Airport meeting

Members of the Concerned Citizens group in Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton have scheduled a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Central Middle School in Plymouth.

At the meeting, the group will present information it has collected regarding Mettetal Airport and hear from Ann Arbor residents — a city councilman among them — about their dealings with the Federal Aviation Administration.

The Concerned Citizens oppose Plymouth and Plymouth Township using federal and state money to buy and operate the Canton airport.

DARE Pancakes

The Community Flip for DARE pancake breakfast, to raise money for the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program geared to elementary school students, is scheduled for 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at the Community Federal Credit Union in downtown Plymouth. Cost is $4 for adults. Children under 5 eat free.

New school

Pathways to Learning Children's Center has opened a new school in Plymouth at 42290 Five Mile Road.

The school's goal is to provide children with a happy, healthy, safe and stimulating environment.

The school offers morning and afternoon preschool and pre-kindergarten programs, a toddler program, summer programs, half day and full day programs. The school opens at 7 a.m. and closes at 6 p.m. and is open Monday through Friday.

Call 420-3553 for additional information.

Blue Grass

The annual Dixboro Blue Grass and Ice Cream Social will be held on Saturday and Sunday, July 20-21 in the community located on Plymouth Road West of Plymouth.

The Dixboro General Store will launch its First Annual Barn and Porch Sale the same weekend. The barns will be open to the public for the event. The barns past uses range from blacksmithing to Model T repairing. For the event, they will be full of handcrafted furniture and tropical plants of country tradition.

The sale will also feature hammer dulcimer music, Saturday and Sunday, noon to 4 p.m. There will be door prizes, refreshments and a store wide sale.

Extended store hours are Saturday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Protest

Plymouth Realtor K.C. Mueller says she's disgusted by the site of the vacant Farmer Jack supermarket on Main Street, where weeds have grown up through cracks in the parking lot pavement. "I would like to begin a protest march," she said, outside Farmer Jack's Canton store to protest the condition of the vacant Plymouth store. She's asking people wanting to join the protest to call her at 455-0075, or 453-3939.

Items for the Plymouth Pipeline should be sent to the Plymouth Observer, 744 Wing St., Plymouth, Mich. 48170 or called in at (313) 459-2700.

Beat the heat, drink lots of fluids, use sunblock

By Julie Brown staff writer

Prolonged exposure to heat and humidity can take its toll during these long summer days.

Dr. John McCabe can attest to that. He's the director of emergency services for the Catherine McAuley Health System in Ann Arbor, and has seen patients suffering from heatstroke come to the St. Joseph Mercy Hospital emergency room.

"This is when we see them," said McCabe, an M.D. In heatstroke, the body loses its ability to regulate temperature. The patient may have hallucinations and become combative.

"That's really the life-threatening one," McCabe said of heatstroke. People taking certain medications, including those that affect the central nervous system or the ability to sweat, are more susceptible to heatstroke, as are older people.

"The older we get, the more likely we are not to be able to respond to the heat stress."

to 10 days to become acclimatized to extremes of temperature and humidity, so even those who are outdoors all summer need to take precautions, he said.

Less severe health problems can also result from prolonged exposure to heat and humidity. Those suffering from heat exhaustion lose fluid and electrolytes, mainly sodium and potassium.

Heat exhaustion can show up in otherwise healthy people who are out in the sun all day. Sufferers may complain of being light-headed and fatigued, and many experience nausea, vomiting and headaches.

Heat cramps are another concern this time of year. Those can appear

Music festival on tap

By Kevin Brown staff writer

Get ready for the first ever Plymouth Music Celebration, Aug. 16-18, in Kellogg Park.

Blues, jazz, folk, bluegrass, country and classical music performances are scheduled and food booths will be set up for the celebration, organized by the producer of the Downtown Hoedown and Detroit Blues Festival.

THE MUSIC scheduled for the celebration is geared to appeal to "everyone in the family from 8 to 80," according to the organizer, Watts-UP Inc.

Organizer Mike Watts who lives in Plymouth said he got the idea from a well-run music festival in Charleston, S.C.

"I thought it would be interesting to do something with the ambiance and the situation here in Plymouth with Kellogg Park and other events," he said.

Watts is still seeking sponsors for the three-day event. "The Morse Dental Group of Plymouth is the major sponsor," he said, adding more music groups could be added if more sponsors are attracted.

"We want to do a quality job, the more money we have the more entertainment we do," Watts said.

"Our goal for the future is to bring in some national acts," he said.

Entertainment and other celebration activities are free. There is a charge for food.

Scheduled from noon to 2 p.m. and 5-9 p.m. Friday, Aug. 16, are folk, jazz and oldies music. Featured bands include the James Walin Blues Band, Steve Gornall, and George Bardard and the King Pins.

From noon to 2 p.m. Saturday, the Michigan Opera Theater company will perform "Little Red Riding Hood," and clowns, a magician and balloons for kids will be offered, along with face painting and crafts sponsored by the Gibson School for the Gifted of Redford.

5-9 P.M. Saturday, "An Elegant Picnic" organized by the Cafe Bon Homme is scheduled, featuring a a.m. tournament start time Friday were "Tire Town Bob," "Loophole Bob," "Radio Bob," "New Jersey Bob," and "Builder Bob," to name a few.

And let's not forget "Rutgers Bob," "U of M Bob," and "Banker I" and "Banker II Bob."

Bob Joneses from around the U.S. participate in the tournament, which also attracts a Canadian Bob, a Bob from the United Kingdom, and even a Roberta Jones.

The event was dreamed up by "Computer Bob" Jones of West Bloomfield, former president and owner of Computer Dynamics of Southfield.

"In 1979 I got the idea to maybe try something like this," he said.

It started with Jones calling other Bobs, and getting together to play golf, an activity popularized in the 1920s by Bobby Jones, who won the U.S. Open and other major tournaments.

"With a name like 'Bob Jones,' we should play golf," said Jones, who shoots around 90. "As we got more into it we got more organized." He contacted other Bobs by going through telephone directories.

Thirteen years later, the annual two-day golf tournament has raised $35,000 — around $5,000 a year — for research on syringomyelia, the neurological disease that killed famous golfer Bobby Jones, who died at 69 in 1971.

BESIDES THE NAME and golf, do Bob Joneses have anything else in common?

"No," said "Computer Bob," laughing.

But Bob Jones and his wife, Chris, of Hinkley, Ohio, disagree. "I think everyone looks the same," she said.

a golf cart is her husband "Tool Kit Bob."

"I sell tool kits for a living," he explains.

He tells a visitor, "Watch this: 'Hey Bob!,' he calls, toward a practice green where several Bobs practice putting.

They all look up, and that sparks laughter all around.

"Chub Bob" of Coburg, Ontario said he first heard of the event six years ago, in the Toronto Sun. "It took me two years to track it down. It's a great holiday for my wife and I."

"Loophole Bob" of Phoenix,

Ariz., said that upon first hearing of the event eight years ago, "You wondered what was going on.

"The money goes to a good cause, you couldn't hardly beat it," he said.

The Bobs compete in separate flights, according to ability. Winners in each category get a plaque. Attached to each plaque is one of Bobby Jones own clubs and the name of the winner is engraved.

"This is the only tournament where I can tell you who the winner is before it starts," "Computer Bob" explained.

Man faces trial on weapons charge

Bradley Jon Songer, 18, of Dearborn was bound over for trial at his preliminary exam Friday by 35th District Judge John MacDonald on charges of carrying a concealed weapon in a motor vehicle, a five-year felony.

He was arraigned July 10 by 35th District Judge James Garber and released on $5,000 personal bond.

Songer, driving a 1985 red Ford Escort, was pulled over for speeding shortly after 1 a.m. June 29 on Main Street near Linden by Plymouth police.

Officers allege that a semi-automatic handgun was on the floor of the car.

BUD ON THE RUN: Two young men dressed in shorts and baseball caps stole two cases of cold Budweiser from a Plymouth party store shortly after 8:30 p.m. July 17. The cashier was busy counting returned cans when he saw the two flee the building without paying for the beer.

They took off in a white car, heading westbound on Penniman.

SLING SHOT ALLEY: Plymouth police were dispatched at 11:18 p.m. July 17 to the alley behind the Clark service station on Main Street on reports of two suspects with slingshots.

After arriving in the alley in a semi-marked patrol car, officers saw a man flee and hop a fence on Sutherland. Despite police requests for him to stop, the man kept going so the officer jumped the fence in pursuit. Police found the 44-year-old Plymouth resident on the back porch of a Sutherland house, where police said he was yelling, "I'm home. This is my house."

The man said he and a friend were shooting water balloons onto Main Street. He was arrested for obstructing a police officer after police made several attempts to get the name of his accomplice.

The sling shot was removed "from its pole-to-pole position in the alley and tagged as evidence," according to the report.

Police also arrested a second Plymouth man after neighbors offered information on his whereabouts. The 34-year-old was found lying on his back behind a garage on Sutherland. He also was arrested on an ordinance violation and then released.

THEFT: Wheels and tires valued by their owner at $1,200 were discovered missing Tuesday from a car parked behind Bob Jeanotte Pontiac on Sheldon Road, according to a report filed with Plymouth Township police.

The theft, discovered at 7:30 a.m., was reported by an employee of the car dealership. He also reported $250 in damage to his 1991 Pontiac Bonneville, as the truck lock was punched out in the incident. Police are investigating.

OBSCENE VIDEOS: A 50-year-old Detroit man complained that two Plymouth video outlets are renting pornographic films.

Ronda Linford met U.S. Sen. Carl Levin, D-Michigan, while working as a page for the U.S. House of Representatives this summer.

Student gets a taste of Washington politics

While most of us watched happenings in the nation's capital on the evening news, Canton resident Ronda Linford, 16, went to Washington, D.C., and met with the nation's movers and shakers.

She'll have some exciting stories to tell about her summer vacation working as a Congressional page when she returns this fall as a junior to Plymouth-Salem High School. She worked in Washington from June 9 through July 6.

She said she was especially lucky to be there during the Fourth of July. And she found it even more fascinating meeting other pages who lived in various places around the U.S.

It wasn't all fun and games, though. Linford, who was hired for the summer job by U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Wayne, said she also learned a lot about how the U.S. House of Representatives operates. She saw first hand, for instance, how bills are passed and become law.

She also got to see the unveiling of a picture of President George Bush when he was vice president. The president and Barbara Bush were among other dignitaries on hand for the event.

Linford wants to see how the other half lives next summer and work as a U.S. Senate page.

"I learned all about the House side of the government and I want to learn the Senate side," she said. "I want to just continue studying about the government."

Her future career plans include becoming an international flight attendant and she's taken three years of French to help her during her travels.

in people who are drinking plenty of fluids but not replacing sodium. As with heatstroke, those taking certain medications, older people and infants are more susceptible to heat exhaustion or heat cramps.

"Avoidance is better really than anything else," McCabe said. Emergency treatment's necessary in some cases, but it's best to avoid problems.

Drinking plenty of fluids is recommended. It's best to limit consumption of alcohol and caffeinated beverages. Those act as diuretics, tending to increase urine discharge.

"You really should be drinking something without alcohol or caffeine," he said.

WEARING A HAT and loosely fitting, lightweight clothing can help guard against problems. Such clothing allows for sweating, helping the body to regulate temperature.

Some people who are out in the sun all day take a daily salt pill. It's probably safer to guard against that kind of exposure, he said. The worst time to be outdoors is 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., and some construction crews shift their work day to avoid those hours.

Doctors and nurses also recommend that those who are outdoors in the summer for any length of time use a good sunblock.

"Sunblock is real important," McCabe said. Its use helps to guard against sunburn and permanent skin damage.

Battling back

Woman turns her lemon into lemon aid

Instead of steaming, Redford Township's Cindy Noble got even with Blackwell Ford of Plymouth Township. Last February, Noble bought a 1986 Ford Escort at Blackwell.

Three weeks later, the car overheated and the cylinder head cracked. Ninety days after that, the engine ceased while Noble's husband was driving home from downtown Detroit. Repairs cost $2,000, and the warranty had just expired.

"We had to take money out of my husband's retirement," said Noble, sitting with a friend in 90-degree heat alongside her sign that read, "Don't buy lemons from this dealer. My lemons are cheaper."

"We have two kids, seven animals and I'm a homemaker. Legally, there's nothing I can do; the warranty is up, and they sold me the car," she said. "I asked them to give me a cashier's check for $2,500, keep the car and told them they'll never hear from me again."

After the dealership offered $1,500 and a deal on repairs, Noble resumed her third day of protest on Plymouth Road in front of Blackwell on Wednesday.

"They called me at 9:20 last night, and I got my $2,500 cash," said Noble Thursday. "They said Mr. Blackwell had just gotten back from vacation and wanted to give me my $2,500."

Dealership owner John Blackwell said he had "no comment to make. We just took care of her problem."

Noble gave credit to "the people of Plymouth. I'm thanking them for all their support. It was all the support and horn beeps that kept me going. I couldn't have done it without them," she said, adding that a Plymouth Township police officer gave her information on the lemon law and even recommended an attorney. "And I thank God for the freedom of speech."

"I am not angry or bitter, because I used my anger effectively. I had complete control and they knew it. The guys from the dealership came out and looked at my sign and laughed at me. Now who is laughing? I feel great. I never thought I could do this. They're a multi-million dollar corporation and I'm 5-foot-3, 110 pounds, and I won. It was justice."

Noble says her next move is to buy some type of American-made car. "I might even buy a Ford, but I'm not going to Blackwell."

Exasperated with her used Ford Escort from Blackwell Ford, Cindy Noble of Redford Township took her problem to the public on Plymouth Road last week. She was joined in front of the dealership by Faye McFarland of Plymouth, a passer-by who'd had her own troubles with Ford. Noble was given a full refund Thursday.

Canton youth wins Michigan art award

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

If you browse through this month's Michigan Out-of-Doors magazine and notice the 1991 Wildlife Art Awards winners, you'll see rabbits drawn by a fourth grader from Menominee, an eagle painted by a Sturgis student, and water lilies and a frog drawn by an art student from Marquette.

Among the nine winners — chosen from 7,400 entries from public and private schools throughout the state — is Jaclyn Ther of Canton. Schools were allowed just one entrant.

JACLYN WAS A sixth grader at Pioneer Middle School last year when she entered her drawing of a mockingbird, done with colored pencil on a pastel-dusted background.

"Also, we had to do a short essay that told where (our subject) lived and what he ate," said Jaclyn of the contest sponsored by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs. Entries had to feature a native Michigan animal in its natural habitat.

Choosing a subject wasn't difficult for Jaclyn. She's a longtime subscriber to Ranger Rick and National Wildlife magazines and a bird lover.

Jaclyn's mother Joan, who's an art teacher, said, "I was so busy teaching, I felt bad I didn't spend more time myself helping her. Now I'm glad I didn't. This is totally hers."

