exercise regularly. Most research on exercise and heart disease has involved men. A more recent study involving women who diet but do not exercise shows a great loss of muscle, including the heart muscle. Exercise may change a woman's overall risk of disease, in part because it seems to affect other risk factors such as improving blood sugar levels and cholesterol levels. It also helps women to lose weight and to take control of their lives. Exercise is the best way for women or men to become body aware. Body awareness, in turn, will keep you in touch with your health and your healthy heart.

Beach in the breaststroke, Swartzwelder in the butterfly and Hartnett in the backstroke. Each member of the freestyle relay team did the same.

"Those guys were under tremendous pressure to win that relay," Wellman said. "They all swam their best times. I was real pleased with that."

Salem rebounded from its 88-84 loss to North Farmington the previous week and improved to 5-2 overall. Canton, which suffered a 113-59 defeat at the hands of the Rocks last year, also is 5-2.

"I knew this was going to be a difficult meet," Olson said. "These are the two best teams in the area. You can be sure by the end of the year

swimming

these two teams will prove it."

Olson said the loss to North had no bearing on Salem's motivation in preparing to meet its No. 1 rival, but he added, "I did a better job on the lineup and (his swimmers) did a better job on the events tonight."

Wellman, however, recalled the Rocks had been dealt a 101-71 defeat by Ann Arbor Huron in the meet prior to last year's Canton-Salem dual.

"North Farmington did to them the same thing Ann Arbor Huron did," he said. "They woke them up and they came after us.

"THE WAY I see it we're even. We beat them in the (WAAA) relays, and they beat us in the dual. It will be winner-take-all at the league meet."

Wellman, whose team is the odds-on favorite to win the Western Division title, was pleased with his team's showing, which produced the most competitive meet between the two in his eight-year tenure at Canton.

"It would be nice to have a meet like this every year," he said. "Once we have meets like this every year, we'll both be better off. The place was packed, and people were on their feet the whole meet."

"The kids don't like getting beat," he added, "but it's a lot better getting beat by six points instead of 40."

S'craft hoopsters halt 8-game losing streak

Dave Bogataj didn't know how to react. The Schoolcraft College mens basketball coach has never been treated as kindly in his 1 1/2 seasons at the helm as he was in Wednesday's 102-71 rout of visiting St. Clair County CC.

His assistant, Chris Theodore, suggested Bogataj not say a thing to his team at halftime after the Ocelots built a 60-31 cushion. Such a luxury is rare at SC, which had lost eight-straight and had just five wins in 21 previous games this season after a dismal 8-22 campaign last year.

"The kids played good basketball," said Bogataj. "It's too bad they hadn't won before because they've played so hard."

"They were aggressive but didn't foul. They rebounded, they ran, they got the offense going — it was really nice."

It took a while for all this great stuff to materialize — the game was tied at four with four minutes gone — but once the Ocelots got into gear, they were unstoppable.

SIX PLAYERS reached double-figures in scoring: Mike Mercer, 21 points; Ken Fuster, 20; Al Hudson, 15; Mark Koronka, 14; John Moran, 12; and Bernard McGee, 10.

Rob Harmon added nine points and nine rebounds. McGee also had nine boards, nine assists and four steals. Koronka had eight rebounds, and Fuster dished out four assists.

Victories were expected to be difficult to come by at the start of the season, with an all-new team. When four players (including two starters) went academically ineligible to start the second semester, the chance for wins diminished further.

But the remaining Ocelots have responded well to the challenge, giving all their opponents a battle. "This team that I have now, these seven kids (remaining from the sea-

Paupore pours in 28 for Chiefs

Brian Paupore scored 28 points and grabbed eight rebounds Friday, leading Plymouth Canton to a 52-46 boys basketball win over host Northville.

The win lifted Canton to 5-2 in the Western Division, 8-4 overall. Canton trailed 29-25 at halftime but outscored Northville 15-5 in the third quarter to lead 44-30. Canton made only 10 of 21 free throws while Northville made 14 of 24.

Point guard Troy Waldron scored 11 points and had six assists for Canton. Jim Young grabbed six rebounds for the Chiefs. Heath Meyers led Northville with 18 points.

HURON VALLEY 45, PLY. CHRISTIAN 34: Ben Odom had 13 points for Plymouth Christian Academy Friday, but it wasn't enough as Huron Valley walked away victorious at Stevenson Junior High in Westland.

Mike List scored 23 points for Huron, making all but one of his 17 free throws.

son's initial roster), would beat the team I had in November," claimed Bogataj.

However, St. Clair CC is hardly a powerhouse (4-17 overall, 1-12 in the Eastern Conference). So the Ocelots, 6-16 overall and 2-10 in the conference, may have trouble finding another win like this.