When her win was announced at Pioneer, "I felt excellent," said Jaclyn, who also is a puppeteer and clarinetist. "I won a $100 savings bond a subscription to Tracks (a magazine published by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs), a poster, a T-shirt and a book on every kind of bird you can think of."

Jaclyn's work was displayed along with that of other winners in an Okemos mall near Lansing where the judging recently took place.

"The purpose of the art contest was to give Michigan youngsters an opportunity to learn about wildlife and habitat through art," said Christie Bleck, editor of Tracks magazine. "I liked the fact that the participants chose a wide variety of animals in their artwork. They included a southern flying squirrel, a hooded merganser, a smallmouth bass, a goshawk, and a little brown bat."

JACLYN, WHO WON her first art award in fourth grade, said she "just wants to keep on doing art for fun. When the time comes, if I really want to have a career teaching art or go into showing my art, I guess I will."

A 3.8 student at Pioneer, Jaclyn loves to perform with puppets, ice skate, read, write, and study art at the D & M Art Studio where her mom teaches.

"I love to face paint too," added Jaclyn, who painted children's faces at Plymouth's Art in the Park July 13-14. "It's fun; you get to know a lot of people."

Jaclyn, who has two sisters, Kimberly, 9, and Lisa, 5, and a clarinet-playing dad named Jack, will attend seventh grade at the Agape Christian Center next year in Plymouth Township. She won't be far from her mom. "They just hired me to be the art teacher," said Joan Ther.

Farm market becomes an endangered species

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Part-time farmer George Skorina walked his 6-acre "garden" and talked about Saturday, the first day of the Canton Farmer's Market.

After 21 years of farming on the property surrounding his Gyde Road and Beck Road house, the retired accountant predicts it won't be much longer before he hangs up his hoe.

Plans to build palatial homes are underway "and we're going to be surrounded by houses," he said. "This could be the last year" he'll farm. Then he added, "But it will probably take two or three years before it's fully built up."

"It's nice to live in a secluded, wooded place that's so close to civilization. But sooner or later" you have to give it up.

His words echo most Canton farmers who are making room for developers in the township's long established farming community west of Canton Center.

AND THEIR tradition of selling the fruits of their labor every summer in the Kmart parking lot, on Ford and Sheldon roads, could be coming to a close. But not so fast. You can still get a taste of Canton's home grown produce if you plan your shopping Saturday.

For the rest of the summer and into fall, every week Canton farmers will set-up stands Wednesdays, noon

'til 7 p.m. and Saturdays 8 a.m. 'til 3 p.m. or 4 p.m. The market runs until Saturday, Oct. 26, the last weekend before Halloween.

"The only problem we're having lately is all the people selling cars in the parking lot," he said. "We have permission to sell there and they don't. People can't see us and prospective buyers can't get to us."

Skorina said he has seen as many as 75 cars and boats in the lot at one time.

ANOTHER PROBLEM with the makeshift setting, Skorina said, is that if it's raining you go home. And sometimes that means throwing away bushels of vegetables. He sells everything from corn, various types of tomatoes, peppers, beans, melons and multi-varieties of squash.

Tomatoes sold in most stores just can't be compared to homegrown, he said. "They don't sell local tomatoes," Skorina said. "They sell green tomatoes that are gassed so they'll turn red. There's no comparison. A lot of people have never tasted a home grown tomato."

If people are interested in more tomatoes than Skorina has to sell at the market, he invites them to his house where they can walk away with as much as they like.

He's been selling at the market since it started about 10 years ago. And before that he hauled his produce down to Eastern Market. "But that was a hassle. It was a long drive and sometimes he had to wait an hour before getting a stall."

'They sell green tomatoes that are gassed so they'll turn red.'

HIS DAUGHTER, Carol Skorina, remembers the days when she used to go to Eastern Market with him — watching the different types of people and goods they sell.

Those were the days when the Ann Arbor resident used to help out on the farm, "from the time I was real little," she said.

Back then, Skorina used to take dips in the pond, stocked with bass, blue gill and trout, behind the house. But once the subdivisions come in, the pond will be too much temptation for neighborhood children, her dad said.

In another area of his property, Skorina mapped out trails in a wooded area of pine trees that attracts deer.

Picking wild berries growing along a makeshift path, Carol Skorina pointed to the many natural beauties of the land and scenery, much of which will be gone in a few years.

Meanwhile, while her dad is still farming, he said: "We look forward to having their business" at the Canton Farmers Market.

George Skorina picks a green tomato while explaining how most stores sell green tomatoes and gas them to make them red.

Western Canton looks for a slice of city life

By Diane Gale

Domino's pizza delivers — unless you live in certain remote areas of Canton.

In fact, all but one of Canton's pizza producers draws a limit on how far they will drive their cheesy delights.

THEY SAY IT'S just not worth it to drive out to Canton's far western and southern areas.

Imagine sitting home on a Saturday night and getting a hankering for pizza, but you don't feel like picking it up. Brian Simpkins, on Proctor near Geddes, doesn't have to pretend.

"They say they don't deliver out here, because we're out in the country. They have certain areas they don't deliver. If we get one we've gotta go get it."

Matt Valerio, 13, and his family live on Denton Road and they can forget about a 30 minutes or less deal that some pizza places offer. "We have to go pick it up," said Valerio, who usually frequents Hungry Howies.

"They say that we're just too far out."

In other areas of Canton, at Cherry Hill and Proctor, for instance, the cheese and pepperoni choices are limited. You forget about the bigger name pizza makers coming out. Getting Domino's pizza delivered west of Beck is out of the question. "We get it from Palermo's or Cottage Inn," said Norma St. Holmes.

Of 12 pizzerias in Canton only one, Papa Romano's, said they delivered anywhere in Canton.

"I was just out to Ridge and Napier," said David Ramsey, an employee. "We love their business. Give us a call sometime."

PERRY PORIKOS, owner of Cottage Inn, offers a special perk to people who are outside the zone. They deliver only as far as Geddes. But if the delivery people won't come to you and you go to them, $3 comes off your pizza bill.

Chad Monteith, an employee at Dolly's Pizza Pals, said the delivery service depends on how busy they are. If you're within a certain boundary and your delivery person takes more than 30 minutes to reach your doorstep, you get $4 off your purchase. The offer is off if you live outside the boundaries.

"We'll deliver (to all areas) if we have enough drivers and enough time, but we tell them it's not guaranteed," Monteith said.

The Observer was unable to get a comment from Pepperoni Express employees.

Craig P. Wickham, 12, watches owner Gino Martucci make a pizza.

Palermo's delivery people go as far as I-275 on the east; to Napier, the farthest western limits; Michigan Avenue to the south and Ann Arbor Road to the north.

Would-be pizza buyers try to get the boundaries extended, said John Maniaci, Palermo's co-owner.

"And before you know they want us to go to Newburgh or Hix," he said.

PIZZA KING assistant manager, Darlene Gagalar, said "we go real far and if we went any further, the chances are that the pizza would get cold." But they won't go further west than Beck.

Mancino's employee Nancy List said they take their boxed delights to Plymouth Township and most of northern Canton.

Gino's Italian, in Plymouth, delivers to parts of Canton, the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Ginos has operated for 25 years with the same owner and same manager. Manager Jerry Hill said it has been a real feat competing against the muscle bound chains, like Domino's and Pizza-Hut.

Die hard fans though don't care about Gino's delivery boundaries, Hill said. "They love our pizza," said Hill adding that some customers are from Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor and Salem Township.

And then there are those establishments that don't deliver small orders at all. Like Maria's Italian Bakery, which doesn't deliver orders of less than 10 pizzas. The Little Caesar's outlets and Roman Forum won't deliver at all.

Canton sponsors tennis tourney

The Canton Parks and Recreation Services is sponsoring a Junior Open Singles Tennis Tournament.

The tournament is set for Aug. 2-4. The format is single elimination and is open to all area tennis players. Matches will be played at Plymouth Canton High School tennis courts.

Depending on the size of the draw, some matches may be played at Griffin Park in Canton. Price of $10 includes a t-shirt (each person must provide their own can of U.S.T.A. approved tennis balls).

Each participant should contact Parks and Recreation Services 3-5 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 1, for their match time.

Awards will be given to all winners and runners-up of each division. Registration deadline is 5 p.m. Wednesday, July 31. For further details call 397-5110 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH Summary of Ordinance GROUP VEHICLE LICENSE INDORSEMENTS ORDINANCE ORDINANCE NO. 91-C-14 Chapter 66

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE CODE OF ORDINANCES OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH, BY ADDING A NEW CHAPTER, WHICH NEW CHAPTER SHALL BE DESIGNATED AS CHAPTER 66, GROUP VEHICLE LICENSE INDORSEMENTS, OF PART VI, TRAFFIC, OF SAID CODE; REGULATING PERSONS OPERATING CERTAIN GROUP VEHICLES; PROVIDING FOR LICENSE DESIGNATIONS AND LICENSEES WITH CLASS 1, 2, OR 3 INDORSEMENTS; PROVIDING FOR DEFINITIONS; PROVIDING FOR APPLICATION OF SECTION; PROVIDING FOR CRIMINAL SANCTIONS FOR VIOLATIONS OF THE ORDINANCE; PROVIDING FOR THE SEVERABILITY OF THE ORDINANCE; PROVIDING FOR THE REPEAL OF CONFLICTING ORDINANCES AND THE SAVINGS OF ALL PROCEEDINGS; PROVIDING FOR THE EFFECTIVE DATE HEREOF.

THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. AMENDMENTS

The Code of Ordinances of the Charter Township of Plymouth, Michigan, is hereby amended by adding Chapter 66, Group Vehicle License Indorsements, to Part VI, Traffic, which shall read as follows:

SECTION 66.010. Definitions. The terms used in this Ordinance shall be as defined by MCLA Chapter 257, the Michigan Vehicle Code.

SECTION 66.020. Persons Operating Certain Group Vehicles, License Designation, Application of Section, Licensees for Class 1, 2, or 3 Indorsements.

A. This subsection provides that a person operating certain vehicles must obtain a group vehicle designation on his or her operator's or chauffeur's license depending upon the gross vehicle weight rating, the number of passengers carried, depending on whether the vehicle is a school transportation vehicle, or depending on whether the vehicle is transporting hazardous materials.

B. This subsection provides that, in addition to a group vehicle designation, an operator of commercial motor vehicles, a bus, school bus or school transportation vehicle must obtain a license indorsement specific to the type of vehicle driven. This sub-section also provides for testing requirements for indorsements and for operators of commercial motor vehicles equipped with air brakes.

C. This subsection lists those vehicles exempt from this section, which primarily consist of farm vehicles.

D. This subsection provides that those vehicles exempt from this section, pursuant to subsection (C), must obtain an F vehicle indorsement.

E. This subsection requires operators of certain vehicles carrying hazardous materials to successfully complete a knowledge and a driving skills test.

F. This subsection exempts from this section firefighters operating an authorized emergency vehicle who have met the drivers training standards of the Michigan Firefighters Training Council.

G. This subsection exempts from this section a person operating a motorhome or a vehicle used exclusively to transport personal possessions or family members for nonbusiness purposes.

H. This subsection provides that licensees who hold certain licenses may continue to operate certain vehicles until their license expires.

SECTION 2. VIOLATIONS AND PENALTIES

This section provides that any person, corporation, partnership or any other legal entity who violates this ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and if guilty shall be fined up to One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars and/or imprisoned up to ninety (90) days.

SECTION 3. SEVERABILITY

Any unenforceable sections can be severed from the rest of the ordinance.

SECTION 4. REPEAL OF CONFLICTING ORDINANCES AND SAVINGS OF ALL PROCEEDINGS

Any other ordinances or parts of ordinances inconsistent with the provision of this ordinance are to the extent of such inconsistencies, hereby repealed.

SECTION 5. SAVINGS CLAUSE

Any other ordinances are not affected by adoption of this ordinance.

SECTION 6. EFFECTIVE DATE

This Ordinance shall become effective upon its publication. Copies of the complete text of this Ordinance are available during regular business hours at the offices of the Charter Township of Plymouth, 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan 48170.

Kelley proposes rental car tax to fund stadium

Wayne County Commissioner Kevin Kelley, D-Redford, has proposed a rental car surcharge to help finance a new Tiger Stadium.

'The proposed 5 percent increase on hotels may be too great a burden.'

— Kevin Kelley
county commissioner

Kelley proposed the surcharge this week in a letter to Deputy Wayne County Executive Michael Duggan.

The proposed 5 percent increase on hotels may be too great a burden," said Kelley, whose district includes Redford Township and northwest Detroit.

He was referring to the county's proposal to levy a hotel room tax of 5 percent in the county.

"I feel a surcharge on rental cars might be a good way to capture revenue which is being produced by projects like Metro and City airports."

The state of Florida currently levies a surcharge on rental cars to support law enforcement, tourism and international trade.

"The state of Michigan could implement such a surcharge or allow individual counties to levy it themselves," said Kelley. "At 50 cents per day on 1,000 cars, $15,000 per month would be generated which would create a revenue stream for any bond repayment program."

County officials did not return Observer calls regarding Kelley's proposal.

Meanwhile, the Livonia Chamber of Commerce board of directors along with the West Suburban Council of Chambers has passed a resolution opposing the proposal to levy the hotel tax.

The West Suburban Council includes chamber of commerce in Canton Township, Garden City, Plymouth, Westland, Livonia, Farmington/Farmington Hills, Northville, Novi, Wayne, Dearborn Heights and Belleville.

Metro area hotels are already taxed at 12 percent.

"The effects of the current economic slump coupled with the dramatic increases in hotel room supply since 1985 have caused occupancies in metro Detroit, especially Livonia, to be severely depressed. Average metro occupancy is 55 percent. An average break even rate for hotels is 65 percent," said Melissa Maples, spokeswoman for the Livonia Chamber of Commerce.

Low occupancy and the resulting low rates have combined to create money losing operations and even closings for many local hotels, locally the Plymouth Radisson. At the time, 14 area hotels are currently operating under

'Freedom of expression' State board backs student rights bill

By Tim Richard
staff writer

A student "freedom of expression" bill got a minor boost in Lansing with a 5-3 endorsement by the State Board of Education.

The bill would protect student publications, theatrical events, bulletin boards, petitions and buttons.

It also would protect a faculty adviser from discharge or transfer by a principal seeking to "suppress or interfere with the free expression rights."

The action was good news in the office of state Rep. Lynn Jondahl, D-Okemos, sponsor of House Bill 4595. The bill is still waiting hearings in the House Judiciary Committee, which could take place in the fall.

Among area lawmakers who are co-sponsors are Democrats Justine Barns of Westland, James Kosteva of Canton, Maxine Berman of Southfield and Republican Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills.

"UNACCEPTABLE," said the two Republican members of the state board who voted no.

"Freedom of speech stops sometimes, and young people need direction," said Marilyn Lundy of Grosse Pointe. "We give too much leeway or license to young people," she said, blaming the trend for 20 years of "violence, promiscuity and drugs."

"It's unacceptable to eliminate (administrative) review," said Dick DeVos, Grand Rapids businessman who was picked for the ticket in 1990 by now-Gov. John Engler.

Democrat Gumecindo Salas of East Lansing voted no for the opposite reason: Board support was too soft, and constraints on free speech too large, he said.

THE BILL would make supervised students responsible for the content of publications, limited by the laws of obscenity, defamation and disruption of school conduct.

"They must have a faculty adviser," noted member Annetta Miller, D-Huntington Woods. "There's no problem. This bill is very carefully drafted."

"The school district has the opportunity to not sponsor a publication," added Barbara Roberts Mason, D-Lansing.

Also supporting the bill were president Dorothy Beardmore, R-Rochester Hills, Cherry Jacobus, R-Grand Rapids, and Barbara Dumouchelle, R-Grosse Ile.

'Freedom of speech stops sometimes, and young people need direction. We give too much leeway or license to young people.'

— Marilyn Lundy
of Grosse Pointe

THE BILL was sought by a statewide student press association, though it also applies to all forms of students' artistic and public expression.

It was prompted in part by the U.S. Supreme Court's "Hazelwood" decision. That decision allowed administrative censorship when a school publication is deemed a "supervised learning experience" rather than a public forum protected by the Bill of Rights.

Many school boards reportedly favor the Jondahl bill. But it is opposed by the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals.

School boards and administrators would be given protection from both criminal and civil liability for student expression — unless those governmental officials have "altered or interfered with the content of the student expression."

An identical Senate bill (201) has had no committee action. It is sponsored by John Kelly, D-Grosse Pointe, and co-sponsored by David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield.

ON OTHER legislative bills, the State Board of Education took these positions:

• Supported HB 4419 (by Rep. Gordon Sparks, R-Troy) to clarify campaign finance law by exempting board candidates from reporting expenses of less than $1,000 in districts with 2,400 pupils or less.

• Opposed HB 4697 (by Rep. Barbara Dobb, R-West Bloomfield) to restore $72 million in categorical state aid to out-of-formula districts. Some 51 districts are suing to recover the money, which the Legislature first approved and then "recaptured."

The money has already been given to in-formula districts, and a Department of Education staff recommendation said there is no replacement money. Dobb's bill is co-sponsored by suburban Republicans Lyn Bankes of Livonia, Michael Bouchard of Birmingham, Tom Middleton of Ortonville and Sparks of Troy.

• Supported HB 4080 (by Bankes of Livonia) to require uniform crime reporting by college police departments.

• Placed "under study" several wide ranging proposals for overhaul of state school financing, including major income tax increases.

WSU board votes to raise tuition, fees

Wayne State University students will pay an average of 6.5 percent more in tuition next fall.

The WSU Board of Governors Friday approved President David Adamany's proposed tuition and fee rates for 1991-92. The effects:

• An average full-time undergraduate Michigan resident will pay $2,759 during the 1992 academic year, plus a registration fee of $50 per semester — up $174.38 over the 1991 academic year.

• An average part-time undergraduate resident taking six credit hours per semester will pay $1,068 for the year, plus a registration fee of $50 per semester — up $67.50 over the current year.

RATES PER credit hour for state residents will be: freshman and sophomores, $82; juniors, seniors and post-bachelor's degree, $96; graduate students (excluding law and medical), $119.25; law, $165.25; and medical, $7,760 per year.

Wayne State has had the lowest total percentage increase in tuition rates of all Michigan public universities since 1983, and expects that record to continue in the coming year," Adamany said.

WSU has increased tuition 36.2 percent the last seven years, while the average increase of the other 14 public universities in Michigan over the same period was 63.1 percent.

ADAMANY SAID he asked board to raise tuition while state legislators and Gov. John Engler continue work on the budget for the state fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Adamany said he advised students by letter July 5 of the likely tuition increase. He said Wayne will continue to increase financial aid funds.

Adamany said the increase is expected to be the same as the '92 inflation rate of the Higher Education Price Index (HEPI), which typically exceeds the Consumer Price Index by 1.5 percent.

The Legislature's budget bills raise appropriations to universities about 4 percent next year. State appropriations cover about 72 percent of the general fund budget.

TAKING CORTISONE: WHEN TO BEGIN, HOW TO STOP

Taking a steroid daily has a role in arthritis therapy. Prednisone, the cortisone derivative usually prescribed, is distinct from the steroids athlete's use to build up muscles. Prednisone is a powerful drug against inflammation; at times no other medication will substitute in the treatment of arthritis.

Doctors' use of steroids is limited because: (1) the side effects are formidable and include weight gain, hypertension, osteoporosis and decreased resistance to infection; (2) breakthrough of inflammation often occurs and requires using higher doses of prednisone or discontinuing the drug altogether.

Stopping prednisone is not simple. If you are on doses of 10 mg/day for 4 weeks or longer, you need to reduce in a gradual manner since the medication suppresses the adrenal glands' own production of steroids. The body needs a prolonged period of slowly increasing responsibility before adrenal production can take over the requirements of daily life and respond to physical stress such as occurs after an accident or operation.

It is not unusual for your doctor to reduce the drug at the rate of 1 mg/month. This rate of decrease may seem unduly cautious, but such a schedule is safe and will eventually reverse the side effects of past therapy.

State debate is study in human nature

A LANSING debate over welfare "vending" brought back two conversations about poor folks:

• An Oakland County politico once took me around a "south end" neighborhood and sketched the locals' biographies. This one couldn't hold on to a job; this one couldn't hold on to a spouse; that one frittered away money. "A neighborhood of losers," the politico said.

• A copy desk colleague told why he moved his family out of the south end to one of Westland's nicer neighborhoods. "Back there, they're all losers," he said. The difference wasn't so much income as it was "luck." Everything turned out badly in the old neighborhood, fairly well in Westland.

THE POINT, relative to welfare vending, is that there are two groups of clients.

One is temporarily down and out — hubby skips out, and the wife and kids need state help until they build a new life.

The other group has multiple problems — loss of a job, obesity, inability to budget money, drinking, health problems, unsavory appearance; inability to handle money; cranky personality; blotchy skin. In short, they're chronic losers.

"VENDORING" IS the practice in which the state Department of Social Services writes a rent check directly to the landlord for a welfare client.

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, would like to end vending. As chair of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on social services, Geake said halting vending would require poor folks to be self-reliant and less dependent on government.

Tim Richard

Gov. John Engler wanted to end vending, too. It costs the state millions to process those checks and maintain files. Engler would rather pump the money into schools than in DSS administrative help.

At least one welfare rights group agreed with them.

BUT ENGLER'S DSS chief, Gerald Miller, backed down before the July 1 deadline for halting vending.

One reason was welfare careerists, like Rep. Dave Hollister, D-Lansing. He warned of people winding up homeless.

Landlords probably had more influence. I heard them testify in Geake's subcommittee. Without vending, they said, they would have to camp on welfare tenants' doorsteps the day the check arrived, or else the party store would absorb the state's largesse. Groups of landlords vowed that without "vending" their apartments would be unavailable to DSS clients.

In other words, they view a substantial number of welfare recipients as "losers" who can't budget money.

There was another interesting twist in the debate. With DSS vending, landlords could afford to charge substantially lower rents. They were assured their revenue.

But if tenants were trusted to pay on their own, landlords would have to raise rents, and only tenants who could budget would be soaked.

IT WAS A fascinating study in human nature, this whole vending debate.

It put Michigan's most liberal politics and the landlords in one camp, conservatives and welfare recipients in the other.

It forced the liberal camp to concede that some DSS clients aren't so much "victims" of racism, sexism and corporate insensitivity as they are of their own inability to budget their own money and shop wisely.

The two people I cited at the beginning — the Oakland politico and the newsroom colleague — were both liberals, by the way. But their liberalism didn't interfere with their unblinking view of human nature.

The Engler administration could learn much from the debate it lost.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local impact of state and regional events.

Liberals are responsible for our murder rate

THERE'S A LINE from an old country and western song that goes "faster horses, older whiskey and younger women."

The idea behind it is that they're the only three things worth having. I'd add a pickup truck. But then again there are enough country and western songs about pickup trucks to fill a used car lot.

Anyway, I'm glad those things are immortalized in song because if the liberals ever take over, I'm sure they'll be banned.

The reason I say that is liberals tend to be a bunch of overeducated white elitists who basically want to tell everybody how to live. That's why they whine the most when there's a vacancy on the U.S. Supreme Court.

Recently I had a discussion with a liberal lawyer friend who defended liberal judges by saying they educate the public about individual rights. Liberals are big on educating the public. What it really means is "do what I tell you because I'm smarter." And I guess they figure if it comes from a judge, more people will listen.

To me it's pretty high-handed stuff. It's based on the idea that somehow us slobs can't understand the legal system. Somebody has to educate us about it.

LET'S FACE it, the legal system belongs to us, not the judges and professional court watchers. That's why we have the jury system, legislators and election of most judges.

The only judges not elected are federal ones and they tend to be the most arrogant and least responsible to society. And the U.S. Supreme Court is the pinnacle of the triumvirate of arrogance. It's also where the most liberal judges have found a nest.

That hasn't been too bad. Most U.S. Supreme Court decisions don't affect us a lot unless we're career criminals or Democrats. Personally, I'd prefer a life of crime.

But back to the court. Liberals look at the Supreme Court as though it can somehow change human nature, something they'd like to do. They can't. All the liberal Supreme Court rulings in the world won't stop outlaw cops from beating people up.

Usually the Supreme Court is nothing more than judicial masturbation in front of a crowd of overeducated, overly political groups and newspaper people who love to make pronouncements about the fate of the country every time nine old guys in black robes come out and sit on a bench.

THE RULINGS mean a lot of money to lawyers, corporations and a few special interest groups, but usually not much to the rest of us.

The only area their decisions have any effect on us is in criminal cases. If I was a crime victim I'd sure want the reassurance that the scum bag who robbed or assaulted me would be held in jail for 48 hours instead of 24. It would give me a chance to buy a shot gun or get out of town.

Another big deal issue for liberals is gun control. They don't want anybody to have one. Gun control bills really don't bother me, but I've often suspected that one liberal judge who lets crooks off the hook is probably responsible for more murders than a thousand handguns.

Let's face it, State Trooper Kermit Fitzpatrick would probably be alive today if the criminal justice system had kept Steven McGuire in prison.

The 22 used to kill Fitzpatrick didn't go off by itself.

It's time for high-minded liberals to quit whining about not having one of their own on the Supreme Court and realize they've had a hand in many of the murders in our country. And that's why George Bush wants another conservative on the court.

Animal acts to be avoided

To the editor:

I attended the Livonia Spree and was dismayed that a racing pig and circus act were part of the scheduled entertainment.

Performing animals must travel long distances in cramped cages and are never able to act out their basic instincts. The whips and electric prods are a constant reminder that these animals are forced to perform for human entertainment. Many of the "tricks" they must learn have been taught through physical punishment.

Animals suffer great stress in these training sessions and the stunts they perform are physically uncomfortable and behaviorally unnatural. Seeing animals performing does not teach us anything about the animals' natural behavior and robs the animal of its dignity. Their true nature is never seen.

When the animals have lived out their "usefulness" with the circus, they are either sold to other circuses, game farms (to be shot for recreation) or even research laboratories. Their lives are miserable from beginning to end.

Many countries, like Sweden and Denmark, have banned animal entertainment. It's time Americans stopped seeing wild animals as playthings and stopped condoning animal performances. When you bring your children to a circus you are teaching them that it's okay to exploit animals for fun and profit. In this age of violence and crime, how much better to teach your children that cruelty is not entertaining.

I would like to see the Livonia Spree Planning Committee schedule human performers for next year's celebration.

Boycott of city is cowardly

To the editor:

Don't boycott Detroit! In response to the letter "Beatings were cowardly act," (July 11), I must wholeheartedly agree that the recent beatings were indeed cowardly. But to never set foot in Detroit (or any other big city) again is also a cowardly act.

There were between 700,000 and one million people downtown for the fireworks. Sad to say, this type of act occurs, especially with so many people in one area. But to allow muggers, thieves and other criminals to dictate where law-abiding citizens may or may not go, is just as cowardly.

Abortion, men don't mix well

To the editor:

In last Thursday's "Livonia Observer" there was an article on "Pro-life," with a picture of a grandmother and her grandson protesting out in front of a clinic where abortions are being done.

I would like to make a comment.

I believe it is wrong to kill an unborn child, but to bring a "cocaine addicted" baby into the world to be raised by a "cocaine addicted" mother is worse. Probably mallicious.

I realize not all abortions are related to drugs, but when they are, it seems to me to be the more humane decision.

When I saw the picture of the boy demonstrating against abortion, I tried to picture myself demonstrating against "whatever" men might choose to do to their bodies.

I doubt very much if I would be taken seriously. If men feel they want some control over the abortion issue, I would suggest that they choose carefully where they intend to plant their garden.

Abortion an issue in race

To the editor:

I was surprised to read in Monday's Observer your interview with state representative candidate Georgina Goss.

She states that she does not have a label on the woman's right to choice issue, and that she will take a look at the issue when it comes before her. This is a mighty weak statement from a person that has been endorsed by the Michigan Abortion Rights Action League.

Her attempt to play the middle ground on this issue is unfair to those of us that look to our elected representatives for leadership.

We need to elect a person that will take a stand and be consistent with their view. For that reason I am now going to vote for Jerry Vorva for state representative.

"We give a hoot, so we won't pollute!"

Reunion plans die with alum in crash

By Bill Casper
staff writer

The 1986 graduating class from Redford Union High had its five-year reunion Friday night and David Scott Jeffers was planning to attend.

But Jeffers was not with his classmates as hoped. His plans ended abruptly and tragically two weeks ago when the car he was in hit an embankment on US-23 in Northfield Township, went airborne and flipped end-over-end before striking a bridge and falling 40 feet to Barker Road.

Jeffers, 23, who lived with his parents, Virginia and Roger Jeffers, on Inkster Road in Redford Township, was taken to the University of Michigan Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival. He died from a severe head injury, his mother said.

"We loved him with a passion," she said. "As a parent, you try to teach and guide your children to be good adults. When they're ready to leave the nest, you give them a push."

"David was at the age when he was trying his wings. He was trying to get enough money for an apartment to make it on his own."

JEFFERS HAD been laid off, but he had just started a new job about three months ago as a salesman at the Plymouth Glass Co., his mother said.

Jeffers was a passenger in his own car that was being driven by a friend on the night of July 8 when the accident occurred, she said.

"They had been to a party and David got sick and didn't feel like driving. He died immediately."

His friend, William Strong of Livonia, suffered bruises, but he is all right, she said.