SC'S WOMENS TEAM rebounded from its loss at Alpena CC with a come-from-behind 79-75 triumph over St. Clair Wednesday at SC. The victory kept the Lady Ocelots atop the Eastern Conference at 8-1 (19-1 overall); St. Clair sagged to 3-6 in the conference, 8-9 overall.

SC, which trailed 42-37 at the half, altered its strategy and started taking the ball inside to center Barb Krug (from Plymouth Salem). Krug responded with 24 points (18 in the second half), 13 rebounds (11 in the second half) and five steals. She made all eight of her free throws. Free throws saved the Lady Ocelots. They converted 25-of-30 in the game; St. Clair made 18-of-30.

St. Clair maintained a double-digit lead until the 8:00 mark. SC overtook their foes with 5:38 left and never again trailed, although the Lady Ocelots had to play the final seven minutes without point guard Darlene Bazner, who fouled out. Lisa DePlanche had already fouled out, with 11 minutes to play.

Forward Michelle Dyksinski switched to the point and performed admirably. SC had just one turnover in the final six minutes. Dyksinski scored 11 points and had 15 boards; Bazner finished with 12 points, three assists and three steals, and DePlanche netted 11 points.

Others who helped pick up the slack down the stretch were Tracy Baron (nine points), Tracey Osborne (eight) and Stacey Swanderski (six).

and tied for third on both beam (7.95) and floor (8.2); and sixth on vault (8.25).

Other standouts for the victorious Trojans included Colleen Wood, who was first on beam (8.85), tied for third on floor (8.2) and fourth on vault (8.35); Jennifer Kaipio, second on bars (7.9) and sixth on floor (7.9); Christy Nagorka, tied for third on beam (7.95) and fourth on bars; Roberta Wiggle, fifth on vault (8.3).

Guard Jeff Gold added 10 points to go with six assists and three steals for Salem. Jagacki knocked in nine and Baker and Marshall had eight apiece.

Marshall, a 6-foot guard, also was high rebounder with seven, and the 6-4 Elliott pulled down six caroms.

High-caliber wrestlers expected for tournament

The 30th annual Michigan Wrestling Club Invitational will be held Sunday, Feb. 5 at Westland John Glenn High School.

The freestyle tourney, which is expected to attract several former Olympians, begins at 10 a.m. with the opening ceremonies. The tournament is open to amateur wrestlers 17 years and older, and it is part of the USA Wrestling Championship Series.

John Wood, one of the tournament directors, said as many as 20 club teams from the U.S. and Canada will send wrestlers. He already has received commitments from Doug Cox and Gary Holmes, both of whom wrestled on the 1988 Canadian Olympic team.

Wood also hopes to get a commitment from Randy Lewis, a 1984 gold medalist for the U.S. Olympic team, who has competed two of the last three years at the Michigan tourney. The U.S. Marine Corps team headlines the list of clubs expected to show.

"THIS IS not a backyard tournament," Wood said. "It's got some high-caliber people that have entered and that's why we get teams from Canada — because they know the competition is so good. It's not like a golf tournament, where we get guys who haven't wrestled for 10 years."

"We just finished an Olympic year, so I thought our turnout would be down. But that's not the indication I'm getting from the amount of phone calls I've gotten."

International freestyle rules will be applied with the latest FILA interpretations. Registration costs $10 and weigh-in will be from 8 a.m. until 9:30 a.m. Weight classes begin at 105.5, followed in order by 114.5, 125.5, 136.5, 149.5, 163, 180.5, 198, 220 and heavyweight.

Tickets to attend the tournament cost $2 for adults and $1 for students high school age and below.

'Paradise Lost'

For Paul and Betsy Marti, the dream of circumnavigating the world came to a sudden end on a reef in the Fiji Islands. More than seven months after the demise of Keema, Marti recounts the final days of his voyage and takes a look at the future on Page 6D.

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers

Monday, January 30, 1989 O&E

ARE YOU HIP?

Are you hip? That's the question of life, darlings. Hipness is a style, an attitude encompassing all that's really important in life.

It's the way one fits in with one's surroundings and has nothing at all to do with the usual ways we are sliced, diced and hung up to dry by those around us.

Short, balding, portly Jack Nicholson is, was and will forever be hip. He's the virtual godhead of hipness. Tall, handsome Tom Selleck, on the other hand, always seems a bit clunky, a bit out-of-step — in other words, monumentally unhip.

But high-octane hipness has always been a bit too much for most people to handle. Therefore comes the mainstream variants. Still potent, with with a gentler kick.

As for unhipness, it's a double-edged sword. Some things — galoshes spring to mind — will never, ever be hip. Other things — utopian liberalism, for instance — used to be hip, but are no longer.

Got it? Good. Now, here's a guide to what is and what isn't hip.

COMIC STRIPS:

Comic strips are tres hip these days. Given the dim-witted commentators clogging up print and the airwaves, they're probably the only place where one can find the truth about humankind and its role in this vast universe.