"DAVID WAS a car buff and took auto shop classes at Redford Union."

"I'm sure people in Redford will remember his Big Foot (truck) that he bought and restored. It was his pride and joy. He drove it all over the place and it's still in our back yard."

Jeffers' dream was to become a licensed private pilot like his father, his mother said. He had started taking lessons, she said.

Jeffers became captivated by the Smokey Mountains and planned to eventually buy a house and live there, Jeffers said.

"He stayed with a neighbor in Gatlinburg, Tenn., and he was with us June 23 when my husband and I were remarried at the chalet we bought on the mountain for our retirement home."

"He loved it there. It was his wish to be cremated and we're taking him with us when my husband retires in seven years."

JEFFERS WAS single, but is survived by a 6-year-old daughter, Krisy, who lives with her mother, Kristen (Ayotidos) Brinkerhoff, formerly of Redford, now living in Florida.

He also is survived by an older sister, Robin Hurst of Redford; a nephew, Joel; and a niece, Jessica.

His parents hosted a memorial gathering Sunday for their son, who was raised in Redford where he attended Westland Elementary and Hilbert Junior High, his mother said. She expected in excess of 100 friends and family members to attend the memorial.

"HE HAD a massive number of friends. I can't believe the number of lives he touched. At the memorial, we're going to talk about the good times and reminisce about David. We'll say our final goodbyes to him."

Printed on the cards that announced the memorial was Jeffers' favorite adage: "There are two last things we can leave our children. One is roots. The other is wings."

"I don't know where it came from, but David loved it," his mother said. "He had it on a bulletin board at home and he looked at it every day."

School for gifted sets open house

"Changes in the Schools: How Will They Affect the Gifted Child?" will be the topic explored at a special summer open house at Gibson School for the Gifted in Redford.

The presenter of the seminar will be Joan Lessen-Firestone, early childhood consultant for the Oakland Intermediate School District.

The seminar/open house will be 5-8 p.m. Tuesday, July 30, in the library of Gibson at 12925 Fenton, four blocks west of Telegraph and 1 1/2 blocks south of I-96, in Redford.

Lessen-Firestone earned her doctorate in developmental psychology from Wayne State University, taught at Oakland University, and was responsible for the early childhood teacher education program at Mercy College.

GIBSON SCHOOL, which is celebrating its 20th anniversary as a leader in the education of gifted children, invites all those interested in obtaining information about its approach in educating exceptional children to attend, director Sandra Watts said.

Gibson is a co-educational day school accredited by the Independent Schools Association of the Central States. Gibson is a private, non-profit educational institution for students ages 4 (preschool) through 13 (eighth grade).

For information on Gibson, call admissions director Carol Green at 537-8688.

Traffic on Newburgh Road detoured

Beginning today through Friday, Aug. 9, Newburgh Road will be closed between Ann Arbor Road and Ann Arbor Trail in Livonia.

During that period the detour route for traffic southbound on Newburgh will be right on Ann Arbor Road to the traffic light at Ann Arbor Trail and then left on Ann Arbor Trail back to Newburgh to resume a southbound route.

The detour for northbound Newburgh traffic will be left on Ann Arbor Trail to Ann Arbor Road, right on Ann Arbor Road to Newburgh, and then left on Newburgh to resume a northbound route.

Presently traffic is one lane in each direction on Newburgh between Ann Arbor Road to a point just south of Warren because of a widening project.

Summer is prime time for pickles

I can remember when the Janes Gang owned a cottage just off Point Pelee. As soon as we crossed the Ambassador Bridge, we made the first ritual stop at a now defunct fireworks shop.

The second stop was a bakery in Essex for crusty, hard dinner rolls that tasted equally good with peanut butter for a snack or slathered with margarine with dinner. As I near 40, the mind still recalls the name: The Essex Dairy, which was also the stop for milk.

The third stop was the proverbial Brewers Retail that would slide down a case or two of Old Vienna for dad, Uncle Pete and whomever else decided to venture on over.

WE KNEW the beach was close at hand when we could smell the pickle vats at the Heinz-57 pickle and catsup factory, just south of beautiful downtown Leamington.

I never liked pickles till one day, after the umpteenth free tour, an avant-garde tour guide reached over and grabbed a still warm jar of just-bottled dills from a bustling assembly line. Now I can't get enough.

Jarred pickles have a taste and reputation all their own. Anyone who has ever gone to a Jewish deli and tasted a crispy new dill knows what pickle nirvana is all about.

Jarred pickles have a taste and reputation all their own. Anyone who has ever gone to a Jewish deli and tasted a crispy new dill knows what pickle nirvana is all about.

Speaking of pickle nirvana, try Dorothy's pickles at Getsie's Pub in beautiful downtown Northville!

Good news. This is prime pickle season.

Those little pickling cukes planted with love and cared for throughout the blistering days of June and humid days of July are nearing picking size. You don't want them too big, for they might be mistaken as weapons. This is one instance where smaller really is better.

IF YOU have a cool basement, consider a trek to an old-time hardware store for a classic pickle crock. Available in just about any size, from one quart to about 40 gallons, the speckly-beige crocks will hold enough to delight pickle munchers for months to come.

Sliced and stuck into a Bloody Mary or chopped and slathered on hot grilled brats and dogs, fresh homemade pickle just can't be beat. For those of you pickle aficionados who can't wait the obligatory weeks or months for crocked pickles, there are alternative recipes that produce excellent results in a matter of days, or even in a matter of hours.

Of course, anyone who has ever made pickles knows that if you make one jar, you might as well make 10. Of course, any of the recipes provided will do either. But in this cook's opinion, it pays to work a little more and enjoy a lot later.

The most difficult aspect of making pickles is sterilizing the jars and making sure the lids fit. Yours truly uses his dishwasher for this task, firing up the hot water heater to full blast to heat the hottest of water and then using the hot drying method.

There are many books on the market filled with information on pickling everything from apples to zucchini. The library is a great source, as is your local county extension service.

It's all made from scratch at SWEDISH BAKERY

By Joan Boram special writer

JOE BREWER, owner of Farmington Bakery, is one of those lucky people who discover their avocation at an early age. Brewer has been baking and cooking since he was 12 years old.

You might think that he started at his mother's knee, but, actually, he discovered his calling at Paul's Hamburgers, a Farmington institution where he cleaned the parking lot and peeled onions and potatoes.

"Then I got a job at the Raleigh House, as apprentice to pastry chef Walter Langlough," says Brewer. "I learned two things from Walter: patience, and, nothing goes out unless it's perfect. No such thing as 'That's good enough.'"

After six years at the Raleigh House, Brewer worked as pastry chef at Oakland Hills and Knollwood country clubs, and at local French and Italian bakeries. In 1987, he bought the 51-year-old Farmington Bakery in downtown Farmington.

"THE ORIGINAL owners were Swedish, and I'm Swedish-German," says Brewer. "Swedish people from the area were accustomed to coming here for cardamon braids and limpia, a Swedish rye bread flavored with orange rind. It was only natural that I continue to specialize in Swedish breads and pastries."

Not only does Brewer do all the baking himself, but he does it all from scratch.

"All of my breads except the ryes are made from a sponge. The ryes are from a sourdough. I don't use buttercream out of a bucket; I make my own with real butter," says Brewer.

As Brewer speaks, Loretta Ball, who works at the counter, is wielding an ice-cream scoop, placing precise mounds of oatmeal-raisin cookie dough on a cookie sheet.

IN THE showcase are "sprinkle cookies," — sugar cookies topped with multi-colored sprinkles. They are not perfectly round "cookie-cutter" cookies. Each cookie is somewhat irregular in shape, the edges are curled, and some are thicker than others. Definitely hand-made.

There are a dozen kinds of bread, fresh from the oven: Tokyo bread, dipped in milk before baking, and sprinkled with sesame seed; potato bread; cinnamon raisin; sour rye. All have been baked in a 50-year-old stone brick oven. And Brewer uses the traditional wood peel to remove the bread from the oven.

Joe Brewer, owner of the Farmington Bakery, wears braided dough on his head and holds a princess torte covered with marzipan topping. Shown below, left to right, are various specialty breads, a fruit flan and braided cardamon bread.

SHARON LEMIEUX/staff photographer

But it's the pastries — ah, the pastries. The interior of the cozy shop has recently been painted stark, shiny white, and the pastries stand out like gemstones against jeweler's velvet.

There are small tortes, a little larger than a cupcake: lemon; strawberry; ambrosia, topped with a slice of mandarin orange; and even chocolate cream.

"People like them because one is just about enough for two people," says Brewer.

Well, maybe — but it's a safe bet that those two people fight over the last crumbs of the Black Forest torte.

THE SHOP offers three tables for two, where shoppers or moviegoers can stop for a pastry and coffee. For the lunch crowd, homemade sandwiches and salads are waiting, along with the "pizza roll," a Chicago-style pizza, with cheese, sauce, pepperoni or sausage, folded in half.

Brewer has just completed six months of study at the American Institute of Baking, in Manhattan, Kansas.

"I took the bakery technology course, because I'm most interested in research and development," says Brewer. "Right now, I'm trying to fit canola oil into a lot of my recipes. I think that's going to be the next trend, following oat bran."

Is a baker constantly tempted to eat his own goodies?

"Not the pastries," says Brewer. "But I love my doughnuts. I make the only doughnuts in the area from a sponge. Others just dump a mix from a bag into a bowl, add water and yeast, and mix. Maybe my customers wouldn't know the difference. But I do. I make those doughnuts for myself."

The Farmington Bakery is at 33250 Grand River, Farmington. 442-2360, hours: Tuesday-Friday, 7 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Opus One is elegant, eclectic

DISHING IT OUT

All you really need is one rich spoonful of the velvety shrimp bisque; one fork-forced marriage of sun-dried cherries, bibb lettuce and creamy walnut dressing; or one sliver of shrimp stuffing and Dover sole dabbed into champagne sauce.

That one taste is really all you need to know that dining at Opus One in Detroit is a special gastronomical delight. Of course, while you or your waistline may only need that one bite, this is no place for the meek of calorie or wallet. Be prepared to give up your diet and more than $100 per couple for the experience.

And, what an experience! Jim Kokas' elegant 4-year-old restaurant features picturesque window views, live piano music and soft-lighted rooms of pleasing pastels with a French country air.

IN KEEPING with the name, the menu features symphony references. On a recent visit our "prelude" was duck pate bursting with pistachios and sun-dried cherries baked in a crust and served with both a raspberry coulis and a zesty, fruit salsa (an inspired blend of nectarines, peaches, onion, lime juice and cilantro). It's a true culinary adventure.

Our other appetizer featured two monstrous scallops breaded in almonds, resting on a sliced red onion and served over apple/Roquefort dressing. The scallops absorbed just a slight bit of onion, and they combined nicely with the subtle, sweet sauce.

The next course featured soups: the veal consomme garnished with zucchini slivers starts salty and ends with a rush of pepper. Far more enjoyable was the savory shrimp bisque with each individual flavor — shrimp, sherry and cream — distinctive yet melodious.

For the salads, we sampled the house version, Opus

Peter Loren, executive chef, presents grilled gulf swordfish with stone fruit salsa and red currant coulis. Next to it is vegetable medley non filo (in filo cup).

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Romaine, which was a bold, garlic-laced blend of lettuce, croutons and parmesan. For the more venturesome, the Angelic Bibb salad proved to be a stunning mixture of angel hair vegetables nestled on bibb lettuce with an abundance of dried cherries and a delectable cream dressing studded with walnuts.

THE ORCHESTRATED accompaniments we sampled included turbans of Dover sole wrapped around a zesty shrimp stuffing and presented over a reduced champagne sauce that enthusiastically complemented the seafood. Presentation — with three tiny, fish-shaped pastries — was lovely.

The special that night featured fork-tender veal medallions garnished with sauteed shrimp and served over a whole-grain mustard/wine sauce. It was a simple, pleasing dish.

For the finale, we sampled the fudge brownie regal and the Bavarian cream puff with raspberry sauce. They were rich and flavorful, but not a highlight.

SERVICE WAS impeccable, with doting waitstaff keeping dishes cleared, glasses filled. The ample wine list features a full 245 selections.

Executive Chef Peter Loren allows the menu to be called an "eclectic blend of classical and contemporary." In English, he says, "We don't screw around with weird, exotic stuff. We stick with recognizable food and do it in the most elegant and best way possible."

Yes, it's expensive, with entrees from $19.50-$32.50. We recommend the prix fixe, which adds $11.95 to your bill for a house salad, choice of soup and dessert.

WHAT WE LEARNED FROM THE JULY 7 STORM.

LOOKING BACK.

It was the worst storm in the 88-year history of Detroit Edison. When the 70 mile-an-hour winds, rain and lightning stopped, more than one in three of our customers was without power. And all of us had learned some unforgettable lessons.

Among the most vivid lessons is the most obvious: Nature at its worst is more than a match for man at his best. Quite simply, when a storm can rip trees apart like inconsequential twigs, power lines are going to go down. Lots of them.

Detroit Edison people can tell you first-hand how destructive this weather front was. Over 5,000 of them worked up to 16-hour days repairing the damage and restoring power. Over a thousand employees who usually work in offices were out guarding power lines to warn people away. Dozens of retirees came in to help with the task. Within 12 hours, we were arranging to get help from other utilities. Crews from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Ontario helped with restoration efforts.

During the week, we handled more than 175,000 outage-related phone calls from customers.

When the power went out, many of us learned about how many things electricity does for us. And tragically, we were also reminded of its hazards.

LOOKING AHEAD.

If any good came of this storm, it told us how important it is to continue our aggressive programs to speed restoration, improve communication with customers, minimize the impact of damage and prevent the damage in the first place.

In the third year of a six-year, $1.3-billion program aimed at putting us among the most reliable companies in the nation, we're speeding up our tree-trimming, maintenance and reliability construction cycles.

We're building new substations and adding hundreds of new circuits to improve the reliability of our system.

We're training more people on our computerized storm outage analysis system every day. And while NO electrical network could have handled the massive destruction of the July 7 storm, under anything approaching "normal" storm conditions, our outage analysis system can save precious hours and days in restoring power. Because it allows us to localize trouble spots, even down to specific pieces of equipment, like transformers, instead of going out and searching for them.

We're even working on technology that will allow us to turn off power to downed lines remotely.

By the end of the year, we also will have a whole new computerized phone system. One that will work with more speed, and more lines. So customers can get through to report outages more easily and more quickly.

Like you, we hope we never see another storm like this one. But because we learn a little more every time out, if something like this does come again, maybe it will disrupt your life a little bit less. And things will be back to normal a little bit sooner.

WE'RE ON A BIG ROLL

To be part of the solution, not part of the problem.

Times change. There was once a time when we thought that providing the very best community news coverage was enough.

Today it's not. Today we have a responsibility not only to our readers and advertisers, but also to our environment.

That's why 30% of the newsprint we put on our press has been recycled. This will increase when our other suppliers bring recycled newsprint on line later this year.

Our communities and the entire State of Michigan face a solid waste crisis.

There used to be 624 Type II landfills in Michigan*. The trash from your home, your neighbor's homes and the businesses in your town goes into a Type II landfill. As you read this, there are only 71 of them still open and licensed to do business. That's 71 in all of Michigan's 83 counties. Estimates say one-third of these will be out of business in less than five years.

So what can a business like ours do to be part of the solution and not part of the problem?

We're buying and printing your newspaper on recycled newsprint. We're looking for other recycled products to use in our business. We're recycling all of our newsprint and office paper. We're working to increase public awareness and participation. We're encouraging our readers to recycle.

How can you help? Why not begin with this newspaper; recycle it along with others you may have collected. Then start buying recycled products. Spread the word about those landfills and recycle this page by sharing it with a friend.

And if you are already recycling—thank you.

WE DON'T COVER WORLD NEWS,
BUT WE CARE ABOUT THE WORLD

Island paradise: It's not just for honeymooners

Planning is key to good mini-vacation in Hawaii

When they checked the bottom of their plant stand in Oklahoma, the couple discovered the royal seal which was traditionally imprinted on royal belongings. The plant stand was returned to palace officials and is now on display.

Tour time: 45 minutes to an hour. Call (808) 522-0832 for reservations. Admission, $4. Open 9 a.m. to 2:15 p.m. Wednesday to Saturday.

Hanaiakamalama, the Queen Emma Summer Palace in the Nuuanu Valley, is maintained by the Daughters of Hawaii in a charming Victorian setting with a dash of Hawaiian show.

Queen Emma was born in 1836 and later became the wife of King Kamehameha IV. Tucked back from a busy highway on a slight hill, the summer getaway home is surprisingly private.

The small palace is filled with priceless and exquisitely handmade furniture, such as the koa wood cradle for Emma's son; his godmother was Queen Victoria. The large feather plumes signifying royalty sway in the cool breeze that travels literally in the front doorway, through the house and out the back door.

Tour time: about a half hour. Open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. seven days a week. Admission, $4. Located at 2913 Pali Highway, Honolulu; 595-3167.

GOLDEN BEACHES

It's the stuff Midwestern day-dreams are made of: pristine, deserted beaches as far as the eye can see. Or, if you like a bit of scenery in a skimpy bathing suit, there are packed beaches where tourists from Germany, Japan, Australia and beyond come to bask under the hot Hawaiian sun.

Hanauma Bay Beach Park, on Kalanianaole Highway (72) past the well-to-do neighborhood of Hawaii Kai, is the place to go for spectacular vistas. Shaped in a splendid half circle, the bay can be photographed from the parking lot above before you follow the steep paved path down to the beach. This is a good place for snorkeling. Get there early on weekends because people are regularly turned away when the parking lot fills. It's located along the coastal highway, so parking is risky.

If you plan to go to Hanauma during the week, keep in mind that there will be major construction on the highway as it heads out of Honolulu for the next several years. Traffic slows to a standstill during morning and afternoon rush hours.

Travel time: East of Waikiki, about 45 minutes plus traffic jams.

Ala Moana Beach Park, on Ala Moana Park Drive off Ala Moana Boulevard (92) west of Waikiki, is easier to reach, especially if you only want to spend an hour or two tanning. It is across the street from Ala Moana Center, a huge outdoor mall with Chanel, Gucci and Cartier shops, as well as more reasonably priced stores.

Ala Moana Beach is nice because there is a grassy picnic area, a cool respite from the blazing sun. Locals camp out all day at Ala Moana next to a barbecue. There is parking on a two-lane road along the beach.

For walking, jogging or even roller skating Magic Island, a man-made peninsula, is located on one end of the beach.

TROPICAL SCENERY

The Pali Lookout, on the Pali Highway (61) about five miles past Queen Emma's Summer Palace, is the place to stop for breathtaking views. If it's a clear day, bring your camera. You will get an entirely different perspective on the Hawaiian landscape.

From the lookout everything looks lush and green, completely opposite from the volcanic scenery found around Hanauma Bay. Deep ridges are carved into the mountains that stretch on for miles.

Chinaman's Hat, a small peaked island, can be photographed through palm trees from the North Shore. You can get there via the coast road past Hanauma Bay or via the Pali Highway, either way will take you around the volcano to Highway 83.

This excursion can take the better part of a day but it is beautiful. The North Shore is famous for attracting surfers from around the world who take on the huge waves such as the Bonzai Pipeline. The lifestyle is very laid back.

I felt like I had gone through a time warp back to the 1960s: long hair, Volkswagen beetles and vans everywhere. After the glitz of Waikiki, the North Shore is refreshing. Be sure to stop in the pretty little harbor town of Haleiwa, near the old sugar plantation town of Wai'alua. Art galleries, surf and T-shirt shops line the streets.

Stop at Kua Aina Sandwiches, at 66-214 Kamehameha Highway, for excellent hamburgers and sandwiches. Then, wander down the street and have a shaved ice for dessert at one of the many stores that sell the sweet concoction. To speed the trip back, cut through the middle of the island past the pineapple fields on H-2 and H-1 highways which eventually lead back to Honolulu.

There will be a live band from 6 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. on Saturday, and refreshments will be available at all times. There will also be an art show on Saturday and Sunday. Call 616-436-5574 for more information, or call 1-800-666-0160 for a Mackinaw Area Travel Planner.

TORONTO

Michiganians love to visit Toronto, and Toronto loves to welcome us there. From now until Sept. 30, 60 of Metro Toronto's best hotels are participating in a discount program called Remarkable Toronto Value Package. They are offering special rates 7 days a week — some as low as $49.95 Canadian (about $45 U.S.).

If you register under the program, you also receive a kit filled with coupons for discounts on admissions, dining and shopping, and you'll be eligible for gifts, incentives and bonuses at some of the big shopping areas including Eaton Centre and Queen's Quay. Call 1-800-363-1990 for more information.

HOTELS

If you prefer staying a little closer to home, the Radisson Plaza Hotel in Southfield has special weekend rates from now through Sept. 8. Their Shades of Summer program offers deluxe accommodations, breakfast for two and use of the facilities which include an indoor pool, Jacuzzi, sauna and fitness center at $59 per night. Call (313) 827-4000 or 1-800-333-3333 for reservations.

WILLIAMSBURG

Colonial Williamsburg is offering two new attractions this year. The courthouse, built in 1770 has been restored over the last year. It opened in June featuring tours, dramatic presentations and re-enactments.

A new subterranean museum, Winthrop Rockefeller Archaeological Museum at Carter's Grove, explores the history of Woistenhohne Towne, an early settlement destroyed by Indian attack in 1622. Call 1-800-HISTORY for information, schedules, and reservations.

RIVERBOATS

The Delta Queen and the Mississippi Queen are the only overnight passenger paddle wheel steamboats still remaining in America. For the fall, both boats are offering special foliage tours.

The Delta Queen will be sailing on the Ohio, Mississippi, Tennessee and Cumberland Rivers with 3 to 12 night cruises. The Mississippi Queen offers 7 night fall cruises on the upper Mississippi.

Fares range from $150 to $550 per night, per person, depending on cabin type, and include all meals (5 a day). Call 1-800-543-1949 for more information.

ADVENTURE

Clipper Charters will be operating the M/S Society Explorer for adventure cruises in 1992. Cruises include Costa Rica's National Parks, the Darien Jungle and the Panama Canal; British Columbia, the Queen Charlotte Islands and Southeast Alaska; and the Inside Passage and Gulf of Alaska including Kodiak Island. Call 1-800-325-0010 for more information.

CAMPING

If you like camping vacations, planning your trip just got a little bit easier. Go Camping America is offering a vacation planner with information about camping opportunities at thousands of public and commercial campgrounds and RV parks.

When you request the packet, you also receive a "Sunshiner" ID card which entitles you to special hospitality at campgrounds across the country, and a "Festival '91" events calendar. Call 1-800-47-SUNNY.

BOATING

As the summer heat sends many of us to the lake, AAA Michigan has released guidelines for boating and canoeing safety. Staying alert is the key to safety, because several hours in the sun, glare and waves can slow down reaction time.

"The best way to stay alert is to avoid alcohol and take a break every couple of hours," said Robert V. Cullen, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services Manager.

Other tips: use a life jacket or other personal flotation device (required by law), don't overload (especially if canoeing), and get off the water when the weather becomes threatening.

FLYING HIGH

The annual Festival of Flight takes off July 19-21 at the Neil Armstrong Air and Space Museum in Wapakoneta, Ohio. They will commemorate the 21st anniversary of that first small step for man with everything from an antique car show to model rocket launches.

On July 20, the Celina Reservoir HAM Radio Club will contact ham radio fans around the world from the museum lobby 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.; the Brass Chapter of the Antique Auto Club of America will display its cars on the grounds from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; there will be presentations about air and space topics 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and a model rocket launch and contest at 1:30 p.m.

Area residents know spots tourists don't find

"Or climb the waterfalls of the Seven Pools and find hidden ledges, quiet pools, waterfalls you can't see from below."

Lori Byrd of Livonia, who lived in Hawaii at one time, thinks most travelers miss the biggest and best bargain shopping area in all of Hawaii.

"Every weekend 'Kamainas' or Islanders and military personnel living on the island of Oahu pack up their families, and any 'Hales' (pronounced howl-ees) or visitors from the main land, and head out to the swap meet," Lori says.

The swap meet is Hawaii's, and possibly the United States, biggest yard-style sale, frequented by everyone who knows about it. The bargains range from the traditional Hawaii T-shirts to rattan furniture and the ever-popular flip-flops. Anything that a tourist could ask for can be found here.

"The swap meet is set up around the stadium in a track-meet style oval. Each proprietor has a booth, tables or truck set in an area along one of four ovals that encircle the stadium. Many vendors sell items that are similar in nature, making bargain shopping an art. Finding the best buy on a T-shirt to take home as a souvenir is more than half of the fun.

"The swap meet is every Saturday and Sunday, rain or shine, at the Aloha Stadium. The stadium, in Honolulu near Pearl Harbor, is very accessible from "H-1," one of the two major highways that stretch through Oahu.

"Anyone staying in Honolulu, neighboring towns or cities, as well as in Waikiki, can make their way to the swap meet by way of the island's public transportation system. The Bus, as it is so affectionately called on the islands, is capable of taking a visitor nearly anywhere he wishes to go.

"Oahu is a very beautiful place to live or visit. It has a lot of great bargains to be discovered. Anyone who ventures to Hawaii for any reason should make a day of the swap meet, if for no other reason than the wonderful exercise achieved from walking around exploring the terrific scenery."

Robert Figurski of Canton was in Hawaii last year, or so I was told. When I called his parents, Judy and Lawrence Figurski, I learned that he is Marine Cpl. Robert Figurski, and he stopped in Honolulu on his way to the Persian Gulf.

Robert graduated from Canton High School, joined the Marines and trained in San Diego, Maine, North Carolina and Virginia before they shipped him out for the Persian Gulf late last year.

"He was only in Hawaii two days, and he can't tell you much about it because he's still overseas," Mrs. Figurski told me. "He'll be home in August, and he's already signed up to start at Eastern Michigan University in the fall."

Aloha, corporal.

Pearl Harbor attack survivors are sought

Are you a survivor of Pearl Harbor? Were you there when the Japanese planes dropped their bombs on the fleet of ships based in Hawaii on Dec. 7, 1941? Are you a relative of one of the 2,403 service men and women killed in Hawaii on that day, the day that the United States became an official part of World War II?

If you can answer yes to any of those questions, you will want to know about the preparations being made for the 50th anniversary commemoration of Pearl Harbor in December 1991. The commemoration will begin on Wednesday, Dec. 4, and will culminate with special services aboard the USS Arizona Memorial on the morning of Dec. 7.

Pearl Harbor survivors, and the families of those who died there on that day, will be the special guests throughout the week's events. They will be given the first seats on the shuttle boat that runs to the Memorial Dec. 7, even if that means that you and I must stay behind.

The USS Arizona Memorial is operated by the National Park Service in conjunction with the U.S. Navy. The memorial structure spans the sunken battleship U.S.S. Arizona. A shuttle boat runs regularly between the memorial and the shoreside Visitor Center.

The center is off the Kamehameha Highway, State Highway 99. Visitors typically start arriving early in the morning to avoid lineups, because they are allowed into the center in groups, identified by the number of tickets given out over a particular period of time.

A National Park Service Ranger gives a brief talk before leading visitors into the theater for a documentary film on the Pearl Harbor attack. You will see the Japanese planes launch their surprise attack at 7:55 a.m., and the 1,760-pound armor-piercing bomb that hit when the Arizona exploded at 8:10 a.m.

The Oklahoma rolled over after the torpedos hit. The California and the West Virginia sank at their moorings. The Utah capsized. The Maryland, Pennsylvania and Tennessee were damaged. The Nevada was the only battleship that got away intact. Groups then board the shuttle operated by the U.S. Navy for the short run to the memorial.

The white curved sides of the memorial actually form a grave marker for the servicemen who died defending the U.S.S. Arizona on that December Sunday in 1941. The assembly area, open to views of the sea, contains a wall listing the names of the 1,177 sailors and Marines killed aboard the battleship.

As a special tribute to the ship and its lost crew, the navy permits the American flag to fly daily from the flagpole attached to the severed mainmast of the sunken ship.

If you are a survivor of Pearl Harbor, there are people who want to hear from you. Contact Joe Niemitz at the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association, 3346 Manoa Road, Honolulu, Hawaii, 96822 or telephone (808) 988-2025.

Please contact me as well. We are planning a story about Pearl Harbor in the fall and would like to include survivors and their families. Send a postcard to 22000 Springbrook, Suite 208C, Farmington Hills, Mich. 48336.

An island stop to visit such places as Waikiki Beach can break up what can be as long as 15 hours of flying time from the Midwest to Asia.

Taking a little R&R in Hawaii

By Christina Zarobe
special writer

Hawaii is not just for honeymooners and family vacations anymore. Strategically located between Asia and the U.S. mainland, this island paradise has attracted a new type of tourist — the business traveler.

As U.S. corporations have increased their business trade with Japan, Korea, Taiwan and other Asian countries, Hawaii has become a common stopover between East and West.

The layover may be only for a day or two, but a weary business traveler can still get a taste of the rich Hawaiian and Polynesian culture as well as some much needed rest and relaxation. An island stop breaks up what can be as long as 15 hours of flying time from the Midwest to Asia.

The key to a Hawaiian mini-vacation is knowing in advance what you want to see and how long and how complicated the excursion will be. By applying the same business practices used in the financial world — research and a bit of time management — a stopover can offer nearly as much as a full vacation.