Cutting edge: Life in Hell.
Mainstream variant: Calvin and Hobbes.
Unhip: Doonesbury. (Makes you almost wish Nixon would return — as target, not president.)

POLITICS:

Let's face it, politics has never been less hip. Look at those two snoozeroos who ran for president (by the way, who won?). But, as we said, hipness is about attitude and politics is dripping with attitude.

Cutting edge: Well-meaning, but inept, moderates. (Read our lips.)

Mainstream variant: Cynical, disillusioned liberals.
Unhip: Crusty, I've-got-mine conservatives. (Best served with California ranch dressing.)

TELEVISION FAMILIES:

Of course, television is hip, so are families. In fact, 1988 was the year we all stayed home with our families to watch "Unsolved Mysteries" and "America's Most Wanted" because we were too scared to go out at night and do something more meaningful.

Cutting edge: Married with Children. (Real life, only scarier.)

Mainstream variant: Roseanne. (Real life is scarier, but not by much.)
Unhip: Family Ties.

SUBURBS: (O&E communities excepted — we're no fools.)

Suburban lifestyles are hip as we indeed are becoming our mothers and fathers.

Cutting edge: Ann Arbor.
Mainstream variant: Royal Oak. (Commendable: Formerly unhip burb bounces back.)

Unhip: Warren. (Unless you're into chain link fences.)

Winter escape?

Fantasy camp and board game offer a 'getaway'

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Q: HELP! I've made it through January, but I'll never make it through another month until they start broadcasting baseball from the spring training camps in Florida! I don't ski, I don't like winter, not even warm winters, and I don't have enough money to go away for more than a cheap weekend.

Harry,
Canton

A: If I could round up $3,000, I would send you to a Baseball Fantasy Camp run by The Sox Exchange in Chain O'Lakes, Fla. It's in full swing this week, and you would be a perfect candidate.

You get to pretend you are a major league baseball player, and a field full of old Boston Red Sox players are there to help the fantasy along. The Tigers have a fantasy camp, too. Maybe next year, when we win the lottery.

Since that is just a fantasy, let's

The board is an aerial shot of Lake Superior, taken from 600 miles up, surrounded by the names of all those places we love to go in summer — Pictured Rocks, Tahquamenon Falls, the National Ski Hall of Fame. land Doroff charms everyone in sight.

I hate to sound like a grandparent, but let me tell you how cute she looks with her bangs.

The contrast between the repressed little 6-year-old and the crabby, giant Nolte requires minimal acting and maximum photographic/directorial skill.

ONE MIGHT suggest a little more restraint, however, in the currently fashionable depiction of the police as mindless, rapid-firing SWAT teams.

James Earl Jones is fairly leaden in his performance and the continuity director messed up on Nolte's wounded leg.

Aside from these minor complaints, 'Three Fugitives' is terrific. It will bring joy to your hearts and dollars to Buena Vista's coffers.

STILL PLAYING: 'The Accidental Tourist' (C+) (PG) 120 minutes.

Slow-paced family melodrama. 'Beaches' (A+) (PG-13) 120 minutes.

'Crossing Delancy' (A) (PG) 95 minutes. A liberated, young New York gal, but grandma has Old World ideas.

VIDEO VIEWING

1925 'Ben Hur' still an epic

By Dan Greenberg special writer

This week we're inaugurating a new column on videocassettes. Each week, we're going to review unusual motion pictures available on videocassette.

From the dollar signs ringing up in video stores across the country, more people are spending more money on videocassette rentals and purchases than ever before.

In 1987, American film producers earned $7.6 billion from the sale of videocassette rights to their movies.

Everybody's familiar with the megabuck response to 'E.T.' in videocassette, but what about other old favorites? There's a tremendous range of entertainment and information available at your local video shop and this column will offer some insight into the less-publicized cassettes.

There's a lot more out there than 'E.T.' and 'Top Gun' — more than 54,000 titles — so tune in each week.

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

'Tan': Burroughs puts life into an extraordinary film

By Anne Sharp special writer

How to describe 'A Winter Tan?' Think of the Glenn Close character in 'Fatal Attraction' — obsessed, lustful, dangerous.

Actually, this extraordinary Canadian film — a collaboration among four directors, including Jackie Burroughs, who also wrote the script and plays the lead character — is based on a true story.

A middle-aged writer and teacher from New York wrote a series of letters to a friend while on a rather wild vacation in a Mexican seaside town. They turned out to be her last words on earth.

Published under the title, 'Give Sorrow Words: Maryse Holder's Letters from Mexico,' they became the basis for this film.

As Holder, Burroughs speaks to the audience, directly or through voice-over, as she lives out the scenes she describes.

Jackie Burroughs scripted, co-directed and starred as Maryse Holder 'A Winter Tan.'

Holder lurches around the beaches and bars like a one-woman 'Sid and Nancy,' almost always drunk or drugged, horrifying the locals with her carelessly raunchy behavior.

Maryse is perhaps, 50. She dresses and acts like a 17-year-old delinquent. She has no dignity in her multiple sexual encounters with men young enough to be her grandchildren.

She simpers and moons over them, desperate for romance, in despair because these gigolos can only give her physical, not emotional, fulfillment.

'Men know how our desire for love overwhelms our intelligence,' she laments. 'They know it all over the world.' The only man she meets who tells her he loves her is the man who murders her.

Burroughs brings Holder to life. All the raging, surging emotions expressed in the letters are vividly realized in her performance.

Burroughs' face and body are well-preserved, in the sense of formaldehyde; she looks fit, but leathery in her mini skirts and string bikini. It hurts to see this obviously aging woman rant distractedly about her longing for youth, pleasure and immortality.

IT'S SHOCKING. A woman her age simply isn't supposed to act or feel this way. And yet, because she expresses herself in such awesome, rich language, we see her not in the stereotype of the pathetic, over-the-hill bimbo, but as a female counterpart to that long line of writers who dedicated themselves to glamorous self-destruction — Charles Baudelaire, Dylan Thomas, even Jim Morrison.

Surprisingly, this does not come off as a tale like 'Fatal Attraction' or 'Looking for Mr. Goodbar,' in which the 'liberated' woman is portrayed as a nasty slut who deserves to be murdered.

It is precisely because Holder is so unliberated, foolishly living out a male-defined, male-centered romantic fantasy that she comes to a bad end.

As Holder casually tells one of her surly acquaintances, 'I'm on vacation from femininity.'

The final message of 'A Winter Tan' is: 'Don't leave home without it.'

Myers: Humor ala Bavaria

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Fresh off the autobahn comes Klaus Myers, who calls himself Germany's No. 1 comedian. Yes, the rigors, the pressure. Undoubtedly, the weight of the Deutschland's numero uno jokester must make Myers' shoulders ache.

Right, Klaus?
"It's not tough being the number-one comedian in Germany," said Myers, who will bring his Bavarian brand of laughter Wednesday through Friday to Joey's Comedy Club in Livonia. "I'm the only comedian in Germany. Those people are not big on stand-up comedy."

Myers has made a name for himself by billing himself as Germany's No. 1 comedian, although neither West nor East Germany claims him.

Myers said his comedic crusade involves more than making people laugh. As an ambassador of good will, he seeks to knock down the stereotypes that Americans might have about Germans.

For instance, he said this thing about people from Germany being totally into this thing about mathematical uniformity is unfounded. So what if Myers starts his act by stating, "This is joke No. 1."

MYERS HAS numbered his jokes at a number of clubs across the country, including the Tropicana, Dangerfields, Comic Strip and the Improvisational. He's appeared on the Fox Network and will be featured in a comedy show this month on HBO.

Also, Myers has been signed as a national radio advice columnist, "Hey, Mel," as part of the Rock Comedy Library Service. Segments can be heard on WLLZ-FM's "JJ and the Morning Crew" 6-10 a.m.

Myers is performing at Joey's Comedy Club in Livonia as part of its first anniversary.

Myers' notoriety is swelling faster than a bratwurst over a blow furnace. The differences between performing at Joey's Comedy Club, and say, a basement in Bonn are many, according to Myers. The obvious one is that, well, American audiences don't speak German.

"West Berlin is a happening town," Myers said. "There's nothing like doing a set and then hanging out in the red light district."

"I did a show for the people of East Berlin," he added without missing a beat. "Talk about a captive audience."

Myers' background is sketchy. He said he is a graduate of Kaiser High, where he excelled in baseball. "I excelled because I was the only one who played it," he said.

WHEN HE wasn't supposedly chucking fastballs, he was pitching one liners. His role as a class clown often got him into trouble.

"If you fool around in the classroom in Germany, you receive corporal punishment," he said. "They take a leather strip to your behind. Having received that punishment once, I decided I had to have some more of that."

Klaus Myers will perform Wednesday through Saturday,

Klaus Myers bills himself as Deutschland's numero uno jokester.

Feb. 1-4, at Joey's Comedy Club, 36071 Plymouth, Livonia. For reservations or information, call 261-0555.

Chaplin's adds 2nd location

There's a new comedy club coming to town.

The owners of Chaplin's Comedy Club in Fraser will open a second location in Redford Township Tuesday.

The new club, appropriately named Chaplin's West, is at Six Mile and Telegraph in a building that formerly housed Cagney's nightclub.

Kenny Rogerson will be the headliner for the 300-seat club's grand opening.

Comedy headliners like Rogerson, Stephanie Hodge (Feb. 7-11) and Ed

Fiala (Feb. 14-18) will be on tap Tuesday through Saturday nights, with the possibility of an added Sunday night attraction.