Hawaii's cultural scene is constantly evolving as the stream of both visitors and immigrants from the South Pacific and Asia continues, but visiting a few choice sites can be both informative and enjoyable. It can also help you plan a longer stay another time with your family.

Renting a car is the best way to see Oahu, the most populated of the islands and home of the capital, Honolulu. With a map in hand, getting around Oahu is not difficult — remember, you're on an island so don't panic about getting lost.

Midwesterners find convertibles almost irresistible, but remember that part of the reason Hawaii has such colorful rainbows is because of its frequent, misty rains, known here as "liquid sunshine." They are not storms that will drench your car interior and belongings, but expect things to be dampened.

ROYAL HAWAII

Iolani Palace, built in 1882, is the only palace in the United States. The official residence of King Kalakaua and Queen Liliuokalani, the last monarchs of this island kingdom before its overthrow in 1893, the palace is conveniently located in downtown Honolulu at King and Richards streets.

Pad around the palace with your guide, wearing cloth slippers that protect the soft wood floors, and you'll receive a concise history of a crucial time in Hawaiian history.

Despite the island's isolated position in the Pacific, King Kalakaua was fond of European finery. Notice the Bohemian crystal and the Parisian china in the royal dining room. The Hawaiian Koa wood used on the graceful stairway is as rich as the legacy of royalty in the islands.

While the monarchy ended tragically, the $6 million restoration of the palace gives visitors a sense of the flamboyance of the king's lifestyle. Balls were held in the crimson and gold Throne Room, with guests spilling out onto the lanai that encircles the palace. The king would entertain until dawn along with his guests, who were not allowed to leave before the king.

A couple from Oklahoma City were touring the palace when they recognized a plant stand in the royal bedroom. It was a reproduction, similar to a plant stand they had bought at a flea market back home.

Bill Putnam of Birmingham has been in Hawaii twice on vacation and once on his honeymoon. Bill and Kathlyn celebrated their marriage with a week in the islands in July 1990.

"The airlines fly into Honolulu unless you arrange to fly into either Hawaii or Maui," Bill said. "I've stayed in all three islands. If you like nightlife, people and traffic, you like Honolulu. There are interesting off-the-beaten track places on the north shore of Oahu.

"My grandmother has a condo on Hawaii, the Big Island, but there is not a lot to do there for the younger crowd. My personal favorite is Maui. That's where we spent our honeymoon."

Bill and Kathlyn stayed in the Maui Islander, $65 or less for a big room with kitchen facilities three blocks from the water. It was in the town of Lahaina, not far from Kaanapali, the historic whaling waters of the island.

"It's great to watch the whales come in to give birth to their young in March," Bill said. "You used to be able to go out and pet the whales, but the government stopped that. You can still look at them."

Bill specializes in little off-the-road spots that the tourists don't usually find. "If you take the road west from the airport and go north up the west coast, you drive through a rock; if you park on the other side, you'll find a long rubber rope that local people use to climb down to a very private beach.

"Or take the long curving road that is cut out of the mountain to Hana on the other end of the island. You find one-lane bridges and waterfalls. You can climb the waterfalls and keep going beyond them.

THE '90s Style

Tom Leach of Rochester Hills is a man of the '90s. Short hair, comfortable clothing, he's ready to finish out the 20th century in style. The "me" generation has discovered life beyond power dressing, or so people in the know say on Page 6.

'Boyz' gets a bad rap

By John Monaghan
special writer

From all the negative press, "Boyz N' the Hood" must be a virtual bloodbath of glorified gang violence backed by a booming rap music score.

That couldn't be farther from the truth.

Although drive-by shootings and crack cocaine are always lurking evils, "Boyz N' the Hood" is a compelling story of friendship set among the mean streets of Los Angeles.

When 10-year-old Tre (Cuba Gooding, Jr.) arrives to live with his father, he already knows most of the neighborhood kids and the rules of the house. He has spent weekends there and now his divorced father, Furious Styles (Larry Fishburne), has taken full custody.

"You wanna see a dead body?" one of the kids casually asks Tre. They walk along the railroad tracks to an especially bombed out section of the city. In a field lies the body of a gunshot victim, stinking to high heaven and probably not going anywhere soon.

In Tre's neighborhood, houses are left unpainted and Armor Guard lines the first-floor windows. Crossing the street sometimes means having a gun stuck in your face from the window of a passing car. Helicopter searchlights flood the interiors of houses at night.

AFTER WHILE, "Boyz N' the Hood" resembles a prison movie, which of course it is. Still, there aren't drawn-out speeches about getting out of the city. According to father Furious, blacks should remain ing of age in black urban America and street life where friendship, pain, danger and love combine to form reality.

in inner-city neighborhoods to battle gentrification.

Furious wants Tre to be a man and works hard to keep him on the right road. And while their conversations sometimes resemble a black "Courtship of Eddie's Father," there is a valid message here about the importance of male role models in the black family.

"Your little friends don't have anyone to teach them," Furious tells Tre. "And you'll see what happens to them." Seven years later, Tre sees exactly what he means.

His best friends, Doughboy and Ricky (Ice Cube and Morris Chestnut), live across the street. One spends his teen years in juvenile homes. The other pursues a football scholarship. Others join the ranks and hang out on the street, selling "the rock," sometimes for sex, and talking nonstop about everything and nothing.

Director John Singleton definitely talks the talk, even if you can only decipher half of the dialogue. He also fills "Boyz N' the Hood" with clever visual touches.

Early on, a burglar enters the house while Tre and Furious sleep. The relentless drip of a rusty faucet, shown in closeup, creates a dreamlike tension as the father removes the Magnum from beneath his bed.

L.A. POLICE brutality also rears its very topical head, this time in the form of a black police officer who enjoys terrorizing fellow blacks.

"Anything wrong?" the cop asks Furious, hoping to intimidate him. "Yeah, brother, but unfortunately you don't know what it is."

At only 23, director Singleton has a lot of answers. Where "Do the Right Thing" Spike Lee offers problems and lets an audience debate the solutions, this director knows exactly what he wants to say.

Unfortunately, Columbia Pictures, which has released the film, has obscured that message with misleading advertising that only plays up the violence. Word of mouth will hopefully remove the "Boyz" bad rap.

'Q & A' leaves a lot to be desired

A man runs up the stairs to a darkened New York street and realizes he's been set up an instant before a man at the basement doorway shoots him. The man places a gun in the dead man's hand. As the crowd from a nearby dance club starts to gather around, the man backs them off with his New York Police Department detective shield.

That opening scene in "Q & A" gives you a pretty good idea just what kind of a guy you're dealing with in Lt. Mike Brennan, played by Nick Nolte. A veteran officer, known to be rough at times, but well respected, the Q & A, the name for the district attorney on-the-record investigation of the officer-involved pass the popcorn

shooting, should be a cakewalk for Brennan.

It starts out that way as novice assistant D.A. Al Reilly, former policeman, son of police officer killed in the line of duty and 100 percent good old Irish lad, pattycaakes his way through Brennan's interview.

Things start going south for Brennan when Reilly, played by Timothy Hutton, interviews others with a connection to the case — Puerto Rican drug dealer Bobby Texador, who has a pretty good line about the murder of his associate.

WITH HIS slicked back hair, broad moustache and paunch over his belt, Nolte captures a certain type of guy you'd pick out of a crowd as a cop, even down to his too tight sport coat.

He's a loud bragging, bullying racist sort of fellow. The type of guy who tells his closest friend and ally in the department that he's the whitest black guy he ever knew. (I cleaned up that quote.)

As a Puerto Rican drug dealer, Assante is sleek and loose, making no excuses for his profession or doing what he needs to survive.

The major problems with the 1990 film are two-fold. Director Sidney Lumet's script isn't strongly focused and he gives the actors little to work with. That leads to the second problem which is Hutton, who is pale in every sense. Nolte and Assante have enough presence and skill as actors to fill in the blanks on their characters. Hutton has never outgrown that unformed adolescent quality that worked for him in "Ordinary People."

It's best to leave daughter at camp

Dear readers,

Recently, a young mother of an 8-year-old daughter asked me the question I am going to answer in today's column. The situation she describes is a common one and so I want to share some thoughts about it with you.

Mom relayed the following vignette:

Jane, her daughter is at an overnight camp for two weeks. It is some distance away. As is required of most camps, Jane wrote some letters after she had been there a few days. Two of her letters were to family friends. In those, she reported having a "great time." But in the letter she wrote to her parents, her refrain was less positive. To them, she reported not happiness but loneliness.

Mom and Dad became very worried and called the camp. They were told by the owner that the letter to the friend was the honest one and that Jane was in fact having fun. While Mom felt satisfied with this response, Dad remained concerned and was contemplating rescuing his daughter.

It was at this point that Mom asked for advice.

Before giving any, I investigated the reliability of the counselors and Jane's general mental health. Both were positive. I then told Mom not to worry and to insist on her daughter completing her two-week stay.

There are two questions that need to be answered. First, why would a normal, happy kid report being unhappy when she was not? And what if the situation were not so clear and Jane was lonesome, should her parents then rescue her?

Jane reports being unhappy because, like most children, she doesn't want to be forgotten. She reasons that if her parents think she is "just fine," she will be easily dismissed, so she is not "fine" when communicating with them. While this is immature, Jane is a child and self-centered logic is appropriate.

The next vignette will help explain why Jane's parents shouldn't rescue her, even if she were lonesome.

I am seeing an 8-year-old boy as a psychotherapy patient. Last year, he went to overnight camp for eight days. This year, his parents wanted him to go for 19 days, but left the decision up to him. He refused to go any longer than the eight days he went last year because, one, he doesn't like being away from home and, two, he said his parents just wanted to get rid of him.

Over a few weeks, he and I discussed this issue. I asked him what he would think of his Mom and Dad if they still lived with their parents. He laughed at this silly idea. I asked him if he wanted to "go away" to college when he was 18 and he emphatically said yes. Without explanation, he was getting the idea that practice is essential to independence as it is in other endeavors.

In school, the books get harder and the message to our children is that they are expected to meet greater intellectual demands. In sports, the competition gets stiffer and the message to our children is that they must increase their physical strength.

Emotional development needs to be taught, too, not by protecting our kids from any hurt but by helping them to stretch their capacity to work it through.

So, if the price you must pay for sending your child to camp is a sad letter or two, put up with it. You'll be stronger from the experience.

If you have a question or comment for Barbara Schiff, a trained therapist and experienced counselor, send it to Street Sense at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

"Vincent and Theo" (USA — 1991). 7 p.m. July 27 and 6:45 p.m. July 28. Another artist's portrait, this time directed by Robert Altman. The film supposedly brings new insight into the relationship between Van Gogh and his patient brother/benefactor Theo, though it's basically the same old tortured artist story with some distinctly modern twists.

'Q&A' has problems

As an adult actor, he just leaves a blank in the center of the film made all the more noticeable by good performances around him. It's telling when what pivotal but in effect supporting characters make a stronger impression than the central characters.

"Q & A" ATTEMPTS to look at police corruption, the problems of the police becoming an occupying force in a community and racism without much success. Just about everyone in the film is blatantly racist and at some level corrupt, even if only from the looking the other way.

One thing you have to give the film credit for is not ending with everything in a neat package. It's more like real life in that regard. Things often end badly and the guilty parties don't always get theirs in the end.

The often socially conscious Lumet has certainly had greater success in examining these issues in earlier films such as "Serpico" and "Prince of the City," both substantially better written and in the central role, acted films.

Red C — Stephen Woods, Susan Calloway, Tim Diaz and Guido Milligan — has done some rethinking in the last year and as a result, the role of Christianity in their music is more vague.

Red C aims for record deal

right away. That and (the band had) a clear cut direction."

Billy Brandt is another new face. Brandt was a member of the since-disbanded outfit Ash Can VanGogh. He saw Red C perform and promptly offered his services to the fledgling outfit. He's been busy shopping the band around.

One of the top priorities was getting Red C into the studio to record a first-rate demo tape. The band entered Pearl Sound in Canton and came out with a five-song offering that is, if anything, a refinement of Red C's initial musical vision.

Label interest is there, including one record executive who reportedly sat in on one of the band's sessions in Diaz's basement. Red C will have a showcase for art and repertoire representatives 10 p.m. Wednesday, July 24, at Alvin's in Detroit. Admission is free.

This is something the band has worked for in the past year, playing an exhaustive schedule of shows in the area.

"ONCE YOU find out what you do best, you should put your heart into it totally," Calloway said.

But in this breakneck determination to score a record deal one wonders how long the band can hold out without being consumed themselves? Calloway and Diaz admit things have grown intense, but add it's still fun.

"Yeah, there's always that chance," Diaz said. "That chance where you wonder at how hot can something get before it explodes. If you can't get to that point, how do you refine? We haven't reached that point yet, though. We're burning along."

Rita Rudner went from dancing on Broadway to the stage for stand-up comedy.

Comedy's best

Rita's laugh meter ticks at No. 1

By Shirlee Rose Iden
staff writer

For Rita Rudner, voted the 1990 Best Female Stand Up Comedienne, performing is like having someone over for dinner — "There's communication and some pleasant talk about things you care about."

Not to mention a few laughs. As for her recent appearance in Las Vegas, Rudner loves Nevada's fun city — "It's very hot, very nice and I like seeing my name up on a big marquee, and feeling the excitement of the audiences."

As for her life with husband Martin Bergman, an English comedy producer, they're "a pretty funny family" — "We know lots of Hollywood types," said Rudner, who admits she wasn't quite prepared for an unexpected visit to her dressing room by Debbie Reynolds recently. "She came backstage and we really clicked. Debbie decided the next night we would have a party in my dressing room and she arranged the whole thing."

A hot talent with a cool, subdued delivery, the comedienne is a native of Miami who left home and family at age 15 to pursue a career on Broadway as a dancer.

"I WAS SUCH a headstrong kid, I just never gave my parents an option," she said. "I had graduated from high school so I just left. And I've been in show business ever since."

Rudner said her parents, knowing her, told her to go try her luck and they'd back her up. "Now they watch on television and are proud. Dancers are different," she said. "We start very young and we're very determined. I was only five when I began dancing."

Rudner worked Broadway for 10 years, loving every experience, such as appearing in the original productions of "Mack and Mabel" with Robert Preston and Bernadette Peters, appearing in Stephen Sondheim's "Follies" and playing a featured role in the musical "Annie."

"I had all kinds of parts, but the longer I worked the more I realized that it's hard to get work on the Broadway stage and it pays very little."

One night in 1980 after completing her "Annie" role, she snuck into a New York comedy club and tried her hand at stand-up. Rudner hasn't looked back since.

"I REALIZED George Burns was still making movies and Gene Kelly hadn't worked in along time," she said and began to develop a style based on finesse and soft talk, but with a kick.

Her well written material and poised sophistication have succeeded in winning top comedy awards and accolades for her first solo, hour-long special for HBO "Born to Be Mild," voted best comedy special in the Cable Guide's reader's poll, and two hour-long specials that showcased her versatility.

"After I turned to comedy, I kept on working very hard every day," she said. "I write all my own stuff, but from the beginning I studied comedy from books in the library, from comedy albums and watching other comics and people."

Her comedic heroes include Woody Allen and Jack Benny, her personal all-time favorite.

"I admire comedians who take the profession to the next step, such as directing or producing," she said.

Rudner works hard at writing something new every day for her act and she is presently working on a book of comic essays, titled "I Wrote a Book."

"I TRY THINGS all the time and think about my work most of the time," she said.

She and her husband live on the west coast.

"I met him pretty late, when I was age 30, but it worked out even though he lived in Australia," she said.

She has learned to love Australia where "it's less hectic and there are fewer people," she explained.

Since she left dancing, Rudner said she's not quite in the shape she was when she was on Broadway though she bikes and does stretches.

"Sometimes we play tennis, too," she said. "But I'm not good enough to wear a headband."

Busy every moment, the woman who never came close to registering for college classes works on her book and is close to getting a movie script produced. She also is preparing a one-woman show and contemplates the writing of more scripts.

"I'm never going to stop doing stand-up," she said. "Determination is the great gift, even more than talent."

Rita Rudner will appear Tuesday, July 23, at MainStreet Comedy Showcase, 314 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Show times are 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. For information, call 996-9080.

Hairstylist Photi of Salon 313 in Farmington Hills says the '90s man will trade in the pulled-back ponytail look of Steven Seagal and sport the dirty hair look of actor Mickey Rourke. Here he updates Tom Leach's short haircut.

'90s man: Being himself, not someone else

By Debbie Sklar
special writer

The 1960s brought us mod clothing, Bob Dylan and Sean Connery as "Bond . . . James Bond."

The 1970s introduced us to Alan Alda, pastel-colored leisure suits and open-necked polyester shirts, accented with gold chains . . . lots of gold chains.

In the 1980s, it was Richard Gere, the return of the bow tie and punk rockers with stiff spiked hair . . . and safety pins as facial ornaments.

What about the 1990s? After all, we're in the second year of the last decade of the 20th century, aren't we? What can we expect our men to look like as these years go by?

If you've been star watching lately, Dennis Quaid and Mickey Rourke are only a couple of the celebs that are opting for the dirty hair look. According to stylist Photi of Salon 313 in Farmington Hills, dirty hair is the look for the '90s.

"A lot of men are opting for this dirty hair look because it's more masculine," he said.

How does one get that look?
"A lot of it has to do with the cut," Photi said, "and by using a lot of pomade — a perfumed ointment for the hair."

PHOTI SAID men should say goodbye to ponytails and exchange them for more conservative looks — "Men want to look like men in the '90s — they want to be themselves and not someone else."

He added that the styles of the 1950s are making a comeback — "Hair is a lot shorter in the back, just barely touching the collar."

And what about hair coloring?
"The older gentleman is going back to his natural gray and the younger guys are going toward the more conservative direction — they're not coloring their hair," Photi said.

And what about all this environmental stuff that's got Hollywood's brightest and best men and women (mostly women) on a recycling bandwagon? Is the '90s man going to be an avid participant?

According to environmental attorney David Fink, who has offices in Lansing and Farmington Hills, the '90s man will be concerned about the quality of his life.

"As he is becoming increasingly aware of the consequences of living in a throw-away society, issues such as toxic waste, industrial pollution and refuse disposal will continue to loom over the country's future and dominate the public psyche," Fink said. "I think the man of the 1990s will be more concerned about the quality of his life, possibly more than was deemed in the past."

"WHETHER IT'S about family life, quality of recreational activities to the natural environment, men will be more active."

However, Fink "hates to think that the man of the '90s is going to be stereotyped that easily." He hopes that in the '90s, the excess of the "me" generation and the simplicity of the radicalism of the '60s are left behind.

"The man of the '90s is going to be a man who looks for quality of life for himself and his family," he said.

And what would the man of the 1990s be without fashion? Are we going to go back to the days of the John Travolta disco look? White three-piece suits with platform shoes?

"No way," said Chris Cosola, owner of Maxwell's, a men's clothing store in downtown Birmingham. "I sure hope not, that would be frightening."

Cosola said men in the '90s will definitely become more fashion conscious.

"They're really moving toward quality," he said. "What we're seeing in the marketplace is men who are going to be wearing more comfortable clothes. It's not the case of the clothes wearing the man anymore, it's the man wearing the clothes."

Cosola said men will be sporting clothes that are less confining, more stylish and more Euro-traditional — "I guess you could call it a retro look back at the '40s."

SHOULDERS OF coats will be bigger, with cuffs and pleated slacks making a comeback — "the styles of Clark Gable, Gene Kelly and the Prince of Wales, guys that had great style."

Charles Rothstein, a 32-year-old investment banker for Andover Capital in West Bloomfield, is hoping to see a return of "more traditional values" in the 1990s.

"Instead of the 'me' generation, I hope that people, men included, will return to a more traditional way of thinking," he said. "I think we will be more family oriented and people in general will have more concern for what's going on around them."

Through his job, Rothstein sees men being more concerned about health and physical fitness. They also are more concerned about their "fellow man," he said.

"The '80s man was more into overspending and overextending," he said. "The '90s man is more into the savings and investment mode."

Rothstein himself has returned to traditional values and said goodbye to the days of conspicuous consumption.

ARE MEN OF the '90s more concerned about their weight? Are big biceps the issue or is a more lean physique a concern?

Well, according to Dr. Richard Mark, who has a family practice in Ypsilanti, Plymouth, Garden City and Madison Heights, more and more men are coming in for regular health exams.

"Maybe that's a sign of the '90s — men are really more concerned about their health, more so than before," said Mark, who also has ties with Weight Watchers — he's part of the family that serves as one of the board of directors. "It's funny, even though we're supposed to be in the midst of a recession, a lot of people are signing up for Weight Watchers."

Like Rothstein, Mark said he sees an extension of the '80s physical fitness craze spilling over into the '90s. He also sees the big, bulky muscular body on its way out. So what's in?

"A lean, level headed man who has general concerns about the way he looks and about relationships," he said. "There are an awful lot of people out there that once dated numerous people. Now they have become more monogamous because they're worried about sexually transmitted diseases. I've been doing a lot of AIDS testing."

So, according to our experts, the man of the 1990s is going to be a breed apart from Richard Gere, Alan Alda and Sean Connery. He's going to be lean and mean, well-dressed in a '40s get-up, with dirty hair and environmentally active.

Makes you wonder what the year 2000 will bring, doesn't it?

Chris Cosola of Maxwell's in Birmingham works with John McManus of Huntington Woods with the color combinations being sported by the '90s man.

Art fairs to boast potpourri of wares

By Linda Ann Chomin
special writer

CELEBRATE THE arts at one of the largest fairs in the country — the Ann Arbor Arts Fair Wednesday-Saturday, July 24-27.

Nearly 1,000 artists will exhibit their work during the dog days of July in a celebration of art, music, theatrics, fun and food.

During the four-day event, artists will display paintings, drawings, print making, ceramics, sculpture, glass, photography, 2-D mixed media, 3-D mixed media, metal/jewelry, wood and fiber.

Three separate art fairs line the streets of Ann Arbor during the midsummer festival of the arts — the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, the State Street Area Art Fair and the Summer Art Fair sponsored by the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans.

THE ANN Arbor Street Art Fair has delighted fair visitors for 32 years. This year, it features 196 artists from 35 states.

"We like to think of the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair as being on the cutting edge, with emerging as well as established artists. There are 57 new artists, not a part of the fair last year. Glass, fiber and wood categories were rejured this year," said Susan Froelich, coordinator of the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair.

'We like to think of the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair as being on the cutting edge, with emerging as well as established artists.'

— Susan Froelich coordinator

"Stephen Zeh from Maine is a traditional basket maker who will be demonstrating during the fair. He's bringing a log, stripping it and making baskets," Froelich said. Zeh, who works in the tradition of Maine woodsmen, Penobscot Indians and the Shakers, will demonstrate the ancient art of basketmaking at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. each day on East University in Booth 112.

THE 24-YEAR-OLD juried State Street Area Art Fair features 200 artists. Organized in 1968 by a group of State Street merchants, it is located in the heart of the State Street shopping district.

Now in its 21st year, the Summer Art Fair features 540 booths with almost 580 exhibiting artists. Sponsored by the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, the fair includes an Imagination Booth where families can create works of art for free. The art activity area is at the U. S. Post Office Plaza on Liberty Street.

"The fair has lots of good places to eat, where you can sit and refresh yourself," said Shary Brown, coordinator of the Michigan Guild's Summer Art Fair.

THE ANN Arbor Transportation Authority provides shuttle and trolley service during the fair from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Wednesday-Friday and 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday.

Visitors to the fair are encouraged to park free at Briarwood Mall, off I-94 on State Street, and Pioneer High School, Main at Stadium, and take the shuttle bus to either the Main Street area or the South University area. The fare is $2 for adults ($1 each way). Children 7 and younger ride free. Call 996-0400.

The Art Fair Trolley operates between the three fairs, charging 50 cents per passenger, free with a shuttle ticket.

The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair is on South University East University and Church Street.

The State Street Area Art Fair lines Maynard, Liberty, Thompson, William, and North University.

The Summer Art Fair is on State Street from South University to William, Liberty Street from Ashley to Fifth, and Main Street from William to Huron.

Fair hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday-Friday, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, July 24-27.

Originally from West Bloomfield, artist Bruce Migdal now lives in Guatemala. From left are his pastels, the "Male Witches of Guatemala" priced at $700 and "Native Guatemalan" at $800.

Migdal portrays Guatemalan life

By Cathleen Collins Lee
special writer

Artists exhibiting at the State Street Area Art Fair come from all over Michigan and from other states, but Bruce Migdal may be the only one to come from Guatemala.

Migdal, who grew up in Farmington Hills and uses watercolors and pastels to create what he calls "symbolic realistic" works, doesn't come just for the Ann Arbor fair, of course.

He spends nine months in Guatemala, then comes north in the summer to sell his work through art fairs around Detroit and Chicago.

Migdal moved to Guatemala six years ago and lives near Santiago Atitlan, a town of indigenous Mayan people. He says the people, culture and natural beauty of Guatemala have influenced his work considerably, especially in the use of brighter colors.

A slender, intense man with a deep tan, Migdal lives in the highlands of Guatemala near a volcanic lake, along with a small international community of artists.

THE NATIVE people there live much as settlers here might have lived 150 years ago. But Migdal has some basic conveniences such as electricity and refrigeration.

"I'm a gringo," he says with a grin. "I live there, but I'm still who I am."

Although Migdal wants to capture life in Guatemala through his art, he is moving away from a representational approach to a more surrealistic one that he feels expresses his own vision of life there.

Some of his current works combine strangely shaped flowers or flowers and enormous butterflies in vibrant colors and unexpected arrangements.

MIGDAL HAS been passionately interested in art as long as he can remember. He studied fine arts at Wayne State University, but considers himself largely self-taught.

"I don't think art is something that can be taught or learned," he says. "It's something you're born with."

Art is so much a part of his life that Migdal has never seriously considered doing anything else, despite the financial hardships of supporting himself as an artist.

"It's very hard to do, and it gets harder when the economy is bad," he said. "It's a little scary now. But I'm willing to sacrifice and do it. It's who I am. That's my life."

Bruce Migdal will be in the State Street Area Art Fair in Booth 338 on Liberty Street.

Artist Thomas LeGault works on an abstract piece, "Template Relief," priced at $150. A traditional landscape, "Quiet Cove," rests on an easel in the foreground. It's priced at $150.

LeGault refines work efficiency

By Linda Ann Chomin
special writer

After 21 years of painting full-time, artist Thomas LeGault of Plymouth creates a traditional northern Michigan landscape bathed in a pink mist, in record time — an hour and a half to be exact.

"After all these years of painting, I've become more and more efficient," said LeGault, appearing in the Summer Art Fair in Ann Arbor July 24-27. "I guess I'm loosening up."

LeGault uses acrylics to paint realism landscapes and highly textured floral abstracts.

His palette swings from "a lot of the softer, pastel colors, to deep teal with bright violet blues pushing red in the aggressively strong pieces."

LeGault began painting at 14 after his sister "dragged him to a painting class." At 18, he opened his first studio. At 21, he opened a second studio.

LeGault attended art classes at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit after high school but "quit in frustration after one too many projects of gluing yellow straws together."

"One psychology class taught me more about perception than any college art classes," LeGault said.

PAINTING IS a full-time business for LeGault, one with which he supports a family of four. He does 30 to 40 art shows a year throughout the state.

Until recently, he lived part-time in Florida, where he did shows in Palm Beach and Boca Raton. LeGault tired of the fast track, which he describes as "too many shows and rich people who treat art as just another purchase among many."

"I enjoy these people here in Michigan. Michigan is so much warmer, so much kinder," LeGault said.

In LeGault's "Quiet Cove," a lighthouse lures the eye into the composition where scenery dances off a shimmering lake. From behind a wood house and shed alongside the lighthouse, the masts of harbored sailboats arise into a pale morning sky. Blue, auburn and white dominate the tranquil scene where dashes of brown accentuate papery white birch trees. The painting is priced at $150.

LeGault's landscapes and abstract florals are priced from $150 to $1,000 with most in the range of $125 to $150.

Thomas LeGault will exhibit and demonstrate his acrylic painting at the Summer Art Fair in Booth 416 on Main Street.

Left: Artist Pat Dunn-Bremner displays a mixed media work, "See No Evil" ($500), from her "Speak No Evil" series. On the drawing board is a work in progress, started last summer when she visited her son in Sardinia, Italy, entitled, "In Search of the Prince" ($1,000).

Honored lensman to showcase slides

A slide presentation titled "The Earth" will showcase the work of internationally recognized photographer George Chan during the Summer Art Fair in Ann Arbor July 24-27.

During the last 10 years, Chan has traveled extensively for magazines such as Conde Nast Traveler, Signature and Reader's Digest.

In 1990, he was one of 200 photographers selected for the award-winning book project "Day In The Life Series."

A native of China, he has done a vast amount of photojournalistic work for "The Earth Chinese Geographic Monthly, a parallel of National Geographic.

In "The Earth," viewers will have an opportunity to see the many cultural faces inhabiting our world, from eloquent creations of Mother Nature to graphic urban landscapes and the many faces of mankind.

Chan's photographs will be shown at noon and 3 p.m. daily at the Ann Arbor Artist's Co-op, 617 Huron-Harris Hall, lower level (the entrance faces State Street.)

The 40 tickets per show, at $1, will be sold on a first-come, first-serve basis. Some original photographs will be available for sale after the show.