"We're shooting for a Sunday 'open mike' night by the end of February," said owner Bob Hargis.

Unlike Chaplin's East, which features a restaurant, the new club will probably have a limited food menu, Hargis said.

Though Mark Ridley's unsuccessful attempt to expand his Berkley Comedy Castle to Warren and Detroit still fresh in the minds of many, Hargis appears undaunted and confident in the opening of Chaplin's West.

"The outlook is promising," he said. "Now we can draw from everywhere in Detroit demographically. The location also is accessible from all the major thoroughfares."

For more information, or show reservations at Chaplin's West, call 533-8866.

PAUL MARTI

Paul and Betsy Marti found the dinghy Sancho and a life raft were still tethered to the harbor in the Fiji Islands. The grounding brought an end to the Martis' dream of sailing around the world.

Editor's note: In 1987, Paul Marti set off on an adventure of a lifetime — sailing around the world. His dream was shattered July 23, 1988, when his yacht, the "Keema," ran aground on a coral reef in the Fiji Islands. It took several months to adjust to life away from the sea, but now Marti is able to look back on the loss of the Keema and see the future.

'Paradise lost': Suva reef ends great adventure

Dec. 23, 1987, a tropical storm passed over the central Bahamas. Securely anchored, Betsy and I rode out the blow aboard our yacht, Keema. "Quest," a 38-foot ketch, wasn't as fortunate. During the night, her anchor rope parted and she was swept up on the rocks of Great Exuma Island.

Christmas Eve morning, I awoke to see Quest helplessly impaled on the rocky shore. I felt a great deal of compassion for the retired couple who lived aboard and was grateful that good fortune had been with us on our journey thus far.

Today, months after the loss of Keema, I fully understand the pain and sense of loss the crew of Quest endured.

It has taken some time before I could force myself to write this, the last chapter, of our cruising adventure. But now, with our lives ashore re-established and a better sense of perspective on our loss, it is time to finish our talk.

In early June of last year, Betsy and I completed our idyllic three-month stay in French Polynesia. Well-rested, we resumed our passage across the South Pacific. The next leg of our journey would take us to Brisbane, Australia, 3,600 nautical miles west and past the halfway mark of our circumnavigation.

OUR PLAN was to make four stops — Rarotonga, American Samoa, Fiji, New Caledonia and then on to Brisbane. Each passage would be about 750 miles in length, or roughly a week's time.

The first two segments — Rarotonga and American Samoa — were completed without incident. Both passages were rough, but fast.

American Samoa is a major re-provisioning port. Goods from the States are readily available and reasonably priced for the islands. Consequently, when Keema departed on her last passage, she was fully stocked.

Our first 24 hours passed with these same conditions. Occasionally, we motored, when the winds died. By the evening of July 17, the trade winds filled in and our pace quickened. The conditions weren't the most comfortable, but fast passages are adequate compensation for rough rides.

The Fiji Islands stretch over 300 miles from east to west. Our destination, Suva, was in the southwestern portion. July 20, we entered Fijian waters, when we sailed through the Nanuku Passage, the northeastern entrance to the Koro Sea.

FOR THE next 220 miles, reefs and islands were a constant danger. Once inside the Koro Sea, the seas subsided and our enthusiasm heightened. We were excited because our good friends, Dave and Judy McWhirter of Rochester, were meeting us in Suva.

Just after midnight July 22, we crossed 180 degrees longitude. July 23 became a 10-minute day as we jumped forward to July 23 and into the Eastern Hemisphere.

We were into the final day of our journey. We had one last obstacle to pass, the southern tip of Viti Levu and its protective reefs. At 5:10 p.m., we sighted the southeastern tip of the island. Our course would now take us due west until we passed the southern reef lighthouse.

For the next 2½ hours, we sailed on with only a double-reefed main, making 6½ knots with a following sea. At 7:40 p.m., we were abreast of the lighthouse and could see the lights of Suva.

According to my calculations, we had about 12 miles to go. My plan was to remain about five or six miles offshore until I picked up the range lights leading into Suva harbor. I thought five or six miles would keep us well clear of all dangers. I was wrong.

AT 8:25 P.M., I went down below for our last look at my charts. The harbor entrance was another three miles ahead. To our right were the protective reefs.

Betsy was down below, reading, and I was inspecting my charts when I felt a strange motion in the boat. Immediately, I was back on deck. Keema was in the surf line.

I turned the wheel hard to port. As I did, a wave picked us up and, with a sickening crunch, threw us up on the reef. After the wave passed, we floated for a few seconds. With the engine engaged, I gave her full throttle and tried to fight our way back through the surf to deep water.

The attempt was futile. The next breaker picked us up again and like a child's toy hurtled us farther onto the reef. We didn't float again.

Both waves completely engulfed the boat. I held on with all my strength and stayed on board. Betsy, who was coming up the companionway, was washed back down into the cabin.

Less than a minute had elapsed from the time I was reading my charts until we were hard upon the reef. After the second wave put us aground, Betsy reappeared in the companionway. We were both relieved to see each other apparently unharmed.

I WAS well aware that we had no chance of saving Keema on our own. However, with the lights of Suva teasingly close, we hoped for help. Betsy started sending out a mayday call on the radio and I sent up flares.

While we tried to get help, each new wave would crash down on Keema's port side and drive her farther onto the reef. About an hour into our ordeal, the running lights of another boat appeared. A good-sized work boat came to within a half mile of us. Unfortunately, with the sea conditions, they could not assist us. After a short while, they left.

My main concern was for our safety. Until the seas subsided, we couldn't count on anyone helping us. Although we were hard aground in a few feet of water, we had not been holed yet. Our best bet was to stay inside Keema and wait it out.

During the long night, the pounding of the waves continued and with each one, we were driven farther onto the reef. Just before midnight, one exceptionally hard wave hit us. We were picked up and body slammed down on the coral. When we hit, a bulkhead gave way. We were holed and started taking on water.

WE HAD to prepare for the possibility of abandoning her, if she continued to come apart. I told Betsy to take one duffel bag and to pack what was most important to her. I did the same; my log, my sextant and a few personal items went into my bag.

Although the water was shallow, we couldn't abandon her on foot. The waves would toss us like rag dolls on to the coral and we would be dead in minutes. Our only hope was to prepare the life raft and dinghy.

I put my harness on and went topside. First I threw the life raft overboard and pulled the cord to inflate it. To my relief, she popped to life and in seconds was bobbing on the protected side of the boat.

Next I cut the dinghy free and secured "Sancho" next to the life raft. Betsy passed up our two duffel bags, and I lowered them into the raft. Now, if Keema should totally break up, we could quickly be into the raft and make our way from there.

Fortunately, we never had to take to the raft. Although each wave would push us in and do more damage, we were getting farther from the surf line and the waves were diminishing in size.

IT WAS cold and wet as we braced ourselves and tried to remain as comfortable as possible. I was most concerned about Betsy. She was deep in thought. I tried to read her mind. I was sure she was thinking never again, no more great adventures.

Eventually, I asked for her thoughts. "Well," she said, "I was just thinking that our next boat, it will definitely have refrigeration." "Next boat!" I exclaimed. "And steel, definitely steel." We both laughed.

The tension was broken and we started to talk about our future plans. We were both quite hungry and while we talked, a couple of Baby Ruth bars floated by. We grabbed them and dined, our last meal on the Keema.

As the sun rose, the tide was reaching its lowest point. Keema was now completely exposed, resting on the coral. I crawled overboard and surveyed the situation. To my surprise, she looked good. There was no visible damage. Apparently, the only hole in the hull was on the side where she rested.

With the immediate danger past, I started to think of ways to salvage her. We would need help. We decided to make our way to shore to seek assistance.

THE REEF was about a mile wide. Inside the reef was a lagoon about five miles in width separating us from the shores of Suva. We decided to carry our life raft and dinghy across the reef and then row to shore. It took two hours of walking, wading and bobbing to cross the razor-sharp reef.

Our ankles were cut up and stinging from the salt water when we finally reached the edge of the lagoon. We tied the life raft, with our gear in it, to the dinghy and boarded Sancho.

After 2½ hours of rowing, two small boats appeared. It was the Fijian Navy. The boats were two 16-foot, dilapidated, wooden runabouts with outboard motors. We were elated to see them. They took us aboard, along with our gear, and we headed for the naval base.

When we arrived at the yard, all the naval personnel were extremely courteous and helpful. The officer in charge took the report of our wreck, cleared us into the country and helped us contact a salvage company.

The salvage team came down to the yard to meet us and agreed to go have a look at Keema to assess the situation.

AFTER completing the necessary formalities, the naval commander drove us to our hotel. We enjoyed the luxury of a long, hot shower before sleeping the afternoon away.

Several hours later, I was awakened by the phone. Charles, the salvage operator, was in the hotel lobby. Charles was quite optimistic. The damage appeared to be repairable and he was confident he could refloat her at high tide the next day. His charge would be $5,000 Fijian, or about $3,600 U.S.

Our spirits were rising; we had hopes of getting her off the reef and repairing the damage for less than $5,000. It would be a financial setback, but our trip would continue.

We contacted our friends from the other yachts in town. The cruising yachtsmen rallied around us, volunteering their expertise. The worst was behind us now; it was time to repair the Keema and begin again.

The next morning I went with Charles and his father to have one last look at Keema and to discuss the details of the salvage.

FOR INSURANCE reasons, we were not allowed to go out with the salvage team. High tide was at 2:58 p.m.; we waited at the Suva Yacht Club. If all went well, Keema would be in by 5:30 p.m.