For information, call George Chan Photography in Ann Arbor, 1-313-998-0736.

Dunn-Bremner strives to provoke through art

By Linda Ann Chomin
special writer

Through her representational paintings, a collage of children, dogs, stars, nature and sometimes the written word, artist Pat Dunn-Bremner seeks to relay a tale of life and human nature.

"I like to tell stories with my work," said Pat Dunn-Bremner of Birmingham.

Hers is a story worth telling. Dunn-Bremner began painting in the 1960s using the mediums of oil paint and drawing for expression. In the '70s, she set aside art "to raise four kids as a single working parent." She remarried in 1981; 1982 found her painting again.

At times, her palette is reminiscent of Gauguin, while her use of line is Matisse. The figure dominates much of Dunn-Bremner's work, making a strong statement about her sensitivity and compassion for children and life.

Admiration for the work of Expressionist painter Egon Schiele, as well as modern masters such as Robert Rauschenberg and Gustav Klimt, heavily influence her use of collage and psychological content.

"I change my style a lot. At the fairs, people say, 'What have you got this year,'" Dunn-Bremner said. "I use very strong colors, basically primary colors, very brilliant, very bold looking."

DUNN-BREMNER PRIDES herself on being "basically self-taught except for taking a few classes at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association." She loves painting, but drawing is a means of expending energy and expression.

"I have this energy for drawing," Dunn-Bremner said. "I'm trying to do something different. Most of my work is pretty provoking."

While past work was created using watercolor, Dunn-Bremner's recent work is two-dimensional mixed media, a combination of acrylic, crayon and oil stick.

"I'm trying to push the medium to the max," Dunn-Bremner said. "My latest work looks a lot like printmaking."

Dunn Bremner's price range is determined by the size of the work, with pieces from $200 to $1,200.

Her work has been exhibited at the Scarab Club and J. Walter Thompson Gallery in Detroit, as well as the National Watercolor Society Exhibition in California.

Illinois, Ohio, Florida, Minnesota and Michigan are some of the states where Dunn-Bremner displays her art in fairs. This is her third year in the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair.

"I enjoy it and there's a lot of feedback," Dunn-Bremner said. "This is the most prestigious art fair in the country."

Pat Dunn-Bremner's 2-D mixed media paintings can be seen at the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair in Booth 179 on E. University.

Strengths help counter faults

Everyone knows people have strengths and weaknesses, but few realize it's actually desirable to have some weaknesses.

If people had strengths in every area, they would become inwardly overwhelmed with talents and pulled in diverse directions. Strengths or talents manifest themselves as an "appetite," a need to be used.

Having too many high aptitudes produces emotional stress because people can't possibly do everything that appeals to them. The result is often the "Jack of all Trades and Master of None" syndrome.

It's a shame most other talents are not as apparent as organizing skills. When a person is well organized, it shows.

Their environment — their person, their time, even their thinking and speaking — shows evidence of their organizational adeptness. That same person may be poor at math, communication, art, science, or an infinite number of other things, yet these weaknesses are easily hidden because they are invisible to the eye, while their neat and tidy surroundings are so obvious.

The old joke, "An empty desk is a sign of an empty mind," is amusing to some (at the expense of perfectionists) but grossly unfair. Assumptions, of course, should never be made so superficially.

THE OPPOSITE is equally true, however. A messy desk isn't a sign of an empty mind, either. People with messy surroundings should never be judged solely on their inability to maintain order.

These people ordinarily have certain other talents far exceeding their organized counterparts yet, because their surfaces are messy, their visible disorder is invisible to the eye. As a result, they are too often the organizing

brunt of criticism and/or "humorous" assaults by others.

Children are the most frequent recipients of such attacks. From wisdom gained through experience, parents and teachers understand the high costs of disorganization, and their concern over their children's skills can develop into anxiety. Then they end up nagging and harassing, wringing their hands and proclaiming, "I've tried everything," with the child who "marches to the beat of a different drummer."

It's difficult to tell whether children are disorganized because they are lazy, rebellious, depressed or feel confused, because they just haven't learned how to be organized or actually lack the necessary aptitudes — or a combination of all of the above.

In every case, however, children need encouragement, not criticism or putdowns; love, not rejection; patient understanding, not nagging; positive motivation, not denial of their capabilities. The less children deserve love, the more they need it.

If your child or adults around you lack organizational skills, realize that maybe that one weakness is leaving room for a different strength, and think twice before you criticize them.

Dorothy Lehmkuhl is a time-management consultant based in Birmingham.

How interested are you in selling your home?

Interested enough to spend a few moments and discover the best place to advertise the fact that your home is for sale?

Good. We knew you were intelligent.

In fact, more than 40% of our readers have college degrees or better.*

And if knowledge is power, let's look at a few powerful facts: this newspaper, the one you're reading right now, reaches some of the most affluent households in Wayne and Oakland counties:

That's a median household income of more than $50,000—$10,000 more than the income of the people who don't read our newspapers. So when you advertise in your Observer & Eccentric newspapers, you not only reach thousands of smart people, you reach people with substantial incomes.

Now, that's something to smile about.

Our circulation area has 90% home ownership and look at the value of our reader's homes:

FACT: When you advertise with us you will reach 9 out of 10 adults in the Observer & Eccentric market area who have read weekly classified advertising.*

FACT: 91% of the adults in our market area who had read classified advertising in the past seven days had read it in the Observer & Eccentric*.

So, we can offer you one quarter of a million adult readers and a very rich market, what else do we have for you? How about an award-winning newspaper— a newspaper that people trust and look forward to reading? One that reaches 25 communities with important local news that's not available anywhere else.

That's us.

By the way, did you know that all those little ads in the back of this newspaper—the ones placed by people like you—are published in all 12 newspapers? Therefore, when you advertise anything from a horn to a home, you will automatically reach this huge, interested reading audience.

What else can we say? We've had years of experience in publishing newspapers and are proud of our record for successfully putting home buyers in touch with home sellers.

In fact, we've just introduced HOMELINE, a great new way to find out about open houses simply by using your touchtone telephone.

Be sure to mention it to your Realtor® so that when it comes time to show your home, it will be described on HOMELINE.

It Just Makes SENSE!
TO ADVERTISE IN CLASSIFIED

There's no sense in letting unneeded items clutter up your house. Not when classified's around! A low-cost classified ad can turn your clutter into cash. And that's a pretty good exchange. After all, everybody has room for a little extra cash! Now that's horse sense!

HOROSCOPE

July 21 through July 27

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
A career goal is reached and material recognition pleases you. Be sincere when dealing with others this week. Avoid putting yourself before others.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)
Your emotional life will begin to settle down this week. Romance is in the air for you, and loved ones just want to do whatever they can to please you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
It is quite likely life will feel much more smooth and beautiful this week. Writing a persuasive letter will help you get what you want.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
Be ready for a time of much activity. Many people are coming and going in your life. Things you have thought to be detrimental will dissipate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
Think before you speak to those in high places this week. Much may occur in your home — some of which may be quite exciting.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
Demands on your time keep you whirling and whizzing this week. A family member or close friend may come under close scrutiny.

By C.C. Clark

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
Surprising events will have you very optimistic this week. Take your social life seriously and enjoy it for all it's worth. Others will appreciate you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
Difficulties with family members will magically disappear this week. A plan may go awry, but things actually work out in your best interests.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)
Your mental fireworks will go off in all directions this week. It will seem you can do no wrong. An innovative idea will bring you great sums of money.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Trouble in your work environment is most likely due to a communication problem. It may be necessary for you to stand back.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
A friend needs your help but may think you are too busy to care. Show your availability, and listen without judging.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
Make certain you set up a schedule for yourself this week, or you will be running in circles.

LeMond shoots for fourth Tour win

By Steve Paschal

The road to a fourth Tour de France championship has been anything but smooth for Greg LeMond. But you might say things are just running true to form for the defending champion from the United States.

First, LeMond blew a tire as he was making a move to take the lead on the second day of the race. Then, he became involved in a war of words over tactics with Italian rider Claudio Chiapucci, who finished second to LeMond last year. However, those problems are nothing compared to the obstacles LeMond faced after 1986, when he became the first American ever to win the world's most famous and challenging bicycle competition.

LeMond's victory made him an instant celebrity, but near tragedy struck the following year when he was wounded in a hunting accident that left serious doubt as to whether he would ever compete again. While turkey hunting on an isolated farm near Sacramento, Calif., LeMond was accidentally shot by his brother-in-law, and he nearly bled to death before help finally arrived. It was two years before LeMond was able to return to the tour, but when he did, it was in a most dramatic fashion. Trailing by 50 seconds on the final day, LeMond overtook leader Laurent Fignon with a 15-mile sprint to win by a mere eight seconds, by far the closest finish in the 88-year history of the race.

The 30-year-old native of Wayzata, Minn., has had his troubles this year, first with minor injuries, then with fatigue brought on by a rigorous training schedule. He dropped out from the Giro d' Italia earlier this year, and then finished far behind the leaders in the Tour de Switzerland. However, the course through France, which has only four tough mountain stages, favors LeMond, who is at his best on the open road.

This week LeMond is attempting to join Frenchmen Jacques Anquetil and Bernard Hinault and Belgium's Eddy Merckx as the only four-time Tour de France winners, and ABC Sports will be there with same-day coverage when the riders cross the finish line on the Champs Elysees in Paris. The broadcast Sunday, July 28, will mark the climax of the most extensive coverage every by an American television network.

ABC first televised France's premier sporting event in 1989, and has expanded its coverage every year since. The network has devoted seven telecasts to this year's race, including two segments on ABC's Wide World of Sports, Sunday, prior to the conclusion, ABC will present a one-hour special recapping the events of the 22-day race that began in Lyons, France, July 2.

The Tour de France, which is run in 22 stages, is considered the most grueling of all bicycle races. It stretches over a 2,462-mile course through France and neighboring countries that includes 15 mountaintop passes and four mountaintop finishes. The oldest of all the major international bicycle races, the Tour de France was first run in 1903, but was not held during the years covering the two world wars.

Other cyclists to watch include Chiapucci, Tour du Pont winner Erick Breukink, Rolf Sorensen of Denmark, Russian Djamolidine Abdoujaparov and Canadian Steve Bauer, who wore the polka-dot leader's jersey for nine days in 1990.

(Front Cover) American Greg LeMond will be going after his third consecutive victory when ABC broadcasts the conclusion of France's premier sporting event, the Tour de France, Sunday, July 28.

CABLE NEWS

Cable channel looks back to the future

By Dan Rice

Who knows what tomorrow brings? Well, for starters, on Saturday, July 27, the feats and follies of science fiction will make up The Family Channel's special, The Future: Then and Now. Host Scott Ross will compare current predictions as presented at Disney's EPCOT Center with those from vintage science-fiction films such as Metropolis and Things to Come. Leaping back to the Old West, an unusual stranger comes Into the Badlands. Debuting Wednesday, July 24, on USA, the trilogy of weird tales stars Bruce Dern, Mariel Hemingway and Dylan McDermott.

Moving forward in its programming with a feminine focus, Tuesday, July 23, marks the premiere of three new series on Lifetime. The mystery Veronica Clare stars Laura Robinson as an enigmatic private investigator who is also a partner in a jazz club. The Hidden Room offers suspenseful narratives adapted from short stories of women struggling with their deepest fears and desires. Theresa Saldana is the host of Confessions of Crime, which examines criminal behavior, by utilizing videotapes of police interrogations, as well as interviews with witnesses and criminal psychologists.

The masters of going faster will join together to honor this year's inductees into the International Motorsports Hall of Fame, Wednesday, July 24, on TNN.

Harried school principal Randy Quaid falls for one of his teachers in Davis Rules, Tuesday on ABC.

STAR NOTES

Bridget not just a pretty Fonda

By Lisa Otoupal

Bridget Fonda's portrayal of a British call girl involved in the Profumo sex scandal of the '60s, in the 1989 British drama Scandal, brought the Fonda name back into the spotlight. Gossip mongers, however, will be disappointed to learn the only drama the newest heir to the family acting legacy intends to provide is on the screen.

Fonda was born in Los Angeles. When her parents divorced, her brother left with her father, Peter, for the South Pacific, and Bridget remained behind with her mother, Susan Brewer.

After graduating from a private girls' school in Los Angeles, Fonda was offered a part in The Bride. Instead, she told director Franc Roddam she wasn't ready and headed for New York University to study acting.

Four years later, in 1988, Roddam remembered Fonda and asked her to be in his segment of Aria.

Like most actresses, Fonda has started with small parts. She has a co-starring role in the upcoming Doc Hollywood (with Michael J. Fox)—and is signed for the lead in the upcoming Singles (with Matt Dillon) and Single White Female.

Indeed, she seems nothing like her famous family. Peter was the '60s rebel. Jane's name was splashed across the headlines for her politics, romances and aerobics. Bridget has been called polite, sensible, levelheaded, sober, professional and patient. © TV Listing Inc.

Jack Lemmon heads the cast of the acclaimed miniseries The Murder of Mary Phagan, Sunday on NBC.

THURSDAY

As surfer Dylan McKay, Luke Perry aims to fill his summer with sun, fun and maybe a little romance. After all, school's out in new episodes of Beverly Hills 90210, Thursdays on Fox.

SOAP TALK

On-screen ladies' man Charles Shaughnessy is a proud papa

By Candace Havens

"When I'm dining, I care more about the ambiance than the food," says English-bred Charles Shaughnessy, who plays Shane Donovan on Days of Our Lives. "Give me an ocean view in a nice restaurant and I'm happy. About the only food I don't like is English food," he adds.

Shaughnessy's character is currently embroiled in a love triangle with the Brady sisters, Kayla (Mary Beth Evans) and Kimberly (Patsy Pease); he's dating one and divorced from the other. "I'm pretty keen on the story line we are working on now," says Shaughnessy. "It's the usual triangle, but the emotions in something like this are very dramatic."

"(Kim) is going to feel guilty, and I'm going to feel guilty, but at the same time I'm in love with her sister. It's good stuff. But we have to do it so that we don't upset the fans too much."

"I enjoy working with both women, but they are very different. They are equally exciting to work with. I'd like to see Shane have this affair with Kayla, and then later on he could realize that he still has feelings for Kim."

"Some days on a soap you are just coasting," says Shaughnessy. "It's fun when there is something that has to be done. This is also the perfect job if you have a family. I usually work around three days a week. I have as much time as I could want with my daughter (Jenny Johanna)."

"She has changed my whole attitude toward children. I've always liked children, but I never felt anything particularly emotional towards them. People would show me pictures of their kids and it would be, 'Gosh, when can I get out of here?'"

Since his own child was born, Shaughnessy says, "all you have to do is mention children and I get emotional. I consider myself a skilled and qualified parent. I can change a diaper just as quickly as anyone, and I wouldn't have it any other way."

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, TX 76161-1009. TV Listing Inc.