Slightly before 6, the salvage boat came back, but Keema was nowhere in sight. We rushed out to meet the crew as the boat docked. I could tell by their expressions all was not well.

"We lost her," Charles said. "She came off the reef and immediately went down." Although they were vague, it was apparent to me that either their pumps failed to keep her afloat or they underestimated the damage.

Either way, she sank. Fortunately, the tug driver continued to pull Keema a short ways to a sand ledge, where he let her come to rest in about 200 feet of water, considerably better than the 2,000 feet just off the reef.

Because Keema was in Fijian waters, she was still technically ours. Had she sank in international waters, anyone who hauled her up could claim her. If we abandoned her and left the country, she became the property of the Fijian government. Our option was to sell our salvage rights to a third party.

THERE IS one yacht broker in Suva, an Australian named Jeff Norton. Jeff had been negotiating with us to buy her from the time he heard of our misfortune. After she sank, he was still interested.

The costs for having her hauled up and repaired skyrocketed. The salvage itself would cost $12,000. An additional $25,000 or more would be needed to repair or replace everything damaged by salt water immersion. Like virtually all other long-distance cruisers, we had no insurance. Consequently, we could not afford to repair her and continue on. We had to make our best deal with Jeff.

He knew our situation and saw the opportunity to make a hefty profit. We were forced to settle for approximately 5 percent of our total investment in Keema. Three days after Keema went down, we signed over the title.

During our short stay in Suva, we were showered with kindness by our cruising friends. When we went to check out of our hotel, we found a note waiting for us. It read, in part, "Your bill has been paid. Have a safe passage home. . . The Yachties of Suva."

WE WERE immensely grateful. The next day Betsy and I boarded a Qantas flight home.

Since our return, good fortune has smiled upon us. With a little help from my principal, Dick Ickles, a position was made available for me at Rochester High School. Betsy was welcomed back to the intensive care unit at St. Joseph Hospital in Pontiac. We found a home and have quickly adjusted to life ashore.

Many friends have asked us if it was worth it, will we do it again? The answer to both questions is an emphatic yes. The 13 months we had was an adventure of a lifetime. Losing Keema was a setback, but it has not detracted from the many warm memories of people and places we experienced.

The adventure started out as my dream and Betsy coming along. That has changed. Today, we dream together of our next boat, our next adventure. It will take some time to recoup, but the planning is half the pleasure.

Oh, yes, we already have the name for our next boat. We decided it that night on the reef. . . "Comeback."

P.S. Since returning, we have found out that Keema was successfully raised. Her mast was broken during the recovery, and she is currently being re-outfitted in Suva.

Art advisers help build collections

AP — The combination of more corporate and private art collectors and a greater pool of museum studies graduates is leading to a new resource for appreciators of art — art advisers for hire.

These are individuals who help collectors make informed choices, show them how to shape, document and display their collections and do the detective work often necessary to find the best objects. They may also catalog a collection, provide appraisals and condition reports and bid at auction.

According to New York art consultant David Hanks, the number of professional art advisers has grown primarily in response to the needs of corporations for art advice. But private collectors also have been hiring advisers. In many instances, he pointed out, corporate collections are really the creation of a individual with access to power and corporate funds.

FOR THE TRAINED CURATOR, being a private consultant has more appeal than one outside the art field might imagine. Hanks, for example, worked at a number of museums. What he didn't like about museums — aside from the low salaries — was the politics and bureaucracy.

"Nowadays it's not enough for a curator to have wonderful ideas for projects. The curator has to be a fund-raiser for his own ideas if he wants a project to get off the ground," he said.

An advantage to being an independent — his occupation since 1979 — is that "when people come to us they usually have the funds in hand."

Several collectors who have hired consultants say they are well worth the fees. Ardis and Robert James, collectors of modern and antique quilts who live in a New York suburb, hired Penny McMorris of Bowling Green, Ohio, to provide advice on lighting, conservation, record keeping and display for their collection of pieced quilts. Her most appreciated role was to guide them in making the right buying decisions.

"We had no knowledge of quilt history when we started buying quilts in 1979 and needed good advice. We were lucky to get it," they said. "Penny knows what we have and guides our purchases very gently." If they ever decide to sell some quilts, they will ask her advice on which ones, for how much and to whom.

Wistar and Martha Morris of Philadelphia hired Hanks about eight years ago to put together a collection of 19th-century American furniture and silver for them.

"He came to our house and got to know our tastes. We gave him a budget and asked him to find interesting, important, American decorative pieces. He photographs everything and writes up an accurate description of each item including its place and importance in history," said Morris. The fee for the service is a percentage of the amount spent on purchases.

BESIDES PROVIDING buying guidance and access to excellent pieces, Hanks helped the Morrises decide what to collect. By making them aware of 19th century items before they were in such great demand, he helped them get there ahead of the crowd.

For those who don't live near a large city, a consultant provides an entry to the many good art galleries that aren't necessarily known to novice collectors.

"When you are removed from a real art center you have a hard time just finding things," said McMorris. "A consultant can sift through a lot of dreck quickly."

Perhaps as a sign of the growing development of the field, the Association of Professional Art Advisors — a group of about 45 individuals who have professional credentials and advise corporations and individuals on art acquisitions — was formed in 1980.

According to Lynne Sowder, president and director of visual arts at First Banks in Minneapolis, the group's bylaws don't permit members to take commissions from art sellers or artists. They are obligated to pass on any commissions paid by art sellers, a rule designed to eliminate bias in favor of artwork that produces larger commissions.

Typical fees might range $50-75 an hour, up to $125 for a highly skilled professional. According to Beatrix Medinger, a New York City art consultant and former president of the association, the services of an art adviser need not be confined to those with a large art-buying budget.

"In practice, a budget of about $5,000 would be realistic," she said. The art adviser's real stock-in-trade is knowledge, according to Sowder. "The better advisers have long-term relationships with dealers across the world. They know of resources in small, out-of-the-way places. People who have worked in the field a long time know a lot of tricks you can't learn except through time," she said. One of their greatest services is helping people pick out something to collect that they can afford.

For a list of members, write the Association of Professional Art Advisors, P.O. Box 2485, New York, N.Y. 10163.

condo queries
Robert M. Meisner

Q. One of the units in our condominium is being foreclosed by the mortgage company. The co-owner owes the association back-due assessments. We have a lien on the property. Are we protected?

A. This is an extremely complex question and cannot be answered within the limitations of this column, other than to indicate that generally the first mortgage lien is prior to the interest of the association and that if the mortgagee forecloses on the unit, the secured interest of the association in the condominium unit will be wiped out. There are, of course, various options available to the association in the event of a mortgage foreclosure.

Depending upon whether there is equity in the unit and other circumstances, the association may wish to consider taking various options regarding the mortgage sale. Obviously, it is imperative that the association retain competent legal advice to determine what the alternatives are and what is the best remedy to follow.

Q. My ex-wife is running a business out of our former marital home and has a "boarder" who seems to be helping her in her business. I have read the deed restrictions and am wondering whether or not any action can be taken against her.

A. You should look into the question of whether or not her activities constitute the running of a business in the deed restrictions of the subdivision and/or the ordinances of the municipality in which the home is located. Her activities may be "commercial" and may be a violation of both the deed restriction and the local ordinances.

The homeowners association and/or the municipality may have jurisdiction to pursue your ex-wife. To the extent that your ex-wife is apparently rooming with someone, that may conceivably be a violation of other provisions of the ordinance and/or deed restrictions regarding the fact that she must operate a single family residence.

For example, if she is receiving compensation from the person, that may be deemed a "rooming house" under certain ordinances. Again, it depends upon the particular deed restrictions and/or ordinances of the municipality in which you are located.

Write it down

Q. My wife keeps telling me to make To Do Lists, but it's depressing when I see so many things that need doing. How important is it to write things down?

A. Some people function very well without writing out their To Do's because they can clearly see and remember many details in their mind. Indeed, they enjoy the challenge of keeping things straight in their head, which is fine so long as it works.

For others without such talent, however, it is imperative to put your tasks in black and white for many reasons. Since it is impossible to write without thinking, putting things on paper helps you clarify your ideas. As I discuss in my performance planning workshops, it also relieves you of the burden of not forgetting your assignments. Remember the ditty: "On paper, off your mind."

Once written, it is easier to delineate which items are high priority. You can then focus on your most important tasks and schedule them for your high energy time of day.

When other chores come up, instead of stopping one thing to do another (before you forget), add it to your list. Your time becomes better utilized and you can accomplish more because distractions are reduced. Also, things are more easily maintained because there are actually fewer things left to do.

What are some other advantages of planning on paper? For one thing, it helps prevent (convenient) amnesia. "Oh darn!" you lament, "I keep forgetting to write that thank you note!" (In fact, you don't want to do it.)

WRITING ALSO REDUCES procrastination, "dropped balls," and a constant crisis mode of putting out fires. Perpetual crises indicates your life is out of control and the best way to recover from that fate is to write out a plan.

Some people claim they are so busy they "don't have time" to plan on paper. In fact, the busier you are, the more important it is to record your chores. Remember that no business succeeds without a plan and our lives have become almost as complicated as businesses.

Still other writing benefits include gaining control over your life, realizing how much you do, and feeling good about yourself — as well as gaining respect from others. An added plus comes from having more time left over for personal enjoyment.

One final note: It is imperative to establish one single place to keep your list(s) in an organized manner. A professional appointments calendar on your desk provides a perfect spot.
